Chinook and Mutual make a deal

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG—A deal which has been rumored for months between Chinook Chemicals Limited and Mutual Products Limited is almost final, Chinook plant manager Keith Dingwall said.

"The purchase agreement has been signed by both parties. They're just waiting for a closing date to transfer the money," Dingwall stated.

Chinook Chemicals will be buying the equipment and property of Mutual Products, but Dingwall didn't wish to put a dollar figure on the value of property.

The owners of Mutual Products Ltd. are located in Minneapolis, Minnesota, and the company produced milk replacer and vealer for calves, but closed in June. "It's a declining industry because of dairy commission laws, and so on," Dingwall explained.

Chinook is a private Canadian company based in Vancouver, and maufactures a Vitamin B supplement for a pre-mix for poultry, hogs, and aquaculture such as shrimp.

Before closure, Mutual had eight employees on the payroll, while Chinook has a total staff of 15.

"We'll try to continue doing the business they were doing, and to continue servicing their customers," Dingwall stated. Chinook started supplying Mutual's customers as of July 1.

Mutual's Canadian customers are spread through a wide region in eastern Canada from eastern New Brunswick, to Western Ontario.

Since details of the agreement are to be finalized within a week or two, Chinook is "aggressively looking" at products to go through the dryer. Mutual has warehouse space which Chinook may also find useful.

Dingwall is currently overseeing operations at Chinook and Mutual, and has been helped by consultation from Mutual's former president Victor Wagemans, and a staff of four runs the eight to four shift. These include three previous employees at Mutual, and an employee from Chinook.

"It's our intention to increase the staff at Mutual if we can get something to run through the dryer," Dingwall said. Those under first consideration would be the company's remaining staff.

Asked how Chinook is faring in difficult economic times, Dingwall replied, "It's doing well. Most of the product goes overseas to the far east."

Chinook also owns a liquid facility in Sarnia, Canada, an office near Sarnia, a sales office in Toronto, and plants in North Branch, Minnesota, and Kansas, U.S.A. It is looking at expanding to Singapore and the Far East.

Calcium tank contaminates water supply

Water smells bad, tastes worse

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

INGLESIDE—The stuff might be safe to drink, but it tastes bad and it smells.

At least that's what Debra Dejong says about the quality of the water she's been receiving from the community well in the south-east corner of Osnabruck-Centre.

"There's a big difference between safe drinking water and good quality water," she told Osnabruck council last Monday.

Dejong attended the meeting because she was irked by a letter she received from the township which informed her that the conditioner and chlorinator she used for her water supply would no longer be picked up by the local government.

Council had decided to forego the $13 a month expense after reviewing the quality of the water supply on the Dejong property and determining that it was safe to drink.

But that wasn't fair, Dejong believed, because the township was responsible for destroying her private well.

A rotted calcium tank owned by the township had contaminated the Dejong well, forcing the owners of the property to hook up their system with the communal well.

"It wasn't my fault. When we purchased the house, we had one of the best wells in the county."

Dejong's problems with the new system began a little more than a year and a half ago when she noticed the water tasting flat and smelling of sulfur.

She said she had to plug her nose while brushing her teeth first thing in the morning or else she'd feel nauseous. Showering became a nightmare because of the sulphur bacteria build-up in the hot water supply.

Dejong had tried changing the pipes and tank to correct the problem but it was no use.

There was no option of building a replacement well on her own property because the water supply underneath was totally contaminated.

She'd have to live with the communal well, but at least she'd have the water testing machine to correct the problem, paid for by the township.

But that was several months ago, and things changed.

The township received virtually no other complaints from other neighbors using the same communal well.

Extensive chemical tests performed on the water in November by Bart Whitten of the Osnabruck Water/Sewer department determined the the iron content was too low for Dejong to continue qualifying for free water treatment.

As council couldn't afford supplement Dejong's system indefinitely, they decided at a meeting Sept.13 to discontinue paying the bills at the end of the month.

Infuriated by the decision, Dejong invited councillor Heinne Bruining over to her house to see for himself.

After tasting the water, Bruining agreed that Dejong wasn't imagining things.

"I wouldn't want to drink it and I wouldn't want to bathe in it," he revealed to council, sympathizing with Dejong's dilemma. "We have to do something."

Other councillor's agreed after being provided with fresh samples at the meeting.

NDP is concerned with domestic violence: Moss

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

WILLIAMSBURG—NDP candidate David Moss has been busy campaigning since his nomination a couple of weeks ago.

This weekend, he visited the Williamsburg Harvest Festival, to become better acquainted with Dundas County residents.

Door-to-door campaigning has been a priority in areas like Cornwall's east end, where Moss' fluent bilingualism is seen as an excellent asset He also plans a door-to-door approach in smaller communities like Long Sault, Ingleside, St. Andrews, Finch and Monkland.

Last week, Moss attended the second annual "Take Back the Night" march sponsored by Sexual Assault Support Services for Women of SD & G, and Akwesasne. He was moved by the testimonies of women concerning domestic violence and other forms of assault.

Setting up a support network, a legal system which tolerates domestic abuse and ways to combat violence were discussed.

The NDP would examine the whole issue of violence against women, and do more to fund women's shelters, he said.

"It's part of the whole jobs approach we have, including a national child care program which would guarantee many more spaces for child care. This allows jobs and women to take their place in the job market without worrying about spending all the money they make on taking care of children, which is self-defeating," he stated.

A big issue brought forward in this campaign is taxes. "The NDP is looking at a "fair" tax policy, so that the guy who owns the hotel pays as much tax as the maid who works there. This is not the case with the present tax system."

The NDP would probably close some tax loopholes, and gradually eliminate the GST over a period of several years, possibly replacing a portion of the tax with increased excise tax on cigarettes and alcohol.

While no party has all the answers, Moss said it was crucial for people to work together "to rebuild the economy and country that for nine years has been hacked to pieces by the policies of the present government."

Jobs continue to be a number one issue, he said. "You can't go anywhere without talking about jobs, the lack of jobs and the futility people have with being unemployed and being unable to be employed."

"People are very concerned, and are looking for solutions. They're very concerned with any party that is not talking about how to deal with job " he added.

"To consider free trade with the U.S. and Mexico after seeing the results of the last one, boggles my mind and certainly boggles the mind of most I come in contact with," he stated.

These people are very angry with the government who passed the NAFTA agreement before the election, and with some 37 Liberals for not standing up and being counted during the vote, he added.

A big issue Moss is hearing is credibility and accountability of politicians. "Do what you say you'll do. don't promise me something you have no intent in keeping," he said.

That's why Moss wants people to meet him personally, and form an impression of him as an individual, not primarily as a politician.

"As soon as people found out I was running for an election, they made all kinds of assumptions, asking 'What is your hidden agenda? What are you after?'" he said.

"If I believe in a policy, I'll tell you. And if I don't believe, I'll tell you too, whether it's ours or another government policy," he added.

Moss has found his forthright approach has been well received by those he meets on the campaign trail.

OPP crack down on smuggling

MORRISBURG—The Morrisburg Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police had a number of occurrences over the past week pertaining to illegal cigarettes and alcohol.

Monday evening, being the latest of five substantial incidences, three westbound vehicles were stopped on the 401 Highway where 48 cases of alcohol (288 1.7 liter bottles) and 480 cartons of cigarettes were confiscated.

This investigation, as well as the other four seizures of alcohol and cigarettes, were subsequently turned over to the RCMP.

Names are being withheld at the present time.

Reform Party not racist: Turner

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

IROQUOIS—The Reform Party is not, was not, and never will be a home for racists, bigots, or sexists, says local Stormont-Dundas candidate Annette Turner.

Discounting nagging criticisms that have plagued the Reform movement since its conception, Turner believes her party has been subjected to a particularly nasty smear campaign.

"If you brand someone a racist, it discounts everything they say," she argues, suggesting a possible motivation behind the continuing rumors.

"But anyone who speaks on issues of sensitivity is open to this kind of attack, that he or she's a redneck."

The issues she's referring to, of course, are the Reform's controversial positions on multiculturalism, immigration, bilingualism and affirmative-action.

Unlike the other political parties, Turner argues, Reformers have made their positions on these issues clear.

With regards to immigration, the party supports a policy that has Canada's economic needs as its focus, yet welcomes genuine refugees. It opposes immigration policies based on racial quotas.

Federal spending on multicultural programs would end, if the party were elected, as would comprehensive language legislation enforcing bilingualism.

And because Reformers believe all persons should be given the same opportunities, they're totally opposed to hiring quotas for women and minorities.

"We think they're demeaning," Turner argues, saying that she couldn't live with herself if she ever thought she'd been awarded a job based on any criteria other than ability.

"Equal opportunity is best promoted through education, employment training and disbanding systemic barriers to the system."

Several minority groups have objected these positions, believing they are insensitive and reactionary, and discretely placing blame on those least able to defend themselves.

Turner disagrees with these arguments, however, and defends her right to vocalize her opinions.

"We should be able to talk about these kinds of issues in a fair and rational way."

And Campaign Manager Doug Duncan adds:

"There is a great tendency to label people against anyone who's not on a very narrow, leftist track. It's ridiculous."

Turner says the party has been sensitive to address the particular problem of racism head-on, by booting-out any member even suspected of Neo-Nazi connections.

And she adds, the party has been active in trying to recruit women and members of visible minorities into the fold.

"Our director of the local-riding association, Richard Mitchell, he was born in Jamaica. And I'm a woman running as a candidate. So there you have it; judge for yourselves."

Of Mitchell, Turner adds:

"He has worked passionately and tirelessly for the party. If he wasn't there, we wouldn't exist."

Osnabruck water

While not noticing the foul smell Dejong had complained about, councillors Fran Laflamme and Doug Leighton did suggest the water seemed flat-tasting.

"Until we get to the bottom of this, and get this cleared up, we should rescind this letter and wait until the end of October, " Laflamme said. "Let's get to the bottom of this."

The rest of council agreed, and decided to wait until they'd heard back from Jeff Columbus, of the Ministry of the Environment, before making any permanent settlement with Dejong.

"That's all we can do," said Reeve Gordon Ross. "We'll wait and see what he's going to say."

Relieved by the decision, but still frustrated nonetheless, Dejong left council chambers still apprehensive of what's to come.

"We'll see what they come up with; I'm pleased that they're continuing to pay."

In an earlier emotional outburst, Dejong had threatened to bring in a lawyer to sue the township for negligence.

Council has decided to press forward with plans to widen and expand Farran Drive in preparation for a future development projected for the surrounding area.

Road Superintendent Larry Ezard has been given the go-ahead to begin bulldozing and cleaning out the brush to prepare the site for developers.

Council has also instructed Whitten to draw up plans for water lines and sewer piping and has hired McNeely Engineering to prepare a profile for the road.

It's anticipated that tenders will be taken sometime in January and construction will begin soon after that; initial estimates place the projected cost of the project at $250,000.

Council rejected a local entrepreneur's bid to reopen a gravel pit in an area designated for farm-use only.

Leland McPhail had come to council with an application requesting his property be rezoned for mineral extraction.

He said he'd been to the Ministry and already received their approval. All he needed was council's endorsement before reopening the facility which had run unlicensed years earlier.

But after receiving a petition from neighbors opposed to the proposal, and hearing the views of local neighbors at a public meeting, council decided not to proceed.

Bruining thought the proposal was too close to the town; councillor Oscar Ouderkirk was concerned about dust and Laflamme worried about the number of trucks going up and down the roads.

Only councillor Leighton supported the proposal, which would allow McPhail to extract 22,000 tonnes a year, meaning continuous work for one-and-a-months a year, but without blasting or drilling.

Because the talks were extremely heated - at one point Ouderkirk and McPhail were standing up and screaming at one another- the Reeve wisely decided to postpone the vote until the end of the meeting.

