The rink is going great guns over in the park and gradually a few of the "old-timers" stagger out for a round or two over the slippery surface.

We don't seem to remember that it was as cold out when we skated on the Nation riverbed a few odd years back; nor was it so hard to get your "wind" — but then, hot dogs and soft drinks were only a nickel and nothing remains the same!

We shouldn't say that nothing remains the same—the ice is just as hard!

We remember that skating parties were a "must" — some of them planned and some just happened. One home in town, with two friendly boys, always seemed to be the gathering place for a cup of hot chocolate after skating was over. At a nickel a throw even, we feel that lady would have made a fortune—but it all came out of a banker's (at that time) meagre salary!

A favorite spot for skating — with a little adventure attached— was under the bridge where the ice was always a little thin. If you were careful, you made it across without a ducking — we called it "rubber" ice and now and then someone a little on the heavy side would stretch it just a mite too far and a ducking in icy water resulted.

Excuses were needed to save oneself from more than a good talking to.

There was an indoor rink, but you know, somehow the river presented more of a challenge—today we'd stick to the rink!

One last word before we close. If you're thinking of skating on the river, don't! The St. Lawrence is a mite deeper than the Nation where we skated and the end result could be drastic!

It had been a warm spring evening. The wife and husband arrived home from the party.

"I'll never take you to another party as long as I live," she screamed at him.

"Why, what did I do?" he asked

"You asked Mrs. Jones how her husband had been standing the heat."

"So, what's wrong with that?"

"Wrong?" she stormed. "Her husband's been dead two months."

"Goodness, George, this isn't our baby!" the wife exclaimed. "It's the wrong carriage!"

"Shhh, this one has tires."

Speaker: "Thank you, sir, for staying to listen to me when everybody else walked out."

Listener: "Don't thank me. I'm the next speaker."

Two little fellows coming home from Sunday School were discussing the lesson.

'Say, do you believe all that about the devil?"

"No, don't let them kid you. That's just like Santa Claus—it's your old man."

Farmer: "Do you see that wood pile out there?"

Hobo: "Uh-huh, I guess so."

Farmer: "Well, I want you to saw it."

Hobo: "Mister, you saw me see it, but you sure aren't gonna see me saw it!"

National Liberal Rally

Vital questions affecting Ontario farmers, business men and labor will highlight policy discussions at the National Liberal Rallyto be held in Ottawa January 9, 10 and 11.

Nearly half the 2,000 people expected to attend the rally will be from Ontario.

Three official delegates and three alternates have been named by each federal riding Liberal Association but many of the Ontario people going to the rally are not members of any political party.

"They have been invited as liberally-minded residents of Ontario, interested in seeking solutions to thse vital questions affecting their communities," said Bruce Powe, executive director of the Ontario Liberal Association.

Twenty-one sub-committees, — each assigned a different subject, will consider briefs submitted by interested organizations and constituency groups, and report their findings to the Convention. If approved, the resolutions will become part of official Liberal policy.

Ontario with its large representation wil be well represented on the sub-committees, said Mr. Powe.

"We expect that Ontario representatives will take a particular interest in such topics as farm marketing, extension of farm credit and other agricultural problems, in unemployment, in trade, tariff policies and taxes, in housing and in health insurance," said Mr. Powe.

Other matters to be studied in sub-committee include defence and foreign policy, federal-provincial relations, monetary policies, immigration, development of natural resources, electoral reform, national cultural institutions, and labor relations.

Romanian Re-

Re-un[illegible]d With Family After [illegible]4 Year Interval

The year 1961 has started off as joyous as any that anyone in the Traian Tepes family could wish for. After a 14-year separation from their little daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Traian Tepes, who live two miles north-west of Iroquois, were re-united with their daughter, Silvia, who arrived in Canada from Rumania to start a new life with parents whom she did not remember.

She was about nine months old when last her parents saw her.

Mr. Tepes, a former employee in the Romanian diplomatic service left his homeland in 1947 to accept a post in the Romanian Embassy in Holland. In 1951 he asked for political asylum there, and came on to Canada in 1952. For the past five years he has operated a dairy farm near here.

