The Late George Quart

One of the oldest and most esteemed residents of these parts passed away on Monday morning, after a brief illness, in the person of Mr. George Quart, whose farm is a part of the village and fronting main street. Mr. Quart had reached his 82nd year, but notwithstanding his advanced age was, until a few weeks ago able to be about, and was frequently seen in the village. He came to this section with his parents from Quebec, but when a child of two years, and has lived on the same place ever since. As a farmer he prospered. He was a faithful and devoted member of the Presbyterian Church and for many years on the Board of Management and secretary of St. Paul's Church, Winchester. His life was an example of conscientious duty and uprightness. He was for some years clerk of the municipal Council of the township of Winchester, and for some years a number of the Council Board. From municipal activities he retired some eight years ago. He was a man of good judgement, temperate living, a good neighbor and unfailing friend. His wife predeceased him six years ago, and four children are dead. Those surviving are Carrie and Dorothy at Calgary, Hackett at Watertown, Leslie at Alexander Bay, Mrs. R. D. Preston of Winchester and Jay Quart, who lived with his father. He had no surviving brothers or sisters. His passing removed another of the pioneers and land marks of this section to whom this County owe so much for its development.

The funeral was held Wednesday and the service held in St. Paul's Church. The remains were placed at rest in Maple Ridge Cemetery.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Mrs. James McDonell, a life long and highly esteemed resident of Cornwall, passed away Wednesday of last week, in her 88th yeas.

Senator John Webster, Brockville, died on Saturday morning. He was 72 years of age. He was for many years prominent in the cheese business.

The family Herald and weekly Star of Montreal is not only a money saver to the farmers of Canada, while the farmers family circle, in the accompanying magazine, gets what is admitted to be the best of all.

Christmas cards, toys, boxed handkerchiefs and stamped goods. All coats and dresses at reduced prices at McLean's Store.

Anything worth having is worth advertising. The public knows that fact. The stores who do not invite business by advertising find that it goes to the stores who do invite it.

The home of Mrs. Fred J. Barlow, Princess St., Morisburg, was the scene of a very pretty reception on Tuesday, Nov. 26th, from three to six. The guests were invited into the reception room by Miss Agnes Parker of Winchester and Miss Jean Meikle. The rooms were tastefully decorated with yellow 'mums, baby 'mums and carnations, while candles and lamps cast a roseate hue over the assembled guests. Mrs. Barlow received in a French gown of peach georgette, wearing a shoulder bouquet of carnations, and was introduced by Mrs. Fred Meikle. The guests were ushered to the dining room by Mrs. Irwin Hilliard, where tea was poured by Mrs. J. H. Ross of Winchester, Mrs. Thos. Irving of Prescott, Mrs. John Meikle and Mrs. J. G. Challies. Ices were cut by Mrs B. L. Carr and Mrs. (Dr.) Davy. Those assisting in the dining room were Mrs. (Dr.) McKeown Mrs. K. Helmer and Mrs. Fred Parker of Winchester. During the afternoon Mrs. George Reaburn of Chesterville, presided at the piano, while the guests were delighted with songs sung by Mrs. W. N. Fulton, also of Chesterville. The numbers present at this reception was a fitting appreciation of Mrs. Barlow's taking up her residence at Morrisburg.

Elections Held

In many municipalities the annual elections were held on Monday. Every municipality has the privilege to change the date from the first Monday in January to the first Monday in December. It gets the turmoil and trouble of election over before the holiday season, and that is a good thing.

Light Went Out

The cause of the sudden going out of the electric lights on Monday night was the breaking of limb of a tree in front of Mr. Alex Ross' home on Main Street, and falling across the wires. Mr. Vanbridger and his assistant Harry Harper located the trouble and had the lights on again as soon as it was possible.

In Kingston Hospital

Mr. Rupert Helmer, son of Mr and Mrs. K. Helmer, a Divinity Student at Queen's University, is ill with Typhoid fever and at Present an inmate of Kingston General Hospital. He is receiving the best of care, but it is an anxious time for the parents and to them and Rupert is extended the very sincere sympathy of this community.

Hit By Axe

Mr. Joseph Robinson, who is Supt. of Provincial Highway No 31, had a narrow escape from losing an eye, if not his life on Friday morning last. He was assisting some men in building a fence at the new curve about a mile west of Winchester. Mr. Clare Helmer was driving a stay post on the slant, with an axe, and Mr. Robinson was holding the post. The axe in some way slipped and the glancing blow struck Mr. Robinson catching him on the side of the nose and above the eye. It knocked him senseless, but he soon recovered and the wounds being dressed, he was soon about again. But his eye, and even his life was spared by a very narrow margin. He still carried evidence of the force of the blow and its dangerous location.

Family Gathering

On Saturday, Dec. 1, Mrs. Robt Henderson, of Dufferin Street, was quietly celebrating her birthday thinking no one was remembering it except herself, when she was surprised by her children and their families walking in. During the afternoon the ladies of St. Matthias Guild of which she is an active member, called to wish her happy returns. Rev. Mr. Davies also called and gave a few appreciative remarks. Mrs. Henderson didn't tell us her age, but from the fact that several great grandchildren were present, we assume she has been blessed with a good many birthdays and we hope a good many more. The family presented their mother with a purse and a beautiful boquet of Roses. Tea was served and a pleasant afternoon brought to a close, everyone feeling that Grandma had a very happy birthday.

Chesterville Resident Passes

The death occurred at Chesterville last week of a lifelong resident of Chesterville in the person of William Henry Smith in his 73rd year. Mr. Smith had been confined to his bed for the past three years, previous to this time he followed his occupation as a painter and paper-hanger for almost 50 years.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Annie Smith and 10 children: Mrs. Curtis Hitsman, of Winchester, Mrs. Edward Harper, Mrs. Zella Shorkey and Miss Greta, all of Ottawa, Mrs. Myles Ouderkirk, of Finch, Wilson, of Detroit, Rene, of Chesterville, and Anna, Lera and Billy at home.

The funeral services were held in the Chesterville United Church and were in charge of Rev. R. E. Newman, pastor. Those who acted as pall-bearers were, George Hunt John Bogart, W. A. McElroy and W. H. Casselman. Interment was made in Maple Ridge cemetery.

Ratepayers Assn. Oppose Trustee Boards

The annual meeting of the Dundas Co. Trustees and Ratepayers Assn. was held at Mountain on Monday last. The following, together with the President of each township association will be the executive for next year, Pres—P. Lashway, South Mountain, Vice Pres.—A. N. Barkley, Elma, Sec.—A. D. Carkner, Winchester, Treas.—I. P. McIntosh, Winchester Springs. Mr. W. M. Morris, of Toronto, outlined the activities of the Provincial Association since its organization in 1887, its object being "to consider anything bearing on Education." This was followed by a Round Table Conference conducted by Mr. Morris. During the discussion, at least two important points were brought out. (1) That it is compulsory for every Public School Board to make provision for the teaching of 5th Class Subjects. (2) That the meeting, without a dissenting vote, expressed itself as being opposed to the Township Trustees Board Bill.

A Play Well Put On

The three act Comedy "Go Slow Mary' put on in Lannins Hall on Monday evening by the Melvin Dramatic Club under the auspices of the Winchester Junior Hockey Club was a success from start to finish. From the time the curtain went up interest was manifested until the close of the last act. Even the lights going off for ten or fifteen minutes did not dampen the spirits of the large audience. Space will only allow a slight reference to each of the characters in the play but they all deserve some mention.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Abby, the young husband without a job and his wife disinterested in housework was well played by Mr. and Mrs. Alcide Lanoue. Alcide causing much fun as he takes over the reins as housekeeper while his wife seeks her old position as stenographer. Mrs. Berion, the mothtr-in-law acting as peacemaker between the young couple, was ably taken by Miss Violet McCourtie. Sally Carter, Mrs. Abby s best friend, was taken by Miss Thelma Dixon and is worthy of mention, and also her sweetheart, Harry Stevens taken by Mr. J. Dixon. Mr. Bill Smith, the ice man, caused much laughter and Miss Hilda Black made a dandy maid. Gordon Johnston, as the English gentleman and old bachelor friend of Billy Abbeys. played his part exceptionally well. Colin McLean made a very efficient policeman, and the two little kiddies Jean Melvin and Desmond Dixon captivated the house as soon as they appeared on the stage, taking their parts so naturally and with such ease. They were well named the "Angels." In all it was the best little play put on in town for some time.

