Pte. Clifford Merkley Heard From

Last week Mr. and Mrs. Chester Merkley were very pleased to receive a letter dated Sept. 2nd and a card Sept. 15th from their son Pte. Clifford Merkley who was taken prisoner on August 8th, when the tank which he was with became disabled and left them at the mercy of the Germans. He speaks very highly of the Red Cross from whom he had received a parcel two days after his arrival at Dulmen prison camp, so closely is the welfare of the prisoners looked after. The parcels contain food and clothing and are the main stay of the prisoners when in the hands of the Germans. These letters were the first directly from Pte. Merkley although he spoke of having written the last week in August. He was well and had not received wounds of any kind.

Died in Calgary

The many friends of Mary Arne (Minnie) Hamilton wife of Lewis McConkey of Calgary will be shocked to hear of her death of influenza followed by pneumonia, on Oct. 30th.

The deceased was only ill a short time and seemed to be improving when suddenly she took a change for the worse and passed away in a few hours.

The funeral service being private only the relatives and her most intimate friends being present was conducted by her pastor Rev. Dalgleish after which her remains were laid to rest in theUnion 'Cemetery.

She leaves to mourn her loss her husband and two brothers namely Ira R. Hamilton of Calgary and Jay of Carbon.

The many floral tributes testified the high esteem she was held by her many friends in Calgary.

Chesterville and Dsstrict Does Itself Proud

In the great Victory Loan campaign closed last Saturday night Chesterville and district rolled up another record in which it is entitled to take some pride. The township of Winchester was divided into four districts and given an allotment of two hundred thousand dollars as its share to provide in the great loan. J. G. Tate the only bond seller appointed for the work besides the three Winchester men, in his quarter section of the township secured more than four fifths of the allotment for the whole township when he sold $161,600 worth of bonds to 220 subscribers. The township as a whole has exceeded the allotment by a large margin, but up to last night what these figures are could not be ascertained here. Just what disposition will be made of the honor flag earned by attaining the objective in the town ship has not been made known. If any other section has subscribed for more bonds than Chesterville they are welcome to the flag; but if $161,600 stands high figure the people who bought these bonds want to see the honor flag unfurled where it belongs.

Successful Sale at Melvins

One of the largest crowds to turn out to a sale for a long time was that at Ex-Reeve G. E. Earle's at Melvin yesterday afternoon, notwithstanding the conditions of the roads and weather, and that they were there for business was well shown when the proceeds of the sale amounted to $7250. Mr. Earles herd of 24 Holstein milch cows averaged $91.00 each, with the highest priced animal going for $142. A team of horses brought $297. This sale was advertised in The Record.

For The Welfare of Chesterville

Last week a new organization sprung to life in Chesterville when a large number of the young ladies of the town formed themselves into what is to be known as the Young Ladies' Auxiliary of Chesterville, for the purpose of assisting in any way that will be for the welfare of the place. As the name suggests they are not out to take the place of any other body of our citizens who have the same objects in view. The first objective set by the young ladies is providing some fire fighting appliances beyond what is now on hand. On first thought it may strike some that this is rather a peculiar thing for the Auxiliary to be interested in. They are certainly needed and would be a material benefit to every citizen of this place. The Women's Institute supplied the town with a street sprinkler to make conditions better in the dusty months, why should the Young Ladies Auxiliary not bend its energies to providing a measure of safety for the property of our citizens.

A programme has been mapped out providing entertainment in the form of dances, concerts, plays, euchres and bazaars—one for each Friday night during the fall and winter, as a means of gathering in the funds which will go towards the objects they have in view. The first dance will be Friday night of this week in the Music Hall. Everyone who will appreciate a good time is invited, while special invitations have been sent to the members of the Village Council and their wives and the members of the Women's Institute and their husbands. The Big Four Orchestra will supply the music.

The object is desirable and the means used to attain it are pleasant making a combination which should appeal to a wide circle beyond the limits of Chesterville.

The following officers were elected:—Miss Clara Dwyer, President; Miss Gladys Campbell, Secretary; Miss Neita Thurston, Treasurer. The following members have enrolled:—Misses Gladys Smith, Ethel Bogart, Lottie Merkley, Alma Hooks, Kathleen Hicks, Myrtle Bogart, Laura Simser, Emma Lynch, Agnes Kearns, Mae Rose, Violet Saucier, Harriet McLean, Iva Hamilton, Helen Soule, Anna Smith, Pearl Robinson, Florence Hummel, Annie Foster, Madge Baldrey, Nancy Kearns, Edna McGee, Mary O'Neil, Stella Kelly, Pearl Merkley, Addie Dunn, Ethel Droppo, Irene Pelletier, Maude Hummel, Edith Allison, Nettie Henderson, Katie Rady, Essie Connor, Mary Gibbons, G. KEEP MILK COLD.

(FARMERS CUT THIS OUT)

The sooner the milk can be cooled the better. It is almost impossible to produce milk without some bacteria in it, so that the problem now is to prevent these bacteria from increasing in number. At a temperature of seventy degrees, one bacterium may increase to two in twenty minutes while at fifty degrees it requires a very much longer period. One bacterium in milk at fifty degrees may increase in twelve hours to six or seven, while at seventy degrees it may increase to 600 or 700. When, therefore, it is remembered that much apparently good milk contains many thousand of bacteria per cubic centimeter, which is about thirty drops, it is readily seen how soon millions of bacteria will develop when the milk is warm. Milk should be cooled as soon as possible to fifty degrees lower and kept at that temperature.

