LOCAL AND GENERAL

Only three more weeks to tell the other fellow how he should vote.

The heavy frost of the past few nights has destroyed all fruit and flower vegitation.

Recent rains have mellowed the ground and there is no longer the excuse that "the ground is too hard to plough."

If you are troubled with constipation take Gallagher's Herbal Tonic. Its action is not lessened by continued use. Sold by B. F. Smith. Winchester, Ontario.

All the local churches united in the Anniversary Services in the United Church on Sunday evening last. It was a large gathering, an inspiring audience for any preacher What more beautiful than that spirit of United Christianity in a community.

When I think I am strong, then I am weak," said a good man many years ago Premier Ferguson has changed it by saying, "They Cau't Beat Me." Just imagine a Mowat, a Whitney or any other really big man making such a statement at a public meeting.

An Order in-Council, just issued from Ottawa, provides for the establishment of a tuberculosis-free restricted area, consisting of the whole of the counties of Russell, Prescott, Glengarry, Stormont, Dundas, Grenville and Frontenac in Ontario. All cattle within the area will be subjected to the tuberculin test and reactors eliminated. The Department of Agricultural expects to be in a position to commence testing the cattle in the eastern end of this area early in November.

Mr. Lindsay Barkley of Morrisburg, in attempting to make a full turn on west Main street last Saturday, failed to notice another car coming from the west. That car, driven and occupied by college men en route to Montreal, in endeavoring to avoid a serious collision, glanced off of Barkley's car and struck the building of the Registry Offices, compietely wrecking the car. Barkley's car escaped with a bent fender and nobody was seriously injured.

A settlement was made by the boys, whose names were not ascertained, giving Barkley $300 and trading cars, thereby the boys getting a good car and Barkley having their wrech on his hands.

The Smiths Falls Record-News says: Rev. John A. Waddell, pastor of the United Church, Winchester, occupied the pulpit in the United Church here on Sunday in the absence of Rev. Dr. Semple who was preaching anniversary services in Winchester. Rev. Mr. Waddell is a bright and inspiring speaker and has many friends in Smiths Falls who were again glad to hear him. It is interesting to know that the Rev. Mr. Waddell was ordained to the ministry in the United Church here some years ago, this incident being recalled by him at the morning service. He preached two eloquent sermons during the day to large congregations.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Services will be held in St Matthias' Church next Sunday at 7.30 p. m. Sunday School at 10 a. m.

There were a number of visitors from Chesterville at the Anniversary Services in the United Church here Sunday evening.

At the regular B. Y. P. U. meeting next Monday night in the Baptist Church, Mr. J. E. Lanoue will give a talk on his experience of twenty-six years in the Roman Catholic Church. This should be an interesting topic and the meeting is open to the public. No admission will be charged.

Brinston Dramatic Club will present their play entitled "Nancy Anna Brown's Folks" in Town Hall, Winchester, under the Auspices of Mispah Mission Circle on Tuesday evening Oct. 15th, at 8 o'clock. admission 35c and 25c.

Dr. Arthur W. Whitney, who died recently in St. Paul, Minn, was the eldest son of the late W. A. Whitney, for 40 years a high school master in Iroquois and Morrisburg, and taught school at Dixon's Corners before graduating in medicine from Queen's University. Later he practised for a short time in Merrickville and Morrisburg before taking up residence in St. Paul about 40 years ago.

Council Meeting

The regular meeting of the Municipal Council will be held in the council chamber on Monday night next at 7.30 o'clock.

Been Very Ill

Mr. J. A. MacDougall, jeweller, has been very ill for the past ten days or more with a serious heart attack, and for several days was in a very critical condition. A trained nurse from Ottawa, is in attendance and Mr. McDougall, while not out of danger, is reported to be improving.

Ormond Baptist Church

The services last Sunday were conducted by Rev. G. Linton from Montreal, the pastor being away on his vacation. Both services were well attended. The text was taken from Luke I7 6-20, and Mr. Linton's subject was "Ingratitude." The choir sang. "The Son of God goes forth to War" and "Tis midnight on Olives Brow."

Trustees and Ratepayers

The Annual Meeting of the Eastern Ontario Educational Assn., will be held at Kemptville Agricultnral School on Tuesday, Oct. 22nd and judging from the promised programme will be one of unusual interest. Some prominent speakers will be there and the discussions on question relating to school boards and Education are sure to prove profitable to all who can attend.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

The Annual Convention of Dundas Public School Teachers is in session at Morrisburg. The programme includes a trip to McDonald College, St. Anne's, Que.

The regular meeting of the Women's Guild of St. Matthia's Church, will be held at the home of Mrs. H. L. Lee, Cameron Ave., on Thursday, Oct. 17th, at 2.30 p. m.

John McIntyre of Finch had a miraculous escape from death at the level crossing at Avonmore on Friday afternoon, when his car collided with an express train. The car was totally wrecked, but Mr. McIntyre escaped with a slight cut in his head.

Jas. R. Payne, Brinston, Ont., who has been breeding Holstein cattle successfully for a number of years, believes that R. O. P. testing is the best way to find out the earning power of a herd. Just now he is running on test a few daughters of Rag Apple Car Born, a son of Sir Sylvia Car Born, whose daughters are doing such splendid work in the R. O. P. at the Oliver Farm, Edmonton, owned and operated by the Alta Dept. of Agriculture. One of these heifers owned by Mr. Payne. Car Born Keys, a three year old qualified the other day with 12,186 lbs, milk and 560 lbs., butter with an aver ge test of 3.68% fat made in 351 days on twice-a day-milking. It will be observed that this heifer has produced approximately two thousand pounds more milk than the production required for registration in her class.

Arrangements have been made for a special drive, Oct. 14th to 18th, to raise funds in aid of the Cornwall General Hospital. This drive will take place in the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry. Mr. Aaron Sweet has been appointed chairman of the Winchester Committee. Mrs. J. W. Ault. Mrs. T. W. Boyes, Mrs. Aaron Sweet, Miss Grace Irving and Miss Margaret Holmes have been named as canvassers. It is hoped that Winchester will make a generous offering to this worthy cause.

Women's Institute

Remember the October meeting will be held next Tuesday, the 15th, at 3 p. m. in town Hall. Refer to your printed programmes to know what is in store for you, and if you have not received a programme, ask the Secretary, Miss Margaret Holmes, for one.

Vancamps Anniversary Services

The Anniversary Services ot Vancamps United Church will be held on October 13th. Rev H M. Servage, B. D. will preach at 11 a. m. and Rev. A. O. Lloyd, B. A., at 7.30 p. m. On Monday evening Oct. 14th, the Annual Anniversary Supper and Concert will be held in the church. The tickets are 50c each and you are cordially invited to attend.

Is Reported Recovering

James Anderson, painter and paper hanger of Winchester, who was seriously burned by gasoline exploding while he was removing old paper from a house in the city, on Sept. 12th, is still confined to the Civic hospital at Ottawa. His conditions for a while was alarming as pneumonia had set in, but during the last few days his condition is somewhat improved. His many friends wish him a speedy recovery.

Reeve and Deputy Reeve Leaving

Winchester Township will require to have a new Reeve and Deputy Reeve for 1930. Mr. George Beattie is selling out and intends moving to Cornwall, and Mr. H. E. Howes, the Deputy Reeve, is selling out and has bought a farm in New York State where he intends to move. This will leave the field wide open to those ambitious for municipal offices, and as Winchester Township has many good men, there should be no difficulty. Mr. Howard Nesbitt is already talked of and there is no reason why Mr. Ezra Summers should not "do his bit" as a municipal officer.

Bride Killed Four Hours After Wedding

Miss Hilda Elizabeth Trower, 24 years of age, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Trower, 84 Westmount boulevard, and Colin Kemp Anderson, 28 years of age son of Dr. and Mrs. Duncan P. Anderson 4398 Western Avenue Montreal, were married at four o'clock Saturday afternoon at Erskin United Church. Less than four hours, the automobile in which the bridal pair were driving on their honeymoon was wrecked. Mrs Anderson died at one o'clock yesterday morning in the Western Hospital from a fractured skull and burns. It was reported late last night by Dr. Duncan P. Anderson, who is treating his son Colin, that the latter's condition is critical. The doctor stated that his son is suffering from serious head injuries and severe burns about his body. The head injuries may develop to be a fracture of the skull. The accident was caused by a tire burst.

Ten Boys to Go From Dundas

Ten boys will be selected from Dundas and West Stormont the ones standing highest in a Junior Farmer Jndging Competition to be held at Kemptville Agricultural School, Wednesday, October 23rd.

For the ten boys selected, the Department of Agriculture undertakes to arrange to carry out the following free of charge.

Vote As You Pray

Editor of Winchester Press:

Dear Sir:—As we approach voting day we are confronted with one of the greatest problems that men and women are called upon to face, the prohibition of the Liquor Traffic. True, there are other great problems to face, but none that causes the misery and heartaches as the sale of intoxicating liquor. Some say, to vote for Government Control allows men to get whiskey in a legal way. If it is wrong to sell whiskey at all, you cannot legalize the sale of it, for no matter what the sin is, you cannot by law make it legal to commit sin. The Commandments say,- Thou shalt not kill, and although that does not prohibit murder, yet the law does not allow men to kill each other iust because it cannot be fully contaolled. You cannot legalize murder because some people are bound to kill their fellow-men. No more can we, by allowing men to purchase whiskey in a legal way, clear our skirts from the blood of men. God's word says "Cursed is he that putteth the bottle to his brother's lips." How can we escape this curse if we, by our vote, give the bottle to our brother? Some may say a prohibition candidate in the house could do nothing. We may look to the Bible and follow Noak as God told him to build an ark. The world might have said, what can he do? But one with God is a majority. Noah worked for one hundred and twenty years and through every discouragement that came, he still worked away, and in the end proved to a sinful world that God would stand by those that obey him. We are fighting one of the greatest evils the world has ever known, and how can we escape God's curse unless we obey his word. We are not voting for man alone, but a principle and that for which we stand will prove to the coming generations that Dundas County was willing to do all in her power to prohibit the manufacture, sale and legalizing of the liquor traffic. I believe that all other things should be a second consideration, when we are facing this awful evil. We feel that we can count on almost every woman in Dundas and a good many men to stand by our Prohibition Candidate. Not just for ourselves only but for the coming generations, we will do all in our power to wipe out this deadly evil which ruins so many young lives and homes, and sends misery in its wake everywhere. Personally, I feel that if there is only one vote cast for the prohibition candidate, you can give the undersigned credit for that one.

Now, let us, as brothers and sisters in Christ, vote the way we pray, and when we ask the Lord to deliver us from evil, put our hand in his and do what we can to rid our fair land of this awful curse.

Respectfully submitted,
Almon G. Summers

UNITED CHURCH ANNIVERSARY

Rev. Dr. Semple of Smith's Falls, was the special Anniversary preacher last Sunday, and brought eloquent and impressive messages to large congregations both morning and evening. Zech. 8:5 was the morning text. Speaking of Zechariah he said he was a man of almost unparalleled vision, who lived in one of the most difficult times in all the history of the Jews. They had just returned from captivity. The prophet here gives a picture of the redeemed Jerusalem where there was to be respect for old age and the acknowledgement of the rights of the young. Reference was made to the contribution the old people have made to this country, and to this church in particular. Every child, he said, has a right to be well born. It is a great blessing to have a godly father and a pious mother. He urged that the christian marriage and the christian home he guarded most sacredly. Other rights of childhood mentioned were, a place to play, education, and religious instruction. He said in order that civilization may continue, two things must take place, the old people must be respected and the young people must be taken care of.

