Chesterville asks to be left out of amalgamation plans

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE – The village of Chesterville has asked its municipal partners in SD&G to exempt it from the amalgamation proposal scheduled to take effect on January 1.

Citing a number of precedents in eastern Ontario, Chesterville has sent a two-page letter to the 19 municipalities of the United Counties expressing the village's "desire to remain as a village municipality within the United Counties of SD&G."

The letter is signed by Chesterville's five council members, and is intended to be a lead-in to a second counties council vote on SD&G's amalgamation proposal, one that excludes Chesterville.

Counties council meets early next week, and Chesterville has asked that the issue be dealt with.

"It's one more effort, one more attempt to see if we can stay the way we are," Chesterville Reeve Jim Cook said Monday, adding he does not know whether the request will be voted on as early as next week. Such a vote would need the approval of 11 municipalities that represent at least 51 per cent of the United Counties' electorate.

Cook said he has not had contact with a sufficient number of counties council members to get a feel for how the request will be received.

The village opposed the accepted amalgamation scenario since it was first and Mountain townships as the municipality of North Dundas. Chesterville has long indicated its preferences, that the village remain as it is, or if amalgamation is necessary that all of Dundas become one municipality without an upper or county tier. The village has participated in discussions about amalgamation as a member of the North Dundas Transition Committee, but maintains it has yet to be shown concretely where any savings will come from as a result of amalgamation.

The letter to colleague municipalities points out that an accepted amalgamation proposal for Leeds & Grenville allows the villages of Athens and Westport to remain as separate and distinct municipalities. Also, the letter notes portions of Prescott-Russell are exempt from local scenarios.

"It has become undeniably clear, and precedence now exists to confirm such an exemption is acceptable by upper tier government and by the Minister of Municipal Affairs," the village writes. "With this in mind, Chesterville Village Council respectfully requests each municipal council in SD&G to review and consider our desire to remain as a village municipality within the United Counties of SD&G."

NDTC restricts election signage

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE – Campaign signs are a sure sign that a municipal election is on the horizon. And the North Dundas Transition Committee is taking steps to make sure those signs are safe to traffic and the environment as well as pleasing to the eye.

The Committee Thursday night unanimously approved a municipal election signs policy designed to restrict campaign signs to private property in North Dundas, signs expected to pop up soon promoting local candidates in the November 10 vote.

The policy is expected to be ratified by the NDTC's four member councils, Chesterville, Winchester, Winchester Township and Mountain Township.

The policy, suggested and designed by Winchester Township member Wyman Barton, states that ``no sign or other advertising devices shall be erected in such a manner as to obstruct the vehicular traffic."

According to the policy, the four municipalities agree that municipal election signs will not be permitted on public property, defined as on roadways and hydro and telephone poles.

Anyone who breaches the policy will be asked to remove the sign immediately. If the sign is not removed within 24 hours of the request, the sign will be removed by the municipality's roads superintendent.

Barton said he raised the issue with the NDTC several months ago, and was asked to prepare a specific policy.

He said the new North Dundas council, which will take power January 1, would be ecpected to adapt the policy into a bylaw for future municipal elections.

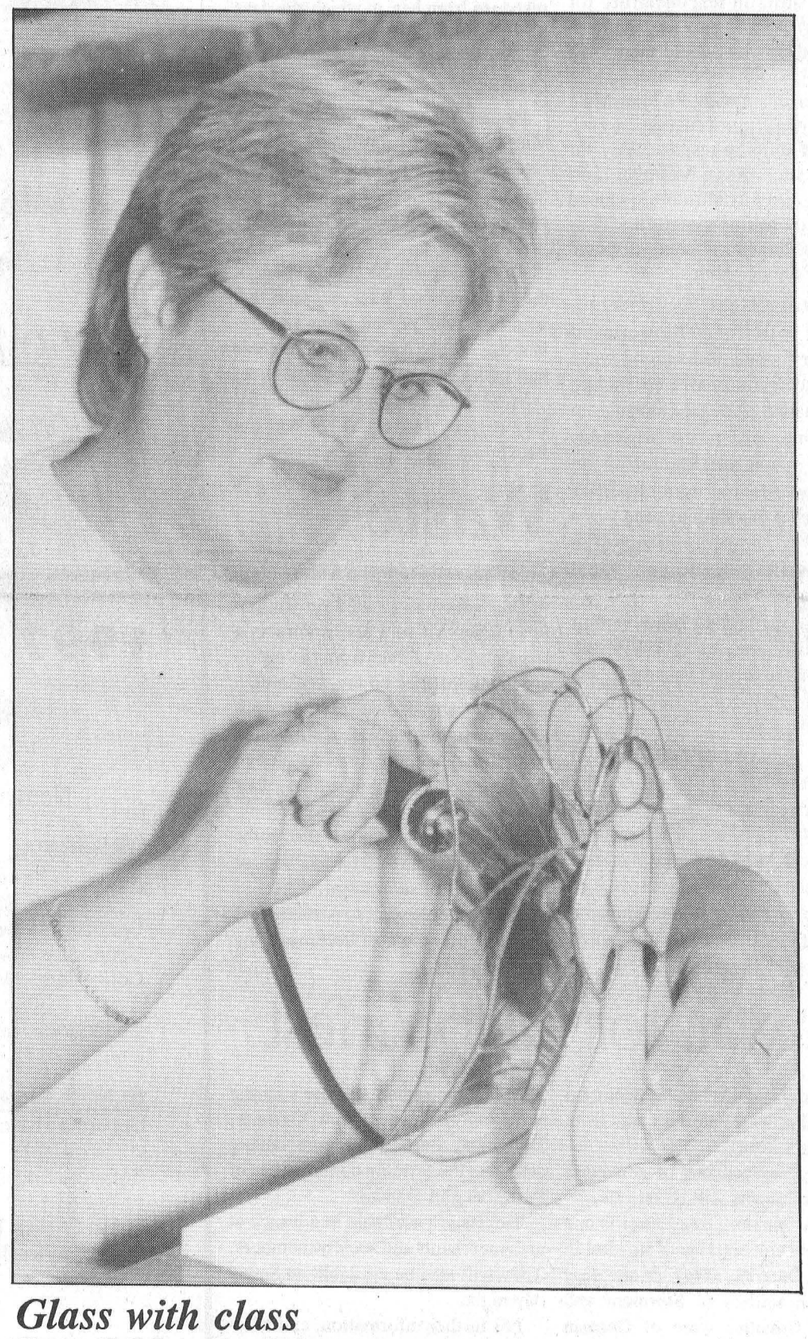
Barton also said he feels it is important to make candidates as well as the general public aware of the new policy.

Meanwhile, the elections returning officer for North Dundas has given notice of the nomination procedures for the November 10 municipal election. Candidates must file papers by Friday, October 10 for the mayor's position and two council positions for each of the existing municipalities.

As far as school board elections, a separate French trustee will be shared with North Stormont and Russell, and a separate English trustee will be shared with North Stormont, South Stormont and South Dundas.

The English public board trustee will be shared with South Dundas, and the French public board trustee shared with South Glengarry, South Stormont, South Dundas and Leeds & Grenville.

Advanced voting can be done at the current municipal offices in each ward on November 1 and 5 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.



Glass with class

Chesterville's Cathy Hunt discovered the art of stained glass only seven months ago, but quickly found it to be a rewarding and useful hobby. Hunt started in the craft by making suncatchers, followed by lamps, ornaments such as this angel and windows for homes. Hunt, who lives on Queen Street East, has recently shared her experience in the craft with two friends, and says she is willing to take on other students.

Auction kickoff for St. Mary's playground fundraising

Greg Hewitt

CHESTERVILLE -- A silent auction later this month will mark the kickoff of an ambitious fundraising campaign for new playground equipment at St. Mary's School in Chesterville.

The silent auction will likely be the first of many fundraisers, with a goal of between $25,000 and $30,000 for the project.

Sharon Anderegg, a member of the committee orchestrating the drive, says it is hoped the new playground will be in the ground in time for the start of the next school year, a year from now.

The community fundraising drive will cover the entire cost of the new playground equipment. Anderegg notes when installed, the new playground will be available to all young members of the community, not just St. Mary's students.

The silent auction will be held at the school, on William Street in Chesterville, from 7 to 9 p.m. on Thursday, September 25. It is being held in conjunction with a meet-the-teacher night and open house the school is holding. A model of the playground will be on display during the evening.

So far, items donated to the auction include a week of day camp at the Shaun Lee Riding Club, a day at the spa from A Touch of Beauty in Morewood and a personalized sketch of the successful bidder's choice by Crysler artist Lloyd Kearns.

All members of the community, not just parents, are welcome to attend and participate.

Residents will have to pay to use household waste depot

Rich Thorpe
Record Staff

INGLESIDE — Osnabruck Township residents wishing to use the City of Cornwall's Household Special Waste Facility are going to have to pay for it themselves.

According to Larry Ezard, the Township's roads superintendent who is also responsible for waste management, Osnabruck residents will have to pay the $25 fee upfront.

"We usually have a hazardous waste day every two or three years," Ezard told the Record on Tuesday morning.

The City of Cornwall sent letters to Osnabruck Township, Cornwall Township and Charlottenburgh Township seeking an arrangement to allow the city to recoup its costs.

"I don't think we're going to be paying $25 each time someone from Osnabruck uses it," he said. "The township feels if the residents need to use the service they can pay for it themselves."

Bill de Wit, the Waste Management Co-ordinator for the City of Cornwall said his department is trying to come up with a solution that will be beneficial to all parties.

Presently, people using the facility from outside Cornwall are asked to fill out a sheet to determine where they reside.

de Wit said the City of Cornwall wants to recover its costs for the facility.

"We would give the municipalities some options," he said. "They could participate and we would invoice them based on the number of tickets. We could charge each individual $25 per visit. Or we could just turn them away. It's a real dilemma for us. We don't want to turn anyone away."