Germans Selling Arms to Belgians

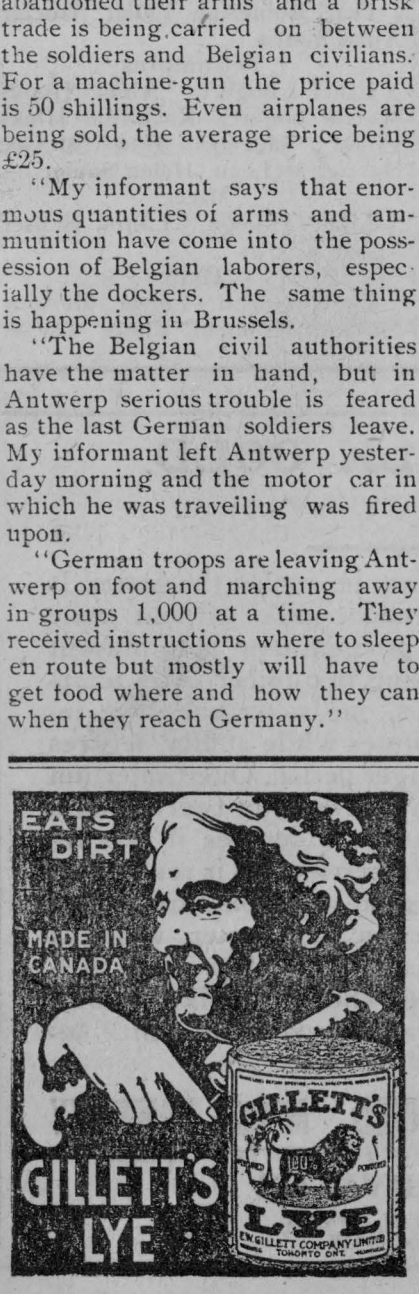
London, November 19.—The Daily Chronicle's Rotterdam correspondent telegraphs the following under date of November 18.

"A traveller who has just arrived here from Antwerp tells me of the extraordinary state of affairs among the German troops in the garrison there and at other places behind the front in Belgium. No definite instructions as to how the armies are to return to the Fatherland seem to have been received, and there is a scarcity of rolling stock. About 70,000 men were in the garrison at Antwerp when the armistice was signed. A sort of haphazard condition exists among the troops, numbers of whom have abandoned their arms and a brisk trade is being carried on between the soldiers and Belgian civilians. For a machine-gun the price paid is 50 shillings. Even airplanes are being sold, the average price being £25.

"My informant says that enormous quantities of arms and ammunition have come into the possession of Belgian laborers, especially the dockers. The same thing is happening in Brussels.

"The Belgian civil authorities have the matter in hand, but in Antwerp serious trouble is feared as the last German soldiers leave. My informant left Antwerp yesterday morning and the motor car in which he was travelling was fired upon.

"German troops are leaving Antwerp on foot and marching away in groups 1,000 at a time. They received instructions where to sleep en route but mostly will have to get food where and how they can when they reach Germany."



The Late Miss Bogart

(Kingston Paper)—The funeral of the late Miss F. M. Bogart, B. A. was held from the family residence at two o'clock Tuesday afternoon. Rev. Dr. Bruce Taylor, Principal of Queen's University, and Rev. W. T. G. Brown were the clergymen in charge. The service was at home, and was a very impressive character while the funeral was supposed to be of a private nature, yet throngs of people had assembled for a distance of almost three blocks to pay their last respects to the departed. There were also present many friends from outside points, Belleville, Napanee, Sydenham, Ottawa, Montreal, Gananoque, and all the neighboring villages and towns were well represented by doctors and other friends of the family. Many relatives from Stormont and Dundas counties were also present, most of them returning home on the midnight train.

The pall-bearers to carry the remains to its last resting place were six of the deceased's teachers viz., Professors, Mitchell, Coleman, McClement, Matheson, McDonald and Skelton.

Great numbers of telegrams and letters of sympathy and regrets at not being able to secure floral tributes were received from all points. Yet in spite of this the casket, a beautiful Puritan design in sliver gray metal, and its surroundings, was simply banked with elegant tributes being obtained from home florists, Brockville, Toronto, and Brampton. Among the kind remembrances received were:—

Pillows—Father, mother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stevens and daughter, Napanee.

Crosses—Major Stewart M. Polson, Mr. and Mrs. Asslestine, Odessa.

Cycle—Dr. and Mrs. P. H. Huyck.

Enemy Disappears Behind Frontiers

With the American Army of Occupation, Nov. 19.—With the exception of a few laggard units, the last of Germany's armies disappeared to-day behind their own frontier. From the villages located in the narrow strip of unoccupied territory between the American and German forces came reports during the day that the stragglers last night and early this morning had engaged in looting. Appeals were received from the inhabitants that the advancing troops hasten to their relief. Investigation proved however, that the villagers were more excited than injured, and that most of the damage being done by the little groups of Germans was to the Germans' own stores of food and clothing.

Other appeals were found to have more foundation. Those from the mayors of Halanzy and other neighboring towns reported the presence of wounded and sick in greater numbers than the local physicians could attend to, and at those points medical officers and supplies were sent.

When the Germans evacuated these towns they took with them not only the medical and nursing staffs, but also the hospital supplies abondoning the sick and wounded to the mercies of the townspeople and the army of occupation.

