Ontario Dairy Princess to visit area

Miss Diane Gunning, Ontario Dairy Princess, accompanied by Miss Debra Blaine, Mountain, Dundas Princess, will visit area schools on April 14th.

The two princesses will be honoured guests at the Dundas Milk Committees' annual dinner-dance next Wednesday evening at North Dundas District High School.

Having attended the affair last year we recommend you pick up a ticket or two, if still available. A most enjoyable evening is in store.

It must be spring

Baseball and hockey fans are faced with a decision. Last night the NHL played the first games of the quarter-finals, still some distance to go yet. This year's play should only be a formality. With Boston's fabulous record they should win in 'a walk'.

The Montreal Expos open home play next Tuesday night. If the weather holds as at present the players and fans will need their 'long johns'.

A mere switch of the channel will change "Hockey Night in Canada" to "Play Ball". For the next few weeks take your pick.

Football fans the losers

We're disappointed — Russ Jackson has made it official, he's stickng to teaching. Russ's decision, for personal reasons, may have been right. All football fans must be let down.

Complaint department

Needless to say the village streets, following last summer's uprooting for a new sewage system, aided by the usual spring break-up, leave something to be desired.

Chin up, grit your teeth and fasten your seat belts, considerable patching, repaving and repairs must be in the 1971 'Crystal Ball'.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr and Mrs Earl Gallaher are pleased to announce the engagement of their only daughter, Mabel Ann, to Mr Harold Earle Droppo, the only son of Mrs Harold F. Droppo and the late Mr Harold F. Droppo. The wedding will take place on May 8, 1971 at 7:00 p.m. in the Wesleyan Church. 30-1

C. Allison Graham addresses local W.I. Current Events topic provides discussion

Twenty-five members and six guests were present at the Chesterville Women's Institute meeting on Tuesday, March 30, to hear Mr C. Allison Graham, who spoke on the topic "Current Events" but dealt specifically with "Canadian Nationalism", Canadian Education", and "Destruction of Can. Wildlife". He read excerpts from Ramsey Cook's recent book, "The Maple Leaf Forever", and touched on the current discussion of the sale of Home Oil and the sale of a Text Book Publishing house. "These are two examples of nationalism at its best and worst", said Mr Graham. In dealing with education, he felt that teachers in general were willing to help cut down expenses provided they were paid a fair remuneration and teaching conditions were not down-graded. The wanton killing of deer by dogs and the controversy over the seal hunt were discussed under the third facet. The speaker observed that individuals object most vocally to the killing of deer by dogs or the slaughter of seals, yet condone the killing of wildlife in the name of sport.

The program also included two young people, Neil Kittle and little Miss Karen Merkley, who pleased the audience with accordian solos and vocal solos. Mrs P. J. Gilroy was pianist for the meeting.

In the business period conducted by the President, Mrs Harold W. Merkley, it was noted that $20.00 had been collected for Mental Health in the Penny Round Up bags. The ladies voted that donations be sent to Crippl-

'Aye' or 'Nay' in Winchester Township

Winchester Township voters will go to the polls on April 21st to decide whether the Township should or should not be licensed for liquor, with meals on licensed premises that is.

Many who are eligible to vote on this issue will have already decided how they will mark their ballot.

There will be the 'nays' with overwhelming convictions that alcohol is a destroyer of families, lives and minds. The 'ayes' with equally strong convictions will voice that alcohol is a necessity in social life and that it is also necessary to relieve the tensions created by the social pressures of today's society.

Unquestionably, in many of these statements there are degrees of truth. The flagrant abuse of alcohol has caused great financial strain on the economy of the country; crime, broken marriages, poverty, death and mental deterioration can be attributed to the misuse of this liquid depressant.

The solution to these social problems will not be furthered one iota by keeping the Township 'dry'. Any person who desires liquor will find it readily available from a number of sources.

The moral fiber of an individual, inclined to excessive drink, will not be affected either way, by the serving of liquor with meals. The average adult should have the right to order wine or liquor with meals, if he so desires.

The proper way to fight the abuse of alcohol, drugs and other undermining problems of the social structure is by upgrading the moral standards of today, and not by treating mature, intelligent adults like children.

