Village Council Meet--

Test drilling authorized up to $6,000 to be spent

A sum of $6,000 was authorized to be spent for test drilling Tuesday night by Chesterville council. They passed By-law 828 to authorize the Ontario Water Resources Commission to call for tenders immediately to test drill in the municipality. The drilling will be necessary in order to find an adequate source of water for the proposed water system.

Council met Tuesday night in the clerk's office for the regular September meeting. All members of council, the reeve and clerk were present.

Hydro business was quickly dispatched. It was decided to remove to one side the hydro pole at the corner of Mary Street and Main South and the clerk was instructed to keep Winchester ROA informed of our need to have the street lights installed.

Graham Heagle waited on council in the matter of garbage collection. He was asked to instruct his drivers to keep to the side of the road when loading and to interfere with traffic as little as possible. Mr Heagle complained that in some instances householders were using their garbage cans to hold wet, unwrapped garbage. He was instructed to refuse the offering if the refuse was not wrapped after a reasonable warning.

The usual yearly grant to Chesterville Community Centre Board was authorized.

Word was received from the Department of Highways that a study would be made at Queen and Main to see if a flasher light would be needed.

North Dundas High School District trustees have sold back to the town the former farm plot east of the E. B. Lynch property. When the legal status of the land is cleared, the village will probably offter the plot for sale by tender in one block.

It was decided to engage a backhoe immediately and investigate a troublesome drain on King Street North.

The following accounts were passed for payment:

Intermediates win first play-off game

Before one of the largest crowds to witness softball in Chesterville in recent years, the local boys came through with a thrilling 7-6 victory over Munster in the first game of their E.O.A.S.A. Intermediate "B" 2-out-of-3 series.

Unable to launch any form of hitting attack until the eighth inning, and trailing 6-0 due to costly errors, the Intermediates came through with six big runs to tie the game.

Scoring for Chesterville were Labre with two, including the winner in the ninth, Doug Miltimore, Jarvis, Jack Lannin, Bobby Miltimore and Brian Kilby.

The winning run in the bottom of the ninth was scored without a hit as the Munster pitcher walked four consecutive batters.

CORRECTION

We would call the attention of our readers to two advertisements which appear in the "Record" this week from the firm, H. S. Lannin Ltd., Winchester. The advertisement appearing on Page Eight was printed before the change of copy reached our hands. As a result that advertisement is incorrect and should be disregarded. On Page Ten of this issue is the proper H. S. Lannin advertisement advertising a special in house doors.—Editor.

CRUMBS from Graham's Loaf

Just a few more short summer days and school will start again and all the kids will troop unwillingly back to the emporiums of higher (more or less) education. Teachers will look out over the new classes with mixed emotions ranging from desperation to sadistic satisfaction. And another series of sorties and sallies will be made against the impregnable minds of small boys thinking about something else.

Labour Day for farm kids usually meant a measure of relief from the hard summer work. It always seemed the seasons were too short to allow any time between harvests. Haying ran into grain, threshing stretched out until the end of the holidays and always a break meant getting out that valuable but stinking pile from behind the barn to the fields where it belonged. If that was spread there were always fences to mend and endless jobs to find without looking.

Yet looking back on youthful farm days, they were the best in the world. Farm kids had just as many holidays as the village friends. They made the summer camps if they earned the right to go, and rainy days were made for relaxing. That was the time we always took the Model T apart and fixed the steering gear. For many years that steering gear ran on wire and brass scrounged from Charlie Munro's scrap heap. It could be depended upon to collapse just about the time Dan Craig stopped the driver and roared that 14 school kids were too many on one heap on King Street.

For a couple of years Labour Day also signalled the time we took to the river banks and lined up the resident families of summer ducks. We had a trusty .22 that could pick the eye out of a spider at 100 paces, and many a quacking duck rose in a fury from the still waters of the Nation disturbed at our near misses. While we were holy wonders at nailing spiders, we were never very good at objects as large as ducks. And after the season opened, our before-school forays were many but the waterfowl population really did not suffer too much.

Of course now as we bow in dismay to middle age, Labour Day has a different meaning. With a sigh of relief we can close up the summer cottage and get a little rest over the weekend. In case you haven't heard, summer cottages are an invention maintained only to keep the poor tired businessman more tired on Monday than on Saturday. Therefore when Labour Day comes along, he can look forward to sinking into the easy chair, gripving a tall, cold glass of tea, and watching his favourite cowboy programs on TV all Saturday afternoon.

