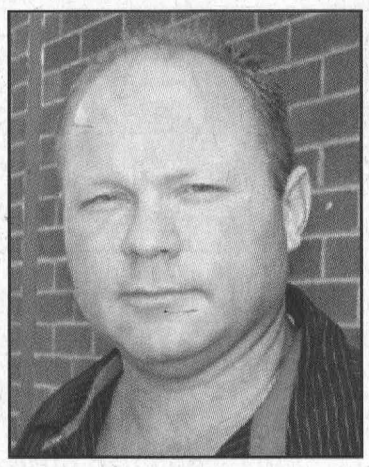
Ed Merkley jumps into mayoral race

MORRISBURG – Last Thursday Ed Merkley of Williamsburg added his name to the list of candidates seeking election as mayor of South Dundas.

Although Merkley readily admits he hasn't had any experience in municipal politics he says he decided just to "jump right in with both feet," and go for mayor rather than to try to "get his foot in the door as councillor."

He says there is "no chance" that he will change his mind about running for mayor. "If I get in I get in: If I don't I don't."

He sees the position of mayor as the best way to get things done and get them done quickly.



Ed Merkley

"I would like to make a difference and I would like to see somebody younger on council," says Merkley. "Brockville had a young mayor and he did well."

Although Merkley liked the ward system he sees the election at large as the way of the future.

Of the new four year term of council, Merkley says, "It's good because it will save the people money, but what if the people don't like you? It's a long time."

Merkley owns and operates Merkley Tire in Williamsburg and has for about eight years.

So far, Merkley will be running for election against councillor Charles Barkley, incumbent Lyle Van Allen and former councillor Cam Martel.

Iroquois Mac's Store robbed

IROQUOIS–A lone male, brandishing a knife made off with an undisclosed quantity of cash from the Mac's Milk Convenience Store here on Sunday, September 17.

Investigation by the SD&G Ontario Provincial Police has revealed that the male approached a female employee as she opened the store at about 6 a.m. on Sunday morning. The store is located in the Iroquois Shopping Plaza.

The female victim was not injured, and the male suspect fled the area in a dark coloured vehicle with a sunroof.

The suspect was wearing a dark coloured sweatshirt, jeans, a bandana, a hat and gloves. He was slim in build and was approximately six feet tall.

OPP Constable Paul Barkley is handling the investigation. Anyone having any information is asked to call the SD&G OPP at 1-888-310-1122 or Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-8477

Work related accident

WINCHESTER – A work related accident claimed the life of a 26-year-old Winchester man who was working on a harvester at Weagant Farm Supplies on County Road 43 last Wednesday morning, September 13.

Steve Bellefeuille was working on a Dion Forage Harvester Model 1224 when he became entangled in the moving parts. He was pronounced dead at the scene by SD&G OPP officers who responded to the call at approximately 11 a.m.

The Ontario Provincial Police report lists the tragic incident as accidental in nature. It is now, however, under investigation by the Ontario Ministry of Labour.

The third annual Casey Schell Memorial Fastball Tournament took place in Williamsburg over the weekend. The only local team participating, the Williamsburg Cigars, had to play and win four consecutive games Sunday to take the tournament title. Fernando Paulino Sees a Future for Wine Making in Eastern Ontario

Pictured above, Fernando Paulino tests the sugar content of the grapes at his vineyard located just north of Iroquois. Fernando's love of wine and wine making started long ago and now it has progressed to a point where he will be building a wine making facility as the next step for his Twin Pines Estate Vineyard and Winery. Comfort photo

Labour of love bringing winery to South Dundas

IROQUOIS – "A labour of love," is how Fernando Paulino describes his lifelong devotion to grapes and wine making, which he will soon be turning into a family business - Twin Pines Estate Vineyard and Winery.

Paulino started helping to make wine when he was 10 years old back in Portugal, and has been making wine for himself ever since he moved to Canada in 1963.

In 1965 he received a gift of a few grape vines from Italy, which he tried to grow to see if they would survive.

Those vines are still planted in his back yard.

With the knowledge that grapes would grow here and his wine making talent, developed over a lifetime, Paulino got the idea of starting a "momma and papa business," of a vineyard and winery. "I thought why not try it here," says Paulino.

"We need more tourism and to be part of a new industry my goal was to have my own vineyard. Now, everything seems to be coming into place," says Paulino.

He says this plan has been in the making for over 20 years.

In the year 2000, Paulino bought a property on the Chess Road, which is located north of Iroquois, to get his plan growing.

Since that time he has been clearing and working the land, planting vines, digging a pond for irrigation, harvesting the grapes and making small batches of wine at home: this spring he will take a large step towards realizing his dream.

With his vineyard surviving, the winery is the next step.

He will build a 40'x72' two level building which will be used to make wine. The building will need to be ready for next September's crop.

The plan is first to build the winery then put in place a retail outlet to sell the wine. Ultimately Paulino would like to add a conference hall and restaurant to the site.

The eventful day ended with an overnight (September 12-13) break-in at a residence in the village of Green Valley. Stolen from this residence were a digital camera, bottles of perfume and assorted jewelry.

On Thursday, September 14, Long Sault and the east were the targeted areas with another six forcible entries reported.

At 2:30 p.m. on this day a home on Jenkins Road in Long Sault was forcibly entered. A bicycle, which was taken and used to flee the scene, was later recovered.

Forcible daytime entries were made to a home on Barnhart Drive in Long Sault and to a home on Atchison Road, east of Long Sault.

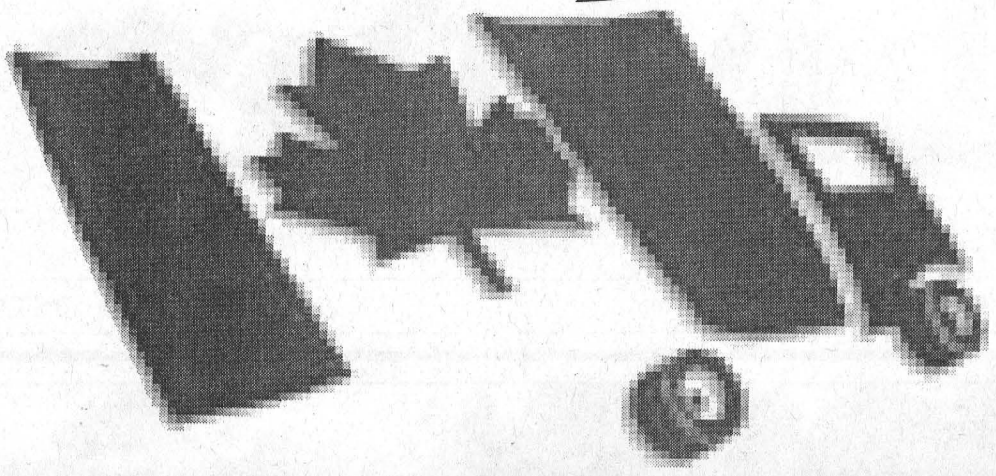
National Trucking Week Rolls Out - Sept. 17-23

Canada Moves by Truck!



NATIONAL TRUCKING WEEK
September 17 - 23, 2006

TORONTO, September 17, 2006 - Canada's trucking industry rolled out National Trucking Week on Sunday - the week takes place from September 17 - 23, 2006. National Trucking Week is held annually to spotlight the important contributions made by the 400,000 men and women who work in the industry and to raise awareness of the importance of the industry.

"Grocery store shelves are stocked and the supplies we need for daily living are available when we need them, thanks to the country's safe and reliable trucking industry," says OTA President David Bradley. "During National Trucking Week we salute the men and women who form the backbone of the trucking industry. Without you the country would literally stop!"

OTA member companies are marking National Trucking Week in a wide variety of ways. Some fleets are saying 'thanks' by treating their staff to special breakfasts, lunches or BBQs during the week, while others are presenting commemorative jackets, shirts and similar items to their employees. Still others are holding special activities for staffers and their families.

National Trucking Week is an annual event; the date is set each year by the Canadian Trucking Alliance in cooperation with the country's seven provincial trucking associations. Associations and their members undertake their own activities to mark the week.

OTA is marking National Trucking Week with the following:

• Official Posters/Collector Cards - OTA distributed the event's official poster and collector card filled with interesting trucking facts to trucking companies and supplier members to use in promoting the week. Both of which are produced thanks to generous sponsorship from Kingsway General Insurance Company.

• Discount Card for National Clothing Store: OTA made available to its member companies discount cards for re-distribution to members' employees. The card entitles the bearer to receive a discount on selected items at Mark's Work Wearhouse locations anywhere in Canada.

• Magazine Spotlighting Trucking Industry - To help promote the economic and social importance of the trucking industry, OTA partnered with Metroland Publishing group to distribute a glossy magazine inserted into select community newspapers in Southern Ontario. The publication is called "Driving Your Future" and features interesting information about the trucking industry and profiles people who have chosen to make their career in the trucking industry. Last year the magazine earned a coveted spot at a community newspaper's manager's conference. OTA member companies generously supported the publication via advertising.

Memo: To All Staff

Re: National Trucking Week

Canada's Trucking Associations have declared September 17-23, 2006 to be "National Trucking Week". Officially, the purpose of the week is to increase public awareness of the contributions of all employees of the Trucking Industry, and to celebrate safe, professional truck drivers. On a personal level, Terry and I would like to use this occasion to thank all of you for the professional job you perform on a daily basis.

Rather than point out all the little things that you regularly do, we would prefer to list some of the direct results of your efforts:

1) A truly enviable safety record.
2) Superior "ON TIME" delivery record.
3) High degree customer satisfaction.
4) Compliments of the general public.
5) Referred Business.
6) Low cargo claims ratio.

You are the "front line" ambassadors of our company, without which this business would not be what it is today. Please accept our thanks for a job well done.

Enjoy the week and be proud of what you do for a living.

