ROSEVERE MISSION BAND

The regular meeting of the Rosevere Mission Band was held in the Sunday School rooms on Wednesday night after four On account of measles, the attendance was not as large as usual, only 22 being present. The president, Mabel O'Neil, presided and in the absence of the secretary, Jean Nesbitt acted in her place. After singing and the reading of the minutes, a responsive worship service was conducted by Miss Singleton. Psalm 95 was read and the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison. The offering was taken by Joyce Levere, after which the Treasurer reported $25.00 had been sent in by the Presbyterial Treasurer. Geo. Carlyle gave a very interesting item on Temperance and Mrs. Atchison gave a talk on "African Boys and Girls." Five of the boys and girls blackened a space on the elephant and the meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Regular Meeting Of Municipal Council

TAX COLLECTOR REPORTS ARREARS ARE BEING CLEARED UP. OLD NOTE IS PAID. WILL HONOR MRS. TIMMINS ON BIRTHDAY.

Tax Collector N. W. Beach reported to the municipal council at a regular meeting on Friday night last that considerable tax arrears had been cleared up during the past few weeks, and that other ratepayers who are still in arrears had promised to pay within the next few weeks. All poll taxes had been paid to date, the tax collector stated.

With money derived from these taxes the council is able to complete payments on a $2,000 note which it has been carrying for some time.

According to the treasurer, the only indebtedness at the present time is a note for $2,000 of recent date; $1500 of this amount was paid to the Public School Board.

Councillors Dr. A. W. Sherwood and Hy. Bessin, members of the relief committee, reported that there was no one on relief at the present time.

A letter from the Ontario Hydro Dept. informed the council that the local Hydro system would be refunded $1,600. Council decided to grant the hydro consumers a two months' rebate next fall.

Honoring Centenarian.

Decision was reached to honor Mrs. Andrew Timmins by making a presentation to her on April 22nd, the occasion of her 100th birthday.

The clerk was instructed to prepare a by-law giving the council authority to engage the services of a municipal weigher for the proposed county cheese board. Council was approached on this matter by W. J. Stewart, president of the Dundas County Cheese Patrons' Association.

The street committee composed of Councillors Thomas Bailey and Ernest Christie were authorized to make arrangements for a municipal clean-up day to be held the latter part of April or early in May.

The meeting was presided over by Reve T. O. Keyes with the following members present: Councillors Hy. Bessin, Thomas Bailey, Dr. W. A. Sherwood, and Ernest Christie; the tax collector, N. W. Beach, and the clerk, E. M. Shaver.

LATE RICHARD BOWEN

An old resident, formerly of Vernon, passed away in Vancouver on March 4th, in the person of Mr. Richard S. Bowen who, for many years, was a resident of Vernon village. Mr. Bowen had reached the age of ninety four years. He leaves three sons and one daughter, namely, John A. of Vancouver, Daniel and Wesley of the Kisbey district, Sas., and a daughter, Mrs. George Warren, of Kenmore. His wife, a daughter and son predeceased him.

Williamsburg Editor Died At Brockville

The Press learned with regret of the passing of James McDonald, editor of the Williamsburg Times, at the Brockville General Hospital, on Tuesday.

The late Mr. McDonald was a native of Scotland. He came to Williamsburg about three years ago from Unity, Sask., where he conducted a weekly newspaper. Shortly after arriving in Williamsburg he established the Williamsburg Times, a weekly newspaper, which soon gained in popularity in the immediate vicinity. He was about 50 years of age.

Besides his widow, he is survived by three sons, John, Samuel and James McDonald, and two daughters, the Misses Bessie and Christina McDonald, all of Williamburg. He also leaves two sisters in Scotland.

Mutiny On The Bounty

SIXTEEN MEN.....

From the blood drenched decks of a man-o' war to the ecstasy of a sun-baked paradise isle....From the tyrannical grasp of a brutal captain to the arms of native beauties who brought them love and forgetfulness.....came sixteen men from the "Bounty," the ship whose voyage of terror wrote a red page in maritime history. Its damning record lay forgotten in the dust-covered archives of the British Museum until Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall penned the novel that thrilled more than 25,000,000 readers. Now the story of the "Bounty's" reckless devil-may-care crew, who broke every law of the seven seas to found an island paradise on south sea Eden, is faithfully and authentically brought to the screen. The good ships Pandora and Bounty were re-built from original plans loaned by the British Admiralty. Portsmouth Harbour was recreated exactly as it was in 1787 when the Bounty embarked on her historic voyage. Nearly two years in the making at a cost of more than two million, the saga of the "MUTINY ON THE BOUNTY," lives again.....at the PICADILLY Theatre, April 17th and 18th.

A special Children's Matinee will be held at 2.30 on Saturday afternoon, April 18th. Admission, Children 10c. All seats for this picture on Saturday evening are 35s tax included. Bring the children to the matinee.

Dundas County Cheese Board Organized Here

Splendid Meeting Held Here On Saturday Afternoon. Plans For Cooling and Grading Station Complete. Preston McIntosh Heads New Cheese Board.

A well attended meeting of the Dundas Cheese Patrons Association and those interested in the formation of a cheese board, cooling and grading station for this county, was held in the Town Hall on Saturday afternoon last. Mr. W. J. Stewart, of Morewood, president of the Association, acted as chairman, while Mr. W. M. McIntyre, of Mountain, occupied the position of secretary.

Mr. Stewart outlined briefly the purpose of the meeting. In his remarks, it was pointed out that the Association had deemed it advisable to form a cheese board for this district, and to establish a cooling and grading station where cheese might be given proper care and treatment before being graded and shipped.

Mr. Sanderson Speaks

Mr. James A. Sanderson, of Oxford Station, who is one of the outstanding cheese buyers in Canada, then addressed the gathering. He expressed his approval of the project and added that he had maintained such an establishment for some time. The results were highly satisfactory and Kemptville district makers formed the highest scoring group in Canada.

President Outlines Scheme

The chairman then launched into the scheme by saying that an agreement had been reached whereby the Canadian Pacific Railway would establish a pick-up system covering all factories within a radius of 30 miles of Winchester. Cheese would be delivered to the cooling station here free of charge. Assurance was also given that refrigerator cars would be available for conveying the cheese to Montreal and a delivery system put in force in that city operating between the rail point and the warehouses. The rate to be paid to the Railway for such service and shipping facilities was set at 25 cents per 100 lbs.

Endorses Method

Mr. George Martin, local cheese instructor, also endorsed the plan, and added that there must be whole-hearted co-operation between the producers and the makers, if first class cheese was to be placed on the market.

Mr. Stewart, in reply to certain questions, informed the meeting that storage costs would amount to four cents per box which amount would be handled by the buyers. He added that the Association was grateful to the local Municipal Council for their generous offer to allow the Cheese Board to use the Town Hall free of charge. At the regular meeting of the Council on Friday evening, the necessary by-law had been prepared to appoint an official weigher.

Officers Elected.

The election of Cheese Board officers followed and resulted as follows:

President, Mr. Preston McIntosh, Winchester Springs; 1st vice president, Mr. Jack Cameron, South Mountain; 2nd vice president, Mr. Frank Milne, Vancamp; Secretary-treasurer, Mr. Walter Moffatt, Winchester.

It was pointed out that the cheese would be insured from the time it left the factory until it was delivered in Montreal. While in the cooler, the cheese would be covered by insurance placed by the factories collectively.

It was decided to leave the matter of day and hour upon which the cheese board would meet in the hands of the executive, to be announced later.

Canadian Legion Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Winchester Branch of the Canadian Legion was held in the club rooms on Friday evening last with Mr. Arnold Casselman in the chair.

The election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows:

President, Mr. E. J. Spinks.
1st Vice President, Mr. J. J. Gray.
2nd vice president, Mr. F. Erle Helmer.
Secretary-Treasurer, Mr. E. R. Summers
General Committee, Messrs. Irvin Cross, James Bowman, H. G. Graham and N. H. Dixon.

Mrs. Preston I. McIntosh, a Great War nurse, and honoured member of the Winchester Post, was unanimously elected as Honourary President.

It was also decided to take into the membership, ten honourary members, the selection of which was to be left to a committee and decided finally by a vote of the members.

PRESENTATION AND ADDRESS

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr and Mrs. William Timmins when about 125 friends and neighgathered in honour of the marriage of their daughter, Eleanor, to Mr. Arthur Guy. The evening was spent in games and music, when about 11 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Guy were called to the drawing room where an address was read by Miss Grace Corry, and Mr. Ray Brown presented the popular couple with a well filed purse.

Dear Eleanor and Arthur:—

It is with a great deal of pleasure that we, your friends and neighbours, have gathered here this evening to wish you all the joys and happiness of married life.

Together you have set out on one of Life's great adventures and we hope that it will be one in which you will find new joys and pleasures each day. As you journey along the Great Highway of Life may you always find your pathway smooth and free from all the trials and cares which prevent the enjoyment of life to its fullest extent.

This life is much as we make it and so we feel certain that with your youth and cheerful outlook your future should be one of prosperity and pleasure.

To you, Eleanor, whom we have known so long and with whom we have been associated since childhood in all of our local endeavours, we wish the fullest measure of love, joy and prosperity for your coming married life. We know that your home will always be one of happiness and contentment in which you and your husband will always find a haven of peace at the close of each busy day.

To you, Arthur, whom we have always admired for your integrity and fine character, we offer our heartiest congratulations on your choice of a life partner. We know that with your ability to solve life's problems you will carve for yourself a high place in your chosen work among the people of our community.

We are pleased that you are going to make your home in our community and as a slight token of the love and esteem in which you are held, we ask you to accept this purse, not for its monetary value but that it may bring you something which will serve as a reminder of your friends of this community.

Mr. Guy made a very fitting reply, thanking those present for the gift and inviting all to come and visit them in their new home. "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," was then sung after which refreshments were served to all.

Will Construct Bridge Over Dredged Ditch

WINCHESTER TOWNSHIP COUNCIL ALSO PASSES BY-LAW REQUIRING PEDDLERS TO HAVE LICENSES

Decision to invite tenders for the building of a bridge; the crushing of stone and gravel, and the passing of a bylaw for the licensing of hawkers and peddlers within the municipality, were among the items of business at the meeting of Winchester township council which met in the community hall, Chesterville, on Monday, with Reeve W. J. McConnell, of Morewood, presiding and Jake Steen in the clerk's chair.

