Hydro Answers Council's Brief -

A letter from Ontario Hydro Chairman W. Ross Strike, Q.C., addressed to Reeve Dain Connor, has confirmed the general assurances given a short time ago to members of Morrisburg Municipal Council, who met with Hydro officials in Toronto, that Hydro will "establish a much closer liasion with your Council, not only with our proposals for changes in the waterworks and sewer systems, but with all other matters that may arise in Morrisburg from time to time in connection with the St. Lawrence Project".

This was good news for many of the town's residents, who have been plagued since the development by faulty sewers, unpalatable drinking water, wet basements, and other inconveniences. During these years many representations have been made to the Commission, and the assurance of the Chairman that grievances will be fairly dealt with has long been sought.

Some of the principal grievances listed by Council in their brief to Hydro were:

Sidewalks damaged by heavy vehicles not repaired.

Settling of new pavement resulted in protrusion of manholes.

Poor construction of water mains and sewers.

Inadequate drainage on Ottawa and other streets.

No high water level alarm at the sewage treatment plant.

No provision for hoisting and cleaning equipment at water and sewer plants.

Inadequate chlorinating equipment at pumping station.

Methods tried to control sewer odors in certain areas of the village were highly improper.

Sand and foreign matter entering the water system.

Seepage of water into basements due to elevation of water table.

Fire hydrants which will not drain, and must be kept filled in winter with anti-freeze.

Destruction of many of the beautiful trees in the village due to flooding of their root systems.

Members of Council feel that their grievances received a fair hearing from the Chairman and other officials of the Hydro Commission, and that solutions to many of the problems can be expected in the near future.

Following is the text of Mr. Strike's letter to the Reeve:

Reeve J. D. Connor,
Morrisburg,
Ontario.

Dear Mr. Connor:

As requested at the visit of your Council and Officials with our Com mission on Thursday last, I am confirming in writing the general assurance given to you at that time

This Commission fully intends to continue carrying out its responsibility to have the waterworks and sewer systems constructed under its direction in the Village of Morrisburg perform in a satisfactory manner.

During the five years since its completion, sincere attempts have been made at very considerable expense to remedy the various difficulties that have arisen. This has included the services of both our consulting engineers and The Water Resources Commission.

Considerable experience and information about the characteristics of these systems have been acquired in the interval and it does appear that steps now under way will come much closer to arriving at a satisfactory operation of both. This we intend to complete with as much dispatch as possible.

We also assured you that change of ownership is not a determining factor in the decision as to our responsibility for water-proofing of basements and that we will endeavour in the future to establish a much closer liaison with your Council not only with our proposals for changes in the waterworks and sewer systems, but with all other matters that may arise in Morrisburg from time to time in connection with the St. Lawrence project.

Yours sincerely,

W. R. STRIKE,
Chairman.

POWER LINE PROJECT REQUIRES HYDRO INTERRUPTION ON SUNDAY

Stage two of a three- stage hydro distribution program will take place on Sunday afternoon, September 8 in the Williamsburg, Winchester, Chesterville areea. The project will necessitate an interruption of electrical service for a four-hour period and will affect residents in Winchester, Chesterville, Dunbar, Ormond, Elma, Beckstead Settlement, Winchester Springs and the adjacent rural area. The entire are will be without electrical power during this period in order that Hydro line crews may carry out the project in complete safety.

More than 100 men and approximately 25 trucks assembled from all corners of Hydro's Eastern Region will be on hand to speed the job of "re-stringing" the 44,000 volt power line between Williamsburg to a point south of Winchester. The line, originally built in 1913, was changed from iron cable to aluminum in a similar project in 1946. The new cable is of a larger size designed to provide better voltage, to better withstand weather conditions and, thereby, provide more security to electrical service in the area.

In all, some 40 miles of new cable will be required to complete the job.

The first phase of the "re-stringing" project took place during May of this year when the h'gh-tension ilen was rebuilt betwen Morrisburg ande Williamsburg. Following the second stage, scheduled for Sunday, the third and final phase will take place on Sunday, September 22. Williamsburg residents, affected during the May 12 interruption will have two shorter periods without service this Sunday. The first will occur between 1.30 and 2.00 p.m., the second between 5.00 and 5.30 p.m. This will permit crews to carry out necessary switching at Williamsburg. All times mentioned are daylight saving time with weather conditions permitting.