Australian wool production in 1958-59 was estimated at 1,386,000,000 pounds.

Byers - Closs

Chalmer's United Church, Finch, was the scene of the August wedding of Miss Leola May Closs and Mr Linden Dobie Byers. The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs John Closs, Flower Station, Ont., and the groom is son of Mr and Mrs Dobie Byers, Crysler.

Rev John Bell officiated at the ceremony. Mrs Dolton Henry played the wedding music and "The Wedding Prayer" was sung by Mrs Lynden Hough. The church was decorated with mixed summer flowers, with white bows on the seats.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white floor-length gown, with lace over net. She carried a bouquet of red roses and white 'mums.

The bride's attendant was Miss Margaret Closs, her sister. She wore a blue floor-length gown of lace over net and carried a bouquet of white and yellow 'mums.

Best man for his brother was Archie Byers, Crysler. Ushers were Edsel Byers, brother of the groom, of Crysler, and Dwaine Henderson, of Finch.

Mrs Closs, mother of the bride, wore a mauve dress and a corsage of white roses. For her son's wedding, Mrs Byers wore a printed pink dress with a corsage of pink roses.

Prior to leaving for a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, a reception was held in Chalmer's Church hall. To travel, the bride wore an orchid dress with white accessories.

Mr and Mrs Byers will reside at Cannamore, Ont.

Fold tablecloths and napkins in a different way from time to time to avoid wear along fold lines.

St. Mary's Separate School pupils will have a fine new school by the beginning of the new year. At least that is the present plan as construction begins. After this picture was taken trenching was done and footings poured ready for the foundation slabs of the new building. The contractor is employing the use of ready-mix concrete for his cement work. The old school stands in the background.—Record Photo.

OPINIONS . . .
OURS AND OTHERS

Occasionally we come upon a nugget of news that would make excellent copy if one wasn't too particular about hurting feelings. Usually, though, we restrain ourselves and think how we would feel if we saw ourselves described in the "Record" in that light.

Then again there are events that happen and are not reported but should be.

A case in point could be an attempted burglary or break-in; police are never helped when the victim of such an attempt keeps the affair under wraps.

Police work is based in large part on reports gathered from all and sundry; strangers seen in the neighbourhood, uncommon noises heard at the wrong time, lights appearing when no lights normally show and loud talk over empty bottles, all these are grist for the busy policeman.

Keep the news of the break-in a secret, though, and the police work is multiplied many times. And the chances of another break-in attempt are that much greater, because even thieves can read.

Let us hope no other store in the village is molested for a long time. If it does happen, help yourself by helping the police and let the public in on the matter; they might be just more help than you know.

Chesterville and a new park

Probably most people think Chesterville has just about as much park as she can comfortably handle right now. And right now, maybe she has, but the future is getting closer when we could use another park to good advantage.

Highway 43 will soon be re-routed past the village, passing over a new bridge west of town between McElheran's and Merkley's properties and continuing south to the Four Corners. No one can say when it will be, two years, five years or ten, but it will happen.

Two things can tempt passers-by into the village then. The first is the prospect of a quiet place to shop and the second is a well-located summer camp ground to park the family trailer or tent and run the boat into the river.

Hummel's Grove west of the village would make an ideal campsite and another storage dam there in the township would guarantee a head of water all the way to the dredged portion of the Nation above the second bridge.

Neither of the projects need any explanation to point out their usefulness. A good summer camping ground there would automatically bring benefit to village merchants and the increase in river levels would prove a boon all along the river almost up to Cass Bridge.

These days one has only to travel as far as Main Street to see what part camping is playing in modern life, and nearly every camper going through has some kind of craft on top or in tow. And while the dirty old Nation has a few faults, they are not so great that a little planning couldn't make them much less. Even the Nation looks good to a browned-off apartment dweller these sultry days.

What classes at CHS?

It seems to us now is a good time to wonder out loud why there has not been more publicity about the forthcoming term about to open at Chesterville High School.

For many years it was the practice to acquaint the public through these columns, ahead of time, of the proposed curriculum of study, of the teachers and the subjects they would teach.

This year we have been unable to get the desired information. Principal Rivard has been out of reach of the phone at the school and any other means of reaching him has ended in failure.

While it is not our intention to unnecessarily criticize, we do think the school would be better served if the board or someone in authority would recognize the need of instilling a feeling of confidence and support for this local school. Sure as shooting, if enough apathy is shown to our own, we won't have any "own." It will be a joint affair up on the Ridge, eating its tax-happy big head off.

