D-DAY TO THE RHINE

A remarkable story of a phase of the D-Day landings in World War II is told for the first time in the current issue of The Star Weekly.

Doon Campbell, now deputy chief of the world-wide Reuters news agency, relates his personal experiences of the morning he staggered ashore onto a French beach and the fated action-filled days that followed.

Typing his first despatch from the shelter of a damp dirty ditch he was soon forced to stop—the showers of dirt flung up by the shellburst kept clogging his typewriter! Day after day he followed the tide of battle, sending back first-hand reports of the greatest combined operation in history.

In telling how he gathered the news of these terrifying, exhilirating days, Campbell's Star Weekly article becomes a thrilling highlight in the current Star Weekly series in which ace newspapermen relate their "Biggest Story."