At the Sunday School session, Dr. Semple gave an interesring talk to the children impressing upon them the thought that they are getting ready now for what they are going to be.

The text for the evening was Romans 1 16, written by Paul twenty years after his conversion. He was the champion of progress and of the Gentiles. No man ever realized as much as he, his responsibility to God and to his fellowmen. Paul believed the Gospel to be the greatest power in the world. Others claim money, education, pleasure and the power of the world itself to be great, but these are all limited. The preacher spoke hightly of the great power the Public School teacher has in his or her hands for the training of the young. He said: "We are all called upon to put a new spiritual content into our preaching to win this would for Christ.

The anthems so splendidly rendered by the choir udder the direction of Mrs. Dennis, the organist, were as follows:—I will praise Thee, O Lord. O Day of Rest and Gladness, and Appear Thou Light Divine. There was also a pleasing duet "Rock of Ages" by Mesdames Steele and Durant.

Autumn flowers and foliage were used for decoration.

The congregations of the Presbyterian and Baptist Churches came in for the evening service, and to them and their preachers who were present, the goodwill of this congregation was extended by Dr. Semple.

The address was as follows:

Dr. Geo. I. Christie, President,
Ontario Agricultural College,
Guelph, Ontario

On this your first public appearance in your old home town since your appointment to the responsible position of President of The Ontario Agricultural College, we wish to congratulate you on your advancement and to bespeak for you many years of usefulness in shaping the policies and guiding the activities of that great institution.

As this is an essentially agricultural community, we realize the importance of the work in which you are engaged. The old hit and miss ways of agriculture must go into the discard to make way for more advanced ideas and more up-to-date methods in which science and research shall have a larger part than in the days of the past.

In common with other occupations agriculture is becoming more and more of a scientific pursuit and requires men of the highest training to make it a success. The time was when some men sneered at scientific farmers, but that day has passed, and now we find science and good sense going hand in hand to develop the successful agriculturist.

We are glad to know that when the call came for a man qualified to lead in this great work the choice fell on one of our own Winchester boys, and one whom we feel will make good in the position to which he has been called.

Signed on behalf of the Congregation
J. A. Waddell, Pastor
Aaron Sweet, Recording Steward
Winchester, Oct. 7, 1929.

On Monday night the bountiful supper served by the Ladies Aid to over 400 people, left nothing to be desired. The auditorium of the church was filled to capacity by a most enthusiastic assemblage which listened very attenlively to the interestlng program. The choir gave a well rendered selection, and by special request Mesdames Steele and Durant repeated the duet, Rock of Ages. Master Angus Adams made his first appearance before the public here, and delighted every one with his vocal selections.

Mr. Harry McKercher of Toronto, a former Winchester boy, with his rich tenor voice gave several numbers, graciously responding to encores. One worthy of special mention was: The Songs my Mother Sang" given in special honor of his mother, who was present.

Greetings were brought from the Anglican Church by Rev. Davies, from Chesterville United by Rev. R. Newman, from Morewood United by Rev. R. Armstrong, in which they all expressed their pleasure at being present.

Rev. J. A. Waddell who presided, called upod Mr. Sweet to read an address of welcome and congratulation to the speaker of the evening, Dr. Geo. I. Christie of Guelph. On rising to reply Dr. Christie was greeted with applause, the audience rising to acknowledge the honor he had brought to his home town.

Dr Christie thanked the audlence for this kind tribute and said he was glad to come back and find that the churches of his town had not lost their energy or enthusiasm, and spoke of the great influence of the Sunday School upon his life and character. He said, "Forget denominationalism in your community and work together" He spoke of the failure of homes to recognize their responsibility in bringing up their children, and urged giving the young people a chance to have a good time in our homes, and thus keep them from the dance hall, card table, etc. Dr. Christie's address was intensely interesting, as he used so many beautiful quotations, and gave numerous witty illustrations.

Mr. N. W. Beach moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Christie, which was seconded by Mr. T. A. Scott. Another vote of thanks moved by Mr. W. J. Cass, was tendered to those who contributed the musical program as well as the Ladie's Aid. God Save the King closed this successful program.

. . . Why you should ANSWER PROMPTLY

BY the time this woman finishes her hand of bridge and reaches the telephone the party calling will have given up. The tardy bridge-player will be told "Sorry — there's no one on the line now, Madam".

Both of them will be annoyed—the person calling and the person called. Both of them have wasted time. Remember—it takes three to complete a call—

There are over one million local calls in Ontario and Quebec every day which fail to get through. These uncompleted calls mean two million minutes a day wasted—congestion of traffic—constant irritation—a handicap to business.

Some of them are unavoidable and some of them are our own errors. But many of them are mistakes made by the person calling or the person called. It takes three people to complete a call.

We are constantly striving to reduce our own errors. We are now pointing out some of the common errors in telephone usage because our aim is to provide the best possible telephone service* and in telephone service, co-operation is essential.

Answer promptly when your telephone rings. If it is not conveniently located in your home, consult us about it. And when you make a call, wait a reasonable time before giving up and causing a "No one on the line now".

*Extensive new construction and replacements of both local and long distance telephone plant will mean an outlay in 1929 of more than $27,000,000.

Don't buy any car until you have driven Chevrolet

IT'S all very well to listen to So-and-so's opinion of car values, but after all, the person whose opinion counts most is YOURSELF.

It's all very well to sit back and wonder how Chevrolet can produce a really high-class Six . . put a high-compression, valve-in-head engine in it . . employ Fisher Body genius to create and build a series of magnificent bodies for it . . equip it in the most detailed and up-to-the-minute fashion . . and sell it at the price of a four.

The unmatched resources of General Motors, backing up Chevrolet's own tremendous facilities, explain all that, of course. But how much more satisfying to test it all out for yourself . . behind the wheel of the new Chevrolet Six.

That is why we urge you . . no matter how many nice things you have heard or read about Chevrolet . . to DRIVE CHEVROLET before you buy any car.

If you don't sell yourself a Chevrolet, nobody else is going to do it. Please don't feel you are obligating yourself in any way. It's a pleasure for us to place a Chevrolet Six at your disposal.

What Happened Before

Remember Steddon comes West to avoid revealing the result of an unfortunate love affair to her father.

The Rev. Dr. Steddon, a clergyman of kind heart but narrow mind who attributes much of the evil of the world to the "movies" and constantly inveighs against them. Mem, her lover Elwood Farnaby having died in an accident, at the advice of Dr. Bretherick, gives her bad cough as an excuse to get to Arizona and from there writes home that she has met and married "Mr. Woodville," a wholly imaginary person. Later she writes again to say that her "husband" has died in the desert. She takes a job as a domestic to avoid being a burden on her parents. A fall prevents her becoming a mother. In Arizona she had met

Tom Holby, a leading man in a motion picture company, and through him gets the opportunity to play a part in a desert drama. With the company is

Robina Teele, a Star, fond of Holby and Leva Lemaire, an extra woman. After her accident, Mem becomes friendly with

Mrs. Dack, a poor woman of Palm Springs, Arizona, and takes an interest in her bright little son, Terry Dack, who has a great gift of mimicry. Inspired by a letter from Leva, Mem plans to go to Los Angeles to take a job in a film laboratory.

She gets a job in a film laboratory, but loses it. She meets a Mrs. Sturgs from her home town, who talks of the evils of the movies and says the stars are forced to sell their souls. Mem then learns her mother is coming to visit her. Mem is worried about her finances.

She sees a casting director, Arthur Tirrey, and abruptly offers herself to him in return for a job in the movies. He tells her the talk about "paying the price" is all rot. Meanwhile the attention of Mr. Bermond, head of the company, is diverted to her and he decides to give her a chance. Soon she finds herself posing with Claymore as her director, obeying his commands in a kind of stupor.

Mem's father reads a publicity story calling her "the prettiest girl in America" and writes a letter of protest to his wife and daughter. Mem's fame begins to spread, and Claymore, the director, takes an unusual interest in her. He is infatuated with Mem but tries to be aloof and professional to hide the fact from the company.

Mem and Claymore become more and more interested in each other. Out riding one day, Claymore makes physical advances to her. While they are parking a hold-up man approaches and demands their money.

Now Go On With the Story

Claymore, brooding deeply in his earnest soul, felt that he owed Mem some atonement. He meant it nobly, but it sounded crude when he checked the car in front of her little home and took her hand and said:

"If you will let me marry you, I'll see that my wife divorces me."

These divorces of convenience marked the new-fashioned way of accomplishing old-fashioned righteousness. He wanted to make her "an honest woman."

Mem laughed nervously.

"No, thanks!" It was as uninspired as possible, but then it is not easy to make a brilliant answer to a stupid suggestion. She felt that she must improve on it a bit, but she helped it little when she added: "Just as much obliged. Good night!"

* * * *

Two days later she began work with Tom Holby's company. Holby described the part she was to play, read her the big scenes.

People make love unconsciously at times and in the truest courtships never a word is spoken. Two souls travel mystic gardens together and come to deep understandings without the exchange of a syllabled thought.

Mem was so wooed by Holby.

* * * *

The orders had gone forth to rush the Holby picture to a conclusion. Big night-storm scenes had been scheduled for the final takes, and on the final morning the first scenes were begun promptly at nine. Kendrick promised to let the company go at three to rest for the all-night grind, but it was not until half past seven that the day's work was done.

At nine they went to the first of the sets. The Californian night was black and cold. The night in the story was one of tempest and battle. Tom Holby must run an automobile into a ditch and make a desperate war against four brutes who were instructed to put up a good fight.

Each bit of scenery through which she was to flash had been made ready the day before. Perforated rain pipes were reinforced by men who would play a fire hose or two upon the hapless actress. The gale was to be provided by an airplane propeller mounted on a truck.

Mem inspected the settings she was so briefly to adorn.

"Why do they build that fence around the wind machine?" she asked Kendrick.

"To keep people from walking into the propeller and getting chopped to mincemeat," said Kendrick.

After an hour preparation the army was ready for the battle.

A gentle rain fell from the pipes. The fire hose, aimed up in the air, added its volume. The wind machine set up its mad clatter. The water and the lightning filled it with shattering fire.

Then Mem was called forth. She clutched her cloak about her and thrust into the tempest. It was like driving through a slightly rarefied cataract. She hardly reached the pillar at the edge of the porch, clutched it for a moment, caught a quick breath, and flung down the steps. And that was that. All this preparation for one minute of action!

She was taken to a warm room and wrapped in blankets while the next scene was prepared. She was supposed to have run a long distance between the last scene and this, and she must enter it wet.

At length she got her signal and went forward again, head down, into the wild storm.

During her absence a telephone pole and a tree had been brought down by the storm and photographed as they fell. It was her business now to clamber across the pole and push through the branches of the tree, and so fight her way out of the picture. The wind machine had been shifted several times. The wind man in his confusion forgot to notice that the property men had forgotten, in their confusion, to set up the fence before the propeller. It was after midnight now and everybody was numb with cold, drenched with the promiscuous rain, and a little irresponsible. Their working day was already fifteen hours old and it would last at least five hours more.