Upon hearing his rejection, McPhail stormed out of council chambers, slamming the door behind him.

He vowed he would take the decision to higher authorities, meaning the Ontario Municipal Board, and get a favorable response from them.

On a happier note; Osnabruck planner Hilton Cryderman has been awarded the Ontario Building Officials' Association Certificate, meaning he's now qualified to use the title "Certified Building Code Official in Ontario." It's an award recognizing his accomplishment in completing a number of courses over the last five years, and it makes him certified as a building code official anywhere in Ontario.

After receiving a plaque from the Reeve, Gordon Ross, Cryderman reflected on what the new title would mean to him in years to come.

"It allows me, I guess, to put an extra few initials behind my name."

35 and still going strong

The Riverside Heights Women's Institute recently celebrated 35 years of service in the area with a special gathering at the recreation hall last month. Pictured are charter members and all past presidents: (rear) Rachel Schwerdtfeger, Irene Cole, Barbara Bern, Evelyn Wells; and (front) Maxine Link, Doris Erratt and Lillian Casselman.

Riverside Heights celebrates

Women's Institute hits 35

BY LAURIE DAY AND DORIS ERRATT

RIVERSIDE HTS—There was a packed house at the recreation hall here recently as the Riverside Women's Institute celebrated its' 35th anniversary.

The ladies present were representing other women's institutes in the area including Morrisburg, Ingleside, Matilda Township, Winchester and Chesterville.

Some of the ladies at the celebration were four charter members and they were Agnes Marcellus, Maxine Link, and two members who are still active, Lillian Casselman and Doris Erratt.

Past presidents present were Doris Erratt, Lillian Casselman, Rachel Schwerdtfeger, Irene Cole, Barbara Bern, and Evelyn Wells.

As part of the special celebration, a memorial service was held for eight charter members and 15 others who died in the 35 years since the inception of the RWI.

The ladies were also entertained by some local talent, Lance Cassell and Holly Johnston.

Cassell recited three poems, one of which won his claim to fame on Homegrown Cafe last year.

Johnston sang "It's My Party", a song that she recorded for Homegrown Cafe as well.

Both youngsters delighted their audience and left them wanting more.

Erratt, who is the first vice president of the Riverside Women's Institute gave a little history on the RWI.

"This is the youngest Women's Institute in Dundas County," she said. "It was organized in June of 1958 after the subdivision was established by Ontario Hydro with 26 charter members.

"The first home was SSNo.4, Williamsburg School which was moved from near Cook's Tavern, near Anchor Bay.

"The school was used as a temporary school until a new one was built, and now the Women's Institute shares the recreation hall.

"We remember sick members, give Christmas baskets to shut-ins, have sewed for Children's Aid and helped fire victims," said Erratt.

"We've also had bicycle rodeos and supported 4H for many years, and we give an award to Seaway District High School (yearly scholarships)."

The Women's Institute also bought a wheelchair for Winchester District Memorial Hospital in 1978 and donated to the lift at Park Lane Villa at Williamsburg in 1984.

The RWI has been helping different charities in the area for a celebrated 35 years.

Whatever the ladies of the institute can do to help out in a time of need, whether it be collecting funds, clothing or food, these ladies are the first to help in a time of crisis.

To raise their charitable donations, they often have bake and yard sales, do catering, and even help out by offering whatever cash they can at their monthly meetings.

The Women's Institute is always looking for new members, and sometimes it's not easy to get the young members out.

There are often other commitments with young women now, and as Riverside member, Bev Brown put it, "We'd welcome them with open arms."

Just this year, a commemorative stamp was released marking the accomplishments of four ladies, one of which was Adelaide Sophia Hoodless, who founded the first Women's Institute in 1897, which soon spread across Canada and around the world.

Candidates debate produces few surprises

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

CORNWALL–Round two of the local All Candidates Debates ended with the contenders tossing out a few jabs but not delivering any knock-out punches.

Faced with time restrictions and the difficulty of conducting an effective debate between seven candidates, Rotary organizers chose to give each candidate a three minute opening address, followed by a brief question and answer period and a one minute wrap-up.

Unfortunately, this set-up prevented the candidates from seriously engaging with one another over specific policies.

What was left was much political bantering for positions and image-building: Liberal candidate Bob Kilger reminded voters of his Cornwall heritage; PC candidate Leslie Ault continued on her party's familiar theme of the need to reduce government spending; NDP candidate David Moss lashed out at the GST and Free Trade; and Annette Turner of the Reform Party spoke of the need for the "grassroots" to rise-up and reclaim government.

The other three candidates present- Ian Campbell of the Natural Law Party, Reginald Landry of the Commonwealth of Canada Party and the National Party's Andy Boyle - used the opportunity provided to them from the debate to introduce voters to their parties major platforms.

But it was obvious from the response of Rotary Club members - not one question was asked directly to one of the fringe candidates - that the majority had come to here the major players speak.

A question directed at Kilger and Ault concerning how to solve the deficit problem brought out a brief flurry of exchanges.

Kilger questioned the Tories' sincerity in eliminating the deficit in five years, saying he was suspicious because they'd been in power for nine-and-a-half years and accomplished little. He said the Liberal plan of targeting the deficit to three per cent of GDP was "reasonable, yet achievable."

Ault fought back, attacking the Liberals on the Inherited debt they'd left behind 9-and-a-half years ago.

"The Liberals spent $1.33 for every $1 they were taking in. We spent $.98 for every $1. It's that kind of thinking that's going to eliminate the deficit.""

Another question, directed at Ault, Kilger and Turner, focussed on the party positions concerning the dollar.

Turner reaffirmed the Reform's position that the dollar should be left to float on its own without government interference; Ault disagreed, tying her answer to the need to keep inflation and interest rates low; and Kilger questioned the Tories record, arguing the case for intervention to keep the dollar down and exports up.

"See what happens when you have only one focus (driving inflation down at all costs). You're left with the dilemma we're in today."

Perhaps the most serious exchange came from a question concerning smuggling.

After hearing Ault infer that the Liberal candidate had done nothing to address the issue while in Ottawa during a parliamentary discussion over an export tax bill, Kilger jumped out of his chair and answered out of turn, ignoring repeated attempts by the referees to silence him:

"It was not a bill to start with; it never went to the House of Commons. The bill was an order in council."

A rather amusing point in the debate came after Ault suggested to opponents of free trade that the only party willing to rip up the deal was the NDP.

The PC candidate argued that the Liberal party would never back out of Free Trade or NAFTA and pointed to the futility in trying to renegotiate a done-deal.

Taking this as opportunity to steal potential Liberal votes, Moss used it to his advantage:

"I'd like to thank Leslie Ault for endorsing my campaign," he said, jokingly.

Ault later assured the NDP candidate that her comments shouldn't be construed that way and that she was completely comfortable with the Tories position on the issue.

This exchange was among the highlights of a rather tame affair, one that gave voters of Stormont-Dundas little to look forward to in the coming weeks.

The debate was held Monday afternoon at the Ramada Inn in Cornwall. Other debated scheduled include Oct. 12 at the Porto Bello Restaurant in Cornwall at 7:30 p.m., Oct. 14 at the Cornwall Chmaber of Commerce at 7:30 p.m, and Oct. 18 at North Dundas High School (time to be announced). Roger's Cable also will be holding a debate live at 7 p.m. from it's Pitt Street studio.

Winners announced

WILLIAMSBURG—Members of the Williamsburg Township Senior Citizens held their bi-weekly euchre Wednesday, September 29 at the Municipal Building here.

In the ladies' division the winners were Leila Helmer, Elizabeth Brooks and Enid Dalrymple, while for the men it was Graham Pemberton, Orval Christie and Keith Scott.

Muriel Gow and Audrey Whitteker were the door prize winners, and Helen Cameron, Gwen Pemberton, Ralph Casselman, Doreen Winters, Kezia Wells, Graham Pemberton, Loretta Crowder, Leila Helmer and Evelyn Swerdfeger were the draw winners.

The next euchre will be held on Wednesday, October 13th, and everyone is welcome.

National Party candidate attacks hyphenated-Canadianism

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

MORRISBURG—Andy Boyle never imagined running as a candidate in a federal election campaign.

When he'd called the National Party headquarters several weeks ago, it had been to volunteer on behalf of the local candidate.

Inspired by Mel Hurtig's book, The Betrayal of Canada, Boyle wanted to see what he could do to help promote the National Party leader's ideas in Stormont-Dundas.

Shortly after that, he was the candidate.

"They didn't have anyone locally," Boyle explains. "And after a lot of talk with my wife, kids and neighbors, I thought I'd give it a shot."

And he's glad he did.

The National Party candidate was in town last Thursday, handing out leaflets and carousing with local voters, trying to get the voters to take him and his party seriously.

Stopping for a pack of smokes at a local pharmacy, he took the time to greet each of the customers and staff in the store personally. He'd carefully go over the party's platforms for as long as his audience would listen.

"You have to be really confident to take this on, with all the rejections," Boyle would later admit. "But when you see what the alternatives are, you've got to choose. It's easy to get involved in something if you're mad enough and fed up enough."

What attracted him to run more than anything else, Boyle says, was the National Party's position that all Canadians should be considered equal and none given preferential treatment.

Dismayed by the traditional parties' "divide and conquer" approach to politics, he was looking for an inclusionary alternative, one that appealed to everyone, and not just special interest groups, be they French or English, black or white, men or women.

As a former union leader who'd fought on behalf of the NDP's David Barrett, Boyle was especially disappointed in how his old party was choosing local candidates.

The NDP's affirmative-action policy for selecting candidates, Boyle believes, was not only "reverse discrimination," but also unpractical and dangerous.

"If you are going to compete, you want the best. So why should we discriminate? I can't believe in a party that discriminates against certain Canadians."

The other main reason for running, Boyle says, was to save the family farm.

"Every other party wants to eliminate farm subsidies, marketing boards and milk quotas Without these kinds of protections, it will be the death of the entire industry."

A former international trade negotiator, Boyle remains passionately against both NAFTA and the G.S.T. He'd like to see larger corporations pay a higher proportion of the tax load and an end to political donations from foreign interests.

But most importantly, Boyle would like to see a strong, united Canada working together again for a common purpose.

"It's time everyone contributed, regardless of ideology or background, to use their abilities to get things done."

That's what happened in Avonmore, Boyle argues, when Canada Post threatened to close the local office down.

As a local activist at the time, he noticed the community slowly but surely knitting together as a formidable front to keep the office open.

"And you know what, our post office is still there."

By holding binding referendums and building a more open, honest decision-making process, Boyle hopes to apply the same techniques nationally.

"If voters ask the right questions, and compare the policies, that's all I'm asking, then we'll win. It's time for a change, but a sensible change."

So, What do you think?
National Party candidate Andy Boyle was in Morrisburg last Thursday distributing campaign pamphlets and meeting with voters. Here he discusses some of his party's platforms with Dawn Roughton, of Winchester Springs.

Time to give thanks

Next Monday, October 11th marks the observance in Canada of the Festival of Thanksgiving, an observance that was first marked on this North American continent at the Plymouth colony in Massachussets on November 21st, 1621. In Canada, Thanksgiving has also been linked to the old English Harvest Home Festival, and is now observed on the second Monday in October.

Although for a great many people the original deeply religious significance of the feast has been relegated to a secondary position, it is nevertheless the last holiday before the onset of the long, cold Canadian winter, and it has become a favorite occasion for family gatherings and feasting, for jollity and celebrations.