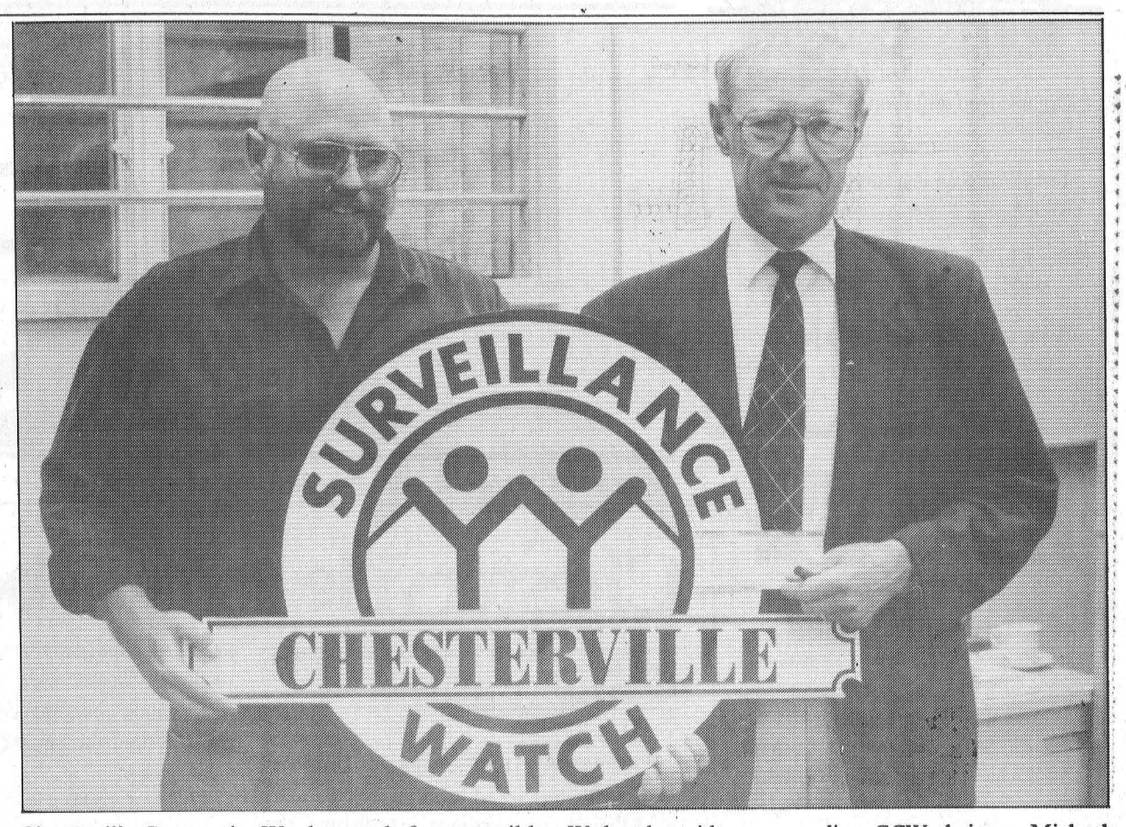
Upper Canada Village's own collection of antique and reproduction quilts dating back from the early 1800s will e on display throughout the site.

Visitors will be able to witness a gathering of Village interpreters as they will be working on a Double Irish Chain quilt.



Chesterville Community Watch came before council last Wednesday with some goodies. CCW chairman Michael Hunt, left, presented council with a cheque for $100 to go toward the group's expenses, as well as a Community Watch sign that will be posted at a village entrance. Council quickly decided to spend the $100 on additional signs to be posted at village entrances. With Hunt is Chesterville Reeve Jim Cook.

Chesterville wants out of amalgamation plan

The village explains that while it would prefer to have its own member of counties council, it is prepared to discuss having the elected mayor of North Dundas as one of its representatives, as long as the village's electors are permitted to participate in the election of that mayor.

The letter suggests two members of Chesterville council be allowed to participate in the new North Dundas council until the selection of its second representative to counties council, the deputy reeve, is selected from the eight North Dundas council members. And if the North Dundas council is reorganized, that the village be allowed to participate.

And, "Should Chesterville Village Council wish to amalgamate with the Township of North Dundas in the future, the Village of Chesterville ratepayers will bear all expenses of the amalgamation."

A key element in the issue is the question of a smaller municipality's ability to survive on its own without provincial transfer payments, which are being phased out.

Cook says if council didn't believe the village could survive on its own, it wouldn't have requested being left out of the North Dundas amalgamation scenario.

Cook said some village residents have approached him and told him they would prefer that the village not amalgamate with the three other North Dundas municipalities, even if it means a local tax increase.

And, "If the premier's pinky-swear is worth anything, and in fact all the (shifts in responsibility for services) is going to be revenue-neutral, then why should there by a problem?" Cook asks.

Earlier this month, Premier Mike Harris was quoted as saying proposed shifts in responsibility for things such as education and policing costs would not download costs to municipalities. That principle, though, is being disputed by many municipalities.

The village has been meeting with its solicitor behind closed doors for months to examine ways of asserting its desire to escape amalgamation. A legal challenge in the Toronto area to the province's right to force amalgamation on school boards and municipalities failed earlier this summer, and was a setback to municipalities like Chesterville fighting local proposals.

Cook said the request for exemption was a decision the village made while waiting to see whether that court decision is appealed.

Cook added while he is not 100 per cent certain whether the province will allow the exemption even if it is granted at the county level, local MPP Noble Villeneuve has indicated he will ``do his best to do whatever he can at the provincial level" should further encouragement be required.

Service

Rev. Robert Assaly of St. Matthias Anglican Church has a special place for Mother Teresa. He wrote to her in the 1980s, and received a personal response from her, in which she gave him encouragement and asked him to pray for her and her Missionaries of Charity.

Mother Teresa was founder of the Missionaries of Charity, and dedicated her life to comforting the poor in the slums of India. She was awarded a Nobel Peace Prize for her work.

An offering will be taken to benefit the Dundas Food Bank, a cause that is in tune with person being remembered, Assaly says. Refreshments will be served following the service.

St. Matthias Church is on St. Lawrence Street across from Becker's.

Waste

The facility is located on County Road 2 de Wit said and it attracts a large number of cars from the outlying municipalities on the weekend.

"You have people coming into town on Highway Two from Ingleside on Saturday and they make a stop at the facility before going onto other business."

de Wit said he knows that some people regard the $25 fee as steep for the disposal of such waste.

"Most people want to participate," he said. "But the cost becomes a big question."

Avonmore can't wait for Oktoberfest

AVONMORE — They'll be partying into the late summer night in Avonmore this weekend.

The Roxborough Agricultural Society is presenting its third annual Avonmore Oktoberfest on Saturday night under the tent at the Avonmore Fairgrounds.

The festivities begin at 7 p.m. with a buffet dinner featuring a wide range of authentic and deficious Oktoberfest foods. Edelweiss, a Montreal band will provide entertainment from 8 p.m. to 1 a.m.

A large assortment of souvenirs and refreshments will be on sale.

The Avonmore Oktoberfest is one of the few celebrations of its kind in Eastern Ontario. Many of the first European settlers in Stormont and Dundas Counties were of German origin.

In fact the region still has a strong European influence with German, Dutch and Swiss immigrants having settled in the farming communities of Stormont and Dundas.

Tickets are available in advance at area merchants and society members. They will also be available on Saturday night.

A new era begins

Homestead Organics (1997) Ltd., in Berwick held its official opening on Sunday afternoon. The elevator and feed mill is the only one of its kind in Eastern Ontario dedicated to organic agriculture. On hand for the official ribbon cutting were, from left to right, Homestead Organics founder Murray Manley, Finch Township Reeve Floyd Dingwall, the Honorable Noble Villeneuve, MPP for SD&G and Minister of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs, Stormont- Dundas MP Bob Kilger and Homestead Organics owner Tom Manley.

Berwick's business community bolstered by mill opening

Rich Thorpe

BERWICK — A second generation of the Manley clan is hoping to capitalize on the growing niche market of organic agriculture.

Homestead Organics was founded more than 10 years ago by Murray and Caroline Manley. In the mid-1980s, they switched from a large dairy operation to organic cash crops. A move that was challenging and rewarding.

On Sunday afternoon more than 100 well-wishers were on hand for the grand opening of Homestead Organics' Elevator and Feed Mill in Berwick. It is the first full service organic grain elevator and feed mill in Eastern Ontario.

Homestead Organics (1997) Ltd., is owned by Tom Manley, who is joining the family business after a career in telecommunications.

"Today is a testimonial to the progress of organic agriculture in general and particularly in Eastern Ontario," Tom Manley said. "Among all the friends, consumers and farmers I talk to now, no one asks anymore: What is organic? From a small group of pioneers several years ago, organic agriculture is now entering mainstream society."

"There are great and increasing numbers of consumers who request organic foods for various reasons," Manley continued. "Whatever the reason, nutrition and taste, their health or the environment, the customer is always right."

In a study released by Agri-Food Canada in 1995, it was determined that organic food comprised between one to three per cent of the Canadian retail food market.

Industry analysts believe by the year 2000, the organic market share will increase to 10 per cent of consumer retail purchases. In the last six years the organic industry has grown by 20 per cent.

"To support the growing organic market, Homestead Organics actively seeks new growers for the 1998 season," Manley said. "This real market is in need of real support from the public institutions that support all agri-food markets we know today."

The Honorable Noble Villeneuve, MPP for SD&G and East Grenville and Minister of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs praised the Manley family for their foresight and entrepreneurial skills.

"Organic agriculture is becoming a niche market that needed to be tapped," he said. "Over the years I've often driven through Berwick on my way back and forth from Toronto. It's always been intriguing to me to see what Murray had growing in his fields on the banks of the mighty Nation, whether it was sunflowers, canola or soybeans."

Villeneuve mentioned his ministry is seriously considering implementing regulations on organic agriculture to ensure it does not fall victim to companies that do not follow accepted organic agriculture standards.