Tom Holby had been photographed in a climb up the wet sides of a ravine, and was half frozen in his soaked clothes, but he stayed to watch Mem through this scene.

She struggled with the maniac hurricane, stumbled and fell across the telephone pole, thrust aside the wires, lifted herself and breasted the wind again, drove into the wreck of the fallen tree. The branches whipped her wet flesh cruelly. The lightning just ahead of her blistered her vision like the white-hot irons driven into the eyes of Shakespeare's Prince Clarence. The wind blew her breath back into her lungs. If she had not gained a little support from one stout bough of the tree she could never have reached the margin of the picture.

Kendrick's heart was glad with triumph as he saw her pass out of the camera range. He called, "Cut!" and the camera men were jubilant as each of them shouted "O. K. for me!"

Then Kendrick heard screams of terror, wild howls of fear. He ran forward and saw the blinded little figure of Mem still pressing on straight into the blur of the airplane propeller.

His heart sickened. She would be sliced to shreds. She could not hear the yelled warnings in the noise of the machine.

The operator shut off his engine, but the propellers still swirled at a speed that made them only a whorl of light. The witnesses were paralyzed by the horror of the moment.

Tom Holby broke from a nightmare that outran the immediate beauty of the girl walking forward to a hideous fate. He ran and dived for her like a football tackler, hooked his left arm about her knees and flung her backward, thrusting his right arm and his head beneath her, so that when she struck, her shoulders were upon his breast, her drenched hair fell across his face like seaweed.

She opened her eyes in a chaos of bewilderment. Just above her the flying propeller blades were glistening in the light of the sun arc.

They were still revolving when the wind machine man, leaping from the post where he had stood expecting her fate and his own eternal remorse, ran to lift her from the ground. Others helped up Tom Holby.

He had knocked himself unconscious when his head struck a rock in the road. His cheek was ripped and gushing blood.

He came to his senses at once and forced a ghastly laugh.

Mem screamed with fear for him. She had not yet realized her own escape. She was all pity for Tom Holby, and anxiety.

"It's nothing," he said. Then he staggered with dread of what Mem would have looked like now if he had waited an instant longer or missed his aim at her knees.

He drew her from the vortex of the propeller, which was subsiding with the dying snarl of a leopard that has missed its pounce.

* * * *

The next day the company gathered to see the rushes of the night stuff.

Kendrick sighed, "That came near being a portrait of you walking out of this world."

His heart sickened. She would be sliced to shreds.

Tom Holby did not speak, but he reached out and, seizing Mem's hand, wrung it with an eloquence beyond words. He seemed to be squeezing her heart with clinging hands.

She was consumed with an impatience to begin a new picture at once, and to be very busy with life and love, beauty and delight.

And yet, when Tom Holby, after they had left the lot, asked her to ride with him for a bit of air, told her he adored her and that she was adorable; when he courted her with deference and meekness and pleaded for a little kindness—her heart froze in her. She could not even accept a proffered beatitude.

She looked at him and thought—and said:

"Too many people love you, Tommy. You belong to the public, and you couldn't bring yourself down to really loving little me."

"Oh, but I could! I do!" he cried. "Damn my public! I don't care for anything but you."

"But I haven't had my public yet, and I love it. Just now the only love I can feel is acted love."

"Then let's have a rehearsal," he suggested, cynically. But she shook her head. "I want to laugh, Tommy," she cried. "Amuse me, make me laugh!"

"There's the new Charlie Chaplin comedy," he said. "We might get in."

"Let's try," said Mem.

Holby swung his car round.

"Tommy," said Mem, "what is comedy? I'm sick of all these crying scenes and emoting all over the place. I want to be a comedienne, Do you think I could be one?"

"I don't think so," said Holby, with scientific candor. "You never made me laugh. You don't laugh much."

"No, but I'm going to! I think if I ever love anybody really, it will be a great comedian. Do you know any comedians who aren't married, Tommy?"

"Lots of 'em," said Holby. "A sense of humor keeps a man from getting married—or staying married long."

They took in a Chaplin show and on the way home she snuggled close to Holby in the car. Yet when he spoke tenderly she made fun of him, giggled, reminded him of bits of the picture that had amused her. This enraged him.

"I'm going in for comedy," she said. "It's the only thing worth while. All this tears and passion business makes me sick."

Holby fought out in his soul a decent battle of self-sacrifice before he brought himself to the height of recommending a rival. "There's Ned Ling; he's looking for a pretty leading woman. He's not Chaplin, but he's awfully funny in his own way. If you're so hell bent on a comic career get your agent to go after him."

"Ned Ling," she mused. "Yes, I've seen him. I may make a try at him a little later."

But when she reached her home there was something waiting in ambush for her—a letter from her father.

BUFFALO COMING BACK

DOMESTICATED HERD FLOURISHING IN CANADA.

Prediction Is Made That Herds Will Once Again Approximate In Size Those Found on Plains by Men Who Opened the West.

It may be that the kind of meat most available to pioneers of our plains will once again grace the tables of Americans, says a writer in the New York Times; for the buffalo in the north, having been nearly extinguished further south is reported to be building herds that will supply food for future generations. Those who are watching the comeback of the buffalo in the wilds of Canada predict a time when herds will once again approximate in size those found on the plains by men who opened the west.

Present-day Canadians have already learned the taste of buffalo meat. The small domesticated herd in Buffalo National Park at Wainwright, Alberta, has flourished so that every year until lately a number of the animals had to be slaughtered to make room for the rest. At such times the meat appeared on the market from coast to coast in competition with beef. But the supply was always limited. The prophets of the north, on the other hand, foresee abundance not only for Canadians, but for millions of others. The source is to be the recently discovered wild herd of the Peace River district, with the development of which the Canadian Government is now concerning itself.

Few persons had any idea a decade ago that there were any wild buffalo left. Then, in 1921, the effort to increase the meat supply carried a Government surveying party into the uncharted sections of Northern Alberta. There was found a herd of several hundred wild buffaloes.

Immediate steps were taken to protect them. Their range, some 17,300 square miles in extent, was set apart as a reservation and wardens were stationed there to look out for them. Studies made of them from time to time showed that they had not suffered in the least from their migration. They proved equal in size, strength and vitality to any of their kind. It was observed that their numbers were increasing. In 1924 the herd was estimated at between 1,500 and 2,000. It was soon after this that the idea was conceived of sending the surplus from the domesticated Wainwright herd to the Fort Fitzgerald sanctuary in the Peace River country, there to mingle with the wild herd.

Corrals had to be built where the buffaloes could be kept until a shipment had been assembled, and scows had to be constructed in which the river steamer could tow the cargo of animals from the end of the railroad to its destination. The journey was long and difficult and great were the expense and trouble involved, but in the last three summers many shipments have thus been moved. The experiment is reported to be completely successful.

It will take a long time for the buffalo to "come back" though only a little more than half a century ago it was superabundant. A creature of the wide plains, it had to give way before civilization.

Buffaloes were roaming over one-third of the continent of North America when white men first came here. Cortez saw one of them in the zoo of Montezuma. Alvar Muney Cabeza, afterward known as Cattle Cabeza, came to land after his shipwreck off Texas and saw buffalos there. An English navigator, Samuel Argoll, in 1612 reported a buffalo in what is now the District of Columbia, and in is now Western Illinois. Fifty years later surveyors for Col. Wm. Byrd gave accounts of buffalo roaming the boundary between Virginia and North Carolina.

How they migrated over the Western plains in herds that numbered millions every reader of American history knows. So numerous were they that some of the Indians, to whom they gave food, raiment and shelter, believed that they issued from the earth continuously in a stream that was inexhaustible.

The coming of the railroad, however, quickly dispelled that belief. The Union Pacific line, spanning the country, split the great herd into northern and southern divisions, and first one, then the other was presently wiped out.

With the opening up of the plains by transportation the slaughter began. A vast army of unemployed rushed to the buffalo country to hunt. The animals were defenceless. The moment their leader was picked off they stood in confusion, waiting to be shot; and the hunters did not fail to shoot.

Some of the butchers took out only the tongues of the buffaloes and discarded the rest; some took only the hides; some took the meat, too. In 1873 the Santa Fe Railroad carried out of Kansas more than 25,000 robes, 1,600,000 pounds of meat and almost 3,000,000 pounds of bone. The annual rate of buffalo destruction for the country was estimated at something like 2,500,000 head between 1870 and 1875, and within a year or two afterward the southern herd, counted as almost 10,000,000 a decade before, was practically gone.

The attack upon the northern herd started on a big scale in 1880 and three years later there were said to be less than 1,000 head left at large in the United States.

It was in 1907 that the Canadian Government evidenced its interest in buffalo culture by purchasing the unrivalled private herd of 700 head belonging to Michael Pablo of Montana and setting aside 160 square miles at Wainwright for Buffalo National Park. This herd has thrived so that the surplus shipped north to the wild range has amounted to about 7,000 in the last three years.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT — BY WELLINGTON

"Home Made"

THE knowing hostess takes advantage of every opportunity to give individuality to her table.

She always makes her own salad dressings. She prefers to create her own desserts. And she makes her own mustard pickles.

In this way she can develop her own combination of vegetable ingredients—and be sure they are firm and fresh. She can use the purest of vinegars, peppers and spices. And, most important of all, she can give her pickles that superlative, indispensable tang of flavour imparted only by a real old English Mustard like KEEN'S!

PICKLED BEANS

String a quarter of a peck of tender green beans, throw them into a kettle of boiling water, add 1 teaspoonful salt and boil 25 minutes. When done drain in a colander, let stand until cold, then put into jars. Sprinkle lightly with cayenne, add one tablespoonful of Keen's Mustard, 1 tablespoonful chopped horse - radish and cover the whole with strong cider vinegar.

When the school bells rang in Ontario on September 3rd thousands of small boys and girls started on the greatest adventure of childhood — Going to school.

Every Starter a Healthy Scholar

Upon the health of the child as he enters school depends, to a large extent, his success or failure as a scholar. Everything that is done from the time a child is born to develop in him a strong, sound body is a contribution to his school success. Malnourished, sickly children not only are likely to miss school often, but they can not do the best work when they are in school. It takes a strong, vigorous child to get the most out of school life.

Parents who have children entering school for the first time this fall owe it to their children to have every possible handicap removed, every defect remedied which medical and dental science can correct. This common-sense idea of starting school without a handicap on the health score is fast becoming very popular in Ontario and hundreds of children are now entering school with health 100% perfect.

Protection Which Means Much

Diphtheria is disease which is particularly dangerous in childhood. There are very few deaths from this disease among grown-ups; it takes its greatest toll from among young children. In Ontario to-day there is no excuse for any child starting school without protection against diphtheria, for the reason that science has perfected a preventive which is supplied free of charge to physicians for the use of all children within the province. Toxoid is the name of this preventive; is given in three doses three weeks apart injected into the skin of the forearm.

Mothers and fathers would be willing to risk their lives to save a baby even if it meant pulling him from the railway track in face of an approaching train or dashing in front of a racing motor car. Yet the danger of diphtheria is an ever-present one for the unprotected child from one to ten years of age. Toxoid is a proven protection against this danger of childhood; it is insurance for the child and the parent—and is supplied free by the Department of Health of Ontario.

The candidate was confident of "getting in." He had personally canvassed from door to door the whole constituency, and the promises assured him that the seat was his. When the poll was declared, he found himself at the bottom of the poll. The usual after result speeches from candidates were called for, and the only sentence he said was. "I am glad that I am not to represent such a lot of d——d liars as you." At the next election he was top of the poll.

