Dan Bogart Passes Away

Mr Dan Bogart, one of the oldest residents of Chestervilte, after a lengthy illness passed away on Sunday last. The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon in Holy Trinity Church, under the direction of the C. O. F. of which the deceased had been for many years a member. Interment was made at Maple Ridge.

Important Sale

Mr. Wm. Ouderkirk's sale, next Tuesday, a mile west of Crysler, is one of the most important in this district for some time. He is offering twenty-two milch cows, all well graded and young. Last year the milk from these cows drew $1995 out of the factory. A bus will meet all trains at Crysler station. The sale starts at 10.30 with Auct. Jas. Currie, wielding the hammer.

Young Girl Burned to Death

Fire Saturday morning which burned the home of Isaiah Coughler south of Winchester Springs, resulted in the death of his fourteen year old grand daughter. The fire started from an overheated stove pipe after the morning fire had been made and left when Mrs. Coughler went to the barn and her son to the bush for a load of wood, leaving Mr. Coughler Sr., and the girl still in bed. Mr. Coughler was awakened by the smoke and flames with just barely time to escape and unable to get the girl out.

Annual Meeting

Chesterville Presbyterian congregation's annual meeting held Monday night was attended by a goodly number when reports from the different branches were received and adopted. The financial statement reflected somewhat the stringency of ready money, a slight deficit being recorded after an expenditure of between four and five hundred dollars had been made by the congregation in repairs to manse, church and sheds.

W. G. Bolster Passes Away

Saturday last shortly after noon Walter Gardiner Bolster passed away at his home on Albert Street after a couple of weeks illness. Mr. Bolster had been a prominent figure in the business and social life of Chesterville for the past thirty-two years and his passing has caused deep regret among a wide circle of friends and associates.

Shortly after graduation he located here as a druggist and for a number of years has been local manager of the Bell Telephone Co. Always active in the interests of the I.O.O.F. he was a valued member of the local lodge's degree team. He was the possessor of a beautiful tenor voice and was for many years a member of the choir of Trinity Methodist church. At the time of his death he was a member of the High School Board.

The deceased was twice married and is survived by Mrs. Stilwell and D'Alton, both of Moosejaw; Lloyd of Winnipeg and Miss Jessie at home besides the bereaved wife.

The funeral was very largely attended yesterday afternoon in Trinity Methodist church, where service was held under direction of the Oddfellows and Foresters assisted by Rev. W. T. Brown, Rev. W. H. Stevens of Pembroke and Rev. A. J. Sinclair.

Mrs. R. L. Harrop Passes Away

At Vancouver B. C. on Saturday last their passed away Elia, wife of R. L. Harrop, formerely of this place and sister of the late W. G. Bolster, dying but two hours before on the same day as her brother. Deceased was in her fiftieth year and had been an active member of the Methodist church since her youth. Her death followed an operation, which she underwent last June, and from which she never fully recovered. There remains to mourn her loss, a loving husband, and three children Agnes and Arthur at home, Karl of Indian Head, Sask., four children having gone before, one a boy of 14 years, who with the Boy Scouts, volunteered as helpers in the hospitals, at the time of the Flu epidemic in the city, and he himself fell a victim to the disease. She also leaves three sisters and one brother to mourn her loss.

Berwick Wins 8 to 7 on the Round

Last Saturday night the first of two games arranged between Chesterville, winners of the scheduled league series and Berwick, the second place team, to determine which should represent the league in the elimination series, was won by Chesterville by 6 to 5. On Monday night at Berwick the latter team proved winners by three to 1, and as total goals counted, Berwick secured the honors by 8 to 7.

Saturday's game was one of the best ever seen here and attracted the largest crowd of any game. Chesterville should have won by a much greater margin, at one time having the score 6 to 5, one of which was given away when the goal umpire gave Berwick a score when the puck absolutely did not enter the net, but struck the post and landed behind in the north corner of the rink. That goal is the margin Berwick has over Chesterville on the two games.

In the game at Berwick Chesterville was handicapped by the illness of Sorrell, their star goal getter, who lasted only long enough to put his team again in the lead with his twenty-ninth goal of the season, after Berwick had evened the count in the first three minutes of play.