A. H. Beardsall, Hydro's area manager at Winchester, said the carefully planned project is necessary to meet the growing demands for electrical service in the area. He said that times for the project have been selected following meetings with major power users in the area in order to inconvenience as few customers as possible.

IROQUOIS EDITOR HURT IN CAR-TRUCK CRASH

Ken Kirkby, editor and publisher of The Iroquois Post, was injured on Tuesday, when his car was in collision with a truck near Upper Canada Village, about 5 p.m. Mr. Kirkby was taken to Winchester Memorial Hospital, where he is still a patient. He expects to return home in a few days.

SHERWOOD-BLAIR

Edith Carol Blair, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Blair, Avonmore, became the bride of William Samuel Sherwood, Winchester, son of the late Dr. W. A. Sherwood and the late Mrs. Sherwood, Winchester at a ceremony at St. James United Church, Avonmore.

Rev. L. S. Woolfrey, B.A., officiated. Baskets of Gladioli were used as decor in the church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a street-length gown of silk organza with draped neckline appliqued in a fitted bodice and featuring a chantilly lace and long sleeves. The skirt was appliqued with chantilly lace. Her shoulder-length veil was held in place by a crown of seed pearls and she caried a bouquet of red carnations.

Matron of honour was Mrs. Helen Chisamore, of Ottawa, who wore a pink dress and caried white carnations.

The groom was attended by John Chisamore of Ottawa.

Mrs. Neil M. Bush presided at the console and played traditional music during the ceremony.

The mother of the bride chose a turquoise dress and she wore a corsage of pink carnations.

Following the ceremony a reception was held i nthe Torch Room at the Flamingo Motel, Cornwall.

Later, the couple left for a wedding trip to New York City. For travelling the bride wore a two-pc. taupe suite with shoulder cape; a wide brim taupe velvet hat and dark brown accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood will reside in Morrisburg.

UNIVERSITY EDUCATION PROGRAMME

A comprehensive, life-insured plan for financing a college education for boys and girls now in high school

If you are like most parents with children in high school, you are probably wondering how you are going to meet the costs of financing your youngster's college education. To help parents solve this problem, the Bank of Montreal has introduced its University Education Programme—the first life-insured plan of its kind in Canada.

Under this comprehensive programme, parents, guardians and sponsors of high-school students can spread the cost of a university education over periods of up to nine years, thus keeping monthly payments to amounts they can afford without hardship. And the cost to the parent is only a fraction of the interest paid on a straight loan programme.

VARIANTS OF THE PLAN

Several optional plans are available under the programme, and these vary as to the number of years in which the parent wishes to make monthly payments, as well as to the amount required annually for university expenses. Plans are based on objectives ranging from $1,000 to $8,000 payable to the parent in four annual instalments.

Here is an example of how one of the basic plans can be varied to suit your needs:

OBJECTIVE: $4,000

To be paid to the parent in four annual amounts of $1,000 each

OPTIONS	YOU PAY MONTHLY	PERIODS OF PAYMENT	YOUR PAYMENTS BEGIN
Plan A	$49.55	7 years	2 years before university
Plan B	42.78	8 years	3 years before university
Plan C	37.56	9 years	4 years before university

HOW TO JOIN THE PROGRAMME

See the people at your neighbourhood B of M branch. You will receive a warm welcome from a staff who will be pleased to give you further details and to help you select a plan suited to your needs. Ask for your copy of the Bank of Montreal University Education Programme folder.

P.S. If you need help in financing a student already in University — or planning to register this year—talk to your B of M Manager. Chances are he can arrange a tuition loan with extended payments adapted to your circumstances.

HOW THE PROGRAMME WORKS

Under the basic plan, the parent agrees to make monthly payments to the Bank starting, say, two years before the student enters university, and terminating one year after graduation. In return, the parent receives an annual sum from the Bank at the start of each of the four university years.

LIFE-INSURANCE FEATURE

If the parent concerned should die after the start of the programme, the funds for education specified in the agreement will be advanced by the Bank each year without any further payments being made by the family or the estate.

AQUALINE

Increased use of the waterweed control chemical "Aqualine" is being made this summer by Sask. natural reseources department crews.

The chemical has been used for two years at Pike Lake Provincial Park and proved effective in controlling weed growth in swimming and boating areas. This year it will be used on lakes in the Echo Valley, Moose Mountain and Cypress Hills provincial parks. Spraying of the chemical will be done by private contractors.

