VOL. 79 NO. 26 — WINCHESTER, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1966 — PRICE 10 CENTS

Winter Fair Winners 4-H Clubs

Two Dundas County 4-H members showed well among 600 4-H exhibitors at the Ottawa Winter Fair. Brian Stobo of Winchester emerged as Champion 4-H sheep showman. In addition, he had the champion Yorkshire gilt. Hugh Fawcett, also of Winchester, had the reserve grand champion heifer calf in the show.

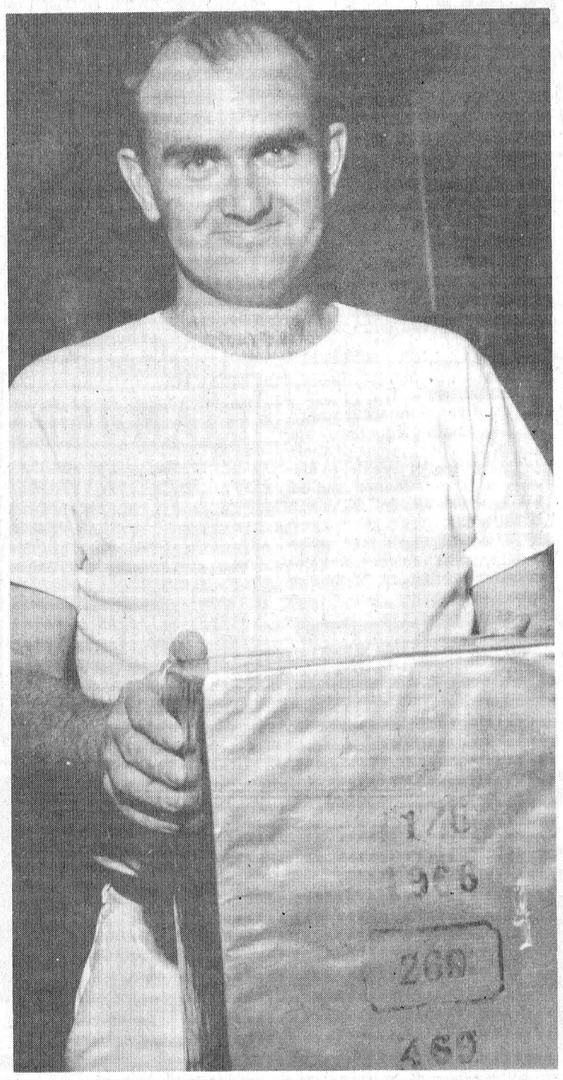
Floyd J. Fretwell, of Osgoode, exhibited the best pen of three, sired by a pure bred boar; the champion bacon hog carcass; and reserve champion bacon hog carcass in the swine-market judging classings.

Carleton County 4-H Corn Club won five entries in the grain club.

Holsteins

Allison Fawcett was premier exhibitor at the Ottawa Winter Fair Holstein Championship Show. In keen competition, Allison took the banner over second place Kenneth Baker of Kingston. Sam Rathwell, Navan, was the Premier Breeder in the show. 187 head were shown by 52 exhibitors.

With Mr. Fawcett and Mr. Rathwell, other prominent local Holstein breeders emerging with various prize ribbons were Davidson and Eastman, Metcalfe, and Fred L. Carscadden, Russell.



Sheep

Cream of the sheep crop at the Ottawa Winter Fair came from East Carleton farms of John K. Campbell, Alex Dow and Maple Meadows farm.

John K. Campbell of Metcalfe took six of 11 Shropshire classes including champion ram and lamb flock, five of eleven Leicester classes including reserve champion, ram, and ewe, flock and lamb flock.

Maple Meadow Farms, R. R. 4, Osgoode, took eight of 11 Southdown classes, including champion ewe, flock and lamb flock; and six of 11 Cheviot ram and lamb flock; eight of 11 Hampshire classes including champion ram and ewe, lamb flock and grand champion ram of the show.

Par Excellence

"It all begins down on the farm." Dunbar Cheesemaker Bill Gibson gives credit to the milk shippers who bring in quality when they bring in milk. Anyone who has tasted the cheese manufactured in the Dunbar plant of the Dundas Cheese Company knows that credit is also due the cheesemaker.

Judges at the Championship Cheese Show at the Ottawa Winter Fair noted the mark of quality and a sampling of the awards won were Classes 2, 3 and 4 first place finishes in the Dundas class, June cheese and August cheese classes respectively. Class 5 and 6 brought second and third place finishes.

With an array of prizes already in the records, the cheesemaker was awarded the Ser-Ko Shield for the highest scoring cheese in the show. Mr. Gibson compiled 98.30 out of a possible 100 points on his winning entry. Excellent first place finishes in classes 2, 3 and 4 brought the Singleton Trophy for highest aggregate total in the classes.

Bill Gibson has been resident cheesemaker at the Dunbar plant for two years. His win at the Ottawa Winter Fair was his first major victory. Experience, however, he lacks not with entries in all the local fairs. Looking to the future, the prize list may be extended considerably with the conclusion of the Royal Winter Fair and the Cheese Show at Belleville which the prize winner has entered.

Village Swings... ...Now Thru 1967

Exciting Centennial Events Underway

With one item on their program already complete, Winchester's Centennial Program Committee has a list of activities and promotions as long as an arm yet to come for the village. With the ringing in of Canada's Centennial year 1967 with church bells and most likely fireworks at 12:01 January 1, 1967, their program will be underway. Culminating in a week-end of unlimited activity on May 20, the Program committee has something for everyone in mind.

Initially, the Centennial Fashion Show, "Portraits of the Past," was held Monday evening in the North Dundas District High School. Next item on the calendar is Christmas and distribtution of a Centennial pin to each and every resident of the village. The pins, suitably inscribed, are now on order. Method of distribution has not been ascertained.

WELCOME 1967

A welcome to Canada's 100th year will come at 12:01 a.m. January 1, 1967 with the ringing of church bells and then a fireworks display. What the committee anticipates here is a noisy welcome to Canada's year from every possible source. Later in the day Centennial oriented services will be scheduled for each village church.

Completing the month of January activity will be a special Centennial folk singing presentation in the North Dundas District High School with Gord Lightfoot and The Children as featured artists.

In February all village minor hockey players will be honoured at a Centennial presentation during Minor Hockey Week in Canada. Another winter feature will be a Centennial Bonspiel at the Winchester Curling Club.