The skit put on between the first and second act "Hired and Fired" by Gordon Johnston and Bill Smith brought down the house, Gordon taking the part of the Superintendent of a railway and Bill Smith the applicant, applying for a job as a train engineer. Gordon put Bill through a severe examination, Bill's answers keeping the audience convulsed with laughter. It was certainly well put on and both boys deserve much credit.

It was evidenced that evening that Winchester has talent unknown to the public before and it is to be hoped that this will not be their last appeaeance.

Drowned in Canal

A very sad accident happened on Friday night last at Cascade point, near Montreal, when John Craik, a former resident of Winchester, and son of Mrs. Craik of Toronto, was drowned in the Canal at that point. He and his wife and young son had been living in Montreal, but were moving back to Morewood, where Mrs. Craik's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo Bogart, reside. Mr. Craik had driven a truck from Morewood to Montreal to bring back a load of furniture. It was snowing hard at the time, and at the point where he went into the Canal there is a sharp turn which, owing to the blinding snow storm he did not observe in time to save himself The truck went head first into the Canal, and Mr. Craik was held down. A diver rescued the body and the truck and furniture were gotten out. An inquest was held, and a verdict of accidental death brought in. Mr Craik had a brother killed at the Beach Mill here some years ago, The funeral takes at Morewood to day.

B. Y. P. U.

Our meeting was presided over by our president Miss Stenhouse. The minutes of last meeting were read by our sec'y Miss Grace McKendry after which the roll call was answered by a verse of scripture from each present. The address was taken by the Misses Isabell Gemeroy and Mary Sinclair, the subject being "The Powers With Which You Work."

The first speaker brought out the limited and unlimited power in which she referred all power of people on earth, no matter what new invention they try, are limited, but the power of God is unlimited. She referred to the telephone wires and the wonderful privilege we have of communicating with those in a distance, but if anything happened the wires we could no longer communicate with each other so she said not to let go of the line connected between God and ourselves.

The second speaker spoke to the spiritual power, the Son of Man to forgive sin, the moral power, the power of life and character. She referred to the heart to heart talk that Christ had with his diciples in the upper chamber. The story was told of a little girl in a busy city trying to cross the street when the traffic was heavy and she could not get across until a kind and gentle policeman took her safe across the street. She pointed out that we should give our lives to Christ to be guided through the world just as the child trusted her life with the policeman to be guided through the traffic.

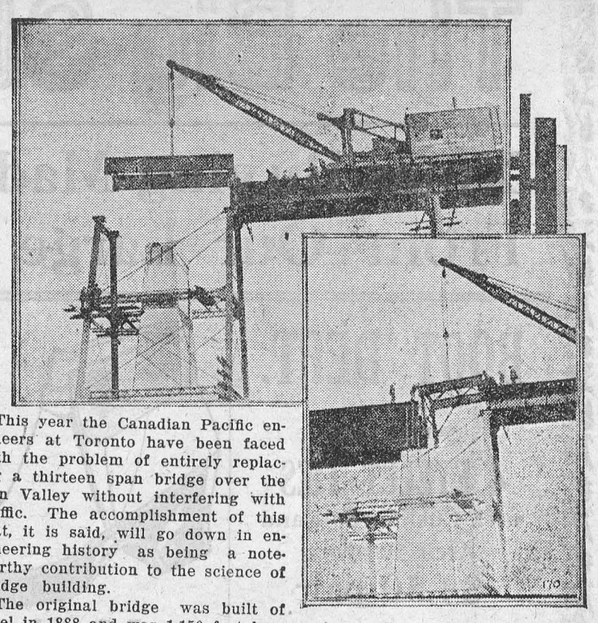
A Great Engineering Feat



This year the Canadian Pacific engineers at Toronto have been faced with the problem of entirely replacing a thirteen span bridge over the Don Valley without interfering with traffic. The accomplishment of this feat, it is said, will go down in engineering history as being a noteworthy contribution to the science of bridge building.

The original bridge was built of steel in 1888 and was 1,150 feet long and 75 feet high. The new bridge rests on concrete piers which were poured from the top of the old structure. When these were set, and provided there were no strong winds, each of the new 45 ton spans were laid as opportunity offered. Everything was in readiness, and in between trains a gang of workmen ripped up the old track and ties while another group climbed up the old steel piers and undid the bolts preparatory to demolition. Then from one side of the valley a huge derrick removed a section of the old bridge to a siding, when the new span was brought up from the other side and launched into position. A temporary span filled a small gap between the old and the new spans, new ties and tracks were laid and the bridge was ready for traffic on the repetition of the process on another span.

Slow-Motion Films Used to Study Ape's Kinship to Humans

Pictures of Anthropoid Made by Harvard Savant Reveal Beast Cannot Stand Erect

Cambridge, Mass.—The slow motion picture has helped to clarify the relationship between the anthropoid ape and man.

The important point disclosed is that the apes are untable to stand wholly erect, although they are more nearly able than any other animal. Man alone possesses this attribute. The research which sets definite limits to the ability of the anthropoids in this respect was conducted by Dr. Edward Reynolds, director of the Department of Anthropology of Peabody Museum, Harvard College.

The camera caught the gibbon, smallest of anthropoids, while running, when, to the eye, he has appeared to be almost completely erect. The camera "stopped" the gibbon's movements sufficiently to show that he was actually but little more than half erect as to thigh position. The skeletons of these animals, Dr. Reynolds says, are so shaped that the thigh cannot be extended and, in consequence, they stand about half of man's erectness. The only animal other than the anthropoids which rises naturally on its hind legs to half erectness is the bear.

"The result of the studies," Dr. Reynolds says, "shows the modifications of the human skeleton, which permit of the erect posture. Men alone possess the quality of being able to spring from their hind feet in any direction. This quality has been partially developed, but only partially, in the anthropoids. No sane man for a moment believes that man descended from the apes, but that they may be descended from the same common ancestor."

Another significant difference of the anthropoid from man is that none is able to oppose its thumb against its fingertips. The nearest approach is putting the side of the thumb against the side of the finger. The orangoutang Dr. Reynolds describes as having really four hands, using both hands and feet to grasp branches when swinging through trees, and being almost incapable of rising on its hind feet.

Persian Queen Bans Foreign Jewels as National Weakness

London — Henceforth no foreign ornaments or jewels or other articles of luxury can be worn by the royal household of Teheran, according to the order just passed by the Persian Queen. This gives a direct blow to the fashion of importing costly dresses by Persian women, started after Teheran was dazzled by the gowns worn by Queen Suraya of Afghanistan when her majesty lately passed through Persia on her return journey to Cabul.

The Queen of Persia, however, holds different views, and at a public Durbar held for the ladies of the court she denounced this additional item to the household bill, calling it unnecessary and superfluous.

"This extravagance," the Queen said, "besides preventing us from attending to more important matters, will conduce to the weakness of the country and augment national poverty. We lose little by leaving off the manner of adorning ourselves and grasping the habits of robing in simple raiments and ornaments supplied by our country."

Lady Heath's Flying Visit to U.S. and Canada

Britain's Star Feminine Pilot Arrives on Leviathan for an Aerial Tour

Lady Heath, England's best known woman flyer, will arrive on the Leviathan to induce American women to take a more practical interest in flying. She plans to make a tour of that country in a Gypsy Moth plane, the same type of ship with which she established an altitude record of 24,700 feet for light planes at the Croydon Airdrome last month.

Incidentally, in making her altitude flight Lady Heath flew to a greater height than had ever been attained by any woman flyer. She made the climb in an hour and forty minutes. The plane was powered with a Cirrus motor.

Earlier this year Lady Heath made a flight alone from Cape Town, South Africa, to London in an Avro-Avian, covering the 10,000 miles in 165 flying hours. On the first lap of the flight, from Johannesburg, she suffered from the torrid heat and fainted soon after landing near the camp of a native tribe. The natives found her and revived her. She stayed with them two days before continuing to Matabele, Kaffirland, and across German Africa.

She wore ordinary street clothing during the entire journey, asserting that flying togs were unnecessary and that she was able to keep her nose powdered most of the time. The Avro-Avian plane which she used for this flight now belongs to Miss Amelia Earhart, who recently completed a tour across the country and back in it.

When Lady Heath owned it she had it painted a turquoise to match the stones in her ring. She made the entire flight without any serious mechanical trouble.

But she did experience trouble with political authorities. Sudanese officials refused to permit her to cross their territory without an escort. She overcame this difficulty by flying her plane north in company with that of Lieutenant Bentley of the South African Air Force.