Name for an Era

Periods of time acquire names. The "Gay Nineties" ended the nineteenth century, though one wonders if gaiety really was the chief characteristic of those who lived through that decade.

An earlier period has been tabbed "Mid-Victorian," a tribute Queen Victoria might not have appreciated if aware of all its implications.

This kaleidoscopic twentieth century has seen the First World War, the Great Depression, the Second World War and the Cold War pass into history.

What name will finally attach to the present period, which, beginning in the sixties, has seen the coming of space travel, the contraceptive pill, the drug craze, long hair and beards, talk of generation gap, awareness of environmental pollution, political assassinations and the questioning of every once-accepted system or tenet of religion, philosophy or morals?

"Space Age" and "Age of Aquarius" seems so far the leading candidates in the field, the latter disconcertingly indicative of the revival of astrology, a superstition the human race thought it had abandoned a century or more ago.

"Space Age" is the optimist's title. Pessimists counter that historians will dub it the "Age of Madness," the "Era of Insanity" or something equally unflattering, or even speculate that at its end no historian will be left alive to name it anything.

A compromise choice could be "Age of Communication," a neutral title not in itself indicating whether world wide dissemination of news and ideas at the speed of light helps solve or helps create multiple problems of the day.

YOUR LEGISLATURE REPORT

by

F. M. Cass, Q.C., M.P.P,

The Fourth, and probably the last, Session of the present Ontario Legislature was opened by our Lieutenant Governor amidst much more pomp — a squadron of lancers, motorcycle escort, fanfare of trumpets and amidst such security precautions as have not been witnessed at Queen's Park since war time. However, there were no untoward incidents and the thousand people who watched the Opening and then attended the Governor's Reception appeared to have enjoyed this annual event as much as ever.

Your Member and Mrs Cass were pleased and honoured on this occasion to have as their guests and for dinner their Federal Member, the Speaker of the Federal House, Honorable Lucien Lamoureux, and Mrs Lamoureax, as well as Donald R. Irvine, and Mrs Irvine, the former of whom is the official government candidate in our Riding for the coming election.

The new Prime Minister of our Province, Honourable Wm. G. Davis, and his new Cabinet seem to have made an auspicious beginning. On the Opening Mr Davis and the Leaders of the other two Parties joined in expressions of regard for and appreciation of the leadership of, Honourable John P. Robarts, the recently retired Ontario Prime Minister who was present as a Private Member.

This Session has seen another change — for the first time ever girls, as well as boys, are serving as Legislative Pages. They are dressed in velvet pant suits with Eton collars and black ties which match very well the uniforms of the Page Boys and other officers of the House. And so far the girls, of whom there are four School, have fitted very well into the Legislative Organization.

If any further evidence of a General Election being close at hand were required, it is being amply provided by the actions of the Members and the proceedings in the House. The second day of a new Session has been traditionally a short day devoted to uncontested organization procedures, such as motions to set up Committees. This Session, however, each such motion presented by the Government was greeted with a long debate so that the House held an evening Session, which for such a day was unprecedented; and each motion was pursued to a recorded vote which effectively kept all the Members near at hand.

So far, of course, little new legislation has been introduced and the real work of Members will not begin until the budget has been brought down. Budget Day in Ontario has been set for April 26th, which is a date which lends itself both to a June General Election and a Fall Election.

Once again this year, through the courtesy of the Editor, I shall hope each week to bring you a short note on Queen's Park events, personalities and legislation.

If all motorcycles kept their lights on when operating in daytime the reduction in accidents would add up to an annual economic saving of between $7.50 and $10.90 per registered motorcycle. This is one of the findings of a U.S. study which has shown that there was a significant decrease in daytime motorcycle accidents in four states with daytime motorcycle headlight laws. The Ontario Safety League says that daytime use of headlights significantly increases visibility, and drivers can positively identify motorcycles sooner, and at greater distances.

Ann Landers . . .

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the children of the 90-year-old woman who fell out of bed at the nursing home and broke her hip prompted me to write a letter of instructions to my sons. I am sending you a copy in the hope that you will print it. Perhaps it will encourage some of your readers to write similar letters to their children. My thanks and God bless.

