Dundas County Teachers' Institute

PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS' DEGREE PROPOSED AT ANNUAL MEETING LAST WEEK.

The annual convention of the Dundas County Teachers' Institute was held in the auditorium of the Morrisburg Collegiate Institute, Morrisburg, on Thursday of last week. Nearly 100 teachers registered.

The first number on the program was the President's Address—"History"—the value of history in adding to our knowledge and to our ability to deal with present day emergencies.

The first paper on the program was "The Value of Manual Training in Rural Schools," by Mr. Stevens Stuart. Mr. Stuart explained how, with the assistance of government grants, he had installed in his school at slight expense, a work bench and tools for teaching manual training. All pupils, boys and girls, greatly appreciated the privilege of making things, and did better work in other school subjects to obtain this reward. Backward pupils learned self-confidence and their other work improved as a result. A number of samples of pupils' work were on display at the convention.

"Automatic Membership in Teachers' Federations" a discussion led by Mr. G. A. Foulds. It was proposed to petition the Government of Ontario to pass legislation making it necessary for every employed teacher to be a member of his or her respective federation. Mr. Foulds introduced Miss Elizabeth Schoular of Almonte. Miss Schoular outlined the work already done and advanced several arguments in favour of 100 per cent. membership. A spirited discussion was followed by a vote, which showed a large majority in favor of the plan.

"A Lesson in Reading,"—G. A. Foulds gave a demonstration of a reading lesson with a class of seven entrance pupils: Mary Coligan, Barbara Finnie, Betty Gamble, Daphne Garland, Ray Beckstead, Bruce Aikman and Abram Kerr. Favourable comments were heard regarding the behaviour and ability of these pupils.

"Diagnosis of Errors in Written Composition"—Mr. W. J. Stewart, B.A., B. Paed., Public School Inspector, pointed out the most common errors in English composition and punctuation Means of eradicating these were suggested and a short discussion followed.

"Degree of Bachelor of Education for Public School Teachers"—Miss Marion Casselman. Miss Casselman pointed out how the welfare of the teaching profession could be advanced if public school teachers were allowed to qualify for a degree peculiar to their own branch of education. By a course of study designed to better the academic standing and some allowance for successful experience, the elementary school teacher could prepare for a degree which would give him a greater pride in his profession and a higher place in the minds of the general public. A resolution embodying the principles was passed and is to be forwarded to the Department of Education in Toronto.

Friday morning, October 9th, the teachers took a trip to Potsdam Normal School at Potsdam, N. Y., where they visited the Rural Demonstration School which is conducted by the parent institution, one-half mile distant. There was no afternoon session Friday.

Officers for next year were elected as follows: W. J. Stewart, honorary president; Miss Luva Allison, president; R. C. Dillabough, vice president; executive committee, Robert Robinson, Marion Casselman, Mary Grant.

Stolen Car From Inkerman Recovered

A brown Essex coach, bearing license plates MB-679, the property of Mr. Lorne Guy, of Inkerman, was stolen from his garage on Saturday evening last.

Mr. Guy had spent the evening in Winchester, returning home with his family about 10 p.m. On rising Sunday morning, it was discovered that the car had been stolen. Neighbours stated that they had heard a car leaving the Guy home about 11 o'clock but had attached no particular significance to the incident.

Provincial Constable Eugene Rose of Morrisburg was notified as well as Constable Herbert Helmer, of Winchester. No definite information was received, however, until Monday evening when the Chief of Police at Brockville phoned to get further particulars, saying that a car had been abandoned near Malloytown. It proved to be the Guy automobile, which was returned to its rightful owner.

An abandoned automobile, believed to have been stolen, was found on a side road west of Cass Bridge on Sunday morning last. Police believe that the vehicle had been left following a breakdown of the mechanism, and associated the thief or thieves with the theft of Mr. Lorne Guy's car the same evening. The abandoned car was towed to Morrisburg by members of the Provincial police squad.

ACCIDENTAL BUT AVOIDABLE

Under Dr. Peter McLaughlin, of Winchester, chief coroner, an inquest into the death of Hugh McHaffie, Morrisburg, farmer, killed near Williamsburg three weeks ago by a falling tree, was held on Thursday last at Williamsburg. The jury, believing the tree could have been cut before the excavation work that undermined it started, returned a verdict of accidental death that might have been avoided. John G. Harkness, Crown Attorney, of Cornwall, examined the witnesses.

Mr. Albert Coons Passed Away Sunday

INJURIES RECEIVED WHEN STRUCK BY A CAR PROVED FATAL FUNERAL HELD TUESDAY.

The funeral of the late Albert Coons of Winchester Springs, who died in the Ottawa Civic Hospital on Sunday evening last, from injuries received when he was struck by a motor car on Highway 31 near his home, on Wednesday of last week, was held on Tuesday from his late residence to the Winchester Springs United church. Rev. R. S. Smith, pastor of the church, conducted the impressive service which was largely attended by relatives and friends of the deceased.

The choir was present under the leadership of Mrs. Clarence Thompson and led in the singing, while Rev. and Mrs. S. Robinson sang a beautiful duet.

The service, which was under the direction of the Winchester Springs L. O. L., was attended by Orangemen from numerous centres including Winchester, Toyes Hill, Chesterville and Winchester Springs. The officers of the Lodge in charge were Robert Holmes, D. of C., and Ernest Morrow, W. M., L. O. L. No. 580, Winchester Springs.

Interment was made in Maple Ridge cemetery, with the following brethren serving as pallbearers: Bros. Howard Nesbitt, Frank Nesbitt, Clarence Thompson, Henry McDonald, Robert Ball and Fraser Bolton.

Mr. Coons was born at Winchester Springs, 77 years ago, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Solemon Coons, and had lived practically all his life at Winchester Springs. About fifty years ago he was married to Alice Hanes, who predeceased him in 1924.

For many years Mr. Coons had conducted a barber shop at Winchester Springs and had gained a host of friends who will learn with regret of his passing. During later years he had acted as agent and district distributor for farm machinery. He attended the United church. Keenly interested in fraternal orders, the deceased was a Past Master of L. O. L. No. 580, Winchester Springs.

Surviving are three sons, Hubert Coons of Toronto, Eldred Coons of Fulton, N. Y., and Floyd Coons, in Maine; two brothers, Salem Coons of Hamilton, and Melvin of Massena, N. Y.; three sisters, Mrs. Gordon Merkley, Mrs. Joseph Liberty of Ottawa, and Mrs. S. Hutt of Berwick.

A preliminary hearing was conducted in Ottawa on Monday last by Dr. W. T. Sherriff, chief coroner of Carleton county, at which time it was stated that the inquest would be held at Winchester under the direction of Dr. P. McLaughlin, chief coroner of Dundas County.

The Press is informed that the inquest will be held here on Friday, October 23rd, with Dr. P. McLaughlin in charge of proceedings.

