Chesterville and District Red Cross Contributed $5881.71 During Year

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Chesterville and district Red Cross Society was held on Wednesday, January 13 th in the Community Hall.

The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and approved.

The financial and work reports were given by the surrounding districts which were very gratifying and showed the splendid work done in each district.

Mr. O. L. King gave a splendid report of the Entertainment Committee whose objective was to raise $100 each month for the Red Cross funds.

Mrs. Lyle Marcellus gave a report of the work done by the Women's Institute for the year—thirty eight boxes were sent to our boys overseas for Christmas.

Mr. Bernard Allen gave an excellent report from the Salvage Committee who were successful in raising $918.93.

Mr. Brown read the Treasurer's report which read as follows:—

CANADIAN COL. AWARDED V.C.

Lt. Col. Charles Cecil Ingersoll Merritt, the South Saskatchewan Regiment, who was awarded the VC for "matchless gallantry and inspiring leadership" in the British combined operations raid on Dieppe, August 19. To his personal daring (he led at least four parties in turn across a bridge under deadly enemy fire, headed rushes against German pillboxes when several of his runners became casualties kept contact with his units himself) the success of his unit's operations and the re embarkation of a large portion of it were chiefly due. He was last seen preparing a defensive position to cover the withdrawal: It is reported that he is a prisoner of war.

HUBERT H. LLOYD, M.D., C.M.

Among those to graduate from Queen's University, Kingston, in medicine, today, will be Dr. Hubert H. Lloyd who has passed his examinations for Doctor of Medicine and Master of Surgery. Hubert is a graduate of Chesterville Public and High School. During the next eight months Hubert will be House Surgeon at the Civic Hospital, Ottawa, after which, he will go on active service with the RCAMC.

Radio Forum News

Due to the stormy weather and no hydro in some sections, Radio Forums were not very successful last Monday night. However three newly organized forums met. One at Allison Graham's and two in Stormont county, at Phil Casselman's and Geo. Pollock's.

SS No. 10 met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Edgerton with Mrs. Hulbert Cross as convenor and John Sutherland acting as secretary. National Health, was the topic for discussion. Among the findings was the part that of the 10,000 Canadian doctors, over 2600 were serving with the armed forces. As over 40 percent of Canadians have been rejected from the army due to physical disabilities, and the government deems it advisable to keep the physically well 60 percent, in good health by utilizing over 25 percent of our doctors, how can the remaining 75 percent attend to the medical needs of all Canada's women, children, old men, the halt, blind and diseased who were unfit for the army?

If it is good business to keep the armed forces fit, is it not equally important to keep women, children, munition workers, farmers, etc., in, at least running repair? The Federation of Agriculture has submitted a programme to the government and this or some other national health scheme will serve to be part of the social reforms enacted in the post war period.

James L. Dillabough Dies In Saskatoon Hospital

Mr. James L. Dillabough, eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Dillabough, Dunbar, died in Saskatoon City Hospital, January 7th, 1943 at 7.15 p.m., following an operation from which he seemed to be recovering when acute Bright's disease set in and he passed away in a few days. Surviving in addition to his wife, who was Mary Bovey of Estevan, are three daughters, and one son, Lily Rebecca and Alice at home and Mary, Mrs. Pete Heppner, close at home; and James Henry on the homestead at Moose Range. Also two grandchildren, Marlene and Donald Heppner and four sisters, Mrs. Henry Whittaker and Mrs. Henry Barkley, Williamsburg; Mrs. Aden Casselman of Winchester Springs and Mrs. Charles Hopper of Westboro; one brother, Willie D. Dillabough of Dunbar, and two brothers-in-low, Henry Sargent of Dunbar, and Howard Revier of Rochester, N. Y. He was 60 years of age. The remains were taken home to Moose Range for the funeral and burial in Moose Range cemetery.

WARM IN CALIFORNIA

In a note from Hosea McMillan of Alhambra, California, he says the temperature is hovering around 79 and 80 degrees which in contrast to local temperatures during the past month, would almost make one wish he was in California.

D. B. McDonald, Lochiel New Counties' Warden

Unanimous choice of the members, D.B. McDonald, reeve of Lochiel township, today was elected warden of the United Counties council of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry for 1943.

Mr. McDonald's nomination was the only one submitted to Clerk-treasurer A.K. MacMillan after the council convened in Cornwall Wednesday afternoon for the January session.

Mover of the nomination was W. J. Major, reeve of Lancaster township, with A. A. Fraser, reeve of Kenyon township as seconder. The new warden was installed in office by reeve George L. McIntosh of Roxborough township an ex-warden.

In a brief address following his election and installation, Warden McDonald said he disagreed with those who favored obolishment of county councils, as he felt such councils were an essential part of democracy.

"I think these councils should be continued to further our democratic way of living," the warden-elect declared.

A native of Glen Sandfield, Glengarry county, Warden McDonald is a son of the late Donald McDonald and his wife, the former Elizabeth McDonald, of Bridge End, Glengarry. Warden McDonald first entered municipal life in 1932 when he was elected a member of the Lochiel township council. In 1934 he was elected deputy reeve and occupied that office until 1936.

He was elected reeve of his township in 1938 and has served continuously in that office. The new warden

Trinity United Hears Glowing Reports For 1942

Last evening the members and adherents of the Trinity United church gathered in the Sunday School hall in annual congregational meeting, heard one of the finest reports that has ever been presented of a year's operations. Owing no doubt to the very cold weather a great many were not in from the country. Every report presented showed obligations all met and substantial balances on hand.

The report of the Session showed a fine increase in membership with those received into membership by certificate and those by confession of faith until at the beginning of the new year the membership roll shows an all time high of 350.

A year ago reports showed the congregation with a deficit of more than $600. During the fall a canvass had been made of the membership which met with a most liberal response. Last night the treasurer's report showed all obligations met and cash balance on hand of more than $200.

All down the line of church activities the different societies showed substantial cash balances with which to begin the new year.