Chesterville has every reason to be proud of its team. They played the game from start to finish, got off in the lead and were never headed. The team was made up of five players elegible for the Junior series, that old war-horse, Joe Bogart, being the only one over the limit, and that they went so far and so fast against the veterans of Finch and Berwick augurs will for next season

Mrs. Jeffery, Winchester Springs

On Monday 13th, death called away an old and highly respected resident of Winchester Springs in the person of Mrs. Wm. Jeffery in her 85th year. Deceased had gone to spend the winter with her danghter Mrs. A. D. Fawcett of Mountain Ridge. She was a daughter of the late Robert Ball of Maple Ridge, and was united in marriage in 1860 to Mr. Wm. Jeffery, to which union seven children were born, three of whom survive with the aged husband, viz. Allen of South Mountain, Mrs. A. D. Fawcett of Mountain Ridge, Mrs. Wm. H. Merkley of Winchester Springs, also, three brothers and one sister viz. James, Robert and Barney Ball of Chesterville and Mrs. Martha Bailey of Winchester Springs.

The deceased lady was a faithful worker and a lifelong member of the Methodist church. The Rev. Curtis of Winchester, preached a very impressive sermon from 14th chap. of John, touching eloquently on the Christain life of the deceased. Mrs. Durant sang very sweetly "Does Jesus Care?"

The floral offerings were beautiful, including a wreath from the aged husband and an anchor from the eleven grand children, covering the casket which was borne to its last resting place in Maple Ridge cemetery by Messrs. Biccum, Barkley, Timmins, Hutt, Ennis and Swerdfeger.

Will Blow up Another Hill

The Ontario Rock Company, which operates a quarry two miles east of Havelock, is preparing to dynamite another hill to secure a further supply of trap rock. Long tunnels are being bored into the hill and will be completed by spring. They will be loaded with forty tons of dynamite and set off with electric battery. The blast is expected to split the hill into huge sections which are again drilled and split into pieces which can be handed into the crusher, where they are crushed by electric power and run down chutes into waiting cars.

Gasoline Explosion Shakes Hawkesbury

Emile Theoret, aged 44, succumbed at his home in Hawkesbury, Sunday morning to injuries received when he was blown 100 feet into the air when a tank car of gasoline exploded Saturday.

Theoret was engaged in emptying the tank for L. P. Pattie, and had gone into the huge container with a lighted lantern when a terrific explosion shattered the car. A sheet of flame shot hundreds of feet into the air, by the light of which the blazing body of Theoret was seen hurtling through the air. When fellow workmen reached the mangled and badly burnt body Theoret was still breathing although suffering from a broken leg and internal injuries. He was rushed to his home, where he retained consciousness until shortly before death this morning. Not a stitch of clothing remained on the body when picked up.

It is thought the flame inside the lantern which Theoret carried ignited the gasoline vapors. The flames which followed the blast were seen seven miles away, while the splitting report broke windows in the vicinity and was heard for miles around the town.

Why Ford Got Rich

Newspaper advertising made Henry Ford—who was almost penniless twenty years ago—the richest man in the world today. Ford made the minimum pay of his workers $5 a day when other industries were paying $2. It didn't cost Ford a dollar, because the higher wages attracted the best labor in the country and the output of his factories was trebled. But the space the newspapers gave him was worth millions. Ford spent a million dollars sending a "peace ship" to Europe when peace appeared farthest off. Some people said he was "crazy," but the space the newspapers gave the stunt was worth ten times what it cost. Ford bought a little country weekly, started an anti-Jew crusade and got everybody talking about the Dearborn Independent—especially the Jews. If he lost a million dollars in the venture, the advertising was worth many times that amount. Ford makes an offer to the United States government for the Muscle Shoals project, and the newspapers of the country give him thousands of columns of space. If he were to lose every dollar he sinks into Muscle Shoals, the publicity he has already received through it would be more than worth it. It does not "just happen" that Henry Ford sells as many automobiles as several hundred other automobile makers combined. He is able to sell 100,000 cars a month when other automobile factories are closed or running 25 per cent. of capacity because he is the best advertised man in the world. Should we say the newspapers that gave him this advertising, for which they received no pay, are gullible?—Kingston Whig.

