NDDHS students repay the community

MAPLE RIDGE - The OAC students of North Dundas District High School are holding free exterior car washes in Chesterville and Winchester this Sunday, May 25, as a means of repaying the community for its support to the school. Students will wash cars from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Scotiabank lot in Chesterville and at the Winchester Arena.

Wheels rolling in Van Kessel plan

CHESTERVILLE – The Van Kessel zoning matter came back before Chesterville council last Wednesday after several months out of the public eye. Council viewed a draft report prepared by planning consultant Glenn Tunnock on a proposed site plan for Van Kessel's two-storey, 24-unit apartment for seniors. The report, which indicated more detailed information is needed on some aspects of the plan, is the first step in hammering out a site plan agreement between Van Kessel and the village. Once passed by council, the site plan will be forwarded to Ontario Municipal Board member Frank Watty, who in April, 1995 upheld the land's high-density zoning but asked to see a site plan before making his ruling official.

Hydro rate decrease possible

CHESTERVILLE -- Chesterville Hydro is considering a plan to institute a modest decrease in hydro rates. As an experiment, March and April billings were also calculated at the same rate charged by Winchester Hydro, and showed a difference of about $3,000 a month. Hydro Chairman Jim Cook said the utility can probably afford the $36,000 annual difference, especially since a third substation the village had budgeted for may no longer be necessary. The experiment will be reviewed by Chesterville Hydro's accountant, Dennis Gill. If adopted, it will shave about $3.85 from the average hydro bill.

Man charged with intent to murder

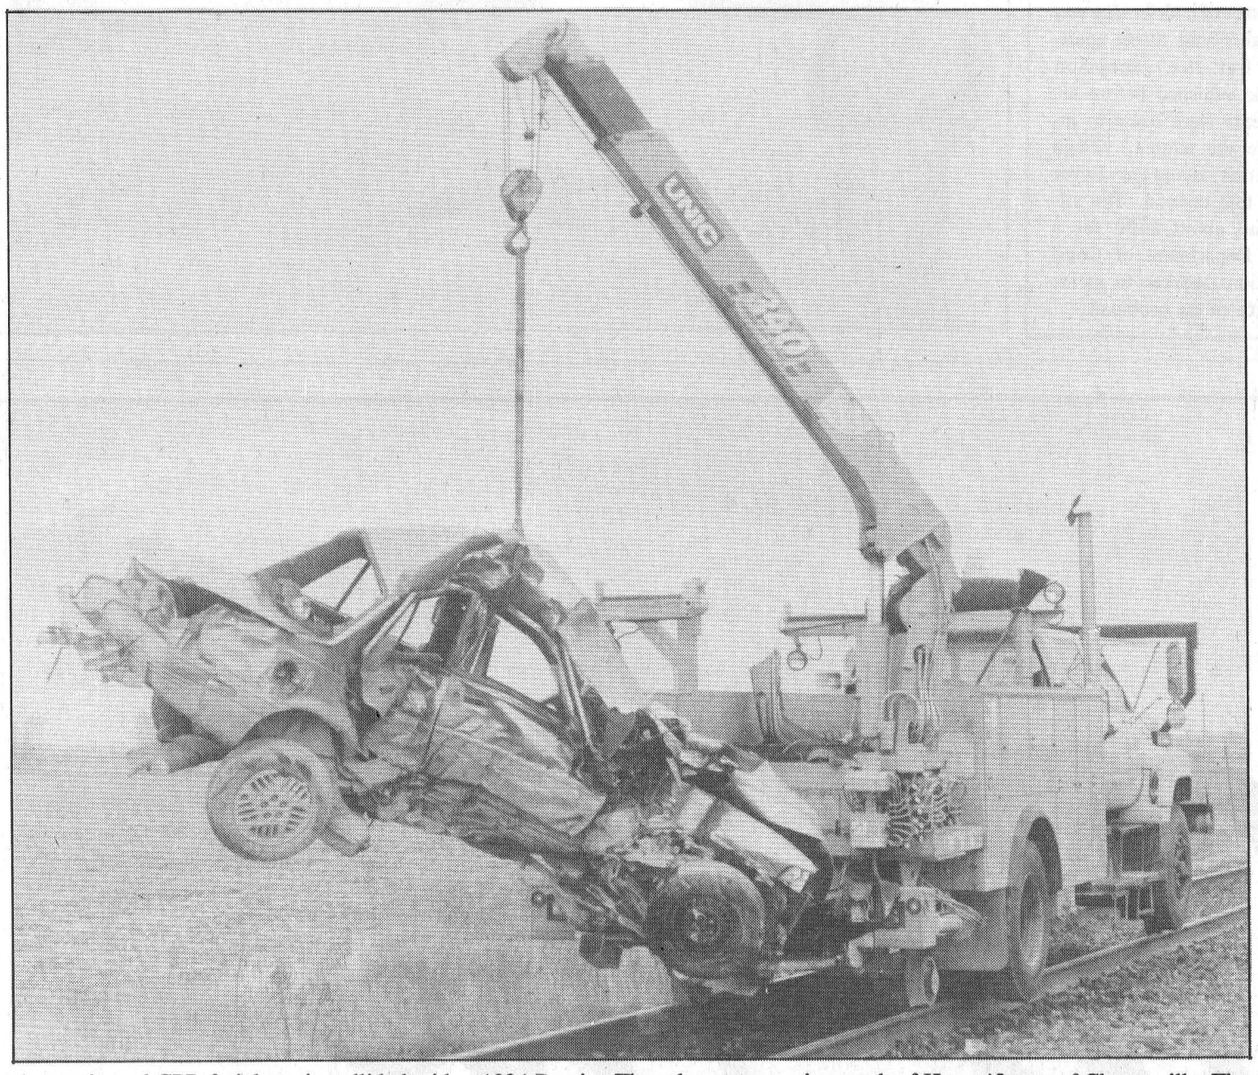
WILLIAMSBURG - An investigation into a May 9 incident at a Williamsburg group home has led to a number of serious charges against a 25-year-old Williamsburg Township man, OPP said. The man is charged with break and enter with intent to commit murder, trespass by night, two counts of uttering death threats and two counts of uttering threats to commit sexual assault. The man remains in custody to await a bail hearing May 26 in provincial court in Cornwall.

Residents air concerns about hydro project

CHESTERVILLE -- A handful of village residents with concerns about a proposed hydro project had their say at a recent meeting of the village's Hydro Commission. Residents asked if wires could be rerouted behind the village instead of along Casselman Street, but were informed it wasn't feasible. But the commission agreed to consider a single bound wire over the street as opposed to a multi-layered one, which would be more esthetic. The project is designed to remove unsightly overhead wires from the downtown core.

Flea market, fun

BERWICK - North Stormont Public School in Berwick is holding a Flea Market and Fun Fair Saturday, May 31 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The day features new and used items, as well as games and races for kids, pony rides and a petting zoo. Table rental is $5. For more information, call (613) 987-5633.



