CRUMBS from Graham's Loaf

Sometimes it is hard to realize we are living in a world of space capsules and instantaneous world-wide communications. Just this Tuesday we took time out and watched the American astronaut flip out and around the world for a quick three circles, then plop back into the ocean for recovery. It seemed quite the ordinary thing to hear him remarking on the view from 'way out there.

Then after whirling around for all that time, one little dustmote in the outer fringes of eternal space, he decided it was time to head for home. And almost is if Mr Coleman had rung the bell, he pointed his outfit back to Mother Earth and suddenly was back in the land of humans and terrestial worries. A most interesting way to make a living, but it does have a chancy future. It is interesting to contemplate where Col. Glenn would be now if his machinery had accelerated a mite too fast. Seems there was one a few week ago that did that. It is now on a rendezvous with the sun. It will be back in a few hundred years.

We grew up in an era that believed in space travel and all that sort of nonsense. From the day that Miss Mulloy led us through the Second Reader at Limerick, we fought with one of the local leading lights in education circles about who would read "Chums" next. It was a big book filled from cover to cover with stories about space travel, submarine adventures, journeying adventurers in the lost heart of Brazil, and an occasional do-it-yourself on making gunpowder. We waited each Christmas for the annual copy of our favourite reading. It lasted until summer came along and we could get outside after supper.

Then came the fateful day when we made the gunpowder. While it was not strong enough to get us into orbit, it did have some other side effects. We found that the mixture made a most tremendous bang under certain conditions. Like stuffing an old spool full of the mixture, making an electrode out of shingle nails, then sparking it with batteries from the telephone. It made a most satisfactory earth geyser when buried in the garden. But when we attached one of the propulsion units to the tail of the family tomcat and had him take off in a smoking trail of fur and shrieking yowl, we gave up the manufacture of rocket fuel.

It was pointed out to us that the rules were suddenly changed. Closeted as we were in the carriage shed along with a length of leather harness tug and Father, we had little choice but to go along. We decided then that the manufacture of propellent was a little ahead of our time. We decided to turn over a new leaf in our reading and stick to safe things like climbing trees and high barn roofs. The decisions made then have been closely adhered to by this member of the Crumb tribe. Any orbits we have approached since that time have been brought on by rushes of blood to the head and suggestions we are anything but neutral politically.

Central school definite for Fulton property

Decision settles site seesaw Winchester delays voted down

On again, off again, build again, and this time it appears to be set. North Dundas High School Board, atfer a matter of five motions and amendments, Tuesday night decided to purchase the Fulton property on the Ridge and to raise a central school there. The final vote on the site came down the wire in a dead heat. Chairman Eric Casselman, Winchester township representative, cast the deciding vote in favour of construction of a central school on that site. Immediate plans were made to get the necessary paper work done as soon as possible. When figures become available on costs the supporting municipalities will be asked to approve the board's action. Winchester township will be the municipality to raise the necessary debentures.

Winchester high school fire last week forced immediate decisions on the school board. A decision had to be made in jig time regarding the replacement of the school. With a long history of indecision over a central school, two schools or a composite school, the board had its hands full.

The meeting was held in Chesterville school Tuesday night and all members were present. Eric Casselman was in the chair.

Dr J. O. Proulx, district inspector, was on hand for consultation if necessary. His remarks were brief and a rehash of what had been said many times before.

J. Frank Casselman offered a motion to rescind all present motions on the books regarding schools and sites. This was carried. He then moved that a large central school be built with capacity to take care of present school populations and accommodation for "decades to come." This motion experienced little difficulty. It was passed.

For the third time the United Counties representative rose. He moved that the board build a central school on Maple Ridge on Lot 11, Concession 5, township of Winchester, on the north side of the highway on the Bert Fulton property. Seconded by Wilfred McMillan, Williamsburg representative, the motion ran into heavy fire. Winchester P.S. appointee Eldon Davidson offered an amendment. Seconded by Dalton Coons, Matilda, he suggested the site be the choice of the municipalities who support the district. This was voted down with a 4-3 vote.

The Winchester men, Davidson and Vice, put out another amendment immediately. It read that the Department of Education be asked to send in an arbitrator to settle the question of the site. A visible shudder quivered the board members at this. J. Frank Casselman, in an emotion-charged voice, called for an end to the delaying tactics. He pointed out the emergency was great and that the present conditions made it imperative a new look be taken at the school question. He was supported by a short plea in the same light from Ralph Allison, Mountain representative.

The second amendment was defeated with only two votes in favour.

Chairman Eric Casselman then put the original motion to build on the Ridge. The count showed three for it, J. F. Casselman, McMillan and Allison. Against were Davidson, Vice and Coons. Chesterville's members, John Coyne and Leonard Moriarty abstained from voting. The tie was broken, in favour of the site, by the chairman.

$50,000 arena in works for park ambitious building program planned

A new covered rink is planned for Chesterville and district. That was the decision made last Thursday night at a special meeting of Chesterville Community Centre Board and others. The big cover is estimated to cost something over $50,000 and it would be raised over the present blacktop surface in the park. Secretary Joe Pringle was ordered to get plans and prices immediately.

Chesterville district has been without a covered rink since January 14, 1950. At that time the rink at the end of John Street took a fatal beating from a windstorm. Fortunately the skaters were able to escape unharmed through windows and doors. That same wind removed the roof of the old post office, the former west end of the Fulton Block.

Interest lagged for several years in rinks. It was not until the blacktop rink in the park got well under way that hockey and skating began to gain its former prominence in winter recreation here. A groundswell for a covered rink has been growing for the past couple of years. Now it has come to a head.

The Community Centre Board, headed by Paul Monast, plans to approach the public for the necessary funds. Ways and means have been discussed at length and in the course of the discussion, decided against a site for the rink at the fair grounds. Several conditions worked against that location. The basic one was that the land would cost about $1,000; another was the distance from the village proper; the present blacktop would be readymade to cover with a top.

Future plans include the receipt of more advice from agricultural authorities at Kemptville Agricultural School on the best use to make of the park land and the proper way to clean it up for car parking. Further meetings are planned for discussion on money raising.

High School News

Chesterville High School had a very busy afternon last Thursday. A photographer came to take pictures for the year book. They ranged from the teaching staff and class pictures to athletic groups, the students' council, cheerleaders and majorette squads.

The school was vacated in a fire drill on Friday morning in the first period. The time for this important drill was one minute and 45 seconds.

In the afternoon both Grade Nine classes were shown films by Miss Montcalm in the last period. They were on "Etiquette" and "First Aid to the Injured." Both were quite interesting.

In view of the class pictures on Thursday, a decorating committee for the Valentine dance, altered its plans to Friday. A highlight of the work was a beautiful Valentine tree, growing from the centre of the floor of the community hall. Well done committee. It was reported that although the weather was not the best on Saturday, there was a good crowd of dancers.

A hockey practice was held Friday afternoon in preparation for the hockey tournament in Metcalfe on Saturday. The first game was played against Embrun. The score was in favour of Embrun 6 to 3. Because of this loss, Chesterville did not meet any other teams. Chesterville's goals were scored by Bob Henderson, Ernie McMillan and Doug Barker. The teams that were competing were Metcalfe Rockland, and Chesterville. Maxville won the tournament.