"Aqualine" doesn't offer a permanent kill capacity, but is adequate for control purposes over small areas of lakes. It is introduced at shore level and spreads out into the water. Because only a small amount is used over a small area, fish are not unduly endangered. It is harmless to bathers.

A penny a kiss

A youth from Limerick, Ireland, was strolling down a street in Tulsa, Oklahoma, when he spied a couple embracing in full view of passersby.

Desmond Hayes, 21, had heard Americans were openly affectionate. But nothing had prepared him for what he beheld.

The couple broke their embrace and moved down the street to a parking meter and went into another clinch. This continued, embrace by embrace, meter by meter, until Hayes' embarrassment gave way to curiosity.

The Irish youth approached the couple and was stopped short by the clink of coin against coin. Hayes called police and his suspicions were confirmed.

The sidewalk lovers were breaking open parking meters. Police found a home-made meter key and more than $100 in change in their possession.

NEW LOOK FOR ADS

There is a new deal in store for the beleaguered consumer. Understatement is the hottest new trend in advertising, so advertisements will become more realistic to combat a growing public resistance to the usual pitch that everything advertised is the biggest and the best.

If you are tired of seeing elegant ladies in Dior gowns lounging against limousines, the new trend to ads featuring casually dressed mothers with packages, dogs and children, will be a welcome change.

The bearded men of distinction are giving way to a new breed that look like the guy next door to put advertised products into realistic perspective. Hard hitting, hard sell radio and TV commercials will also get the new treatment of realism with real people in real situations.

Along with this realism there is a trend to definite understatement which places emphasis on second best. One excellent example of this trend is the ad for a popular small automobile showing a very small car in a big white page with the simple message "Think Small".

This ad proved such a "stopper" it is being widely copied. One ad for a popular brand of liquor shows a single penny glowing in a handsome glass. The spotlight is on a rich product but the penny tells the story of a little more value.

A now-famous fashion advertisement recently pictured a sophisticated cat wearing a hat. The headline — "I found out about Joan"—and the copy telling a catty story of how friend Joan looked superb on a low clothing budget.

Growing public annoyance with TV commercials has spurred the development of the new trend. In the United States a fast growing organization known as the League Against Obnoxious Commercials has been actively campaigning against specific sponsors. It gives monthly awards for the "Terrible Ten" and the "Decent Few" and publicizes various gadgets that let you switch off the TV sound during the commercials.

Advertising's basic philosophy has always been one of provocation with intent to sell the product. Provocation that irritates defeats the purpose. The switch to the new trend is said to be a symbol of what is right with advertising—that it is "a lively art, educating entertainment or entertaining education."

Including the $565 million deficit forecast for the current year, the federal government's deficit for the decade will total $3,437 million.

Swimming rules to stay alive

Deaths by drowning could be cut down to almost none, says the Health League of Canada, if swimmers would observe a few rules. These rules are: never swim alone; never swim at night except in well-lighted pools; never swim after eating; and never swim when overly tired.

WAGE AND PURCHASING POWER

While the average weekly wage in Canadian manufacturing has increased since 1949 by 88 percent, because of inflation the increase in terms of purchasing power has been only 42 percent.

TAXES ON VEHICLES

Canadian motorists pay about $100,000,000 annually through the federal sales tax on new vehicles, plus about $500,000,000 through provincial gasoline taxes, vehicle licenses and drivers' permits.

Worry of FALSE TEETH Slipping or Irritating?

Don't be embarrassed by loose false teeth slipping, dropping or wobbling when you eat, talk or laugh. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. This pleasant powder gives a remarkable sense of added comfort and security by holding plates more firmly. No gummy, gooey, pasty taste or feeling. It's alkaline (non-acid). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

Dundas Exhibitors At Central Canada Exhibition

Dundas County exhibitors of Yorkshire swine, Ayrshire, Holstein Guernsey and Hereford cattle once again brought home many red ribbons and championships from Central Canada Exhibition.

The County's perennial swine exhibitor is Morton Stobo, Winchester, and once again Mr. Stobo, Winchester, and once again Mr. Stobo swept the Show. He had the Junior, Senior and Grand Champion sows. The Stobo herd also accounted for the Junior Champion boar, while the Senior and Grand Champion boar was sold out of the herd. Nine first prize animals out of thirteen classes were exhibited by Mr. Stobo.

Ayrshire exhibitors were Samuel Rose & Sons, Mountain and Wm. McRoberts & Son, Winchester. Rose had Junior Champion bull and Reserve Grand Champion cow. The McRoberts herd accounted for the Reserve Grand Champion Bull award with their home bred bull, Bridgeholm Royal Victor.