In appreciation of a great friendship

By Amelia MacMillan Lambkin

Away back through the years, a little, old red schoolhouse stood on one of four corners, and opposite was an old, red farm house. I belonged in the old farm house, and Minnie and I both belonged to a desk in the old school.

Minnie was a few years older than I, but in friendship or love, age doesn't count, and since Minnie was a student (which I was not) she was ever ready to help me over the hard spots. Our hands met under the old desk, as we studied our lessons.

And then, one memorable day, Minnie's parents presented her with a ring because of her having passed the Entrance exams with honours (all of her exams were passed with honours).

Well, this was something indeed, as there were no rings in that little school! The ring was passed around and around, that all might see the wonderful present that Minnie had received. But of course I, being her dearest friend, became especially privileged, as Minnie slipped her treasure on my finger and whispered "I want you to wear it, Melie, until recess."

My heart beat a tattoo of joy, as I turned the ring about on my finger, and I thought it would be a lovely thing to have such a ring of my very own—and how good of Minnie to let me wear it until recess.

And so the days passed, and some days Minnie would let me wear it until noon. One never-to-be-forgotten day the ring was forgotten and I wore it home. But that night my sleep was broken by my fear of something happening during the night to the precious ring.

The next day when I returned it and told Minnie of my great anxiety about its safety, she laughed and said "Now, Melie, I'll tell you something, and you must remember this. When I die, I am going to leave this ring to you." And although Minnie laughed, I felt very sad at the thought of Minnie ever dying and I answered in a very tearful voice.

"Oh, Minnie! I don't want you to die to leave me the ring. I wouldn't want it if you were gone."

Because of seniority Minnie left for high school, quite some time before me and later became a teacher. And so, it was only at church where we met and sat together, our hands finding one another in the same old way. But gradually our ways divided and it was only letters and greeting cards on special days which were sent to keep our friendship green—and finally, after many years, we lost each other completely.

I hadn't heard that Minnie was ill, and so when I received a letter from her sister it brought me a great surprise and a greater sorrow.

It was to tell me that my beloved friend had "passed on." But a short time before her passing she had called her mother to her bed-side and, taking the ring (now worn to a tiny circlet), from her finger and said:

"'Mother! I don't know where she is, but I want you to find Melie, and send her my ring. Be sure she gets it. It's a sacred trust.'

"And she didn't speak again. So, I have spent some time in finding you, and I want to be sure this is your proper address, before sending you the ring."

Later, when the tiny registered parcel arrived, I held it unopened for some time and when at length the treasured ring appeared and I slipped it on my finger I felt the presence of my old friend very near.

The room faded, and in its place was a battered desk, in a little, old, red schoolhouse where two pupils sat awaiting recess, and I could hear a well-loved voice saying:

"Wear it till recess, Melie."

—Seventy years!

The Great Master of my destiny has bestowed upon me many blessings during those years—but none so rare and beautiful as the friendship freighted with love of my beloved schoolmate, Minnie McLean.

The BIBLE TODAY . . .

For Mexico a small diglot edition of St. Luke's Gospel in Tzeltal of Bochajon, (the first Scripture to be produced in that language), and Spanish, is in the press, the Bible Society of that country announced recently. The Tzeltal of Bochajon tribe numbers about 6,000 persons, of whom about 1% are literate, and 250 are Christian believers. Five years ago there were only about five believers. The Wycliffe translators and the National Presbyterian Church serve this tribe.

The Rev Mr Estrello, secretary of the Mexico Agency, and the work of the Mexican Bible Society, were recently the subject of a three-page illustrated article in "Tiempo" (a periodical similar to the American "Time.") Most commenatory statements were made concerning both the man and the work.

Recently at the local industrial fair at San Luis Potosi, Mexico, State Governor D. Lopez de Lara had his picture taken shaking hands with the pastor in charge of the Bible Society booth which had been set up with the approval of the state government which sponsored the fair.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

by Lillian Allison

What's new? Well it is surprising. Just when we think that everything has been invented we find plenty of things that seem very different indeed.

I've had the pleasure of seeing some lovely homes recently and am amazed at all that is new in them.

The silent light switch was quite a step forward when it made its debut a year or two ago. Now they come in decorator colours. But since that someone has thought up a big button that does the job. It is about as large as a quarter and a half an inch thick. You push it in and the light comes on. You push it in again and the light goes off. If both hands are full you give it a shove with your elbow or your shoulder. And for the benefit of people who like to sneak in late it makes no noise.