"I want to emphasize that we have a job to do together," he said.

Bob Kilger, MP for Stormont-Dundas was also in attendance.

"This is a wonderful addition to what already is a vibrant and diverse agriculture industry in SD&G," he said.

Finch Township Reeve Floyd Dingwall noted he was pleased the facility was re-opened and that it would continue to be an important part of the local economy.

During a tour of the facility following the official ribbon cutting ceremony, Tom Manley noted that more than $200,000 in capital had been invested in the building through a variety of sources.

"With the assistance of the Bank of Montreal, we qualified for a mortgage guarantee under the Small Business Loans Act," he said.

Homestead qualified for the CanAdapt Program, Manley said. It is designed for initiatives that will foster long-term growth, financial self- sufficiency and generate long-term growth and create jobs.

A grant was awarded to Homestead Organics for the upgrading of the building's electrical system. In addition the CanAdapt program offered a letter of credit to the Manleys to allow them to obtain a grain dealers license.

"Your father was certainly well ahead of his time," Villeneuve said during the tour. "There is tremendous potential here."

Manley explained the company's scope of activities will include the purchasing, drying, storage, cleaning, bagging and wholesale distribution of organic whole grains to the human food market.

Its second market is the production of organic animal feed for the regional organic meat, dairy, egg and poultry farms.

Their suppliers will come from an area with boundaries stretching from Kingston to Montreal and north to Pembroke and into western Quebec, Manley said.

The elevator can handle loads right off the wagon or from transport trucks.

It has the capacity to store up to 30 tonnes of grains and the warehouse will be able to house up to 60 tonnes of processed grain, Manley said.

Van Loo takes on new challenge

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

CANTON N.Y. -- A friendly face to eastern Ontario farmers for 20 years is now tackling new challenges south of the border.

Bill Van Loo, former dairy adviser and farm business adviser for the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs, has taken his talents to Cornell Co-operative Extension, out of Cornell University in Malone, New York. He started his new position, still in farm business management, August 28.

Van Loo's position with OMAFRA was deemed surplus in mid-July. The position was changed to become only farm business management, and designated bilingual, a position for which he didn't qualify.

Van Loo says he could have "bumped" to take another position with OMAFRA, but "decided to take my chances elsewhere." He learned of the position with Cornell through the Internet. "I applied and was very fortunate to get something right away," he says.

Working in another country will mean becoming familiar with the lay of the land, and becoming familiar with some differences in the way programs are administered. But at the same time, Van Loo says, there is much that is similar when it comes to agriculture in northern New York State.

Van Loo will work out of offices in Malone, in Franklin County, and in Canton, in St. Lawrence County. He says 90 per cent of the agriculture, at least in Franklin County, is dairy. In St. Lawrence County, dairy and forestry are big. But there is diversity in both counties, he says, with such farming as cash crops, horticulture, greenhouses and maple syrup.

In farm business management, Van Loo tackles the financial aspects of agriculture. Programs he's working on now include dairy farm business summaries, small business development and economic development

"It's just going to take time to get up to speed," Van Loo says of the differences, "but as far as the basic principles of farm business management, there's really not any difference. And with this type of position, you have to hit the ground running."

The state-and-federally-funded program he works for is much the same as extension programs in Ontario, he says.

One difference he's already seen, though, is in the size of some dairy farms. One near Malone is milking 800 head, double the number milked by the largest dairy farms in Ontario. "But I also see dairy farms that are the same." Van Loo says some dairy farmers in his new turf are getting into organic milk production, something he hadn't seen in eastern Ontario.

Another difference is the size of the local market. St. Lawrence County alone has a population of 125,000, and New York State has a population of 18 million. "It's a huge market compared to Ontario."

Van Loo says his experience with OMAFRA provided much that will serve him well in his new role, and says it's likely he'll learn new things in New York that he can share with friends in Ontario. He calls it "a two-way cross fertilization."

Van Loo currently lives in Ingleside, but says he will eventually make the move to the United States. But he says even though there's an international border to cross, he's not that far away from the friends he made while working in eastern Ontario, and wants to stay in touch.

"I have many fond memories," Van Loo says of his time with OMAFRA. "I certainly enjoyed working with the many farm organizations and others."

Last stand?

With just three months remaining until municipal elections and less than four months before amalgamation is scheduled to take effect, Chesterville is making what could be its last stand. 'Renegade' Chesterville council is standing up for the village, for its future. Council is standing up for what it believes is best for its people.

Chesterville has asked, respectfully, that United Counties council undertake a second vote on the local amalgamation proposal, one that exempts the village. One that allows Chesterville to keep bein' Chesterville.

The precedence for such an exemption in the midst of amalgamania exists elsewhere in eastern Ontario. But nonetheless, the village's request will surely be looked upon by some as folly; as much as the village's resistance to the current proposal has furrowed eyebrows all along.

In essence, it is a gamble. But in a democratic society, it should be permitted. When we elected the current slate of councillors in 1994, we gave them authority to make decisions on our behalf. We counted on their wisdom to guide us through the challenges of the modern day. This is perhaps the ultimate example in that vein, but the principle remains the same.

Remember, Chesterville was one of only two or three SD&G municipalities that held public meetings to inform residents of the prospects of amalgamation. A public show of hands, albeit not recent, ''empowered'' the village to continue its resistance.

The main concept behind municipal amalgamation has to do with a municipality being large enough to sustain itself without provincial transfer payments. Provincial transfers have dwindled over the past few years, and are to be phased out completely in the near future.

But look closely at Chesterville's argument: to this day, no study has shown the taxpayers of the village will save a cent because of amalgamation. No one has offered credible and complete information that shows Chesterville and its taxpayers will save money. Can the village be blamed for not wanting to leap into the abyss when the bottom can't be seen?

Why shouldn't Chesterville council have a say in the future of the village, for pete's sake? Why was it the decision up to someone else in the first place?

If Chesterville is granted its request, only time will tell whether the rogue village is able to survive or whether for reasons of economy it must belatedly join its North Dundas colleagues, tail between its legs, and risk being told, '' I told you so.''

But in the meantime, the fact that an elected body has weighed its options very carefully and made a decision, in good faith, must be respected. Political will has been shown, and in a democratic system, should not be treated lightly.

Off The Record

A very public response to private grief

A family on the throne is an interesting idea. It brings down the pride of sovereignty to the level of petty life.

Walter Bagehot (1826-77), English economist, critic. The English Constitution, ch. 2 (1867).

By Robin Morris
Grieving Editor

Sorry, but I could have sworn the whole Princess Dianathon was about privacy. If she hadn't been chased by the intrusive "stalkarazzi", there would have been no accident in the tunnel beside the Seine. If she and Prince Charles had not been fodder for the gutter press, there would probably not have been a divorce, which further fuelled demand for the most intimate details of their lives, including a spate of "kiss and sell" books by every upper class twit even tangentially connected to the Royal Family.

The wailing, gnashing of teeth and rending of garments in front of Buckingham and Kensington Palaces (which has continued unabated in a sort of mourning after) was supposedly the British public's response to the tragedy of a young mother taken from us in her prime, her promise unfulfilled, her children motherless, all in the name of the insatiable appetite of a parasitic mass media.

Yeah right.

This was the same public made so inconsolable by the ultimate invasion of Diana's privacy that it demanded that the Queen leave her grandsons and truck on down to London where she could become a supporting actress in this latter-day version of Abelard and Heloise.

Now before you think I'm being cynical, let me explain. I am an unabashed, unapologetic monarchist. My family has been in Dundas County for over 200 years as a result of their loyalty to the Crown during the unpleasantness of the American War of Independence and I'm not about to betray their legacy.

And I bought into the whole thing, lock, stalkers and tiara. I was glued to CNN from the minute I heard about the accident on Aug. 31; I've read every word in the legitimate press (which, with a stretch, includes the Sun) I could get my hands on; I signed a book of condolence; I cruised the Internet looking for Diana discussion groups; Mrs. Morris and I got up at 4:30 Saturday to watch the funeral; we went to Kingston to watch the Princess of Wales Own Regiment parade to St. George's Cathedral; when we got home we watched funeral on CBC Newsworld again, then it was A&E's Biography on Dodi el Fayed and CNN's special on William and Harry; we devoured the details throughout the week; mused on the minutiae, and probed the particulars. Sixteen years ago we had gotten up to watch her wedding. And now her funeral. Matched and despatched. (And in the interim we read with interest as she hatched the Heir and the Spare.)

Like you, Gentle Reader, we quickly became experts on the intricacies of French privacy and impaired driving laws (this is a country where drinking is a way of life and yet the impaired limit is .05 - go figure), the amounts paid for intrusive photographs of celebrities, and the line of succession to the throne just in case everyone short of Princess Anne decided to pack it in and become teaboys at Harrod's.

We speculated that the Queen's seemingly frosty response to the tragedy being played out on television sets could mean the end of the monarchy, at least as we know it. We felt that unless she got herself quickly down to London, the Flower Revolution being played out around the world would be like the Glorious Revolution of 1688 and the House of Windsor, fixated on protocol and tradition, would find itself like the House of Stuart, replaced in a bloodless coup and sent into a 300-year exile (coincidentally, Diana, the supposed People's Princess, was descended from the Stuarts and in Prince William the two royal houses are finally united, putting to rest, I'm sure, the wandering soul of Bonnie Prince Charlie and the thousands of Highlanders butchered by Prince Charles's ancestors throughout much of the 18th century).

The public, the gutter press and television got its way as Her Majesty read her three-minute statement Friday afternoon and was immediately criticized for not telling the world how much she, unlike the millions of mourners who had never met the princess, had loved her. Somehow I don't think the L-world figures in Her Maj's vocabulary. Duty, and honor, yes. Tawdry sentimentality? Nyetsky.