One line of endeavor seemed to have met with half hearted support when it was shown that an attempt to keep the Young People's Union active had not met with the desired response. An attempt had been made to induce other than those of the 'teen age group to take up the challenge, that is, the younger married members of the congregation, but was eventually postponed until a more propitious occasion.

Rev. R. C. Tait, the pastor, was extended many congratulations which were coupled with the name of Mrs. Tait, for zeal and success of the year's work.

WILL RATIONING CURB INFLATION

While drastic efforts have from time to time been resorted to in an effort to curb inflation it cannot be said that the situation at present is an altogether happy one. It seems plain that the people will have to reconcile themselves to a more rigid system of conservation and a sharing plan of rationing. Meat is now a scarce commodity and black markets are hinted at, while cattle producers seem not only suspicious of the powers that be but apprehensive as to the future. Butter and bacon have entered the charmed rationing circle with sugar, tea and coffee; tinned goods are said to be the next in line to go on the ilst. With a strike of hard coal miners in full swing in the United States the problem of how to keep the home fires burning is well worthy of consideration. In the rural districts even seasoned fuelwood is at a premium, hard wood of four foot lengths commanding $10 a cord. while the price fixed for hard wood in cities and towns has been placed at $15 a cord. The trouble is that even at these prices there is not much wood offering as with the labor shortage farmers have not been able to get out in the bush as regularly as in the past and seasoned stocks have become depleted. Hon. P. M. Dewan, Ontario Minister of Agriculture is not too cheerful in his out look as to the future. Addressing the Dairymen's Association of Western Ontario, he said: "I am firmly convinced we are not yet sufficiently awake to the acuteness of the farm situation. If the war continues as it has, a food shortage is not far away. I have just recalled to you goals set by the Dominion for increased production last year. We had difficulty attaining those goals. Still higher goals are asked for 1943. We will have difficulty reaching those goals, and I have some doubt if the newly increased goals have been set high enough. Mr. Dewan listed his suggestions to get Canada's (and Ontario's) farms on a basis necessary to meet the asked for increased production and to avert a threatened food shortage. They were:

1. Retain all farms on present help.
2. If possible, get back from industry, those farmers who have gone there, provided it can be done without hindering the war effort.
3. Get away from short time defer ments for farmers.
4. Attract help to necessary farm work from marginal and submarginal farms, where contributions to war effort production is limited.
5. Classify farming as a war job and a definite contribution to the war effort.
6. Organize to the limit all possible part time harvest help from cities, high schools and collegiates.

PASS EXAMS OR ELSE

The authorities are about to turn the heat on the college boy. In future he will be obliged to have something more to recommend him than vociferous ability as a cheer leader of discriminating judgment in the selection of sports. With the world engaged in a struggle for survival students who show unsatisfactory academic records will be released from their courses and made subject to military or other war services. The text is already being applied. Students who fail in the term examinations will not be given another chance but he will be referred to the tender mercies of the recruiting boards. It has long been recognized that college halls have for years been cluttered with a large percentage of youth who regarded their sojourn there as little short of a glorified holiday. They were tolerated because their devil may care airs gave a sort of false glamor to the whole educational set-up. Old timers still refer with gusto to one famous student of an Ontario University who spent fifteen years at the institution devoting his attention seasonally to baseball, rugby and hockey. He would have continued longer in pursuit of learning if the financial fount at home had not run dry. It has long been contended that the higher seats of learning should be maintained for youths who show merit and a genuine desire to acquire knowledge. This is a subject that is engaging the attention of the authorities of Great Britain in respect to their public schools which it is felt should no longer be reserved for the exclusive use of the children of the rich. It has been made clear that the ban on students who fail in their examinations, so far as this province is concerned, will be applied without distinction as to sex and that the names of girls as well as boys will be forwarded to the National Selective Service to make such use of as is deemed expedient.

Fighting in the western desert died down after the defeat of General Rommel's drive on the British desert positions, but the area was strewn with the wreckage of battle.

Picture shows:—A British Bren carrier crossing the battlefield after the enemy had retreated to their lines. Many derelict enemy vehicles are strewn about the desert.

HOW DO YOU LIKE YOUR FRESH FRUIT

There was probably never a time when the question of food so absorbed the attention of the average Ontario family as at present. Every day sees more popular articles of diet placed on the restricted list and the housewife obliged to exercise a fine sense of discriminations in her selections. In this particular it is gratifying to observe that fruit growers will be called upon to supply the canned article that may shortly be placed upon the rationed list. At the convention of the Niagara Peninsula Fruit Growers plans were discussed of supplying the hard, green variety so frequently offered for sale at the very height of the fruit season. A five year plan has been suggested whereby growers would make an exhaustive study of what the consumer of fresh fruit wants and then supply it to him. The growers propose to seek the co operation of the Dominion and Ontario Fruit Branches of the Department of Agriculture and experimental farms in an investigation by actual shipment and follow up (to consumer) to determine the best containers to use, the best methods of packing and the proper stage of ripeness to pick peaches and kindred fruits for the respective markets. The green fruit market has long militated against the financial returns of the growers and it seems but wisdom that steps be taken to combat it. Another matter calling for reform is the doing away with deceptive coverings on fruit baskets. The red and other coloured nettings that find a place on fruit containers not only enhance the size of green fruit but give them a color and ripe and juicy appearance, that is little short of a fraud on the public.

IF YOU MAKE BUTTER YOU MUST REGISTER

Local ration boards now functioning throughout this part of Ontario are ready to receive registrations of farmers who make butter on their premises. Such registrations are required before January 31 under the butter rationing order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Producers of dairy butter may register by sending their names and addresses to their local ration board.

These boards are also prepared to receive from producers of dairy butter the ration coupons which they have collected from their customers or stores in return for butter sold to them. Coupons covering sales of this discription during December and January need not be turned in to the local ration boards before the end of January. Thereafter all coupons must be turned in at the end of each month.

Every farmer who makes his own butter and who consumes it in his own household is also required under the rationing order to turn in every month enough coupons from his household ration books to cover the butter so consumed, at the rate of one coupon per half pound of butter per week per person.

