Serious smash-up

INGLESIDE - Two Ingleside area teenagers suffered "major injuries" following a single vehicle accident on Morgan Road north of Ingleside Saturday night. Travis Froats, 17, of Ingleside and Andrew Whitton, 18, of RR3 Ingleside were taken by ambulance to Cornwall General Hospital, said OPP Constable Bernie Gadbois. The accident occurred when Travis, the driver, lost control of his pick-up truck on the gravel road, slammed into a ditch and rolled into nearby Hoople Creek. The pick-up truck landed upright in the creek, but was demolished said Gadbois. A third occupant, Christine Wert, 15, of RR2 Ingleside, was taken to the hospital and treated for minor injuries before being released. No charges have been laid, but an investigation into the accident is still ongoing, he said.

CNIB pot-luck

MOREWOOD—The annual meeting and pot-luck dinner of the Dundas County advisory board of the Canadian Institute for the Blind will be held Monday, May 6 at 6:30pm in the Morewood United Church hall. Guest speaker for the evening will be Sandy McAlear, secretary of volunteer services from the Cornwall CNIB office. Everyone is welcome to attend and please bring your favorite main course dish or dessert.

Pickerel festival

PLANTAGENET—The Village of Plantagenet and the South Nation River Conservation Authority will be co-sponsoring a fishing tournament Saturday, May 11. A "mystery weight contest" will offer a top prize of $10,000, two second prizes of $5,000, and 10 $1,000 third prizes. A $700 prize will also be awarded for the largest pickerel as well as children's and door prizes. For pre-registration, contact the Village of Plantagenet at 673-4859 or the South Nation River Conservation Authority at 984-2949. Registration will also be held from 6am to 11am, May 11, at Jessup's Falls Conservation Area, Plantagenet, Ontario.

Energy efficiency

CORNWALL—The Minister of Energy, Jenny Carter, announced an allocation of $100,000 for a local energy efficiency project here. Under the Ontario government's anti-recession program, a new heat exchange furnace will be installed in a public housing unit in Glenview Heights. According to the minister's office, this project is expected to produce 50-person weeks of employment as well as new work for local contractors and suppliers. This and similar projects are also intended to benefit the environment reducing combustion gases that contribute to acid rain and the greenhouse effect. Work is expected to begin immediately.

Budget draws crossfire

TORONTO—Ontario taxpayers will face some one billion dollars in increased taxes while the economy remains mired in recession, according to the Progressive-Conservative MPP for Stormont, Dundas, Glengarry, & East-Grenville.

Noble Villeneuve reacted strongly yesterday to the news of the NDP government's first budget which is predicted to push up the provincial deficit to an all-time high of $9.7 billion by 1995.

"This government will increase overall spending by $34.8 billion in the next four years," Villeneuve warned, worsening the economic climate for Ontario businesses.

In particular, Villeneuve points to the hike in gasoline, alcohol, and cigarette surtaxes which he claims will further force Ontario consumers into cross-border shopping.

The NDP budget, announced Monday by Treasurer Floyd Laughren, promises some $4.3 billion for social and health programs, and roads, $125 million to help laid-off workers, and $215 for social assistance programs. In addition to its $700 billion anti-recession program begun last December.

According to Laughren, the government had the choice of fighting the deficit or fighting the recession. "We are proud to be fighting the recession," he stated.

However, Liberal MPP John Cleary said Tuesday the budget fails to get people back to work and saddles taxpayers with a record deficit.

This latest deficit dwarfs previous Ontario deficits which peaked at $3.2 billion in 1982 under the Progressive-C "onservatives and then disappeared in 1989 when the Liberal government recorded a $90-million surplus.

Cleary says the Ontarians have been waiting seven months to see what solutions Bob Rae had for dealing with the recession. "After this budget, they're still waiting," he said from his Cornwall riding office.

As local politicians took aim at the NDP government for slapping an immediate 1.7 cents increase on gasoline and 1.6 cents on

Ingleside centre becoming a reality

Yves Cossette
Record Staff

INGLESIDE - A single shovel digging up a bit of earth brought smiles to the faces of politicians and children gathered in front of Rothwell-Osnabruck School Monday morning.

The ceremonial sod turning by Osnabruck Township Reeve Stewart Hart and Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry County Board of Education chairman Roy Hastings signaled the beginning of construction of the Lancer Community Centre in Ingleside.

Although construction won't actually begin for another few weeks, when load restrictions are lifted from local roads, the sod turning was the beginning of the end of a long uphill struggle to make the community centre a reality.

"There was a lot of work put into it, to see it finally come to bear is good. I think there were a lot of happy politicians today (and) particularly the students (who) have waited a long time for this," said Osnabruck Township recreation director Paul McAllister Monday evening.

Planning for the community centre began in 1985 when a township study revealed the need for a centre.

Students of Rothwell-Osnabruck school will share the $2.05-million facility with Ingleside and area residents. The cost of the community centre is being split by the township and the public school board.

The township's share of the project is $800,000 while the school board has committed the rest.

Construction, though, will likely come in under budget, because the 13 tenders submitted were lower than expected.

"That can be attributed to the fact that the economy is so slow now," McAllister said.

The precise cost of construction remains to be determined as a second contract has yet to be awarded, he said.

Subdivisions put on hold for another year

Yves Cossette
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE - Hopes of limited subdivision development in the village this summer were dashed last week when the Ministry of Environment (MOE) ruled out any new development in 1991.

Chesterville Reeve Jim Cook had hoped the village would allow the development of 40 lots this year. But he was told Monday, April 22 by an MOE official in Kingston, new lots would have to wait until the MOE gave the go ahead to reconstruct the village's sewage pumping station.

The decision means the village will have to delay development again for at least a year.

"I would say it would be next summer before anything takes place," he said.

Earlier this year, Cook had expressed hope the MOE would consider permitting some development this year.

"It didn't surprise me, but I was a bit disappointed we couldn't have a discussion on it" he said.

Cook's announcement was greeted with a mute reaction from council at a meeting last Wednesday night.

But Councillor Shirley Coons said Thursday she too was disappointed by the MOE decision.

Avonmore citizens vent anger at meeting with Canada Post

Shana Saper
Record Editor

AVONMORE—Angry citizens jammed Avonmore community hall Thursday night demanding that Canada Post reverse its decision to close the local post office June 27.

About 200 people some waving placards and wearing tee-shirts emblazoned with "save our post office" came out for the special meeting with Canada Post officials.

But after three hours of emotional debate—often punctuated by shouts and insults—most people left convinced the crown corporation wouldn't change its stance.

At the outset, Canada Post official Rob McCullagh informed Avonmore residents that he and his collegauges were not there to reconsider the closure.

"We're not here to discuss the possibility of keeping it open," said McCullagh, retail network manager for the Rideau division. And he added of the impending closure, "It's not a popular decision but it's a necessary one."

Canada Post's policy seeks to privatize postal services through local franchises or retail postal outlets (RPOs) which sell stamps and hold parcels.

But Avonmore residents discovered to their dismay Thursday night that their village would soon be left without even minimal services.

Laszlo Szabo, Canada Post's manager of community affairs, revealed that as of last week no local merchants were willing to buy an RPO franchise.

"We've written to local businesses asking them if they would want to have an RPO but not one has shown any interest," he said.

However, one local businessman, Murray Barkley, disputed Szabo's claim. "I run the only general store in town and I haven't been approached by Canada Post," he shouted from the back of the packed hall.