Something else that is new is a wall covering and drapery material in the same design. On the walls the stuff looks like plastic-coated wallpaper. Off it looks like table oilcloth. It is thick and canvas-backed. Once it is stuck to the wall it is perfectly washable—like paint—and should last for years. One lady made placemats out of the leftover pieces.

The drapery material is a good quality and the pattern is exactly the same. There is a large choice of colours and designs to choose from too.

Windows I hadn't seen before were a feature of the newest house I've visited. They were made of two thicknesses of glass and opened like doors. A sort of handle pushed out which opened each half and locked it in place. The screens were on the inside. When fall comes you simply take off the screens. The double glass serves as a storm window.

There were no drawers in sight in this newest kitchen but they were there just the same. Two or three tiers of them were hidden neatly behind natural wood cupboard doors. One was a bread drawer lined so it was almost air tight. Another cupboard was divided into sections where trays, cake tins, etc., could be filed away. The sections were removable for cleaning.

I liked the medicine cabinet in the bathroom. It was perhaps 20"x30." It had a plywood door and glass shelves. It was a wonderful place to keep all the medicine and cosmetics we seem to acquire. Since it was only the thickness of the wall—probably three inches—everything was readily visible. Inside it looked surprisingly like a miniature drug store.

But everything new isn't connected with new houses. At Ottawa Ex. I saw something new in food.

At one booth in the Pure Food Building they were making the latest model hot dog. They had a lollipop stick in the end of a wiener. With it they dipped the wiener into a thick batter then held it in boiling fat until it was a crusty brown. If you like mustard you put it on the outside. I didn't try one of the oddities and I am sorry I didn't.

One thing at the Ex. that really fascinated me was the set of mechanical hands in the atomic energy display. A man sat in a glass cage and operated the arms that were about five feet long and were suspended outside the cage. The little hands at the ends did amazing things.

They placed a bolt in a vise, tightened the vise then screwed a nut onto the bolt. They [illegible] ated a screwdriver and [illegible] other small instruments.

Of course they're intended to handle material in atomic research that men must not be near. But if we have another hot summer like this I have a better idea. I'll get an air-conditioned cage, sit in it and use the hands to peel potatoes, wash dishes, iron, mend, etc. I might even teach them to operate this typewriter.

The South American tarantula, a species of spider, may be three or four inches long with 10-inch long legs.

Open seasons Kemptville district

The opening date for migratory birds has been announced and this year the Quebec-Ontario opening date is the same day. This will be welcome news to the duck hunter along the Ottawa River.

As the wildfowl population has declined in most parts of Canada, the bag limit has been reduced until the duck population recovers. The hunter this year will only be permitted four canvas backs and four red-heads, and as before, only one wood-duck.

This year hunters will be permitted to use a power boat when such boat is beached, resting at anchor, or fastened within or alongside any type of fixed hunting blind. In addition such boat may be used to retrieve ducks within 200 yards of a fixed blind. All shot-guns must be unloaded within the boat when retrieving ducks.

Migratory Game Birds, September 19, to December 15, 1959:

Ducks (in the aggregate)—Daily bag: 6 (only 1wood duck, only 4 canvas backs and four red-heads, exclusive of Mergansers); possesion, 12.

Knox Church groups hold meeting at McRae home

The ladies of Knox Presbyterian Church W.M.S. and Ladies' Aid Society held their monthly meeting at the home of Mrs Carl McRae.

The W.M.S. meeting opened with Call to Worship by the president, Mrs K. McGillivray. Following a hymn, Psalm 27 was read responsively, led by Mrs McGillivray. Mrs Carl McRae led in prayer.

Roll call was answered by a verse of Scripture containing the word "Strength." Mrs W. Ouderkirk gave the minutes of the last meeting and Mrs W. Paul took up collection.

A list of articles needed for the bale was given to the members, following a business discussion. Mrs K. McGillivray gave a reading, "Courage and Consecration," by Mrs Glenn Thompson. The meeting closed with prayer.

Ladies' Aid

Mrs W. Paul opened the Ladies' Aid meeting with roll call. Mrs W. Ouderkirk received the collection and read the minutes of the July meeting. Mrs C. McRae read letters of thanks.

Members decided to give a donation of money towards the purchase of a furnace for the church. It is planned to hold a church supper early in the fall.