Russians Discover Channels in Far North Clear of Ice

Visit Far North and Find Things Unusually Wild and Comparatively Attractive

Moscow—The Russian icebreaker Sedov, exploring Franz Josef Land, far north of the Arctic Circle and the world's northernmost colony, has wirelessed Moscow authorities that the new Soviet radio station and meteorological observatory on Franz Josef Land has been auspiciously opened on Aug. 30.

The members of the expedition were enthusiastic over the successful progress of their task of exploring and taming Russia's section of the frozen north.

Leaders of the expedition are considering a project of using Soviet icebreakers as tourist ships for visitors from Russia and the rest of the world, who might desire a trip to Franz Josef Land and the other Russian possessions in the north.

At the present time the expedition is exploring Hooker Island. One of the groups has explored the spacious deep valley in the northern part of the island, through which flows a stormy mountain river. Another group crossed Hooker Island from south to north, reaching Cape Albert Markham and the glacier Helena

It has been discovered that the Smirson Channel and the Samoilovich Channel are free from ice and open for navigation. The Allen Young Gulf is covered with broken ice.

From the top of Cape Albert Markham the members of the expedition observed the rapid movement of ice in the British canal and saw the rocky cape of the Algir Island, where the hut of Baldwin's Aerican expedition, which wintered there in 1901, is half covered with snow.

A WARNING TO MOTHERS

Watch the Health of Your Little Ones at All Times

No mother can expect that her child will escape all the ills to which babyhood and childhood are subject, but she can do much to lessen the severity of these troubles. The mother should be constantly on her guard to prevent childhood ailments, or if they come on suddenly, as they usually do, to have the means at hand to relieve them. Thousands of mothers have found Baby's Own Tablets the ideal remedy for little ones—thousands of mothers always keep the Tablets in the house as a safeguard against the sudden illness of their little ones.

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative. They regulate the bowels; sweeten the stomach and thus banish constipation and indigestion; break up colds and simple fever and make the cutting of teeth easy. The Tablets are absolutely guaranteed free from injurious drugs and may be given to the youngest child with perfect safety. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

DADDY CAN NOW EAT ANYTHING

He dearly loved a rich tit-bit. The spirit was willing, but the flesh was weak. Whenever he ate anything rich, his boys used to say, "Poor dad, he will pay the penalty to-morrow." Read the sequel in his own words:—

"Since taking the regular dose of Kruschen Salts it is quite different, and my boys enjoy themselves seeing me eat what I dare not touch before. My eldest son was the same, but since he has taken Kruschen Salts he can eat and enjoy whatever is put in front of him."

Modern artificial conditions, errors of diet, overwork, lack of exercise, and so on, are bound to have injurious effects in the long run providing due precaution is not taken.

Kruschen Salts should be your safeguard. Besides cleansing the body of impurities gently, surely and painlessly, they possess a vital power of giving new life and vitality to the countless millions of cells of which every body is composed. That is why physicians never hesitate to recommend Kruschen Salts.

Britain's Burden

New York Herald-Tribune: It is easy to denounce the official laxness which permitted the movement (in Palestine) to develop; it is far more difficult to chatr the wise British course in such an emergency. Immediately, of course, the riots must and will be put down. The obligation of the English Government to protect lives and maintain order in Palestine is clear. Then what? The British statesmen who so lightly pledged independence to the Arabs and a homeland to the Jews promised more than they realized, and the problems faced by the statesmen at The Hague are simple compared to the solution of the tangled skein of races and religions in Palestine.

Horse Racing

Detroit News: If only the professional gambler stood to lose by the game's dishonesty, the community might be forgiven for regarding it with some equanimity. It reaches farther than that. Losses of fidelity bond companies in Chicago show that the number of embezzlements in the city since the tracks reopened in Illinois is between two and thre times what it was before. Many of the cases are those of small clerks who spend their salaries and al they can steal from their employers at the tracks. As long as these are matters of record, why prate of "honest raing?" Who ever heard of any honest business that created thousands of thieves?

UPON THE MOUNT

No soul can be healthy without the hill-country, its sacred heights whence come new mornings, and release from small limitations, and sense of space and outlook. And the soul must climb its hills even when its circumstances are like a low monotonous plain. It must climb the mount of the revealed purpose of God. It must take a turn up the slopes of some outstanding promise. Get thee up into the high mountains of grace. Look up and get up where good tidings are born, and where thou canst see the land that is very far off! "Go, stand upon the mount before the Lord!"

Sturdy and Strong Young Britons

"War Babies" Show Remarkable Stamina and Set Record in England for "Super" Qualities

London.—A quarter of a million of the sturdiest youngsters ever born in Britain have left school to start the battle of life in earnest.

They are those despised "war babies" who, because they have not been coddled and overfed, are taller and heavier than their parents were at their age.

This quarter of a million of young boys and girls might be termed the second batch of "war babies.' All the gloomy prophecies and pessimistic disparagement levelled against the "war baby" in recent years have been dispersed by the statement of a high County Council health officer.

"They are the finest reared in the history of the nation. They are an inch taller and four pounds heavier than their parents at the corresponding age. Their posture and carriage, too, are better. There is no comparison between the modern boy and girl and their counterpart of twenty years ago."

Medical and educational authorities are enthusiastic about the new generation, and there is every sign that the 1929 baby will surpass the 250,000 stalwart youngsters now taking the field.

Reports from infant death centres, the National Baby Week Council, educational and child welfare officials form one long panegyric of the 1929 baby.

"They are super-babies," said an infant welfare centre official, "sturdy, bright and intelligent to a degree which would stagger their forefathers. The modern baby is more advanced at three months than the pre-war baby at twelve months. Before the war the average baby fed and slept until he was two years old."

"Why is it?" said a nurse at an infant hospital. "Simply because we leave the modern baby alone and do not coddle it. Give it light, airy clothes, proper food, plenty of sun, and then leave it alone."

Besides schoolrooms nurseries, kindergartens are better planned nowadays. As a matter of fact, the only adverse criticism against the modern baby is that modern children are more "nervy."

Fat babies have gone out of fashion. The baby experts look upon the fat baby as a coddled and overfed child, and bright eyes and agility count more than avoirdupois in the 1929 Babyland.

"Every statistic and report submitted during the last few years prove that the talk about race degeneration is so much humbug," was how a schoolmaster summed up the case.

The Drain of Gold

Economicus in the Review of Reviews (London): The centre of financial gravity has moved from New York to Paris. We are no longer anxiously watching America. We are watching France, who has been busy converting her foreign balanes, dollars and sterling, into gold. It is alleged that the movement is the result of the shifting of private balances, but inquiries go to show that official balances, the balances of the French Treasury, are also being moved to Paris. Whatever the cause of the movement, it is occasioning serious ehmbarrassment to this country. This country has made great sacrifices for the gold standard. It is doubted whether the industrialists and business men would have agreed to return to gold at the pre-war parity, had they been able to foresee its consequences to industry. But we relied upon the rest of the world to play the game as we did. None of the other participants in the war have done so.

Stop Colds with Minard's Liniment.

An elderly woman, visiting the grave in which her third husband had lately been laid with the other two, was accosted there with an expression of condolence by a man who had been one of her earliest sweethea ts. He had got no further than, "Ah'm reyt sorry, Sarah," when, pointing to the tombstone, she cut him short with: "Ah want noan o' thy sympathy. If tha'd a' been hawf a man, thy name 'ud a been t' first o' them three."

A French Gesture

Manchester Guardian (Lib.): It is pleasant to hear that a Dusseldorf architect has been appointed to the Chair of Architecture and Town-planning at the Sorbonne. . . . We sometimes forget, after the terrible experience of a war that shattered all the traditions of civilized life, that in other wars the ties that bind scholars and students were not all broken when nations were at war. Sir Humphry Davy received a prize from the Institute of France for his discoveries when we were at war with Napoleon, and in the earlier war with France, French admirals were instructed to give and help they could to Captain Cook if they came across him in distant seas. The Great War was in all these respects the most complete and implacable quarrel that ever divided nations. Universities—and the German universities first of all—were conscripted, and universities knew each other only as enemies. With a German professor at the Sorbonne and German Rhodes scholars returning to Oxford universities know each other once again as allies in the service of truth and learning.

Women Aviators

London News and Westminster (Lib).: The Duchess of Bedford has created a new and striking record which is not likely to be easily broken. But hers is not the first and perhaps not the most remarkable instance of woman's daring in the air. There are now numerous expert women pilots, numerous clubs whih have more women applicants than men, numerous achievements in which women have shown themselves to be unsurpassed in skill, in daring and in fortitude. . . They have shown, indeed, that in this, as in other directions, there are not two standards of daring but one and in this, when they wish, no one can excel them.

The Sphinx and the Nile

London Observer (Ind.): The Anglo-Egyptian agreement awaits the judgment of the Parliaments of Britain and Egypt. The treaty which it contemplates is contingent on their approval. But more is at issue than the relations between two States whose destinies history and geography have linked together. The new proposals must needs react upon the situation in India. They are of intimate concern to the Dominions. They bear directly upon the moral prestige of Britain throughout the world.

Too Much ACID

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess aid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do that—for your own sake—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correting excess acids. Each bottle contains full directions—any drugstore.

The Most Beautiful BLACK you have ever seen

"THE most beautiful black you've ever seen!" "All my friends admire my new black silk!" "The coat I thought was hopelessly spotted is now a new, beautiful black!" These are typical comments from women who have used these true, jet black dyes.

Diamond Dyes Black never gives cloth a greenish or bronzy look, as so many black dyes do. Like Diamond Dyes Red and all the other Diamond colors, it is easy to use and gives such beautiful results because it is rich in pure anilines. It's the anilines in dyes that give them brilliance, depth and fastness; make them go on smoothly and evenly, without streaking or spotting. And Diamond Dyes contain the highest quality anilines that money can buy. The white package of Diamond Dyes is the highest quality dye, prepared for general use. It will dye or tint silk, wool, cotton, linen, rayon, or any mixture of materials. The blue package is a special dye, for silk and wool only. With it you can dye your valuable articles of silk or wool with results equal to the finest professional work. When you buy—remember this. The blue package dyes silk or wool only. The white package will dye every kind of goods, including silk and wool. Your dealer has both packages.

DR. GEORGE I. CHRISTIE

The address given at the Anniversary gathering in the Winchester United Church on Monday evening by Dr. Geo. I. Christie, Principal of the Agricultural College at Guelph, Ont., was a "delightfully refreshing" one, if we may so refer to it. Not that Dr. Christie expressed many new thoughts and ideas, but rather that he expressed them in a new and refreshing way, a way calculated to stir up in the mind and heart a reviving of ideas that in too many have too long remained dormant, and to give to each a new inspiration to carry out, and live out, the kind of community life that is a real factor toward progress and development.

Dr. Christie referred to his boyhood days in Winchester, and the influence on his career made, not so much by what was taught him but by the example set by the good men and women he had learned to respect and love because of their upright, christian lives and kindly nature.

Winchester has sent out into the world a number of her sons who have gained prominence and reached positions of great responsibility. But Dr. Christie has, perhaps more than any other, been privileged to live in a broader sphere of human existence, and his chosen occupation of promoting agriculture and the welfare of the farmer has given him, not only an experience, but an insite into the common ways of life, the common problems of life, the causes of success and failure in life, that he is using in a helpful and elevating way.