Barkley said someone from Canada Post had come to his store but didn't wait around long enough for him to get off the phone. "He left his business card," Barkley said.

A petition is currently being circulated among residents asking the Canadian government to reverse Canada Post's decision. But as of June 27, Avonmore's approximately 500 residents will have to travel 10km to the nearest retail outlet in Finch.

"Having our post ofice close without any RPO, we'll just have a bank of post boxes," said resident and retiree Stan Goodman.

Canada Post defended its action in the context of an ongoing policy since 1987 to reduce its deficit and cut money-losing operations.

More than 750 post offices have been closed across the country. Canada Post estimates savings on the order of one billion dollars over the next 10 years. Berwick's and Inkerman's post offices are also slated for closures in June.

Donald Cummings, reeve of Roxborough Township, criticized Canada Post at Thursday's meeting for not consulting with the township.

"I'm displeased with the way we were informed (about the closure)," said Cummings. "First we heard about it in the media and then a letter came and we have no appeal whatsoever," he added.

Roxborough council passed a resolution April 9 stating the closure would not only deprive Avonmore citizens of their right to habitual service but would remove the only "federal presence" in the community, and add to the region's already high unemployment.

Bob Kilger, Liberal Member of Parliament for Stormont-Dundas, says he's commited to working with the Avonmore community on this issue.

"The post office is the only federal presence in most rural communities and closing it strikes at the village's core," he said in a telephone interview Monday.

Kilger added, "People are being asked to do more and pay more these days but they're getting less in services."

Don Boudria, former Liberal postal critic and MP for Glengarry, Prescott, and Russell, commented that post offices used to be closed only when a post master retired.

"Now a whole pool of interim post masters are simply being fired, their contracts are not being renewed," Boudria said.

But according to Szabo, Canada Post can't go back on its decision now. "Canada Post's revenue is just two-thirds of its operating costs," he said, adding no company could continue to do business that way.

Oddly enough, local businesspeople feel the same way about taking over postal service franchises.

"There's no money it—maximum $5,000 to $6,000 a year," said store owner Barkley. Besides that he adds, "we don't have enough space or time to operate a retail outlet."

Despite the sting of last Thursday's meeting, Avonmore resident Terry McRae says people are still determined to keep their post office. An open meeting is scheduled May 14 between Roxborough council and Canada Post, and citizens are also planning a protest on Parliament Hill sometime in the coming weeks, he said.

"Avonmore people stopped the post office from being closed four years ago," McRae remarked. "They aren't going to lay down now."

But Hart said Tuesday the extra cash will go towards additional equipment for the centre.

The community centre, which will consist mainly of a gym, will be built between the school's existing gym and library.

The sod turning ceremony was attended by a host of dignitaries from the school board, Osnabruck Township Council, the Rotary Club and from Kraft Ltd., one of the community centre's principal corporate sponsors.

Following the ceremony, visitors were treated to a barbeque which was attended by 300 people, mostly students.

Hart, who helped turn the ceremonial sod, expects construction to be completed by December.

"It has to be, because we've got some bookings already," he said.

School principal Doug Murray hailed the sod turning as a postitive testimony to co-operation.

"By having partners in this we're all better off," he said. "From the viewpoint of a small rural school we are very pleased to have a gym fairly equal (in size) to the large city schools."

He said the school's students had been waiting for a new gym for seven years. The addition of the gym will enable the school to convert the old gym into a cafeteria.

Students have been using a hallway which joins the school's two wings as a cafeteria since the link was built in the 1970's.

McAllister said the gym's official opening won't be held until January 1992.

Provincial budget draws fire

cigarettes, business leaders warned of dire consequences for Ontario's business recovery.

David Mason of the Ottawa-Carleton Board of Trade said, "this tax measure will increase the competitive gap between Ontario and Quebec or New York State."

For his part, Villeneuve says the negative effects of the gasoline tax will be felt in the trucking industry in the coming months. "Many trucking companies are either closing up shop or relocating to the United States," he said.

Villeneuve blames the thrust of the budget on the labor unions close to the NDP.

However, Linda Warren of the Cornwall & District Labor Council says if the budget were a sell-out to labor, it would have been done differently.

"Someone is going to have to carry this deficit and it's going to be the average-income worker as usual," she said. Warren added, labor would have wanted to see the larger corporations made to pay, not the middle-income earners.

At the same time, she sees "good" points to the budget. Warren says the increase in public housing is a positive sign as well as retraining programs for workers who have lost their jobs due to plant closures.

Most social service organizations are pleased with the budget which will increase help to the poor by $215 in the next fiscal year. But the Social Planning Council of Ottawa-Carleton is wondering how that money will be divided and how much will trickle down to the region.

Jim Zamprelli of the Council says although the budget didn't talk about child care or minimum wage, "it's not a budget that's going to hurt the poor."

Community gardens ready to grow

TORONTO - The Ministry of Health's Community Gardens project is underway. Grants of approximately $10,000 are available to non-profit organizations to hire co-ordinators.

The project, announced as part of the government's anti-recession program, will provide funding to establish communal garden sites in communities across the province.

Co-ordinators will be responsible for organizing gardening activities and supplies, gathering information on food storage and preparation, and organizing related food projects.

The community gardens project presents an opportunity for people to work together to learn gardening skills, to improve their knowledge of food preparation, and to make healthy food choices.

Application forms for grants are available by phoning 1-800-268-1153 or by writing to: Paul Kopas, Community Gardens Project, Health Promotion Branch, Ministry of Health, Suite 1401, 700 Bay Street, Toronto, M5G 1Z6. Tel: (416)965-9203.

CHESTERVILLE - In what was a photo finish, duck number 491 edged out its closest rival, number 449, by seconds to finish first in a charity duck race on the South Nation River, Saturday afternoon.

Chesterville resident Gary Pelow, the sponsor of number 491, collected $500. Gordon Dean, who held ticket number 449, got the runner-up prize of $100 and Ming Phou of Don Mills, who had number 490, won $50 for third place.

The biggest winner, though was the Rotary Club, which had organized the race for the second year in a row.

Rotary president Stan Vanden Bosch, who was pleased with the way the race went, said Tuesday the club was able to earn $1,300, which will go to charity.

"It turned out as well as it did last year. We sold out all the tickets and had demand for more," he said.

Only 15 minutes earlier, 494 ducks were dumped simultaneously into the South Nation from the Highway 43 bridge west of Chesterville. A swift current carried the mass of yellow rubber ducks quickly to the finish line at the Main Street bridge.

Several hundred onlookers lined up along the Main Street bridge railing and on Main Street North along the river to watch the race under a clear blue sky.

"The conditions were just about ideal. The weather was good and the current carried the ducks down the river very quickly. It turned out very well," Vanden Bosch said.

Tickets, which were sold at $5 a piece, were sold out a week before the race. Each ticket had a number which corresponded to a number on a duck.

With ticket demand high, Rotary is considering holding two races next year, one in the morning and one in the afternoon.

Vanden Bosch also indicated there could be closer co-operation between the recently formed Chesterville Merchants Association in organizing next year's race.

The association helped promote the race this year by holding a draw which coincided with the race, Saturday.

Organizers had no problem with retrieving ducks this year. Volunteers in canoes and a motor boat scooped up the ducks with fishnets.

The only thing that didn't work was the net strung across the river to catch ducks. Vanden Bosch said the ducks were simply carried underneath the net by the current.

However, the net did succeed in trapping one of the canoes, which turned over, dumping its occupants into the river. Vanden Bosch said the two occupants were wet, but unharmed.

