Two Out - Two to Go for Town Councillor

Last Friday night nominations were held in Community Hall for the positions of four councillors and the reeveship. Nominations were received totalling eight for councillor and three names went in the book for reeve. H. C. Hummel, clerk of the town, was appointed chairman of the meeting.

Reeve McMillan

Reeve Charles McMillan led off proceedings after close of nominations with a short review of the year's work. He expressed his thanks to all the members of the work force of the municipality for their efforts during the year. In a brief statement regarding counties' work, he pointed out he was chairman of the Roads and Bridges Committee this year. He asked that he be favoured with the reeveship again this coming term and the next because he hoped to be able to represent Chesterville as warden of the counties in 1958.

Mrs Lyle Marcellus outlined the work of council and particularly that of the Police and Hall committee of which she is a member along with Mrs B. W. Campbell. She noted that $214 had been spent in decorating the library room and the kitchen and progress was being made in cleaning up the boiler room. The police problem was a knotty one and no clear answer had yet been reached on that.

Mrs Campbell summed up the general work of the year. She discussed the necessity for a clearer directive from the voters on certain of the knotty problems of the town and expressed the opinion that more of the money problems should be brought to the attention of the ratepayers.

Messrs Arnold and Sharkey folowed in the same manner of review. Some questions were asked by the audience but nothing controversial developed.

Saturday night was the night to qualify for the positions of reeve and councillor. Nine o'clock that evening saw the reeve qualified and two councillors, Messrs Harold Sharkey and Frank Arnold. New nominations for two more councillors are called for Monday, December 5. from 7 to 8 p.m., in the Community Hall.

Those nominated for reeve were: Chas. McMillan, Mrs Lyle Marcellus and Campbell Thompson.

For councillor:

Mrs Lyle Marcellus, Mrs B. W. Campbell, Frank Arnold, Harold Sharkey, Gordon Lannin, Carl McMillan, John Turner, Richard Casselman.

James Cunningham Guest Speaker at W.I. Meeting Dancing Class Committees Formed for Coming Season

"Success is disappointing, unless after achievement, we strive for something greater," said Mr Jas. Cunningham, principal of Chesterville High School, Wednesday evening when he was the guest speaker at the November meeting of Chesterville Women's Institute held in the library.

Mrs B. W. Campbell, the president, opened the meeting with the Institute Ode and Mary Stewart Collect, after which Mrs George Merkley, the secretary, called the roll and read the minutes of the October meeting.

Several letters of appeal for donations resulted in motions made by Mrs E. C. Casselman and Mrs Len Giles and seconded by Mrs Alf Jarvis and Mrs D. Docksteader that $5 be sent to each of the following: The St. Lawrence Tuberculosis Christmas Seal Campaign, the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada and the Canadian Save the Children Fund. It was moved by Mrs George Merkley and seconded by Mrs Bowman that $10 be donated towards a Christmas party for members of the school safety patrols.

A brief account of the recent short course held in Winchester on "How to Conduct Meetings" was given by the secretary who stated that it had been very enjoyable and worthwhile.

Mrs King will again head the committee in charge of the Christmas distribution of treats for children. It was moved by Mrs G. Gilbert and seconded by Mrs Wm. Fetterly that the treats be distributed Friday, December 23, at 2.30p.m. at the Community Hall. Other members of the committee are Mrs Harold Marriner, Mrs Basil Rowe, Mrs Fay Shaver, Mrs L. B. Giles, Mrs Mansell Brownlee, Mrs B. W. Campbell and Mrs George Merkley.

The president reported that plans for the Holstein Breeders' banquet were already well under way. Mrs Butcher moved that members of the W.I. be asked to contribute one item only and it was seconded by Mrs Gilbert.

On a motion of Mrs George Merkley, seconded by Mrs Butcher, it was decided that Mrs Charron be secured as teacher of the Institute-sponsored dancing classes. Two committees were formed, one in charge of registration and attendance and composed of Mrs Butcher, Mrs Merkley and Mrs Edgerton; the other, composed of Mrs Keith Graham, Mrs Len Giles, Mrs Eric Casselman and Mrs Bowman, to be in charge of the recital. Mrs Campbell, as president, is to be a member of both committees. It was moved by Mrs Butcher that in future the discussion of the dancing classes should take place in June, in order to arrange an earlier starting date. It was felt that too much valuable time was lost during the autumn months. This was seconded by Mrs Gilbert.

Mrs Gilbert introduced Mr Jas. Cunningham who announced his topic as "Who Are You, Who Am I?" Mr Cunningham traced the advance and growth of civilization from Biblical times, through Greek, Roman and Asiatic cultures to the dawn of English history. Each civilization added something vital. The Greeks contributed poetry, love of beauty, music, the framework of democracy; the Romans added to governmental forms and control of peoples; the Asiatic peoples added the ideas of a just God. The coming of Christianity had very special influence in developing civilization.

The speaker showed how persons of English origin are a part of their background, deriving stamina, drive and resourcefulness from the Jutes, Angles and Saxons; emotionalism from the Normans; commercial knowhow from the Flemish traders; knowledge of iron and coal from the Hugenots; development of sea power and nationalism as a result of the attempted Spanish invasion.

Mr Cunningham closed his very interesting address with several poems and the words of the late King George VI on the occasion of his Christmas broadcast in 1939.

