It's about time

Church of England leaders have voted in favor of draft legislation to admit women to the priesthood at the annual General Synod of bishops, clergy and laity.

The final count was 299 in favor and 216 opposed.

The legislation was passed despite the objections of the Church's spiritual head, Most Rev. Robert Runcie, Archbishop of Canterbury.

Runcie said while he favored the principle of women priests he believed the terms of the proposal would cause a kind of legislative schism and possibly divide the Church.

Sometimes it's difficult to believe this is the 1980s.

Admitting women to the priesthood is not a serious or divisive issue. Women are finally being given the chance to occupy positions traditionally held by men and they're not doing a bad job.

For so long females were told they couldn't do so many things because they were the weaker sex —weaker in mind and body. And they believed it because the idea of inferiority was drilled into them from birth and the law fully co-operated.

The Church of England has the opportunity to state loudly and clearly to the world that all of its followers, both male and female are accepted as equal members and that gender does not determine the ability to be a good Christian.

The United Church has accepted female ministers and it hasn't fallen apart or lost members.

Other organized religions should take note.

It's about time gender barriers were broken down once and for all.

As part of Winchester's Centennial celebrations The Press is featuring photographs depicting memorable moments in the village's history. Winchester High School, formerly located on St. Lawrence Street burned to the ground in 1962. The loss of the school was one of the factors which eventually led to the construction of North Dundas District High School the following year.

Meditate on the cross

by Gordon C. Smyth

Pilate had given his verdict. The machinery for Roman justice re slaves or foreigners convicted of robbery, incitement to riot, or sedition was set in motion in the case of Jesus. The procession got under way.

It left Jerusalem by a main road and soon came to the common place of execution, well named Golgotha, meaning the place of a skull. The guard halted. A passerby, who had been ordered to relieve the convicted Man of his burden, dropped it.

The Master was stripped naked and was set astride a peg in the upright beam. He was fastened to the cross by nails through his hands and feet. Ropes bound his shoulders or torso to the wooden frame. He was thus held immobile, unable to cope with the heat of the day, or against the cross was raised and planted in a hole that had held many crosses.

Why has that terrible day been called "Good" Friday? What has the cross to say? As St. Thomas a Kempis observed, "The cross is ever ready and waits for us." To be forewarned is to be forearmed. From birth pangs to death pangs we can trace the course of pain.

The cross speaks of honor, telling us there are loves greater than self-love. Indeed, it is better to die a purposeful death than to live a purposeless life.

The cross also speaks to us of redemption. One day in 1935 an admiring group of American Negroes visited the home of Mohandas K. Gandhi. For a while the host and his guests discussed Christianity, oppression, and love. Then, unexpectedly, Gandhi asked them to sing one of his favorite songs.

The sad words rose and swelled like both a benediction and a curse. "Were you there when they crucified my Lord?" When they finished the last verse, Gandhi sat for a moment in silence. Then he commended, "Perhaps it will be through the Negro that the unadulterated message of non-violence will be delivered to the world."

The cross has awakened men and women to a sense of their exceeding sinfulness. It has provided a new motif and dynamic for lives of service. It supplies grace whereby people, weary of the burdens they carry, have strength to carry on.

Therefore, let us endeavor to build the cross into our personal lives, into the life of the church, and into the life of the new society slowly taking shape, just as architects of the great cathedrals of "a new order" in Europe, centuries ago, built the form of a cross into those mighty and imperishable structures.

Let us proclaim by our lives the hard, honorable and redeeming Gospel of the Savior.

Subject of abortion both emotional and complex

The Editor

I read your recent, thoughtful editorials on the subject of abortion (June 15 and June 29) and while I disagree with abortion on demand, I believe we could agree that the whole subject is both emotional and complex.

While in no way denigrating the difficulty which an unwanted pregnancy poses to a woman, I would like to address one of the most critical aspects of the problem; the failure to provide normal human rights to the unborn child.

Protection for the unborn from conception has deep roots in Western civilization and can be found in written laws of the Sumarian Empire (about 2000 B.C.), in pagan Roman law (B.C.), in Greek culture as exemplified by the Oath of Hyppocrates some 2000 years ago, and in English Common Law (invoked, for example during the Salem Witch trials in the 17th century).