Tragedy of Captives

With the French Army in Lorraine, November 18.—The whole life of what before the war were the frontier provinces centered about a double stream of traffic. The armies flow east, and the great mass of civilians are waiting to follow them directly the signal is given. Prisoners of war of Allied nationalities and many civilian refugees are flowing west. One stream is joyful and comfortable; the other bears fresh marks of many sufferings. But both are full of new confidence and hope.

Behind the processions and all the incidents of the drama and the pathos to which they give rise there loom a hundred problems that will be the substance of our cares for many a long day to come.

When Colonel Seymour arrived at Nancy yesternay morning he found himself suddenly overwhelmed by the most immediate of the problems to which I referred. Within a few hours 2,000 British prisoners of war had swarmed over the frontier, and these are being followed by some 3,000 more. There are among the men already arrived sixty hospital cases, and twenty have died, largely from the effects of starvation. I spoke to many of those gathered in the large square of the barracks. All told stories of hardships, some of cruelty. The most general was due to bad and insufficient food, but some of the men readily remarked that their German guardians were in little better ease than themselves in this respect. Once on the homeward tramp they were received by numbers of Germans waving red flags, who gave them cigarettes, but generally had much difficulty in finding the roughest food. They are now clad in all sorts of garments and have with them fragments of Russian, Italian and other kits. A hundred Bulgarians came in with the British—why I could not discover—and gave some trouble because there was no one who could speak their tongue. There are also about 5,000 liberated French soldiers in Nancy.

The Crusaders Mission Band of the Presbyterian Church held a very successful Thank-offering meeting in the Hall on Friday evening. There was a good attendance and the offering amounted to $26.75. It is the aim of the band always to have a program of an educative character and the lecture given on this occassion by Rev. Wm. Usher of Bishop's Mills on "A Journey through Palestine" was certainly both instructive and entertaining and his lantern views very clear and interesting.

A quiet ceremony took place in the Manse on Monday afternoon when the Rev. K. A. Gollan united in marriage Mr. Oliver Baker of this place and Miss Minnie Errat of Crysler.

THE ANNUAL SCANDAL.

WHAT was the deed
Of which they chatter
As gossips feed
On some small matter?
Each August they Seem to remember
And fuss away
All through September.

"She did!" says one.
"Did not!" another.
And thus begun
They try to smother
Each other's cries
By louder calling
Until the skies
Repeat their bawling.

Was it a sin
Or error weighty
That came within
The life of Katy?
One lifts his voice
Just to attack her,
And ten rejoice
Right then to back her.

And all their tones
Get in a tangle.
One side condones;
The others wrangle.
We know her name
And thus her gender,
But what's the claim
Of her defender?

Know what she was?
Know what she wasn't?
One shrieker does,
The other doesn't.
Poor Katy! It
Still seems a toss-up,
But you're a bit
Of yearly gossip.

Pat's Narrow Escape.

During the South African war an Irish trooper on outpost duty one night felt so desperately tired that he thought he would have a five minutes' nap. Placing his helmet on a dock, he lay down and was soon in a sound sleep. Waking suddenly, he mistook his helmet for one of the enemy, drew his sword and dealt it a severe blow.

Perceiving his mistake, the trooper picked up his helmet, which he had cut in two, and gave thanks to heaven that he had taken it off before lying down. "For," he soliloquized, "had my head been inside that it's ten to one a dead man I would have been seeing meself at this moment!"—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Italian Peat Bogs.

Many peat bogs are being worked at the present time in Italy in order to secure a supply of fuel. Much of this peat is too low a grade to compete with foreign imported coal, but more recently attention has been called to the nitrogen it contains.

General Rules For all Coal Heaters.

The check draft damper is as important in controlling the rate at which the fire burns as is the throttle of the engine in controlling its speed. Get acquainted with it.

Just enough draft, and that from below, checking the draft by letting more air into the smoke-pipe, is one of the best general rules for heating the homes, declares the Ontario Fuel Administration.

The flow of air through the fuel makes it burn. Learn to control it.

To make coal burn freely "open the draft". This means open ash-pit lift or slide damper; open pipe damper and close check-draft damper.

To make coal burn slowly, a good way is to partly close pipe damper, partly open check draft damper and close ash-pit damper.

To make coal stop burning "shut the draft". This means shut ash-pit damper open check-draft damper wide, and very nearly close pipe damper.

Never have ash-pit lift or slide damper and check draft damper open at the same time.

If you cannot check the fire without opening the firing door, your damper control is wrong. Study it.

It is not economy to allow the home temperature to drop away down at night, it takes too much coal to regain heat in the morning.

Remember the clean-out door and why it is there. Remove soot or ashes that collect in flue and on heating surfaces, brush or scrape thoroughly at least once per week; oftener when using soft coal.

See that grates work freely, and that they are left in proper position (flat).

Stop air-leaks into the ash-pit or furnace.

Cover all heat pipes in cellar to prevent loss of heat.

Carry a deep fire, at least level with fire door. In mild weather carry a layer of ashes on the grate.

Don't shake live coals into the ash-pit.

Don't let ashes pile up under the grate. Save good coal from the ashes.

Don't shake down ashes until after new fuel has been added to fire.

Burn off gases before closing fire for night.

To leave fire for night, partly close pipe damper, close ash-pit damper, open check draft damper.

When burning soft coal have the slide, or lift damper in firing door partly open. Soft coal requires air over the fire for proper consumption of gases.

These are general rules applying to all heaters. Study the rules regarding the particular kind of a heater you have, hot air, hot water or steam.