Relief Supplies To Be Sent Out West

An effort will be made to forward to the stricken areas of Western Canada a full car of food-stuffs from Chesterville, South Mountain and Winchester districts. The car is expected to reach here sometime next week.

Anyone wishing to contribute canned fruits, vegetables, etc., may leave the same at the Fennell Feed Company, and through the courtesy of that firm, the same will be looked after until the car can be loaded.

The local Ministers are in charge of the work of filling the car, assisted by the Women's Institute. Any contributions of foodstuffs or clothing will be welcomed.

OXFORD GROUP NEWS

During the ten-day sessions of the General Council of the United Church of Canada, various luncheons and two mass meetings in the Dominion United Church took place, at which Commissioners to Council, executive officers of the church from headquarters in Tor- witnessed to a revitalizing of their onto, returned missionaries and prominent elders from Montreal and Ottawa, Christian experience and shared with their fellow churchmen and the public their response to the universal challenge of the message of the Oxford Group.

At luncheon on Thursday before an audience that taxed the capacity of the hall, Rev. J. W. H. Milne, D.D., Past Principal of the Presbyterian Ladies' College, witnessed to his changed life at the age of 72, and to a newly-discovered usefulness in the lives of his fellowmen during the past four years.

At the second luncheon on Friday, attended by ministers, laymen and commissioners, a team led by Rev. Dr. A. E. Armstrong, Secy. of Foreign Missions, Toronto, was composed of witnessing clergy and laymen.

Saturday evening there was a representative gathering in the auditorium of Dominion Church under the leadership of Rev. Geo. Little, D.D., Editor of United church publications. The Very Rev. Geo. O. MacKay, of Manitoba College, Winnipeg, gave instances of churches, revitalized through the groups formed within them and said he wished the church would do the same thing as the Oxford Group is doing

During the fashion parade, some of Winchester's most charming girls and women will model the latest creations in ladies' wear, under the direction of Mr. Hy. Bessin, local merchant.

The Amateur Contest, being presented in connection with the fashion show, promises to be a real treat. Numerous entries have been made and some good wholesome entertainment is in store for those who attend.

At the conclusion of the program, the audience will be guests of Mrs. R. Bessin during the serving of refreshments. She will be assisted by members of the Women's Institute. ## Sanatorium Tenders To Be Opened Next Week

It is expected that the contract for the quarter-million-dollar sanatorium to be erected a few miles east of Cornwall will be awarded next week. Warden Flynn of Morrisburg, stated that the committee to open the tenders, of which he is a member, would meet in a few days for the purpose of awarding the contract.

Asked if he expected the successful tenderer to proceed with the work of construction this fall, Warden Flynn replied, "Not only do we expect immediate commencement as soon as the contract has been signed, but we will insist that the excavation, walls and roof be all completed this fall so that the interior work may progress during the winter months. No delay can be brooked, because there is increasing need for this sanatorium, a need that is becoming very obvious in these United Counties."

The controversy over the selection of a site has subsided somewhat but it is still a lively issue that offers much contention, particularly in Dundas.

This new hospital for tubercular patients from Eastern Ontario will probably cost $250,000; a grant of $100,000 has been made by the provincial government, the United Counties are issuing debentures for another $100,000 and the balance must be financed by the committee in charge. Warden Flynn doesn't doesn't anticipate any difficulty in procuring the required amount.

WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. A. Sweet celebrated their Fifty-Fifth Wedding Anniversary on Sunday at the home of their daughter, Mrs. B. L. Carr and Mr. Carr, 'Ship's Mate," Morrisburg.

They were the recipients of a number of gifts, one of them being a basket of beautiful red roses from Miss Tena Wilson, R.N., of Cornwall General Hospital. Mr. Frank Henderson, of Vancouver, and Mrs. R. L. Suffel were among the callers from here in the afternoon, and they remained for buffet supper.

The table was very attractive with its pretty lace cloth, candles and roses for this happy occasion.

The Press joins with their host of friends in extending congratulations and best wishes with the hope that this estimable couple may be spared to celebrate their Diamond Wedding Day.

Mr. Cecil Strader Severely Injured

Cecil Strader, of Winchester Township, who resides two miles south of this place, was severely injured on Thursday afternoon last while assisting in the work of silo-filling on the farm of Calvin Strader.

The young man had been working at the cutter, and turned to walk towards the engine, when the heavy belt flew off. It struck him on the right leg with terrific force, cutting through his clothing and flesh, and severing the bone.

Medical attention was hastily summoned and the young man removed to the Ottawa Civic Hospital. It was first thought the injuries were of such a nature that amputation of the limb would be necessary. This was avoided, however, and latest reports are to the effect that Mr. Strader will be confined for some time to come in a plaster cast, but that he is making satisfactory progress towards recovery.

HAROLD KEYES WINS CONTEST

Mr. Harold Keyes, popular local air pilot, was successful in winning a novel balloon bursting contest in which 13 pilots participated recently at Uplands Field, Ottawa.

Inflated balloons, filled with hydrogen, were released from the ground and it was the business of the pilot to manoeuvre his plane in such a way as to burst the balloons with the propeller of his machine. Harold succeeded in catching up to three of the elusive, bobbing targets, thus winning the handsome shield presented by Captain A. C. Brown for annual competition.

Farmer: "I wish I had the money the folks paid for all the cars that have passed here today."

Another farmer: "I wish I had all the money they owe on them!"

Mountain Couple Honored By Friends

MR. AND MRS. J. FRANCIS OBSERVE 40th WEDDING ANNIVERSARY. PRESENTATION MADE.

An interesting event took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Francis near Inkerman, on Friday evening last, when nearly 100 friends and neighbours gathered to honour the happy couple on the occasion of their fortieth wedding anniversary.

A most enjoyable evening was spent, during which an address was read by Mrs. William Fawcett and the presentation of a beautiful floor lamp made by Mr. Patrick Gannon on behalf of the guests present. Mr. Francis replied fittingly, after which lunch was served by the ladies.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis were married at Kemptville on October 9th, 1896, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Mr. McDarmid, of the Presbyterian church. The bride, who was born in Winchester, was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Holmes, while Mr. Francis was born at Inkerman, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Francis.

Since their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Francis have continuously resided in Mountain township, where they enjoy the esteem of a wide circle of friends.

Members of their immediate family are:

Mr. Earl D. Francis, Mount Kisco, N. Y.; Mrs. Floyd Crowder, Nation Valley; Mr. Hilliard Francis, Ottawa; Lloyd, Clifford, Avery, Harold and Lyal, at home; Mrs. William Hutt, Winchester, and Miss Dorothy Francis at home.

The address was as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. John Francis:

Some one has said that the happiest moment in a man's life is when he hears a sweet voice answer "yes" to the question which to him is of the greatest importance. Equally as happy is the hour in which they both answer "I do" to the question which blends their lives into one.

Forty years have passed since the day on which you faced life, not as separate individuals, but bound together by a love "which says not mine or thine, but ours, for ours is thine and mine."