Mrs Paul expressed the thanks of the ladies for her hospitality. Mrs Alex McLeod closed the meeting with prayer.

Grandmothers guests of Morewood W.I.

An interesting grandmothers' meeting was held in Morewood United Church hall with about 50 persons present as guests of Morewood W.I.

Mrs Harry Hutchinson presided and welcomed the guests and dealt with the usual business.

Mrs Stuart Mattice presided for the program which featured two solos by Carol Ann Bedard, the reading of the minutes of the 1936 grandmothers' meeting, two contests, community singing by the grandmothers and a reading by Mrs Henry Heuff.

Prizes were awarded to the following grandmothers: Mrs Keith Carruthers, Mrs Lorne Irven, Mrs T. McCord and Mrs Walter Carlyle. Each grandmother was presented with a corsage of pansies. Mrs M. Thompson acted as pianist.

Hostesses were Mrs Ellis Thompson, Mrs O. K. Steven, Mrs A. Koelwyn, assisted by the members.

It was decided that the W.I. would sponsor the Girls' Club for another year. Leaders will be Mrs Donald Runions and Mrs Allen Thompson, assistants, Mrs Leonard Moran and Mrs Douglas Babcock.

A vote of thanks on behalf of the visiting grandmothers was given by Mrs Zoe McQuaig.

A LITTLE EXCITEMENT

A boy shooting a rifle near a golf course suddenly turned and fired directly at a boy nearby. Bystanders gasped as the second lad clutched his stomach and a red stain oozed along his shirt front. A third boy hustled up, helped the boy into a car and sped off.

Onlookers telephoned police. Emergency room attendants were notified to stand by.

Sluder says he is looking into the law to determine whether the youths can be charged.

And, added the chief, those shells the first boy was firing were blanks; that red stuff on the second boy's shirt was tomato catsup, and that third young rascal was in on the plan, too.

The first training in Canada for librarians was a summer course set up at McGill University in 1904.

Presbyterian Men Meet at Prescott

The well-represented Council was greatly moved by the subject, "Selfishness," which was well orated by the president, Doug Tannahill, and the Laymen were honoured by their visitor, Harold Graham Jr., of Toronto, formerly of Mountain.

Bible study covered John 21, verses 1 to 11, and it was quite evident that the problems which were discussed were quite uniform.

Rev Alex Morrison, Prescott, and Doug Tannahill, Winchester, related to the laymen the great loss which everyone had felt throughout the Presbyterian Church in Canada with the passing of Neil Miller, of Montreal. Mr Miller's capable leadership will long be remembered.

A foundation program was formed regarding a banquet which the Laymen expect to hold in October, and the Council will complete all details at its next regular meeting scheduled for Knox Presbyterian Church, Iroquois.

THE SYMBOL -30- RAISES CONTROVERSY

In the patois of the press, -30- is the end.

But where the tight little symbol came from is not only clouded in mystery—its origin is downright controversial.

Half the newsmen in North America tag their stories with -30-. But you could put the names of those who know its origin in a hat.

And from each there'd be a different explanation—and an argument to back it.

No newspaper term is perhaps as well known to the public as -30-.

Along press row, some of the more popular versions of -30- go like this:

In a wire service office in Los Angeles a Western Union telegrapher recalls hearing that the -30- symbol started with a WU operator, back in the bicycle days of Morse code.

The old WU operator's name was "T-H-U-R-T-Y." As he clicked off his daily file of stories, Thurty would sign each one: THURTY. The sign-off became a byword along the Morse line. Other telegraphers picked it up and made it "Thirty." Then, at last, -30-.

Then there's the yarn told in the composing room of a Chicago daily by a grizzled printer with hands like mercury.

He remembers hearing that -30- originated during the pre-typewriter era of journalism. In those days, all news copy was written in long hand by reporters. To indicate clearly the end of their stories, they adapted a numerical symbol. Which, as legend had it, was -30-.

But why the symbol -30-, and not -40- or -50-? A headline writer on the rim of a Philadelphia paper has one answer.

He claims that -30- stemmed from the fact that 30 words was just the right fit in a stick of type—in the days when newspaper body type was also set by hand.

The editor of a Midwestern weekly disputes all of these stories. His claim is that -30- began with a columnist who saw to it that each of his columns contained 30 items. And when this was done, he simply ended it with -30-, which gave notice to the composing room that that was the end of the piece.