A ping pong tournament has been arranged for the noon hour at C.H.S. The competition will start off in each grade with groups playing in singles or doubles. The winners will then play other grades.

Sunday evening a group of about 26 band members and friends travelled in a school bus to Ottawa to hear a band concert, arranged by the R.C.A.F. Central Band at the Capital Theater. The outing was enjoyed by everyone.

There were two unexpected holidays last week, due to bad weather. The country pupils left for home at noon on Wednesday and again this Monday.

Progressive euchre held at Beckstead school

A very enjoyable evening was spent when about 50 people gathered at Beckstead School and held a progressive euchre to help pay expenses of the Beckstead and Orchardside Peanut and Pee-Wee Hockey Teams.

Euchre was played at 10 tables with Lloyd Smirle winning the Waldroff; Stewardship and Recruiting, Mrs A. Boal; Supply and Social Assistance, Mrs R. Presley.

Literature and Communications, Mrs W. Montgomery; Co-operation in Community Education, Mrs E. Fickes; membership, Mrs J. H. Warner; nominations, Mrs Gordon Ross; representative to Committee of Stewards, Mrs L. McGinn; auditors, Mrs R. E. Rombough, Mrs J. W. Duvall.

George T. Fulford, guest speaker of Liberal Women's Association

"Before 1957 Canada held the unique position of being the envy of the world. Today a person, abroad, is ashamed to admit to being a Canadian," said George T. Fulford, of Brockville, addressing the Grenville-Dundas Liberal Women's Association at Morrisburg.

Mr Fulford presented films taken while on a trip to Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Iceland. In Iceland, because of volcanoes, there are no trees but the volcanic dust is very fertile and there is a heavy growth of vegetation. Thanks to the Gulf Stream, although farther north than Hudson Bay, Iceland enjoys an equitable climate.

This country has the oldest legislative body in the world. It has been sitting for 900 years without interruption. All the girls in Iceland are beautiful blondes.

Norway is indescribably beautiful with its glacier-fed waterfalls, its thousands of miles of fjords and the midnight sun.

Finland is a sad country where steam locomotives run to the Arctic Sea. In Mr Fulford's experience the entire trip was a never-to-be-forgotten event.

Miss Judy LaMarsh, M.P., will be guest speaker at the annual dinner to be held in Morrisburg in May, providing the House is not in session.

The meeting was conducted by Mrs Edna Baker, president from Prescott ,assisted by Mrs Jean McLean, secretary-treasurer. Honouring Mrs George Casselman, who was celebrating her 45th wedding anniversary, yellow chrysanthemums decorated the speaker's table.

Correspondence was read relevent to the national convention to be held at Quebec City. Mrs Lillian Allison, Chesterville, and Mrs Jean Notman, Morrisburg, plan to attend as delegates.

It was decided that a suggestion box be available for members to offer suggestions for more interesting meetings.

The meeting was well attended. A number of gentlemen guests were present to enjoy Mr Fulford's address. The guest speaker was introduced by Harry Allison, of Chesterville, and thanked by Mrs Mark Salmon, of Prescott.

Inaugural service of Newington U.C.W.

The inaugural service of Newington United Church Women was held in the church. Mrs Melvin Waldroff, as leader, conducted the service. The addres, "Vision of the Future," was given by Mrs Jack Sherman. The minister, Mr, Boal, presided for the installation of the new officers:

President, Mrs Melvin Waldroff; vice-president, Mrs C. Vance; treasurer, Mrs Boal; recording secretary, Mrs W. Pettit; corresponding secretary, Mrs A. W. Loverin.

Committee chairmen: Finance, Mrs A .Evans; program, Mrs J. Sherman; social functions, Mrs J. E. Thompson; manse, Mrs Chas. Smith; Community Friendship, Mrs O. Foster; Christian Citizenship and Social Action, Mrs E.

OPINIONS . . .
OURS AND OTHERS

A decision for a rink

Last week members of Community Centre Board and others met for a fateful meeting. They decided to go ahead with plans to raise money to build a covered rink. It will be built on the present blacktop in the park.

The undertaking promises to be a large one. Costs now for covered rinks are high and getting higher. It is felt over $50,000 will be needed to get the project well under way.

We feel the ambitious plan will be of considerable benefit to the community and district. But for it to succeed, it must be a total community effort with support from all sides. While it is too early yet to report on money-raising plans, there is little doubt a lot of extensive canvassing will be done throughout the district. The feeling is that if the district once supported a covered rink, then it can do it again. With over 12 years gone since the old rink fell, the need for replacement is more evident every winter.

Plans were made and presented by Kemptville Agricultural School experts long ago to make best use of the park land. Glades and open avenues between the trees were blueprinted so the travelling public would find adequate parking space if and when a covered rink was built on the present open-air site. With a little revision, the plans will be more than adequate now to provide for parking for rink patrons.

We wish the ambitious planners all the luck in the world and we offer our full support to their efforts.

An embarrassing lack

It is a source of continuous embarrassment to civic employees when they have to admit the inadequacy of the public toilet arrangements at Community Hall, in this village.

We have one of the finest and best laid out public centres in Eastern Ontario. Yet the facilities that normally look after the needs of persons attending public functions such as dances and large meetings are almost non-existent.

It would seem about time the village council took steps to remedy the situation. The days when one ladies' washroom, if the present broom closet could be classed as such, is adequate for a hall seating over 400 persons is long past. While another washroom is in the building, it is usually not open to public use after five o'clock in the afternoon.

Along with construction of a new floor and addition of equipment to the old theatre, provision must be made in this year's budget to service the public wants in the matter of washrooms. It is only sensible that this be done, even if it means raising the rent tariffs on the various rooms and the public auditorium.

The loss of a school

Winchester high school disappeared on Tuesday in a pall of smoke and flame. The raging fire finally died, leaving only a shell of a district landmark and making immediate the need for places for pupils to go to school.

Built in 1914, the school had served the district well. Like the school here, a couple of years older, it had many graduates to be proud of and a whole district full of former students who have made the valley one of pride and reasonable prosperity.

The fire itself, while it destroyed a school, pointed up with even more emphasis the need for more and better pupil accommodation in the district. Now a decision will have to be reached in double quick time, so that next year's pupils of the Winchester district will be assured of adequate classrooms.

A fateful meeting is scheduled this week in Chesterville to arrive at some sort of decision. Writing this as we do early in the week, the meeting is yet to come and it will be reported in full in our news columns.

We pray that sober judgment will prevail when the many knotty problems are presented for solution. Adequate education for the whole of North Dundas may hinge on what decisions are taken in the next few days. We wish the harried school board well and hope their best efforts will be recognized as worthy in the harsh light of public scrutiny.

Control of CBC programs

Mr Nowlan, Minister of National Revenue, hit the nail on the head when he told the Commons the other day that the government cannot interfere with CBC programming without laying the foundations o fa fascist or communist state. A number of backbenchers have never really understood the relations between the CBC and the government, observes the Ottawa Citizen. The CBC is responsible to Parliament, not to the government. If a government had control of CBC programming, it could use that power to help perpetuate itself in office. The CBC belongs to and is paid for by all the people, and not by the ruling party in the Commons.