At Cairo, however, the British authorities locked her plane in an army shed at the Heliopolia Airdrome and refused to let her fly the Mediterranean until she found an escort. After several days she was permitted to proceed at her own risk by the Air Ministry.

Lady Heath's achievements have not been confined to aviation. She is an athlete, the holder of the women's record for the high jump, a founder of the Women's Amateur Athletic Association of Great Britain and the author of the "Standard Manual on Women's Athletics." She has lectured on science at Aberdeen University, and hunted big game in Africa.

The itinerary of her American tour has not been completed, but it will include New York, many of the larger cities east of Chicago and Canada.

TONIC TREATMENT FOR INDIGESTION

Indigestion Comes With a Run-Down Condition — Relief Comes Through Enriching the Blood — Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Make New Blood.

There are many symptoms of indigestion such as acute pain after eating, belching of wind, nausea and vomiting, bloating and pains in the region of the heart, a dread of food for the misery it causes. Dieting and the use of pre-digested foods may give ease, but that is all, and meanwhile the stomach grows steadily weaker. The work of digestion depends upon the blood and nerves and the only way to get rid of indigestion is to tone up the stomach through the blood, to do the work nature intended it should do. The one thorough way to do this is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which renew the blood, strengthen the nerves and enable the stomach to do its work with ease and comfort. Neglected indigestion means prolonged misery. If you have any of the symptoms of this trouble try the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at once and you will be gratified with the results.

Among the many who have found new health through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Mrs. Ada Webb, R.R. No. 3, Prescott, Ont., who says:—"For a long time I went through the tortures of nervous indigestion; I call it torture because no other word can describe what I endured. If my stomach was empty I retched. If I took food I vomited. I did not sleep, and I was steadily growing weaker. I doctored for months but with no benefit. One day my husband said, as the treatment you have had has not helped you, why not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I consented and he got me a supply. After I had been taking the pills for a while I knew they were helping me as the pains and retching grew less and I slept better. I gladly continued the use of the pills and in a few months I felt like a new woman, better than I had felt for years, and able to work for my husband and children again. After such a wonderful experience how can I do anything else but recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills?"

If you need a blood-building tonic begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to-day. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Your Sweet Kiss

I dream of your two lips so red,
And those sweet words of love they said;
An more than words—what turns my head
Is your sweet kiss.

A dreamy night with mellow moon
While sleepy sweet your voice does croon,
About a dream of love and June—
Then your sweet kiss.

Or maybe dusk in winter cold,
When as we sit 'fore fire gold,
You softly sigh, then we enfold
With your sweet kiss.

Though we may part in times to be
And you will have forgotten me,
I'll never let that thought go free
Of your sweet kiss.

CHILDHOOD AILMENTS

Can be Quickly Banished With Baby's Own Tablets.

The ailments of childhood are many but nine-tenths of them are due to one cause and one cause only—a disordered condition of the stomach and bowels. To quickly banish any of the minor ailments of babyhood and childhood the bowels must be made to work regular and the stomach must be sweetened.

No other medicine for little ones has had such success as has Baby's Own Tablets. They banish constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fevers; correct diarrhoea and colic and promote healthful sleep by regulating the functions of the stomach and bowels. Concerning them Mrs. L. M. Brown, Walton, N.S., writes:—"I cannot speak too highly of Baby's Own Tablets as I have found them excellent for childhood ailments."

One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

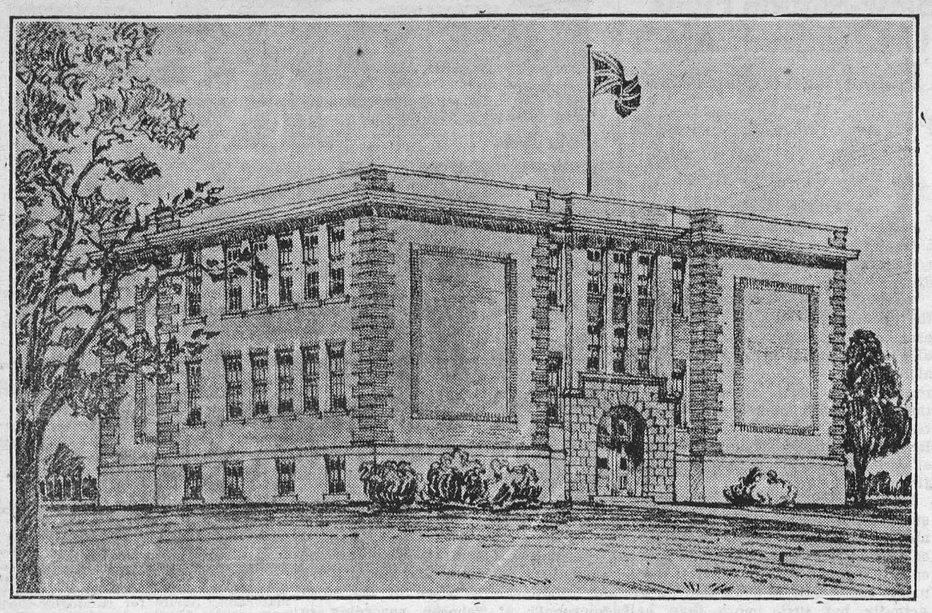
The Official Opening of Winchester's New Public School Tomorrow.



Above is a good picture of the new Winchester Public School which is to be formally opened tomorrow afternoon by Premier G. Howard Ferguson, Minister of Education, and Mr. V. K. Greer, Chief Inspector of Public Schools for the Province. The opening exercises, and dedication of the Susie Annable Memorial Hall will take place in the Assembly Hall of the new school at 2 p. m., to which the public of this school section is welcome. There will also be the presentation of the McDonald medal, a program by the pupils and a Red Cross demonstration.

In the evening a public meeting will be held in Lannin's Hall, to be presided over by Public School Inspector H. B. Fetterly. The speakers will be Premier Ferguson, Mr. V. K. Greer and Mr. George Smyth, the local member for Dundas. There will also be a program ot music and the presentation of awards to those schools in the county showing the best kept school grounds for 1928.

After the afternoon exercises Premier Ferguson and Inspector Greer will be entertained by the members of the School Board at Hotel Winchester.

After the public meeting in the evening, a banquet, put on by the Dundas County Teachers' Association, will be tendered the distinguished guests of the day at Hotel Winchester.

Following is a very compete description of the new school building, the particulars being supplied to the Press by the Architect in charge.

DETAILS ABOUT THE BUILDING

The building has been erected partly on the foundation of the former school destroyed by fire. This more or less decided the arrangement of the new School Building. The plans of the building provide the main entrance on the front of the building, with a wide staircase leading to the basement and class room floors.

In the Basement are large playrooms with toilets for boys and girls. There is also an up-to-date class room for Domestic Science. The balance of the basement is taken up with heating, ventilation and fuel storage. The basement is well finished in cement plaster with concrete floors, well lighted and sanitary in every way. The toilet rooms are most up to date, and are finished in pressed brick with composition flooring. The Plumbing Fixtures are of the latest type, the toilet partitions being constructed of steel with baked enamel finish.

On the first floor there are four full sized class rooms with commodious coat room accommodation for each room. Cupboard space is provided for supplies, etc.

On the upper floor there are two rooms with coat rooms, also large Assembly Hall with stage. On this floor there is also a small Library and two teachers' rooms for the use of the staff. Teachers' rooms are provided with basins with hot and cold water. On each floor drinking fountains are provided.

The building is fire proof construction. All the exterior and interior walls are of solid brick and all floors are of reinforced concrete. The stairs, which leads from the basement to the top floor, is constructed entirely of steel with composition treads. All the flooring in the building, excepting basement, is finished in Durolithic Asphalt, in a light green with base around the walls in brown. This type of flooring has been found very satisfactory, by the Architects, in previous building which they have constructed, and is the last word in sanitary floors. They are entirely without cracks, such as may be found in hardwood floors where dirt may lodge in same. The floor and base at walls are cast in one piece with sanitary cove at angle of floor and wall. This does not admit of shrinkage, such as in wood construction for dirt to collect and is very easily kept clean and requires no attention, other than ordinary washing and a coat of wax.

All the classroom corridors are finished with pressed brick dados to line of window sills and is very pleasing in appearance, as well as requiring no further upkeep. All the walls and ceilings are plastered above dados and finished in light buff color, which harmonizes with the brick dados and green floors.

The electrical work is concealed in metal conduits placed during construction in the concrete work, and is strictly up to date. The lighting fixtures are handsome in appearance, giving a very soft light if required for school purposes.