We do not forget that even though you were surrounded by the many duties of home life, you could always find time to do your share to make the world happier and better for those you came in contact with.

We feel that on this special occasion, the Fortieth Anniversary of your marriage, we want to give expression, in a special manner, to our love and esteem for you as friends and neighbours.

As the years have passed our regard for you has grown, and we hope that during the coming years it may continue to grow "until the day is done and the shadows flee away."

We therefore come to lay our tribute of love before you, trusting that we may long remember this happy occasion 'till we meet again.

THE MODEST PREMIER ABERHART

The average citizen will be pleasantly surprised and, no doubt, pleased to learn that Premier Aberhart of Albeta "has no particular desire" to be the Prime Minister of Canada. Such a very modest statement on the part of the Social Credit disciple will be well received by the citizens generally, who may have been in doubt on this point prior to his statement.

An exchange sums the situation up in a recent editorial as follows:

"Things are never so bad but that they might be worse. We are to have ten years at least free from the uncertainty, the confusion, the loss of confidence, the perils of a clouded future, which are all Alberta so far has collected from its political prodigy.

"If we can imagine the situation in Alberta reproduced on a national scale—public and private credit ruined, contracts violated by legislation, the people waiting impatiently for the miracle of something for nothing, a flight of capital over the border, experiments with currency, and so on—we can form some idea of what an Aberhart regime on Parliament Hill would mean to us all."

We greatly fear that Premier Aberhart will have to demonstrate the advantages of Social Credit to a much greater degree than he has up to the present time, before the principles involved will be accepted by sober thinking Canadian citizens.

MR. HEPBURN'S TAXES

"I'll bet you," says Mr. Rowe, "that Mr. Hepburn will reduce the gasoline tax before the next election. He is spending this year only $4,000,000 on highways and by his own admission he takes $25,000,000 from motorists every year. Where is the square deal he promised the man who drives a car?"

We hope Mr. Rowe is right in this prediction. Six cents a gallon is too much taxation by far, especially when all the money being collected from motorists is not being spent on the building and maintenance of roads. If all the cash lifted from the motoring public in the last few years had been spent properly, the chances are that Ontario would have the finest highway system in the world. Narrow, dangerous pavements would have been eliminated and replaced by two-way boulevards; deadly level crossings abolished and so on.

Another thing Mr. Hepburn should do before the next election is to eliminate or at least materially reduce the provincial income tax he loaded upon the people of Ontario this year. This levy, never before imposed in our province, is a serious imposition and will unquestionably cost Mr. Hepburn a good deal of support during the 1938 election unless he decides to do something about it.—Windsor Star.

MUNICIPAL ELECTIONS

In another month the municipal election pot will begin to boil, and the question arises, "Are we to have the election before or after Christmas."

The general opinion seems to be that it is advantageous to have the election over before the festive season begins. In this way, the Christmas and New Year's Festivals are in no manner disrupted by local politics and the annual scrimmage.

The local Council have reverted to the old system of holding the municipal contest immediately after New Year's, which would appear to be a retrograde step. A survey of the district reveals that the majority of progressive towns get their elections over in the early part of December, which allows everyone concerned the opportunity to enjoy the holiday season to the full.

It is to be hoped that the local Council will decide this year to hold the municipal election before Christmas. We feel sure that the citizens would welcome such a move.

NO DRINKS ON ELECTION DAYS

Last week Premier Hepburn stated that there would be "no taverns open on any election day, municipal or otherwise." The Premier emphasized this point to the Ontario Hotelmen's Association and therein showed very sound judgment.

Since the introduction of the taverns or so-called beverage rooms, there has been almost a continual clamouring for a wider range of privileges.

Election days are certainly no days for taverns to be open and the definite statement issued by the Ontario Premier will meet with the hearty approval of every thinking citizen.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Here is what Peter Cooper, who died with many millions, said of a newspaper: "In all the towns where a newspaper is published every man should advertise in it, if nothing more than a card stating his name and business he is in. It does not only pay the advertiser, but it lets people at a distance know the town where you reside is a prosperous community of business men. As the seed is sown so the seed recompenses. Never pull down your sign when you expect to do business."—Acton Free Press.

DAM ON NATION RIVER TO BE BUILT SHORTLY

Work on the building of a dam in the Nation river, 150 yards below the Main street bridge, at Chesterville, by the Nestle's Milk Products Company and the installation of a new trunk sewer by the Chesterville council, will start almost immediately. Levels were taken of the site last week by Jas. Slosser, engineer for the Nestle plant.

The river where the level will be raised wtll add considerably to the appearance of the village during the summer months, as well as provide an abundant supply of water for the Nestle's Plant

The property known as the Ferguson farm near Newbliss, Leeds county, was put on the auction block yesterday. Settled many years ago by members of the Ferguson family on their arrival from Ireland, it was the ancestral home of the Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, who has taken a close interest in it for many years.

FRANCIS—SHAVER

The marriage was solemnized on Tuesday of last week at the United church parsonage, Prescott, of Ruth Ellen Shaver, of Prescott, and Gordon Roy Francis, of South Mountain. Rev. D. M. Coburn, B.D., officiated. The bride was attended by her sister, Ida May Shaver. while John Eldon Francis, of Prescott, acted as best man. The bride wore an attractive navy blue tunic suit trimmed with grey caracul, with grey accessories and carried a bouquet of pink carnations.

Following the ceremony the happy couple, with a few intimate friends. were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Francis, of Prescott.

Following a short trip, Mr .and Mrs. Francis will reside on the bridegroom's farm at South Mountain.

On the occasion of her approaching marriage to Dr. C. A. Louden, Miss Lorena Wiggins was entertained at a pantry-shelf shower held on Thursday afternon at the home of Mrs. R. Douglas Smith. Thursday evening, Miss Rose Allison, R. N., was hostess at a cup-and-saucer shower, and on Wednesday afternoon Mrs. Herbert Graham entertained at afternoon tea in honor of the bride-to-be.—Morrisburg Leader.

Many an honorable career has resulted from a kind word spoken in season or the warm grasp of a friendly hand.

CLOVERDALE

Mr. Cyrille Lamoureux was removed from his home here last Friday to Civic Hospital, Ottawa, where he is seriously ill.

Master Russell Baker of Mountain, is spending a few days with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Stobo.

THE UNITED CHURCH

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered last Sunday morning by the pastor to a large number of members and visitors.

In a brief talk to the children, Rev. W. S. Atchison explained clearly the meaning of the two sacraments of our church, that of baptism and of the Lord's Supper. The latter is the Christian's oath of allegiance to Jesus Christ. It reminds us that His body was broken and His blood shed for us upon the Cross.

From John 15:14 an impressive sermon was preached on taking Jesus as our Friend and having the privilege of close communion with Him. Complete surrender of our lives to Christ is the gateway to His inner circle, where we meet the angels of prayer, of service, of suffering, of sacrament and of death. In closing the invitation was given to this inner circle, where our souls may be enriched.