Sane, Sensible and Realistic

Dear Sons: This letter is not a request, it is an order. I have tried to live with dignity and I want to die the same way. If my fate is such that I should become old and ill and unable to make a rational decision, you are hereby instructed to give the attending physcan orders that he must not attempt to prolong my life by using extraordinary measures. If I am stricken with an illness which is irreversable, and unable to speak for myself, please speak for me. I want no surgery, no cobalt, no blood transfusions and no intravenous feedings. Instead, please see to it that the physician gives me plenty of medication and sedatives. This letter of instruction will relieve you of the burden of making the decision. It is made. I have made it. My thanks and my love.

— Mother

Dear Mother: Here is your letter and I salute you for your serenity, good sense and realism. It would be wonderful if other parents followed your example. May I be the first?

Dear Margo: The sentiments expressed in the letter above are mine also. Thank you, dear.

Love — Mother

Dear Ann Landers: Recently someone asked what to do about unwanted hair on the face. You replied — "If you're a man you can shave." Since I am a 37-year-old brunet female, a Registered Nurse, and have a heavy growth of facial hair, I am well qualified to speak on this subject.

Why did you make sex a qualification, Ann? Shaving is the best solution for most bearded people, women as well as men. When I was 16 I had an illness which required heavy doses of drugs. The drugs upset the hormonal balance in my system and resulted in a heavy growth of hair on my face. I was miserable and ashamed of the way I looked. First I tried a peroxide-ammonia bleach, which irritated my skin and caused a rash. I had to quit using it, which was just as well, because blond fuzz on a girl's face isn't much of an improvement over the black fuzz. A friend suggested electrolysis. I found it expensive, painful, time-consumng and ineffective. (After three months about three per cent of the hair grew back.) I decided to shave. It was the best solution of all.

For the past 15 years I've been shaving every other day with an electric razor (rotary blade). My skin is soft and smooth and I am perfectly relaxed about my appearance. Please ask your dermatology consultants about this, Ann. I'd like to know what they have to say. — No 5 O'Clock Shadow

Dear No: I checked with several dermatologists and the decision was unanimous: there is more than one way to skin a cat — if you will pardon the analogy. If shaving is the best solution for you, by all means continue. No harm will come of it.

A word of caution to women who use the wet shave. Before shaving, soften the whiskers with cream and allow the cream to remain on the face for at least ten minutes. Then use a good lathering soap and a sharp blade. And BE CAREFUL. If you nick yourself it could be difficult to explain that the adhesive tape is there because you cut yourself while shaving.

Tax Tips

Q. I've heard a lot about the registration of Charitable Organizations for income tax purposes. As a donor to some charities, what should I know about this?

A. Canadian Charitable Organizations issuing receipts for income tax purposes must be registered, and all receipts issued for donations must show the registration number of the organization. If you have received a receipt which doesn't show this number you should get in touch with the organization and obtain a proper receippt.

Q. Can I claim the mortgage payments on my residence as a deduction from my income when filing my tax return?

A. No. Those are personal expenditures and therefore not deductible.

Q. My wife died a year ago and I have had to retain a housekeeper to care for the children and to do domestic chores Can I claim an income tax deduction or exemption for her?

A. You may not claim any deduction or exemption for your housekeeper, as such, but because you are a widower and need to employ a housekeeper to care for your children, you are entitled to claim the $1,000 equivalent married exemption for one of your children, and also claim the usual $300 or $550 exemption for that same child. Details of how you make this claim are shown on the Income Tax Return.

Q. I support my son who is at university. His income for the year — minus his tuition fees — comes to $980. I am told that when filing my tax return I can apply the Notch Provision. What does this mean?.

A. It means that, in order to claim your son as a dependent you must add the amount by which his income exceeds $950, in your case $30, to your tax. You will have to use the "Detailed Tax Calculation" method to determine your Federal and Provincial Tax payable and show the $30 as a "Tax Adjustment" in the spaces provided.

Q. My father qualifies as a dependent and each year on my tax form I have to fill in all the information regarding his age, income, etc. Is it not possible for me to put "see last year's return" so that I do not have to fill in the same details each year?

A. If you omit any of this information on your tax form, you are probably going to delay the processing of your return, therefore, enter all the information asked for . . . age, relationship to you, net income, etc.

Q. My wife and I are separated but we do not have any formal separation agreement. However I do pay her an allowance. How do I go about claiming this allowance on my income tax return?