On Golden Pond

Local teen makes his debut

By Wendy Gibb

MORRISBURG – Barely 48 hours to the opening night of On Golden Pond, Nicholas Merizzi, the 15-year-old who made his debut at Upper Canada Playhouse on September 14, was almost breathless.

He had been in rehearsal for most of the day, and expected to be in final run throughs until late at night. However, there was no question that he was loving every minute of his job.

"I'm nervous about opening night," he said, "but once I am on the stage, I'm not me any more. I'm 'Billy'. This is Billy's story. It's the greatest feeling in the world to entertain people."

The eldest son of Alain and Kathleen Merizzi, Nicholas is a grade 10 student at St. Lawrence High School in Cornwall when he is not pursuing acting and singing opportunities.

On Golden Pond is a professional engagement for the young actor, but he has been performing since he was about seven years old.

He played the lead in 2005's Oliver! by Glen Productions. He had taken vocal training with Erin Durham in Cornwall for two years, and laughed that his first real singing role was as Rudolph in Rock and Roll Santa, also a Glen Production. He has played the Wolf in a production of Peter and the Wolf.

In 2006, he played Laertes in Durham's spoof of Hamlette, for the Seaway Valley Theatre Company.

He remembered that play as a great experience, since the performances were held in the park. "I also played Ophelia, Bernardo and Actor Four. The director had cast a girl as Hamelette, and every one had to play every type of role. I enjoyed working outdoors in the park."

Nicholas was also cast in the short play, The Apple, in his school's 2006 Sears Seaway Festival, and was thrilled to be named as winner of awards for outstanding achievement and for movement.

Despite his experience, he admits that he was nervous when he signed up to test for the role of "Billy Ray" in the final production of Upper Canada Playhouse's season, On Golden Pond.

"Originally, about 28 boys tried out for the part. When I got a call back, there were eight other guys there too. It was pretty intimidating, because these were all good actors."

Two weeks after that final audition Nicholas received a phone call from director Donnie Bowes, telling him that he was going to be Billy in the show.

"At first I thought they were calling to say no, but when they told me I had the part, I was thrilled, and pumped, and nervous all at once," the young actor said.

Rehearsals began August 29.

"I drill my lines myself, and learn them on my own," Nicholas explained. " I had them down the first week, although I'm still really working on a couple of spots."

As the youngest cast member, Nicholas was not quite sure what to expect. He didn't have to worry. "This cast is fun. They treat me like one of them."

He particularly admires director Donnie Bowes. "It's excellent working with Donnie. He's really talented and he doesn't get angry. He's really helping me along."

Nicholas Merizzi has thought a lot about the character he plays in On Golden Pond, and he shared some of his ideas.

"For California Billy, this whole cottage and wilderness thing is new to him. He has to adjust. He also has to cope with Norman, and at first Billy thinks that he's just a funny old guy who likes to play with people's minds."

"By the end of the play, however, the old man and the boy have developed a strong relationship, the strong close one that Norman never had with his own child, Chelsea. Because she sees how her father relates to Billy, Chelsea breaks down old barriers with her father."

About a week before he was to begin rehearsals, Nicholas had an experience that he claims really opened his eyes to what Billy, the city kid, might be feeling to find himself in the wilderness.

"My family went to stay at a cottage in the Gatineaus on Wolf Lake. My dad, my aunt, my cousin and my two younger brothers Patrick and Alex and I decided about seven o'clock at night to follow a trail into the forest that led up to a peak where you had this fantastic view of the lake."

"We had taken the trail the year before, but over the season it had been wrecked by some kind of rock slide. On the way back, we took a wrong turn and got lost, which is sort of funny since my dad is a geography teacher."

"We ended up wandering for about seven hours. The NCC rangers and the police finally found us at 2 a.m. My dad kept saying that we'd be all right, but we were pretty scared about bears. We didn't have a cell phone or a flash light, and finally used the flash on a digital camera to signal the searchers."

"Now I see it as an adventure, and a real bonding experience for all of us. At the time though, I actually was thinking, 'I'm gonna die. This is the end of my career.' My mom was just glad that we were found."

"I think," Nicholas concluded, "that I know now how Billy feels being on Golden Pond in the bush, cut off from all he has been used to."

At this point, the young actor is planning a career in theatre. He hopes to attend Ryerson in Toronto one day. He is coping with missing full time school for a few weeks.

"My mom rounds up my assignments, and I have my 'classroom' off stage."

In the meantime, there is nothing else that 15-year-old Nicholas Merizzi would rather do than perform in Upper Canada Playhouse's production of On Golden Pond.

"Everyone brings a unique talent to the stage," he said thoughtfully, just before heading back to final rehearsals. "That's what is so good about theatre. It's like (fellow cast member) Doug Tangney explained to me. 'You bring out something special inside yourself when you're on the stage.'"

Fair praise

There is a collection of memories that many of us share. These memories are absolutely tied into the approach of autumn, and the winding down of summer. They are linked to smells and sights and sounds that only happen at this one unique time of the year. They are the memories of the fall fair. Or the harvest festival.

The names aren't really that important. The memories are.

When I was growing up, the Brigden Fair was practically the highlight of the end of September. If going back to school was punishment, at least the Brigden Fair was compensation. It didn't matter that the village of Brigden (about 50 kilometres from Sarnia) normally had a population of 400 people, 27 dogs and a couple of elderly horses. For one glorious weekend, it was the most important place on earth.

Long tables set up in a red tent were loaded with cinnamon-smelling pies and elaborate high rise cakes. Anxious ladies hovered in the background as judges solemnly tasted and debated. Gigantic pumpkins, and gourds, potatoes which resembled the prime minister or a lumpy cow (depended on your imagination), shiny buckets of apples, and vegetables of all sorts awaited the coveted blue ribbons.

Kids of every age paraded scrubbed and permed cows, sheep and pigs around makeshift rings, while the rest of us commented knowledgeably on the merits of hoofs and manes and ears. The dog show was enormously popular because there was always the hope that someone's stressed out pooch would take a bite out of a judge.

Tractors and old fashioned steam threshers gave demonstrations. There were pony rides and amateur harness races. The traditional merry-go-round provided the background music, while little booths offered ring tosses or the opportunity to knock over milk bottles.

Stuffed animals, plastic canes with a kind of kewpie doll dangling off them, or plastic bows and arrows were every kid's dream prizes.

Food never tastes or smells better than at a fall fair. Pink cotton candy falling off a cardboard stick becomes a gourmet delight. Caramel apples and hot dogs in those soft buns make the perfect meal. And triple decker ice cream cones are the obvious choice when riding on the Ferris wheel.

At Brigden, if you were really, really lucky you got to go on the 'potato masher', which spun riders upside down in little cars at the end of giant rotating arms. The catch was, parents had to accompany their children. One memorable year, Dad finally did take us three kids. We screamed and laughed, and had a wonderful time. At the end of the ride, pea green, he vanished behind a handy tent.

The celebration of fall is a wonderful tradition; attend one of our local fairs and festivals. Then start your own collection of memories.

The end of summer is just days away, and this Saturday, we welcome in the first day of fall. But while some of us are busy with our fall gardening cleanups and fall housecleaning, there are those who are looking a little further ahead to winter. I know. I don't want to think about winter either, but like it or not it will come, and we will just have to make the best of it. And what better way to make the best of it than to attend the Matilda Winter carnival, which, in a roundabout way I have been trying to get to. The Matilda Winter Carnival Committee is now planning for the January 2007 carnival and is in desperate need of help. We all know the old saying, "many hands make less work." Anyone interested in becoming a member of the committee is asked to call carnival committee chair Cindy Peters who can be reached at her home in the evenings at 652-2715. The Leader Blast from the Past

Compiled from The Leader's files

The September 18 issue reported the community hall at Dixon's Corners was packed with colleagues and well-wishers for the United Counties Warden's Banquet hosted by Warden and Matilda Reeve Charles Barkley.

Iroquois council was to call a public information meeting to address residents' concerns about municipal restructuring. Reeve Peter Swank explained the four municipalities of South Dundas had been talking about restructuring and had hired a consulting firm to do a feasibility study.

Registration was down for minor hockey this year, and it was suspected costs for first-year players was part of the reason. Minor hockey president Barry Elliott reported initiation numbers were down about half. For the past few years, the association had allowed first-time hockey players to join for free as an incentive to get more kids playing, but this year they had to pay.

The September 17 issue reported work on the $1.5 million Morrisburg sewer project was continuing at a steady clip. Work was now in an area where the tunnel was running under Highway 2.

The new Brownlee Funeral Home in Ingleside was officially opened by area dignitaries.

Fred and Jean Devaul were the first couple to represent the Morrisburg Golf Club at the Air Canada Mixed Two ball semi-finals and walk away the winners of a trip to Florida. Playing at the Pine Grove Golf and Country Club, the Devauls posted a 93 gross for a 69 net to finish fourth out of 160 couples. The top 10 couples earned the right to advance to the Air Canada final to be played in Fort Lauderdale in November.

A total of 150 youngsters had registered with the Morrisburg Minor Hockey Association. With midget and juvenile registration still to come, it was expected the association would reach last year's number of 186.

The White Ferrets moved well into first place in Morrisburg Flag Football League action when they defeated the second place Blue Meanies 20-19. The play of the game was Ferrets' Tim Smith catching a five yard pass and turning it into a 70 yard touchdown.

Pictured on the front page of the September 17 issue were Evel Knievel and Ken Carter. Knievel was in Morrisburg to check on the preparations for the Ken Carter Jump across the St. Lawrence. H had been signed to handle the color commentary for the jump by ABC's Wide World of Sports.

The first annual Applefest held in the Morrisburg Arena was described as a huge success by chairman Doug Grenkie. Over 2,000 people visited the afternoon events to see the art display and taste a little cider. Mrs. Edith Storgaard of Morrisburg won first prize in the apple pie baking contest, and the winner of the pie eating contest was Kevin Crowder who downed a whole apple pie in the record time of two minutes, 26 seconds. Jim Whelan and Harold Gallinger tied for second place in the pie eating with a time of two minutes, 30 seconds. In the apple dunking contest, Ronnie Degray won first prize with a 2.1 second dunk. Tracey Stewart was second and Sean Boulerice took third spot.