A Bear Close By

Mrs. Harvey Black of Campbell's Bay met a young bear in the door-way as she was about to start out for the cows. With a good stick she chased the bear up a tree near-by and called her husband, who put a couple of bullets into it. The lead was not sufficient to bring his bearship down which had to be chased out of the tree and dispatched with a stick.

Another Battle Won for Dairymen

FOR months we have been experimenting—investigating—testing—fighting, to find a way to make the Empire Milking Machine, already the unquestioned leader, still more efficient for the dairy farmer.

THE BATTLE IS WON.

We have given the milking machine a new heart—the pulsator is the heart of the milking machine—and the result of our experiment, the new Empire Super-Simple Pulsator, is the most wonderful development since the invention of the Empire—the competent milking machine.

To be successful a milking machine must have a perfectly acting pulsator to cause the alternating action of suction and massage on the teats (to imitate the calf's "suck and squeeze") to occur with absolute regularity; and to make the change from suction to massage and back again instantaneous.

The Empire Super-Simple Pulsator, the pulsator without a piston, does that and more. It really is Super-Simple—so simple that it can be taken apart and put together again in less than two minutes. It has but five moving parts; nothing to wear out or "get out of gear." It cannot lose vacuum, so its action is perfect.

It places the Empire Milking Machine immeasurably in advance of all competition. Your cows should be milked by an Empire Milking Machine with the new Super-Simple Pulsator. It will milk them more rapidly than ever—it will solve your labor problem—it will increase milk production at a decreased cost; it will transform milking from drudgery into a pleasant chore.

Our factory is overtaxed by the increased demand for Empire Milking Machines, so go to your dealer at once, see the new Super-Simple Pulsator and tell him to order your Empire outfit without delay; or write for Catalog.

Skating Rink Meeting

At a meeting held in the Bank of Ottawa last evening for the purpose of formulating plans for a skating rink for the coming season a committee composed of Messrs. Watson, Howard Bogart and Frank Dwyer was appointed to canvass the town for stock subscription shares at $5.00 each to finance the project. It is proposed to redeem the shares from the proceeds of the rink and the disposal of the lumber at the end of the season if it is possible to do so. The committee will report to another meeting in the Town Hall on Wednesday evening Nov. 27th, when if a satisfactory response has been made organization will be effected. A skating rink is a very desirable object in town, where the finest of outdoor exercise can be provided for all desiring it, and it is hoped that a ready response will be made towards it.

The recent Epidemic of influenza has undoubtedly left many of its victims in a weakened condition of health. With vitality lowered, they have less resisting force and may readily fall into Consumption. If you would guard against this disease watch your health. Avoid needless worry and overwork. See that your food is nourishing, and that it is served at regular intervals. Above all, get out into the sunshine every minute you can spare. See that the windows in your place of business and in your home are open, so that day and night you may be assured of a plentiful supply of pure, fresh air.

Lord's Day Alliance Threatens Action

Nov. 13, 1918.

Editor Chesterville Record—

In July of this year, following a conference with the Food Control Board who stated that there was imperative need for condensed milk overseas for the Allied countries and giving the assurance that export would be confined to Allied countries, the Lord's Day Alliance agreed to offer no opposition to Sunday delivery and manufacture in condensed and evaporated milk plants between the 15th of May and the 15th of September for this year. The question of Sunday operation had been submitted to the Food Controller by the Attorney General with the above result.

The period of immunity from prosecution under the Lord's Day Act is now past and the Attorney General has already given intimation that Sunday labor in this regard renders the responsible parties liable to prosecution. A number of plants have already closed. Liability to penalty rests not only with the manufacturer but with those who deliver milk on Sunday.

Over this whole question the Alliance has for the past two years exercised the greatest care and manifested the maximum of patience and in this regard has been representing the great body of public opinion in this Province. It is our judgment that the law now should be rigorously enforced. The debatable questions previously under consideration having been now settled by the authorities and ample notice given to all parties concerned.

I take occasion, therefore, to advise through the medium of your paper the public of the view already expressed by the authorities that the limit of indulgence is past and that the parties should govern themselves accordingly.

Very sincerely yours,
Wm. Rochester.

Not Optimistic Enough

(Montreal Gazette)

It is becoming customary for the most optimistic forecasts of war loan subscriptions in Canada to fall far short of the actual results.

When the first campaign was drawing to a close, good judges thought that a $40,000,000 subscription by the public would be satisfactory and the full $50,000,000 asked the extreme limit. The public, apart from the banks, actually subscribed $79,000,000. As the campaign for the third loan, or the "First Victory" was ending, reasonable optimists thought $300,000,000 had been reached and the extremists were satisfied to say $325,000,000. The actual figures were in excess of $412,000,000.

At the end of last week the optimistic forecasts ranged from $550,000,000 to $600,000,000, to be followed by the announcement of an official total of no less than $675,000,000, with some odds and ends still to be gathered in.

One result of the big over-subscription will be highly important to the financial position of the country generally.

Many of the large financial and industrial institutions, it can safely be said, have responded most generously to the appeal to subscribe to their "utmost". They have placed virtually all their cash resources at the disposal of the Government—in some cases mortgaged their future—trusting to later profits or to banking assistance for the requirements of their business.

Because of the large over-subscription, it will now follow that the larger applications will have to be scaled down in allotment. The general understanding is that the Government will accept $500,000,000 but not more. The amount is sufficient for the needs in view and, in addition to that, money couditions should be more favorable to the borrower when the time comes for another loan.

