100 CLUB HOLDS FINE MEETING

INTERNATIONAL OFFICERS WERE PRESENT ON FRIDAY LAST

One of the most interesting meetings of the 100 Club to be held in some time took place at Hotel Winchester on Friday evening last. There were over thirty Centurians present, with the President, Harry Flora, in the chair

Centurian Chester Timmins led the usual sing-song durin g the repast, with Miss Helen Timmins acting as accompanist. At the close of the supper a boost was conducted by Centurian Jack Singleton on behalf of the Imperial Tobacco Company, the prize being a tin of cigarettes, which was won by Centurian Jack Ault.

President Harry Flora then called upon the secretary for the minutes of the last meeting and a business session followed. Centurian Jack Singleton brought up the question of children's work and said that his attention had been drawn to several needy cases by the County Health Nurse. The matter was left in the hands of the children's welfare committee. A resolution was then passed expressing the appreciation of the Club to the Old Home Association for their very generous contribution.

A prize boost was then conducted by Centurian Eldon Fennell who gave a most interesting account of the mining of coal and the various stages through which it must be brought, in order to be of highest quality and of good service.

The boost resulted in Centurians Walter Moffatt, Gordon Johnston and Chas. Cross winning handsome prizes.

Following the boost the president called upon International President Chris. Forbes of Lanark, to address the gathering. His remarks proved to be very able and were well-received by the Club members. Winchester, he pointed out, has a great historical background, deriving its name, as it does, from Winchester, England, the ancient seat of government and the royal treasury. Rapidly the speaker took the Centurians on a tour of that ancient city, with its cathedral and numerous places of interest.

There were many things for which everyone should be justly proud, said President Forbes, namely, one's home town; one's tongue and one's service club.

Turning his thoughts to service club work, the speaker emphasized the fact that Centurianism stands for more than social gatherings and prize boosts. It means just service to others. The creation of a family spirit between communities and a fuller understanding of each other were prime essentials in the fostering of world peace. In this respect service clubs had a front place. He closed with a strong plea for greater enthusiasm and earnestness in the work of all clubs in the International.

District Governor Harry McIntosh, of Perth, was also present and gave a brief resume of the work in the International. His remarks were listened to with much interest. International secretary Art Sled, of Ottawa, then spoke for a short time on the activities of the various clubs in Ontario and ended by giving a detailed explanation of the radio auction now being undertaken by the Ottawa Club. Two members of the Almonte Club were present and brought greetings from the club in that place.

At the conclusion of the speeches, by request, President Forbes entertained the gathering with numerous feats of skill with a deck of cards which had the Centurians dizzy. Aces and Jacks were made to appear from all sorts of unexpected places to the amusement of everyone.

Centurians James Gray and Tommy Hawkins tendered a vote of thanks to the International President and the other officers for their welcome visit, after which the meeting closed with the singing of Auld Lang Syne and the National Anthem.

For Western Relief

WINCHESTER AND DISTRICT SENDING CAR OF VEGETABLES AND FRUIT TO WESTERN CANADA

It was decided last week that the area along the C. P. R. in Dundas and Grenville Counties again send a car load of vegetables and fruit to Western Canada. It will be recalled that the car sent last year went to Kerrobert, Saskatchewan, where Rev. Benson Summers, a Winchester boy, was minister. The destination of this year's car has not yet been decided, but donors are assured that it will go to one of the needy areas and that distribution will be made to everyone irrespective of denominational affiliation/

Potatoes, turnips, cabbage, carrots beets, squash, apples, canned fruits and provisions of any kind, will be gratefully received. It is hoped that some of the many products gathered in this fall will find their way to the needy people of the west many of whom have not had a crop in four or five years.

The car, which is supplied free by the C.P.R., will be refrigerated and will be at the various stations on the following days next week—Monday at Chesterville; Tuesday at Winchester; Wednesday at Inkerman; Thursday at Mountain; Friday at Bedell. Crates and material for the packing of canned goods will be in the car, and local committees are asked to see that this work is carefully done.

Any people in the Winchester area who find it inconvenient to come to the car on Tuesday will please bring their gifts to Sweet's store, and folk living in the village who wish to give jars of canned fruit will please bring same to Mr. Sweet's, where they will be carefully packed for the car. Let us see that the Winchester corner of the car will be well filled! Many of our own kinsfolk are in need of these provisions in the stricken areas.

INTERESTING ADDRESS DELIVERED ON EARLY EDUCATIONAL PROGRESS IN THE THREE UNITED COUNTIES

The Press is pleased to publish below a resume of the address delivered by Mr. W. J. Stewart, B. Paed., Inspector of Public Schools for Dundas, which he delivered before the Women's Institute meeting in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening last. As the topic is one which refers directly to this district, Mr. Stewart's address should prove of great interest to our readers.

Previously to 1791 the Province of Quebec consisted of two districts, Montreal and Quebec. In 1788 the Province of Montreal had four new districts formed out of a part of it. The most easterly of these districts was called Lunenburgh and comprised approximately what is now included in the Counties of Leeds and Grenville, Prescott and Russell and and the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry.

By the Constitutional Act of 1791 the Province of Quebec was divided into two provinces called Upper and Lower Canada, the former comprising approximately what is now the Province of Ontario. In 1792 Upper Canada was divided into counties, the three most easterly being called Dundas, Stormont and Glengarry. At the same time the name of the District of Lunenburgh was changed and now became known as the Eastern District.

In 1798 the counties of Leeds and Grenville were formed, and later still, in 1816, the counties of Prescott and Russell were formed. Since that date the boundaries of the three United Counties have remained as then determined.

In 1797 about half a million acres of Crown Lands were set aside for the promotion of education; but due to the fact that land could be obtained on such liberal terms no revenue accrued from this land sufficient to be of any service to educational progress. A committee of the Legislature reported over thirty years later that no use had been made of the lands set aside up to that time.

John Graves Simcoe, the first Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada had tried to further the interests of education; but only in so far as Grammar (High) Schools were concerned. He held to the view then prevalent in the Old Land that elementary Eduation was no particular concern of the state, in other words, that it could be carried on by philanthropic efforts.

Under these circumstances it is not to be wondered at that the first statute passed in Upper Canada for the promotion of education should have had reference to Grammar schools. This act was passed in 1807 and made provision for a grant of 800 pounds to be divided among the eight districts of which Upper Canada was then composed. One of the provisions of this act was that the Grammar School trustees (appointed by the Governor-in-Council) were to report once a year on the state of the Grammar School in their respective districts.

The one for the Eastern District covering the year 1816 is now in the Public Archives, Ottawa. It shows that in that year the number of High School students in the Eastern District was only twenty-five at the best, and that toward the end of that year the attendance had dwindled to two.

Government action looking toward common school progress came in 1816 when the first common school legislation was enacted. This act laid down very elementary requirements for the establishment of common schools. The people of any place might meet, elect three trustees, arrange for a school-house; this done they were eligible to share in the meagre grant allowed by the government The trustees were given full power to draw up a Course of Study, examine the teacher, and to carry on all necessary business connected with the school.

The report of the Common School trustees for the Eastern District, also in the Public Archives, Ottawa, shows that there were in attendance at the Government-aided schools in the year 1823 a total of about eleven hundred pupils. Fifty-three schools had shared in the grant for that year, and a certain number had forfeited the right to share in the grant because reports had not been sent in.

Thus, it is easily seen that government action, particularly with respect to Common Schools was tardy; but private enterprise had done, often in an inadequate manner, what the government had failed to do. There must have been in Upper Canada at the beginning of the nineteenth century upwards of two hundred schools doing all types of educational work.

One mistress of a Private School in Martintown advertised that she was prepared to teach all the traditional subjects of the day and in addition millinery, straw-hat making, etc.

A master of a country school near Williamstown was going to teach shcool and at the same time look after all clock and watch repairing that should be entrusted to him.

The schools of those early days were backward in the extreme; but when one considers the condition of the province in other matters it is seen that this backwardness was only a natural accompaniment of the backward conditions that prevailed in other fields.

The teachers had no professional training, they were frequently intemperate, school houses were very poor and a uniform Course of Study was totally lacking; but it was in those early schools that many of the men were trained who became the leaders in the forward march of educational progress in Upper Canada.

In the matter of educational progress my researches to date have amply shown that the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry were always well up in the line when matters pertaining to educational progress were receiving special attention.

Honored At Belleville

PRESENTATION TO MR. AND MRS. H. B. FETTERLY

We re-publish an account of the presentation made to Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Fetterly by the staff of the Ontario School for the Deaf, at Belleville, prior to their departure for Aurora, where Mr. Fetterly has been appointed public school inspector. The item is taken from the Canadian, published at the school.

"Early in the summer vacation our then Superintendent, H. B. Fetterly, M. A., and Miss Mabel Allison, our trained nurse, were united in wedlock, and when Mr. Fetterly assumed his duties as Inspector of that section of York County, they took up residence in Aurora. As an expression of the esteem in which both Mr. and Mrs. Fetterly were held by th members of the Association of Teachers and Instructors, a beautiful suitably inscribed oil-painting by that eminent artist, Manly McDonald, A. R. C. A., was presented to them. To give the presentation a more personal touch, Miss Ford, accompanied by Miss Daly and Miss Beil, drove up to Toronto and entertained Mr. and Mrs. Fetterly and Miss Jean to a dinner. Presenting the gift, Miss Ford expressed the appreciation of herself and the staff of the many courtesies and the kindly consideration they had always received from Mr. Fetterly during his superintendency, and of the sincere interest he had ever shown in the welfare of the pupils under his charge. She also spoke in warmest terms of the esteem and affection entertained for Mrs. Fetterly by every member of the staff and every pupil in the school throughout the ten years she had been the school's most efficient nurse.

Mr .and Mrs. Fetterly were greatly touched by Miss Ford's remarks, and by the tangible expression of regard and good will from the staff, and especially pleased because the picture represented a beautiful landscape in th vicinity of Belleville."

UNDERWENT SERIOUS OPERATION

The Press is very pleased to say that Mrs. F. A. Coons, who underwent a serious operation for thyroid, in the Ottawa Civic Hospital on Monday last, is reported this morning as somewhat improved. We join with her many friends in wishing her continued progress and ultimately, a complete restoration of health.

PERSONALITIES OF LOCAL INTEREST

A. W. BEACH

There is an old and very true saying that "a prophet is not without honor save in his own country." In like manner citizens may live in a certain community for years, yea, a lifetime, and their worth to that community not recognized until they have passed away. That is one reason why the Winchester Press delights in singling out certain personalities and giving them their mede of praise for the not inconspicuous part, and often a very important part, in the history of the community.

Mr. A. W. Beach, who some months ago met with an unfortunate accident which has practically confined him to his home ever since, has played an important part in the business affairs of this community, and of the village of Winchester. When but a lad, A. W. Beach began his business career as a junior in the Union Bank in the year 1887, and was soon promoted to the position of teller. But Mr. Beach had visions of a business career, and after four years of faithful service in the bank he resigned his position and started a flour and feed business in the building, now occupied by Mr. W. J. Cass as a law office. In 1893 he moved into the store now occupied by Mr. B. F. Smith as a drug store, and later he built the block now occupied by the Bank of Nova Scotia, Ellis' Grocery, and the wath repair shop of Mr. Barnard. In this building he carried on a general business when, owing to ill health, he sold out to H. Fraser & Son, and in 1907 built the bake-shop which is now owned and operated by Mr. Chester Robinson. It was about the same time that he built his fine residence on St. Lawrence Street, where he now lives. In 1910 he entered into partnership with Mr. G. C. Reveler and for 13 years conducted a flour and feed business, when they sold out to Fennell & Wallace, who greatly extended that business. In 1922 Mr. Beach went into the coal business, which was afterwards taken over by Mr. F. M. Eagleson. Mr. Beach then built the tile manufacturing plant now operated by him.