Mrs Gilbert thanked the speaker after which the National Anthem was sung and the meeting closed with refreshments served by the committee: Mrs Gilbert Mrs Hosea Droppo, Mrs Harold Loughridge, Mrs Jas. Cunningham, Mrs Fay Shaver, Mrs Graham Durant, Mrs Cameron Baker, Mrs Butcher and Mrs J. H. Cross.—H.L.G.

CANADA'S MISTER HOCKEY—Foster Hewitt doesn't need any introduction to Canadians. Enough to say that he's on hand to broadcast the National Hockey League games every Saturday night—a weekly assignment he's had since the Maple Leaf Gardens opened in 1931. Hewitt holds a world's record for length of service in broadcasting; he started in 1923 when he was eighteen, and shortly afterwards made the first broadcast of a hockey game in Canada. Ever since then he's been so closely associated with the game that he is as well known to hockey fans as any of its greatest players. While in college he was an undefeated boxing champion, and has written many books on hockey.

St. Bernard's C.W.L. Meets at Vloet Home

A discussion was held on distributing boxes of clothing and toys to needy families for Christmas and also the making of Christmas stockings for children of the parish.

Mrs Bernard Grady thanked the hostess for the use of her home.

Wife: "I heard the clock strike two as you came in."

Husband: "Yes, dear. It was beginning to strike ten but I stopped it before it could wake you."

OPINIONS . . .

Ours and Others

Encore for Nominations

What with one thing and another, members of Chesterville community put themselves in the pickle of having to call for further nominations. It would seem the office of councillor of this fair town has lost some of its old-time glamour and repels instead of attracts.

It is a situation that has no stock explanation. One would hardly be right in saying there were not enough men capable of filling the remaining seats because common sense tells the answer to that in the number of successful businessmen in our town. There is little truth in the common answer, "We haven't the time." Time is the least demand on the councillor's person; if you have a lot of time, your interests become set and rutted and growth has left you behind.

Perhaps some measure of explanation is found in the changing times. The old days of a lively town meeting, with a few small scale vendettas popping about, were not necessarily a bad thing. Strong opinions can always be leavened by a moderate majority, but they serve to point up and burnish viewpoints that very often today are buried in street corner talk and never reach the fumigating atmosphere of public hearing.

Could it be that Chesterville has fallen into a rut of laissez-faire? Do the ratepayers of this town care so little for their investment that they have no interest in hand-picking their government? Would they rather let the current carry events, regardless of what might come floating in, than snapping out of the rut and acting as if the town belonged to them rather than to Toronto or Ottawa?

New nominations are called for next Monday night. What are you, the owners of Chesterville, going to do about it?

The System Always Wins—In the Post Office

This has not been our week. We seem to have been the target for more small darts of irritating bureaucratic backwardness than usual. As a result our habitual sense of frustration, normally only vented in kicking the cat, has reached the boiling point where we mutter in our beard and call on the saints to preserve us.

We do not like being the tax collectors for the gents in Ottawa. That point of view we expound to all and sundry at the drop of the word "tax." It would appear to be one of those evils held over from other more pressing days, though, so we have to live with it. What gives us a shuddering start is the casual habit of tacking on a penalty of ten bucks when we are a couple of days behind in remitting the monthly squeeze. Sure, we went hunting and things got a little behind, but the principle of the thing gets under our skin. We collect taxes—we remit, usually on time—we are only one of a multitude of small businessmen swamped with questionaires, stamps, deductions, forms and follies that have to be made out, answered, sent in—usually with a note attached that a penalty will be charged if said useless sheet is not dotted and crossed immediately.

Cap that commonplace irritation with the postal service our second class mail, our newspapers, get on their publication day.

We had a subscriber come to our office on Monday of this week in a rather cross frame of mind. He lives in Newington, a few miles from Chesterville, to the east and south. His story was familiar and frustrating. The Record was reaching him on Friday occasionally, more often on Saturday and sometimes Monday and Tuesday. It was a legitimate beef on his part to demand better service if we could possibly give it to him. Unhappily all we can do is explain our past experience with some of the city post offices and borrow the end of his crying towel.

The Record has had quite a few subscribers call it quits in our nearby cities because of poor service by the post office. The local end here in Chesterville does all we ask and more to speed that service. We know to the minute when the mails are put on the trains and Mr Allan and his staff go out of their way to co-operate. When the bundles hit the big towns, though, it is often like dropping them in a hole. Subscribers can look for them any time after Friday and that means Monday or Tuesday.

We have certain rights and privileges as citizens and businessmen. Let's work out a system. It costs us money each time we get a little behind through lack of help or carelessness or any old excuse, when the Ottawa boys want their weekly deductions. How about swinging the deal our way when the post office system goes to sleep; when second class mail piles up in the depots because the letter pushers have a load of first class deliveries and will not be bothered? We wouldn't be so bold to ask for a minimum of $10 for each subscriber lost. All we would want is the price of the subscription. Four of those and we would be even again!

Newfoundland Laws Are Different

A man landed in court in Clarenville, Nfld., last year for trying to sell a loaf of raisin bread.

There are strict laws governing the size of raisin bread in Newfoundland, as the shopkeeper discovered. A loaf must weigh no more and no less than 1¼ pounds. The offending loaf seized by the RCMP in Clarenville was baked outside the province.

The Raisin Bread Act is one of many strange laws in Newfoundland contained in the revised satutes.

Another clause requires vessels in the seal hunt to serve soup on Saturdays. The soup must contain onions. If it doesn't, any member of the crew is entitled to sue the owner or captain and collect $25.

