Social Evening and Supper In Morewood Pres. Hall

On Wednesday, December 29, the Presbyterian Hall, Morewood, was the scene of a Congrgational Supper and Social Evening, when many representatives of the congregation, old and young, met together for a "Family Night".

Four long tables with a fine assortment of tempting dishes, accommodated the guests for supper.

Master of ceremonies for the evening was Mr. Jake Steen, who most appropriately garbed for the occasion, kept events going smoothly and with a seemingly endless supply of anecdotes and remisniscences had everyone in a very jovial frame of mind.

The toast to the King, proposed by Mr. Steen was followed by the playing of the National Anthem. The toast to the ladies was proposed by Rev. Heustin and responded to by Mrs. Colin MacGregor.

Selections by the orchestra, several numbers by the "Barbershop Quartette" and a recitation by little Miss Judy Servage were much enjoyed by all. An hour of games and contests for young and old brought to a close a pleasant evening.

Special thanks is expressed to the committee, who under the able leadership of Mrs. Max Arthur were responsible for the success of the evening.

BARON LOGISCHEN FORMER DIPLOMAT DIES IN WINCHESTER

Baron Arther Teichman Logischen, formerly a well-known international diplomat associated with Swiss Legations throughout the world, died unexpectedly Sunday night in Winchester Hospital.

Baron Logischen, who was retired from the Swiss diplomatic corps, came to Canada a little over a year ago when his extensive estates in Austria were taken over by the Russians. It was his intention to take up farming here, and for this purpose he purchased a large farm near Winchester Springs.

He was stricken by a heart attack at his home Sunday night. Discovered by his son, he was rushed immediately by ambulance to the Winchester Hospital, where he died shortly after being admitted. He was 74 years of age.

Previously considered to be in excellent health, he had recently completed extensive alterations to his new farm. He had returned just last November from a trip to Switzerland, where he made arrangements for the transfer of his business affairs to Canada.

He was well known and popular in diplomatic circles, and Sir Alexander Clutterbuck, British High Commissioner, paid a visit to his Winchester Springs farm shortly after his appointment to Canada.

Besides his wife, he is survived by two sons, Tassilo, of Winchester Springs, and Arved, of Leichtenstein, and two daughters, Ulla of Germany, and Johanna of Zurich, Switzerland.

The funeral service was held on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock at his home in Winchester Springs, conducted by Rev. Mr. Ennis of Williamsburg Lutheran Church. Interment was in Maple Ridge cemetery.

F. Moriarty, F. Shaver, L. Feeley, A. Acheson and G. Lannin, who, with the Rotary appointed Messrs. Howard Fulton, Walter Carr, Lawrence Doering, Ralph Ouderkirk, Bill Gould and Bert Gillard met on Monday evening to discuss such a plan. Mrs. G. Merkley and Mr. Jack McMillan were appointed joint-chairmen and the W.I. secretary invited to be the scribe.

MORE STRINGENT FIRE LAWS REQUIRED

More stringent fire laws for Ontario municipalities have been urged by Eric Adams, writing in the January issue of Woodland World, a publication of the Canadian Forestry Association. Loop-holes in present legislation mean that areas outside Ontario's "fire-district" are left unguarded. As a result, grass and bush fires burned, unattended on private land in half the townships of Eastern Ontario last fall. Some of the fires burned for weeks, blackening patches of land ranging from ten to 3,000 acres.

It would appear that no one cares how such fires start, or whether they are under control or not. This carelessness can be traced to the various provincial fire laws which are worded in such a way that communities can quite easily ignore them.

At present, adequate fire legislation only applies to the "fire district", which takes in for the most part, uninhabited or sparsely populated areas of Northern Ontario.

According to Woodland World, laws are obviously needed which would hold township and county councils responsible for setting up fire-fighting systems ready to function at short notice.

NATIONAL BEAUTIFICATION IS A LOCAL JOB

The Junior Chamber of Commerce of Canada have again undertaken the task of promoting a National Beautification Campaign. An organizing committee has been formed and is at present hard at work planning the initial stages.

A Beautification campaign in the spring of the year is regarded as a prime necessity by virtually all of our progressive communities these days. The beautification idea which was instituted on a national scale only a few short years ago, reached 387 localities last spring and in 1949, it is confidently anticipated, more than 400 municipalities, large and small, will conduct a campaign designated to promote a cleaner and healthier community.

