Pretty Summer Wedding Ceremonies Here

Campbell–Gilroy

The wedding of Miss Margaret Anne Gilroy, daughter of Mr and Mrs P. J. Gilroy, of Chesterville, to Mr Roy MacDonald Campbell, of Ottawa, son of Mrs Dan Campbell, Ormond, Ont., and the late Mr Campbell, was solemnized on Saturday in Trinity United Church, Chesterville, at 3.30 o'clock.

Rev C. A. Roberts officiated and Mr P. G. Hewitt was organist.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and her sister, Miss Miriam Gilroy, was maid-of-honour.

Mr Glenn Campbell, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and the ushers were Mr Dan Campbell, also a brother of the bridegroom, and Mr Robert Gilroy, brother of the bride.

The bride wore a floor length gown of white imported Swiss eyelet over tulle and taffeta, designed with round neckline and short sleeves and embroidered with seed pearls. A matching headdress held her fingertip veil and she carried an arm bouquet of white gladioli.

The maid-of-honour wore a floor length gown of turquoise crystalette over taffeta and carried pale coral gladioli.

The reception was held in the church hall. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr C. F. Lindsay, of Ottawa.

Later the couple left on a motor trip to the East Coast. For travelling the bride wore an avocado green linen sheath dress with tan and beige accessories and a corsage of bronze chrysanthemums.

Mr and Mrs Campbell will reside in Ottawa.

Out-of-town guests were present from Niagara Falls, Kitchener, Toronto, Walkerton, Montreal, Dolbeau, Que., and many from Ottawa and district.

Dillabough–Moke

A pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Morrisburg, Saturday afternoon, July 28 at 2.30 o'clock when Shirley Maxeda Moke, daughter of Mr and Mrs J. Wesley Moke, Chesterville, became the bride of Bernice Lyle Dillabough, of Morrisburg, son of Mrs William Dillabough and the late William Dillabough.

Mrs F. L. Howald, the organist, played the nuptial music and accompanied the soloist, Lloyd Barkley, uncle of the groom.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a strapless ballerina length dress of rayon lace and nylon net over satin, with lace bolero. Her fingertip veil or silk illusion net and lace, was held by a tiara of iridescent sequins, and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

She was attended by Mrs Myron VanAllen as matron of honour, who wore a ballerina length dress of pastel shrimp nylon net over taffeta, and by Lynn Barkley, as flower girl, dressed in white nylon net.

Robert Morrow, of Morrisburg, was best man, and the ushers were the bride's brother-in-law, Leo McCadden, and Myron VanAllen, the groom's brother-in-law.

The bride's mother was wearing a dress of navy blue nylon mesh with white accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Folowing the ceremony, a reception was held in St. Paul's Church Hall, after which the young couple left for a motor trip to Niagara Falls, Buffalo and other western points. Going away, the bride wore a dress of blue and white satin vnished cotton with navy accessories. They will reside in Brockville.

Edgerton–Wheeler

St. Mary's Church, Chesterville, was the scene of a pretty wedding when, on Monday morning, August 6, amid a setting of gladioli and ferns, in a double ring ceremony at which the Rev Frank Price officiated, Miss Donelda Ann Wheeler, daughter of Mr and Mrs Edward Wheeler, of Chesterville, became the bride of Stewart Glenn Edgerton, son of George Edgerton and the late Mrs Edgerton.

The bride's attendants were her sisters, Mrs George Gaudrey, Ottawa, acting as matron of honour, and the bridesmaids were Mrs Desmond Monahan, Miss Aurea Wheeler and Miss Florence Wheeler, all of Ottawa.

Sheila Gaudry, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

The best man was George Gaudry, of Ottawa, and the ushers were Desmond Monahan, Ottawa, Dwayne Wheeler, Chesterville, and Donnie McGregor, Cornwall.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of traditional white, with floor length skirts of net and white satin with an overskirt of embroidered nylon, and the bodice was tight fitting and strapless. The lace bolero was fashioned with a Peter Pan collar and long sleeves ending in lily points over the hands. The Juliet style cap of embroidered net with pearls and rhinestones held in place the finger-tip length veil of embroidered net.

The bride wore a single strand of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom, and she carried a cascade bouquet of roses and 'mums.

The matron of honour was gowned in orchid nylon net over taffeta, the long full skirts appliqued with seed pearls, and the lace bolero was styled with mandarin collar.