Another law prohibits catching or interfering with the growth of oysters, but oysters don't exist in Newfoundland waters.

Ship's masters may not take pilots to sea against their will unless a storm prevents them from joining their pilot boat. If they can't get off, the owners of the vessel must pay them $16.80 a month for time lost. That applies to outport pilots only. St. John's pilots are entitled to a princely $3 a day.

There is a $14 reward for catching deserters from the Royal Navy. You don't need a warrant or special authority. No Newfoundland law governs deserters from the Canadian navy.

What locks more promising from a revenue standpoint is the legal provision of a $12 bounty, from the nearest justice of the peace, for killing a wolf.Trouble is, there are no wolves in Newfoundland. The minister of finance, however, is required by law to report to the houseof assembly each spring the number of wolves caught in the province the previous season.

If you turn to selling wooden hoops for a livelihood you have to be careful. The only legal way to sell them is in bundles of 24. Or you could collect peat. The government pays 25 cents per ton subsidy.

If people in other provinces are attracted by these business opportunities, they should be careful how they travel. All stage coaches are subject to government inspection. And be sure not to forget your horse. Hotel keepers can auction off horses left at their establishment.

Visitors travelling on trains could remind the engineer he is not allowed to go faster than six miles an hour through towns and villages, but he usually doesn't need reminders. There's still a provision that a ship captain must get provisions aboard by daylight. There's a $5 fine for buying stores after sunset.

And one more: "Night walkers" found on ships make the captain liable to a $500 fine .

Light Along The Way

The prophecy of Isaiah includes four little Servant Songs that form one of the most beautiful and astounding of ancient prophecies. In these the prophet has foreshadowed in marvelous degree the essential truth concerning the life and mission of the Redeemer. Under the guidance of God's Spirit he draws a portrait of the ideal Servant, and convincingly argues that such a Servant will appear.

In the first song (Isaiah 42 : 1-4) the prophet describes the Servant as one appointed by God. That is to say that the Spirit of Jehovah seeks Him out and sets Him apart for the particular work that is to be done. This same Spirit upholds Him, so that He is able to pass through the trials life brings and live completely in the will of God. The Spirit so commands His life that He is willing to face any sacrifice that is demanded of those who speak out for God heedless of the consequences. His mission is not only to preach, but to establish in His example the moral conduct and righteous standard which God expects men to accept, and by which alone can come an end to the war, the greed, and the evil of man's world. (Isaiah 2 : 1-.).

The Servant, like all servants, is seen by the prophet going about unobtrusively, quietly doing the work that has been committed to Him, seeking no reward save that of knowing that He is fulfilling the Father's will. Like the "Still small voice" that caught the attention of Elijah, the Servant's life is unfolded without fanfare in the life of men, and those who will will see, but those who will not will be blind to the very presence of God Himself.

Not only will His manner of working be unobtrusive, the prophet claims, it will be positive and constructive. His will not be the road of the conqueror, but of the healer. He will not stamp out the smking wick, but will fan it into flame. Wherever there are elements of goodness, weak though they be, He will strengthen and purify them.

Moreover, there will be no sense of defeat in His attitude. Whatever may be His lot He will press on steadfastly to the end; manifesting a trust in God that is complete, and a hope for the future that brings peace that this sorry world knows not of nor can disturb.

So the prophet sees the day when Redemption will come to the people, not in the courageous victories of the warrior, nor in the wisdom of the law-giver, nor even in the wise rule of a Davidic Messiah, but through One who comes almost unknown and unheralded and willingly lays down His life as a perfect example of God's will for mankind.

MAGNETIC INK FOR PRICE TAGS

The Canadian housewife soon may find automation replacing her stove and even the familiar supermarket cashier.

The prediction—that automation is coming to the food industry—was made recently at the Canadian National Packaging exposition.

Jack Gesner, sales manager for a large Quebec firm of chain stores, told 5,000 persons attending opening da y sessions that magnetic ink on the bottom of purchases will automatically ring the cash-register as milady pushes her groceries through a monitor. The system will operate faster than human hands can do the job.

An electric plug built right in frozen food boxes will eliminate the need for stoves.

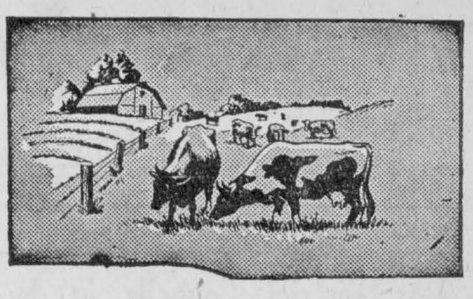
Wife: "It says in the paper that a man swapped his wife for a horse. You wouldn't do that with me would you?"

Husband: "No , dear. But I'd hate to be tempted with a new car."

Tycoon: "Do you know that I started life as a barefoot boy?"

Friend: "Well, I wasn't born with shoes on either."

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS



By Lillian Allison

Mrs M. and I were talking the other day about clothes and how styles and customs change. And I came to the conclusion that we're a lot hardier race now than we were 50 years ago.

"Everybody wore long drawers in the winter when I was a little girl," Mrs M. confessed. "All the time I went to school I wore heavy, fleeced drawers that had a band that buttoned around my waist. Then we wore long, home-knit woollen stockings over them from fall until spring."

"I wore long drawers too," I admitted, "when I was going to Public School, but I had bloomers that matched my dress to wear over them."