DECORATION MONTH

With Spring here to stay, April has been designated as Decoration month for the village. The committee hopes to have decorations appearing on each and every home and business in the village, with added emphasis being given to the main village thoroughfares, Main and St. Lawrence Streets, with pole decorations, etc. To this end the committee is encouraging decoration for Christmas 1966 in a Centennial theme with decorations to be left in place for use throughout the upcoming celebration year. A second spring event will be the social highlight of the season. Plans are now formulating for a formal Centennial Ball to be held in the new Public School auditorium.

CARAVAN

Highlight day of the year will be May 20, 1967, the day the Centennial Caravan makes an official stop in the village. On that day of tremendous activity a giant parade unequalled in village history for bands, costumes, floats and entries will move through the streets. Expectation is that every section of the parade will be geared to a Confederation theme. In addition there will be official opening ceremonies of the Centennial Pool, the village's official project, a host of dances outdoors and in for young and old, a fireworks display unrivalled in many larger centres, and a gay day of activity that will mark Canada's birthday.

RELATED ACTIVITY

Also tentatively scheduled are the Centennial Hospital Auxiliary Garden Party, the Centennial St. Lawrence District Cuboree to be held in Winchester in May, a Centennial visit of Don Messer and the Islanders, and a Scout and Cub group project restoration of a building on a Centennial theme.

Centennial interdenominational church services have been dated for May 7, in the North Dundas District High School auditorium.

Emphasis of the committee action is on village beautification and complete participation by all citizens and visitors in all aspects of the program. All aforementioned events are now in planning stages and details of their scope will be released in detail as the actual event draws close. The program places its main emphasis from Christmas 1966 until May 1967

Chamber Banquet To-Night

Annual banquet dinner meeting of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce is to-night at 7 p.m. Many important items of business are on the agenda at the Country Kitchen Restaurant.

Main items for discussion after the evening meal are Christmas store hours, holiday promotion ideas, and possible question of officers. Business men and women should not miss this meeting that will make decisions and formulate policy.

G. F. Babcock Body Recovered Near Home

Hundreds of hours of fruitless searching, and despair for his family, the body of George Fredrick Babcock was found Sunday afternoon, October 30, more than one month after his September 28 disappearance.

Mr. Babcock was found in a field by Roy Herriman on the Herriman farm. An exhaustive search by family, friends and volunteers headed by the Ontario Provincial Police had failed to find the 85-year-old retired farmer in the days following his disappearance. His dog, a constant companion, returned to the Babcock farm near Williamsburg a fortnight after the man had been lost. (more on Page 9).

PORTRAITS OF THE PAST

History In Fashion

Famous Figures Reveal Story

For those people who did not venture out of doors on Monday evening to the fashion show "Portraits of the Past" at the North Dundas District High School, the more than three hundred persons who did attend will attest to a wonderful presentation of fashion, information and music. A superbly wonderful introduction of Canada's past to the people who will celebrate the country's Centennial.

Through a myriad of beautiful colours and wonderful gowns of the Victorian and each of the other eras from Canada's founding until the early 1900's, the fashion story travelled. Each costume from Indian maiden to Belle of the Ball had its own individual story of style and history that surrounded that time of its apperance. The story of women's fashion interweaved with skits of the historical periods and musical selections from the choir was a delight to behold.

Miss Nancy Smirle, attired as the Centennial Queen, the only modern day costume in the show, represented the Canada of to-morrow in a salute to Canada's year 1967.

The fashion show, presented by the Winchester and Chesterville Centennial Program Committee, was produced and directed by the Ontario Department of Tourism and Information, Women's Centennial Activity section. Thirty-nine local women from the district community served as models. Commentators for the show were Mrs. Raymond Earl and Mrs. Lillian Allison.—Press Staff Photo.

Remembrance

Poppies, the symbol of remembrance, will proudly be on display this week-end in Winchester. The village, with Legion Branch 108, pays tribute Sunday to those who served Canada and the free world. Veterans will stage their annual Remembrance Church Parade Sunday morning from the Legion Hall at 10.30 p.m. to Winchester Baptist Church for service at 10.45 p.m.

Following service the parade will reform and proceed to the Memorial Cenotaph on the Hospital Grounds for special Remembrance service at 12 noon.

Saturday, members of the local Cub and Scout groups will be canvassing the village with poppies. Legion officials hope for a large attendance at the Remembrance services of veterans and friends. In addition, they anticipate full co-operation from local citizenry and merchants in the wearing of poppies and memorial window displays.

Would You Believe!

That at one time in the village on Halloween night a mobile sanitary facility was moving around the streets. That at least three fire barricades were placed across streets. That assorted items of various value from garbage cans to lawn mowers were seen to be misplaced in locations far removed from their usual resting place. That there were more tricksters than treat seekers. That a non-soaped window was very difficult to find in the whole town. That some of the kids had a lot of good clean fun and others could not restrain themselves from causing needless damage.

It was Halloween night.

Most serious incident of the evening was an auto crash caused by Halloween road conditions. Leo Marion of Cornwall was uninjured when his vehicle clipped a telephone pole.

South Dundas Barn Fires Wrought Havoc

Intensive investigation following a Halloween night fire is being carried on this week by Ontario Provincial Police and the Ontario Fire Marshal's office. Fire Monday night destroyed a barn near Morrisburg killing 14 horses, more than 1,000 bales of hay, harness, equipment and a tractor.

The barn, owned by Willard Alguire of Morrisburg, is located in a remote section with no buildings nearby. The flames were first spotted by an OPP cruiser shortly after 12 midnight. Fire was believed to have started in the baled hay.

Possibility of connection with another fire in the area last week had not been ruled out Tuesday evening. Matilda Township farmer Delmer Doyle lost a barn in a fire Friday night.

Weather's Trick

Rising Monday morning to look out the window, one was confronted with what could be considered the best of the Halloween tricks, — the leaden skies had dropped a thin coating of snow over the countryside.

First snow always brings thoughts of snowballs and snowmen, sleighs and other winter delights to the minds of the children. On the other side, it is the picture of snow tires, finding lost overshoes and shovelling long walks. The treat suited to the occasion followed the white blanket, however,— the snow, are expected, melted away leaving just a friendly warning that winter was on its way.—Press Staff Photo.

Miss Marion Ann Bell Weds Mr. Eric Thomas Thompson

Winchester United Church was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding on Saturday morning at 11 a.m. when Rev. A. J. MacDonald united in marriage Marion Ann Bell and Eric Thomas Thompson. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orland Bell, and the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Thompson, all of Winchester.

Ronald Freeland, soloist, was accompanied by Mrs. Howard Fetterly at the organ. Robert Thompson was best man for his brother, and the ushers were Raymond Thompson, brother of the groom, and John Bell, brother of the bride.