An eastbound CPR freight train collided with a 1994 Pontiac Thursday at a crossing north of Hwy. 43 east of Chesterville. The impact killed 37-year-old Ernest Sopsich, who had lived on the Connaught Road since 1986. Sopsich, a native of Toronto, was an accomplished shooter who had competed internationally.

Local man killed in train-car collision

CHESTERVILLE -- A Chesterville-area man was killed Thursday afternoon when the car he was driving was broadsided by an eastbound freight train at a level crossing between Chesterville and Finch.

The horrific accident happened around noon Thursday on the Dundas-Stormont Boundary Road, about a kilometre north of Hwy. 43. A southbound Pontiac Sunbird was struck by an eastbound freight train, and pushed more than a kilometre along the tracks before the train was able to stop.

Ernest Sopsich, the sole occupant of the vehicle, was pronounced dead at the scene. Sopsich, 37, had lived on the Connaught Road north of Chesterville since 1986.

The crossing where the accident happened is not equipped with lights or barriers. A fluorescent X-style sign and yellow 'Stop Before Crossing' sign face each direction. The unpaved boundary road is sparsely populated, and often referred to as a "farmer's road." It is most often used as a shortcut between County Road 9 and Hwy. 43.

The road was blocked off after the accident as ambulances, police, firefighters and CP Rail crews converged on the scene.

Coroner Dr. Gabriel Slowey arrived on the scene shortly before 1 p.m. The victim was removed from the scene shortly after 2 p.m., and the car removed about an hour later. Ontario Provincial Police and Canadian Pacific Railway officials continue to investigate the accident.

Sopsich came to the area from Toronto in 1985 to work at Morewood Industries, where he worked until 1990, said Lee Neilsen, a good friend and neighbor. Sopsich was to be married in late August to his girlfriend, Kelly Leach.

"He was very friendly, very outgoing," Neilsen said. "He was the kind of guy who was easy to know. He would do anything for you. He was just that kind of guy."

Neilsen said Sopsich was a world-class shooter, who at one time was both Ontario and Quebec champion, and was heavily involved with the Shooting Federation of Canada, serving at one time as its executive director.

Sopsich drove a school bus part-time for Lannin's in Chesterville, and recently had been freelancing for a local newspaper. Neilsen believed he was on his way to conduct an interview when the accident happened, but could not say for certain.

"He was a good fellow who tried hard to be friends with everybody."

Sopsich's parents, his only other immediate family in Canada, still live in Toronto.

Topless debate comes to Chesterville pool

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE -- Should women who use Chesterville's Centennial Pool this summer have the option of going topless? The village's Recreation Committee will grapple with that sensitive issue Thursday.

A recent Ontario court ruling determined women have the right to appear topless in public, and since then, it has been left to municipalities to decide whether women who use municipal swimming facilities should be allowed to bear their breasts.

The issue was raised at village council Wednesday by councillor Sharon Casselman, who noted the issue had been dealt with in Ottawa, and should be dealt with in Chesterville.

"I am not saying this to be smart, but it looks like it will be passed in Ottawa. What is going to be the rule in our pool?" she asked. "I think it's something we need to consider."

Reeve Jim Cook quickly noted the issue should be handled by the Recreation Committee, of which Casselman is a member. "Let's have the Recreation Committee go over it and do their usual good job of making a good recommendation," Cook said. Recreation Committee recommendations are brought back to council for passing.

Councillor Gail Parker said the village may be able to "control it" for now, but not for long. She noted the toplessness of women in public has been common in Europe for decades, and those standards may not be far behind in North America.

Casselman later said she neither condones or opposes women baring their breasts in public, but said the village should have a policy in place one way or the other because it is a pressing legal matter.

"It may never happen, but you should be prepared to deal with it," she said, stressing she did not raise the issue jokingly.

"It's here and it's got to be faced - we run a public swimming pool and we've got to be prepared. It's not a case of morals, it's a case of having a legal ruling in the province."

She said if the village does not have a municipal policy in place either way, then the village stands to be challenged on the issue.

Candidates will debate crime, agriculture

Greg Hewitt

WINCHESTER -- Candidates in the upcoming federal election will gather in North Dundas twice in the next two weeks to debate two particular issues.

An all-candidates meeting May 22 in Winchester will tackle the issues of gun control and crime, and related legislation.

The meeting is sponsored by the Dundas Firearms Association and takes place at the Winchester Arena at 7:30 p.m.

It's billed as a Federal Candidates' Question and Information Meeting.

MP Bob Kilger, PC Candidate Leslie O'Shaughnessy, Reform candidate Charles Dillabough, NDP candidate Syd Gardiner and Natural Law candidate Ian Campbell will participate.

On Tuesday, May 27, candidates will debate agricultural issues at North Dundas District High School at 8 p.m.

The gathering is co-sponsored by the federations of agriculture on Dundas and Stormont.

Although agriculture is the focus of the meeting, members of the public are invited to attend and pose questions on other federal issues.

Dundas Federation of Agriculture past president Gordon Garlough says the two federations are non- partisan, and are not "endorsing or attacking" any candidate.

The five candidates have answered a series of five agricultural questions put to them by the DFA and SFA, and their responses will be printed next week.

Province approves SD&G's amalgamation proposal

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

CORNWALL -- It's a done deal.

The provincial Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing Friday accepted the SD&G amalgamation proposal, meaning the United Counties' 20 municipalities will become six as of January 1, 1998, with a two-tiered level of government. The proposal reduces the number of municipal councillors in SD&G from 103 to 24.

And the new boundaries will be respected in the November 10 municipal election later this year.

The six new municipalities are the north and south halves of the three United Counties. The Township of North Dundas will include Chesterville, Winchester, Mountain Township and Winchester Township, and the Township of South Dundas will be Matilda and Williamsburg Townships and villages of Iroquois and Morrisburg.

The Township of North Stormont will be home to Finch Village and Finch and Roxborough Townships, and the Township of South Stormont pairs Osnabruck and Cornwall Townships.

The Township of North Glengarry encompasses Kenyon and Lochiel Township, the Town of Alexandria and the Village of Maxville, and Township of South Glengarry Charlottenburgh and Lancaster Townships and the Village of Lancaster.

The term of the current municipal councils has been extended to December 31, 1997. On January 1, 1998, the six new township municipalities will be born, and new councils put in place.

Chesterville is poised to become an unwilling partner in the marriage. The village has opposed the accepted scenario from the start, preferring foremost the village stay as it is, and if amalgamation is necessary, that all of Dundas become one municipality, without a second tier.

The village in February requested a commission to explore the proposal, but the request was turned down by the province.

But the province's rubber stamp may not necessarily mean the end of Chesterville's opposition, says village Reeve Jim Cook. "There are still recourses available to us and we'll be checking these out."

Cook said the village may consider a constitutional challenge to the province's ability to force amalgamation on a municipality, based on legal precedent involving the concept that the province's Savings and Restructuring Act cannot be used retroactively, for example, on a municipality that was incorporated more than 100 years ago.

Cook also said somewhat facetiously the village could "flatly refuse to join" North Dundas, which "could lead to some repercussions, civil disobedience et al. We're not really considering it, but it has worked in the past."