The sewerage system is by means of two septic tanks, which is a sanitary and up to date method of sewerage disposal where Town Sewerage Plant is not obtainable.

The building is heated by Dunham Low Pressure Steam System having two Heating Boilers, which may be run separately or together, according to the weather conditions. This means a considerable saving in the consumption of fuel in the mild weather. also in case of any repairs, which might be needed, as one boiler can be used alone, while the other is under repair.

The building is ventilated by means of the Gravity System. The air is brought into the basement, heated and delivered to each class room through metal ducts. Each class room has an exhaust flue to carry off foul air from the room. All the exhaust flues are connected in the roof space and discharged through the roof by means of two large ventilators.

The exterior of the building is plain but pleasing in design and of a substantial character. The stone foundation is carried out to match the old foundation of the burned school, and has a stone entrance on front. The outside walls are constructeded with a rough texture red brick, with ornamental panels and Indianna Lime Stone trimmings.

The building has been constructed for approximately $50,000, which is slightly under the estimate of the Architects.

The General Contractors for the construction of the building were M. Sullivan & Son Limited of Arnprior, Ontario.

The Heating and Plumbing Contract was done by McKinley & Northwood Limited of Ottawa, Ontario.

Electrical Work; Hydro Commission, Winchester.

Painting & Glazing; A. H. McPhail, Renfrew, Ont.

Roofing, J. D. Sanderson Ltd. Ottawa.

Stairs, Ottawa Iron Works, Ottawa.

Flooring, Vulcan Asphalt & Supply Co. Ltd. Toronto.

Factory Work, Beach Company, Winchester.

CAN WE PREVENT AUTO CASUALTIES?

Exactly 74 persons lost their lives every day in the United States during September because of automobile accidents. These figures come from the National Safety Council. During the first nine months of the year, automobiles took 18,200 lives in the United States. This is an increase over the figures for 1927. It may be noted that the last two months of the year usually show the worst records of all.

"What are we going to do about it?" asks an American writer. "Will we simply ignore it and let things slide, as we have been doing? Or will we, at last, wake up and take some drastic measures that will end this national disgrace?"

The same applies to Canada, and the problem of saving lives from the ruthless automobile is one for our legislative bodies to deal with seriously. The level crossing claims many victims, and it is now proposed to spend some millions of dollars in Canada to lessen this danger to public traffic. Many lives are sacrificed through defective cars. The brakes would not work, the steering gear was out of order, or something else was wrong with the car when it went headlong into the ditch. Just a few weeks ago a father, with wife and several children, driving home from Church in the night time, went over a culvert and several were killed in the accident. The report says the man was a very careful driver, was not driving fast at the time, but his steering gear would not work. The great demand for cars is compelling the factories to turn them out as quickly as possible. Some of the cars must of necessity have defective parts. Perhaps the defective part will cost a life or two. How can such dangers be overcome? There should be a law passed compelling every owner of a car to have his car thoroughly inspected at least twice a season, and every car should be compelled to produce its certificate of being safe, when asked. For this purpose every town should have in some garage a mechanic, authorized by the Government, to examine cars and issue certificates of safety. Such a system would of itself cause car owners to be more cautious, and have their cars in proper shape.

The longest and heaviest train load of grain in the world was hauled in Western Canada recently. It was more than a mile in length and was loaded with wheat.

Saskatchewan is the world's greatest wheat growing province. The 1928 yield is estimated at 300,000,000 bushels, an increase of 88,000,000 bushels over 1927.

PUBLIC NUISANCES

The Renfrew Mercury issues a protest against late comers at public entertainments. The protest is always in order, and always timely. The late comers are a great nuisance. Then they are generally noisy. They have no regard for the feelings or rights of others. If they had they would be on time. There should be a rule that late comers be compelled to stand at the entrance until there is an intermission in the entertainment. And while on this subject the Press would like to protest against the giggler, the loud talker and the repeater at movie entertainments. The smart Alex who smacks his lips or makes what he thinks smart remarks, ought to be taken by the coat collar and thrown out.

PAPER MONEY

Why should our paper money be in such large sheets. Not only is it a waste of good paper, but it is clumsy, not easily handled, takes up too much space, and like the United States Silver Dollar is altogether inconvenient. A bill half the size of the present one would be more convenient, and answer all the purpose of trade. It might not show the picture of some bank director, but what would that matter so long as it had its denomination in plain bold lettering. The editor of the Press speaks feelingly on this matter for, this is the season when he occasionally has twenty or thirty dollars in paper money, and he finds the bulk so big that he sometimes thinks he has a school boy lunch stuffed away in his pocket.

To the little town of Vulcan, in Southern Alberta, belongs the distinction of receiving more bushels of grain direct from the farmer's wagons and trucks than any other point in the British Empire, if not in the world. There are nine local elevators, seven of which are of double capacity. Last year Vulcan shipped two and a quarter million bushels of grain, and with even greater crops in the district this year the indications are that the town will break its own record.

The Walkerton Telescope heads an article "Can Jack Dempsey Come Back?" Well, off handed, we would say that Jack can come back if he promises to be a good boy, and not let the other fellow knock him about in the way Tunney did. But Jack will have to do some tough work before his come back is assured.

Immigration for Canada from the United States this year is twenty-five per cent greater than a year ago.

History of Winchester and Winchester Post Office

The following very interesting document was found by Mr Alex Duncan, when cleaning out some of the shelving in his book and fancy goods store a few weeks ago. As many Press readers know the store now occupied by Mr. Duncan was once known as Bow's Bookstore, and the Winchester Post Office was situated where Pierce's barber shop now is. The late Mr. Bow was from its beginning till his death, the Postmaster of Winchester.

It was, we believe, in 1915 that Mr. Bow passed away. There is no date to the document, but it must have been written after Mr. Bow passed his 88th year. He was one of those grand old pioneers to whom this country owe so much, and the true character of the man is shown in the fact that he was sought for the position, and he faithfully kept his trust till his death. The document starts off as follows:

History of the Winchester Post Office
written by Wm Bow, Oct. 1912

I came to Winchester Township in Oct. 1840, and now will write all concerning the Post Office that I became acquainted with.