The club won't bother stringing up a net next year he said.

Editorial

Nobody loves a budget

The NDP government finally did it. They dropped their pants before Ontario citizens this week and proved to all anxious backbenchers' satisfaction that the emperor indeed has no clothes.

The rapid-fire press releases that passed many a journalist's desk yesterday could have been written seven months ago. The Grits and Tories alike were waiting for this major blooper on the part of the Socialists so they could launch an all-out I-told-you-so campaign. Oh, I do love it, that partisan niggling!

When the news came out Monday night, I was somewhat surprised but essentially pleased at the overall reasonableness of the NDP budget. Even though it will inflate the deficit three times and raise some taxes, it seems much wiser at this juncture to pursue social programs than to cut them.

Let's look at the federal government as a counter-example. The Wilson budget cut all sorts of money out of health care while imposing the ever-so popular GST. The idea there was to reduce the deficit.

Deficit seems to be the catch-word for conservative politics whatever stripe. The idea that spending on social programs is an economic ill while spending for armaments and bail-outs for ill-managed companies is wise is taken for granted in our world.

But to get back to the philosophy of deficit busting, need we say more than Goods and Services Tax? So far, the GST has raised more ire in the population than the near-invasion by the Nazi submarine armada in World War II.

In reality, the GST and its siamese twin Free Trade have done more to destroy national unity than all the Bill 101s Quebec could ever enforce. The borders are wide open to Sunday Shopping as well as uneven competition from U.S. manufacturers. For that we can thank the present federal government, not the Ontario NDP.

Although the Ontario budget may end up exacerbating the present economic woes, as MPPs Noble Villeneuve and John Cleary believe, they are certainly not the cause of them. And what of the NDPs $700 million for fighting the recession? Is that good or bad spending, I ask?

On the one hand, Noble Villeneuve admits his riding has benefited from the largesse of the anti-recession program set up in December.

But he said in a press release this week the only job creation the NDP can take credit for is what is occuring south of the border. That is a bit cynical after all the fanfare he and Mr. Cleary have made over the resuscitation of Guildcrest Homes and F&B Clothing Ltd in Cornwall.

And when Mr. Villeneuve called the deficit budget a substitute for greed, that too smacks of soap opera rather than sound reasoning.

The fact of the matter is, this budget like every other budget, is unpopular with those who oppose the policies of the government in power. But for once, those who support the idea of a welfare state can take some solace from this one.

Conversion program flawed

Open letter to the Minister responsible for Canada Post

Hon. Harve Andre
House of Commons
Ottawa

Dear Sir:

As you probably know, the residents of Avonmore and the surrounding community have recently been informed that our post office is to be closed in its present form, and that postal services for the community are to be provided in some other way. Canada Post held an "information" meeting on April 25, and just two months later the present post office is to close.

Apart from the undue haste with which this operation is being carried out there are a number of aspects that are disturbing. At a meeting held last week, attended by some sixty members of this small community, it was decided that about the only way to influence the actions of Canada Post was to write to our elected representatives. Hence this letter to you, the Minister responsible for Canada Post.

The matter of most concern to those attending the above-mentioned meeting was the likely quality of service after the conversion of the post office. Officials of Canada Post say that alternative service will be provided by a Retail Postal Outlet, provided some business in the village is willing to accept the franchise. I have looked at some RPO's in neighboring villages in which postal services have been converted, and have found that they are, by and large, reasonably satisfactory. The trouble in Avonmore, however, is that no one wants the franchise; this fact has been confirmed by the above-mentioned officials of Canada Post. This means that postal services will be reduced to a bank of outside boxes. We will have to travel six miles to Finch to get registered mail, to mail parcels, buy stamps and all the other services. We will also lose the bulletin board in the present post office, often the only way of informing villagers of social events, church meetings, etc.

At the "information" meeting (April 25) the officials of Canada Post began, as they did at a similar one in Inkerman, by saying that the mandate given to the Corporation when it was created included the elimination of the deficit and the improvement of services to Canadians. And they will claim that the conversion of post offices to RPO's has improved postal services; and, by and large, I think they are right. But they will not make the same claim for municipalities that have their post offices replaced by outside mailboxes, and if they are pressed they will admit that this represents an inferior level of service. This part of the conversion program clearly violates the Corporation's mandate to improve postal services to Canadians. Not only will it fail to improve services for Canadians in this community, it will have the exact opposite effect.

It was suggested to the above-mentioned officials at the meeting in Inkerman that because of the certain deterioration in service the conversion should not be implemented in Avonmore. Their reply was that if they failed to push through the program in any community they had targeted, the whole program would fail. If that were true the program is surely flawed, and it should be corrected. One simple way to make such a change is to make it a policy that postal services in any community should be changed if, and only if, a Retail Postal Outlet can be established to provide postal services. Until a business is found that wants the franchise, the existing post office should remain as is.

I thank you for your attention, and look forward to an improved quality of service from Canada Post.

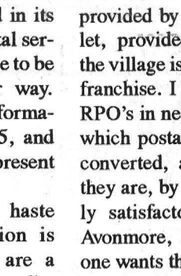
Gorbymania fades, but impact undeniable

For the Record



Yves Cossette

It has been a year and half since a series of popular uprisings swept Eastern Europe and toppled the moribund communist regimes that had been in place since the end of World War II.

The uprisings were possible because the Soviet Union, which had kept a tight rein on East Europe for 40 years, permitted the change to take place. It was as incredible a change as it was peaceful. Most importantly perhaps, was that it permitted the peaceful unification of Germany. The division of Germany had been the heart of the Cold War.

The man who made that change all possible was Mikhail Gorbachev, the president of the Soviet Union. It is almost a year ago I saw Gorby do one of his famed walk-abouts at Confederation Square in Ottawa to chat the folks who came out to see him.

Gorbachev was afterall riding the crest of Gorbymania, the phenomenon that arose due to his popularity in the west. He earned that popularity because he dared to shake up status quo of the old world order.

The old order, despite its apparent predictability, was dangerous. The arms race spun out of control in the 1980's creating more superpower tension than actually relieving it through deterence.

But Gorbachev also realized his country could no longer keep up in the arms race, the costs were too much for the Soviet economy to bear.

By instituting political reform–glasnost– and economic reform– perestroika– he hoped to rebuild his ethnically diverse country into an economic powerhouse that would retain the Soviet Union's stature in the world that thus far had been maintained by armed might alone.

A lot has changed in the world and in the Soviet Union since he took over in 1985 as general secretary of the Communist Party. But not everything has turned out the way Gorbachev envisioned.

Although glasnost has permitted free elections in all 15 of the Soviet Union's republics, it has also unleashed nationalist passions which were supressed for decades.

Nationalism and Gorbachev's failure to come through with perestroika (economic reform) is threatening to bring the country's conflicting political and ethnic forces to boil.

Even Gorbachev has talked of civil war, a calamity which would undoubtedly affect the west. More likely is the possibility of a conservative backlash which would bring back some form of dictatorship.

But so far the conservatives, which enjoy the support of the KGB and hardline military officers, have failed to muster public support in their drive to oust Gorbachev from power.

It's not that the public doesn't want Gorbachev out, but the conservatives forces realize the public doesn't see them as an acceptable alternative.

If Gorbachev is to bring the Soviet Union out of crisis he is going to have to show the boldness and initiative he displayed in improving superpower relations and in sparking change in East Europe. He is going to have to put himself squarely back in with the reformers.

Last week's agreement with the leaders of nine Soviet republics, including his arch-rival Boris Yeltsin, the reform leader of the Russian Republic, to co-operate on economic matters, is a promising first step.