A. In the absence of a written agreement or court order, you may not claim the allowance as a deduction. However, if the allowance is sufficiently large to constitute support, you are entitled to claim married exemption as if you were still living together.

Q. I am a waitress and I receive tips. My Canada Pension Plan contributions have been calculated on my basic salary but, if I can include the amount of my tips, it would enable me to pay almost the full Canadian Pension Plan contribution. Am I allowed to pay in extra contribution, and if so how do I set about doing this?

A. Yes, you may make additional Canada Pension Plan contributions based on the income you have received in tips. It will be necessary for you to use a T1 General Tax Return. You may make contributions on the additional you have earned in Tips, at a rate of 3.6%.

HOW TO SAVE MONEY ON YOUR INCOME TAX

Make the most of the current tax breaks, Beatrice Riddell says in the Financial Post, this could be the second-last income tax season you disregard most capital gains in computing your tax.

In the meantime, The Financial Post writer adds, when calculating your 1970 tax to meet the April 30 deadline, forget about the "great tax debate." Make the most of present — and quite significant — tax breaks available to savers and investors. Three key points to remember before you start: Capital gains, per se, are not taxed at present. Expenses directly related to the production of income probably deductible from that income. If you plan to contribute to a Registered Retirement Savings Plan (RRSP), you still have three weeks to do so and claim the deduction in computing 1970's taxable income. Deadline is Mar. 1. The Financial Post says you can reduce taxable income, several ways. These include: Depletion allowance from certain resource companies, carrying charges on expenses involved in managing an investment portfolio, and interest capital — cost allowance on income-producing buildings.

THE CORPORATION

VILLAGE OF CHESTERVILLE
FINANCIAL STATEMENTS & AUDITOR'S REPORT
FOR THE YEAR ENDED DECEMBER 31, 1970

AUDITORS REPORT

The Reeve,
Members of Council, Inhabitants and ratepayers of the Corporation of the Village of Chesterville.

I have examined the 1970 financial statements of the Corporation of the Village of Chesterville and its local boards, which are listed on the attached index. My examination included a general review of the accounting procedures and such tests of accounting records and other supporting evidence as I consider necessary in the circumstances.

In my opinion these financial statements present fairly the financial position of the Corporation of the Village of Chesterville and its local boards as at December 31, 1970, and the results of their operations for the year then ended, in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted for Ontario municipalities applied on a basis consistant with that of the preceding year.

For Farm People
3rd in a Series

by
J. W. McCullough
Farm Management Specialist

If you want the family farm to stay in the family name and be operated by a son, then you have to plan for it to happen. All too frequently, a son will lose interest in the home farm or any farm because no business-like arrangements are made to back up verbal agreements.

Unfortunately, we all have heard of situations where a son has worked for eight or ten years on the home farm on the understanding that it was his. Perhaps he has an understanding that a number of cattle in the barn are his. Sometimes he has invested money in equipment and machinery too. Then suddenly, due to untimely passing of the father, sometimes without a will, it becomes very hard to prove that the son actually owned anything about the place. Sometimes the situation becomes very complicated. An actual case on one Ontario farm might illustrate the point. A thirty-seven year old dairy farmer with a family of three ranging from four to fourteen applied for a loan from a government lending agency. His wife had become somewhat tired of living in cramped quarters in the same house as her husband's family and wanted a home of her own. They had already spent some three thousand dollars building a milk house and repairing the stable on property that did not belong to them though they did own the dairy herd in part at least.

When the title was investigated, it was found that the ninety year old grandfather still owned the land where the new house was to be built. While the grandfather's will was clear, the sixty year old father had not yet made his.

While few people could ever get so involved, there are many places where there is need for a clearer understanding of what is actually going to happen.

Often a father-son partnership can be a useful type of agreement. It will provide a useful means of permitting both the father and son to share in the profits of the business and it can clearly set out how and when the farm will eventually pass to the son. A young man today needs this type of assurance if he is to become genuinely interested in the farm business.

A son cannot legally be part of a partnership agreement until he attains the age of 21 years. Often at this time the father has only become well established and may have no thought of retirement. Yet this is the best time to start planning.

There is a saying "you can't have your cake and it it too". Applied to this it simply means if you want the family farm to stay in the family name, you must demonstrate you mean it by taking action to see that it does.