She wasn't even allowed a week to mourn her loss and comfort her suddenly motherless grandchildren. It seemed as if her grief had to be made public by those who deplored invasions of privacy in order for the whatever it was we millions of wet-eyed mourners were feeling to be validated. Anyway, we got our wishes: the stiff upper lip led us wobbly chins as the "tearanny" of the masses supplanted the reserve of the monarch. Instead of our head of state, we had the Queen as grieving ex-mother-in-law of a dead pop star. We had lost a princess, not a Janet Jackson.That should make the Yankees happy.

The one person who snapped it back into focus for us was Diana's brother, Earl Spencer, who during his eulogy openly criticized the Windsors' lack of warmth and the press's role in hounding Diana to her death. It was the Spencer family, less constrained by tradition than the royals, who insisted on the private interment on the island on the family's ancestral estate, excluding the public and all but one member of the press from this final act of remembrance. The wishes of the earl and the family were that Diana be laid to rest privately, an almost Arthurian touch to a latter-day legend, and given that earls are addressed as Your Grace, in the process they have prevented Althorp from becoming a British version of Elvis's final resting pace, a sort of Your Graceland.

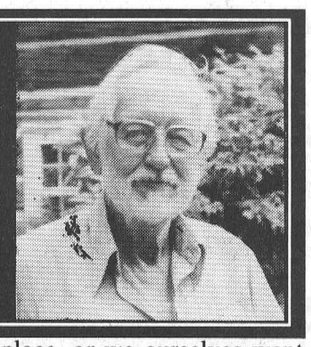
It was ironic after his eulogy that the applause that filled Westminster Abbey started outside and moved into the back of the church and then hestitantly throughout the 1,000-year-old sanctuary until our social betters took their cue from us, the great unwashed, in a remarkable response to a remarkable set of words.

I don't know about you, GR, but I felt guilty Friday and Saturday that I was treating the death of Mother Teresa so lightly. I heard abouat it on CFRA at 3 p.m. Friday and immediately hit the car radio button to find another station with more details about Diana. I know I should have paid more attention to the death of a true modern day saint, but she was like a plate of spinach while Diana was like a pile of Snickers bars. I know the former was better for me, but the latter was irrrestible.

I had no idea until she died of the power Diana had over me. And I wish someone could explain it to me.

Cross Roads

By Clarence Cross



It used to be a rule that there were two things you never brought up in a conversation - religion and politics. This reflected how important and personal these matters were in people's lives. Obituaries often included the faith and the political affiliation of the deceased, something you never see in modern times.

When my great-grandfather, Silas Cross, brought his family to Canada in 1836, they belonged to the Church of England. But in this area there was no Anglican congregation. In fact, there were no churches of my denomination. There were occasional visits by "saddlebag Methodist preachers" who would hold services at the house or barn of someone like Andrew Summers, or by Roman Catholic priests from Morrisburg to Chesterville where the mission church was built in 1851.

There were two Methodist sects in this area: Wesleyan Methodists, who were mainly direct immigrants from England; and Episcopal Methodist, from the United States. Since the Methodists had originally split off from the Church of England, it was natural for Silas to adhere to the Wesleyan Methodists. Some of his children later belonged to the Episcopal Methodist Church. Chesterville had a church of each sect. In the 1880s the two sects (and other splinter groups) joined to form the Methodist Church of Canada. By this time there was also an Anglican and a Presbyterian church.

I didn't intend to get into a discussion of the churches themselves, but I wanted to show that the pioneers on their arrival didn't find a familiar religious environment. Many of them had their own bibles and family rituals like daily readings and bedtime prayers. Women seemed to take the main responsibility for religion in the home. If the marriage was inter-faith, the children were more likely to be brought up in the mother's religion. Sometimes the boys took the father's, and the girls the mother's religion. This must have caused problems in these families.

My mother, a faithful Methodist, was active in the Missionary Society, taught a Sunday school class, and took us boys along regularly. Father never went to church, except possibly for a funeral of a good friend. We boys signed the Temperance Pledge, and observed a quiet Sunday - no games or sports. Often on Sunday, there were visitors at our place, or we ourselves went to visit relatives. While the grown-ups visited, we boys amused ourselves by looking for wild berries or birds' nests. It was fun searching strange barns for pigeon's nests, which of course we never disturbed. But it galled us that other boys could play ball or hockey on Sunday. We never had grace before meals unless we had visitors who mother knew would expect it.

My grandfather, Cornelius Cross, was active in Methodist church affairs. Although he was seventy-five at the time that the present Trinity United Church was built, he acted as building superintendent. A lot of the work and material was donated by parishioners, and I have been told that grandpa had arguments with some of them about the quality of their home-made concrete blocks - not enough cement, or the sand wasn't sharp. Sometimes these arguments evolved into discussions about who was the better Methodist. Grandpa didn't live to see his fears realized, when the main bell tower was condemned as unsafe, and had to be taken down. Over the years many of the concrete blocks have had to be replaced.

My cousin Lera Fetterly McKee told me some years ago how she went to church with her mother and grandparents. "Grandpa always staged an attack of asthma in the vestibule until the sermon started. He had no patience with people gaping around at what hats some people were wearing, and if somebody was wearing a new dress. But his asthma would be better when the sermon started, and we would go in and sit with mother and grandma." Lera also related that "Grandpa would say that it looked to him as if at the close of this century, no flesh could live. And I often think about that now, in 1986. He used to meet with a group from Montreal who were studying worldly events, and projecting their thinking into the future. And they thought it looked pretty grim. They may have been British Israelites. He went to Montreal, and they came to Chesterville." I have since learned that the British were descendants of the Israelites, thus accounting for the pre-eminence of the British Empire.

Religion has greatly diminished in importance in many families today, church attendance is down, and family bibles are likely to be offered at auction sales. It's one more aspect of life that has changed in our time.

A trip to Japan's "Little Canada"

Editor's note: Chesterville's Stephanie MacLeod has been teaching English in Takefu, Japan, since August, 1995. Here's her latest letter.

To the editor:

In an effort to improve my communication skills, I for went my summer holiday to participate in a Japanese home stay and language program. I attended classes in Hokkaido, the northern most island of Japan, where summer weather was a mild and dry 25°C. Summer study was, by no means, unpleasant.

My stay in Hokkaido was similar to a visit home. Like Canada,

Hokkaido is a cold, mountainous area, rich with clean lakes, trees, and natural parks. Because the climate is much cooler than that of the other islands, the agricultural focus is quite different.

Instead of rice fields, corn and potato crops are prevalent. There is also a surprising number of dairy farms. It is no wonder, then, that many Japanese refer to this northern island as "Little Canada."

Yet, amidst this familiar atmosphere, I experienced a truly Japanese lifestyle. For three weeks I lived with a divorced, middle-aged lady named Shinobu. She took pride in teaching me to live according to traditional, Japanese custom. In the mornings I ate what would be considered a Western-sized dinner.

A typical breakfast consisted of salad, bread, bean curd soup, and fish or pork. My body had to adjust to eat the unfamiliar things which I found on my plate each morning. I will never forget our first breakfast. I went to school with the horrific combination of chocolate cornflakes and octopus tentacles squiggling in my stomach. I had long been accustomed to eating raw sea creatures for dinner but never for BREAKFAST.

Preparing for bed was another irksome experience. I slept the traditional way — on a futon mattress, which I spread out on the floor and sheeted every evening. Before going to sleep, Shinobu and I relaxed at a public bath (which was conveniently located next door). I learned to value gathering with the local old ladies to soak my body for an hour or two each evening. I could never imagine spending my time in such a way in Canada.

This is in response to the recent article, "Village Music Academy: Students shine in local competition."

Their gentle and tireless efforts have encouraged many students this past year.

Making a "Case for a Cure"

To the editor:

I am writing this letter to introduce myself to your readers and to encourage them to support a worthwhile event that will be taking place in their community in a few weeks.

My name is Jim Kennedy and I have diabetes. I am also a Beer Store employee.

Later this month, I will be participating in the annual fundraising bottle drive, entitled "A Case for a Cure", hosted by The Beer Store for the Canadian Diabetes Association (CDA). The bottle drive will be held on Saturday, Sept. 27 with every Beer Store across Ontario collecting empty beer bottles and cans donated for this important cause.

Why am I doing this? Eight years ago I was diagnosed with diabetes. As a result, my lifestyle changed considerably. I began to watch more carefully what I ate. I began to exercise regularly. And I had to begin monitoring my blood sugar level.

It was shortly after I was diagnosed with diabetes that I began my quest to learn as much as I could about the disease that is estimated to affect more than 100 million people by the year 2000. That's when I joined the CDA. To my delight, I found that the association was an invaluable resource. The association provides individuals with advice from doctors specializing in diabetes. It conducts research and is up to date about new improvements being made in the fight to control the disease and to one day find a cure.

Educating the public about the disease is also an important function for the association. In this day and age almost everyone knows someone who has diabetes. While many think that diabetes is less serious than other diseases, it is not. Diabetes doubles the chance of heart attack and stroke. It increases the risk of kidney disease and is the leading cause of adult blindness and amputations.

On top of all of these services, the association also helps reduce the financial strain for those who have the disease and who are on a fixed income or don't have a medical plan. Supplies to control this disease can be costly. The association provides many supplies like syringes at a reasonable rate.

I am telling you all of this because I am asking for your support. You can contribute in a painless way by saving up those beer empties and donating a case or two to the CDA on September 27 at your local Beer Store. Each of the 428 Beer Stores across Ontario will be collecting empties in an effort to raise $200,000. To meet this goal we need over 2 million beer bottles and cans to be returned.

I also want to add that I am proud to work alongside employees and for a company that takes seriously their commitment to the community. In addition to the CDA, The Beer Store and its employees support other worthwhile causes throughout the year. For example, our Coin Box Program has raised more than $150,000 in the first six months of 1997 for groups that include the Canadian Cancer Society, Variety Village and the Ontario Community Council on Impaired Driving.

By participating in the "Case for a Cure" bottle drive, you will also be helping to protect the environment. Those 2 million beer bottles and cans collected and donated will be reused and refilled. At The Beer Store we estimate that we have diverted more than 60 billion beer bottles away from landfill sites over the past 70 years - enough to stretch to the moon and back 13 times.

