Youth charged after chase, crash

BERWICK—A 16-year-old RR 2 Crysler youth is facing charges after a wild high speed chase and accident Friday night. Long Sault OPP Const. Bernie Gadbois said an officer clocked a 1986 Chevrolet Caprice at 140 kilometres per hour on hwy. 43 near Monkland around 9:30 p.m. When the officer turned on his cruiser lights, the Caprice accelerated, reaching speeds of 165 kilometres per hour in an 80 zone. The vehicle turned north onto the Tolmies Corners Road and then turned up different township roads. The officer decided for safety reasons to discontinue the pursuit. But, 15 minutes later, Gadbois said, police responded to a single-vehicle accident in Berwick. The same driver had failed to negotiate a turn and struck a Bell telephone pole and came to rest against a Bell equipment box. The vehicle was demolished. The youth, who cannot be named, was taken to Hotel Dieu Hospital in Cornwall where he was treated for minor injuries and released. He will appear in youth court Dec. 15 to face charges of dangerous driving and failing to stop for police.

Cook to become warden Dec. 14

CHESTERVILLE—Village residents who want to see Reeve Jim Cook inaugurated as warden of the United Counties of SD&G on Dec. 14 will have to get to Cornwall on their own. The village was going to rent a bus to take village residents to the ceremonies, but not enough interest was shown. Members of the public are invited to the ceremonies, which start at 10 a.m. and end at 11. The inauguration will take place at the United Counties building, 20 Pitt Street, across from Cornwall Square.

Christmas toy drive off to a slow start

CHESTERVILLE — The village's annual Christmas toy drive is off to a slow start this year, says organizer Marilyn Johnson. Considerably fewer toys than usual have been collected in the donation bins set up in local banks, and the deadline for donations will be extended one week to Dec. 18. Johnson urges anyone with toys to give to donate them as soon as possible, since many must be cleaned and prepared before Christmas. All toys will go to area children whose families receive Christmas baskets from the Chesterville Rotary Club.

Gun amnesty program extended

WINCHESTER—People who missed out on the OPP's gun amnesty program last month will have another chance to register or turn in unwanted weapons or ammunition for disposal. The program has been extended until Dec. 15. Through the program, any weapon, unless it is found to be stolen or used in a crime, can be turned in without fear of charges. Police will issue receipts for weapons turned in during gun amnnesty, and firearm acquisition certificate applications to those who wish to register weapons. To date, 13 weapons, 132 rounds of ammunition and a box of blasting caps have been turned in to Winchester OPP for destruction or registration.

Missing bike? Check OPP

WINCHESTER—Winchester OPP have about nine bicycles at the detachment that were found over the summer. Sgt. Jim Irvine said anyone who is missing a bike can check with the detachment, and if you can identify your bike, it will be returned.

House fire claims life of township resident

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

WINCHESTER TWP. — An early morning house fire Friday claimed the life of an 87-year-old Winchester Township man.

Winchester OPP said the body of William Tesselaar was found in the ruins after the blaze, about one kilometre east of County Road 7 on Connaught Road. Tesselaar was the only person in the building at the time of the fire.

Chesterville fire chief Ross Casselman said the house was completely engulfed by fire when his crew arrived on the scene at about 2:05 a.m., and there was not much they could do.

"We poured water onto it, but it was so hot the water just evaporated," he said.

Winchester Township firefighters also responded to the fire.

An autopsy was performed in Cornwall Friday, and OPP say the results will not be known for about a week. They say arson is not suspected.

Nothing remained of the two-storey farm house but the foundation and its burned contents.

Tesselaar, a native of the Netherlands, was a retired farmer. He leaves seven children, 14 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren. Tesselaar's wife died in 1981.

Casselman said it has been at least seven years since the last fire fatality in the area.

One man was killed when this two-storey home burned early Friday morning. Police say arson is not suspected.

Township should have handled fire: Cousineau

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

MOREWOOD—The Chesterville Fire Department should have handed Friday's fire call to the Winchester Fire Department, fire chief Claude Cousineau said.

Chesterville was originally called to the 2 a.m. fire, and responded to it despite the fact that it was in Winchester Township's coverage area.

The Chesterville Fire Department notified the Winchester Township Fire Department, which served a secondary role, hauling water to the scene.

William Tesselaar, 87, was killed in the Connaught Road fire.

Cousineau said the township will have to pay Chesterville firefighters their hourly fee plus money for equipment for attending the fire.

Winchester Township pays a $1,500 annual stand-by fee to the Chesterville Fire Department.

Cousineau said only one fire department would normally respond to a fire like Friday's.

Chesterville fire chief Ross Casselman said fire departments do have a specific area of coverage, but when calls come in their first priority is responding.

"We don't argue and then go, we go. There could be somebody's life at stake," Casselman said.

Cousineau said he could have taken over the fire, but decided not to because Chesterville was set up to battle the blaze.

Cousineau also noted that the fire marshal had to be called in from Peterborough and did not arrive on the scene until 9:30 a.m., because the local fire marshal, based in Ingleside, was unavailable.

Report points finger at politicians

United Counties, Cornwall officials urged to take leading role in curing area's social ills

Elizabeth Moreau
Record Staff

CORNWALL — United Counties and Cornwall municipal politicians have shown a serious lack of leadership in addressing the problems of poverty plaguing the area, says a report released this week.

"Unfortunately there is a tendency on the part of local officials to feel that their job ends when they have criticized the federal and provincial governments," Etienne St-Aubin, executive director of the SD&G Legal Clinic, told a news conference Monday.

The report, presented to Cornwall Mayor Ron Martelle, United Counties Warden John Moss, and the chairmen of the public and Catholic school boards, makes 50 recommendations on how churches, local governments, schools and social agencies can "make this a truly caring community," St-Aubin said.

SD&G Legal Clinic director Etienne St-Aubin (right) and Raymond Houde

And the first step, he said, is to change prevailing attitudes about the poor.

"There is a harshness of tone...that permeates the whole community," he said. "We deal first of all with questions of attitude, attitudes that help to shape what will be the political agenda."

The recommendations, St-Aubin said, will not be costly to implement but will require municipal politicians to take a leadership role. Most of the recommendations involve "better co-ordination of existing services and treating people with more sensitivity than exists at the moment," St-Aubin said.

Counties and city officials should "take a more active role in promoting a more positive attitude towards the majority of the population of the area who must live on social assistance or who struggle on minimum wage," the report says.

Unemployment in the Cornwall area is estimated at 20 per cent. More than 2,600 jobs have been lost since 1990 and 37 per cent of the population is receiving some kind of social assistance.

The report is the result of a two-day conference, spearheaded by the legal clinic, held in May to discuss the problems faced by the poor in SD&G. Doctors, teachers, welfare recipients and the disabled were among the more than 100 participants.

St-Aubin suggested that because the working poor and social assistance recipients are usually less inclined to vote, their concerns are not high on the political agenda.

"Response on social issues seems to be limited to griping (when) welfare costs are dealt with at budget time," he said.

Short of local governments asking Ottawa and the province for more money, St-Aubin said, little has been done to attack the problems of poverty.

The report suggests establishing a shared transportation service among social agencies located in Cornwall for people who live in the rural areas of the counties.

And it advocates changes to the school system, such a uniform dress code, to help take some of the financial burden off parents.

Municipal politicians are encouraged to establish a strategic planning council to better co-ordinate the many existing social services, to eliminate both gaps and duplication of services.

Raymond Houde, director of the Family Counselling Centre in Cornwall, said even service providers have difficulty keeping track of what each of the more than 45 social service organizations in SD&G is doing.

"There is definitely no co-ordination of services, yet we're all providing services to the same clientele," he said. "It's very confusing for us, so it's very confusing for the clients."

St-Aubin said the report will be followed up by direct contact with municipal officials. And he added there is no reason many of the recommendations can't be implemented immediately.

"If the city doesn't implement some of these recommendations the suffering will continue and the city will continue to wither economically," St-Aubin said.

Changing the face of Chesterville

Elizabeth Moreau
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — For the next 18 months, the future of Chesterville will be on the minds and lips of many village residents.

From service groups to businessmen to private citizens, dozens of residents will get involved in the process that will drastically change the face of the village.

Their work will be to come up with a so-called beautification plan, long talked about by council members and merchants, that will lay the foundation for improving both the look and the economic viability of the village.

Beautification plan will detail long-term objectives for improving the village, both physically and economically

Last week council met with Merchants Association president Mike Dean and representatives of McNeely Tunnock Ltd., the Orleans consultants who will prepare both the beautification plan and the official plan, which will be updated at the same time. The official plan, last updated in 1985, establishes the village's land-use guidelines for future growth and development.

Reeve Jim Cook said that at this early stage, all ideas and suggestions about what direction the village should take will be considered.