Dates suggested for most localities for the 1949 effort are from the 13th to the 28th of May. May has again been designatel as Beautification month and the Junior Chamber proposes to arrange an intensive publicity campaign between the middle of April and the middle of June.

LIVELY CHRONICLE OF CANADA

New book "Harvest Triumphant" tells story of 100 year Company

Harvest Triumphant -- the story of Massel-Harris by Merrill Denison. McClelland and Stewart, $3.50

"Unaccustomed as we are," says William Arthur Deacon. Literary Editor of The Globe and Mail, "to industrial history, it must come as a surprise that the most important historical narrative published in Canada this year is the story of Massey-Harris. Still more surpising is the fact we have here no mere vaunt of success in dollars, nor only information about the mechanical improvement of machines, but social history of an engrossing nature."

The story written by the facile and forceful writer, Merrill Denison, author of Klondike Mike and other books, is the story of Canada's growth and development, the opening up and settlement of the West, and the pros and cons of the ubiquitous tariff question.

In terms that are intelligible and interesting to the general reader, the author traces the influence of agricultural mechanization on the world's economy.

As a footnote to Canadian history it is a new and illuminating picture of Canada's social and economic development, hiterto a largely neglected field, that will prove of absorbing interest to the general reader. The book is highlighted by sets of illustrations based on authentic historical prints and records.

TODAY

By Frank M. Phillips

TODAY is the tomorrow we worried about yesterday.

We wondered what it would be like. Here it is.

We wondered if we would be alive. Here we are.

It is a better today than we had expected.

We could do nothing to slow it up; we can do nothing to hurry it along.

We can only use it, and make it the best day possible.

Today we stand upon a thin line between two great eternities; the past which stretches back to the beginning of time, and which we can penetrate only through memory and records; the future which extends to the end of time, and which we can penetrate only through prophecy and forecasts.

We are sure only of today, the most important day of our lives.

"MY WEEK"

By R. J. Deachman

All through the autumn days the weather-man has been lovely to us. A touch of winter came the other day, it was the first touch. The purpose was to provide a bit of snow for Christmas. We've watched the storms which came to us from such delightful provinces as British Columbia and Alberta. They got colder as they moved East and then—something happened! A good spirit or perhaps the kindly feeling of those in charge of things in Ottawa changed the directions of these storms. They moved over Northern Quebec, out towards Ungava—was there ever a colder word? They touched us not at all. Sometimes they took a sudden desire to see what the South was like and moved into places like Chicago and New York. They threw somewhere in the neighbourhood of twenty inches of snow into the later city and New York, in a snow storm, is very helpless, or at least the people are. They are not accustomed to such things but from day to day we have had really delightful weather. I have never seen better. It was not always thus perhaps that is one reason why we so frequently express our humble gratitude.

Sometimes strange memories spring into my mind from the past, they cover scenes of long ago. Once upon a time I heard the late Sir George E. Foster speak in Massey Hall. It was during an election campaign but the issue at that time was prohibition. He was a magnificent speaker, clear, logical, sequential. He spoke for over an hour without a note—it was a flawless presentation. One man who was not a prohibitionist kept blurting out now and then, "What about the bootlegger". Sir George took it without comment through three or four interruptions, then when it came again, he stopped suddenly and pointing a long thin finger at him said: "Well my friend what about him, you ought to know!" There was no answer from the gallery and two or three minutes later the man who was interested in bootleggers picked up his hat and walked out evidently in search of one.

It was, I think, in June 1891, I was out in the back field on our old farm at home. I could stand now, if I were on that farm, within ten feet of where I stood then. My father came through the field and said to me: "Sir John A. Macdonald is dead. I have just heard the news. He was a wonderful man, never forget that. One of our greatest Canadians." My father certainly wasn't of his political faith but he always spoke highly of him, though bitterly opposed to some of his policies. That was a strong point about the old boys of the Province of Ontario, a young lawyer took the opposing side on the platform. He didn't speak of the issues but of Sir Clifford Sifton. It was a thoroughly abusive speech and everybody expected that Sir Clifford would make a savage counter-attack. It didn't come. He dealt solely with the issues. It was a brilliant exposition of his point of view.