The scaling down of the large subscriptions will mean a substantial increase in the available cash resources of the large corporations, make them more independent of banking aid, and so better off to take up plans for enlargements and readjustments in their business in the critical peroid of transition from a war to a peace basis.

If the attitude of the people is to play a large part in determining the course of business in the readjustment period between war and peace, a good start has been made. Sentiment is far from depressed here, either in financial or in commercial circles.

The financial markets are impressed by the wealth of investment funds reflected in the big Victory Loan subscription and the steady to firm tone of older securities. In commercial circles, despite the loss, actual and prospective, of war orders, the Street hears that there is lots of business around.

About The Fish we Are Asked to Eat

Perth Expositor—The Dominion Food Board is urging Canadian people to eat fish in greater quantities than ever and set apart Thursday, the 31st ult., as a national fish day. Our experiences in Perth are, no doubt, the same as in other towns and villages in Canada removed from fish centres. It is quite an easy matter for the people of cities to obtain fish at very cheap prices, and fish has to be cheap, and fresh, to be attractive. There is not, in the first place, the same food value in a pound of fish as there is in a pound of beef. It is only possible, in Perth, to get fresh fish on Friday, and then the price is too high to make it attractive to the consuming public. If the Food Board expect residents in towns and villages to consume fish in larger quantities than the present day consumption, then better facilities have to be established in order that each community may get a varied supply of choice, really fresh fish, selling at not more than 18c per pound.

Farms Less Fertile Than 40 Years Ago

Canada has about 28,000,000 acres in field crops of which probably 20,000,000 acres are in the three Western Provinces. Is the fertility of the soil being kept up, is it being exhausted, is it being increased? To get an answer, the Commission of Conservation carried out a survey of 2,245 farms. We asked questions of 2,245 farmers located all over Canada. We took them in groups of about thirty or forty—in all about 60 groups, from British Columbia to Prince Edward Island. On this point, we made a definite enquiry of the farmer as to whether the fertility of his farm was being maintained or was deteriorating.

Here is the answer: 30 per cent of them reported about the same yield per acre as 20 years ago, 40 per cent reported some increase in yield, and 30 per cent reported some decrease. That is to say the land, as used by 30 per cent of all the men reporting, was poorer in its power to produce crops, than it was 20 years before. From Manitoba, 32 per cent of the farmers reported about the same yield per acre as 10 years before; not one man reported an increase; and 46 per cent reported some decrease. That is a summary of the answers to the question when put under an intelligently conducted survey.

We want in Canada more serious and intelligently conducted surveys of our conditions in order that we may acquire real knowledge of facts as they are. Then we can come to conclusions and plan our course of action to deal with the facts discovered and properly interpreted. In the West, the lure of land was for a time similiar to the lure of the Yukon; and the lure of the Yukon in the main led on to disappointed men, deteriorated health, and parts of the Yukon left with less material substance that could be called wealth than it had before. There is some excuse for the pioneers taking more than one generation's share of the fertility stored in soil by the beneficence of nature during long ages of preparation. In the pioneer days they needed and had some right to more than their share of this store of natural wealth while making the place ready for occupation; but after the first need is satisfied, it becomes their duty to make the place more fertile while in their hands.

The history of other countries and other farmers sheds light on our problems; and we may be instructed, to our great advantage, by their experience. In central New York, wheat growing was followed successfully for 40 years. During 20 years more the success was doubtful. Then it became definitely unprofitable. With a climate favourable for agriculture and propitious for crop-growing, it took 40 years of exclusive grain growing to make that system unprofitable, and 20 years more to compel the farmers to stop that sort of practice. Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa and other Western States either have or are making similar history. I have gone over them and talked to the old men; from 30 bushels of wheat to the acre they came down to 14.

We can afford to take a lesson from even our enemy. Germany is a country with a soil which on the whole is not naturally very fertile. Within about 30 years she has been able to effect an increase of about 30 per cent in the yields per acre of her crops.

On the other hand, over large areas of Canada our methods of farming are exhausting the fertility of our farms to some extent; and there is danger that the fertility of considerable areas will be reduced below the point of profitable farming.—Dr. J. W. Robertson.

A Young Officer's "Let-Down".

When Salvation Army ambulance cars first went to France, shortly after the outbreak of the war, the sight of the drivers with their cars labelled "Salvation Army" attracted considerable interest. Though the men for working purposes, came under the control of the Red Cross Society, wore its uniform, and obyed the military law, they were allowed to wear on their cap bands the words "Salvation Army." They were therefore easily distinguished.

The story is told of a young officer in sportive mood who stepped out from his colleagues in the streets of a French town and stoped one of the cars laden with wounded. "Hallo! Salvation Army!" he said to the driver. "Are you taking those men to heaven?" The other officers laughed at this pleasantry. "No,sir," replied the Salvationist, "I cannot say that I am taking them to heaven; but I am certainly taking them from the other place!" The shouts of laughter that followed this rejoinder indicated at least that all the honours do not lie with the young officer.

The record of the Salvation Army unit includes the transport of over a hundred thousand wounded men.

Bigger Demand For Farm Products

The war is over, and now starts the drive for reconstruction, and in this no class of the community is more directly interested than the farmers. Now, more than ever, will there be a reason for increased production in all lines and especially of foodstuffs. Transportation facilities will improve rapidly, and the demand for supplies in Europe needing first consideration, it is only to be expected that every surplus item of farm production on the American continent will be required for export.