Since their arrival in Canada more than eight years ago, the family has been endeavoring to have little Silvia and another elder daughter join them. Silvia's papers finally received Iron Curtain clearance, through the cooperation of the Canadian and Romanian Red Cross and Canadian immigration officials.

Family Strangers

The little girl arrived at Dorval airport on December 22nd after the family had waited for a plane on December 20th which arrived without their daughter. Once the mixup was straightened out they were informed she was to arrive December 22nd and she stepped from the plane to be greeted by joyous parents she did not remember.

Th Tepes have a four-year-old son, Traian, born in Canada, and who has been a patient for most of the past two years in an Ottawa hospital. He was home for the holiday season but Mr. Tepes told The Post he had to be taken to Ottawa Civic Hospital again on Tuesday of this week. He speaks better English than Romanian but his newly-arrived sister speaks no English at all.

It is expected her Canadian education will commence at public school in Matilda Township, possibly at Stampville.

The elder daughter whose emigration was also sought has decided to remain in Romania.

Need $50?

Perhaps the weather Friday night will be cold and Winter's snowy blasts will keep down the attendance a bit, but nevertheless the Bonus Buck draw for $50.00 will go on.

Many people who attend the draws are like bingo fans — they hate to miss a night—the one they miss may be the lucky one.

See you Friday night at 9 p.m.?

Better School Use

South Dundas District High School Board has announced its interest in providing night classes for the teaching of shop and home economics in Iroquois High School, and Morrisburg High School. The announcement came as a delight to many residents of the village and district, many of whom have apparently been wishing for such a service for some years.

The school, in Iroquois is well equipped in both shop and home economics and the use of this equipment a few more hours each week will certainly return the taxpayer a greater dividend on his investment. Many people look upon the school system as a high-cost item in their tax dollar and the general feeling seems to be that this additional use of the equipment and the school in its entirety is well founded.

Residents in Iroqouis and Matilda Township who have not in the past had the opportunity of taking such classes would do well to give it some thought. The advantages of knowing the proper use of many tools and pieces of machinery and as well the same equivalent in the home economics room, would not go amiss in any home.

The school board is meeting shortly after press time this week to make a final decision on the classes, based on the number who have expressed a desire to partake of the oportunity and it is to be hoped enough have entered to prompt the board into going ahead with the project.

Doing Good Job

The Corporation's decision to purchase and operate its own snowplowing equipment seems to have paid dividends already. With a heavy snowfall recorded in the villge for the first few weeks of Winter, the equipment has been put to the test and its operators have had an opportunity to get their start in its operation. Perhaps for the first few times around the village the boys may make mistakes but from what we have seen so far the plowing job has been well done.

By getting out as soon as they can, as the storm lets up, they will be able to keep village streets in top condition. The equipment is heavy enough to keep the snow banks well back, giving ample room for additional snowfalls as they come.

The investment in more equipment in the village has proven its worth in a more satisfactory service to the ratepayers and as the years roll by the community will take increased benefit from the move towards improvements.

The Iroquois Fire Department has for some time been looking towards the day when a new fire truck and equipment may become a reality and now that the snow-plowing equipment has been purchased and paid for, it may well be that Council will take into consideration the firemen's request. It may not be done in the next year, but the day may not be as far off as it was. Our fire department has shown a good record over the years and has certainly provided the community with adequate protection with their existing equipment. The fire truck, however, is not going to last for ever, and perhaps there is a feeling among the firemen for its retirement while it is still able to serve.

There is none in the village who would dispute the need for top flight fire protection; we have a fine group of volunteeers, probably as good as any community can get. Their only concern is that they have not got the best in equipment to go with their personal adequacies.

In their long-range planning, we feel certain Iroquois Council has considered the fire department's desires for a new truck and perhaps the coming year will see some measures taken to assure the fire department of the best in fire fighting apparatus in keeping with the needs of the community and its ability to safely provide the financial outlay.

SUGAR AND SPICE

by Bill Smiley

Well, here we go into another twelve months of that fascinating, irritating, horrible, beautiful, tragic and joyous process known as living. I've seen forty of these boxes of tricks and treats opened, and I hope I see forty more. And the same to you.