R. S. McVey, road superintendent, advised council that the bridge over the Dredge Ditch on the Ormond road, had settled some four feet below the level of the road after the Spring flood had abated and while temporary repairs had been made,, a new structure was a necessity. The clerk was instructed to have F. M. Eagleson prepare specifications and to advertise for tenders which will be opened on May 4 at Morewood.

Expenditures for the month were light, hardly reaching $400. Tenders calling calling for the crushing of 2,000 yards of stone and gravel at the Ridge pit will also be opened on the same date.

To Insure Workers

After George Ducette, of Carleton Place, placed a proposal before the board with regard to compensation for township employes, decision was reached to place this insurance. The action will remove the liability from the municipality in case of accident to workers employed during the year. Coverage up to $5,000 was placed for an accident to one person, and up to $10,000 for two or more.

The passing of the bylaw making it compulsory for hawkers and peddlers to procure license to sell goods was completed, the maximum fee being $15 for cars or trucks of 25 horsepower or over; 10 for cars under 25 horsepower and horse drawn vehicles, $2 for push carts. Licenses must be procured from the clerk and the fine for infractions of the bylaw is not more than $50 and not less than $20.

Mr. Eagleson was instructed to report on the Hamilton drain as requested in a petition from ratepayers, presented by Haldane Cummings, of Ormond.

Delegates See Council

Benson George headed a large delegation from the Cloverdale district, asking for repairs to roads and many others were at the board asking for road grants. Council will make a survey before grants are apportioned.

Wilburn Marcellus, of Morewood, told council he would have a power grader for hire during the year. Decision was reached to give any work to him, on the understanding that this municipality would have prior right to his services when needed.

Other members present were Deputy Reeve Thos. J. Ralph,; Councillors, Jas. C. McGregor, Maurice Servage, and Ernest R. Summers. Council adjourned to meet at Morewood on May 4.

LEGION ENTERTAINS

Members of the Canadian Legion were hosts last evening at a "stag" bridge party in the local club rooms. About thirty guests were present and spent a most enjoyable evening.

Prize winners were Messrs. Hugh Wilson, Dr. Meredith and C. J. Stanton.

James J. Gray Elected President Bowling Club

ANNUAL MEETING WAS HELD LAST EVENING. TREASURER'S REPORT SHOWS BALANCE ON HAND TO START SEASON WITH.

The annual meeting of the Winchester Lawn Bowling Club was held in the Hydro office on Wednesday evening with an excellent attendance. Dr. W. A. Sherwood was in the chair.

The financial statement, given by the secretary-treasurer, W. H Agnew, indicated that the Club had been able to meet all obligations during the year and would commence the 1936 season with a substantial cash balance.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, James J. Gray! vice president, Finley A. Coons; secretary treasurer, W. H. Agnew; Greens committee, Dr. W. A. Sherwood, T. O. VanBridger, Will Johnston and Myron Davidson; Games Committee, James J. Gray, Dr. W. A. Sherwood, and A. E. Goodfellow; Membership Com., Albert Johnston, Ernest Kellogg and Charles Cross

It was decided to allow the Greens Committee to have full charge of the greens at onc with a view to making a number of improvements immediately. The committee is also authorized to appoint a greens-keeper for the season.

After some discussion it was decided to retain the same set of fees as prevailed in the Club last year, $5 for new members and $6 for old members.

A resolution was passed unanimously that the Ladies be invited to continue their bowling club this year, with the same fee as last year.

A drive is to be made for membership in the near future and it is confidently felt that the Club is entering one of its most successful seasons.

FOR MRS. DUNCANSON

Mrs. Fred Smith was hostess at a charmingly arranged birthday reception on Saturday p.m. in honor of Mrs. F. Duncanson, of Morrisburg, who has been spending the winter months at the Smith home

Mrs. Duncanson was the recipient of several gifts, one of these being a handsome leather purse with her monogram, presented by the guests. The dainty tea table was adorned with spring flowers. Congratulations were received from her niece, Mrs. Gordon Glascott, of Toronto.

The singing of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," brought the very enjoyoyable afternoon to a close.

LOVE OF HOME

The love of home; and affection for the nation to which we belong, to its manners and customs; in its highest sense love to the political constitution of the nation to which we belong.

THE PRESS SCRAP BOOK

care very much what kind of accommodation I got so long as I could sail. We left Avonmouth on the Royal Edward Aug. 26th, at 9 p.m. A British warship accompanied us till we were well on our way. When it turned back we felt somewhat nervous though many were too ill to care. The Devil's Hole, off the coast of Ireland, is pretty choppy even at its smoothest time, and this didn't happen to be that time. Then the precautions taken by the steamship people did not allay our fears to any great extent. Every night all port holes and windows were closed and dark blankets nailed up. Canvas was stretched around the decks so that no ray of light could get out and there was not even a light at the masthead. We would often wonder if we weren't in as much danger from running into other boats as we were from German cruisers. However, many of the passengers seemed to really enjoy the dark decks.

Sunday morning we met the Royal George, bound for England, and we were informed that she was carrying Canadian troops.

We were a good deal delayed by fog and coming through the Straits of Belle Isle it was very cold with lots of icebergs in sight for a couple of days. One morning I counted twenty-three icebergs at one time so the atmosphere was not exactly tropical. Many of the passengers had lost their baggage and had no heavy clothing for the steamer. The ship's supply of steamer rugs soon ran out and we would see people out in their deck chairs with all of their bedding wrapped around them.

We had 1145 passengers on board, more than half of whom were Americans. They were loud in their praises of the British institutions, particularly the consular service and the navy. They held a public meeting in the saloon where many rousing addresses were given. At the close a thank offering was taken and over $12.00 was handed to the Captain of the Canadian Patriotic Funds. The money will be very acceptable, but the sentiment back of it is worth far more, for it shows the friendly feeling of a powerful neighbor in the present crisis.

We reached Montreal at 11 o'clock Friday morning, September 4th, and we certainly were glad to be back on Canadian soil once more and judging from the cheers of the people on the dock, our friends were just as glad to see us."

THE PUBLIC BE BLOWED

The Ontario's Government's contribution to control of motor transports in the public interest is an amendment to the Highway Traffic Act which repeals the provision that set a speed limit of 20 mils per hour for vehicles having a gross weight in excess of eight tons.

Monstrous machines that should not be allowed on the roads at all now are to be permitted to travel at the speed allowed passenger cars.—Exchange.

THOUGHT

If we could discover, even once, just what part of our thinking is original and what borrowed, none of us would dare to be proud.

OBITUARY

LATE MRS. EDGAR ROBINSON

The funeral of Mrs. Edgar Robinson, highly respected resident of Elma, who died on Thursday at the General Hospital, Brockville, following an illness of two weeks, was held on Saturday afternoon from the family residence to the Elma United Church.

Mrs. Robinson was the former Bessie McMillan, born at Elma, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra McMillan, of Williamsburg and was in her 40th year. She was a member of the United Church and an active worker in the Ladies' Aid Society. Her death, which was unexpected, caused deep regret to friends and relatives at Elma and Williamsburg.

The service at the church was conducted by the minister, Rev. Kenneth Woodwark, assisted by Rev. C. A. Adey of Williamsburg United Church, the former taking his text from Jeremiah 15th chapter part of 9th verse, "Her Sun is Gone Down While It Was Yet Day." The choir, under the leadership of Fred Beckstead, in addition to the hymns, "Peace, Perfect Peace," and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," sang "Good Night and Good Morning."

In 1916 deceased was married to Edgar Robinson of Elma who survives with three daughters, Hazel, Pearl and Lois and one son, Douglas, all at home. Also surviving are her parents, one sister, Mrs. Elmer Dillabough, of Elma, and one brother, James McMillan, of Williamsburg, to all of whom sincere sympathy is extended by a large circle of friends ni this community.

The many beautiful floral offerings included: Gates Ajar, the family; sprays, brother and sister; wreaths, Ladies' Aid Society of Elma United Church, and Morrisburg Collegiate Institute; cut flowers, Miss A. Brown and Messrs. Johnson of Malone, N. Y.

The pall bearers were Oscar Beckstead, James Barkley, Roy Cassell, Melvin Dillabough, Bernice McIntosh and Charles Bouck

Interment was made in the family plot at the Elma cemetery where the graveside service was also conducted by Rev. Mr. Woodwark.

Friends from a distance attending the funeral were: Miss A. Brown, of Malone, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. J. Oshier, Osgoode; Mr. and Mrs. W. Farrell and Arthur, of South Mountain, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Robinson of Wales

INTERESTING SCENES FROM THE PRESS SCRAP BOOK

Many changes have come about in this vilage during the past twenty-five years but happy memories cling to certain events for many families, the members of which recall with pleasure the "Big Day."

On Thursday, April 9th, 1914, the Press carried the following item that gave the details of one such memorable event.

Payne-Empey

The marriage of Miss Grace O. Empey daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Empey, of Winchester, to George Edward Payne, of Brockville, took place at the home of the bride's parents, on Wednesday, April 8th, 1914. Rev. Mr. MacLeod, of St. Paul's Presbyterian church, performed the ceremony. The bride wore her traveling costume of navy blue and a corsage bouquet of roses. There were no attendants and the guests included the immediate relatives of the families. Following the ceremony a luncheon was served, the table handsomely decorated with cut flowers and Smilax. Mr. and Mrs. Payne left on the local train for American points. On their return they will take up residence in Brockville.

The local Oddfellow's Lodge was flourishing at that time and on February 18th, 1914, a real time was enjoyed by the members. The Press gave the event front-page space.

The Oddfellows' "At Home"

Last night Winchester Oddfellows added more laurels to their reputation as entertainers when their "At Home" set a standard which their efforts of future years will find hard to duplicate. The guests were received in the Town Hall, where C. LeRoy Kenney, of Toronto, entertained them with his latest selections. The Hume Family Orchestra interspersing with some of their finest numbers.

At the conclusion of the entertainment the guests were invited to Hotel Winchester where ample justice was done to the excellent menu provided for the occasion. Those who could not be accommodated in the first flight spent a pleasant hour with cards, music and a foretaste of the dance to follow the banquet when all returned to the hall and indulged to their heart's content to the strains of the orchestra.

The committee to whom all arrangements were entrusted are to be complimented on the success of their efforts. The following composed the committee: Martin Fader, D. E. Barclay, J. F. Ault, F. A. Coons, A. G. Gilroy and W. J. Laflamme.

