Farlinger comes back to claim the crown

MORRISBURG – The 35th Annual Tubie Race and Parade took place on July 30-31. After two years of seeing the crown go to the Retreads and McCooeye's, Robert Farlinger made his way home to Morrisburg from Oakville to reclaim his crown.

With four consecutive Tubie race championships under his belt and the addition of two members to the team there was no doubt that team Farlinger would be a contender for the crown this year.

"My brother and I built the craft last night," said Robert Farlinger.

"We lost two years ago and last year we didn't enter. This year we just tried our best."

The six member team which consists of Robert Farlinger, Allan Farlinger, Glenn Smirle, Nancy Jordan, Isabella Jordan and Kate Edwards were followed closely by the DeJong team and last year's winner the McCooeye team.

DeJong and McCooeye were neck to neck coming into the beach, but DeJong's team were faster getting out of the water.

The rest of the pack landed on the beach shortly after, with the exception of the Laurin team who were "lost at sea."

The Tubie Parade was won by the Barclay-Black team with their Hawaiian styled float. Some other creative floats included a family of smurfs, a Mexican-Themed float and the Incredible Storm.

Second intake a second chance at sewage funding

WILLIAMSBURG–If at first you don't succeed, try, try again and that is exactly what South Dundas Council intends for the second intake for COMRIF funding.

Rick Eamon of Thompson Rosemount reported to council on Tuesday, July 19 that he had marginal success in determining why South Dundas did not receive funding in their previous application for $30 million to build sewer plants in the municipality's two villages of Morrisburg and Iroquois. The $30 million application also included $6 million for sewer rebuilding.

Eamon said indications were that the issue was "of providing value for the money. The problem was the original application was for $30 million and when compared to applications from other municipalities it didn't stack up."

"Quite frankly, I don't know why you weren't successful except perhaps for the value for the dollar."

The current application process opened Tuesday, July 26 and has a September 30 deadline.

To bring the funding application total down, Eamon recommended that this time, the municipality ask for funding to build a new sewage system in Morrisburg and upgrade the Iroquois primary plant.

The original $30 million application included funds for nine recommendations resulting from an 1998 environmental study. Since that study about six of the recommendations have been done as part of regular repairs and maintenance.

"The Morrisburg plant is in desperate need of repair and

Christmas In July at the Morrisburg Golf Club

Obviously, no was was more surprised at the visit from Santa to the Wednesday night ladies night at the Morrisburg Golf Club on July 27 than Helen Youmelle. The evening was sponsored by Rohmax Canada and featured Christmas in July, with ladies club captain Monique Patenaude and her crew of helpful golfing elves decorating the clubroom with bows of holly and all that other good stuff.

Big bumps surface

Ewing wants to smooth the way to the beach

SOUTH DUNDAS–A couple of mighty big bumps surfaced at the South Dundas council table on July 19.

The bumps are located on the Beach Road in Iroquois where two culverts cross under the roadway. "There are two culverts heaving the road up and they are constantly getting worse," said councillor Bill Ewing.

Ewing asked if the bumps could be taken out before someone tears out the undercarriage of their car.

"They are bad," agreed mayor Lyle Van Allen, "but they do slow down traffic."

"I'm not disputing that," said Ewing, "And I'd be fine with one bump, but two are bad."

Manager of Public Works, Hugh Garlough estimated the two bumps to be only three or four feet apart.

"I don't think they should be taken out myself," said Manager of Buildings and Recreation, Donnie Lewis. "You are just going to get a raceway."

"I would think safety would be a concern," said councillor Charles Barkley.

Ewing agreed that safety is a concern, "but if you want a speed bump, put a speed bump closer to the air strip. What is there now is not a speed bump."

Van Allen asked the possibility of putting fill between the two bumps and paving over it.

"I think we should get a request from the Iroquois Recreation Committee and see what they think," said Garlough. "The cheapest way to fix them would be to go in, cut them off and repave them. That's the cheapest way."

Barkley recommended "trying to reach a happy medium. Leave them for safety reasons, but scrape them off with a grader so they are not such a hazard."

Water problems resurface

WILLIAMSBURG–More water surfaced at the July 19 meeting of South Dundas Township council, this time from a recent heavy rainstorm that flooded Mike's Thompson's Crysler Street basement.

"I flooded on September 9 last year and it cost $49,000. I don't know how much it will be this time," he told council. "It won't be going through insurance. This time it will be out of my pocket."