A very fine Thanksgiving message was given at the Sunday evening service by Rev. W. S. Atchison, who took Phil. 4:6 and 7 for a text. This he said had been a very helpful passage of Scripture to him. It is one of the choice passages declaring the inner life of the great apostle. It contains a warning against the useless habit of worry. We must not expect ideal conditions in this life. We must believe here is a remedy and learn to look at the bright side of everything. The supreme remedy is prayer with thanksgiving. God will either lift the burden or give grace to bear it and the result is peace.

Next Sunday evening the Mission Circle will hold their Autumn Thank-Offering.

Davidson will be in charge and the Presbyterial President Mrs R. S. Peterson. will also be present and address the meeting.

THE FOUR CHUMS

National Temperance Study Course for Sunday Schools. October 18th, 1936

It was Sunday night and the younger members of the Wilson family were thinking about heroes and heroines as they played a Bible game. The older members of the family, all but Mother, had gone to church.

"Ethel, who was it who led the children of Israel into the promised land?" asked Peter, reading from a small card.

"Moses," said Ethel promptly, and Peter shouted, "Wrong. it was Joshua."

Then Peter said to Margaret, "What was the name of the prince to whom King David was kind?"

"Me-phib-o-sheth," said Margaret.

"Right, now it is your turn," said Peter.

"I'm going to ask Peter a hard one," Margaret said. "What were the names of the four best chums in the Old Testament?"

Peter thought a few minutes. He made several guesses, then he gave up. He did not know, and neither did Ethel nor Margaret. They had to appeal to their mother to help them.

Their mother said, "Why, the story is in the Book of Daniel, I think, Peter, that you had better look it up in your book of heroes," and so the game was stopped, while Peter found and read the story.

It was far away, and hundreds of years ago, that four chums found themselves in the palace of a king.

Three of the chums had very odd names. They were called Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah. The other chum was called Daniel.

The king of the country had made war on a neighboring country, and his soldiers had been told to capture the strongest and brightest lads. The king said, "Bring them to the palace. I want them to live here three years to receive an education, and at the end of the time, I shall choose which of them will be given high places in my kingdom.

So Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael and Azariah, the four chums, were found among others at the palace.

It was a beautiful place, and although the boys were lonely sometimes for their family friends, they liked it very much.

The king was thoughtful. He told his servants to give the captives plenty of food and drink to nourish their bodies. On the first day when the boys came to the table in the great dining-hall, they found it heaped high with rich foods and meats, and wines.

Daniel looked at the table. Then he became strangely quiet. He was thinking. In a few moments he turned and said to his chums, "We cannot eat this food, or drink this wine. It will hurt our strong bodies."

A prince was standing near the table, and he heard Daniel speaking. He quickly said, "Oh, but you must eat this food, and drink this wine, or else you will look ill beside all the others, and the king will punish me."

But Daniel was brave. He said, again, "We cannot eat this food, or drink this wine, for it will harm our strong bodies. O prince, for ten days let us eat only vegetable food and bread. and at the end of this time if we look ill or starved then we shall obey your wishes."

The prince looked at this lad called Daniel, and because he liked him, said, "Very well, you may try it fo ten days."

The time passed quickly at the palace for the chums were learning new lessons and discovering new things and places. The prince watched them very closely. The tenth day came, and anxiously Daniel and Hananiah and Mishael and Azariah waited for him to speak. They wondered if he would think they looked ill when he compared them with the others.

At last the decision was made. The prince told the boys they looked fairer and healthier than all the others, and he would take away the rich foods and wines for all time.

The boys continued to grow stronger and wiser, and when the three years were up, lo, the king said in the presence of a great company, "Give those four lads a high place in my kingdom. I find them to be wiser and stronger than even the magicians or the astrologers."

There was a stillness in the room as Peter finished reading the story.

"I think Daniel was brave to speak to the prince," Peter said at last.

"Aren't you glad the chums did not eat the rich food. or drink the wine?" Margaret added.

"Well, I guess it pays to keep the rules," said Ethel.

They all looked at Ethel and said almost all together, "What rules?"

"Our G. A. C. rules," Ethel answered promptly.

The letters G. A. C. stood for a mysterious club to which Ethel belonged, and Peter especially was always eager for news of it. He said with a teasing voice, "So the athletic club has rules, eh?"

"Of course it has, and they are stiff ones too," answered Ethel. "When the members join the club they promise to keep them."

"What are they?" asked their mother.

"Oh, about eating, and drinking and sleeping. and exercising," replied Ethel.

"And you can't smoke, and you promise to keep the Canadian Junior Citizen's Temperance Code—eh?" again teased Peter.

"Yes, we do," answered Ethel proudly, "and all our members are keeping it."

"Well done," said their mother. "It always pays to keep good rules."

Then the family went on with their interesting game but Beter, Margaret and Ethel never forgot about the four best chums in the Old testament.

Questions

1. What was the speech Daniel made before the prince and why was it brave? (Value 10.)

2. In these days what two good rules should boys and girls keep? Why do you think such boys and girls are brave? (Value 10.)

Tenth Instalment

"Plenty," answered Johnny succinctly. "Had a run in with Montana Wade an' a jasper called Spike, back at Jake Butterfield's. They come bustin' in loud-mouthed an' bossy like an' told Jake that Spelle wanted all the .30-30 ca'tridges he had in the joint. Addin' that crack to the one Pink heard them dry-gulchers made last night about rushin' the ranch here an' cleanin' up the whole shebang, I figgered mebbe it'd be a purty good idee to corral that ammunition ourselves. So I sorta argued 'em outa it an' brought it along."

"Oh—yuh did, huh?" rumbled Delevan peering intently at Johnny. "Yuh musta done some damn fast talkin'."

"Tollable—tollable," nodded Johnny. "I don't allus stutter when I got somethin' real important to say."

"Hr-rumph!" Delevan cleared his throat again. "Yuh never out-argued Montana Wade without killin' him. I know that jasper too well."

"Did I say I didn't kill him?" asked Johnny innocently.

At this statement a squeak of joy broke from Pink Crosby and he leaped upon Johnny to belabor him joyfully on the back.

"Oh dang yore miserable hide," chortled Pink. "Johnny, if yuh clicked off that danged snake-in-the-grass I love yuh like a brother."

"Couldn't help it," remarked Johnny soberly. "He went fer his hawg-laig first. An' then this Spike hombre was backin' his play. He got out o' it lucky. I jest smashed his shoulder. I reckon that evens the count fer you an' Pod, Pink."

"I'll tell a man it does," declared Pink fervently. "Wait 'till ole Pod hears o' this. He'll get well over night."

"Hope so. By the way—mebbe we better bring Pod up to the house here. I got a hunch we're due fer a visit from Spelle an' his crowd. An' say, Jim, accordin' to Jake Butterfield ole Spelle offered him five hundred dollars if he'd refuse to sell yuh any more supplies."