The above will indicate the enterprising and business activities of Mr. Beach since he left the teller's cage in the Union Bank. Mr. Beach has always taken a very keen interest in our municipal affairs and has long been a member of what is now the United Church in Winchester.

BIG VEGETABLES

This seems to be the year for big vegetables. Reports are coming in from all over the countryside of potatoes that weight from 2 to 3 pounds. The Press carried a report of a mangel grown by a Mountain township farmer weighing 25 pounds and measuring 31 inches in length. Tomatoes also reached a new high when records of 2 1-2 pounds were reached.

The Cornwall Standard-Freeholder carries a news item in the last issue concerning an ordinary garden radish brought to that office measuring 10 inches in circumference and 3 inches in diameter. Attached to the roots were two normal radishes, both perfectly formed. This has surely been a great vegetable year in spite of the lack of rain.

Local Car Is Stolen And "House-Cleaned"

Mr. Hamlet O'Neil had the misfortune to have his automobile stolen from one of the principal streets in Hull on Sunday evening last, while he and a party of friends were attending a picture show.

Upon leaving the movie house the young men proceeded to the spot where the car, a Chevrolet coach, had been left, and were surprised to find the vehicle missing. The police were at once notified and a search for the missing car instituted. No trace of it was discovered that evening and the boys were forced ot seek other transportation to their homes.

On Tuesday Mr. O'Neil was notified by the Hull police that his car had been located and towed to a city garage. He went in to the city at once and was amazed to learn that the vehicle had been completely stripped. A survey of the situation revealed that the radiator, four tires, four wheels, battery, carburetor, thing that could be moved, had been distributor, head-lights in fact, everytaken off the automobile—a most thorough job. To date, no trace of the culprits have been found.

A new leather coat, owned by Mr. O'Neil, and left in the parked car was, needless to say, also missing, as was the hat and coat of one of his companions.

CORRESPONDENCE

Winchester, Oct. 24th, 1934

Editor of the Winchester Press,

Dear Sir,—As members of the Fire Committee, of the Winchester Town Council, we feel badly about the results of the fire practice, held to-day, because the engine did not function, when the fire inspectors called in Winchester. Especially, we feel hurt, that certain members of this community are laying the blame on the Fire and Property Committee, of which we are members. As a Fire Committee, we have done our utmost in trying to secure satisfactory fire protection for the municipality. At a special meeting held in the summer, we were told that a new water pump was necessary, in order to give the citizens of this town a maximum of protection. We ordered, and on September the first installed the new pump. We were then told by the company who have charge of looking after the engine, that it was found to be in perfect condition. Since that time, on different occasions, as a committee, we have asked our fire chief to have a practice, with a view to trying out the engine, and to see that it was in perfect working condition. In the seven weeks that it has been installed, we have not, as yet, received a practice from the Fire Department.

We want to assure the citizens of this town, that we are vitally interested in their protection, regret the sad occurrence of Wednesday, and want to assure them that drastic action will be taken by us, with a view to bettering the fire protection services in Winchester.

Yours very truly,

A. G. Suffel and Hy. Bessin,

Members of the Property Committee of Winchester Village Council.

RAMBLING 'ROUND NEW YORK with HUGH KENNY

The radio operator on many a ship has a rating equal to a second mate, but because he can come aboard ship as a full-fledged chief operator without ever having been to sea before, the crew never show him the deference of his rank, but call him "Sparks" the same way they call the carpenter "Chips."

If roofs had been stripped from New York apartments the last week of September, strange sights would have been seen. Because of the lack of new buildings, many new tenants were living in the halls of buildings while their apartments were being decorated. One couple we know of were moved during the week into four different apartments in the same building while waiting for painters to finish their penthouse on the roof.

The story is told in New York that furniture and families waited patiently on the sidewalks as long as fourteen hours when trying to get into Knickerbocker Village, the new apartment development for white collar workers erected on the site of old tenements. Knickerbocker Village has a minimum of passenger elevators and no service elevators.

Free rides for 63,000 children were provided during the summer by one of New York's subways, transporting them from the slums to the parks and return.

"Ten Cents A Dance" is not only the title of a song. It's an actuality in New York. But it also costs ten cents a minute to sit out a dance with one of the dance hall "hostesses." And expert testimony in court recently was presented to show that the rooms were not called "love nests," but "sitting rooms." "And that's what they were," said the witness.

When the S. S. Hamburg docked at New York the other day it carried something the captain had never seen before: a stowaway who carried baggage. He was being returned from the S. S. Deutschland, which had been bound for Germany. . . . The Hamburg also brought 8.000 canaries from the Hartz mountains.

GET YOUR RADIO LICENSE

Radio owners delinquent in paying their license fees may find the long arm of the law reaching out after them. After trying all manner of methods of gentle persuasion to induce the delinquents to pay up, the radio branch of the Department of Marine is now resorting to legal action.

A limited number of prosecutions have already been launched on a wide front and it is proposed to follow them up with more. The prosecutions are widely scattered in order to attract public attention. So far the prosecutions have been quite effective and license fees are now coming in at a better rate.

HOW BIG IS LONDON?

What is the area of London? No, don't trouble to answer! Whatever reply you make, nobody can say you are right, for no one knows the exact size of London. The County of London, which includes the London boroughs, has an area of 115.98 square miles. The London county council, however, is effective over an area of 116.95 miles. The London postal district covers 232 square miles. The Metropolitan police are even more ambitious, for they keep an eye on nearly 8,000,000 people over an area of almost 700 square miles. The Metropolitan water board supplies the housewives from Hadam, in Herts, to Sevenoaks, in Kent—a total acreage of almost 367,361. The electricity supply of London is distributed over an area of 1, 841 square miles. The City of London has an area of only one square mile—known as the most valuable square mile in the world." The Tower of London is not in London! It stands in Stepney.

"ONE-ARM DRIVERS

(Tom A. Burke)

The one-armed wonder is another species of chiseler. You meet him often. He's an expert in lighting cigarettes while driving fifty miles an hour.

Also he's mighty clever in using both hands to light up the old pipe in a breeze. Good at cuddling his sweetie, too, as he sails along under a romantic moon.

This gent feels that one hand is plenty on the steering wheel. So he speeds along, apparently unmindful of the fact that a sudden jolt may throw his car clear out of control. A blow-out for instance; an unseen hole in the pavement; or an unnoticed obstacle in the street.

These are the things that make one-armed driving so hazardous—the unforeseen emergencies which require the full strength of both arms. Common sense pleads with the motorist to keep both hands on the steering wheel. Two handfuls of safety are infinitely better than one.

Press Advertisements bring results.

ADVERTISING FOR RAIN

(St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

Indian rain wizards, aerial bombers and various other wonder-workers have been claiming credit for the recent rainfall. The fourth estate should not be omitted from the honor list. Witness the quick results in Wisconsin, where the following want ad. appeared in the Centuria Inter County Leader:

WANTED—About 1 inch of rain for the coming week-end in the vicinity of Trade River and the rest of the country. Address Herb Erickson, Trade River. Wis.

Five hours after the paper went to press a half-inch of rain fell at Trade River, as well as over all northwestern Wisconsin. And more rain came a few days later.

From which we quite unblushingly draw two conclusions: 1. The power of the press has been vastly underestimated. 2. It pays to advertise.

THE DOOR OF OPPORTUNITY

Most young peolpe, busy as they are with school and sports, do not think much about the bread and butter problem. But they know something of the anxiety of their parents, and they hear of many educated young men and women for whom there seems to be no place in the business world. Perhaps one's own brother or sister is unemployed. At times, a boy may ask: "Will there be any job for me when I am twenty-one?" The situation is indeed puzzling. But there is no need to lose heart about it. The field of employment is always changing. There always have been and always will be new ways of making a living. Would anyone ever have imagined in the England of King Richard's day, that ship building and overseas commerce would one day employ millions of men? Who would have thought even at the beginning of our own century, that the "horseless carriage," petroleum production, motion pictures, radio, etc., would lead to enormous industries? And who knows what may be just around the corner in the way of unforseen enterprises and employment? The best way is to keep oneself prepared in mind and in moral discipline for whatever the future holds.

WHITEWASH MIXTURES

The various ways of making whitewash either for the adornment of the home or as a disinfectant of certain farm buildings are of perennial interest.

The mixture used at the Dominion Experimental Station, Scott, Sask., for the inside of buildings used by poultry, sheep, hogs and cattle has several materials added to the lime and water. First, fifty pounds of lime is dissolved in eight gallons of boiling water. To this is added six gallons of hot water which has ten pounds of salt and one pound of alum dissolved in it. A can of lye is added to every twenty-five gallons of the mixture. A pound of cement to every three gallons is gradually added and thoroughly stirred.

The object of using alum is to prevent the lime rubbing off. Cement makes a more creamy mixture so that it is easier to apply and more surface covered. Lye is added for disinfecting purposes, but a quart of creosol disinfectant to every eight gallons would serve the same purpose. Lye is preferred when the color is to be kept white.

Frequently inquiries are made for a waterproof whitewash to be used outside. This can be made as follows:

Slake 62 pounds of quicklime in 12 gallons of hot water and add two pounds of salt and one pound of sulphate of zinc dissolved in two gallons of water. To this mixture add two gallons of skim milk. An ounce of alum per gallon, though not essential, would improve it. Salt should be omitted if required for metal surfaces which rust.

THE UNITED CHURCH

Rev. A. L. Sanderson, of Whitby, a representative of the Ontario Temperance Federation, spoke on Sunday morning from Ezek. 3:18. He said the beverage rooms were 100 per cent. worse than the old bar-room. Therefore, he strongly denounced these beverage rooms because they are getting the youth of our land and the ladies for new customers. His appeal was to think of others, even though we are in a local option district here, we should fight the traffic for the sake of others not so fortunately situated.

The pastor's evening subject was:—"Creating a demand for religion," and his text was "Covet earnestly the best gifts." Jesus spent his time in drawing forth from people the best that was in them. Our personalities are creating within others some kind of desire. It is important that those desires are the right kind. There comes to us as Christions the resonsibility for creating a demand for the best. The world knows what is good. This message was a demand for renewed consecration. The pastor voiced the appreciation of the congregation to the new members in the choir. An anthem was sung in the morning and two selections in the evening, with Miss Alice Singleton at the organ.

The scenario for the picture, it is understood, is being prepared by Rex Beach, well known American short story writer and novelist, who has several times visited Dr. Locke and written numerous articles for publication in the United States concerning the Canadian doctor.

PRESBYTERIAL MEETS

The annual sectional meeting of the Brockville presbyterial, comprising South Mountain, Mountain Station, East Oxford, Merrickville and Kemptville auxiliaries, was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, South Mountain, with a large number in attendance. Mrs. Carmichael the sectional president, was in the chair and gave a short address.