Morrisburg Minor Hockey registration was to take place in the arena lobby on September 25. Cost was $18 per child, and there was a $3 late registration fee. Figure skating registrations were to take place October 2. Fees were $18 for seniors and $14 for junior skaters.

Pictured on the front page of the September 16 issue was the entry gate at Holy Trinity Anglican Church in Riverside Heights. It was one of the very few authentic Litch gates in Canada and was a reminder of the ancient and historic custom of clergy welcoming people, under the canopy. The gate was erected by Robert M. Cox of Liverpool, England in 1903. It was a replica of an earlier Litch gate donated by Edwin Canfield Witney when the church was erected and donated by Witney and his wife Sarah Crysler in memory of their United Empire Loyalist forebears. During Seaway Rehabilitation, the church was taken down, stone by stone and reconstructed at its present site. The current church was dedicated in 1959.

In their first game of a best of three series, the Morrisburg Jets defeated Aylmer 31-3 in EOAS Junior Juvenile playdowns. Katherine Casselman was the winning pitcher.

The 100th anniversary of the United Church at Williamsburg was to be observed on September 25.

The September 21 issue reported Leo Doherty, acting Chief of Police of Morrisburg, had tendered his resignation effective immediately. The resignation left the village with two police officers, senior of whom was Hugh Nicholas with Harold Coughler as second officer.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Casselman announced the engagement and upcoming November wedding of their daughter, Lynda Margaret Lois to Donald Edward Smithson, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Smithson of Meaford, Ontario.

James T. Davis, municipal clerk of Morrisburg for the past few years, had tendered his resignation.

1936

The September 18 issue reported a subway at Morrisburg was to be built from the Railway Grade Crossing Fund at a cost of $150,000. It was to be built at the south end of High 31 which currently was a level railway crossing of the CNR double track line protected by gates.

A dedication ceremony was held for the fine memorial fence enclosing the Presbyterian cemetery at Point Iroquois, The fence and gates were presented by Herbert P. Caldwell in memory of the late Robert C. Caldwell, founder of the Caldwell Linen Mills, and his son Bob, a Great War veteran who was killed in an airplane accident in 1919. More than 100 mill employees attended the ceremony.

Loyalist descendants gather in Iroquois

IROQUOIS – The honour of being a member of the United Empire Loyalist Association of Canada was bestowed on a group of people at the Iroquois Golf Club Saturday night, and among them was the mayor.

South Dundas Mayor Lyle Van Allen, received his certificate alongside about 40 other people, including a relative he didn't know about, Robert Crawford of Georgetown.

Crawford, who is president of the Ontario Genealogical Society descends from the Loyalist Jacob Allen, as does Lyle Van Allen.

The certificates denote from which loyalist a person is descended.

Guest speaker Glenn Cunningham spoke to the 80 people on hand about local history, after which Lynne Cooke and Mabel McLean presented certificates to people from Barrie, Georgetown, Bradford, Vernon, Cornwall, Ingleside, Brinston, Iroquois, Kingston, Morewood and Morrisburg.

Cooke says, "While completing certificates they find that they have relatives that they didn't know about as they descend from a Loyalist. Sometimes members get hooked on doing family genealogy and want to learn more about their background."

The banquet held Saturday night was the 29th Charter Banquet for the St. Lawrence Branch of the United Empire Loyalist Association of Canada.

The St. Lawrence Branch received its Charter in 1977 and covers the Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry. The branch has members in Arizona, British Columbia, Michigan, New York, Alberta, Quebec and Nevada.

Nomination deadline only nine days away

SOUTH DUNDAS – The deadline to file nomination papers to become a candidate for the upcoming November municipal election is just over a week away.

So far, Charles Barkley, Lyle Van Allen, Cam Martel, and most recently Ed Merkley have announced that they will be seeking the mayor's chair.

Martel announced his candidacy in mid-March, while Van Allen's announcement came September 1. It was just two weeks ago that Barkley announced he too would seek the position and Merkley added his name late last week.

This election, for the first time, voters in South Dundas will elect a deputy mayor.

The deputy mayor, along with the mayor, will represent South Dundas at United Counties Council.

Robert 'Rowdy' Gillard is the most recent name on the list of those seeking the position of deputy mayor. Bill Ewing and Johnny Whitteker both filed for the position in March.

So far, Whitteker's name still stands for the deputy mayor position, although he is presently at home recovering from surgery for colon cancer.

Three councillor seats will be up for grabs, and so far only three people have filed their papers for these positions. Jim Graham was the first to announce his intention to seek one of the councillor's chairs. In August, incumbent councillor Sandra Bailey announced her intention to seek reelection as councillor and shortly thereafter Peter Swank added his name to the list.

Without any further councillor candidates these three could be acclaimed.

Once nominations close, September 29 at 5 p.m., those who filed nomination papers have until the following Monday, October 2, before 5 p.m. to withdraw their name from the ballot. A candidate can change the office for which he will seek election by filing a new set of nomination papers before 5 p.m., September 29.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A chance for electoral system reform

Dear Editor,

Now that the Ontario Government has established the Ontario Citizens Assembly to study the province's electoral system and to report back by May 15, 2007, Ontarians have the unique opportunity to adopt a better and fairer way of electing our representatives at Queen's Park based on proportional representation.

Our present antiquated first-past-the-post voting system routinely wastes votes, distorts election results, creates unrepresentative legislatures, produces phony majority governments that the majority of people actually voted against, and discourages people from voting.

It is little wonder then that most of the world's democracies during the past 50 years have discarded this winner-take-all voting system and have chosen fair voting systems based on proportional representation.

These voting systems strive to make every voter equal and to make every vote count. If a political party receives 40 percent of the popular vote, that party receives 40 percent of the seats not 60 percent. If another party wins 20 percent of the popular vote, that party gains 20 percent of the seats not 10 percent or one percent. The parties' representation in seats reflects the way people voted.

With proportional representation, legislatures are more representative of the range of political views and the composition of the electorate (gender, ethnicity, regions). Legislation is more responsive to the views of the majority of the public and government is ultimately more accountable.

When we make every vote count, we will also revitalize voter turnout and achieve a stronger democracy.

Let's work with the Ontario Citizens Assembly to reform our electoral system to reflect our 21st century democratic values. The time has never been better.

Yours truly,
Brian Lynch,
Cornwall.

Back to nature . . . back to fall

The leaves have finally given up on summer, and started turning their fall shades. The skies are as often gray as sunny now, and nights are longer and darker.

Many birds are readying for the long flight to warmer temperatures, while squirrels have become a little too bold in stashing nuts in flower beds and under tables.

The rain of last week brought out everyone's gardens, especially the black-eyed susans, for one last hurrah. But people are getting out rakes and hoes now in preparation for the autumn clean up.

Sheila Scarbo spotted a pair of wild turkeys with at least four young in a field by the Brinston Road this week. Overhead, two turkey vultures circled around.

At the same time, more than 100 tree swallows perched along the power lines by Berwick last Thursday. No doubt, they were planning the trip South since they like to travel in large mixed flocks.

Swallows are sociable creatures, which is probably why there are so many species of them. Their habitat ranges over most of North America.

As the cool weather moves in, there are casualties in the insect world. Sheila found a Cloudless Giant Sulphur Butterfly lying dead at the side of the road. She was able to examine its 1.5 inch wingspan, and to admire its beautiful black and green spots.

Preparing for show in Iroquois

Local artist of many talents

IROQUOIS – Although Dawna Ewing LeBlanc of Iroquois says she would "be outside all of the time if she could," she can't, and that's where her dolls come in.

LeBlanc is a very talented photographer, who enjoys both the travel to find her photography subjects as well as capturing those subjects on film.

When she's not out and about with her camera in hand, she keeps busy constructing her character dolls.

LeBlanc was a journalist for a small town weekly paper in Alberta many years ago, and that's what peaked her interest in photography.

Although she took some photography courses, she says she has learned hands-on and by reading.

"I have two Nikons, one digital and one film, and I'm still learning how to use them."

Her passion is nature and wildlife photography, and "I love doing patterns." She has some wonderful photographs of natural patterns she has discovered in nature.

In addition, she has photographs she captured while on a recent trip to British Columbia and Alaska. Her collection includes some beautiful scenes taken locally, and some outstanding wildlife photos.

Two years ago, LeBlanc began making her character dolls, a hobby she spends more time on in the winter when she can't be outdoors.

Her doll collection includes a wide array of fun characters, all of which have names and many of which poke gentle fun at people and events.

For instance her doll "Snowbird" was inspired by an enormous, pale lady outfitted in a bright red bikini on a beach in Florida. There is "Canadian Hero" a hockey player complete with a sling, black eyes and Hunk #10 on his sweater.

There is "S. Claus" who is retired and carrying a bag of seashells, and "Bubba" who started out to be a whiskey maker, but became a farmer toting a milk pail when she couldn't find a whiskey jug.

"Most of my dolls are inspired by something or someone," says LeBlanc explaining she started with an original doll pattern which has long since been adapted many times.

After preparing the body, LeBlanc stitches the face. It is at this point that the doll begins to take on a personality.

"The clothing is the biggest challenge. I design the clothing and make the pattern. It's fun, but sometimes it is frustrating."

"They (the dolls) are all silly. There is no resemblance to anyone living I hope."

LeBlanc is a member of the South Grenville Guild of Fine Art, and she and three fellow artists are busy this week preparing for a small art show this Sunday, September 24 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Iroquois Golf Club.

Also attending the show are Christine and Paul Hillier who have their CH Art Works studio in Prescott.

Dawna Ewing LeBlanc of Iroquois will be joined by three area artists/photographers at a small Art Show being held at the Iroquois Golf Club this Sunday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. LeBlanc divides her time between nature and wildlife photography and her character dolls shown in the photos.