During the same year "Miss Mabel Sweet" was touring the continent, and interesting letters were received from time to time by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Sweet. The Press carried one of the letters in the issue of September 10th. We quote:

Miss Sweet Reaches Winchester

Notwithstanding that Mr. Sweet was advised that Miss Sweet was not on the Royal Edward, he was very gladly surprised to be able to welcome her home last Friday evening. Miss Sweet has kindly given for the Press readers a short account of her trip from Paris which will be found very interesting as follows:

The trip from Montreaux, Switzerland, to Paris, ordinarily a nine-hour trip, took us thirty-two hours. The trains, made up of as many as twenty-five coaches, were exceedingly slow. At the French border a thorough examination was made of each individual, as well as his or her luggage. One young man, in the Cuthbert party, who looked a good bit like a German, had even his letters examined.

When we finally reached Paris it was so different from the Paris we had always read about: Truly, it was a city mourning—all the theatres, places of amusement, cafes, art galleries, and many of the shops were closed. All the men were with the army and the women were cleaning the streets and driving taxi cabs. In the few shops that were open the clerks were so busy sewing for the soldiers and making hospital supplies that they didn't care whether they waited on us or not. I had no money but one of the party lent me 20 francs and I felt so like a bloated millionaire that I wanted to go out and buy the whole city.

Unless a person had a police passport it was not safe to go out at night. Two of the young men in our party thought this warning was purely bosh, so they decided to go out and see Paris. They had not much more than got out of sight of the hotel when they were accosted by two soldiers who did not speak a word of English. The boys were quickly surrounded by a crowd, among whom, fortunately, there was a man who spoke both French and English. He explained that the boys were tourists staying at the Louvre Hotel and then he kindly accompanied them home. After their experiences we could scarcely coax those boys outside the hotel, even in the daylight.

We left Paris at six o'clock Sunday morning, August 23rd. We had to be at the station at 5 o'clock in order to procure seats, for the train was crowded to the limit. We reached Boulogne at two o'clock and then it was a mad rush for the boat. The pushing and the shoving was awful for no one wanted to be left behind. We all had to show British passports before we were permitted to go on board the boat. When we swung out into the English channel it certainly was good to feel that we were British subjects and under the protection of the British fleet. Through the mist we could see a long line of British warships stretched across the channel and it gave us the most secure feeling we had known for some time and we realized the full meaning of the old song "Britannia rules the waves."

At Folkestone there were fast trains to meet the boat, the Cuthberts had their usual reserved coach and we were in London by 7.30 Sunday evening. It felt almost like returning home to be back at the Westminster Palace Hotel once more. It is in the very heart of London. The Houses of Parliament and Westminster Abbey are right at hand and the Canadian High Commissioner's office is directly across the street. I had a very welcome cable that money had been wired to Hon. Geo. Perley for me, and the first thing Monday morning I visited him. I was there all morning answering questions of anxious people who had friends on the continent.

I had intended remaining in London till the sailing of the Royal George on Sept. 9th, but Winchester seemed the best place on earth to me and I didn't

CERTIFIED SEED POTATOES

With the increasing prevalence and number of diseases of potatoes and the greater risk in purchasing seed about which nothing is known by the purchaser, has come the realization that the production of high class seed requires special care. A very satisfactory system of seed potato certification has been developed in Canada by the Division of Botany, Central Experimental Farms Branch, and is based upon two field inspections of the growing crop, and of the tubers after harvest. Only seed potatoes which meet the standard for certification are eligible for sale as Certified Seed, and official tags are supplied for every package of such seed.. Therefore, if the Government tag is not on the package, the potatoes are table stock only and seed prices should not be paid. There are two grades only of seed potatoes, "Certified Extra No. 1" and "Certified Small Sized 1 1-2 to 3 ozs."

If the tags do not specify either of these grades, the potatoes are not seed potatoes.

There is definite need of field inspections for seed potatoes as certain virus diseases are not observable in the tubers and can only be identified in the growing plants. Obviously only low yields can be expected from diseased plants. It is a big mistake to conclude that good seed potatoes can be selected by tuber appearance alone.

There are no regulations in effect which prevent anyone from using any kind of potatoes for seed purposes, and some of the stores are selling table potatoes in their seed departments, but it is the purchaser's privilege, if he pays more than regular table stock prices, to demand the official tag, otherwise he may get only table stock.

Well over a million bushels of certified seed potatoes have been sold annually for the past nine years. The bulk of the seed produced is exported. The best potato growers in other countries appear to appreciate the value of good seed and in spite of plentiful local supplies will pay the additional freight and tariff charges to secure Canadian Certified Seed Potatoes. Growers are advised to secure their supplies immediately as seed stocks are getting low. Lists of growers having seed for sale are obtainable, free, from the Dominion Botanist, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

SILVER TROWEL USED ON LESLIE HALL CORNER STONE, KEMPTVILLE, RETURNED THERE

A very interesting happening took place recently, when Rev. W. Wright of Toronto, and recently of Hamilton, was presented by a lady of Hamilton with the silver trowel which was used at the laying of the corner stone of Leslie Hall, Kemptville, on October 8th, 1907. The trowel had been handed down in her family since it was presented to A. T. Freed, Grand Master of the Masonic Lodge, who laid the stone.

Rev. Wright in turn handed the trowel over to his father, Rev. Canon J. deP. Wright, the present rector of St. James' Anglican Church at Kemptville, and of which church Leslie Hall is used as a Sunday School and meeting place. Canon Wright intends to present the trowel to the church at a future date.

The trowel is made of solid silver and is about 10 inches long, with a beautifully embossed handle, and on the trowel is inscribed the following: To Most Worshipful A. T. Freed, Grand Master, from St. James Memorial Church, Kemptville, Ontario, on the occasion of the laying of the Corner Stone of Leslie Hall, October 8th, A. D., 1907.

The trowel is on display at Mr. H. Butard's store, through whom it was originally purchased.—Kemptville Advance.

The Family DOCTOR

TO CHEWERS OF TOBACCO

Strange as it may seem, the disgusting habit of masticating "the weed" (tobacco) is more seductive, more tenacious in its hold on the chewer, and, in some ways, less harmful to him than the more elegant habit of smoking, to which society is more tolerant. In this article I shall try to illustrate, not the effects of the nicotine, but the perversion of human saliva from its normal function—more deleterious than the tobacco alkaloid involved. This is the chief trouble from chewing tobacco.

The saliva is a natural fluid, secreted by the glands for a definite purpose—to balance the acid gastric juice. The chewer wastes it by his successive expectorations. If he chews before breakfast, so much the worse—he is sure of excess of acid for the digestion of this highly important meal. Prolonged state of this normally alkaline saliva being thrown away, causes the victim to become dyspeptic with a chronically acid stomach. Sourness, gas eructations, inability to digest fatty foods, and even burning pain are evidences of the trouble. It is not the nicotine, but the lost saliva that produces the condition; chewing any other thing and spitting out the saliva would doubtless cause much the same trouble.

The victim seldom lays his trouble to the tobacco. Excess of acids will in time corrode the wall of the stomach and produce ulcers. A patient of mine once relieved all his stomach distress by stopping short on the chew within the hour before and after meals. I once saw a man of 101 years, who had chewed "ever since he could recollect" but never chewed before breakfast, nor to excess at any other time.

Of course the better way is never to chew tobacco nor anything else but good wholesome food in moderation, but the aged brother who chews must be borne with in charity.

King Edward Buys McLaughlin-Buick At General Motors

Workmen at the Plant of General Motors of Canada, Limited, who devoted their whole time for several weeks, sometimes working until 2 or 3 in the morning, have special reason to be proud of the motor car produced for the personal use of The King, a McLaughlin-Buick Limousine just delivered to His Majesty. Credit is also reflected on employees of the plants at Walkerville and St. Catherines. The whole organization in Canada, in fact, got a thrill from His Majesty's acceptance of the built-in-Oshawa car.

An effort was made to follow faithfully the specifications laid down by the King himself and the result was a triumph for the men who were chosen to build the special car. They were the only ones in the plant who suspected for whom they were turning out the magnificent limousine and the secret was kept with fidelity, according to Factory Manager, J. B. Highfield.

The building of the King's car, which entailed an enormous amount of special detail, was described today by F. E. Hudson, Superintendent of the body tool plant, where the work was done. The specification list showed a formidable array of fittings and equipment but these were interpreted with a full knowledge of car equipment popular on the European continent and the knowledge that His Majesty would naturally appreciate definite leadership in every item of the car. How well his commission was executed can best be judged by the cablegram from Bobby Hartman, of the McLaughlin-Buick Sales Agency in the British Isles, who sold the car and knew His Majesty's preferences. Mr. Hartman cabled Mr. McLaughlin:

"Want to congratulate you and all your organization excellent workmanship on special car and all your trouble and courtesy. Kindly convey this message from me to all concerned and place £50 to the credit of the Sports Account for me."

The body, Superintendent Hudson explained, was put together in a regular assembly fixture and after that everything was special. One of the formidable jobs which had to be tackled was the placing of a panel in the rear quarter where a window is usually found. The back window was also cut down in size and a special panelling jig had to be made for the completion of this opening. The special framing required a great deal of hand work.

For the rear doors special no-draft ventilators had to be manufactured and it was possible to use very few stock parts because in a standard car there is no such thing as a rear door ventilator.

Particular attention was paid to silencing. Partitions were all set in felt and saturated in liquid rubber for the sound-proofing effect.

Mr. Hudson commented on the good taste of the interior, in which His Majesty's preferences were closely followed. This was noticeable in the minimum use of chrome plating in the special fittings. In this the Royal owner was no doubt following the precedent set by his father, the late King George V, who invariably when ordering a new car, desired that ostentation be avoided. Nickel plating was taboo and accessories were left with either plain brass finish or enamelled black. King Edward's good taste is noticeable in a number of interior fittings. All the garnish moulding was of walnut, steamed and bent into shape. A standard McLaughlin-Buick would have had garnish mouldings of metal. The trim panel across the partition belt was made of burled walnut.

The reading lights in the companions in the rear quarters had to be specially designed; they were engine turned from solid brass and heavily chrome plated.