"We didn't have bloomers when I was young," Mrs M. said. "We had never heard of such things."

"Of course not," I agreed. "Bloomers weren't known then. For while bloomers were dreamed up by a lady named Mrs Bloomer nearly a century ago it took years for the idea to be accepted. This adventurous soul who was fighting for women's rights designed a costume for women that was quite revolutionary. There was a dress with a full skirt that came to the knees, then big, baggy pants that were gathered in at the ankles. I guess this costume was never too popular. But in later years women accepted a modified version of the 'bloomers' and put the elastic at or below the knee. I'll bet it took a bit of courage to wear them for the first time too."

"I remeber the first combination suits we had when I was a girl," Mrs M. reminisced. "The long-sleeved shirt and the long drawers were in one piece. Open-drawers, I think they called them. I forget how they were made but they didn't have the back door that we were accustomed to."

"And what did you wear when you went to High School?" I enquired.

"Why the long-drawers, of course," she replied. And when I snickered she added "All the girls wore them."

"Well there was no reason for kids to be cold when I went to school," I recalled. "I wore long drawers too with woollen stockings over them and the bloomers that matched my dress. Then the first winter or so I had pullovers made of knitted material. They went on over my shoes. I had to tuck my skirts into the top of them and tie a cord at my waist. Besides I had a sweater or two, a long, heavy coat and four-buckled overshoes. The miracle was that I ever got through the deep snow. I remember those long drawers well. The first morning after they'd been washed the rib fitted rather neatly at the ankle. But by the middle of the week that ribbing had stretched until it was next to impossible to get a decent job on one's legs. They were lumpy and bulgy in spite of fate."

"What a difference there is nowadays," Mrs M. added. "Little girls today often wear short socks all winter under those zipped-up snow pants. There have certainly been some changes."

And there certainly have been changes in fashions and customs.

I was going to High School when teenagers started to roll their stockings down to their ankles when the weather got hot. Many parents and the older people considered the fad a disgrace. Mothers forbade their daughters to go to school in their bare legs regardless of how high the temperature soared.

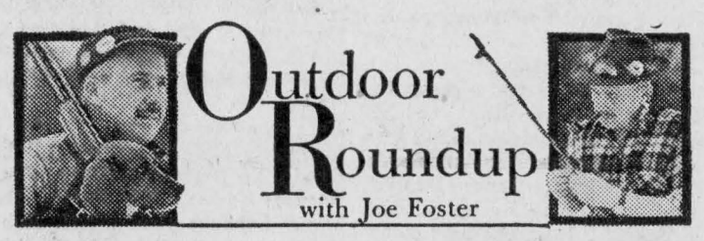
But times have changed. Today, twenty years later, many of those same mothers are going bare-legged themselves from spring until cold weather comes.

Another idea that has changed noticeably in the past few years is our attitude towards women in slacks.

About twelve years ago the threshers in one neighbourhood were served dinner by two young housewives wearing slacks. The men were disgusted. What was the world coming to? It was a disgrace.

Today the wives of all those men without exception dress in slacks and jeans the year around. Some of them even sally forth in shorts when the weather gets unbearable. Times have changed.

And when the museum is constructed at Crysler's Farm to preserve for posterity the relics of the past I think a few long drawers, some woollen stockings, a serge petticoat and even a pair of honest-to-goodness bloomers should be spread out in a glass showcase somewhere. For in another generation or so there won't be any old folks like me left who can remember when women wore such things.



With the majority of sportsmen's organizations now engaged in winding up their activities for the year, drawing up reports and setting up nominating committees to elect their officers for 1956, this seems as good a time as any to plant a thought in the minds of those who will be planning shortly next year's programmes. Although the anglers among us are probably already counting the days to the opening of the 1956 trout season, I am thinking more of the gunners, probably because I have just been looking at the figures for hunting licences issued in Ontario and Quebec over a period of the last five years—1949 to 1954 to be exact.

A Phenomenal Increase

In 1949 Ontario issued 299,000 hunting licences, in 1954 414,050 for an increase of 38.5%. For Quebec the increase is even greater—116,638 licences issued in 1949; 185,809 in 1954 for a gain of 59.3%. What's going to happen in the next five years, if the number of shooters taking to the woods and fields keeps on increasing at this rate? Game, particularly upland game, is scarce enough as things are now and a day of good bird shooting is not too easy to come by. Even rabbits, and for the purpose of this piece let's classify them as small game, whilst seemingly plentiful this present season, are likely to suffer from inevitably greater hunting pressure. Just a couple of weekends ago I visited a few acres of snow shoe cover, that for the past several seasons has produced good sport and in which you seldom find other shooters. This Saturday I counted 25 hunters and there were some 14 dogs running the bunnies. The rabbits are still there, and lots of them, but for how long will they stand up to such concentrated hunting?

A Three-Point Programme

As I see it there is a 3-point progamme that clubs and associations could profitably exploit to the future advantage of their members and sportsmen in general. Taking first things first—the relationship between hunter and the farmer. True enough all wild game belongs to the provinces, but the control of most of its habitat is vested in the owner or tenant on the land. Our sportsmen's clubs and other conservation groups must take the lead in educating their members in hunter-farmer relations.