"Damn him!" rasped Delevan. "An' what did Jake tell him?"

"Told him to go jump in the lake."

"Good fer Jake. I won't fergit that. Dunno but what yuh're right about bringin' Pod up to the house. Can he be moved, Doc?"

"Aye," nodded McMurdo. "If it is necessary."

"Looks like it's damn necessary. Johnny, yuh an' Pink go down with Doc an' fix up a stretcher outa blankets. I'll have Chang git a bed in shape. An' bring all the shootin' irons around the bunkhouse with yuh. If Spelle wants a argument he's shore due to git it."

Twenty minutes later Pod Fortune, still unconscious, was safely reposing in the ranchhouse. Johnny had prevailed on Jim Delevan to abandon his beloved porch corner and have his chair wheeled inside. Now that grim old warrior was sitting at the edge of a front window, a loaded Winchester across his knees and an open box of ammunition at his elbow. Pink Crosby, similarly armed, patrolled the rear windows, which looked out on the slope of the plateau, while Doc McMurdo, who had gruffly announced his intention of seeing it through with his friends, sat in the same room with Delevan, glaring dourly at the gulf of the desert. For himself Johnny was in the kitchen devouring the meal Ronny had prepared for him.

He was doing his best to keep Ronny from suspecting the true state of affairs, but she, with her cleverness and intuition, would not be thwarted.

"Johnny," she said, standing at his elbow. "Something terrible is about to happen. Tell me now, what is it?"

Johnny tried unsuccessfully to avoid both her searching eyes and equally searching words. He had to capitulate in the end.

"Well Ronny," he mumbled finally. "It's like this. Spelle's crazy-mad—must be. We've licked him at every turn o' the trail. He's gettin' desperate. On the face o' things it looks like he's goin' to bust wide open by tryin' to clean up on all of us. I figger he's goin' to attack this ranch. So does yore dad. We're jest gettin' ready fer him, that's all."

"Bu-but the law," argued Ronny. "What will the law say?"

"I dunno. Me—I ain't figgerin' on the law to help us out o' the mud. An' Spelle don't give a cuss fer the law. It's pretty generally understood right now that he was in back o' that bank hold-up. To everybody what ain't prejudiced it shore looks that way. An' the law ain't said boo to him about it."

"But—but, somebody will be killed," wailed Ronny.

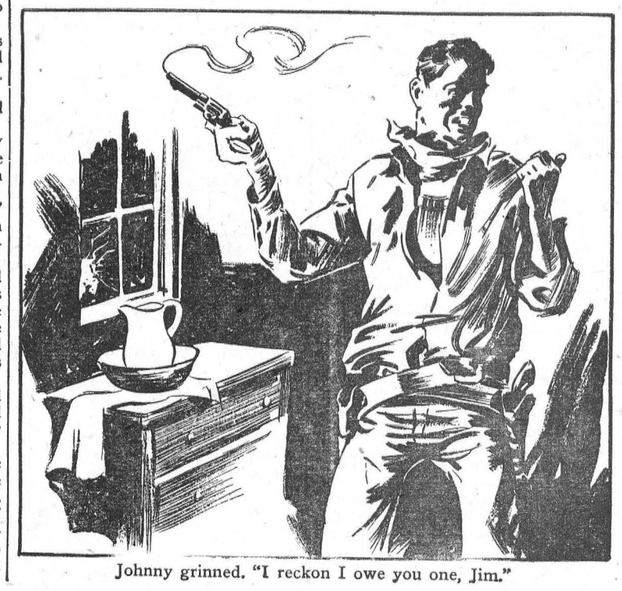
"I reckon," said Johnny slowly. "Le's hope it won't be anybody in this house. An' when it does start—an' if it does—I want you to get out o' the way o' lead. They's a cellar to the house ain't they?"

Ronny stiffened and her little chin went out. "Johnny Clehoe, if you think I'm going to skulk in the cellar while the rest of you fight, you're mistaken. I can't shoot very well but I know how to load the extra guns. Indeed I won't hide out."

"Aw golly," argued Johnny desperately. "Please Ronny—please. If yuh don't I amble right out in the open with the first shot."

"If you do—I amble with you," said Ronny defiantly. "So there."

In the end she had her way, and because of his worry for her Johnny prowled morosely about the house for the rest of an afternoon that seemed interminable. Just as the last rays of the sun were filtering through the window Doc McMurdo stood up with a snort.



Johnny grinned. "I reckon I owe you one, Jim."

"I na believe that mon Spelle will come," he rumbled. "I'm off for yon town."

By this time even Johnny began to doubt the soundness of his theory and he offered no argument to the contrary with the old Scotchman.

"Sorry to have kept yuh this long, Doc, he drawled. "Come on, I'll go down an' throw yore hull on yore bronc for yuh."

The doughty Doctor lingered for a moment to give Ronny some last instructions about the care of Pod Fortune so Johnny strolled corralwards by himself. He led out the doctor's horse and tossed the saddle blanket in place. He smoothed it deftly with one hand and reached for the saddle with the other. At that moment a single rifle shot crashed out, coming from the fringe of underbrush at the edge of the clearing to the north. Came the spat of speeding lead meeting flesh and the luckless bronco went down in a heap at Johnny's feet. The slight leaning twist Johnny had given as he reached for saddle had saved his life, and the bullet, which otherwise would have torn through the center of his chest, struck the horse at the angle of one jaw and ranged upward through the animal's brain.

Like a flash Johnny whirled and went racing for the ranchhouse. It was far closer to the bunkhouse but even if he did reach it in safety he would swiftly be cut off from the rest of the ranch defenders to be eventually wiped out ignominously. All this went through his mind as he ran, and though he knew his chances of ever reaching the ranchhouse alive were slim indeed, he did not falter. Instead he drew his gun as he ran and threw shot after shot at the treacherous undergrowth.

The answering fire was murderous. Bullets whispered at his ears and plucked at his clothes. His hat was whisked from his head. Something seared across his left thigh. Once he lurched and went headlong, but with Ronny's despairing scream echoing in his ears he was up and on again. The porch was close now, beckoning him on. He tried to fire again but the hammer of his Colt snicked futilly. The gun was empty.

And now a cursing figure leaped clear of the underbrush and sank to one knee, sighting steadily along the barrel of a Winchester at Johnny's bobbing shoulders. Inside the big living room a virulent oath fell from old Jim Delevan's lips and the rifle which had rested across his knees leaped to his shoulder and spat fire. The crouching figure at the edge of the brush stiffened and rolled over, while the bullet that had been meant for Johnny ripped harmlessly into the ranchhouse roof.

Johnny took the porch steps in two long leaps and burst through to the sanctuary of the house. Ronny had her arms about him immediately.

"Johnny—Johnny," she whispered brokenly. "I thought they had killed you."

Johnny patted her head. "Thought so m'self for a minute," he panted. "The dang bush-whackers shot the heel plumb off'n my left boot. Wow! That was shore some hot sprint. Now brace up, honey. We got work to do."