Mrs. James Magee gave the address of welcome after which a service of remembrance was conducted by Mrs. Gardiner. Special mention was made of the late Mrs. Myron Cleland, a life member of South Mountain auxiliary and a past sectional persident.

Mrs. Hutton, of Merrickville, a former missionary in the Peace River district, told of her experiences there, covering a period of seven years. Interesting papers were read by Mrs. Gardiner, of Kemptville and Mrs. S. Graham, of S. Mountain.

Mrs. James Magee presided during the election of officers and Mrs. Carmichael and Mrs. McRae were re-elected. Mrs. McRae then gave a reading on "The Work of Miss Jean McLean among the Koreans in Japan."

The Mission Band, under the direction of Miss Edna Hunter, presented a pageant, "The Light of the Cross." Miss Shirley Robinson gave the secretary's report of the South Mountain Mission Band.

RELEASED ON BAIL

Charged with riotous and disorderly conduct and obstructing a police officer in the discharge of his duty, Oliver Cooper, aged 20, was remanded to Brockville jail for eight days when he appeared before Magistrate John McCormick at Kemptville with the option of bail at $400 being arranged. Securities were found for Cooper, who is alleged to have struck Chief of Police McIntyre, Kemptville.

DIED IN SEATTLE

Word was received by relatives at Spencerville of the recent and sudden death of John Bennett Snyder, at Seattle, Wash. The deceased was born at Spencerville 69 years ago, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Snyder, pioneers of the district. For a number of years he resided in that community, and was well known. For the past 45 years he had lived in Seattle where he was a prominent contractor. He was married to Anne Baker, also of Spencerville, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Baker, early pioneers.

CHILD BADLY BURNED

Combing her little brother's hair nearly had fatal results for five-year-old Helen Deeks, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Deeks, who live about a mile west of Williamsburg. Little Helen placed the comb, which was made of celluloid material, on a nearby coaloil burner. The burner was lighted and the comb burst into flames. Without thinking, the child seized the burning comb and it set fire to her dress. Dr. Locke was called and treated the child for several severe burns about the body, arms and face. Her hair was also singed. Although suffering severely, Helen's condition is improved.

WANTS NEXT TRIAL OF SUIT ORDERED

Flora Griffiths, Williamsburg, Ont., has filed notice at Osgoode Hall of an appeal against a judgment of Mr. Justice J. C. Makins granting a non-suit in her action against Mahlon W. Locke, of Williamsburg, and John L. Counsell.

Miss Griffiths, who conducted a lodging house at Williamsburg, contends that the trial judge erred in not attributing legal damages to alleged acts of the defendants in publishing to three of Dr. Locke's patients the statement that the doctor would not treat at his clinic anyone who continued to live at the plaintiff's premises.

The trial judge, says Miss Griffiths, "should have found that the natural and probable result of the admitted acts of the defendants in a small village such as Williamsburg was to produce a boycott of the plaintiff's business and premises."

QUEBEC TO HAVE THIRD PARTY?

Quebec's square party, through R. L. Calder, K.C., one of its leaders, made known in Montreal on Monday its intention to approach the heads of L'Action Liberal Nationale with the view of merging forces so as to have a really strong third party to enter the lists at the next provincial elections.

Mr. Calder said he would be perfectly willing to have Paul Gouin, K.C., chief of the L'Action Liberal Nationale, head the combined forces of both groups. "I am prepared to put my 56 years behind his 35," he said.

Mr. Gouin's comment when the proposed plan was reported to him was: "Time only will see what will be done about a merger of both parties."

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

The following general rules have recently been issued as a guide in the removal of injured persons from motor cars, particularly those cars that have been involved in a serious accident.

1. Turn switch to off position. whether engine is running or not, apply brakes, turn off gasoline, if possible. Do not use an open light.
2. Note the license numbers of cars involved.
3. Warn traffic in both directions if road is blocked.
4. Send for a doctor and ambulance.
5. In case of bleeding and fracture of lower limbs, apply treatment before removal from car. Anything stiff and the correct size can be used as a splint. Fasten splints with any kind of material, scarf, handkerchief or strap.
6. In all cases of insensibility, tie lower limbs of patient together at knees and ankles, and the same treatment should be adopted for fractures of lower limbs when splints are not available.
7. Carefully remove patient from car. In cases of grave injury, carry patient by means of rags or overcoats and place on back with head higher than body. Cover patient with rugs or overcoats and keep warm until doctor arrives, if no experienced first aider is at hand. Give no alcoholic stimulant in cases of bleeding.

CARLYLE—HUESTON

The marriage was quietly solemnized at the residence of Rev. J. E. Brownlee on Saturday last, when Henrietta Marguerite, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Hueston, of Carlsbad Springs, was united in marriage to Mr. Weldon Vance Carlyle, son of Mr. and Mrs. George M. Carlyle, of Reid's Mills. Rev. Mr. Browlee officiated, and the bride wore a navy blue crepe dress with a navy blue hat, and shoes of the same shade. Miss Edith Carlyle and Mr. Gordon Hueston were the special witnesses. Later the couple left for Montreal and on their return they will take up residence in Mountain.

RANGE FOR FARM POULTRY BREEDING STOCK

Range is one of the essentials in developing vigorous, thrifty chickens . The brooder house should be located so that the young chickens may run out on plots that are clean and free from parasites, which are almost certain to occur wherever older poultry have been. Chicks thrive best when they can run out in the sun whenever the weather permits.

The area of range should be extended as the chickens get their feathers. When the cockerels develop comb, the sexes should be segregated and given the equivalent of free range or sufficient so that they will not eat all the turf to make the field bare. When nearing maturity, if range shelters are provided, the pullets and cockerels will greatly benefit if allowed free range on separate grain fields after the harvest has been saved. In this way they should secure a large part of their food at very little cost for a month or more.

Breeding stock should have range during the early spring when hatching eggs are being laid, even though there may be snow on the ground. The pens need not be large but a run in the sunshine is believed to improve fertility. At the Dominion Experimental Station at Charlottetown we have not been able to give the hens range during their pullet laying year. During this period it is very doubtful if allowing them range would increase production, in fact many claim that if given all other requirements, the pullets will lay best in confinement.

The yearling hens that, on account of their high production and other desirable quantities of type and breeding, are selected for the mating pens for the following season, should be allowed free range as soon as their pullet year is completed. They might be given the range shelters mentioned above and allowed to run free on the grain fields after harvest.

A colony house, placed near a straw stack, makes a very suitable shelter and the straw provides plenty of exercise for the hens as they search for the stray grain that remains on the straw or among the chaff.

THE LATE ROBERT D. REVELER

Funeral services for the late Robert D. Reveler were held on Friday last from the family residence to the Morewood United Church.

The services were under the auspices of Cannamore L.O.L. 653, and were attended by more than 100 members of the Orange lodges in the county. Chas. Baker, master of Cannamore lodge, directed the exemplification of the last rites of the order. Among the past county masters attending were A. W. Reveler and G. H. Smith of Cannamore, Howard H. Smith, of Winchester Springs and W. M. Bolton, master of Winchester Springs lodge.

Service at the church was conducted by the pastor, Rev. G. H. Smith, assisted by Rev. Alex Nimmo of the Presbyterian Church, Morewood.

Members of Cannamore lodge acted as pallbearers, viz., Lennox Baker, William Hillis, Allan Swerdfeger, John Carruthers, Ellis Thompson and Calvin Gordon.

Interment was made in the family plot at Morewood cemetery, where the commitment service was also conducted by Rev. Mr. Smith.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SERVICE AT HALLVILLE

The Sunday services in St. Andrew's United Church were conducted by the pastor, Rev. Donald Morrison. At the morning service Rev. Morrison gave an interesting talk on the missionary work which is being carried on by the church. The full choir was in attendance and a lovely duet, "I Must Have Jesus With Me," was sung by Mrs. William Shaw and Mrs. Andrew Logan. Miss Carrie Stewart presided at the organ.

A special parent and youth service was conducted in the evening, with a choir of 25 young people leading in the singing of the hymns. "The Master's Call" and "In the Service of the King," were sung by the choir. "Nothing Too High" was the subject of a fine sermon given by Rev. Mr. Morrison. Miss Gladys Richardson presided at the organ.

CRUSHED BY ELEVATOR

Doing what he was repeatedly warned not to do proved fatal to Roma Seguin, 16-year-old employe of Canadian Cottons Limited, at the Canada Mill in Cornwall on Monday. The young man's body was found pinned between the bottom of an elevator and the elevator wall. The body was examined by Dr. A. Ross Alguire shortly after the accident and it was found that young Seguin suffered a broken neck and died instantly.

UNIQUE SYSTEM OF COLLECTING

A business man in Kirkland Lake has discovered a unique way of making N.S.F. cheques redeemable in cold cash. Recently coming into possession of a number of these "rubber" cheques, and vainly striving to collect the money thus represented, the man placed them all on display in a window of his business place. Before long the bigger share of them had been redeemed by those issuing them. They simply couldn't stand publicity!

Purity is power. Men instinctively trust one whose life is clean, and whom men trust they follow. If you are rightfully ambitious, the first step is righteousness.

KEEP THE PULLETS WELL FED

The time is at hand when the pullets should be confined to their winter quarters, but the pens should first be thoroughly cleaned and disinfected. Birds will not do their best work if infested with lice or mites. It is during the winter months that the birds make their best profits, and for this reason they should be housed and fed in a manner that will keep them healthy and vigorous. They will require a full ration of suitable feed, besides plenty of clean water, green feed, shell and grit.

The change from the growing ration to the laying mash should be made gradually. Home-grown grains cannot be sold for much on the market, and while they may form a large proportion of the birds' ration they do not supply all necessary ingredients for the production of eggs. The use of a high protein commercial mash mixed with chopped home-grown grains will give much better results than the grains alone.

Good Care Essential

The properly balanced ration accomplishes wonderful results when fed to stock that is rightly bred, well managed and correctly housed.

Houses and equipment, such as brooders, feed hoppers, drinking pans, etc., that are sufficient to accommodate 100 chicks will not take care of 500. Satisfactory growth cannot be made under such conditions. Growing stock needs lots of feed; provide a good grain feed and a good growing mash in hoppers so the birds can get it.

The condition of a carcass when it is marketed depends almost entirely on the way the bird is cared for up to the time it is killed. This means the way in which it is grown and the way it is fattened for market.

A poorly grown bird will not take on weight satisfactorily; its digestive organs have not developed sufficiently to handle the more or less concentrated feed that is fed during the fattening period, nor does the bird have the vitality to stand up under this fattening process.

The Family DOCTOR

by JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M·D·

A STITCH IN TIME

Well, let's see: I wonder if we have the family medicine cabinet all set, ready for the winter's severe trials that are more or less sure to come? Preparedness, you know.

You might need some 2-grain capsules of quinine in a large-mouthed bottle, duly labelled. Handy to have. Few family doctors carry quinine or castor oil. . . . O, yes, see that the castor oil bottle is filled and a new clean label put on. . . . And, first time you are in doctor's office, have him suggest for you a good, reliable "cold tablet" for emergency—so you can get in a dose or two while he is getting around to answer your call.

No, don't trust the glib-tongued salesman with the "perfect" cure for constipation—never! Also, shun the prescriber who is forty miles from being a physician. Ask your doctor.

