Fined For Spearing Pickerel

Welbut Poek, special fish and game patrol officer in the Perth district had a young man from Bolingbroke in court charged with spearing fish in the Tay river on April 25th. The magistrate decided against the accused and fined him $10 and costs. It is generally understood along the Nation that spearing is legal during April and May and is being indulged in without restraint.

Ormond Home Doubly Bereaved

On Thursday, May 11th, Katherine McGregor passed away aiter a lingering illness of lung trouble, at her home at Ormond. The funeral service was conducted by her pastor Rev. James Robertson on Saturday at 1 p. m. at the family home. Two hours after the service was over, the mother who had been in poor health also, passed suddenly away, and was buried on Monday. The sorrowing family have the sympathy of this community in their sad bereavement.

Baseball Looking Up

With the advent of warm, sunshiney days baseball blood is beginning to tingle again in the veins of the veterans. Frank Oshier led a following of future stars to the ball park Monday night for the first work out. The game is slow in getting under way here this spring for the lack of a pitcher, around whom to build up a team. We understand this vacancy will soon be filled by a good boy who is expected to spend the summer close to town.

Roads Good for Motoring

During the past week or ten days the main roads throughout this section have been in about as good shape for motoring as they are likely to be this season. From Chesterville to the Longue Sault Rapids by way of Finch, Newington and Wales they are particularly good with the exception of the hill just before reaching Dickenson's Landing which is in pretty bad shape. The Front Road east from Morrisburg is pretty rough and from the great piles of stones along it for road building this summer it will be a long stretch for motorists to keep clear of. Many took advantage of the opportunity on Sunday of stopping by the wayside and gathering May flowers, white trillium being in abundance at the perfection of their bloom.

Bad Crossing

Since the raising of the railway tracks a very bad crossing has been made at the first crossing west of Chesterville. Motorists should be partically careful when approaching this place from either side of the railway.

Delicate Side-whiskers to be Worn by Men

Delicate side-whiskers are again coming into fashion in the west end of London. They are not so pronounced as the early Victorian "face flaps," but are short and flimsy with a gentle curl inward from the ear.

World Small After All

While distrubting old clothes among refugee farmers of Armenia, last week, Miss Margaret Caldwell, of Bristol, Tennessee, a Near East Relief worker, came across two bundles of clothes from her own home town. In one of these she found a pair of trousers which looked familiar. Feeling something in one of the pockets she investigated and found a letter addressed to her father.

Councilor Cannot Collect

Judge Powell, of Parry Sound, in District Court pronounced judgment in the case of ex-Councilor J. Burns, who was suing the corporation of South River for disbursements incurred by him in connection with a good sale of bonds while he was a member of the 1921 council. While the parties got together on the basis of payment for cash disbursements, His Honor stated that legally a councilor could not collect anything for any work done while a member of a council.

Radio Signal Flashed Around the World

The Annapolis Naval Radio Station has succeeded in flashing a time signal around the world without relaying, using a wave length of 17,145 meters. This was announced to the Horological Institute of America, by Dr. Paul Sollenberger, of the Naval Observatory at Georgetown. The current literally wrapped itself around the world, completing a surrounding embrace in the fifteenth part of a second.

Child's Windpipe Pierced By Blade

Five-year-old Jack Dunlop, of Toronto, was the victim of a peculiar accident in his home when he fell while running with an open jack-knife in his hand and stabbed himself in the throat. The windpipe was pierced and he was operated upon at the Hospital for Sick Children. According to his father the child had picked up a jack-knife in the house and having opened it he went outside, probably intending to dig with it in the yard. While running around the corner of the house, however, he fell and the blade penetrated his throat.

Canada Coaxes Agriculturists And Domestics

Announcement is made by the Department of Immigration and Colonization of a change of requirements concerning immigrants entering Canada, the change going into effect immediately. Under the new requirements instead of a money test there will be a test to determine the fitness of immigrants by their occupation. The new regulations will, it is claimed, facilitate the movement of Britishers from the Mother Country and the other self-governing dominions to Canada by the agricultural and domestic servant classes, as these are the classes immediately in demand. In the cases of persons of other classes entering from the United States, Canada will freely admit those whose labor is required in the Dominion.