A flock of swans that belong to the bishop's palace in Wells, Somerset, England, use the ancient moat as their swimming pool. From one of the palace windows hangs a rope that reaches to the water and that is attached to a bell in the building, and whenever the swans are hungry they tug at the rope until they succeed in ringing the bell and some one throws down food to them. A bishop's daughter taught them the trick.

Amongst the Features

With the Morris Vaudeville and Concert Company will be seen Princess Coretta, World's Smallest Woman, who will entertain with song. This tiny mite of humanity is without a doubt the most perfect model of perfection this world has ever known. Other features of more than ordinary interest are Mr. Brown a one-legged acrobat who performs seemingly impossible feats in acrobatic, skill. Sergt. Kelley gives perfect imitations of various beasts and birds introducing a line of Comedy that keeps the audience in exceptional good humor throughout his act. Jack Jackson, a dancer and singer who cannot make his feet behave, is a dancing wonder, while Jimmy Craig, a versatile comedian is the possessor of a very fine voice and his songs are up to the minute The Morton Sisters, two clever dancers, also wear some very stunning costumes. Corp. Westo's comedy juggling act, is one truly marvellous. the way he throws things around has one mystified. The program in it's entirety is one selected after careful study by the management and merits the attention given it by them. There will be a complete change of program on both nights, Friday and Saturday. Feb 17th and 18th. Be sure and be on hand Friday night.

JOHN DETSON, HERO

Chpt. II—The Accident

"It was last winter," said he, "and as I said a moment ago, it happened on just such a night as this. The wind was sweeping up from the eastward in a withering gale. Snow was coming with it, thick, too, and I remember that when I came in from the shop at dusk, I glanced at the spirit thermometer, and found it nearly forty degrees below zero. Forty below isn't so cold when there's no wind, but in a gale it's terrible. I remember saying to Job, my post servant, 'The Lord pity any poor soul who hasn't found a snug shelter to-night. I hope all our hunters are under cover.'

"This was three o'clock in the afternoon, but it was in January, when night comes early in this latitude. The storm had been blowing all day, but with sundown it had increased in fury.

"I had some writing to do, and I tried to settle myself to it, but for some reason I was restless. The storm fascinated me. I did not know why, for winter storms like this are frequent with us. Several times I went out into the storm porch and threw open the outside door, but each time I was nearly choked by the mass of whirling, blinding snow, and was glad enough to return to the fire.

"At about six o'clock, Mary, Job's wife, called me to tea. By that time the storm had reached it's height. The wind fairly shook the old house and, like an angry monster, shrieked around the gables. When I had finished my tea, I went to the storm door again to take another look at things before resuming my work. The snow was whirling past in a dense cloud, and I could not see a foot from my nose. I had stood there but an instant, and was about to close the door, when suddenly a human form lurched out of the darkness and snow, and fell prone at my feet. The sudden appearance of the man was uncanny, and I was startled, but I quickly recovered myself and lifting the unconscious form, I carried it into this room. The face was covered with a mass of caked snow and ice. Even his eyelids were covered in such a way that he could not have seen. When I had broken this away, I discovered that it was John Detson.

"I called Job and Mary from the kitchen, and we removed John's kulutuk, his moccasins, and other outer clothing. His nose and face were white and badly frosted, as were his hands and feet. We kept him at a distance from the stove, and while Mary brought blankets in which to wrap him, Job and I removed the frost from his frozen parts by applications of cold water.

"It was half an hour before he opened his eyes and recognized me, and the first words he said were: 'Father—father—is—dying, sir. I came—for you.'

"Where is your father?' I asked

"He's home sir. Please go to him now, sir,' he urged.

"I thought that the boy's mind was wandering, but presently he made me understand that his father had accidentally shot himself in the leg that afternoon, and had probably severed an artery.

"You remember Amos Detson, don't you? You spent a night in his cabin when you passed through here three years ago."

"Yes," I answered. "I remember very well the night that I stopped there."

"You remember, then, where he lives—about ten miles up the run. And you probably remember, also, his two children, John, the boy we are talking about, and the daughter. He lost his wife several years ago, and Margaret, the daughter, who was about sixteen years of age when you were there, was his housekeeper. John was a lad of about fourteen then, he's seventeen now.