In spite of the many troubles which plague most of us at one time or another, surely most of us can still find a great deal for which to be thankful. Although we have the highest unemployment ever, we also have the most generous unemployment benefits anywhere. Many of us, to be sure, are dissatisfied, disappointed and angry with our government, but we have a civilized way of changing it without either bombs or bullets. We enjoy comparative freedom from disease and famine, and we still have the best health care system in the world, freely available to all.

All of us can afford to reflect on our good fortune and to give thanks to a kindly Providence for the blessings which we enjoy. A happy holiday to all.

Where there's smoke, there's fire

GET OUT AND STAY OUT—YOUR FIRE SAFE RESPONSE, is the theme of this year's Fire Prevention Week.

From October 3 to 9, firefighters across Canada will stress the importance of not entering a burning building. Statistics prove that most people who go back inside either die or are seriously burned.

According to Fire Prevention Canada, a partnership of organizations dedicated to prevention by education, Canada's death rate from fire is the second highest in the world, at approximately 500 a year. Every year in the U.S.A and in Canada, approximately 6500 people die in building fires, and each year 120,000 are injured or permanently disfigured. An estimated 85 per cent of fire deaths occur in homes.

The keys to fire safety are education, prevention, and protection. Morrisburg Fire Prevention officer John Vaughan warns that fire can happen to anyone. Most fatal fires start at night when people are asleep.

The most frequent cause of fires is careless smoking. Faulty heating and electrical equipment is second. The third most frequent cause is careless cooking, resulting too often in incidents like grease fires.

Vaughan says properly maintained smoke alarms are the first line of defense, and offer the early warning needed for escape. Every building should have smoke detectors, and best protection is provided when alarms are installed outside each sleeping area and each level of the home including the basement.

Alarm maintenance includes monthly testing and yearly replacement of batteries. Alarms may be tested with a smoldering string or candle, and should be checked for corrosion. Occasionally dust may be vacuumed from the smoke detector chamber.

The installation of automatic fire sprinklers in the home can help reduce fatalities. Sprinklers do not rely upon human factors such as familiarity with escape routes or emergency assistance. They go to work immediately to reduce the danger.

Sprinklers are activated by heat not smoke. During a fire, the sprinkler head is activated and suppresses the fire, providing additional time to exit the building safely.

During the fire, only sprinklers closest to the fire will activate, limiting the total amount of water needed. Loss records of Factory Mutual Research indicate that the probability of a sprinkler discharging accidentally due to a manufacturing defect is 1 in 16,000,000.

Every family should have an escape plan. Since fire often blocks a door or window, the plan should show at least two exits from each room and a safe meeting place outside the house. It is important to go over the escape plan with your family, and to practice home fire drills.

Before opening a bedroom door during a fire, kneel or crouch and touch the door. If the door feels hot, there is fire on the other side, and you should use a different exit. If the door feels cool, open slightly to check for smoke. And if there is none, leave by the planned escape route.

When people detect a fire, or hear a smoke alarm, they should raise the alarm to clear the house. Children and the elderly or disabled may require help to leave.

If a building is smoke-filled, those escaping should crawl under the smoke, as heat and toxic gases rise.

At the meeting place, someone can call the fire department from a neighbour's house. Mark the street address of your home, the neighbour's home, and the fire department phone number on your plan.

Tell firefighters if anyone is trapped inside. And above all, never go back inside the burning building for any reason.

This Week In Morrisburg's History

The Ministry of Environment warned Morrisburg council that funds available for assistance in revamping the municipal sanitary trunk sewer were still in reserve and there was no guarantee how long it would last. Council heard the news officially from a letter from their engineer, Derek Wilson, at the Monday night meeting. Wilson said council should deal immediately with the situation because the matter was going to have long-range implications with respect to the development of the community.

About 100 members of the Ontario Public Service Employees Union arrived at Upper Canada Village by bus to demonstrate against hourly wage cuts of $2 for the Village's contract employees. Union spokesman Ron Haggett of Ottawa said the protesters, all public employees from the Eastern Ontario region, were concerned that the 60 seasonal employees here were getting paid less for doing the same job as the previous year.

An official plan of Morrisburg, obtained by the Township of Russell, was to be purchased for $50. Council made the decision despite village clerk Lloyd Barkley's admonition that most of the land on the plan was under water. The colored plans described precisely all buildings within the village. They also contained a key that make identifiable wooden, brick or stone buildings, industries, stores, dwellings, sheds, services, streets and public buildings.

The regulated level of Lake Ontario dropped 2.9 feet from the end of May peak of 248 feet, however the upstream Great Lakes were at or near record levels for this time of year. Consequently, the inflow of water to Lake Ontario would continue to be above normal and there remained the possibility of some flooding during 1974. Therefore, the International St. Lawrence River Board of Control, pursuant to the Order of Approval of the International Joint Commission, was continuing to approve the maximum discharges from Lake Ontario permitted by the international agreement.

The Cardinal Pats were crowned the best senior "B" ball team in all of Ontario on Thanksgiving weekend. They defeated North Bay in two games to take the championship, a pennant and crests before a large home-town crowd. The Pats mowed down Belleville, Oshawa, Toronto and Waterloo before meeting the only other team to go as far. Ted Hoy and Larry Patterson were just two of the outstanding players on the team.

At a recent meeting of the Morrisburg Recreation Committee, Bill Dillabough announced that there would be public skating every Saturday evening from 8-10 p.m. and on December 26th from 2-4 p.m.. He also said that the arena would be reserved for senior citizens only, every Wednesday afternoon from 2-4 p.m. and was to be offered free of charge.

Headlines in the October 4th issue of The Leader read: Plan additions at Upper Canada Village. A maple sugar industry was to be the next major attraction at Upper Canada followed by a pioneer cheese factory. Seeding was finished on nine holes of the 18-hole golf course which was being built opposite the village. The nine holes were expected to be ready by June 15, 1964.

Bob Barclay, Morrisburg's light-footed ball carrier completed three touchdowns to lead the Blue Tornados to a 27-19 victory over South Mountain. Cameron Dillabough connected for one and Bill Duvall balanced the score with three converts. Barclay ran 255 yards in rushing and returned several punts for 60 yards. Wayne Smith was next in range with 65 years rushing.

In the October 13th issue of the Leader, it was reported that the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission was pressing for an immediate start on a new highway to skirt the proposed St. Lawrence deep waterway between Prescott and Cornwall. An immediate start was desired to prevent traffic tie-ups once the work was started on the waterway, which wasn't expected for five years.

At the House of Treasures, Iroquois, Irish linen tea towels were 65 cents each and colorful printed cotton tablecloths were $2.95.

Mr. J. Cole, and Miss M. Galvin physical education instructors at Morrisburg High School, organized the annual track and field meet which was a preliminary to the Meikle Track and Field meet coming up at Cornwall. In the senior boys' events, Lee Wells was the top point-getter, and Marilyn Meikle was the senior girls' leader. At the junior level Leland VanAllen was first followed closely by Roger Bouchard and Carole Caloren won the girls with Inez Casselman, second.

"Call Me Madame" starring Ethel Merman and Donald O'Connor was playing at the Cameo Theatre, and the Picadilly in Williamsburg was showing "Girl who had Everything" with Elizabeth Taylor and William Powell.

On October 1st, the morning and evening editions of the Ottawa Citizen were merging to create a greater evening newspaper to serve Ottawa and the valley.

McDonell Motor Sales, Morrisburg, was having a sensational summer clearance sale of reconditioned and guaranteed used cars and trucks. A 1951 Pontiac Sedan was selling for $1,375 and a 1947 Hudson Sedan could be purchased for $895.

The October 8th issue of The Leader reported that D.S. Willard of Morrisburg had joined the R.C.A.F. at Ottawa.

A letter of appreciation from Fred McLean was printed. McLean wrote: "for over 30 years my dad and I have been drawing the mail between Morrisburg and Chesterville". Due to changes in the route by the Postal Department, he had decided to quit.

An interested party concerned with the condition of the Morrisburg Golf Course wrote a letter to The Leader suggesting the following: I suggest that we follow the example of many golf courses of our allies across the line, to purchase a few sheep, build a small corral in the gully where they can be driven at night, and hire a smart boy and a dog to shepherd them each day to an assigned part of the fairway. Sheep would do a better job than any mower, because they crop closely around obstacles. The government has also asked the country to raise more sheep to increase wool supply for war materials. The sheep would more than pay for themselves at the end of the season in these days of meat rationing.

Construction work was to begin on the $2.5 million addition to Courtalds (Canada) Ltd. at Cornwall. The addition was to provide employment to 400 persons bringing the total employment there to 2,000.

At the Red and White Store, Lock Street, peanuts were 15 cents a pound and pineapple tarts were 23 cents a pound.

Winchester High School captured the Meikle trophy as the team carried off the highest honors at the Cornwall track meet. Winchester's three-man track and field team piled up 27 points. Cornwall was second with 20 points and Morrisburg was third with 13 points.

Letters to the Editor

Editor, The Morrisburg Leader,
Morrisburg, Ontario

Dear Editor — I am a retired person living near Napanee, Ontario. My small house overlooks a bay of Lake Ontario where Canada geese stop in their flight to the Gulf of Mexico. The trees are changing color. It is idyllic. But all I can see this autumn is a dark set of political and economic changes being locked down onto the land. The geese will return with spring. But our democracy, our control of our economy, our right to be a self-governing nation may be difficult to get back.

I am talking about NAFTA. It is not just a commercial treaty. It is a new constitution for the continent, designed to disempower our governments. For example, Canadians have long prided ourselves on our superb medical system. Per capita, Canadians spend 1/2 of what Americans spend on medical services, and everyone in Canada has full and equal access to treatment. But now as recession and rising costs threaten our medical system, NAFTA requires that drug companies be given extended patent rights, costing us an extra $1,000,000,000 in medical costs. Under NAFTA, future Canadian governments have no power to undo this. It's permanent.

Another example, Article 1213 and Annex 1210 direct the NAFTA trade commission to set common professional license standards for Canada, the US, and Mexico. But the licensing of doctors, lawyers, dentists, architects, etc. is provincial and state jurisdiction. How can a trade treaty change that?

Another example, this one from the 1988 Free Trade Agreement but strengthened in NAFTA. When there is a trade dispute between Canada and the US, it is referred to a tribunal for a decision. The tribunal decides, not whether one side is acting unfairly, not whether one side has violated the treaty, but whether US trade laws are being applied correctly. The US constitution defines the courts that will adjudicate US laws. But a trade treaty changes that. Permanently.

It makes me heartsick the way NAFTA is being forced down on us with duplicity, with slick talk from celebrities, with every effort to keep people from knowing what is happening to them. NAFTA has been rammed through Canada's Parliament with only six hours of debate. The US fast-track procedure similarly blocks Congressmen from questioning the details of the treaty. And Mexico has no democracy at all. The corporate lobby for NAFTA is the largest in history, spending over $100,000,000. Should a treaty that is supposed to benefit us require so much promotion and bribery?

NAFTA can only be stopped in two ways: In Canada, the pro-NAFTA candidates of the Conservative and Reform parties must be defeated in the present federal elections. In the United States, NAFTA could be stopped in Congress if citizens would bring their Congressmen to reject it.

Americans don't know what free-trade means. Canadians do. We have lost 25 per cent of our industry, 400,000 jobs gone in a population the size of California's. Canadian unemployment is double that of the US. Canada is the world's first nation to experience "Deindustrialization," thanks to free-trade.

Myself, and a few friends, in our small community, have felt frustrated and powerless. We hope that by writing letters to small newspapers, in small communities, to concerned citizens like ourselves, we might somehow inform and encourage enough people to stop NAFTA. Please.

Sincerely,

Kilger says Liberals were right on jobs issue

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

WILLIAMSBURG—The Williamsburg Fall Harvest Festival was just one stop in Stormont Dundas Liberal MP Bob Kilger's busy campaign Saturday.