The cupboards in the rear compartment partition were 100 per cent. special equipment and had to be designed completely. The King's preferences were the guide in this work and there were few variations. In one particular, there was a change. A fan was desired in the rear compartment with a switch in the partition and also with a telltale and switch for control of fan to be mounted on the facia board to enable the driver to ascertain if the fan were left running when the car was unoccupied. This was arranged more simply by connecting the fan to the ignition switch so that the fan is inoperative when the switch is off.

The question of ashtrays was left to the discretion of the manufacturer and eventually arm-rest ashtrays and lighters were fitted. The partition also had space for cigarettes, pipes and other smoking equipment and there are even two rings in the partition for holding pipes.

Almost all the interior fitments, Mr. Hudson stated, had to be hand-made but were produced without any particular difficulty.

CONCEIT

I've never any pity for conceited people because I think they carry their comfort about with them.—George Eliot.

HINTS FOR THE FARMER

WHAT CONSTITUTES GOOD SEED?

The sowing of good clean seed is the first step in profitable farming. It is regretable that in so many instances, farmers neglect this important matter. In a seed drill survey which included practically every county and district in the province, 1898 samples of grains, clovers, alfalfa and timothy seed were analyzed, graded and reported in accordance with the requirements of the Dominion Seeds Act. Of the samples taken 32 per cent. were found to be rejected on account of weed seeds and, therefore, considered unfit to be classed as seed. For seeding purposes in Canada 4 per cent. was found to be rejected on account of low germination. The remainder was divided among three grades, 1, 2 and 3 with slightly more in grade three than either of grades 1 and 2. In a similar survey conducted in one of Ontario's best counties 755 samples of coarse grains were gathered. It was found that 174 of these samples graded No. 1; 30 graded No. 2; 159 graded No. 3 and 392 samples were rejected as being unfit for seeding purposes, largely due to the presence of weed seeds. Similar conditions exist in practically every county and district in the province. One answer to the weed problm which confronts us is found in the above surveys.

There are three important factors in the production of crops:—

2. Soil conditions over which he has partial control.

1. Weather conditions over which the farmer has no control.

3. The condition of the seed which is sown, over which he has 100 p. c. control and which too many have been neglecting in the past.

The preparation of a seed bed is a costly operation, much time and labour are required. Climate and soil will offer enough adverse conditions without adding the handicap of sowing poor seed.

Good seed should be a plump, uniform sample, mature and bright, true to variety, free from all foreign matter, seeds of other cultivated crops, diseased grains, small shrunken grains, and weed seeds.

Results from Sowing Weed Seeds

Weeds lower yields, the quality of of crops, the value of farms, add to the cost of production, rob the soil of plant food and moisture, crowd out the more useful plants, lower the market value of crops, attract injurious insects and fungus diseases. Weeds prevent farmers from following a proper rotation of crops. Some weeds are poisonous to stock.

Results From Sowing Small Grains

(1) The little plant in its early stages of growth depends on the food in the kernel for its maintenance. If a small grain is sown, there is not always sufficient growth in the soil, the result being a short stunted plant at the best.

(2) Plants from small grains are shallow rooted. Should a dry season occur, the roots will not penetrate deep enough in the soil to get sufficient moisture.

(3) Small grains are slower in germinating, some do not germinate at all.

(4) Plants from small grains are frequently short and stunted. They do not usually mature with the rest of the crop, the result being a loss in production, a lower grade and less profits.

The statement which is heard frequently that smaller grains are the female grains and that the larger grains are the males, and that they should not be separated, is inaccurate. Male and female organs are found on the same flower in plants of the graminae order which includes coarse grains, cross fertilization taking place on the same spikelet.

Seed are composed of three elements:—(1) The hull or covering which protects the seed. (2) The germ or embryo which is a miniature plant. (3) The plant food which surrounds the germ and nourishes it when it sprouts.

The same principles apply in crop production as in the raising of livestock. Plump, uniform kernels will produce an offspring that is stronger and better capable of reproducing its kind than will shrunken light kernels.

Profitable crops and clean farms can not be expected if grain is given a hurried cleaning over a poorly equipped fanning mill or if it is sown as it comes from the threshing machine as has so often been reported. One farmer has made the statement that he set his seeder to sow a bushel more per acre in order to allow for any weed seeds, small grains and other impurities which might be in his seed. If seed is cleaned and graded over a well equipped fanning mill or seed cleaning plant, and a plump uniform sample is sown, we may expect:—

1. A vigorous and uniform germination.

2. Strong plants capable of resisting unfavourable weather and disease.

3. A uniformly ripening crop harvested with a minimum loss and of the best marketable quality.

4. Increased yields. By selecting the best varieties and by sowing the best seed of these varieties, we get higher yields of higher quality.

5. A crop free from weeds.

Sowing of Mixed Grains

A large proportion of the crop produced is intended as feed for livestock and, consequently, the seed is mixed—(barley and oats), (barley, oats and spring wheat), (barley, oats and peas).

Disadvantages of Sowing Mixed Grains

1. They can not be cleaned properly due to difference in weights—oats 34 lbs. per bushel, barley 48 lbs. per bushel, wheat and peas 60 pounds per bushel.

2. We can not be sure of our rate of seeding when sowing mixed grains.

3. Varieties in the mixture will not mature evenly.

Experiment stations have proven the value of a mixed crop in regard to yield of grain and quality of feed for livestock, but this result is obtained only by the use of the proper proportions of various seeds and not by haphazard mixing. Those who desire to produce the maximum yield of grain for feeding to livestock should use the mixtures of kinds recommended by the Experimental Stations and should clean each grain in the mixture separately.

There are two methods at our disposal for preparing seed: (1) Hand-picking. (2) By mass selection by means of cleaning and grading machinery. Hand-picking is recommended only when a small quantity is being selected. Sufficient seed to sow a plot could be prepared in this manner. However, when preparing large quantities, machines designed for the purpose of cleaning and grading must be used.

It is important that the fanning mill will be in good repair; that it be set level and solid; that a full set of screens be available and that it be turned with a uniform motion and proper rate of speed.

A pamphlet on seed cleaning giving the screens recommended for the cleaning of grains and seeds can be obtained by writing the Crops, Seeds & Weeds Branch, Department of Agriculture, Parliament Buildings, Toronto.

When cleaning it must be remembered that we can not get efficiency when operating at full capacity. The machine should not be overloaded. The sample must be fed slowly and evenly, cleaned at least twice using a top screen or scalper which will remove all double oats and larger impurities. Use a grading screen which will separate all weed seeds, small grains, etc. Sufficient wind to blow over a small quantity of heavy grains will be necessary.

Farmers within reach of a central seed cleaning plant would be well advised to take advantage of the facilities offered for cleaning and grading grains and seeds by the use of modern up-to-date cleaning mchinery.

It costs little more to produce a 60 bushel crop of oats than it does a 40 bushel crop. Good clean seed will make this possible providing weather and soil conditions are favourable. By thorough cultivation of the soil, sowing good seed, treating for smut control, roguing of weeds and other cultivated plants, careful harvesting, threshing and storing, we can do much to insure a supply of good seed for the following year, to lower costs of production and to place our farming operations on a more profitable basis.

THE SPIRIT OF EASTER

The advent of spring, with all its promise of growth, crops and harvest, yields a message that may well be brought out as the Easter season approaches. During the winter months, Nature was dead, yet the soul lived on, and we find, as warm weather and spring rains arrive, that life once more is present. What better example could there be of immortality than that witnessed by us all with the arrival of spring.

Christians throughout the world will soon celebrate Easter, the symbol of immortality, and will renew again their faith that there is life beyond the grave; that death is not the end of things. The Gananoque Reporter, in bringing to its readers "A Thought For Easter," touches a real truth when it says:

"The belief that this is true, that there is a life beyond death, a life of release from toil and sorrow for such as truly believe and strive to live up to their belief has been the most powerful force in the history of modern civilization. In this faith men have found a common tie of mutual service for the common good. All of the concepts of duty, honor, self-denial and loyalty, upon which great nations have been founded, derive from the faith which is in the very heart and root of Christianity.

"Let no one say that the faith of our fathers is outmoded, that it no longer has its old power to inspire our lives. We are living in troublous times, and those of little faith are crying aloud that the old truths have failed, that the old beliefs are dead. But even as they scoff, Spring begins her perennial symbols of the eternal life. And this coming Easter Sunday millions upon millions of believers will meet to testify anew to the truth that their faith is a living faith, that it still rules the hearts of men."

THE PRODUCTION OF HIGH GRADE CHEESE

A forward step in the production of high-grade cheese in this district was taken on Friday last, when a local cheese board was formed and a cooling and grading station established.

There is one fact that must be faced by the cheese-makers and factory patrons throughout this country, and that is—the English market is open only to high quality cheese, and in order to compete successfully, the Canadian producer must turn out a first-grade product.

In this connection, it is necessary to point out that precautions must be taken in the initial stages to see that nothing but first quality ingredients are used in the manufacture of cheese. Milk must be kept in an excellent state while it is in the hands of the milk producer; stables must be kept in a sanitary condition and clean cans used in transporting the milk to the factory. Once this has been accomplished, the responsibility rests on the manufacturer and much progress has been made during recent years in this regard.

It is a well known fact, according to best authorities, that cheese allowed to remain in a cooler for some days before being graded, is improved in quality and firmness. Such being the case, the establishment of such a plant in this district is a step in the right direction, and should ultimately lead to better prices for the finished article.

The Dundas Cheese Patrons' Association is to be congratulated for sponsoring the project, and it is to be hoped that results will justify the efforts made to stimulate interest in the production of high grade cheese throughout the entire district.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Liberal party in Ontario is, no doubt, resting more comfortably since Premier Hepburn made the announcement that he will not retire at the close of this session.

We feel safe in wagering that the prospects of a Liberal victory in the next provincial election look brighter now than they did before Mr. Hepburn made the announcement.

Now that Spring is upon us, it might be advisable if the Municipal Council employed men to clean up the streets. The business sections of Main and St. Lawrence streets particularly, are in need of immediate attention, as the debris is unsightly, not only to residents, but those who happen to be passing through the town.

LATE J H. NADEAU

A final tribute of respect was paid to the memory of the late John Hunter Nadeau by the many friends who attended the funeral held on Thursday from the family home to Morewood Presbyterian church. In the absence of pastor, Dr. A. O. Thompson, the services were conducted by Rev. A. Nimmo of Athelstan, Que., a former pastor, and intimate friend of the family, assisted by Rev. G. H. Smith of Morewood United church, Dr. G. C. Gaukrodger of Metcalfe and Rev. Thos. P. Shaver, of Richmond. Morewood Lodge, I. O. O. F. No. 285, of which deceased was a member, was also present in a body, and held a fraternal ceremony at the graveside in the Presbyterian cemetery.