As far as the overall concept of amalgamation, Cook said he can see where it can benefit larger metropolitan centres. But rural governments, in his opinion, "have been very responsible and very efficient."

Winchester Township Reeve Claude Cousineau said Monday he was expecting the proposal to be approved by the province. He said while the number crunching still has to be done to determine how it affect local costs, he agrees with the basic principle.

Cousineau said suspects the upper tier will be done away with within five years, and the city of Cornwall will eventually join the club. "That would be 100,000 people, and that's basically what (the province) is looking for," Cousineau said. But he added he agrees with the amalgamation of four smaller municipalities as a starting point, to see how it will work.

Approved

The province to date has approved 31 municipal restructuring proposals in the province, proposals which have reduced 166 municipalities to 55 and reduced municipal councillors from 875 to 375 in those areas.

In a letter to SD&G municipalities, Minister of Municipal Affairs Al Leach commends local councils "for taking this very responsible action to give taxpayers more streamlined and efficient local government."

In other amalgamation news, Chesterville councillor Peter Van Kessel will not sit on the North Dundas Transition Committee as he did the North Dundas Restructuring Committee. Councillor Gail Parker was chosen last Wednesday as the village's second member of the committee. Councillor Sharon Casselman was selected as an alternate.

The village's other amalgamation representative, Jim Cook, will sit on the Transition Committee.

TV reception problem vanishes

CHESTERVILLE -- Intermittent TV reception problems that had plagued a number of village residents since December have disappeared as mysteriously as they appeared. Non-cable subscribers approached the village earlier this year to ask what could be done about the problem, and the village in turn asked for help from the federal government. A possible source of interference was traced to a Mill Street apartment, but the reception problems vanished before arrangements were made to investigate the source, village operations manager Peter Shahen told council. The village paid about $500 for a federal Department of Communications worker to locate the source of the problem.

Among those who got some exercise while helping a good cause was Brittany Tessier, thanks to rope holders Justin Brisson and Jarrod MacNaughton. The school was awarded with a five-year participation banner for its continuous support to the foundation.

Cover-up?

It was John Lennon who said, ''Violence is obscene. The human body is not.''

Nevertheless, the issue of a woman's right to appear topless in public, after being kicked around in Ontario's court system, has landed in Chesterville. The village's Recreation Committee this week will make a recommendation to council whether women who use the Centennial Pool must wear tops.

Is this an issue because a bare breast is something we're not used to seeing in public? Probably. It's true that in Europe, it's common for women to appear topless on beaches. For a more extreme example, native Africans had to get used to the idea of wearing clothes, and covering up, when the white man landed on the continent and introduced a new culture, and new values.

But what about Chesterville? Is this quiet village ready for public toplessness? Are there women who would take advantage of the ability to remove their tops at the Centennial Pool if it existed? Or is it a non-issue here?

With all the serious and pressing issues we're faced with today, it may seem a little silly to some that we're dealing with such an issue, right here, right now. On the other hand, a legal door has opened and it's not untoward that the issue should be addressed, even in Chesterville, and a policy put in place.

So what's it going to be? The village's Recreation Committee, and ultimately council, have an interesting debate on their tables. It is very much an issue of community standards; what will be tolerated in this community.

Are a woman's breasts obscene? Indecent? Certainly not. But would toplessness in the village's Community Park cause a stir? Absolutely.

Here's a couple of predictions: Council in the near future will endorse a Recreation Committee recommendation that full attire, for men and women, is required of those who use the village- owned facility.

And the decision will not be protested, because if there are women in the community who would prefer to bathe bare-breasted, they probably realize there are more auspicious places to exercise their rights than the Centennial Pool.

Off The Record

Council stays abreast of the times

By Robin Morris
Abreast of the Times Editor

You have to hand it to Chesterville Village Council. Undaunted by the amalgamania gripping Dundas and the rest of SD&G, council is keeping abreast of developments outside the village and last Wednesday night councillor Sharon Casselman grappled with an issue that could have the community chest-high in controversy this summer following Ottawa city council's decision to allow women to go topless at city-owned swimming pools.

Oh sure, I can hear the titters from here, but this is an issue that goes to the core of community decency as the courts have ruled that a women now have the same freedom to go barechested that men have enjoyed for decades and have passed the buck on to municipalities to rule on how this new-found freedom to go unfettered will affect us at the local level. It's not an easy road council has chosen to follow; the issue of public toplessness is rife with booby traps. It will require handling with kid gloves to balance the public's sense of morality with issues exposed by the Charter of Rights and Freedoms.

Remember Rudy Gernreich, the 60s fashion designer who came up with the topless bathing suit? It seems Rudy was ahead of the times back then, when his models kept getting tossed in the can for displays of public indecency, but he would fit in nicely in Ontario now that the battle for the right of women to go topless in public, started several years ago in Guelph, has ceased to be a tempest in a D-cup and has become the law of the land.

Jay Stone wrote in The Ottawa Citizen a couple of years back that if the woman arrested for public indecency in Guelph ever won her case the day of the court decision would be declared a public holiday in Chest-erville.

Well, Jay my old son, here's a little tit-for-tat. While village council may be breasting the current by baring the issue, it is not yet ready to embrace this new-found freedom with open arms. Instead it is putting its faith in the common sense of village residents to police themselves and limit these unconfined displays to backyard pools and table dancing bars, where the motto on St. Patrick's Day is "Erin Go Bra-less".

Council can't just lay open a question like this in a public forum for fear of being accused of base titillation. It's an esoteric question wrapped in erotic overtones that could have exotic consequences once the naked truth is revealed. One misstep and it would be nothing more than a juicy titbit for the daily press; tittle-tattle for the Sun, who would portray us as the Page Three Village. It's an emotional question that must be handled with delicacy for fear of those with strong opinions on the matter blowing their tops.

Since this is a lower court decision council could opt to butt out and decide not to bring a suit against those who wear only half of one, raise the admission price to Centennial Pool and we could all retire on the proceeds. Pool staffing costs would be eliminated with every David Hasselhof wannabe within a hundred miles volunteering his services. And where else can you mark the sinking of the Titanic not once but twice in a single year? It could even be made a daily event.

Synchronized swimming would become Canada's number one spectator sport, with spectators paying $10 a song (although how they'd get one of those champagne rooms at the bottom of the pool beats me, unless an enterprising entrepreneur started a scuba rental business) and we'd have to build breastworks around the village to keep out the curious (and to make sure they pay their admission charge). And I don't have to tell you what the most popular stroke would be at these events.

The good folk of Winchester, who have long frequented our licenced establishments and liquor store rather then be seen in the company of John Barleycorn in their own home town, would have another reason to make the 10 k trek to Chesterville and relations between the two villages would be further cemented, an important consideration on the eve of the amalgamation of the north half of Dundas County into one municipality.