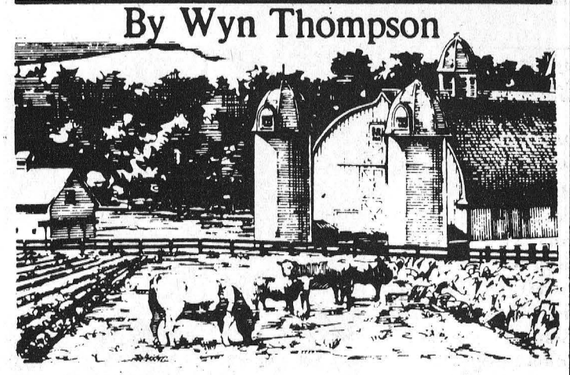
Since Gorby's visit to Ottawa last May, his image, like a silver coin, has lost its lustre and has been considerably tarnished by time and the wear and tear of the political forces within his county.

He will have to polish his image considerably at home to complete the Soviet Union's transition from a communist dictatorship to democratic country with a market economy.

Whether he succeeds or not remains to be seen. But he still is the man who almost single-handedly eased superpower relations, broke up the Warsaw Pact and brought about the liberation of East European countries. For that he has earned a place in history.

The Farmer's Wife

By Wyn Thompson



Last week we visited Mexico. The grand finale to the day was a trip, up the winding mountain road in El Paso, to see the lights on both sides of the Rio Grande. This sea of lights was a spectacle not soon to be forgotten!

It made the lights of Montreal as seen from the top of Mount Royal, lovely though they are, pale by comparison. But, of course, each city is unique.

All too soon it was time to begin our journey eastward and home. Abilene, Texas, was our next stop and the road to it ran straight as an arrow past acres of range country, dotted with patches of yellow or purple ground cover.

Near Odessa, oil wells dotted the fields, eight to ten per acre, where cattle used to roam, in larger numbers no doubt. The most expensive gas prices were posted here.

Abilene was settled first by buffalo hunters, many of whom came and stayed to swell the population to its present 110,000. I smile when I type distance or population figures and the Farmer swears it is a thing with me, so you can imagine how pleased I was to see a fellow passenger as obsessed with the weather, particularly the temperatures.

Now, Abilene is mainly noted for agriculture and oil, not necessarily in that order.

We sang the miles away across Texas, kept on tune by three fellow passengers and our two hosts. I thought how essential it probably was for a cowboy to sing as he herded cattle on the range —it certainly passes the hours nicely.

The songs were interspersed by tales related by several story-tellers extraordinaire. It was great fun!

Near Fort Worth and Dallas, we saw typical ranch country, good looking farmland and cows, cows, cows. It is indeed, as the sign said, a state of big money, big houses, big cowboys, and big hats.

We visited the Kennedy assasin scene and memorial "not to relive the tragic event but to see the joy and brightness of the Kennedy regime."

From Texas, we entered the state of Arkansas where it was good to see trees and gently rolling hills like those we'd left at home. We visited Hot Springs National Park and at the hotel enjoyed the thermal bath and a good swim.

Nashville was our next stop and, then we were in Ohio experiencing cold winds —shades of things to come.

Soon we re-entered Canada, a good feeling, but for three weeks we had shared experiences, ideas, music, tall tales, candy, biscuits and, the common cold.

At one point, I was reminded of the runny nosed kindergarten syndrome as the virus travelled up one aisle and down the other.

It was an educational tour, no doubt about that. It was a fun tour. A good experience, made possible by two experienced, caring and delightful hosts and, one coach driver of similar talents.

I could only think as we neared home of what a culture shock awaits the Farmer and I when next we embark on a sight-seeing tour, map on knee, with one little Trillium trailer bouncing along behind!

And now, 'tis barely May. The magic of May evokes apple blossoms. All along the concession roads the apple blossoms explode into beauty. When our valley was settled, every man who cleared his land, built his house, and put in his garden, set out an orchard.

In many places now, the buildings are gone, the fields overgrown, but a few old apple trees remain. Some of these trees bear pink blooms but most of them open into snowy white.

But, the main crop in our valley is the loveliness of May, and well worth the wait through the long months of winter. Lilacs are now in bloom in my yard, and narcissi colors the yard of my neighbor. In fact, they bloom in almost every dooryard but mine.

An event! I saw the first hummingbird of the year. Amanda brought me a feed of asparagus and rhubarb, and we had them for supper: nothing sweeter than these first flavors of the garden.

I am up early in May for there is a specialness about this month which I like to savor to the full. However, I am a morning worker, and I like to think of the comment I read somewhere —He was a morning worker, "skimming the cream off the day and using the rest of the time for cheese-making." Well, I don't make cheese but, it is an excellent system to enjoy the time of day when you are well rested. Or so it seems to me!

I have to confess though, with a bit of contrition, that often during May mornings, working at a laborious task indoors, I long for an interruption —almost any interruption — that will take me out-of-doors.

So many wildflowers now one can't keep track. This is the time of swift insistent growth. It is a green world with the trees either in bud or leafing out.

The birds are so busy, they are a joy to watch. It truly is a month that has everything. The weather is so lovely that the groundhogs come out of their holes to taste it.

Old folks and sick folks, who planned to die, change their minds and set their rocking chairs in the sunshine. I remember a midwife who saw many babies into the world in the little village where I grew up, saying, "A May baby gets the best start."

Everybody knows there's magic in May. Gardeners who can't wait another minute for settled, warm weather rush to get their crops in the ground —and, as it happens, they usually flourish. Sometimes a late frost nips them a bit, but as a rule, it doesn't seem to hurt them too much.

Some people believe that the month was named for Maia, the Roman goddess of spring and growth. Some believe that the celebrations originated with the worship of trees by ancient Druids.

No matter, it's a month to love and enjoy and celebrate in whatever way the spirit moves you!

Hospital mum about committee

by Liz Edwards
Special to the Record

WINCHESTER— The Winchester District Memorial Hospital Board is being tight-lipped about discussions dealing with its current administrative difficulties.

The board gathered last week to hear a report from an ad hoc committee formed specifically to resolve its problems, but has yet to release any details on the meeting.

Board Vice-president Bob Weagant refused comment on the meeting saying President Herman Devries is the spokesman for the board. However Devries is away on vacation and could not be reached for comment.

Minutes of the last meeting on April 22 were not available to the media.

Last March the board formed the ad hoc committee staffed with seven non-medical board directors to address the internal strife between hospital staff and Administrator James Egan. For months staff has expressed dissatisfaction with the administrator and the deterioration of services at the hospital.

Various medical staff including Dr. Peter Vorobej and Dr. Raymond Dawes went public with their criticisms of the present administration. Vorobej resigned from all medical committees in protest while Dawes wrote a letter to the editor of the Winchester Press asking Egan to resign.

Former Board President Wayne Burns resigned from his post, saying troubles at the hospital had turned the position into a full-time job. He left to attend to business and personal matters.

Upon taking Burn's place, new Board President Devries stated he did not see the resignation of Egan as a viable option.

The ad hoc committee met in April to discuss solutions to the problem.

Public school board iffy about butts

by Michelle Valiquet
Special to the Record

CORNWALL—The SD&G Public School Board trustees have reversed their decision to implement a total smoking ban on all school properties.

Following a heated debate at their recent board meeting and a close 10-8 vote, school trustees agreed to continue the status quo by cancelling the Sept. 1, 1991 implementation of the ban.