It must have been a real pleasure to Dr. Christie to be greeted by so large an audience in his home town, an audience who listened with rapt attention to his very helpful and inspiring address. He is fully deserving of the tribute paid him, and the Press but expresses the feelings of all who listened to him, when we say that this community is justly proud that it has given to this province one so richly endowed with the practical knowledge of the basic industry if our Dominion, that of Agriculture.

Dr. Christie is one who has come up from the ranks. He has reached his present eminence by hard toil, careful study, a close and practical application of what he learned, what he has seen and come in contact with. His views of life and of religion, is broad and sound. His outlook is that of one who sees the brighter and more hopeful side of life. The principles of success as enunciated by him are application, seeing and seizing opportunites, co-operation, human sympathy and helpulness.

It is the first time Dr. Christie has given a public address in his home town since he left here many years ago a young man to make a way and and name for himself in the business world. He was heard with pleasure, and it is the earnest wish of all who heard him on Monday night that it will not be the last time he will address an audience here.

CALLS PARENTS TO TIME

Train up a child in the way he should go: and when he is old, he will not depart from it. So said the wise writer of Proverbs centuries ago, and history since then has but served to confirm the observation. Archdeacon Scott, of Quebec, another wise and respected observer of humanity with a vast fund of experience, has brought the question of parental responsibility to the fore again by his address before the Anglican educational committee meeting in connection with the Synod at Vancouver. The Archdeacon charges that some modern parents are endangering the souls of the young by neglecting spiritual training in the home and by ignoring the duties of the Sabbath. If parents do not attend worship and do not conduct worship in the homes, they cannot expect to set a proper example to the young, he states, and adds that the problem today is not with the young, but to get hold of the parents. The latter are "the God-given teachers of children," he concludes.—Montreal Gazette.

ENCOURAGING REPORTS

A careful canvas is being made of Dundas County in the interest of Mr. N. W. Beach, the Candidate of the Prohibition Union, and the reports from all sides are most encouraging. After all, very few who voted for Prohibition three years ago have changed their views. Even Premier Ferguson, and his attorney General, Hon. Wm. Price, admit that the L. C. A. has in some respects been a failure and requires amending. But to the thoughtful person there is only one cure for the liquor traffic and that is to prohibit it by law.

The electors of Dundas County know that the drinking of liquor has increased, that automobile accidents, because of liquor, have increased, that young men, who a few years ago knew not the taste of liquor now obtain it and distribute it among their young companions. And it is this knowledge of real conditions that confirm the expectations and hopes of the Prohibition party.

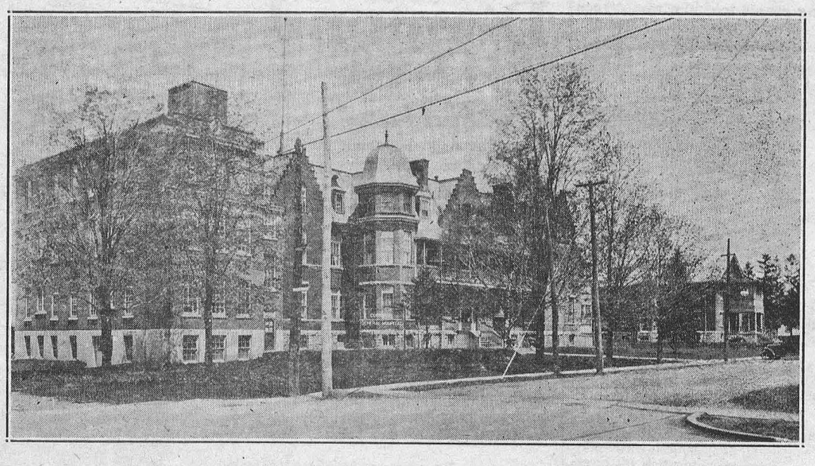
The really good man or woman who will fairly and honestly look at the issue of this election, and can mark his ballot with a clear conscience, will not have much to regret if they mark it for the Prohibition Candidate.

AMBITIOUS SMITHS FALLS

Smiths Falls is gradually reaching her ambition in the political affairs of the country. For many years Perth, her rival town, was the home of both the Federal and Provincial member of Parliament. This was accepted by Smiths Falls, but like a dose of bitter medicine, and her ambition has for many years past been to have at least one parliamentary representation a resident of that town. With the election of Dr. Murphy to the Dominion House, and the nomination of Dr. Anderson for the Legislature, Smiths Falls is now likely to be the home of both setting members.

UNCALLED FOR ELECTION

Here in Ontario in the throes of an uncalled for election at a cost of $575,000, plus the expenditures of the different candidates. Let's see, at $30,000 a mile the share of the province alone would build nearly twenty miles of the highest class of pavement on the King's Highway or two or three times that length of ordinary provincial roads, all of which are more necessary than an election—Exchange



The Managing Governors of Cornwall General Hospital are arranging for a Campaign to cover the three United Counties, in order to raise funds which are urgently needed, the objective being $50,000.00. The Campaign is to start October 14th to the 18th, both dates included. A special committee has been appointed, composed of Messrs. A. Horovitz, chairman, John H. Cline, treasurer, and W. L. G. Snetsinger, secretary.

The General Hospital, Cornwall, is now equipped with 80 beds, public, semi-private and private, so that it is able to give accommodation to all, from the patient who is unable to pay anything, to the patient who wants the best modern hotel accommodation. A patient is never refused because he has no money, but those who have money are expected to pay for all they receive.

All this has cost much money, and there is now a debt of about $40.000, in spite of the generosity which has always been extended to the Hospital.

Now, the Managing Governors feel that the United Counties is the special field of this Hospital, and they are looking to them for their support. When that is done, there should be no need for a general appeal for years.

A Subscription of $100 to be paid in annual sums of $10 or more, entitles you to become, upon the first payment, a Life Governor of this institution.

A Subscription of $1000, to be paid in annual sums of $100 or more, endowes a ward in the hospital to be named by the donor.

Mrs. Coleman read an excellent paper on "Citizenship" prepared by Mrs. N. W. Beach of Winchester, which was greatly appreciated.

It pointed out very clearly the opportunity and responsibility of every woman to help make Canada a land to love. The meeting closed by singing a hymn and repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison.

News of Chesterville

The Ladies' Aid of the Chesterville United Church met recently at the home of Mrs. A. E. Bolster on Albert Street. In spite of the inclement weather there were thirty-five members and visitors present. The devotional exercises were taken by Mrs. S. Droppo ahd Mrs. Chamberlain of Montreal, a former member of the society. Arrangements were made and plans discussed for a Thanksgiving supper and concert to be held in the church on November 11th.

A number of letters of thanks were read by the secretary from sick members for flowers etc., and replies from letters of condolence from members who have been bereaved. The visiting committee reported 32 calls made and flowers, fruit etc., sent to 13 sick members.

A splendid program was given, consisting of a solo by Mrs. W. N. Fulton, an instrumental solo by Miss Betty Bolster, and a reading by Mrs. R. E. Newman, each number being very much enjoyed.

After the meeting was brought to a close in the usual way, a dainty lunch was served by the hostess, Mrs. Bolster, assisted by Mrs. E. B. Baker, Mr. A. F. Jarvis, Mrs. S. H. Hutt, Mrs. F. Forward and Mrs. W. O. Dixon.

Fire At Hallville

Fire, believed to have been caused by combustion, destroyed all out-buildings and practically all their contents on the farm of Clarke Hyndman, at Hallville, nine miles west of Winchester, Monday night. The direction of the wind prevented the fire from spreading to the house.

Mrs. Hyndman said the barn seemed to catch fire in an instant and the flames spread rapidly to two adjacent buildings and a silo. In them were stored the results of the entire summer's work, none of which could be saved. She could not estimate the loss but said there was some insurance.

Mr. Hyndman while trying to get his calves out of the barn, suffered painful burns to the the right arm. With the assistance of neighbors, he was able to get all the stock out except a few hens, which were destroyed.

The glare attracted scores of farmers from all parts of the countryside. They did their utmost to save the buildings, but the heat was so intense that they could not get near enough to do much, handicapped as they were by lack of water.

16 different patterns to choose from. If any size or pattern wanted is not in stock we will have it in three days time for you. We get these direct from the factory and have priced them the same as the departmental stores and you have the advantage of seeing them. Rugs that have to be sent for will be delivered to your own home. We solicit your business.

It's a Fact!

As one man to another, you have my sympathy—I have had experience too, and I, like you, couldn't find the hammer or the screw-driver—I couldn't tell in which box they had been put or at what job I had used them last. I didn't waiste hours trying to find them, I figured if I bought new ones they would always come in handy and save myself a lot of worry and trouble

I'm just passing the tip on to you that you can get any Hardware or Paint that you may require at our store, and I shall be personally glad to do all I can for you.

Garden of Eden is Now Under Water

British Naval Officer Claims Location in Persian Gulf

The decision of some Anglican theologians that many of the Old Testament stories are merely legends gives interest to the claim of Commander C. E. V. Craufurd, a British naval officer, that he has found the Garden of Eden—beneath the waters of the Persian Gulf. Writing in the Daily Mail he states his case thus:

Where is the Garden of Eden?

Biblical information is very precise: "And a river went out of Eden to water the garden; and from thence it was parted, and became into four heads. . . . And the fourth river is Euphrates."

Nothing incomprehensible there, so let us start to examine the Euphrates.

Along its present course the Euphrates shows no evidence of either a past or present junction of four great rivers.

In past ages can the Euphrates have extended farther along its course? The answer is yes, and that is the key to the problem.

The Persian Gulf is a basin valley which has been inundated at some past period; and according to geological estimate that inundation has been very recent.

In the Persian Gulf, from Fao, its western extremity, to Ormuz, of the east, there is no ocean depth, no sounding showing ocean trend.

Directly we pass from the Persian Gulf through the Straits of Ormuz and into the Gulf of Ormuz we meet true ocean depths.

Undoubtedly the Persian Bulf west of Ormuz was once a asin valley through which the Euphrates flowed on past Fao, onward bordering the Koweit and Hasa territories, on past the northern coasts of Muscat territories, and so outward to its ocean outlet of Ormuz, which was then the northwestern limit of the Indian Ocean.

RIVER OASIS.

Before the Flood the valley held a Garden of Pleasantness, a river oasis bordered to northward by the Hiddekel and to the south vard by the Euphrates. Its eastern extremity was the junction of four rivers, three of which are supposed to have been lost, all of which have now been found.

The Euphrates flowed onward, eastward past Fao (its present termination), to its river junction, and as it flowed onward from there its name changed. From the Eden junction onward to Ormuz this river was called the Gihon, "the same is it that compasseth the whole land of Ethiopia."

The Gihon compassed or encircled the whole land of Ethiopia, the land of the black Arabs. Do not confuse this Biblical Ethiopia with the more modern Ethiopia which we now call Abyssinia. Ancient Ethiopia is now called the Hasa and the Muscat Territories.

Now we have the approximate latitude of the Garden of Eden. If you wish for more precise information you must patrol the pearl banks of Bahrein, situated in those localities where the pearls are best, where their lights are most exquisite—there you are near to the Garden of Eden. The natives will assure you that fresh water from the ocean bed gives these pearls their exquisite hues and render them the most valuable jewels of the world's pearl harvest. They are watered by seepage from the lost River Gihon.