A Busy Man

Never forget the farmer is a busy and peace-loving man. It is no pleasure for him to stop in the midst of his work and force a trespassing hunting party to retire from his land. More often than not he suffers the insult—for that is what trespass really is—in silence rather than have any unpleasantness. But he doesn't forget. He knows his rights and 'No Hunting' signs soon appear on the boundary of his lands and especially if the trespassers have misbehaved,first by not asking permission to hunt, then by damaging fences, leaving gates open, shooting near houses, barns or live stock. When so-called sportsmen carry on this way you can hardly

Hydro Announces Plans for New Town No. 1 Installation of Sewers, Water Services to Be Made Soon

Installation of sewers and water services in Seaway Valley's New Town No. 1 is scheduled to get under way in the near future, H. D. Rothwell, Ontario Hydro's liason engineer disclosed last week.

Mr Rothwell made his announcement slightly more than a month after he had announced similar plans for New Town No. 2.

Both townsites are to be developed by Hydro for the rehabilitation of communities to be flooded out by the St. Lawrence project.

New Town No. 1, as yet unnamed, will be located 14 miles west of Cornwall on a beautiful piece of ground overlooking the huge man-made lake. It will be the new home for residents of Aultsville, Farran's Point, Dickinson's Landing, Woodlands and Wales.

New Town No. 2, named Long Sault in commemoration of the famous rapids which will be dried up next summer, is situated on another high piece of lakeshore just seven miles west of Cornwall. It will be the new home for residents of the present villages of Mille Roches and Moulinette.

As is the case in Long Sault, Hydro will provide facilities in New Town No. 1 for an immediate population of 1,100 persons, although the facilities will take care of about 1,500. The planned area, however, will accomodate up to 3,500 persons and there is room for limitless expansion.

Services in the new community will follow the Hydro pattern set for the new Iroquois and Long Sault. There will be sewers water mains and a sewage disposal plant. Plans for the new community have already been approved by Hydro, Osnabruck planning board and the Osnabruck council. They were drawn by S. G. Chipman, consultant for Osnabruck Township, and Prof. Kent Barker, Hydro consultant.

Where Long Sault is rectangular in design, New Town No. 1 will be relatively square.

A street will lead north from Highway 2 to bisect the village. The commercial area will be located between this street and one paralleling it, imediately adjacent to the highway. Just to the north will be the public buildings, town centre and school sites, set in a parkway. To the north of this will be a park area and then light industry.

Residential areas lie on both sides of the business and park areas and there is ample provision for smaller parks.

To the north of the light industrial area and bordered by plenty of land reserved for industrial use is the CNR relocation. Still farther north is the new expressway, Highway 401.

As in the case of Long Sault, it is expected most of the buildings in the new townsite will be new, but provision is also being made to move dwellings from former locations to new foundations, should the owners desire this.

Provision is also made for truck gardening areas to the outside of the residential sections.

Between No. 2 Highway and the lake ,the shore will be under the jurisdiction of the Ontario-St. Lawrence Parks Commission for development of recreational facilities. There will be a frontage there of several thousand feet, sufficient to provide ample scope for exploitation.

The area will be landscaped after the installation of services is completed next spring and plans call for Hydro to plant trees in the new communities. About 100,000 trees earmarked for this purpose are growing in a reforestation plot at Kemptville.

Topsoil at the new townsites will be removed and stockpiled until the services are installed. Then it will be returned so that good growth will be assured.

There will be four churches at New Town No. 1—Anglican, Presbyterian, United and Roman Catholic. At Long Sault there will be Anglican, United and Roman Catholic churches.

A union cemetery will be located on a beautiful high point of land just north of the present village of Wales. It will embrace 14 cemeteries due to be inundated. It will have a modern vault and administration office on the 13-acre cemetery which will be bisected by the present Wales Road.

CANADIAN PLOWMEN ABROAD

by WILL C. BARRIE, Manager 1955 CANADIAN PLOWING TEAM

W. C. Barrie

Ed. Note: W. C. Barrie, of Galt, a past president of the Ontario Plowmen's Association and manager of the Canadian plowing team at the third annual World Plowing Match in Sweden, has sent home on-the-spot reports of his trip with team members Joe Tran, of Claremont, Ont., and Ivan McLaughlin, Stouffville, Ont. Here is the second report.

LONDON—Our party, consisting of Joe Tran, the 1954 Canadian plowing champion, Ivan McLaughlin, runner-up; Mrs McLaughlin, Mrs Barrie and myself, as tteam manager, left the Empress of Scotland at her Liverpool dock at seven a.m. and boarded the train for London. After we had convinced the customs officers that we weren't carrying any contraband, we settled down in a first class coach.

Joe Tran

During the 194 miles between Liverpool and London, we must have passed through 12 or 14 tunnels, some of them quite long, but others only long enough for honeymooners to pucker up before they would be out in the daylight again.

The English fields are much smaller than those in Canada, and every acre seemed to be producing crops of some kind. Water appeared to be plentiful with lively streams and canals traversing the countryside. A great many artificial farm ponds were sighted, indicating that the English farmers, like the Canadian farmers, realize the importance of water conservation.

Ivan McLaughlin

We saw many fine herds of beef and dairy cattle, and large flocks of sheep on every side. This was not surprising, since there seemed to be no scarcity of luxuriant grass on every farm.

The rolling countryside had the appearance of a well-kept golf course. Our train, carrying only passengers who had disembarked from the Empress of Scotland, was scheduled to make no stops on the way to London, not even to get a supply of water for the engine. The water lay in troughs between the rails and was scooped up by the locomotive as it sped along.