"At this juncture we want to be dealing with a wish list, and no idea is a bad idea," he said. "We don't think council or the Merchants Assocation has a corner on good ideas."

Consultation will begin in early 1993, as soon as a public advisory committee is formed. Representatives of village service groups, schools, the South Nation River Conservation Authority and SD&G Economic Development Office will be invited to a merchants' meeting in February to get the committee started.

Nestle malfunction releases cocoa powder

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE—Residents of the north end of Chesterville awoke Saturday to complimentary cocoa from Nestle.

A malfunction early Saturday morning at the Nestle plant showered the north end of town with a fine cocoa dust.

Some residents reported a strong chocolate smell in the air and a brown substance on their cars.

Nestle Chesterville plant manager Jim Cummings said the cocoa discharge was the result of a malfunction of a drying tower used to make its Nestle Quik chocolate.

Cummings said the plant was shut down and the Ministry of the Environment was contacted as soon as the malfunction was noticed. He said the cocoa is harmless, as it is water soluble, and poses no threat to humans or the environment.

He said Nestle has received about five complaints, and is dealing with them on an individual basis. Those who have incurred cost due to the discharge will be compensated, he said.

He said there have been similar incidents in the past, but this time warning systems used to detect malfunctions did not respond immediately.

"I wish it would never happen, but equipment does fail," he said.

Car-O-Line Autos owner Colin Abbott said he will have to wash all of the cars that were on his Queen Street East lot over the weekend, which is troublesome in sub-zero weather.

He estimated it will cost him two days' salary for two men plus heating costs to wash the cars.

"It can damage our business because people come in and expect clean cars, not cars that look like they haven't been washed in six months," Abbott said.

Abbott said one woman angrily blamed a nearby body shop, thinking the substance was the result of careless car painting on their part.

Upgrading village will be long-term project

Over the next year and a half, the committee will hold public meetings and workshops to gather ideas about economic development, physical improvements to the village and other aspects of the beautification plan.

One of the first goals of the consultation process will be to adopt a theme around which to build the beautification plan. Dean said one possibility is to draw on the village's Dutch heritage, and that the Dutch Embassy in Ottawa has already offered to provide grant money should Chesterville decide to take that route.

"We want to end up with Chesterville being a unique community, different from any other community in the area," he said.

Other eastern Ontario communities have capitalized on their uniqueness, Dean said. Prescott promotes its United Empire Loyalist heritage, Athens is known for its outdoor murals, and Upper Canada Village draws visitors to Morrisburg.

There are already signs that building the village around a theme is a popular idea. Dean said he and other merchants are waiting for a theme to be developed before expanding. And a group of Industrial Drive businesses will wait for the theme before designing a collective sign pointing to their offices and stores.

Making Chesterville recognizable and attractive could help create much-needed and stable tourism jobs and attract retail businesses, Dean said.

"Today when our students grow up they have to go to the city to find jobs," he said. "I would like to see the day where our youth can grow up in the village and find jobs in Chesterville."

Although the beautification plan should be complete sometime in 1994, the actual implementation of the recommendations and suggestions will be a long-term process, which could take up to 15 years.

Cousineau questions timing of counties employee's 20% raise

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

CORNWALL—Winchester Township Reeve Claude Cousineau is objecting to what he calls an ''unreasonable'' pay increase granted to a United Counties employee last month.

Counties council last month narrowly approved a 20-per-cent raise for SD&G Waste Management Master Plan (WMMP) co-ordinator Anne MacGillivray.

MacGillivray was hired a year ago under a two-year contract to head the study, designed to identify waste management alternatives for SD&G. Her salary was scheduled to be reviewed after the first year.

Cousineau said he is satisfied with McGillivray's performance as co-ordinator of the WMMP, describing her as a ''very competent and dedicated individual,'' but questions the timing of a hefty raise.

Both Cousineau and counties clerk Ray Lapointe declined to divulge MacGillivray's salary, but it was quoted in the Glengarry News as being $30,000 after the increase.

Cousineau said there are likely many counties employees who are worth more than the counties are able to pay them.

WMMP steering committee chairman John McAllister sent a letter to Cousineau chastizing him for airing his views, and disclosing MacGillivray's salary, in an interview with the Cornwall Standard-Freeholder.

''The steering committee objected to the fact that Mr. Cousineau chose to divulge her actual salary in the press. We didn't think it fair to the employees,'' McAllister said in an interview.

He defended MacGillivray's raise, noting that she is not a full-time employee and is still not paid as much as her counterparts in other parts of the province.

''It was eminently obvious that she deserved more than she was getting based on the type of work she was doing,'' McAllister said.

''This is a big job, we're talking about a $500,000 study. It requires high communication skills and we felt it was only fair that Anne's skills and abilities be recognized as such. Anne is doing some tremendous work on our behalf.''

McAllister added that MacGillivray feels ''somewhat violated'' by the matter.

Cousineau said he objects to the way the pay increase was passed. He said it was first discussed behind closed doors as a personnel matter, and was passed during the second sitting the next day as part of the executive report, which is not itemized for the public and media before passed.

''It seems to be something they wanted to tuck under the rug. The public has a right to know what decisions their elected officials make,'' Cousineau said.

And Cousineau is replying to McAllister's letter, affirming his objection to the raise. He said he will note that many businesses are having a tough time with the current recession, and taxpayers have to foot the bill for decisions made by Counties council.

He said he will respond to McAllister that ''many people's wages are capped and even reduced. These are hard economic times. A 20-per-cent raise is not reasonable in these tough times.''

MacGillivray is on holiday and could not be reached for comment.

Santa visits Avonmore

Adults and children alike lined the streets of Avonmore Sunday and enjoyed about 20 floats in the hamlet's first ever Christmas parade. A crafts fair, community buffet and launch of Avonmore's 150th birthday book were also held Sunday.

Why Lease A Car, Van Or Truck?

Leasing can be very complicated or very simple depending on which side of the fence you sit on.

What are the main areas where people get caught in leasing. One of the main items that discourages a lot of people from leasing is the residual value (amount paid at the end of a lease to buy it out) i.e. 55% means at the end of a lease you have to pay 55% of the initial value of the vehicle. For example, a $10,000. car would have a residual value of $5,500. So after making your payments of x number of years you still have to pay $5,500. plus taxes.

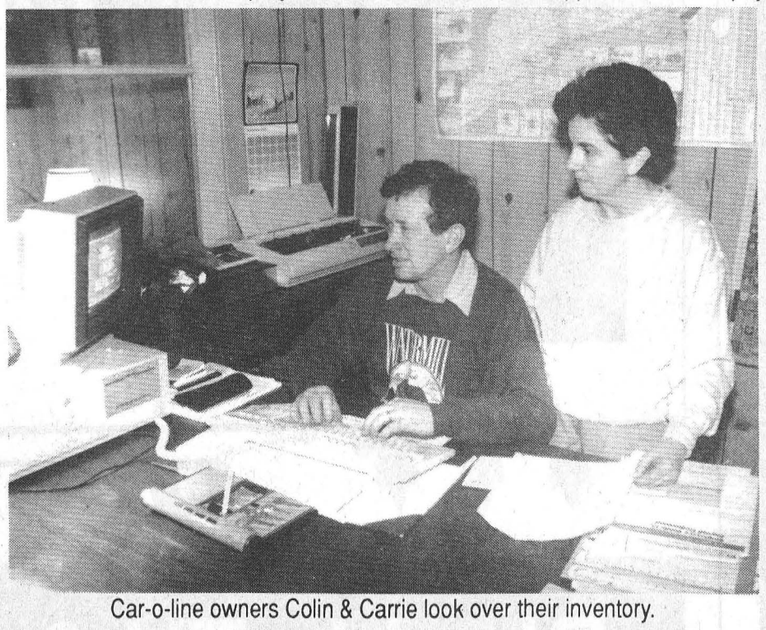
What is your percentage for buy out? We at Car-o-line Autos only use a 10% buy out at the end of our leases.

Do you lease in 6 month periods like the banks? No, we can tailor the term or payment to suit each individual's requirements. For example, we take payments for any period from one month to 36 months in one month increments. Or we can tailor the payment dollar by dollar to suit a person's needs.

Are there any limitations like the banks or loan companies.? NO, unless you are an habitual bad debtor we will lease you a vehicle.

What if I am on a pension or have a limited income, or may be a single parent, would that no stop me. NO, all we ask is can you make your payments and, if so, then there is no problem.

That may be all very good but what if I had previously declared bankruptcy? NO problem. As we said before, unless you are an habitually bad debtor we will lease you a vehicle.



Car-o-line owners Colin & Carrie look over their inventory.

Do I have to fill out any forms? YES, we want you to fill out a credit application. It is very basic and we are there to help you.

OK, then how much money do we have to put down to get a car? First of all you have to put down three payments. One is your first payment and the other two are your last two payments, and this depends upon, as I said before, how much you feel happy paying each month.