When the Ocean Flood, of earthquake and tidal wave origin, inundated the Basin Valley it swept from the Indian Ocean westward, drowning the whole of the Adamite world with the exception of Noah, Shem, Ham, Japheth and their wives and families.

The flood retreated gradually and left the Pison as a subterranean river, whose course is still clearly indicated by the Wadi Dawasir, which compasseth the whole land of Havilah, "where there is gold . . . there is bdellium and the onyx stone." The geological location is a very exact one.

These three substances are in three distinct geological strata. I have seen the gold of Havilah, in the next strata I have been shown the "bdellium," a curious lime marble so beautiful in coloring that it is a semi-precious stone. In the last of the three strata is the onyx stone, both the genuine onyx of the modern classification and the biblical onyx or agate.

HENRY'S SHORTHAND SCHOOL
Ottawa, Ontario

Prison Colony For Doukhobors

Federal Establishment in Gulf of Georgia Suggested by B.C.

Victoria, B.C.—Fanatical Doukhobors blamed for disturbances in Saskatchewan and British Columbia's interior, may be consigned to a prison colony, probably on Darcy Island in the Gulf of Georgia. Suggestion has been made to the dominion government by provincial authorities it was revealed recently.

The scheme has been placed before Dr. J. H. King, Dominion minister of health. He will discuss the matter with his colleagues on his return to Ottawa.

The proposal that Doukhobors who refuse to obey Canadian laws be removed to a colony by themselves, where they will have no contact with law-abiding members of their sect, is advanced by the provincial government in the belief that the whole Doukhobor problem is a federal issue. The Doukhobors, it is explained, were brought here under contract by the federal government.

Darcy Island is suggested as a suitable place for the proposed colony because it is isolated and escape from it is almost impossible.

Closing the Prisons

London Daily Chronicle (Lib.): Few symptoms of social progress are more welcome than the closing of prisons. Warwick Prison is advertised for sale. Built 70 years ago for nearly £80,000, how many tears have been shed, how many groans uttered how many human hearts broken, within this gloomy pile? Now its walls will hold captives no more. Many others have ended likewise in recent years, so much fewer are the prisoners to be housed. To what is the change due? In part to several things—less poverty, better police, a better penal system. But above all to popular education. People often grumble about the cost of schools; they can tot up the outlay in figures; they annot similarly measure the results. Yet the results are there. This is one of them.

The Colonial Empire

Manchester Daily Dispatch: The British colonial estate stretches over 3,000,000 square miles and produces everything that men can desire in the way of food or luxury, or industrial material. The full utilization of this tropical Empire will take centuries. But that is no reason why we should not be steadily going forward with it now, and getting the benefit of our industries and our workers. It is the soundest way to attack unemployment, which it will do in two directions. Development schemes will mean work fo rour higher grades of unemployed as overseers, mechanics, tractor drivers and the like. Too much has been made of the climate difficulty. We are learning more and more how to deal with these matters, and large areas even of our tropical colonies are not unhealthy for white workers.

ART

You can not say about a work of art, "You can not understand it as yet.' If I can not understand it, it means that the work of art is poor, for the function of art is to make people understand that which was not clear to them.—Tolstoy.

Herd of Reindeer Makes Long Trek

Big Step Towards Raising Food Supply in Mackenzie Basin

Vancouver.—Canada's reindeer industry takes a big forward step this year with the trek of 3,000 northern animals from Alaska into the Dominion. In November this herd, secured by Canada from the United States herds in Alaska, will begin a trek which will take 18 months and will land the animals, in 1931, on the Arctic coast east of the Mackenzie River.

A. E. Porsild, botanist for the Northwest Territories Branch, Department of the Interior, at Ottawa, is on his way to Nome, whence he will go by ship or airplane to Kotzebue for the start of the movement. Porsild went from here to Seattle to meet Ralph Lomen, head of the Lomen Reindeer Corporation which has the contract of delivery to the Dominion.

The deer will be driven by easy stages to Kattigazuit, which is the destination, where corrals and buildings will be built. It is estimated the herd will double itself in three years.

The deer, it is hoped, will take the place of cattle in supplying Eskimos with food. A reindeer is worth about $25, and Canada's new herd is declared to be a profitable investment. Cost of the animals and their 18-month migration will be about $200,000.

From a herd of 1,280 Siberian reindeer, brought into Alaska at a cost of $300,000, the United States has developed a stock of a million animals. Canada, it is believed, can duplicate that.

Fiscal Imperialism

Glasgow Herald (Cons.): A good deal of misunderstanding of the Dominion position in this matter is due to the fact that many people at home fail to take account of the rise of overseas manufacturing interests. They persist in viewing the "new" countries as almost exclusively ocupied in primary production. They fail to se Sydney for sheep stations, and Toronto for wheat fields and apple trees. They forget that manufacturers in Australia and Canada are faced with competition from manufacturers at home and are convinced that a measure of protection is essential to their salvation and survival. We may consider them wrong-headed or we may not, but we are compelled to take account of the attitude as a fact and not to advance ideal theories as if competition did not exist.

Chicago and the Sea

Chicago Tribune: The agitation for a Great Lakes seaway has tended to blind the public to the fact that to-day there are two water routes, both of them in use, between the lakes and the Atlantic Ocean. There is no waterway from the lakes to the gulf, though the commercial possibilities of the route are stupendous. There can be no such waterway unles there is a substantial diversion a Chicago.

Prof. Howe Tells 'Em

Toronto Forestry Expert Tells the United States a Few Plain Solid Truths

Hanover, N.H.—Criticism of the rapid depletion of United States forest reserves, as compared with Canada's careful husbandry of her timber, was made in a candid paper read by Dr. C. D. Howe, director of Forestry School of the University of Toronto, before the annual New England Forestry Conference here.

"Canadians,' 'said Dr. Howe, "are a very conservative people. They cannot be stampeded into hasty action by economic pressure. They build slowly because they are more interested in the character of the foundation than in the size of the structure. They do not worship bigness simply because it is big. This leads to a misunderstanding of us in trade relations by the people of the United States, and the United States is open to the charge that, having depleted her own natural resources, nearly to the point of exhaustion, she believes she has the right to go to other countries and repeat the process.

"It is not my intention to criticize the United States tariff regulations as applied to Canada," said Dr. Howe. "Canada is the United States' best customer, but she is being alienated by what seems to be short-sighted tariff regulations. These restrictions will in the long run be of benefit to the Canadians because they are devoloping our home industries and leading to greater trade with other parts of the Empire."

Dr. Howe said that Canada had already been compelled to prevent the exportation of pulp wood, which had made it necessary for American capital to move into Canada, and that in a short time the New England hardwood manufacturers would also be compelled to move across the border.

"Canada has its virgin forests, and it intends to preserve them," he said. "It will use proper forestry methods. In Ontario alone we have set aside four townships for experimental purposes, we plant 16,000 acres of white pine annually, and we are greatly interested in the regeneration of spruce on our cut-over areas."

The forestry conference, which was largely attended by foresters and educators from the New England States and Canada, met to consider New England's timber supply, especially with relation to Canadian resources. Papers were read on state taxation, regional zoning, the problem of preserving the scenic beauty of highways, reforestation and allied topics.

The Egyptian Settlement

London Telegraph (Cons.): More than once in recent years a British Government has been sharply reminded that it is responsible under the Declaration of 1922 for the lives and property of foreigners in Egypt. It is hardly five years since British and other foreign nationals were being murdered in the streets of Alexandria. It is now proposed that British protection shall be withdrawn without reserve—and Mr. Henderson tells us that there is 'no change of policy,' while Mr. MacDonald pledges himself that there is to be no departure in principle from the Declaration of 1922. This immense and disastrous concession having been offered, the proposal that the occupation of Egypt by British forces shall be terminated follows naturally, and completes the picture of insecurity held up for the contemplation of Washington and Rome, whence the strongest of the reminders already referred to have come.

USEFULNESS

We sometimes wonder of what use we are, and why we are put on earth. One day is added to another and we seem to be no farther advanced on the pathway or our lives. As Mark Twain would have put it, we do not appear to be gaining on the scenery. Yet there is room in the world, and need in the world, for each and every one of us, and therefore we must keep on going to the end. Emerson has a poem in which the squirrel takes to the mountain and says: "If I cannot carry forests on my back neither can you rack a nut." You can do something nobody else can do; namely, live your life. You have your chance, if you will only take it, and I have mine. If we can do nothing else we can at least be someone's friend, and there is nothing that the world more keenly wants and more sadly needs.

St. George and the Dragon

Liverpool Post: It has no doubt been exhilarating to most people in this country to watch Mr. Snowden standing up so sturdily for our almost forgotten rights. We had beome so accustomed to the meaningless words of diplomacy and to see our statesmen so tenderly considerate of every interest but ours that it is singularly refreshing to observe Mr. Snowden's downrightness at The Hague. He has struck a good old-fashioned John Bull note, and we naturally respond to the sound of it. Moreover, we are acutely conscious that he has ben in the right.

Dress Fashions Waist Up, Hem Down

Princess Silhouette General Favorite — Colors Are New

And now, what has Paris done to afternoon and evening frocks? The outlook is strange, different, in fact it looks a bit like that time of life termed the "Nifty Nineties" when ladies wore many frills and flounces, or upon closer inspection one discovers a leaning towards the Directoire and Empire periods. The high waistline, capelets, small boleros, steamers, lace or lingerie touches at the neck all go to those early style periods, and most attractive they were in their day, which fact designers of note realize; and thus they have turned back the fashion pages, brittle and yellow with age, to find inspiration enough for this season and perhaps many more to come.

It is more entertaining to glance at these old-fashioned figures of high-waisted ladies and upon opening the fashion books of this autumn season one is fascinated with the modern designer's interpretation of olden-time frocks, alike and yet different, suiting the age of rush and scurry even though they are betrimmed with such things as frilled collars, panels, capelets, berthas and boleros. They have raised the waistline, lengthened the skirts, and fitted the figure with closer molding lines, graceful, yet allowing for freedom of movement.

MAY BE SLOW

Paris has provided stylists with thrillers enough to keep them arguing their pros and cons ar into the season. Some say the new fashions while extreme are wearable—that Parisiennes are wearing them and that they are lovely. Others say that they are far too extreme to be taken literally and that it will be a year, even 18 months, before they will be adopted.

All this naturally makes for interest, and that there has been a drastic change in fashion there is no denying. It does seem a bit disconcerting to consider corsets in connection with these widely heralded normal waistlines, and to contemplate long skirts not only for evening but for street wear. There is no denying that the ghost of the Gibson Girl stalks abroad and that her charm has been the inspiration for much that has been launched this season. Even her long black kid gloves have been revived!

One hears the new silhouette referred to as The Lily Langtry or the Jersey Lily—which is another step backward. Any way place the period where one will it is nearer to the Victorian than to the aviation age which, of course, gives rise to all this speculation as to whether or not the costumes as launched at the openings of the haute couture are consistent with the time.

DECISION NEAR.

The mode has suddenly gone Victorian or to made remote periods and Chanel has given pause by sounding the Empire note. The scoffers who insist that women will never go back to corsets and to long skirts, are about to say either "I told you so," or admit their error.