Johnny limped into the big room, punching empty shells from his .45. He caught up a handful of fat, yellow shells from a heap on the table and dropped them through the loading gate, clicking the cylinder around with his thumb.

"If you ain't a fool for luck" rumbled Jim Delevan. "What yuh limpin' about?"

"Lost a heel o' my boot," grinned Johnny. "Got a flat wheel on the left side. I reckon I owe yuh one, Jim."

"Huh. Fergit it. I may be glued to this dang chair, but I ain't fergot how to look down a Winchester. Hell, there goes another pane of glass. An' that stuff costs like blazes in this neck o' the woods."

"Let 'em have their fun. Good thing yuh built this ole house outa logs instead o' sawed lumber. The soft-point slugs they're usin' ain't gettin' through worth a cent. The shootin' will slow up pretty quick I reckon. They can't have any hell of a lot o' shells, seein' as I beat 'em to Jake Butterfield's stock."

True to Johnny's prediction the burst of fire which had followed him to the house and had grown to a veritable fusilade when Delevan had picked off the reckless marksman who had been determined to get Johnny, gradually faded to a few desultory shots. To Jim Delevan's profane disgust there was hardly a sound pane of glass left in the windows. After the first abortive attack on Johnny, Spelle's men had pretty near circled the house.

At intervals bullets whistled through the devastated windows to thud harmlessly on the inner walls. Once the whang of Pink Crosby's rifle sounded, to be followed a moment later by a shrill yell of triumph by the excited Pink.

"Pink musta made a bullseye that clatter," grinned Johnny to Delevan. "Shore, I'm—wow! That was a close one. Holy hen-hawks—what they got out there—a cannon?"

Johnny's exclamation was caused by a deep toned bellowing report from down in back of the bunkhouse and by a big bullet which tore through the log wall, to cut a neat nick out of one wheel of Jim Delevan's chair, from there to pass on and splinter one leg of the table.

"Sharps," growled Delevan. "Ole buffalo gun. That jasper's dangerous. We got to get him, Johnny. But he's usin' black powder. See it hangin' down yonder at the corner o' the bunkhouse."

Johnny nodded and pulled back the hammer on his Winchester. Then he crouched at one corner of a window and watched the bunkhouse with unblinking eyes. A slow minute ticked past before the big gun thundered again. This time the slug tore through not a foot from Delevan's head to carry on and hopelessly wreck a framed Remington picture on the inner wall. And the billow of smoke seemed to spring from the ridge pole of the bunkhouse.

VALUE OF FATTENING POULTRY FOR MARKET

Evidence of the value of properly fattening market poultry was well demonstrated recently by producers in districts of Quebec. In these districts the producers crate or pen fattened their young cockerels before marketing and as a result a good percentage of the birds were made to qualify for the Milkfed class and brought a premium of two to three cents per pound which is offered for Milkfed birds over Selected.

Proper fattening is an important part of any poultry marketing program. There is no kind of poultry to which this applies more forcefully than to young cockerels of broiler weights marketed during the summer months. The market generally becomes somewhat oversupplied with small, unfinished birds during June, July and a part of August, which are difficult to move into consumption and are not suitable for export. Consumption of poultry can be increased on the home market by selling the top grades, and premium prices are offered for such quality. The export market will absorb large quantities of Milkfed chickens weighing from two to four and one-half pounds per bird. By producing to meet the requirements on the home and export markets it should be possible to avoid any glut of dressed poultry.

Sea Level

Practically all geographical heights and depths are measured from sea level. Yet the sea is anything but level.

Due to the earth's rotation on its axis, centrifugal force tends to make the surface of the sea about 13 miles farther from the centre of the Earth than at the poles.

Even aside from this enormous variance in height, there are numerous other agencies which cause the so-called sea level to be far from level. The attraction of great land masses on water cases the sea to be considerably higher near the coasts than in mid-ocean. All land masses affect the sea in this manner but the distortion is proportionately greater as the height of the land near the coastline increases.

Add to this the different heights of sea level due to varying atmospheric pressures, the waves caused by tides and wind, the numerous sea currents and other forces that cause waves which are at least temporary changes of the sea's level and it can be seen that sea level is decidedly not level.

It is believed too by many authorities that the level of sections of the sea where heavy rains are continually falling stand markedly higher than sea areas where there is considerable evaporation.

Topsy-Turvy Plants

Experimenting with the use of synthetic chemical compounds in an effort to induce quick rooting of plants difficult to propogate, it was found by P. W. Zimmerman, Plant Physiologist of the Boyce Institute, that it is possible to produce roots on the upper regions of stems.

In his work along these lines he has also succeeded in growing plants without the use of sunshine or soil.

A SERMON BY FRANKLIN

Benjamin Franklin was neither sentimentalist nor pietist; yet on a notable occasion he uttered words that merit present pondering:

"I have lived, sir, a long time. And the longer I live, the more convincing proofs I see of this truth—that God governs in the affairs of men. And if a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without His notice, is it probable that an empire can rise without His aid? We have been assured, sir, in the sacred writings that, except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it. I firmly believe this; and I also believe that without His concurring aid we shall succeed in this political building no better than the builders of Babel; our projects will be confounded and we ourselves shall become a reproach and a byword down to future ages."

In the Automotive World WEEK by WEEK

RUMOR-MONGERS FAILED

No other industry takes the elaborate precautions that the automobile industry does to bottle up secrets of its new products, says Detroit Auto Reports, and this Fall has been no exception. "The mystery has been extended this year to greater and lesser degrees" continued the statement in a summary of 1937 model plans, "dependent on the importance of the forthcoming program. Each year, however, there have been leaks. Detroit, with the livelihood of its million-and-a-half inhabitants closely linked to the automobile industry, becomes a city of gossips. Companies, realizing that information of new developments can hinder the sale of current models, adopts a number of subterfuges to conceal their plans. Orders for a part never give any more details than is absolutely necessary, leaving each department in the dark on what the other is doing. Design rooms are closely guarded. Test cars travel at night under the disguise of old bodies. In keeping the complete nature of its 1937 program from employees as a safeguard against leaks, one company, in the quality group that is planning a radical departure this year, started three different motors down the 'line.' Only one has the approval of executives, but few understand which of the three. The result is that while many rumors regarding the product have been circulated, a select group alone knows what is in the wind."

AUTUMN DRIVING TIPS

Autumn driving has a special set of rules all its own, which should be followed closely for maximum enjoyment of motoring during the next few weeks. "September and October," a Chevrolet service expert recently said, "differ in three important respects from the months just preceding. They have a much higher average rainfall, making driving conditions more difficult. The streets and highways are frequently littered with wet leaves, calling for extra precautions. And finally, the colorful Autumn scenery lures large numbers of people to the roads. For greatest enjoyment of driving under such conditions, all units of the car should be in the best condition. This is especially true of the braking system and the tires, which determine the driver's ability to come to a safe stop. Operation of windshield wipers should be checked, and headlamps and tail-lamps adjusted and refocused if necessary, for complete safety night and day, in rain, shine, or fog. The prevalence of fog in the Autumn justifies special suggestions for safe-driving, at any time, is 'Keep to speeds at which you can stop your car in the clear space ahead.' The clear space ahead is greatly shortened by fog, of course, and the safe-driving speed is reduced by just that much."