"No one is saying that smoking is good for you, but there would have been a problem policing a total ban on school property," explained board chairman Ron Hastings.

The change, which squashed a previous board directive reached 18 months ago following presentations from both the Ministry of Health and local doctors, means smoking will continue to be banned from inside schools and restricted to only designated areas on school properties.

Last month, with less than six month left before implemention of the total ban, the Secondary School Principals' Association requested the board reconsider its decision and allow designated outdoor smoking areas. The group made a presentation to the board which was pivotal in changing trustees' minds on the issue.

"The principals were concerned with students leaving school property to smoke," explained North Dundas High School Principal Don McGahan. "At our school they would have to go down to the highway, at other schools they might be forced into streets, shopping malls or neighbors properties to smoke. They could face possible danger."

McGahan also mentioned students could create a nuisence for neighboring property owners and residential areas.

CONCERNS

McGahan also listed concerns surrounding the amount of time that would be devoted to enforcement of the policy.

"Schools don't have the resources to spend on taking care of that type of ban," he added, saying he was pleased with the outcome of the recent board meeting.

"The board looked at the situation and the possible ramifications of enforcing such a ban. They made the right decision."

Hastings agreed with McGahan's concerns.

"It boils down to people staying on school property and enforcement. Having been a principal myself I realize the supervision needed to police such a ban would have been difficult to provide," he said. "I don't know any other school board in the province where (smoking) is totally banned from a board's property, although 90 per cent of the boards do ban it from their buildings."

EIGHT TRUSTEES

Winchester Springs Trustee Graham Casselman was disappointed by what he called the public board's "step backwards".

He was among the eight trustees who voted against the turnaround and one of the original supporters of a total ban.

He discounted the principals' argument of policing problems saying, "There will always be a problem to rid smoking from any area whether it's just the school or the whole school property. It's always a problem instituting reforms. That's life, hard decisions have to be made and you have to work at it."

He stated the board lifted the ban following the principals' presentation without allowing public interest groups to make another presentation.

"They (the public) had no chance to react to the principals' concerns," admitted Casselman.

He said any reconsideration of the ban's extension can only be discussed once a year.

"A total ban will probably have to wait until we have a new chairman."

Equity law won't affect local OPP

WINCHESTER—A recently announced employment equity legislation for Ontario police services will not greatly affect local OPP detachments, say area OPP officials.

The regulation, announced by Ontario Solicitor General Mike Farnan, will increase the number of racial minorities, women, aboriginals and the disabled in police services across the province.

However, OPP Sgt. Jim Irvine says there probably won't be any change in staff at the Winchester detachment. The unit has eight officers, including one woman and two officers who are fluent in French.

Morrisburg OPP Const. Morgan Hill says the hiring of the personnel is not done by the individual detachments. He predicts members of the specified equity groups will be hired on as officers retire or leave the force.

Commercial taxes shift to RCSSB

Yves Cossette
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE - The village will have to collect a whopping 44 per cent more in separate school board taxes for 1991 than in 1990.

But the increase is unlikely to affect individual homeowners, said an official of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Catholic School board, Monday.

Gordon Greffe, the board's business administrator said the 44 per cent hike is due to provincial legislation passed last year which gives Catholic school boards a bigger slice of the commercial assessment.

"What used to go to the public board (now) is going to the separate board," he said.

The village has to collect $104,000 for the Catholic board, which is $32,000 more than the $72,000 raised last year.

But $35,000 will be taken from the commercial assessment. Last year the Catholic board received only $7,600.

Greffe said the change should not affect businesses too much as money that previously had gone to the public board is now shifted to the Catholic board.

"I suspect that our commercial rate is less than the public board so in fact they may pay less,' he said.

Individual homeowners in Chesterville will be saddled with an eight per cent increase.

May 1991

Why We Need Your Help

Over the years the aging process has taken its toll on the physical plant and its sytems to the point where a significant renewal program is required to bring the hospital up to fire, safety and Ontario Hydro codes, thereby ensuring that it functions in a safe manner.

What It Will Cost

The consultants have estimated that the entire project will cost approximately $7,000,000.

In our case it is expected the Ministry will fund approximately $4,600,000 of the total cost, and therefore the hospital's share is expected to be approximately $2,400,000. In addition, the Board increased the hospital's financial target by $600,000 over the three-year term of the fundraising project to incorporate required capital equipment replacements which cost in the area of $200,000 per year.

Pipeline meets opposition

Yves Cossette
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE - Village council has approved additional construction work on the porous pipeline which links the well at Maple Ridge to Chesterville.

The work order, which calls for the replacement of three valves along the pipeline, was given to Frank Ault Excavating Ltd., one of three firms facing a lawsuit from the village over the failure to fix the pipeline.

The approval was given last Wednesday night despite opposition from Deputy Reeve Roger Cole who felt no further work orders should be approved until the leaks in the pipeline are fixed.

"I think we made a firm commitment at the last meeting that we weren't going to pay another nickel until we get some action," he said.

But Reeve Jim Cook argued it was in the village's best interests to approve the work order so council doesn't appear to be the party holding up work on the pipeline.

"We don't want...to get into the position where they say we're holding them up," he said.

Council indicated April 15 it was pursuing legal action against Totten Sim Hubicki Associates Ltd., Marcus Construction Ltd. and Frank Ault Excavating Ltd. to ensure the pipeline is made operational without additional expense to the village.

The pipeline has been virtually unused since its completion in early spring 1990. The village was forced to shut off the new well at Maple Ridge 10 days after it began pumping water to the village, because the pipeline sprung dozens of leaks.

The replacement of the three valves along the pipeline had been planned since late 1990. A study done on the deficient pipeline last summer recommended the valves, which permit air to escape the pipeline, to be replaced by valves which also permit air to get into the pipeline.

Councillor Peter Van Kessel agreed council should go ahead with the work despite dissatisfaction with the way work has been carried out so far.

"It's going to have to be done sooner or later (anyway)," he said.

But Cole voted against it.

"If we continue to pay we're only fooling ourselves. It ticks me off to no end," he said. "I disagree with what Jim (Cook) said that we have to show some good faith. I think we've shown more than enough good faith in the last year with this thing dragging on."

Council has blamed the design of the pipeline as the source of problems plaguing the pipeline.

Cole said he realized the valves had to be replaced, but replacing them still won't address the problem of the leaks.

"It's still not going to make the system work until somebody corrects the bigger problem," he said.

FWIO top recycling group

The Outstanding Organization for the Ontario Waste Management Award from Recycling Council of Ontario (RCO) was presented to Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario (FWIO) at the RCO Awards ceremony held in Toronto on April 18. The Award states "through education, demonstration and advocacy FWIO, in its commitment to advance reduction, reuse and recycling throughout the province of Ontario is successfully affecting public behavior. In recognition of this environmental leadership and to express the appreciation of the members of the Recycling Council of Ontario this award is presented to FWIO by John D. Birchall, Chairman of the RCO.

In accepting the award, the President of FWIO, Peggy Knapp, stated she was thrilled to accept on behalf of the 20,000 FWIO volunteers from across the province. Their accomplishments were as diverse as the Lobbying of Municipal Councils in Waste Management and Recycling to the organization of women along our country picking up and recycling waste found in ditches.

FWIO has as their theme for the decade of Women and the Environment a theme that can suit the diversity of interests of FWIO across the province. FWIO is committed to improve the environment they live in and not just for the present but for future generations to come. As part of that commitment their special project for 1991-92 is for every FWIO, branch, district and area, to plant at least one tree and hopefully even more than one. Not only will the planting of trees help the local community and the environment but it is a symbol that FWIO is committed to its own growth within Ontario.