Therefore the request made to Mr Nowlan by Mr E. W. Brunsden, the member for Medicine Hat, that the government do something about the program "Quest" was unacceptable. Mr Brunsden did not merely draw attention to a program he and some of his constituents found unpleasant; he asked that Mr Nowlan use his influence to have the program withdrawn.

CBC programming is ultimately subject to control through public opinion. Questions of taste and of artistic merit are, in the long run, settled by public response and by the views of professional critics. In the case of "Quest," the CBC has had only a light reaction from the public, with a majority of respondents favouring the program.

Any program that tries to offer the public something more than hill-billy music or pious platitudes is bound to stir some resentment. It it is entirely clear that a program has aroused so much hostility, has wounded so many people, that is is undoubtedly in bad taste, it should be withdrawn by the CBC itself. This is by no means clear of "Quest" and its avante-garde plays, which may be boring, but which are not necessarily in bad taste—as the relatively light response to the program indicates.

GIANT SEAWEED

Ice cream makers and consumers will be interested in the recent discovery of a rare type of giant seaweed—giant Pacific kelp —off the east coast of Tasmania. It is a rich source of chemical known as alginates which used in the manufacture of cream as well as the rubber, paper, textile and other industries. Formerly, the only supply was found off the coast of California. It is extensive as one only 75,000 tons at a the weed grows so it can be cut three times a

Depart. of Education note on schools here

Note: We are in receipt of a memorandum written by Mr W. R. Stewart, Assistant Superintendent of Secondary Education for Ontario. The memo was handed to the Hon. F. M. Cass, Minister of Municipal Affairs, and he has asked that this newspaper publish the piece. We are glad to do so. It is to be noted that Mr Stewart touches on local matters that have received a thorough investigation in the past six months here, and have been rather fully reported and commented on by this newspaper.—Editor.

The memo follows:

Memorandum to the Honourable F. M. Cass, Minister of Municipal Affairs.

Re: The Dominion-Provincial Agreement for Vocational Construction and the New Program for Secondary Schools.

The combination of the Dominion-Provincial agreement for the construction of vocational accommodation and the new program for secondary schools to be introduced in September, 1962, will have a striking effect on secondary education in Ontario, and will benefit a large number of secondary school pupils who, because of the sizes of their communities, have not had the advantage of technical and commercial education.

The agreement between the Provincial and the Dominion Governments provided that, with certain limitations, the Province of Ontario would pay the full cost of constructing and equipping a new vocational or composite school or a vocational addition to a school provided that the project was approved. The Dominion Government, in turn, would pay the Province 75% of this amount. The portion approved for this financial assistance included not only the technical and occupational training shops and the commercial and business machine rooms but also ordinary classrooms and other facilities, including administration offices and auxiliary areas.

In the Province there are approximately 430 secondary schools. At the present time there are over 200 building projects for vocational schools and additions. As a result, technical and business courses will be available to about two-thirds of the secondary school pupils in the Province.

In the new program for secondary schools there will be three branches, the Arts and Science Branch, the Business and Commerce Branch, and the Science, Technology and Trades Branch. In each of these three branches there will be 5-year courses leading to admission to institutions of learning beyond Grade 13, 4-year courses leading to employment, special 2-year courses leading to employment for pupils who intend to remain at school only two years, and occupational courses to train pupils who are about 15 years of age and who have been transferred from Grade 8 without having passed that grade for service trades. These occupational courses will be one or possibly two-year courses.

Pupils on entering Grade 8 will be asked to choose one of the branches but will be able to change from one branch to another at the end of Grade 9 after an exploratory first year in high school. Thus the opportunity will be provided for boys to take business, technical or industrial art courses and girls to take business, secretarial science, home economics, or industrial art courses, which will enable them to obtain and hold a position. In this age of rapid scientific and technological advances, the need for skilled labour is increasing.

The new program aims at meeting this need and at the same time providing the pupils with a skill which will help them obtain and retain employment. This much-needed, increased emphasis on technical and business education does not imply any decrease in emphasis on academic education. There is full opportunity in each branch for pupils to receive a highly academic education which in addition to its cultural value will have a practical value of the greatest importance. The pupils from the five-year courses will become the professional leaders of the future.

It is important that wherever possible in Ontario vocational accommodation be provided and that a new program be introduced. However, this can be done only in schools large enough to make the introduction of vocational courses possible from a practical and economical point of view. To offer the full program a school of close to 1,000 pupils is required, although in certain circumstances vocational education can be given in schools of slightly lower enrolment.

In some parts of the Province the only way by which vocational accommodation can be built and the new program introduced in full is to have several small schools and high school districts co-operate. In this particular area the co-operation of Chesterville and Winchester is essential and perhaps the co-operation of small schools in neighbouring high school districts is also needed in order to provide the pupils with the advantages of vocational education and of the new program. The North Dundas District High School Board would be well advised to abandon its present plan to build two small schools and build one central school. At the same time it might seek the co-operation of other schools and districts in order to get a sufficiently large school and to offer vocational courses. If two small schools are built the young people of this area will be denied the advantages of business and technical education for years to come. Particularly since the Winchester school has burned the Board should review its policy. Strong leadership is needed if the best interests of the pupils of this area are to be served.

W. R. Stewart,
Assistant Superintendent of Secondary Education.

Federal Government Report

By Mrs Jean Casselman, M.P.

Total employment has improved by about half a million people since 1956 or an increase of 8%. Personal incomes have increased 30% in this period, with corresponding increases in consumer spending and total personal savings. We can see by the improved employment situation in our area office at Prescott that the degree of improvement is very real indeed. This improvement did not happen by accident, but rather was the hard fought and hard won reversal of a frightening depression.

When the present Government took office in 1957 we inherited a $713 million trade deficit. It is obvious in this unbalanced position, Canada was buying too much from other countries, thereby supplying them with employment, and that considerable change was necessary to employ more Canadians.

Several important steps were taken. The Minister of Trade and Commerce, the Hon. George Hees, immediately upon taking office, called back to Ottawa from all over the world the Canadian trade representatives, and invited Canadian businessmen to come and visit with them and to discuss markets that would be mutually beneficial. This was probably one of the most effective and most efficient steps ever taken by any Minister. The organizatiin of such a meeting it was thought would take six months, but the dynamic optimism and plain hard work of the Minister and his Department accomplished it in six weeks.

Since then the export trade promotion policy has expanded into regional meetings where teams of senior departmental officials meet and co-operate with provincial governments and local trade associations. There have now been twelve of these regional metings ine major manufacal meetings in major manufacfrom Vancouver, B.C., to St. John's, Newfoundland.

These meetings have been highly successful with enthusiastic response and excellent co-operation between provincial and federal governments and businessmen.

Out of these regional conferences are developing regional offices which will establish and maintain close liason with provincial government authorities and industry, as well as with business and industrial associations and organizations in order to acquaint them with the wide variety of services the department has to offer.

This year there will be four times as many trade missions sent out to visit foreign markets and we will be participating in a greatly increased number of trade fairs.

Recently there have been all-Canadian trade fairs in Lagos, Nigeria, and Accra, Ghana. These fairs will exhibit the products of more than 80 different Canadian firms. Our popularity with the African countries through the United Nations and various assistance programs will have very direct bearing on the success of these shows.