I don't remember much about my first New Year's in 1921. It was spent in a small village in Quebec. I was staying with my parents at the time, as I was six months old. The Great War had been over for more than two years. The post-war boom was still on, and Dad had bought his first car, a Chev. with side-curtains. He treated that car, and every one after it, like a particularly intractable horse, which would respond only if you yelled hard enough and swore at it with enough feeling.

Ten years later, we stepped into 1931 with the sentiments of a man about to jump into a barrel of broken glass in his bare feet. The Great Depression had begun. Business was terrible. The mortgage prowled, like a great beast, always there, slavering, when my Dad looked over his shoulder My parents held long, late-at-night conversations, and to the small boy, lying half?awake, uneasy, they had sinister undertones.

The hunger of the beast would not be denied, and in the end, the mortgage swallowed everything for which my dad had worked so hard for more than twenty years. What a prospect that must have been! Fifty years old, five children to feed and clothe, home and business lost, and thousands of younger men scrambling for every job in sight.

But the Great Depression had failed to reckon with my mother. She was a bonny fighter, with a tough and cheerful spirit. In the next decade she took on the Great Depression and licked it single handed. My dad worked at anything he could get. My mother sold home baking, took in boarders, and in the afternoon, trudged the streets, selling a line of cosmetics to her friends. Somehow, we staggered through the depression, kept off the relief rolls, and never missed a meal.

Remember New Year's of 1941? That wasn't exactly an occasion Germans had overrun Europe. fought on, back to the wall. My England and the Commonwealth parents had three sons, ripe and ready to be pulled down by the dogs of war. Three times, they were to receive one of those dreaded telegrams.

The first read: "Critically injured." But eldest brother fought a hard fight, had a tremendous constitution, and pulled through with the loss of one eye. The second read: "Missing in action." But a cannon shell missed youngest brother's head by an inch, and after two days drifting in a rubber dinghy off the coast of France, he was picked up by Air-Sea Rescue. The third read: "Missing in action." But middle brother had climbed safely out of a crash-landing in Holland, and a few months later the word trickled through that he was alive and a prisoner.

What did New Year's of 1951 bring? Nothing spectacular for yours truly. The Cold War was on, but the important things in life were a wife, a small son, and what turned out to be a small daughter well on the way. There was also a mortgage of mountainous proportions to gnaw at. We gnawed for the next decade, and chewed it down to a hummock, losing a few teeth in the process.

Suddenly, it's 1961. Both my parents have died, slowly and painfully, in the last ten years. But the process goes on, always changing always exciting. There's a new job, in new surroundings. There is a boy whose voice is changing to that of a man, and whose feet are the same size as his father's There is a girl with auburn hair and a cheeky face who topped the honor roll in Grade 5. There are new little cousins springing up all over the country. There is a brother just gone to Europe, and another just coming back from South America.

The hair is a little thinner, the glasses a little thicker, and the day after a New Year's Eve party something to be contemplated with real horror, but there's plenty of life in the old boy yet, and I can hardly wait to see what's going to happen to the world, and to us, before somebody hollers, "Happy New Year," and I realize that we're about to totter into 1971.

Just For Today

Just For Today, I will try to live through this day only, and not tackle my whole life problem at once. I can do something for twelve hours that would appall me if I felt that I had to keep it up for a lifetime.

Just For Today, I will be happy. This assumes to be true what Abraham Lincoln said, that "most folks are as happy as they make up their minds to be."

Just For Today, I will try to strenghten my mind. I will study. I will learn something useful. I will not be a mental loafer. I will ead something that requires effort, thought and concentration.

Just For Today, I will adjust myself to what is, and not try to adjust everything to my own desires. I will take my "luck" as it comes, and fit myself to it.

Just For Today, I will exercise my soul in three ways: I will do somebody a good turn, and not get found out. I will do at least two things I don't want to do—just for exercise. I will not show anyone that my feelings are hurt; they may be hurt, but today I will not show it.

Just For Today, I will be agreeable. I will look as well as I can, dress becomingly, talk low, act courteously, criticize not one bit, not find fault with anything and not try to improve or regulate anybody except my self.

Just For Today, I will have a programme. I may not follow it exactly, but I will have it. I will save myself from two pests: hurry and indecision.