The eldest son of Mrs. Nadeau and the late David Nadeau, the deceased was born in 1890, on the farm where he spent practically his entire life, and his sudden passing on Tuesday after only a few hours illness, came as a shock to the people of the community.

Surviving him besides his mother, Mrs. E. C. Nadeau, of Ottawa, are his wdow, and two sons, Jack and Douglas, both at home. He also leaves two sisters, Mrs. W. J. W. Woods of Metcalfe, and Mrs W. M. Jordan, of Miami, Fla., as well as three brothers, Colin of Toronto, Donald and Lawrence, of Ottawa.

Beautiful floral tributes were received, including offerings from Morewood Lodge I. O. O. F., Young People's Society of Morewood Presbyterian church, Morewood Soft Ball Club and Literary Society of Morewood High School.

Afterwards, the party enjoyed dinner at Murphy-Gambles and later attended a show.

Ladies' Guild

The April meeting of the Ladies' Guild of Holy Trinity Church was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Miss Mina Latimer, with fifteen members and three visitors attending. The president, Mrs. R. B. Stanley, presided.

The devotional service was conducted by Rev. C. H. Roach, and Mrs. F. R. Stanley acted as secretary. In presenting the financial statement for the month, Mrs Frank Dowser reported that the net proceeds of the lecture by Rev. C. H. Roach, under the auspices of the Guild, amounted to $11.25. The resignation of the treasurer, Mrs. Cecil Woods, was read and accepted and Mrs. F. T. Latimer appointed to fill the vacancy until the end of the year.

It was decided to redecorate the living room of the Rectory, and make some other necessary repairs within the next few weeks.

Plans were made for holding the annual supper and entertainment on May 24, and as the Young People's Society is preparing to stage two of Shakespeare's plays shortly, after Easter, the following ladies were appointed as a committee to make necessary arrangements Mrs. F. Dowser, Mrs. E. H. Rolston, Miss M. Latimer, Mrs. Jas. Stanley and Mrs. M. Jeacle.

Osgoode Township Horticultural Society

A meeting of Osgoode Township Horticultural Society was held at the home of E. H. Howel on Wednesday evening last with representatives present from Metcalfe, Vernon and surrounding district. The president George Campbell, was in the chair.

The Secretary, Mrs. John Reoch, reported that the lists of options for 1936 were ready for distribution also that a letter from the Dept. of Agriculturre had been received promising the continued payment of grants to Horticultural Branch societies on the same basis as in previous years.

Having a small balance on hand, it was agreed that this be used to encourage interest in horticulture and a special offer was arranged for some of the public schools, by giving the choice of two extra options as a premium on each $5 order received. The sum of $8 was also voted to Metcalfe and Vernon for the purchase of shrubs and flowers for beautifying public grounds in each village.

A letter from Dr. A. T. Morrow of Maxvile was read announcing afternoon and evening meetings for the district societies would be held in Russell on April 29, with John F. Clark, of Toronto, official lecturer on Horticulture, as guest speaker.

KENMORE

On Sunday evening Mr. Percival Price, carilloneur of Ottawa, who has spent the past year in Europe, gave an interesting talk in Kenmore United Church. Telling of his travels, he centred his talk on a small village in Poland where he had spent some time, speaking particularly of the religious life of its people and of the large attendance of worshippers at the little village church, in spite of the many counter attractions.

Mission Band Meets

The Mission Band of Kenmore United Church was held at the home of the president, Miss Lyla Warren, on Saturday afternoon, with fifteen in attendance. After the devotional service, Misses Mildred Dempsey and Lyla Warren read from the Study Book, followed by a duet sung by Ina McLaughlin and Elva Currie. The meeting was closed with prayer led by Mrs. A. D. McTavish, honorary president, after which lunch was served by Mrs Warren, assisted by Lyla and Bessie.

C. G. I. T. Groups Hold Meeting

The C G. I. T. groups met at the home of Miss Norma Carkner, one of the leaders, on Monday evening, with a large attendance. Supper was served and a short social period enjoyed, after which the meeting proper was held, and examinations on Hygiene, Etiquette and Nursing were written by the three groups.

Special Services Held

Special Services under the title "The Kingdom of God in Evangelism," were held in Kenmore United Church last week with Rev. D. H. McVicar of Buckingham, as special speaker. On Tuesday evening Rev. C. H. Dawes, of Moulinette, was present and led in a service of song, with Mrs Donald Darling as pianist, while on Wednesday and Thursday evenings Rev. K. Daniels, of Kenmore, Baptist church, acted as choir leader On Thursday evening, the C. G. I. T. groups attended in a body under their respective leaders, Mrs. C. M. Stewart, Mrs. Wallace Carkner and Miss Norma Carkner. Entering the church singing the hymn "Looking upward every day," they marched to the choir seats where they led in the singing, under the leadership of Rev. K. Daniels and with Mrs. C. M. Stewart at the piano. Two of the senior girls, Miss Nona Carkner and Miss Edna Warren sang a duet. The anthem, "I Would Be True," was rendered by the whole choir and following the benediction, they also sang softly, "On the Wings of Night Reclining." The meetings were well attended throughout the week.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Rev Charles E. Dunn

Jesus Triumphs Over Death.
Lesson for April 12th. Luke 24:1-12.
Golden Text: John 14:19.

The message of Easter is two-fold. It tells us, first of all, that Christ is alive. It is a triumphant witness to a living Master. What actually happened on the day of resurrection will perhaps never be fully understood. It is enough to know that Jesus could not be crushed by the bars of death.

Rev. Chas. E. Dunn

But what is meant by the living Christ? Primarily we mean the personal pressure or pull of the Master's soul upon our own spirits. The two disciples felt this in their walk to Emmaus. "Were not our hearts burning within us," they said, "while he talked to us on the way?" But such experiences of inner rapture are rare. Most of us find the living Lord more often in the outer, positive expression of Christian ideals which, despite the acute sickness of our present society, are more widespread and compelling than ever before.

We must never forget, in the midst of our anxiety, that there are great forces laboring in the world today on behalf of good-will. One of the most important of these is the Christian church.

But there is a second truth in the Easter message. Not only is Christ alive, but those who served him, and died sharing his faith and purpose, are alive also. To be sure, the present whereabouts and activities of the blessed dead are a mystery hidden from us. But no reasonable person can long hold to the conviction that the accident we call death results in the blackness of annihilation. Goethe once said that a man who does not believe in a future existence is dead already in this present life. Just before he died Dr. Wilbur Bell, that radiant scholar, sent this message to his students: "I can see now that death is just the smallest thing. There's no real break-God is there—and life—and all that really counts in life—goes on!" How beautiful! What a wonderful confession of faith!

MOULDY HAY DANGEROUS TO HORSES

(Prepared by L. Stevenson, Provincial Zoologist.)

Reports are being frequently received telling of the sickness and loss of horses. This is not new as every spring season will bring its report of loss. Loss of horses due to forage poisoning has been greater than usual.

Mouldy hay when fed to horses is dangerous. This fact has long been known to many horsemen—men who have seen loss come from the use of mouldy hay as horse feed.

This broadcast is being made hoping that those horse owners who may be a bit careless about the quality of hay being fed their horses, will take heed and see to it that no mouldy hay or other mouldy fodder is used as horse feed.

Th haying season of 1935 was not a favorable one for the saving of hay in a clean dry condition. Tons of damp poorly cured hay was put away in the barns last July—hence the trouble and prospect of trouble at this time. The condition of much of the newly stored hay was such that the continued growth of mould was promoted.

With the advance of the season and the lowering of the level of the hay storage, the evidence of mould on the hay becomes greater. Hay that has been stored above a stable where cattle have been kept all winter may mould and become dangerous to horses. The warm damp stable air penetrating the stored hay furnishes the condition necessary for luxuriant mould growth.

If you are responsible for the feeding of horses, look the hay or other forage over very closely for evidence of mould. Examine samples outdoors in good light. Do not depend on an examination made in a poorly lighted feed room or barn. Remember mouldy hay will kill horses and any upset in the barn plans through the loss of horse power, with the approach of spring seeding, is serious. Good horses are hard to replace if lost.

PROMENADE DECK

by Ishbel Ross

SYNOPSIS: . . . A luxurious five-month cruise around the world aboard the "Marenia" brings together a group of passengers for adventures, romantic, entertaining . . . and tragic. . . . Like in "Grand Hotel" these passengers offer a study in human actions and reactions which unconsciously bare their souls. . . . These characters are aboard the ship: Macduff, dour Scotchman, single, of middle age; Miss Mudge, school teacher, spending the savings of 20 years; Angela, faithful wife of Lovat, gigolo; Dick Charlton, first officer; Clare, a person of experience; Joan, a dissipated flapper; Jenny, run-away wife, and Peter; Captain Baring, master of the ship . . . and his soul. . . . NO, GO ON WITH THE STORY.

Eighth Instalment

Peter squeezed her arm, then wandered off to look at the carving in the temple. Jenny stood in contemplation before the Emerald Buddha. She stared at him until she was half-hypnotized. Angela came walking up to her.

"I think, in a way, that this is one of the best of the Buddhas," she remarked.

"It goes so well with the bright gimcrackery of Bangkok," said Jenny. "Isn't it an amusing place?"

"I've always thought it the most exotic place on earth. Have you seen the white elephants?"

"My husband and I have just been looking at them."

"Oh, is he about?"

"He was, a minute ago."

Jenny looked round, but there was no sign of Peter. "He's always wandering off," she explained. "He's a born traveler, but he forgets that he has me on his hands at times."

They were walking through the courtyard now, Jenny turning her head from side to side. "I'm looking for Peter," she said. "It would be so easy to lose a husband among the wats of Bangkok."

"Rather! All those winding stairways and giant devas. He's probably hidden behind a deva!"

"Should we leave the courtyard and look somewhere else? But he may come back, expecting to find me here."

"You stay where you are and I shall stroll outside. He may have gone towards the gate."

Jenny stood in the middle of the courtyard, leaning on her parasol. Everyone else was trooping out. They were all on their way to the Phya Thai Palace for luncheon. Peter could not fail to see her, standing there so conspicuously in the center of the courtyard. It must be fully half an hour since he had looked at his watch and said it was twelve o'clock. Had something happened to Peter? But how ridiculous to think that a competent person like Peter should come to harm.