Thank you for this opportunity. I urge local residents to drop by their local Beer Store on September 27 and to donate a case or two of beer empties to help us in our "Case for a Cure" campaign.

Jim Kennedy

Marg Countryman has been participating in the Chesterville-Winchester Terry Fox Run for more than a decade. She's actively seeking pledges for this Sunday's run, which will be held at North Dundas District High School beginning at 10 a.m. Countryman hopes to raise more than $1,500 this year.

CHESTERVILLE— Margaret Countryman has witnessed the devastating effects of cancer.

And that's why she participates in the annual Terry Fox Run.

"I was a nurse at the Cornwall General Hospital about 28 years ago," she recalls. "There was a woman who was suffering from bowel cancer. She was in such incredible pain, but there was nothing I could do for her. She suffered so much. All I could do was give her more medication for her pain. I'll always remember her."

Cancer has also touched her directly. Her brother lost a kidney to the disease. She also discovered lumps on her breasts.

"I was one of the lucky ones," she recalled. "It turned out to be nothing. I know what it is like to be really scared. Your family goes through so much worrying while you wait to find out."

Countryman, an avid walker, has participated in the local Terry Fox Run since the mid 1980s.

When she first started, she raised a few hundred dollars.

"My goal is to raise one dollar more than I did the year before," she said. "I'm hoping to reach $1,500 this year. My husband helps me out. Whenever he's going out I send the pledge sheet along with him."

Countryman also praised the many businesses and companies in the Chesterville area for their generous support.

She believes it is important to keep the legacy of Terry Fox alive.

"If he could run across Canada on one leg, I certainly can walk 10 kilometres on two," she said. "Every year I say this is going to be my last run. Then I get out and see neighbors that I haven't seen for a year."

This year's Terry Fox Run will be held on Sunday, Sept. 14 beginning at 10 a.m. at North Dundas District High School.

Participants have the choice of following a 10- kilometre route along the roadways or utilizing the track and NDDHS.

Since the first Terry Fox Run 17 years ago, more than $180 million has been raised for cancer research. Locally, the run organized by the Rotary Club of Chesterville, has contributed more than $60,000 to the total.

Pledge forms are available at area businesses and banks. This year, there will be a special team event, with the top three-person team winning prizes.

North Dundas District High School students will be taking part in this year's Terry Fox Run on Sunday. On Monday, students were busy putting together an information display on the run. From left to right are NDDHS principal Connie Provost, Chesterville Rotary exchange student Sven Wauters, NDDHS run organizer Chrissy Linton, and run participant Amy Berends.

Maple Ridge marks anniversary with tree planting ceremony

MAPLE RIDGE — A simple tree planting ceremony was the first in a series of special events planned to mark the 25th anniversary of Maple Ridge Senior Public School.

Since its doors opened to students during the 1972-73 school year, more than 3,200 students have passed through the hallways of Maple Ridge.

On Tuesday, Sept. 2, students, staff and invited guests marked the grand occasion with speeches and the planting of a Silver Maple tree.

Invited guests included Stormont-Dundas MP Bob Kilger, Keith Clingen, representing SD&G MPP Noble Villeneuve, trustee Tom Kirkwood, former Maple Ridge principal Wyman Barton, Deputy-Reeve of Winchester Township, Director of Education Jim Dilamarter and Superintendent Don Fairweather.

"This school is more than just bricks, mortar and basketball hoops," Kilger said. "There are institutions in Canada that make a community, be it hospitals, churches or schools, they make our quality of life what it is."

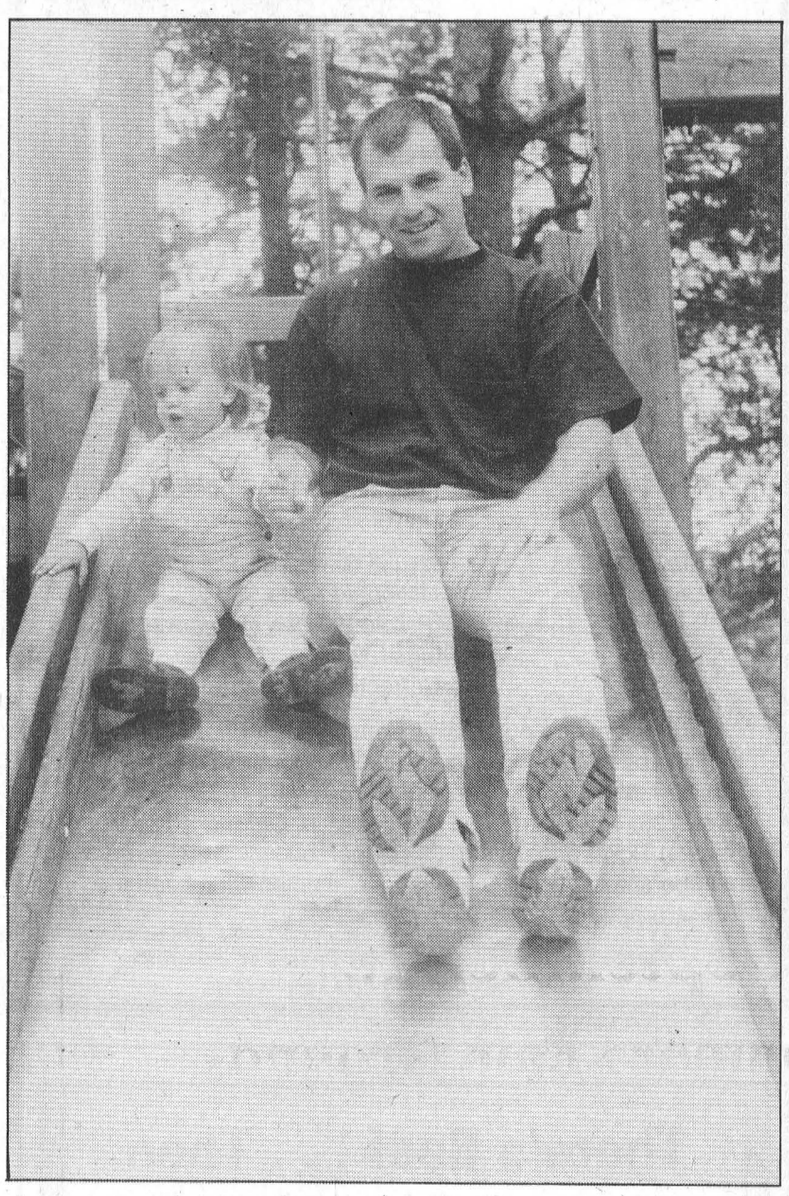
"Each and everyday people come to work here and do their utmost to teach you skills and values. You're being given a great opportunity to be the best you want to be and be the most you want to be."

Echoing the MP's sentiments was Superintendent Fairweather.

"You have a tremendous opportunity to be successful," he said. "We live in a wonderful country that is the envy of all other countries in the world. If you do your best work and make the effort you can be successful."

The invited guests, staff members and several students whose parents attended Maple Ridge were given the chance to assist in the tree planting.

Students and staff at Maple Ridge Senior Public School marked the first day of school with the planting of a silver maple tree to help commemorate the school's 25th anniversary.



Here we go!
A family outing to Chesterville Community Park was how Gary and Haley Geertsma of Chesterville spent part of Sunday afternoon. Even though the sun wasn't shining, the father and daughter had a great time playing on the slide.

Farm counts on bison as "meat of the future"

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

INGLESIDE – A new brand of livestock has set foot in Stormont County, one with a traditionally western image and impressive dietary value.

A herd of 12 bison have been welcomed to Eatwell Farms at RR 2 Ingleside, and owner Karl Deamond hopes the fledgling group is the foundation of a larger and profitable agricultural enterprise.

Deamond moved to Stormont County from Toronto about two years ago with wife Shauna, and Eatwell Farms was born. It produces organically-raised beef, poultry and pork, as well as pickled items such as beets and crabapple jelly.

But early in August, Deamond purchased his bison herd from a farm in Navan, where they were part of a larger herd that was sold off.

"I decided that I wanted to go the bison route," Deamond says, noting a friend convinced him it's the meat of the future.

Once he gets enough breeding stock, he says he'll phase out the beef and poultry side of his operation, meaning an all-bison farm. Fifty cows with three or four bulls is an optimum size, he says.

The bison at Eatwell are raised organically, with hay cut on the farm and feed from Homestead Organics in Berwick."The best management is no management," Deamond says.

It's the two-year-old bulls that are harvested for their meat. That's the optimum age, when the meat is at its prime. A larger or older animal will yield more burgers or sausage as opposed to choice cuts.

But why is bison the meat of the future? Deamond rattles off a list of its nutritional properties, in comparison with beef: A three-ounce serving of beef has 183 calories and 8.7 grams of fat. The same serving of bison contains 93 calories and 1.8 grams of fat. Bison also stacks up well against chicken and turkey.

"It's the lowest of all the meats, and it's higher in protein," Deamond says. "And a smaller portion fills you up."

It's also low in cholesterol, and completely non-allergenic.

The price per pound for bison meat ranges from $22.42 a pound for tenderloin steak, to $15.06 for a T-bone to about $4 for back ribs and short ribs. Sides or large orders go as low as $4.50 per pound.

But to give eastern Ontario a taste of bison, Eatwell is offering meat for the introductory price of $4 a pound.

Because bison meat is normally more expensive than regular beef, "the last thing you want to do is have the meat dry up on you," Deamond says. He issues complete cooking instructions with orders.

When roasting, turn down the heat, he recommends. A bison roast will cook at 275F in the same amount of time as a beef roast the same size. For grilling, a one-inch-thick bison steak is rare in 6 to 8 minutes, and medium in 10 to 12 minutes.

And 10 minutes on the barbecue is all it takes to cook bison. "When there's no fat in your meat it cooks so much faster."

But how does it taste? It doesn't have a gamey taste, in fact, Deamond says, the average consumer could not tell it from beef when cooked.