CAR "LIFE" IS NINE YEARS

A motor car's life, measured in miles, is infinitely longer than it used to be. Measured in years, however, the average Canadian car cannot boast of any recent increase in longevity, because cars of today play an infinitely greater part in the lives of the people, and roads and other facilities have been improved enormously to add to the car's annual output. C. E. McTavish, general sales manager of General Motors Products of Canada, Limited, recently calculated that at the end of 1934 the average life of a car in Canada was 9.1 years. At the end of 1930, the average life of a car was 9.4 years, showing that the wearing out rate is not decreasing at all but rather increasing, although it is not as rapid as in the United States, where the life of a car at the end of 1934 was 8.3 years. Mr. McTavish arrived at his average age figure by subtracting the number of cars now licensed from the number so far produced, and thus obtaining the numbers of cars scrapped up to date; finally, by charting cars in use and cars scrapped and measuring horizontally between the curves on the graph. It is interesting to note that 1,076,307 cars, or 48 per cent. of all the cars produced so far in Canada, have been scrapped. The per centage in the U. S. A. is 55 per cent.

RADIOS VS. HEATERS

Kaye Don, famous British sportsman, is Pontiac's distributor in Great Britain, where business this year was far ahead of anything Pontiac ever had before in that territory. On a recent visit to North America, he gave an insight into the accessory business. Automobile radios are popular in England, and Don equips a large percentage of his cars that way. Every car he sells is equipped with a clock and ash receivers. However, contrary to Canadian practice, car-heaters are practically unknown, although the winters are quite severe.

OLD-TIMERS PASS TESTS

A 26-year-old McLaughlin-Buick, resurrected from long storage in a barn by D. E. Hughes, Centre Road, Port Credit, was recently found to be in condition to run with a "little tinkering." The car, with its oil-burning lamps and squeeze-bulb horn, attracted a lot of attention, and it was soon noted that it had run up 180,000 miles before it had been stowed away in the barn after 11 years of operation. Comparing tires of those early days with the tires of today, Mr. Hughes recalled leaving Toronto one day, about 20 years ago, with 75 pounds of air in the tires. When he arrived home, the pressure had risen to 90. In the same class with this Canadian car is a 1908 Buick owned by C. C. Dill, of Denver, oldest car to pass the Colorado State test so far this year. When Dill took his car in, it was discovered the lights didn't work, although everything else was in perfect order. Dill protested he never drove at night, but the officials insisted the car had to have lights. So the lights were fixed up and the test was passed. Dill doesn't know how far the car has travelled because he threw away the speedometer 15 years ago when it wore out at 250,000 miles.

JAPANESE FLEET

That the beauty and economy of Pontiacs are invading foreign fields is evidenced by the sale, by General Motors of Japan, of their largest Pontiac fleet ordered to date—23 Pontiac sixes for taxi cab service at Hiroshima, according to a recent report published in General Motors World.

NEW DEAL SEEN FOR FISHERMEN

Down by the Atlantic, round the fresh water lakes and rivers along the Pacific shores, there's a feeling of decided optimism among those in the Canadian Fishing Industry over the effort of the Department of Fisheries to increase the national consumption of Canadian Fish.

According to one authority, the things for which the industry and the fishermen have advocated for years are coming to pass. For instance, $200,000 has been appropriated by the Government to increase the demand for Canadian fisheries products. There is a $300,000 loan fund voted for the assistance of needy Maritime fishermen in renewing boats and gear. And there is a move afoot for social improvement that will bring more benefits to the men who go down to the sea.

It looks like a new deal all round for the Canadian fisherman and his industry. If the advertising now being launched by the government is successful in its objectives, those in fishing circles claim that the Canadian fishing industry will receive an impetus that will send it forward to a new and prosperous basis. And in this the first to benefit will be the fisherman himself. According to the "Canadian Fisherman," a journal devoted to the industry, the welfare of Canada's fisherman is recognized by all in the industry as of primary importance. With the increased popularity of fish and greater consumption of it by their fellow citizens, the fisherman of Canada are looking forward to an era of better conditions and more prosperity than have been theirs for years.

SO HE BOUGHT A CAR

(St. Mary's Journal Argus)

It may be that the automobile has come to stay. A particularly conservative-minded but wealthy agriculturist astonished all his friends and enemies just recently by buying a fine car. It is the first he has ever owned for he loves horses and has always declared he would never bother with a benzine buggy. He used to hold pretty emphatic views on the subject so we were curious to find out why he had changed his mind.

"Well," he explained, "I went to a funeral a while back. I was the only one who turned out with a horse and rig. I started off for the cemetery with the rest of the procession. But when I got there the man was buried and the others were gone. So I though to myself, if I can't keep up with the dead one I'd better give up or give in. So I gave in. And say," he added gleefully. "I'm getting twenty-two and a half to the gallon."

"THE FRIENDLY FAIR."

Now that the Fall Fairs are nearly over and the leaves are turning, our thoughts turn to the big annual Ottawa Valley Show—"The Ottawa Winter Fair"—to be held in the Coliseum, Exhibition Ground Ottawa, November 10, 11, 12 and 13.

The Fair is the rally-ground for Ottawa Valley farmers. The best of the horses, cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, also seeds, vegetables and fruits will be on display. The Kiwanis Grain Club exhibits as well as a display of drawings of animals by pupils of Kemptville Agricultural School, are features for juniors.

Write today to H. H. McElroy, Journal Bldg., Ottawa, for the prize list.

The regulations of the Department of Agriculture require that pure bred animals must be registered and, if necessay, ownership transferred before the date of closing of entries on October 20.

A HARD LIFE

A preacher has a hard time. If his hair is white he is too old. If he is a young man he hasn't had any experience. If he has ten children, he has too many. If he has none, he should have and it isn't showing a good example. If his wife sings in the choir, she is presuming. If he speaks extemporaneously he isn't deep enough. If he stays home to study, he doesn't mix with the people. If he is seen around on the streets, he ought to be home getting up a good sermon. If he calls at the home of the poor he is playing to the grandstand. If he calls at the home of the rich, he is an aristocrat. Whatever he does, someone could have told him how to do it better.—Strathroy Age-Dispatch.

STEERS BROUGHT EAST

Taking advantage of the Federal policy under which beef cattle may be brought from the western drought areas to eastern farms for feeding and finishing with a 50 per cent. refund of the freight charges, together with the buyer's fare to the west, from 140 to 150 steers have been already placed on farms in Leeds and Grenville counties, with the prospect that several additional carloads will reach here before the onset of winter. The refund is payable after a period of three months and a similar refund is applicable to the easterly shipment of lambs from the stricken areas on the prairies.