Freshen up the bottle of Tincture of Iodine—write a new label for that too. . . . A small brush—and some medicine droppers are handy to have in the medicine-cabinet. You might add a small bottle, one ounce,—half filled with carbolic acid—and be absolutely sure about the label on that. A few drops in warm water to wash the accidental, lacerated wound. . . .

Have the family doctor recommend an all-around antiseptic mouth wash and gargle, for cold, croupy nights. Stock a pint of it for home use. . . . Don't forget a nice, wholesome jar of pure vaseline for applications. I always liked carbolated vaseline for antiseptic dressings. . . . And yes, your "anti-constipation" tablets. Your doctor will make suggestions for you.

Get ready for winter.

HAVE FLOWERS ALL WINTER

Even in the older parts of Canada, it is quite possible to have bloom indoors where bulbs are planted. Before flowering, these will stand a temperature down to freezing; in fact, in the early stages, they are better for it, and aside from a little normal room heat just when they are ready to open, a fairly cool temperature is again desirable. Incidentally, even the most delicate of hot house blooms will last longer, once the flowers are open, in a cool room rather than a warm one. Tulips, narcissus, daffodils, hyacinths, Chinese lilies and other bulbs will all bloom indoors. With the tulip, it is well to get the single early varieties.

The simplest way to grow these bulbs is to plant them in fibre in fancy bowls or pots without drainage holes. The The fibre may be secured from any seed store. It is cheap, clean and can be used over and over again. (If you haven't fibre use rich earth, mixed with some sand, but no fertilizer.)

Up to one dozen paper white narcissus are planted in a pot (or this bulb will grow in a bowl of stones and water.) For other bulbs ,three or four may be put in one pot, except with the extra large exhibition hyacinths, which are usually planted singly in pots. The bulbs are just nicely covered with the fibre or other planting material, firmly pressed down and thoroughly soaked with water. Then they should be placed in a dark, cold cellar where the temperature will stay as close to 40 to 50 degrees and watered lightly at fairly long intervals as needed.

In about four weeks, the narcissus will be ready to come into full light and normal house heat, and they will then bloom in about a fortnight. Tulips, hyacinths and daffodils will need two or three months in the cellar. When the stem is up two or three inches and the pots are full of roots it is time to bring the bulb out to a warmer place, and in a few days to a sunny, warm window. By making monthly plantings of the narcissus through the winter, and several plantings of other bulbs, it will be all the better for it. It is a good idea to write the name of the variety and the date of planting on the outside of the pot

THHE BEST MAN

The office of "best man" at a wedding originated in far off days when men literally stole their wives, says Ed. Wolfe, in "Why We Did It." The old timer, not being able to gain the parental consent staged a raid. He and his closest friend sneaked up on the girl usually a willing victim—and away they went. If irate father or brothers followed the friend fought them off while the couple made their escape. Hence the "best man."

INTEREST REDUCED TO 2 PER CENT.

Interest paid on savings deposits will be reduced to two per cent. as from Nov. 1, 1934, by all chartered banks in Canada, the Dominion Government post office savings banks and the Ontario government savings office, Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes announced recently.

PUTTING BEES AWAY FOR WINTER

Bees that are to be wintered in cellar or dug-out should be carried immediately after the last good cleansing flight they are likely to get. At the Central Experimental Farm this is usually during the first week in November.

The last two weeks in October is the best time to clean up the garden to reduce insect infestation. The Department advises burning all leaves, refuse, weeds, fallen fruit and other material after being raked up, and then ploughing or digging the soil deeply. Fences, arbours and trellises should be brushed with a corn broom.

DIGGING OUT THE HIGHWAY DITCHES

(Alliston Herald)

In last issue the question whether the Henry government filled in the highway ditches on the advice of engineers was asked. That qustion has been answered by one who knows all about it. Every ditch filled in was first examined by an engineer who supplied the foreman on the job with a blue print. Proper drainage in every instance was provided. There are some ditches in which as much as five feet of loose stones were placed before the top surface of earth was put on. Wherever it was necessary to provide drainage it was done by first filling in the ditch with stones to a depth determined by the engineer in charge of the job. But whether the ditches are being dug out again on the advice of a competent engineer our informant is unable to state because the engineers who supervised the filling of the ditches are no longer with the department of highways.

TO AUTUMN

Summer, thou art gone!—
Autumn, thou art come,
With all thy lovely tints and mellow glows;
Thy beauty is not made of dainty hues
As Summer's, with its lacy green and rose.

Thou art more rich, more deep, more beautiful,
With thy ruddy tones and russet browns,
Than Springtime, with its newness and its life,
That every hill with soft green carpet crowns.

Thou hast few birds to sing and warble sweetly,
As happily they perch on some tall tree;
Thou hast no breeze with faintest fragrance laden,
Thou canst not boast sweet clover for the bee,
Nor berries, to be picked by some fair maiden.

Thy sunrise is not glowing saffron tissue,
Thy sunset is not pale and lovely rose;
Thy sky is not the limpid blue of summer,
No fragile flower in thy kingdom grows.

But ah! How I do love thee, friend of mine—
Thou art to me my comrade, blest, divine!
I love thy tranquil bliss, thy quiet calm
That fills my hungry soul with healing balm!
Thou hast thy virtues great, thy beauty rare,—
With thee no other season can compare.

Day and night I hear the grasshopper's song,
The cheery cricket cheeps the whole day long.
The fresh breeze, blowing, rustles through the trees,
And then there falls a shower of flutt'ring leaves!
The bee has stored his honey in the comb,
And seeks the enclosure of his sweet clean home.

For he no more sweet nectar can procure,
From fragrant flowers, to make this food so pure;
Alas! They have been bitten by the frost,
They're dead and faded now—lost, all lost.

The apple trees abound with fruit so bright,
That they present to me a prettier sight,
Than all the apple blossoms and Mayflowers,
And all the roses in the garden bowers

Thy sunrises are rose-flush dimmed with mist
At eve the western sky is all unfurled
With banners of that precious heavenly gold,
The rarest and the richest in the world

In afternoon the dome of heaven is gray
With patches here and there of wistful blue,
Which peeps out from behind the gray to see
The beauty of the earth in Autumn too.

The sun has made the grains and fruits mature,
From yon farm comes the corncutter's lonesome drone,
As if the cattle, fodder to insure—
As if to loud proclaim "The harvest home!"

The rooks are cawing in the nearby woods,
Their harsh, clear call o'er all the hillside floats;
The ducks quack loudly, and the pullets make soft, contented sound within their throats.

I can't express the fullness that I feel,
As I sit here in quiet solitude;
It seems to me that Autumn gently wafts
My soul, into a sad and pensive mood.

Shall I ever see the Autumn come again,
And drink its beauty in with hungry eyes?
Shall I again behold the harvest moon,
Or watch again with tears, the sunset skies,

Shall I again gaze on the peaceful woods,
In yellow, scarlet, crimson, brown arrayed,
Or will my lifeless body be at rest,
And underneath the fallen leaves be laid,
God grant my weary soul may find sweet rest,

Within the Vale of Happiness and Peace,
Where loneliness and sorrow have no place,
Where love and joy and calm can never cease!

—Ruth E. Scharf, October 4th, 1934.

CONDITIONS IN OTHER COUNTRIES, WAR IN THE AIR IN EUROPE.

A most interesting survey of conditions in Europe at the present time, was given recently by Mayor Horovitz, of Cornwall, who has returned after a very extensive tour of many European countries. In speaking of his experiences he says:

"War has permeated the air of Europe and there are countless signs of preparedness in nearly every European country. Wherever one travels in Central Europe, one finds soldiers. There are soldiers on the trains, on the steamships, on the streets of the cities, in the hotels and restaurants everywhere.

"There is a tensity among the people of Europe. They talk of war incessantly They never know when they go to bed at night but that war will be aflame before they awake. Their governments are shaky, corrupt, and lack the confidence of the people. The nations seem to be placing great emphasis upon their armies. One sees soldiers marching and drilling in all the leading cities. They seem to be well trained and have modern equipment.

"I talked with many prominent people while in Europe, and they are all of the same opinion. They believe that there will be a war within a year, unless some binding agreement is reached by the leading powers. Even in England, the impression is general that war is almost inevitable in Europe.

"Outwardly, France looks prosperous, but I was told that there are thousands of unemployed and much unrest. Living costs are intolerably high and this factor, combined with unemployment, is leading to much unrest. Italy, with Mussolini at the head of affairs, seems to be going ahead. The crops looked to be splendid, the factories were busy and the people seemed contented.

"In the smaller countries, one finds much poverty and much unrest. I did not visit the capital of Yugo slavia, Belgrade, but I stopped at Zagreb, in Croatia, and in Vinkovci. I was in Yugoslavia six weeks before the assassination of King Alexander. In Croatia I found there was a strong feeling against the dictorial government of King Alexander, chiefly because of lack of Croatian representatives in the Yugoslavian government. The country did not appear prosperous either in the urban or rural sections. The people were shabbily dressed, the stores in the cities were drab and unattractive, and there seemed to be little contentment anywhere. I understand, however, that conditions are better in the Belgrade areas.

Speaking of Rumania, Mayor Horovitz said he found the political situation there very bad. "King Carold is by no means as popular as he was when he returned from Paris to ascend the throne The government taxes the people to the absolute limit, and the taxpayers have no way of finding out where their money goes. There is graft on every side and millions go into the pockets of government members yearly. The people can do nothing about it. In their elections, they change parties every so often, but one is as bad as the other.

"Palestine, to my mind, is the most prosperous country I visited. I spent several days in and around Jerusalem and was amazed at the activity everywhere. Everyone is working and wages are good. Foreign capital is being poured into Palestine and things are booming. The British are regulating the influx of immigrants to keep Palestine from being flooded with people and as a result, labor is comparatively scarce and the wage level is kept up I think Palestine is a gold mine for investors today, because the prosperity there is not a mere boom, but something solid and lasting. It is a small country with marvellous possibilities. Its sole handicap is the lack of water.

"Of all the countries in the world, however, I think Great Britain has them all beaten, I spent several weeks in England and Scotland and I must say that the Britishers have found the right way to beat depression. The factories are operating at capacity and the people are spending money. There is an air of optimism everywhere. True, there are many on the dole, but conditions are rapidly righting themselves. England is leading the world to-day. The English may be slow-moving, but when they do move, they move in the right direction. They consider every step before they make it, and rarely do they make a mistake. Canada is on the right course

MOTORISTS SHOULD TAKE EXTRA PRECAUTION NOW.

This is the season when there is greater need of caution on the part of motorists to avoid accidents. Among the army of school children are scores of young tots going to school for the first time, many of them not old enough to understand what traffic regulations stand for, or who cannot be expected just yet to sense the hazards of the street. That they will dart out from the curb in the abandon of their childish play is certain. To prevent their doing so is impossibe.

It a duty and a responsibility of motorists to drive their cars, particularly at busy crossings in the main thoroughfares and in school zones, in such a way as to minimize the dangers which arise from the thoughtlessness of children at play.

Childhood is the happiest time of life and to expect children to think of nothing else but hazards of traffic is to deny them something of their birthright. Motorists have rights of course but no motorist has the right to endanger human life. Too often one hears the alibi: "He darted right out in front of me." The motorist, who is reasonably cautious, has his car under control. Near schools and play centres he drives with the expectation that some child will run out in front of his car, but his speed is slow and often he is able to stop.