Would Italian Prisoners Solue Farm Labour Problem

With the arrival in Canada of 900 Italian prisoners of war the suggestion has been made that these men might be made available for production work in Ontario during the coming summer. There is a growing feeling that the Italians are better workers than fighters and there is not the same antagonism towards Il Duce's followers as obtains in respect to the Nazis. The thought of permitting German prisoners of war to work on Ontario farms would be anathema to all Canadians not to say dangerous in the extreme. There is no doubt that the farm labour shortage will be much more acute in this province in 1943 if Canada is to fulfill her obligations to the old land in the matter of supplying vital items of food. It is contended that Italian war prisoners might be profitably employed in farm labor camps as one way of relieving the manpower shortage in Britain in 1941, 30,000 Italian prisoners aided in the harvest. There the prisoners are divided into two groups—those which can be trusted to work without guard and those which are worked from internment camps. Just how successful the proposed plan would prove would depend on the attitude of the people in respect to the Italians. The experiment of employing Canadian-born Japanese from the Pacific coast in Ontario in beet culture was not crowned with particular success owing to the opposition to their employment in some communities. It was said there was no fault to be found with them as workers but due to the stories of the perfidy of the Japanese leaders and their treatment of prisoners of war an inherant distrust of all Nipponese was engendered. The attitude or reaction to the Italians may be different and with the manner in which Italian soldiers are being rounded up in Egypt and Africa there would be no lack of prisoners of war to aid in the Canadian harvest.

FINANCING THE FEDERATION OF AGRICULTURE

At a recent meeting, Walter E. Haskins, secretary of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, said the total cost of the Federation to the farmers of Canada was equivalent to one egg each. In other words, if all the farmers of Canada had each placed one egg in a crate at a central point and the eggs were sold at the time Mr. Haskins made the statement the returns would have defrayed the expenses of the Federation of Agriculture for 1942.

Never before has Canada had a farmer's organization that so effectively combined all the provinces and all phases of industry as the Federation of Agriculture is now doing. And never before has a farm organization in Canada achieved so much for rural people as the Federation has done in these last 18 months. In spite of all its accomplishments the Federation is poorly and insufficiently financed, and we should hang our heads in shame that so many splendid men and women are giving freely of their time, and often of their means, in behalf of Canada's basic industry and in behalf of one third of the population, and the thousands who profit by these efforts do not even come forwards with the one egg that would help the good work along.

The annual convention in Toronto finally agreed to ask for legislation permitting a tax up to one-fifth of a mill on the assessment. The levy is fair enough. British farmers pay threepence per acre, or the equival- of about 5½ cents. In many of the United States farm organizations the annual fee is $5. It will take months perhaps years to secure the legislation and in the meantime the Federation goes begging for funds.

What should happen right now is that farmers everywhere would go to the nearest director of a county unit and say: "Here is my dollar, keep up the good work!"

KEEP A STIFF UPPER LIP
By Phoebe Cary

There has something gone wrong,
My brave boy, it appears,
For I see your proud struggle
To keep back the tears.
That is right; when you cannot
Give trouble the slip,
Then bear it, still keeping
A stiff upper lip!

Though you cannot escape
Disappointment and care,
There's one thing you can do,
It is, learn how to bear.
If when for life's prizes
You're running, you trip,
Get up, start again,
Keep a stiff upper lip!

Let you hands and your conscience
Be honest and clean;
Scorn to touch or to think
Of the thing that is mean;
But hold on to the pure
And the right with firm grip,
And though hard be the task,
Keep a stiff upper lip!

Red Cross Appeal Set For March

A national appeal for $10,000,000 in voluntary contributions to the work of the Canadian Red Cross Society will be launched throughout the Dominion on March 1st and through the succeeding three weeks. This was announced here today in a joint statement by Jackson Dodds, Chairman of the Contral Council and Mr. Justice P.H. Gordon, chairman of the National Executive of the Society.

"The Canadian Red Cross urgently needs a minimum of $10,000,000 to carry on its work in the mitigation of human suffering," the statement declared. "When the Society made its appeal to the people last May there was a general response and we feel confident that the citizens of Canada, who are noted for their open heartedness will once more rally to the support of our cause.

"The Red Cross is an international organization and under the Conventions of Geneva, is required to obtain its support by voluntary subscriptions to preserve its rights, privileges and immunities guaranteed under International Law," the statement said. "No belligerent government may finance a Red Cross Society; to do so would destroy the International status of the Society and even wipe out its immunity under fire.

"The decision to hold the national appeal in March was made with the fullest co-operation of the Dominion Government to avoid clashing with plans of the National War Finance Committee," the statement declared. "Also during March the American Red Cross will hold its national war appeal, making it a continent-wide Red Cross Month..

One of the biggest works facing the Society during the current year is supplying food parcels for Canadian, British and Empire prisoners of war in Europe and the Far East. The Society now has five packing plants in Canada, which shortly will reach a weekly objective of 100,000 parcels. Of this amount the Canadian Red Cross donates 30,000 weekly for prisoners in Europe, the remainder being paid for by British and Australian Red Cross Societies. Provision also has to be made for food, drugs and other supplies for Canadian prisoners in the Far East. These two objectives alone will require $5,500,000 during 1943.

"During the past year hundreds of thousands of women in all parts of Canada have worked faithfully and unremittingly to supply the Red Cross with the materials that it needs to take care of the requirements of Canadian soldiers here and overseas and to look after the needs of the sick and the suffering among the bombed-out population of Britain and to prepare for whatever eventuality may befall Canada itself," the statement continued.

"A new phase of the Societies work has been the provision of aid and relief for the stricken peoples of the United Nations," the statement added. "Food, clothing and drugs have ben sent to Russia, China, Greece, Poland and comforts, ambulances and other supplies given to the armed forces of the Allies.

"The work of the Society has never been greater," the statement concludes, "and we appeal earnestly to Canadians everywhere to prepare themselves now to answer the call and to fill th most urgent need."