"Well, John said there were just the three of them there when the accident occurred. He and his sister tried to apply a tourniquet to stop the flow of blood, but they did not know how, and the artery kept spurting. Then John tried holding the artery, and as long as they held it by pressure of his thumb, the blood ceased to flow. The moment the pressure stopped, however, the artery spurted again. So he had left his sister holding the artery, and he started for me.

"I'm expected to know a little of everything up here. I have to be doctor, lawyer, merchant and minister to my hunters and their families. I mediate when disputes arise; I read the burial service over the dead, and I prescribe simple remedies for the sick. At times I even perform minor surgical operations. So, you see, it was natural that they should think of me.

"We can't go out in this storm,' said I. "We'd smother in the first half mile. As soon as the storm lets up a little, Job will take me with the dogs.'

"But father's bleeding to death! You could save his life, sir! I came down for you, sir, an' I didn't smother, though I had to face the blow. You'll have un in your back, sir.'

Job shook his head, and I saw that he felt as I did, that it would be little short of suicide to venture upon the journey.

We were silent, and the boy asked presently, "Is he goin,' sir?"

"John," said I, my heart aching for him, "dogs wouldn't travel in this storm. We'd lose our way and perish."

"Oh, sir!" his voice was a sob. "You could save father's life. If you goes he'll live, sir. If you don't, he'll die! An' you won't go and save his life?"

"Miracles don't happen twice in one day," said Job.—I could see John's plea had touched him—"Amos Getson is goin' to die, tho' if he don't get help—and maybe we could save him, if we gets there, anyway, I ain't afraid to die tryin' to save another man's life."

"Very well," I agreed, "I'm with you, Job, we'll try it!"

Meeting—Night Changed

At the regular meeting of the Troop last week, it was unanimously decided by the boys, that, as Friday evening seems to be the popular choice of so many social and other functions in town, the regular meeting night will be Wednesday hereafter. This week however the meeting will be held on Friday night as usual, owing to the final hockey game of the league being played here on Wed. eve.

Boys, What's Your Score

Boys, here is a little test that you can apply to yourselves to find out just how nearly you approach the standard of the real boy, the kind of boy we like. For each of the following ten tests give yourself 10 marks, 1st. when it applies to your own character. Then, when you've finished, see how near or how far away you are from the 100 per cent type.

I. Do you love and respect your parents?

II. Do you ever make fun of old age?

III. Do you ever call anybody bad names,—no matter what any body calls you?

IV. Are you ever cruel to animals?

V. Do you ever tell lies? Even little "white" lies leave black spots on character.

VI. Do you ever make fun of a companion for something he could not help?

VII. Do you always say "No" when asked to do a wrong thing?

VIII. Are you always courteous and respectful to women and girls?

IX. Is your motto: "I'd rather be right than president?"

X. Do you ever cheat in work, or in play?

If your score is 100 per cent for this test, you're the kind of a boy we like and you're the kind of a boy that will prove into a great man. If you're score falls way short of the total, it's time you put a check on yourself and get up to the 100 mark as soon as possible.

Being Prepared

Contributed by Scout Ken Cramer.

The waters of Lake Ontario were becoming very rough where two boys, Bob Shaw and John Smith, came out on the deck of the steamer, Imperial. These boys belonged to the first Windsor Troop of Boy Scouts and had already passed their First Class Tests. The boat which was loaded with passengers, was heading with difficulty toward the Port of Bracton.

The storm became so violent that the Captain could not guide the vessel in her proper course, and despite his utmost efforts, it struck a hidden rock and began to leak badly.

The boys overheard the captain's remarks that it would be almost impossible to land the passengers safely or to make shore—so great was the damage. The wireless operator was off duty on account of serious illness. The Captain called for volunteers who could manage the wireless set.

Back in their home in Hampden John and Bob had had a small set; and when no one offered himself, the boys volunteered their services. At first the Captain laughed at them but when they insisted upon a trial, he agreed. Within a very few minutes the S. O. S. call was sent out and was answered almost immediately. In a short time the rescue boat had them safe in port.