Trade Minister Hees is optimistic. Last week he pointed out that Canada's total production of goods and services rose 4.7% in the six months between the first and third quarters of 1961. This rate of growth in national output exceeded that achieved in like periods in fourteen of the last fifteen years.

In the 12 months up to last December, employment has risen by 180,000 new jobs, nearly double the rate of increase during the last five years.

Exports in January-November were 8% higher than a year earlier, a growth rate more than double that of the previous five years. Industrial production in the 12 months up to November had also risen 8%, three times the growth rate of the last five years.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

By Lillian Allison

There are few things that can beat a snow-storm for taking my mind off my work. A rain can't compare with it. On a rainy day I just get sleepy. But a snow-storm seems exciting. More exciting, I think than it was 25 years ago.

Then we accepted snow as inevitable. After all another six inches on the country road where I lived then made little difference. Once the storm was over and a few teams and sleighs had gone through life would be back to normal once again. There was nothing to do but wait.

I remember one such storm we had in the spring of 1940. Easter was early that year — the last week-end in March. The snow-storm was late. They both came together. It began to snow on Good Friday. It was a real old-fashioned storm that continued until Sunday night. I'm sure it was measured in feet rather than inches and a terrific east wind piled the drifts even higher.

We didn't have a radio then and the mail didn't get through. There was nothing to do but talk (or listen) on the party line and watch the drifts pile up and estimate when it would end. Percy Saltzman wasn't available to offer his opinion on the matter.

The banks got higher and higher. The wind blew so hard the snow was packed like blocks of cement. There was one drift between our house and barn that was close to nine feet high. There was no way of getting around it so Dad cut steps in it with the shovel. He walked up the steps on one side and down the steps on the other.

All thought of Easter bonnets and finery was forgotten that year. In fact any thought of even attending church was out of the question. I spent that Easter Sunday with my feet on the oven reading a book and there callers or passersby.

Our Canadian snow-storms have a abit of leaving a good taste, however. They usually move out in the night and the following day is perfectly delightful. Well the big storm in 1940 was no exception. Monday was a dream. It was also the general election.

Tuesday's papers were full of detailed accounts of how the voters got to the polls. It was amazing. They skied and snow-They went by sleigh-loads and dog-sleds. And those who weren't too interested had a perfect alibi for staying at home.

By the following Sunday there was hardly a trace of the dreadful storm left. And the same government was running things at Ottawa for another term.

I always plan to accomplish a lot on a stormy day. Last Monday, for instance, I thought I'd make a dust ruffle for our bed then begin a new dress for myself. I made the dust ruffle. Maybe it's because my mind is on the storm and the snowplow and the school bus and the bread truck stuck in the neighbour's lane and the drifts that are quietly cutting us off from circulation but things never go well for me when it's storming.

Monday I seemed to have sewing machine trouble. The ruffler on my 60 year old machine was more than a little ornery. I had trouble getting it adjusted so it would gather four yards of material into a two yard frill. The thread broke again and again. I couldn't persuade it to ruffle the material and stitch it to the edge of an old sheet at the same time.

Of course maybe I shouldn't blame the machine. The TV commercials we hear these days about dials and discs, twin needles and automatic this and that are enough to give any 60 year old sewing machine an inferiority complex. Maybe my mind was half on a snazzy electric model too.

But I think it was the snow-storm that was distracting. Why there were times when I'd look out the windows I couldn't see as far as the line fence.

United Church Presbytery hold meeting at Maynard

The Dundas-Grenville Presbytery of the United Church of Canada met in regular session in Maynard United Church. Worship was conducted by Rev D. J. Carnegie and Presbytery constituted by the chairman, Rev Angus J. MacDonald.

New members welcomed into the Court included Rev William J. March, recently inducted as minister of Morrisburg Pastoral Charge, and Rev S. D. Robertson, who will be inducted as minister of South Mountain Pastoral Charge. Earl Brown, Ventnor, and Arthur Moorhouse, South Mountain, were welcomed as lay delegates.

Correspondence read included applications from six ministers of other denominations for admission into the ministry of the United Church of Canada. A recommendation from a special committee was read re the amalgamation of the two Presbyteries of Dundas-Grenville and Glengarry. After full discussion it was decided that the question be left open for further consideration by the executive of each Presbytery. Presbytery adjourned for committees to meet.

Worship conducted by Rev Ralph Brookson opened the afternoon session. Rev L. M. Ferguson reported for Christian Education. Three institutes have been held in the Presbytery recently with a total attendance of 195. From these institutes have come a strong recommendation for increased Bible study at every level of Church life.

It was recommended that the camp fees for Rideau Hill Camp be increased from $12 to $14, with the registration fee to remain at $2. Five seven-day camps are held each Summer at Rideau Hill. Rev. S. D. Robertson was elected to the Board of Directors and Rev L. M. Ferguson to the Board of Trustees.

Rev J. Leslie Dean reported for the Missionary and Mantenance committee, with further comment by the new convener, Rev Mary Dougherty. A total of almost $40,000 was raised in the Presbytery in 1961 for the wider work of the church, an increase over the previous year of $2,500. It was recommended that Lenten coin cards be used in each congregation to constitute an Easter offering for Missionary and Maintenance.

Miss Dougherty reported on a proposed itinerary by a team of missionaries to take place later in the year, also plans for a "Skillshop" for Christian Communication to be held in May.

John Carley reported for Presbytery United Church Men. He announced that a school for elders and stewards will be held in Morrisburg on March 27 and plans for a men's conference at Rideau Hill Camp in June.

Mrs Winnifred Allen reported for Presbyterial United Church Women. Almost all congregations have already held their inaugural meeting for the new organization—"On every hand there is evidence of new hope and enthusiasm, and a resolve that under the leadership of our Lord Jesos Christ we will work together to achieve our purpose—to unite all the women of the Church for the total mission of the Church."

Mrs H. Van Allen read the final report of the Presbyterial Woman's Missionary Society. Last year's activity was most successful, with over $15,000 being raised for W.M.S. work.

Rev John Cook reported for Information and Stewardship. Here the emphasis is on communication and response. Presbytery agreed to confirm the appointment of six relegates to the "Skillshop", representing five committees of Presbytery. The convener of Information and Stewardship will head the delegation. The executive of Presbytery was instructed to set up a committee on Church Ritual in view of the study now being done on the revision of the Book of Common Order.

Rev Douglas Carnegie reported for the Committee of Colleges, Students and Recruiting. He asked the executive of Presbytery to arrange a special service at North Augusta in May, where Jas. Gibson, student supply minister, will be formally licensed to preach the Gospel, and commended to Conference for Ordination.

Rev Wellwood Adam reported for Overseas Missions, emphasizing the difficulty of work in Angola at present, and the importance of the new work being undertaken in Brazil, where work is carried on with the Methodist Church.

A vote of thanks was extended to the Board of Maynard Church and to all who assisted in making the meeting an enjoyable and inspirational event.

The May meeting will be held in Prescott.

NEW PROGRAM TO KEEP COWS HEALTHY

These days it's common practice for most people to visit their dentist at least twice a year for a check-up .They feel it pays off in fewer cavities by catching troubles in the early stages or even preventing them before they start.