More recently, the first International Conference on Abortion held in 1967, which was attended by world experts in the fields of Genetics, Bio-Chemistry, Biology, Medicine, Law, Ethics and Social Sciences concluded "The majority of our members find no time between conception and birth at which point we could say this is not human life". Put simply, this conference of experts stated that life begins at conception.

Today, ironically, when medical science has learned more about the developing child in the womb and has developed ever more sophisticated techniques for saving premature babies at progressively earlier stages, society condones the aborting of the unborn for even the most trivial reasons.

From the moment of conception, the developing child is a separate and distinct being (all 46 chromosomes and some 30,000 genes) with all the genetic information required to complete its journey of development through all stages of growth; morula, embryo, fetus, baby, puberty, teenager, adult, senior citizen. All these terms refer not to the "human-ness" of the person but to stages of development of a human being. Nothing is added except nutrition and oxygen throughout the lifetime of this new human being.

I submit that it is folly to negate the existence of human life at any stage after conception and to ignore the ample supporting evidence. By continuing to deny this fact, the real issue is ignored — that is the subtle, continuing and well-entrenched refusal of our society to treat women truly as equals in all areas of endeavor, and all of the consequences which follow — lack of real equality in the workplace, lack of real equal pay, physically and sexually abused women and children, pornography (in all its subtle forms from beer and gum commercials to the blatant forms in so-called "adult" books).

And while these issues are obscured in the controversy surrounding the abortion issue, our politicians are let off the hook from dealing with the more complex issues raised above, and are, I'm sure, happy to have it so.

Is this how New York City got started ...?

The Editor:

There were strange goings-on one morning recently in our quiet neighborhood in Greely.

First, Mrs. B. across the road was seen mowing her front lawn. To be accurate, she wasn't seen — she's a short lady and the grass was five feet high — but lawnmower noises were heard coming from the general area.

Then Mrs. H, right next door to her, was caught washing her windows on a hot Tuesday morning when she should have known better. And Carole on the corner, for the first time in living memory, had cleaned up the accumulation of old trikes, wagons and broken shovels from her driveway, stuffed them in the garage and pad-locked it shut.

A small crowd of interested spectators had materialised.

"It's this new property standards bylaw" puffed Mrs. B. when she emerged from the undergrowth on one of her sweeps through with the lawnmower. She paused and recited, " 'Hedges and bushes which are unsightly or overgrown in relation to the neighboring environment ust be trimmed' "

Mrs. H. stopped window cleaning and chimed in with "...and all windows must be kept clean so as to permit unimpeded visibility and unrestricted passage of light."

Mrs. B., self-appointed spokeswoman, gave out the bad news.

Osgoode Township, she explained, had just passed a bylaw which requires residents to clean up their homes and properties or face fines of $500 per day.

"Houses must be fresh painted," she listed, ticking off each item on grass stained fingers. "Home interiors must be maintained in good repair and...," she looked around the alarmed faces, savoring her moment in the limelight, "...a property standards officer can enter and inspect any property in the township at any time to make sure it conforms to standards of health and sanitation."

Politicians, even the 'Noisy Newfie' (Trade Minister John Crosbie), were temporarily silenced last weekend when their pre-election oratorical thunder was smothered by, of all things, wedding bells. Mind you, unlike youthful male reporters here in the newsroom, we always turn a blind eye when those Playboy centrefold 'lay-outs' are being meticulously 'studied' by the journalism grads. But, if 'Mr. Hockey' likes the lass (and we're convinced he does) that's good enough for us. Miss Jones and Mr. Gretzky both insisted, during programming of the big day, that their marriage would be nothing out of the ordinary... "Just a traditional old-fashioned exchange of vows"... think was the way they said it. However, judging by on the scene news hawks, there were some minor differences. Although our own "I dos" were spoken more than 47 years ago, the happiness of that chilly February morning is as radiant today as it was then. That's why we sensed it might be interesting to 'compare notes' so to speak. "Gretzky appeared nervous during the ceremony", the reporter wrote. Think we did too! "Miss Jones' wedding gown was form-fitting white satin with plunging neckline under sheer lace, intricate beading and five-metre-long train"... our bride's attire wasn't exactly like that! There were other aspects of the romantic episode that, we think, were not precisely (as Mr. Gretzky termed it) 'traditional'. So... we did some more comparing. Mrs. G's wedding dress set her back in the neighborhood of $40,000... our bride's was on sale at a Bank Street dress shop 'reduced to $12.50'; Mrs. G's diamond was in the $200,000 range... our bride's wedding band (in a tiny box that included engagement diamond (?) and wrist watch) was a "People's" Christmas special, $18.75... $2 down. And it pains us to look back across the years and face the sad reality we completely forgot to buy our bride a wedding gift. Wayne didn't! He picked up a 'traditional' Rolls Royce for a mere quarter-million. Feels good, however, to know we have something in common with the greatest hockey player in the world... both of us can look back on 'traditional' weddings. Our sincere wish for you, Janet and Wayne, is that the future will be as kind to you as the past has been to us.