Jay walkers are one thing but innocent children another.—St. Mary's Journal-Argus.

when she follows the example of the Mother Country," Mayor Horovitz declared.

Nazi propaganda is being widely distributed throughout Europe, Mayor Horovitz found, and he believes that Nazi activities have had much to do with the general unrest so evident in Central Europe.

Canadians whom Mayor Horovitz met in Paris are very axious to obtain transfers to other countries and declared that living costs are out of all proportion to what they can earn .

HEALTH SELDOM COMES BY CHANCE TO PERSONS OVER THIRTY

Good health cannot be taken for granted any more than a good income can. So for persons over thirty it is just as smart and business-like to plan to enjoy good health as it is to plan to enjoy a good income. And it's just as much a matter of plain common sense to check up on yourself.

In health, your shortcomings are, at first, likely to be those annoying, not-exactly-well feelings. At such times, if your blood were tested, it would most likely be found "low in count". This means a shortage of red corpuscles and the corpuscles themselves short of haemoglobin. Make up this double shortage, and you'll come up to normal health again. Neglect it and serious results may follow.

Observing, in his practice, the importance of keeping the vitality of the blood up to normal, a Canadian authority originated a blood-building preparation which has been helping run-down people back to health for nearly half a century. This preparation, now known the world over as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, definitely increases the blood "count" in the majority of cases, thereby restoring vitality, steadying nerves, imparting strength and toning up the whole system. So the person over thirty who finds good health slipping, is well advised to take at least a 30-day treatment of this excellent remedy. The element of chance has been practically eliminated in such a treatment, because tests recently made by an authority in a clinic of 40 people, proved conclusively by individual blood "count" that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills certainly improve the health by enriching the blood. NOT MEETING WITH PUBLIC FAVOR

That the weekly press of Ontario do not look upon the new beer and wine law with favour becomes more apparent as time goes along. Scarcely a week passes but one or more of our contemporaries take up the subject editorially and with terse and pointed sentences condemn the new system as outrageous.

The Orillia Packet and Times, one of the most outstanding weeklies in the province, is the latest to come to our attention. In a recent issue, the leading editorial was a masterpiece in the way it took the offensive against the methods employed by the Ontario Liquor Commission. We feel that we could better it no way, and present the editorial as follows:—

"In spite of protests from residents of Atherley, and of promises that Orillia's desire to be free from the liquor traffic would be respected, Mr. Odette, the Provincial Liquor Commissioner, has issued authority to the proprietor of a summer resort just across the Narrows from the town to open a beverage room. Since the hotel has hitherto catered to tourists, and is not situated to serve the ordinary travelling public, this means that for nine months of the year its chief, if not its sole, business will be that of a beer parlour. As it will draw most of its custom from Orillia, and as this town will be called upon to suffer the consequences of its proximity, the Commissioner's action, in the light of Orillia's recent vote against return to the public sale of liquor, cannot be characterized otherwise than as an outrage.

It did not take long for this town to begin to experience the scenes that have followed the opening of the beer parlours all over the Province. About midnight on the following Saturday three youths were making their presence known in the middle of the North Ward by their loud cries and strong language. In the small hours of Monday night, residents of the West Ward had their slumbers disturbed by a couple of rollicking roysterers, one of whom was proclaiming at the top of his lungs that he was "full of beer," and that he could "lick the whole general assembly." Orillia has been almost entirely free from such disturbances for nearly a quarter of a century. If they are to continue, it will be necessary to add to the police force, for the protection of the public.

It was predicted, and denied, that opening of beer parlours would mark a return to conditions similar to those which existed under the bars. In many respects they have turned out to be worse. In the old days licenses were issued by local commissions, before whom each individual case could be argued, and who were at least to some extent influenced by public opinion. Now the licenses are dispensed on a patronage basis by a Liquor Czar, whose one object, apparently, is to promote the sale of beer to the widest extent possible, and with whom local sentiment evidently carries no weight. Premier Hepburn promised that the wishes of the municipalities under Local Option would be respected. The Atherley instance illustrates how narrowly this pledge is interpreted by Mr. Odette, who clearly is determined that his efforts to confer on Ontario the blessings of beer parlours shall not be hampered by "temperance fanatics." Nor are such considerations as the presence of unemployment relief camps to have any weight, as witness the fact that two beer parlours have been opened in the village of Minden, for the benefit of the large number of men employed in that neighborhood. Moreover, while in the old days, licenses were confined to genuine hotels and were granted to summer resorts only for the season during which they were serving guests, apparently neither requirement is any longer operative. In the days of the open bars, the hours of sale were limited and there were other restrictions. But "shorter hours" does not apply to the beer parlours, which are are permitted to ply their trade till midnight, six days a week. and are not annoyed by regulations that might militate against business. Before the war, inspectors, often men with temperance proclivities, made some show of enforcing the law. To-day bootlegging flourishes, boys and girls appear to have no trouble in securing liquor, and nobody seems to consider it his business to interfere.

If they are well advised, the Liberal members of the Legislature will apply the pressure to force a change in policy. They have it in their power to do so, for in the final analysis the Government is dependent on their support. They know the tide of indignation which has been roused as the people realized how wide the beer floodgates were being opened, and they owe a duty to themselves, to the Liberal party and to the Province to interfere before that sentiment issues in political disaster."

Such are the protests which are being launched by newspapers all over this province, and they will no doubt exercise a great influence. Mr. Odette will do well to heed the voice of the "Fourth Estate," for it has been said that "the pen oft-times is mightier than the sword."

EQUINES IN POLITICS

(Fort Erie Times-Review)

Until last week the wholesale dismissal of Conservative employees of the provincial government was confined strictly to men and women. But now it is evident that horses, if they are owned by Conservatives, must not be employed on any provincial highway work At least one Liberal employee has been told he cannot drive, work or hire horses belonging to Conservatives and keep his job.

The Perth Expositor suggests that perhaps at the next session of Legislature the Hepburn Government will grant the franchise to horses three years old and over, the get of sires owned by Liberals.

THE DANGER OF FIRE

This is the time of year when the dangers of fire are greatly increased, and citizens should exercise every precaution in order that disastrous results may not follow from their carelessness. Burning leaves and rubbish is the order of the day and with this operation lurks the possibility of sparks igniting a nearby shed or building. A wise rule to follow is to watch a bon-fire constantly while the material is burning and see that it is entirely extinguished before leaving the place.

Cool days and nights encourage residents to build brisk wood fires, often with the result that pipes and chimneys which have not been thoroughly cleaned since the previous season, become overheated and catch fire. Such conflagrations may lead to distressing loss for not only themselves but others through destruction of property. Make certain that all of your heating equipment is in good condition for the winter months ahead.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Counties' Council is in session at Cornwall this week, with very little business of an outstanding nature up for discussion. It will be interesting however, to learn the details surrounding the appointment of the new jailer, in the face of the resolution passed by that body at the last session.

Th four unpaved miles of Highway No. 31, between Winchester Springs and Williamsburg, are not improving with age, that is certain. But there is still sufficient time before the freezing up to do some shouldering and crushing in anticipation of an early start next Spring. We assume, of course, that the work will be completed by the summer of 1935—although there is a chance that we are too optimistic.

LOCAL MINISTER REPLIES TO LETTER WRITTEN BY "FUNDAMENTALIST"

Dear Editor:

It has been a practice of my life not to engage in newspaper controversy, and more particularly to avoid paying attention to correspondence appearing over an anonymous signature—an evidence to me of the fact that the writer does not possess the courage to stand by his or her expressed convictions. However, the special brand of "sniping" contained in the letter of "Fundamentalist" which appeared in your issue of last week, if not answered by some one, might convince a few unthinking people that the Church of to-day is as bad as your correspondent tries to make it out to be.

The Church has always thrived on criticism, Mr. Editor. The greatest number of sticks and stones are found under the best apple tree, and any one who has studied the history of the Church knows that its dangerous and most unfruitful periods were those in which the voice of criticism was not loudly raised. In the day when critics of the Church, instead of hiding behind an assumed name, came out in the open and stoned and burned the Churchmen for their alleged modernism, the "blood of the martyrs was the seed of the Church." It has been so ever since, so that if a newspaper editor or anyone else does not sometimes feel inclined to praise the Church, he can very often help the Church by drawing attention to some of its faults. It has faults, of course. How could it be perfect since it is made up of human beings like "Fundamentalist" and myself?

Of course it would be quite impossible to discuss separately all the statements which your correspondent makes in condemnation of the Church of to-day, without taking up very much more space in your paper than your characteristic generosity would allow. I wish therefor to give a general answer in one paragraph, and then touch upon points here and there in the letter. If "Fundamentalist" wishes to "come out in the open," and you feel inclined to open your columns to a good-natured discussion of this whole matter, I shall be glad to support the contention that the Church of to-day is more "Christian" than the Church of any era since the first century of Christianity.

The general criticism expressed in the letter under review is as old as religion itself. It seems to be second nature for a man or woman to earnestly believe one system of doctrine and religious practice, and heartily condemn anyone who has arrived at a slightly different conception of what religion means, even though this second person is quite convinced that he has received his inspiration from the same Divine Spirit. How the devout religionists, gathered for the festival at Bethel, condemned and excommunicated Amos, the "Shepherd of Hills," who came to them with a message from God. They had all God's messages—had they not the commandments and the explanations of them given by their priests? Why should they listen to this upstart modernist who plainly told them that so long as they oppressed the poor and failed to emphasize social justice, all their sanctimonious "religiosity" was highly displeasing to the Almighty? Our Master when he lived on the earth was sternly repudiated by those who should have understood him better for they were the "good" people to whom God had given special privileges—and was it not chiefly his "modernism" that they objected to? He did not use the old terms of religion. He seemed to them to be eternally harping on a new catalogue of sins, and saying nothing about the serious sins of his day, or what they regarded as such. His charity towards "untouchables" amazed them. "This man receiveth sinners and eateth with them"—this was heresy and modernism with a vengeance. And it is quite unnecessary to mention the extent to which their repudiation of this new view of one's religious duty went. Luther and Knox and Wesley and many others, whom we have since learned to reverence as the most courageous and sincere of Christian leaders, were spurned and rejected in their own day by folk whose spiritual conceptions refused to keep pace with the onward progress of the demands of the Divine Spirit. Did Jesus not say on one occasion: "I have yet many things to say unto you but ye cannot bear them now?" I am suggesting that some of these things that have not been said in the past are being said to the Church today through the Spirit, and since the Churches consequently do new things some folk rebel against them. I am suggesting further that depths of spirituality not even conceived of to-day will be reached by Christians of the future, and let us hope that any of us who may have the opportunity in days to come will accord these pioneers of faith a better treatment than is being given to the spiritual pathfinders of the present day. The modern Church, failing often, stumbling sometimes, is, nevertheless, making a serious effort to catch the accents of the Divine Voice as it speaks to the modern world, and is faithfully trying to practice the things implied in that message as applied to the needs of to-day.