Any partnership arrangement must be based on mutual trust and respect. If you get along well together and if you are willing to share not only the profits — but also the management decisions, there is hope. But a word of caution is needed — a first important consideration is that there must be enough income for the farm buniness to support two families. If there isn't and you have neither the resources of the desire to expand the business then the whole idea should be scraped.

A second and equally important point is that there must be plans for separate living quarters for two families. It may not seem important at this time since your son may have no thoughts of marriage. But often things change quite suddenly. If plans are not built into the agreement for a place for a second family to live separately the whole deal may fall through.

Any agreement will need to spell out certain things. You will want to decide and agree on how both the work load and the management decisions are to be shared on the basis of the contribution of each partner to the business. You will need as well a written and witnessed agreement. We think, too, there will need to be a written arrangement about how the farm property will be transferred to the son, and how the son may increase his ownership of the business by buying into it.

The whole matter of father-and-son agreements is fairly complicated and should take some time and thought. Most Agricultural Representatives are prepared to assist you in drawing up the basic details.

The matter of estate taxes, succession duties and gift tax are all important in making decisions on how farm businesses are to be passed on to the next generation. Next week an attempt will be made to show how these affect farmers.

GOOD SEED MONTH ORDER SEED NOW

March is Good Seed Month - and the tag that certifies the seed as "Pedigred Seed" is what growers should be looking for.

Mr Bill Taylor, Crops Specialist, Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food, says that buying good pedigreed seed is the first step to practical crop insurance, because high yields are far more likely.

Growers should read the tests carefully and check variety yield tables, says Mr Taylor, to ensure buying the best posible varieties.

CAMERON — In loving memory of a dear Aunt, Mary C. Cameron, who passed away April 8, 1968.

Today recalls the memory
Of a loved one gone to rest
And those who think of her today
Are those who loved her best.
The flowers we layed upon her grave
May wither and decay
But the love for her who lies beneath
Will never fade away.

Ancient Art plied at Winchester establishment

One-year-old Ross McConnell firm 'holds own' against automation

Feature by Lee Hart

Man has worked with stone, one of the world's most indestructable substances, virtually since the beginning of recorded history, primarily because of its durabilty against the elements.

And much of what we know about those ancient days was learned from the inscriptions on the tombs and monuments marking the resting places of the dead.

In ancient Egypt massive pyramids, sphinx and historical walls were erected manually to house the dead and their personal belongings.

Over the centuries, the emphasis on grandeur declined until today grave markings — even for royalty and high government officials, are of simple design.

Before the innovation of electtricty and power tools the work of lettering and designing took many painstaking hours with the hammer and chisel.

But even now with automation moving into almost every industry, the personalized touch of monument designing is being lost to the large mass-production plants.

But one local firm, which hasn't been lost to mass production and still produces monuments, primarily by hand, is Ross McConnell Monuments in Winchester.

Mr McConnel bought the business about a year ago from his former 10-year-employer, L. D. Wells of Ingleside. Mr Wells, who died last September, had operated the business all his lifetime. The firm was originally started in 1885 by Joseph Stubbs.

Like any service which is provided at the time of death there is a certain quality and perfection which has to be maintained and Mr McConnel says that his work is unconditionally guaranteed.

Mr McConnell uses only granite stone in his product. It is shipped from South Africa or Sweden to Beebe, Que., where it is cut into the popular sizes of tombstones, and polished.

The stones weighing anywhere between 600 and 1400 pounds are shipped from Quebec to the designer. Mr McConnell explained that the granite can be obtained in any size.

Walter Windahl, who now works for Mr McConnell, but was with the Wells firm for 20 years, is a man who really knows his business. Mr Windahl, the cutter, designer and finisher has been making monuments for 50 years. He at present is the only man in the McConnell firm who can do the work although he is teaching Mr McConnell's son, Brent, the tricks of the trade.

A rubber mat is stuck onto the polished face of the stone. Mr Windahl does all the designing drawing and lettering by hand. Once he has the lettering drawn on the mat he removes the excess rubber leaving the rubber letter.

The stone block is then placed in a sandblasting room. The sand cuts away the area of the stone not protected by rubber mat. With Mr Windahl"s experience he can fairly accurately judge the depth of stone he has cut away.