Now, a few farmers in Ontario are trying to apply the same system to health problems in their dairy cattle. They have joined forces with their veterinarians on this new venture; they hope to keep their cows healthier improve milk production efficiency, and reduce their costs—especially veterinary bills—by arranging for regular visits from their veterinarian.

Until now, farmers have been relying on the veterinarian mainly for emergency work. But the new program, called Herd Health, will give the farmer regular professional help with all his cow health problems.

Here's how the system works: The farmer makes an agreement with his veterinarian for regular herd check-ups—perhaps on a monthly basis. The veterinarian makes his regular calls for a set fee (drugs are extra). He checks cows for pregnancy, vaccinated and dehorns calves; he also trims hooves and treats problem cows for mastitis.

Most of the twenty-odd dairymen who are trying the Herd Health program like it, and are planning to stay with it. They claim that one of the big advantages is the saving in feed costs realized by shortening the time a cow remains dry. Through pregnancy tests, the farmers knows six to 10 weeks after breeding if a cow has conceived. This means the dairyman could have his cows milking two weeks to a month earlier than normal and save $10 to $15 in feed costs.

Dairymen on the program admit it's somewhat expensive. But they feel it is worth the money to be relieved of most of the routine jobs that tend to get put off—especially during busy seasons.

According to Dr J. F. Cote, OVC veterinarian in charge of one district program, prevention of disease is the main benefit of the new program. "Herd Health can make a farmer money if his cows don't get sick and cut down his milk cheque. It can save him money by reducing Sunday and after-hours calls too," says Cote.

"One cow can easily run up a veterinary bill of $35 a week if she gets sick. With regular calls, she might never have been sick in the first place."

For a preventive medicine program like Herd Health to work, the farmer has to keep accurate medical reports on each cow. They are necessary because a veterinarian cannot remember every cow in every herd. Of course, this means some extra work for the owner, but it will usually pay off in more milk and less cost.

Herd Health hasn't taken Ontario dairymen by storm. "And there's a reason for it," says Cote. "So far, we don't have a good measuring stick for the value of regular professional help. Once we can tell farmers about preventive medicine in terms of dollars and cents, we may have part of the answer to health problems in our dairy cattle."

Making tea accessories

Men and women the world over who get subtle pleasure from the beautiful objects of everyday living have long loved to collect the accessories of tea. Teacups, teapots, teaspoons, silver tea trays, cream and sugar servers—all have their devotees among collectors and connoisseurs. And no wonder, for the traditions surrounding the social serving of tea go back nearly 1200 years.

Colours, shapes, and materials have changed in style. Lu Yu considered blue as the ideal colour for the teacup. In the 9th century in China, only cake tea was known.

In the next period, when powdered tea was introduced, the ideal teacups were blue-black or dark brown. By the Ming dynasty, however, the Chinese had learned to steep their tea, and the ideal cups for steeped tea were white Ming porcelain.

The Sung period, from 960 to 1280 A.D. saw the popularity of the stoneware tea bowl. By the 17th century, China was producing tea pots for steeped tea. The tea pots, which found their way to England and to Europe, were famous for fine, simple lines, for spouts that always poured and lids which always fit.

The Chinese teapots and teacups inspired in England a whole era of "Chinoiserie" or teaware made in an Englishman's idea of what a Chinese teapot or teacup looked like. The most familiar of these patterns is probably the famous blue old willow ware.

It was not until 1710 that Betger at Meisser in Germany produced the first porcelain teapots in Europe. With the coming of porcelain, teacups could be made fine, eggshell thin, and exquisitely beautiful—with delicate flower decorations.

It was only a short step, then, to the discovery of English bone china, as an English version of the Dresden-type porcelain. The English porcelain was tough and lasting as well as handsome, and made practical the collecting of many styles of teacups.

In 1670, the first silver teapot appeared in England. It was very unattractive. But within a few years silver teapots of simple, pleasing shapes were being made both in England and in North America.

The hour of hospitality is still the tea hour. And with the vogue for instant tea, new attention is focused on the teacups and tea accompaniments. Every guest feels honoured by being offered an excellent, full-bodied cup of tea in a precious teacup.

About 7,000 people die every week on the world's streets and highways, says the Ontario Safety League. Twenty four of them in Ontario.

FERN CULTURE AND CARE

There have been many changes in the type of popular house plants over the years, but ferns seem to be as popular as ever. Perhaps this is not so surprising since they have been on this planet for 140 million years.

Here are some suggestions from horticulturists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture on their care, and some varieties you might like to try growing.

Light is not important to ferns as it is to many plants. They should, in fact, be kept away from direct sunlight, and will grow well in a north window.

One of the major problems is humidity. Ferns need to be kept moist. To do this, water them sufficiently often to ensure that the soil surface is never dried out. It is also a good idea to give them a shower with slightly warm water at least once a week.

To help keep the humidity high, set the pots on layer of pebbles in a tray, in which there is water. The water level should be kept just below the top layer of pebbles.

When repotting, a good mixture to use is garden soil, leaf mold, peat moss and sand in equal amounts. If you want to use commercial house plant soil, add some humus as peat moss.

Fertilizer is rarely needed, and if often used will only encourage soft growth.

BASIC HERD PLAN WORTH CONSIDERING

Some Ontario farmers might be advised to take advantage of the "insurance" of a Basic Herd Plan say authorities with the Ontario Dejartment of Agriculture.

The plan offers some farmers a chance of avoiding heavy taxes on proceeds from a dispersal sale, or compensation from catastrophies such as fire or disease. All animals except feeders are eligible for Basic Herd in sheep, hogs, beef and dairy cattle.

Ontario Agricultural College economist W. M. Braithwaite, states that mature breeding animals (2 years of age for cattle, 1 year of age for sheep and swine) are eligible for 1 full unit each in Basic Herd. Animals younger than this are worth ½-unit each.

Starting farmers can usually build up a Basic Herd at little or no cost but even established farmers with a low income can often build up a Basic Herd cheaply.

Some points worth mentioning:

Write or call your district taxation office and ask for form T2019, the Basic Herd Application Form if you are interested in starting a Basic Herd.

If you are planning a dispersal sale and you don't have a Basic Herd, you must make application for a Basic Herd at least 30 days prior to date of sale.

If a herd is destroyed by fire, insurance proceeds are treated as income. The same is true of compensation paid to a farmer in th... of disease.

...st have a separate Bas... registered and grade

...Herd can never be m... the number of mat... (units) you have in ...tory at the end of the yea... sales during the year have reduced the number of units on hand at the end of the year — below the number of units in your Basic Herd — you must reduce your Basic Herd to equal the number of units on hand. This reduction is repayment of capital and proceeds from the sale of these units are not taxable.

Farmers who file on an accrual basis do not need a Basic Herd since all increases in inventory of livestock and crops are reported each year and therefore are taxable.

If a person has been farming less than 3 years, he must have filed for every year since he started to farm.

If a farmer does not have a record of his livestock inventory at January 1, 1947, he may obtain this information from the Health of Animals Branch of the Canada Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Animals received through gift or inheritance (after Jan. 1, 1949) may be added tax-free to the Basic Herd if (1) the animals were part of the Basic Herd of the person giving the gift or the deceased; or (2) the fair market value of the animals were added to the income of the giver or the deceased in the year of the gift or death.