Holstein exhibitors included Ralph Fawcett, Basil Dawley, Dwight Dawley, Winchester; Lorne Henderson, Lorne Strader, Brinston and Art Milne, Mountain.

The Holstein show was very large with 251 entries. Ralph Fawcett had the first prize two year old bull in Willola Big D. He also won second prize in the strong dry aged cow class. Basil Dawley had a good win in the two year old in milk class and also won a second with his Junior calf. Lorne Henderson was the largest exhibitor from the County and was in the money man ytimes. His Junior Heifer calf was the winner of her class and a Junior Yearling was third. Lorne Strader with only two head had second prize senior heifer calf and third prize aged bull. The second prize senior bull calf was the only entry of Arthur Milne.

In Guernseys, two strong herds were exhibited by Malcolm MacGregor, Crysler, and Lloyd Walker, Winchester Springs. MacGregor was once again Premier Breeder and Exhibitor with winnings of ten first prizes and the Reserve Grand Championship in both males and females. The Walker herd had winning junior calf and 2 year old in milk as well as many entries close to the top in several classes.

Harold Lannin, Winchester, was the County's only exhibitor of beef cattle. His polled Herefords were in the foreground in many classes and brought home the Junior Champion bull award.

- Hunting Notes -

(By B. Turner)

The hunting season is rapidly approaching and many young people have reached the age of fifteen and are eligible to purchase their first hunting licence.

In order to purchase a hunting licence for the first time, a person must successfully complete the hunter safety training course.

These courses are held periodically by Rod and Gun clubs, recreational clubs and many other people, who are interested in the teaching of safe handling of firearms.

If you are fifteen years of age, and hope to hunt this fall, contact the local clubs in your area for information on when the next course will be held, or ask the Conservation Officer in your area for information as to where you may contact a qualified instructor.

We urge all hunters to obey the 10 Commandments of Safety.

1. Treat every gun with the respect due a loaded gun. This is the first rule of gun safety.
2. Guns carried into camp or home, or when otherwise not in use must always be unloaded, and taken down or have actions open; guns always should be carried in cases to the shooting area.
3. Always be sure barrel and action are clear of obstructions, and that you always have only ammunition of the proper size for the gun you are carrying. Remove oil and grease from chamber before firing.
4. Always carry your gun so that you can control the direction of the muzzle, even if you stumble; keep the safety on until you are ready to shoot.
5. Be sure of your target before you pull the trigger; know the identifying features of the game you intend to hunt.
6. Never point a gun at anything you do not want to shoot; avoid all horseplay while handling a gun.
7. Unattended guns should be unloaded; guns and ammunition should be stored separately beyond the reach of children and careless adults.
8. Never climb a tree or fence or jump a ditch with a loaded gun; never pull a gun toward you be the muzzle.
9. Never shoot a bullet at a hard, flat surface or the surface of water. When at target practice, be sure your backstop is adequate.
10. Avoid alcoholic drinks before or during shooting.

KITCHEN CHATTER

CHICKEN BROILERS

Chicken broilers come to market under six to ten weeks of age and they weigh up to four pounds. You may buy a whole bird and split it yourself—just use a pair of kitchen sheers, split it down the backbone and then disjoint it. Chicken pieces, however, are a more convenient buy and there is the added advantage that you can buy just enough white or dark meat to please everyone. Half birds or chicken pieces may be broiled, fried or barbecued.

To Broil — Bake — (Chicken halves and quarters.) A combination of broiling followed by baking gives a more tender, juicy bird rather than the usual broiling which makes the meat dry. To broil-bake the chicken, preheat the broiler compartment five minutes (following manufacturer's direcrection).

Brush chicken with butter or cooking oil. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika. Place skin side down in a greased, shallow pan without a rack so that top of chicken is six to eight inches from heating unit. Broil until chicken browns, about 10 minutes. Turn skin side up, brush with melted butter or cooking oil and broil until skin browns, about five minutes. Then finish by baking in a 325 degree F. oven until meaty parts of chicken are tender, about 20 to 25 minutets. Quarter chickens cook in about 35 minutes; half chickens about 40 minutes.

To Panfry—(chicken quarters or pieces.) Add chicken, a few pieces at a time, to flour mixture in a paper bag. For each pound of chicken mix ¼ cup flour, ½ teaspoon paprika and a dash of pepper. Shake bag to coat pieces evenly.