We passed through the large town of Rugby, the place where rugby football originated. Nearer London we saw the school at Harrow which many of England's famous men have attended, among them, Sir Winston Churchill. We passed through Coventry, the city that was so nearly wiped out by Hitler's bombers early in the last war.

When we got off at London's Euston station, a young man from Esso Petroleum, which is one of the donors of the Esso Golden Plow, emblematic of world plowing supremacy, stepped up to me and said: "Are you Will Barrie from Canada?" He took us by car to our hotel, The Kenilworth on Great Russell Street, and placed himself at our service. This very friendly greeting made us feel right at home in this great city.

After getting settled in our rooms and resting for a short while, we all stepped out to see a few of the sights of London. The scars left by Hitler's airmen in the Battle of Britain are slowly being covered up, but it will be many years before the city is completely restored.

The newer stores are very modern, and it was a difficult task to keep from buying things we couldn't carry with us. It was rather amusing to see members of our party, after making a purchase, take out a handful of English coins and say "help yourself."

Next day we decided to go on a motor coach tour and, shortly after we started, the guide asked the passengers to identify themselves. We learned that over 80 percent were Canadians. Among them was a group returning to Vancouver from a Youth Congress in Moscow, and when they learned we were going to Sweden, they suggested that we should visit Moscow too. When they left the bus, they went to a news stand and bought copies of the Daily Worker.

We all enjoyed the tour, which took in Buckingham Palace, Westminster Abbey, the Houses of Parliament, London Bridge, the Tower of London, and several other famous places. Seeing the burial place of so many of the most prominent men in English history was a thrill we shall never forget. To view the inscriptions on the burial places of men such as Oliver Cromwell, David Livingstone, General Wolfe and Lord Tennyson in Westminster Abbey was something to make one stop and think. Later we were most fortunate in arriving at Buckingham Palace in time to see the colourful Changing of the Guard.

That evening, we were guests at a musical show, "Water Gypsies," at the Winter Gardens, and then had dinner at an Italian restaurant, the Generos. This proved to be a grand finale to a busy and most interesting day.

On the following morning we drove to a typical English farm at Eastbourne in Sussex overlooking the English Channel. The 60-mile drive over the winding roads and the picturesque towns and villages through which we passed were sights we had hardly dared to expect. The farm, consisting of 1,000 acres, was worked by Col. J. N. Davies, who once farmed for 12 years in the Okanagan Valley, B.C. He has 500 Suffolk Down breeding ewes and 75 Polled Angus cows.

He employs three men—a shepherd, a tractor man and a handyman. With good markets for beef, lamb and wool close at hand, he has little fear of surpluses or poor prices. His present prices compare favourably with ours in Canada but his taxes are much higher than ours. His animals were grazing in knee-high grass, which assures him of plentiful feed for the winter.

On this farm were several miles of stone fences five feet high, built during the depression years after the Crimean War, and gun emplacements used by Canadian artillery units during the last war.

It was here that Hitler's invasion was expected and every preparation had ben made to hold him off. At the entrance to the farm lane were six reinforced pillars four feet high, three feet square and about six feet apart. They were built to keep the German tanks from reaching the level country if they should happen to make a landing.

In the evening the British, Irish and Canadian plowmen and their friends were entertained at the famous Trocadero restaurant.

On our last day in London, some of us visited the British Museum. It is a massive building, and it would take days for a person to see everything. That evening at St. Ermine Hotel, a press reception was held for the visiting plowmen. This was to be our last social event in London as we were leaving the city the next afternoon.

Next Week: We fly the North Sea.

Cornwall Family Held Captive, Store Robbed Chesterville Man Held Suspect by Police

Police said in Cornwall that one suspect has been arrested and leads are being run down on two, possibly three, others involved in a $20,000 robbery of the Dominion Store supermarket on Augustus St., Cornwall, early Sunday morning.

Placed under arrest at Brantford was Irwin William Stata, 30, Chesterville. Police said a considerable amount of the loot had been recovered.

Stata, an ex-convict who was born in the Chesterville area, was on parole after serving 10 years of an 18-year term for manslaughter at Ipperwash. He was apprehended as he was about to step into a parked car on a Brantford street, 300 miles west of the robbery scene. He was unarmed and offered no resistance when arrested.

The robbery sequence started at 11 p.m. Saturday, touching off a night of terror for Victor DesGroseilliers, the store manager, and his family. Two men, armed with a sawed-off shotgun and a Luger automatic, forced the family to sit tied to kitchen chairs in the family home in East Cornwall, two miles from the store.

DesGroseilliers, his wife and two sons, Robert and Roland, were bound and gagged with rope, venetian blind cords and adhesive tape after the store keys and safe combination had been secured from the manager.

When his daughter, Ghislaine, 20, and Laurent Langlois, 23, returned from a dance, they were also bound and gagged.

When several attempts on their own failed to get the safe open, the gunmen blindfolded DesGroseilliers and took him to the store where he was forced to open the safe. He was left tied up beneath a counter, but managed to free himself and sound the alarm. He arrived home with the police at 5.45 a.m. Sunday just as the members of his family freed themselves.

Company officials would make no comment on the robbery.

Mrs C. Casselman, 35 Laid to Rest

Winchester Springs lost a beloved young citizen in the person of Mrs Clifford Casselman following a lengthy illness.

The former Dorothy Elizabeth Marcellus, she was born 35 years ago, a daughter of James Marcellus and his wife, Nancy M. Thompson, of the Rowena district. She was married to Clifford A. Casselman 13 years ago, who survives, with one daughter, Erlene.