Just For Today, I will have a quiet half hour all by myself, and relax. During this half hour, sometime, I will try to get a better perspective of my life.

Just For Today, I will be unafraid.. Especially I will not be afraid to enjoy what is beautiful, and to believe that as I give to the world, so the world will give to me.

Personal items of news about the people in our district are always welcome—weddings, graduations, engagements, etc., all interest our readers.

Haddo Area Erects Rink

A hot contest was held on the ice at Haddo last night when a strong group of Hanesville hockey players endeavored to defeat the Haddo boys. End result, however, was a 5-4 win for Haddo.

Frank Sisty, veteran (we use the word veteran not in terms of old age Frank) hockey referee kept the teams in line and the game was kept within the legal limits of hockey. Ralph Merkley is coach of the Hanesville team and Arnold Barkley is guiding the Haddo group.

The Haddo outdoor rink is one of the finest such rinks in the area and a tribute to the small group of people in that district who decided one day to have a rink and went out and built it.

The cooperation shown by the people of Haddo and district could easily be duplicated elsewhere and provide skating and hockey for every youngster in the township. Anyhow there's hockey three times a week at Haddo — and skating in between.

CARDS OF THANKS

We would like to extend grateful thanks to those who sold tickets on the draw, also those who helped in any way towards building the skating rink at Haddo.

John Primrose, Pres.
Arnold Barkley, Sec'y.

Eskimo families are moving from igloos to homes with modern conveniences as Canada's northland communities expand. Koonoo, an Eskimo mother of five who has taken up housekeeping at the Eskimo Camp in Churchill, Man., tries her hand at cooking on an electric stove. "It confuses me," she admits, "so different from living 600 miles farther north." She moved "down south" with her husband and youngsters three weeks ago.

SHANLY

The Annual W. A. meeting of Shanly United Church was held at the home of Mrs. Ross Riddell. The president, Mrs. C. Bennett, presided and received all reports for the year. The treasurer's report showed a substantial balance on hand. A delicious lunch was served in the dining room by Mrs. Riddell and Mrs. J. Irving.

On Sunday, Dec. 18, a car, approaching Shanly corner from the Cardinal road failed to make the turn, went across the road, and crashed into the front of Mr. H. B. Johnston's store, demolishing the doors and the large east window. The door struck a coal stove in the centre of the store but fortunately not hard enough to upset it, or the store and adjoining house might have burned. Since then the damage has been repaired.

Guests on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Gilmer were Mr. C. Price, Heckston, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon and son of Oxford Station.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilmer and family spent Monday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Gilmer, at Van-Allen's Corners.

Mr. T. C. Reilly spent the week end with his sister, Mrs. Hugh Thompson Mr. Thompson and Donald at Williamsburg.

Mrs. Christie, of Spencerville; Mr. and Mrs. J. Henderson and Stanley, of Brockville; Mr. and Mrs. L. Riddell and family and Mr. and Mrs. F. Riddell had Christmas dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Riddell.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hooper, Billie and Lois, with Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Hooper and Karen, of Toronto spent from Friday to Tuesday with Mrs. H. Hooper and other relatives at Sulton, Quebec.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Wallace spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. K. Matthie and children at Algonquin.

Mr. and Mrs. Harve Irving, of Ventnor and Mr. R. Myers, of Spencerville, were supper quests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. J. Irving and family.

Misses Rose Mary and Evelyn Pollock and friend Sherman Murray, Newcastle Bridge, N. B., spent a week's holidays with their former's mother Mrs. Henry Hopkins, Mr. Hopkins and their brother, Garnet.

Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Johnston, spent Christmas Day with Mr. and Mrs. T. Armstrong and Beth, of Spencerville.

"We've given up GOING WITHOUT for New Year's"

"Our New Year resolutions this year have a lot more to do with getting rather than giving up . . . thanks to the B of M.

"Seems that for many Old Years past our money appeared to just melt away, when there were so many things wanted around the house . . . a modern stove . . . a desk for Dad's den . . . a decent TV. Finally, it was Dad who put his foot down.

