Council Authorizes Immediate Purchase of Zamboni for Arena

At a special meeting of the Morrisburg Municipal Council on Wednesday evening, a resolution was unanimously passed to authorize the immediate of a Zamboni ice-resurfacing machine for use at the Community Centre.

During the past couple of years much volunteer effort has been expended locally to raise funds for such a machine, and Wednesday's meeting and resolution will bring those efforts to fruition.

For those who may not be familiar with the term a Zamboni is the machine you see between periods on your hockey telecasts removing the snow from the ice and providing a fresh surface.

Use of the Zamboni not only provides the best possible surface, but is almost a necessity for the successful operation of a modern hockey and skating arena. It enables the use of a thinner sheet of ice, which in turn, reduces the wear and tear on the ice-making plant. (It is obviously easier to maintain a ½" sheet of ice than a sheet possibly 3" in thickness, and this saving in energy and in time could produce two extra revenue-producing hours per day, estimates Bill Dillabough, Chairman of the Community Centre Board.

Mr Dillabough informs us that delivery of the new Zamboni will be about February 1st, 1975.

Final Tribute Tues. For Wm. J. Snyder

William Joseph Snyder, a well known and highly respected lifetime resident of Morrisburg, died at Winchester Memorial Hospital on Saturday, October 19th, following an illness of more than two years.

A native of Morrisburg, Bill, as he was known to a host of young and old friends, was born November 11th, 1902, a son of the late Alfred Snyder, and his wife, the late Catherine Henophy.

He received his education in the local schools, and in 1930, he became a lockman on the former Williamsburg Canal, a position he maintained, and advanced to lockmaster for the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority. He retired from this work in 1968, after 38 years of service.

For many years, until ill health forced his retirement, Bill was also a valued member of the Morrisburg Fire Department. He was a devout member of St. Mary's Catholic Church, and of the Holy Name Society.

Bill was perhaps best known as manager of the old Morrisburg Arena, and there he made many friends while providing good fun and good ice for skaters and hoc key players, in an earlier and much less affluent era.

The late Mr. Snyder was twice married. His first wife was Frances Cameron, of Cardinal, who predeceased him many years ago. He later married Ida G. Barkley who survives, with 2 sons, Ralph and Robert, both of Morrisburg. Another son, Billy, lost his life in the Milverton disaster many years ago. Also surviving are two stepsons and three stepdaughters: Bernice Dillabough of Brockville and Ralph Dillabough of Chesterville; Mrs. Jack Gauthier (Helen) of Brockville; Mrs. Graham Casselman (Jean), of Winchester Springs; Mrs. Myron VanAllen, (Faye) of Morrisburg. There are 8 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

A brother, Lawrence Snyder is a resident of Cornwall, and another brother, Garnet, predeceased him in 1938.

Funeral service was held Tuesday, October 22nd in St. Mary's Catholic Church, Morrisburg with his pastor, Father O'Connor, offering the funeral mass. Interment followed in St. Mary's cemetery.

Pall bearers were: Joe Bourrette, Carson Baker, Joe Murray, Lee Couglar, Orval Millward, and Clare Biccum.

'Delegates' Pour Into Morrisburg

Honking, hooting and merry-making have become the order of the day ocne again as delegates pour in from all across Northern Ontario and Quebec for the Canada Goose conference held annually near this otherwise peaceful St. Lawrence town.

More than 6,000 delegates have already set up camp in the fields surrounding Upper Canada Village, Chrysler Farm Battlefield Park and on Ault Island.

Local residents, braced for the raucous get-together, say delegates can be found wandering aimlessly at all hours over park lawns along Highway 401.

Officials also claim dozen of conference-goers have been found in the morning laying barely conscious in the stubble of nearby cornfields. or sound asleep on their stomachs in the mud near the riverbank.

Constable Ralph O'Brien at the nearby Ontario Provincial Police detachment on Highway 31 said so far there have been no complaints about the delegates, but that he personally wouldn't mind taking a shot at a few of them.