That night my friend was driving him across to another point where he was to make a speech on the following day. The night was cold, the roads were bad. Sir Clifford spoke not a word, during the first hour, a very wise thing for a man who had delivered a long speech. Suddenly he turned to my friend and said: 'Who was that young fellow on the platform tonight?" My friend told him. Sir Clifford was silent for a few minutes then he spoke: "Cheeky little beggar wasn't he?" he said. That was his only comment.

Many less competent men would have wasted two-thirds of their available time in reply. Sir Clifford was willing to state the case, to complete the record and leave the judgment to the audience. I wish some of our newer statesmen could take a lesson from this simple story.

Safety Philosophy

The Santa Fe Magazine says that a fifteen-year-old girl of Detroit is the author of the following facetious philosophy:

Drive right and more pedestrians will be left.

Watch your STEP ON IT.

Taking the other fellow's dust is better than "to dust returneth."

Six feet have awaited many a driver who would not give an inch.

Just because you see tracks is no sign that a train has just passed.

Peacemaker

"Why are you running like that, Junior?"

"I'm trying to keep two little boys from fighting."

"That's good—and who are the little boys?"

"Willie Jones and me."

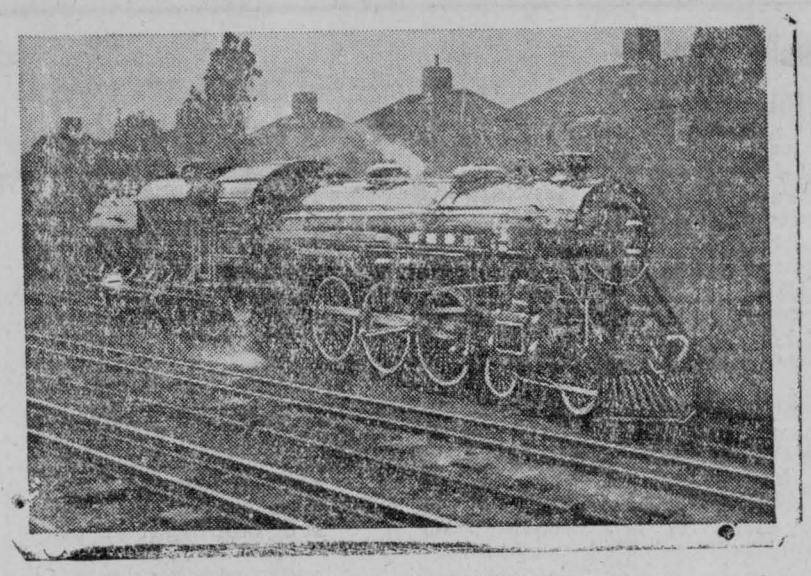
Wished to be a "He-Man"

Michael had taken a rather strong dislike to kindergarten. All persuation told him firmly that he would have to go.

"All right, Mother," retorted Michael. "If you want me to grow up into a darn bead-stringer, I'll go."



SMALLEST PUBLIC LOCOMOTIVE FOR CANADA

Christened "Winston Churchill" by Master Duncan Sandys, grandson of the great war-leader, a scale model Canadian Pacific locomotive which hauls trains on the smallest public railway in the world is being shipped to Toronto, where it will be exhibited at the Robert Simpson Store for two months, before moving on to Halifax, Nova Scotia. The Romney, Hythe and Dymchurch Light Railway, from which the locomotive comes, is a properly constituted railway by Act of Parliament, in spite of its miniature stock and total length of 14 miles.

Church News

MOREWOOD UNITED CHURCH

The services at Morewood United Church were conducted on Sunday by the minister, Rev. W. J. Copsey, B.A. The text of the morning sermon was Ex. 14;15, "Speak to the Children of Israel that they go forward". At the critical time in the exodus from Egypt, when it seemed that Pharoah and his host must lead the chosen people back into slavery the only way of salvation was to go forward. With the year 1948 history and the year 1949 for us an unknown country the challenge and command to all Christians is Forward March. History proves that in the forward march in the face of seemingly insurmontable difficulties the people of God did the right. So time will tell that all who go forward with faith in the goodness and power of God are doing the right thing. The promised land afar is the goal worth all the hardships of the way and the presence of God the guarantee that the wilderness will be passed and all foes conquered. "My spirit shall go with thee and I will give you peace." The anthem was, "Give the Best that you Have."

The theme of the evening service was the Place of the Cross of Christ in the New Testament and in the life of the Christian, I Cor. 1;18, "For the preaching of the cross is to them that perish foolishness; but unto us which are saved it is the power of God."