Christine is an artist who specializes in oil painting and Paul is a photographer. Both are natives of Nova Scotia. Christine has been painting for more than 35 years, and from early in life Paul has looked at the world through a camera lens.

They are joined by Eva Neron whose studio, Eva's Art Studio and Gallery, is also located in Prescott. Eva works in her studio producing detailed black and white drawings of homes, buildings and animal portraits She also paints "Snap Shot" murals of buildings of days gone by, and custom ordered murals on outdoor wood or indoor materials. Her art is in collections from Victoria to New Brunswick as well as in some of the States.

"They have all been at it quite awhile," says LeBlanc. "They are all very talented and very professional."

The public is invited to this Sunday's show at the Iroquois Golf Club. There is no admission charge.

Cruickshank theatre opening postponed

MORRISBURG – The grand opening of the Cruickshank outdoor theatre couldn't happen over the weekend as planned.

Although the weather broke for the weekend, nearly a week of steady rain meant that Les Cruickshank had to call the show Friday morning.

Cruickshank has postponed the event until the spring of 2007.

The newly seeded and sodded ground was just too wet for the event to take place.

"I'm not worried about damage to the grass, but people's clothes and shoes would get wet," said Cruickshank, who was disappointed to have to make the announcement early Friday morning.

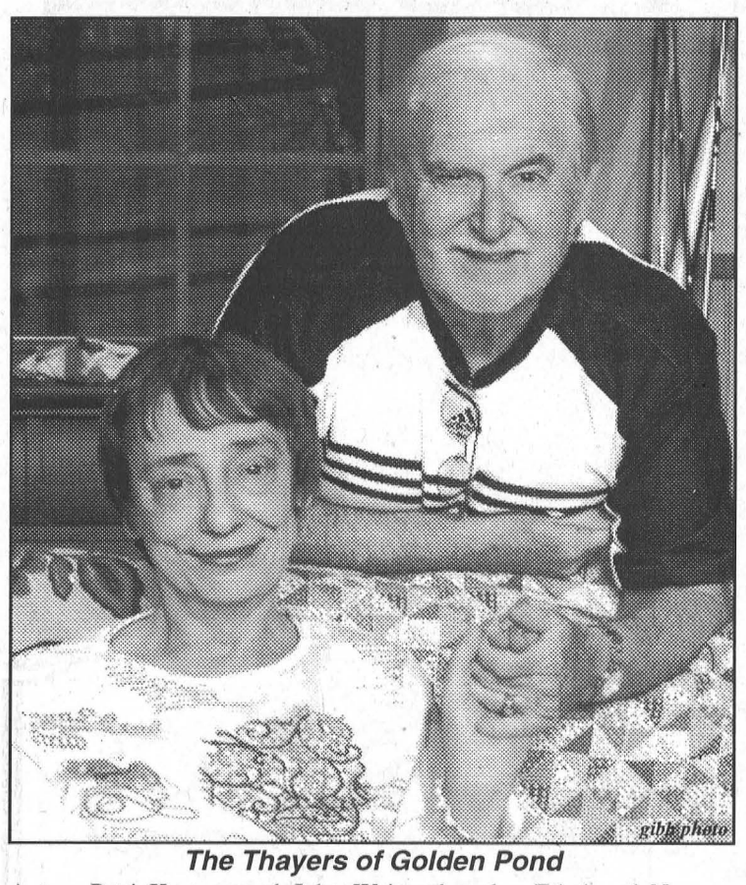
"On Golden Pond" an audience delight



The Thayers of Golden Pond

Actors Patti Kazmer and John Weir, who play Ethel and Norman Thayer in Upper Canada Playhouse's production of On Golden Pond, take a moment for photos on the charming set.

MORRISBURG – Norman and Ethel Thayer have been married for 44 years. They are spending this, their 45th summer together, at their cottage on Golden Pond.

Long estranged from their only daughter, Chelsea, it seems that they have been left with no one but each other. However, as events unfold in Ernest Thompson's heartwarming play, the summer of 1973 will bring a momentous change for the elderly couple.

Upper Canada Playhouse's final production of the 2006 summer season, On Golden Pond, paints a delightful portrait of the Thayers. Through the story of this feisty, yet often vulnerable couple, audiences can share the challenges, the hilarity, and the touching moments that are so much part of family life.

Directed with insight by Donnie Bowes, On Golden Pond opened at Upper Canada Playhouse on September 14. The play will run until October 8.

Judging from the delighted reactions of capacity crowds during the first weekend of the run, tickets will be going very fast for this classic stage production.

This is a very, very funny play.

A large measure of its appeal rests squarely on the shoulders of its two main characters, Norman and Ethel. In actors John Weir and Patti Kazmer, that burden is carried splendidly.

Their outstanding performances are the very heart of this production. By turns hilarious, and crotchety and touching, Kazmer and Weir make us care very much about these two people in the twilight of their long life together.

Seldom off stage, the two actors seem to effortlessly capture the audience's heart.

After nearly five decades of marriage, Ethel and Norman bicker and tease and laugh with the ease of old familiarity. She calls him a "poop", and he refers to her as the "old girl." They've literally spent their entire adult lives together. As Norman says at one point, "We're not middle-aged. You're old, and I'm ancient."

Kazmer's character Ethel is handling the onset of old age more gracefully than is Norman.

Just past his 80th birthday, Norman is ailing, and becoming occasionally forgetful. He covers up his growing fears with comments at once sarcastic and hilarious.

"When my number's up, just put me up on the fireplace mantel, and point me the way down. I might do a half gainer into the fire," he exclaims to Ethel.

He pores over classified work ads, yet stays shut up in the cottage. He refuses to do any of the summer things that the couple has done together for years. An exasperated and worried Ethel finally accuses him of being "morbid."

Even the visits of mailman Charlie Martin, played with irrepressible good spirits and humour by Doug Tangney, cannot shake Norman out of his preoccupation. He believes he has become useless.

It takes Chelsea's unexpected arrival with her new dentist fiancé and his 12-year-old son to create the catalyst that can change Norman's life.

Alison Lawrence plays Chelsea with great skill. Her character has long standing issues with her stubborn, opinionated father. She resents the feeling that he has always been 'disappointed' in her. For Chelsea, Ethel is "Mommy", but father is always a distant "Norman."

This summer on Golden Pond may be their last chance to find a way back to each other.

Talented actor Brian Young plays nervous dentist Bill Ray, trying to cope with crusty Norman's sly observations, and his own comic concerns about bears and indoor plumbing.

These two hold one of the most hilarious dialogues in the play as future father-in-law Norman expresses his jaundiced views on "modern" 70's male/female relationships.

Playhouse newcomer, 15-year-old Nicholas James Merizzi is cast as Billy Ray, the boy whose presence on Golden Pond will come to mean so much to Norman.

The young actor, in his first fully professional role, handles the challenges of Thompson's play with enthusiasm and insight.

It is Billy who remarks, off handedly, to Ethel, "I wouldn't worry about Norman. I'll keep an eye on him." He does.

The displaced boy and the old man spend long summer days together on Golden Pond talking, reading and sneaking food by Ethel. They fish endlessly. "He cleans the stupid fish, and I clean the smart ones," Norman tells Ethel after a rainy expedition.

The two of them form a deep bond, one that gives Norman purpose.

It is one of the pleasures of Thompson's On Golden Pond that the audience can share in Norman's gradual realization that life, whatever your age, really is meant to be lived.

The single set, a summer cottage lovingly designed and painted by 80-year-old Prescott artist John Thompson, complements the story unfolding on stage.

From the mismatched furniture in the living room, to the shelves of Reader's Digest Condensed Books (a cottage staple) by the fireplace, the Thayer summer home on Golden Pond feels genuine.

The cantankerous screen door, the collection of silly fishing hats on the wall, even the large ceramic English setter (exiled from someone's home as soon as decently possible, no doubt) enhance the gentle atmosphere of this set.

Real people we can care about live in this cottage on Golden Pond.

They are witty, scrappy and wrong-headed at times. But director Donnie Bowes and the talented actors of this Upper Canada Playhouse production, have made them memorable.

Norman Thayer has it right early in the play when he says, "Golden Pond is very near wherever you are."

For tickets to On Golden Pond, and information, contact Upper Canada Playhouse at 613-543-3713.

Grand Am strikes twice

SOUTH DUNDAS – The afternoon of September 2, two motor vehicle collisions, involving the same vehicle were reported to police.

The first collision was along Highway 401 westbound in South Stormont Township, and the second was along County Road 18 in South Dundas Township.

A Pontiac Grand Am, driven by 56-year-old Thomas Demerchant of Cornwall was westbound on the 401 when he collided with the side of another vehicle and continued without stopping.

He exited the 401 at Morrisburg and drove north on County Road 31. Near the intersection of County Road 18, the driver of the grand am collided with the rear end of another vehicle and continued on again

Police were advised of the incidents and stopped the vehicle on County Road 43, just east of County Road 31.

Demerchant, who was the lone occupant of the vehicle, will face charges of dangerous operation of a motor vehicle, impaired driving, failure to provide a breath sample, two counts of failure to remain at the scene of a collision and flight from police officer, when he appears in Cornwall court October 3.

Thieves snatch jewelry, cash

In the former assorted jewelry was taken and in the latter cash and a camera were reported missing.

A quantity of cash was taken (daytime) from a residence on County Road 20 in South Glengarry, and tie-down straps were stolen from a garage on Dornie Road in North Glengarry.

Assorted tools were also reported stolen from a cottage on Blyth Road in North Glengarry.

According to Community Services Officer, Constable Joel Doiron there does not appear to be a connection between the incidents.

The break-in on Orchard Way in Morrisburg, is the second such occurrence on that street in less than six months. In the previous theft a computer tower was stolen between 2 and 4 p.m. on Thursday, April 20.

"We encourage people to secure their property," says Constable Doiron. "We encourage proper security ... dead bolts, alarm systems."