The bridesmaids' dresses, of blue, yellow and pink, were fashioned on similar lines, and all wore matching gloves, with bandeau type headdress of flowers and all carried old fashioned nosegays.

Sheila Gaudry wore a short dress of green nylon net and carried a basket of flowers.

Mrs Mheeler, the bride's mother, chose a frock of navy crepe with lace top and white accessories and white carnations en corsage.

Following the reception in Chesterville Community Hall, the newlyweds left on a wedding trip to Western Ontario. Mrs Edgerton travelled in a dress of charcoal printed silk and short cape of white wool with white accessories, and her corsage bouquet was of pink roses.

Upon their return they will live in Ottawa. Guests were present from Ottawa, Cornwall, Toronto, Watertown, N.Y., Belleville, Winchester, Finch and Berwick.

First Memorial Service Held at Goldfield Cemetery
Community Efforts Transform Cemetery Site

Residents of Goldfield district held their first memorial service in their fine local cemetery Sunday, August 5.

Local residents and friends from many surrounding communities came together to pause in silent memory of those of their relatives and friends who rest in the beautiful little cemetery which within the last few years has undergone a great transformation.

The service Sunday afternoon was directed by Rev Cecil Dukelow, minister of Chalmer's United Church, Finch, and Mr John Davies, representing St. Luke's Presbyterian Church, Finch. The music was provided by the Salvation Army Band, Cornwall.

Today's carefully-tended cemetery is in sharp contrast to the neglected uncared-for cemetery of some years back. The story behind this change is not a new one. There was the realization that something had to be done and that realization became an accomplished fact when the men and women of the community, with the help of many other interested friends, came together and took decisive action.

Programme Launched

The first move was made 15 years ago when a public meeting was held in the Goldfield school for the purpose of appointing a Board of Trustees. Members of the original Board were Roland Droppo, chairman; Smith McMillan and Donald Gillies with Duart MacLean, secretary-treasurer. Rev H. M. Beach, then minister of Chalmer's United Church, Finch, was of great assistance to the Trustee Board and was present at all early meetings.

Early in its history the cemetery became a community cemetery. Mr Peter Shaver, of Finch, was engaged to survey the cemetery and to make copies of same.

It was not long before the actual work of improvement got underway. The secretary's minute book is a record of numerous community "bees" having been held with the bulk of the work carried out during the past three years. Since September of last year much has been accomplished.

A typical report from the annual meeting in 1955, is as follows: "Considerable progress has been attained in the form of several bees; the purchase of ground fill; levelling of same with tractor and grader blade by Mr Claire Nugent; the hand-raking of stones; the rolling of the ground; the spraying of weeds, etc.

The two chief improvements made during the past year has been the erection of a page wire and ornamental fence, and the planting of ornamental trees, Colorado blue spruce, pyramid yew and pyramid cedars. These projects have been made possible through special gifts of interested friends.

Moreover, a new 21-inch power mower has been purchased for the better upkeep of the cemetery.

Free Labour, Cash

It would be impossible to mention the names of all those who have contributed to the improvement of the cemetery. Contributions have included much free labour, and cash donations from friends near and far.

Present members of the Board of Trustees are Messrs Roland Droppo, Smith McMillan, Donald Gillies; Board of Management: Mr Silas Farrell, chairman, Mr Hawley MacLean, Mr John Bogart and Miss Martha Nephew; secretary-treasurer. Duart A. MacLean.

Unfortunately there is very little information available with regard to the original story behind what is now known as Goldfield Community Cemetery. It is known, however, that a small cemetery was started on the present location due to a desire by one, Neil Gillies. "to be buried on the hill." Neil Gillies would be a grand uncle of D. A. Gillies and the Gillies Brothers, now residents of Goldfield and on whose farm D. A. Gillies now lives.

The first burial of which there is record is that of Hector P. Gillies, who died on December 31, 1887, at the age of 32 years and who appears to be the son of Neil Gillies. The land was donated by

Legion Hall Open

Chesterville Legion members have progressed far enough in the construction of their new hall on John Street that the public is cordially invited to inspect the premises.

The building will be open for inspection next Sunday afternoon, August 12, all afternoon. Members of the Legion will be on hand to welcome visitors and show off the fine new quarters.

Overseas Tour

Misses Margaret and Pearl MacMillan, daughters of Mrs D. J. MacMillan, returned home from a month's holiday in Europe. After five days in England they flew to Metz, France. From there they motored with friends, W.O.2 L. M. and Mrs Flewelling, on a two week's tour of France, Germany, Belgium, Switzerland and Holland.