"This was storm sewer," he explained. "The water was coming out of my sump pump hole like a geyser. This time I was at home and able to keep the water down."

Thompson also indicated he hadn't had a problem prior to the Augusta Street reconstruction.

The South Dundas public works department has been on the Thompson property to investigate and will return with Rick Eamon to further investigate.

"Sewers are designed to accommodate sewage from a home," Eamon told council. "They are not designed to accommodate water from a home. The sewer system is not capable of handling the water."

Eamon suggested council look at a bylaw that would prevent people from dumping water from sump pumps and eaves troughs into the sanitary sewer.

He cautioned that, "it can be very expensive to disconnect. It would give you the biggest bang for you buck, but it would be the most controversial."

"Did Morrisburg have a bylaw pertaining to it?" asked councillor Johnny Whitteker. "I think we should investigate having a bylaw. The insurance companies aren't going to keeping paying if we aren't doing anything."

"The reality is that in Iroquois and Morrisburg there are a lot of older homes that would be difficult to separate from the sewer system," said Eamon.

While Thompson's situation, this time appears to be from the storm sewer (surface water run-off) in the past year there have been two major incidents of actual sewage back up from the sanitary sewer.

While everyone has their theory of what is causing the problems, Eamon says there is a combination of factors in play.

A major problem is the large trunk sewer line installed in Morrisburg in 1986 at a cost of $1.6 million.

The trunk sewer line was constructed from the Allison Avenue treatment plant, across the southern tip of the Morrisburg Golf Course west to Ottawa Street and north 1,000 feet.

In a February 6, 1985 Leader story, Harland Veinotte, who was then the village's deputy reeve, said, "The present system is too small. The pipes are cracked, there's infiltration and it's reached its capacity." He anticipated the the first phase of the sanitary trunk sewer project would "solve the water flow problems being encountered with the current system, mainly in the west end of the village."

That would have been the case except for problems in the design and build of the trunk line where it enters a holding tank at the pumping station area.

Those problems back in the late 80s and early 90s landed the village of Morrisburg and the project engineer in court.

At the July 19 council meeting Eamon told council the trunk sewer line "is large enough, but because it is half full of sewage already it's only at half capacity."

He explained in a telephone conversation last week that the sewage carried by the trunk line is discharged into a large well at the plant area. The pumps in this well then lift the sewage from the well into the plant.

When built in the late 80s, "the trunk came in at a lower level than it should have and the pumps can't pump below the entry level. So it always has water inside it. In addition, this also means that solids aren't being flushed.

The trunk sewer was designed for extra storage, but the pumps can only pump a certain volume.

With the capacity of the well always reduced, this means a major rainstorm quickly fills the well and the pumps can't keep up.

Added to this problem is the extra water residences add to the system through their sump pumps and eaves troughing.

Much of this has developed over the years and some dates way back to when older homes had foundation drains. In the old village open ditches handled the water.

Eamon admits that a large number of residents probably aren't even aware of where their sump pumps and eaves troughs are putting the water. In some cases they are obviously pumping into ditches and in other's, homeowners are pumping directly from their sump pumps into their basement drains.

He says that the third problem with the system is quite likely that, "storm sewers become blocked over time."

"We have been doing a routine flushing of the sanitary sewers, but they aren't doing anything with the storm sewers."

"There are really no records of what has been going on in Morrisburg," says Eamon. "We are looking at trying to find out exactly where the flooding is occurring."

"We are also initiating a good mapping system, so we know exactly what is in the ground. We have a lot of work to do, just to establish the records."

He says that some storm sewers empty directly into the river, some into ditches and some have had interceptors installed allowing them to empty directly into the sanitary sewers.

All of this means that when a major rainstorm dumps excess water the system is overwhelmed and the water and sewage that backs up has to find a place to go.

Unfortunately, that place is in the basements of a large number of residences located along the south end of the village.

South Dundas is currently applying for funding of $14.4 million to upgrade the Iroquois sewage plant and build a new plant in Morrisburg. The holding tank pumping levels in Morrisburg can be dealt with at this time.

Second intake

replacement," he said.

"I don't think we have any choice but to submit an application," said mayor Lyle Van Allen.

"I didn't think any place had a worse system than Morrisburg," added councillor Sandra Bailey.

Eamon estimated that $14.4 million would upgrade the Iroquois plant and build a new plant in Morrisburg.