Eatwell has already sold 20 orders of bison in the Ottawa area, and recently took 400 lbs. of meat to Toronto.

As a livestock, Deamond says the bison breed easily, with a high survival rate. They live up to 50 years, and a good cow can produce 40 animals in her lifetime.

They're a low maintenance animal to farm; pasturing is enough for them in the summer, even in the winter in a good field.

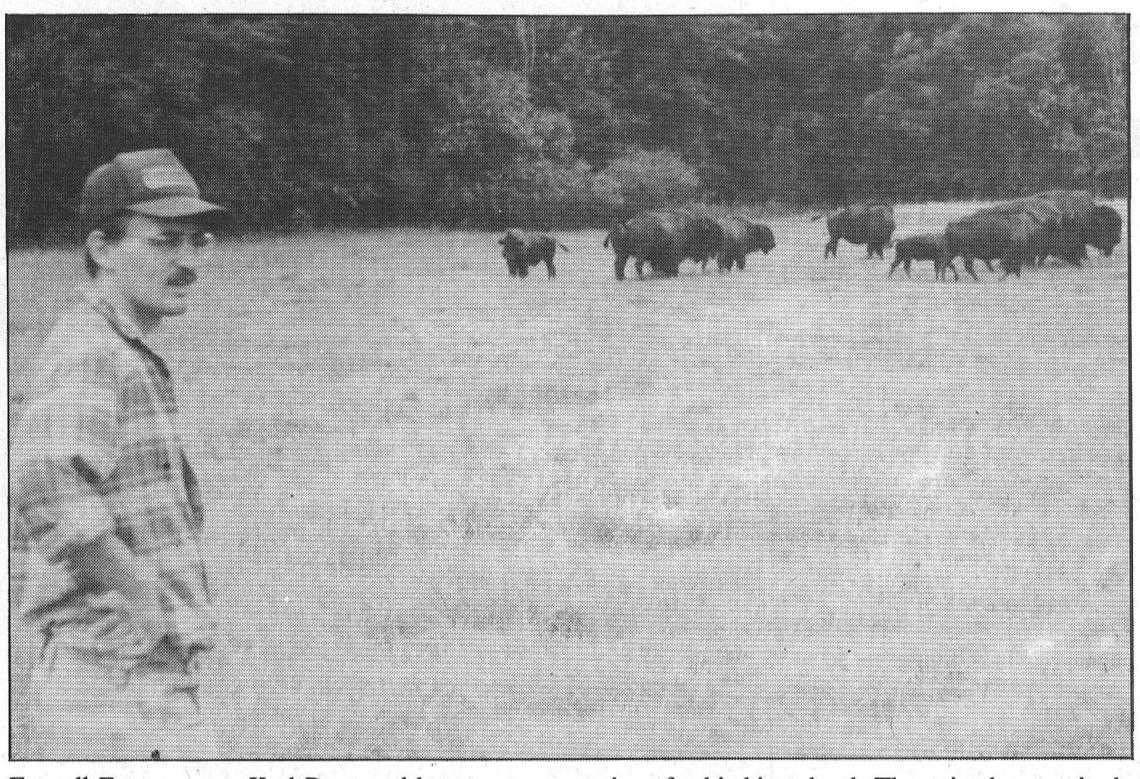
While they gather curiously when he enters their pasture, expecting an apple or other treat, they're still wild animals, he notes, and should be treated with respect.

"You don't go in at rut time, and you don't go in when there's a really young calf, unless you can run really fast."

Deamond notes almost every part of the animal is used when it is harvested. Hides are tanned, and there's a market for full-length bison jackets, and the Deamonds are looking for someone who can make vests and belts.

Skulls are bleached and decoratively painted. Feet can be made into lamps.

Also, in bison circles, the animals themselves can achieve fame as breeders, the same way as a good Holstein. At a recent show, a Canadian bison yearling was sold for $61,000 US as breeding stock.



Eatwell Farms owner Karl Deamond has great expectations for his bison herd. The animals are raised organically and their meat possess impressive dietary qualities. Deamond hopes his herd will grow to 50 animals, and hopes to introduce bison meat to the people of eastern Ontario.

Municipal election help
Workshop offers tips for candidates

Rich Thorpe
Record Staff

CORNWALL —"Ready, Set, Run!"

That's the title of a seminar by Sandra S. Lawn and Associates Inc., designed to prepare candidates and their teams for the upcoming municipal elections in November.

Lawn served as Mayor of Prescott for 15 years and organized nine municipal campaigns. She holds a Masters Degree in Public Administration from Queen's University.

"I believe in strong communities," she told the Record last week. "This will be an important election with municipal restructuring having taken place. In many cases candidates will be facing more competition than ever before."

The one-day workshops will be held in four Eastern Ontario communities. The Saturday workshops will be held in Smiths Falls on Sept. 13; Brockville, Sept. 20; Cornwall, Sept. 27 and Kemptville, Oct. 4. All workshops will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Assisting in the seminars will be several municipal politicians along with Robert Lawn, former principal of Brockville Collegiate Institute; and David Dargie, organizational development consultant.

"A good council is important to a community and its businesses. We're hoping to encourage people to seek office and to create interest in the upcoming municipal election. We need good people in the local government level."
- Sandra Lawn

Topics to be covered will include "You and your community; the issues, the people"; "Your campaign team,"; Marketing your campaign; and "You and the Media."

Lawn stresses that it is very important for people to encourage and support highly-qualified candidates in their communities.

"A good council is important for the community and its businesses," she said. "We're hoping to encourage people to seek office and to create interest in the upcoming municipal election. We need good people at the local government level."

Lawn was first elected to Prescott council in the early 1970s. She held the Mayor's chair from 1976 to 1991.

The workshops will also deal with organizing an effective campaign team, how to work with a limited budget and applying campaign techniques to a rural or urban municipality.

"When I first ran for school board in Prescott in 1966, no one had ever campaigned," she said. "It was a matter of putting your ad in the newspaper and if you were recognizable, you'd get elected."

The cost of the workshops is $129.50 (GST included) per participant. The workshops include refreshments, lunch and a workshop handbook for candidates.

Park Lane prepares for info blitz

WILLIAMSBURG – Volunteers from the Park Lane Seniors Support Centre will soon be knocking on doors in South Dundas as part of an information blitz to promote the centre's services.

Canvassers from Morrisburg and Williamsburg Township will hit the streets on Thursday, September 18, while volunteers in Iroquois and Matilda Township will go door to door on Thursday, October 2.

Park Lane has been in the Williamsburg area for six years, and now has a satellite centre in Stampville, at the old Stampville school. But there are still many individuals who don't know about the centres and the services they provide.

A training night is scheduled for volunteer canvassers, and pamphlets will be distributed that list the services about Park Lane, and basic questions will be answered.

Those wishing for more information will have their names and phone numbers recorded so that follow-up telephone calls can be made.

Park Lane hopes the information blitz will ensure more people know the centre is there to serve the community, and that they will feel comfortable contacting it.

Park Lane offers the following facts about its services: That you do not have to wait for a crisis to call, that a family member, neighbor or the person themselves can call for information and assistance, that transportation, Meals on Wheels, and friendly visiting are just a few of the services offered and that many services are offered through trained and dedicated volunteer.

Park Lane Seniors Support Services can be reached at (613) 535-2924.

Legion News Branch 434

The Chesterville Legion is seeking a family member or relative of a service person who gave their life in the First World War and also the Second World War. We would like them to take part in the unveiling of the cenotaph on September 28 at 2 p.m.

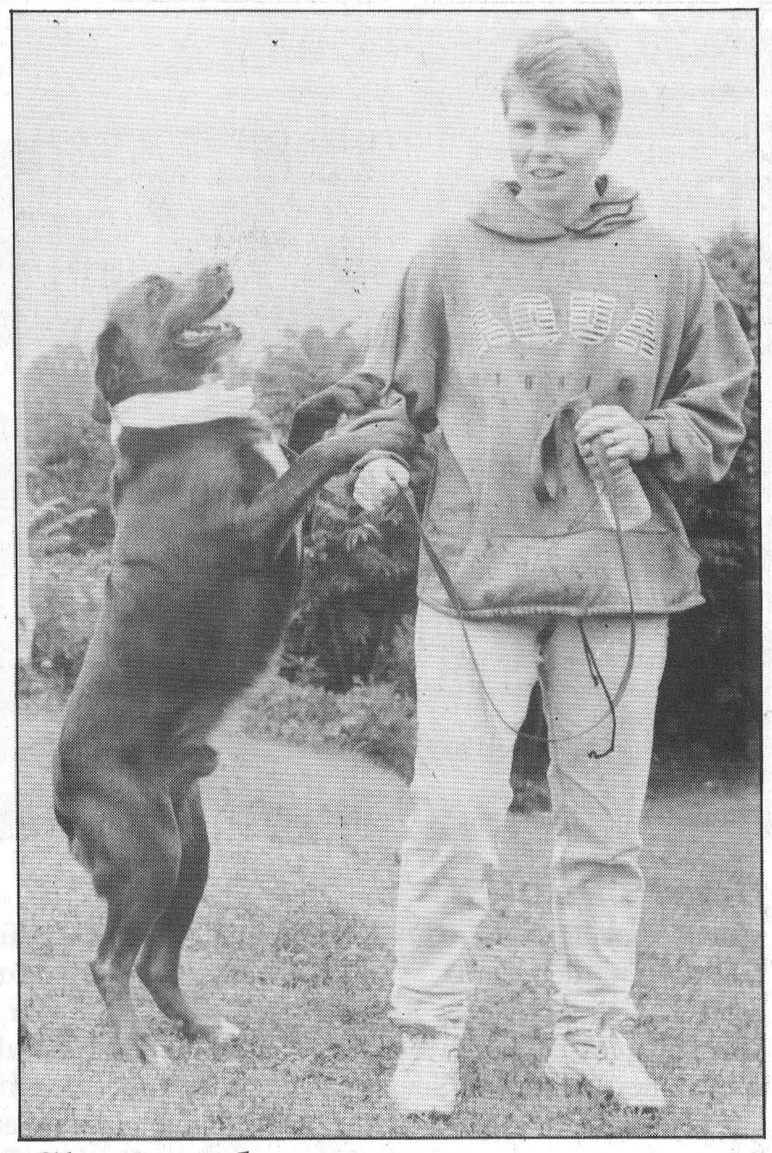
Also, the legion is extending an invitation to all military personal living in the Morewood, Chesterville areas, either regular or reserve, to attend the unveiling.