About a week later the two boys were surprised to receive a letter containing two Life-saving badges. The boys; of course would not accept such a reward for what they called "only a good turn;" but the Captain was anxious to repay them. Soon after, therefore, they received word that as soon as they had finished their course in School, they might apply to the United States Service where excellent positions awaited them.

Why Not

Teacher: "Who can tell me the past tense of "is?"

Oscar: "Was."

Victor: "Buzz!"

Last Week!

Last week's meeting was "yarn night" for the boys. After the busiues had been attended to, the boys seated themselves in a circle beneath the electric light which had been darkened down to make the scene a little more "creepy," Then each one took his turn in a yarn and anything from "fish" stories to "ghost," stories were the order of the evening.

Bobby came home from his first day at kindergarten with the announcement that he could write. Upon being given pencil and paper he made his usual meaningless scribbles.

"But what," said his mother, "does it say?"

"How do I know?" answered Bobby. "I haven't learned to read it yet."

Will be Tax on Gasoline

Hon. F. C. Briggs intimated Friday, that so far as he was concerned, the propossed gasoline or travel tax would be imposed. It is understood that a draft bill has been prepared, but that no final decision has been made by the government as to its fate. The odds, however, are against the motorists escaping the new levy, which would probably amount to a cent a gallon.

Farmer Will Be Allowed to Borrow Up to $2,000 for Short Term

Hon. Manning Doherty's promised amendments to the rural credits bills of last session were introduced and given first reading in the House last week. The bills permit of an extension of the benefits of the rural credit system, by raising from $1,000 to $2,000, the maximum short-term loan and by providing for the placing of long-term loans, where a part of the amount is to be used in retiring an existing mortgage. Under the Act as it stands, no loan can be placed on a farm property already mortgaged, but this has worked to the disadvantage of farmers who have small mortages upon their places and want funds to enlarge their operations. No change has been in the stipulation that a Government loan may not be used simply to pay off another loan in order to give the farmer a slightly lower interest rate. Increased production by the farmer remains the basis of the long-term loan scheme.

G. W. V. A. Minstrels Coming Saturday Feby 25th,

(Ottawa Journal Feb. 11th)

"There was a sound of revelry by night," last night and it came from one of those places it would be least expected from, viz, the "Dug Out" where nightly are lodged those of our returned heroes who fought for democracy and a better and brighter world, who are now without a place to lie their weary heads, owing to the drastic unemployment situation. Such is life!

There were about a hundred of the "Bhoys" sitting around in the Dug Out when a big stir was heard without and to their huge snrprise plus delight, the the minstrel troupe of the G. W. V. A. led by Comrade Harry Mee, while in the offing was Col. Rene de Salaberry and other officers, together with a plentiful supply of "fags," hot coffee and fruit. What had been gloom turned to gladness and within a short while the minstrels were in full swing with old time trench melodies, the huudred odd unfortunates joining in with a vim, while every now and then the old slogan "Are We Downhearted?" rang out with a full throated reply "No". The weary days of ceaseless searching for jobs that are not to be had were forgotten for a few short hours, and those who had been in the dumps had fresh courage imparted to them in a brief address by Col. Rene de Salaberry, who spoke of a cheerful optimism that would carry them through no matter how dismal the present might look. He spoke of the old days, and awakened bitter sweet memories for many of those present who would like to be nothing more than to be back of the lines in some quaint old estaminet in far away France, singing "Parley-Vous Mademoiselle—"

The visit of the minstrel troupe and officers was a kindly thing and that it was appreciated by the occupants of the dug-out was made very evident by the hearty cheers which accompanied the visitors when they hied them away upon the conclusion of the festivities.

A mixture of one part paris green to one hundred parts of dust—road dust is good—thrown up in a cloud, to be carried by a light wind and allowed to settle on pools where misquitoes breed, is the newest and most successful method of killing the larvæ. The minute quantity of the poison is not injurious to stock that might drink of the water, and the only possible danger is that of inhaling the dust, which can be guarded. The larvæ of the misquito eat anything that is held suspended by the surface tension of the water, and they are easily poisoned.