Being secretary of our Lions Club (Metcalfe and District) keeps us in close touch with a wide variety of charitable organizations. It goes without saying (despite the fact we'd love to) we are unable to honor all requests for financial assistance. However, a conscientious effort is always made to single out what members consider the most deserving, and some measure of assistance is offered. One such request, earlier this year, was from Rideau Hill Camp, a summer youth program sponsored by Seaway Valley Presbytery, United Church of Canada. This week's 'Lions mail' includes a combination 'thank you' - 'receipt' - and 'special request'. Drawing attention to the lack of campers this summer the writer expresses his concern this way: "I am asking you (as Lions secretary) to spread the word that we need campers to participate in the program and facilities". Perhaps, since during summer months, service clubs are less active, a word here might reach more homes. The camp goal, we understand, is to have no vacancies at the beautiful youth-oriented endeavor on the banks of the historic Rideau River. For additional information we suggest contacting George Fowler, RR2, Iroquois, Ont., K0E 1K0.

Claire Smith, a longtime friend, being interviewed recently by Citizen staff writer Lynn McAuley glanced briefly behind the curtain of time. "I came home to Manotick for a visit in 1927" he reminisced, "and was picking up mail at the general store. I didn't see the blonde school teacher till I backed up and stepped on her toe. I said I was sorry, but she didn't accept my apology, so I decided right then and there never to speak to her again." We sure enjoyed that interview (featured last Saturday) presenting a vivid word-picture of the 80-year-old horseman recognized in the equestrian realm as the best harness-racing judge in Canada. The 'Smith Saga' has a special significance for us because we were there, a few years later, when he not only spoke to the lass again — he married her. We knew that tiny, blonde bundle of energy who, so long ago, 'roped' her handsome, debonnaire cowboy. Marge (Blakeston) was our teacher at M.C.S. (Metcalfe Continuation School). Claire, according to the Citizen writer, by virtue of having contributed to the advancement and welfare of horse-racing, is a certified Canadian Harness Pioneer. By gosh it appears he and Marge have contribued in other ways as well — three daughters, two sons and (although it doesn't say so) we're guessing there are grandchildren in the 'stable' as well. Yep we sure have fond memories of the man who loved horses and the 'school marm' who loved him.

It says here many who are not paid what they are worth ought to be glad.

At a public meeting held in the town hall, on Monday evening last, to decide whether or not our annual fair would be continued, it was decided to put forth the effort to keep the fair going for a few more years at least.

As most people know, the fair, for the last six or seven years, has not been having the attendance it required to carry on financially and it was to this end that the officers and directors thought it advisable to call a public meeting of business men and citizens to get their views and suggestions as to how the financial obligations of the Agricultural Society could be met, or if it was their wish that the annual fair be discontinued and the property be sold in order to pay off an existing debt of $1,700, which required $100 interest per annum, to be paid until they got financial support from some source.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police headquarters on Tuesday issued a statement urging the public to co-operate in enforcing the new amendment to the Criminal Code with respect to registration of revolvers and pistols which was passed at the recent session of Parliament.

The amendment requires persons possessing revolvers or pistols to register them between March 1 and July 1, 1939, and periodically every five years thereafter. In 1934, when registration of weapons was made compulsory by Parliament, no provision was made for a periodical re-registration.

Nothing seems to have such a demoralizing effect on the character of the English people as the gasoline restrictions, and motorists seem to attempt any kind of deception to get around them.

In a desperate effort to enforce the regulations, the authorities have set most severe penalties, which appear out of all proportion to the punishment for much more serious offences. The new regulations in effect from June 1 make it make it more difficult than ever to catch illegal users.