The $14.4 million, "would put us in a better situation to compete with other municipalities."

Councillor Johnny Whitteker asked if the Ministry of Environment is aware of what is going on in Morrisburg and if they are involved in the application.

"It would appear the people doing the review are disconnected from the Ministry of the Environment," answered Eamon.

"Even a municipality under order didn't seem to raise their priority," said Eamon. "I thought on the original application we were a shoe-in, but obviously that wasn't the case."

"The sewers in Morrisburg and Iroquois were installed in the Seaway era, and sewer pipe has an expected life of 100 years," explained Eamon. "That doesn't mean, however, they will last 100 years."

The original funding application allowed for $6 million for repairs and replacements to the sewer lines based on a camera inspection done in 1998 that showed a lot of collapses.

"The reality is, if you just do the plants, there are sewers in Morrisburg and Iroquois that aren't in good shape."

"But it is a competitive process and you are competing with other municipalities. In the end, if your cost is higher per capita then you aren't going to be looked at favourably."

E-scams on the rise, be wary of the unknown

SD&G – According to police, in the past couple of weeks local residents have noticed the arrival of unusual e-mail on their computers.

While the medium has changed the messages and the scams remain very familiar.

It usually involves off shore accounts and families looking for a safe place to transfer their vast fortunes (either cash, jewels or property) or more recently, the winning of a lottery where the "winning numbers" were associated to your e-mail address.

Police ask people to remember:

- You will never win a prize for a contest you didn't enter.
- If you have won you do not have to pay to collect your prize.
- It is their job to see that you receive what you have won.
- Be wary of correspondence that fails to provide adequate contact info on the senders.
- Do not be taken in by "limited time offers" that require a quick response or you will forfeit your winnings.
- Be leery of any business that needs to make outright claims of their legitimacy.

Police say, nothing comes without a price, but the promise of "easy money", especially in the amounts this correspondence refers to, can be very tempting.

Be wary of any e-mail from unknown sources. Even if you are very cautious with your e-mail address, you may find one of these "scams" appearing on your computer.

A little caution can go a long way in preventing these scams from continuing.

There are a number of sites available on the internet that not only identify key names or organizations involved in these scams, but will also outline how these scams are run, in order to assist you in recognizing this type of correspondence.

Morrisburg Legion Received Donations for Field Trip

On Tuesday, July 26 Morrisburg Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 48 received $700 in donations from the Morrisburg Business Community and Township. The donations will be used for an upcoming war museum trip for local veterans. Canadian War Museum trip

MORRISBURG – The year 2005 has been declared the Year of the Veteran. The term Veteran has been redefined recently to include anyone who has served honorably in her Majesty's armed forces.

To commemorate Veteran's year, several events have taken place throughout Canada such as guided tours to Europe to visit old battlegrounds and military cemeteries, reenactments and parades. At the local level, Branch 48 of the Royal Canadian Legion in Morrisburg is planning a visit to the newly opened War Museum located in Ottawa.

A 48 seat bus, ordered to convey local veterans to the museum site, will leave the Branch premises on Tuesday, August 16 at 8 a.m. and will return by 5 p.m.

Since the trip will take all day, noon-time meals and refreshments can be purchased at the museum cafe. Entrance fees are $5 for those who cannot prove military service. Legion dress (with medals) is appropriate. Phone the Branch at 543-3091 to reserve a seat.

This tour has been designed by the Seaway Branch to include visits to both the Canadian War Museum and the Canadian Aviation Museum.

Also proposed is a short side trip to the military cemetery at Beechwood, where war vets as well as postwar vets (e.g. peace keepers) are buried. The military portion of the cemetery is patterned similarly to the military cemeteries in Europe and elsewhere.

Main points of interest in the museum are grouped as: Wars on our soil from the earliest times to the Northwest Rebellion in 1885, the South-African and the first World War from the period 1885 to 1931; the Second World War period from 1931 to 1945; and the violent peace period from 1954 to present.

More displays are found in the Royal Canadian Legion Hall of Honour where highlights of Canadian History can be recalled, the Lebreton Gallery where a vast and diverse collection of ordinance such as tanks, guns and trucks are displayed, the LCOL John McCrae art collection is stored, and Regeneration Hall which represents hope for a better future. As well, the walls throughout the building are covered with war art. The building itself has been lauded as a marvelous and unique example of meaningful modern architecture.