When removed from the sandblasting the area cut away is smoothed and the rubber removed leavinng the letters raised. The entire process takes about 3 days, depending on the amount of lettering and intricacy of design.

Mr Windahl said the work was very dusty and few young men are entering into it because there aren't many men left to teach them. Also he said the large plants are cutting down a lot of the work although the personal touch and design is lost.

Before the stones can be placed in the cemetry a five foot deep cement base has to be poured and another stone base put on top of it.

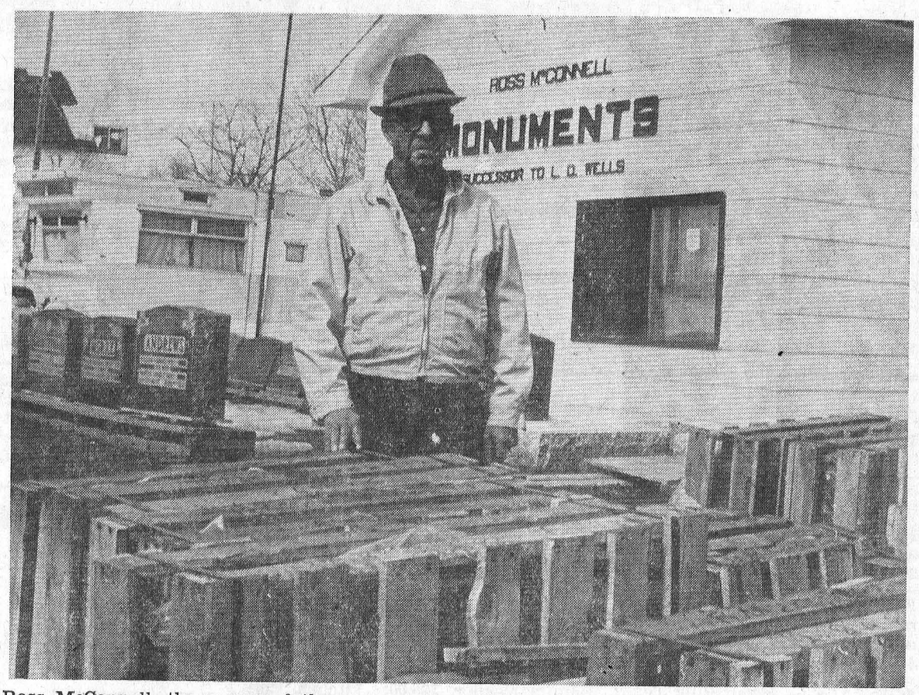
Mr McConnell's plant produced 131 stones last year which he called a normal year. Another service they provide is relettering existing stones. "Granite," he explaned, "is one of the best materials for monuments." "The Canadian granite is of lower quality than the imported kind and that is why it isn't used that often," he said.

The Monument dealer noted that he had a 130 year old stone which he had brought to his plant to be relettered. "The fact that this stone is still in perfect condition," he said, "emphasizes the lasting abilty of the material."

The McConnell firm has no other saleman than the owner and as he said, "We let the quality of our work. speak for itself."

He did mention, however, that Mrs L. D. Wells had an office in Ingleside and orders could be placed with her.

This stone has just been sandblasted and Brent McConnell, the younger member of Ross McConnell Monuments, hoists it up onto another table to be finished. The rubber matting will be removed and the area exposed to the sandblasting, smoothed.



Ross McConnell, the owner of the monument firm, is shown above standing in the yard just outside the plant. The picture reveals briefly the entire cycle of tombstone making: the rough still crated stones in the foreground, the plant in the rear and the finished product on the left.

Walter Windahl a man who's been in the monument lettering business for 50 years and now works for Ross McConnell Monuments in Winchester, removes the excess rubber from the surface of the stone before sending it to be sandblasted. The dark area around the name Warner will be cut away and the name left raised.

Mrs. Keith Carkner chairs meeting--

Hospital Auxiliary provides equipment for Pediatrics

The April meeting of the Women's Auxiliary was held in the Board Room of the District Memorial Hospital in Winchester on Thursday last. As the president, Mrs Colin MacGregor, was hospitalized the meeting was chaired by Mrs Keith Carkner, vice president.