Farmers Should Support Federation of Agriculture

There is considerable discussion among farmers, and it is steadily growing, as to just what is the Federation of Agriculture and what is its aims. While impossible, it is yet unfortunate that every farmer in Dundas could not have attended the convention of the Ontario Federation which met in Toronto on January 7 to 8, when 360 delegates from all over Ontario met to discuss farm problems. Resolutions covering every farm problem from fruit growers troubles to daylight saving was discussed and the important ones passed on to the Canadian Federation which holds its annual meeting in Calgary during the last week in January.

Farm Forum work was enthusiastically stressed and the importance of that medium of getting in close touch with the ideas and thoughts of the farmers, who take enough interest in their own problems to meet, was clearly and forcibly demonstrated.

Lack of finance is an important factor in lack of publicity of the aims of the Federation—after all farmers cannot expect too much from an organization to which they only contribute the value of one egg a year as is stated in an article elsewhere in this issue. When farmers are prepared to pay their annual $ per farm, Federation officials will be able to have the aims and the results of their work available to every farm member. Until then help your own cause by joining or promoting a Farm Forum.

Once Again

On going into the cowshed, the farmer was surprised to find his new hand, a town girl, giving one of the cows a drink from her milking pail.

"What are ye doin' that for?" he demanded.

"Well," explained the girl", the milk seemed pretty thin to me so I thought I'd better put it through the process again."

Discouragement

A London policeman rushed up and grabbed a woe begone looking chap about to plunge head first off the bridge into the river. "Now, now," said the jovial officer, "let's not have this happen".

"But life is so awful," moaned the would be suicide.

And when they'd talked it all over, they both jumped in.

MILITARY CALL-UP

Attention!

* SINGLE MEN *

A proclamation recently issued by His Excellency, the Governor-General, requires that every single man, born in any year from 1902 to 1923, both years inclusive, who has not already received a notice or order to report for medical examination under compulsory military service, must fill out a special form at the office of a Postmaster, a Registrar of a Mobilization Board or an Employment and Selective Service Officer not later than February 1st, 1943.

For this purpose the term "single man" also includes any male person who was a widower, or legally separated or divorced, and without a child or children dependent on him at July 15, 1940, or any such male person who has suffered the loss of his dependent child or children after that date; and any male person who, though married at July 15th, 1940, since that date became a widower, legally separated or divorced, and is now without a child or children dependent on him.

Please observe that single men who have received notices to report for medical examination under the military call-up and who have been examined as required, or men who are now in the Armed Forces, are NOT included in those to register by February 1st.

Penalties are provided for failure to register.

THE NEW BEEKEEPER

Sugar rationing and increased prices of honey have made beekeeping attractive to many who have had little or no experience with the activities or needs of the bees.

Beekeeping is a business that should not be undertaken without thought or study. It means hard work for both head and hands and requires close attention to detail. Persons who are afraid of bees should not keep them and those who are seriously affected by their sting should never go near an apairy, says C.B. Gooderham, Dominion Apairist Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa

Before securing bees the beginner should learn something of their activities and how to manipulate them. This can best be done by spending as much time as possible with a successful beekeeper during the summer months and to supplement this experience by reading. Bulletins dealing with the various phases of beekeeping may be secured, free of charge, from Publicity and Extension Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, or from the nearest Dominion Experimental Farm or Station. In addition to government bulletins, good text books may be purchased from any dealer in bee supplies and possibly through any good book store. The beginner would also be wise to subscribe to one established beekeepers publications. Courses in beekeeping are given by several of the Agricultural Colleges. The new beekeeper should make himself acquainted with the regulations concerning the keeping of bees within the province in which he resides. This information can be obtained from the Provincial Departments of Agriculture.

When deciding upon equipment purchase only that which is modern and necessary. For producing comb honey at first and later transferring to extacted honey, or both, equipment should be bought that can be used for both purposes rather than special equipment for each. If second hand equipment is bought be sure it has never before housed diseased bees. It should be sterilized thoroughly before it is used.

For a start the beginner is well advised to purchase one or two good over wintered colonies from a reliable beekeeper, first making sure that the apairy from which they come is free of disease. If such colonies are not available package bees from the Southern States are good substitutes but if buying package bees be sure to have the necessary equipment on hand to house and care for them when they arrive. The best time to buy bees is in the spring, April for packages and early May for colonies.

Bees are primarily kept for the honey they will produce, but beeswax is also an important commodity. Save every particle of wax possible.

Hyndman

Mr. and Mrs. George Francis were Tuesday afternoon visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Kirker, McGregors Corners.

The community extends its sympathy to Mr. Elgin Baker and Gertrude and other friends in the death of Mrs. Baker who passed away on Wednesday, January 13th.

To Be Exact

For more than an hour the mild mannered little man in the witness box had squirmed helplessly under the cold, hostile questioning of the opposing counsel.

"You say," prompted the attorney, "that you have crossed the Atlantic seven times."

"Yes," replied the witness.

"And where were you born?"

"Then, sir," thundered the lawyer, "if you were born in New York and have crossed the Atlantic seven times how does it happen that you aren't on the other side at this moment? Answer me that!"

"Because, sir," replied the witness very quietly, "on my last trip I came home by way of Siberia and the Pacific Ocean."

Milk Truckers Must Obtain Permits

It is emphasized by the regional office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board that its recent order requiring all those who were engaged in the milk trucking business between December 1—26 last to obtain specific permits to continue such operations after January 31 does not apply to horse-drawn vehicles. Only automotive vehicles are affected and farmers hauling their own milk in their own trucks are not subject to the order. However, every person, farmer or not, who makes a business of collecting milk and/or cream on regular routes and hauling it to milk plants and similar places, does have to file an application for a permit before January 31 and the sooner the better. Application is to be made to the regional office of the board in Brockville.