In the Canadian Aviation Museum, is a vast display of various aircraft ranging from bombers and fighters to civilian bush planes. This collection is reputed to be the third largest collection in the world.

Recently, a second museum hanger has been erected on site.

This visit should initiate a host of emotions from remembrance of sacrifices of fallen comrades in times of conflict to the revealing of humorous war stories.

"It is an honour to give something back to the veterans for what they have done for us," said Dundas mayor, Lyle Van Allan at a cheque presentation last Tuesday.

This trip has been made possible by the generous donations from the members of the Morrisburg Business Community, Township and Legion Branch 48 to cover the cost of transportation and other expenses.

All hockey players get equal treatment in South Dundas

SOUTH DUNDAS–South Dundas treasurer Lorna Seibert presented an itemized subsidy budget of the South Dundas Minor Hockey Associations to council at the July 19 meeting.

In her report she made a recommendation for the 2006 season, showed the current subsidies being paid and did a comparison study on what other neighbouring municipalities are doing.

At the June 21 council meeting, council was approached by South Dundas Girls Hockey Association president Dale Adams who was asking that the girls' organization receive "fair funding support" from the township and they they receive "equitable ice time."

The girls' association has 70 players registered for the upcoming hockey season, about 50 of whom are from South Dundas.

"As discussed previously," Seibert wrote in her report, "council has instructed me to prepare a new subsidy calculation for girls and boys minor hockey for 2005, which should be based on a per capita calculation distributing the total 2005 minor hockey subsidies passed in this year's budget."

According to her report there are 201 players from South Dundas playing in the South Dundas Minor Hockey Association and 47 South Dundas players in the South Dundas Girls Association for a total of 248 players.

The 2005 subsidies were calculated as $23,750 for the South Dundas Association and $2,375 for the South Dundas Girls Association for a total of $26,125.

By dividing the total players (248) into the total subsidy ($26,125) the result is $105.35 per player.

Under the redistribution, minor hockey would receive $21,175.35 for its 201 players and the girls association would receive $4,951.45 for its 47 girls

The $4,951.45 more than doubles the $2,375 they were originally budgeted for.

Under notable information, Seibert notes that the total subsidy for all minor hockey is $26,175 and the two groups are charged $100 per hour ice rental.

Neither neighbouring South Stormont nor North Dundas pay subsidies to their minor hockey associations. South Stormont charges $95 per hour ice rental and North Dundas charges $98.

The South Dundas Minor Hockey Association uses 899 hours ice time for a total ice bill of $89,900. The South Dundas Girls Association uses 116 hours of ice at the arena in Morrisburg and for a total of $11,600.

Seibert recommended in her report that council no longer pay hockey/figure skating subsidies in 2006, and instead the municipality provide a discount on ice rental for future use at $75 per hour plus GST to the South Dundas Minor Associations and the Figure Skating Club.

"This recommendation will allow an equal assistance to both hockey clubs (associations) and their costs will depend on the amount of registrants they have to share the costs regardless of the amount of players they have," wrote Seibert.

"I recalculated the junior hockey subsidies and we have taken a little bit away from the boys and given it to the girls," Seibert told council. "But now they are all being treated equally."

Seibert's recommendation for the 2006 season was deferred as requested by Acting CAO Brenda Brunt who would like to look at all subsidies.

See Morrisburg through a visitor's eyes

They have been here, and now they are going to tell us just what they think of us.

The second First Impressions Community Exchange has taken place in South Dundas. The first one took place between Iroquois and Lancaster, and this time it's Morrisburg's turn.

As part of a Ministry of Municipal Affairs pilot project, volunteers from Vankleek Hill paid an unannounced visit to Morrisburg to offer an outsider's perspective on our community, and we did the same for them.

Those volunteers who visited Morrisburg and recorded their observations as tourists, prospective businesses, relocating families and non-local shoppers will be at the McIntosh Inn August 4, at 7 p.m. to share their observations.

Having attended one of these meetings before, the experience was an interesting one, and South Dundas Economic Development officer Anne Marie Waddell is inviting anyone interested in the findings to attend the event.

"After you have lived in one place for a while, you sometimes take for granted the things that attract people to your community," she says. "Or, you may be unaware of aspects of your community that may be unappealing in the eyes of outsiders. The exchange gives a community an objective assessment of its strengths and weaknesses."

The meeting should be of interest to anyone who wants to hear some new ideas about ameliorating business and tourism in the area, and looking for ways to better cater to and attract new people to the area, by making their experiences positive and enjoyable to keep them coming back.