No two situations are the same. Visit your taxation office before you fill out your application form.

PLANT YOUR GLOXINIA TUBERS IN FEBRUARY

If you are thinking of growing gloxinia, you should be getting ready to plant them any day now. If you haven't grown this plant with it's large, velvety leaves and broad tubular many-coloured flowers, these suggestions from horticulturists with the Ontario Department of Agriculture might help:

Plant the tubers with their crown just showing, in a mixture of equal parts of peat and sand. When the plants are large enough, place them in 5 to 6 inch pots, setting them to the same depth as above.

The potting mixture tis time should be one part soil, and one part leaf or peat, and ½ part sand.

They need a temperature of 60 to 65 F. and good light, but should be faded from direct, strong sun. Be careful not to over-water or wet the leaves. If you follow these steps, your plants sould start blooming in May and continue throughout the summer until September.

In the fall, gradually dry and rest the tubers in pots, at a temperature of not under 45 F., until the following February, when they may be started again.

If you already have gloxinia and want to increase the number you have, new plants may be grown from leaf cuttings. A cutting, when rooted, will produce a tuber and then a plant which will flower in about 5 months.

SALT HARMS PLANTS

When you are spreading salt on the driveway or footpath, don't scatter it on the flower beds.

Both sodium chloride and calcium chloride are harmful to plants. With frequent use during the winter they tend to accumulate in the soil. There is also the likelihood that the salt will seep into the ground around the trees or shrubs.

PROTECT TREES FROM RODENTS

Field mice and rabbits like to eat the bark of fruit trees and young ornamentals and can completely kill a tree by ringing it. To prevent this, try one of the following:

Place a half-inch wire mesh around the tree with the bottom about two inches below the soil, if possible. Be sure to have the guard high enough to prevent rodents being able to get over the top, after a heavy fall of snow. In most cases, three feet will be sufficient to prevent this.

Heavy asphalt sheathing paper around the base of a tree also gives good protection.

If you prefer to use a commercial repellent, it may be brushed or sprayed on the tree or shrub, and will be quite effective under most conditions.

Caution: If you use poisons such as endrin, be sure to follow carefully all instructions on the manufacturer's label.

PIPE WITH A VIEW

Andre West Jr. snaked his long frame out of an iron pipe and reluctantly began hunting a new home.

He doesn't expect to find one nearly as good as the one he had for the last nine months. As he put it:

"The rent is right. It's free, and I'm crazy about the view."

Home for West, 36, has been a galvanized pipe in the sand dunes of Playa Del Rey, a Los Angeles seaside suburb.

It is 2½ feet in diameter. West is six feet tall and weighs 216 pounds. He and his furnishings —a discarded car seat for a bed and a worn quilt for warmth—fit inside snugly.

Police found him the other day and West told this story:

"I used to work steady in the bowling alleys until these automatic pin-setters got my job. I'm a victim of automation. But I still work every day doing odd jobs. I average $3 or $4 a day .

"I always eat out. And when I get a yen to do something besides sleep, I just crawl outside, sit on the sand and watch the sea."

The police released him—with instructions to find a new home.

"I'd kinda like to find a spot by the sea. But I'll never have another place with a view like this.

At 60 m.p.h. on an unlighted road on a dark night the visibility range of your headlights is about 200 feet. That's just two seconds away from any hidden hazard, says the Ontario Safety League. You couldn't stop in time. Always drive slower at night. Never "outdrive you headlights."

NEW WINGS FOR MERCY AIRLIFT IN SASKATCHEWAN

Saskatchewan's Air Ambulance Service, still the only one of its kind in the world, has carried 13,174 patients, since its beginning fifteen years ago. It has flown in all kinds of weather with remarkably high relibility. Yet, as anyone who has ever been kept waiting at an airport knows too well, even the airlines can be delayed, fitted as they are with the finest equipment money can buy, and the best airports at their disposal.

The Air Ambulance Service, though it does have airline-standard radio and navigation equipment, often has nothing more for a landing strip than a stretch of rutted summer fallow, or a country road. But emergency dictates it must fly in conditions that would ground any airliner.

In the past little has stopped Saskatchewan's winged angels of mercy. Among the conditions which could, were mud or sticky snow, fields too short to allow the Cessna 195 aircraft a safe takeoff or landing. Then there was the odd case when the place to which they were flying was under heavy snow, requirring skis for landing, while the takeoff airports at Regina and Saskatoon were dry, and to get the plane airborne wheels were necessary.

But now, with the addition of a new Helio Courier aircraft, even these few difficulties seem likely to be overcome. The new machine can leave the ground, or return to it, in less than one third the distances previously required. Its enormous wing area and low weight actually pull it up, out of sticky conditions. Unlike the Cessna 195's, the Helio can be fitted with a combination of wheels and skis—permitting take-off from a hard, dry surface and after these are lifted above the skis, a normal ski landing on snow.

There are other benefits too, where the old aircraft has only one door to accept stretcher, pilot, nurse and passengers, the Courier has two. One door on the left side at the front for the pilot and passenger, and a second, much wider, on the opposite side at the rear gives easy access for stretcher cases.

The Flying Doctor Service in Australia takes the doctor to the patient, but you can' airlift a whole hospital, and that's often what a patient needs. To take patients to hospital as quickly as posible, with safety and comfort is the one aim of this patient's private airline. More than 13,000 Saskatchewan ex-patients are living proof of its success.

KNOW YOUR ENEMIES

The rattlesnake, which gets credit for inventing the art of self-defence, kills fewer people than do stinging insects. In fact, the honeybee alone claims almost as many victims in North America as the dreaded rattler.

The greatest dangers that face us in daily life do not come from obvious "killers" that we would take every precaution to avoid. We are more likely to die prematurely from a banana skin, on the sidewalk, than from a punman's bullet. All rabid animals, venomous reptiles and insects combined, do not match the threat of the common cold.

The Ontario Safety League points out the main danger on the highway does not come from the recognisably hazardous drivers, the drunks, the deranged, the speed - demons. Statistics show that 15% of traffic accidents are attributed to 1% of the drivers, the hard core of thoroughly dangerous "repeater" drivers who should be removed from the roads, when they are positively identified. 3% of drivers have no accidents at all. So the very bad and very good drivers, comprising 4% of the total, account for 15% of all accidents, age" drivers responsible for 85% of the accidents.

In other words, the overwhelming balance of danger on the roads comes from the ordinary average driver. The man who can handle a car competently, and does so most of the time. The man who sometimes gives a little less than his best to the job of driving, because he has an inner conviction that, even if he is a little careless at times, an accident could never possibly happen to him. The man who slaughters a hundred people every month in Ontario traffic.

Hill; "Challengers," "Grace L. Hill; "The Chance of a Lifetime," Grace L. Hill; "The Chess Players," F. P. Keys; "Calendar Girl," Earl S. Gardner; "Bigamous Spouse," Earl S. Gardner; "Daring Decoy," Earl S. Gardner; "Deadly Toy," Earl S. Gardner.