At an Orphange in Boston, measles, scarlet fever, mumps and other diseases of children annually afflicted about one third of the 325 inmates. Then the authorities instituted a regular dental service. After eight months of dental work the diseases almost disappeared; from which it is a just assumption that healthy teeth greatly increase the children's powers of resistance.

"Why are you crying, my little man?"

"All my brothers and sisters are having a holiday and I ain't."

"And why not?"

"Because I don't go to school yet!"

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Barkley Honored

On Thursday evening Feb. 16th, there gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Barkley, Connaught, about a hundred friends and neighbors to bid them farewell in view of their intended departure for their new home in Chesterville. The evening was very pleasantly spent in games, dancing, music, while some of the elderly guests entertained the crowd with some of their old time songs which were thoroughly enjoyed and heartily applauded by all. About midnight lunch was served after which an address was read by Annie Manley and a silver pyrex casserole was presented to Mrs. Barkley by Mrs. Jno. Beehler and a leather rocker to Mr. Barkley by Mr. Jno. Norton.

The address follows:—

Dear Mr. and Mrs Barkley:—

It was with much regret that we, your many friends and neighbors, learned of your intended departure from among us, and we take this opportunity of gathering here to-night to bid you a last farewell in our community. Although we know you are not going far, yet we feel we are losing very valuable citizens, and we must fall back to the old saying "what is our loss is another's gain."

As neighbors, you are everything that could be desired, always ready to lend a helping hand when called upon, and, as friends you always rejoiced with others happiness and sympathized with those in sorrow.

Mrs. Barkley, you came in here as a stranger to evervone, you had all our acquaintances to make and in making them you have endeared yourself to us all by your hospitable and sociable manner.

Mr. Barkley, you have always lived among us, and in business as in social circles you have always been a highly valued and respected member and we all considered you both as very needful and helpful in building up and influencing a rural community.

To testify to esteem in which you are held we ask Mrs. Barkley to accept this casserole, and Mr. Barkley this chair, not because of their intrinsic values, but that they might carry with them fond memories of the friends you leave behind.

May the new position you have chosen for life be as great a success as the one you have given up and we feel confident that you both will make many friends, but once in a while in your leisure moments we would ask you to refer a thought to your old home friends.

We all join in wishing you health, happiness, and prosperity wherever be your home or whatever be your position in life. Signed on behalf of neighbors aud friends.

Mr. Barkley in a few words thanked his neighbors and friends in behalf of Mrs. Barkley and himself, after which dancing and the other entertainments were resumed until the we sma' hours, when everyone returned to their homes thoroughly enjoying themselves.

MR. EDWARDS

"I am in my 78th year. About 25 years ago, I began to have trouble with my Stomach. One doctor said I had Cancer; another said, Ulcer of the Stomach; another, Gall Stones; others, Ulcers of the Liver and Inflammation of the Gall Bladder.

Three years ago, I consulted one of the best specialists in Montreal. He said I must go to the hospital, have an Ulcer cut out of my stomach and gall stones removed. I was then 74 years old. I said "NO."

Then, I began to take "Fruit-a-tives". I found they helped me a lot, and I still take them occasionally, and I am so much better that my old friends often ask me what I have done to myself to look so well. I am gaining in weight and enjoying life very much"

Few Highway Accidents Occur on Curves in Roads

The elimination of grade crossings is one of the road phases considered widely. Out of 12,000 persons killed on the highways 7,000 were struck down at road crossings. Investigation has shown also that one motorist in every three is careless at grade crossings, approaching the railroad tracks at reckless speed and without taking due notice of approaching trains.

In 490 cases motorists ran into the trains. In 122 instances autos plunged through the crossing gates.

Nine crossing flagmen were struck down.

In 970 cases in which motorists ran in front of the trains 136 persons were killed and 405 were injured. In 490 cases motor cars stalled on the crossing and were demolished. Forty-three cars actual y collided with the danger signals.

An investigation conducted recently by roads commission demonstrated that most highway accidents occur on long stretches of road instead of at the curves and are due to speeding or reckless driving, rather than skidding.

A total of $4,600,000 was paid out in death claims by insurance companies for the 12,000 persons killed on the highways last year. In addition to the fatalities there were 1,500,000 non-fatal injuries.