Heat ¼ inch layer of oil or melted cooking fat in a heavy frying pan until a drop of water just sizzles in it. Beginning with the meatier pieces, cook chicken, turning once or twice, until lightly browned, about 15 minutes. Reduce heat, cover pan tightly and cook slowly 15 to 20 minutes. Uncover pan; increase heat and cook, skin side up, until chicken is tender and skin is crisp, about 10 minutes. Total cooking time is 40 to 45 minutes.

To Oven Fry — (especially convenient when frying more than one chicken.) Coat chicken pieces with seasoned flour and lightly brown in heated fat the same as for panfried chicken. Arrange pieces of chicken, skin side up, in a single layer in a shallow baking pan. For each pound of chicken, spoon a mixture of one tablespoon of melted butter and one tablespoon of broth OR milk over the chicken. Cook in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.), turning once or twice to crisp evenly, until chicken is tender — 35 to 45 minutes. Total cooking time is 45 to 60 minutes.

To Oven Barbecue — (chicken halves and quarters.) Preheat broiler. Brush chicken halves or quarters with butter or cooking oil, sprinkle with salt and pepper and place skin down in a shallow pan without a rack so that top of chicken is six to eight inches from heating unit. Broil until chicken browns, about 10 minutes. Turn skin side up, baste with melted butter or cooking oil, and broil skin browns, about five minutes. Then you may pour your favorite barbecue sauce over the chicken and bake in a moderately slow oven 325 degrees F. until chicken is tender. Quarter chicken should take about 30 minutes to bake; half chicken about 40 minutes.

LIVING LONGER

A five-year study of 5,000 older persons in the United States showed that most older people prefer to live independently, says the Health League of Canada. The study by Cornell University Centre for Housing an Environment said one of every three persons aged 60 or over has a parent or other relative over 80 and that by the year 2000 the proportion will increase to two out of every three.

Since 1941 the number of horses on Canadian farms has declined from 2,789,000 to 457,000.

THE LOOK OF LUXURY

A touch of crocheted lace on a blouse is a touch of elegance, and the combination of linen and lace is dear to every women's heart. Crocheting lace edgings for blouses is a fascinating hobby. For Model No. C-8239 send 25c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Prairie Publishers, 1410 Scarth Street, Regina, Sask.

New fabrics take the sting out of ironing

Women have only themselves to blame if they spend precious time at the ironing board this summer. For never has there been such a tempting assortment of wash and wear fabrics on the market.

In the past, such fabrics were quite easy to recognize, for they looked and felt distinctively different. Everyone agreed they had major advantages because they required little or no ironing and held their pleats, but frequently the choice of styles and clothes was limited, and sometimes the fabrics were less comfortable to wear than the familiar natural fibres.

But all that has changed. Now, some man-made fibres are found in fabric constructions and blends that require the skill of a textile expert to spot at a glance. One such blend is made up of 65 percent Terylene and 35 percent cotton in broadcloth, poplin and twill weaves that look and feel like lustrous cotton. The difference is that they are almost uncrushable and, after washing, any touch-up ironing required can be done when the garment is bone dry. Luckily for the shopper, the blend of Terylene and cotton is usually identified by a string tag, and one of the most promising places to look for it this year is in sportwear.

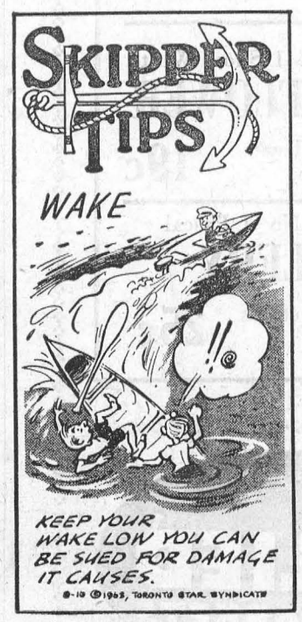
Casual clothes are becoming more important each season, playing a fashion as well as a functional role. At the moment, the denium look is the rage. Sportswear manufacturers were quick to see the benefits of offering it in a fabric that remained crisp and smooth no matter how active the sport, and many of them choose Terylene and cotton in denium colors. The popularity of their choice is evident in the wide variety of well-styled men's, women's and children's slacks, slims and separates on the market today

Another newcomer is a 100 percent Terylene surah that has the beauty, drape and feel of finest silk. In smartly subtle abstract prints and gossamer light, this fabric will be featured in ladies dresses and blouses. But while it may be the perky styles that catch milady's eye, it will be surah's ease of care and comfort that will endear it to her.