If all the -30- marks used by newsmen were laid end to end they'd probably circle the earth. But where did the thing really begin?

EGG FOR BREAKFAST

It started out as a simple order of eggs for breakfast. It ended with a $50,000 damage suit.

Wade Patterson Dunn, who ordered the eggs, has sued the National Toddle House Corporation for damages as a result of his breakfast the other day. Here's what the suit says happened:

Dunn ordered two fried eggs and a cup of coffee. Charles Henry, a Toddle House cook, broke the yolks when he started to prepare the eggs. Dunn said to go ahead and scramble them, but Henry threw the eggs away and started again.

The yolks of the second pair of eggs also broke. Dunn again asked that they were scrambled. Henry again threw them out.

Dunn said he'd just drink his coffee and forget the eggs, since he was in a hurry.

Well, one thing led to another, the suit said, and Henry knocked Dunn down, kicked him and beat him.

Henry was fined $25 on assault and battery charges.

SPECIAL AWARD FOR CBC—W. J. Sheridan (centre), president of Canadian Public Relations Society, presents a special award to J. D. Nixon, CBC's assistant director of radio network programming, at this year's Annual Canadian Film Awards in Toronto. It was made to the CBC "for its encouragement of the appreciation of good film-making over the years, notably through the programs "The Movie Scene" and "Music from the Films." Gerald Pratley (left), film critic and commentator, is heard weekly in these radio programs reviewing films and playing music from film sound-tracks.

THE WINNER

A seven-year-old Roseville, Calif., boy out-knitted mothers and grandmothers and won a blue ribbon at the Placer County Fair.

Dennis Weiler, son of Mr and Mrs Harry Weiler, took up knitting last winter when Sierra snows drove him indoors. (So did two brothers, but they didn't like it.)

Everyone but Dennis' grandmother, Mrs L. W. Payne, was surprised when the boy carried off a blue ribbon and a third-place white one. Grandmother had entered his handiwork, three sweaters and caps.

The Bank of England in the City of London is sometimes called "The Old Lady of Threadneedle Street."

Friends honour Miss Marilyn Marcellus

Prior to the wedding of Miss Marilyn Marcellus and Mr John Wouters on Saturday evening, August 15, a miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs Harold Greer.

The bride and her mother, Mrs Lorne Marcellus, entered the beautifully decorated room to the strains of the Wedding March.

After the bride was escorted to the suitably decorated chair and presented with a corsage, Mrs Douglas Fry read the following address, during which many useful and beautiful gifts were brought in by Mrs Stuart Allan, Miss Helen Smith and Mrs Harold Loughridge.

Dear Marilyn:

A happy occasion has now come to your life and we, your friends, are gathered here this evening to wish you well. You have been with us all your life and your willing and kind disposition has endeared you to all of us.

You are now about to enter into another period in your life and take unto yourself a husband. We all wish you the best of everything with your husband and may Providence provide you both with good health and much happiness.

As a token of our esteem of your friendship and help, we want you to accept these few gifts from us.

We are pleased you are to remain in Chesterville and our very best wishes to you both is the best we can say.

The bride thanked all present in her usual charming manner and invited all to visit her in her new home. Lunch was served and a most enjoyable evening was brought to a close.

Dundas County livestock exhibitors at Central Canada Exhibition once again copped many first prize ribbons. One of the most coveted wins, reports Ed Pearson, Dundas ag. rep., was that for the top County Holstein Herd. This entry consisted of six animals with not more than two from one herd.

In the Holstein show five exhibitors were out. These were Dwight Dawley, Basil Dawley, Allison Fawcett, Ralph Fawcett, all of Winchester, and Byron Ostrom, Mountain. Allison Fawcett had Reserve Senior and Reserve Grand Champion Bull with his herd sire Spring Farm Reflector. Junior Champion Female was Wincrest Dijax Iris, bred and owned by Basil Dawley. Reserve Junior Champion was Willola Count On Me for Ralph Fawcett who was also the exhibitor of the first prize three-year-old in milk. Many other animals from county herds stood well up in their classes in the strong Holstein show.

Ayrshire exhibitors were Samuel S. Rose and Sons, Mountain, and Wm. McRoberts and Sons, Winchester. Rose had Reserve Junior and Reserve Grand Champion Bull with Rosayre Star's Victory and Reserve Junior Champion Female with Rosayre Star's Briar. Also to the Rose herd went first prizes in the Junior Yearling, two-year-old and Junior Herd classes as well as many second and third prize ribbons. The McRoberts' herd had the first prize Junior Heifer Calf and many others well up in the money. Top county herd was the Grenville-Dundas Ayrshire Club.