"Bill Gorrell, 90, Mrs. Casselman, 93." They were the key words spoken by Stan Price, president of the Grenville-Dundas Progressive Conservative Association, at Spencerville Town Hall Tuesday night. After four hours and four ballots of suspense, 184 delegates had reached a decision at the biggest convention ever held in the history of the riding. With the announcement the huge crowd, which overflowed into the downstairs part of the building and outside to the spacious lawns, broke out into an enthusiastic cheer .

Mrs. Jean Casselman, widow of A. Clair Casselman who held the riding for 37 years, was chosen to follow her husband's footsteps.

North Dundas District High School principal Howard Manchester said last week that 89 per cent of all students were successfully promoted this year. In a breakdown of grades and promotions Mr. Manchester pointed out that a Grade 9 student Cynthia Gray, with an 87.6 per cent average, had the highest mark in the school. She was closely followed by Brian Larmour of Grade 11 and Grade 13 student Gardia Koolwine who each had 87 per cent.

Farm Update

Supply management wins global support

BRAINDER, MN — Implementing international market sharing arrangements and supply management systems for farm commodities, rather than eliminating subsidies and farm price supports will lead to world agricultural trade peace, according to an international gathering of farm leaders.

A two-day conference brought together farm leaders from Canada, the United States, Japan and Western Europe to discuss the global farm crisis and to propose solutions that take into account the needs of family farmers in all countries.

Wayne Easter, president of the National Farmers Union of Canada reported that producers from all countries face similar problems including high debt loads, falling commodity prices, declining asset values, soil and water degradation and economic pressure from multinational corporations.

"The consensus that emerged from this international farmers conference was that we need fair trade not free trade," said Easter.

He said the Canadian supply-managed program for dairy, poultry and eggs was viewed by farmers from other countries as models for systems which they are trying to establish. But rather than strengthening and defending these programs Easter said the Canadian government is allowing them to be undermined by free trade.

"Canada can and should be a leader in working out international trading systems that promote economic justice for producers," he said.

Former Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan told the conference that while support to farmers amounts to several billion dollars each year the amount of money squandered on weapons and the military is more than one trillion.

Farm income predicted to remain static for '88

OTTAWA — Agriculture Canada economists predict realized net farm income for 1988 will remain at the record 1987 level of $5.52 billion.

But higher cost receipts will be offset by increased farm operating expenses and depreciation charges. Lower incomes are forecast for producers in all provinces east of Saskatchewan with the exception of Newfoundland. The declines will be led by reduced receipts for hogs and potatoes.

Income prospects for western producers are extremely sensitive to the current drought but due to higher crop and livestock receipts, farm income in Saskatchewan is expected to show a substantial 17.5 per cent increase.

There will likely also be modest gains in Alberta and British Columbia of 7.9 and 2.7 per cent.

The total cash farm receipts for 1988 are expected to increase by two per cent, a result of steady livestock receipts and higher crop and other cash receipts.

Farm operating expenses and depreciation charges will reach $16.1 billion this year, a moderate boost mainly reflecting price increases for major farm materials such as fuel, fertilizer, machinery repairs and feeds.

Soybean crop reduced

CHATHAM — A July 5 survey of soybean growers from across Ontario indicates that the drought may have already reduced this year's soybean crop by 32 per cent.

At 1,300,000 acres, soybeans are the second largest acreage cash crop in Ontario after corn. The 1987 soybean crop had a farm value of $320 million.

Low rainfall and high temperatures have stunted the growth of the soybean plants and caused leaves to curl and wilt. The most severe damage was reported in Kent and Essex counties.

Payment cheques in the mail

OTTAWA — The final payment under the 1987 extension to the Special Canadian Grains Program is on its way to farmers.

Interim payments were mailed in February. The 1987 program provided $1.1 billion in assistance to Canadian grain and oilseed farmers.

Carleton hosts prairie exchange

GREELY — Ten 4-H members from Swift Current, Saskatchewan, enjoyed an extensive tour of the Ottawa Valley as guests of local 4-H members last week.

The exchange program was sponsored by the department of the secretary of state in conjunction with Canada Council of 4-H and official escorts during the visit are Myra and Gordon Kelly of Greely.

The hosts planned an interesting and educational program for their western friends including visits to Patterson Berry Farm; Continental Mushroom Plant; Parliament Buildings; Rideau Canal boat trip; Central Experimental Farm; Expos ball game at Montreal; several dairy farms and shopping excursions.