This country especially, is well situated to meet the first call, which will naturally be for wheat and such proportion of other cereals as can be used to best advantage in milling. The year's crops are all saved and but little inroad on the new supply has been made as yet, but business of moving the grain will increase in activity at once without doubt. Also, such material suited for stock feeding, will be in demand to help save whatever remains of the herds and flocks on the other side of the Atlantic.

Not much more of the grain crops than will be required for seed next Spring, can be expected to be held out of the amount called for to help in carrying our allies and others over the coming Winter and in view of the fact that the next call namely, for meat animals and breeding stock, will follow immediately on the call for bread, farmers in Canada must take immediate steps to make fullest possible use of feed substitutes that are available so that their live stock may be maintained in fair condition until next year's pasture season arrives. The situation will probably necessitate provision to allow for the survival of the fittest of our live stock and a careful culling of all herds should be started at once with a view to disposing of such animals as cannot be expected to improve economically and to save every promising breeding animal so that building up may go on at a rapid pace next year.

The Weather Forecast

Last bulletin gave forecasts of disturbance to cross continent Nov. 19 to 23, warm wave 18 to 22, cool wave 21 to 25. This will bring unusually severe storms and will be of much importance to sections where a shortage of rain occurred the past crop season. This will be the last great storm period of the year and the last hope of good rains for the dry sections. Following it the storm forces will be weak till near March 17. This promises a shortage of percipitation for four months, from near Nov. 1 to near March 17.

This shortage of winter precipitation, particularly of snow, was one reason for advising not to sow winter grain where dry weather prevailed last summer. Some good rains occurred during the predicted severe storm periods of October where last summer was dry, and many farmers who do not get these weather bulletins have sown an unusually large amount of winter grain. I doubt their reaping good crops. If a dry spring follows great losses will occur on the large acreage of winter wheat sown in last summer's dry section.

Next warm wave will reach Vancouver about Nov. 24 and temperatures will rise on all the Pacific slope. It will cross crest of Rockies by close of Nov. 25, plains sections 26, meridian 90, great lakes, middle Gulf States and Ohio-Tennesse valleys 27, eastern sections 28, reaching vicinity of Newfoundland about Nov. 29. Storm wave will follow about one day behind warm wave, cool wave about one day behind storm wave.

This will be preceded by a cold wave, northern blizzards, heaviest snows of the winter north and heaviest rains of the winter south, and followed by a great warm wave and quiet weather with a shortage of precipitation. Quiet weather is expected with moderate temperatures till about Dec. 10, after which colder than usual is expected and not much rain or snow.

Ruse That Failed

The called-up one volubly explained that their was no need in his case for a medical examination.

"I'm fit and I want to fight. I want to go over on the first boat. I want to go right into the front trenches, but I want to have a hospital close, so that if I get hit no time will be wasted in taking me where I can get mended right away, so that I can get back to fighting without losing a minute. Pass me in, doctor. Don't waste time on me. I want to fight, and keep fighting!"

The doctor, however, insisted, and, when he got through, reported a perfect physical specimen.

"You don't find anything wrong with me ,doctor?"

"Nothing"

"But, doctor, don't you think I'm a bit crazy?"

A Long, Long Day

The day of a Salvation Army woman Officer (says the New York World) is long over there. She bakes and stews, she mends clothes for soldiers, and answers a thousand questions.

In the evening there is a religious service in the Hut. Every night it is crowded by soldiers who enjoy singing the familiar hymns. The same girls lead these meetings who have worked since dawn. Men preach and pray after driving a heavy motor truck, or hammering all day at the walls of some new shack. Later, some of them will run a moving-picture machine, or make their night deliveries of food to the trenches. Sometimes the working day is eighteen hours. One Englishwoman has served four years without a day of rest, in the British Huts

Pies, doughnuts, and hot coffee are all part and parcel of a great, virile faith, found vigorous and watchful on every battle-front.

American soldiers in France will always think of The Salvation Army as a dispenser of pies and doughnuts, a store for the sale of everything from chocolate to shoe-strings. But they will also remember the religious work of The Salvation Army, its meetings and songs. Some of these meetings have even been held in the Catholic churches of France, which shows the good feeling between the leaders. Then there are the quiet talks with the men or girls of the unit, girls who can cook fudge—just a tiny piece for each—and talk like the girls at home.

So welcome have they made themselves at the front that army officers are asking for Huts at special places. Once, when a Salvation Army lass was ill, a gruff colonel insisted on turning over his comfortable billet to her, while he went into a tent Often army officers address meetings at the Huts.

Pig Club at Finch Proved big Success

Down in Stormont says Ahonik Agricultural correspondent of Toronto Globe there is a pig club which is doing work similar to that being carried out by the Calf Club in Peel. For what is being accomplished in Stormont the credit is largely due to H. R. Mimms, local manager of the Merchants Bank at Finch, assisted by S. B. McCready, assistant secretary of the Organization of Resources Committee.

The work in Stormont began last winter, when a Boys' and Girls' Pig Club was organized. Eighteen members were enrolled from schools near Finch, which were visited personally. That members were supplied with the young pigs at cost price and the bank advanced the purchase price at 6 per cent. interest. It was understood that when the pigs were grown to marketable size, one would be sold to meet the note given in payment for the little porkers.