Floating Theatre On The St Lawrence

(Ogdensburg News)

It is reported here that an amusement company of Buffalo is formulating plans for placing a large modern boat show in commission the coming season between Buffalo and Montreal. While such project would be a great novelty on the St. Lawrence, boat shows have been very popular on the Ohio and Mississippi rivers, every Spring a dozen of these big craft leaving Pittsburg on their eight months' trip to New Orleans. The boats are 220 ft in length, 40 ft. in width, light draft and contain a regular modern theatre seating 1,400 people? It is towed by a powerful tug. The organization will carry its own band and orchestra and also a high-powered steam calliope on its upper deck. The shows will be given in the various ports along the lake and river, as for instance on the St. Lawrence, the boat would tie up at Kingston, Cape Vincent, Gananoque, Clayton, Thousand Island Park, Alexandria Bay, Brockville and Ogdensburg. The performers and musicians live aboard the show boat, having accommodations on the upper deck, the main body of the boat being occupied by the theatre.

The boats have a modern stage, lighting, equipment, comfortable opera chairs etc. Band concerts are given at noon and preceding the perfromance at night on the dock, while the big calliope awakens the people to the fact that something extraordinary ls about to happen in their midst.

Don't Be So Bashful!

(The Khan, in Toronto Telegram.)

I think that one reason there is so much dissatisfaction and unrest in the world is because when we ask for a thing and get it we are disgusted with ourselves because we didn't ask for more.

I remember sitting down at the base of the Wolfe-Montcalm monument at Quebec and reading an historic document a treaty in fact. And when I got through I pinched myself to find out if I were awake. Who won the battle of the Plains of Abraham any way? I had hitherto been under the impression that the British did. But this here document don't look like it. If there was anything that the French-Canadians didn't get it must have been something that they didn't want, for, by hedges, they got all they asked for and more, too. That's all that's been the matter with Bateese. He has been kicking himself ever since because he didn't ask for more and still more!

Always ask for plenty when your at it, don't be bashful. Now, there's the prohibitionists. They tear their hair and howl prodigious. They are just beginning to realize that they might of had more. They know now that all they needed to do was to ask for it and they would have got it. When they were putting this country on the Injin list there was a whole lot of torturer-at-the-stake stuff that they didn't think of at the time and now they want to have the act overhauled. They are conscious of the fact that they were far too modest and bashful about it at the start. They could of fixed it so that you couldn't invite a few friends to dinner without a permit from the Lord High Executor, who would send an ex convict to sit on the side board during the repast and see to it that not more than three guests got any beer. Generations yet unborn will curse these people. They had a chance to make Prohibition prohibit and what did they do? They didn't ask for enough.

JOHN DETSON, HERO

Chapt. III. Facing The Blizzard

"Oh, thank you, sir! Thank you." Tears were in John's eyes and for a moment he choked. It's pretty nearly got me, too, and when I saw how pleased he was, I was glad we were going. As Job had suggested, if we never got through we should at least die trying to save another man's life. It took some nerve of course to make the decision, and there really wasn't anything else we could have done and Job and I both knew it.

When John could speak again, he went on, "you won't get lost, when you gets on the run ice, the dogs will take you straight to our house. They knows the way. They knows that the first shelter, and they'll go straight for it. I'll pray God to pilot you, sir!"

I got my surgical kit ready and Job and I put on our skin clothes and drew extra duffle and two pairs of deer skin moccasins on our feet. Under our deerskin kulutuks we wore our kersey adickeys and both of us wore our warmest mittens. He lighted a lantern and went out into the storm. I thought it would smother us before we could make the turn toward the buildings. The lantern was useless, and we could see nothing; but the wind had kept the snow off the the walk and we felt our way along it with our feet to the shop.

There was a ten foot komatik in there, and we lashed on it our skin sleeping bags, a bag of dry fish for the dogs, and the komatik box. I always keep the box supplied with provisions and a cooking kit, and this time I put my surgical kit in also.

"The dogs were lying about somewhere outside, covered by the drift, but when Job called them, they came, hoping for something to eat. We hitched nine of them within the shelter of the shop, and old tinker as leader. He's a surely old brute, but the finest leader that ever followed a trail. He knows every cabin along the coast, too for a hundred miles north and south of the post, and he'll carry you straight.