Unfortunately, there's no open season in the Upper Canada Migratory Bird Sanctuary.

The "delegates" are Canada geese who are migrating south after spending the summer around Hudson and James Bay.

Right now, they're stopping for a rest at the 7,000-acre sanctuary near Upper Canada Village before continuing south to winter around Chesapeake and Delaware Bays.

The flocks at Upper Canada also include 2,000 residents who remain year-round except for several weeks in the winter.

For anyone interested in a close up view of the geese, come to the sanctuary any day of the week between 2:00 p.m. and 4:00 p.m.—feeding time, the sanctuary's finest busiest hours.

Medical Building is Opened at Iroqouis

The end of several years of planning and work came to a conclusion Saturday afternoon, with the official opening of Iroquois and District Medical Centre, as members of the community were joined by members of parliament and local politicians to give the building their blessings and good wishes.

Several crowded into the building's waiting room to see the ribbon-cutting ceremony ably handled by Stormont M P. Mr. Ed. Lumley, assisted by the Hon. D. Irvine, M.P Walter Baker, Reeve Lloyd Davis, Lions and Legion representatives Danny Robertson and Ken Easter

Members of the buliding committee and Council, as well as visiting dignitaries, were welcomed by Reeve Lloyd Davis, who called on three ministerial representatives for a moment of prayer, marking the building's service to the community and mankind

Donations from Legion, Lions, the province and individuals have made possible this building which now houses two doctors and a dentist The modern, well planned and tastefully decorated building is a credit to the village and the district it will serve, and a momento to what can be accomplished by determination and hard work.

Best wishes were voiced by many present, and after a tour of the building, many took advantage of a social hour, with coffee and donuts provided by Iroquois Women's Institute.

THE TORONTO SUN SYNDICATE

When there's work to be done, nobody has to go looking for Wayne. He's right there, conscientious about doing jobs assigned to him and even volunteering for others.

Wayne is 14, healthy and sturdy with blue eyes, blonde hair and a fair, freckled complexion. He is amiable, co-operative and eager to please so foster parents and teachers find him pleasant to have around.

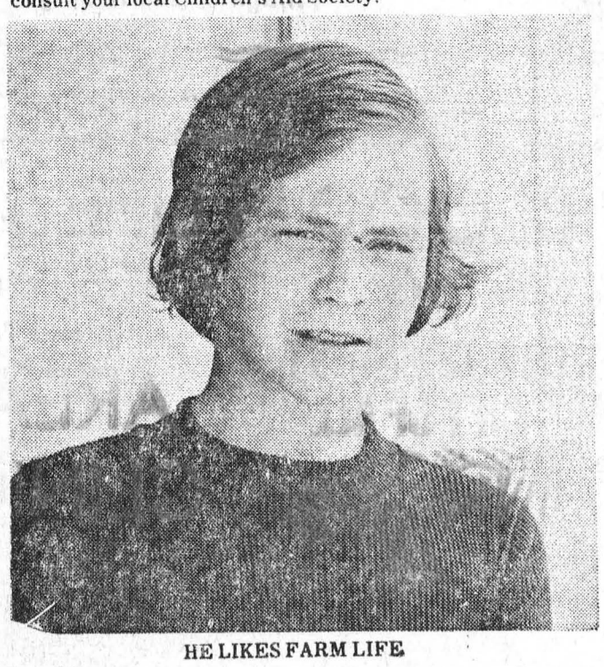
Wayne attends a school for non-academic students. Although he is rather indifferent to bookish activities, he has a talent for shop work. Now in a farm foster home, Wayne enjoys the life and especially the animals. He has hopes of being a farmer and having "lots of dogs".

Wayne gets along well with both children and adults and is protective of the younger children in his foster home.

Baseball is this lad's great interest though not on a competitive basis. His baseball glove is his treasured possession. He also enjoys weight lifting, wrestling and bike riding. Too shy for most community activities, Wayne is happiest sharing the family life and chores around his foster home. However, he has recently become a Boy Scout.