Mr. Bell gave his daughter in marriage. For her wedding, the bride wore a floor-length white peau de soie gown with fitted bodice, scoop neckline and lily-point sleeves. The sheath skirt of the gown featured an overskirt of self material extending into a chapel train in back. A tiny coronet held her shoulder-length veil and she carried a bouquet of pink and raspberry shaded carnations with tiny red rosebuds centred.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Larry Holmes, of Petawawa. Mrs. Holmes was attired in a floor-length gown of raspberry embossed peau de soie in sheath style with matching jacket, a shoulder-length veil, and she carried a nosegay of pink and raspberry tinted carnations.

The mother of the bride wore a jade green silk crepe sheath gown with a large self material rose caught to the side of the draped skirt. She wore matching accessories and mink cape and a corsage of pink carnations. Mrs. Thompson, mother of the groom, selected a green silk brocaded lame dress, matching accessories, a fur stole and a corsage of pink carnations.

A wedding reception was held at the Country Kitchen following the ceremony. Guests attended from Petawawa, Toronto, Brockville, Ottawa, Cardinal Mountain, Inkerman, Kempt-Maniwaki, Que., and Winchester.

For a honeymonn to Western Ontario the bride donned a teal blue sheath dress with matching three-quarter coat, beige accessories and an orchid en corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will reside at Prescott, Ontario.

O.P.P. Reports Oct. Busy Month

Halloween pranksters were out in force again this year, and each year they seem to be getting older. A few twenty odd year old teen-agers have been seen trotting about in the wee hours. The things they seem to get the most kicks from also create some hardships and in most cases are quite costly to a lot of people. It seems a pity that this wasted time cannot be put to more constructive use and leave Halloween to the wee folk. A fire about two miles west of Morrisburg destroyed a huge stack of hay and took the lives of 14 horses. It could have just as easily taken a human life. Would that leave a person with a clear conscience?

On the highway last week officers patrolled 8809 miles of highway and secondary roads in 614 duty hours. As a result 39 traffic charges were laid and 24 warnings given. Eight property damage and two personal injury accidents were investigated. One fatal accident in which two persons were killed and four persons seriously injured occurred on Highway 43 west of Chesterville. The month of October has had the highest rate of injury accidents since this report began to appear.

Three violations against the Liquor Control Act were investigated resulting in three charges being laid.

Officers answered 20 calls which included illegal hunting and 3 fires which are presently being investigated.

No criminal cases were heard in the courts this week. 43 traffic convictions were registered.

Col. R. L. Huston At Canadian Club

"Japan's potential is unlimited. Canada has the greatest opportunity to be Japan's closest friend because Japanese people think more of Canada than any other nation in the world." Concluding words of an address to the Morrisburg and District Canadian Club banquet by Col. R. L. Huston, executive director of the Canada-Japan trade council.

Speaking on "Japan, Key To The Pacific," he crossed the ties between Canada and Japan as a prime import-export relationship in primary and secondary industry. Canadian wheat is a major export, since 1950 over $1 billion dollars' worth has been purchased.

The Queensway

A short three-quarter mile section opened to traffic on Firday last gave Ottawa the distinction of becoming the first major Canadian city to have a controlled-access highway which not only traverses its full length from end to end but also passes through the central part and downtown core of the city. There is a minimum four lanes divided throughout. Total cost of the project was $31 million, exclusive of land costs.

Crank Calls Crack Down Paying Off

Telephone companies' crackdown on crank and nuisance callers is paying off. Security representatives from major Canadian telephone companies got the word in seminar at Ste. Adele, north of Montreal. The first of its kind meeting ended last week.

J. P. E. Seguin of the host company, Bell Canada, reported that his own organization's "Get Tough" policy resulted in six convictions of crank callers, and there were still cases to come before the courts. He added, telephone companies across North America were adopting similar approaches and were vigorously prosecuting offenders.

The seminar also covered toll fraud, coin telephone thefts and unauthorized installations. Seguin, who averred "we are not policemen," nevertheless stressed co-operation with law enforcement agencies to establish deterrents.

He was supported by E. G. Digny, Bell's acting Comptroller, who added: "The prime role of telephone security is one of prevention. It is not enough to investigate crime, it is not enough to apprehend the culprit, it is not enough to get a conviction in the courts. We have to make it more dificult to defraud us."

Delegates agreed. They worked on plans for closer co-operation which will make life even more difficult for the telephone lawbreaker. There will be intercompany training, and exchanges of information which, in effect, will establish a national network of telephone security men.

Companies represented at the seminar were: Alberta Government Telephones; The Avalon Telephone Co. Ltd.; Bell Canada; British Columbia Telephone Co.; Manitoba Telephone System; Maritime Telegraph and Telephone Co.; The New Brunswick Telephone Co. Ltd.. and Saskatchewan Government Telephones.

Winchester Hockey Club Plans Season

Looking hopefully for some cold weather that leads to ice making in the Community Centre, Winchester Hockey Club at its annual meeting elected officers for the upcoming hockey season and discussed various items related to minor hockey in the village.

George Hanes was unanimously re-elected as club president for his second term of office. Edwin Duncan moved from a directorship to the vice president's post. Mike Dukelow was returned as secretary, and Jack Hume was elected club treasurer. Directors named to a one-year term were Harry McRoberts, Wes Clark, Reg. Gibson, Elzeon Raistrick, Grant Creighton, Adam Meek and Reg. Harper.

Tentative plans now call for the registration of all minor hockey players on Friday evening, November 18. Efforts are being made to obtain hockey films to be shown at the registration session, probably in the Town Hall or Public School auditorium. Registration fee remains the same as other years at $1.50 per player, with a $3.00 maximum to any one family.

A hopeful note of the possibility of ice before Christmas was instilled in the meeting by a report from the Community Centre Board. The statement indicated that flooding would start as soon as the cold weather descended. The Minor Hockey set-up in Winchester operates various teams in town and district leagues with boys in the peanut to juvenile group.

Coaches and managers have now been signed for all teams excepting Juveniles. Grant Creighton and Elzeon Raistrick head the midget group, Wes Clarke and Reg. Gibson handle Bantams, Edwin Duncan, Norm. Utman and Mike Dukelow the Pee Wees. Duffers fall under the leadership of Jack Hume. Coaches for the town Pee Wee league are still being sought and assistants for all divisions are always in demand.

A meeting of the Club executive is scheduled for November 4th and will discuss further any items such as equipment, leagues, or other activity at the meeting.