Butter Pays Better Than Sale of Cheese

(Special)—The cheese situation in the Kingston district is not bright at the present time owing to the price of butter. The farmers who patronized the cheese factories are reported to be separating their milk and making butter, and just so long as they continue to receive good prices for butter they will not be content to accept the prices offered for cheese. This is said to be one of the results of the Dairy Standards Act, which has educated dairymen to a realization of the value of the butter-fat test.

From 100 pounds of milk the farmer is able to make butter that will sell for $1.60, while the same amount of skimmed milk taken to the cheese factory yields him only 65 cents. While the demand for butter continues, the dairyman says he is not justified in selling his milk to the cheese factory.

Many farmers possess facilities for keeping butter. The farmers got started butter-making because, at the beginning of the season, the cheese factories were not assured of a sufficient supply to begin operations. The farmers also needed the skimmed milk for calves and pigs.

Little Winnie was going to play with little Jones.

Her mother said to her, "Remember, if they ask you to have dinner with them say, 'No, thank you, I have already dined.'"

Later, at Jones' home, Mr. Jones said in a jovial manner, "Well, little girl, come and have a bite with us."

"No, thank you," replied Winnie, with great dignity, "I have already bitten."

COMPLETELY FREE OF CONSTIPATION

Tried for Years to Find Relief

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" GAVE IT

Chronic Constipation or insufficient action of the bowels, is one of the great causes of disease. Some authorities even claim that Constipation cannot be permanently corrected. This is a great mistake, because here is the proof that constipation can be cured and the bowels made to act regularly and naturally.

YARMOUTH, N.S.

"For years, I was troubled with Constipation, and had to take laxatives and purgatives all the time. If I neglected to take these, the bowels would refuse to do their work.

About two years ago, a friend advised me to try "Fruit-a-tives", which I did. The first box helped me so much that I obtained further supplies of the remedy and continued the treatment. After using about eight boxes, my bowels were able to perform their particular function without aid.

The relief in my case has been lasting, as up to date, I have never had any further trouble. I can recommend "Fruit-a-tives" to all suffering as I did and I am sure they will derive equal benefit".

A. W. FRANKLIN.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c., or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

Meanest Sneak Thief

Andrew Hyndman, Kemptville, has cause to think that that village boasts one of the meanest thieves on record. While the body of his mother, Mrs. J. H. Hyndman, aged 86, was lying in an upper room, some person unknown entered his cellar and stole a quantity of butter and preserved fruit.

Mother's Curiosity Saves Her Children

Curiosity proved the means of saving six or eight children from being blown to atoms in Edmonton. The curiosity of a mother to see what sort of fire-crackers her daughter wanted set fire to revealed a stick of dynamite. Two little boys had been prowling around the warehouse of a construction company near 30th street, and had picked up what they thought were fire-crackers. They took them home and handed one each to their sisters and four other girls living on the street.

Handy For The Car

One of the most useful things to carry along in the car is a 25-foot length of one-half inch Manila rope. In the first place, it is an admirable tow-rope. It can be wrapped around the axle and spring after some of the spring leaves have been broken, to get home without breaking the rest of the leaves. It can be cut in two and wrapped around to give traction in some mud holes where it would be impossible to fasten chains. The rope can be used even as a tire when the last spare has blown out, and will save the rim on the journey home.

One Man to Five Miles

On more than one occasion I have stated that we will never have satisfactory roads in this country during the entire season until we adopt the same practise as on the railway, that is put one man in charge of a section. Give him five miles to see after, and make him see after it. He can go over it every week. He can throw off the stones and fill in the holes, and by so doing, he will make auto driving far more safe, and lengthen the life of your car. The councillors can think about this at the next session of their council. If they know a better solution then we will be glad to hear it.—Wiarton Echo.

Finds Son at Wheel of Stolen Auto

After offering the police the use of his car to catch auto thieves, J. A. Moreau, of Montreal found, after a chase Saturday afternoon when a speed of 58 miles an hour was attained, that the man at the wheel of the stolen automobile was his 16 year-old son, Paul Moreau. The fugitive car was brought to a halt only when a revolver shot from the pursuing police burst a tire. Young Moreau and two companions, youths of 18 and 19, were arrested on charges of having stolen the car and of having stolen goods, found in it, in their possession.

Grading of Swine to Commence Soon

It is expected that there will be a definite announcement in the near future as to the exact date on which official grading of hogs will commence. The Dominion Livestock Branch has issued a statement to the effect that the principle of swine grading has now been approved by the Government, and that the establishment of the necessary organization for the practical application of the grading is well in hand. Educational work is being carried forward in all provinces and hog raisers are being enlightened as to the correct type, finish and proper market weights. Information as to the practical application of the grading system is also being disseminated generally among packers, shipping agents, commission men, and others directly concerned.