FWIO is proud to be the Outstanding Organization in Ontario for its work to minimize waste.

Pro-life group fights deadline in a bid to oppose euthanasia legislation

Yves Cossette
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE - A local pro-life group wants more time to organize opposition to two provincial bills which will grant people the right to instruct their doctors to end life supporting medication or assistance in case of terminal illness.

The Dundas-Grenville Right-to-Life group is one of a number of Ontario pro-life organizations circulating petitions asking the Standing Committee on Administration of Justice for more time to prepare their submissions opposing Bill 7, An Act to amend the Powers of Attorney Act and 8, An Act respecting Natural Death.

The deadline for submissions is today. But Jane Dejong, a member of the group is scambling to organize support for the petition to extend the deadline for submissions by 90 days.

Dejong has collected the names of 120 people supporting the drive for an extension. But she said she is only one of a number of people circulating petitions in the area.

She blasted the committee for only giving a short notice in advance of the hearing. The hearing starts May 6, but the group only found out about it through an advertisement placed in The Globe and Mail, Thursday.

"We feel they haven't given us nearly enough time to make proper objections to it," she said.

Bill 7 proposes to allow people the right to give a power of attorney in connection with consenting or witholding consent to medical treatment.

Bill 8 proposes to grant people the power to make out a "living will" that instructs physicians or other health-care workers to withhold or withdraw life support in the event of a terminal illness.

But right-to-life groups are opposed to the proposed legislation because the decision over whether life support systems are maintained is taken away from the person who is ill and unable to commmunicate with their doctor.

"Even if someone is in a coma, they may be still very aware of what is going on," Dejong said.

A doctor armed with a living will or with permission from a person who has been given a power of attorney, may cut life support, because the person in a coma is unable to communicate, she added.

The legislation would also leave terminally ill people vulnerable to abuse by people wishing to gain from their death.

"If this goes through, it will affect anyone with AIDS or a degenerative disease," she said.

Stormont, Dundas, Glengary and East Grenville MPP Noble Villeneuve said Monday he will ask the clerk for an extension.

But Villeneuve is in favor of the bill which was introduced by Progressive Conservative MPP Norm Sterling.

"I have no problem with it at all," he said.

He said three or four organizations, including the Alzheimers Society, in Ontario representing senior citizens are in favor of the bill.

"I was amazed at the support that some of the seniors organizations gave," he said.

Villenueve said terminally ill cancer people, still capable of making decisions should have the right to be taken off life support.

"I have on several occasions seen people on their last with cancer and you keep pumping some of this very rough medication into them to extend a very miserable existence," he said.

He admitted euthanasia does leave open the possibility of the wrong person getting the power of attorney to determine whether someone remains on life suport or not.

"Preferably you don't give it to someone that stands to gain from your passing," he said.

Villeneuve stressed the proposed legislation simply gives people the option to make out living wills and to grant a power of attorney.

Positive health conference to draw active seniors and "pre-seniors"

Shana Saper
Record Editor

OTTAWA—Sexuality, happy aging, and mental health, will be among the topics discussed at a two-day conference on positive health for senior citizens this week.

The Partners in Good Health conference is scheduled for May 2 and 3 at the Talisman Motor Inn in Ottawa. Organizers are expecting some 200 laypeople and health service professionals to attend this first gathering of its kind in Eastern Ontario.

Sonia Theberge, project officer for the Elisabeth Bruyere Health Centre, says the conference is aimed at bringing updated information to people who are living longer and better than ever before.

"Our objective is reach people in a way that isn't overly professional," said Theberge, a conference organizer.

Participants will be invited to ask questions and share their own experiences on diverse subjects ranging from medication awareness, comunication, healthful eating, and looking and feeling good.

The conference is co-sponsored by Health and Welfare Canada's seniors independence program and the Elisabeth Bruyere Health Centre in Ottawa. The Ontario Ministry of Health's French language health services is collaborating in providing simultaneous translation and workshops for francophone participants.

Thursday morning's opening session will be officiated by the the Hon. Ray Hnatyshyn, governor General of Canada. And a 5-6pm social hour will offer conference participants a chance to meet their federal and provincial members of parliament.

Priority registration will be given to Eastern Ontario seniors. For more information, contact Yvonne Wagorn or Sonia Theberge at 560-0050.

Subdivisions put on hold

"These people (the developers) have a lot of money invested and they have a lot of bills to pay and they can't proceed," she said.

Three groups of Chesterville businessmen have planned the development of a total of 225 lots. Development was held up last year in part because a request for provincial funding to improve the village's infrastructure had been turned down by the MOE.

The request was refused because the ministry was awaiting the results of a study of Chesterville's water and sewer infrastructure.

The study, completed in 1990, revealed the pumping station needed to be improved to handle growth.

But council had been told by the MOE in late 1989 40 lots may be approved early 1990 regardless of the study's outcome. Cook had hoped to proceed with the development of 40 lots this year.

Bob Watson, operations engineer with the MOE in Kingston, said Friday, discussion of development in the village is still possible this year.

"We would certainly be willing to have another look at it, once the grant question has been resolved," he said.

The village should find out whether the MOE intends to approve expanding the sewage pumping stations capacity in the next three or four months. But even if the village gets the grant money, it is unlikely there will be any development this year, he said.

For Martin Derks, one of three partners hoping to build a 100 lot subdivision west of Highway 43, the setback was another disappointment.

"What can a person do? I'm very disappointed that we can't seem to do anything," he said.

Derks, who owns Derks Farm Equipment, joined forces with Chesterville businessmen Dale McNaughton and Erik Thompson, in 1988 and purchased a tract of land to build a subdivision.

Derks said they had bought the land in the belief that once the water project was completed, development could start. Although the water project has been plagued by problems, it is the sewer system that has been the biggest impediment to growth.

A 21-lot subdivision is also being planned by Chesterville businessmen Peter Van Kessel and Peter St. Germain.

A third and fourth subdivision, 100 lots in all, is being planned by Chesterville developer, Garnet Droppo.

ND hosts annual gymnastics meet

MAPLE RIDGE - Over 300 elementary students competed in the 1991 Dundas County Elementary Gymnastics Meet at North Dundas District High School last Thursday.

Jack Barkley co-ordinator of the event said the yearly meet was very successful although there were not as many participants as in previous years.

Morrisburg Public was the only school unable to attend. Morrisburg students were unable to practice their routines because the school's gymnasium is undergoing renovations.

Nine schools competed at the gymnastics meet.

Barkley said that the biggest factor for the success of the meet was the fact that no one got hurt.

He added, "God has been good to us the last four or five years."

Good coaching was another explanation that Barkley gave for the lack of serious injuries. He said the coaching this year was superb.

"The students were very well behaved also."

There were five different events for the boys and six events for the girls. The top six placing were rewarded with a ribbon, however there was no competition between the schools.

Barkley said, "students are here to show us what they can do as far as performing. We get away from the competitive aspect as much as possible."

Barkley thanked North Dundas custodial staff and administration. He gave special thanks to Fran Kelly and her judges, who are all students at North Dundas. The cafeteria staff was also shown appreciation by all involved.

Chesterville's Justin Heuff competes for a third place finish in the boys 11-year-old horizontal bars event last-Thursday at the Dundas County Elementary Gymnastics meet.