No Post Office in the West part of Winchester in Oct. 1840. We had to send to Matilda Township to a Post Office kept by Geo Brouse in his store, called Matilda County of Dundas. The distance from Winchester to Matilda Post Office was 22 miles, and an old man named Old Bocleau, a Frenchman, was rented by some two or three families living far apart to bring the letters and papers with some tea, tobacco, or a few yards of cotton. The old man would go and come in two days. The member of Parliament from this county was Jessie Rose, who lived on the St. Lawrence, about a half a mile or so below what is now Morrisburg. At this place, Bates Corners, were George Laing, my brother-in law, Charles Fox, his brother-in-law, James Fox, his father, one or two Barrigars, William C. Pike, a sort of trader, George Fleming, James Fleming, lumberer, Benjamin Bates, a brother-in-law to the Flemings, John Dixon, George Dixon, and a family called Churches. Several of these who had no political bias got together and requested Mr. Jessie Rose to apply to the parliament for a Post Office. This he, Jessie Rose, did and nothing more was done by way of establishing an office until in 1842, or near that date. A new election taking place, Jessie Rose was defeated and John P. Crysler elected in his place. Jessie Rose was a Liberal or Radical, and John P. Crysler, a Tory. I may add that I had no political leading at this date Geo. Laing, who was a decided Tory, became a favorite with John P. Crysler, who soon became acquainted with Laing, the Foxes, Dixons, also with Benjamin Bates and a few others. Laing, my brother-in-law, made me, the writer, a confident. I had been busy teaching school at Cass Bridge for 5 years having a school under the Government regime embracing two sections, Cass Bridge and Gray School sections, but succeeded in getting several of my scholars far enough advanced to get qualified to teach school, namely, three Redmond girls and an Ulman girl. The people about Bates Corners made a request for me to teach the school there. I was at this time six years married. I engaged with the Trustees at Bates Corners to teach that school for $200 a year and succeeded in getting two or three of Laings girls, nieces of mine, and a few others to pass examinations and become active teachers. Geo. Laing at this date 1851 told me in confidence that John P. Crysler, the member for Dundas, had informed him that the Government had renewed the decision of Pike, Fleming, Bates, Dixon, etc, to seek for the renewal of their request for a Post Office, but that as I had been faithfully teaching, I was the proper person for Postmaster, that none of the others were at all qualified for the work, and John P. Crysler having privately written him to the effect that such was the case but no person being at all qualified for Postmaster, Mr. George Laing must select a proper person for the position. George Laing lived over a mile from the place at the four corners called Bates Corners. Mr. J. P. Crysler was the only person who inquired as to who was a proper person, informing Geo Laing that he had inquired as to the propriety of the appointment of William Bow, having selected and found that William Bow be the Postmaster and that George Laing now name the office. Having connected with me as to these facts and being anxious to make a proper selection for the Postmastership, would request Laing to name the Office. Laing having a high idea of the inhabitants of the City of Aberpeen in the west of that city, informed me that he would write J. P. Crysler to appoint William Bow, Postmaster, and that the name of the Office would be West Winchester. At this time and for four or five years previous, a post office had been obtained by J. P. Crysler for Chesterville, and Charles T. Casselman had been appointed Postmaster. This must have been about 1842 or 1845, and had been named Winchester. During several years prior to the establishing of Winchester Post Office at Chesterville, we, in the West of Winchester, had to use the Chesterville Office called Winchester as our only Post Office, and we all refused to name our Office, Bates Corners. In February, 1853, Mr. Tweetman being Post Office Inspector, appeared at my school room seeking an audience with me. I retired with him to my humble dwelling at the corner of Main Street and nearly due north of M. F. Beach's Mill. One or two of the gentlemen hearing of the visit of the Inspector very anxiously came to where Mr. Tweetman and myself were arranging our plans for starting the Post Office, and this gentleman kindly gave instructions and left us. He then left necessary books and sheets for carrying out his instrustions The mail was then carried by Mr. James Hughes from West Winchester to Heckston or Heck's Corner about 20 miles west passing through Inkerman, then called Smiths Mills to Archibalds Corners, twice in the week. In the matter of the growth of the two villages in Winchester Township it was found that the three names of West Winchester, Chesterville and Armstrong Mills caused a great deal of trouble in the matter of correspondence to these two places. The villages became incorporated about 1865 to 1870 and the name got settled so that no trouble or difficulty has been experienced since. Bates Corners first named West Winchester, threw off the word West and assumed the name simply of Winchester, form rly the name of the Eastern Village, when the east assumed the name Chesterville, and laid aside the name Winchester and the West Village assumed the name then thrown aside, since which there has been really no trouble in the several villages thus re-named. The growth of the two villages has been steady. In 1865 this writer was appointed a Justice of the Peace, and soon after was appointed Police Magistrate of Winchester. I may add that these appointments have remained Statue quo, and no change or cancelling of names or questions politically has been made or has taken place til this date when the writer is in his 88th year of age, and all the persons namely, William C. Pike, George Fleming, James Fleming, George Laing, Benjamin Bates, Charles Fox, William Quart, Wilson Forth, John Dixon George Dixon, William Dixon, Robert Brown, John Brown, John Christie, James Johnston, Joshua Annable, George Annable, James Frith, Joshua Frith, Caleb Henderson and many others have passed away since 1840.

My own privilege is as follows: Born in Aberdeen City, Scotland, at 109 Gallowgate, on May 25, 1825. Father's name being Thomas Bow, Mother's name Mary Jack from Peterhead, Brother's name Thomas Bow, a graduate of Manschol College, Ann Bow, afterwards Mrs. Geo. Laing, Mary Ann Bow, afterwards Mrs. James McLean, Alexander Bow, afterwards of Macduff, and Isabella Bow, afterwards wife of Abram Fleming. All have passed away leaving kith and kin to follow of whom I alone am left.

William Bow.

League "Shop Talk"

Committees are Active at League Headquarters—Many Problems Being Investigated by Experts at Geneva

Although the Assembly of the League of Nations, which brings so many statesmen, journalists and observers from the four corners of the earth to Geneva, concluded its sittings some time ago, the Swiss city still hums wit hactivity, writes a correspondent of "Interdependence," monthly review of the League of Nations Society of Canada, published at Ottawa. Commissions committees, sub-committees and various bodies are constantly in session delving into various abstruse international problems whose very character are generally so complex and technical that they baffle the common lay observer. But not a little that is romantic and interesting is buried beneath the mass of "shop-talk" that goes on.

The difficulty of collecting taxes from the natives in Western Samoa and the work of the secret "Citizen Committee" busy broadcasting false and fantastic news, were described, for instance, to the Mandates Commission, to whom report the various nations under whose control various remote and uncivilized areas have been placed. A report upon his stewardship was also given to this body by Mr. Werth, Administrator of the territory of Southwest Africa. Railways were functioning, the port of Walvis Bay has grown and prospered, and conditions have greatly improved, he said.

Hoping that the customs authorities of the countries of the world may be encouraged to call a spade a spade metaphorically—in all languages, a special sub-committee of exeperts have been sitting in Geneva for some time. Their task is to study the question of the unification of customs nomenclature and bring about a simplified system of tariff terms that will facilitate commercial intercourse between nations.

The Committee of the Health Section forms a clearing house for information regarding every disease, plague or sickness that is affiliating any portion of the earth. An epidemic of dengue—also known as aedes aegypti—that is causing many deaths in Greece is at present under invsetigation.

Two other committees dealing with involved and highly technical matters are those investigating international economic relationships and double taxation and fiscal evasion.

Defence Against Failure

There is no end to the sufficiency of character. It can afford to wait; it can do without what is called success; it cannot but succeed. To a well-principled man, existence is victory. He defends himself against failure in his main design by making every inch of the road to it right. There is no trifle and no obscurity to him; he feels the immensity of the chain whose lost link he holds in his hand, and is led by it. Having nothing, this spirit hath all. It makes no stipulations for earthly felicity—does not ask, in the absoluteness of its trust, even for the assurance of continued life.—R. W. Emerson.

A Thankful Heart

A thankful heart is not only the greatest virtue, but the parent of all the other virtues.—Cicero.

Canada Paid Tribute to 60,000 War Dead

Tenth Armistice Anniversary Stirs Memories of Her Offer to Send an Expedition to Defend the Empire, and of the Large Army That Went Overseas.

A nation hushed for two minutes! This is the tribute Canada paid to her 60,000 war dead on the tenth anniversary of Armistice Day.

The occasion has lost nothing with the passing of the years, and the silence will be observed by not only those who knew the great war in all its grim reality but by that younger generation which has grown up since and to whom war is only a faint echo rapidly becoming fainter.

The heroes are not forgotten. Who will forget that dramatic day in 1914 when Sir Robert Borden offered to provide an expeditionary force for the defense of the empire? This offer was accepted by the British Government. In response to calls for volunteers, some 40,000 men assembled in a few weeks at Valcartier, where land had been purchased, cleared, drained and otherwise prepared for the assembling and organization of the troops.

The mobilization scheme prepared in 1911 and revised later was ignored, but gradually the troops were formed into units prior to sailing for England. This original contingent consisted of one division of infantry and one brigade of mounted troops, together with lines of communication units. The immortal Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry was an independent unit, recruited throughout Canada.

Surplus troops were organized into an additional—Fourth—brigade and also accompanied the force. The contingent, with a total strength of 33,000, began to embark at Quebec on Sept. 22. The thirty-one transports gathered at Gaspe Bay, whence they sailed on Oct. 3 with a naval escort provided by the Admiralty.

The contingent remained encamped at Salisbury Plain during the winter of 1914-15, which proved to be an exceptionally wet one. The First Canadian Division proceeded to France in February, 1915, followed in May and June by the Cavalry Brigade (dismounted) and the Motor Machine Gun Brigade.

Meantime other units were being recruited in Canada and passed on to England. The Second Caandian Division was organized and proceeded to France in September, 1915, and together with the First Division formed the Canadian Corps. The Third Canadian Division was organized in France in December. In August, 1916, the Fourth Division, which had been organized in England, joined the Canadian Corps, and for the rest of the war the corps was maintained on a four-division basis.

Other Canadian Forces

The Fifth Canadian Division, which was formed in England in the early part of 1917, did not proceed to France and eventually, in February, 1918, was broken up and its personnel used as reinforcements, with the exception of the divisional artillery, which went to France intact.

Many units which were used in excess of divisional establishments were depleted and their personnel transferred to reserve formations for use as reinforcements. Other new organizations came into being during the course of the war, such as the Canadian Machine Gun Corps, the Canadian Forestry Corps, the Corps of Canadian Railway Troops, etc., and much expansion and reorganization took place in the Canadian artillery and engineers.

Recruiting in Canada was for three years on a voluntary basis, but the voluntary spirit gradually worked itself out and compulsory service was introduced in August, 1917, on the passing of the Military Service Act. By this time the reinforcement situation had become very serious.