"We had hard work beating the dogs out of the shelter and getting through the drift to the sea ice. But once there, we found it clear, as John had said we would, and the dogs started down wind at a gallop. They hardly had to pull at all Sometimes I think they were hard put to it to keep the traces straight ahead of the komatik, for the gale swept us before it.

"I could not see the dogs. I could not even see Job sitting directly in front of me on the komatik. I could not have seen the length of the komatik if it had been broad day, and now the night was as black as ink.

"Even with my back to the storm, I was soon numb with cold, and I could not understand how flesh and blood could have faced it for a hundred yards, yet John had faced it for ten miles. At times the whirling snow choked me almost to suffocation, and I was forced to lay my face down on the komatik to protect it while I caught my breath.

"I have been out in many a raging blizzard but never a blizzard like that, and I hope I shall never again be called upon to repeat the experience. I believe with the Eskimos that hell is a place of eternal blizzards and fearful cold, cold that eats to the marrow of your bones. That ride was an eternity of torture to me, and I found myself repeating. 'Dear Lord, preserve us!' Dear Lord, preserve us.'

"All at once, Job shouted back at me: 'The lead! The lead! I forgot the drag!'

Gone Are The Days

Composed by Scout Stewart MacMillan.

Gone are the days of our primary school,
Where we romped and played under strictest rule,
Our lessons were done without a shirk,
We passed our Entrauce—but had to work!
Our First Form day has reached its "night"
Where we had to work with all our might
Our lessons weren't done—but we conquered the storm,
And in the following June we made Second Form.
The Second Form days are fleeing fast,
Autumn is gone and Christmas past.
Our work's never done—we've broken the rule,
Oh! I don't see how we'll pass Lower School.

Are You Popular?

Some boys have dozens of friends others have none at all. Why is it?

Well, if your friends are few and far between, just study yourself, and you will find the reason.

A boy with a cheerful nature always has pals. His sunny smiles and jokes draw friends just like a flame draws a moth. So, also does the boy who is unselfish. But the boy who seldom keeps a friend for long is he who always wants his own way—likes to receive more than he gives—and has a face as long as a wet week.

Summing it all up, then, the solution is this: Cheerfulness plus Unselfishness equals Friendship plus Happiness.

February 22nd, B. P's Birthday

Yesterday, Feb. 22nd, was a red-letter day in the history of Scouting the world over. It was the birthday of Sir Robert Baden Powell, the man who started the Boy Scouts; the man who indirectly is responsible for the introduction of a movement which, in years to come is going to be the greatest benefactor of boys throughout the civilized world.

Sir Robert Baden Powell started Scouting because he had become alarmed at the number of boys entering manhood without a promise of amounting to very much. He saw that, as boys, they were not very happy; they did not have enough chance to play, and their play seemed to be of the wrong kind. Also they weren't paying sufficient attention to what they were going to be when they grew up. He saw boys everywhere entering "blind- alley" occupations--positions which offered no opportunities for advancement; or they were just picking up odd jobs here and there to earn a little ready money.

He saw that they were just fooling away their time, and were neither healthy nor happy and that when they grew up they were going to be poor men, both in money and in character. In 1907, he took some boys to an island and taught them Scouting, and when he saw how happy it made them, he decided to write a book about it. He wrote "Scouting for Boys" and everyone liked it and Scouting grew and grew until now it is known in nearly every country in the world.

Good Opening

One of our Boy Scouts went into a certain place the other day and said, "Have you an opening, sir, for a bright industrious Boy Scout?

"Yes" growled the man who is against everything concerning boys "and don't slam it when you go out!"

The Ladies Aid of the Methodist church are to be congratulated on one of the most amusing and unique entertainments of the season entitled, "An old Time Ladies Aid Business meeting at Mohawk Crossroads" after practising only two weeks. The stage was made to look like an old time sitting room, while the ladies in their old fashioned dresses and bonnets were grotesque and laughable indeed. So well did each lady perform her part that to make special mention of any one would be doing an injustice to others, and space would not permit the mention of all. The hall was packed to the doors and the audience was unanimous in the praise of the performance.