Wayne is the sort of boy who needs to know exactly what is expected of him. He should have warm, relaxed parents who will appreciate his shy, pleasing personality and who can accept his limitations.

To inquire about adopting Wayne, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2. For general adoption information, consult your local Children's Aid Society.



HE LIKES FARM LIFE

YOURS SINCERELY

BY MRS. WELLWOOD ADAM

Life can be fulf of surprises, can't it? And some can be very difficult to take . . . so severe as to cause much sorrow and upheaval . . . and others can be really delightful.

I have had my share of all kinds, even in this last week, and am wondering what will come next. Have you ever felt like that?

So much, of course, depends on how we take this part of our living. Strength of spirit is one of the essentials, most certainly.—Should the physical side of us crumble under the weight of a painful shock for a time, it continually amazes me how the spirit grows stronger and survives for some of us.

I have heard it said "Oh, it is simply mind over matter." or "It is just an attitude of the mind", in other words, and so on. These answers are very true, but I personally have my own answer, as well.

I think that if anyone quietly holds firmly to a faith and belief in God, no matter what the religious denomination is, then this strength of spirit is there, for sure. And when it has been allowed to pervade both heart and mind, even a breakdown in health does not end everything after any terrible shock.

All of us cannot avoid the harsher surprises of life, for they come to us when we often least expect them. A few of us have to take more than others, something which I never can quite understand.

However, we make our own equipment to meet them, and it can be quite strong, or it can be useless, or not even there at all! And what I do know is that the responsibility of preparing that particular kind of strength is ours, in the long run . . . even to the lack of it! Which is quite a thought isn't it? I have discovered for myself, down the years, that after a certain amount of common sense has set in, one can be stronger and better able to face any future trial or difficulty, if our faith in God has not diminished over the years.

Fortunately, indeed, there are the other unexpected surprises which come our way, created by kindly thought and concern for us. These bring a rainbow of content and real appreciation for a while, and can also be very lasting. For instance, earlier in the year, I found myself getting short of my knitting wool . . . I had been making a number of pretty knitted caps for the coloured babies and children of an African church in Toronto. Their Christmas sale of work is always in November, and I hope to take my finished efforts to them for their Christmas tree shortly. Not able to complete the caps or the colourful pom-poms, I made an S.O.S which this Newspaper kindly published, and suddenly from in and around Morrisburg came scraps, and balls, and hanks of unwanted wools, from here, there, and every where! The response was sudden and overwhelming, so that I am able to knit MORE caps for next Christmas, 1975, if I am spared. Now, that happened months ago, but the memory of that quick surprise certainly lingers on!

Then again, only a few days ago, a kind friend called in to see us for a few moments, and during the course of our chatting, she produced a big skein of pretty green wool. It was to help with what I had already, and the thought behind the surprise really "made my day", even in spit of the rain and ugly clouds around.

I read of something a bit similar happening to a business man—he took a walk around his garden one morning before driving to his office in the city. It was a glorious summer morning and he gathered a bunch of his beautiful sweet peas. He took them with him and presented them to the woman who always cleaned his office for him, for he was aware that she was finding life a bit hard just then.

Well, he forgot all about it as the days passed, but one morning he found she was waiting for him. She gave him a little parcel. When he opened it, he found a pair of bed socks, and she said to him very humbly, "I knitted them myself, I thought your mother would like to wear them when the wintry nights come along, later on."

I am sure you will agree with me when I say that it is surprises like this — the kindnesses that can be passed on to one another, unexpectedly too — that can make life richer and well worth while. Even in these somewhat cynical and ultra modern days!