Mrs Casselman was a member of the Dnited Church, Winchester Springs, and an active member of the Woman's Missionary Society and the Woman's Association.

The funeral service was largely attended and was held in the United Church Wednesday afternoon last, conducted by her pastor, Rev Nathan Bowering, who spoke comforting words to the bereaved. Mrs Irwin Holmes and Gerald Adams rendered the duet, "Beyond the Sunset," and Joseph W. Webb sang by request "Evening Prayer."

Pall bearers were Mahlon McIntosh, Clifford Knapp, Denzil Robinson, Norman Hunter, Ralph McIntosh and Donald Walker.

Interment was made in Maple Ridge Cemetery. The profusion of floral offerings testified the high esteem in which the deceased was held.

THE GARAGE IS HAUNTED —SO THEY SAY

By day the bus garage at Winlanton, Eng., is a bus garage, plain and simple. But at night . . .

At night, says night watchman William Parker, things happen—strange things.

Stones "bigger than eggs" flew through the garage for three hours one night. On other nights over the last six months invisible furniture was shifted around (or so it sounded); there was a gurgling sound, "like someone choking," and each night before the weird noises start up, Parker's dog, Queen, cowers by him, hair on end.

"It's uncanny, and we all feel uneasy," Parker said the other night. He and three mates on the night shift stood together during the stone-flying episode—"to make sure no one was playing tricks." A full check on the building drew a blank.

The night shift is convinced the garage is haunted. Six of them have reported seeing the incidents.

PICK A CAR—NOT A TREE

Your chances of surviving an auto accident are somewhat greater in a head-on collision with another moving vehicle than if you crash, at the same speed, into a tree or bridge abutment. And your

The professor and his wife were chance of escaping is much greater if you are not thrown out of the car by the impact.

Traffic safety specialists in Detroit for a two-day national safety forum and crash demonstration say these things have been established by scientific research. They explain that two colliding cars would "mesh" each other, each absorbing and dissipating some of the impact energy.

They add that the passenger gets protection from the car body if he remains within the vehicle.

"How's the grub here?" asked the new boarder."

"Terrible! Chicken every morning."

"How's that bad?"

FOR THE POULTRYMAN

Even well-grown pullets are not COMPLETELY developed when they begin to lay. They continue to fill out, adding another 1 to 2 lbs. Trying to grow, manufacture eggs, and maintain body condition, all at the same time, puts heavy demands on them, and on their feed. Without feed fortied for this 3-fold job they may lay themselves into a false or partial moult and en expensive rest period.

PURINA BOOSTER CHECKERS are made to supply extra proteins, vitamins, minerals, antibiotics to deal with that situation. Feed 6 lbs. per 100 birds per day, on top of the regular ration.

Disease germs, mites, lice can upset your poultry plans and turn your expected profits into losses. It's sensible to take sensible precautions against them.

PURINA INSECT OIL is a real help. Painted or sprayed on wooden surfaces, it kills germs with which it comes in contact, repels mites for a year, and helps preserve the wood. Apply when the house is empty. (If you have much wood to paint, of earth floors to disinfect, INSECT OIL CONCENTRATE will prove more economical).

PURINA POULTRY INSECTICIDE will help you get rid of lice. Paint it on the roosts just before roosting time. Repeat in 10 days. It's good practice to inspect birds for lice at housing, and after that at least once a month.

Outdoor Roundup—

blame the farmer for posting his property. If all members of sportsmen's clubs could be counted upon to conduct themeslves in a courteous manner when using someone else's land in the pursuit of their sport, it would set an example that might shame the small minority of gun-toting hooligans who, by their thoughtless carryings-on love.

Improving Habitat

Improvement of game habitat goes hand in hand with the preservation of shrinking small game populations and this ties in directly with the maintenance of friendly relations with the farmer. Why not include the formation of a committee in your own organization to study ways and means of getting together with the landowners in your area on a habitat improvement programme. The farmers have the land you want to shoot over, or should I say hope to shoot over, you the members of the sportsmen's organizations have the manpower to do the work and I'm confident you will find your district conservation officer only too ready to help out with the necessary and expert advice on how to go about such a programme.

Encourage Hunting Dog Ownership

It continues to amaze me that despite the variety of available hunting dog talent there are today so many hunters—both upland and waterfowl gunners — trying to hunt without a dog. Trying is the word. They're out there through the season tramping the hedgerows, criss-crossing the fields and flailing through alder bottom, marsh and swamp. They shoot some game. In fact, they shoot more game than they recover. A hunting dog—the best one can afford (and no one can afford to keep a poor one) is not a luxury for today's sportsman. It's an essential. Under present day conditions of heavy hunting pressure and restricted game bags a dog helps to assure a successful search. So, and here I come to the third point in my three-point programme, why not include the formation of a sporting dog section in your plans for next year. Get someone qualified to head up the group and start off by offering help to prospective gundog owners in the training of their canine shooting companions. Follow with field trials. they don't have to be official and formalized events, and for out-of-season training and trials a few barnyard pigeons can be used to take the place of the game birds you will use your dogs for when the legal season rolls around once more.

CHRISTMAS PUDDING

WHAT WITH EVERYONE so calorie conscious these days it is doubtful if you will want to serve good old-fashioned plum pudding after a first course of turkey and all the extras that go with it. However, perhaps you will argue that it is alright to have it because it is Christmas. And there is really nothing quite so good served with a vanilla or butterscotch pour sauce or orange hard sauce.