4-H members playing the role of hosts included Dianne Acres, Andy Booth, Anne-Marie Droogh, Lisa Hehn, Jennifer Hyland, Julia Jeacle, Karen MacIntyre, Susan Mussell, Jill Patterson and Carrie-Lynn Reid. During the week the visitors met local members of parliament as well as area mayors and other dignitaries.

August open

KEMPTVILLE — The two agricrews serving Grenville and Dundas Counties are enjoying a busy summer and are fully booked until the end of July, with a waiting list of farmers willing to hire them in the event of a cancellation.

But then it stops. There are no bookings or waiting lists for August. With the program running until Aug. 19, there are three weeks with no work.

The program is geared primarily towards farmers but is available to anyone needing work done. For $110 a day, a crew of four students can paint, clean, weed, bring in wood, hay, prune trees, etc.

Limitations are set for the crew's safety. They cannot use creosote, chemicals, chain saws, drive farm vehicles on public roads or do any second-storey construction or destruction.

Crews can be booked by calling the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food in Kemptville.

WI presents Burton award

by Margaret Burton

RUSSELL — The June meeting of the North Russell Women's Institute was held at the home of Joyce Cherry with president Joyce MacGregor in the chair.

Special guests of the evening were Helen Burns of Navan, provincial board member for District One and Cheryl Wall of Navan, first recipient of the Margaret Burton scholarship award. Mrs. Burns was introduced by Marjorie Dugdale our district secretary.

Mrs. Burns told us how much she had enjoyed her three years as a board member and how much of a learning experience those three years had been.

Resolutions had been one of her committee responsibilities, how to gather data, how to write it up and how to present it in the proper form.

Cheryl Wall thanked everyone for their part in the scholarship award and told us she was attending Algonquin College and that she had used the money towards purchasing books for her course.

Conveners for the evening were Marjorie Dugdale and Anne James who called to our attention the need for the recycling of garbage and the preservation of our natural resources for the benefit of our youth.

Our district president, Mrs. Ruth Bertrand, brought greetings from the district and reminded us how important it is to help maintain the W.I. project "Clean Water For All."

The evening closed with a very amusing skit put on by Helen Burns and Marjorie Dugdale. O Canada and the Institute grace was sung, a dainty lunch was served by Hester Graves and Ida Magladry.

Betty Dugdale thanked our hostess and all who had attended and those who had taken part in the evening's program. Twenty-two members attended.

Province-wide search on for junior citizens

WINCHESTER — The Winchester area is included in a province-wide search for young people who best exemplify the qualities of good citizenship.

The Winchester Press is the local sponsor for the Ontario Junior Citizens program, which each year recognizes youngsters from six to 18 for their courage, ingenuity, resourcefulness, initiative, leadership, fortitude and community service.

Since 1981, the program has recognized close to 100 children from across the province for their citizenship qualities.

The award recipients and their families will be honored at a testimonial luncheon in Toronto in March. They will be received by Ontario Lieutenant-Governor Lincoln Alexander and each presented with a $200 cheque, a gold lapel pin and a family portrait with the Lieutenant-Governor.

The Winchester Press will accept nominations for the program until Oct. 31.

Letter to the editor

Here, one woman gave a low despairing moan and sank to the ground.

"What if he looks in my 13-year-old's bedroom closet?" she whimpered.

Joe had come over to see what was going on. He had taken the day off work to move his collection of old cars from the front driveway to the backyard. He explained that he was "avoiding an unsightly condition deleterious to the neighboring environment" by building a wood-pile around them.

"Speaking of unsightly," drawled a lady from one of the big new houses down the street, "what's that?"

An evil-smelling and villainous mutt had joined the group and was busy peeing up against a clematis.

"I mean," she continued, "that's the kind of thing that lowers the property values."

One of Joe's hens, who had followed him across the road, clucked sympathetically and was met by an icy glare.

"Personally," snapped the dog's owner, looking pointedly at the last speaker, "I find unnaturally green, chemically weed-free lawns an eyesore — not to mention that outfit you're wearing."

"Good point," said another woman thoughtfully. "Some people have no color sense at all and it does let the tone of the neighborhood down."

Mrs. H., trying to follow this train of thought, said she actually felt the law was a good idea if it meant her husband wouldn't slop around on Saturdays looking like something that had been found at the dump. Unfortunately, her husband, who was home maintaining his interior, came out in time to hear this remark.