Under the voluntary system 258 infantry battalions and thirteen regiments of mounted rifles, together with numerous other formations, had been raised; on the introduction of compulsory service the policy was adopted of passing recruits to depots, the process of forming new units to send to England and be broken up there being abandoned. Altogether, under both systems, 619,636 men were recruited in the Canadian Expeditionary Force.

Killed (including missing, now presumed dead)	39,488
Died of wounds	12,260
Died, other causes	7,796
Wounded and injured	175,841
Prisoners of war	3,870
Enemy prisoners captured	43,436
Guns captured	664
Trench mortars captured	471
Machine guns captured	3,154
Enlisted in Canadian Expeditionary Force	619,636
Number overseas from Canada	424,589
Served in France and other theatres of the war	344,596

The principal battles in which Canadian troops took part were as follows: In 1915, Ypres, Festubert, Mount Sorrel; in 1916, Somme, including Thiepval, Ancre Heights and Ancre; in 1917, Arras, including Vimy Ridge, Arleux and the Scarpe, Hill 70, Passchendaele, Cambrai (cavalry only), Saint-Quentin (cavalry only), Amiens; in 1918, the Scarpe, Drocourt-Queant line, the battles of the Hindenburg line (including Canal du Nord and Cambrai, 1918), Valenciennes, Sambre and the pursuit to Mons.

In September, 1918, a brigade of artillery and some details were provided from England for the North Russian front, divided between Archangel and Murmansk. In January, 1919, a force organized in Canada was sent to Siberia, consisting of two battalions of infantry, a battery of artillery and details; in all, 4,186 men.

Four hospital units served in the Mediterranean Expeditionary Force at the Dardanelles (Lemnos) and Salonika, and a bridging company served in Palestine. Forty-one picked Canadian volunteers took part in the Bagdad Mission, known as the Dunsterforce, and practically each man was detailed for an isolated mission in the vicinity of the Caspian Sea.

England Fears Loss Newfoundl'd to U.S.

England's fear that the recent Newfoundland election may mean its annexation by the United States is summarized as follows in the current issue of "Time":—

A sufficient cause for Royal qualms was the Newfoundland Parliamentary Election of last week. Swept out of power was Conservative Prime Minister Frederick Alderdice; and swept in was Liberal Sir Richard Anderson Squires. The "Liberality" of Sir Richard is such that his principal henchman, Sir William Ford Coaker, has said:

"The true destiny of Newfoundland, with her fisheries, her forests, and her mineral wealth lies in the direction of the United States. . . . The Dominion of Newfoundland is coming around to the idea of choosing to become one of the States. . . . At present if a referendum were taken on this subject it would carry by a 75 per cent. vote of the whole electorate, not because Newfoundland has forgotten the old flag, but because the tendency of the times is to consider dollars and cents first. . . . Ten per cent. of our population are continually going to and coming from the United States. . . ."

The avowed policy of Sir Richard Squires is to bring to Newfoundland both Canadian and U.S. "dollars and cents," by fostering exploitation of the illimitable Labrador forests, whence comes most of the pulpwood for Canadian and U.S. news organs, magazines, books. Ostensibly Sir Richard is perfectly willing that the Labrador forests should be transferred to the Dominion of Canada—for a sufficiently stiff price. But the exceedingly harmonious relations existing between him and the Internatinal Paper Co., with headquarters in Manhattan, suggest that Sir Richard thinks a stiffer price can be got from Wall St. The blatant nonsense about merging Newfoundland with the U.S. is probably a mere advance guard of publicity to prepare Newfoundlanders for U.S. dollar penetration.

The recent political upset is unquestionably attributable to the depressed condition of Newfoundland fisheries and other industries. The electorate, disgruntled, has clearly been swept to the support of Sir Richard Squires by his clever "dollars and cents" campaign.

BEEF SCRAP AND BUTTERMILK FOR POULTRY

In the feeding of poultry at the Lacombe, Alberta, Experimental Station, buttermilk and beef scrap were compared as a source of animal protein for winter egg production. Pens of white Wyandotte pullets were used in the experiment, which lasted from the beginning of November until the end of the following April. Except for buttermilk given to one lot and beef scrap to the other the ration was the same with the different pens. At the end of the experiment it was found the pens given beef scrap produced slightly better results than those receiving buttermilk, from the standpoint of egg production. The cost per day of eggs produced was 1.6 cents per dozen in favor of the beef scrap.

The report of the superintendent of this station, published by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, gives the result of many other experiments in the feeding of poultry and in the other investigations and activities being carried on at the Central Alberta Station.

PROFIT FROM MILKING HERD

With a good milking herd and a liberal supply of forage and other foods a good profit can be made in the production of milk at all seasons of the year. During the whole of 1927 a record was kept by the superintendent of the Lacombe, Alberta, Experimental Station, of the weekly production and feed cost of the milk produced from a herd running from eight to thirteen head. During most of the year from twelve to thirtnen cows were milking.

The report of the station, published by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, contains an interesting table showing the cost of feed to produce 100 pounds of milk varying from as low as 63 cents to $1.30. From about the end of April to the first week in October the cost was less than one dollar a hundred. Without counting other costs than feed the profits from the herd in milk ran as high as $63 in seven days in the month of June; the lowest profit for the year was for the week ending January 15, when it amounted to $14.94 from the eight cows then giving milk.

The feeds were valued at 1¾ cents per pound for meal mixture, $4 per ton for ensilage; $15 per ton for hay; 88 per ton for oat green feed, and $2 a month per cow for pasture. The meal was mixed and fed in the proportion of 400 pounds rolled oats, 200 pounds bran, and 20 pounds oil cake meal. The meal was fed on the basis of 1 pound of the mixture for every 3½ pounds of milk produced.

ROOT ROT OF OATS

Although all of the cereal grains are subject to diseases known a foot-rots or root-rots, oats suffer perhaps more than the other cereals. One form on oats of a foot-rot or root-rot, more or less common in the Prairie Provinces, is unfortunately so inconspicuous as to give little or no hint of its presence. Frequently frought, wind, frost and other unfavorable conditions are blamed when foot-rot is really the cause of an unhealthy appearance of a field. The division of botany of the Experimental Farms has been working on this disease for several years, and has issued a bulletin which throws considerable light on the method in which it works, the damage it causes, and gives the results of their investigations from the standpoint of control.

Proper cultural methods, including rotations, the possibility of developing resistant varietie , and the use of chemical compounds for seed treatments, are indicated from the work done as methods that may be expected to assist in the control of this and other diseases.

Thi bulletin is numbered 105 and entitled "Seeding Blight and Foot-Rots of Oats caused by Fursarium Colmorum (W.G. Sm) Sau. It is published by the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, and copies may be obtained from the Publications Branch of the Department.

DIFFERENT SILAGES FOR DAIRY COWS

In northern sections where corn for silage cannot be grown successfully either of two crops may be used as a substitute. Silage from a mixture of oats, peas, and vetches seems to give results about equal to sunflower silage for feeding dairy cows. These two crops were compared at the Dominion Experimental Station for New Ontario at Kapuskasing. The superintendent in his report for the year 1927 published by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, states that the experiment was carried on to determine the relative value of the two silages for milk production. Ten milking cows were selected which were in such stage of lactation that each would continue milking throughout the following four thirty-day periods which the experiment covered. During this period the silage fed was interchanged from month to month and accurate records kept. This experiment has been conducted yearly for five years. For the first three years each animal was fed five pounds per day more sunflower silage than oats, peas and vetch silage. This was done to balance up the dry matter as between the two kinds of silage. During the later two years the quantity of sunflower silage given was reduced, so that the cattle consumed equal quantities of each silage. Besides the silage ration, each cow received twelve pounds of hay per day, and six received in addition twenty pounds of roots per day. The grain mixture consisted of bran, 4 parts; ground oats, 2 parts; ground barley, 2 parts, and oilcake, 2 parts. This was fed in accordance with the individual requirements for the cows, according to the quantity of milk being given.

During the five-year period the average daily production of milk was 24.83 lbs. for the cows on the sunflower silage, and 24.52 lbs. for the cows on the oats, peas and vetch silage, while the cost of feed per 100 lbs. of milk produced was $1.63 and $1.78 respectively, showing that these two crops are very similar in feeding value, what little advantage there is lying with the sunflower silage. Issued by the Director of Publicity, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Devout Report Recent Miracles in Many Countries

Superantural Manifestations Proclaimed in France, Germany and Mexico

Some people think the age of miracle is past, but there are plenty of others, says "The Pathfinder," in all parts of the world who are proclaiming "miracles" every little while.