North Dundas Devils track relay team clinches memorial championship

IROQUOIS—Speed kills. Speed certainly did the opposition in here last Thursday as the North Dundas District High School Devils ran away with the David Stevens Memorial Relay championship.

It was a "nip and tuck", "tooth and nail" battle with Hawkesbury for most of the day but when the Devils ran away with three of the day's six 4X100m relay gold medals North Dundas pulled into a lead they wouldn't relinquish.

The final margin of victory was 30 points. North Dundas won the nine school competition earning 227 points, including the coaches' medley. Hawkesbury was second best with 187 points.

The final standings (excluding coaches' medley points) read as follows: North Dundas 217, Hawkesbury 187, St. Joseph 122, CCVS 120, General Vanier 118, St. Lawrence 37, Seaway 34, Char-Lan 27 Glengarry 27.

North Dundas claimed 10 first place ribbons. The girls team collected six golds and the boys four. They also struck silver 10 times. In fact the Devils entered every event and collected points in all 33 as they took the title away from the absent La Citadelle Patriotes.

"I'm really pleased. It has been a great day!" exclaimed coach Hugh Conlin.

"Enthusiasm (on the team) has been high all day. They (Devils) ran very well." he added.

Conlin, thought his team made a great start to their 1991 season, noting the school (house) track meet was set for this week and the SD&G championships are the following week.

"I think what made it exciting was the way we fought with Hawkesbury all day. It was nip and tuck."

Conlin was proud of the five firsts his junior girls had earned. And noted the boys had to settle for some seconds and thirds because sprinter Matt Clark was unable to compete.

Clark will be lost to the Devils for the entire track season after he partially separated his shoulder last week. Clark said he originally hurt himself lifting weights and then aggravated it later.

"The doctor says six weeks. So I guess track is finished for this year," Clark explained.

"It's too bad about Matt. He certainly would have helped us," Conlin said.

Meet organizer Don Fairweather was all smiles as the day, blessed with warm temperatures, a soft breeze and sun shine, progressed on schedule.

"We finally got the weather. It's great after some of the past years." he said.

"Everything went well. We have just nine school this year. It's not a high pressure event and I think everyone is really enjoying it," Fairweather added.

North Dundas' day began with firsts in both the Junior boys and Junior girls 4x100m (shuttle) relay. The Devils struck silver in the 4000m open distance medley finishing behind General Vanier in the girls and St. Joes in the boys. The boys and girls (Seniors) were runners-up in the 4x100m shuttle and the Midget boys shuttle as the navy and white team sprinted through the morning's events.

Rebecca Kennedy, Tonia Foley, Amy Vermilyea and Laura Zrymiak then teamed up and blazed a winning trail to the finish line in the Junior girls' 4x200m.

Amy Vermilyea, Michelle St. Pierre, Allison Mclean and Laura Zrymiak hit the wire first in the Junior girls 1600m medley.

The Vermilyea, Foley, Kennedy and Zrymiak combination led the 4X400m run from start to finish and struck gold for the Devils again.

Amy Vermilyea ran the opening leg of the 4x100m and handed the baton to Tonia Foley who ran the Devils from fourth place to second. Rebecca Kennedy held second place status for North Dundas and gave the baton to sprinter Laura Zrymiak who then swept the opposition off the track streaking to another first place finish.

North Dundas' Junior boys also enjoyed some golden finishes. Brendan Bumbaco, Martin Pancirov, Sean Salter and Mike Singh won the 1600m medley with Singh running the final 800m.

Jamie Kennedy, Corey Dignard, Sean Salter and Martin Pancirov took the 4X400m while Kennedy teamed with Doug O'Connor, Martin Pancirov and Jason Ouellette (who ran the final 100m) cleaned up in the 4x100m event.

The Midget girls team of Kerri Howes, Tonia Foley, Rebecca Kennedy and Megan Filion posted the fastest time in the 1600m medley.

The Midget boys squad of Chris Killmartin, Rod Merkley, Sean Hache and Mahina Arnold also struck gold winning their 4x100m event in impressive fashion. Hache was third when he handed to Arnold for the final 100m. Arnold's kick pulled the Devils to the wire first.

North Dundas also had several "just misses".

Senior girls 4X400m team of Karen Gilroy, Megan Filion, Brenda Koekkoek and Shealyn Summers had to settle for second in a close finish as did the Senior boys 4X400m squad of Mike Andre, Jason Cull, Scot Bell and Jayme O'Reilly.

North Dundas' day finished on a winning note as they put together the right runners for the Coaches' Medley.

Laura Zrymiak ran the 200m, Matt Robinson took the baton for 100m, coach Ms. Acheson took the stick for another 100m and Mike Andre covered the final 400m rallying his team from fourth to first place.

North Dundas Devils' Amy Vermilyea passes on the baton to Tonia Foley in the 4x100 junior girls relay. The girls junior relay team competed for all five gold medals given in the division.

Cedar Glen Golf course preparing for season

WILLIAMSBURG - Now that the rainy days of April are past the Cedar Glen Golf course has been preparing for another season of play.

The club's yearly functions have been set, with the first scheduled event of the season getting underway tonight, May 1. The first Ladies' Night will begin at 4 p.m.

The following evening the men will putt off for the first Men's Night for the new year of golfing.

Both evenings will include a beef steak B.B.Q. and the chance to renew old acquaintances and form new ones.

On Saturday, May 11 the Opening Day Tournament is open to all members and those who might be considering becoming members. A pot luck supper will be held after 18 holes of golf.

Memberships are available, and the course and clubhouse are now in full operation.

Foley hurdles her way to double gold at invitational meet

OTTAWA - Tonia Foley hurdled her way to two first place finishes at the National Capital Track and Field High School Invitational at the Terry Fox Sports Facility Saturday.

Foley ran a time of 51.1 in the midget girls 300m hurdles to be the first competitor to cross over the finish line.

Victory was also claimed by North Dundas' second year midget, in the 80m hurdles. She stopped the clock in 12.9 seconds, over a second faster than her closest competitor who clocked in a time of 14.1 seconds.

Devils' Junior Boy's javelin thrower, Sean Salter, had the second best throw. He recorded a distance of 42.84, second only to Renfrew's Chris Moody who made a distance of 46.99.

Megan Filion, North Dundas' long distance runner ranked fourth in the midget girls' 3000m with a time of 12:40.5.

In the 1500m midget girls' competition, Filion placed fifth registering a time of 5:42.9.

North Dundas Devils' coach Hugh Conlin said everyone was still pretty sore from the annual David Stevens Memorial Relay Meet that was held the previous Thursday at Seaway High School. However, the members that were there had a good day.

There were approximately 1,100 athletes from 37 high schools taking part in the annual meet.

Minor Hockey Calendar Draw

Phyllis Morrow, Morrisburg, Ont. was the winner of North Dundas Minor Hockey Association's $50 draw on April 19 with ticket #0136210. Martha Ann Birtch, Winchester, Ont. was the winner of North Dundas Minor Hockey Association's $50 draw on April 26 with ticket #01863.

Winchester Karate competition a treat for viewers and organizer

WINCHESTER—Tom Fleming was expecting 900 competitors from 90 clubs here on Saturday.

His first attempt at hosting the initial Winchester Invitational Karate Competition attracted 385 competitors from over 60 clubs.

Fleming wasn't disappointed with those numbers. He said he just wondered why two of the bigger clubs who had promised to come (130 members each) didn't show.

"I didn't hear from them. But this was the size of event we had originally planned on, so I would have to say it is a success," he said.