Two Dundas Guernsey exhibitors took their share of ribbons. These were Malcolm MacGregor, Crysler, and L. J. Walker, Winchester Springs. The MacGregor herd won the Premier Breeder Award and eight first prizes and went on to win the Reserve Senior and Reserve Grand Championship for bulls as well as the Reserve Junior Champion female. From the Walker herd came the Junior Champion bull Strathburn Austin and the first prize Senior Heifer Calf as well as many other prize winners.

Only one exhibitor of beef cattle came from Dundas. Harold Lannin, Winchester, brought out a very creditable entry and garnered two seconds, four thirds and one fourth in a strong show.

In all, Dundas County received many top awards at this strong livestock show which again indicates the high quality of livestock maintained by district farmers.

One hundred Junior Farmers and 4-H Club members, representing all groups in the county, participated in the annual Stormont judging competition, held at Newington Fair Grounds.

The day's program was directed by K. E. Best, Stormont ag. rep., assisted by R. R. Smith, assistant ag. rep.

Placing first in the senior division was Campbell Murray, of Cornwall Centre. In the intermediate division Miss Heather Simmons, Finch, a member of Newington Senior 4-H Calf Club, came first. She had the added distinction of accumulating the highest score of any competing member in the three divisions. She had a 466 score out of a possible 500. In the junior division Bart Marjerrison, Avonmore, scored highest with a score of 447.

Winner of the CNE shield was John Ferguson, RR2, Newington, a member of the Avonmore 4-H Calf Club. John, who competed in the junior division, was the high novice judge. His score was 439.

A demonstration was given by W. B. George, of the soils department, Kemptville Agricultural School, of the correct method of taking a soil sample.

Jim Humphries, Glengarry ag. rep., was on hand. Club leaders present included Roy Simmons, Marland Murray, Floyd Dingwall, Harold Shaver and Buddy Thompson.

IN MEMORIAM

FROATS—In loving memory of our mother and grandmother, Mrs Elgin Froats, who passed away August 23, 1950.

The depths of sorrow we cannot tell
Of the loss of one we loved so well,
And while she sleeps a peaceful sleep
Her memory we shall always keep.

Percy, Helen and David.

IN MEMORIAM

FROATS — In fond and loving memory of our mother and grandmother, Mrs Elgin Froats, who passed away August 23, 1950.

There is always a lonely heartache,
And often a silent tear,
And always precious memories
Of the days when you were here.
It's lonesome here without you,
And sad the weary way,
For life is not the same to me,
Since you were called away.
I remember you in silence
And make no outward show,
What it meant to lose you
No one will ever know.

Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by Basil, Shirley, Rickie and Connie Barkley.

CARD OF THANKS

Ray and Gladys Smith, Newington, would like to take this way of expressing our sincere thanks to the many people who so kindly gave and offered assistance in any way to ourselves and Sterling, since his accident a few weeks ago, and to the many who visited him and sent cards, flowers and gifts. Special thanks to the Rev Mr Smith, Dr McMillan, Dr Justus and Dr Byers, nurses and staff of Winchester Memorial Hospital, Mrs MacIntyre, R.N., Mrs MacElheran, R.N., and Mrs Beardsall, R.N. All this kindness will not soon be forgotten.

SLOW RETURNS

Villagers in the Sepik district of New Guinea have been trying to make money grow by storing it in boxes in special houses known as "bang bangs," says native affairs director A. Roberts.

Several small villages had been practising this crude banking system, he said, and three of them also have been imitating Western customs by appointing local kings and police.

Roberts added: "Patrols have been sent to the villages and every effort made to convince them that economic progress could only come through productive work."

AN EXAMPLE

Paris Flowe, 12, riding the bicycle, was slightly injured in the collision with the vehicle, which broadcasts safety warnings and advice.

SMART SHEEP

A sheep trapped on the cliffs at Coverak, Eng., dived 60 feet into the sea and started swimming to France.

A fisherman caught it half a mile away and returned it to the fold.

COLOURED SCARVES

If you're putting off washing your scarves because you fear the pattern will run, try these tips which should help bring them successfully through a sudsing.

Speed and gentleness are your best allies. Even scarves with non-fast colours usually weather washing safely when you remember these two pointers.