The 2nd FORTY

Married Lover

Dear Margaret Brookfield:

I am a widow who had an affair with a co-worker for the last five years. He spent at least four nights a week at my apartment. About four months ago he had a heart attack in the middle of the night. He died at the hospital a few hours later. His wife sent word that my presence was not welcome at the funeral services, so I abided by her wishes. But I was angry then and I'm still hurt. I loved him as much as she did. In fact, he planned to divorce her once the children were grown. Wasn't she wrong? M.L

Dear M.L.:

Simmer down and think how angry this woman must have been for five years as she coped with responsibilities and problems her husband was obligated to share. If that doesn't cool you off think of how she felt when the children asked: "Where's daddy tonight?" She obviously insisted you stay away to avoid a final embarrassment.

Fatigue and Indecision

Dear Margaret Brookfield:

I am 49 and going through the changes. I was never a decisive woman, or full of pep and energy. But lately I am more fatigued than usual and find I can't make up my mind about the most simple problems. I waste time at the supermarket, trying to plan meals I make plans for Saturday night and cancel them on Friday. Are indecision and fatigue symptoms of menopause? G.U.

Dear G.U.:

Even if you had no symptoms, the one wise decision you should make is to see your doctor regularly for routine checkups, particularly for the fatigue which has troubled you for some time. He can advise you about what's causing it.

Menopause can sometimes cause fatigue, as well as depression irritability and insomnia. But these may also be longstanding problems possibly aggravated by menopause. In his book, "The Ageless Woman", Dr. Sherwin Kaufman writes about menopausal discomforts and problems: "Some are strikingly similar to the problems and symptoms of middle-age—depression and fatigue, irritability, insomnia. Since menopause occurs during the middle age, it is often difficult to decide which symptoms are attributable to which cause. But we do know that even mild menopausal symptoms, if superimposed on non-menopausal symptoms, can be overburdening."

Your doctor can make a diagnosis and, if necessary, prescribe medication. If symptoms are menopausal, or aggravated by the change, today's mature woman no longer need suffer in silence. Menopausal complaints that are caused by a decrease in the production of estrogen are often relieved with estrogen medication.

Sometimes personality characteristics may be exaggerated during menopause. You write that you were "never a decisive woman," so this trait is probably being affected at this time. Perhaps when your other symptoms are relieved you will be more relaxed about making decisions.

It's always Halloween for the neighborhood lush—he communes with the spirits every night.

Land Use Reports Available

The first report to be published dealing with the ministry of natural resources strategic land use plan, a project designed to co-ordinate the land using programs of the ministry within the overall framework of the Design for Development Program, has just been released.

The ministry has been collecting and analysing information on the people and resources of Northwestern Ontario for the past two years. This report is a summary of these findings, and some proposed policies for the future.

The report entitled "Background Information and Approach to Policy: Northwestern Ontario Region was released October 4 by natural resources minister Leo Bernier at a meeting of the Northwestern Ontario Municipal Association in Kenora. He invited extensive public participation in the development of plans for the North-western Ontario lands.

"It is important to emphasize that this is not a plan at this stage Mr. Bernier said. "The policies contained in the report are proposed for discussion by other government ministries, municipal officials, interested groups and the public in general."

Ministry staff will now be implementing an extensive public participation program to allow all interested individuals and groups to comment on the contents of the report, the minister said.

Copies of the report are available from all district and regional offices of the ministry of natural resources in Northwestern Ontario, as well as from northern affairs offices and the ministry's land use co-ordination branch in Toronto.

ALUMINUM WIRING NOT NECESSARILY DANGEROUS

Reports that aluminum wiring used in thousands of Canadian homes could be a fire hazard are exaggerated, according to a special Ontario Hydro team set up to study the matter.

J.A. Dicker, Hydro's manager of electrical inspection, said that although the team will continue its investigations, "things aren't nearly as bad as alleged earlier".

The combination of poor workmanship and the use of improper wiring devices on aluminum wire increase the possibility of electrical failure, he added. The team's investigation revealed several fail ures involving aluminum wire but damage was generally confined to the outlet box and no actual fires resulted.

"The number of reported failures are very small in terms of the number of installations," Dicker said.