Kilger met volunteers early at the campaign office, and by 9.00 a.m. greeted Williamsburg reeve Johnny Whitteker at the I.O.O.F. Breakfast in the Town Fire Hall.

Later on, he was to attend the SD & G Highlanders ceremony at Cornwall City Hall, pay respects at a 60th wedding anniversary, and go to a Knights of Columbus Awards Night.

Three weeks into the campaign, Kilger said he is pleased with the results, but isn't taking anything for granted.

A better organization before this election has helped in this campaign, compared to the 1988 election, when the Liberal nomination took place the same day as the writ was issued.

An impressive team of about 200 volunteers is assisting with all angles of the campaign, from fund-raising, signage and advertising to telephone canvassing.

Most political parties conduct telephone surveys of the riding to identify supporters, and offer assistance such as rides or day care to get the voters out on election day.

Campaign headquarters Diane Poirier said results of the survey have been favorable so far.

Although Kilger is pleased with the response to date, he promises, "We won't let up one bit. We want to win October 25 in SD & G and want to be part of a majority Liberal government."

Asked for his reaction to polls which suggest Liberals are ahead of the Tories by 12 to 15 per cent, Kilger said, "Personally I remain not indifferent to polls, but I try not to get too high when polls are good, or too low when they are not favorable."

As for issues, Kilger said he thinks the Liberals have correctly identified jobs as the first priority for voters.

"When you have 1.6 million people unemployed, that's unacceptable, and to say we're going to wait for the recession to come to an end," he stated.

"The present government would have us wait for the American economy to turn around and other world economies so we might benefit. The Liberals see government as a far greater instrument for the benefit of Canadians, and we're not shy about intervening at a critical time in our history in a situation that's not acceptable."

Kilger went on to explain the Party's two-pronged approach to the economic slump. In the short term, the Liberals propose a municipal infrastructure program "which could be critical to different initiatives in our riding."

These include the Cornwall waterfront development, and a water infrastructure project in Winchester.

"This is one of the most fundamental infrastructure projects anyone could get involved in. It's right, proper and responsible to become involved in funding that type of infrastructure."

The long-term approach seeks to bring about economic recovery through such initiatives as on the job training (Canadian Apprenticeship Program), and the Canadian Youth Service Corps. Investment in small business would be encouraged through measures to end the credit crunch.

A Canada Investment Fund, jointly funded by the private sector, federal and provincial governments and managed by the private sector would encourage industrial investment. A national agri-food policy would be set up to support farm families with long-term support.

After Sunday's debate on French television, and Monday's debate on the English network, Kilger commented on Liberal leader Jean Chretien's performance. "He successfully demonstrated he's in touch with the issues affecting the average Canadian."

"Liberals have been talking about jobs and the need for job creation programs. During the debates, Mr. Chretien stressed the programs are a Liberal priority, no other participant stated their position as clearly as Mr. Chretien," he added.

"Despite opposition attacks against Mr. Chretien, voters see the man as he really is, a Prime Minister in waiting, an experienced leader ready to do the job necessary to help Canada become a great nation once again."

Stormont Dundas residents will soon be able to judge the local candidates for themselves in debates starting next week. Roger's Community Television in Cornwall will hold a phone-in debate on Wednesday, October 13.

Thursday, October 14 at 7.30 p.m, the Cornwall Chamber of Commerce debate will be held at the Cornwall Civic Complex .

On Monday, October 18, at North Dundas High School, there will be a debate sponsored by the Ontario Federation of Agriculture and highlighting agriculture and rural issues.

Be patient, Ault says

No short-term solution for jobless

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

MORRISBURG—There's not much the government can do in the short term to relieve unemployment, says Leslie Ault, Conservative candidate for Stormont-Dundas.

"If your asking me to wave the magic wand, and say, tomorrow you've got a job, no, I can't say that's going to be done. I don't think any realistic government can say that."

The only effective method of solving the unemployment crisis, she suggests, is to attract business investment by keeping interest rates and inflation low and reducing the deficit.

Ault was in town Wednesday, campaigning in various locations around town, including the Hartford Home, Rohm and Haas, Odonto, Eckel, Beaver Dental, Morris Glen Court, and the Shopping Plaza. She made a pit stop at the law firm, McInnis-MacEwen, her former employer, before lunching at the New Centennial Restaurant.

It was there she relaxed for a few minutes with local Tories Earl Baker and Doug Grenkie and discussed how her party would revitalize the economy if reelected.

Ault believes the private sector creates jobs, not the government.

"If you want a job, Oct. 26, or today, or something like that, without fixing up the economy, it just has to be a bought job. What the Conservatives are saying is that they (government-created jobs) are only short-term; they just sound good, but they are very, very expensive to the country so we can't go about it that way."

She suggests people who aren't working should return to school or join one of the government-sponsored retraining programs.

Pointing to serious abuses in the welfare system, she suggests revamping social assistance to encourage people back to work.

But for those already highly trained yet still unemployed, such as the estimated 50 per cent unemployed law school graduates from 1993, Ault sees no easy solutions.

"How do get a job for these people? You can do a real short-term expensive one, but I don't think its a real one, through government spending, or you can fix your house in order, get all the elements of a healthy economy back in."

Pointing to the growth in exports, as well as the low inflation and interest rates, Ault believes skilled Canadians won't have to wait much longer.

"Jobs will come. I think it's going to be sooner than later."

Grenkie agrees, providing Canadians choose the Conservatives to lead the economy again.

"Once business knows there's going to be a strong, stable government looking after the economy, than they'll be ready to expand."

And Ault hopes to attract many of the high-tech service industries to the local area, which she believes have the biggest potential for growth:

"We're set up here for that. With the retraining, why can't it be Stormont-Dundas that gets those jobs?"

Mistake costly for Morrisburg Hydro

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

MORRISBURG—A misidentified property line marker has cost the Morrisburg Hydro Commission between $500 and 1,000 for parts and rented equipment, plus labor costs, which could include one week's work for a staff of three.

"A mistake was made," admits Hydro Commissioner John Allison. "But trying to assess who was responsible is another chore in itself."

Earlier this summer, as part of an extensive, system-wide rewiring project, Hydro Foreman Dan Rice and a team of workers had laid down a new set of poles behind Fred Hill's Trailer Court.

And just last week, they were back at it, redoing the same spot over again. Only this time, they had to dig the old poles out and move them back three feet southwards to ensure they were on the Hill property.

When the Hydro team put the original poles in, Allison says, the trailers were so close to the edge of the Hill property that it was hard to accurately locate the line.

No one thought of conducting a survey at the time because hydro officials deemed it too expensive.

Hydro workers relied on Hill's vague estimation of where his property line ended and developer Les Cruikshank's bare property began.

Avoiding sewer and gas lines running along the same corridor, the team aligned the poles as tightly to the Hill property line as they thought advisable.

"We thought we were doing the right thing at the time, but things change," Rice said.

When Cruikshank began building a subdivision behind the trailer court, he did a survey of his own.

Discovering three poles encroaching on his property, Cruikshank proposed a blanket easement settlement, meaning the poles could stay where they were providing the two sides reached a financial agreement.

But he also wanted to construct a fence along the southern edge of the new properties to divide them from the Trailer Court, making accessibility difficult for hydro workers.

After examining all the alternatives, the hydro commission decided to go for the most cost-efficient method and move the poles.

"In the long-run, it was the best deal for Morrisburg-Hydro," Allison said.

After renting a back-hoe and hiring an electrical contractor, the commission instructed Rice and his men to return to the original site .

Concerning the renovations, Rice has no comment:

"I just do what I'm told."

Neither he, nor the hydro commissioner, nor Hill or anyone else involved in the misadventure has been willing so far to point fingers and assign blame.

Yet as Charlie Cassell, a financial contracter working on the Cruikshank property pointed out, someone made the original decision.

"Somebody would have to tell them where to put the poles."

This past week, the team hit some water lines in the south-west corner, which have complicated matters further still.

They've still managed to transfer virtually all the lines and primary feed cables, and should be finished attaching the new transformers and laying down the final pole by the end of the week.

Lottery launched

The Children's Hospital Foundation's successful lottery, "Dream of a Lifetime III" was launched Friday, October 1st.

First prize includes a choice of one of three dream homes in Kanata Lakes, Ethan Allen furniture, a 1994 Buick Regal, interior decorating, groceries for one year, lawn irrigation services, a trip for two to Vancouver, one year's playing privileges at Kanata Lakes Golf and Country Club - and that's just first prize! Forty-nine other prizes will be given away! An early bird draw will be held on November 15th for a chance to win a trip for two to Paris and the final draw will be held on December 1st.

Tickets will be on sale for $100 each, and will be available at the Royal Bank, Bank of Montreal, CIBC, Scotia Bank and the Dream Hot Line at 738-3235.

All the proceeds will benefit the CHEO research building.

My trip to Laurin's Hair Salon

Just Another Day
by Laurie Day

I was a bit skeptical at first. After all, when she called me, she caught me off guard.

"Come on over for a facial and a manicure," Helen Laurin told me.

"What, is this some kind of trick or something?"

"No, come right now!" she implored.

"Well, I'm kind of busy, and won't be free for another hour or so," I told her.

"Okay, then, that will be fine."

I hung up wondering just what had I gotten myself into to.

Soon after, however, I was ushered into the rear of the recently redecorated hair salon and was introduced to new lady on the block, Loretta MacFarlane.

"Now take off your shirt and put on this jacket (a plastic coat they use when cutting or coloring hair) but don't put it on backward," instructed Helen.

I could have sworn she said "put it on backward," so out I come from the change room with this jacket on backward. Boy, did they laugh.

"No!" Helen squealed. "I said, don't put it on backward. Now, go change it around."

How embarrassing.

After that was all straightened out, and I had kicked my boots off, I was then wheeled to the comfy (dentist-like) chair, where "Miss Loretta" wrapped me up in a sheet and took off all my makeup.

After a bit of a scrub, Cathy Thompson—my co-worker—thought it would be kind of neat to take some before and after shots of me in my vulnerable state.

Soon the laughing subsided and Loretta went back to work on my face. Hot cloths were applied to open and clean the pores. A gentle face massage, or manipulations as Loretta calls it, and some moisturizing was next followed by the wax.

"Wax?!"

"This wax will really clean the pores," said Loretta. "I will put on three layers, and after the first one, I will apply a piece of cheese cloth to hold the wax layers together."

Paraffin therapy is ideal for dry skin, she told me. The heat and oils present in the paraffin will open pores, release toxins and allow treatment creams to penetrate into the deeper skin layers. This process will feed vital moisture and proteins into the cells.

On went the first layer of wax and I almost sat bolt upright in the chair. It was a tad warm, but I managed to remain in my horizontal position. Once I calmed down, it was kind of relaxing.

"Now you can't move your face," Loretta instructed once she got all three layers of wax on. Next came the cucumbers.

"These sliced cucumbers are great for taking the bags out from under your eyes," she said. I could just imagine what I looked like.

Before too long, over came Cathy again to take more pictures.

"Boy, you're brave," Loretta said. "I'd be hiding by now."

"Why, do I look that ridiculous?"

No comment.

Cathy got another chuckle, but I had to remain motionless. Believe me, this was sure hard to do.

Soon, my 10 minutes were up and Loretta was tugging off the wax starting from the neck and pulling up over my head. This type of wax, wax, doesn't remove hair, I was told. It just hardens like a candle.

Hot paraffin treatments have been used for years by doctors and physical therapists to soothe the pain of arthritis, bursitis, tendonitis and swollen feet. This therapy reduces swelling in muscles and decreases inflammation of joints and connective tissues.

They also did this paraffin treatment on my hands. It is an ideal conditioning treatment before the manicure. It softens cuticles making them easy to push back while not harming sculptured nails. (Ha!)