The mood was turning ugly — quite unlike our usual peaceful street — and that's when I remembered a recent Bob Newhart episode. Stephanie the maid doesn't like the country. In a conversation with boyfriend, Michael, she suggests getting rid of all the animals because they make the place so rural! Then there would be no need for farmers — or — even better, farm clothing!

"Oh, Michael," she exclaims joyfully, "This is probably how New York City got started!"

Yes indeed. Get rid of the animals. Sell the farms for sub-divisions. Put in a few malls. Pollute the wells. So what if people don't like it. Use the bylaw. Enforce standards. Slap on a fine for non-compliance. Evict.

Maybe the neighbors had seen the show too. An uneasy silence descended and we dispersed quietly to our homes.

Ag standards act updated

OTTAWA — The Canada Agricultural Products Standards Act was amended by the House of Commons June 30, helping to clarify and strengthen the provisions of the current Act.

The original 1955 legislation established national standards and regulated international and interprovincial trade in agricultural products including livestock, eggs, poultry, milk, vegetables, fruit, honey, maple syrup and leaf tobacco.

Included in the amendments are changes to boost consumer protection against interprovincial or international trade in agricultural products that don't meet Canada's health standards.

The amendments provide Agriculture Canada with authority to control consignment sales of produce and to regulate the transport of fruits and vegetables in bulk containers. As well, the Act features stronger measures to protect Canada's product grade names and inspection system. Fines and penalties have been increased from previous levels.

Vet club hears Vander Meer

by Karen Johnston

KEMPTVILLE — The fourth meeting of the Dundas Veterinary Club was held on June 16 at the Eastern Breeders Inc. in Kemptville.

The meeting began with the introduction of Jim Vander Meer, an Embryo Transfer Technologist at Eastern Breeders. The 4-H pledge was recited and the roll call was taken. The minutes of the last meeting were then read by the secretary, and the meeting was given to Mr. Vander Meer. He explained to the club the reproductive cycle of a cow.

He provided slides which included the process of artificial insemination and pictures of the different grades of embryos.

The next meeting will be held on July 14, at the Bimond's home at 8pm.

Dalrymples host 4-H club

WINCHESTER — The fifth meeting of South Dundas Dairy Club was held on July 12 at Dalabar Farm, home of the Dalrymple family. The meeting began with the 4-H pledge, minutes and roll call. Information sheets were handed out to aid members at Judging Day, July 29 in Kemptville. Judging will include dairy animals, goat, sheep, beef, horses and first aid kits. The lesson was on menu planning for cattle.

Isabella Farlinger had another activity as part of her youth project. A class of cattle was judged and reasons were given.

Robbie Smail thanked the Dalrymples for the use of their farm. The meeting was adjourned followed by refreshments.

Sheep club holds meeting

OXFORD MILLS — The third meeting of the Grenville-Dundas 4-H Sheep Club was held on the Seguin farm in Oxford Mills. The Seguins showed us their show flock, test station rams and how to trim feet.

Then we adjourned to the house where we completed the lesson for this meeting. We thanked Mr. and Mrs. Seguin for showing us their farm and went home.

The next meeting was held at Max Colwell's farm on July 17.

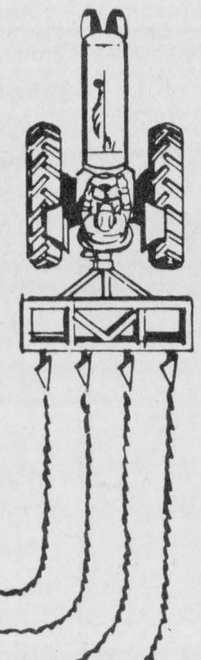
IT'S FARM SAFETY WEEK

JULY 25th TO JULY 31st



Help promote farm safety and save lives

A message from Jack Riddell
Minister of Agriculture and Food

This is the time of year when the farming community gears up for the busy growing and harvesting season. Now, more than ever, farmers must consider their safety and health needs.

Farm Safety Week, July 25-31, helps to reinforce the importance of working carefully, with the best safety tested methods available.

At the Ministry of Agriculture and Food, we are committed to encouraging safety-oriented programs.