When the organization was completed the business men of Finch were called together and their support secured for the encouragement of the club members. A purse of over $40 was made up to provide part of the funds for prizes to be competed for by the pig owners. When the time for judging arrived a field day was arranged for. At this field there were some 2,500 people in attendance. A procession of school children in decorated automobiles, led by 2 pipers' band and followed by decorated waggons hauling the pigs entered for the competition, was organized. There were also races for the children, a football match and a demonstration in plowing with tractors. An admission fee was charged, except for the children, and after all expenses had been met there was a surplus of $125, which was givn to various local patriotic organizations.

Miss Etta Hunt of Finch Continuatior school won first prize for best type of bacon hog and second for best brood sow. She was the only girl to drive a waggon in the procession.

Merrit Campbell won first on two hogs in the competition. He also won first in county exhibits at Ottawa Fair, a $30 prize, and $30 in the sweepstakes. His prizes at the Finch competition aggregated $20 more.

Young Campbell also made a remarkably good record as a feeder. On two pigs—York and Tam—farrowed April 1, he made a total weight by August of 440 pounds, in May these hogs 100 pounds, in June 190, in July 290, and in August 440 pounds. The value of the pigs on Finch fair day was $81.40. There was no April fool about that pair of porkers.

The bank has been asked to continue the work and has been assured of hearty co-operation by parents and the business men of Finch. It is expected that the club next year will have a very largely increased membership.

A Fatal Accident With Tractor

On Sunday, Nov. 10th, our citizens were shocked to hear the news of the sudden death of Bruce Roode, of Hulbert a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Roode. As near as we can learn, the deceased was ploughing with a tractor on the Farlinger farm about two miles west of Morrisburg, and owing to the wet weather, the machine got stuck in the mud. Bruce then uncoupled the plow, and with the aid of a few rails jacked up the tractor, so as to be able to pull out of the rut under her own power. All being ready he shoved the lever into second gear and applied the gasoline. Something had to move, and quicker than the flash of an eye the tractor up ended, pinning young Roode under the engine, where he lay for some three hours before he was discovered. On being found he was conscious and related exactly how it happened, while receiving medical attendance. This was on Saturday. On Sunday afternoon however he got worse, being delirious, and passed away the same evening. The body was brought home on Monday and the funeral held yesterday. —South Mountain Herald.

BEDRIDDEN WITH RHEUMATISM

Felt That He Would Never Walk Again "FRUIT-A-TIVES" Brought Relief.

MR. LORENZO LEDUC

3 Ottawa St., Hull, P.Q.

"Fruit-a-tives" is certainly a wonder. For a year, I suffered with Rheumatism; being forced to stay in bed for five months. I tried all kinds of medicine but without getting better; and thought I would never be able to walk again.

"One day while lying in bed, I read about 'Fruit-a-tives' the great fruit medicine; and it seemed just what I needed, so I decided to try it.

The first box helped me, and I took the tablets regularly until every trace of the Rheumatism left me.

I have every confidence in 'Fruit-a-tives' and strongly recommend them to every sufferer from Rheumatism".

How a Sick Cauadian Soldier Got What He Wanted When in a Hospital in France

"When in hospital, and not too deathly sick, a person often takes a notion that he would like some little extra that the hospital authorities (through the army) do not supply, or if so, in too small quantities; that the Red Cross funds over look, or, if not, are also limited by their finances and which the different canteens about are generally out of. Then again, there are little errands the boys want doing, and many other little favours, and no regular staff is provided to carry out our little or big wishes in that line.

"When we take these notions we are handicapped by either lack of money (no pay when in hospital), and we all are not fortunate enough to go down to hospital the day after pay with an overflowing purse. We are not children; still, when sick, many of us do childish things, and one of them is to worry over not being able to get things we want, that cannot be done by nurses or hospital staff. When in that state of mind some fairy comes along and says to you (metaphorically, of course); "Ask and ye shall receive", and you do receive, you naturally, do, or should, feel grateful to those who supply that missing link, as it were.

"I had been trying for about four or five days to get a tin of sweetened condensed cream, but was snccessful. The cow juice is rather slim in quantity, and being a farmer with plently of cows, I am rather partial to milk and its several substitutes and by-products. Of course, I must confess, I prefer the part that comes from the cream spout on the separator, but Saskatchewan is a long way from here. However I will make up, and heaven help our wives, mothers, etc. to hide the pastry, cream, and so forth, and Lord protect the wild ducks, prairie chickens, partridges, rabbits, deer, etc., when 'I come home'.

"Well, to get back to my subject, in comes a Salvation Army Sister, who after a few words of cheer, and a donation of fruit, writing paper, etc., asked me if there was anything I wanted that she could get for me outside the hospital grounds. Out came my purse and I quickly asked her to get the condensed cream. She would n't take the money, but I concluded she would when she delivered the goods—'C.O.D.' as it were! When delivered I again proffered payment, but she refused, telling me they never charged for anything that way for patients."—Extract from a letter from Private F. W. Tobey, 5th Battalion, C. E. F., from Hamilton (Ontario).

"It is remarkable that so many women should be working".

"Women have always worked," replied Miss Cayenne. "The principal difference just now is that they are working away from home and getting paid for it".

15,000 Prisoners Freed by Germany Return to France

With the American Army, Nov. 19—Fifteen thousand prisoners of war came through the American lines, northeast of Verdun today. They were mostly French with a few Americans among them. These men, recently captured, have been held in camps near the front. When the Germans withdrew yesterday they left them, and they made their way towards our lines. As they marched into Verdun they presented a bizarre spectacle. Caught in a cold wave, without sufficient clothing, they had seized on anything warm at hand. And thus some came in with German overcoats, other with synthetic uniforms, and some wearing women's clothes.