What about service and repairs? We offer leases that cover all repairs and maintenance or lease where you pay for all repairs and service.

Does that apply to the licence and insurance? NO, you are responsible for all licence and insurance costs.

Are there any penalties for early buy out? NO

As a business are there any benefits? YES, I have compiled a basic list of items as follows:

- Tax-timing benefits and savings are possible
- Preserve working capital for other business needs.
- Preserves line of credit for operating necessities.
- No need to wait for capital budgets, etc. to be arranged.
- Immediate availability permits savings or earnings to begin sooner.
- Offset inflation by paying tomorrow at today's price.
- Simplified bookkeeping and budgeting. No depreciation.

The fall and rise of the Michelle Gallery

16 months after fire, owner hopes move will spark new business

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

The Michelle Gallery is alive and well and living on Industrial Drive.

Cecil Dillabough's fledgling art gallery and framing business has come a long way since it was destroyed when Chesterville's Kearns Block was consumed by fire in September 1991.

Two months later, the gallery was back in business in a new King Street location — a location he said was too out-of-the-way to draw people into the store.

So Dillabough made a business decision. He moved the gallery, paintings and all, to a spacious, newly constructed showroom on Industrial Drive. And it's a move he hopes will pay off.

"It's going to take a while for people to get to know that I'm up here. I'm hoping it's going to be a lot better," he says. "There's a lot more traffic on this street."

More than 70 oil paintings, watercolors and sketches are on display, for sale on consignment by local artists like Anita Schoch, Jean Keyzer, Eileen Sharkey and Elsie Gallinger.

Art lessons for children and adults are also offered through the Michelle Gallery, with the help of Concordia-trained art teacher Joana Swim.

But framing and selling art supplies is just one end of his business. Some of the paintings on display are his own.

Dillabough was commissioned to make a pen-and-ink sketch of the Kearns Block by Glenna VanderVeen. VanderVeen lost her original Shear Country Hair Salon in the fire.

Dillabough, who was raised outside of Morewood and says he is "pushing 60," is making one for himself, too. And he's making them both from memory.

Despite the beauty of his artwork, Dillabough has only been putting brush to canvas for 10 years.

Dillabough worked as a department store manager on the east coast and in St. Catharines, Ont., and says he never had the time to paint. Until, he says, the recession hit in 1982.

He took a job as manager of a framing showroom in Ottawa and that's when he got interested in art full-time.

"This is where you get your books out and learn something about art, believe me."

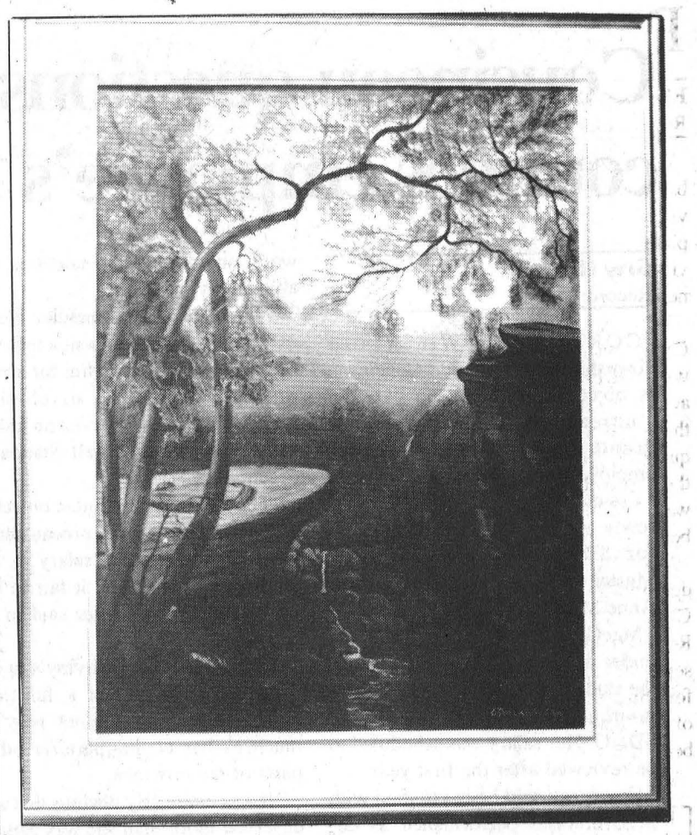
His pen-and-ink sketches are detailed and meticulously drawn. A sketch of the old Chesterville train station, he says, took him 80 hours to complete.

"I got into this pen-and-ink by accident. Now I can't leave it alone. It's driving me crazy."

Dillabough says framing is the mainstay of the Michelle Gallery. He says he sold more artwork before the recession and the advent of the GST.

"People just aren't buying artwork," he says. "But I think it's going to come through it all right. We're through the worst of the recession and I'm still surviving, so I'm not worried."

And for those who are not in the market for artwork, the Michelle Gallery is, after all, an art gallery, open for viewing.



Cecil Dillabough, left, admires some of the works by local artists in his Industrial Drive gallery. Dillabough is hoping business will be better at his new location. Top, Dillabough's interpretation of the Adirondack Mountains in New York state.

New board chairman will focus on finance

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

CORNWALL — Cornwall Township trustee Brock Abraham says the SD&G Public School Board will focus on providing quality service "despite the obvious (financial) pitfalls that are out there."

Abraham, a five-year school board veteran, was selected last week by his fellow trustees to chair the board, defeating opponent Mamie David by one vote in a secret ballot.

He replaces Finch-Chesterville trustee Cindy Martin-Hrycak.

And he says that under his direction, the board will concentrate on the financial aspects of the school system and keep away from "getting involved in the administration."

"Our mandate basically is to make sure the budget comes in. I think everybody will be concentrating in that area," he said. "It's tough in terms of what we have to do. No matter what the funding is, we still have a basic undertaking."

Abraham, a land developer, says he will look at whether a couple of the board's committees — which did not meet last year — are still viable.

He said he was honored to have been selected by his fellow trustees to chair the board.

Mamie David was elected vice-chairman of the board, and Daniel Morin was elected chairman of the board's French language section. Etienne St. Aubin will serve as vice-chairman of the French language section.

The SD&G Catholic School Board also elected its executive. Jacques Leduc will serve as chairman, while Chesterville area trustee Peter Van Moorsel will serve as vice-chairman. Alphonse LaFrance was elected chairman of the board's French language section, and Charles Adams was elected chairman of the English language section.

Plans for '93 carnival focus on family

Elizabeth Moreau
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — Christmas is barely here, but a group of Chesterville volunteers has already completed most of the planning for the village's 26th annual winter carnival next February.

The 1993 event, dubbed the Chesterville Snowflake Carnival, will see both new and resurrected activities, including the revival of the once-popular carnival king and queen — with a twist. Nominees for the carnival's royal couple, who will watch and judge many events, must be over 60 years old.

Most of the activites are being designed with families in mind. Chesterville recreation director Robin Langille said in past years separate events have been organized for children and adults. The final day of the carnival, Feb. 7, 1993, has been designated Family Day to encourage parents and children to participate together. The Chesterville Bowling Lanes will offer family bowling all afternoon, and a family skate will be held at the arena.

Langille said he also hopes to see more outdoor events next year, weather permitting.

New activities include a children's bingo, horse-drawn sleigh rides and a musical concert for seniors sponsored by the Chesterville Legion and featuring a number of local talents. The Legion will provide transportation for anyone who is unable to get to the concert on their own.

One event being revived from previous years is a pet show, sponsored by the Toronto Dominion Bank, with prizes for the biggest, smallest and most unusual pet. There are no restrictions, as long as the animal is indeed a pet. A costume contest for children, sponsored by the Chesterville Tickle Trunk, is another event that hasn't been held in several years but will be part of the 1993 carnival.

The management of the Sierra Grande Hotel also hopes to get involved in carnival festivities, possibly by hosting a karaoke night.

The committee is making changes to the carnival logo, which appears on buttons every year. And to show how that logo has evolved over 26 years, old carnival buttons will be on display and later donated to the Chesterville and District Historical Society.

More than a dozen volunteers, representing various service and church groups in the village, have been planning the carnival since September. Langille said the early start and more volunteers than usual has helped generate many new ideas.

Money raised through carnival events will be used to purchase playground equipment for Chesterville.

How to have a green Christmas

Notes from the
Dundas Environmental Resource Centre

What does the term "green Christmas" mean to you? There was a time it referred to the greenbacks associated with the year's biggest merchandising spree. Since upwards of 70 per cent of our gift-buying is done in November and December, the commercialization of Christmas can cause measurable harm to the environment.

Consider these impacts:

Many native trees are lost yearly, either for use as Christmas trees, festive wrapping paper or packaging.

Mountains of garbage end up at the curbside, much of it non-biodegradable and non-recyclable.