" 'Starting with the New Year,' said Dad, 'we're going to get some of the things we've gone without for far too long. We're going to finance all the things we really need under a new purchase plan I've been looking into — the Bank of Montreal Family Finance Plan. It's a modern plan that's designed for people just like us. Come the January sales, we'll get what we need at bargain prices and do our paying for what we buy with a single payment each month.'

"So this year, we'll all have to watch our pennies a little more closely, but it's a challenge and the whole family is going to pitch in. Mother's the keenest of all. It's hard to say whether it's the life insurance protecting the loan, or the prospect of a new stove, that pleases her most.

"Anyway, we're one family who figures we've found the ideal New Year's resolution for 1961. How about you? Isn't it time you considered giving up going without?"

Heavy Toll Winter Fires

Fire losses during the Winter months are the heaviest of the year and the Canadian Underwriters' Association urges home owners to help keep down the fire toll by following these suggestions:

Right now, check basement furnace room. Remove any paint tins, oily rags, old newspapers, broken furniture or other rubbish that may be near the heating plant.

If you have a furnace, be sure ashes are deposited in metal containers, and that the containers are emptied frequently.

If your gas or oil heating equipment has been functioning erratically, call your service man now to inspect it and put it in proper running order.

Your flue pipes, vent connectors, gas vents and chimney should have been inspected at the beginning of the heating season. If you have not had such an inspection made, have it done now.

Make a check to be sure wall, ceilings and partitions near boilers, stoves, furnaces and heating pipes are protected by noncombustible insulation.

If you are using portable oil or gas heaters ,always turn them off when you retire at night.

See to it that your fireplace is equipped with a metal fire screen.

When winter ration is shifted partly from hay or grass silage to corn silage, adjust the amount of grain fed, suggests Dr. Stan Young of the O. A. C. Field Husbandry Department. There is about 1 pound of grain corn in every 10 pounds of mature corn silage. You waste money if you feed too much grain.

The navy recruit lost his rifle on the firing range.

He protested when told he'd have to pay for it: "Suppose I was driving a navy jeep and somebody stole it. Would I have to pay for that too?"

"You have to pay for all government equipment you lose," he was informed.

"Now," said the recruit, "I know why the captain always goes down with his ship."

Always Had Fear of Being Locked Out of House by Unruly Door

by Dorothy Barker

It finally happened. I knew at the time I shouldn't oil the hinges on the old front door. Ever since I was a child I have had a horror of being locked out of my own house. There has always been a spare key hidden under the sill of the front door, but for some reason I had taken it indoors to remove damage the weather had caused to its smooth surface. Before I started the job of oiling the hinges, I had rubbed it with cleanser, then oiled it and laid it unthinkingly on the dining room table.

I was preening with pride as I tested the hinges. No squeek! I gave the door an extra little push and wham, it flew out of my hands and shut with an ominous click.

It was then I noted the sky looked as though it had been papered with battleship linoleum and the breeze that whisked around the front entrance was as chilly as charity. Even the house dress I wore felt as though it had been made of tissue paper.

I looked through the dining room window, possibly hopeful that the key would get the message and hop right out through the glass and into the key hole. Over a chair was a thick woolly sweater I had discarded as I warmed up to my lubricating task. So near, yet SO far away.

Surely the back door would be open, but even as I ran around the house I knew it would be securely bolted against marauders. I tried every ground floor window hopefully, not one gave even a little crack. I stood contemplating the possibility of smashing a cellar window until I realized that in the winter, I fasten each frame securely with nails so that they won't rattle when a north wind blows.

I remembered that firemen often have magic ways of gaining an entry into a home without doing too much damage. So I hurried next door to ask for the use of my neighbour's phone.

"Don't do that," my neighbour said when I explained why I was dashing through a snowdrift coatless, clad only in a summer frock. "The fire brigade will come screaming down the street with sirens wide open and you'll have the whole town at your door before you know it. Besides, it will cost you $15 for the call. You don't get that kind of service free any more. No. let's put Patty through the milk cabinet, she'll open the door for you."

Patty was small for her three years and as I watched her mother bundle her up in her nylon snow suit I calculated she might just make it if I gave her a shove. Then a horrible thought entered my mind. What if Patty got stuck and I couldn't get her in or out!