"I shall go through these buildings, and you take the others, Angela, will you please?" said Jenny, indicating the two to the left. "I'm getting frightfully nervous."

"Don't, my dear. There's nothing to worry about at all. Your husband knows his way about. I think you should stay in the courtyard until he comes and finds you."

Jenny ignored her warning and hurried across the cobbles on feet that were now winged with alarm. It was most disquieting. She raced from building to building. When she rejoined Angela she was panting, and her eyes were wide with fright.

"Jenny, my dear," said Angela, "the thing for you to do is to come back to the hotel with me. Nothing is to be gained by staying here."

Jenny was at last persuaded to leave the palace. She was drooping now. A thought flashed like a thunderbolt through Jenny's mind. The words sprang to her lips before she could check them: "Have you seen Mrs. Langford about?"

"No," said Angela. "I'm sure she didn't come with us today. Johnny was looking for her from end to end of the train, and is now in a huff because he couldn't find her."

Jenny's face grew smooth again and her spirits rose. Of course, Peter was sure to be somewhere about.

The hotel was really an old palace, with spacious salons like ballrooms, and bedrooms the size of halls. There was no sign of Peter in the lounge. He had not been heard of at the desk, nor was he in the bar, where Macduff was busy with the Phya Thai cocktail. Her dismay came back, swooping down on her with fresh certainty. Angela made some discreet enquiries, but none of the cruise men had caught a glimpse of Peter. Perhaps his launch was still on the river, or he had wandered off to explore another part of the town.

The afternoon wore on in a blaze of overpowering heat. Angela stayed with Jenny, who sat like a shadow in the great hall of the hotel. Nothing seemed to rouse her. At tea-time one of the cruise men came bustling up to tell her that Peter had taken a train back to the boat shortly after noon.

"I came up on a later train and happened to run into him at the station," he said. "When I got here they told me you were looking for him."

"Oh yes. Thanks so much." Jenny's voice was automatic. "Clare, of course!" she thought, and saw the same idea reflected on Angela's face. The older woman put out an arm and steadied her for a minute.

"Let's have our tea," she said. "What a relief to know that nothing has happened to him!"

"Yes, a relief," Jenny responded in the tones of a parrot.

"I wonder when the next train goes down," Jenny speculated, sipping her tea.

"There isn't another till we all leave at half-past ten tonight. I've enquired."

"Heavens!" sad Jenny. "How gay I shall feel until then. Marooned in Bangkok. Peter on the Marenia. Wha' does it all mean?"

"My dear, you're building a mountain out of a molehill." Angela's voice was soothing.

"Angela, you know better."

When she rejoined Angela her eyes were wide with fright.

Of course she did. Angela thought with a sudden rush of pain of Lovat stealing out of their stateroom after he had danced with Clare, Lovat kissing his hand and waving to Clare at Cairo. She knew that Jenny had good grounds for her fears.

"Let's walk about," Jenny suggested, restless and brooding.

"We'll walk in the gardens."

Round and round they went, past Greek statues, terraces and hedges, their feet crunching on the gravel paths. The Marenia passengers were dozing on the veranda or behind the cool shutters of the hotel.

"What time is it now, Angela?"

"Five o'clock."

"Let's go back to the hotel," she cried. Angela followed her patiently, ready to humor her whims. Jenny wanted to rest for a while. They took a room, and each in turn had a cooling bath. It was refreshing, and Jenny felt her courage rise. Angela took a nap, but Jenny could not close her eyes.

It seemed as if Jenny had aged five years when Angela wakened. "Forgive me for dropping off when you were so miserable," she pleaded.

"Nonsense! I'm glad you did. There's nothing you can do."

Angela studied her closely. "Let's have another bath, then we'll go down to dinner. King Prajadhipok's dancers are going to perform for us in the garden afterwards. You must come and watch them."

Jenny was listless. "If only we could get to the boat!" she thought.

Jenny went round in a trance, following her companion from place to place. She went into the dining-room and remembered nothing of how it had looked or what she had eaten. Night, star-flecked and warmly perfumed, came hurrying down as they dined. Afterwards they went out to the garden, which was magical in the silvery essence of the evening.

"What an idyllic spot!" Angela exclaimed, seating herself on a marble bench and regarding the Greek columns.

"I feel as if this day is everlasting." Jenny's voice broke in on Angela's thoughts.

"We'll soon be on our way now." She slipped her arm protectingly through her friend's.

An hour later Jenny stood at the roadside like one in a dream, waiting for the train to take them back to Paknam. It was slow in coming, and her pulses raced in her fever to reach the boat. But what should she do when she confronted Peter?

At last they were off, and she watched the heads of the tired passengers nodding in the yellow bubbles of light.

When they reached Paknam they still had a long distance to travel by tender. Jenny felt ill with fatigue and worry. Her head was throbbing, and her fears were like thorns piercing her flesh. Angela was a comforting presence, although she did not attempt to talk to her. The tender rode smoothly, the water slapping her sides. A breeze came whipping in from the gulf. Angela took off her hat and her silver hair flew loosely over her ears. Jenny still clutched Peter's cigarette-case in her hand.

The boat drew nearer and nearer. They could now detect the outline of her funnels looming above the lifeboats. Jenny picked out a nautical cap. It must be Dick Charlton in his white uniform. The chasm of water narrowed till they touched the sides of the Marenia. She did not know if her feet would carry her to her stateroom, or sustain her when she came face to face with Peter.

"Buck up, old dear!" said Angela. "We might as well be moving down."

Jenny caught a glimpse of a tall figure looking over the side of the promenade deck. The shoulders suggested Peter; the face she could not see. He might be waiting for her at the gangplank. The tender was bumping her sides against the steamer, scraping and tearing, heaving and barging off.

Angela and Jenny were caught in the outgoing rush and were among the last to leave the boat. Angela saw that the girl's face was like skimmed milk, and she caught her round the waist. Jenny drew her hat down over her eyes and stepped up the ladder, her glance darting from side to side. Dick smiled at her in passing, although she scarcely saw him. There was no sign of Peter. Of course not. He would wait for her in their stateroom.

Angela took her part-way along to her door, for Jenny's legs were wavering. It was open and on the hook. She pulled the curtain aside and gripped it again to steady herself as she saw that the room was dark. Perhaps he was in bed and asleep. She switched on the lights. The room stared at her, empty and dead, and at the same moment she felt the engines throbbing their familiar tune. She got as far as Peter's bed, then fell in a dead faint on the untouched cover.

It was long before she opened her eyes, to find herself staring at the tinted lights and panelled walls. Her glance flew to the back of the door and she saw that Peter's dressing-gown was missing from its hook. "He's afraid to come near me tonight, he won't come near me tonight," she thought, and burst into storms of tears.

Burying her head in the pillow, she sobbed wildly and hysterically. At last, exhausted, she fell asleep and did not hear a knock on the door. Reassured by the quiet, Angela stole away, believing that it was no longer any of her concern. They were already pounding through the Gulf of Siam, the Marenia steering her course with midnight stealth on limpid waters.

Jenny slept late, a heavy, drugged slumber. When she wakened, the sun was pouring in through the open porthole, and the rose wall-lights were still on, like evening dress at breakfast-time. She looked across at the other bed and saw that it was empty. Then she remembered the events of the night before. Raising herself on her elbow, she held her head, which ached as if it had been hit with a hammer. Her glance swept around the stateroom for familiar objects, and in a second she sprang to her feet. Where were Peter's things? All of his things? She dashed into the bathroom. His brushes, his hair tonic, his soap, his razor—everything was gone. Dared she open his wardrobe door? She sat down on a chair and waited for strength, but it did not come. At last she staggered across the cabin and looked inside the closet. It was empty. Peter must have moved entirely to another stateroom. He must be somewhere on the boat, but hiding from her. What should she do?

BRUCE BARTON Says:

★ . . . . . We Own America

One day in a debate with Stephen A. Douglas, Abraham Lincoln said: "In this and like communities, public sentiment is everything. With public sentiment nothing can fail; without it nothing can succeed; consequently, he who molds public sentiment goes deeper than he who enacts statutes or pronounces decisions. He makes statutes or decisions possible or impossible to be executed."

That paragraph ought to be printed and hung on the wall of every business man's office this year. It is a timely and powerful reminder that the United States is in fact a democracy, and that any man or institution which disregards that fundamental truth is headed for disaster.

Men gather around banquet tables or in directors' rooms and figure that their stockholders control so many million dollars worth of property and that they are, therefore, the owners of America.

They are not the owners of America. They are merely public servants whom the 130,000,000 owners of America have employed to make some automobiles for them, or run some railroads, or manufacture some clothing, or print some newspapers.

Men gather in learned conferences at universities and tacitly assume that the population can be divided into a small group of "thinking people" (important people) and a large group of "unthinking people" (unimportant people).

But there are no unimportant people. There are 130,000,000 people, and almost every adult in that 130,000,000 has a vote.

Chiding the people does no good; upbraiding them for this or that thing is only a waste of time; it is impertinent. The only thing that counts is to win them. They "make statutes or decisions possible or impossible to be executed." They make businesses or destroy them.

They own America, and they do not intend to give it up.

★ . . . Meet Two Smart Brothers

I know two smart brothers, now in their early sixties, who are about as different as two human beings can be.

The older brother never liked business and stayed in it just long enough to acquire a competence, whereupon he established himself in the country to read books, consort with "liberal thinkers," and to do a little desultory writing. The younger merged his company into a bigger one, and today is a "captain of industry."

Each has expressed himself in puzzled fashion about the other. The retired brother says: "Joe is a fool. He has been a millionaire since he was forty years old, yet he works like a dog. Why keep on making money when you have more than you can ever use?"

The business brother says: "Why any one wants to live in the country and pretend to write is more than I can understand. Bill just ran away from the game."

They typify the two groups in this country that are constantly nagging at each other—the business man and the intelligentsia. I know plenty of representatives of both groups, and the difference between them is not a difference in idealism or morals. The essential fact is that one of them was born with the competitive spirit, and the other was not.

Certain boys are born to play games, and others are born to sit on the side-lines and watch. To the watchers the game often seems senseless and even revolting. "Why get all muddy and bruised just to push a ball over a line?", say they.

And the players look at them and murmur: "How can any one stand around and criticize when the game is so much fun?"