A man hurried into a quick lunch restaurant and called to the waiter:

"Give me a ham sandwich."

"Yes, sir," replied the waiter, reaching for the sandwich; "will you eat it or take it with you?"

"Both," was the unexpected but obvious reply.

Ho! Hum!

"Doc, I am like a clock that's all run down,'. began the Patient.

"Yes, I know," growled the Doc, 'and you want me to furnish a little whiskey to wind you up and start you going again. I've got a hundred patients in the same fix."

Woman Poisons Daughter's Baby

Strychnine, swallowed from a milk bottle's nipple, which had been dipped in the poison by Mrs. Arthur Oldham, wife of a prominent and well-to-do retired farmer of the village of Mount Albert, caused the death there Monday morning of the fifteen-months' old baby girl of Mrs. Oldham's daughter a young woman of about nineteen years of age. Mrs. Oldham admitted her act, giving as her reason that the infant was a "devil," and that her patience had become exhausted. It is believed that the woman, who is about 45 years of age, is demented, and she was removed to the Ontario Hospital for the Insane, Toronto, in charge of Constable Kirk and two doctors.

The young mother of the baby, Ina Oldham, said that her mother had often threatened to kill the infant, but that she had never made any attempt to do so previously. The girl said she had bought the strychnine at a local drug store for the purpose of poisoning mice; and her mother had taken the drug from a drawer in her room.

Empire Day For Teaching Citizenship

The Minister of Education enjoins that, as in previous years, the schools of Ontario again celebrate Empire Day in a fitting manner. Empire Day is not a holiday; it is a day upon which high ideals of citizenship are inculcated in the minds of our children when, by special teaching through essays and exercises, songs and stories, the glories of our Empire are unrolled. The Minister states that in public and separate schools the whole day should be devoted to special exercises. The trustees, representative citizens, or the public in general should be invited for part of the day, but the celebration will be most effective if the children themselves take the prominent part in the program. This year more has been left to the initiative of the teachers than in formers years, and it is hoped that this will be a stimulus to them and a means of increasing the interest on the part of the pupils.

Supply Farmers By Hatcheries

The large percentage off eggs produced in this country come from the farms. Roughly there are 11,000,000 hens in Ontario, and the average production is between 80 and 90 eggs a year. There are several factors that enter in to keep the production of ordinary farm flocks low as compared with that on the commercial plants, but the most important is the time of hatching. If Barred Plymouth Rock pullets are to be matured before the cold weather sets in they must be hatched in March. Depending for incubation on the broody hen, as so many farmers do, it is impossible to get any great numbers of chicks out before late April or May, and the result is that year after year there is no increase worth noting in the average egg yield of farm hens.

Discussing this question the other day, Professor Graham of the Ontario Agricultural College said the only way he saw of remedying this condition was through the establishment of hatching stations at suitable centres.

Quite a long line in the doctor's office."

Mille Roches Boy Fatally Injured By Auto in Sight of Mother

Willie Sharp, six-year-old son of Mrs. Agnes Sharp, of Mille Roches, died at his home Sunday evening as the result of injuries received when he was knocked down by an automobile driven by Joseph Mazzone of Cornwall, as Mazzone was going west towards the village Saturday night. The accident took place just east of the village, between the cheese factory of Chas. Wilkins and the school-house just across the street. The little fellow went to cross from Mr. Wilkins car, which was standing at the factory, to the school grounds where some boys were playing. He was nearly struck by a car going east. As he reached the centre of the road, the car driven by Mazzone, going quite slowly, knocked him down. Mrs. Sharp was sitting on her verandah a short distance west of the school-house and saw her son struck down. He was an only child and had just started to school a short time ago. Dr. C. J. Hamilton, coroner of Cornwall, was notified, but after learning the circumstances decided that an inquest was unnecessary.

The above is a drawing of a cross section of the AERO CUSHION INNER TIRE, showing as it appeared enclosed in the Outer Casing, Also showing plainly the Millions of Cells or pores, where the air is confined, making it very light and resilient.

AERO CUSHION INNER TIRES

Fit Any Casing

NO Punctures Blowouts — NO Rimcuts Pumps — NO Patches Extra Tubes

SAVES TEMPER, TIRES, TIME AND TROUBLE.