One look at my nails and Loretta was laughing up a storm again. "You bite your nails!" she shrieked. Then she tattled on me to Helen, and I got a lecture from them both. But before I left, I promised that I would not bite them again—well at least for a week. (I'm proud to say, that no I haven't bitten them yet, and it hasn't even been tempting.)

This paraffin therapy on my hands was quite remarkable. I dipped my hands in the melted wax and withdrew it after five seconds to allow the first coat to form a bit of a shell. Two more dips later, I was wrapped up in plastic bags—on just my hands now—then I was bundled in oven mitts without thumbs. Again I sat for 10 minutes while the wax treatment did its thing.

This wax peeled off my hands as easily as it did my face, and then I was sent to the manicure table.

A shampoo and blow dry was next on the agenda, and finally, the finishing touches at the make-up mirror.

"Who is that in the mirror?" I asked, "I know it isn't me." They laughed—again.

I couldn't help hold my head a little higher after leaving Helen's shop. All thanks to a bit of pampering.

The girls suggest that if you get a facial, to have one done once a month or so. It's great for deep cleaning, and it's even terrific for taking you mind of the stressful things in life, as was the manicure, the paraffin treatments, the shampoo and blow dry...

Stampville School to become Seniors' Complex

MIKE VAN RAALTE
Staff Writer

MATIDA—A former public school in Iroquois might soon be turned into a senior's drop-in centre.

Matilda council has been looking at the feasibility of purchasing Stampville Public School and converting it into a place for the elderly to meet.

Stampville has been vacant since September, when Iroquois Public School accommodated the 115 students and teachers formerly residing in the decaying structure.

Revamping the building means serious renovations, including the construction of a new roof, replacing the windows, converting the washrooms to make them wheelchair accessible, and building new kitchen facilities.

At this point, Council has received two quotes: one at $87,500 plus G.S.T.; and the other at $83,888 inclusive, but without the kitchen renovations. A third estimate remains forthcoming.

Representatives from the Matilda Senior's Organization have toured the facility and expressed a desire to set up shop in the western section (the old part) of the building, says Clerk Bill Horner. They would take over four classrooms, the staff room and the secretary's office, leaving the township with the other three rooms to do with as it say fit.

Reeve Charles Barkley said he likes the new plan, although he expressed some concerns over financing.

"I'm in favor of it, but I don't think we should open the vault. We have money matters to clear first."

Earlier this year, the province approved a $125 thousand grant to the seniors for a proposal to construct an add-on at Matilda Hall.

But council remains opposed to that plan, and wants to see the seniors in a separate building of their own.

Barkley hopes to convince the Ministry to transfer the money from the Matilda Hall proposal to the Stampville renovation project.

Providing he's successful, and the cost of purchasing the building isn't outrageously expensive, the seniors might soon have a new building to call home.

"If we can come in close to our original figures, we'll do it," Barkley says. "But it's got to be within reason. We're not going to buy the building regardless."

Of the Stampville site, the Reeve adds:

"I say it's a good building for the senior citizens, a separate building for them. It's a better value,; more room, more land."

And almost anything's better than the Matilda add-on option, the Reeve concludes: "That's like putting a square peg through a round hole."

****

In other township news:

Council has decided to continue its present policy regarding building permits for fire victims.

After contacting a number of municipalities throughout the county, Clerk Bill Horner discovered that only Williamsburg and Winchester don't charge fire victims for rebuilding permits.

Presently, Matilda charges for the permit by the size of the square footage of the building, regardless of the circumstances.

And Barkley says he'd like it to continue that way, at least for now.

"It's not the case of one person or another. I'm not afraid to set a precedent, but where do you draw the line? I'd rather see relief come in another way."

Council would need to establish clear definitions of which types of buildings qualified for relief, thus opening up a whole range of issues.

The Reeve added that he believes insurance should cover these kinds of expenses.

Because some of the other councillors appeared uncomfortable with the decision, however he agreed to perhaps examine the issue again at the first of the year.

****

While the Reeve disagrees with those who oppose the proposed sludge transfer site for the Third High Farms property, he still appreciates their input.

"I think they have legitimate fears that we (council) need to address."

Because the project is new to the area, Barkley concludes, many people fear it.

Open public discussions remain the most effective way of addressing the people's concerns and ensuring the applicant follows every conceivable precaution.

Winter Series going fast

MORRISBURG—If you want tickets for the Winter Series, you'd better hurry: they're going fast.

So says Norene Hyatt-Gervais, co-chair of the Upper Canada Playhouse Winter Series Committee, as she prepares for the upcoming season.

Bookings for these top Canadian performances were made a year ago.

The first show, Letter from Wingfield Farm, runs this Saturday only. Performed by Rod Beattie, it's the first show in Dan Needles' hilarious "Wingfield Trilogy," the story of a businessman who abandons the urban jungle to take life up on the farm, only to discover a marvelous array of country rascals, eccentrics and heroes.

The show remains so popular, Hyatt-Gervais says, that the local playhouse here was only able to book him for one date over Thanksgiving Weekend.

She's personally seen the show twice already, and can't wait for the opportunity to see it again.

Other shows featured in the package include an evening of traditional and innovative Celtic and original music played on the harp and guitar by Stratford's Anderson and Brown, Saturday, Dec. 11, 1993; Gilles Parenteau performs his 'One Man Symphony' of classical, popular and original themes, Sunday, Mar. 6, 1994; and an evening with humorist, singer and songwriter Nancy White, Saturday Apr. 16, 1994. All shows begin at 8 p.m.

Normally, the Playhouse sells the tickets in a package for the entire winter season. This year, however, organizers believe that because of the popularity of the Wingfield show, and the problem of it falling during Thanksgiving, they'll make a limited number of single tickets available for that show only; the other three tickets will remain in a package.

The Winter Series was created last year by a small group of community-minded individuals who realized the potential here for a permanent theatre.

Confounding skeptics, they managed to sell out last year's entire series within two weeks.

"It was well known that many people in our community found it necessary to drive quite some distance to attend Series in other locales," Lane said. "Also, the (winter) theatre would provide musical and comedy acts, unlike the Summer theatre."

The Winter Series runs separately from the Summer Series. Put on by professional touring groups rather than the Playhouse staff, the Winter Series offers a different variety of entertainment than that found in the summer season.

"We needed something going on in the winter," explains Hyatt-Gervais, on why organizers booked the shows. "Now that we own the (Odonto) Playhouse, we wanted to utilize the theatre space year-round."

With the lineup they've booked for this season, she believes, this year's Series will be just as popular

OBITUARIES

Gladys Hess

A native of Boucks Hill, Ontario, and former resident of Locke Lane, Williamsburg, Gladys Hess died at the Winchester District Memorial Hospital on Sunday, October 3rd, 1993. She had been a resident of Dundas Manor, Winchester, for the past two years.

Born April 16th, 1908, she was a daughter of the late Nathanael Merkley, and his wife, the former Mary Barkley. She attended area schools, and was married to Lloyd Garland Hess, who predeceased her January 31st, 1990. She was a member of Williamsburg United Church.

She is survived by a dear sister Dorothy (Mrs. Cyril Smirle) of Bath, Ontario, and several nieces and nephews; dear friends Sheila and Alan Crowder, Debbie and Douglas Disheau, and Melissa, Jonathan and Nicole Disheau. She was predeceased by a sister Wilda McCain and a brother Emerald Merkley.

Friends were received at the Daniels Funeral Home, Chesterville, where service was held on Tuesday, October 5th at 1:30 p.m., with Rev. Sandy Macpherson officiating. Interment followed in the New Union Cemetery, Williamsburg.

Pallbearers were: Glenn Hess, Alan Crowder, Douglas Disheau and Ferneley Johnston.

Johan Willem Bucking

A native of Holland, and farmer at R.R. 2 Iroquois, Ontario, Johan Willem Bucking died at Winchester District Memorial Hospital on Friday, October 1st, 1993. He was 81 years of age.

Born in Holland, March 23rd, 1912, he was a son of the late Otto Bucking and his wife, the former Marguerita Stanfeld. In May, 1942, he was married in Holland to Margaret Schomaker, who predeceased him in 1982.

He is survived by two sons: Bernie and his wife Sharon of Iroquois and Otto and his wife Nancy of Prescott; five daughters: Margaret and her husband Ben Albers of R.R. 2 Iroquois, Corrie and her husband Tony Byvelds of Williamsburg, Adelaide and her husband Al Lindsay of Stittsville, Siny and her husband Pierre Blais of Munster Hamlet, Mary and her husband Dave Coreau of Arnprior; a sister Marie Manning in Holland. He is sadly missed by 18 grandchildren and one great-grandson, and was predeceased by a sister Aleida Bucking.

He was a member of St. Cecilia's Roman Catholic Church, Iroquois.

Friends were received at the Marsden and McLaughlin Funeral Home, Iroquois, on Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. and from 7 to 9 p.m.

Funeral was held at St. Cecilia's Church on Monday, October 4th at 11 a.m., with Rev. Father Tim Shea celebrating the funeral Mass. Interment followed at St. Mary's Cemetery, Morrisburg.

Pallbearers were: Rick Albers, Bill Bucking, Mike Byvelds, Dan Byvelds, Tim Coreau, Ken Blais and Greg Lindsay, all grandsons.

Sprague headlines business dinner

MORRISBURG—Entertainer Bob Sprague promises to deliver next Wednesday night.

The self-titled "Sex-Symbol for Women over 65" has a series of special surprises in store for those planning to attend the South Dundas Economic Development Commission's Sixth Annual Business Appreciation Night, Oct.13, 1993, at Matilda Township Hall, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

While he wouldn't get into specifics, he did wish to assure those attending that they wouldn't be subjected to his mother doing the Hula-Hula this time. in the past, it's always flopped, he confesses.

Sprague's show consists of mostly original material, written and composed by the band. It's mostly folk and country music, he says, "local stories about the Seaway, growing-up, penile numbness, that kind of thing."

And because the band didn't pay their hydro-bills last month, they will be performing "unplugged," using acoustic instruments only.

So watch out Rod Stewart, Neil Young and Eric Clapton and the rest, there's a new act about to corner the market.

Sprague's shows have the reputation of being both entertaining and a lot of fun, Commission President Jacques Asselin says, and he hopes to see a large turnout.

Besides the Sprague concert, those who attend the appreciation night will get the opportunity to listen to Gary Gzik and Sal Polletta of Volition Development Systems.

The two training company representatives plan to present a program on common sense awareness practices for dealing with the public.

"Customer service is everyone's responsibility," Gzik says. "It distinguishes those companies which take customer service personally from those relying on luck. Companies who practice good customer service, with management and staff working together, will be successful."

"They delivered a customer service program for us last year and it was very helpful," said co-organizer Linda Bowers.

Harvest Day Festival a success despite rain

WILLIAMSBURG—October 2 wasn't just any fall day in the life of Williamsburg. Jam-packed with events, it could have been a composite of several days.

Although the day started on a somber note with pouring rain, the pancake breakfast at the Fire Hall was a great success, with a good turn-out of residents, local politicians and candidates for the Federal election.

As the pet show was in progress, the big tent looked and sounded like Noah's Ark in miniature. Dogs, cats, even a mother hen and her 12 chicks competed for attention and prizes. Judging was by the owners of JO-DA Cattery, Dave and Joanne Skyrie and Morrisburg veterinarian Norene Hyatt-Gervais. Although the show was a little chaotic at times, and there were a few altercations among the contestants, it proceeded fairly smoothly.