Mexico, with her religious troubles, seems to be a leader in the matter. On a report that the country's patron saint, the Virgin of Guadalupe, had appeared to some Indian workers in a field near the town of Mexicalcingo such crowds surged over the place, destroying crops and property, that federal troops had to be called to restrain them. Another report that the patron saint had appeared on the top of a hill in the town of Guadalupe Hidalgo and had left her image on a great rock caused hundreds of women carrying flowers and candles to visit the place. Blasting was going on, but that did not deter them. They had to be forcibly removed before the rocks were blown up.

France, too, more recently has had her supernatural visitations. Near the little town of Remirmont a peasant girl declared that the Virgin Mary appeared to her on the edge of a cloud and told her to return to the place every day and pray, promising a miracle. Marcelle returned to the spot day after day and prayed and stated that the vision was regularly repeated. The spot was roped off and the girl was followed by crowds hoping to see the miracle. It was in a very similar manner that Lourdes, world-famous as a healing place, got its start in the last century.

Germany, too, last year had her supernatural manifestation in the person of a girl with stigmata—bleeding spots on the body corresponding to the wounds on the body of Christ. Crowds flocked from far and near to see her.

Supernatural revelation, of course, are by no means limited to Christians. Over in a tropical Hawaiian island a certain large stone became accredited with the power to produce miraculous cures. Many natives, Japanese and Chinese, visited it, knelt and prayed before it and made offerings to it. It bade fair to rival the black stone at Mecca.

Daily Life

The daily life into which people are born, and into which they are absorbed before they are aware, forms chains which only one in a hundred has moral strength enough to despise and to break when the right time comes—when an inward necessity for independent action arises, which is superior to all outward conventionalities.—Mrs. Gaskell. (Ruth.)

Worry

It is not work that kills men; it is worry. Work is healthy; you can hardly put more upon a man than he can bear. Worry is rest upon the blade. It is not the revolution that desroys the machinery, but the friction.—Henry Ward Beecher.

Blessings

The private blessings—the blessings of immunity, safeguard, liberty and integrity—which we enjoy, deserve the thankfulness of a whole life.—J. Collier.

CHEVROLET

The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History
-a Six in the price range of the four!

When you learn the full details of this sensational new automobile, you will realize that Chevrolet has provided those qualities of six-cylinder smoothness, power, acceleration and luxury which heretofore could only be enjoyed in cars costing several hundred dollars more!

The CHEVROLET Engine

The Outstanding Chevrolet is powered by a new six-cylinder valve-in-head engine of advanced design.

It develops 32% more power than the previous Chevrolet motor and affords greater speed, faster acceleration and an economy averaging better than twenty miles to the gallon of gasoline!

A new non-detonating cylinder head provides high compression performance without special fuels. The new hot-spot manifold assures complete fuel vaporization. The new and larger carburetor incorporates an automatic acceleration pump, and an improved venturi choke for quicker winter starting.

The new heavier crankshaft is statically and dynamically balanced. The entire rocker arm mechanism is automatically lubricated. Long engine life is provided for by AC air cleaner, continuous self-purification of the crankcase oil—and improved crankcase ventilation.

Big, powerful, easily adjustable four-wheel brakes. Ball-bearing steering mechanism. And such costly car features as two-beam headlamps with toe button control for "dimming", semi-automatic spark control, theft-proof Electrolock, waterproof spark-coil construction, larger shielded safety gasoline tank in rear, improved differential lubrication and many other features of comparable importance.

New Bodies by Fisher

In addition the New Chevrolet offers an order of beauty, distinction and style never before attained in any low-priced automobile! The high flattened hood and the gleaming chromium plated radiator shell furnish the keynote of rugged smartness and grace. The rakish unbroken lines, emphasized by distinctively grouped hood louvres, are suggestive of speed and alertness. The divided body moulding and concave front pillars reflect the vogue so widely favored by leading custom builders; while the larger, longer, lower bodies are themselves masterful examples of the craftsmanship for which Fisher is internationally renowned.

The seats are wider and more restful. The driver's seat in all closed models is easily adjustable, forward or back—a feature recently introduced on a few of the high-priced cars. The redesigned dash carries an attractive grouping of all control instruments indirectly lighted, including the new motor temperature indicator.

PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS OF CANADA, LIMITED

TWIN FIRES

By GEORGE ELMER COBB

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

The banalities of gossipers, the clatter of housewives, the shop talk of salesmen, the general buzz of the vast human hive—all these elements were far distant from Chester Dale, and he was glad.

It was in a remote part of New Mexico that he had arrived, tramping it with a light camping outfit, and for two days he had not come across half a dozen human habitations.

He had got his sleeping bag in readiness, had a small fire of brush and wood and sat smoking contentedly before it when he caught a gleam from a like illumination just beyond a slight rise. Companionship was at once suggested. Slinging on belt and rifle Dale moved in the direction of the twin glow. A new interest was added to the occasion as he made out a young girl flitting near the fire. A graceful, sprightly figure was silhouetted with clearness. She wore the conventional short dress and leggings of the true border girl and was apparently preparing a meal. As he came nearer Dale observed a horse tethered near a light wagon, and lying upon some blankets in the latter was an old man. As Dale came tramping through the bushes the girl looked startled, and then as the firelight showed him to be a well-appearing young man, placed back against a tree the rifle she had hastily taken up.

She was browned by the sun and her garb showed the dust and wear and tear of a strenuous journey, but her eyes told of character and soulfulness.

"I am a transient wanderer," Dale introduced himself, "and as I have not met a fellow being for two days, the glow of your campfire was a lure I could not resist."

The old man sat up in the wagon, scanned Dale with a critical eye, and a certain uneasiness at first manifest gradually left his face. As Dale went into details regarding himself confidence seemed inspired with both father and daughter.

"The fire is no longer necessary," spoke her father, and she scattered the dying embers. "We are on the last stage of a journey to Cerito," added Adam Raymond. He was anxious to get to Cerito, a county seat, as speedily as possible, he said, and Dale spent an hour in the company of a young lady he would not soon forget and left the twain to return to his own camp.

There had been something significant and mysterious in the tone and manner of the old man as he directed the extinguishment of the fire; he had acted watchful and startled at times, as if fearing intruders, and Dale scattered what was left of his own fire before he crept into his sleeping bag.

He seemed lulled to sleep by the scent of some flower or shrub, all unaware that the perfume was extended towards the mouth of his sleeping bag by one of two men who had crept up to the spot guided by a few lingering sparks of the campfire. A "sleeping shrub" victim, Chester Dale was as dead to the world as if he had been chloroformed. The two men lifted him up by shoulders and feet. They carried him nearly two miles until they reached a cave in the rocks. Here he was drawn from his covering and hands and feet securely tied.

"Now, then, you keep watch until I go for Jim and the rest of the gang," spoke one of the men. "It will take a full twenty-four hours to reach them, but it will be worth the while. Jim will be liberal when he learns we have run down this Raymond before he got to Cerito and filed his papers to that property Jim covets.

"Why not search him for the document, if that is all Jim is after?" was queried.

"No, that's not orders. We've struck a streak of money luck, I can tell you."

All this Dale dimly heard and then relapsed into drugged sleep again. It was late the next afternoon when he was once more aroused. The messenger had returned with Jim and several others. Jim was in a frenzy of disappointment and rage.

"You blundering idiot!" he shouted. "He isn't Adam Raymond at all. You've missed the man I sent you after, who is probably safely in Cerito by this time."

Dale was pretty well assured by this time that it was Adam Raymond he had been mistaken for by his two captors.

A thousand miles from home, among strangers, without a cent of money, Chester Dale reached Cerito and the first person he met as he entered its one hotel was Adam Raymond. He found a friend, indeed, when he had related his story to him and asked for pecuniary aid until he had telegraphed home for funds.

"All I have is at your command," declared the old man. "Come up to our rooms and let my daughter and myself thank you. But for your mistaken capture I would have been the victim, and once those schemers got my papers all we had was lost. The documents were duly recorded yesterday and no one can rob me of my mining rights now."

Electra Raymond encountered Dale anew, robed in more becoming attire than her woodland rough-and-ready suit. He thought of her always, however, as he had first seen her, a true child of forest and mountain. And when the natural sequence of wedded life had come to those two he cherished always a memory of the twin fires that had led them together."

He clears the LINE

IN THE TELEPHONE BUSINESS this man is called a "trouble-shooter'," which may sound like sport but it isn't for him.