The people who have made these observations have generously volunteered their time to do so, and if the last meeting is any indication, their observations will be enlightening.

At the last meeting it was easy to see that telling a community about their positive attributes was easy, but talking about the negative things was significantly more difficult, and they deserve a lot of respect for doing so. RC

The August 2 issue reported the community was preparing to celebrate the Tubies' silver anniversary. The two-time defending champs, who included Donald and David Black and Sean Boulerice, were expected to return to defend their titles.

Rae and Sandra Munro, whose Fairholme Drive home was destroyed by fire when struck by lightning, thanked the community for the support and help they had received.

St. Matthew's Presbyterian Church in Ingleside became the second Presbyterian congregation in Canada to be honored by the Office of the Governor General with a coat of arms. The congregation was celebrating 200 years of Christian worship.

Williamsburg United Church was growing 3.5 acres of corn to help feed countries where grain was scarce.

1985

Headlines in the July 31 issue read: Kraft readies for $7 million expansion. Kraft announced its plans to move its Wolfe Island bulk cheese production to Ingleside. The move meant a $7.5 million expansion at the Ingleside plant which employed 400 workers and where more than 150 different retail and institutional products were already packaged. The Ingleside plant opened in 1969.

The Iroquois Fire Department had a new $60,000 fire truck. They retired a 1963 truck.

This year's crop of corn was ready at Robertson's Apple Farm and Dentz Orchards.

The issue reported wild turkeys had returned to rural Ontario. The birds were now numbering about 300 and were the result of 47 birds released near Brighton in 1984, and another 50 in 1985. They disappeared from Ontaro at the turn of the century due to a loss of habitat because of land clearing practices.

Barbara Van Moorsel, graduated from Queen's University with a Bachelor of Commerce Honours degree and Carolyn Mellon had received her diploma in the Legal Secretarial Arts at St. Lawrence College.

The August 1 issue reported this year's tubie race was expected to be extremely keen, with Coyote Cassell trying to set a new record by becoming the only person in history to win the race two years in a row.

George E. Beavers, a prominent resident of Morrisburg and a pioneer in the manufacturing of dental burs, died at Winchester Hospital on July 22 after a lengthy illness. Mr. Beavers was born in Brantford Ontario and grew up in Exeter. He received his Bachelor of Arts in Commerce and Finance in 1930. After a varied career, he purchased G.C. Briggs and Company, Canada's oldest patent medicine firm. During a trip to Eastern Ontario on behalf of his company he met George Challies who was then the owner of the Dominion Toilet Brush Company in Morrisburg. Mr. Beavers purchased the business owned by Mr. Challies, and in 1940, he took up residence in Morrisburg. During his 35-year span in Morrisburg, his company, which very shortly became known as Beavers Dental Products rose from a small industry employing only a few people to a leader throughout the world in the manufacture and sale of brushes and dental burs. In 1964, he sold the dental brush business to his son Patrick Beavers who carried on the business under the name of Odonto Corporation Ltd. The phenomenal and unique growth of the Beavers' business was initiated when it began manufacturing dental burs for the Canadian Army during the Second World War. By the mid-60s, it was recognized throughout the world. Mr. Beavers was a keen participant in the political and community life of Morrisburg and served as reeve from 1951-57 during the hectic years of the Seaway.

Some interesting artifacts were uncovered on the Church Road approximately 100 yards west of the home of Graham Wells where an old stage coach inn had been located. The stone remains of the inn's foundation measured 48' by 26'. The inn was known locally as the Baker's Inn and was owned by Charles Baker during the early 1800s. It was a stopover for travellers from Morrisburg to Chesterville. The Church Road was under construction which would cover the site.

It was written in the August 3 issue that the vast majority of the Canadian people received the news of the defeat of Mr. Churchill's government with a deep sense of regret. Editor Art Laurin wrote: "For from the dark days when Britain stood alone against triumphant Nazism, down to the historic hour when Hitler's house of cards crumbled in the dust, Churchill was Freedom's avenging angel and immortal captain."

Graduating from St. Vincent de Paul School of Nursing, Brockville was Evelyn Coligan who received the prize for general proficiency.

The task of the Canadian Red Cross was not yet finished as it was estimated that for the British Army alone, 600,000 blood donations would be required this year. Plasma was still being used every hour of every day in every hospital for the fighting forces in the Pacific.