First Cost : Last Cost

FACTS WORTH KNOWING

The automobile today is nearly perfect apart from puncture, blowouts and rimcuts to the pneumatic tires, which furnish the greatest expense, worry and danger to the user.

The Aero-Cushion Tire renders the automobile practical for both pleasure and business.

The Aero-Cushion tire is an inner tire, circular in form, molded in size and shape to fit the outer casing, composed of pure para rubber, highly porous, which makes it very light and resilient. This tire rides as easy as the present air tire when inflated soft and at less pressure than required. In effect it is an air-filled tire in which the air is divided into countless numbers of pores and air chambers instead of being confined in one large rubber tube. This air is imprisoned in these pores without pressure, rendering it impossible to escape by puncture or cuts

ECONOMY

As casings will average approximately 15,000 miles you save the cost of at least three sets of outer casings, besides many sets of air tubes. Furthermore after the wearing of one set of casings, you still have your set of Aero Inner Tires to be transferred to other casings, rendering a purchase of Aero-Cushion Inner Tires a very economical investment.

WORN OUT CASING

When the old casings are worn down to the last fabric. The Aero Cushion Inner Tires are transferred to another set of casings, at a nominal charge.

DURABILITY

The life itself of the Aero-Cushion Tire is indefinite; being indestructible from ordinary use, and it is practically impossible to tear or wear it out.

LIFE OE CASINGS

From the rigorous tests which have been made it has been established that with the use of Aero-Cushion Tires, your outer casings will average approximately 15,000 miles, being three times the mileage of air-filled tires.

Economy is the Keystone of Success - - Practice it by Buying
AERO CUSHION INNER TIRES

You're tired of air in automobile tires—everyone using it is. The constant work, trouble and fear is always with you. It has possibly never occurred to you that the troublesome air tube could be a thing of the past. This was a long tedious study with us until we successfully produced Aero Cushion Inner Tires. Our product was absolutely the first of its kind produced in the United States. Having been granted patent rights on our formula under the laws of the United States and Canada; and since 1915 has been used with absolute success by thousands of users of pleasure cars, electric, hearses and front wheels of Ford trucks, farm trucks and heavy trucks that were formerly equipped with Air tires in front and solid tires in the rear.

Farm Prices

There are many indications that the low point in the prices of farm products has been reached and that a substantial upward movement has begun. There was a time last fall when corn brought only from twenty to thirty cents at the elevators. As we write, it is already approaching fifty cents and seems likely to rise rather than to fall. There is a good market for hogs, and it is estimated that corn fed to swine brings the farmer the equivalent of at least eighty cents a bushel. The market for sheep and cattle, for wool and hides, is better and apparently on a sound basis. Grain and cotton are moving freely and at prices that, although they are not high, nevertheless show marked improvement. All of those things are the results of a natural rise from a point unduly low and also of a world supply of farm products somewhat smaller than last fall seemed probable. It is unfortunately true that some farmers felt obliged to sell when the market was low and are not now in a position to take advantage of the rising prices; but by no means all of them are in that position. The general situation is decidedly more healthy, and, since planting is likely to be restricted to meet the probable demand, the farmers can fairly expect a year of moderately good prices and a steadily improving financial condition. That in turn cannot but encourage the recovery of commerce, industry and transportation, all of which depend so largely on the prosperity and the purchasing power of the farmer.

It is the fact, we believe, that Eastern farmers, who generally engage in mixed or dairy farming, have not suffered the discouragement that has affected the staple farmers of the West and South. For the same reason the strengthening of the grain and livestock markets has not affected the Eastern farmers so much. But the outlook for them too is brightened by the general recovery of farm prices.

The Nature of Shock

What precisely is "shock" that follows a severe injury or strong emotion doctors have long been puzzled to determine. An early theory was that shock was caused by low blood pressure, which in turn was caused by a partial paralysis of the nerves that regulate the size of the blood vessels; as a result blood accumulated within the abdomen and was drained from the heart and brain. Another theory was that the pain of the injury caused excessively rapid respiration; that in consequence the blood became overaerated, so that not enough carbonic-acid gas was left in it to care for the nerves and for other tissues and fluids of the body—a state of things that also resulted in lowered blood pressure and in a lessened amount of blood in the brain and heart. Another theory was that shock was owing rather to the contraction than to the dilatation of the blood vessels. Still another and more recent theory is that shock is a kind of exaggerated fatigue that follows excessive stimulation by an injury or by emotion. The extreme fatigue causes acidosis; that, is, a decreased amount of alkali in the blood and in the tissues, which further increases the exhaustion. The most recent theory of shock is that it is caused by a poison produced either by the products of injured tissues or of normal cells destroyed as the result of intense emotion.