The opinion is expressed by James Stewart, Administrator of Services of the board, that placing the milk-collecting business under a permit system will greatly simplify a proposed programme for co-ordinating milk collecting routes and eliminating duplications. It should not be possible he says, to make a substantial saving in the use of trucks and every such saving that can be made will prolong the life of vehicles that have to continue hauling milk and cream.

GOOD NEWS FOR DIABETICS..

An encouraging outlook for juvenile diabetics in the future is apparent from a report given by Dr. H. E. Eisle of the Baker Clinic of the New England Deaconess Hospital in St. Louis, and published in a recent issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Whereas diabetes usually strikes after the age of forty, juvenile diabetics must face the disease from almost the beginning. Yet Dr. Eisle found that out of 103 such patients attending the clinic in March, 1922, there are seventy-one or seven in every ten still alive today!

What the advent of insulin has meant is told in undramatic statistics 31 of the 103 died before the beginning of insulin treatment in 1923. But of the 72 who survived to receive the life-saving drug, only one has died since that time! From 1923 to 1942, only one died of a disease which all had acquired at a time when their chance of reaching maturity was believed to be nil! Ninety-eight percent of those who survived to receive the extract from the pancreas remain alive twenty or more years after the disease threatened them with speedy death. Insulin gave them a 98 out of a 100 chance to keep on living.

Dr. Eisle states in his report that none of these patients have had any difficulty whatsoever in undergoing surgical operations including removal of tonsils and adenoids, appendectomies and leg amputations. They are, he says, for the most part living and enjoying useful lives. Many of them hold positions of responsibility in the professions and crafts and those who are married have a total of 35 living and apparently healthy children. Interestingly enough Dr. Eisle's report reveals that these long term diabetics have a high educational level. Forty-two percent went to college as compared with seven per cent for ordinary people of the same age group.

"Like the older patient," concludes Dr. Eisle, "the juvenile diabetic patient has a constantly improving outlook for life and good health with the present day method of diabetic control and refined medical and sugical treatment."

AVERAGE 18 LBS BUTTER HELD BY 112 CONSUMERS

Evidence in support of the contention of the chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board that excessive purchasing of butter had much to do with creating the shortage that led to rationing is found in the announcement that 112 consumers throughout the territory of the Brockville ration office have reported holdings of 2,118 pounds of butter and surrendered butter coupons therefor. These holdings are thus at the rate of slightly more than 18 pounds per consumer.

The territory of the Brockville ration office comprises the counties of Prince Edward, Hastings, Lennox and Addington, Frontenac, Leeds and Grenville, Dundas, Stormont and Glengarry.

When consumer rationing of butter was introduced on December 21 last consumers having in their possession the equivalent of more than one pound of butter for each person in the household were required to report their holdings to the Wartime Prices and Trade Board before January 3, and at the same time to surrender the appropriate number of butter coupons.

MANY HOME HAZARDS FOR CARELESS HOME-LOVER

"Make your home Safe," an article in a recent issue of "Hygeia", provides warning and advice for the careless home-lover who disregarding hazards which exists in the home may find himself a hospital patient as the result of an accident.

The more obvious dangers such as loaded firearms; toys strewn around the floors and on stairways; bottles of poison not properly labelled; sharp-edged implements and matches within reach of children, are readily recognized says the article other less noticeable contributing causes of accidents within the home also require attention.

Stairways should be ample in width and constructed with a proper consideration for the horizontal as well as the vertical spatial relations. A size 11 foot, says the article does not fit well on a 7 inch tread. Wide, shallow treads are easier on both the muscles and the heart.

Open drawers should never be used as a step-ladder in reaching for a dish on the top shelf, it is pointed out, and chairs and tables should not be used as substitutes for step-ladders.

Super-waxed floors are a potential danger too, it states, and rugs should be kept in good repair to avoid the possibility of catching the feet in frayed borders, etc. The wearing of soft bedroom slippers and old, broken-down shoes no matter how comfortable may result in a wrench or sprained ankle. Never run up and down stairs in loose slippers for it may mean a nasty fall.

Rubber mats should be used in bathtubs, declares the article, and a handle provided for the hand to grasp firmly. Gas heaters and stoves which are known to be leaky should not be used. Electric cords should not be pulled from sockets with the current still turned on and electrical appliances should not be used if they have a defective wiring.

Included in the list of things to avoid are the removing of slivers with unsterilized needles and the treating of corns and calluses with knives and scissors; both contributing causes of dangerous infection.

Excuse Us - - but

It is your subscription, if in arrears, that should be brought up to date in advance. Come in soon and square up.

The address label on this paper or on the wrapper of your paper shows the date to which you last paid. Please bring your subscription forward so that it's "in advance"

It's the right thing to do.

THIS YEAR
PUT YOUR BROODER TO WORK EARLIER THAN EVER BEFORE

TO serve best and profit most from this year's urgent need for more eggs and more poultry meat, start good chicks earlier than ever before. Put your brooder to work 3, or 4, or even five weeks ahead of your usual time! That will give you more time to look after them properly before the Spring rush . . . more time to grow and develope them betore Fall . . . and give you bigger, better birds, laying bigger eggs when demand is highest and supplies lowest, next October and November.

Order What You Need EARLY

Be "forehanded". The days are gone when you could walk into a store with a list and walk out again with all the goods you wanted. Check your equipment. If you need anything—repairs, replacements, even a handful of nails—order them now. Make a systematic job of it, for if you overlook anything you can't count on making it good at the last minute.

That's also true of feed, fuel and chicks . . . good chicks. Order in advance. And while you're about it, make sure they're good chicks. Don't waste time, work, feed, money and hope on second-raters.

Don't order too many. Overcrowding is disasterous. Good chicks grow fast. They need more room every day. Don't order more than experience and common sense tell you that you can raise right. If you want to raise more than your brooding equipment will handle at one time, start one brood extra early and another in the Spring.

Wear More Clothing Save Fuel Indoors

The well-known British medical authority, Sir Leonard Hill, LLD, M D, FRS, writing in "Better Health", published by the Central Council for Health Education in Great Britain, declares that by increasing the quantity of clothing worn by the individual one can keep warm indoors and conserve fuel.