We Will Not Forget

November 11, Remembrance Day, will not be forgotten. It will live in the hearts and minds of millions, not as one day but as memories of hours, days, months, years of conflict of two great wars, wars that were to end wars and point humanity to an unbounded and happy future of mutual respect and achievement. In the trenches of The Great War or the killing machines of the Second World War blood was spilled for those who gather in front of a cenotaph or war memorial but once a year to pay tribute to those who paid the price of the freedom we enjoy. A mother at home, suffering with tears and anguish, hearing of death and heroism, the son that died or will never see nor walk in his proud homeland, the scenes grow old as the years pass. But they are not forgotten.

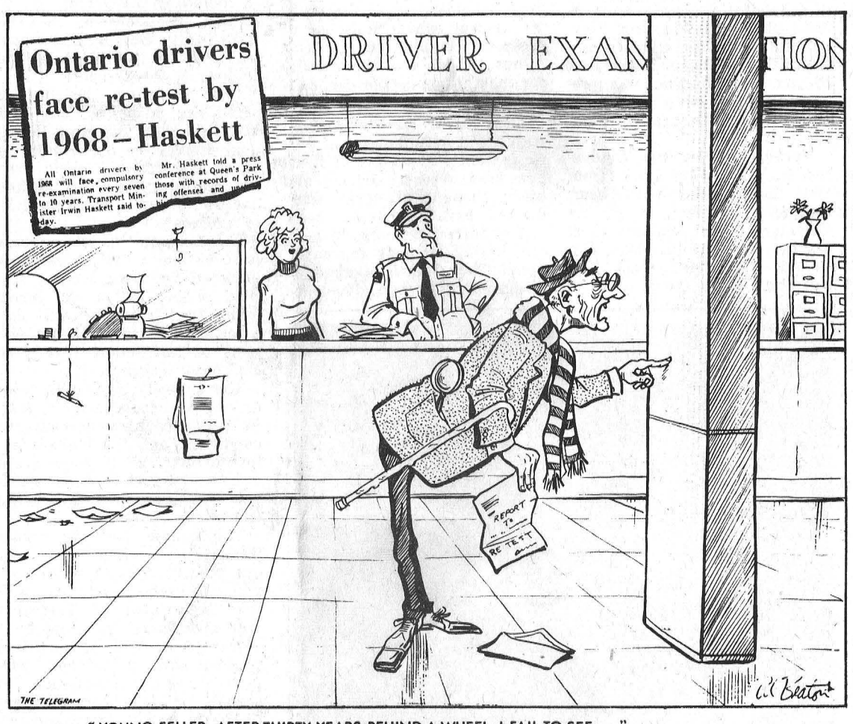
Ranks of the men who fought are thinning out with time and the sadness of realization that two decades have passed since the close of the last world conflict is only in the thought of growing old and is over balanced with happiness in the absent call to war again. Winchester Legion this Sunday will march in annual Remembrance Day parade and attend church service. They will be wearing a poppy and with shoulders back and heads high carry with them memories of the fight won for a free future. When they look out from their ranks, let us show them that we respect and thank them for their love of country, freedom and man. A poppy on a coat or lapel will tell the complete story without a word.

Worthwhile Course

Ontario's plan to have periodic re-examination of drivers starting in 1967 was greeted by highway safety officials, police representatives and Mr. John Public as a step in the right direction to cut down the death toll that has become so familiar on every news cast or newspaper edition. The step was in the right direction and the job of weeding out the non-capable drivers, also a big one, is an important one.

Now comes the announcement of a refresher driving course to be offered in communities across the province. In three evening sessions of two and one half hours classes the course is designed to give individual drivers the opportunity to check and improve their driving and in this way will make a positive contribution to the prevention of accidents. Hopefully, when the course is offered in this area, enrolment will be one hundred per cent., because there are very few if any drivers who, in to-day's traffic conditions, know all the answers. One point picked up at an instruction class might save the driver's own and other lives or serious injury.

Certainly the driver of to-day from country road to the freeway is confronted with more traffic, and more decisions, that could make a difference between a trip to the grocery store or the hospital. The course will be a valuable contribution to highway safety, if taken advantage of.



"YOUNG FELLER, AFTER THIRTY YEARS BEHIND A WHEEL, I FAIL TO SEE..."

Beauty Parlour Mix-Up

Voice from the shower is deep and resonant and as the water trickles down the drain it carries with it a golden glow of exotic fragrance that somehow lingers in the bathroom when the shower has been complete and turns everyone else's stomach. A light footed dash into the bedroom, a brief pause for self-admiration in front of the mirror — my such a physique. A shot of left tackle under each arm, a dash of exotica number eleven behind each ear and generous coating of fragrance number four, pluck off the shower cap and a shot of hair spray gets the beauty or the beast smelling sweet and looking tidy.

Merely slip into something comfortable and a quick dash down to the shopping centre for an hour stop at the hairdressers. Slip into that big comfortable chair and lean back while Sally Shampoo, Minny Manicure, Sylvia Streaker, Tessie Trimmer and Sarah Styler go to work. Feeling just like new comes the bounce from the chair and an admiring glance at the mirror. With distinguished grey touched up just perfectly, the smell overwhelming, the real man is ready for the world. Yes, the man is ready for the world. Smelling like a flower harvest, and looking primped and prissied, the man is ready to start his day combed, styled, and stinking.

All along we thought it was the wife or the single girl or even the old maid who made the trip to the beauty parlour for the touch-up or the major overhaul. Well, the news is here for sure now. Just look at any national magazine. What do you see, the good looking man is feeling feeling left out of life unless his hair is its original black masculine virile self of twenty years ago. What is he doing in front of the mirror—no, not tending bar, that is his selection of shaving lotions, toilet waters, beauty solutions, hair restorer, perfumes with far out names, fragrant deodorants, hair spray, eye make-up and powder and everything that the modern day man needs to make him acceptable. The advertising boys have got things mixed up. Or have they? They suggest and the men, or at least a lot of them are eating it up. Trips to the hair stylists, get a dye job, wear make-up, smell like a flower garden. All in all, it seems the women now wear the pant suits and the men have to go to the beauty parlour.

Every man may not be buying the beauty aids and sweet smells but a lot of them are and it seems too bad that the sissies are starting to take over. There will no longer be such a thing as a "man smell" if the manufacturers and advertising boys have their way. The receding hair line is out, the thing is to cover the scalp with something.

Big news for the boys — there should be a movement started to keep men as men and just not a second type of woman. If the boys that go to the hairdressers and take an hour to get made up want to start a sissy league, that is their business — we wish them all sorts of luck when they have their first baby. Personally, the thought of receding hairline, a little man smell, and a sense of values — that makse a man a man appeal.

SUGAR AND SPICE

A day to remember

Another Remembrance Day is in the offing. As I write, two things evoke the particular mood that day always holds for me, or rather the combination of moods.