Leap Year, in the revised calendar which the League of Nations expects to establish throughout the world in 1939, will be unchanged, except that the extra day will be shifted from February 29th to the middle of the year. In the proposed new calendar February will have 30 days and Leap Year will come as an "extra Saturday" between June 30 and July 1. An "extra Saturday" would obviously create a longer weekend and it is suggested that this day be considered as an international holiday.

Files should never be used on the nails, say beauty experts. A rusty file may cause serious infection, or may have an uneven edge that leaves the nails rough and ragged. We all know how easily the slightest snag on a nail has a way of catching one's silk dress or stocking, damaging the nail as well as the material. An emory board is recommended by the experts. And go over the nails lightly every day. Forming this habit will keep them always beautifully shaped and smooth.

W. G. JOHNSTON, PRESCOTT, REGISTRAR, CONCLUDED 22 YEARS' SERVICE TUESDAY

Mr. W. G. Johnston, who, for the past 22 years has been the registrar at Prescott, concluded his service in that capacity on Tuesday, March 31, as the registry office at Prescott is now under the jurisdiction of the Brockville office and only the services of a deputy-registrar will be required there.

The Prescott registry office was opened in 1897, with Lewis T. Sherwood in charge. At that time it served the Counties of Leeds, Grenville and Dundas.

Miss Josephine Keeler, who has been associated with Mr. Johnston as assistant for a number of years, has been appointed deputy-registrar under W. T. Rogers, of Brockville.

There are two good rules which ought to be written upon every heart. Never believe anything bad about anybody, unless you positively know that it is true. Never tell even that, unless you feel that it is absolutely necessary, and that God is listening while you tell.—Van Dyke.

BRITISH LICENSE PLATES

Canadian car owners may be interested to know that when a set of license plates is issued for a British car, they stay here until the car is junked, no matter how long it is kept on or how often it changes hands. The indication that a new license is taken out is a colored disc fastened in a corner of the windshield, a different color being provided each year.

NEWSPAPERS FIRST

The universal habit of newspaper reading led Canadian and United States advertisers to invest approximately $600,000,000 annually in newspaper space, William A. Thompson, of New York, director of the bureau of advertising, Newspaper Publishers' Association, said, in an address to the advertising club of Montreal. Newspaper advertising was as good a weapon as you make it," Mr. Thomson continued. It was like a giant power line, ready to be tapped by all who needed low cost maximum power to run their merchandising machinery. There was no substitute for the newspaper, Mr. Thomson said.

ONE CAN OF LOBSTER AND—

Housewives who like to serve lobster, but think it takes too many cans to go round, should try the following recipe, and see if it does not do the trick—
Ingredients:

1-2 pound can of lobster, 2 cups of hot milk, 4 tablespoons of flour, 1-2 cup of chopped blanched almonds, salt and pepper.

Melt the butter, add the flour, stir and cook one minute, then add the hot milk gradually, and the liquid from the can of lobster. Cook a few minutes, then add the diced lobster, and the chopped almonds. Season well, and serve very hot on toast, or else on pattie shells or timbales.

Besides being very palatable, if well prepared, lobster has the lead on other foods in iodine content.

Science has found that idoine is the great preventive of goitre so it is interesting and important to note that such delectable Canadian foods as lobsters, clams, oysters and sea fish generally contain iodine in relatively large quantities. People who eat these Canadian foods get delicious and nourishing dishes—and health protection at the same time.

KING'S CORONATION SET FOR MAY, 1937

Prime Minister Baldwin announced in the House of Commons that the King had approved of arrangements for the Coronation ceremony to take place in May, 1937.

He said the actual date would be announced as soon as possible.

It was intimated by Mr. Baldwin that representatives of the Dominions, India and the colonies will be invited to attend the ceremony.

In 1896, years before the first powered airplane built by the Wright brothers took off for its epoch-making flight over the sand dunes near Kitty Hawk, N.C., another American was making successful glider flights by the score. Octave Chanute was America's first great glider expert.

He did not make his first flight until he was 64 years old, but in subsequent experimentation and practice, he logged more than 2000 glider flights without a single accident. Chanute improved vastly on the gliders then in use, both in principle and practice of construction. He provided his gliders with wings that could be moved fore and aft for longitudinal and lateral control. He also provided a rudder in the rear. As an engineer he excelled in building great strength into his gliders without making them too heavy for successful flight.

Chanute's first glider was. a five-winged affair, later models were reduced to three, then two wings. His famous bi-plane glider employed methods of wing bracing that are still used by airplane designers.

TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS A DAY

Grace Nall Crowell has just been appointed poet laureate, 1936-37, for Texas. Texas has taxed liquor eighty cents a gallon, and it is to be sold in packages only. It is estimated that the revenue will be $10,000 a day. Mrs. Crowell expresses herself as follows in this matter:

"Ten thousand dollars of revenue a day
For liquor sold in this state alone!
Think of it—the debts that it will pay,
The schools and roads 'twill build, the towers of stone,
It will erect to grace our hills and plains.

Yes, think of it! Then think the subject through;
The trails that it will leave behind—the stains
Of blood on hearts and hands—the sickening hue
Of drunken brawls set loose upon the night.
The wrecks within its wake; the besotted men.

The women stripped of virtue, and the white
Faces of starved children....think again—
A crash, a shriek, a silence that is death.
Or hideous screams, or agonizing moans—
Two speeding cars, a wreck, and in a breath
A carnage of gashed flesh and splintered bones.
"A drunken driver"—brief words, briefly said,
And a thousand, thousand, thousand lying dead.

What will God think of us—What will He say?
"Ten thousand dollars of revenue a day....."

SENTIMENTS EXPRESSED IN POETRY

To my dear friends, the Rev. J. M. and Mrs. Kellock, formerly of Vernon and Chesterville, who are now enjoying the climate and beauty of La Mesa, California.

Dear friends, you tell me of your travels far,
Of all the beauties and the splendors seen,
You bid me come away to over lands
To travel in the places you have been.
Right now, you're living far from frost and snow,
Rejoicing in the beauty of each scene;
Yet though you bid me come, I must not go,
For I must mind the fires and keep the kitchen clean.

I see the snow piled high around the door,
The fields are white and deep. The trees are bare.
Jack Frost, so hoary, paints my window pane;
For days I latch the door, the fires I care,
But oh- I know within the forest deep,
Where lies the snow, so white, like frosted wool,
The rain shall trickle in, the sunshine peep;
Each drift shall turn into a smiling pool.

E'en though the winds blow hard and nights are cold,
And I beside my fire shall knit and sew.
I know behind it all comes warmth and sun,
With rain to wash away the frost and snow.
As Resurrection came with hope and joy,
And Christ burst forth in glory from the tomb,
So every leaf and blade, each bulb and seed,
Shall break out into beauty and to bloom.

If I should feel depressed or given to whine,
I know the sly old crow shall come again,
To taunt me for the way I grouch and pine,
He'll say, "Haw! Haw! behold the rain."
Each morn I'll hear Cock Robin's cheery voice
"Wake up! Wake up- No time is this to bide,"
And he shall lure me from my deepest rest
To open up my door and leave it wide.

Oh, spring is full of wonder and of joy,
So much to see, so many things to hear;
The little lambs shall bleat upon the hills
The butterflies flit past, the bees hum near;
Perhaps, dear friends, to me may come the day,
When I like you shall roam in lands so fair,
And see the wondrous sights that you have seen,
Enjoy strange beauties and the scenes so rare.

Yet, well I know, that I should soon return
To mind the fires and keep the kitchen clean;
While winds are woo-ing down the chimney flue,
And Jack Frost paints again my window scene.
I care not if the snow piles white and high,
And all the birds have gone elsewhere to sing;
'Way down beneath the snow are living things,
So I must needs be here to meet the Spring.

—Lillian A. Hawkshaw, Williamsburg.

WHAT IS A BOY?

He is a person who is going to carry on what you have started.

He is to sit right where you are sitting and attend when you are gone to those things you think are so important.

You may adopt all the policies you please, but how they will be carried out depends upon him.

Even if you make leagues and treaties, he will have to manage them.

He is going to sit at your desk in the Senate, and occupy your place on the Supreme Bench.

He will assume control of your cities, towns and nation.

He is going to move in and take over your prisons, churches, schools, universities and corporations.

All your work is going to be judged and praised or condemned by him.

Your reputation and your future are in his hands.

All your work is for him, and the fate of the nations and of humanity is in his hands.

So it might be well to pay him some attention. —Author Unknown.

GRENVILLE REGIMENT WILL CAMP AT CONNAUGHT JUNE 28 TO JULY 5

A meeting of the officers of the Grenville Regiment was held on Wednesday last in the officers quarters of the Armouries at Kemptville, with Lieut.-Col. W. A. McClenaghan, officer commanding, in the chair, who gave a detailed report of the recent convention of commanding officers which was held at Kingston.

The officers present were informed that arrangements had been made to have the annual camp at the Connaught Ranges again this year, it being a Brigade Camp, the dates of which are June 28th to July 5th.

Matters pertaining to the mess of the men and the officers were discussed and the O. C. will take the matter up at a meeting to be held shortly in Ottawa.

It was decided that the annual meeting of the Regiment will be held on Thursday, April 16th. The meeting will be held at 4 p.m. at the Armouries and the banquet will be held following this at the Allen House, Kemptville. Members of the Headquarters Staff are expected to be present for this occasion.

JUDGE COSTELLO'S RULING UPHELD IN WILL CASE

The Supreme Court of Canada this week allowed the appeal by the widow and members of the family of James Ouderkirk of Finch Township, against a decision of the Court of Appeal for Ontario which, reversing the judgment of Judge Costello, of Cornwall, admitted to probate the will of James Ouderkirk, made October 18, 1932, which disposes of an estate of some $8,000.

The will in question had been contested before Judge Costello on the ground that Ouderkirk had for many months before his death been laboring under delusions, had made little provision for his widow's maintenance, Judge Costello gave effect to these objections and ordered that the will be not admitted to probate.

The question at issue was the validity of an alleged will made by the late James Ouderkirk, of Berwick, Ontario, dated October 18, 1932. The widow and children of the testator, except the executor, took action to set aside the said will.

Judge Costello heard the case in the first instance, and held the will invalid by reason of the delusions which were operating upon the testator's mind at the time of the execution of his will.