Thus, Paris fits its frocks to the figure—with the molded princess lines, or the snug bodice above a belt at the natural waist. These two silhouettes are the most important which the French designers have agreed upon. And both types concur in sponsoring the molded hipline, and fulness placed low in the skirt. Sports frocks extend below the knee, afternoon models are longer still, and skirts are lengthened to extremes in the evening. Though the longer-in-back line is still important, Lanvin and Patou favor the full skirt with the even hemline reaching nearly to the ankles. Important details include ogdets, tiers, and circular skirts for afternoon; sleeves that are long and trimmed between the elbow and wrist; and a wealth of detail for the neckline. Deep bertha and cape collars, jabots, or lingerie touches elaborate every new frock for daytime occasions.

THE NEW COLORS.

Fashionable colors for the formal evening frock include what is termed the off white, green, dahlia pinks, red and various shades of purple. Black is a staple which always seems to stand firm in fashionable circles. Fabrics for these occasions are velvet, both sheer and panne, metal lame, dull crepe satin, net, lace chiffon and taffeta. Colors to be worn during the afternoon, when one attends the formal functions, are black, prune dahlia, brown and dark green, while in fabrics one may choose either sheer and panne velvet, canton crepe, crepe satin and for the very late afternoon affairs metal lame cloth, and coarse mesh nets; or embroidered crepes may be utilized.

Tailored dresses show such details as the elaborate use of tailored shaping-sections, fur trimming, the lingerie neckline, low-placed flare, and the tunic and bloused types. These frocks are of either lightweight sheer crepe woollens and tweeds, novelty patterned jersey, feather jerseys, canton crepe, or silks in tweed and necktie prints. Colors are black, brown, green and Patou's dahlia shades.

A man's shopping is different from a woman's. A man walks into a shop, buys what he wants, and walks out again. A woman spends all day buying what she doesn't want and then takes it back again.

Sandy and Jeannie were not as yet recognized as sweethearts, but they had been in the habit of going about together for some time. Every Saturday evening Sandy took the girl to the movies. He was dreadfully shy, but one evening plucked up sufficient courage to say: "Dae ye love me" The girl blushed and stammered: "I've telt ye before, Sandy, that I dinna ken." "Aweel, lassie," said the young man, "ye micht tell me at ance that ye love me, and no' have me always buying ye picture tickets."

Still Three Million Slaves in World

League of Nations Council is Requested to Appoint a Commission for the Purpose of Studying the Question in All Its Aspects

Geneva.—A decision of great interest and importance from the viewpoint of the anti-slavery campaign was taken in the sixth committee of the Assembly of the League of Nations when it was resolved to request the Council of the League of Nations to appoint a commission to study the whole question of slavery in all its varied forms.

It is certain that the situation wants very close looking into, for the Spanish delegate, Signor Palaccio, stated that since the slavery convention was signed the nations had learned a great deal more about slavery, including the fact as stated by an eminent authority on slavery that there are in the world to-day not less than 3,000,000 slaves.

The proposal for the appointment of a commission was brought forward by Viscount Cecil, and supported by Dr. Fridtjof Nansen, and although no states were named where slavery is known to prevail, it was said in the course of the discussion that there were two large territorities contingu-ous to British territory where slavery existed.

It was admitted that if the impression still prevailed that slavery existed only in the British Empire, it was due to the fact that Great Britain had taken such pains in sending in voluminous reports. Dr. Nansen will raise the question whether, in view of the fact that the United States had adhered to the slavery convention, it should be invited to appoint a member on the slavery commission inquiry.

"No, daughter, I don't want you to go to a co-ed school All the boys there think of nothing but flirting."

"Why, mother, how can you say that They do plenty of necking too."

JOHN BURNS' WIT.

Why the Thames Is Greatest River In the World.

The fact of Mr. John Burns having recently celebrated his seventieth birthday recalls to memory a story that used to be current about him when he sat in Parliament as Labor M.P. for Battersea.

A Canadian and a citizen of the United States had been shown over St. Stephen's by John Burns, who was entertaining them to tea and talk on the Terrace. "What do you call this?" asked the Ameican, indicating, with a contemptuous thumb, the Thames.

"Only the greatest river in the world," said Burns.

"You call that a river!" exclaimed the Canadian. "Say, did you ever see the St. Lawrence?"

"And," chimed in the Yankee, "have you ever heard of the Mississippi?"

"I've seen them both," was Burns' answer. "The St. Lawrence is mere water; the Mississippi is mud; but"—stretching out an eloquent arm—"this is liquid history."

Lives Among Ducks.

Mr. Thomas Hinton has charge of all the water fowl in St. James' and Hyde Parks, London, England, and he lives among his charges on Duck Island in St. James' Park. He has a charming little cottage only a stone's throw from the Foreign Office, and except for a pathway leading from the roadway it is surrounded by water.

Duck Island gets its name from the fact that the birds in the park, which delight thousands of visitors, build their nests on the secluded island in the middle of the lake.

Mr. Hinton is well known to most of the ducks, pelicans, herons and cranes that live in St. James' Park and Hyde Park, and they look for him every day for their food. Mr. Hinton knows most of them by name.

Heart to Heart Talk

By Dr. John Joseph Haines

ONLY A VIEW-POINT

We used to hear the quotation, "All the world loves a lover." We do not hear it so much in these later years. It is not true, anyway. The only perfect lover the world has ever known, met an ignominious death on the cross.

It might better be said that, all the world loves the optimist; at least he commands the respect of his audience, and, draws a good salary. It is so easy for one in comfortable circumstances to be an optimist!

A very esteemed comtemporary recently said, "There is no doubt as to the great wealth of our country; look at the automobile sales." Then, he proceeded to give a row of nine or ten figures, in proof of his assertion.

Therefore, every man that owns a gasoline vehicle is a well-to-do and prosperous man! It seems to me a long leap to that conclusion. Even within my somewhat narrow field of observation, I know dozens of cheap cars bought on payments—and, often well worn out before the final payment. Often the bottom of the flour bin is scraped, that the payments may be made in response to the demands of an air-tight mortgage.

I am not a pessimist. Truth is neither pessimism nor politics. It is religion—nothing else. When we throw away truth, we part with religion. Can we afford to do that?

Not one-tenth of the car-owners that I know are out of debt entirely; and no man is either prosperous or even well-to-do who is in water over his head, and cannot swim.

A municipality or state organization that buries itself in bonded indebtedness is signing away its liberty in a dangerous fashion. The borrower is servant to the lender—another truth.

The individual or corporation that lives beyond its means is not far from the rocks ahead. The practice of running in debt may look good on paper, and furnish alluring statistics, but it is far from being an indication of wealth. A flivver is by no means indicative of prosperity or independent living.

Hints for the Home

by Nancy Hart

You are planning a special luncheon—and have no maid? Then choose recipes that can be partly prepared in advance, and a menu that permits easy service—the main course on one plate, let us say. If attractively arranged this is permissible for informal service.

Usually the unruly member of "plate service" is the salad, which, if it is to be appetizing, must not spread or allow its dressing to wander to other parts of the plate. Good recipes for this purpose are the jellied salads: Asparagus tips, egg and pimiento molded in lemon-flavored gelatin and garnished with a puff of mayonnaise; pineapple, shredded cabbage and cucumber in gelatin; fruit salad, and almost any combination of cooked vegetables can be molded in jelly.

These can always be made the evening before and set away in the ice box until wanted—relieving the cook of one trouble—some course to prepare on the day of entertainment.

A very good plate service menu is the following:

Persian Melon
Breaded veal cutlet Shoestring potatoes
Creamed peas and mushrooms in green pepper cases
Jellied vegetable salad
Mocha Mousse
Coffee

Virginia Soup

Soak a cup of dried lima beans overnight. Drain next day and put them in a kettle with two quarts of cold water. Add a ham bone and a cup of ham cut in tiny pieces, and simmer until almost tender. Peel two sweet potatoes, add to the beans and boil until soft; rub through a strainer, season with salt and pepper and serve very hot.

How to Fry Raw Potatoes

Peel potatoes and slice them in thin rounds; put into frying pan 1 tbl. each butter and sweet lard. When this is hot enough to fry, add potatoes, sprinkling with salt and pepper. Cover with a tight-fitting lid so the steam will partly cook them. Then remove lid and fry until potatoes are a golden brown, turning them carefully so they will brown equally. Serve at once.

Russian Salad

1 cup cooked diced beets; 1 cup cooked peas; ½ cup diced celery. Blend with Russian dressing; serve on crisp shredded lettuce and garnish with hard-cooked egg.

Pineapple Caramel Pudding

Caramelize 1 cup sugar and put in buttered shallow, square pan. Cut slices of pineapple into quarters and arrange on bottom of pan. Over this pour your favorite sweet muffin batter and bake. Turn on a large plate so the pineapple will be on top, and serve with whipped cream.

Cleans White Enamel Quickly

When washing your white enameled cooking utensils, stains will come off readily if you dip the wet cloth in baking soda and rub over the enamel. Use plenty of soda.

When Basting Meat

It is always better to use fat, or butter mixed with water when basting meats. Plain water or juice that contains little fat dissolves the outside coat of the meat, releasing both juice and flavor.

Sunday School Lesson

International Sunday School Lesson for October 13

KEEPING FIT FOR THE SAKE OF OTHERS

Daniel 1:8-20

Rev. Samuel D. Price, D. D.

This quarterly temperance lesson makes use of the text that was studied on July 28. Other scripture portions that need careful consideration are 1 Corinthians 9:19-27; 1 Timothy 4:7-12; 2 Timothy 2:1-5. Items concerning Prohibition and its enforcement continue to be first page news. Henry Ford has recently renewed his statement that he wants only temperance workmen in his employ. The cost to self, machinery and others is too great to have any other kind. Both big and little business has long since reached this conclusion.

Daniel was a propagandist when he wanted to use his own common sense against the arbitrary command of the Babylonian king, who was a puppet to habit when he ordered that non-body building foods and drink be given to the young men who were in training for a practical presentation at court. On the other hand this Jewish lad and his companions had ideas of their own about what was good for them, and their opinions had been confirmed by all that they had witnessed of profligacy while in this foreign land. If they were to pass the proposed examination they must have an unsluggish mind housed in a strong body. To accomplish this they must eat so that they could really think. They knew far less about alcohol than we do to-day, but they did understand that the more you think about it the less you will drink it. In fact many drink the poison in order to stop their thinking process, and they invariably succeed.

The result of a vegetable diet and wholesome drinking was apparent when comparison was made with those who had been fed up on the "dainties" from the king's table washed down with the poison drink, which is unchanging in its reaction. These lads studied while others slept off the effect of false stimulants and they passed A1 when examination time came. The whole matter goes back to the fact that this Daniel was not an echo of custom but rather was one who "Purposed in his heart." An objection by the king's high officer did not alter Daniel's "purpose." He was both sure and steadfast.

This enforcement of the prohibition laws, to which every honest citizen is committed, is but a project method of finding out the facts, and this was what Daniel proposed. Already overwhelming evidence has been obtained in favor of total abstinence from alcohol, which is invariably a poison. The more faithfully this project is tried the more will the result be for the betterment of humanity. Who would want to go up in an airplane with a pilot who is even an occasional drinker? Alcohol is good to pickle a dead fly in but not good for any flyer.

Milady's Beauty Secrets

By Helena Rubinstein

Preening and brushing and combing her hair—
It wonders me not she remains very fair!
—Warendolph

Your hair probably has not profited by the summer vacation—unless you are unusually fortunate—and requires special attention at this season of the year. The sun, salt water and careless, hasty shampooing as well as complete neglect in the matter of massage and brushing, are likely to have robbed the hair of its smooth sheen and lustre.