Now to deal with one or two of the charges made by your correspondent, may I say first of all that I do not know any Theological Professor nor any modern minister of the Gospel who does not believe in "a devil." It may not be the traditional devil of Milton's "Paradise Lost" which they believe in—hence the statistics given by the "Press" some weeks ago—but they believe in a devil nevertheless. Let me present this up-to-the-minute devil to "Fundamentalist," and if he decides that his is more exacting than mine, I shall be glad to make an exchange with him on even terms. His Satanic Majesty as I know him is not a horned monster dealing in generalities but a personal tempter always coming back into my own consciousness suggesting to me some one or more of the following—that I am much better than other people, that I have a monopoly on religious experience, that my own interests must be safeguarded at all costs, that I owe no duty to other less fortunate folk, that my own race is superior to other races, that my own Church is better than other Churches, that my own nation is better than any nation and cannot easily make a mistake, that religious beliefs must not interfere with the making of money, that since I do not swear nor smoke nor dance nor drink I am consequently a good man, that I should send this letter under an assumed name—and many other serious and dangerous suggestions. The rewards presented by this Satan are very attractive. The devil I know—and the modern Church knows—is the one the Master successfully faced in the wilderness. To fall a victim to the wiles of that devil is to consign one's self, for the time being at least, to a real and practical hell which begins immediately and ends I know not when or where, unless perchance the individual concerned accepts the means of escape which a loving and just God has provided.

My letter is becoming too long, Mr. Editor. Permit me to say in closing that the modern Church cherishes no delusions as to the source of the power needed for the accomplishment of its tasks. It knows that much more must be done with individuals than to simply get their emotions stirred up to such a pitch that they will make ecstatic statements regarding a new-found faith. Their whole lives and outlooks must be changed; their "daily walk and conversation" must be transformed and Christianized. People who know them need not wait to hear their spoken testimony; their very lives will speak loudly of their new affiliation with God. The power required to bring this miracle about must be super-human; only God can bestow it. Those who know the modern Church are aware that its chief concern, amid all its varied activities, is to avail itself of that power and be motivated by it in all stages of its progress The Church must seek folk out in all their spheres of interest and areas of activity as Jesus did. The fact that the modern Church is alive and seeking people out and trying to help them shows that it possesses Divine dynamic. To accuse it of seeking power through these activities, as your correspondent does, is to reveal a prejudice against it and a misunderstanding of it which, in my humble opinion, is inexcusable. Your correspondent would, no doubt, condemn our Master for attending the wedding in Cana of Galilee and the evening meal surrounded by the sinners in Simon's house. At least, the logic of his letter would lead him or her to an equally erroneous conclusion.

May I appeal to "Fundamentalist" to relinquish the role of "knocker," and make available the knowledge and talent which he possesses for the tasks and problems which the modern Church is grappling with. I am quite certain that the more he works in the modern Church the more convinced will he become that, whatever its mistakes, its heart is right, its foundations are true, its purposes are eternal, and its sources of power Divine.

JOHN MacKAY.

TRIBUTES ARE PAID TO VERNON COUPLE

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Cameron of Vernon, celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage at their home on Saturday evening last.

On this happy occasion Mr. and Mrs. Cameron were blessed with the presence of all their children and grandchildren, their daughters being Mrs. Arnot Dalglish, Vernon; Mrs. Clinton Dalglish, Cornwall, and two sons, James D. Cameron of Metcalfe, and Harvey W. Cameron, Vernon. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Cameron, Westboro; Miss Jessie Cameron, Metcalfe; Mr. and Mrs. A. Galbraith, Kenmore. Relatives from a distance who were unable to be present are Mrs. Thos. Stewart, Fort William; Mrs. J. C. Sutherland, Grimsby; Mrs. A. D. Cameron, Beachburg; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Cameron, Saltcoats, Sask.

Mr .and Mrs. Cameron were married in Ottawa in 1884 by the Rev. Dr. Herridge, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Mrs. Cameron before her marriage being Miss Margaret Ann McPherson, while Mr. Cameron is the eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Cameron, pioneers of Metcalfe district.

This estimable couple are still living on the same farm to which Mr. Cameron brought his bride 50 years ago. They have been closely identified with the Presbyterian Church at Vernon, where Mr. Cameron has long served as an elder.

Congratulations and felicitations from numerous relatives and friends were received, as well as lovely gifts from those present, including a beautiful basket of 'mums from Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Cameron, Westboro.

Dinner was served at six o'clock, following which the younger members joined in games while the older ones spent the evening in happy reminiscences.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The names of several of our Provincial Cabinet ministers were given in answer to the roll call at the Institute meeting in the Town Hall on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. J. Singleton presided. The secretary-treasurer reported that $44.61 had been cleared from the Karnival. Letters of appreciation are to be sent to those who contributed the door prizes and other prizes for the Karnival, also to the Secretary of the Old Home Week Association for their donation of $75.

The towels, aprons and fish pond articles left from the Karnival will be brought to the November meeting and offered for sale. The delegates' report of the Ottawa Convention will also be given at the November meeting.

Mrs. Kinkaid reported some good relief work already done in outfitting a family of children.

Mrs. Jay Nesbitt gave some interesting items from Current Comment. The Secretary read a letter from the retiring Provincial President of the W. I., Mr. G. A. Putman, which gave a brief resume of his work for the past 30 years, and assured the ladies of his continued interest in their work. Miss McDermid has been appointed as his successor.

Mrs. W. J. Stewart presided for the program. A pleasing duet, Juanita, was sung by Mrs. Geo. Wilson and Mrs. L. Kinkaid, with Mrs. W. N. Lannin as accompanist

The speaker of the evening, Mr. W. J. Stewart, I.P.S., gave an address of information about the early educational history of the United Counties, going back as far as 1797. The Cornwall Grammar School was established in 1807. Hundred passed through that school who afterwards became famous throughout Ontario. In -1817 the first common School Act was passed. Comparing them then and now, he said there were no trained teachers, no equipment, no government grants, very little interest taken and illiteracy on every hand, while now we have the opposite conditions.

Misses Shirley Nesbitt and Edra Boyd sang very sweetly: "Just a Song at Twilight." They were accompanied by Mrs. H. Nesbitt. Votes of thanks were extended to all those assisting in this excellent program and to the committee who served refreshments.

Mrs. Singleton announced the Oratorical Contest to be held on Friday night, urging that everyone be interested enough to attend. God Save the King was sung in closing.

DIES OF SLEEPING SICKNESS

Sleeping sickness claimed the life of Hugh Matheson, a member of the relief project at Petawawa, last week. A month ago the unfortunate man was admitted to the Pembroke hospital in a state of coma from which he was never roused. It is the first case of the dreaded disease ever reported in that district.

440 MILES PER HOUR

Lieutenant Francisco Agello, daring Italian ace, decided that he wanted to go places in a hurry on Monday last. As a consequence, he whistled over the waters of Lake Garda in Italy at 440 miles per hour, in his mystery speed ship, to smash his own world's record by 16 miles per hour. One gets a better idea of the speed if one says that Agello could leave Winchester at noon and be in Montreal at 12.10 p.m.

WINCHESTER WINS

Winchester High School football squad won their return game and the right to enter the County league playdowns on Saturday last, when they handed the Chesterville team a 12-6 defeat on the local gridiron, for their second straight victory over that squad.

Playing smoothly and with speed in their plays, the locals went about their work in the first quarter after Chesterville had kicked off. On an extended end run to the left side of the line, Boyd weaved his way through a flock of tacklers to register the first major score from 35 yards out. Dixon converted on a driving pass to Elliott behind Chesterville's touchline. Winchester, 6; Chesterville, 0.

In the second quarter, Winchester grabbed the ball on their opponents 25 yard line when Hanna fumbled a pass. A quick kick by Weir drove the ball behind Chesterville's touch line where Campbell received the punt. Holmes grabbed a touchdown when he intercepted Campbell's pass to Hanna behind the goal line. Weir made the convert on a forward pass to Dixon which was allowed through interference with the receiver. Winchester, 12; Chesterville, 0.

With five minutes left to play in the second quarter, Chesterville put on a neat display of forward passing which carried them from midfield to the locals 20-yard line. A quick formation caught Winchester napping and Hanna tossed a 25-yard forward to Campbell who dropped behind the goal-line for a major score. In attempting to convert, the placement kick by Hanna struck the crossbar. Winchester, 12; Chesterville, 5.

In the final quarter, Chesterville fought hard to carry the play to the home team. Their final point came when McElroy hoisted a long punt to the deadline from Winchester's 29-yard line. Final score, Winchester, 12; Chesterville, 6.

The line-ups were as follows:

Chesterville—Flying wing, Harper; halves, McElroy, Williamson and Campbell; quarter, Hanna; snap, Thompson; insides, Lynch and Casselman; middles, Dennis and Kearney; outsides, Marcellus and Coyne; subs., Munro, Cross and Lloyd.

Winchester—Flying wing, Elliott; halves, L. Dixon, Boyd and W. Summers; quarter, Weir; snap, Coons; insides, G. Holmes and Quart; middles, Ball and D. Dixon; outsides, Rowat and Wilson; subs, Dawley, Stewart, Ault, Cass, Peterson and E. Homes.

Referee, Bill Servage; umpire, A. Laforet, Chesterville; head linesman, E. J. Spinks.

Winchester will now meet Morrisburg Collegiate team, winners of the south half of the league, who defeated Iroquois in home and home games, for the County Interscholastic championship. The first game will be played in Winchester on Saturday next with the return game one week later at the Morrisburg field.

CAUSES OF MOTOR ACCIDENTS

It has been found in studying the causes of accidents over a long period of time, that the following play an important part says the Ontario Safety League.

Regarding safety as a lot of hooey.
Poor health.
Keeping late hours.
Domestic difficulties that cause worry.
Failure to get along with the boss.
Lack of interest in the job.
Quick temper.
Getting pleasure out of practical joking.
Opposition to machinery guards and safety appliances in general.
Allowing attention to be detracted while at work.
Allowing the mind to wander away from the job in hand.
Carrying a grudge.
Getting panicky when something goes wrong.
Being easily upset by admonition from the boss.

OBLIGATION

Your advantages, whatever they are, are more than a ground for self-congratulation. They are an obligation. The sturdy six-footer who sees a feeble little old woman with a suitcase boarding a crowded street car, gets up to give her his seat. His strength puts him under obligation to show consideration for her feebleness.

John D. Rockefeller, Junior, says that he has always thought of the great fortune he inherited as an obligation That is fine in a rich man, but it is just as necessary for those of us who are not rich at all. The young fellow with a job owes something to the one who, through no fault of his own, is out of work. Money in your pocket, even if it is not very much, is an obligation.

If you belong to the fortunate class, if you are better educated, better off, or of better stock than your associates, be humble about it, for that means your obligations are heavy.

"A BROTHER OF MAN"

"Did you give him a lift? He's a brother of man,
And is bearing about all the burden he can.
Did you give him a smile? He was downcast and blue,
And the smile would have helped him to to battle it through.
Did you give him your hand? He was slipping down hill,
And the world, so I fancied, was using him ill.
Did you give him a word? Did you show him the road?
Or did you just let him go on with his load?

Did you help him along? He's a sinner like you,
But the grasp of the hand might have carried him through.
Did you bid him good cheer? Just a word and a smile,
Did you know what he bore in the burden of cares?
That is every man's load and that sympathy shares.
Did you try to find out what he needed from you?
Or did you just leave him to battle it through?