He says too that there are certain times of the year when break and enter rates go up. Generally, he says thieves are looking for the quick items.

He also suggests that people look after their neighbours by keeping an eye on their property when they are away or at work.

"This is a very large rural area and there are a lot of residences that are isolated."

He says people should call in and report suspicious persons or vehicles when they spot them in their neighbourhood.

Anyone having information on the above, or any crime, is asked to call SD&G OPP at 1-888-310-1122 or Crime Stoppers at 1-800-222-TIPS.

Winery

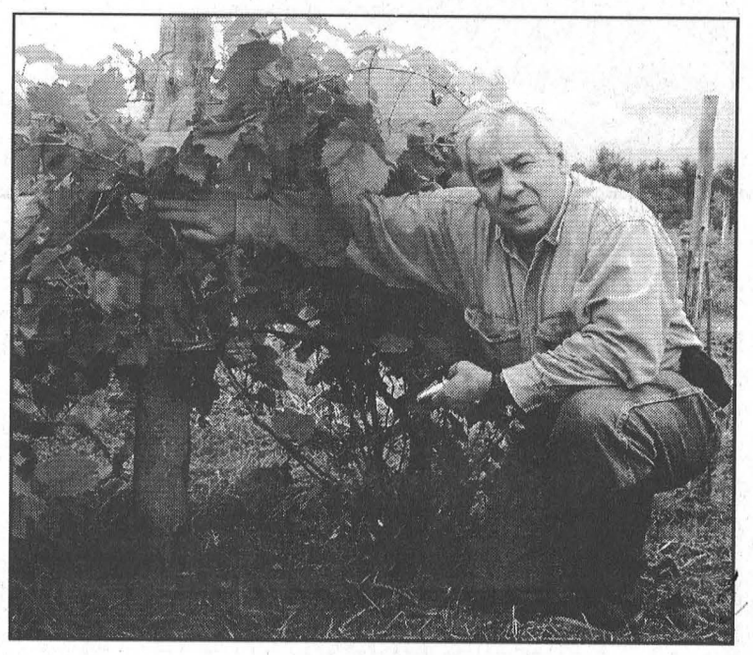
He sees this venture as an opportunity for him and his children Chris Paulino and Lydia Paulino Racine to work together.

Since 2002, Paulino has planted 6,500 vines and they have lost many of them. "It's been challenging," he says.

He has lost vines due to harsh winters, flooding, weed management problems and birds.

Over the years he has grown and evaluated 11 varieties of vines including three hybrids and eight viniferas from places such as Austria, France and Italy.



Harvest time

Fernando Paulino shows some of the grapes grown at his Chess Road vineyard just prior to harvesting them over the weekend. It takes between three and five years for a vine to produce grapes suitable for wine making. Paulino estimates that he will harvest about 100 pounds of grapes this year which is enough to make about 25 to 30 litres of Leon Millot wine for this year. Next year he plans to make much more in his newly constructed winery. Comfort photo

Adventuring through Central America

by Wendy Gibb

IROQUOIS – For most young people, graduation from high school is a major turning point in their lives. Many choose to continue on to college and university immediately. But not all. Some choose a different path, at least for a time.

Nineteen-year-old Erin Hendriks was one who opted to make an unusual choice when she graduated from Seaway District High School a year ago.

She chose to become a participant in a LEAPNow* Semester being held in Central America.

"I think if you don't know what you want to do with your life," Hendriks says, "travel, learn about the world. You learn a lot about yourself too."

While university was definitely in her plans, she felt that there were other ways that she could gain new experiences and learn.

"I had gone to the Dominican Republic in grade 12 on a resort vacation," she explains. "But what really influenced me was when I left the resort, went into the villages, and actually met the Dominican people. Several became friends, and took us to see their homes, and experience their true lives."

"I got a sense of what is 'real', something you don't get sitting in a sheltered resort."

She also found that the experience gave her a strong interest in learning to speak Spanish.

However, it was special connections at Seaway District High School in Iroquois that finally helped the teenager make up her mind.

Seaway has hosted a number of older teens from George Jackson's Partners for Children in Development over the last few semesters. The teens attend classes at the high school, improving their English skills, and experiencing the Canadian way of life.

Hendriks became good friends with several of these young people from Central America.

"Olga, Jose, Hernan and Carla were from San Pedro, Honduras. I got to know them well, and my interest in Latin culture and the Spanish language simply grew. I was determined to go to Central America."

She located LEAP*Now* on the Internet, following careful research. This company offers semestered programs world wide for students. They live and work among the ordinary people of the host countries, learning their languages and ways of life while contributing their own labour and skills to worthwhile projects.

Because a candidate must pay her tuition and air fare to the chosen country, Erin had to raise funds. The Iroquois-Matilda Lions Club became her benefactor.

"I was at a Track Meet, and met Ruth Robertson, whose husband Paul was a member of the Lions," Hendriks explains. "He connected me with the club, and following discussions, the Lions very generously presented me with a $1500 International Development Scholarship."

In February of 2006, Erin flew from Ottawa to San Francisco, and then to Guatemala City, a journey which took some 12 hours.

She travelled with a group of 15 young people from North America, but students in the program also come from Europe and Russia.

Immediately, she experienced some of the desperation created by poverty in developing countries.

"We did not stay in Guatemala City," Hendriks explains. "It is simply considered too dangerous. All tourists are assumed to be rich, and are often specifically targeted for assault by gangs."

Instead, the team travelled into the country to a town of about 500-600 people called Poptun.

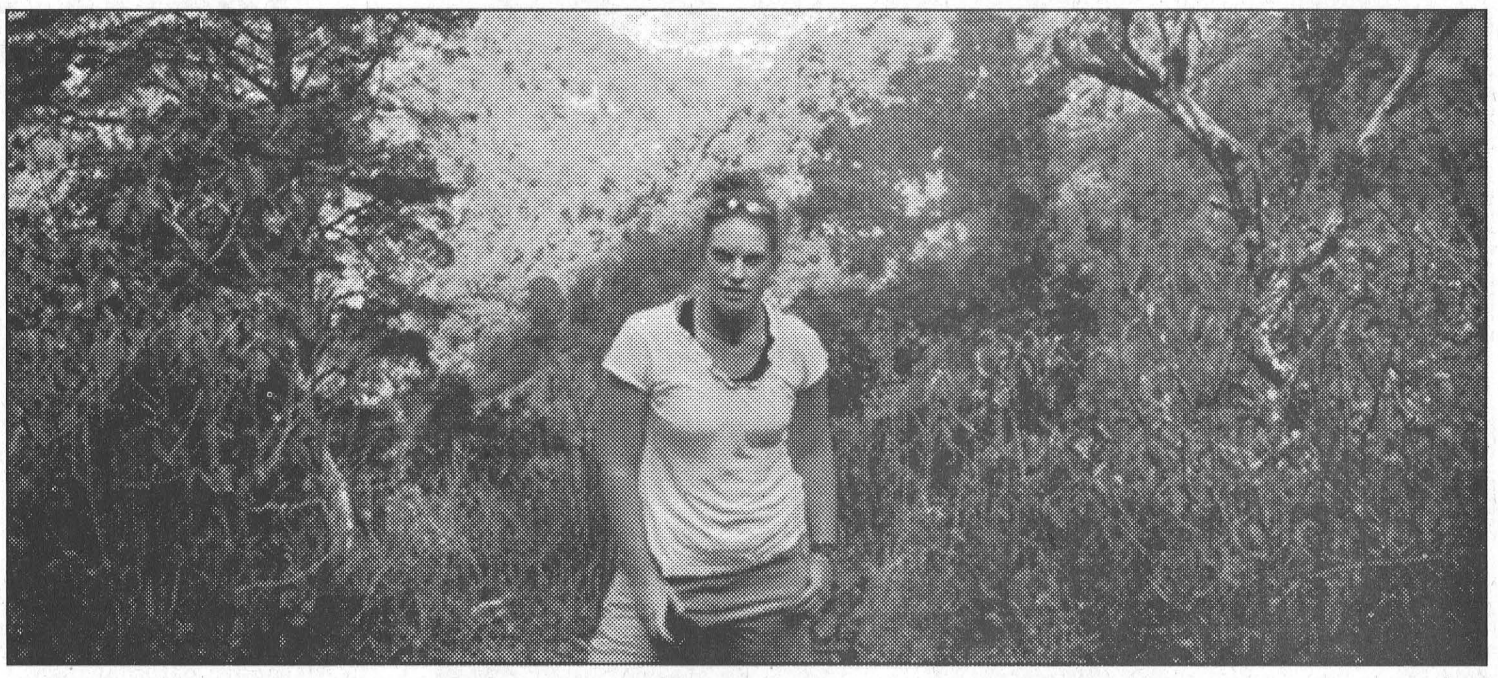
During a three day orientation, the North Americans stayed at a hostel in the jungle. From the beginning, there was a lot to learn about living and working in a very different country and environment.

"It took me some time to get used to the food, but eventually I learned to love it!" Erin laughs. "Rice, beans and tortillas three times a day is normal. Mangoes, papaya and pineapple were regular parts of our diet. Animals like pigs are slaughtered and eaten the same day."

Hendriks grimaces. "That took some getting used to since the animals are killed in the open, and you can both see and hear it happening."

"Large stores exist only in the big cities. In the small towns of Central America," she continues, "individual households sell things like coal oil or fruit. Tiny "tiendas", or general stores, sell a very limited number of imports. You learn quickly to do without."

"Sanitation is not North American, and you have to get used to it. Also, female students were encouraged not to go out alone since men in these cultures tend to be more forward. Personal space doesn't exist."



Erin Hendriks in the mountains, and, below, with some of the members of the group who travelled with her through three Central American countries.

However, Hendriks is very quick to add, the people the group met everywhere were "awesome. They wanted us to love their country. They wanted us to have a good time and see the best of their world."

Very quickly, Hendriks says, she began picking up Spanish. Some of her semester involved classroom education in that language.