Let us begin at the beginning. Good circulation is the prime essential for a healthy scalp and healthy, lustrous hair. The blood supply in the scalp must be kept active in order to nourish the hair roots and to keep the tiny glands in good working condition. This means that the scalp must be stimulated. Hair tonics should fulfill two functions. First, they should be stimulating to bring up the circulation. Second, they should be corrective in their effects upon the oil glands. For the dry scalp a tonic should be oily. For an oily scalp the proper tonic should have astringent, drying qualities. Simple massage when used in connection with an efficient hair tonic will frequently correct the common scalp troubles of dandruff and falling hair. Massage brings up the blood to the scalp, and tones up the tiny muscles at the root of each hair, thus permitting the nutrition and general good health of the hair.

Regular, vigorous brushing is another important beauty aid in developing healthy, lustrous hair. It is an excellent thing to remember at this time of the year that if you massage your scalp and brush your hair regularly and frequently as you eat your meals or brush your teeth you will not have to spend time and money later in curing unhealthy scalp and hair conditions.

Shampoos are important, too, but as I have recently gone into this matter so thoroughly and completely, I shall not take it up again.

I shall mention one caution, however. When it is possible, avoid the drying machine for your hair. After it has received its final rinsing, wring it out thoroughly and wrap a warm towel around your head, rubbing the hair until most of the moisture is absorbed. Then divide the hair into sections and rub each section with a second warm towel. This is a good time to use your hair tonic, if you need one. Massage it well into the sections of the scalp. Shake your hair well and, if convenient, finish the drying process with a sunbath.

THE ELECTION CAMPAIGN!

The Supreme Issue Before the Electors of Dundas County!

As the workers for N. W. Beach, the candidate of Dundas Prohibitionists in the coming election, continue their active campaign work, they are again discovering that the people of this county, as ever, stand strong and true under the Prohibition Banner. Never in the history of this grand old county has Dundas spoken with any uncertain sound on this issue, and in spite of the Party pleas and cries in this campaign, their clear-cut motto, "Dundas always stands for Prohibition," still sounds forth. Dundas is determined to remain true to her principles, and for this reason considers Prohibition the supreme issue in this campaign.

And well she may make this the supreme issue. Nothing in the last two years of Government Sale would tend to change that view. In spite of the fact that the county as a whole is under Local Option or No License except in Morrisburg, the liquor traffic has persisted in ignoring these Prohibitory laws and has "slopped over" into our county. What the people have seen and heard in the last two years has proven to them that Ontario cannot drink $50,000,000 worth of Booze and not suffer in economic, industrial, social and moral conditions. Many of the people of the county drive he main highways with the possibility ever before them of an accident at the hands of an intoxicated driver. They fear for their young people on an evening's pleasure that they may yield to the enticements of drinking friends. Young people of both sexes and often under age have been known to drink and often become maudlin. All the old bootleggers are still on the job, and new bootleggers are at the game In our villages, many a Saturday evening he plies his trade, or near to social gatherings, and the evidence of it is seen and heard on our streets and roads. Not one of the promised benefits of Liquor Sale has materialized and the people of this county know it well. Three years ago they had to go to Quebec for evidence of what Liquor Sale could do, today they have the evidence before their eyes, and the people of Dundas are going to act on that evidence. They feel that the only way to register their demand for prohibition is to send to Toronto a man who will stand first, last and all the time for Prohibition. Running with only two planks in his platform "Prohibition and Independence," and backed by his well-known activity for Prohibition in the county for 40 years, the people are rallying back of Mr. Beach to gain another victory for the cause.

DUNDAS PROHIBITION UNION

Dundas-Grenville United Presbytery Opposed to L. C. A.

A large attendance of ministers and laymen assembled at the meeting of Dundas-Grenville Presbytery of the United Church at Hallville United Church last Thursday afternoon. Rev. C. H. Brown of Inkerman presided as chairman of Presbytery, with Rev. A. M. Russell, of Williamsburg, as secretary.

H. B. Fetterly, of Winchester, chairman of Missionary and Maintenance Fund, referred to the contributions forwarded to the general treasurer up to date, and expressed the hope that the full amount of the allocation for the year would be raised. Rev. Dr. William Munroe, of Montreal, secretary of conference, spoke of the tasks being undertaken by the United Church, both in Canada and foreign lands, and suggested that if more contributors could be secured for church funds it might be possible to reach the objective in view.

Arrangements have been made for a conference to be held at Morrisburg on Thursday of this week, when speakers from Toronto and Montreal will present the challenge to those assembled. Among those who are expected to deliver addresses are Rev. Dr. William Munroe, of Montreal; Rev. R. Laird, of Toronto; Rev. L. C. Douglas of Montreal, and Rev. C. E. Rogers, of Peace River.

Lyden C. Lawson, son of Rev. Elwood Lewson, who was at Stewart Valley, Sask., during the past summer engaged in missionary work for the Home Mission Board, and Gordon Newman, son of Abraham Newman, of Spencerville, in the Peace River district of Alberta, where a church building scheme is being undertaken, were remembered by Presbytery in a motion of appreciation.

The report of the committee on Evangelism and Social Service re-affirmed the principles for which the church has stood for many years. A resolution submitted by the committee engaged the attention of Presbytery for some time, Rev, G. F. Lalond, of North Augusta reading the report. W. S. Johnston of Prescott, R. J. Ellis of Iroquois, Rev. A. M. Russell of Williamsburg, H. B Fetterly of Winchester, Rev. A. F. Fokes of Brinston' A. M. Greer of Bishop's Mills, F. W. Elliott of Prescott, Rev. R. E. Newman of Chesterville, Rev. R. W. Armstrong of Morewood, Rev. H. M. Beach of Oxford Mills, and Rev. Thomas Knowles of Iroquois, participated in the discussion.

The resolution is as follows, and was endorsed by Presbytery:

"We reaffirm our belief in the necessity of a continuous campaign of temperance education throngh the Sunday school and the other educational institutions of the church, in order to foster a public opinion favorable to the prohibition of the entire traffic in strong drink, and to total abstinence on the part of individuals.

"In the present situation it is our firm conviction that the Liquor Control Act in this province has not fulfilled the promises of its sponsors to decrease the consumption of liquor and promote the cause of true temperance. On the contrary, statistics and unbiased observation show conclusively that the liquor trade with its attendant evils has greatly increased throughout the province under the Government sale system.

"We, therefore, call upon our people to support those candidates for the Legislature who will pledge themselvea to oppose in Parliament any system which provides for the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor for beverage purposes"

Rev. J. I. Hughes, of Kemptville, was remembered by Presbytery in his illness. Rev. John A. Waddell, of Winchester, and Rev. T. P. Shaver, moved a resolution of sympathy to Mr. Hughes of Maynard and also expressed appreciation to the official board of Kemptville for kind consideration to their minister.

The ladies of Hallville entertained the members of Presbytery at the noon hour, and a motion appreciation was passed. Rev. D. McLeod, minister of the church, had all arrangements perfected for the comfort of the delegates.

S. S. Conference

On Wednesday, the Annual Deanery Conference of the Deanery of Stormont was held in Holy Trinity Chnrch, Chesterville. There was a representative gathering from the parishes of the Deanery. The day's proceedings opened with a celebration of the Holy Communion at 8 a. m. and again at 10 a. m. at which the Rev. H. M. Little, Rector of the Church of the Advent, Montreal, preached, the rector, Rev. G. Oliver Davies being the celebrant. A hearty welcome was extended the visitors by the rector on behalf of the congregation and they were entertained to dinner at the homes of the various members. In the afternoon the election of officsrs took place, the Rev. E. W. B. Richards of Wales, and the Rev. G Oliver Davies of Winchester, being elected president and secretary-treasurer, respectively. The former was also elected clerical representative on the Board of religious Education while Mr. Gillard of Wales, and Mrs. G. W. Thom of Aultsville, were elected lay representative and substitute lay representative respectively on the same body. Two able addresses were given in the course of the conference, the first by the Rev. C. Patterson Smyth, Rector of Prescott, on the real objective of the Sunday School, and the second by the Rev. C. G. Hepburn, Rector of All Saints' Church, Ottawa, on the responsibility of the whole church for the religious instruction of the young. Both of these addresses were provocative of a vigorous discussion amongst those attending the conference. The meeting concluded with a very hearty expression of thanks to the clergy who contributed to he programme and to the ladies of the congregatioh for their hospitality, after which the Archdeacon of Morrisburg, pronounced the blessihg.

Fault-Finding

Should you feel inclined to censure
Faults you may in others view,
Ask your own heart, ere you venture
If that has not failings too.

Let not friendly vows be broken,
Rather strive a friend to gain;
Many a word in anger spoken,
Finds its passage home again.

Do not, then, in idle pleasure,
Trifle with a brother's fame;
Guard it as a valued treasure,
Sacred as your own good name.

Do not form opinions blindly,
Hastiness to trouble tends;
Those of whom we thought unkindly,
Oft become our warmest friends.

CORNWALL WINS THE MEIKLE CUP

The Local School puts up a Good Fight but lack Four Points to hold Cup.

After holding the Meikle Memorial Cup for four continuous years, Winchester on Tuesday last nad to surrender the coveted cup to Cornwall, who won out in the United Counties High School Annual Athletic Meet, by a score of 17 to 23. Chesterville came third with 10, and Morrisburg with 8. Avonmore, Finch and Iroquois although making a good try and being well represented failed to score.

The day was clear, cold, and a raw north wind blowing. But that did not interfere with the enthusiasm of the crowd, for the events were witnessed by the largest crowd in years, and the enthusiasm knew no bounds. Arnold Duncan was the star for Winchester, and won 15 out of the 17 points. He did all that one could do to retain the cup for Winchester, but in the running events Winchester fell down.

In the evening the competitors, principals of High Schools and track officials met at a banquet held in the school room of the United Church. The place was garlaned in the rich colors of the Winchester High School, and the tables were very prettily decorated. The lady teachers and young ladies presided at the tables, and they received the deserved compliment of having provided the finest banquet yet given at the Annual Meet.

Major Adams, principal of Winchester High School, presided, and during the evening short, appropriate and witty speeches were made by representatives of the different schools and by Rev. J. A. Waddell, W. J. Cass, Dr. McKendry, J. A Campbell, and J. Meikle, donator of the cup, in memory of his son who was killed in the great war. In handing over the cup to the Cornwall representative Mr. Meikle laid emphasis on the need of keeping up clean sport, and he eulogised all those who had to do with the meet for the harmonious feeling which had prevailed.

Winchester won what is known as the Smith Cup, which was presented by Mr. J. A. Campbell in a few appropriate remarks. Following is a list of the events.

B. C. Lumber.

British Columbia's lumber industry has exceeded all records for the year 1928 and leads all provinces in the Dominion. The year was generally successful from a forest point of view, and commercially the cut and trade reached new heights; prices showing a marked improvement over the preceding year. The value of the industry reached $93,787,000, an increase of over $10,000,000 over 1927. The increase was not only due to an increased volume in forest products but to a substantial increase in price of shingles and an improved price on sawn lumber. The total scale of all material reached the high point of 3,207,000,000 board feet, an increase of 12.3 per cent.