He states that in Great Britain where there is fuel scarcity, most of the fuel is used for heating houses and workshops. If enough clothing is worn, only enough artificial heat is required to keep the hands warm enough for performing skilled work, he says. To save fuel he advocates that the scanty garments of women be amplified by overalls, trousers and tunics worn together with warm under garments. These could be padded with cotton waste to prevent cold penetration.

The writer advises the wearing of shawls and overcoats indoors for sedentary occupants, with, perhaps a rug over the knees and a hot bottle of water for the feet. Thus, the use of valuable fuel can be cut to a minimum. Sir Leonard declares that so protected people can actually work with a window open in wintertime, and will be benefitted in health as a result. Only the old and feeble and ill people, he says, require artificial warmth.

Two outer garments of equal texture will, he advises, be warmer than one garment of twice the thickness, because of the warmth provided by the air pocket between. Undergarments should be of soft, knitted wool for the best protection against cold, the writer states.

PRICE FOR WOOD INCLUDES DELIVERY COST

The maximum price of any fuelwood as fixed by the latest order of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board covering fuelwood sales in Eastern Ontario includes the cost of delivery to the premises of the purchaser. In other words, so the Regional office of the board points out, a seller of fuelwood is not permitted to make any extra charge for delivering it to the consumer unless specifically authorized to do so.

The order provides, that in any case where the cost of delivery is abnormal or he considers special circumstances warrant such action, the Deputy Administrator wood fuel, may in writing authorize the seller to increase his maximum selling price by not more than $1 per cord.

A small boy is a pain in the neck when he is around and a pain in the heart when he is not.

The Customer Is Always Right

When Eugene Field was working on the Denver "Tribune", he patronized Bob Stockton's Bar immediately across the street. One month he ran up a bill of $8. The proprietor dunned him for it frequently, but never cut off his credit, for the patronage Gene attracted to the establishment far outweighed the amount of the indebtedness.

At last, despairing of ever getting his money, and thinking to make a strong hit with the poet, Stockton made out a receipted bill, and calling Field aside, presented it to him.

Field said nothing, but merely stood in an expectant attitude holding the bill.

"Well, why don't you say something?" Stockton demanded.

"Well, Bob", rejoined Field, "what does the house usually do when a man pays his bill?"

Ecarlate

A Man's Dream Materialized.

By CLARISSA MACKIE

When Dacre married his friends said of him that any woman who allied herself to him would not be able to hold him. He was a man about town, a clubman, a man who was always welcome behind the scenes at the theaters and was very often found there, especially when the chorus and ballet girls were pretty. Some declared that the girl he married was one of a thousand; just the woman, in fact, to hold such a man as Dacre. One who was familiar with his makeup replied that if she did hold him she would have to do it in gauze and tights.

Dacre before the wedding made all sorts of promises to his fiancee. He would eschew theaters—that is, he would never go behind the scenes. He would cut all his old friends who were "fast." In short, he would make a model husband, devoted to his wife alone. That he loved her she did not doubt. What she feared was that some one would steal him away from her through his senses.

To every one's surprise, Dacre kept his promises. For a year he never went to the theater except with his wife. Then when the baby came and she had a new being to look after he was left occasionally alone of an evening. One night to pass the time he sought amusement in what for him was a dangerous place. The queen of the ballet captured him, and from that time forward he was devoted to a succession of dancers. At last the predictions of those who knew him best had come true. His wife's life was changed from happiness to misery.

Then came the peerless Ecarlate. Shortly before her coming Mrs. Dacre had exacted a promise from her husband that he would abstain from an acquaintance with any more women of the stage. He kept his promise, but every night that Ecarlate danced he was in his accustomed seat in the theater. He had been captivated by the poetry of motion and could not look upon the dancer except with a mad temptation to break his word to the woman he really loved.

One night when Dacre was at the theater just before the dancer came on the stage the lights were lowered and the orchestra softly played a dream waltz. Then came a change.

The violins suddenly swept into a legato movement, and as if treading lightly on the delicate measure a small scarlet clad form swayed on to the darkened stage and fluttered there until the cold circle of the spot light searched and found her.

It held her there, a quivering creature of tantalizing mystery, a baffling airy thing of midnight hair, glorious eyes and unknown features, for Ecarlate was always masked.

Dacre leaned with his elbows on the railing of the box, and quite oblivious to significant glances he watched the dancer. He stared at her until his heart ached with longing that the mask might be lifted so that he could feast his eyes on the loveliness which he had never yet seen.

His eyes never left her while she danced. Occasionally she flashed a melting glance toward the box where he always sat when she danced, and then her head was turned aside so that he might see that she wore his nightly offering, a scarlet cactus flower tucked in the duskiness of her wonderful hair.

"My scarlet beauty!" he muttered restlessly as she swayed in the dizzy mazes of her famous butterfly dance.

Scarlet she was from the flower in her hair to the tips of her tiny satin slippers.

With snowy arms she lifted the scarlet chiffon wings of her filmy skirts, her head fell back, and she melted into the rhythm of one of her character dances.

When it was over she withdrew, her arms loaded with flowers, her eyes smiling at Dacre's frowning face.

For an hour he sat on the lounge of his club, drinking a little, thinking all the time of the strange woman whom he madly loved, although her face was unknown to him. Even her home was an impenetrable mystery. She came and went like a bright meteor flashing across the midnight sky. Her managers were dumb on the subject. It was whispered that she was of royal birth.

It was nearly midnight when Dacre let himself into his own house and gave his hat and overcoat to a sleepy servant.

"Is Mrs. Dacre out this evening?" he asked, with a foot on the stair.

Dacre went on up the stairs and turned into his own room. For a moment he hesitated; then he crossed to the door of his wife's dressing room and laid his hand on the glass knob.

Would it respond to his pressure? His hand gripped the knob. It turned, and he entered his wife's apartments.

Eve Dacre sat in her boudoir under the glow of pink shaded lamps. She wore a negligee of rose colored silk, and her dark, piquant face seemed to reflect the tender glow.