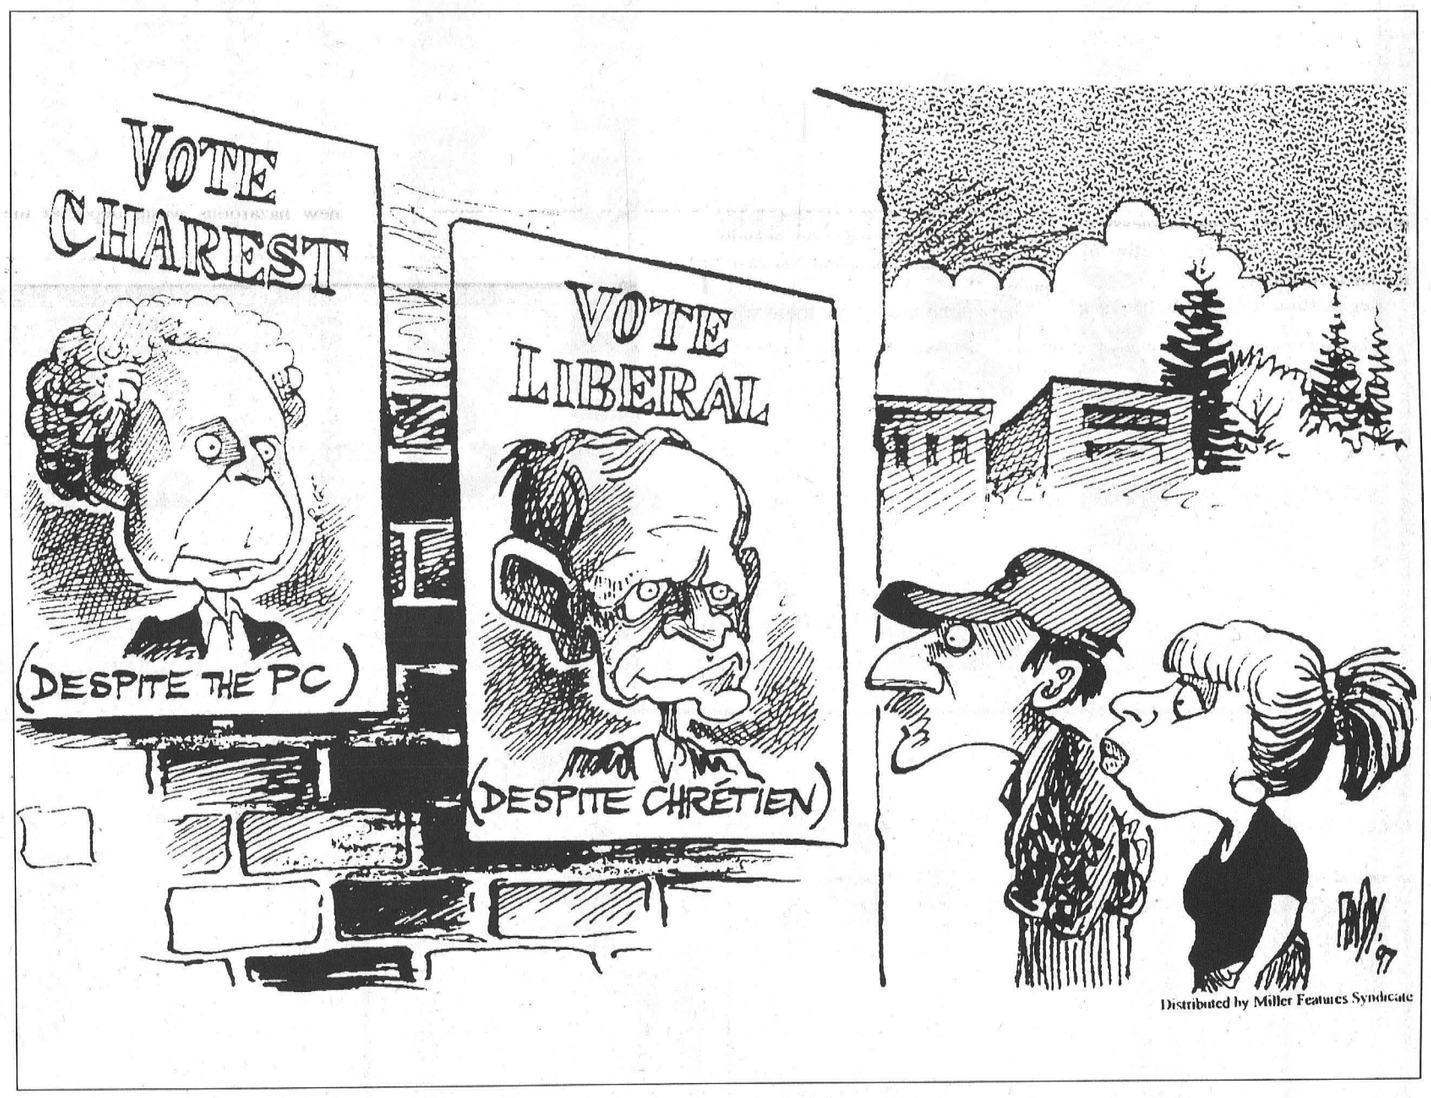
Men would no longer be slaves to the Stanley Cup playoffs, which now drag on to mid-June. Much to their wives' delight they'd be cured of their obsession with the boob tube and suddenly start flocking to the park to take in the joys of nature.

"Where are you going dear?"

"Taking the dog for a walk. Thought we'd go over to the park; it's such a nice evening I thought we'd take in a swimming practice and there's some places over on South St. with some pretty nifty new knockers on the front that I thought we'd check out."

"I'm so glad you're getting out more these days. Summer's just busting out all over, isn't it?"

Chesterville has had some uncomplimentary nicknames over the years. We've been known as Little Chicago, Little Peyton Place – among the more polite ones – and now here's our chance to get the last laugh on those who still refer to this village as Hooterville.



THE FARMER'S WIFES

By Wyn Thompson

Two red squirrels play in full sunshine in the Chinese elms to the east of Hill House. Up and down one trunk at breakneck speed, then a flying leap takes them to another tree, and another, and ... Faster, faster, faster... Their scenic railway, for sure.

I watched, caught between fascination and terror, I awaited a fall, little brains spewing all over the ground. But no, tiring, they took five, then did it all over again.

Finally, I had to go indoors to get lunch on. As I went, I glanced at the neighbor's field and there stood a mother and tiny foal looking through the fence at me.

Of a sudden, the little guy turned and ran like the wind, up and down the field. Mother, in her wisdom, simply looked on, no doubt thinking exercise is good for your legs.

Evening came and, suddenly, a sound like a dozen cats being tortured erupted under the bow window. The neighbor's nine peacocks had arrived and, for whatever reason, were simply devouring my large bed of heritage violets. "What do they know that I don't?" I asked the Farmer.

I knew heritage violets could be used to decorate cakes, cookies, and add zing to a salad. I doubted the peacocks knew as much, but perhaps, they contained a spring tonic of sorts.

One young peacock tweaked off a tulip head and dropped it like a hot potato. We stood utterly fascinated with their invasion of my violet patch.

The Farmer telephoned the owner, just to let him know the whereabouts of his valuable birds, telling him not to hurry over to collect them for we were thoroughly enjoying them.