We consume an incredible amount of non-renewable energy during the festive season.

Times have changed, however, and so has our perception of gift-giving. Today's meaning of a green Christmas has an environmental kick — catch the spirit of loving and giving without wasting our Earth's resources. A green Christmas is fun for the family, It reflects a positive global spirit, and it can save money (an important consideration in these recession-weary times).

Here are some green tips to help you catch the spirit:

a) The Christmas tree dilemma

• If you prefer an artificial tree, keep in mind that it can't be recycled or composted. Plan to use it for a long time, and when you're finished with it, pass it on to a friend or charity for reuse.

• If you prefer a natural tree, be sure to harvest it from a Christmas tree farm or buy one already cut from a Christmas tree supplier. Avoid cutting one of our native trees. Better yet, why not grow one on your front lawn and redecorate it year after year?

• If indoor space is limited, consider decorating one of your houseplants with small lights and tiny ornaments.

• When the festivities are over and the tree is taken down, take you natural tree to a local depot for chipping (call your municipal office and ask for this service). Natural trees can also be cut up and used as a protective mulch on flowerbeds, or the needles and small branches may be composted in your backyard.

b) Decorations

• Use low energy (5-watt) bulbs for indoor/outdoor decoration lighting.

• Hold a decorating party for kids/friends and create edible or natural ornaments (use popcorn, cranberries, evergreen boughs, pinecones, fruit, spices, cookie dough, etc.).

• Buy recyclable cards and wrapping paper.

• Make your own cards and wrapping paper using stencils, fabrics, newspaper, brown paper bags, etc.

c) Gift ideas

• Buy someone a plant or unusual garden seeds.

• Buy a subscription to an environmental magazine.

• Buy or make a bird feeder.

• Purchase a set of water conservation devices for the water-extravagant person in your home.

• Buy toys that don't require batteries (or at least, buy rechargeable batteries).

• Make a garbage-free lunch kit for a little person on your list.

• Buy a friend or relative a reusable garbage can and eliminate all those plastic bags.

• Choose gifts that are not excessively packaged.

If you need more ideas or information, please call or visit our office in Morrisburg (543-4505).

Remember — include the Earth on your Christmas shopping list.

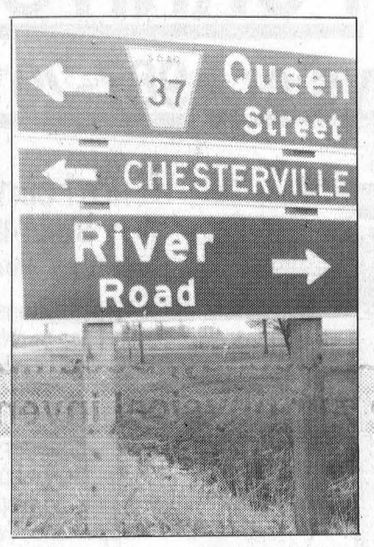
Queen Street West needs sign, resident complains

Elizabeth Moreau
Record Staff



CHESTERVILLE — Acting on the complaint of a village resident, council will likely erect a sign on Hwy. 43 pointing to Queen Street West.

The sign now posted on Hwy. 43 at the west-end entrance to the village shows Queen Street to the east of the highway and River Road to the west. But River Road, a Winchester Township road, only begins where the village boundary ends. About 15 homes are on Queen Street West, for which there is no sign.

Councillor Peter Van Kessel said a Queen Street West resident told him an ambulance could not find the resident's home because the road is not clearly marked.

Eventually, he said, the ambulance stopped at a house on Queen Street in the village to ask for directions.

At a recent meeting, council members said either the road will be renamed River Road or a sign indicating Queen Street West will be erected, depending on the residents' views.

A telephone survey of Queen Street West residents found that most wanted to keep the current name of the road and see proper signage.

Local historian says UCV ideal place for land records

Province may lend out pre-1947 archival documents

Liz Edwards
Special to the Record

MORRISBURG — Local researchers could one day have some of the area's original historic land records at their fingertips.

The Archives of Ontario may loan documents predating 1947 to a number of archives and libraries in the province to make them more accessible to the public.

Upper Canada Village would be a logical spot for Dundas County's land records, according to Clarence Cross, a member of the Chesterville and District Historical Society.

"If they can manage it, it would be an ideal place," says Cross, who uses the documents to research local 19th-century history.

"Little places like our historical society would be a poor place for them, it's almost never open and there's not much room there."

Jack Schecter, librarian and archivist at Upper Canada Village, says he has contacted the Archives to ask about the records but is not sure if the Village will store them.

"We don't know yet. We are interested in getting them...but it would be up to (the Archives) to decide what libraries are going to get these records, " says Schecter.

The Archives is now developing criteria which institutions interested in the records must meet. Adequate space is only one of the considerations, according to Richard Ramsey, a portfolio manager with the Archives.

The criteria will include such conditions as the correct climatic control for paper storage and conditions of public access.

"We want to ensure that whatever facility accepted the land records would perhaps be capable of dealing with us in other areas as well," says Ramsey.

Microfilmed copies of this area's documents are available in the land registry office in Morrisburg. However, original pre-confederation records were removed by the Archives from land registry offices in the province to properly conserve the aging documents and relieve the offices from the storage burden.

The documents were then microfilmed and are now stored in various facilities and the Archives will also eventually take custody of post-confederation land records up to 1947. Today, records of land deals are immediately stored on microfilm.

The Archives is looking for facilities to take all local records up to 1947, says Ramsey. Small counties like Dundas won't require as much space as urban centres.

The county's pre-confederation instruments and deeds — registration papers for land sales, only occupy eight cubic feet of storage. However this storage does not include documents such as copybooks which are currently stored at Queen's University in Kingston.

The Archives had once considered destroying the documents after they were microfilmed but didn't because of public outcry over their preservation.

"We'll simply store them ourselves if they're not wanted (by local institutions). At this point, we have concluded that destruction is not really an option," says Ramsey.

Some local historians say it would be worth having the originals in the area because microfilm can be hard to read at times.

"It's useable but there's often details that make me wish I could see the originals," says Cross.

However, Ramsey says the quality of the microfilmed copies depend on the original and if originals are in poor shape, they might not be available to the public.

While Ramsey says most people prefer using microfilm, Cross, who reads several hundred documents a day, finds the original easier to manage.

"The (originals) are all in numerical order and you can go in and pick out the one you want by number," he says. "In microfilm, it might be in the middle or the end and it takes a long time to find the thing.

"For someone doing a limited amount of research, that's not a big problem. For me...it's a big difference."

Dairy producers await GATT deal

Elizabeth Moreau
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — With widespread rumors that a new GATT deal could be signed by the end of this month, dairy producers are holding out hope that Canadian negotiators won't waiver on their position of achieving a balanced trade agreement.

Dundas Milk Committee secretary Gord Johnson said although there has been little news since negotiations on the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade resumed, there is nothing to indicate that Canada's position has weakened.

Talks on the deal, which have been ongoing since 1986, resumed last month after the United States and European Community reached an agreement on farm subsidies.

Dairy producers like Johnson and farmers in other supply-managed sectors of agriculture across Ontario are contacting media and federal and provincial politicians in an effort to build public support.

"We're taking them at their word," Johnson said of the negotiators. "And we want to make the public aware of what's happening."

The producers want a new GATT deal to strengthen the section that guarantees their system of supply management. Without it, Canadian egg, poultry, and dairy producers would have to compete with lower-priced imports.

The Dunkel report, currently under negotiation, proposes replacing import controls like supply management with tariffs that would be reduced over time. Canadian producers argue that tariffication would create an unstable agriculture industry.

"It would have dire consequences for the agriculture and food processing industries," said Johnson.

The uncertainty surrounding the GATT negotiations has left many producers weary, Johnson said.

"You don't know where you're going or whether you're going to be financially viable tomorrow. You can only take so much. It wears you down."

EDITORIAL & OPINION

Editorial

A call for action and change

A report released this week by the SD&G Legal Clinic and others who participated in a May conference on poverty in SD&G offers some creative solutions to what has become an overwhelming problem in Cornwall and the surrounding area. Attempting to address the issues head-on without spending huge amounts of money, the report calls on political leaders to play a major role in effecting social change.

The first of the report's 50 recommendations calls on local media to adopt "a kinder and more positive outlook." The second urges United Counties and Cornwall officials to promote a positive attitude toward the poor. This link between the media and government recognizes how the two feed off each other.

At the same time, public opinion both dictates and is fueled by what politicians are doing and saying. If public opinion says the poor are shiftless, lazy, and abuse the system, then more often than not that attitude will be reflected in the leaders elected to represent that public.

If constituents are more concerned about getting roads paved and keeping taxes in check, then those will be the items placed high on the political agenda.