She looked up as he entered, and a cold little smile curved her lips and drifted away.

"Ah, you are home!" she said. "Did you enjoy the play?"

"I went to the Venus," he said frigidly.

Now Mrs. Dacre laughed softly. "The Venus, of course! I, too, was there."

"You?" he stammered.

"Yes. It was all rather stupid, was it not? Always excepting Ecarlate!"

He was silent. His mouth was white, and his gray eyes looked cold and impenetrable.

Eve arose and crossed to the phonograph. She slipped in a record, set it in motion and returned to lean over the back of her chair, looking at her husband with grave, dark eyes, while the tender strains of Ecarlate's dance rose and fell.

"What are you doing that for?" he demanded fiercely.

"Jack," she said in a voice suddenly weary, "let us be frank with each other. You want your freedom. Am I right?"

"You are dead wrong!" he retorted doggedly.

"We will not talk of her."

"And those that came before Ecarlate," she went on, while the haunting music made a background for her passionate words. "I have overlooked, I have forgiven, and now it is Ecarlate. You love her. You dare not deny it!"

Again he was silent. He looked at her, noting, with a shock of surprise, that there were silver threads in Eve's dark hair and lines about her mouth and eyes—lines that he had graven there. Eve was only twenty-five, and he was killing her youth.

Suddenly she drew a long breath.

"What is it about these women that attracts you? What charm do they possess that is not mine?"

Still he did not answer.

She swayed a little and turned away.

"Ecarlate is here! I am sending her to you!"

"Ecarlate here? You are mad!" he exclaimed. But the gentle closing of the door sent him quivering to a chair.

The music played steadily on—that eternal butterfly dance. He began to hate it. What was Ecarlate doing here—in his house? It was like a jealous woman to take revenge, but he had believed Eve above such trickery.

Ecarlate!

The repetition of her name, the familiar music, and again the old enchantment fell upon him. He watched the door for her appearance. What would she look like? Beautiful, of course! He forgot that Eve would accompany the dancer.

He jumped up when the door slowly opened to admit Ecarlate's scarlet clad form. She was alone.

He made one step toward her, but in that instant she left the door and swayed like a butterfly in the mazes of her dance. Delicately she poised before him, and then, before his outstretched hand could touch her, she had melted away beyond his reach.

Her tiny scarlet shoes seemed to barely touch the floor; she floated; her chiffon wings beat the air; the jeweled band above her forehead blazed with myriad lights; the cactus flower flamed like a burning heart.

Suddenly the music ceased, and the dancer was once more leaning against the white door of Eve's dressing room. Through her black mask her eyes gleamed strangely.

Dacre clinched his hands. Ecarlate, standing there with outstretched scarlet winged arms, appeared like a scarlet angel barring him from his wife's room.

He stared at her smiling lips, at the alluring sparkle of her eyes peering oddly at him through the mask, at her black hair with its dazzling band of brilliants.

Suddenly he remembered that his wife's hair was black, but it was threaded with silver. He had placed the silver threads there.

"Allow me to pass," he said.

She laughed, a merry, trickling, mocking laugh that ended suddenly in a sob of pain.

His hand had closed on her tender flesh.

"Will you let me pass?" he asked through clinched teeth.

"You love me!" she whispered tensely.

He was silent.

"Say you love me!" she repeated.

He lifted his hand and deliberately tore aside the mask.

For several minutes he stared at Ecarlate's face. How many times had he yearned to tear away the mask and feast his eyes on her unknown loveliness!

It was a face such as he had never imagined in his wildest dreams of her.

Then he spoke.

"I love you!" he cried vehemently. "I have always loved you! It was because you were behind the mask that I loved you, and you alone!"

She melted into his arms, and he held her there.

Ecarlate no longer barred the door to his wife's room. She was in his arms. His wife was in his arms.

Retail Store Hours Will Not Be Regulated

Notwithstanding certain steps which were taken in that direction some months ago, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, it is announced, does not propose to introduce any regulation of the selling hours of retail stores. This has been decided upon in view of widely divergent conditions existing in different communities and different areas which make the application of any hard and fast rule in regard to store hours a virtual impossibility.

Edgar G. Burton, Administrator of Retail Trade, suggests, however, that retail merchants should continue to explore every method by means of which labor, supplies and electric power may be concerved, and he recommends that the position of every retail store where hours of sale exceed 56 per week should be carefully reviewed to discover if a reduction of hours cannot be effected immediately.

"The opportunity to conserve electric power and fuel, which are becoming even more scarce," says Mr. Burton, "is only another reason for putting limited store hours into effect without delay. By following these suggestions retailers will not only be helping themselves but rendering valuable assistance to the war effort".

About Meat Alternatives

Hello Homemakers! News of the beef shortage—and possible rationing—calls for more than merely an extra helping of vegetables at meals. Wise homemakers will plan alternative foods to do the job that meat does—"stick to your ribs", as the men say.

In meat you really get four food values: (1) protein for building up and repairing body tissues, (2) iron for red blood cells and carrying oxygen, (3) fat for heat and energy, and (4) B vitamins for good appetite and nerves. As you know, different foods have different food values and some have protein, iron and B vitamin values similar to those contained in meat. The following is a list of meat alternatives: poultry, fish, eggs, (which contains small amounts of iron), dried peas, beans, green vegetables and potatoes. And don't forget the meat "extras"—liver, heart, kidney, tripe and brain—so exceptionally rich in minerals and under no government restrictions.

After your busy day's work, an old favourite recipe easily prepared and satisfyingly flavoured will keep your wheels and cogs in good repair. We suggets eggs: omelette, scrambled, poached, devilled, scalloped, curried, fricassed, etc.; cheese: fondue, omelette, souffle, macaroni; fish: cakes, croquettes, creamed, creoled, fried, baked, etc.

One important tip to remember in the cookery of alternatives such as cheese, eggs and fish—use short cooking periods and low temperatures. Why? Cheese is already a cooked product, and the protein in eggs and fish is often toughened by high temperature.