Following the roll call of the various units present, Mrs Raymond Summers presented a most encouraging financial report and it was noted that the Dessert and Games Party held in March had been very successful netting some $136. The Ormond Unit reported over $234. was realized from the sale of tickets on a quilt made by the Ormond ladies. Card parties, bridge and euchre, have been in progress in Chesterville and they are running clise to the $400. mark.

Miss Legris, Director of Nursing, gave her usual full report of hospital activities and stated that the 12 pairs of fire-resistant cubicle drapes have been installed on the second floor.These drapes were purchased by the Auxiliary in the late Fall. Mr Stel, in his report, commented on the hospital budget and reminded all of the up-coming Annual Meeting to be held in the Board Room.

The Tuck Cart will be the responsibility of South Mountain during April and Winchester in May.

District No. 9, Spring Conference of Hospital Auxiliaries Association will be held in Ottawa the latter part of April and it was decided that the Auxiliary would send three official delegates.

Once again the value of the Auxiliary in providing extra equipment for the hospital was shown when the Purchasing Committee requisitioned various items for Pediatrics and the members voted unanimously to supply this much needed equipment for the children.

Mrs Max Boyd, Co-ordinator of In-Service Volunteer work, stressed the need for volunteer workers in East One and expressed the hope that the various units in our area would participate.

Before closing, Mrs Summers emphasized the continuing need for knitters with wool supplied upon request. Many beautiful knitted baby clothes were on hand and these will be placed in the Auxiliary's showcase.

Coffee and cakes were served in the cafeteria by Miss Legris at the close of the meeting.

KITCHEN CORNER

Selecting the Easter Ham

Ham is as much a part of Easter as coloured eggs and the Easter bunny. Selection of a ham for this special day demands extra attention.

Look for a well-trimmed piece of meat which is fine-textured, pinkish and lean. The outer fat covering should be firm and white, and there should be a good proportion of lean and fat. The bones should be porous and slightly pink in colour.

The best guide to buying a ham is the cost per serving rather than the cost per pound, since the different types vary in yield. The boneless ham yields 3½ to 4 servings per pound and the semi-boneless ham yields 3 servings per pound.

Purchase the ham no more than one week before using, leave it in its orignal wrapper, and store it immediately in the coldest part of the refrgerator.

Baking a Ham

Before baking a ham, read the label to see whether it is ready to serve, or if it requires cooking.

The ready-to-serve ham does not require further cooking, but if you wish it hot, it may be heated in a 325 degree oven for 10 to 15 minutes per pound.

When baking a regular ham, it is wise to follow the cooking instructions for that particular cut if they appear on the package.

To Glaze the Ham: Remove it from the oven 30 minutes before it is done, raise oven temperature to 400. Remove all skin and score the fat uniform in depth of ¼ inch in a diamond pattern. Cloves may be inserted if desired. Then cover the ham with the glaze and bake for an additional 5 to 20 minutes.

Great glazes are: Brown sugar and dry mustard: honey: orange peach or apricot marmalade cranberry or currant jelly; pure red apple sauce mixed with corn syrup and prepared mustard.

Easter Sunday Brunch
Fruit Cocktail
Quick Easter Omelet
Assorted Cold Meats
Hot Cross Buns

Quick Easter Omelet
6 large eggs
2 tbsp. water or milk
½ tsp. salt
dash of pepper
1½-2 tbsp. butter

Heat frypan until drop of water dances around instead of bursting into steam. Meanwhile, break eggs into bowl; add liquid and seasonings. Beat with a whisk or fork until well mixed, with a slight froth on top. Coat bottom and sides of prepared pan with butter. Add egg mixture all at once and reduce heat slightly. As the mixture thickens at the edges draw these portions towards the centre so that the uncooked portions flow to the bottom. Tilt or shake pan to hasten flow of uncooked eggs and keep omelet sliding freely. When eggs are set and surface is still moist, increase heat to brown bottom quickly. Place filling across upper half of egg. Tilt pan, gradually fold omelet in half, turn on to warm serving platter. Divide into servings. Serves 3 to 4.

Suggested Fillings
1. Ontario Cheddar, grated or thinly sliced
2. Pre-cooked potatoes, sauteed in butter
3. Sliced and sauteed mushrooms
4. Jams or jellies, mashed, canned fruits, or drained frozen berries.