There are a number of agencies and small, not-for-profit groups in SD&G working to bring about social change. Unfortunately, as pointed out in the legal clinic's report, they lack the leadership to help them work together more effectively.

Elected officials are the first ones to point out that there is only one taxpayer for the federal, provincial and municipal governments. But these same people consistently call on higher levels of government for more funding to solve the area's problems. When the money is not forthcoming, there is criticism and there is little action.

Municipal leaders must not give up on trying to improve and influence federal and provincial government policy. But that must not come at the expense of their own communities.

The many plant closures and radical shift in the local economy has created a new social reality. More and more people are finding themselves relying on government and community assistance. The poor are no longer a small segment of the population that can be easily ignored.

It is no small task to set about changing public opinion. But elected officials have a duty to begin working toward that change.

Some assembly required

by Robin Morris
Consumer Products Editor

I had a visitor Friday night. A visit from the Spirit of Christmas Yet to Come (yet to come in about 2 1/2 weeks, to be exact). A chilly foreshadowing of what fathers of young boys can expect when the clock strikes 12 on Christmas Eve and the Spirits of Christmas Past, Present and Future come visiting to watch and laugh as we struggle with toys bearing the terrifying legend "Some Assembly Required" .

It's not yet Christmas, but our eldest, Tristan, is a December child and his most ardent wish for his birthday Saturday was a racing car set, which he duly circled in the Sears Wish Book on or about August 1.

No problemo.

Fond remembrances danced in my head of a similar race car set delivered by a certain S. Claus to 442 Henry Street West during the night of Dec. 24-25, 1961, to be found completely assembled under the tree by one R.R. Morris on the morning in question.

The only difference was that that set was assembled either by S. Claus or J.A. Morris, both of whom own serious tools. The kind that can take your hand off if one is not vigilant. Not the kind owned by the do-it- yourself-challenged, all of which can fit in a nail file case and which consist, almost exclusively, of a nail file and clippers.

Fortunately many of us who are tool-challenged are married to women who love to, as John Prine's grandfather was so fond of doing, hammer nails in planks. Our toolbox belongs to Kieron. She bought it. Stocked it. Knows where it's kept and understands what all those little multi-colored- handled things are used for.

Unfortunately, she had to answer the call of the 12-hour shift Friday night and left the Tiny Tim of Toolworld to assemble the grand deluxe AMX 45-foot track, complete with low bridge supports, high bridge supports, hairpin turn, two switchover lanes, power supply and a dizzying array of slotted pieces of track, all of differing lengths and arcs.

And of course, Irwin Toys, which proudly announces that it distributes the AMX race car set in Canada, included no instructions, other than a sheet of diagrams for track configurations, all of which bore a suspicious resemblance to the Montreal's Spaghetti Junction, where Metropolitan Boulevard and Decarie Circle intersect in such a wildly haphazard fashion. Which led me to the inevitable conclusion either that Irwin Toys is responsible for Montreal's traffic layout or that the Quebec Department of Highways is responsible for Irwin Toys. Either way it's a lose-lose situation.

It took roughly an hour to sort out the pieces of track. It goes without saying that they aren't numbered. Oh no. Far too simple. The urban planners at Irwin Toys give you a sheet telling you that section B is a straight section 15 inches long, C is 12 inches, D is six and E,F,G and H are arcs varying in length and degree. And that's it.

So I dutifully set out to construct the least difficult looking of the layouts thoughtfully diagrammed by what turns out to be a sociopath employed by the toy giant. It looked simple enough: a rhomboid, two trapezoids joined by a chicane and a switchback and an upward spiral, climbing, dipping, banking and rising on various levels and all supported by the absolutely essential high and low bridge supports. Guard rails were supplied to be attached to all curves.

The project was like Highway 416: several false starts and then a general meandering all over the livingroom carpet. About the only thing that Irwin Toys does tell you is that the set is not to be assembled on a carpet: it needs a dust-free, flatter surface than a carpet can provide. Now where in blazes does one find a non-carpeted space capable of accommodating 14 METRES of track in today's homes? So I put it together on the carpet.

By this time it's inching up on 3am and fingers that have the normal dexterity of wood had long since turned to lead. (And I had also suffered a major blister from using a screwdriver, but that's another story.)

And we're getting closer. We're working up to our last curve and from where I stood, after shoving the coffee table up against the wall, I could see off in the distance the straight stretch where I had started. All I needed were three sections of F curves to connect to my B section of straight track and I'd have the 416 linking up with the Queensway eight years before Comrade Bob and the Ontario government could manage a similar feat! And all done on my livingroom floor!

And guess what! The Third World technodolts who had assembled the set had left out the three sections of F curves! It wasn't me, honest. I counted every section on my diagram several times over and then double checked it against the track I had been sold. No matter how many times I counted, I was a Triple-F short of a full load.

I'd never reach the Queensway. I had to go back and remove the third trapezium and the upward spiral, dynamiting and paving Manotick in the process before shooting straight as a die through greater metropolitan North Gower to effect my link-up.

Three-thirty A.M.

The first car is placed on the track. I read the legend on its tiny little box and discover it has more foreign parts than a Honda and more Third World workmanship than a suit of Woolco underwear.

So I went to bed.

THE FARMER'S WIFE

By Wyn Thompson

Ever since the choir of angels sang "glad tidings" in Bethlehem and announced a baby's birth, Christmas music has continued to be one of the most wonderful holiday traditions.

There is something special about Christmas music. I have often wondered why it has such a powerful effect on me. It has a mood-evoking quality that awakens the spirit of Christmas in me like nothing else can.

Every year I am always amazed at how soon the Christmas season arrives. After a long "Indian summer," while the leaves are still falling from the trees, Thanksgiving comes.

Then, suddenly, it's time to get ready for Christmas! Just when I am still trying to figure out one more way to serve Thanksgiving turkey leftovers — all of a sudden it's time to begin buying presents, sending Christmas cards (yes, I still send a few and have a few friends whom I annually threaten with the loss of my friendship if they don't reciprocate, for I love nice cards), and decorating my home with yuletide cheer.

It also seems that I am never in the mood to take on such an overwhelming task so soon after Thanksgiving!

But then, I'll hear that first strain of Christmas music on the radio, or in the street outside a shop, and something wonderful happens —Christmas is reborn in my heart. Call me corny, if you like, but I am overcome with a joyous feeling that brings back warm and happy memories of Christmases past.

It also gives me energy I didn't know I had, and soon I'm out freezing my fingertips cutting cedar and pine with which to deck my halls with the colors of Christmas. I add a little holly and ivy, some red poinsettias and gold ribbons and I am all set.

The fragrances of Christmas fill the air with the scent of pine and rosemary, cinnamon and cloves. The tastes of Christmas also come alive as I bake gingerbread cookies, shortbread and fruit cakes.

When people drop in at Christmas time, they sometimes ask, "How do you find the energy to do all this?" and then I share my secret. As I work, I play the Christmas albums I've collected, my enthusiasm and joy keep me going.

For when the strains of "Deck the Halls," echo through the house it's easy to get caught up in the spirit of the season.

I always save some time and energy to read some tales of Christmases past. Even on a cold, miserable day the twelfth month has a unique aura. And I do enjoy reading a bit about how the holidays have been celebrated through the years.

With a cup of tea in hand I read that the brightly lit tree, gaily wrapped gifts, and stockings hung by the chimney with care all have their roots in the customs of our European forefathers.

When the frost hardens the nights in Eastern Ontario and it often seems the sun itself grows cold, in the midst of these gloomy weeks, the solstice also arrives —proof that life will be restored, that the ground will thaw, the snow will melt, and the crops for our sustenance will be planted again.

It is human, is it not, for such an event to be cause for celebration, to be cause for thankfulness, to strengthen our faith in a force that maintains order in the universe?

And celebrations there have always been. For example, Chanukah, a Jewish celebration, falls at this time of year also. On December 20, Jewish families light the first candle in the menora —and begin an eight-day commemoration of the triumph in 165 B.C. over a powerful enemy that had tried to banish the practice of Judaism.

Then it was the celebration of the birth of a boy child that verified yearnings for a human symbol to mark the rebirth of love, peace on earth, and good tidings of great joy. It is this weaving of the universal tapestry that has made the month of December the most lasting of holidays.

The joy of the holidays extends from Eastern Ontario to the countries of Europe and on until the west becomes east again. There is a holiday observance in each of these lands because Christmas and the solstice are interwoven by the centuries.

Capricorn signals the return of the sun; Matthew tells us of the star of the East. Christmas is both in the heavens and of the earth, because on one hand the sun has returned, and on the other, the Christ Child is born.

How far back they go, these days of celebration. The men and women of the soil, the earliest farmers of Anglo-Saxon times, celebrated with great vigor. Fires burned brightly; wine and wassail flowed like the sea; there was no time for gloom.