Do you know what it means to be losing the fight?
When a lift just in time might set everything right.
Do you know what it means? Just the clasp of your hand
When a man's borne about all a man ought to stand.
Did you ask what is was? Why the quivering lip,
And the glistening tears down the pale cheek that slip?
Were you a brother to man? When the time came to be,
Did you offer to help him, or didn't you see and care?

Don't you know it's a part of a Brother of Man
To find out what grief is, and help when you can?
Did you stop when he asked you to give him a lift
Or were you so busy you left him to shift?
Oh, I know what you mean, what you say may be true,
But the test of your Manhood is what DID YOU DO?
Did you reach out a hand? Did you show him the road?
Or did you just let him go on with the load?

—John M. Gledhille, of Ohio.

THE POWER OF WILL

There is no task, be it ever so hard,
No battle ,though ever so long,
But the task may be done and the battle be won,
If your will to conquer is strong.

There is no truth, be it ever so deep,
No change, be it ever so great,
But the truth may be thought and the change may be wrought,
If you will to master your fate.

There is no sea, be it ever so broad,
No obstacle ever so high,
But the sea may be sailed, and the obstacle scaled,
If you have the courage to try.

There is no sin or mistake of the past,
Can keep you from reaching your goal,
If you but tap the source of that deep hidden force,
Which lies in the depths of your soul.

The sweetest bird builds near the ground,
The loveliest flower springs low;
And we must stoop for happiness,
If we its worth would know.

REGRET

If time could only turn back, even for a day,
I'd find the kindly deeds I lost along life's way,
I'd say the simple words to make some starved heart glad,
I'd spread some cheerfulness for souls bereft and sad.
I'd right each little wrong, and mend each broken thread.
I'd do and say the little things I might have done and said.

FRIENDSHIP

"If you walk as a friend you will find a friend wherever you choose to fare;
If you go with mirth to a far strange land you will find that mirth is there;
For the strangest part of this queer old world is that like will join with like;
And who walks with love for his fellowman an answering love will strike.

"If you walk in honor then honest men will meet you along the way;
But if you are false you will find men false wherever you chance to stray.
For good breeds good and bad breeds bad, we are met by traits we show;
Love will find a friend at the stranger's door where hate will find a foe.

"For each of us builds the world he knows which only himself can spoil;
And an hour of hate or an hour of shame can ruin a life of toil;
And though to the utmost ends of the earth your duty may bid you fare,
If you go with truth and a friendly heart you will find friends waiting there.

THE LIE

Who told the lie?
Who started the saying,
Who told the lie,
What mule was braying?

Who told the lie?
Who started the talk,
Who told the lie,
A lie by the clock?

Who told the lie?
What was their aim,
Who told the lie?
Oh, what a shame.

Who told the lie,
From the very start,
Who let their tongue,
From the truth depart?

Who told the lie,
Against some one?
Who told the lie,
Who helped it on?

Who told the lie,
That was blacker than hell?
All that heard it
Knew that well.

Who told the lie,
Which some one thought true?
Who believed the lie,
And scattered it, too?

Let the liar cease,
Let the truth be told.
Then life will be more cheerful,
And not so cold.

THE PLUGGER

He isn't very brilliant, and his pace is often slow; there's nothing very flashy in his style. He has to dig and labor for the things he wants to know, and he's busy learning something all the while.

The clever men go by him in a hurry day by day, and the "stars get all the mention and the fame. But the patient, steady plugger—in a thorough sort of way—keeps on going, and he gets there just the same.

He's a quiet sort of fellow, and he's backward in his speech. You'll never find him clamoring for applause. He will listen to another who has anything to teach, and he never wearies working for a cause. He may take a little longer with the task he has to do than the genius whose talents seem to run, but you'll find the patient plugger at the finish coming through and there's merit in his labor when its done.

He is slow in getting started. He must know the reasons why certain things occur and in a certain way. There is nothing in his method to attract the passerby, and at times you'd think he's wasted many a day. But when brilliant men have faded, and stars have lost the light; when clever men have stumbled in despair; when the great have come to failure with the goal they sought in sight, you'll find the patient plugger getting there.--Anon.

CAUSE AND EFFECT

The tourist had been inspecting the little country church. "Why is the bell ringing, my man?" he asked the verger, as he was stepping out into the open again. "'Cos I'm pulling the rope," came the sour reply.

THE BOOK

. . . . . the first line of which reads, "The Holy Bible," and which contains Four Great Treasures . . . . . .

by BRUCE BARTON

PAUL WRITES A MESSAGE

THE work was going well everywhere, even in Thessalonica! And they hoped Paul would come back! Eagerly Paul called for parchment and, with Timothy as a volunteer stenographer, he dictated a letter to send back to Thessalonica.

Bruce Barton

He told them how he had left with his two companions, but on reaching Athens had changed his mind and sent Silas and Timothy back:

> Wherefore when we could no longer forbear, we thought it good to be left at Athens alone;
> And sent Timotheus, our brother, and minister of God, and our fellow-labourer in the gospel of Christ, to establish you.

It almost killed him to think that they might have forsaken their faith. But they had not; they were standing fast.

> But when Timotheus came from you unto us, and brought us good tidings of your faith and charity, and that ye have good remembrance of us always, desiring greatly to see us, as we also to see you:
> Therefore, brethren, we are comforted over you in all our affliction and distress by your faith:
> For now we live, if ye stand fast in the Lord.

So he dictated, fast as Timothy could write, and sent the letter by a messenger going north from Corinth. He put in sundry exhortations, a little doctrinal teaching, and started the message forth on its eventful journey. He did not know that he had begun a new Bible. He never suspected that this impetuously composed first letter to the Thessalonians was to be the first volume in a new sacred library. But it was; and that is the way the New Testament began.

He had to write a second letter to the Thessalonians to answer some questions growing out of the first one. These letters were lent to near-by churches and copied and read to the congregations. Paul heard how widely they were used and so he wrote more and more. He had learned to supplement the living voice with the written page. If he were at work to-day he would not only preach; he would be a regular contributor to the press.

After eighteen months in Corinth he went back to Jerusalem and gave account of his second missionary journey. He had a string of new churches through Asia Minor, Macedonia and Greece. He had developed his method, and he was happy in the knowledge of a great success. He learned that in Galatia, in Asia Minor, where he had established churches, he had been followed by fundamentalists who were telling the people that Paul was not really an apostle; that he possessed no real authority; that the good news was defective because he did not teach the Mosaic law.

OVERCOMING DISCOURAGEMENT

Lack of courage! How many worthy enterprises have failed of achievement because men have listened to this subtle argument!

A lesson in courage was gained by observing a young vine that had been carelessly planted in a rockery against a brick wall. It had very little earth around its roots, and because of overhanging eaves, was deprived of rainfall. Yet, in spite of this, it had established itself. At first, progress above ground was very much retarded, but at length a single stock had climbed about two feet up the wall, when it was pulled down and broken off by a little child. One who had been observing the vine's persistence felt quite regretful to see its growth apparently thwarted, but a further lesson was learned when, within a short time, there grew from the broken end two branches where only one had been before.

Those who are endeavoring to establish a business enterprise during a financial depression might well take a lesson from the vine. In such seemingly arid times, when business does not flow readily to the young concern, much courageous persistence is needed to continue spreading its roots beyond the disappointingly dry territory; thus the courage born of faith in God's sustaining laws will inevitably lead to profitable contacts. Strong, consistent, upward growth proves that this radical stand for progress yields good results. The withstanding of adversities may bring the experience which aids one in grounding his business so firmly on the knowledge of the truth that drought or storms are powerless to harm it. Pride in merely making " a good showing" must give place to the greater wisdom of first establishing a sound basis, for the overhead should not be more than the flow of business can sustain at all times. Even if a first achievement seems to come to grief, progressive expansion cannot long be checked if the foundation is well laid.—Christian Science Monitor.

At 20 a young man thinks he could save the world if he only had the chance, when ,as a matter of fact, he can hardly save a dollar.

We never perceive our sins till we begin to cure them.—Fenelon.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS—By John Hix

For further proof address the author inclosing a stamped envelope for reply. Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Major General Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the U. S. Army Air Corps, used to be the whole show in the army's heavier-than-air division. He was once the only army pilot, instructor, navigator and observer.

When the army bought its first aeroplane in 1909, the air corps was strictly a one-man job. There was only one ship. It was an old open-work pusher—the fuselage was without cover, and the propeller was mounted back of the wings. Foulois was chosen to be the air corps and the Wright brothers taught him to fly.

He had two important qualifications for the job: he was immensely interested in aviation, and he was small. He weighed less than 140 pounds, and the weight of the pilot was an important item in early aviation.

Foulois began his army career in the Spanish-American War, winning his first commission in 1901 when he was 21 years old. During the Mexican border trouble in 1917, he was commander of the army's air forces there In the World War he was chief of the A. E. F. air forces. He became assistant chief of the air corps in 1927, and chief in 1931.

Meantime, the Air Corps has increased from a one-man, one-plane division to a point where it includes 1200 pilots and about 1700 planes.

RACING SAILING YACHTS COST A LOT OF MONEY

The Winnipeg Tribune, dicussing the cost of racing yachts such as the Endeavor and Rainbow, has the following:

Racing yachts in international competitions is a sport for millionaires. But while admitting this, the Toronto Star points out that the public probably thinks it costs a lot of money—more than it actually does.

The Star explains that whereas Mr. Sopwith's Endeavor, the British challenger, has been called a "million dollar boat" the bill for building it may not have been in excess of $200,000, including a $26,000 hollow steel mast. Sails would cost $20,000; insurance, say $6,000 for a season; ordinary maintenance $30,000. This last item would be smaller possibly because of the cup series crew more than 20 were amateurs "working out of love of the sport and glory of Old England."

Another thrilling item is the tender used as a parent ship, the initial cost of which may have been around $300,000 and its annual cost may be $40,000. The dockage and refitting charges are not even guessed at.

It took a syndicate of 17 United States millionaires to build the Rainbow. They raised a fund of $500,000 which "was intended to cover the entire cost of building and maintaining the defending boat this year." Having a little more expensive tastes the American sportsmen spent about $80,000 on the duralumin mast and some $200,000 on sails.

FRIENDLY TOWARD VISITORS

Visitors to any town take away with them certain impressions of the community. According to the treatment accorded to them, they leave with the feeling that it has been either a friendly or unfriendly place. We trust local residents will treat visitors so that the town may be assured of having a reputation for the former. One impressive instance of a way in which visitors can be given the desired impression is the method adopted in Burlington, a city in the State of Iowa, U. S. A., where they are handed a printed card, with the following greeting:

"We want you to know that you are in a human city and not a soulless one. This is your home, be it for a day or night only. May you rest well, full of sweet sleep and dreams from head to foot. May you find liberty here to live your own life in your own way, to have your privacy, your convenience, and a cheerful atmosphere. May your days be full of success, so that your experience in our city shall be a happy memory. Here may you get good news from those you love. May every letter, telegram, or telephone call you receive be of a kind to make you happier. When you go away, leave for this city a bit of grateful feeling."—Smiths Falls Record-News.

PREDICTS THAT ST. LAWRENCE WILL BE "BONE DRY"

Farmers will one day be cutting hay where fishermen now spread their nets along the northern shore of the St. Lawrence and the great river will be "bone dry." Such was the prediction recently of Father John P. Delaney, Professor of Physics at Canisius College.