All too soon he and his wife came across the fields and, like errant, guilty kids, the birds started home on the dead run.

The trees are alive with goldfinch and purple finch. The hydro wires are lined with swallows and the hill coos with mourning doves. Cat is fascinated and tells them what he would do if he didn't have that darned bell around his neck.

Yes, spring is here, no doubt about that!

There are bushels of dandelions on the lawn for the taking. Apparently, they are now good for lawns. Of course, they are good for people, rich as they are in vitamins and iron.

Blow-balls and face cloths are other names for them. How apt, for I recall as kids we used to blow the dandelion fluff hither and yon, much to the disgust of our parents.

Sometimes, we'd pick a lovely big yellow one and caress our face. How soft and lovely it felt, while all the time being admonished not to get that dandelion stain on our clothing.

Stalks of rhubarb are pushing forth and soon will be ready to make the first fresh pie or sauce of the season. We treat rhubarb as a fruit, since it really acts and tastes like it when cooked; but, in reality it is a vegetable.

Or grandmothers considered it a good spring tonic and it does have certain laxative qualities. Our G.P. swears by it.

However, it is so delicious that it should not suffer the indignity of being referred to as a medicine.

The first tender stems pulled in May are best, I think. The season never seems long enough, for by mid-July the stalks get tough.

Another of the pleasures of May is fishing, I judge from the number of boats passing Hill House en route to the Rideau River. I remember our evenings on the Rideau, brief times stolen from the farm after the milking was done.

I remember the pungent sweet fragrance of spring in the soft air, the fragrance of deep natural humus, of blossoming trees and cedars in the cool shade on the banks of the river.

There was music in the air, too, the music of ruffled water eddying over shoreline rocks, of birds twittering their evening message in the treetops, the menacing hum of black flies around our eyes and ears.

Ah May! it is the month that has everything: such beautiful weather, Mother's Day, the Queen's birthday, Memorial Day, you name it, May's got it.

Even magic, for everybody knows there's magic in May. Any farmer will tell you, "If you want to plant, go ahead, t'will be alright."

Many beliefs have grown up around May. Some people, Puritans included, claimed that the month was named for Mais, the Roman goddess of spring and growth.

Some believe that the celebrations originated with the worship of trees by the Druids. With my penchant for trees, I adhere to this belief.

No matter, it's a month to love and enjoy and celebrate in whatever way the spirit moves you!

Ralph Waldo Emerson said in spring, He who knows what sweet and virtues are in the ground, the waters, the plants, the heavens, and how to come at these enchantments, is a rich and royal man."

PAL is looking for a new home

Sandy Bierworth
Record Staff

MAPLE RIDGE — Your neighborhood PAL needs a new home.

The Part-time Alternative Learning program, part of T. R. Leger School, presently borrows space in North Dundas District High School, and is looking for a building with heat and hydro to move into.

Because of municipal amalgamation, North Dundas will be enrolling at least 100 more students next year than they already have. This leaves no room for PAL.

"We need a new home. We cannot stay at North Dundas," says Gordon MacDonald, PAL shop instructor. He owns the equipment the students use for their shop class, but needs the space to use it.

The program provides students from North Dundas, Seaway, and Tagwi, who have been asked to leave or have dropped out, an opportunity to graduate without the stress of a classroom environment.

With the open enrolment, students can come and go as they please, but must participate for the majority of the three years it takes to graduate.

The students, aged 14 to 18, are usually in this situation because of attention or behavioral problems, and need to work individually and pace themselves, says Williams. The program is half academic and half shop.

The shop is run in an assembly line format, which MacDonald says teaches workplace skills and some math, and enforces mass production.

Students create over 1,000 items each year, including stools, boxes, geese, ducks, flowers, shelves, and birdhouses, as well as various pieces of furniture. They sell the items through custom orders and craft sales. North Dundas asked them to create the stage props for last year's production of Little Shop of Horrors.

Brent Whitford, 18, will be graduating from the program this year, and says it has had a positive effect on him and his classmates.

"It gets you through everything. You get a break. It's a lot easier than sitting through a class," he says.

Whitford will be working alongside his father and grandfather for Gary's Roofing in Ingleside for the next few years. He is unsure yet whether he would like to go to college.

If you can help the PAL program find a home, contact North Dundas District High School at 448-2328, and speak with either MacDonald or Williams.

Elma students ran 10km in celebration of achieving Earth School status, for completing 1,000 projects.

Elma P.S. achieves Earth status

Sandy Bierworth
Record Staff

ELMA — Elma Public School celebrated an great honor last Thursday.

It is one of only 50 schools in Canada, 18 in Ontario and the only one in SD&G, to acheive Earth School Status for its abundant environmental work.

The school celebrated the SEEDS (Society, Environment and Energy Development Studies) Foundation status with a OPP-escorted environmental torch run to Chesterville Public School. CPS, 10 kilometres away from Elma, is also participating in the project.

To achieve this honor, Elma completed 1,000 environmental projects in three years, 900 of which were done in the past two years.

The celebration kicked off at 9 a.m. with songs from the junior and senior choirs, and a congratulatory speech by principal Frank Hummell.

Several guest speakers told the students how proud they were, including SD&G Public School Board Chairperson Maria Thompson, who asked the students if they would write a letter to the township of Winchester showing their appreciation for the new hazardous waste depot at the Boyne Road Landfill Site.

Following the assembly, students, teachers, and guests lined the schoolyard and passed the environmental green flag and the torch, both of which were mounted on recycled hockey sticks. The torch was made with a miniature blue box and streamers from garbage bags left over from a spring concert the week before.

The torch was meant to represent the symbolic gesture of passing on environmental knowledge. It was passed through the hands of guests, teachers, and all of the 187 students until it reached the end of the line where the first group of runners were waiting with the police escort.

More than three dozen runners from Elma and two from Maple Ridge ran in groups of four, switching at each of the nine checkpoints. It took them 78 minutes from the passing of the torch to reach CPS.

The teachers are very proud of this new status, but don't take credit for it.

"It's very exciting. The kids did all the work, they deserve to be celebrated," says French teacher Gisele Gratton.

The runners were picked from training sessions in which teachers kept track of who ran the most laps around the schoolyard.

The projects were done by groups and individuals, both at school and at home. They included such topics as research-based groups, the reduce, recycle and reuse policy, guest speakers, field trips, compost, and endangered species.

The SEEDS Canada Foundation, based in Edmonton, is the national sponsor and source of the Learners in Action (green school) program.

The program encourages students to undertake projects which enhance the environment. Students and schools receive recognition as they proceed in the program to become a Green School at 100 projects, a Jade School at 250 projects, an Emerald School at 500 projects, and Earth School, the highest level of acheivement, at 1,000 projects.

Of the 4,500 schools registered in the program, less than half are expected to complete 100 projects because of the amount of work and organization required.

Even though Elma has reached the highest level of recognition, they are not going to stop. Students are continuing to complete environmental projects, and will do so for years to come.