The special team was set up after news reports several months ago suggested that aluminum wiring—which has replaced its more costly counterpart, copper, in most new home circuits — was turning residences into "time bombs" waiting to go up in smoke

"That just isn't the case", said Dicker. "But we recommend strongly that home owners keep a close eye on the behavior of their electrical systems, whether they have aluminum wiring or any other kind." He said the Hydro team's interim report indicates a general upgrading of all wiring systems in today's homes may be desirable.

"Heavy appliances such as air conditioners are coming into common use today and they can be a strain on the electrical system," Dicker added. "A general improvement in standards might be a good idea."

The team recommended that anyone concerned with electrical installations watch for these warning signs:

— hot or discoloured plates on switches or receptacles!
—unusual odours in the vicinity of an electrical outlet;
—persistent but intermittent flickering of lights for no apparent reason.

The Hydro team urged homeowners who notice any of these symptoms to consult a qualified electrician or electrical contractor

NO MORE HANDOUTS, SAYS WHITE

WINDSOR — There'll be no additional provincial handouts for municipalities this coming year, Ontario Treasurer John White has warned.

Speaking to county wardens and regional chaiman at the annual conference of the Association of Counties and Regions of Ontario, Mr. White said the Ontario government cannot match all the financial needs of the municipalities in 1974-75.

The province, he said, is passing $2.4 billion along to the municipalities in 1974-75 — an increase of $250 million over the previous fiscal year — and cannot improve on that.

Repeated increases in provincial grants over the past five years have made it possible for the municipalities to maintain a high level of services while becoming less dependent on property taxation for their revenues.

The Treasurer said municipalities expecting additional provincial help should instead adopt one or several of four measures: they can increase property taxes, borrow more maney, cut their spending, or appeal to Ottawa for help.

Emphasizing cuts in expenditures as a good solution, Mr. White said: "This is the measure that must be stressed in this inflationary period . . . I urge you in the strongest terms to cut all but the most essential expenditures."

Mr. White distributed a financial analysis showing provincial and municipal taxation and spending for 1968 and 1973.

"(The document) shows that while the province has been tightening up on spending and forcing school boards to tighten up, some municipalities have been greatly increasing their spending," he said.

Relating the provincial record, he said: "We have raised taxes all we can. We have borrowed money to the limit of prudence. We are doing our best to hold the line on spending. We cannot and will not raise taxes further.

"And so I say to all municipalities: 'Now it's your turn."

"Not for a moment do I dispute your need for more money than we provide. Not for a second would I argue that you couldn't spend that extra money to good advantage.

"But the money is not available. We don't have it and we see no practical, reasonable way to get it for you."

Mr. White said the federal government is in a better position than the province is to help the municipalities, since Ottawa enjoyed revenue increases of 17 per cent last year and more than 20 per cent this year.

"The Minister of Finance may tell you he won't provide any extra money, but don't let him tell you he can't."

TODAY'S HEALTH

Cigarette smoking has been linked to lung cancer, heart disease, emphysema and a whole host of respiratory and other problems. In Canada, and elsewhere, television advertising of cigarettes is banned, and cigarette packages carry a warning that their contents are dangerous.

Pipes and cigars, on the other hand, appear to have escaped these indictments and restrictions almost completely. Does this mean that tobacco smoked in these forms is harmless?

Not at all, says Dr. Norman Delarue, a Toronto surgeon and a member of the steering committee of the recently formed Canadian Council on Smoking and Health. The cigarette smoker who switches to cigars or a pipe has established a smoking pattern, says Dr. Delarue, that makes him liable to inhale the smoke from either. And that's just as dangerous as cigarette smoke.

Even for pipe and cigar smokers who don't inhale, some of the smoke, inevitably, is going to wind up in the bronchial and nasal passages — and even in the lungs. Admittedly, that's not quite the same as taking in the deep breaths of concentrated smoke that the inhaling cigarette smoker takes; and it can also be said, in defence of pipes and cigars, that the smoke they produce burns at lower temperatures and comes from tobacco that is likely to be less impregnated with chemicals. Moreover, it's ONLY tobacco that's smoked — not paper.