There was an excellent enrollment of 22 children, each with a pet in tow, while some had as many as four. While there were special winners, all participants received a prize and everyone seemed to be having fun. Noteworthy winners included Jordan McNalty's guppy 'the oddest pet,' and Chad Garlough's baby chicks, winners of the "Shortest ear" (in fact no ear) contest. Amanda Byveld's three-legged dog earned a prize for the 'most talented, ' because of its ability to walk on three legs.

The rain even let up for the parade, which was followed by only occasional drizzle, cool temperatures predominating and clouds filling the skies. Out of 42 parade entries, the Bank of Montreal won Best Commercial Float, the Beckstead-Scott float had the Best Non-Commercial Float, while Whitteker's Meat Market won Best Decorated Tractor.

Residents time and artistic efforts in house decoration were rewarded, with three top winners out of 12 contestants. Jean Whitteker walked off with a first for her imaginative display of dressed-up pumpkins, and harvest vegetables. Second and third prize went to Bonnie Haner, and Audrey Casselman respectively.

The Harvest theme was repeated throughout the day, and the biggest and best vegetable and flower in several categories were awarded prizes. The Lumberman's contests tested various kinds of equipment from Eastern Engines, and talent from around the region. The area's best apple peelers were outdone by Chuck Saddlemire, who walked off with the Tweedsmuir History as prize.

Ferneley Johnston's 'Guess the Weight of two steers' drew two close guesses. The actual weight was 2353 pounds, and Dale Wise came closest with 2363, while Samantha McIntosh wasn't far off at 2368.

"I don't think the rain dampened the spirits of the day at all," said organizer Arlene Darrach, comparing the event to last year. "I'm not sure of the attendance but feel it held as well. There was a crowd for the chain saw contest, and the fire department had the biggest crowd ever for the extrication demonstration."

The dinner was sold out with at least 350 tickets. There were an estimated 400 at the dance, and many dressed up for the occasion, while more members joined the Williamsburg Community Association.

"We're very pleased it went over so well even on a rainy day," Darrach said.

Seaway High School students cause disturbance

IROQUOIS—Morrisburg Provincial Police were called to the Iroquois Shopping Plaza last Thursday to break up a scuffle between two Seaway High School students.

The two 17-year-old young offenders, who cannot be named due to their ages, were charged with causing a disturbance contrary to the crime code and they will appear in Morrisburg Provincial court, October 19th.

Break and Enter at Beckers

IROQUOIS—A break and enter occurred at Beckers of Iroquois Monday morning at 4:15 a.m.

According to Morrisburg OPP media relations officer, Morgan Hill, thieves gained entry to the store by breaking the glass in the front door.

As a result, $1,600 worth of cigarettes were stolen.

The incident is being investigated by Constable Brent Mattice of the Morrisburg OPP.

Jr. "B" Lions watch

PROFILE

Geoff Hare
#22 Fwd

Geoff Hare has been with the Morrisburg junior "B" Lions for a year. He previously played with the Brockville Braves in the Central junior league, and came up through the Prescott minor hockey system. The 18-year-old shoots right, and he attends South Grenville where he is a member of the Giants' football team.

He hopes to bring leadership to this year's Lions' roster, and as a high scorer last year, he is shooting to break the 100-point barrier. Last year, he claimed the MVP for the playoffs.

Along with football and hockey, Geoff enjoys golfing and says his best subject at high school is physed. The Lions' Den is his favorite hangout, and you won't see this guy pass up anything in the food department, as he says all foods are his favorites.

You can hear Geoff yell at Bruce St. John to give him a stick about twice a period, and he also is pretty hard on his skates, going through about two pairs a season.

He thinks the team to beat this year, will once again be the Athens' Aeros, but in the St. Lawrence Division, it will be Char-Lan.

"I hope we 3-peat," he says, and adds with a laugh, "I 'm going to try to stay out of the penalty box this year."

Geoff is the son of Rick and Penny Hare.

MORRISBURG—Coming off a pair of weekend losses, the Morrisburg junior "B" Lions are struggling.

They have dug themselves into a hole, according to head coach, John Morrow. And they are now paying for it.

"They just aren't staying focused," said the coach. "If they went out there and played 60 minutes of hockey they'd be able to win one. Right now they can't play 20 minutes."

Lack of focus, lackadaisical, and even a lack of bodies seems to be what's hampering the team at this early stage.

"It would be nice if we had the whole team was dressed for a game once in a while," said Morrow. "There are always one or two who aren't dressing for one reason or another."

Both weekend games could have been chalked up in the win column according to the coach, but to him it seemed that the team didn't want to win them.

Instead, they carded a pair of one-goal losses to Alexandria Friday night, and to South Grenville at home Sunday.

"Friday, we blew a 5-3 lead, and Alexandria ended up winning that one 8-7," said Morrow. "They scored with 13 seconds left in the game."

Morrow felt the team played well—in spurts.

"There were a lot of mental errors, but they are all working hard. We just have to keep plugging away and working hard," he said.

Eventually they'll get back to where we should be—winning.

"The boys aren't used to losing. Last year we hardly lost a game all season, not to mention two in a row."

That's tough to deal with said Morrow.

He and assistant coach Tug Mullin plan on doing some line changing in the future. Perhaps that will be a key to getting the punch back in the line-up.

The coaching staff is getting a bit of a helping hand from veteran manager, Ron Casselman who has come back to offer his expertise in the field.

"It's good to have someone like Ron helping out," said Morrow. "He is someone I looked up to while playing hockey, and he knows what he's doing."

Morrow admitted though that not having the presence of last year's head coach, Doug Casselman, is missed.

"Certainly the boys listened better when someone of Doug's size was standing behind them," he said. "But I feel if they stay focused, and continue to work hard, they'll come around."

In Alexandria

No game sheet was available for the Alexandria/Lions game Friday night.

However, coach Morrow recalled that they lost a heartbreaker, 8-7 with just 13 seconds left to play.

The Lions had the advantage throughout the second period as they led 5-3 after 40 minutes.

"We blew it," he laughed when trying to find the words to describe what happened.

"They were winning, but they panicked in the final period and blew it."

A.J. O'Conner and Andrew McEwan scored a pair each in the game, and singles came from Shawn Hummel, Josh Gowsell and Geoff Hare.

Rangers win here

On Sunday, the Lions hosted the South Grenville Rangers where they lost their second game over the weekend, 5-4.

The Rangers led 3-2 and 4-2 at the period breaks.

Morrisburg gave a futile effort in the dying minutes of the game to come back to tie the score with five minutes remaining.

With 3:17 to play, Troy Casewell potted the winning goal, unassisted, past Patrick Loyer.

Mike McAllister scored the opening goal of the game from Andrew McEwan and Pete Feletar at 17:58 of the first period.

Just 23 seconds later, the Lions' Tim Casselman got by Dan Long for a 2-0 lead. Assists on the goal went to Geoff Hare and Chad White.

Darryl Kingston, Art Chillson and Jason Major scored the visitors.

In the second frame, South Grenville padded their lead with Andrew Henderson's shot at 2:36 for the only goal of the period.

McEwan returned the favor with a shot from McAllister and O'Conner at 8:22.

J.D. Hunter tied the rally at four apiece with his shot at 14:54 of the third. Assists on the Lions last goal of the game went to White and O'Conner.

The Lions were whistled for 12 minor offences and a misconduct.

Morrisburg Mutters

• Coach John Morrow's view on Geoff Hare, the Lions' profile player of the week: "There's no doubt he could be the best player on the ice. He's got to keep his head together though. He has all the tools—a good shot and good speed. He has to stay focused."

• Back in the line-up this week will be Travis Froats, who was out for a while due to a concussion, and Mark Donnelly, who missed the first few games because of an illness.

• Shawn Hummel will be playing with a cast on his hand. He suffered a broken knuckle a few days ago. Says he was "slashed" but didn't think too much about it till a few days after the fact.

• The Lions travel to Willisamstown tonight for an 8:15 p.m. start. The Rebels will be back to visit Morrisburg on Friday for an 8:30 p.m. confrontation. This week will conclude a stint of three games between these two teams since the start of the season. Says coach Morrow, "They certainly have the advantage over us. They know our weaknesses. But that's the way the schedule goes."

Sunday, the Lions will be at Kemptville for a 7:30 p.m. start. Their next home game will be Friday, October 15 when they host Brockville, also at 7:30 p.m.

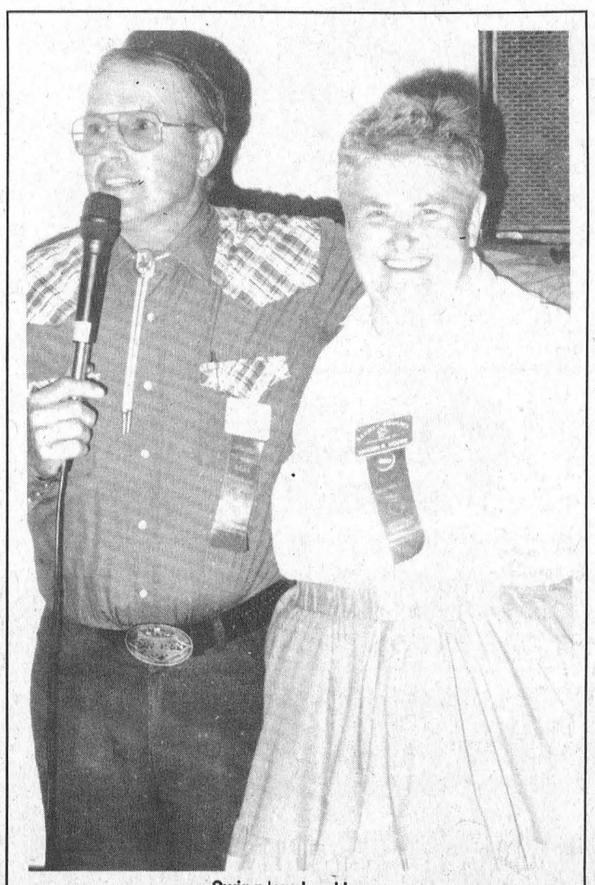
Outnumbered

Morrisburg's junior "B" Lions are having a tough time of things and are struggling to pick up their second win of the season. Sunday, here against the South Grenville Rangers, the Lions bounced back from a deficit to tie the score at three apiece, only to lose in the final minutes of the game. Friday night, things were just as grim, as the Morrisburg team fell 8-7 to Alexandria with just 13 seconds left to play in the game. Coach John Morrow says to start winning, the team has to stay focused for the entire game. But, he also says, they are working hard, and are bound to bounce back as soon as all the shirts are filled once again.

Square dancers having a blast

MORRISBURG—Places all...bow to your corner...bow to your own.

It's that time of the year again. Time to dig out the crinolines and the cowboy boots, and catch the square dancing fever.



Swing 'em hard boys

Harold Moore and his wife Marion pause for a quick picture at their night of square dancing. Every Monday, you can join in on the fun at the Morrisburg Public School.

And you don't have to travel too far to take part in this type of activity, as square dancing takes place every Monday evening at the Morrisburg Public School's gymnasium.

Harold Moore, who has been calling the moves for six years now, is still keen on seeing some new faces on the dance floor.

The more the merrier, he says.

He started calling barn dances many years ago, said his wife Marion who has been Harold's dance partner for 10 years now, and he grew to love it so much he took over calling at square dances.

There are two semesters of square dancing. The dancers take a break at the Christmas holiday season, and begin anew the first of January.

It's a noted point of interest, that dancing for two hours is the same thing as walking five miles, and it's a great way to meet new friends, and remain active at the same time.

There is a lot to learn to be a square dancer, and once the basic steps and manners are obtained, a square dancer can take part in dances at other clubs, and even all over the world—once, of course, your good enough.

According to Marion, the Morrisburg Square Dancing club has been entertaining folks in the area on a yearly basis.