Fleming, a sixth-degree black belt and head of the Tom Fleming Karate Club here in Winchester, made those comments here during Saturday afternoon's action.

Tuesday, after his first competition had been completed, the numbers tallied and feelings evaluated Fleming was even more pleased with the day.

"I was extremely pleased. Actually I was very happy with it. We raised $3,500 for the Chito-Ryu Karate Association and had 187 paid spectators," he explained.

"I have to thank the people of Winchester. The fans who came out to watch, the parents and others who volunteered to help us. They all were great."

Fleming explained that during other competitions, in Montreal for example, spectators don't acknowledge medal winners, here Saturday people applauded each medal presentation.

"It really was fun to put it on in Winchester."

"People who witnessed their first black belt sparing, full fighting, couldn't believe how intense the action was. They couldn't get over how vicious the fighting was between two men who weren't trying to hurt each other. But these black belts were out to earn a spot on the Canadian team and the opportunity to compete all over the world. They are very serious."

But the day wasn't all black belt intensity. All levels and ages of ability took part and strutted their stuff in front of judging panels. Their marks earned them gold, silver or bronze medallions or just the satisfaction of having taken part.

Fleming said that 15 people came in for the day from the Magdalen Islands, a trip that probably cost them $500 each. 40-50 came to Winchester from Quebec City. The event doctor had worked three full days and had a friend drive him here (while he slept) so he could be part of the competition.

"That's how much these people think of their sport."

Fern Cleroux, a seventh degree black belt and former Canadian National level coach noted the ability and intensity of the younger competitors and commented.

"The weather might have been too nice today. That may have cut into the crowd but I'm definitely not disappointed. This is the first time for Winchester. We will have all year to work on our next one."

Fleming and Cleroux may not have a full year to plan another Karate extravaganza.

Apparently Winchester recreation director Frank Morgan, impressed by the attention Saturday's meet generated, has asked if it would be possible to make a similar event part of this August's Dairyfest.

"We usually shut down during the summer, it's our off season, but I think we may be able to get a small event together," Fleming speculated.

Van Gilst falls short of the bronze medal

ST. CATHARINES - An unfortunate fall on the Level Two balance beam competition kept North Dundas' Stephanie Van Gilst from claiming the bronze medal at the All-Ontario championship meet here last week.

Van Gilst earned a 8.55 for her routine on the beam, ranking her eighth at the All-Ontario gymnastics meet.

Devils' coach Fran Kelly said the 0.5 point deducted from her routine because of the fall would have lifted her into third place.

Kelly added that the 8.55 total mark was an excellent score but the top score in the event was a 9.2.

The Devils' Lisa O'Connor and Laura Hoogenboom also represented the school in the Level Two beam event. Both girls received a mark of 7.0.

A 9.4 score was the best on the Level Two bars event. Hoogenboom had the best showing for North Dundas with an 8.3 score. Van Gilst competed for a mark of 7.95.

O'Connor was the only Devils' gymnast to qualify in the floor exercise category. Her performance earned her a 7.75 score, with the top routine earning 9.25.

North Dundas had three representatives in Level Three competition. They were Barbi Dowell, Tamara Bond and Hazel Booth.

Each of the girls performed for no less than an 8.2 score in two different events.

The judges awarded Dowell's floor exercise routine with an 8.65 score. In the vault division she received a mark of 8.7.

Bond vaulted for a score of 8.76, while earning an 8.4 for her beam routine. She had a fall during her performance to subract from her score.

Booth had her best showing in the bars category with a 8.45 point total. She earned a 8.2 score on the beam, with a single fall.

Placing for these events were not available, however Kelly said she suspects that the top score was about 9.2.

Karen Gilroy was the only gymnast competing in the Level Four competition for North Dundas. She qualified for all four events.

Gilroy's scores ranged from a 7.2 to a 8.65. The bars was her weakest event and the vault was her strongest.

The floor exercise routine that Gilroy performed earned her a 7.65 score, while she scored a 7.6 from her beam routine.

The coach said, "I was pleased with the girls. Not only are they good gymnasts, but they're excellent representatives of the school."

Kelly said she finds it hard to believe that gymnastics is over for another year.

With competition now over for the season she is now looking forward to next season.

Kelly hopes to begin practice at an earlier date, and adds this might mean practising on nights that the buses don't stay late at school.

"The more you practice the better you do," she said.

Kelly expects all but one girl to return for another season, leaving the team with a pretty good nucleus.

Karen Gilroy will be the only girl not returning because she will be graduating from Grade 13 this year.

WEIGHT!

Millions of Canadians are trying to lose weight because in the Spring it's not as easy to hide unwanted pounds under Winter's layers of clothes.

Why do some people lose weight successfully, while others fail? Here are some diet errors. Avoid them, and this time weight may come off, and more importantly stay off more easily.

1. NOT EXERCISING. There's a misconception that you can keep weight off by dieting alone. With low-calorie intake your metabolism slows so your body uses fewer calories and weight loss stops. You're more likely to be successful when you combine low-calorie eating with exercise. Even simple things like walking to the store and taking the stairs help weight loss.

Aerobic exercise, activity that elevates heart rate and uses large muscles in rhythmic motions increases body fat loss and retains lean muscle mass as it burns calories. Besides burning calories, vigorous exercise helps relieve anxieties and tensions that often lead to overeating.

2. FOLLOWING A DIET PLAN THAT DOESN'T SUIT YOU. The diet plan that worked for your neighbor may not work for you. It can be a big mistake to adopt a diet without analyzing how it fits into your life. If a diet plan doesn't fit, you'll drop out. Just as in exercising, there's a different program for everyone.

Often people look for the easiest diet, such as just fish or just liquids. However if this doesn't fit their lifestyle naturally, they quit and try something new.

It gets harder to lose weight with each diet they try. Be ralistic, adopt strategies to avoid food. After dinner, leave the kitchen. Take a glass of water with you to another part of the house. Get involved in activities that have nothing to do with food. You can't make yourself resist food if it's there. Try to stay away from where food is.

3. EXPECTING RAPID WEIGHT LOSS. Studies show without a doubt, that slow gradual weight loss has a greater long-term success rate than quick loss. Weight that comes off slowly stays off. It's a mistake to think that if you put weight on quickly, it should come off just as fast. It takes 3,500 calories to put on a pound, and you need to burn up twice as many calories than it takes to lose one pound. Weight loss won't happen overnight, so don't weigh too often. You may know that you haven't overeaten, but if the scale needle stays steady, or worse, inches upward, it's natural to become discouraged and can cause overeating. Weigh yourself no more than once a week, first thing in the morning.

4. LOSING WEIGHT FOR A SPECIAL EVENT OR A SPECIAL DRESS. Your prom or reunion can be a great inspiration to lose weight. But what happens when it's over?

Some dieters go from one special event to the next - losing for the event, then gaining weight, losing again, and gaining again. Just when the dieting goal is reached, the scales inch up again, until the well-meaning dieter winds up back where he or she started, or even heavier. This is the yo-yo syndrome. Yo-yo dieting changes the body's ratio of lean muscle mass to fat. Weight loss usually involves water, lean muscle and fat. When weight is regained, however it comes back only as water and fat.

Many who find themselves in a dieting rut are there because of unrealistic expectations. The only way to lose weight and keep it off is to find a commonsense approach you can live with. And live with forever.

My Silent Achievers this week are all of you who took part in ANY way in Pene's Aerobithon to raise money for Winchester District Memorial Hospital. WELL DONE!!

We are so very lucky to be able to do it for ourselves.