Clad in a borrowed coat I guided Patty down the hill that separates our two homes, telling her in an assuring voice what an adventure it would be to go through the milk cabinet. "Like Alice falling down the rabbit hole, only more fun," I declared.

The wee mite went through the small opening like a greased seal. I could hear her pattering around the house. I called to her, "Patty dear, open the front door." No answer. I waited. Two little feet had come to rest some-where within. I implored her again to go to the front door and twist the knob. Silence!

Then Igot a whiff of nail polish through the door of the milk cabinet. I called again, "For heaven's sake, Patty, open up the door."

A small face, covered with gorey red nail enamal appeared impishly at the milk cabinet. She pretended not to understand me when I explained where the front door was. "Cookie," she demanded.

"Oh, all right, get a cookie out of the jar in the kitchen and then be a good girl and open the door." Patty had been taught her manners. She never took a cookie without making her wants known and having lived beside me since birth, she knew well how to pull the kitchen stool over to the counter and reach the cookie jar.

Just as I could feel my hair turning as white as a Saasan goat, Patty opend the door and strolled out. Cookie crumbs stuck to the nail enamel on her cheeks, gave her an elfin appearance. Mercifully, her snow suit had escaped damage and the remainder of the bottle of enamel had only spilled on the glass top of my dressing table.

As I mopped up Patty and table with tissues soaked in polish remover I thought how usually peaceful my travels aboard a train are, as compared to the hazards of domesticity.

Curvaceous Annette Driggers was all smiles when this picture was taken of her being crowned Miss U.S.A. But the officials of the contest quit smiling last week the night before she was to go to the Miss Universe contest to represent the U.S. They discovered she has been married a year, and besides, she is only 15, too young for the contest.

New Ministers Baptized

Among nine new ministers baptized at the Brockville Circuit Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses last week end was fifteen year old Sharon Francis of Iroquois.

For Sharon and the others this action symbolized their dedication to Almighty God and was the culmination of many months of intensive Bible study.

K. A. Little, District Supervisor of Jehovah's Witnesses told the new ones they are now ordained ministers, recognized as such by Jehovah God and also by the law of the land. He said these are just beginning the race for life and they must grow to maturity and continually improve their qualifications as teachers of God's Word.

Eugene Singeisen, local presiding minister, was asked how one so young could be regarded as a minister.

In reply he said, "There is not the slightest doubt that children and youths can be ministers of God. We have the outstanding examples of young Jeremiah, Timothy and Samuel. Jesus himself was a youthful minister and you'll remember how he encouraged little children.

"Among Jehovah's Witnesses today", he continued, "many serious-minded youths are following the examples of these child ministers of the Bible. Sharon is quite aware of what baptism means and she's determined to serve Jehovah for as long as she lives. And we fully expect that to be forever."

Sunday's public lecture, entitled "Is God Interested in the Afairs of Men?" drew more than 400 to Civic Auditorium.

In his discourse Mr. Little argued that, in spite of what some men think, the Creator is interested in man. Referring repeatedly to the Bible for support, he claimed that Jehovah God is particularly interested in men's affairs in these days now, since 1914, which he termed "the last days prior to world conquest by God's Kingdom the one government destined to rule this earth in peace and unity."

In conclusion Mr. Little told his audience "Show an interest in God and He will show an interest in you!".

Fitzsimmons' Funeral Home, Iroquois, where the funeral service was held on Monday afternoon, January 2nd, at two o'clock, with her minister, Rev. S. Profit, of Ingleside United Church, conducting the service, assisted by Rev. J. Leslie Dean, minister of Iroquois United Church.

During the service a solo "Beyond The Sunset" was sung by Mrs. Florence English, accompanied by Miss Margaret Kaine.

The remains were placed in the vault at Ingleside to await burial in the Spring in Union Valley Cemetery, Ingleside.

Pallbearers were Messrs. Bazil Hollister, Clifford Hollister, Harold Shaver, Donald Anderson and Charles McConnell, all of Ingleside.

The many beautiful floral tributes and the large number attending the funeral bore evidence of the high esteem in which Mrs. Heagle was held in Ingleside and district as well as in this community.