A line from a 13th century carol expresses the sentiments of the holidays to this day, "Kick and beat the grumblers out."

In this year of 1992, although many are finding their worlds turned upside down, let us turn out the lights and look up wherever we are for to see the stars on a midnight clear is to move closer to the earth and to regain some of nature's calm that gave Christmas its start, that inspired the country folk, the shepherds abiding in the fields.

To see the stars, in their constellations in their galaxies, solar systems beyond solar systems is to glimpse the unknown on one hand and the presence of order on the other.

Such acknowledgement sparks the joy of the season —a joy that sprang first for the ancients of the world awaiting the warmth of the sun and then for the millions around the world with the birth of a baby.

Christmas is truly in the heavens, there for any of us who can see the stars.

Thought for the week: "Now from night's gloom, the glorious day breaks forth, and seems to kindle from the setting stars."

INMEMORIAMS

GAUTHIER - In loving memory of Janice, our only daughter and sister, and Robby, our only grandson and nephew, whom God called home December 14, 1986.

To be together in the same old way,
Would be our only wish today,
No one knows the grief we share,
When the family meets and you're not there.
But since this special dream of ours
Can never more come true,
We cherish now the memories
Of yesterday and of you.

Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by, Glenn, Audrey and Stephen Dafoe

IN MEMORIAM

MacMILLAN - In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather who passed away Dec. 13, 1984.

Quietly remembered every day,
Still loved, still missed in every way.

Eileen, Lorilee, Maureen and John, Laureen, Chad and Jillian

IN MEMORIAM

FAWCETT - In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Mable, who passed away Dec. 12, 1991 and a dear brother, Dwaine, who passed away Dec. 22, 1991.

If tears could build a stairway
And memories build a lane
We'd walk all the way to Heaven
To bring you home again.
We think of you in silence
And often speak your names
But all we have are memories
And your photos in a frame.
It broke our hearts to lose you
But you did not go alone
For part of us went with you
The day God called you home.

Always remembered by daughter and sister, Mrs. James Vincent (Joyce) and Family

INMEMORIAM

LE CLAIR - In loving memory of a dear son and brother Gerry, who passed away Dec. 13, 1985.

Those we love don't go away,
They walk beside us every day.
Unseen, unheard but always near,
Still loved, still missed and very dear.

McFarlane takes cause out of Rebels with OT goal

Chris McFarlane found his scoring touch in Chesterville Sunday evening.

The forward, who usually plays a checking role for the North Dundas Midget "A" Demons, turned hero with 0:35 left in overtime as he broke up a 1-1 game and gave the Demons a dramatic 2-1 decision over the Char-Lan Rebels.

The victory lifted the Demons to the championship of their own tournament.

"You can't get a better team effort than we did on Sunday," Demons' coach Mark Arnkvarn.

"Everyone contributed. Chris (McFarlane) came up with the winning goal. He doesn't score a lot but he came through. Jason Desormeaux played a strong game on defence. Everyone pitched in."

North Dundas edged the Kemptville Royals 1-0 in double overtime in the opening game.

Denis Desormeaux posted his second consecutive shutout in the second game as North Dundas blanked the Alexandria Glens 2-0.

Arnkvarn was pleased with the defensive style his team used to win the three games, allowing just one goal.

"We proved you can win by playing good defence," he said.

Injuries forced Arnkvarn to adjust his defensive corps twice during the day. Brent Barkley was knocked out of the first game when he was slammed into the boards, suffering a slight concussion.

Spark plug Craig Halpenny went down in game two after he blocked a sizzling slap shot with his foot. He will be out of the North Dundas lineup indefinitely.

Arnkvarn dropped Jason Desormeaux back to the blueline and he responded by assisting on both goals in the 2-1 championship win over Char-Lan.

North Dundas hooked up with the Kemptville Royals in its opening encounter and battled through three regulation periods and most of two overtime sessions before Clinton Holmes scored to give the Demons the victory.

Holmes beat Royals' goalie Doni Robinson on a fine individual effort with 27 seconds left in the period. He raced end-to-end before tucking the puck in under Robinson.

Denis Desormeaux posted shut out number two in a 2-0 win over the Alexandria Glens.

Brett Hillis' first goal of the year proved to be the winner at 6:15 of the first period as he finished off a play started by Steve Cross and Jason Fawcett.

Phillip Brisebois iced the win, scoring on another feed from Fawcett at 5:29 of the third period.

Char-Lan geared up for the championship final, defeating Blackburn 3-1 and the Nepean Raiders 5-4 to qualify.

The Rebels were the only team to get a puck into Desormeaux's cage when Marty McDonell beat him 11 minutes into the first frame.

North Dundas didn't get anything going offensively until Grant Williams smashed home a Dave Sears rebound at 4:30 of the second stanza. Jason Desormeaux set up Sears at the point while working a North Dundas powerplay.

The final period was scoreless, thanks to the stellar net minding of both Desormeaux and the Rebels' Jim Hill.

Char-Lan had to play the first 2:00 overtime session at a four man to two disadvantage and finally buckled under the pressure 0:35 before the end of the period.

Jason Desormeaux worked the puck over to Clinton Holmes from the left point to the right side as the powerplay ticked down. Holmes spotted Chris McFarlane gliding into the slot from the left and put the puck on his stick. McFarlane took the relay, looked at Hill and drilled a low slap shot through the five-hole.

ROYALS TAKE "B" CROWN

After the loss to North Dundas, the Kemptville Royals blanked the Alexandria Glens 6-0 to move the Royals into the "B" final.

Shawn King scored three times. Andrew Butler had two and Jay Holmes a single in the win over Alexandria. Robinson got the shutout.

Bob Leach got the start against the Cornwall Royals in the "B" finale and posted a 3-1 victory.

Shane Meunier clicked for two of the three goals and helped out on the winner by Shawn King at 4:02 of period two. King and Andrew Willis each drew two assists.

Poor season payoff lies in playoffs

Out of left field
Chris Thatcher

In spite of a 0-15 record at the midway point of the Eastern Ontario Junior "C" Hockey League schedule, the North Stormont Express have made the playoffs.

The Express can go winless in their next 15 games — 0-30 — and that playoff spot will still be theirs.

(Head coach Kirk Anderson, who sports a full mop of hair, might be completely bald by that point, tufts left strewn across the players benches of six local arenas, but his team will be in post-season play.)

For sport purists, who believe that regular seasons should serve some legitimate purpose, if only to weed out the weaker species in true Darwinian fashion, this is undoubtedly blasphemy.

But who can make jokes at the EOJCHL when the NHL allows all but eight of its 24 teams qualify for the Spring season.

Anderson didn't make the rule, but that won't prevent him from using it to its fullest potential. From this point on, he wants his corpse, er...corps focused on the apres-season.

"At this point, we're not going to catch anyone so there's no sense pushing the panic button," he said Monday.

He hopes to recruit a couple of solid defencemen once the Carleton High School hockey season wraps up in February and hit the playoffs on a roll. Or at least with a few wins to show.

Though this may sound like the last wishes of a desperate coach, Anderson does have a few precedents on his side.

Anybody remember the 1982 Vancouver Canucks, the team that dressed like Oh Henry bars?

I realize this is Habs and Leaf territory, but they were hard to miss. The team made Halloween a nine-month event — well, eight. Normally they never made it to May.

But 1982 was different. The perennial losers — in all deference to Leaf fans — decided to play for the only season that really mattered, the playoffs.

In the last month of the season they made their move, a run in the last month of the season, edging out the Calgary Flames for second overall in the Smythe division. Caught the Flames in the final two games, no less.

Vancouver finished in 11th place overall, respectable if you can ignore the fact that the entire Adams division and most of the Patrick finished above it.

The bookies, those foolish enough to bet on an Oh Henry bar, picked Calgary to meet first-place Edmonton for the Smythe final. For reasons few can explain, the Canucks and the pesky LA Kings showed up.

After five games, four of which the Canucks won, Vancouver carted its carnival act to Chicago where it proceeded to give towel waving a new purpose. Neilson's mock display of mercy to the officiating staff in Game Two sparked a stampede on Zellers and K-Mart stores for little white towels.

Vancouver manged to dump the Blackhawks in five games and stumbled into its first Stanley Cup final.

But the Cinderella season, as the Vancouver media had taken to dubbing it, came to a crashing end when the New York Islanders, in their third year of a four year reign of Lord Stanley's mug, swept the series four straight, giving the towels a real purpose — wiping tears.

For a brief month, however, even the worst cynics became believers, if only because the Canucks had a roster few outside of the press office staff had ever heard of. How about this for defense: Doug Halward, Kevin McCarthy, Colin Campbell, Lars Lindgren, Anders Elderbrink and Neil Belland. Not a Paul Coffey among them.

But they almost pulled off the seemingly impossible. Why not the North Stormont Express? For one, their uniforms don't look half as bad.