In fact, this summer's bumper crop of easy care fabrics might conceivably alter a housewife's work schedule. Who knows? Perhaps Tuesday will become relaxing day, instead of being allotted to tedious ironing.

THE WOOD DUCK

The Wood Duck, brightest colored duck found in Canada, nests in hollow trees and stumps. Even ornithologists are unsure how the young birds, before they can fly, get out of the high nests and down to the ponds and streams where they are reared.



MAKE-YOUR-OWN PATIO OR PICNIC SANDWICHES

Just right for those lazy, hazy days of summer! Make up several seasoned butters and keep them handy in the refrigerator. Butter carrys the flavor and distributes it evenly through the sandwich. The Consumer Section, Dept. of Agriculture suggests an herb butter such as thyme and parsley for a tomato or cucumber sandwich, chive or green onion butter with cold meats and a curry-lemon butter with chicken.

CHILD SAFETY

More than 2000 children under age 15 die in Canada each year from accidents and around half a million are injured, the Health League of Canada says in the current issue of "Health" magazine. Most of those accidents occur around the home, and most of them are needless, according to National Safety League's general manager, Gay McLaren.

"This", said Mr. McLaren, "is why we join enthusiastically in the promotion of Child Safety Day, which was held this year on May 5. It is a one-day campaign to make Canadians aware of the growing danger to their kiddies and to do something about it throughout the year".

The National Safety League blamed adult carelessness for most of the accidents to children. "Most of them could have been avoided," Mr. McLaren stated. Accidents are Canada's greatest killers of children, he added. "Safety isn't something inherent nor does it just happen. We have to work at it.

Adult example is the best teacher of safety for children,

HOW THE CANADIAN PARLIAMENT FUNCTIONS

The House must meet at least once a year, and each session of Parliament opens with the Speech from the Throne, a summary of measures the government intends to introduce. Traditionally there is no limit on subject matter in the debate in reply to the Throne Speech, but debate must be concluded in ten days. Prior to the Throne Speech debate a dummy bill is given one reading, a practice that dates from 1517 and demonstrates the right of Parliament to deal with its own business without first considering the "cause of summons" set forth in the Throne Speech.

Six Monday and two Thursdays of a session, and one hour of each Tuesday and Friday, are devoted to business sponsored by private members; other sitting days are devoted to government business. Included in the daily routine of the House is a question on government policies or actions taken by department officials. In debate members may speak only once to any motion or amendment, with a forty-minute limit on speeches. Of the several provisions for concluding debate the rule of closure is the most extreme. In March, 1962, a select committee undertook consideration of its repeal.

To aid proper legislative action all bills, and resolutions preceding bills, must be considered "in committee." Standing committees, to deal with such matters as banking, external affairs and public accounts, with membership in proportion to party representation in the House, are set up at the beginning of each session; as required, special committees are formed to report on particular bills or specific subjects. These committees may be given the power to send for persons, papers and records, or to examine witnesses on oath.

Only the government may introduce bills providing for the imposition of taxes or the spending of public funds, and examination of money bills is the role of three committees "of the whole House." The Committee of Supply must examine and approve the itemized estimates of each government department's expenses for the coming year. The Committee of Ways and Means must examine and approve the ways and means by which the government proposes to raise money through the coming year. For any other money bill the government's preliminary resolution must have approval of the Committee of the Whole.

Prior to becoming law a bill must have three readings. On first reading there is no debate; printed copies of the bill are distributed to acquaint members with its provisions. On second reading there can be debate only on the principle of the bill; here it may be defeated by a majority vote sending it to committee, or giving it a "six months' hoist". On third reading the exact provisions of the bill, but not its principle, can be debated; here it may be defeated by amendment to hoist or refer it to committee. Defeat of a bill proposed by the government requires resignation of that government.

Before it receives Royal Assent and becomes effective a bill must receive three readings in the Senate. Senators are not subject to cabinet control, although on controversial issues they tend to vote by party affiliation, and they may amend or reject any bill—except a money bill, which they may reject but not amend.

In addition to public bills, several hundred private bills are processed annually by Parliament, mainly bills of divorce for residents of Quebec and Newfoundland, where there are no divorce courts. Certain kinds of companies require incorporation by private bill is comparable to procedure on public bills.

Trees and bugs work together

Peach trees and "friendly" insects appear to have their own mutual assistance program.