The first general meeting since June will be held on September 15 at 8 p.m. with the executive meeting at 7 p.m. At this meeting there will be two major topics of great concern to the members. The topics will be discussed and decisions must be made as to the proper direction the legion will go in the future years. Every voting member has a say and it is highly recommended that as many as possible attend. It is your legion and your input is very important to the operation of the legion.

Now that the summer holidays are over it is hoped that the amount of people attending our Saturday night dances will increase. Over the past three months the numbers have been way down causing loss of revenue at the door.

The barbeques will continue on the first and third Saturday nights for the next two months.

1998 membership cards will be available at the meeting on September 15.



Clancy and company

Wendy Murphy and her friend Clancy raised $32 for the SD&G branch of the OSPCA during Saturday's third annual Wiggle-Waggle Walk-A-Thon held in Iroquois. Organizer Nicki Stewart was pleased with the event which raised more than $2,500 in the first ever walk-a-thon held in Iroquois.

Bean counter

Dawn Runnalls, right, co-ordinator of the Agricultural Tent at the Chesterville Fair, recently awarded Sarah Murton with a special prize for guessing the number of beans in a jar on display. Runnalls presented Sarah with a Land Before Time video after she guessed there were 1,000 beans in the jar. Sarah was one of eight winners at the Chesterville and South Mountain fairs. Beside Sarah is her sister, Rose, and left is their mother, Penny. Also in the photo are aunt and uncle Ken and Yvonne Bonnaud, who recently visited the area from Quebec. By the way, there were 971 beans in the jar.

WI's 100th celebrations continue

WILLIAMSBURG - This year in the 100th anniversary of the Women's Institute, our tour was "Clearly Canadian", combining both city and country. Early Tuesday morning, 61 women and two drivers (Jeff "The Jester" Parsons and Peter "The Pilot" Kearns) set out for points west and north. Enroute to Haliburton, we had lunch and a bit of shopping at the Quinte Mall in Belleville. We then travelled to Port Hope and north through beautiful cottage country. By mid-afternoon we were in Lindsay and then on to our home away from home. We stayed at the 3 Star Pinestone Resort in the scenic Haliburton Highlands. It is a picturesque 235-acre resort which offers many varied activities.

After a delicious turkey dinner upon arrival, we were entertained by Adam Timoon and his son Danny. He is a singer, guitarist and stand-up comedian from Toronto. He played everything from Flamenco to The Flight of the Bumblebee. His young son also sang several songs including one from Phantom of the Opera and The Auctioneer Song. They were quite delightful.

Next morning, after a hearty buffet breakfast, we enjoyed a speaker who enlightened us about Alternative Therapies including Reflexology, Massage Therapy and Vitamin Therapy. It was most interesting and informative. After this, we had our annual auction for Winchester Hospital. I am happy to report that we made $410 for our local hospital.

At 11:45 we boarded our coaches and set off on a countryside tour with John Teljeur, group activities director from the resort. We went to a lookout 300 feet above Haliburton and had a fantastic view. We had a picnic lunch at Rotary Park in Haliburton, population 2000. In summer population swells to 20,000. From there it was on to the delightful Robinson's General Store in Dorset. This store was voted the Best Country Store in Canada. We saw many beautiful, clean lakes and lots of rock cuts as we continued our tour. There are over 70 children's summer camps located in this area. We also stopped to view Buttermilk Falls near Minden.

After another excellent supper, we were once again entertained. Tonight was a singer from England named Ivor Davies, who now lives in Haliburton. Some members also enjoyed a paddleboat ride and swim in Pinestone Lake.

Wednesday morning, after another hearty buffet breakfast, we could partake of putting lessons on the green. There was also a gardening class led by John. His knowledge is self taught and learned over the years. This was followed by a nature walk around Pinestone Lake. One of the largest lakes is Lake Kashagawigamog, which we all learned to say properly. After an early lunch, we were Toronto bound.

We had another scenic drive through part of Muskoka country on our drive to Toronto. We stopped at Kirkfield to see the lift lock and were fortunate to see a boat in the lock, a lift of approximately 50 feet. We continued on and soon were passing through the spectacular floral lined streets of Markham. There were flowers in hanging baskets, pots, beds, on trees, etc. Gorgeous!

We arrived at the Travelodge in Scarborough, checked in and had a buffet supper at the Golden Griddle. Then it was on to the Toronto Truck Theatre and Agatha Christie's classic mystery "The Mousetrap". It is Canada's longest running show, now in its' 20th year at this theatre. It's a small converted church and the audience is "on top of the actors". It was excellent, suspenseful to the end.

Thursday morning our group split into two. Some went to the Hummingbird Centre (formerly the O'Keefe Centre). Hummingbird Software is a major corporate sponsor as is Nissan Canada. Through Nissan, an elevator has made all three levels wheelchair accessible. Mr. Donald Poland, operations manager and son-in-law of member Grace Kolff, conducted a most informative tour. The other group had a driving tour of Toronto. We saw Ontario Place, C.N.E. grounds, SkyDome, C.N. Tower, Royal York and the Bounty, a tall ship anchored in the harbor.

At 11:30, the whole group enjoyed a one hour lunch cruise on the Oriole. After this we were homeward bound. We had a rest stop at The Big Apple at Colborne. One member climbed the 35 foot tower.

On behalf of the members, I wish to thank Freda and Gwen for another excellent trip. Amid rumors that this was the last tour, plans were being made for next year. See you in '98, I hope.

CARD OF THANKS

Thank you to all the friends and neighbors who attended our 50th anniversary and for all the wonderful gifts and cards. A special thank you to our daughter and son-in-law for all the work involved and to the caterers and orchestra "The Windfalls" that helped make it such a joyous occasion.

CARD OF THANKS

I would like to express my sincere thanks to my family, friends and relatives for their flowers, cards and telephone calls while I was a patient in the W.D.M.H. To the nurses in I.C.U. and on 2nd floor, my appreciation for their excellent care. Special thanks to Dr. Chande, Dr. Archibald and Dr. Adamson.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express our sincere thanks to all who have shown their support to us since our barn fire on July 8. It has meant more to us than words can ever express. We also want to thank everyone for their support in coming to our benefit dance. It was good to see so many friends, neighbors and family and we apologize to all the people that we didn't get a chance to talk to and thank personally. Also a big thank you to Paul and Margie for organizing the dance and Bobbie for organizing the auction, to the business community for their donations to the auction and to the auctioneer who made it so much fun. We would also like to thank the Chesterville Fair Board for manning the bar and all their support. To Power Pack for the music and to all the people who donated food for the lunch. What started out as a tragic loss has now turned into an outpouring of love and support from community, friends, family and total strangers and for that we again want to say thank you all very much.

Village of Winchester Sewage System Class Environmental Assessment

(OCWA Project No. 50-0110-01)

An Environmental Study Report (ESR) has been prepared as part of a Class Environmental Assessment (Class EA) for the Village of Winchester's sewage system.

The ESR provides documentation for each stage of the Class EA including identification of the problem, evaluation of the alternative solutions, selection of a preferred solution, evaluation of alternative designs and selection of a preferred design.

The preferred solution is to relocate the lagoon discharge point from the Henderson Drain to the South Nation River. This will include the construction of a pumping station on village-owned property, a 7.3km pipeline and an outfall pipe to the South Nation River.

The ESR was prepared under the requirements of Schedule "C" of the Class Environmental Assessment for Municipal Water and Wastewater Projects. The Class EA included two public information open houses held at the Village of Winchester Municipal Building.

You may review the ESR (Volumes 1 and 2) at the following locations:

History, heritage in horseflesh

The Chesterville Fair Grounds was the site of the Upper Canada District Eastern Ontario Futurity and Show for the Canadian Horse Breeders. A total of 16 horses were entered. Clockwise from the top are Beckett's Creek Calypso Ferare, the top yearling colt owned by Gerry and Ray Lalonde; Howick's Brandy Elsa, owned by John Fingland and Miss Midnight and Miss Canuck in the double-hitch class owned by the Lalondes. The landau the Lalondes are driving dates back to the early 1800s and is just one of two in existence in Canada.

Breeders exhibit a true Canadian

CHESTERVILLE— Breeders from across Eastern Ontario were in Chesterville on Saturday for the Upper Canada district Eastern Ontario Futurity and Show for Canadian Horse Breeders.

"There are only around 3,000 Canadian Horses in Canada, said Pat Garland, the show's organizer and the secretary for Ontario.

"The shows are small," she added. "We're working hard to get the numbers up."

The Canadian Horse originates from Bretagne and Normandie. It descends from the horses sent to Canada between 1647 and 1670.

The Canadian Horse is considered a general purpose horse, useful as a farm animal and is suitable for needs of riding, driving and hunting. Because of its courage, its physical strength and its docility, it is becoming popular as a riding horse.

In addition to the show in Chesterville, competitions are also held at Merrickville and Spencerville.

Garland said one of the main purposes of the event is for owners to see how well their breeding stock is performing.

"You never really know until you come to a show," she said. "You may think you have a wonderful horse, but sometimes the judging results aren't what you expected. The shows let you know what kind of job you are doing in the breeding shed."

Dr. Jean Desrochers, a judge with more than a quarter century of experience with Canadian Horses officiated at Saturday's competition.

There were a total of 16 horses entered in the competition.