"I was becoming quite fluent when I left. I could handle most occasions," she recalls.

Part of the LEAPNow* mandate is that the young people join in improvement projects in the countries they visit. Erin was involved in activities in Guatemala, Costa Rica and Honduras.

In Nueva Alianza, north of Quetzaltenango, Guatemala, the teens worked on a coffee and macadamia nut plantation.

"It was out in the jungle. We did everything from trail maintenance for the village workers, to trail clearing, to actually picking coffee beans."

In Honduras, Hendriks and her team worked at a bilingual school that offers classes for children from kindergarten to grade seven. While they painted classrooms and also built a special garden for the Arts, she found that the teaching was her favourite activity.

Her most unusual experience came at Playa Tamarindo, on the Caribbean side of Costa Rica.

"We worked on a turtle project," Hendriks explains. "We patrolled the beaches in the very early hours of the morning when it was still dark outside."

"Our job was to watch for four foot long female 'Leatherback turtles' coming ashore to lay their eggs. We had to rescue the eggs, and transport them to a hatchery where they could be monitored and protected," she continues.

"The Leatherbacks are endangered. Without these patrols, poachers would steal the eggs, and the whole species could be destroyed. Unfortunately, it was terribly hot and the flies and mosquitos were very bad, even though we did cover up."

Only once did Hendriks feel really homesick for her parents.

"About half way through the trip, all 15 of us got parasites, and we were all very sick at the same time," she recalls.

"I have to say that I really wanted my Mommy for a while," she laughs. "But we got the right medical treatment, and we recovered and went on."

Of one thing, Erin Hendriks is quite certain. She wouldn't have missed this time in Central America for anything.

"I was taken out of my element," she says, "but I found out what I really valued. You don't need tons of clothes and cosmetics. There is just so much more to life. I go to Trent University in the fall, and I know I am ready for the challenges."

Two faces of Central America

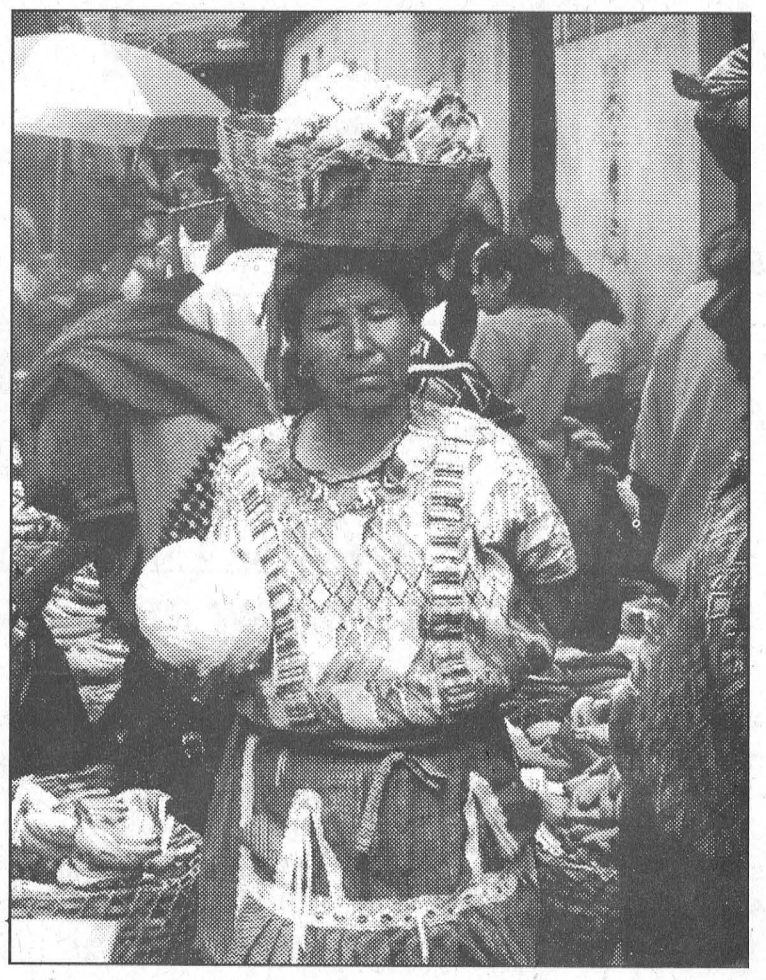
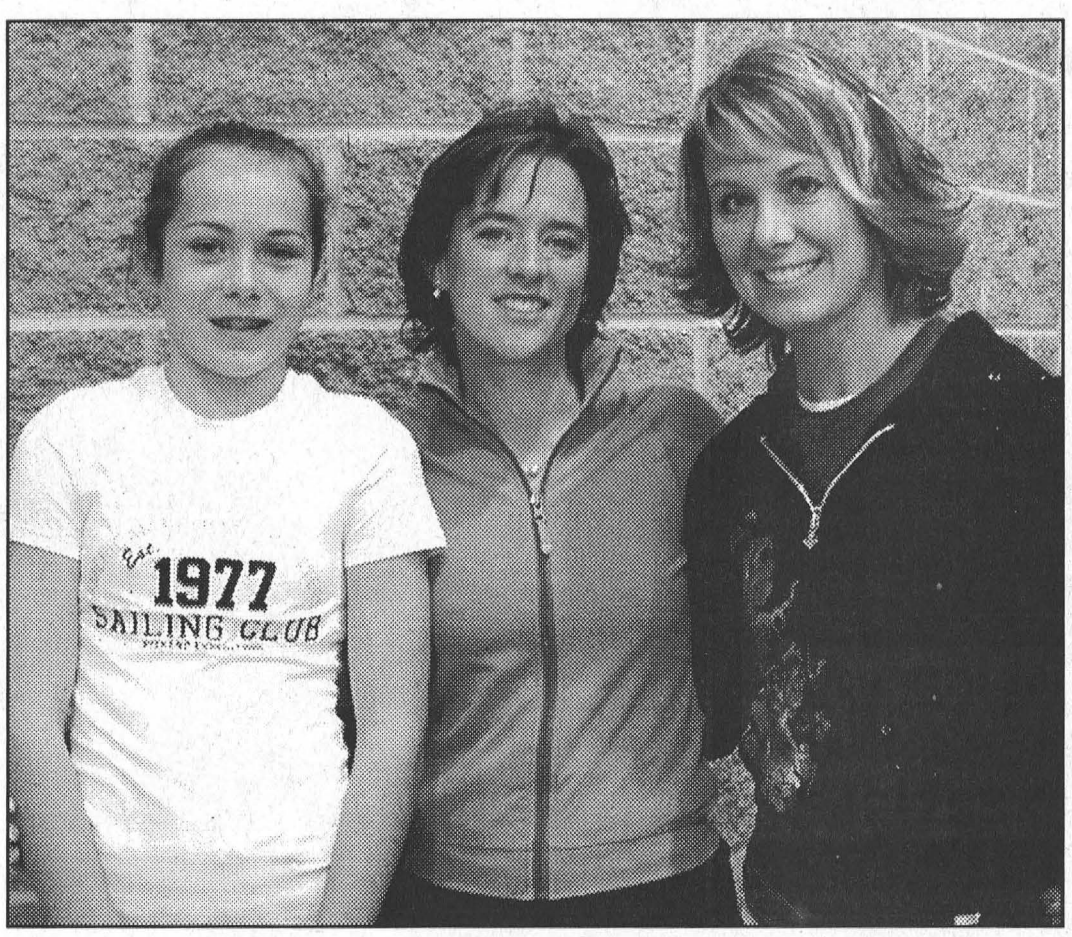
A mountain trail overlooking a lake makes it clear that all three countries visited by the North American teens possess breath-taking, rugged beauty.





Memorable Experience for Local Skater

Jessica Thompson of Iroquois, who skates with the Morrisburg and District Figure Skating Club, kicked off the 2006-07 skating season, when she attended a Youth Camp in Napanee on the weekend of September 9-10. The special honour came as a result of previous skating performances, her test level and her age. The main coach conductor on the ice at the camp was World and Olympic Level coach Michelle Leigh. Above, l-r, Jessica is joined by Leigh and her coach Allison Morrow.

Skater honoured by selection to camp

MORRISBURG – Morrisburg and District Figure Skating Club member, Jessica Thompson of Iroquois, had the unique and special honour to attend an invitational Figure Skating Youth Camp in Napanee on the weekend of September 9-10.

Jessica was one of 52 skaters who were selected to attend the camp which featured on and off-ice instruction by world class coaches and judges.

The skaters, selected from skating clubs throughout Eastern Ontario (Whitby to Alexandria/Hawkesbury to Ottawa/Pembroke), were divided into two groups for the camp.

Jessica was selected based on her skating performance at the Eastern Ontario Sectionals Championship in Whitby last November, the Minto Summer Skate Competition in Ottawa in August and her current test level which is Pre-Novice Competitive. All skaters had to be 12 years of age or younger.

It was also mandatory that Jessica's coach, Allison Morrow attend the Youth Camp.

A highlight of the camp was the opportunity to receive instruction from World and Olympic Level coach Michelle Leigh who has trained many top level athletes at the Mariposa School of Skating in Barrie.

She has coached Canadian Champion, World Champion and Olympic Silver Medallist Elvis Stojko, two-time World Bronze Medallist Takeshi Honda of Japan and six-time Canadian Champion Jennifer Robinson.

Leigh demonstrated the "Dartfish" computer program to assist skaters with on-ice techniques, while off-ice sessions were conducted by Janice Morgan, an off-ice jump class specialist at the Mariposa School of Skating.

Also providing training information specific to the new ISU Judging System was Karen Butcher, a world class figure skating judge and technical specialist.

The purpose of the camp was to enhance the skaters' competitive performance, improve technical skills and provide maximum motivation for the competitive season ahead.

And that worked for Jessica as she came away very motivated and anxious to get back on the ice at her local figure skating club in Morrisburg.