Lady beetles, lacewing flies and a number of other beneficial insects help protect the trees by attacking mites, aphids and parasites of the Oriental fruit moth.

In return, the trees provide an important source of food for these insects.

The food is actually a sticky secretion — similar to the nectar of the blossoms — which is produced by small blands in the leaves, says W. L. Putman, of the federal research laboratory at Vineland Station, Ontario.

Many harmful insects and mites are abundant only in some years or at certain times in the season. When the pests are scarce, their enemies either starve or fly away to new areas.

The peach leaf secretion provides a reserve food supply to meet the situation, allowing beneficial insects to remain in the orchards, ready for action when the pests again increase in numbers.

Third largest of the provinces in area and population, British Columbia is almost entirely mountainous and ranks only sixth in occupied farmland.

Only 16 percent of Japan's 142,000 square miles is considered suitable for cultivation.

THE Arnold PALMER METHOD

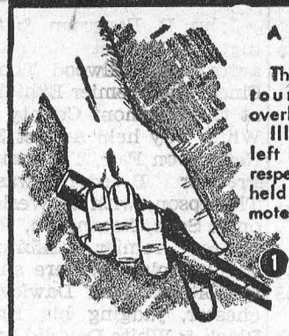
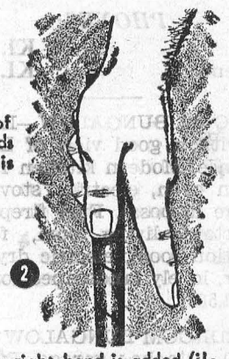
A PUTTING GRIP THAT WORKS



The favorite putting grip of the touring pros is called the "reverse overlap" grip. Here is how it works. Illustrations #1 and #2 show the left hand from a side and front view respectively. Note that the club is held largely in the fingers to promote a maximum sense of "feel."

The thumb extends down the top of the shaft and the forefinger extends down the side. Thus the back of this hand faces the target line.



When the right hand is added (illustration #3), we see that this thumb also extends down the top of the shaft. The hands are combined snugly together so that the forefinger of the left laps over the fingers of the right.

When the hands are combined in this manner they will work together as a unit. The palms face each other and most of the gripping is done in the fingers. I feel this is the putting grip that best provides proper direction and sensitivity in the hands.

WARNS AGAINST USING

THIN PLASTIC FILM IN BABY BEDDING

The reported death of an infant when he became entangled in a plastic crib sheet and suffocated is the second fatal accident of its kind since thin plastic film came into use in Saskatchewan some years ago, Dr. Vincent L. Matthews, acting deputy health minister, said today.

"With the help of the press and the broadcasting stations we have issued many warnings to parents against the practice of using thin plastic film in baby bedding or allowing it to be used in children's play. Perhaps we should have done more because the saving of even one life is worth all we can do,"

"We can only reiterate that thin plastic film should never be used in baby bedding and that it is a dangerous toy. Bags such as used in delivering garments which have been dry cleaned should be promptly and safely disposed of, in a place where children will not find them," Dr. Matthews said.

ILLUSTRATION BY A. S. PACKER

A matter of pride

BY DON EAGLE

"Fire-Top pockets ten of Cherry-Nose's new G-notes and agrees that on such a special occasion a change of 'heaters' is in order."

A. S. Packer

I SUPPOSE you have read about the police nabbing Fire-Top Ames yesterday in the act of pilfering Waxey Madden's safe right at the very moment Waxey's pallbearers are lowering his corpse into its last resting place. Well, this comes as a great shock to Fire-Top's friends, and even to the cops, for Fire-Top is strictly a rub-out artist who never before stoops to such a despicable trick.

In view of the terrible tragedy which occurs since, I feel it is up to me to reveal Fire-Top's true motive in order that he may be restored to his former status in the eyes of his friends. Fire-Top never utters the first word in his own behalf, and it is only because I am his cellmate following his arrest that I happen to know the entire story.

It all starts when Cherry-Nose Rinaldo decides the town is not large enough for both Waxey Madden and himself. Now Cherry-Nose and Waxey have been peacefully chopping up the town's rackets for years, but what with the Kefauver Committee and the gambling tax stamp, things are getting very tight lately. Of course, Cherry-Nose cannot politely call on Waxey and inform him of this sudden change of heart as Waxey is notoriously narrow-minded about such things.