On June 10, 1935, the Court of Appeal, for Ontario set aside the judgment of Judge Costello. The case was appealed from the decision of the Court of Appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, and the Supreme Court of Canada restored the judgment of Judge Costello on March 31st, 1936.

HORSES IN DEMAND IN DUNDAS

There is a good demand for work horses in Dundas County. At a recent auction sale of twenty head of horses held at the farm of Mr. Frank Mulligan, second concession of Matilda, more than four hundred farmers attended and prices ranged from $100.00 to $75. each for work horses. A number of these horses were purchased by buyers from from New York state. Cattle also are of better price, and Mr O. Strader and Mr. B. A Strader have sold a consignment for export to New York State

MATCH TO BE AT CORNWALL

J. W. McRae, Alexandria, vice president of the Ontario Plowmen's Association, announced on Wednesday last that that the Ontario Plowmen's International Plowing Match and Farm Machinery Demonstration would be held in the immediate vicinity of Cornwall on October October 6, 7, 8 and 9. At a meeting of the executive at Cornwall to be held early in May, plans for the event will be completed.

MODERN WOMEN
by CHARL ORMOND WILLIAMS
President of National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.

THE ninth annual observance of National Business Women's Week throughout the country in March brought to light many unusual achievements and interests of women.

In Washington Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who is a member of the New York League of Business and Professional Women, invited me to the White House for a discussion over a national radio network on the year's theme of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women, "Women Unite For Effective Democracy!"

In New York twenty-four women of achievement were honored on March 18 at a dinner given by the New York League with the cooperation of 200 men and women's service organizations. These outstanding New York women represented seventeen different professions ranging from prominence in legal circles to excellence in creating mannequins.

The selection was led by four writers chosen for distinction: Fannie Hurst, novelist and short story writer; Mrs. William Brown Meloney, editor of "This Week"; Dorothy Thompson, author and special feature writer; and Anna Steese Richardson, associate editor of "The Woman's Home Companion."

From the standpoint of numbers, this group was followed by three teachers: Mrs. Evelyn N. Allan, principal of the Girls' Commercial High School in Brooklyn; Marion Dickerman, principal of the Todhunter School and an associate of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt; and Isabel Stewart, Professor of Nursing Education, Teachers College, Columbia.

The legal profession was represented by the two New York assemblywomen, Jane Todd, Republican, and Doris I. Byrne, Democrat, and Judge Genevieve Cline. Judge Cline has made a name for herself as the first woman United States judge. She is at present the presiding justice at the Federal Customs Court in New York

MRS. JAS. W. FLETT DIED AT MOUNT BRYDGES

The death on Sunday, March 29, of Mrs. Jas. W. Flett at her home in Mount Brydges was heard of with regret by her many friends in Wiarton where she made her home for a great many years. Mrs. Flett was operated on last November for gall stones but the doctors discovered that there were other complications and held out no hope for her ultimate recovery. Since that time she had been in bed and everything possible had been done for her but she sank into a coma and passed on.

Before her marriage she was Lillian (Lottie) Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Jones. She was born at Manilla, but came to live in Wiarton as a child, where her father engaged in his trade as a mason.

Mrs. Flett was exceptionally talented as a musician. She had her A.T.C.M. from Toronto Conservatory of Music and for a number of years led the choirs of both the Methodist and Presbyterian churches in town and on her visits back home was a welcome soloist in the churches. Mrs. Flett was a woman of outstanding abilities. Besides her voice, which was exceptionally fine, she excelled in art and had received many awards for her china and water colour paintings, and also for her fancy work.

She married Mr. James W. Flett, who was in the Union Bank, and they went to Erin to live. Later Mr. Flett was transferred to different branches of the Bank and has been in Winchester, Kingsville, Norwich and finally Mount Brydges Mrs. Flett has always been a great worker in the church; she belonged formerly to the Methodist and then the United Church. She had been choir leader in many of the towns in which they lived and had always been a faithful worker.

Besides her sorrowing husband, one son, James E., a student at the O.A.C., Guelph; her mother, Mrs. E. Jones; one sister, (Fossie) Mrs. G. McKinnon, Toronto, and one brother, Mr. Alfred Jones, Parkland, Alberta, are left to mourn her loss.

The funeral service was held at her home in Mount Brydges and was conducted by her pastor, Rev. R. E. Southcott, assisted by Rev. J. K. Curtis, of Delaware, who had been her pastor when the family were at Winchester, and Rev. P. Gilmour, of Mount Brydges.—Canadian Echo, Wiarton.

MEETING AT SPENCERVILLE

On Thursday, April 16th, at 2.30 p.m., a Liberal-Conservative meeting will be held in the Town Hall, Spencerville, at which the Executive will select the delegates to attend the Convention which will be held in Toronto to select the party leader for Ontario.

On the same evening at 5.30 a complimentary banquet will be held in the United Church, Spencervile, in honour of Mr. A. C. Casselman, M. P., and Mr. Geo. H. Challies, M. L. A.

C. G. I. T. MEETING

The C. G. I. T. met in the Sunday School rooms on Tuesday evening at 3.45. The meeting was opened by repeating the C. G. I. T. Purpose.

Helen Dillabough led the Worship Service. After the reading of the Scripture brief prayers were offered by each member. The roll call was answered by naming an African Missionary.

The synopsis of the Study Book, "Jungles Preferred," prepared by Jean Scott, was read by Edrie Boyd, owing to Jean's absence.

The United Church of Canada has 16 missionaries in Angola serving in co-operation with 389 African evangelists, teachers, nurses and other workers.

There are three central stations, Chissamba, Camundongo and Dondi. There are 6 organized congregations and 5055 communicants. Nearly 1000 Sunday school scholars receive Religious Education. In 3 hospitals nearly 50,000 treatments are given annually.

The last half hour of the session was spent in sewing for the Missionary Supply work. The meeting was closed with the singing of Taps.

THE LATE MRS. JAMES H. EMPEY

(Contributed)

It has seemed wise to the Heavenly Pilot to bring into the Harbor another of His chosen Vessels, when on April 1st, 1936, Mrs. Mary Jane Empey passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Gordon Jones, in Mountain Township, in her 83rd year.

She was born in Williamsburg Township on Aug. 29th, 1853. The daughter of the late Robert John and Ellen Young. In 1880 she was united in marriage to James Herman Empey, of Cannamore, where she resided until shortly after her husband's death in June, 1908. The past few years she has resided with her daughter. She was converted in 1921 and since that time has been a faithful Christian and a member of the Wesleyan Methodist church.

She leaves to mourn on the Shores of Time three sons and three daughters, Mrs. Charles Farmiloe and Mrs. Gordon Jones of Mountain; Mrs. Annie Coulthart, Robt. and Jake, all of Winchester, and Rowat of Williamstown; also thirteen grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

She was of a family of thirteen of whom seven are living: Thomas of Seattle, Simon of Nevada, Walter of Cadallac, Mich., Michael of Maple Ridge Robert of Chesterville, Alex of Dunbar, David of Chicago, and one sister, and one sister and four brothers preceding her.

The funeral was held at the residence April 3rd, conducted by her pastor, Rev. D. W. Summers, assisted by Rev. Mr. Turner. The text chosen by the deceased was Psalm 23 and 4th verse.

She will be greatly missed in the home and by a great many friends and relatives. It can truly be said: "She has fought a good fight, finished her course and kept the faith."

That which was earthly was laid to rest in the Maple Ridge cemetery. The pall bearers were: Almon Summers, Stafford Leason, Jerry Summers, John Gibson, Clarence Deeks and Charles A. Summers.

SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Dr. and Mrs. G. H. McKeown, of 28 Bellwood Ave., Ottawa, (formerly of Winchester), were honored on Saturday evening, April 4th, by a number of their friends, who called to congratulate them on the occasion of their silver wedding anniversary. Dr. Cameron Sully read a very appropriate address and Mrs. T. H. Dunn presented the bride and groom of twenty-five years ago with a beautiful Sheffield tray suitably engraved.

Mrs. McKeown was also presented with a shoulder knot of roses and sweet peas. Dr. McKeown expressed the appreciation of Mrs. McKeown and himself for the thoughtfuness of the friends who had remembered them on this occasion and for the lovely taken of friendship.

Mrs. W. B. Campbell presented Mrs. Sully and Mrs. McKeown, mothers of the guests of honor, with shoulder knots of pansies.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. T. H. Dunn, Mrs. G. G. McEwan, Mrs Cameron Sully and Mrs. W. B. Campbell, assisted by some of the guests.

THE UNITED CHURCH

The Easter Thank-offering service of the W. M. S. was held on Sunday morning when Mrs. Hilliard of Morrisburg brought an inspiring Easter message, the theme of which was that Christ came to save the world. During this Passion Week, she said, we ought to think deeply of what Christ suffered for us. "What's happening this generation," she continued, that money is lacking to keep our missionaries on the fields that are white already to harvest? What are you doing for Christ? How many are you bringing into His Kingdom? What reason is there that you can't have an absolute Christian community in Winchester? You have the advantage of having no beverage rooms and if you have bootleggers, get rid of them. You have an Oxford Group and a very fine community spirit of union." This was an appealing message ending with the plea to make a new dedication of our lives for winning Winchester for Christ.

A choir of ladies sang a special missionary number and the offering was received by Mesdames Faye Scott, Ella Preston, F. F. Davidson and J. W. Ault.

To the great joy of his people, the pastor, Rev. W. S. Atchison, was able to be present at the evening service and to give the message, at the beginning of which he thanked those who had been carrying on the work of the church so well during his enforced absence through illness. Whie presiding at the morning service, he thanked the congregation for their kindness and sympathy shown to Mrs. Atchison and to himself through these trying weeks.

Dr. H. Gross presided at the evening service when the Scripture lesson was given by Wm. Fawcett, and prayer offered by Eldon Fennell, Sidney Lindsay, James Fawcett, Geo. Goodman and Oscar Wallace. Mr. Atchison spoke on spiritual stability with reference to the story of Demas who forsook Paul. He said that the greatest tragedy associated with spiritual life is the making of a good start but failing to come to a good ending. Integrity of conscience, consciousness that you are linked up with a great cause, and an inner strength reinforced by a great faith in God and in man, were named as things that give staying power. In closing, the pastor urged the new converts to mount up with wings as angels and to remember that Jesus never fails us, so we need not fail. The choir, with Mrs. Lumsdale Carr at the organ, sang "One Sweetly Solemn Thought."