Junior B hockey season kicks off Friday night

MORRISBURG – Coaches Eddy Gove and Doug Brandt plan to make their final cuts this week in order to be prepared to ice the 2006-07 Junior B Lions squad in the season home-opener this Friday night.

The Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey season kicks off in all divisions this weekend, and for the first game of the year, the Lions will host the Akwesasne Wolves. Game time is 8:30 p.m.

Last weekend the Lions played two exhibition games losing the first on home ice Friday night to the Char-Lan Rebels (7-6 in overtime) and the second to the Hawks, 4-2, in Winchester, Saturday night.

"Friday night, Dave and I had a good look at everyone," said coach Eddy Gove. "We played a lot of the young lads Friday night, and Saturday night in Winchester we went with almost everyone."

"Saturday night, was basically, the last chance for some to earn a position on the team."

Gove and Brandt planned to make their final cuts at last night's (Tuesday) practice, although they expected to hold on to the three goaltenders still in camp.

Travis Baldwin and Justin Elliott hold two overage spots, and Gove says he is holding out for two others who are in other camps.

Also still skating with the team is Chad Galipeau who is tied up in a trade at the Junior A level. "As long as he is sitting, he is going to play with us," says Gove.

Gove says that he and Brandt had some tough decisions to make especially concerning the 16-year-olds who all looked strong in the exhibition games.

"We went with Brett Conway, because we felt we were a bit short on defense and he looked very good. He is a good skater and a good, heads-up player."

Forward Ryan Wong earned the second 16-year-old spot with a strong showing in the weekend action. "He is a very strong skater, and very heads up. He is on the small side, but we liked what we saw."

Gove explained that when he keeps a 16-year-old, he wants to be able to give him enough ice time to develop. Rather than keep a young player as a ninth or 10th forward who will hardly touch the ice, he would rather see them playing full-time at the midget level.

As for the returning veterans which at this time number seven skaters (plus the two overage) Gove says, "Actually some are in very good shape. Others, I guess, are planning to get in shape as we go along."

"Travis Baldwin is in the best shape I've seen him in." Gove is looking for Baldwin to become more of a team leader this year and to stay out of the penalty box. "We are going to need Travis on the ice, and I think he can contribute a lot more offensively than he did last year."

Gove says it is difficult to judge the strength any of the teams from the exhibition games as most (including the Lions) went with players who were trying to cut spots.

He expects the Lions to be a strong contender and is hoping for strong fan support.

"We were pleasantly surprised with the number of fans who attended Friday night's exhibition game. It's exciting for the staff, the coaches and the players when you get the strong support from the community."

He also says that with the new rules to the game, which are mainly a crackdown on infractions, fans can expect to see a much better brand, and more entertaining style of hockey.

Friday night in Morrisburg, the Lions and Rebels played to a two-goal draw in the first period. At the end of two they remained even at 4-4, and the Rebels scored with just 18 seconds left in regulation time to end the game with a 6-6 tie.

Julien Moffat scored the overtime winner for Char-Lan for a two goal performance. Nathan Poitras, Vince Quesnel, Phil Theriault, Josh Legue and Jesse Piteau supplied the other Rebels' goals.

Answering for the Lions were Nick Leigh with two goals, and Chris Sommers, Cory Gove, Ryan Wong and Allan Waddell, all with singles. Veteran Pat Mainville had a solid night assisting on three of the tallies.

Rookie Phil Perkins was in net for the Lions, and Leroy Swamp saw action for the Rebels.

In Winchester, Saturday night, the Lions trailed 3-1 after the first period, and traded goals with the Hawks in the third frame as they headed for the 4-2 loss.

Ben Collins scored twice for the Hawks, and Nick Enright and Alex Campbell netted singles.

Scoring the Lions were Nick Leigh from Ryan Wong and Devin Brunet, and Cory Gove from Brett Conway.

Veteran goaltender Andrew Pearson was in net for the Lions.

The Lions open their season this Friday night in Morrisburg at 8:30 p.m. against the Akwesasne Wolves and are on the road to Kemptville Sunday, for a 7:15 p.m. game.

Cigars mighty on Sunday to win Casey at Bat Fastball Tournament

WILLIAMSBURG – Fastball action was on the field at J.C. Whitteker Park in Williamsburg over the weekend and it was the local team who dug themselves a hole early but were able to play their way out of it Sunday to win the tournament title.

This year's Casey at Bat, Casey Schell Memorial Fastball tournament featured six teams in a double elimination fastball tournament.

All of the well known local fastball talent played together this year for the Williamsburg Cigars.

The Cigars kicked off the tournament with a 17-5 win over North Augusta. The Cigars next faced Carp Victory, who lived up to their name winning 5-1.

The loss meant that the Cigars would have to go to bat again against North Augusta first thing Sunday morning.

Having to continue winning, Williamsburg did so scoring a 3-0 win over North Augusta to advance to the next game against the Quyon Flyers after a brief 20 minute rest.

The game against Quyon was a real battle taking two extra innings to be decided. The Cigars lit up the scoreboard in the second of the extra innings ending the game with a score of 10-4.

This win meant that the Cigars would advance to the final against Victory. The Cigars would have to win twice to win the tournament.

The Cigars shutout Victory in the first game 4-0 and then won the second game 6-2.

In the first of the doubleheader, the tired and sore team pulled together and played with determination giving all the support they could to their injured pitcher Jason Smith who was throwing his heart out for his team.

The Cigars scored a single run in the second inning and only led by that one run until the sixth inning when Allen McNairn hit one out of the park with two runners on to make it 4-0.

After scoring the first win, the Cigars were able to maintain their momentum to post the second win, this time 6-2.

Tournament founder Lyle Schell, who managed the Cigars along with Jamie Smith, said their defense was the difference between the Saturday game against Victory and the Sunday games.

"The defense put together two great games against Carp. We were also able to string together a few key hits and that made all the difference," said Schell.

Cigars shortstop Wayne Garlough was named tournament MVP and Cigars pitcher Jason Smith won the award for top pitcher. Matt McNish of Carp Victory was the top hitter in the tournament.

Playing for the Cigars were Lyle Schell, Jamie Smith, Jason Smith, Wayne Garlough, Bruce Casselman, Barry Whitteker, Rob Casselman, Mike Veltkamp, Mitch Hutt, Shawn Lapier, Derek Whitteker, Al McNairn and Bruce Mullin.

Funds raised at this year's tournament and at future tournaments will be used to create two $400-$500 bursaries for graduating Seaway District High School students.

The intention of the committee is to give one bursary to the top male athlete of the year in memory of Keith "Casey" Schell, and one to the top female athlete of the year in memory of Michael Steward, a family member who passed away last year during the weekend of the tournament in a motor vehicle accident.

The organizing committee was worried until last week that they would have to cancel the tournament because they had teams dropping out. It was just last Monday that they had the sixth team necessary for the tournament to proceed.

The tournament attracted about 400 spectators over the weekend.

"This amazing weekend could not have been possible without the support of volunteers. We're very pleased to say that our family shares our enthusiasm in keeping Grandpa's memory alive as do some of our very dear friends," say Lyle and Kim Schell.

"A huge thank you goes out to the Schell family, McNairn family, Hutt family, Jamie Smith, Heather Wells-Baker, Bobby-Jack Hart, Angie Merkley, Jessica Bercier, Greg and Kelly DeDekker, Sherry Beckstead, Steffanie Garlough and the Morrisburg Pentecostal Church Women's Ministries Group.

Cigars put together back to back to back to back wins

All of the players on the Williamsburg Cigars, who won the Casey at Bat, Casey Schell Memorial Fastball Tournament over the weekend were born and raised in South Dundas. They were either coached by Casey Schell at some point or learned from him by playing on an opposing team. Pictured above is the tournament winning team, the Williamsburg Cigars. Back left to right are Wayne Garlough (MVP), Shawn Lapier, Bruce Casselman, Derek Whitteker, Barry Whitteker, Allen McNairn and Jason Smith (top pitcher). Front left to right are Bruce Mullin, Mitch Hutt, Lyle Schell, Jamie Smith and Mike Veltkamp. Rob Casselman was absent from photo.

IROQUOIS LEGION NEWSLETTER

Royal Canadian Legion
Branch #370

IROQUOIS – The cribbage league cancelled play on Saturday as many of the players participated in the Legion Golf Tournament. However, play will resume next Saturday. The Golf Tournament had a decent number of players, and we also had good weather for the event.

At euchre there were seven tables. Picking up the first prize was Elsie Bron, while Andy Acelvari claimed the second prize. Jean Dunbar had low score of the evening and only two skunks were found loitering around the Branch. They were picked up by Hazel Ace and Sheila Scarbo.

Duplicate bridge has been taking a short break, but will be back in action in the near future.

The Pot of Gold winner was René Perrin who was not signed in. The Pot must be at an all time high.

This coming Friday, the meal will be chicken pot pie. The dessert will be apple crisp with ice cream. All are welcome.

The Mixed Dart League has had its two nights of registration. The first night of actual play will be this coming Friday, September 22.

The Provincial Services Officer, Comrade John Morrison, will be making his Itinerary visit to our Branch during the week of October 16. Should any veterans require an appointment to see him, please contact Willis Douglas at 652-4087.

Legion dues are now due. Our early bird campaign really started on September 1, and if you pay now, you have a good chance of getting a refund, if your name is called, when we have each of two draws. We have not increased our membership dues even though the per capita tax has been increased.

This Saturday past, we had the pleasure of having some members of Morrisburg Legion Branch 48 visiting us. They were having a Pub Crawl and we were on their list of Branches to stop at. It was nice to have a little social time with them.

The Revivals will be at our Branch on Saturday, September 30, back by popular demand. They play 50's and 60's music, and country music. The evening runs from eight p.m. until twelve midnight. A light lunch will be available. The cost of a ticket is $7.00. All of you who have enjoyed this group, mark this date on your calendar.

This week is Legion Week. This is the 80th Anniversary of the Legion's existence in this great nation.