The treatment of shock naturally has varied from time to time, according to the theory prevailing at the moment. The preliminary treatment has always been to apply warmth to the body of the patient and, if he is conscious, to give him warm drinks. Drugs that have the power of raising the blood pressure have also been given; a saline solution, sometimes containing gelatin or gum arabic, may be injected into the veins to increase the volume of the blood and therefore the amount of blood pressure. Physicians who attribute the condition to to acidosis have recommended injecting a solution of bicarbonate of soda into the sufferer's veins. In cases where there has been hemorrhage transfusion of blood has given good results. Finally, on the assumption that the products of the dead tissue cells have caused blood poisoning, it has been proposed to employ an antitoxin, as is done in other cases of blood poisoning.

But Did She?

The inspector put his hand on the golden head of the tiniest girl in the class, and smiled kindly.

"What is your name, little girl," he asked.

"My name's Iona," she piped nervously.

"And what is your surname?" asked the great man.

"Please sir," she replied, "I would rather not tell."

"Come, come," said the inspector "You needn't be afraid of telling me your surname."

"You won't laugh?" said the little maid anxiously.

"Of course not, my dear," was the reply.

"Well sir my surname is Ford," was the answer.

And the inspector had a hard time keeping his promise.

Planting The Flower Garden

(Experimental Farms Note)

The annual delight of flower lovers of planting the garden is about to be experienced as spring is here. Often the desire to plant, however, is so strong that certain kinds are set out in the garden long before they should be with the result that many plants are ruined by late spring frosts, There is no advantage, and great danger in planting geraniums, for instance, before the last week of May, and tendar plants are almost certain to be killed.

In planting the flower garden it should always be kept in mind that green grass is one of the most pleasing sights about a garden as flowers without grass to set them off may be compared with a picture without a frame. The flower garden then should be so planned that the grass will not be much cut up by the flowers beds. See that the places for flowers are along the boundaries, in corners, or close to the house, leaving as much grass as possible in an unbroken area.

All herbaceous perennials that are going to be planted this spring should be set out as soon as possible now as the more growth they have made before planting the less satisfactory will be the results the first year,

Roses should be planted as early as possible, and if the plants seem dry when they arrive prune severely and bury them in moist soil for a couple of days before planting.

Some of the hardest annual flowers, the seed of which can be planted outside early in May, are Sweet Alyssum, Calliopsis, Candytuft, Calendula or Pot Marigold, Delphinium, Eschscholtzia, Poppy, Phlox Drummondii, Virginian Stocks, and Verbena, while for best results Sweet Peas should be planted as soon as the ground is dry enough, but good success will be obtained in an average year even if there is delay in planting for a few weeks. Annuals that are affected by very little frost should not be planted before the latter part of May as, in addition to their probably being killed by frost, these tender things do not succeed well until the temperature of the soil is fairly high. This applies also to such tender plants as Cannas and Dahlias. Gladioli may be planted any time in May.

In planting the flower garden it is very desirable to plan it in such a way that there will be a succession of bloom from early in the spring until late in the autumn. Care should be taken also to arrange the plants in such a way that there will be pleasing blending or contrasts in colours and that the lower growing plants will be in the foreground, or, at least, not hidden by the stronger and taller ones,

The Farmer and The Woodlot

Perhaps the greatest objection made to caring for the woodlot is the time it takes to produce large-sized timber. On the farm, however, there are many uses for small and medium-sized forest products and these take a comparatively short time to produce. On many woodlots a thrifty young growth already exists that will not require many years before it is sufficiently large to use. A little attention will shorten considerably the time required to produce marketable material. The use of small dimension material is steadily increasing since the scarcity of wood in large dimension has forced the attention of manufacturers to to the use of built-up-wood. The war has done much to increase our knowledge regarding the possibilites in the use of laminated products, of which the airplane is an example, This use of wood in small sizes makes it possible to market the products of the woodlot, while the trees are comparatively young.—Bulletiu No. 69, Director of Forestry, Ottawa.