But this will not happen for thousands of years and as the priest says laughingly, it is safe to go ahead with the St. Lawrence development plan. He points out that summer residents on the north shore of the Great Lakes have watched with alarm the annual drop of the water level, leaving rocks hitherto submerged, high and dry and wharves and piers on dry land. After an extensive study, Father Delaney states that this area is slowly tilting in a south-western direction, the water being shoved from the lake beds and leaving Canadian beaches wider each year, while those on the American side become more submerged. Instances are on record of large trees in New York State which once stood far back from the water line now tottering over because the advancing lake level is loosening the roots.

4-H CLUB NEWS

HOLD LAMB SHOW

Four-H club boys c. Indiana recently put on a great show of lambs at the stockyards at Indianapolis. It was the fifth annual event. Judges said it would have "hustled" a veteran lamb producer to win a place in the competition.

The lambs were shown in three classes—pen of three, pen of five, and county group. When all the boys had brought out their entries of three lambs there were 66 pens shown. Top winner received a $10 cash prize, and the next 14 got prizes ranging down to $3.00.

Twenty-two lads entered pens of five lambs with prizes ranging from $12.00 to $5.00. Each county group received $5.00.

The prize money is provided by the stockyard company, packers and commission firms interested in raising the quality of lambs raised in the state. The project also has the active co-operation of Purdue extension leaders and club folks. Its educational effect reaches far beyond the actual club members participating.

The show's educational value does not stop with the ring competition. The lambs are auctioned off afterward and the judgment of the buyers reflected in what they pay for the lambs. It's the butcher's test. The boys learn quickly why the blocky, meaty lamb outsells the leggy, thin meated one.

The show is only one feature of this annual affair. Boys get a lot of advice from men of experience. They were urged by Dean Skinner, of the State Agricultural College, to adopt as a slogan, one acre of alfalfa for each five ewes and lambs. This will aid in making the adjustment from grain to forage which our agricultural situation requires.

The whole bunch was treated to a modern swimming hole when a big hotel turned its pool over to them.

"THE GOOD OLD TIMES"

No doubt you used to smile at the elderly people who were forever talking about "the good old times," but recently you have seen their numbers vastly increased, and many of the new recruits are still in their teens. "The good old times" some of you are always talking about are only a few years back, the times when the family automobile was replaced by a new one long before it had a chance to become shabby, and when the young people went to expensive camps in summer and had allowances more than generous.

Nothing is gained by talking about the good old times. They are over. The present times are different; but in them, too, there is a possibility of benefit. Some one has said that a man is great who can turn his reverses to account; but perhaps it would be truer to say that turning your reverses to account is a great achievement. Some of you young people, instead of always talking of the good times three or four years back, are tackling the present times with a courage and an ambition that make even this trying and difficult period tremendously beneficial.

AHEAD OF TIME

Being on time is a very important matter; being ahead of time is questionable. It is true that in order to be on time always, you must make a generous allowance; but it is easy to let the ambition to be ahead of time go to absurd length. Some people are so afraid of missing a train that they sit for three-quarters of an hour in the station before the gates are open. Every hostess dreads the guests who arrive before she has the table set.

If you have an appointment for a certain hour, take time enough to be sure you will arrive punctually. If the time of other people is too precious for you to waste by coming late, however, your own time is too precious to waste by coming unreasonably early. On time does not mean ahead of time.

HYDRO ASSISTING FARMERS

As a further move in his campaign to increase the use of electrical power to Ontario farms, T. Stewart Lyon, chairman of the Provincial Hydro Commission, announced last week that farmers will now be able to buy power-driven cream separators and milk coolers on the deferred payment plan

The commission proposes to advance the price of these appliances on loans running from one to five years. It is believed that this announcement will stimulate the installation of this equipment on the farms and, apart from increasing the load on rural lines, will serve the broader economic purpose of bettering the conditions of rural life.

Mr. Lyon stated that the commission already has about $100,000 on loan on installment purchases of other farm appliances.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Rev Charles E. Dunn

The Christian's Standard of Life
Lesson for October 28th.
Ephesians 5:15-21.
Golden Text: Ephesians 5:18.

"Do not get drunk with wine" warns Paul in our Golden Text. How greatly we need today this advice! The repeal of the 18th Amendment was hailed as a great forward step toward real temperance, but as everyone now knows, it has not solved the liquor problem. In fact we are now just about where we were a generation ago when the fight against the saloon was gathering momentum.

Rev. Chas. E. Dunn

Bootlegging is still flourishing. Joseph H. Choate, Jr., director of the Federal Alcohol Control Administration, reports that two-thirds of all the liquor now sold in the country is made in illicit stills. The high tax on liquor makes it profitable to make and sell it under cover so as to avoid the tax. This situation makes imperative a determined war on bootleggers by both federal and state authorities.

The saloon also is back despite the loud assurances that it would never return. "And it is back," as the New Jersey commissioner of alcohol control points out, "because the people want it back."

And it is painfully revealing to read newspaper reports in Chicago and elsewhere telling of an increase in drunken driving. Insurance statistics reveal that out of the total number of drivers involved in motor car accidents the first half of this year, 2.36% were declared intoxicated, as against 1.66% in the corresponding period of 1933, an increase of 42%.

The problem of course is one of great complexity. We are in a period of readjustment. What the church and the community must do is to find the most workable plan of effectively reducing the consumption of alcoholic beverages. In this militant crusade we cannot afford to fail.

THOSE GOOD OLD DAYS

(Alliston Herald)

An elderly man, son of a stalwart pioneer, observed the other day that had little patience with the people, farmers and others, who are continually seeking conferences to discuss with ministers of the government their financial and economic conditions or to make a demand for one thing or another. "My father lived sixty years on a farm he received from the Crown, and labored as no man works to-day. There were hundreds like him, but not one of them ever thought of going to seek assistance in their troubles," he said.

A SPLENDID RECIPE

Here is a recipe for a happy life. Take a large quantity of cheerfulness and let it simmer without stopping. Put with it a brimming basinful of kindness, then add a full measure of thought for other people; mix into these a full tablespoonful of sympathy; flavor with the essence of charity. Stir well together and then carefully strain off any grains of selfishness. Let the whole be served with love sauce and Fruit of the Spirit.

FASHIONABLE TALK

Instead of commenting on the weather, it has become fashionable for local residents to greet one another with, "How is your well holding out?" Never in the history of the town have so many of the wells gone dry. Many of the citizens are seriously handicapped in this respect.

RECORD-BREAKING DASH

Two daring British airmen, C. W. A. Scott and Campbell Black, left London at 6 a.m. Saturday morning last and 71 hours and 3 minutes later landed at Melbourne, Australia some 11,000 odd miles away. By virtue of their remarkable feat, they are winners of the London-Melbourne air race and incidentally $50,000 in cash. Twenty-two hours behind the winners came a Dutch team to capture second money.

SUFFERS SLIGHT ACCIDENT

Miss Helen Smith had the misfortune to suffer a rude shaking up on Sunday last while motoring to Toronto. About two miles west of Port Hope, the right front wheel suddenly seized, precipitating the car into the ditch, where it struck the end of a culvert.

Miss Smith, besides being badly jolted in the encounter, received a cut on her upper lip, which did not prove to be serious. The car was damaged to the extent of about $50.

WINCHESTER Y. P. S.

The regular weekly meeting of the Y. P. S. of the United Church was held on Monday evening, Oct. 22nd, in the S. S. rooms with the president, Eldon Davidson, presiding.

The Worship Service was conducted by Wilfred Marcellus, after which Geo. Crawley sang in his delightful manner, "Roses of Picardy." He was accompanied on the piano by Alice Singleton.

Following the business period, Willis Robinson conducted a discussion on the second and third chapters of the Study book "The Transforming Friendship." The meeting was brought to a close by singing "Blest Be the Tie that Binds."

DELIGHTFUL RECEPTION HELD

A delightful reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Johnston last evening in honour of their son, Mr. Douglas Johnston and his bride, formerly Miss Eleanor Annable,. About 100 guests were present for the occasion and a most enjoyable social time was spent. During the evening Mr. and Mrs. Johnston were called forward and after the reading of an address by Miss Helen Taylor, were presented with several beautiful pieces of furniture on behalf of their friends. The presentation was made by Messrs. Rowat Jones and William Casselman.

Games and music made the event a most enjoyable one, during which dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mesdames Albert Casselman, Hubert Riddell and the Misses Ruth, Margaret and Pearl Walker and Helen McVey.

The following address was read:

Winchester, Ont., October 24, 1934.

Dear Eleanor and Douglas:

We are met this evening to extend a hearty welcome and good wishes to you, the Bride and Groom. A wedding is always a happy event, and doubly so when the participants are old friends and neighbours.

Although your earlier life was spent elsewhere, Douglas, since your coming here a stranger several years ago, you have become a very highly regarded member of our community. We are pleased that you have chosen a companion and helpmate to further enrich our social circle.

We extend to you, Eleanor, our heartiest welcome to our midst. In your own community your many endearing qualities have won for you a host of friends, but we hope that you will win as many more in your new home.

For both of you we trust that each day will bring you greater happiness. May you go down the long trail side by side with love and understanding in your hearts, enriching your own home and the community with the peace and gratitude of a happy married life.

As a tangible expression of our good will and our best wishes for your future, we offer these gifts. Our sincere hope is that their daily use may remind you of the warm place that you hold in the hearts of your friends and neighbours.

Signed on behalf of the community, Willie Casselman and Rowat Jones.

THE LATE BERTHA MERKLEY

The death occurred at the Civic Hospital, Ottawa, on Friday morning last, of a widely known and esteemed citizen of Chesterville in the person of Bertha Merkley in her 64th year, after a lingering illness.

The late Miss Merkley was born in Chesterville, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Merkley, and had spent her entire life in that community, where she took a deep and active interest in all community enterprises.

The deceased was a devoted member of the United Church and was enthusiastic in the work of all its organizations. She was a life member of the Women's Missionary Society and had occupied prominent offices in that organization. For 40 years Miss Merkley had been a teacher in the Sunday School and had devoted much of her time to the promotion of that work. Her interests had also centred around the Ladies' Aid Society, in which work she will be greatly missed.

Kindly in disposition and considerate of others in her home life, the late Miss Merkley will be mourned by a wide circle of friends besides those who survive in her immediate family.

The funeral was held on Sunday afternoon last at 2.30, from her late residence to Trinity United Church, Chesterville, where her pastor, Rev. Mr. Tait, conducted an impressive service, assisted by Rev. John McKay, of Winchester United Church. Interment was made in Maple Ridge Cemetery.

The passing of Miss Merkley brings about the first break in a family of nine children. Those who survive are four brothers, Mr. W. A. Merkley, of Buffalo, N. Y.; Dr. S. A. Merkley, of Melford, Sask. Mr. H. G. Merkley, New Westminster, B. C.; and Dr. G. H. Merkley, of Winnipeg, and four sisters, Mrs. T. O. Keyes, of Winchester; Mrs. Elmer Grant, Melford, Sask.; Mrs. A. A. Murphy, Saskatoon, Sask., and Mrs. Cecil Fulton, of Calgary, Alta.

Those who acted as pall bearers were Messrs. Fred Forward, Parnham Allison, Charles Graham and Wesley Fulton.

Dr. Jack Rowat, of Toronto, spent a few days this week at his home here.