Motorcycle tour hits Winchester

The Second Annual Ride For Somethin' is set for May 25, and about 150 motorcyclists will be heading for Main Street during the afternoon.

The run starts and finishes in Ottawa and tours a number of local towns, including Winchester.

The Observation Motorcycle Charity Run is supporting the Ottawa-Carleton Regional Police Youth Centre again this year, after having raised over $2,600 last year.

Founded in 1990, the Ottawa-Carleton Regional Police Youth Centre is a nationally recognized crime prevention program aimed at youth at risk. It is located at 1463 Prince of Wales Dr. at Hog's Back in Ottawa, and serves more than 900 young people.

The centre offers sports, recreation, guidance, and counselling, and features a youth council, a homework club, a scholarship program, summer and winter camping, leadership training and a unique alternative measures program that includes victim/offender mediation.

Registration for the ride begins at 9 a.m. with a cost of $10 per bike, and bikers will take off at 10 a.m. The bikers will start and finish at the Youth Centre.

The Charity Run features a poker run, a lunch stop and visit ($2 entry fee) at the Special Interest Automobiles/Motorcycle Show in Oxford Mills, and a prize.

The group of Ottawa-area bikers met while chatting on the net about riding, and call themselves the Netriders.

The Ride For Somethin' Chairperson, Claude Lacelle, admits that while they are out to raise money for the Youth Centre, bikers can also help their image.

"Let's face it, most people who think of bikers think of guys with hair that's a little too long and tattoos that are a little too obvious," says Lacelle. "That's just not the case at all. They are men and women who go to work every day, just like you and me. And they, too, are concerned about family life and their communities and they just want to do something to help out."

Lacelle says everyone is invited to the event.

"Even if you don't ride, you can drop by in the morning, look at some great bikes, and talk to some fantastic people."

There is no charge for those who are just out to look.

Lacelle says the name Ride For Somethin' started as a working title before they decided to give the money to the Youth Centre, and "the name just stuck."

Between 1992 and 1994, overall auto thefts in Ottawa increased by 54 per cent. During the same time period, membership at the youth centre increased by 400 per cent, and auto thefts around the centre decreased by 12 per cent.

Also during this period, mischief charges (property damage) increased 3.2 per cent overall while decreasing 12 per cent around the youth centre.

The centre is responsible for raising its own funds. If you are interested in contributing time, money or merchandise, or would like more information, contact Ottawa-Carleton Regional Police Constable Claude Turgeon at (613) 727-5398.

If you would like more information on registration for the Charity Run, contact Claude Lacelle at (613) 745-7483, or e-mail at clacelle@cyberus.ca.

Students learn about wildlife

Sandy Bierworth
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — Local students are learning about the birds and the bees - that is, wildlife habitat.

Chesterville Public School welcomed George Axcell, a travelling teacher with the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, last Thursday to inform students from Grades 4 to 6 about wildlife and habitat.

"We want to teach the students about conservation," says Axcell.

Some students, he says, bring up concerns about cutting down trees and destroying wildlife habitat.

"There's nothing wrong with using nature," he says. "Just use it wisely. You have to make sure there's something there for tommorrow."

The main thing, he says, is developing the land without upsetting the habitat, adding that habitat loss is a growing concern.

Axcell travels to elementary schools province-wide, though the program is based in Peterborough.

For the entire day, students filled out worksheets of questions while watching a slide show, showing the four elements of habitat, and visiting each of the nine centres set up.

Each centre teaches the students a different aspect of wildlife, including the backyard as a habitat, the food chain in a pond habitat, wildlife interaction, factors limiting wildlife populations, habitat loss, two centres on adaptions to habitat, return of the wild turkey, and invaders, such as zebra mussels.

The students studied full body mounts of wild birds and skins of animals, a topographical map showing habitat loss, an aerial photograph of different habitats, and several games.

Axcell tells students that we need the animals for survival.

"Think about what the world would be like without animals," he says. "People enjoy hearing the birds and the frogs, and enjoying nature. I think not having any animals would really affect us."

Axcell is a bow hunter, and says he has been asked by students whether hunting is wrong.

"I explain to them that hunting does not affect the animal population. When you kill one deer, you really have made a big difference because there are so many deer around."

He explains that conservation officers strictly enforce laws of hunting licences, bag numbers (hunting limits on kinds and genders of animals), and seasons.

He says the number of animals hunted every year is almost equivalent to the number that would freeze or starve during the winter. Hunting them in fall allows the survivors more food, he says.

The OFAH travelling teacher program is a member of the Council of Outdoor Educators in Ontario (COEO), and of the Canadian Wildlife Federation.

The Widowed Support Group of Stormont and Dundas recently donated $600 to Winchester District Memorial Hospital, to fund the purchase of two mobile blood pressure monitoring units. Kilger asks for opportunity to finish the job started in '93

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

CORNWALL -- Canadians have made deep sacrifices in the last three-and-a-half years, as the Liberal economic plan was put in place.

But now, there's a light at the end of the tunnel, and Liberal MP Bob Kilger is asking voters in Stormont-Dundas to help him finish that job.

"I do believe we've put ourselves and our country in a position to capitalize on the sacrifices that were made by everyone," Kilger says.

First elected MP for Stormont-Dundas in 1988 and re-elected in 1993, Kilger last year was chosen Liberal Party whip. He has also served as deputy speaker.

And Kilger says while the agricultural industry in rural areas of the riding adds a degree of economic stability, he readily acknowledges the unemployment rate is much higher in Cornwall than the national average, "so we've got some work to do."

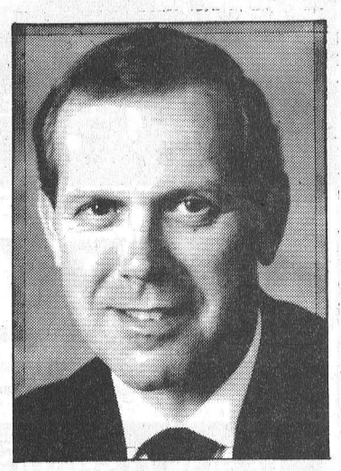
But a national government sets national policies first and foremost, Kilger says. When elected in 1993, the Liberal government faced "big challenges," such as a $42-billion deficit, which drained too much money into payments. "That's money you don't have to invest," Kilger says.

"Government does not directly create jobs as such, but is responsible for creating a positive environment for growth," Kilger says.

After more than three years in office, the Liberal plan has reduced that amount,and is ahead of schedule. "We've come a long way and we can see the light at the end of the tunnel, and we can begin to re-invest in health care and education," Kilger says.

"We've got to recognize the huge sacrifices made by all Canadians. The decisions we took were very difficult. We're not completely done, but we're certainly well on our way."

Canadians have already benefited from lower interest rates. As far as the tax cuts that are part of other party platforms, now is not the time, according to Liberal policy. Once the budget is balanced, savings will be used for tax cuts, overall debt reduction and investment in economic and social programs.



"I do believe we've put ourselves, and our country, in a position to capitalize on the sacrifices that were made by everyone."