Mr. D. Hugh Thompson was the attraction of many eyes as he drove through Williamsburg with his newly purchased fancy driver–a hackney mare with harness and rubber tired buggy.

The August 2 issue reported the horse races, held on the Williamsburg track on August 1, were attended by more than 1,500 people and featured 34 entries. "Molly Hal" owned by Caldwell set up the lowest mark of the day, the time being 2:13.75. In the last heat of the day the leading horse fell and four of the drivers following piled up in a heap. No one was hurt.

The Morrisburg Driving Club set the date for its fall meet and advised the rules and regulations of the Canadian National Trotting and Pacing Harness Horse Association would govern the races.

A gushing, twisting, tornado-like storm struck the village of Newington (400 inhabitants) leaving one person dead and property severely damage.

Junior Robert Douglas Cassell

A lifetime resident of Morrisburg, Junior Robert Douglas Cassell passed away at Winchester District Memorial Hospital July 22, after a four month illness. He was 81 years old.

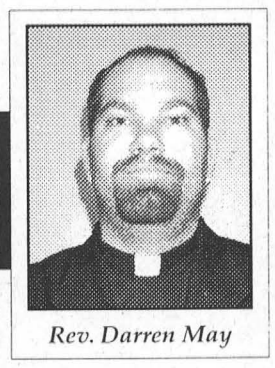
The Danger of Thinking for Ourselves

Perspectives



Rev. Darren May

In our modern times, it is the "in thing" to talk about and expect that we have the right to think for ourselves. The great debate between teens and their adult guardians is the attitude that young people feel that they are not going to let their parents tell them what to do. They say, quite emphatically, that they can think for themselves thank-you very much. And, in other areas of our lives, we as adults also feel just as strong. The doctor suggests we do one thing, but who is he or she to tell us what to do? We take people's advice today with a grain of salt and we declare that we are the masters of our own fates, decisions and destiny. Most people would agree that no one has the right to tell them what to do. We are our own bosses and our own keepers.

When we talk about rights, actions and behavior we enter into the realm of morals and ethics. One of the questions that has haunted humanity since the beginning of time is the questions of whether or not there is such a thing as "absolute truth", which is, truth that is true in all circumstances, for all people, at all times. Is there such a thing as ultimate truth?

Most people today would argue that there is no such thing as a set of universal rules that apply to everyone, always. Society generally believes that whatever is true for each individual person is what is true and right. In other words, whatever "works" is right, and because of that, in general, we are a very tolerant, and respecting people. We can, as a society, no longer have basic discussions on moral issues like gay marriage, abortion or euthanasia for the simple reason that most people don't believe in a universal moral code. We tend to believe today more in "situational" ethics, which means that whatever seems right at the time, is the right thing to do. And, to some degree, it works. If you'd rather spare someone's feelings than tell them the "truth", you view people's feelings as more important than the truth. There are a lot of people with misguided opinions today because of this. Isn't it true that what keeps us from telling the truth is the fear that we will be either disliked or judged?

What if there is a universal, moral code? Wouldn't you want to know the truth?

What if what you have known and thought about the world all along is wrong, and there is a universal truth?

In the Christian tradition, there is a very high moral standard that governs our lives and gives us direction in life. Living in Christ, we don't have to worry about moral quandaries, what-should-I-do, and, "where am I going to turn now?" questions. We are not afraid to tell it like it is, to set people straight, and to help them with solid advice, because we have an advocate, a helper, an authority, a guardian and a true friend who has revealed himself to us in the Bible.

It has been tried, tested and proven true that the God of Christianity, the God of the Bible who is also the God who created us, works! It is a truth that is well known.

Another truth that is well known is that God is looking for people who feel that they are at the end of their rope, people who are tired of doing it all themselves. God is looking for people who are uncertain, people who are searching for the answers, people just like you and me. People He can mold and reshape into His glorious image. A-men.

Caught in the Net

A much anticipated sequel

MORRISBURG – Fasten your seat belts, hold onto your hats and get your tickets now because the hilarious and much anticipated sequel to last season's blockbuster hit comedy, Run For Your Wife, hits the Playhouse stage with a bang from August 11 through September 4.

"Run For Your Wife was such a hit for us last year we knew as soon as it opened that we had to do Ray Cooney's sequel, Caught In The Net," says Artistic Director, Donnie Bowes.