The following is a list of results:

Maple Ridge Tae Kwon Do Club instructor Mike Lecuyer and red-belt club member Kate Darbyshire demonstrate advanced movements for new club members at last Wednesday night's 1997-98 inaugural club meeting. Instruction is held at Maple Ridge Senior Public School every Wednesday night from 6:30 to 9:30.

Maple Ridge Tae Kwon Do Club back in full swing

The Maple Ridge Tae Kwon Do Club is back in full swing as it enters its 18th year with seven new students joining last week.

Although the club operates at Maple Ridge Senior Public School year-round, membership picks up in the fall with the end of summer's recreational activities, according to president/instructor Mike Lecuyer, who started with the club as a novice and is now a black belt.

Lecuyer will be assisted in instruction this year by four additional club-member black belts, Mary Schoones, who received hers at the beginning of the summer, Ryan Moore, Scott Parsons – who has returend to the club after being away from the area for a couple of years – and James Stewart.

The Maple Ridge club is affiliated with Tae E. Lee's school in Ottawa. Lee has just received the ninth degree of hsis black belt.

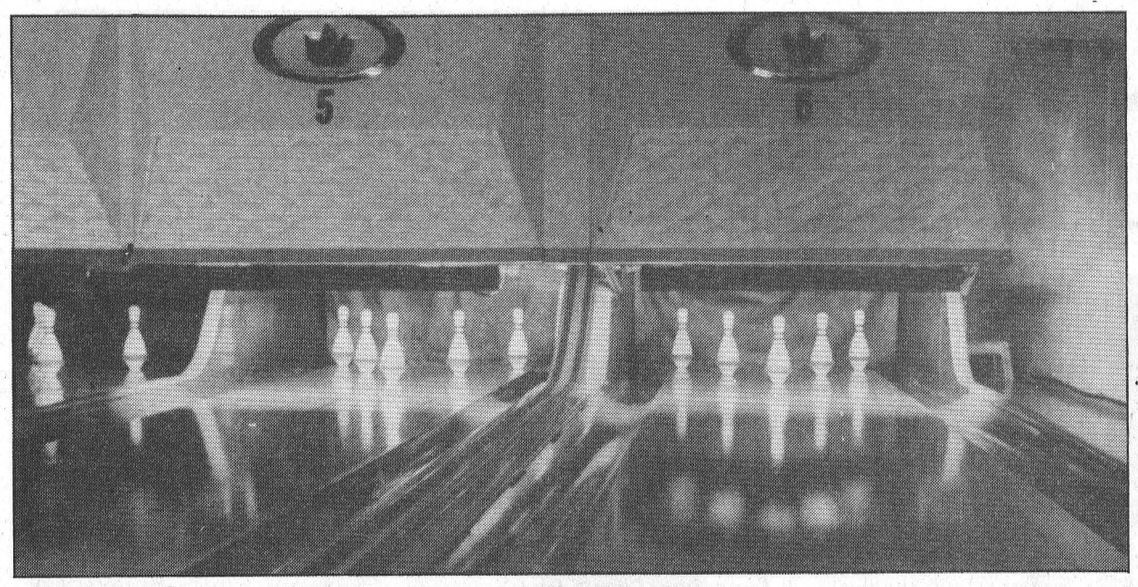
Lecuyer also instructs self-defence seminars and is registered with the Ottawa-Carleton police service.

He conducts seminars in Ottawa on a regular basis and teaches in this area on an as-needed basis.

Lecuyer also teaches streetproofing and children's self-defence techniques.

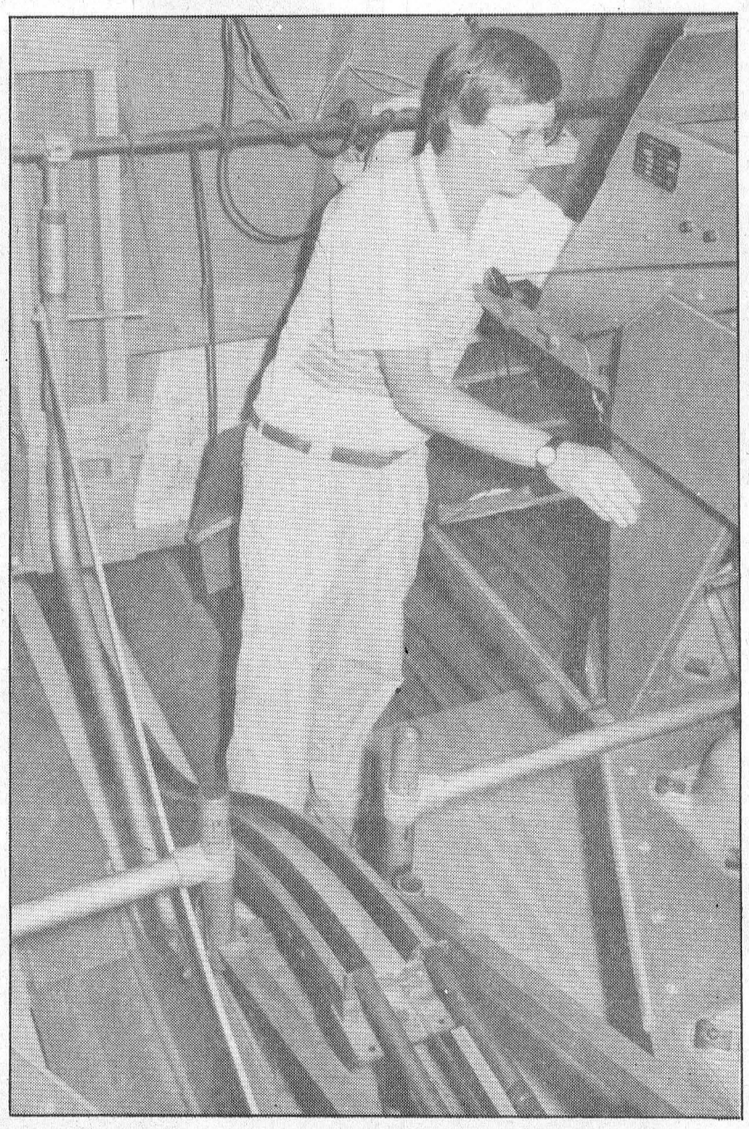
The Maple Ridge Tae Kwon Do Club meets every Wednesday night from 6:30 to 9:30, for both juniors and seniors, and membership fees are $20 a month for juniors and $30 for seniors.

Family plans are also available. For more information call Lecuyer at 448-3192.



Glow in the dark bowling

(Right) Owner Dave Bird adjusts the pin-setting equipment as the 1997-98 season gets under way at Chesterville Bowling Lanes. Bird has installed Glow Pins, a first in this area, for Saturday night bowling. The new feature will be introduced Sat., Sept. 20 and the top photo shows how the lanes will appear to bowlers on Saturday nights this season when Glow Pin bowling takes over from 9 to 11 p.m.



Something's a-glow at Chesterville Lanes

The fall schedule is rolling along at Chesterville Bowling Lanes and owner Dave Bird says he expects to have about 530 bowlers – including the Saturday morning Youth Bowling Council members – in action during the 1997-98 season.

Bird has installed a new feature at Chesterville Lanes over the summer and hopes it will increase the number of bowlers taking to the lanes on Saturday nights this year.

Glow Pin Bowling will run on Saturday nights from 9 to 11 starting Sept. 20.

The feature is a first in the area and uses specially coated pins which glow under black lights installed directly above them.

The effect is only visible in the dark and that's what will add a special challenge: with Glow Pin Bowling the only illumination in the playing area will come from the black lights that give the pins their eerie glow. Small banker-style lamps have been placed on each of the scoring tables but other than that, bowlers will have no ambient light to assist them in aiming at the pins glowing from the other end of the alley.

With the lanes themselves in darkness, bowlers will not be able to use the guides embedded in the floor to help them aim their throws.

Bird says it is a feature that should appeal both to teens and to families.

Chesterville's YBC program will attract at least as many bowlers this year as in 1996-97. Last year there were 78 in the program and to date 80 have registered. Young bowlers kicked off their season Sat., Sept. 6.

Adult leagues will probably attract about the same number of members as they did last year. Leagues started play Sept. 5 and there are still some spots open.

Bird said the afternoon women's leagues have a limited number of openings as do the Thursday afternoon senior leagues and some of the evening leagues.

For information on league play, contact Bird at 448-3535.

Matt Carkner

Petes high on Carkner

PETERBOROUGH — "He's got a ton of potential."

That's how Peterborough Petes general manager Jeff Twohey describes Matt Carkner. The 17-year-old Morewood native will be a regular on the Petes' blueline this winter.

The Petes drafted the Winchester Hawks' graduate in the second round last June.

They followed his progress very closely last winter. Twohey watched Carkner with the Jr. B Hawks in February and again in April when he made the jump to play with the Brockville Braves in the Eastern Canadian Tier II Junior A tournament.

"He's a real character player," he said. "He reminds me a lot of (cousin) Terry Carkner, although Matt is a little more outgoing."

The Petes are counting on utilizing Carkner's size and strength to bolster the team's blueline. With four veterans returning, Twohey said the Petes are expecting Carkner to fit into the role of a fifth or sixth defenseman.

"A lot depends on him," he said. "He has the potential to become a dominant player in the league."

In addition to his on ice attributes, Twohey is very impressed with Carkner's scholastic abilities.

"He's a very good student," he said. "He's a really nice kid."

The Peterborough Petes organization has sent more players to the National Hockey League than any other Ontario Hockey League team. Carkner will have the chance to show his stuff to the pro scouts over the course of the next two seasons.

"We've got scouts in our building every Thursday night," he said. "We like to think of ourselves as one of the best organizations in junior hockey. He's not eligible for the draft until 1999. He'll get a lot of exposure here over the next three or four seasons."

Local fans will have a chance to see Carkner in action a couple of times in the coming weeks.

This Friday night, the Petes take on the Ottawa 67's in exhibition action at the Civic Centre at 7:30 p.m. Peterborough's first regular season appearance in Ottawa is on Friday, Oct. 3.