-Incumbent MP Bob Kilger

The Liberal government pledges to help rural communities acquire and use new technologies. "We want to put rural areas on a level playing field with other communities," Kilger says, noting in particular the information highway. With federal funding, Internet access is free to Dundas residents at the Winchester and Morrisburg campuses of the T.R. Leger School, as an example.

Kilger also points to the CanAdapt program, which operates at arm's-length but helps agri-businesses start up. The ethanol and soybean extraction plants coming to the riding are examples of businesses that have benefited, he notes.

On national unity, Kilger says the Liberals' distinct society plan is simply "a historical recognition that the majority of Quebeckers speak another language." It recognizes Quebec's tradition of French culture and civil law.

But a distinct society label indicates Quebec is "different, but not special." Very few would deny Quebec is culturally different, Kilger says, but the term distinct society "has become something different" to some. "Maybe it's a matter of explaining it better, or a different title," he says.

"One of the great successes of this country is that it has a makeup of people from all over the world, where people are equal. We recognize we have differences - it could be skin color or religion - but that diversity has really been one of our strengths."

When the issue of crime is raised in eastern Ontario, it's usually the smuggling that gets top billing. Kilger points to what he says was a difficult but correct government decision in 1993, the lowering of cigarette taxes. While Kilger acknowledges a "very real health aspect" to smoking, "the level of smuggling had reached such a high level, and required drastic measures. But it was the right decision."

He notes other initiatives that have been effective, such as joint task forces that have made seizures and arrests.

Kilger says he will continue his regular constituency visit, including a regular stop in Chesterville. He says it is "enlightening" to be in contact with constituents on a regular basis.

Butt out on May 31, health unit urges

CORNWALL - In the five counties, restaurant owners are invited to join in a challenge: To be smoke- free on May 31, which is World No Tobacco Day.

The Eastern Ontario Health Unit (EOHU) is in charge of the campaign and is hoping that at least 15 restaurants per county will participate in the effort.

"The aim is to raise awareness of the serious effects of Environmental Tobacco Smoke on children, not only in the home, but in public places too such as in restaurants," said Roch Denis of EOHU.

Public demand for smoke-free places is backed up by a 1996 survey of the five counties.

In Winchester, 64 per cent of people surveyed in a 1996 survey on Public Attitudes towards Smoking said they either strongly or somewhat support restaurants becoming smoke-free.

Participating restaurants will be featured in local advertising and promotions, at no cost to the owners. Blue ribbons symbolizing healthy lungs will be available at participating restaurants and pharmacies.

To participate in the Smoke Free day, or for more information about tobacco issues call the Health Line or your local EOHU office.

Quilt luck

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the editor:

Politics today is awfully dull, compared to the old days. Then it was serious business, the subject of many arguments and even fights. It was simpler because there were only two parties, Liberals (or Grits) and Conservatives (or Tories).

In early obituaries, men were often described by their politics, as well as their religion and memberships in lodges. As women didn't have the vote, they were defined by their activities in their church, the Women's Institute, etc.

Political allegiance was usually life-long, and passed from father to son. This led to the old joke used by both parties: The political chief was visiting a local stalwart, who introduced his sons. The chief asked, "And all good Conservatives, of course?" The reply was apologetic, "Yes, except for the youngest. But he got to reading."

This reminds me of the split in the family of my immigrant great-grandfather, Silas Cross. In England, I had found in a government book the voting record for my ancestral village. Silas's older brother, William, had made the 18-mile trip to Cambridge to vote for the Reform candidate. Thus we can assume when Silas and his family came to Canada in 1836, they would have supported similar candidates, who later became the Liberal Party.

My grandfather, Cornelius Cross (the youngest son) was an active worker for the Liberals, but he became disillusioned with the Liberals buying votes with free drinks. When the Conservatives put a temperance plank in their platform Cornelius switched parties, but was disappointed to find the Conservatives were doing the same thing. But he didn't switch back, and he continued to throw himself into local politics, becoming a confidant of Andrew Broder, Tory MP for Dundas, and James P. Whitney, Tory premier of Ontario.

Once Cornelius was said to have participated in the "inviting" of a young man of the opposing party to a remote log cabin, where he was "entertained" until the polls closed.

In those days, government jobs were filled by friends of the party in power, and many people came to Cornelius for help in getting a job. On one of his trips to Ottawa, he took along one of his grandsons, Neilus Fetterly, who reported back in youthful awe on their dinner with Andrew Broder in the parliamentary restaurant, "there were more dishes and silverware than food."

My father, Ingram, was also a staunch Tory the opposition would have said a stiff Tory). I remember his anger when, after the Tories won the 1930 election, they failed to replace the Liberal postmaster in Chesterville with a deserving Conservative. Father always patronized the store of O.D. Casselman (our Tory MP) and his successors, rather than the competition, which was owned by Liberals.

Sunday was the day for exchanging visits with relatives and friends. I came to realize that these were usually Conservative. I would sit on the stoop listening to my father and his friend (often Rob Bogart of Berwick) exchange political opinions and anecdotes. A favorite one was about the Liberal premier of Ontario, Mitch Hepburn, who was addressing the crowd at a country fair, while standing on a manure spreader. "This is the first time I have spoken from a Tory platform," he said. A voice from the crowd said, "Take it away. It'll never have a bigger load."

Voting day, held at the local schoolhouse, was full of excitement. I like the story of my mother (women eventually got the vote) stepping out of the booth, announcing "There. That kills Ing's vote!" to the surprise and puzzled disbelief of the officials of both parties.

Years ago, a cousin told me of being overseas in the Canadian Army at the time of the 1917 federal election. Soldiers were allowed to vote in their home riding. An officer explained to my cousin that, because his vote was not needed in Dundas County, he should register in Prescott County (conscription was the main issue). But he refused, and insisted on voting for O.D. Casselman of Chesterville.

My father always felt that a farmer's vote should carry more weight than a city man's vote, because a farmer "had more of a stake in the country." Thus, in the 1919 Ontario election, when a new party had been formed, the United Farmers of Ontario, with Billy Casselman of Chesterville as the local candidate, father switched from the Tories. Surprisingly, the U.F.O. won, but to father's dismay, the inexperienced government fumbled badly, was defeated in the next election and faded away.

As for myself? When I returned to these parts, I was approached by political canvassers. "Was I a Winchester Cross (Liberal) or a Chesterville Cross (Conservative)?" It was very convenient to say I was living on Maple Ridge, mid-way between the two communities.

IN MEMORIAM

JOHNSTONE - In loving memory of a dear mother, Lillian, who passed away May 22, 1990.
God looked upon his garden and found an empty space, then he looked down upon the earth and saw your tired face.
He put his arms around you and lifted you to rest. God's garden must be beautiful for he only takes the best.
He saw the road was getting rough and the hills were hard to climb,
He closed your weary eyes and whispered "peace be thine".
It broke my heart to lose you but you did not go alone, for part of me went with you to God's garden, your new home.