"Since its release about five years ago in England, critics and audiences agree that it's as funny if not funnier than the original. We've been happy to welcome back the original actors and director from last season's show and that makes it even better."

In the sequel, cabbie John Smith, again played by Jamie Williams, is still hiding the fact that he has two lives and two wives. The hysterical cover-ups unfolds. In Caught In The Net we fast forward years later and John has two teenage children, a daughter to one wife and a son to the other.

The teenagers played by newcomers Loretta Walsh and Art James, meet on the Internet and they are determined to meet each other in person. John Smith again enlists the help of his friend Stanely, again played by Richard Bauer, to prevent John's two wives, again played by Jill Harland and Anita La Selva, from discovering his big secret.

Added to the mix in this sequel is Stanley's dad, an elderly and zany character who tries desperately throughout the whole show to get to the beach. Theatre veteran Walter Learning returns to direct the show and also play Stanley's dad.

The misunderstandings, mistaken identities, trumped up schemes and madcap antics make Caught In The Net a must see for those who enjoyed the original Run For Your Wife and for audience members who have never seen the original. It's a new show all on its own and no knowledge of the first show is required. Though for those who saw last year's show, this sequel will be an extra special treat. Caught In The Net comes right in the middle of what is proving to be another remarkable season for Upper Canada Playhouse.

"We've basically not had an empty seat all summer except for a few on the July 1 holiday," said Bowes.

"We've been running at almost 100 percent capacity leading up to this show. We expect to break all records this season. There are lots of seats for Caught In The Net at this point; but it's been astounding just how fast they go. Our advice for those who want to see this show, book early. Book now!"

The Playhouse is your ticket to a good time. Advance sales are greater than ever. Got your ticket yet? Call: 613 543-3713.

Sudden-death Playoff Decides Women's Championship

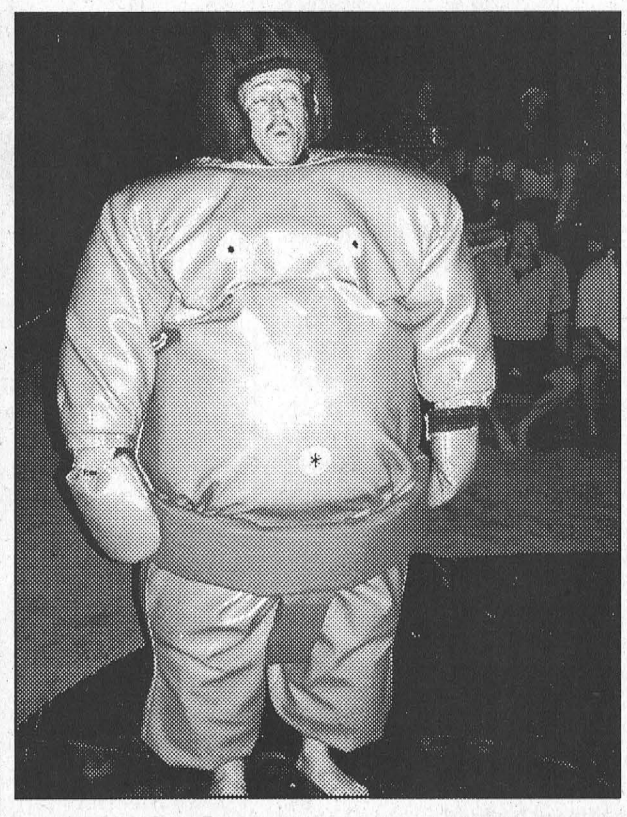
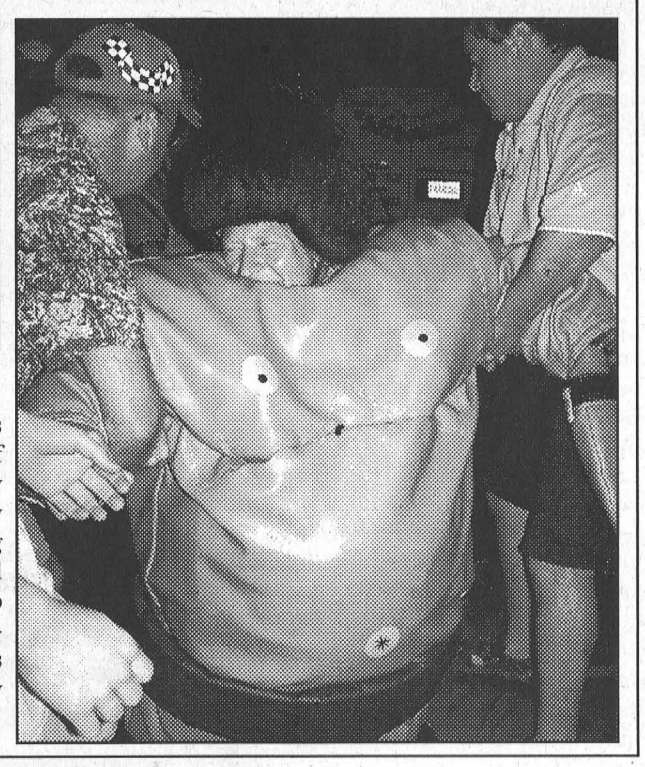
Ingleside team wins 2005 Boli