They danced most recently at the Fall Festival at Williamsburg, and they also entertain the seniors at Park Lane Villa there twice a year.

The Morrisburg dancers are also scheduled to appear at the Matilda Winter Carnival, January 10, as well as at the Finch sugar bush in the March break.

She says that square dancing is great for "fun and fellowship" and there are always a lot of new people to meet.

Within a 50 mile radius, square dancers have the chance to strut their stuff seven days a week, as there are clubs at Cardinal, Brockville, Cornwall, Smiths Falls, Kemptville, and even at New York spots including Canton, Potsdam, Massena and Ogdensburg.

The Morrisburg Square Dancers are presently gearing up for the Halloween Party scheduled for October 25th.

Dancers are urged to come in costume for the evening's event.

The cost to join the local square dancing club, where basic and mainstream steps are taught, the cost is $110 for the year.

You can obtain more information by calling either Harold or Marion Moore at 543-2341.

Legion Darts

MORRISBURG—Morrisburg Legion's mixed dart league got underway last night, but the results won't be available until next week.

Monday night, there was a meeting at the Legion to determine the teams for this year's schedule, and there will be 14 in total, the same as last year.

Once again, to play, the cost is $2 per night, each Tuesday, and play begins sharply at 7:30 p.m.

The following is a list of the teams this year:

Team 1, Lee Beaupre, Ann Lewis, Marg Brown, Cam MacLennan; Team 2, Mert Carbino, Joane Oake, Vera Burke, Dick Armstrong; Team 3, Frank Oake, Dorothy McBain, Carol Birch, Stan Mabo; Team 4, Charlie Moore, Sarah Merkley, Jean Vaughan, Malcolm Gore; Team 5, George Baker, Elva Baker, Tina Carbino, Larry Scarbo; Team 6, Terry Baker, Laurie Day, Marlene Thorneloe, Art Laurin; Team 7, Bill Devaul, Judy Laurin, Millie Alain, Alex Whitteker.

On Team 8 there will be Lloyd Smirle, Carolyn Gale, Shirley Smirle, George Cairns; Team 9, Lynden Casselman, Doris Cairns, Bev Brown, Carl Schwerdtfeger; Team 10, Terry Laurin, Mary Baker, Darlene Gore, Chris Scott; Team 11, Ken Baker, Elsie Guindon, Cecile Fradet, Byron Throneloe; Team 12, Jim Scott, Vanessa Guindon, Freda Arnott, B.J. Jones; Team 13, Frank Marriner, Audrey Henophy, June Carkner, Peter Arnott; and Team 14, Rick Vaughan, Sharon Lewis, Russell Cameron and Bob Henophy.

Five dart tournaments are scheduled for the season as well. On October 30th, there will be a Mixed Tournament, while November 20 is slated for a Steak Shoot. January 22, 1994 is marked for another Mixed tournament, and another Steak Shoot is scheduled for February 19. Finally, the last tournament of the season is slated for March 19 when a Mixed event will take place.

Anyone needing a spare this year will be required to contact Elsie Guindon. She will be matching a person from the spare list to best take the spot of the dart player unable to make it. Also stipulated (where possible), a female spare will replace a female shooter, and vice versa for the men. This will be the fairest route to take.

Players are also reminded to have chosen a name for their respective teams for next week.

Above all else, have fun, and enjoy the season.

Seaway's senior boys still looking for first win

IROQUOIS—The Seaway junior boys' soccer team was on a rampage Monday afternoon as they hosted North Dundas in the rain to pick up their first win of the season.

The visitors left Iroquois a little soggy, totting a 5-1 loss.

Spencer Cooper had an outstanding game in the net for the home team, and since coming to the Spartans a week ago, he hasn't lost a game yet.

Last week, the Seaway juniors tied Rothwell/Osnabruck with Cooper in the crease.

On Monday, though, thanks to the offensive prowess of Mike Adlington and Will Beckstead, Seaway chalked up its first win of the early season.

Seaway led 2-0 at the half-way point.

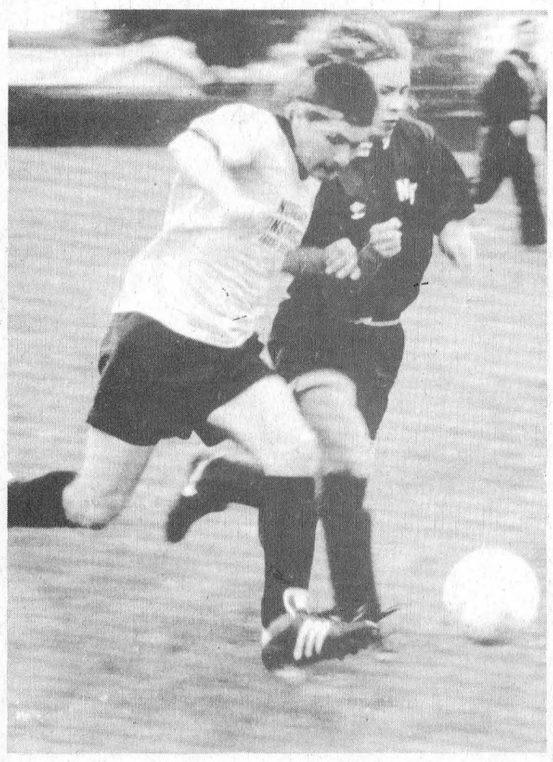
The win gives the junior Spartans a 1-1-3 record to date. They have lost to Tagwi, Char-Lan and St. Joe's.

In the senior confrontation earlier in the afternoon, the Spartans fell in a 3-1 battle, their fifth in as many starts.

Chris Haines had the only Seaway counter in the contest which came halfway through the second half.

Seaway hosts North Dundas

Monday afternoon, in the rain, the Seaway Spartans' soccer teams hosted North Dundas. Unfortunately, the senior boys had a rough time of the competition as they fell 3-1. In the photo at the top left, Seaway's Chris Haines (left) scored the only goal of the game. He is shown deeking the North Dundas defense in that photo as well as the bottom one. In the above shot, Gary Magee (left) is shown going toe to toe. In the junior confrontation, the Spartans upset North Dundas, 5-1.



Riverside Darts

RIVERSIDE HEIGHTS—The 1992-93 mixed dart season began last Wednesday here with 12 teams signed up for action. A few forgot to show up though, so don't forget to come out tonight (Wednesday).

Something new this year, the teams will be playing six rounds of 501 as opposed to seven rounds of 401.

Hot out of the starting grid last week was Bill Devaul's team, alias, the Two Darts who took nine wins. Devaul took five outs himself, while Gayle Hart and Mary Casselman had a pair each. Hart also shot a 100 high score.

Fred Devaul's team was next in line as they combined for eight points. Fred Devaul tossed four outs and a pair of 100 high scores. Darwin Markell three three outs, and Shannon Casselman had a single game.

Ernie Beckstead led his team with six of eight outs taken, a 96 high finish and a pair of 100 high scores. Edna Barkley had two outs and a 43 finish.

The Pistols (Cecil Lewis' team) combined for seven wins led by Laurie Day with three outs and a 100 high. Lewis tossed a 133 high as well as a 100 and claimed a pair of outs. Sherry Wereley had the other two wins for the team.

Ron Bradford (100x2) fired four of six outs taken by his team, and Frank Marriner (140) had a pair. Sarah Merkley tossed a 100 high score as well.

Guy Hart led his team with three outs, a 140, 125 and a 100 high score. Sharon Wereley tossed two outs and Doris Hart (100) had the other win.

The Naked Dart Players, captained by Roy Gummeson picked up six wins led by Gary Hart with three and high scores of 140x2, 123, 118x2, and 100x2. Kenny Baker took two wins and threw a 118 high score, and Denise Casselman had one win and a 114 high score.

Five outs were taken by Gary Bradford's team and Barry Penberton (115) took three. Ruth Markell had the other two.

George Baker (100) and Al Loynachan had two outs each for Baker's team, while Carl Schwerdtfeger tossed a 116 high score.

Ernie Duvall's team collected five wins on a pair from both Maureen Loynachan and Ernie Duvall. Alex Hart threw a 127 high score and had one out as well.

Sandra Baker (99 high finish) and Ivan Shearer (125, 123, 120) tossed a pair of outs each for the Shearer team. Tom Shearer (100) had a single out as well.

Chris Casselman fired two of three outs taken by his team and he also had a 100 high score and a 68 finish. Sharon Lewis tossed one win, and Dennis Keeler had a 100 high score.

Waterfowl Day at Sanctuary

MORRISBURG—Thousands of honking Canada Geese will flock together to form a welcoming committee for visitors attending the third annual Waterfowl Day at the Upper Canada Migratory Bird Sanctuary.

On Sunday October 17, between 10:00 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. visitors to the Sanctuary will be able to take in such highlights as dog retriever trials, duck banding and the Eastern Ontario Duck and Goose Calling competition as well as see many exhibits by local carvers and wildlife artists.

Fall is a wonderful time to take a moment to appreciate the change of season along with the wildfowl migration.

Nature enthusiasts will enjoy an array of outdoor activities in the beautiful autumn setting at the Sanctuary.

The daily goose feeding program at 2:30 p.m. generally attracts 2,500 Canada Geese, thus guaranteeing fabulous close-range waterfowl viewing.

Guided nature hikes along wetland and woodland trails will give visitors an opportunity to observe other wildlife habitats.

In addition, Brenda Carter, one of Canada's top wildlife artists and the winner of the 1992 Canadian Wildlife Habitat Conservation Stamp Competition, will be the featured artist.

Roger Desjardins, one of Canada's top wildlife carvers who has been perfecting his techniques over 30 years will be the featured carver.

Draws will be held for a variety of prizes including a raffle for two limited edition prints entitled "Northern Dawn" by Brenda Carter and the other, "Early Spring Hooded Merganser" by Ken Ferris.

Take an autumn hike at the Village

MORRISBURG—The autumn colors will soon be in full force allowing for fresh, crisp and leisurely strolls.

Why not combine this fall activity with the beauty and picturesque scenery from a long ago village in a style that is comforting and educational.

Upper Canada Village invites visitors to join the post-season walking tours.

From Tuesday, October 12 until Sunday, October 31, the 1-1/2 hour long tours will leave daily from the village's entrance gate and embark on a journey into the past.

Accompanied by a knowledgeable guide, visitors will stroll into the autumn colors to explore the many facets of 1860s life.

From the bar-room of Cook's Tavern to the mechanized operation of Loucks' Farm, walking tours also offer stops and lots of fascinating insights on the 19 century lifestyle at the steam-powered flour mills, the Tinsmith Shop, the fully stocked General STore and the character-building common school.

The "Seasons" slide show will be part of the tour and will give visitors an excellent overview of regular activities and special events throughout the entire season.

Admission to the walking tours is #3.25 for adults and $1.50 for seniors/students and children six to 12, children five and under are admitted free of charge. Tickets are to be purchased at the village store.

The Village Store and Village Cafe will both be open for business during the walking tour season.

On weekdays, tours begin at 10 a.m. and depart at approximately two-hour intervals (12 noon, 1:30 and 3:30 p.m.). The weekend tours begin at 9:30 a.m. and depart at 45-minute intervals (10:15, 11 and 11:45 a.m.12:30, 1:15, 2, and 2:24 p.m.). All tours depart from the entrance to the Village. MDMHA calendar draw winners

This week's winner in the Upper Canada Minor Hockey League was Doug McInnes of Iroquois who picked up $100 cash. Last week, Darren Kirkwood of Chesterville won the $50 prize. Other winners as of late were Ivan Doney of Trenton, and Wayne Bennett of Cornwall, who both picked up $50 for their lucky tickets. Now, don't go blaming Dale Lewis for the winners not appearing in the paper for a while. It wasn't his fault. (He told me to say that.)