Keep your green house seedbed moist at all times when the seed is germinating, reminds Milt Watson, tobacco fieldman with the Ontario Department of Agriculture. On bright sunny days you will probably need to water 4 or 5 times each day. On dull cloudy days, the seedbed may not need watering at all..

Cocoa was first introduced into England about 1656, and the next year it was advertised in London as "an excellent West India drink called chocolata." It is not generally known that this popular beverage comes from the cacoa tree, which grows to a height of forty feet, and flourishes in tropical South America, the West Indies, Ceylon,

It is warming and nourishing drink and today it is mainly manufactured under ideal conditions at Bourneville, near Birmingham where there is "a garden city," built by George Cadbury in 1895 for his employees.

Oldest internal-combustion engine car still in running order is believed to be a Danish Hammel, built in 1877.

PROTECT THE FLOOR

Before painting the walls and ceiling of a room in which the floor has not yet been finished. it's wise to cover the floor completely with building paper. This will protect it while paint is being applied to the upper surface.

Cooperate, don't compete, in traffic, asks the Ontario Safety League. Competition has no place in good highway driving. There are no world champions. There is plenty of room at the top for everyone.

The meeting was then turned over to the program committee, Mrs Johnson Ouderkirk and Mrs D. Meldrum. Mrs Ouderkirk and Mrs Meldurm each gave a very interesting reading and conducted contests, prizes being won by Mrs Mac Foster and Mrs G. Nichols.

Mrs Meldrum thanked Mrs Bogart for the use of her home and everyone sang "Happy Birthday" to Mrs Bogart.

Following adjournment of the meeting, Mrs Bogart and her committee served a delicious lunch and a social hour was enjoyed.

Safety organizations the world over are campaigning for increased use of car seat belts, says the Ontario Safety League. In Britain, Brigadier Stoney, Director General of the Royal Society for the Prevention of Accidents has a special reason for believing in the necessity for seat belts in the so-called "suicide seat".

He says: "In 1958 my wife lost the sight of her right eye after being thrown against the driving mirror. A piece of string around her waist would have saved her, but in that particular car there was no safety belt."

"In the seat next to the driver you don't have to have an accident, a crash stop is enough to cause injury. The person in the suicide seat is a hostage to fortune.

Mrs Harold Hamilton hostess to meeting of Weavers' Guild

Miss M. E. Muff, Toronto, adviser on Crafts to the Community Program Branch of the Department of Education, and L. P. Poirier, district representative of the Community Program Branch, Ottawa, were guests at a recent meeting of the Carman-Forward Weavers' Guild, held at the home of Mrs Harold Hamilton, Iroquois.

Miss Muff presented a series of coloured slides relating to her wirk in the Province. She gave members an opportunity to view weaving be accomplished by other guilds in Ontario.

At this meeting five new members were introduced into the Guild. Mrs Arthur Wahlroth, Mrs Gordon Thom and Mrs Dwight Irvine, of Morrisburg, and Mrs Norman McKay and Mrs Clifford Greaves, of Iroquois, had recently completed an intensive two-weeks' course in loom weaving. The course was conducted by Mrs Hamilton and Mrs Jake Heuvel.

The Weavers' Guild will eventually work in Morrisburg under Community Programs assisting interested persons in developing local handicrafts.

A car driving along with windows fogged up on the inside, through condensation, ads unnecessary danger to the streets, says the Ontario Safety League. It may indicate that the driver is also a little fogged up, mentally. If he opened the window a crack the misted glass would clear.

ELEPHANTS SAVE THEIR BABY

Some 200 elephants had gathered round a salt-lick which had been tunred into a bog after heavy rains. The little one had sunk so deeply into the mud that only the tip of its trunk was showing and it was also in danger of being trampled on.

Luckily it belonged to a family party consisting of an old bull and fourteen others. The party got together and first of all pushed the crowd back. Then the bull plunged his big tusks under the baby and lifted it up. But it slid back again and disappeared.

Then mother took a turn. Pushing the baby with her hindquarters she rolled it, mud and all, on to firm ground.

All the baby had to do then was blow the mud out of its trunk.

The BIBLE TODAY . . .

A report from Cuba states that for the first six months of 1961, double the number of Scriptures were circulated than in the same period for the year before. The 601,000 volumes which were circulated is almost the total estimated distribution for all 1961.

In Costa Rica, 150,000 houses were visited and over 100,000 Gospels distributed by the effort of the whole Protestant population. Tireless efforts in training laymen, publicity, local evangelistic meetings, Bible schools for children and the house-to-house visitation produced the above surprising results.

The institution of Bible Society work in Columbia as a separate agency for the British and Foreign Bible Society and the American Bible Society, rather than as a sub-agency of Venezuela was celebrated by a special service in Bogota, at which the Reverend L. E. Holmgren, executive secretary of the American Bible Society, was the special speaker. Members of the secular press were present and one of the leading papers published a full account of the service.

Scripture distribution in Columbia now ranks third in the Spanish speaking Latin American countries, Distribution in the month of May, 1961, totalled 117,500 copies of the Word of God.

TOUCHY ISSUES IN U.S. RELATIONS

Canada—U.S. relations, which started off 1961 in a blaze of glory, wound up the year in a state of some irritability says the Washington correspondent of the Financial Post. The outlook for 1962 remains cloudy. There are a number of touchy issues which could cause plenty of trouble in the coming year.

These issues include the Columbia River power question and nuclear warhead storage in Canada. On both counts, Washington is getting edgy, to say the least, with the Canadian performance. What does not auger well for the immediate future in Canada—U.S. relations is the coming federal election in Canada. There already is some apprehension among Washington officialdom that a bitterly fought Canadian election campaign might bring forth a measure of anti-Americanism as politicians try to use this as a votegetter. There was a feeling here that the anti-American theme was used in the last Canadian election for that purpose.

Dusk deepens driving danger. Sight distances are misleading in the twilight, says the Ontario Safety League. Turn on those low-beam headlights — not parking lights. Be safe - be seen!

4-H Homemaking Club Holds first local meeting

Officers elected were; President, Betty Brownlee; Secretary, Carol Kilby; Press reporters, Mary Jane Lapp and Carla Boolegraaf.

Plans for the club were outlined. Pamphlets were distributed and record books discussed.

This project is called "Separates for Summer," with leaders Mrs Foster Bowman and Mrs Mansel Brownlee.

HOW TO SELECT A SIRE REPLACEMENT FOR A SWINE HERD

Poor feeding practices will make good hogs poor and poor hogs poorer; good feeding will bring out the best in good hogs and even improve poor breeding stock, says Ontario Agricultural College swine researcher Garnet Norrish. "To market a quality hog, you have to combine the best of feeding and breeding practices — neither will work alone," he warns.

Moving on to the breeding side of the picture, Mr. Norrish suggests that producers consider the present faults of their sows and then attempt to select a boar that will correct these faults.

The best method of evaluating any boar is through the information that is provided by the Record of Performance test for swine. This information shows a farmer how a boar's littermates or parents have performed in feeding trials. Boars with the best performing litter-mates or parents may not always be the boars that will do the best job in this particular swine herd.

He suggests that farmers observe the following points when selecting a sire for the swine herd:

The general health of the herd.

The Record of Performance of litter-mates or sire, or dam, and here consider the carcass scores of the tested individuals, their maturity and feed effictency.