Since we became a force for veterans' care and for Remembrance in 1926, we have take on other roles. These have made our communities, our province, and our nation better places in which to live. It has been said that our future lies in the building of the nation, and on our membership. One cannot be done without the other. Please take these issues to heart as we mark this special Week. Everyone is always welcome to visit our Branch. We will be most happy to see you.

NEWSLETTER

ROYAL CANADIAN LEGION
Seaway Branch #48
10 Legion Street, Morrisburg, ON

From the Executive Meeting of September 14th, I quote:

To the members and Executive of the Seaway Branch #48 RCL, it is with regret that I must resign as President.

I have been a member of the Legion for over 30 years and during that time, I've had the distinct honour of being a member of the Executive and the last 28 months serving as your President.

You, as members have put your faith in me over the past 28 months of which I appreciate. Unfortunately, I feel that I can no longer devote the time which is required to fulfill my obligation as President due to my commitments both business and personal.

The Legion is an organization which requires countless volunteer hours and a handful of you out of over 300 members have exceeded that on a daily basis and I would like to thank you and the Ladies Auxiliary members for your said time and devotion.

Proud to have served,

Sincerely Victor Brooks.

We will miss you Victor and we thank you for your time served. Gord McGregor will continue the year as President.

Steak dinner Sept. 22 is during Legion Week, therefore the prices will be dropped to $10 for Vets, Legion members and seniors. Entertainment will be provided by Seaway Valley Country Singers, and don't forget Sgt. Wilson's Army Band Saturday night, tickets are going fast.

One of the five teams that played in L.A. Zone Euchre tournament last Saturday will go on to district in Gananoque, October 28th. The team consists of Audrey, Marie, Elsie and Janice.

Thank you to Shirley Smirle for organizing the pub crawl. 28 patrons/victims had a great time. The Legions on the trip were very hospitable.

Darts start October 2 men's and October 3 mixed. Please come early to find out what team you are on.

The Sunday cards will be cancelled in November due to lack of participation. Sunday's Euchre was won by Charlie Eamon, second Madge Warner and third Jennifer Warner.

Meat draw was won by Al Casselman.

General Meeting September 27.

Remember there will be live entertainment every Friday night.

Until next time – Comrade Janice

Meal time at Sanctuary

MORRISBURG–Bon voyage! It's time once again for flocks of Canada Geese to stop and devour a meal of cob corn on their southbound journey.

The Upper Canada Migratory Bird Sanctuary has now started its annual goose-feeding program, which will be carried out daily at 2:30 p.m. until October 29.

The feeding area is located in front of the lookout tower, between the rail fence and the banding ponds, at the Sanctuary. Everyone is welcome and those people interested in getting a closer look at wildlife will particularly enjoy this activity.

The feeding program is a great activity to be included on a camping trip at the Sanctuary's campsite which is open until October 29.

The Sanctuary's nature trails are open year round and abound with natural wonders and wildlife. Crisp fall days are especially pleasant for an outdoors family experience at the Sanctuary, however pets are not permitted on trails or in feeding areas.

The Visitor Centre is also open daily 8:30 a.m.-4:30 p.m. with exhibits, friendly staff, washroom facilities and an assortment of snacks, drinks and nature-related books and gift items available for sale.

The Visitor Centre, nature trails and feeding program are free to visitors. Donations are accepted and encouraged and help to support programming and trail maintenance.

Recognizing a Banner Year

In recognition of their accomplishments in the 2005/2006 season, the Midget C girls were presented a Championship Banner by the South Dundas Girls Hockey Association. The Midget girls are the first team to bring home a championship for the association which has been in existence for only a couple of seasons. The banner now hangs in the Morrisburg arena. The Midget C girls claimed the first ODWHA championship with an undefeated record in round-robin playoff action. The banner recognizes their accomplishment and lists each of the players and all members of the coaching staff. Pictured above, a few members of the team accept the banner from Lyn Thurler who makes the presentation on behalf of the association. In front are Alex Walsh, Brittany Lortie and Ali Tait. Standing l-r, are Thurler, and members of the coaching staff, Dave Tait, Barry Keicks, Barb Tait and Brenda Primeau. Photo contributed

Annual Terry Fox Run Takes Off from the Morrisburg Legion

Morrisburg Terry Fox run site surpasses $50,000 milestone

MORRISBURG – Nearly 90 people took part in the Annual Terry Fox Run, which left from outside the Morrisburg Legion Sunday morning.

The participants raised $6,675 for the Terry Fox Foundation.

This year was a special year for the local run because thanks to the fundraising of the participants the local site has now surpassed the $50,000 fundraising milestone.

This is the 26th anniversary of the Marathon of Hope, and the Morrisburg site has been part of the national fundraiser for the last 13 years.

Participants in this year's event were invited to run, walk, rollerblade or bike, and this year the Morrisburg Scouts, Cubs and Beavers joined in the event for the first time ever.

Organizer Scott Robinson was very pleased with this year's event, which ran very smoothly.

Robinson thanked the Morrisburg Legion, the 89 participants and the 11 volunteers who all played a part in another successful Terry Fox event.

Ready to Go
At 2.5 years of age, Mackenzie Dumoulin, pictured right, participated in her first Terry Fox Run. Her brothers are in Cubs and Beavers and also participated in the run. Mackenzie was along for the ride.

IN MEMORIAM

HESS–In memory of our dear mother, Annabel, who passed away September 13, 2001.
We often think of our dear mom when we are all alone,
For memory is the only thing that keeps us going on.
We saw that you were getting tired and it was time to go,
In tears we saw you slip away and we could do no more.
No one knows how much we miss her only God knows that,
So for those who have a mother take good care of her,
For you will never know how much you miss her until she isn't there.
–Always loved and remembered, Edna, Audrey and Scott 38p

MacLENNAN–In loving memory of Cameron, September 18, 1994.
Loving and kind in all his ways,
Upright and just to the end of his days,
Sincere and kind in heart and mind,
What a beautiful memory he left behind.
–Missed by Cam Jr., Steve, Rick and families 38p

EMMERSON–In loving memory of my mother, Jennie M. Emmerson, who passed away September 24, 2004.
Phone Number Unknown
I reach for the phone and start to dial,
While your memory floods me all the while,
A panic comes over me and I feel like crying,
Some where inside of me a part of me is dying.
It is then that I realize that it's really true,
You're gone dear mother and I can't talk to you.
So deep in my thoughts your voice sounds so clear,
I think if I phone you it's your voice that I'll hear.
It seems all a dream and if I could only wake up,
We would talk on the phone we would argue and make up.
I lost my best friend your love meant so much,
If only there were phones in heaven dear mother,
We would keep in touch.
Now I must learn when I reach for the phone,
That you now live in heaven, phone number unknown.
God will help me to ease my pain, till you and I meet again.
–Sadly missed by daughter, Beverley 38p

Marsden & McLaughlin Funeral Home – Dave you went above and beyond your duty. From the bottom of our hearts, thanks to all the Firemen from Williamsburg, Morrisburg, Iroquois and Ingleside Fire Departments that attended the wake and funeral. This Week at MGC

MORRISBURG–This week we begin our column with another round of congratulations, this time to club member Gary Breyer who dropped a hole-in-one into the cup on the 17th hole last Wednesday, September 13. Gary was playing with Ray Baker, Doug Brewster and John Vincent when he scored the ace on the par three 115-yard, 17th hole using a nine iron. "My shot landed short and ran onto the green," says Gary. "I knew it was going to be close. It had just enough speed that it rolled up to the bottom of the cup and fell in." It was Gary's second hole-in-one, but his first at his home club. Many years ago, he estimates more than 10, he registered a hole-in-one while playing the Prescott golf course. Making last Wednesday's ace even sweeter was Gary's final score 73. He added a pair of birdies to the ace for the three-over-par score, which, he says, "I'll never see again."

The men's and ladies' scheduled play has now wrapped up, the men finishing last Thursday with their night sponsored by Shorewood Packaging. They played their final men's day wrap-up event on Saturday, September 16. Congratulations to Lance LePage who led the field with a one-over-par 71, and to Sean Boulerice who won the golf cart in the shoot out.

Coming up this weekend is the annual Tiger Open tournament on Saturday, September 23 and the course is closed next Saturday for the Fall Finale Mixed Two-Ball tournament which has a 10 a.m. shotgun start. The registration deadline for the fall finale tournament is this Sunday, September 24. The cost is $40 per couple.

One major item left on the club calendar is the Fall Meeting scheduled for Sunday, October 22. It is at this meeting we hold the election for the executive positions for the following year. If anyone is interested in becoming more involved in your club, you can contact past-president Bob Barclay who is handling the nominations.

A nephew home from Afghanistan

MORRISBURG – Earlier this month Sandra Bailey and her family welcomed the visit of a special nephew, Lieutenant Colonel Ian Hope.

Hope, who is the grandson of the late Beatrice Casselman, son of the late William and the late Barbara Hope (nee Casselman) and nephew of Linda Smithson and Sandra Bailey, just recently returned home to Canada from seven months of service in Afghanistan.

"I was very relieved when he got home," says Bailey. "It was very emotional seeing him."

As Commander of the First Battalion of the Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry, it was Hope who, from Afghanistan, often delivered news briefings which appeared on television newscasts here in Canada.

Bailey says she found it comforting to see him on the news, while he was in Afghanistan.

Hope is from Annapolis Royal, Nova Scotia, but is now moving to Florida where he will serve as Canadian liaison officer to U.S. Central Command headquarters in Tampa.

Hope first served in the ranks of the West Nova Scotia Regiment and for a year with the British Army. He was commissioned in the West Nova Scotia Regiment in 1981 and transferred to Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in 1985.

He took command of the First Battalion of Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry on September 29, 2004.

Hope been on operations in Europe, the Balkans, Africa and now Afghanistan.

He has a Bachelor of History (Honours) degree from Acadia, a Masters of Military Arts and Science from the United States Army Command and General Staff College and is working on his PhD in History with Queen's University.