Outside, it's a gloomy fall day. The lowering cloud weeps a desolate drizzle. A handful of oak leaves cling to the stark branches and no bird sings. A typical Remembrance Day atmosphere.

But on my desk is a letter from an old friend, and the warmth, courage and indomitable spirit contained in it defy the feel of death and sadness outside.

His name is Alexander Forbes, Cannington, Ontario. We've never met, but have corresponded. We are both lovers of the printed word and about once a year, he writes a long letter, filled with reminiscences, wit and goodwill. His letters always give me a lift.

He has been in poor health in recent years, like so many of his old comrades. But this has not dimmed his spirit. His writing becomes increasingly difficult to read. Not because of infirmity, but because he is going blind.

Cataracts are forming on his eyes, and he will enter St. Joseph's Hospital, Peterborough, after New Year's, for an operation. Does he complain? Not on your life. He can even joke about it.

The reason he wrote is that he had promised to send me a book, and wanted to get it off before his sight failed completely. It is based on a Yank's experience in World War I, and typically, he adds, "I believe it to be authentic and not a lot of Yankee bull . . . when you have read it, you might lend it to some old sweat at the Legion Hall, particularly if he served in the PBI." Short for Poor Bloody Infantry.

Each year, my mood on Remembrance Day is a mixture of sadness and admiration.

There's reason for the sadness. Twenty years ago, Remembrance Day was a vital and colorful affair. World War II was an immediate memory. The Legion Parade was striking. The World War I vets were barely middle-aged and their ranks were swelled by the youthful, swinging veterans of the second war, young, fit and full of beans.

But the grief was real. There were brothers, uncles, sons and fathers missing from the files of Legionnaires. And when the Last Post sounded, and the bell tolled in the hush, the tears ran free, and there was a communal lump in the throat.

Time passed. Grief eased. Things changed. A whole new generation grew up, to which even World War II was just something in the history books. The veterans of that war are middle-aged now and every year the ranks of old sweats of the first great war grow thinner.

There is something almost perfunctory about the occasion now. The veterans remember, and the women who lost their men remember. But it doesn't mean much to the kids, and for many others, it's just a day to go hunting, or put on the last of the storm windows.

But for me, the second emotion of that day — admiration — does not dim. As the tattered remnants of Canada's gallant lads of 1914-18 turn out for the parade, my heart is with them. There isn't much spring in the step any more, and backs are not as straight. But there is still a pride in their bearing.

And there should be. Their war was no Charge of the Light Brigade. There was nothing dashing about it. It was cold, wet, mud, lice, rotten grub and relentless pounding. It was a brutal, stupid war.

But they fought, and they didn't run. And they came home, those who were left. And they were shabbily treated. And they suffered their rotted lungs and their crippling arthritis. And they didn't complain much.

There aren't many of them left, but I hope I'm there to drink a toast to them on Remembrance Day, after the parade, as they swap lies at the Legion Hall.

Alexander Forbes is one of them. May he be reading his beloved books 10 years from now, and I hope some of my other friends among the old sweats will drop him a line.

It's lonely when you can't see.

Centennial Report

1867 | 1967

by JOHN W. FISHER
CENTENNIAL COMMISSIONER

I mentioned the old French Fortress of Louisbourg, in my last report, among places to visit during Centennial Year.

Built by the French, at a cost of ten million dollars during the reign of Louis XV, the Fortress of Louisbourg on Cape Breton Island passed back and forth between French and British hands, underwent two sieges and finally was blown up by British demolition troops in 1760.

Developments in the 18th century which, in the long run, resulted in Canada eventually becoming one country, have connections with Louisbourg. The federal government, therefore, through the Department of Northern Affairs and National Resources, is restoring a large part of the fortress, now a national historic park.

At the Centennial Commission we think of the restoration as a Centennial project although perhaps we can't argue it is such on the basis of technicalities because it was started in 1961 and will continue until the early 1970's, at a cost over the years of at least $12,000,000.

The old city and a large part of the battle ground outside the ruined walls were set aside by the government as a national historic site in 1928. During 1935-36 a museum was built facing the site of the citadel and it contains mementoes presented by citizens and relics which have been unearthed in the ruins of the fortress. The site was made a national historic park in 1940 and thousands of visitors see it every year.

The new project for restoration of the fortress will reconstruct the main features of fortifications, the Château St-Louis, a representative selection of smaller buildings, homes and harbor works. Some outlying features such as siege works also are to be restored.

As well as Canada, the New England states of Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Maine have strong historical connections with Louisbourg. Four thousand New Englanders were involved in the first siege and conquest of the fortress in 1744. (Britain handed Louisbourg back to the French in a 1748 treaty but again conducted a siege and conquered it in 1758. British demolition troops blew up the fortifications in 1760.)

Louisbourg was a key factor in North American defence and trade for almost half a century. The study of that era can be a fascinating pastime for laymen and the restoration of the old fortress and buildings will give us new insight into the history of our country and an understanding of life in those times. For professional historians and archaeologists the activities on Cape Breton island provide more and more information.

The Louisbourg project is just one of the many which, during Centennial Year, will draw the attention of Canadians, and of friends abroad, to our interesting heritage.

Meditations . . . by REV. CECIL W. TUININGA

Luke 12:49: "I am come to send fire on the earth."

We live in days of unrest. Almost daily we hear of riots, strikes, marches, wars, floods, hurricanes and the like. World events are never at a standstill. They remind us of the restless paint pots of Yellowstone Park, in which the coloured clay is always moving and bubbling. Then here, then there, the world scene erupts in violence or war. This unrest always threatens the whole world. World leaders live in constant fear of another world-wide explosion. Men live in fear that mankind will destroy itself with nuclear arms.

Our present day unrest, with its attendant tensions and fears, have been foretold by our Lord. He said, "For nation shall rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom; and there shall be famines, and pestilences, and earthquakes, in divers places. — Matt. 24:7. Our Lord foretold us these things so that we might read the times to know how late it is on God's time-piece. They are given to remind us that Jesus is coming quickly as Judge, calling us to repentence.

When our Lord said "I am come to send fire on the earth" He certainly meant to say by it that His judgments would be sent out over the whole world (wars, pestilences, floods, earthquakes, etc.) calling men to repentence. Regarding this the apostle Paul declares, "For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men, who hold the truth in unrighteousness." — Romans 1:18. God does not reveal his wrath without due purpose. He reveals it to warn men to flee from the eternal wrath that will come on the apostate and unrepentent. Surely, this is part of the fire of which Jesus spoke.