Let the Games Begin

$4,000 in prizes up for grabs at the Iroquois Golf Club Men's Open

IROQUOIS – The annual Iroquois Golf Club Men's Open organized by Sean Boulerice and Steve Martineau is scheduled for Saturday, August 13. The entry fee for the open is only $50, which includes golf, steak barbecue, and prizes.

For Iroquois Golf Club members the entry fee is only $40. This popular event will once again offer one of the best prize tables in Eastern Ontario. Based on a field of 64 golfers there will be more than $4,000 in prizes up for grabs.

Although this is a competitive event, there are some fun events such as closest to the pin contests, door prizes and hit the green contests.

Golf will begin with a 1 p.m. shotgun. Golfers are invited to sign up individually or your welcome to sign up as a group of four. The field will be split up into three even flights (A, B, and C) after all the golfers have registered. A valid handicap card must be presented in order to be eligible for net prizes.

For those golfers without handicap cards, you are invited to compete for gross prizes, skill prizes and draw prizes. To register please call Steve at 652-4367.

IROQUOIS LEGION NEWSLETTER

Royal Canadian Legion
Branch #370

IROQUOIS – For you Comrades that have been inquiring as to what happened to the weekly newsletter, well, I had a beautiful long-needed holiday in British Columbia and the lovely Victoria as well. Now I'll be trying to get caught up on all the happenings at our Branch.

For all you Cribbage players the Cribbage League will be resuming play on September 10, so don't forget this date. And, as September is not that far away I'll soon have dates to give out when the Mixed Dart League and the Men's Dart League will be getting in gear.

At the July 12 Euchre first prize was shared by Muriel Gow and Everett Froats. Alice Robertson claimed the second the second prize and Willis Douglas picked up the door prize. Having the low score of the evening was Gertie Hunt.

On Tuesday evening, July 19, there were 10 tables and taking first prize was Suzanne McCurdy. Sharing second prize were Norma Sherman and Joe Crites. Richard Sanderson picked up the door prize and having the low score of the evening was Susan Engwerda.

On Tuesday, July 26, there were ten tables and Edith Baker claimed the first prize. Marie Barkley picked up the second prize and the door prize went to Evelyn Schwerdtfeger. Goldie Sypes ended up with the low score.

At Bridge July 12, there were four tables at Duplicate Bridge and having the high score of the evening was Doug Grenkie and Brook Leightizer. Bridge was cancelled for July 19 and July 26, but it should be resuming soon.

The Pot of Gold winner for July 15, was Ron Delegarde who was not signed in. The Pot of Gold winner for July 22, was Paul Lennox who was not signed in, and the Pot of Gold winner for July 29, was Denzil Tousant, who was not signed in. Therefore, the Pot of Gold is beginning to look pretty good, so don't forget to drop your toonie in the bucket and sign your name. Your name might get drawn on Friday night.

The Friday Luncheon for this week will be meatballs with gravy, rice and veggies. Dessert will be apple and berry crisp with ice cream.

The recent blood donor clinic held at the Branch didn't do too bad. For a recent letter from them said they were able to collect 49 units of blood, which could potentially help 147 people. This is good indeed, and I would like to thank everyone who took the time out of their busy schedule to give this precious gift, for we can never tell when we might need it ourselves.

Don't forget to mark the date, September 17, on your calendar, for that is when the 12th Annual Mixed Golf Scramble Tournament is taking place at the Iroquois Golf Course.

Before closing, our thoughts and prayers go out to Comrade Coral Guerkink wishing for a speedy recovery to better health. Hope to see you real soon Coral.

Until Next Week – Take Care, Dar.