Strong feet and legs.

The breed of your choice.

A survey has indicated, says Mr Norrish, that the use of boars with low R.O.P. scores reduced the percentage of Grade A pigs from 51% in the first generation to 23% in the 2nd generation and to only 9% Grade A pigs in the 3rd generation. However, the continued use of boars with high R.O.P. scores improved the percentage of Grade A pigs from 66% to 69% and then to 81% Grade A hogs in the 1st, 2nd, and third generations.

He advises that under the boar premium policy, the Ontario Department of Agriculture will give fintncial assistance to anyone purchasing a boar. Farmers can investigate these possibilities through their local Agricultural Representative.

PRICE FIGHT IN TOBACCO?

A big price fight could be warming up between Canadian tobacco growers and major tobacco manufacturers, says The Financial Post. The buying companies are refusing to pay minimum asking prices on top tobacco grades at current auctions in southwestern Ontario.

As a result, average price at aution sales of this year's crop is falling and the Ontario Fluecured Tobacco Growers' Marketing Board is "taking back" substantial quantities of unsold tobacco each day under its reserve price system. After a week and a half of auctions, sales are running 43% behind same period last year. Prices are averaging about 50.9c lb., down 4.1c lb. - or 8.9% - from last year.

WHO'S PINCHING THE PENNIES?

Someone must be taking all these pennies. The Ontario sales tax has created a huge demand for pennies and nickels as expected, but the Royal Mint in Ottawa has had to work overtime for 10 weeks to meet it, reports The Financial Post.

N. A. Parker, Master of the Mint, said: "We had no idea the demand would be so great." The Mint usually caters for increased demands for all coins for two months before Christmas by stockpiling in the summer. But this year the sales tax has drained the stockpiles. So far this year the Mint has turned out 122 million pennies - with three weeks of non-stop work ahead - compared with last year's total 77 million.

SALES TO EMPTY WHEAT BINS?

If this year's wheat crop is as poor as last year's the Chinese wheat sales are likely to clean out Canada's entire wheat stocks right down to the bottoms of the storage bins by the summer of 1963, says Leslie Wilson in The Financial Post.

If next year's crop is fair-to-middling size, say 450 million bu. (average of the five years 1955-60), the 1963 stocks will be about as low as we can afford to have them and still keep our customers happy. This is thinking behind Agriculture Minister Hamilton's recent exhorations to Prairie farmers. He said they should begin to think of growing, not less wheat, but more.

Add 42 telephones to local exchange in 1961

The expansion of telephone facilities in Chesterville during 1961 was typical of the situation across the territory served by The Bell Telephone Company of Canada, it was revealed in that company's 82nd annual report issued this week. Expenditures to extend, improve and mechanize service totalled $192,600,000, the report states. Telephones in service at the end of 1961 totalled 3,695,107, an increase of 180,100 during the year.

On the local scene, some 42 telephones were added, E. G. Thompson, Bell manager for this region, said, bringing the total to 979 as of December 31.

According to the report, net income totalled $57,690,521, for the last year equivalent to $2.50 per share, or a return of six per cent on invested capital.

Operating revenues for 1961 were 7.1 per cent higher than in 1960. The report states this reflects an intensified marketing effort and an upturn in business conditions in the second half of the year.

Taxes totalled $73,483,000, or $8,752,000 more than in 1960, an increase of 6,838 in 12 months. They received $50,786,210 in dividends at the rate of 2.20 per share.

At the end of 1961, the company had 34,302 employees. Wages and salaries totalled $161,859,420. A wage increase, averaging 2.8 per cent, went into effect at the end of November, 1961, following collective bargaining.

Extension telephones in homes now equal 17 per cent of residence main telephones; 20 per cent of telephones in service are in color.

New buildings or additions were constructed in 86 communities and 64 exshanges were converted to dial operation. More than 95 per cent of the Company's telephones are now dial operated.

CANADIAN SHOES ON U.S. FEET

Canada's shoe industry, by its own estimate, will reach a new record production of more than 47 million pairs in 1961, reports Lauchie Chisholm in The Financial Post. But that is only one of the significant happenings in the industry.

There is a growing trend by major U.S. companies to acquire control of Canadian shoe factories. Within the past two years, at least nine Canadian shoe companies were bought by U.S. firms. Precise percentage of U.S. ownership in the industry here is difficult to assess. But a knowledgeable industry source estimated the U.S. share at about 10%. Although the U.S. share is growing, the volume of Canadian shoe imports from the U.S. is decreasing. The U.S. is beginning to buy shoes in Canada in a big way.

Cows in D.H.I.A. processed milk herds increased in production by an average of 995 pounds each between 1956 and 1960, reports the Farm Economics and Statistics Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture. The farmers in the study used production records to eliminate low-producing cows or strains; fed adequately to bring out the productive ability of the cow; used artificial breeding (81% in 1959-1960) to improve the breeding.

MINIATURE LINER

The Victoria, a miniature liner that was despatched in sections from Glasgow, has been rebuilt, launched, and is now being fitted out on Lake Victoria, Africa's biggest sheet of fresh water.

When she was first built at Glasgow, her parts were carefully bolted together, numbered, and painted green for the starboard side and red for the port side. Then the vessel was dismantled and packed in some 1,500 crates and bundles. The whole consignment, weighing about 1,200 tons, was sent by ship to Mombasa, Kenya, and then by railway 400 miles inland to Kisumu on the lake. There, under the watchful eyes of experts from Britain, the Victoria took shape again—the biggest re-assembly job ever undertaken by a British shipyard.

When completely fitted out—her two seventeen-ton diesel engines have yet to be installed—she will be a small edition of a modern ocean-going liner, and will carry up to 500 passengers and twenty tons of cargo.

St. Luke's Church, Dunbar to hold "Loyalty Dinner"

Along with 142 other congregations of the Canada Synod of the United Lutheran Church in America, St. Luke's of Dunbar is holding a "Loyalty Dinner" on Friday, February 23. The dinner is to start off a campaign for funds for the Synod's Theological Seminary at Waterloo, Ontario.

The Canada Synod was organized in July 1861, so the present project is being carried out as a Centenial Thanksgiving. The Seminary began taking in students in 1911 and has received support from Dunbar parish of the Lutheran Church during its fifty year history.

Due to increasing standards and to the depreciation of existing facilities it has become necessary for the Seminary to appeal to the congregations supporting it for special funds to erect a well planned educational, worshipful and functional building to house the students, offices and class-rooms. The project will cost $398,700 includes plans to establish Lutheran student centres at McGill University in Montreal and The University of Western Ontario in London.

Each congregation of the Canada Synod begins its campaign with the Loyalty Dinner so that information about the need can be made known to all the supporting families. The slogan is, "The Need, The Challenge and The Faith". Mr. Dale Beckstead of Riverside Heights will be the future speaker and will be supported by Dr. Gerrard Rosenquist who had first hand experience with the value and purpose of the Lutheran Student Centres. Pledges will be sought between March 11 and March 19 and will be in effct for a two year period. The pledges are necessary so that plans to build can be put into effect immediately after the campaign.

Mrs Wilfred McMillan is in charge of the dinner arrangements and Mr. George Brooks is chairman of the campaign committee.