But the fire Jesus came to send on earth is more than his judgments. Verily, his judgments are a revelation of His holiness and justice, but only the revelation through His Word confronts men with Him in the gospel message. That message is a fire, that either purges all who believe it, or eternally condemns all who reject it. The Gospel is the good news of salvation, but precisely for that reason it places men before a life and death decision. Jesus said, "If I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had sin: but now they have no cloak for their sin."—John 15:22. It is the condemning fire of the Gospel that men would like to put out, but it keeps burning, as a light shining in the darkness, and as the Judge calling sinners to true repentence.

No man can plead innocence in regard to the fire Jesus has cast on this earth. That fire is doing its great work, dividing men into two camps, setting one against another. Where the Gospel is proclaimed and the Church comes into being, there the warfare begins. The important question is: On whose side are we? Have we been purged by the fire of the Gospel, or are we condemned by it? Today, while we hear His voice, let us not harden our hearts, but believe the Word.

The Seventh Column

There are lots of things to write about this week. How about Halloween for a start? That gay old night for the young . . . of witches and goblins, pussycats and punks. We can do with the first three but the latter are most unnecessary. Unnecessary or not, they were out in rather noticeable numbers Monday night making, as usual, a nuisance of themselves and coming up with an all Canadian effort to attract attention and demolish property.

The over-used adage of "boys will be boys" is a lame brain excuse to-day. And too many parents depend on this as an excuse for their delinquents. You'd have a hard job convincing the driver of a late model car who took on a telephone pole opposite the theatre. He must have thought he was picking his way through a war torn mine field as he wheeled through town (almost) before losing control as he tried to avoid a barricade. Earlier in the night this same corner was the scene of another barrier in the form of a large flaming wagon. Another stupid conflagration of sorts broke out in the vicinity of the Presbyterian Church where a man-made oil slick was touched off.

A few wagons and certain types of movable buildings were tossed around. At one time it looked like Times Square, maybe even Picadilly Circus as the "mods" and their friends delayed the usual rolling up of sidewalks. It was noisy, and an "I don't care" attitude seemed to exist. Luckily mob hysteria did not break out although a minority group did its best to stir things up. For Police Chief Les Whitteker and his Halloween night force it was a night of frustration. But this is not too different from other years. You simply don't keep up with the action unless you call in Batman and Robin. And it would be a job for them.

In all fairness to the younger set, it was mostly a night of carousing around the town, playing a few tricks and having a fair amount of fun. There were some rather stupid antics typical of Halloween but, as usual, it was a minority group who really didn't accomplish that much and who most certainly did not impress anyone. For the majority it was primarily a night to let off a little steam. There could be one or two charges laid. After all, you can't push a car into a deep ditch and smash the windows without someone being aggravated.

But the real fun of Halloween is for the youngsters . . . the little guys and gals from two to twelve who make the rounds and stock up with a variety of exciting loot. They were out in full force Monday night. The weather was just right and judging by the ones who dropped in to our place, about 100 it seemed, they were mannerly, appreciative, and really having a ball. This, to us, is Halloween.

Halloween this year, proved a deterring force to the "Portraits from the Past" fashion show at North Dundas District High School. Many people wanted to attend but simply would not leave their homes because they were afraid of what might happen. Well, it didn't happen and perhaps our adult attitude of fear and often undue concern towards Halloween is one reason why the kids like to live it up a little more. Regardless, the reasons must be respected and the crowds at the Fashion Show were down. But the 300 people who did come out saw an exceptional show as each of them will testify. Those who didn't make it missed an unusual opportunity.

Finally this week, just a note about the annual sale of poppies and the Remembrance Day Service at the Cenotaph this Sunday. Buy a poppy and wear it when you attend this service. And at the request of many readers we hope to again publish the Remembrance Day poem which we used last year in next week's edition of The Press.

Modern Driving Refresher Course

A refresher course in modern driving, to be organized in communities throughout Ontario, was announced by Transport Minister Irwin Haskett.

The course will be given in three evening sessions and it is intended for experienced drivers who want to sharpen their skill and know-how.

"Driving a car is becoming more complicated all the time" Mr. Haskett said. "It is one of the most complex and difficult things to do, and the penalty for making a mistake can be a serious accident."

"The driver has to contend with the growing volume of traffic as well as new types of signs, new laws, freeway driving and other changing factors. Many drivers have asked for some sort of refresher course in modern driving methods and conditions. The Ontario Course in Modern Driving was developed in response to these requests."

He noted that the requests had become more numerous in the past year in view of Ontario's plan to have periodic reexaminations of all drivers, beginning in 1967.

Mr. Haskett was joined in his announcement by the heads of the two organizations that cooperated with the Department in compiling the course—W. M. Rankin, president of the Ontario Safety League, and Douglas G. Knox, president of the Ontario Motor League.

"The course is designed to serve two purposes," Mr. Haskett said. "It will give individual drivers the opportunity to check and improve their driving, and it will make a positive contribution to the prevention of accidents."

Total length of the course is seven and a half hours. It is intended for three evening sessions of two and a half hours each. The "students" will pay a fee of $10 each to cover the costs of instruction, text book and other expenses.

The subjects include freeway driving, defensive driving, traffic laws, driving under adverse conditions and the human factors in driving. In some areas there will be, in addition, a driver evaluation in a car at the end of the course.

The courses will be organized by the Ontario Safety League and the Ontario Motor League, in each community, and the Department of Transport will co-ordinate the project.

Instructors will be qualified persons such as teachers who give driver instruction in schools, police officers who specialize in traffic safety, and safety directors from industry and from the Ontario Safety League and the Ontario Motor League. The instructors will be paid at the current board of education night school rates in their area.

A one-day training course is required before instructors can teach the Ontario Course in Modern Driving. The first group of instructors has already taken this training course.

Mr. Haskett noted that the course is tailored to Ontario laws and Ontario conditions.

Several pilot courses have been run in different parts of the province and Mr. Hasket said the results were excellent.

"All the drivers who took the pilot course agreed that it should help them to be better and safer drivers,' he said. "No matter how many years they had been driving, they learned things they hadn't known before as well as refreshing the knowledge they already had."

A COURSE IN MODERN DRIVING . . . aimed at reducing traffic accidents by increasing drivers' knowledge of the law and improving their driving skills . . . has been introduced by the Ontario Department of Transport, with the co-operation of the Ontario Safety League and the Ontario Motor League. Looking over some of the course materials are: Hon. Irwin Haskett, Ontario's Minister of Transport on the left; Douglas G. Knox, President of the Ontario Motor League (Provincial Association) centre; and R. C. West, Secretary of the Ontario Safety League.