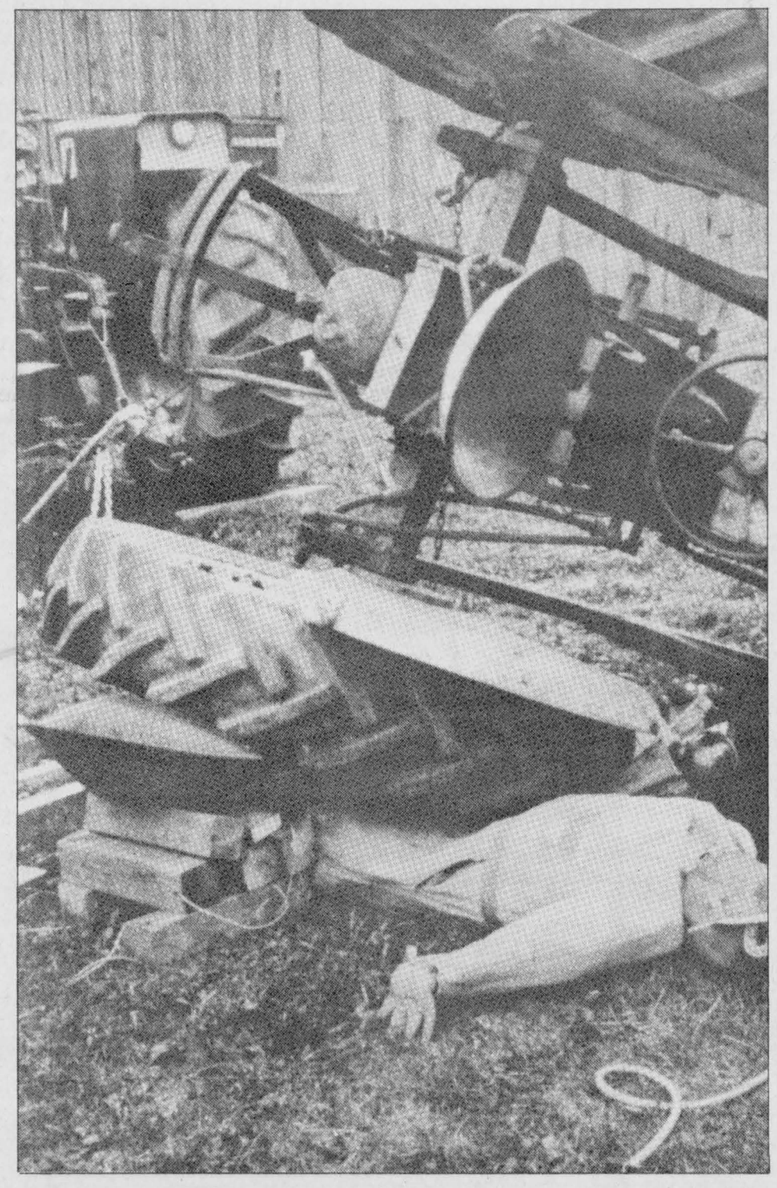
The recently completed $50 million Farm Management, Safety and Repairs Program has helped nearly 28,000 farmers cover the costs of replacement parts, storage facilities and safety enhancement devices. During the one-year program, farmers were provided with 80 per cent of funding towards items such as roll bars and personal protective equipment.

The Grower Pesticide Safety Course, sponsored this winter as a pilot project at Ridgetown College, has also received enthusiastic response. Nearly 1,500 people have now taken the courses.

In addition, under our pesticide reduction program, Food Systems 2002, this education project is being expanded and will reach up to 35,000 growers over the next five years.

I am also looking forward to receiving recommendations from the Farm Health and Safety Implementation Committee, which was appointed in 1987 in conjunction with the Ministry of Labor.

In the meantime, I look forward to my ministry's continued co-operative success with the Farm Safety Association, and my best wishes for a safe 1988.



Be safety-wise!

WINCHESTER — During a 10-year period from 1977 to 1986, the Ontario Farm Safety Association documented 421 farming-related fatalities in the province. In 1987, 31 agricultural fatalities were reported and the number of farm-related injuries increased slightly.

Farm Safety Week is July 25 to 31 and the OFA is encouraging farmers to be safety conscious not only during this week but throughout the year.

Ottawa-Carleton had the third worst injury record in 1987 behind York and Middlesex counties. One hundred and eighty-three injuries were reported, 6.2 per cent of the overall total.

Nearly two-thirds of Ontario farm fatalities involve tractors and farm machinery. More careful operation, based on improved user knowledge, is the key to reducing equipment-related deaths.