Mothers—and Mothers

By Nina Moore Jamieson

We hear so much about mothers, and their virtues, and what their children owe to them, that sometimes we forget there are mothers—and mothers. The "and" kind, as the good book says about the ungodly, are "not so,". Some mothers are patient, and forebearing; others are simply "easy." You will find mothers who have the silent wisdom that guides without nagging, and waits for Nature's own method of development. But there are just as many who are blind and indifferent, and ready to shirk responsibility.

When I hear the praise that is given to mothers—they make the nation—great men owe their greatness to their mothers—and that sort of thing, two questions come up for answer.

First: What about the fathers?

Second: Is it possible that we mothers of to-day are living on the reputation of vague motherhood—have not dropped perhaps a notch or so from the place we should hold?

Let's tend to the fathers, first, men never like to be kept waiting, it is really rather a pity to overlook the good army of fathers, who are so cheerfully ready to give the wives the whole credit of rocking the world. I know of a case where the father was kind, and firm. The mother was only kind. When he rebuked or punished his son's faults and disobediences, the mother stormed and wept.

There was a comfortable supply of money in that household, and the boy took some of it. Such a scene then—between father and mother—the boy sullenly listening!

"He is only a child," whimpered the mother—"And you are so hard on him!"

"He is only a child," admitted the father, "but he is going to be a man. You must help me to teach him what is right. Shall we let him grow up to be a thief. "Come here, my son."

The boy came and stood by his father, with downcast eyes. He was only four teen or so, and a fine looking, manly iad.

"You took the money, Harry." said his father. "Look up at me and tell me if you had any pleasure from it, as you have out of what you earn or what we give you?"

The youngster stood a moment as though considering whether to open the gates or not. At last he blurted out, looking deeply into his father's eyes—"At first it was alright. Then—when you were so good about the window I broke, I was ashamed."

"Let him be now, Tom," cried out the mother jealously putting her arm around the boy. "He's sorry—so that is enough."

The youngster drew away from his mother. This he felt; was a man's affair.

"Just a minute," said the father, gently. "This must never happen again. I have some money to leave you when I drop out, son, but I have a better gift still. I have an honest name to leave you." What sort of a name are you making for your son?"

The boy looked frankly surprised, Fatherhood—for him!

"Your son," repeated the father, "Leave him a good name. Start now. Think what your chance would be in the world if you felt that you were—the son of a thief."

The father was killed in a railway accident. not long afterwards, and the son was left free to the rule of his weak mother. No doubt he often wavered and made mistakes, but he grew up an honest man, and he looked after his younger brother and sister, too. People often admired Mrs. Ainslee for the wonderful way in which she had trained her children. "It doesn't do to be overbearing with high-spirited young people,' she used to say. "Mr. Ainslee was much more inclined to sterness than I am. I have never struck one of them in punishment—a look has always been enough!—

A look wasn't enough to affect the boy when he took the money, however!

The father's influence counts for much. When he considers and upholds the mother, the children will do the same, and she will have a chance to make her efforts of value. But where he ridicules her principles as fads, or whims, sets aside her decisions, shouts at her, scolds at her, flings orders and threats at her—what are the children going to think about it? Oh when a great man says—"All that I am I owe to my mother!" Then I know that she was a widow. or else that her husband was the genuine article. Most men, you know, do not greately interfere with the ways of their wives and children. They are busy earning the bread and butter. Presently however, they notice something that does not agree with their masculine code, and so they reach out and adjust it.

They do it easily—they do it so quickly. What a blessing it is when the children have a father who is capable! We mothers cringe at the thought of punishment for our children—but we can see ery clearly when the neighbors' children need a tap or two! Perhaps the balance is well adjustsd, so that we may supply the gentleness, and the fathers supply the justice.

We are inclined to live on our reputation, any way you look at it. We run a risk of making ourselves nationally ridiculous by resting on the great name Canadians won overseas during the Great War. They won it—we must live up to it. Because it is the pleasant custom of the time to offer tribute to all mothers, we need not claim a share unless we feel that we deserve it. Do we have time, as our mothers and grandmothers had, to read a "chapter" daily with the children? We have far more labor-saving devices in our homes—do we devote the time saved to them, or to some pleasantly vague "Cause," or charity.