Against that, it must be recorded that cigars and pipes have been clearly implicated in various cancers, notably of the throat and lip, and in a number of respiratory problems. The clear fact, as Dr. Delarue sees it, is that taking smoke into the body is obviously not going to do any good — and may do considerable harm.

While others may argue that pipes or cigars represent an alternative for the man who must smoke something, they offer no such option to women (except in such tolerant countries as Denmark where women do smoke cigars). Perhaps this is because pipes, at least, are such noxious, messy, graceless and anti-social instruments that no self-respecting woman would be caught dead with one.

It seems rather odd that pipe and cigar smoking continues to enjoy social respectability while cigarettes are becoming increasingly ostracized.

Perhaps, in considering the dangers of smoking, we should be less kind to the pipe and the cigar, considering them, as King James I did, "a custom lothsome to the eye, hateful to the nose, harmful to the brain, dangerous to the lungs, and in the black stinking fume thereof, nearest resembling the horrible Stygian smoke of the pit that is bottomless".

Now if we'd put THAT warning on tobacco packaging . . .

Former Patients Help Others Adjust to Breast Surgery

by Frieda Kaye

New York — At a time when breast cancer is in the headlines, some 8,500 women serve as reminders that it is possible to make a complete physical and emotional comeback from the operation that women fear most. They are Reach to Recovery volunteers, helping women like themselves who have undergone mastectomies, or surgical removal of a breast.

Reach to Recovery is the creation of Terese Lasser, who was operated on for breast cancer 22 years ago. "After my surgery I worried about so many things," the petite widow recalls today. "My husband was alive then and I thought, 'How will he feel?' 'Will my friends pity me?' 'What will I wear?' I couldn't get answers. There was nothing."

On her own she devised exercises to regain strength in her arm, and researched the clothes problem. Then, encouraged by her doctor, she shared her understanding and knowledge with another patient. "When I was able to help that woman walk and face her husband, she embraced me and cried, and I cried with her. I realized that I had something more important to do in like than just keep house and play golf."

World-Wide Program

That was the start of a one-woman crusade, funded by Mrs. Lasser's husband and contributions from grateful patients. In 1969 Terese Lasser's program became an integral part of the American Cancer Society. Under her direction it has expanded throughout the country and the world.

Today its trained volunteers are welcome in hospitals — if the attending physician requests a visit. Matched according to the patient's age and ethnic background, a volunteer comes prepared to demonstrate exercises, explain prosthetic devices and offer hints on clothing and carriage. They candidly discuss all non-medical matters — including that delicate question — how will the man in my life react?

"Your husband didn't marry you because you had two breasts, Terese Lasser tells mastectomy patients. But she admits, too, was concerned after her surgery. 'My husband was a gentle man who waited to see how I would act. When I came home I undressed in the bathroom. As the months went by and there was no sex between us, I thought I had become repulsive to him."

Family Counseling

Finally Mrs. Lasser "poured her heart out" on paper and asked her husband (the late J. K. Lasser, author of "Your Income Tax" to read what she had written. "His first words to me were 'what have I done to you?' But he hadn't done it to me. I had done it to him, too. Ignorance." Reach to Recovery now offers literature — and personal counseling when necessary — to help the cancer patient and her family deal with these problems.

"We're the same women we were before, except we have to wear something extra," emphasizes this 6-year-old grandmother, who shows off her trim figure in form-fitting knits; underneath she wears a specially-made garment that gives her a balanced, natural bosom look. Constantly on call for newspaper interviews and TV talk shows, Mrs. Lasser hammers home the importance of regular check-ups and breast self-examinations. "I am here today," she says, "because I didn't ignore that lump I found in my breast."

George Steiner, noted essayist, author, critic and scholar delivers the 1974 Massey Lectures on CBC Radio, during the week of Oct. 28 - Nov. 1. His subject, Nostalgia for the Absolute, is concerned with the erosion of theology and the search to fill the void with Marxism, Freudianism, astrology or any other system that appears to offer an absolute view of life. For him there is another alternative, the pursuit of objective truth through science.