It is stated that the Germans are withdrawing rapidly in the direction of Luxemburg. In their day and a half march toward the American lines the released men had seen very few Germans, and those had not hindered the homeward pilgrimage.

All the erstwhile prisoners showed the effects of being overworked without proper clothes and food.

The Americans are busy preparing for the advance towards Germany, which is soon to start. American divisions will follow the withdrawing Germans armies to the French border, and then, proceeding on to German soil, will occupy the assigned zone along the Rhine. Orders have been issued, our zone assigned and units selected to form the American army of occupation, but it is not yet permitted to give these details.

When the Americans move forward, it will be in full military array with the equipment of all branches, including war planes. The divisions selected have been chosen with due regard for their military achievement since reaching France.

No one of importance hazards a guess as to how long the Allied armies of occupation will remain ou German soil Thirty days has been set tentatively as the duration of the armistice, but that may be extended. Then it is not yet settled whether the occupation will end with the signing of the peace pact for it will be remembered that did not happen in France in 1871, when the German army of occupation remained until France had paid all the indemnity.

French civilians and German deserters entering the lines say the Germans withdrawing from the front of the First American Army have gone beyond Montmedy, leaving weak rearguards behind. Observers report numbers of explosions and fires as if the Germans were destroying ammunition and other war material. Two hundred freed Italian prisoners of war have entered the American lines in the past twenty-four hours, and two hundred German deserters have come into the American lines. The weather has turned very cold.

Doctor Punches Patient in Jaw

Heart-rendering stories of the sufferings experienced by British prisoners during the offensive last Spring are recorded by a committee presided over by Mr. Justice Younger. Evidence was collected from 70 prisoners who managed to escape from enemy custody, preferring to run the grave risks attending such attempts to being srarved or exposed to British shellfire. The report gives particulars of several cases where prisoners were not only forced to work within the firing line, but were actually made to serve German guns in pain of summary execution. The prisoners' camps were often located within the firing line, resulting in many being killed and wounded.

The men had to wear their wet clothes if rain fell. The inhumanity to which the men were subjected even at the hands of the doctors is exemplified by the case of a medical man at the Valenciennes hospital. A private suffering from a bullet wound in the lung lay untended for several days. He was then taken to see a doctor. The man's agony was such that he was compelled to cry out, whereupon the doctor punched him hard on the jaw and sent him back to the ward. The man returned crying and died the next day.

Other instances of ill-treatment by this doctor were frequent and the mortality of the Valenciennes hospital was unjustifiably high.

Dog Heroes.

A remarkable feat is said to have been preformed by two French dogs during one of the German offiensives.

Their keeper stayed in the rear of the retreating French army till the last possible moment, waiting for his dogs to come back to him with a message. When they returned there was no way of escape except by swimming across the Marne. The man could not swim, but the dogs could. He chained them together and clung to the chain, and so they got him safely across under heavy fire. As dogs cannot be decorated nor have the honor of a "citation", an account of the incident was posted up at all the kennels of the army.—Tit-Bits.

Lieutenant Kills Eleven Men Alone

With the Canadian Forces,—Here are more tales of personal heroism, during the battle of Cambrai:

A lieutenant of a Nova Scotia regiment finding the advance of his brigade held up by heavy machine gunfire on both flanks and the thick, uncut wire still before the enemy trenches, crawled forward alone through a hail of fire. He found a small gap and through this he led his men, organizing bombing parties. The enemy counter-attacked in force, and running short of bombs, the company found itself in a critical situation. Although wounded in the head, the lieutenant went back alone to our attacking line, and, going from company to company, gathered a supply of bombs. He received a slight wound in the side during the trip. On his return he found but a mere handful of men, but immediately organized them and then started bombing the enemy out of his defence system, which here consisted of numerous small detached trenches, a few feet long. He was therefore obliged to emerge over the top from one to another but succeeded in clearing the system himself, killing 11 and taking 25 prisoners. He steadfastly refused to be evacated, remaining with the company tor two days, until badly wounded in the back and gassed, when he was ordered out by senior officers. He made his report, and then collapsed, having been sustained only by his passionate devotion to duty.

In the same battle a captain of a light infantry regiment assumed command of a battalion, when the senior officers became casualties. At Tilloy on September 30, when three companies on the left were badly disorganized, and were even beginning to withdraw from position so hardly won, he went forward, rallying men at this critical juncture and succeeded in penetrating to their objectives. By his cheerfulness and unflagging energy and utter disregard of danger, he so inspired all ranks that they willing followed him through a most intense shell and machine-gun fire. It was entirely due to his magnificent work that part of Tilloy which was of crucial strategic importance remained in our hands on that day.

A captain of a mounted rifle battalion, when his men wera being decimated by machine-gun fire, although wounded, dashed forward alone into an enemy machine-gun nest, and armed only with rifle and bayonet, killed four and took eight prisoners. He gathered his men together and under a withering fire organized a party to fill in the gap on the flank and reinforce the troops attacking Tilloy. Hearing that the commanders of two other companies advancing on his right were casualties, and seeing that the stubborn resistance of the enemy was holding up the entire line, he undertook amid a storm of fire, the reorganization of hese platoons and taking command of our leading waves continued to advance. His magnificent bravery and heroic leapership turned an imminent defeat into victory.

"I see you a great deal wiih young Flubdub".