Do we know what our children do with their spare hours? Their books and and their picture shows—oh, you will say, what a way to coddle a child! But listen—is there not a crime wave sweeping over the land now-a-days? Are not the young folks unmistakably reckless of authority and convention? Aren't their manners shocking, and their morality a thing to question? Not in every case of course, I refer to the general state of affairs.

It would be unkind to place the blame on the homes—entirely. We have in mind the perfect type of mother. Are we that type ourselves? Or have we presumed on the high and honorable name of those serene, sweet-hearted and wonderful mothers who really deserved the praise we give?

I know a woman who is the adored mother of a large family. It cost her something too. "I used to sing, you know," she told me once, "but when the children were little, I had no time to practise, and then—I used to be so busy, and so tired! So I dropped it. And I knew a bit about English literature—I often thought I would like to write, but I had no time. Now, when I see my children, I do not care, I am glad I dropped those things and did not neglect my family for them."

Her daughter is doing well as a writer She said to me, not long ago, when I congratulated her on her success—"I could never have managed it without mother. She used to repeat all kinds of poetry to me when I was little. "Horatius"—! I can see her wiping dishes while I washed them, and waving her dish towel, as she spoke the stately words in her beauti ul voice—"For Romans in Rome's quarrel spared, neither land, nor gold, nor limb nor life, nor child, nor wife, in the brave days of old!" Her eyes flashed, and her face glowed—she loved it! Thanks to her I knew "Marmion" and "The Lady of the Lake," and had Tennyson and Browning and Burns for close friends. She wouldn't let me read anything but the best. What a wonderful path she started me on! Now, I must go ahead and be a credit to her."

"And what about your father?" I asked wondering if she gave him no share of praise.

"Father?" she said softly "My father—I wonder how I came to have such a mother, and such a father, too! He has never failed me. When I depend on him for anything he is right there. He was always teaching us to consider mother, and she was always telling us there was nobody like him. "Ask your father?" she used to say when our questions were beyond her. "Tell your mother," he always counselled when we had any thing to confess. If a thing was right, he helped us to do it no matter how hard it was."

"In what way did they help you most?" I asked her then, thinking what the world would be like if all parents were like this.

She continued for a long moment.

"I suppose," she said slowly, 'it was in the ideal they gave me. My mother had unusual gifts, but in years to come, when I look back and think of her, as a memory, it will not be her social talents I'll think of. There was once I had a decision to make –and the right thing was very hard to do—I went to her, hoping she would offer me a word that would excuse me in doing the easy part. But she put her hand on my head and said, "You'll never regret it—" and so I knew she took it for granted that I would choose alright, if ever I had children of my own," she added wistfully. "I hope they may think of me as I think of my mother!"

Two Jews were leaving a theatre cloakroom the other evening when one exclaimed· "Vat vas dat you give the attendant, Joseph?" "Haf a crown", was the answer. "Haf a crown! But vy?" "Vell," said Joseph, chuckling, "just look vat a fine obercoat he haf gif me!"

Sung in Mother's Way

Often and often my thoughts go back,
Like wanderers over a timeworn track,
To the time I knelt at my mother's knee
And she sang at the twilight hour to me.

Oh, the dear old songs! I can see her eyes,
Aglow with the gladness of Paradise,
As I fancy she sings in the streets of gold,
The hymns she sang in the days of old.

As she sang them over her face grew bright,
As if God's city was just in sight,
And she saw the angels and heard them sing,
By the great white throne before the King.

The heavenly songs can no sweeter be
Than the songs my mother sang to me,
And in God's city I hope some day
To hear them sung in my mother's way.

Balloon Wanted

A tire company was giving away toy balloons to children.

They were beautifully colored balloons, and caught the kiddies' fancy.

One little fellow asked if he might have two.

"Sorry," said the man in charge, "but we only give one balloon to each boy. Have you a brother at home?"

"No," he replied regretfully; then added hopefully, "but my sister has, and I want one for him."

A Reminder of The Great War

A short time ago Mr. and Mrs. Herman Hummel received a grim though precious reminder of what the Great War meant to them, in the receipt from the Soldiers' Graves Committee of the original wooden cross which had been placed at the head of the grave of their son Clifford, who was killed in action at Amiens, August 24th, 1918. This is the first of such crosses to come to Chesterville, the reason no doubt being that Clifford Hummel was buried near the coast in one of the cemeteries which is the first to receive the attention of the committee, where the original wooden cross has been replaced by a more substantial head stone.