A RUB-OUT on such a high level requires the services of a skilled operator, and Fire-Top Ames is credited with being the best around. The cops have never been able to prove it, and it is not considered good breeding to publicly discuss such things, but it is nevertheless an accepted fact in our town. It is even said Fire-Top has gone abroad on errands involving nobility, but this is likewise never verified. There is no doubt, however, but what he takes a great deal of pride in his profession.

In appearance Fire-Top is a small, reserved character who resembles the end gnome in Snow White and The Seven Dwarfs. What hair he still possesses is fiery red, but he is not given to quarreling when drinking, pays his gambling markers promptly, and it is said he never rubs anyone on a personal basis. He never discusses his affairs with a third party, and his vocabulary mostly consists of such phrases as "How much?", "How soon?", and "How?"

CHERRY-NOSE sends for Fire-Top and informs him of his wishes. Fire-Top is slightly surprised, but only inquires what does Cherry-Nose intend to pay. For average rub-outs Fire-Top is normally paid cash in advance, but with a task of this caliber the standard method is half in front and the balance when the victim has joined the dearly departed.

Cherry-Nose and Fire-Top agree on twenty grand as a fair price. Fire-Top pockets ten of Cherry-Noses's new G-notes, and gives assurance Waxey will quickly experience a permanent demise.

Cherry-Nose also cautions Fire-Top to be even more careful than usual. He suggests he change heaters for this job, using a forty-five instead of a thirty-two which is Fire-Top's trademark. Fire-Top sees the logic of this, for while Waxey is never openly called a welsher, he is commonly known to part with the green stuff very reluctantly. And the idea is that maybe folks will conclude it is some out of town hood who still holds a marker on Waxey.

During the next few days Fire-Top is seen in Waxey's company several times, which is not unusual since they often do business together. Then one evening soon after, Fire-Top comes to the alley door of Cherry-Nose's bar after the place is closed, and taps discreetly. Cherry-Nose clears his office before letting Fire-Top in. Callers by way of the alley door never wish to be social.

One look at the expression on Fire-Top's small features, and Cherry-Nose is satisfied Waxey is among the deceased. He opens the safe and hands Fire-Top the other ten G's. Fire-Top counts the money carefully, and they shake hands over the conclusion of what is a mutually satisfactory transaction.

At this point Fire-Top does something which Cherry-Nose undoubtedly considers very unfriendly. He reaches under his left armpit, extracts his heater, and very neatly punctures Cherry-Nose's low forehead with two large slugs. There is still a puzzled expression on Cherry-Nose's face when the cops arrive.

ONLY after Fire-Top is standing in the alleyway outside does he realize his grave error. Too late he remembers that when he accepts this last assignment from Waxey, he forgets to specify he must have the entire fee in advance.

It should now be evident to all that Fire-Top was only trying to collect an honorable debt when he was arrested in the process of robbing the dead Waxey's safe.

There are some who will no doubt say it is because Fire-Top cannot face the twenty years to life for burglary that he hangs himself last night while I am asleep, but those who know Fire-Top will understand it was really because he could not bear the disgrace of being apprehended while committing such a lowly act.

SOILS & CROPS NOTES

(By Walker Riley)

"How much fertilizer can I profit ably use on corn? To illustrate an answer to this question, plots were sown in May at the Kemptville Agricultural School. They will be sampled, the yields worked out, and the story will be told on Corn Day September 10.

All these plots of corn were treat ed exactly alike except for one factor - nitrogen fertilizer. The rates of application were varied from zero up to 200 pounds per acre of this one element.

It has been very interesting to watch the development of these plots through the summer, and to see the variation in growth of the corn. When they are harvested the cost of the extra fertilizer will be taken away from the value of the extra corn in each plot and the most profitable rate will be thus established. Of course, the same rate will not be the best in every year, and on every farm but there will be an indication how far we should go in heavier rates of nitrogen. In a similar way, we can look at phosphorus and potash, too.

As a rule o fthumb, each bushel of corn produced uses up two pounds of nitrogen. Since this element is very often in short supply in the soil, extra nitrogen fertilizer can be expected to bring higher yields, providing nothing else is holding back production. But there is a top limit. At some point, we find no further increase; yields have reached their maximum.

The aim in producing for profit is not to fertilize to the point of highest yields, but to stop at the level where the extra fertilizer used is still paid for by the extra crop. Using less fertilizer than enough to reach that level cuts profits, using more is wasting money.

Be sure to see these plots and take part in the discussion on Corn Day, September 10. Wagon tours will leave the main barn every hour.