Sadly missed &
forever remembered,
Kim

CARD OF THANKS

So often we hear and talk about the bad events that happen around us, but with this note we would like to say a special thank you to this community and the people who are a part of it. We often don't appreciate how lucky we are to be a part of this community until tragedy or a sickness takes us by surprise. During John's illness we found out how blessed we are to belong to such a caring and concerned community. this was especially evident by all the cards and visits that John received. We would like to thank the businesses who showed in their own ways their thoughtfulness, to the friends who offered rides for the children to the many different events, to the neighbors who so faithfully brought over a meal or baked goods and offered their help in any way, and especially to all the people and churches who sent up prayers for Johns recovery and the families strength. It is with a warm sense of pride that we can say that we can be a part of this community. Thank you for being there for us.

Sincerely,
John & Nancy De Jong & Family

Scavenger hunt

Quarterhorse association takes to trails for family fun

Sandy Bierworth
Record Staff

FINCH — A Daisy Duck cap tied around a tree. A broom head on a tree stump. A tire hanging in a tree, and a fishing pole in the water.

These were some of the 27 items members of the Golden Triangle Quarterhorse Association were looking for in a scavenger hunt ride last Sunday.

About 30 riders and five buggies rode through the Finch Township Recreational Trail, looking for unusual items. The rules were simple: No paper or pencils. Don't collect the items. The rider who remembers the most afterward wins.

The trail is accessed on County Road 9, east of Berwick.

The club organizes about six trail rides a year, with each one taking place on a trail near a different member's house. This was their first scavenger hunt ride in eight years.

They also put on a few shows and clinics every year, a few poker runs, and a skating rodeo and sleigh rides in the winter.

At the general meetings, guest speakers including farriers and vets are invited to share their views with the executive committee.

There are over 100 members of this 10-year-old club, many of them owning family memberships, coming from Ontario, Quebec and New York. This is the only trail-riding club of its kind in the area.

Club president Arnold Lafave says all breeds of horses are welcome; it's not limited to only quarterhorses.

"We're just trying to promote horsemanship and fun with horses," he says.

"I love it," he says. "It's always nice to go and see the world through the ears of a horse."

Memberships cost $20 for single, $25 for family. For more information, contact Jeannine Lafave at (613) 346-5686.

Playoff berths are on the line for both NDDHS soccer squads

AVONMORE – Both North Dundas District High School girls soccer teams notched wins against La Citadelle Patriotes in SD&G play last Wednesday.

Sandra Brunner scored the only goal of the game as the senior Devils blanked the Pats 1-0 to improve their season record to 2-2-2.

The juniors took two of a possible three points to improve their season record to 2-4-1 with a 3-0 win over the Pats and 2-2 tie against CCVS.

Becky Klein-Swormink, Cara Berends and Jen Catillier scored for the blue and white against the Pats and Christine Hillis got both goals against the Golden Raiders.

The Devils host Seaway in AA-A interlocking play Wednesday on the last day of the regular season with 18 games to be played across SD&G.

Seaway's teams are winless this season and are at the bottom of the A Division standings with two ties apiece.

There will be a double-header in each division Wednesday as they finish out the year.

League finals will be played Mon., May 26 in Alexandria with the undefeated Gaels hosting both the Senior and Junior Divisions.

The senior Gaels are 7-0 and have locked up first place. St. Joe's is in second with 10 points and North Dundas is in third with six points, one ahead of fourth-place St. Lawrence. The top four teams make the playoffs.

The junior Gaels also have a record of 7-0 but are only a point ahead of second-place St. Joe's.

The top four teams make the playoffs and NDDHS still has a shot at post-season.

Tagwi is in position to make the playoffs in both A divisions.

The top two teams in each dividions will adance to the finals.

Tagwi is in second in both divisions.

The senors have a record of 0-3-3 and a one point lead on SDHS in the senior division and the juniors, with a 2-4-1 record, are a point up on 1-4-2 L'Heritage.

The late start to the season has pushed the league finals back by almost a week. They were to have been played Wednesday, according to the league schedule released at the beginning of the school year.

O'Brien night at Speedway

CORNWALL - Kingston native Danny O'Brien kicked off the 1997 Cornwall Motor Speedway racing season Sunday by grabbing the checkered flag in the first of two 20-lap modified features.

The win has a lot of meaning for the driver of 17-D who suffered a near fatal accident in Brockville near the end of last year's racing season.

"I'd like to thank my family and fans for supporting me and helping to get me through this," said O'Brien.

"To get this first race in and to win, makes it extra sweet."

Starting in the pole position, O'Brien led from start to finish, lapping six of the 21 cars from the starting grid.

The D-50 finished second just ahead of Luke Plante in number 66. Rounding out the top five were the 24-K of Rick Wilson in the fourth spot while Dave "The Slip" Heaslip finished fifth.

In the late-model class, Eric Gauvreau from Chelsea, PQ, found his way into the winner's circle.

Gauvreau last took the checkered flag in August 1996 when the division was called the street stock expert.

Rookie class winner was Simon Marcoux.

Next week - it's autograph and student night in Cornwall.

(Top photo) Diane Shane (9) waits for a rebound in third period action as a shot glances offf Raspberry goaltender Kerry Guy with Heather O'Brien (6) helping out her nteminder. Pink prevailed 4-2. (Bottom photo) Neon's Shannon Summers (12) tries to catch Forest Green netminder Jackie Boulanger out of position but her shot goes wide as Krista Robertson moves in to clear the crease in third period action last Thursday night. The teams tied 1-1.

Flashes alone in first place after week two of CWWBHL

Cindy Merkley had a goal and two assists and Diane Shane scored two goals – including the winner – as the Pink Hot Flashes moved into sole possession of first palce in the Chesterville-Winchester Women's Ball Hockey Leage with a 4-2 win over the Raspberry Razatans here last Thursday night.

The Flashes are 2-0-0 and are a point ahead of Forest Green in the league standings as the Foresters tied Neon Green 1-1 in last Thursday night's second game.

The Neons have only a tie in their first two games while the Razatans remain pointless after the first two games of the season.

Flashes 4 - Razatans 2

Colleen Stewart scored unassisted at 7:30 of the first period to stake the Flashes to a 1-0 lead after one. Vicki Peterson tied it from Kelly Durant at 12:50 of the second but Merkley scored 1:45 later, unassisted, to restore Pink's lead.

Rebecca Kennedy deadlocked it again, from goaltender Kerry Guy, with five minutes to go in the second and the period ended deadlocked at two.

Shane got the winner at 13:45 of the third and added the insurance goal with 1:20 to play. Merkley and Cheryl Bedard assisted on both goals.

Neons 1 - Forest Green 1

All the scoring was compressed into a space of 1:45 in the second period as the teams played to the draw.

Forest Green took the lead at 9:52 of the middle frame when Sandra Brunner's unassisted shot from outside the blue line got through a tangle of legs and beat Roxanne Baches.

The lead was short lived as Kim Baker evened 1:45 later when her shot from a sharp angle from the corner to Jackie Boulanger's right somehow managed to find the mark. Shannon Summers picked up the assist.

In week three action Thursday night Forest Green meets Pink at 7:30 and at 8:30 it's Raspberry facing off against Neon Green.