Howie The Hobo

Howie the Hobo was in Winchester Monday evening. You might say that Howie has a familiar face to most people around Winchester and district, but he was a mite hard to recognize on Tuesday morning. It was Halloween and Howie thought he would pull on his best bib and tucker and call on a few friends. He did and they treated him. When Howie was making the turn off Caleb Street to go back Main, he was plumb tuckered. A man of Howie's experience on the road knows that when the feet beckon for a rest, you sit.

Sitting on the steps at Duncan's Store Howie greeted some more friends, very few who recognized him in his fine duds. Few of the people who did recognize Howie did so as a man who was a real friend of Winchester. Even though his face is a little blackened from riding into town on the coal tender — that's why he had the lantern — to flag down the engineer on the hill west of the village, so the jump to the platform wouldn't be quite as hard as usual. After all, Howie is a retired man now and has to take things easy.

Ottawa Report by Mrs. Jean Wadds

It seems clear that this week's Dominion - Provincial Conference is both timely and necessary.

There are many who believe in a permanent almost continuous meeting arrangemet. Due to the increasing complexities of government at all levels this would make good sense. Certainly there is continuous study of Dominion-Provincial affairs anyway.

The free spending tendencies of the present Government in Ottawa already points to higher personal taxes as Mr. Sharp has warned. Although he announced a 10% reduction in Federal Government spending in his last budget, this has not come about. Far from any reduction, the original spending planned has been surpassed by the insiduous method of piling up supplementary estimates. Each supplementary may not appear alarming, but when they are added together, the total is.

It is quite right for Premier John Robarts to warn against the trend of Ottawa having more and more to spend while provinces go further and further into the red. With education being given such priority and the well known costs of building bigger and better schools, provinces have long been worried on this one item alone. There is also the fantastic rise in cost of learning techniques, costly equipment, TV and highly trained advisory experts.

Most parents quite rightly want the best for their children. To keep up with the best demands, constant research on education, not only techniques but different types of education and their relationship to employment openings has to be made. There is also the frightening need for ever rising qualifications in teachers. It would seem that our teachers will need to be heavily endowed as well as highly educated to keep ahead of it all.

Premier Duff Roblin from Manitoba also stresses an important point when he requests that the Report of the Federal-Provincial Tax Structure Committee be made public. It is inconceivable that any Federal Minister of Finance would have the arrogance to think of keeping this report secret.

This should not only be urged by Mr. Roblin and supported by Mr. Robarts, but should be demanded by all Provincial Premiers of whatever political colour. It seems obvious that this would tend to help the provinces in their very real financial needs, and protect them against extravagant Federal spending, often for reasons of political popularity.

Federal Conservative members had an opportunity to express their opinions to three of the most active Premiers Wednesday night.

Wednesday night being the traditional night of the week when Parliament does not sit, the Premiers were asked up to Parliament Hill. It was a good idea because many Federal members, particularly the younger, or the newer members, had not even met Premiers outside of their own provinces.

The Hon. Duff Roblin has a quick, alert, intelligence accompanying an outgoing personality and an active, slightly restless manner. He chatted brightly with other Conservatives, equally at ease in English or French.

The Hon. Robert Stanfield is tall and thin and looks as if he might be related to Abraham Lincoln. He obivously has no preference for social chit-chat, but remembers names and who everyone is and what they do. His sincerity is unassailable and the twinkle in his eye heartwarming. It is said of him that if he personally ran in each riding in Nova Scotia he would win the whole province.

They were welcome guests and it was an encouraging occasion for divided, unhappy Federal Conservatives.

Financially Adopt Vietnamese Girl

Nguyen This Ha lives in a bleak need and a dark world of misery. Her father has always worked hard to provide his family with all the vicissitudes, but uneducated and unskilled he works when he can for 55 cents a day. Her mother used to be able to work but now is blind.

Ha is a timid little girl of ten years who has missed time at school because of lack of money. Under PLAN she will return to school the financially adopted daughter of Mrs. Isabel G. Lewis of R. R. 2, Osgoode.

The adoption is financial, not legal, and costs $16 a month for a minimum of one year. Parent and child exchange letters and a warm relationship soon builds.

Foster Parents' Plan is located in Canada at Room 328, 1500 Stanley Street, Montreal 2, Quebec.

Ha, the ten year old Vietnamese girl adopted by Mrs. Lewis, lives with her parents, two brothers and a sister. They live in Gia Dinh, about ten miles from Saigon in a little fifteen foot square hut. Nine cents a day income is gained by renting out the front portion of the hut. They own two wooden beds and a table. PLAN aid will provide a monthly cash grant of $8.00, clothing, supplies, and special medical care.

Purpose New Agricultural Museum

Hon. W. A. Stewart, Minister of Agriculture and Food, has announced that the Ontario Government has purchased 80 acres of land for the purpose of establishing an Ontario Agricultural Museum.

The project, designed to perpetuate for posterity the tools, implements and pioneers of the past, will be located in Halton County on a site consisting of 80 acres of land admirably situated for the purpose.

Bounded on the north by the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway, on the east by the town line of Nassagaweya and Esquesing Townships, and on the south by the Halton County Conservation Authority's Park and Lake Kelso, the location will provide easy access for visitors.

Announcing that the land had been acquired, Mr. Stewart said that it was proposed to maintain and operate a museum to preserve and display agricultural and horticultural machinery, tools, paintings and other objects of agricultural interest. The museum will also illustrate the origins, development and progress of agricultural and horticultural technology.

The Association, which has been operating for seven years, has over 400 pieces of equipment of historic value. The museum will proivde a home for much of this material and will permit the development of certain phases of their activity. In the past the Association has been forced to dismantle its sawmill, shingle mill and blacksmith shop, but these will be established on a permanent basis on the museum property.

"The museum will provide a centre at which agricultural equipment and its development over the years can be graphically illustrated,' said the Minister. "I am confident that it will receive enthusiastic support from both the farm and urban people of the Province."