PREMIER'S FARM IS NAMED "BANNOCKBURN"

Premier Hepburn's 1000-acre estate in South Yarmouth has been named "Bannockburn" with the approval of Hon. Duncan Marshal, Minister of Agriculture.

It was from Bannockburn, Scotland, scene of the famous battle between the English and Scots when the southerners were routed, that the Premier's grandfather, Mitchell Hepburn the first, came to Canada as a boy. The elder Hepburn established the farm on which the Premier has built his estate.

The name, Bannockburn Farms, is also appropriate as the last syllable is the same as the final one in the Premier's surname.

SHARP DOOR HANDLES TO BE ELIMINATED

The Ontario Department of Highways is considering several ideas for eliminating the danger of "dagger handles" on car doors, which have been held responsible for a series of accidents to bicyclists and pedestrians.

"The Department has the assurance of all manufacturers that the danger will be removed from 1937 models," said J. P. Bickell, registrar of motor vehicles, in Toronto.

A rubber cap to be fitted over the sharp ends of the handles has been approved by H. G. Fester, manager of the Ontario Safety League.

MAKES HIGH RECORD

The three-year-old Holstein, Eco-Sylv Peerless Model, owned by Senator A. C. Hardy, has won the high production record for heifers for 1936, the Holstein-Friesian Association of Canada announces. Her 365-day production totalled 27,902 pounds of milk and 1,033 pounds of butterfat. She is the sixth Holstein under mature age, to produce 1,000 pounds of fat in one year, since adoption of the official record of performance tests by the Dominion government.

NO BAD BOYS

"There are no bad boys; just different varieties of good ones," says Floyd Star, who for twenty years has been caring for boys that everyone thought bad. "The badness," he adds, "is on top. I must admit it forms a pretty thick crust sometimes. But when I dig down to the real boy, I find something clean and sweet and good. Sometimes I fail. But that is because I have not been able to read that real boy."—Gananoque Reporter.

ONTARIO WILL ISSUE CAR PERMITS ON NOVEMBER 1st

As a means of saving Ontario motorists transfer fees and also to stimulate the automobile business during the early winter months, Ontario motor vehicle permits will be available to the public on November 1st.

Motorists purchasing cars during the last two months of the year will not only be saved the transfer of $2, but those purchasing new cars will also save the half-yearly fee formerly collected during these two months.

The plates for Coronation year will have white figures and letters and will display white crowns on a military scarlet background.

REFLECTORS THE LAW

"Cat's eye" reflectors on the rear of all automobiles in New York State became mandatory under a new law effective last Thursday. Owners of most motor vehicles manufactured since January 1, 1935, were not required to buy the red reflectors, however, since most of these cars carry the equipment. It is pointed out that the reflector law applies to all motor vehicles driven within the state, whether their owners live in New York or elsewhere.

FOUND RING IN TOMATO

There was an odd happening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Laughlin, of Fitzroy a few days ago. There were sliced tomatoes served at one meal and in one slice served to Mr. Guy Campbell was a gold ring, firmly imbedded. She who originally cut the tomato felt the knife slide along the hard object and investigation then showed the ring to have become incerated in some manner inside the tomato.—Arnprior Chronicle.

THE UNATTAINED

There was never a song that was sung by thee,
But a sweeter one was meant to be.
There was never a deed that was grandly done,
But a greater was meant by some earnest one.
For the sweetest voice can never impart
The song that trembles within the heart.

And the brain and the hand can never quite do
The thing that the soul has fondly in view.
And hence are the tears and the burdens of pain,
For the shining goals are never to gain
But enough that a God can hear and see
The song and the deed that were meant to be.

—Selected.

FIRST SCHOOL DAYS

Little red schools on a country road,
And those on a city street,
Alike are echoing once again
To the marching of eager feet.
Faces with freckles and faces with smiles
Sometimes a tear in an eye,
Now and again there's a new little girl,
Or a little boy starting to cry.

Oh, the road winds far when it starts to school,
And it wanders through half the town
When a small boy chokes on a hidden lump
That wants to go up, not down.
His toys are scattered about the house.
Yesterday he could play,
But he washed his face and he went to school
When the loud bell rang today.

He's finding a world that he didn't know
He'll laugh at each glad surprise.
After the lump goes down a bit
And the tears have left his eyes.
The waiting toys are as safe as safe.
It's part of an old, old rule;
Nobody likes to touch his toys,
When the last little boy's in school.

—Helen Welshimer.

AT THE CLOSE OF DAY

There's a certain tender feelin'
That I notice comes a-stealin'
Round my heart and never seems to go away
Till the chores have been completed
And once more we are seated
To enjoy the restful closin' of the day.

Darkness somehow always finds us
In a state o' mind that binds us
To the fireside we have learned to know so well;
Home to us is still a treasure
And we get a heap o' pleasure
From its comforts, more than tongue can ever tell.

Folks who cherish home and stay there,
Those who eat an' sleep an' play there,
Are the folks who know what happiness can be.
Oh there's nothing half so pleasin'
When the world outside is freezin'
As this cozy nook that love keeps warm for me.

When old-age at last has found me,
When its shadows creep around me,
And life's sunshine slowly fades an' disappears,
Then with heart still free from sadness
In this home where all is gladness
I'll enjoy the peaceful twilight of the years.

—O. Lawrence Hawthorne.

FRIENDS

I think that God will never send
A gift so precious as a friend—
A friend who always understands
And fills each need as it demands.
Whose loyalty will stand the test,
When skies are bright or overcast;
Who sees the faults that merit blame,
But keeps on loving just the same;
Who does far more than creeds could do
To make us good, to make us true,
Earth's gifts a sweet contentment lend
But only God can give a friend.

WHEN THE PAPER COMES HOME

When you are miles from all your loved ones and you feel you'd like to go
Back home to see them once again, you'd really like to know
What all your friends are doing while in distant lands you roam;
It is then that you appreciate a paper sent from home.

It is such a comfy feeling when you sit with logs ablaze,
And see through modern items of other days;
It is hard to find expression in a jingle, rhyme or poem,
Of the thoughts that come a-stealing when the paper comes from home.

As you read you take a journey, to our home town once again.
All your friends are there to greet you as you step from memory's train;
It's a sacred sort o' feeling and you like to be alone,
With the fire and your memories, when the paper comes from home.

Again we warn all citizens of the danger of fire. Every day now we see bon-fires of burning leaves and little children playing around them, poking the fire, etc. Make it your business, when starting such fires, to stay beside them until they are burned out, and warn the children to keep away from them in case their clothing should ignite. Last week a blaze, which started from a small bonfire, destroyed a large barn on the farm of Oscar McGill, one-half file north of Cavan, Ont. Damage was estimated at $3,000. Mr. McGill was burning a pile of clippings from his orchard a short distance from the barn when a blazing twig blew from the bonfire and ignited the straw stack.