RECIPES

Rice Rarebit

1 tb. butter, 1 tb. flour, ¼ tsp. dry mustard, ¼ tsp. salt, few grains pepper, 1 cup milk, ½ lb. cheese diced, 1 cup cooked rice, ½ cup chopped celery.

Make a sauce from butter, flour, mustard, salt, pepper and milk. Turn element "Off". Add cheese and stir until it is melted and mixture is smooth. Add rice and celery. Serve in toast cases or on slices of crisp toast.

Crispy Fish Cakes

1½ cups salt cod, shredded, 3 cups potatoes diced, 3 onions sliced, 1½ tbs. baking fat, ⅛ tsp. pepper, 1 egg well beaten.

Soak codfish in cold water for ½ hour. Drain. Put fish, potatoes and onions in saucepan, cover with boiling water and cook until potatoes are tender (about 10 minutes). Pour off water and shake saucepan over heat to fluff potatoes. Mash thoroughly, add baking fat, pepper and egg. Beat until light and fluffy and shape mixture into flat cakes. Brown on both sides in hot fat. Serves 6.

Carrots with Lima Beans

1 cup dried Lima beans, 1 cup raw carrot strips, 2 tbs. chopped onions, 3 tbs. baking fat, 3 tbs. milk.

Soak Lima beans overnight; drain. Cook in boiling salted water until tender. Drain. Cook carrot strips in boiling salted water until tender. Saute onion in butter until delicately browned. Add carefully Lima beans, carrots and milk, mixing lightly. Season to taste. Serve hot. Serves 6.

TAKE A TIP

1. The use of extension cords with your household electric appliances cuts efficiency. If too many appliances are attached to one plug or outlet, you run the danger of overloading the circuit and blowing a fuse.
2. Clean your old playing cards without leaving a sticky surface by using a small amount of spirits of camphor on a cloth and rubbing dry with a soft cloth. The men in uniform would appreciate any extra packs you may have.

THE QUESTION BOX

Oven Baked Chicken

(Requested by Mrs. M.D.C.)

1 chicken cut up, milk, flour, salt and pepper, ½ cup for frying, 1 tb. onion chopped fine, 2 cups top milk.

Dip chicken in milk and seasoned flour and fry in skillet until browned. Sprinkle chopped onion over top of chicken arranged in casserole. Pour milk over top and bake in electric oven 325 degrees until the chicken is tender, about 2 hours, and the milk is a thick sauce.

Annual Meeting Of Boyne Red Cross Unit

operates a farm near Glen Sandfield.

The annual meeting of the Boyne Red Cross unit was held at the home of our president Mrs. Harold Durant on Tuesday, January 12th. Forty-two meetings were held during the past year with an average attendance of 10 members. 47 quilts were completed. Silver collections at these meetings amounted to $33.75.

During the year 5 very successful euchres were held at the different homes. One euchre and dance was held in the community hall, Chesterville. Two box socials and one turkey dinner were also held whereby we raised $163.88.

By piecing, quilting, selling and selling tickets on one quilt we realized $138.90.

We have sewn 4 ladies nightgowns, 12 baby's napkins, Babys nightgown, 3 childrens pyjamas, 2 pairs socks, 1 afghan and 4 washcloths.

Two boxes were sent overseas to boys from our district valued at $5.50. The total amount raised for the Red Cross was $377.03. $115.00 was given to the treasurer of the Chesterville Red Cross.

Mrs. W. Johnston was appointed chairman for the election of officers which resulted as follows—President —Mrs. Harold Durant, Vice-presiden —Mrs. Ward Johnston, Secretary —Mrs. Harold Merkley, Treasurer—Mrs. Howard Kittle.

Price Must Be Reasonable When Produce Is Sold

Possibly because the original Wartime Prices and Trade Board did not apply to "any farmer or gardener in respect of any necessary of life produced upon any land cultivated by him," it does not seem to be generally appreciated the regional office of the Prices Board remarks, that these original regulations are in that respect no longer in force and that there is a responsibility upon farmers and gardeners, as well as upon other producers, to observe certain prices regulations as far as their sales of produce at retail are concerned.

In the first place, it is pointed out prices so charged must be both reasonable and just. In other words, the charging of excessive prices for farm or garden produce cannot be condoned any more than excessive charges for other commodities can be approved. In addition, prices governing the sale at retail of any farm product must be no higher than any specific or miximum price fixed under the regulations of the Board unless primary producers are specifically exempted. In the case of eggs, for example, retail prices charged by primary producers must not be in excess of the maximum retail prices for any grade established by order of the Board. There are also certain commodities such as eggs, beef, lamb, poultry and potatoes upon which it is necessary for primary producers to observe ceiling prices.

Any primary producer who may be in doubt concerning his position as a seller at either wholesale or retail of his produce is advised to consult the nearest office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board at which complete information is available.

The January meeting of the Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. W.O. Dixon and well attended.

The meeting opened with hymn "Standing at the portal of the opening year" followed with prayer by the president. After reading the minutes of the secretary reports of the various secretarys were given of a successful year's work in all departments. The worship service followed with Mrs. Dioxn in charge assisted by Mesdames Clayton, Fulton, Durant and Munro, "Theme of the Worship Service".

The child and Chirstian training.

The study book chapter "The Church and Christian Education" was thoughtfully prepared by the leader Mrs. R. C. Tait assisted by Mrs. Doering, Mrs. L. Marcellus and Mrs. Geo. Barkley.

The leader stressed the point that to make Canada Christian the basic need is Christian Homes. Questions were asked regarding problems of our own church and community and how we can meet them.

The most precious possession of any community are its boys and girls. Are we as church members making every effort to send our youth out into life established in Christian Character.

This was the challenge presented by the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Clare Yates of Montreal were guests of the latter's parents Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Merkley this week.

The friends of AC2 John O'Grady will be sorry to hear that he has been suffering from ear trouble since he returned. He expects to be able to leave the hospital soon.