The Massey Lectures will be made available in paperback form and on audiotape (reels or cassettes) after the conclusion of the broadcast series. Inquiries about the book or audiotapes should be sent to CBC Publications/Learning Systems, Box 500, Station A, Toronto M5W 1E6. Audiotapes are only available to educational institutions.

W.O. Mitchell paints a sensitive portrait of three emotionally disturbed women in Back To Beulah, to be aired on CBC Stage, Sat., Oct. 26. Mitchell, who was writer-in-residence last year at Toronto's Massey College, is perhaps better known as a humorist, the creator of the popular radio series—Jake and the Kid. Beulah, however, is a compelling, even frightening drama about the humanizing of a doctor, played by Marilyn Lightstone. Others in the cast are Ruth Springford, Terry Tweed, Marian Waldman, Alice Hill and Hugh Webster. The play was directed by Ron Hartmann, who recently starred in a CBC Tuesday Night production of Othello.

The past and present are mysteriously intertwined in Louisbourg, a guided tour of the once mighty fortress on Cape Breton, a drama by William Rockett scheduled on CBC Playhouse, Sun. Oct. 27.

"All you ever wanted to know about becoming a rock 'n' roll star' is the title of a documentary on the Canadian group, Photograph, a segment on The Entertainers, Sun. Oct. 27. Now's your big chance to find out how to make the big time.

William Henry Drummond, the habitant poet, and creator of Lil'l Baptiste, is the subject of a two-part documentary on The Bush and the Salon, Oct. 27 and Nov. 3. It's based on the unplblished biography of Dr. Drummond (he graduated from McGill in medicine in 1885) written by his wife.

By mid 1975, CBC will have the longest FM stereo radio network in the world. Stereo programming will be distributed by microwave and cable links in 10 cities from coast to coast. By June, 1975 new stations in St. John's, Halifax and Calgary will be added to existing ones in Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver. Later on, Edmonton and Windsor will service part of the network.

New Method of Tooth Extraction

Scientists have come up with a new high-speed instrument which may eventually help dentists to extract teeth better and faster than traditional methods.

The new device rotates a tooth in place for only one tenth of a millimetre in cycles ranging from 100 to 500 per second. It thus detaches the tooth from the socket with less damage and blood loss than traditional extraction methods produce. The clean, unbroken tooth can be lifted easily without damage to the jaw bone and surrounding tissues, the scientists explain.

The experimental device consists of an assortment of sockets to grasp variously shaped teeth, and a handle slightly larger than that of the usual dental drill. In the handle is a gearbox and an oscillating head. The instrument is pneumatically driven by either air or nitrogen under pressure.

Using the oscillating instrument some teeth reportedly come out in less than two seconds, while big teeth with long or curved roots may take almost two minutes. This is nine times faster than extraction of similar teeth with hand forceps. Also, there is no bruising and no effect on neighbouring teeth.

Although they have tested their machine only on animals so far, its inventors believe it may also eventually prove effective in the hands of dentists. However some teeth, especially those that have twisted roots or are displaced, will always have to be taken out in sections rather than whole; so dental forceps are not going to become obsolete. Also, the new instrument must be tested on patients before its value can be properly assessed, but it does promise to be a useful adjunct to dentists.

Blood Kinsmen

Arabs and Jews are both blood kinsmen, both being descended from Abraham—the Arabs through Ismael and the Jews through Isaac.

Whence Its Name

Scotland Yard gets its name from an ancient structure where visiting Scottish kings stayed in London between the 900s and the 1100s.

Source of Stimulant

The foxglove is used in the treatment of heart disease. The flower is a valuable source of the powerful heart stimulant, digitalis.

Markings, Not Sex

The name "tabby" refers to the markings on a cat and does not mean that the cat is a female. The striped tabby is the oldest type of cat yet discovered.

No Difference

There is no difference between a groundhog and a woodchuck. In America, this member of the marmot family is called by either name.