Other Morrisburg minor hockey news is that, according to Dale, registration will be hitting around the 200 mark this season. There are about 12 new players from Long Sault registered this year. The largest group of hockey players is in the Novice age group, where over 60 are signed up. There are also two midget teams this season, an A and a B team. Dale also tells me that the Angles hockey team is alive and kicking. Way to go girls! Hockey season begins the first week of November.

Greetings from Down Under

Got a postcard from my buddy, Bobby Jack and he says he's having a large time Down Under. He misses everybody, even Lyle, Chris and the boys (sad isn't it?) On the fastball note, he's batting .500 and says the nerves have calmed down somewhat. The family he is boarding with is fabulous. He has even played a few rounds of darts. Driving on the opposite side of the road is somewhat hazardous though. Watch out for those kangaroos Bob. We miss you back here at home!

Town League action

The local town league hockey schedule kicked off Thursday night here with Robert Jordan's "Blue" team triumphant over Castle's "Yellow" team in the opening game. In the second encounter, Jeff VanMoorsel's "Red" team fell to Fred Osler's "Orange" squad 5-1, and in the late game, there was a 4-4 tie between the Green and the Black teams. Next week, an up-to-date scoring leaders' list will be available, as well as play by play run-downs of the games.

Dru Burgess shoots 'em up

The Cornwall Colts finally chalked up a win in Central Junior A hockey action Friday night at Gloucester. Their sharp-shooter, Dru Burgess fired an impressive six-goal game and picked up an assist en route to a 10-8 Cornwall win. He scored a natural hat trick in the final period after trailing 7-2 with 13:04 left in the game. He also scored the first two Colts' goals of the game. The Gloucester Rangers were undefeated, with a four-game win string until the met the Colts on home ice. At the breaks, the Rangers let 2-1 and 5-2. Travis Mercer fired two goals, and both Jason Sands and Rick Montcalm scored one apiece. The Hawks are at Cornwall for their home-opener Thursday at 7:30 p.m. Friday, the Colts travel to Brockville for an 8:00p.m. start.

Kilger takes two

Playing with the Kingston Frontenacs this year, Chad Kilger of Cornwall scored a pair of counters at Kingston to lead his team to a 6-4 win over the Sudbury Wolves in OHL action Saturday. Kilger tied the battle at two apiece, and teammate David Ling scored two others. The Frontenacs also defeated Peterborough Friday night, 7-2 and it was in this game that Kilger got his first goal of the season.

Cornwall Aces open Friday

The Cornwall Aces open their AHL season here Friday with a scheduled match against the Hershey Bears (Philadelphia) slated for a 7:30 p.m. start. Over the weekend, the Aces hosted an exhibition tournament where they upset the Adirondack Red Wings in front of 1,323 fans at the Civic Complex to win the Aces Cup. Goaltender Patrick Labrecque recorded the shutout. Left winger Rene Corbet potted a pair of goals in the final game, while Paxton Schulte and Eric Veilleux scored singles. The Aces also upset the Hamilton Canucks (Vancouver), 5-1 Saturday. Scoring for the home team were Ed Ward, Denis Chasse (with two), Martin Simard and Corbet.

Snowmobile Associations merge

The Seaway Valley Snowmobile Association is pleased with the latest move whereby the Eastern Ontario Snowmobile Association based in Bourget, LaRose Forest area has joined with the Ontario Federation of Snowmobile Clubs. Seaway Valley Snowmobile Association membership chairman Ron Barker of Minkland says the merger will now mean that members of either club will be able to travel throughout Eastern Ontario and into Quebec with one provincial permit. This was also made possible by the joining of the Quebec Federation of Snowmobile Association with the Ontario Federation of Snowmobile Clubs. Provincial passes are expected to be available soon and will be selling for $150 each. The OFSA pass for travel within this province is also on sale for $65 until December 1st, after which time the price is expected to increase to $80. On Saturday, October 9, the SVSA will be holding an Outdoor Barbecue at the Seaway Loeb parking lot on Vincent Massey Drive, Cornwall from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. A number of new 1994 snowmobiles will be on display by area dealers, as well as new trail grooming equipment. Proceeds from the barbecue will be used for trail grooming and development by your local snowmobile association.

Matilda resident enjoys challenge as agricultural leader

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

MATILDA TWP—Agricultural leadership training—this may be just the first step in a series of greater challenges for resident Corry Martens.

Martens was among 30 Ontario residents selected this summer to participate in the Advanced Agricultural Leadership Program. She is in the fifth class of the program started several years ago to encourage leadership in rural communities.

She was chosen from six applicants from this area: approximately 67-70 across Ontario apply every year. Participants are from a broad spectrum of agricultural backgrounds including farming, agribusiness, farm finance and education.

For the next year and a half, 'leaders-in-training' will be involved in seminars in several locations throughout Ontario. They will participate in a North American and international study tour, observing a wide variety of issues and leadership styles.

"The purpose of the program is to develop leaders who will work together to maintain the strength of Ontario's agri-food industry," says Murray Stewart, chair of the Agricultural Leadership Trust.

"Responsibility and accountability—these are essential for leadership in rural Ontario today," Murray stated.

The program is administered by the Agricultural Trust—a partnership of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food, University of Guelph, Ontairo Federation of Agriculture, and Foundation for Rural Living. Funding is provided by the Trust, rural and agricultural organizations, and participant tuition fees.

Corry with husband William run an "average family-sized" dairy farm of about 38 cows on RR #1 Iroquois. They also grow corn, and hay for their cows, selling any surplus, with barley as an additional crop.

Corry is a full partner on the farm. Her duties include doing chores, running the tractor and farm machinery. An important part of her work is handling the books, dealing with creditors and participating in management decisions.

Sitting on the executive of three volunteer organizations, Corry has a full slate. She is president of the Ontario Farm Women's Network, and for four years has managed their newsletter. The Network is an umbrella group with 350 members province-wide, and including 17 local farmers organizations.

She is also vice president of the Women for the Survival of Agriculture, which will be celebrating its 20th anniversary in 1995.

Recognizing women

Corry says both groups promote recognition of farm women's contribution to agriculture, from an economical, social and legal standpoint.

"What women do on family farms has been taken for granted for a long time," Corry said. "Women in the 1990's want to be involved in the policy-making of the industry."

Martens said it was difficult to ascertain whether these organizations had influenced government policy. "But the Ontario government tends to be women friendly, and more women have been appointed or elected to agriculture boards at levels where decisions are made."

"And we are often asked if we know a certain lady in a certain area to serve on a certain board," she explained.

To that end, the Ontario Farm Women Network has set up a directory of almost 100 women with experience, qualifications and a willingness to serve.

Corry also is on the Board of Directors of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, which has monthly meetings in Toronto.

Participants in the Agricultural Leadership Program met in Guelph, September 27 to 29 to begin their training.

"I enjoyed it tremendously. It exceeded all expectations, and I had quite a few," Martens said about the first seminar.

While the first session was mainly introductory, future sessions promised in-depth learning. "There are very participative training techniques, involving all participants. You have to do case studies, and learn how to hold effective meetings, set an agenda, and have certain roles to play," she said.

There will be a total of 10 three-day sessions spread over a year and a half, located at different locations throughout the province.

One study travel will take leadership trainees through North America, while the location for the international study tour is still to be determined. Previous classes have visited Europe and China.

Study sessions will include visits to industries and businesses. Meetings will be arranged with plant managers and owners to see how they run their operations. There will be discussions on whether agriculture could be involved, and whether an alliance could be formed between the business and agriculture.

"We'll also get to meet a lot of political people. A main objective is to broaden the participant's horizon," Corry said.

One requirement is to prepare a discussion paper on a topic. Students tackle a problem, weigh the pros and cons, attempt to find and propose a solution. This is presented to the group, and the other participants have a chance to challenge the presenter.

Corry says it is important for farmers, who are only two per cent of the population, to have spokespersons with good skills to communicate with the 98 per cent majority. "They should know what to say and how to say it when it's needed. And the other 98 per cent of the population should treasure the two per cent, because it feeds all of society."

She strongly believes that farmers should become involved in other organizations. "They should build alliances so they can contribute more to community development."

A recent excellent example of farmers cooperating successfully on a project at the grass roots level is the ethanol project. The project was an initiative of the Seaway Valley Farmers Cooperative, which recently had government approval to set up a $16.25 million plant in Maitland.

"I know of people who have been running with the idea of an ethanol plant for years. It takes commitment, dedication and perseverence," she said.

She feels it is also important to have key people in small rural communities, who are willing to help the communities strive and become viable again. "We shouldn't have to wait for government to do it for us. We should do it ourselves in cooperation. The only good vision is a shared vision," she said.

Ingleside Lanes
Bowling Roundup

- YBC bowlers enjoyed their Bring a Buddy (Scotch Doubles) Tournament at the Ingleside Bowling Lanes Saturday. There were 46 bowlers for the early shift and another 48 for the second shift. Mona Pechie says that each YBC bowler will receive a crest for participating in this tournament.
- The Master Junior tournament will be held in Brockville October 31st. There will be a list of names available next week, as those who qualified have yet to be notified.
- The National Fund Kickoff will be starting up soon. YBC bowlers will be selling chocolate covered almonds and your support is greatly appreciated. There are some great prizes offered to the best salesman or lady of the Youth Bowling Council so help out all you can again this year.
- The Executive Tournament will be starting soon, so says Brenda Brownlee. They will be playing for gift certificates and a chance to win an Ontario Adventure Holiday.
- The High-Low Doubles Tournament is also gearing up with first rounds to begin the week of October 17th. A high average bowler will be paired with a low average bowler and each league will be taking part in a beat their average format to be played over a period of four weeks. There is a minimum of $500 in prizes to be won. This tournament is sponsored in conjunction with the Ingleside Bowling Lanes and Stewart's Home Hardware of Ingleside.
- There are still teams on which you can register. Remember, to win some of the great prizes offered at the Lanes this season, you have to be a league member. Call, 537-2911 for details.
- Get your team signed up for the Bingo Bowl October 29. There is a maximum of six bowlers per team and an entry fee of $60 per team.

IN MEMORIAM

CASSELMAN-In loving memory of my dear husband, Jay, who passed away one year ago October 7, 1992.
We often think of bygone days
When we were all together,
The family chain is broken now
But memories will live forever.

Fire Department to conduct home smoke detector survey

C. THOMPSON
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG—Did you know that every year in Canada approximately 8,000 fire incidents in homes claim an estimated 500 lives ?

October 3-9 is National Fire Prevention Week, and the Morrisburg Fire Department will soon be conducting a smoke alarm survey among residents.

Smoke alarms are proven to be an economical and effective means of early warning to residents. And seconds saved by the sound of the alarm may save lives by providing additional time to escape.

The survey is to determine the number of existing smoke alarms among a sample population, the condition of the alarms, and if residents are in favor of a smoke alarm by-law.

The Fire Department recently suggested Council adopt a smoke detector by-law, making the installation of alarms mandatory in residences. Many municipalities have such by-laws. In addition, the Ontario Fire Code requires smoke detectors in apartments, or buildings with a common entrance.

Council agreed the equipment was valuable in saving lives and property, but decided to first question the residents about the existence of the alarms, and whether they wished a by-law.

The Village has not experienced any residential fires in years, and the Morrisburg Fire Department would like to keep that good record.

Fire prevention officer John Vaughan believes reconstruction during the Seaway is one reason residential fires have been few and far between. At this time, many older buildings were replaced by new construction and electrical upgrades were performed.

As part of Fire Prevention Week, the Department will be taking the re[illegible]at to St. Mary's and Morrisburg Public Schools. The Department holds fire prevention awareness activities at the local schools every year.