Any hour of the night he may be roused from sleep. Somewhere the line is down and it is up to him to fix it. Right away.

Usually the line is down because there has been a storm. It isn't much fun to cling to the top of a pole with a zero gale taking your breath away.

FINDING THE BREAK in the line is not as bad as it used to be. It used to mean that men had to trudge along through the storm, perhaps for miles, until the bad spot was found. Today there are delicate instruments which can locate the spot within a few rods from an office many miles away.

They are so accurate that if there is a break in the 180 miles of line between Toronto and Sarnia, a man can sit in a building in Toronto and locate the spot within a pole's length or so. Or a man can sit in a building in Montreal and find a break anywhere between there and Quebec.

He can tell the trouble-shooter almost the very pole to go to because every pole now is numbered.

BUT THE TROUBLE-SHOOTER has to do the actual job and it means more than losing sleep or braving bad weather. It calls for very high technical skill.

Big cables are simply lead containers holding hundreds of tightly packed wires, each fine as a hair. When the cable is burnt out for a stretch, or is opened, there is a fine looking mess. It looks like the stuffing of a hair mattress.

Each of these hundreds of fine wires has to be connected again to its mate in the other half of the cable. If you can imagine youself fingering those wires at two o'clock of a stormy wintry morning you will realize how good the trouble-shooter has to be at his job.

STORMS COST MONEY as well as discomfort. The telephone system has over 675,000 miles of wire strung on poles stretching across 23,000 miles of country and every storm hits some part of the system. A big storm can do a great deal of damage.

Sleet has cost the telephone company as much as a million dollars in one year. Sometimes one storm means spending more than $100,000 without delay.

There is no time to call the directors together. The job has to be done and the money must be spent.

The money is ready because the telephone company has followed a policy of making definite provision for such emergencies.

And the job is done because the telephone business has men and women, like the trouble-shooter, alive to the meaning of service and eager to keep the telephone in the front rank of Canadian progress.

The United Church

A most impressive communion service was conducted by the pastor on Sunday morning. Some new members were received by confession of faith, and some by letter. The choir sang, "We would see Jesus," in which Mrs. Steele took a leading solo part. In speaking from Matt. 22:3 Rev. J. A. Waddell said that it is a source of thankfulness that the Lord's Supper is so well observed by the Lord's people, but there are many who absent themselves from this service. Some stay away because of no love for Christ, they have not yet given their heart to God, although they may be in regular attendance at the House of God. Others because they feel it would be inconsistent with their life. There are certain obligations and responsibilities that ought to be assumed and all do not wish to assume them forgetting that God has said "My grace is sufficient for Thee."

Some feel unworthy. "None are worthy of the very least of the mercies of God" said the pastor. We should draw near in the spirit of penitence and humility and God will help us to know Him better. Some stay away because others take the sacrament unworthily. This is no valid reason. We lose a great deal when we neglect this communion, and miss much of the spiritual. The pastor urged us to go out from this service to show that we are on the Lord's side.

Those who attended the evening service enjoyed a treat in listening to the beautiful solo: "Is He Yours' so ably sung by Rev. J. A. Waddell also in hearing Mr. Mac Singleton bring to us a few of the impressions he gleamed from the recent Boy's Conference at Perth. He first showed the purpose of these conferences and told of the subjects discussed there and of the personal enrichment he received. As he told of the advantages of these boys organizations he made an earnest appeal for the sympathetic cooperation of the older folk. Mr. Singleton is a young speaker of promise and all were delighted to hear him.

Next Sunday Rev. J. H. Miller of Kemptville, will preach here while Mr. Waddell will take anniversary services there.

Temperance Convention

(Contributed)

The County Temperance Workers of Dundas met in the Town Hall at Winchester, on Thursday afternoon and evening last.

Notwithstanding the heavy downpour of rain two well-attended sessions were held and a spirit of genuine enthusiasm prevailed.

The gathering was thoroughly representative of all parts of the County. Workers were present from Morrisburg, Williamsburg, Elma, Chesterville, Morewood, Iroquois, Brinstons, Hulbert, Winchester Springs, Inkerman, South Mountain, Mountain Station and Winchester.

There was a general feeling of interest and a desire to promote the cause of temperance throughout the County and elsewhere.

Mr W. J. Cass, President of the County, presided, and in the absence of the Secretary, Mr. Allan McInnis of Iroquois, acted in this capacity.

After the opening devotional exercises, two splendid addresses were given, one by Mr. James Hales, K. C, Toronto, a former member of the Ontario License Board, and Rev. Dr. A. J. Irwin, Sec'y of the Ontario Prohibition Union.

In a very quiet, but none the less effective manner, Mr. Hales reviewed the progress of the Temperance movement in Ontario, up until the introduction of the present Government Control Act, and added, the present law is a complete failure in bringing about respect for law. Bootlegging is still rampant, said the speaker, and 60 million dollars worth of liquor has been sold during the year through Government sale.

If this Governmeut Control is good, said Mr. Hales, why not let the public use it anywhere. Why so many restrictions as to the places where it can be used. The law says young people under 21 must not have it. Why? What's the philosophy behind it all, queried the speaker.

In closing Mr. Hales said, "The well-being of our people is wrapped in this matter. It is your job and mine to make the country better and if we encourage the larger distribution of alcohol through Gov't sale, or otherwise, our real purpose will be thwarted and the best interests of this great land suffer in consequence.

Dr Irwin followed Mr Hales and in a short address set forth the work of the Union and asked for the co-operation of all to make the work a success

The reorganization then took place and a very interesting and practical discussion of present problems and future plans ensued. The report of the nominating committee followed with the result that the following were elected as the County officers for the year, W. J. Cass, President; N. W. Beach, Secretary; Allan McInnis, Treasurer, etc., (See last week's Press.

The evening session found the hall well filled and a splendid program of music and addresses followed. South Mountain Mixed Quartette rendered two splendid numbers, while the Male Quartette from Iroquois lent considerable interest to the gathering by their enthusiastic rendition of some temperance songs.

Dr. Irwin, in opening his remarks at the evening session said, the Temperance Movement was a great Social Movement, which was making remarkable progress all over the world. The spirit of the Temperance Movement he added, is primarily Christian. He then outlined three forces against which we had to contend.

1. Individual Appetite. A campaign of Education is necessary here. Total obstinence on the part of all should be our aim.

2. Social Custom was another matter that had to be met and overcome. Here again we have to see to it that a greater loyalty to better things is inculcated in our people. Precept and Example mean much.

3 The great Commercialized Liquor Interest is a formidable foe. Here talking was of little use. The only effective weapon to use in suppressing this deeply rooted interest is Legislation. This was done most effectively during the war. If it didn't mean for efficiency, then how can it mean for efficiency now.

Dr. Irwin referred to the inroads of the trade in the past two years. The Brewers and Distillers have taken on a new lease of life and are hopeful to gain back some of the ground lost during the period of the war. Already evidences of their aggressive and prosperity was to be seen in the fact that in 1926 there were 24 breweries and 4 distilleries, while in 1928 we find 37 breweries and nine distilleries.

He made reference to the rapid rise in stocks in connection with the business, and this for a business that is a menace to the purity of public life in this country as clearly revealed by recent governmental investigations. Windsor and Kingston statistics were produced to show that drunkenness in the smaller cities was increased.

In the days of Legislated Bars said Dr. Irwin—"We had private sales with public drinking, but now we have public sales and private drinking." The bar became intolerable and it was outlawed, but the present system in my judgment said the speaker, has given the trade a shield of privacy under which all kinds of dedauchery exists.

Mr. Hales followed with another interesting and though provoking message. "The hope of our cause sai i the speaker, lies in our young people, and these are also the hope of the liquor trade, their future victim must come from among these same young folk.

Let us see to it, said he, that they are safe guarded as far as it is possible for us to do so from the inroads of this iniquitious traffic. In very deliberate and forceful language he pointed out the power of the liquor trade. The illegal use of their resoursces.

He referred to the inroads made on a friendly nation by the trade and added he had never seen people who would more flagrantly and wilfully violate the law, than those engaged in the business. He intimated that there was a firm possibility that there will be a law to say "That Provinces will decide the matter of manufacture rather than the Dominion as at present.

There was a very interesting discussion on ways and means in the afternoon and a very definite feeling that the matter of continued temperance organization and education was essential to the highest well-being of our cause.

The convention was most encouraging and with the effficient leadership of those in charge. Dundas can be depended upon to hold fast her previous record for loyalty to all that make for the advancement of temperance and sobiety in this fair land.