Soil will, as a rule, be quickly released if you swish your neckwear several times trough warm soapsuds. If your scarf is badly soiled, it's not a good idea to subject it to a rough knuckle-scrubbing or a washboard. Instead, try dunking it a second time in clean, fresh suds. Rinse in clear, tepid water.

To dry, roll your scarf in a clean turkish towel. This will remove moisture and at the same time prevent contact stains such as sometimes occur when a scarf is doubled casually over a line.

There's no danger, either, of drips of one colour running into other parts of the design, as often happens when scarves are hung by one end.

In fact, quick drying is your best protection against running —which occurs as a rule only when there is excess, uncontrolled moisture.

After towel-rolling, your scarf should be ready to iron. If it's still a bit too damp, shake it for a minute or two in a warm, airy place. Press it on the wrong side with a not-too-hot iron.

At least 35 species or subspecies of poisonous snakes are known in the United States.

MODERN CHURCH

It will include a swimming pool, tennis court, snack bar, an unloading ramp for motorists, and the largest outdoor bulletin board of any church in the city.

"Too many people think the church is too pious for them and that ministers have lace on their pants," explained the Methodist minister. "That's the kind of thinking I want to break through."

Churchgoers travelling by car will be able to unload on the second-floor level just outside the chapel. The parking lot becomes a playground with a touch of a button.

Concrete slips open to reveal a 40'x60' swimming pool. Swings and a slide come out of their underground hiding places along with tennis net posts and basketball goal posts.

The snack bar will be attached to the social hall.

The bulletin board will be 16' long, 8' high and 4' deep. It will include a miniature of the Holy Land, with a mirror on the back of the board reflecting the scene for passing motorists.

USEFUL INFORMATION ABOUT EGGS

SEVERAL WEEKS AGO Lillian Allison in "Frendlee Farm Chats" wrote about trouble she often had when preparing eggs for salad use. She complained of a "deep blue between the yolk and the white."

This "deep blue" or greenish colour is due to the formation of ferrous sulphide at the surface of the yolk when the egg is cooked in hot water for 15 minutes or longer. If the egg is cooled quickly in running water the green colour will not be produced as it would be if the egg were allowed to cool slowly. The green colour is more apt to form when eggs are cooked at high temperatures so, for perfect hard cooked eggs for salads, cook them as follows:

Hard Cooked Eggs

Place eggs in a saucepan of cold water and heat slowly until the boiling point is reached. Reduce the heat so that the water will not boil again and let stand for 20 minutes. Cool quickly to prevent formation of greenish colour between yolk and white.

Beating Eggs

To get the best results in beating egg whites remember the following points.

1. Eggs that are taken from the refrigerator and beaten while still cold do not whip as readily or quickly as those at room temperature.
2. Add a pinch of salt to the egg white before beating.
3. Have bowl and beater free from fat.
4. Never allow any of the egg yolk to become mixed with the white for best results.

Useful Facts in Making Custards

As eggs form an important part of any type of custard I thought it might be a good time to point out some of the important points in producing a perfect one.

1. Custards usually whey or separate or curdle because they are cooked at too high a temperature or for too long a time. Milk that is a little sour may also cause a custard to curdle.
2. To prevent wheying, curdling or separating of custards cook over hot water in a double boiler or surrounded by hot water as for baked custard.
3. Do not over cook.
4. A boiled custard is done when it coats a silver spoon.
5. A baked custard is done when a knife inserted into the centre comes out clean.
6. If a boiled custard curdles remove it from the heat and cool quickly by placing pan in a dish of ice water and beat with a rotary beater.

BY TELEPHONE

A Toronto ornithologist seeking latest information on bird migration called a number provided by the Ontario Federation of Naturalists in Toronto some time ago and touched off an incident which stumped the whole Bell Telephone Company organization.

The number was supposed to give the caller a recorded message on the progress of bird migration in the Toronto area.

Zygmunt Kaspa claimed he spoke with a New York Times editor when he rang the bird-watching number. He called back to find himself speaking to a person in Formosa—with someone translating for him.

He called back a third time and got a man in Moscow who was incredulous to find himself talking to Toronto when he wanted New York.

Mrs Robert Carson said she heard the first call and her husband heard the other two.

A Bell spokesman said it was possible the calls were routed through Toronto and were picked up, or perhaps the local equipment picked up trans-Pacific radio waves.

"We've had unscheduled tie-ups before but never anything on this scale," he said. "It could happen—but we don't know how."