The cross of Christ is the eternal proclamation that God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish; but have eternal life. "The cross may still seem to the Jew a stumbling block and to the Gentile foolishness; but the venture of faith is vindicated by experience that brings the assurance of acceptance with God." Miss Ellice Smith presided at the organ.

The Eternal Masculine

After no small amount of laborious effort, Johnnie had finally completed the weaving of a small mat, which he tendered to his mother for a gift. He watched her closely as she took the present and began looking it over. Thinking she did not look pleased, he said, "Well, don't you like it, mother?"

"Yes, Johnnie, I do like it." Mother replied, "but it seems to me you might have made it a little more neatly."

"Yes," Johnnie admitted, "I could. But you see, I didn't want it to look as though a girl had made it."

JUNIOR FOREST RANGERS

The employment of youths of high school age as a supplement to the Department's seasonal forest ranging staff may prove to be an extremely important development in the constant effort toward better trained forestry personnel.

Each year a number of healthy young men are chosen from a very large number of applicants. Soon after the summer holiday season commences they are requested to report for duty at one of the Department's northern ranger stations. After a very modest start which involved only some of the southern forest districts, the project has now developed to a point where, during the 1948 season, groups of Junior Rangers were on duty as far west as Sault Ste. Marie and northward to Cochrane and Kapuskasing.

These young rangers originate from various points in Southern Ontario and are joined on the job in some instances by youths from northern localities in the forest districts in which Junior Rangers are being employed.

Usually the Junior Ranger is directed to report to the District Forester or to a Chief Forest Ranger in the District to which he has been assigned. Immediately upon arrival the youth becomes a member of a group that will function as a unit throughout the season. A tent camp has been erected for living accommodation, including a cook tent, and the boys are supplied with blankets and assigned to their sleeping quarters. Usually the entire group consists of a foreman, a cook, and anywhere from six to twelve Junior Rangers depending upon the size of the group.

Great care is taken in the selection of the foreman because of the responsibility which he assumes. He must have expert knowledge gained from actual experience in nearly every phase of forestry work. He must also have the ability to impart that knowledge to the boys in a way that they will benefit to the full extent and so that he will command the respect of the entire group. He must be able to balance a reasonable amount of work with a variety of recreation in order to maintain a healthy and constructive interest. As a result of such effort the desired amount of profitable work is accomplished, and the group as a whole obtains the maximum benefit to be derived from a realization that a good job is being done.

Some of the tasks undertaken are the construction and maintenance of telephone line, clearing portages and trails, the repair of buildings, painting and assisting in actual construction work. Perhaps the most important work is forest fire fighting, as on many occasions the Junior Rangers have proven their value on this most important duty of every forest ranger. There is never any shortage of work to be done and much too soon the summer has passed, and once more the boys must return to their homes to resume their academic studies.

But out of this experience we feel sure that something of real benefit must result. To some it may only mean a summer spent in the north, but to others it may be the start of a career in forestry that will have lasting benefits to the nation. Some of the boys have already stated their intention of proceeding toward that goal. To all it will be an experience that will never be forgotten and perhaps a step toward becoming better men.

A real tribute is due the Junior Rangers for the work they have accomplished and the wonderful spirit of co-operation that has prevailed. the foremen and instructors are also deserving of the highest commendation, because without their efforts the degree of success attained to date could not have been realized.

Applications For Free Forest Trees Should Be Made Now

Applications for the free forest trees which the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests supplies for reforestation purposes should be sent in before January 15th, 1949. The government of Ontario offers these valuable trees free of charge to those who will agree to use them for the purposes for which they are produced, namely, the reforestation of waste lands, eroded slopes, blow sands and forest land, the improvement of depleted woodlands and the planting of windbreaks and shelterbelts to protect agricultural crops Trees cannot be supplied for ornamental or decorative planting.

The demand for these trees has grown enormously since the war, and, as it takes three to five years to produce them, the supply of trees available now is still limited by war conditions of 1944 and 1945. At the present time the department is expanding its tree production facilities as quickly as finances appropriated for the purpose will permit. Every effort is made to ensure that the trees are distributed fairly to bona fide applicants who will use them properly. To do this it is necessary that the applications reach the department in good time. Required totals for each species are matched against available quantities and, if a reduction is required, this is made on a rational basis.