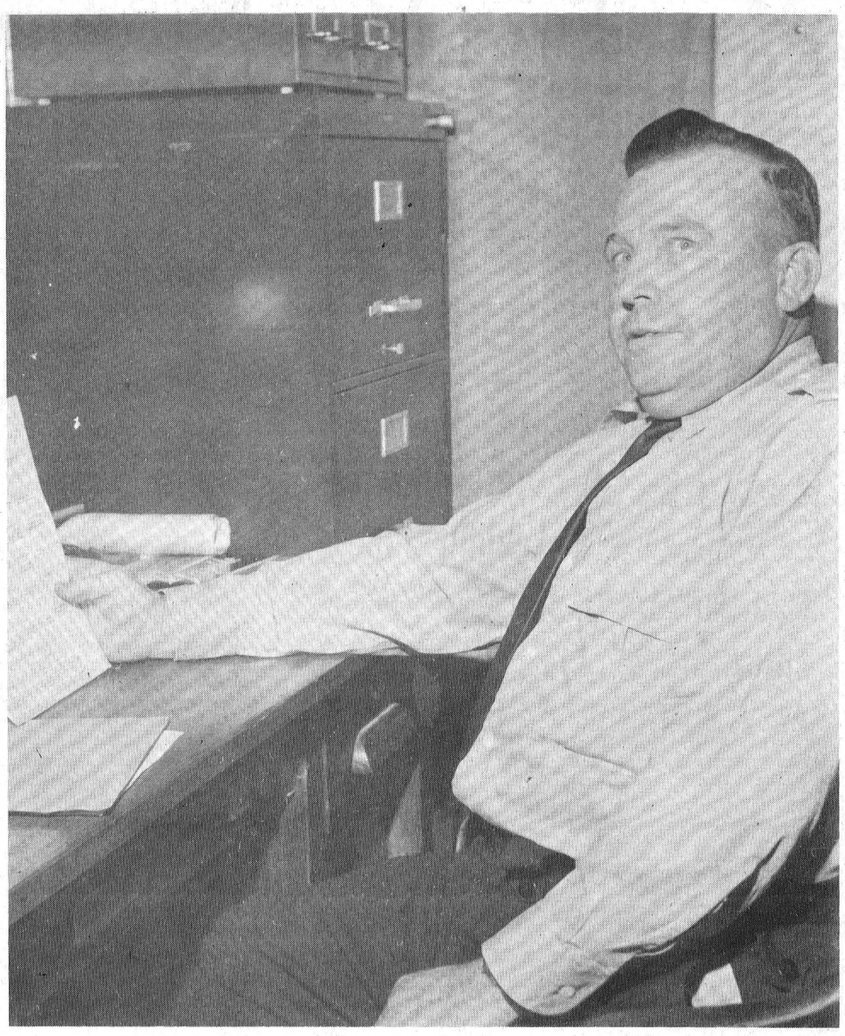
Mrs. E. Hetherington Dies In 84th Year

Ill for only a short time, Mrs. Emma Adeline Hetherington of Cannamore died October 28, 1966. Widow of the late Walter Hetherington, she was in her 84th year.

Born in South Hull, Quebec, the daughter of Isaac Hetherington and his wife, Nancy Olmstead, she had lived in Cannamore for sixty years. Deceased was a member of the Anglican Church.

Surviving are, one daughter, Beryl, Mrs. Ellis Thompson; two granddaughters and six great grandchildren.

Rev. D. L. Gordon and Rev. James D. Ibbot conducted the funeral service from the Vice and Craig Funeral Home October 30th at 3 p.m. Pall-bearers for interment in the Anglican Cemetery, Crysler, were Hector Carruthers, Garnet Thompson Earl Steen, Glenn MacGregor Dalton Baker and Archie Byers.



Spacious New Office

A pleased and happy Chief Constable Les Whitteker is now enjoying the comfort of a new office.

The switch from the old turnaround space of the old police office to the spaciousness and well appointed confines of a spanking new office was not hard to take. The Chief Constable has his office in the redesigned section of the town hall that was the fire hall. The former fire hall was converted into three offices. Officials located in the revitalized section in addition to the police department are the village engineer Reg. Freeland, and office space for the Department of Transport Drivers' Testing team. Entrance by a door separate from that to the Clerk's office brings one into a waiting room and immediate adjacency to all three offices.

Wemerman Construction of Chesterville, contractors on the job, have added all the finishing touches to the new two-bay fire hall to the north of the original building and office sections. A new one cell jail is part of the police office, but Chief Whitteker hopes little use will be made of the added facility. Electric heat and tiled floors are part of the office package. Washrooms serve the police and drivers' offices.

Conversion of the old fire hall and construction of a similar new facility activated no change in the make-up of the established sections. Library and Clerk's office remain in the same location with same entrances.—Press Staff Photo.

Age has historical meaning for 5100 farms in Ontario. That's the number owned since Confederation by direct descendents of the same family. As a Centennial project, the Ontario Junior Farmers Association is erecting "Century Farm" signs across the province on those farms which meet the 100 year - one family requirements. Admiring one of the handsome signs is Ivan Suggitt, president, Mount Forest Junior Farmers Association and A. G. Grubbe, Agricultural Representative for Wellington County.

This is just a part of the 8 million dollar apple crop in Ontario this year. In total farm value, the apple industry is the unchallenged leader among all fruit crops in the province. Approximately 5½ million bushels are harvested annually from over 27,000 acres. Examining these high quality MacIntosh are: Art Baker, farm orchard manager in the Simcoe area and Bev. Ells, Fruit and Vegetable Extension Specialist with the Ontario Department of Agriculture and Food, Simcoe.

Civic Hospital Student Nurses Donate 50 Caps

African student nurses at the National School of Nursing, Blantyre, Malawi, are wearing Canadian nursing caps as the result of a link established between Malawi and Ottawa by Miss Genevieve Donovan, of Merrickville, who is teaching at Blantyre under the Canadian External Aid program.

At Miss Donovan's request, student nurses at Ottawa's Civic Hospital donated 50 starched nursing caps, now worn with pride by girls who face the challenging task of health work in a developing country desperately short of hospitals, clinics, doctors and nurses.

Miss Donovan, who has spent two years in Malawi as a nursing adviser, was on home leave recently and was able to call and thank the nurses at Civic Hospital and to tell them about her experiences in Malawi, the former Nyasaland. At the time of independence in July, 1964, only three citizens of the country of 3,000,000 people were qualified doctors of medicine—some of them preparing to leave — and nursing training could be obtained only in Rhodesia or South Africa. Dr. Banda asked Canada for help and today, eight Canadian nursing adivsers and two Canadian doctors work in Malawi under the Canadian program of assistance to Commonwealth Africa.

Miss Donovan, who had nursing experience in Hotel Dieu, Kingston, and London, Ontario, said that a useful side effect of the training she is able to give is the spreading of public health knowledge among the people of Malawi. Student nurses who go home to their towns and village take with them an awareness of how diseases spread and become persuasive advocates of elementary public health measures.

Because of the intense pressures on health services in Malawi, there are shortages of many items of standard nursing equipment — sheets, towels and diapers, for example. Miss Donovan said that if any Canadian organization or individual would be interested in sending such items to Malawi, she can be reached at the National School of Nursing, Blantyre.