Senior basketball building "A" division

Chris Thatcher
Record Staff

To call it starting-from-scratch would be misleading, but the four remaining schools in the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry senior boys' basketball "A" division are certainly a long way from dynasty status.

All four are in the same boat, according to one coach; they are either in a rebuilding year or one step above that.

For two schools, the season is nothing but question marks. Rothwell-Osnabruck and Tagwi lost all but two starting players to graduation and will field rookie teams.

Seaway District and Char-Lan have been rebuilding for the past two seasons but are still far from set.

The interesting battle could be waged in the junior division where all four schools boast strong squads.

EOSSAA champions North Dundas, in a class by itself last season, was classified as a "AA" school this year, opening the door for the other four.

The 1992-93 season opens on all fronts this week.

ROTHWELL-OSNABRUCK

The R-O senior boys' basketball team enters the season as two-time defending SD&G "A" champions, but that means little to head coach Bob Thompson.

"I have no idea (what to expect)," he said. "I only have four out of 12 players who were on the senior team last year.

"But I would think we're all in the same position, we're all in building years. I'm not quite sure who is going to be strong but I think it will be fairly balanced."

Only Sean Peever and Murray Rogers are returning starters.

In four exhibition matches, the Lancers are 0-4. But so far they have only faced "AA" competition.

R-O managed to stay with Kingston's Holy Cross, La Citadelle, CCVS and St. Joseph's for the first half but could not contain its opponents in the final 16 minutes.

JUNIOR

The R-O junior team posted a 5-5 record last season, bowing out in the SD&G final to the seemingly invincible North Dundas Devils.

But because the board hosted EOSSAA, the Lancers qualified as the second-place team in the league.

Ray Glenn returns behind the bench and expects the Lancers to be at least as strong.

"I don't have a star player but I do have a lot of good players," he said. "We go very deep (in bench strength). I've got 11 guys and I can put them all on the court."

Like its senior counterpart, the junior team only has two returning starters but Glenn doesn't think that will be a weakness.

"I have a number of returning players —only two of the were starters last year —and they all have experience," he said. "I think we have a good chance to win the SD&G single A title —but I always believe that at this time of year."

Express derailed by Stars, Nats

Chris Thatcher
Record Staff

In spite of a seven-goal performance on home ice Thursday and a five-goal outing in Rockland Sunday, the North Stormont Express had nothing to show for it.

"I guess you add three more marks to the loss column," said coach Kirk Anderson, whose team dropped to 0-15 in the Eastern Ontario Junior "C" Hockey League standings.

North Stormont, a team unable to find the net in its first 10 starts, connected 13 times in three contests but could not manufacture a victory.

The Casselman Stars posted a 10-7 win in Finch Thursday, the Vankleek Hill Cougars pounded out a 13-1 decision Saturday and the Rockland Nats claimed an 11-5 win Sunday. "It was a 'best of times, worst of times' type of weekend," Anderson said. "I thought we played pretty good against Casselman and Rockland, but we stank the place out in Vankleek Hill.

"It's frustrating. Seven or five goals should be enough to win a game. We're playing with a lot of intensity —the players have worked hard, I've got to give them that. They are showing up. A lot of guys would have quit by now."

Maintaining that intensity over a full 60 minutes has been the problem, said Anderson.

Kevin Villeneuve tallied a hat trick and Roch Benoit and Chris Leroux added a pair each in the loss to Casselman Thursday. Mike Stewart assisted on three markers and Benoit, Villeneuve and Derek McElheran counted two helpers apiece.

The Stars scored seven times in the first period but could not shake the Express which rallied with three goals in the third.

North Stormont carried a 2-0 lead into the second frame in Rockland on goals by Dan MacMillan and Mike Stewart.

But the Nats, 5-9-1 to date, struck twice in the second for a 3-2 edge and exploded with eight in the third.

Mark Vanasse, Cory Van Delst and Ryan Winter scored third-frame markers for the Express. Benoit finished with a pair of assists.

At the half-way mark of the season, St. Isidore holds down first place with 23 points and Vankleek Hill is second with 21. Casselman (18), Embrun (17) and Rockland (12) round out the bottom of the pack.

Six Express named to all-star team

Six members of the North Stormont Express were named to the Eastern Ontario Junior "C" Hockey League all-star game this week.

Captain Chris Leroux, Kevin Villeneuve, Derek McElheron, Danny MacMillan and Scott St. Louis will represent the Express Saturday, Dec. 19, in Vankleek Hill. Game time is 8 p.m.

The sixth member, Mike Stewart, remains a question mark pending an EOJCHL hearing this week.

Stewart received a five-minute major penalty in Sunday's game in Rockland for a check from behind and could be suspended for two weeks.

Express coach Kirk Anderson was also named to the all-star team as an assistant coach.

Express defencemen Roch Benoit (33) and Dan MacMillian (19) line up Embrun winger in action last week.

Ormond turns back Toyes Hill

It isn't often the Ormond Cloverdale defence gives up five goals. In fact, goaltender Ben Melenhorst and his defense sport a league-leading 2:00 GAA.

The Toyes Hill Roadrunner's put five balls in the Ormond net but still came away 7-5 losers to the first-place Cloverdales Sunday night.

Ormond kept its undefeated string (9-0-0) going by putting together a five-goal second half. Toyes Hill (3-7-0) enjoyed a 2-2 tie at halftime but couldn't hold on.

In other Winchester and District Broomball League action, Manotick (6-3-1) nipped the Newington Knights (0-10-0) 2-1 and second-ranked Prescott Road improved to 8-1-0 by beating the Winchester Raiders (1-7-1) 4-1.

Ormond and Toyes Hill were knotted 2-2 at the half but the Cloverdales managed to stave off an upset in the second half.

Second-half goals by Meryl Patterson and John Dumoulin had the Roadrunners up 4-2 and when Darren Nurse notched his second goal with 12:53 left to make it 5-3.

But Ormond's Ben Melenhorst slammed the door shut after that and his offence stormed back. Jamie Nolan scored the tying goal and the winner, assisted by Todd O'Connor with 6:44 to play, and Dave Hess added an insurance marker.

Nolan and O'Connor each had two goals and two assists. Paul Downey dumped in two goals while Dave Hess added a goal and one assist. Bill Robinson set up four goals and Dan McDiarmid helped out with one.

Darren Nurse scored twice for Toyes Hill. Meryl Patterson, John Dumoulin and Ted Bongers notched the others. Felix VonGunten (3), Paul Melenhorst (2), Ivan Petersen (2), Nick Thurler and Bongers earned the assists.

TICK 2 - TON 1

Their first point of the season eluded the Newington Knights again as they dropped a 2-1 decision to the Manotick Merchants.

ROAD 4 - RAIDERS 1

Darcy Last scored at 13:12 of the first half but that was the only Winchester shot to elude Knight's keeper Bruce Morris as Prescott Road posted their eighth win, a 4-1 decision.

Singh dials long distance for Devils

Mike Singh pumped in six of 10 three-point shots as the North Dundas senior boys' basketball team concluded its exhibition schedule with a 72-49 win over Almonte Saturday.

Four high schools competed in the round-robin tournament in Carleton Place over the weekend.

After a 73-48 loss to McKenzie High School in its first game, North Dundas posted two wins, downing host Carleton Place 74-42 and Almonte.

"It took us a while to get going," said Devils' coach Diana Corbett-White. "We lost by a lot to McKenzie but they only beat Almonte by four points."

Against Almonte, Singh finished with 19 points to lead the Devils. Sean Salter hit for 16 and Rodney Merkley delievered 12.

Merkley held the hot hand in the other two games, draining 23 against Carleton Place and 16 against McKenzie. Salter hit 15 and 11 respectively in the two games.

North Dundas has made the transition from the "A" to "AA" division fairly smoothly, notching a 4-1 pre-season record.

"We should have a successful season," said Corbett-White. "We look better than any previous senior team has looked at this point. We still have a lot of work to do, but I've got a good group of guys who want to do that work."

Bradley strikes twice, paces Demons by Brockville Warriors

BROCKVILLE—Andrew Bradley scored a pair of goals here last Thursday, including the winner, helping the North Dundas Ault Food Demons to an exciting 3-2 UCMHL Pee Wee "A" victory over the host Warriors.

The Demons couldn't extend their win string to two games as they suffered a 4-2 loss to the Cornwall Royals in Winchester Monday evening.

North Dundas out shot Cornwall 27-14 and put 10 shots on the Royals' net in the third period but came away two goals short.

Wes Ross potted both goals for the home team.

Jr. Warriors shooting for first

The Lancers wrapped up an exhibition schedule with a 51-41 win over Brockville's Grenville Christian last week. In its three previous games with "AA" schools, R-O dropped close decisions.