Anyone who intends to plant more than an acre or so is requested to seek advice from the office of the Department of Lands and Forests. A forester will come, on request, to advise concerning the most suitable species and the best method of planting. It has been found that, when this advice is followed, those who plant have very good success. The government is most anxious to protect its heavy investment in these trees which it generously supplies and considers that those who plant should report and follow the advice available. In the past a high percentage of dead trees resulted from careless or improper planting and adverse weather conditions Planters this year report a very high survival rate—up to 100% in some cases—due in part to more careful work and in part to the exceptionally good growing seasor.

It is encouraging to notice that a great many people in Eastern Ontario are now planting fairly large acreages, that is five to ten acres a year. Most of the planting is done on abandoned farms, by people who have seen planted waste lands turn into valuable crops. Actually Eastern Ontario has one of the finest plantations to be seen in the Province—the red pine plantation one quarter mile south of No. 17 highway near Rockland. Planted in 1941, some of these trees are already of merchantable size as telephone poles, and the whole stand is a vivid demonstration of the fact that "Money grows in trees".

City Slicker Bested

A city smarty, driving through the country, came upon a hornyhanded son of toil sitting by the roadside, leisurely grinding away at a cud of natural leaf and as leisurely doing a careless job of whittling.

"Say, Rube," called the city youth, "have you lived here all your life?"

Neither looking up nor missing a stroke in his whittling, the rustic spat disgustedly and replied:

"Not yit."

Less Tears Please

She was complaining to her dairyman about the quality of his milk.

"Short o' grass feed, mum: short o' grass feed at this time of the year." said the milkman. "Bless you, them cows of mine are just as sorry as I am. I often stands and watches 'em crying because they feel somehow as their milk don't do them credit. You don't believe me?"

"Oh, yes, I believe you," said the woman, coldly, "but I wish in the future you'd see they don't let all the tears go into my bottle."

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN

Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Resolutions made? It is not too late. Do not make them too difficult or you'll break them too easily, and so, subtly, lose confidence in your will power and integrity. Let your resolutions have some bearing on your everyday life.

Since many homemakers agree that they would keep resolutions if they only had the TIME, you will probably agree that interruption, not procrastination, is the thief of time. Interruptions are upsetting for numerous reasons. Maybe if you understand why, you will be calmer.

1. Unpreparedness. You begin every household task with a mistaken idea (although it may be subconscious) that you will be permitted to complete it in uninterrupted bliss. Consequently you are prepared for timeout.
2. Frustration. Your thoughts, which direct your actions, move in a stream of consciousness. It's like water flowing downhill—once the stream is started, it doesn't want to stop. Consequently, you feel frustrated if stopped suddenly.
3. Anger. This is a natural human reaction. The adrenal glands pour adrenalin into the system which upsets the balance of the entire body when one is angry.
4. Confusion. You feel confused because you are temporarily "unbalanced". That's why you put sugar into your cake twice and cut one trouser leg too short.

HOW CAN YOU COMBAT DISORGANIZATION

1. Change your attitude. Accept the possibility of interruptions as a normal part of your housewife's job, as being called out in the middle of the night is part of a doctor's job, or walking in the rain, part of a postman's job.
2. Start your day right. Say to yourself, "I'll remain calm today, no matter how maddening the interruptions are."
3. Plan your day's work to allow ten or more minutes for interruptions in each hour's work.
4. Don't get angry. It's not the interruption that does the damage, it's your anger. So, encourage the cheerful habit.
5. Put your unconscious mind to work. Relax when you can and then do things calmly.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. C. W. asks: How to keep fruit from sinking in a cake.

Answer: The washed raisins and currants should be drained, patted dry with a towel and tossed with one-third of the measured flour from the recipe.

Mrs. J. R. asks: Why did my candy become sugary when test showed soft-ball stage.

Answer: Wrap a damp cloth around the tines of a fork and wipe down the sides of the kettle to prevent any sugar crystals from going back into the syrup.

Miss M. K. asks: Why did butterscotch candy not harden when we boiled the mixture slowly over direct heat?

Answer: First, do not allow sugar mixture to boil until sugar is all dissolved. Secondly, a steady boil—not a simmer—is necessary to thicken candy mixtures.

Miss J. S. asks: Can you suggest ways of using home canned peaches that have turned dark at the top of the jar?

Answer: Use in upside down cake, mashed in a fruit filling for a layer cake, or pureed with applesauce or with prunes.