Plum Pudding

3 lbs. raisins
¼ lb. lemon peel
½ lb. candied cherries
¼ lb. citron peel
½ lb. blanched, slivered almonds
1 lb. suet
1 lb. brown sugar
4 cups bread crumbs
¼ cup flour
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. cloves
½ tsp. nutmeg
¼ tsp. allspice
1 tsp. baking powder
8 eggs
½ cup grape juice

Chop raisins; cut peel into very thin slices, sprinkle with flour. Remove the membrane from the suet and chop fine. Sift flour, baking powder, salt and spices. Add sifted sugar. Add bread crumbs, suet and fruit. Mix well. Add grape juice and well beaten eggs. Pour into three greased molds; cover tightly. Steam four hours. If cooked in one large dish, steam six hours.

Plum pudding should be made several weeks before you intend to use it in order to develop the flavour.

Carrot Pudding

This pudding is less expensive than the plum pudding and many prefer it as it is also less rich.

1 cup grated carrot
1 cup grated potato
1¼ cups bread crumbs
1 cup raisins
1 cup currants
1 cup brown sugar
¾ cup suet, finely chopped
2 tbsps. sour milk
½ tsp. baking soda
½ cup flour
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. cinnamon
1-8 tsp. nutmeg
½ tsp. allspice

Mix the ingredients in the order given. Turn into well-greased molds; cover and steam 3 hours for large molds and 1¼ hours for individual molds.

Hard Sauce

1-3 cup butter
1 cup fruit, brown or icing sugar
1-3 tsp. vanilla
1-3 tsp. orange juice
2 tsps. grated orange rind

Cream the butter, add sugar gradually. Add vanilla, orange juice and rind. Chill before serving.

If you would like a fluffy sauce, fold in beaten white of one egg before chilling. Other fruit juice as pineapple, lemon or cherry may be substituted for the orange. Add a festive touch by adding a few drops of red or green colouring.

Brown Sugar Sauce

TRANSLATES BLUEPRINTS WITH BIBLE

Owensboro, Ky., building inspector Jack Keeley had to go to the Bible to interpret some instructions written on a specification plan.

Written on a plan concerning grading on a hilly section of land was: "Isaiah 40 : 4."

Keeley checked and found this quotation:

"Every valley shall be exalted and every mountain and hill shall be made low, and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough places plain."

"Believe me, my baby is the loveliest in the world."

"What a coincidence we should meet. So is mine!"

Rev H. M. Beach Addresses Men's Club Of Trinity United Church

The regular monthly meeting of Trinity United Church Men's Association was held in the dining hall of the church Thursday last with the president, Dr B. W. Lapp, in charge.

The worship service was conducted by the president who was assisted by Mr John Presant and Mr Doug Durant. The minutes and financial report were presented by John Presant, secretary-treasurer.

Mr Presant reported that the projector fund was only about $100 short of the objective, and it was decided to advise the public that contributions could be placed on the church offering plates, if they were clearly marked "Projector Fund." The secretary was asked to write the Woman's Association and the Evening Auxiliary thanking them for their generous donations. It was also decided to hold no meeting in December, and to leave the plans for the January meeting in the hands of the executive.

The feature of the evening was an address by Rev H. M. Beach, of Finch. Mr Beach was introduced by Rev R. A. Mitchell, who pointed out that both he and Mr Beach met over a common interest in Metis Beach, Que., which was Mr Beach's first charge as a minister, and is the home of Mrs Mitchell.

Mr Beach chose as his subject "Why I Stopped Worrying." He held the attention of all with reminiscences that went back to the First World War. The speaker dealt with a number of difficulties that had faced him in his own life, and clearly showed how each was successfully met and overcome. "So," he concluded, "since there was no need to worry, I stopped worrying." He suggested that this was the best philosophy for life. Mr Beach was suitably thanked by Mr Presant.

The meeting enjoyed the films "River of Canada" and "Sing with the Commodores," after which the usual lunch brought the evening to a close.

SAVE DEER HIDES FOR TANNING

A good many hunters are becoming aware of the value of their deer hides and saving them for tanning. One good hide will make two pairs of moccasins or two pairs of gloves and a vest. It takes three or four hides for a "buckskin" jacket, says District Forester W. T. Foster, of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests.

For anyone wanting to try his hand at tanning he suggests the following directions, with the admonition that "it's a lot of work but the results should be rewarding:.

"Salt hide if it must be stored for any length of time. The hide should be soaked in clean water until soft. Next, slake five pounds of lime with 30 gallons of water (wood ashes can be used, too). The hide should be soaked in this solution until the hair can be removed. This usually takes eight to ten days. After the hair is scraped off, soak the hide again in the lime solution until the thin layer of skin on the hair side of the hide can be slipped off.

"The hide should then be taken and immersed in a solution of one gallon of vinegar and 25 gallons of water; then stretch. Careful smoking of the hide or hides now with green hardwoods will give the colour effect and appearance you want."

IN MEMORIAM

BROWNELL—In fond and loving memory of a dear wife, Mrs George Brownell, who passed away a year ago.

My heart is there.
Where, on eternal hills, my loved one dwells
Among the lilies and asphodels;
Clad in the brightness of the Great White Throne,
Glad in the smile of Him who sits thereon,
The glory gilding all His wealth of hair
And making His immortal face more fair—
There is my treasure and my heart is there.

Ever remembered by Husband.