TAGWI SECONDARY

The Tagwi senior boys basketball team will take to the floor with just two veteran players and a new coach when this season tips off this week.

Sean Lee assumed the helm this season and admits he's not sure of the talent or depth of the team.

"I'd have to say wee in a building year," he said Friday. "We haven't played any exhibition games yet so it's hard to tell. But it's my first year coaching senior ball, so it will be a new experience for me too."

JUNIOR

The Tagwi junior team struggled through a 2-6 season in 1991-92 but the learning experience seems to have paid off.

The Warriors pounded Glengarry 64-42 and St. Lawrence 84-52 in two pre-season matches. However, coach Joe Stelmach is guarded in his predictions.

"We seem to be strong, but those two teams are in rebuilding years," he said. "So it's hard to judge yet."

Though its record was dismal, Tagwi was the only team to score 50 points against the vaunted Devils and lost all its games by a narrow margin.

Six players have returned to the team, including four of Stelmach's starters.

"I've been told we should finish first in the single A, maybe second in SD&G," he said. "Now that's what someone told me. I'm wait and see. I don't think we've proven ourselves yet."

More on Vitamin C

by Jennifer Gregoire
Reg. N., N.D., B. Sc. Nu.

The main importance of fresh fruit in our diets is as a source of Vitamin C. A regular supply of this vitamin is really essential to good health, and a deficiency could affect teeth, gums, skin, blood vessels and lower resistance to disease. It has been estimated that 10 per cent of households, and an even greater proportion of individuals, may have a Vitamin C intake below the recommended level.

The importance of Vitamin C is always underlined by nutritionists, because it cannot be produced or retained in the body in any quantities. Unlike many vitamins which can be supplied by a variety of foods, Vitamin C is only present in significant amounts in fruits and vegetables. Of these two foods, fruit is probably the more valuable source because we tend to eat it fresh. Many of us limit our consumption of salad vegetables to the summer months only, and cooked vegetables lose at least 75 per cent of their Vitamin C content. Oddly enough, when fruit is cooked, it retains much more of its Vitamin C than do vegetables because of certain acids present which tend to protect the vitamin.

Many medical advisers recommend thirty milligrams of Vitamin C daily for adults - the amount you would expect to get from a medium-sized orange. But now many nutritionists consider this recommendation should be higher - as it now is in many countries. It is always wise to err on the side of generosity where Vitamin C is concerned. Unlike some other vitamins, which can be bad for health if taken in excess, it's difficult to get too much Vitamin C because the body just absorbs as much as it needs.

There is a vast difference in the Vitamin C value of different varieties of fruits, so it is important to know where the really rich sources lie. One fruit stands out far in excess of the rest as a real treasure-house of Vitamin C, and that is the fresh guava. However, even this is greatly exceeded by the rosehip, although we do not normally think of it as a fruit. You can see why the juices of these fruits are bottled and used as health drinks. Citrus fruits, oranges, lemons and grapefruit, contain less than 1/4 of the guava's amount of Vitamin C. But in practice, they are a more important source because they are popular, palatable and readily available. Strawberries, raspberries and red currants are as rich in Vitamin C as citrus fruit, but again, less readily available. We can find useful amounts of Vitamin C in bananas, loganberries, blackberries, pineapples and tangerines (which contain a smaller percentage than the other citrus fruits), but these are minor sources compared with the fruits already mentioned.

My Silent Achievers this week are all of you enjoying your Vitamin C from the delicious Florida oranges and grapefruits delivered by N.D.D.H.S. students last week!

We are so very lucky to be able to do it for ourselves.

Murdoch, Panchuk net winners

WINCHESTER—Derek Murdoch and Craig Panchuk turned in winning goals for the North Dundas Atom "C" No. One Demons last week as their squad posted a pair of hard-fought UCMHL victories.

Here last Thursday it was Panchuk scoring an unassisted breakaway goal with 4:35 left in the game as North Dundas rallied and defeated the Athens Senators 7-5.

Saturday in Chesterville Murdoch netted what would prove to be the winning goal at 7:20 of the third period as the No. One Demons edged the No. Two Demons 6-4.

Sunday in Embrun the No. One Demons split their games in the Embrun House League Tournament defeating Embrun No. Two and losing to Clarence Creek.

Scott Whitehead scored twice as Athens jumped out to a 4-2 first-period lead on North Dundas last Thursday. The Demons closed the gap to 5-4 when Kris Lent scored with 0:40 left in period two setting the stage for a three-goal rally in the third period.

Josh McRoberts tied the game up scoring from Craig Panchuk at 6:57. Panchuk slid the winner in with 4:35 left and Jonas Dawson scored an insurance marker on a pass from Todd Levers at 3:15.

Panchuk led the Demons to victory scoring four times and assisting on two other goals. Kris Lent, Josh McRoberts and Jonas Dawson scored the other goals. Lent, Levers (2) and Panchuk (2) picked up the assists. Robbie Brannen tended nets.

Two nights later the No. One Demons faced the No. Two Demons in Chesterville and the No. Ones came away with a 6-4 win.

The No. Two squad led 2-1 after a period and 3-2 after two but were out scored 3-1 in the final period.

Grant Booth and Chris Koopman scored the first- period goals for the No. Two Demons. Andrew Douma scored unassisted in the second and Koopman scored a second goal in period three. Richard Pope and Grant Booth earned assists.

Todd Levers cut loose and scored the No. One Demons' first three goals, all on assists by Josh McRoberts.

Craig Panchuk tied the game scoring unassisted at 8:22 of the third. Derek Murdoch fired in the winner scoring from Danny Pelkey at 7:20 and Panchuk made it a 6-4 final getting help from Kris Lent with 1:03 left in the game.

TOURNEY TALES

Todd Levers scored at 4:12 of overtime as the Demons defeated Embrun No. Two Panthers 4-3 in Sunday's tournament opener.

Levers, Derek Murdoch and Trevor Morozuk scored the other goals while Levers, Josh McRoberts and Jonas Dawson collected assists.

North Dundas' offence shut down in the semi-final round as they dropped a 6-1 decision to Clarence Creek.

Trevor Morozuk scored the lone Demon goal from Levers and Murdoch at 2:18 of the second period.

Gauvreau pair not enough for win

CARDINAL—Coach Larry Berry said his Bantam "C" Demons out played and out shot their hosts here Monday night but just could pull off an UCMHL victory.

"It was one of those days," the coach claimed after a 3-2 loss to the South Grenville Rangers.

The Rangers were up 2-0 on goals by Knapp and Goodbody before Zack Gauvreau scored the first of his two goals. Curtis Sears set up the goal at 8:13 of the first period.

Gauvreau tied it up 2-2 when he scored on a feed from Jason Douma at 8:32 of the second but the Rangers netted the winner with 5:29 left on the clock. Petersen fired in the winner.

On Saturday in Chesterville the Metcalfe Bantam "C" Jets blasted off to a 6-2 victory. Brent Little scored twice for the winners while Riley Hathrall, Matthew Larabie and John Sheppard pumped in a goal apiece. Curtis Knuth drew two assists.

Metcalfe led 3-1 after two periods.

Derrick Gates scored the first north Dundas goal with help from Matt Foley at 9:00 of period one.

Randy Irwin accounted for the second major scoring from Clint Berry and Lance Bowman with 5:30 left in the game.

Novice Demons get revenge

North Dundas split a pair of exhibition games against the Junior Novice (second year) squads from Russell and Morrisburg recently.

After a win over the Warriors in an earlier meeting, the Novice Demons dropped a 4-2 decision to Russell in their first game of the day in Winchester.

Devin Kelly and Tory Baldwin scored the North Dundas goals.

In their second encounter, the Demons regained their scoring touch and skated to an 11-2 win over Morrisburg.

Devin Kelly led the Demons' attack with a four goal-effort.

Tory Baldwin and Dale Dellaire each netted two. Travis Leach scored once and Matthew Gilmer and Kyle Kloosterman netted their first goals of the season.

The North Dundas second year Novice hockey team extended a thank you to Dennis Martin of Russell and Barry Casselman and his Morrisburg team for their generous donations to the North Dundas (Winchester) Food Bank.

A lump of coal and a bundle of switches.

That's what you might end up with if you don't shop in Canada this Christmas.

Shopping in Canada this Christmas makes more sense than ever. Our merchants are more competitive than at any other time. Christmas promotions in border communities make shopping at home more attractive than it has ever been. Gift exchanges are more easily made. And speaking of exchanges: our dollar is suffering on international markets making U.S. prices not the bargains they were at this time last year . In fact, bank rates are hovering around the 25% mark and when the Canadian dollar is discounted in the U.S. the rate can get even higher. Canada Customs officers have new equipment and procedures that have allowed them to step up enforcement of the payment of Customs and duties, as well as GST, on goods purchased outside the country. So shop in Canada this year and we'll all have more Christmas presence.