Tractor rollovers are the biggest threat to safety and are responsible for many disabling injuries. Overturns usually result from operator carelessness or distraction.

Every tractor operator should be thoroughly familiar with the particular machine they are using. Operators must have an appreciation for the various hazards that may be encountered.

The tractor should be properly ballasted, implements correctly hitched and all protective equipment in good condition.

Rollover protective structures, seat belts and shielding are key ingredients of safety. Good lighting makes night work easier and may help to avoid a mishap.

AGE OF VICTIM

Fatalities among the zero to five and 16 to 20 age category were 25 per cent higher than the average for all other age groups. Those in the youngest age group were mostly innocent bystanders whose deaths occurred when they were placed in dangerous and inappropriate situations.

From 1977 to 1986, 80 children (15 years and younger) died in farming-related accidents. A majority of the fatalities occurred in and around farmsteads.

Farmers should remember several basics to help protect children. Equipment and buildings should be made childproof or off limits; dangerous materials must be made inaccessible; and, set a good example. When children begin working on the farm they will usually copy the actions of the adult.

A nine-year-old child was killed in Stormont County in June 1987 after falling from a tractor cab. A 34-year-old man was killed in Dundas County in 1987 after being overcome by silo gas while working on a farm near Brinston. In Ottawa-Carleton a 29-year-old victim was killed after being hit on the head by a broken bearing that was thrown from a compost turner. Almost three-quarters of all deaths victimized farm family members.

August is traditionally the worst month for farm accidents, accounting for 60 fatalities during the 10 year survey period. There were 55 deaths in July, 53 in November and 52 in May. Over 52 per cent of all farming fatalities occurred during these four months of peak farming activity. Fatal accidents occur most frequently between 10am to noon and 4pm to 6pm.

SAFETY BASICS

Some of the worst farm accidents occur through simple forgetfulness or carelessness, especially during harvest time when the pressure is on. By remembering a few simple safety basics, farmers can prevent needless tragedy and death.

Remember equipment should be made "harvest-ready" during the off season and all routine maintenance should be carried out on schedule. Guards and shields should be secured before equipment is started, hydraulically-raised equipment should be securely blocked before anyone starts working around the machine, and plugged equipment must never be cleared by hand while the power is engaged. A careless moment could cost a hand, arm or death.

COPING WITH STRESS

Today's farmer faces pressures that often seem too much to handle, ranging from financial problems to bad weather to a heavy workload.

Too much stress can disrupt family life and cause serious health problems. Stress is the reaction to a challenge or threat and can affect people in different ways. Occasional stress is a normal part of everyday life but too much, out of control, can become harmful.

Farmers must learn how to cope with stress - a calmer mind will produce a safer work environment. The first step in controlling stress is to identify the things that cause it and how serious a problem the stress is. Finally, decide if there is more stress now than a year or two ago. If so, is it because the attitude or the problems have changed?

Once the farmer understands how stress is affecting him, it can be brought under control. Talking about problems is one good way of relieving stress. Recognizing when the stress level is getting high is another.

Some things like commodity prices and the weather are out of the hands of the everyday farmer and should not be agonized over. Scheduling time realistically will help control stress and the feeling of not accomplishing everything in one day. Occasional short breaks are necessary to break up the day and developing an outside hobby or learning to relax by taking a leisurely walk or reading will also help to calm the nerves.

There is no way to totally eliminate stress from a job as demanding as farming but learning to keep it under control will prove worthwhile.

Card of Thanks

CARD OF THANKS — We would like to thank our neighbors, friends and relatives for cards, flowers, expressions of sympathy and memorial donations, and to anyone who brought food to our home. Special thanks to Dr. MacMillan, the nurses and staff of the East Wing of the Winchester hospital for the wonderful care they gave our late brother, Harold McLaren, also the VONs who came to our home. Thanks to the Duncan Funeral Home, pallbearers Douglas and Donald Durant, David McLaren, Kevin Allen. Your kindness will not be forgotten.
—Jennie and Harold,
Dan and Dorothy 15

In Memoriam

MORROW — In loving memory of a dear daughter, Aynslee, whom God called home July 9, 1980.
Gone from earth so swiftly
Just like a flower in bloom
So young, so fair, so loving,
Yet called away so soon,
We will meet her some glad morning,
Visiting by water fair,
She is waiting for our coming
In the upper garden there.
—Safe in the arms of Jesus
Mother and sister Lola 15