In Holland they visited the grave of their brother, Hubert, at Groesbee, Nymegen. From Paris the flew to Rome where they had a happy six-day reunion with their brother, Sqdn.-Ldr. Myles MacMillan, of Ankarra, Turkey.

BEREAVED

Mason Robinson received a telegram Friday of the death of his brother, Claude H. Robinson, at Camrose, Alberta on August 2, at the age of 64.

BORN

STRUB—To Mr and Mrs C. S. Strub on Wednesday, August 1, 1956, in a Toronto hospital, a son, Alexandre-Philippe, a brother for Yves. Both well.

DIED

McMILLAN—In Kingston General Hospital on Tuesday, August 7, 1956, Martha Ann McMillan, in her 13th year. The funeral will be held from the home of Hyndman McMillan on Thursday, August 9, to Elma United Church where service will be conducted at 2 p.m. by the Rev Mr Bowering. Interment to follow in Maple Ridge Cemetery.

PAPER DRIVE AUGUST 15

Chesterville Scouts and Cubs will stage another wastepaper and rag drive on Wednesday, August 15. All householders are asked to have their bundles handy for the boys when they start the collection in the early afternoon. Cubs will deliver twine for tying in the morning of that day. 45-1

LOCAL LADY BOWLERS SUCCESSFUL AT KEMPTVILLE

At the annual ladies' lawn bowling tournament held in Kemptville on Wednesday of last week when 16 rinks took part, a rink from Chesterville gained second prize.

Leather and tartan bags, as proof of their skill, were brought home by Mrs Harold Marriner, Mrs Kenneth Merkley, Mrs Thomas Klingvall and Mrs Lyle Marcellus, who acted as skip.

Mr, Mrs John A. MacRae Honoured on Anniversary

A large number of friends and neighbours gathered at the home of Mr and Mrs John A. MacRae, Finch, Tuesday evening to offer congratulations and good wishes on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Mr and Mrs MacRae were called to the floor and an appropriate address was read by Mrs Lindsay Hutt and Mrs Tom Rutley presented them with a beautiful table lamp on behalf of their neighbours. They received a television set from their daughter, Miss Verna MacRae, of Kingston, as well as many other gifts from friends and relatives.

Although taken by surprise, Mr and Mrs MacRae thanked them for the gifts, after which a delicious lunch was served.

Mrs Napoleon Richer, 78

Mrs Napoleon Richer, daughter of the late Michael and Ann Naughton, died recently after a lengthy illness at the age of 78.

She leaves to mourn her passing two daughters, Mrs O. Racine (Melissa), of Casselman, and Laura, at home; five sons, John, of Ottawa; George, Berwick; Edward, Percy and Eugene, of St. Albert; 26 grandchilren and nine great grandchildren.

The funeral mass was held from the parish church at St. Albert, among a large circle of friends and neighbours.

Mass was sung by Rev Father Hebert, parish priest of St. Albert, assisted by Rev J. H. Bougie, of Cornwall, and Rev R. Rouleau, Glen Robertson, as deacon and sub deacon. Two low masses were said at the side altars by Rev M. J. O'Brien, of Dickinson's Landing, and Rev L. A. MacDonell, of Finch.

Pall bearers were six grandsons, Alex Racine, Donald Racine, Jean-Paul Richer, Leon Richer, Patrick Richer and Neil Richer.

Stormont Ayrshire Club Holds Twilight Meeting At Finch

More than 100 club members met at the farm of Donald MacIntyre, Finch, when Stormont Ayrshire Club held its annual twilight meeting. Representatives from several clubs in Eastern Ontario district attended.

Principal speaker was S. J. Chagnon, assistant deputy minister, Canada Department of Agriculture. Mr Chagnon told of his recent trip to Africa and Europe where he studied agricultural conditions. There were serious problems in some areas of those continents where dry climate was a constant threat to farming.

Judging contests at the meeting tested skill of men, women and juniors in placing two classes of Ayrshire cows and heifers.

In the men's class, William McRoberts, Winchester, and Donald Rose, Mountain, tied for first. Margaret McIlwain, Vankleek Hill, and Heather Simmons, Finch, were first and second in the juniors. Mrs Rose, Mountain, and Mrs McIlwain, of Vankleek Hill, were first and second in the ladies' judging.

Final Tribute Paid John Brooks

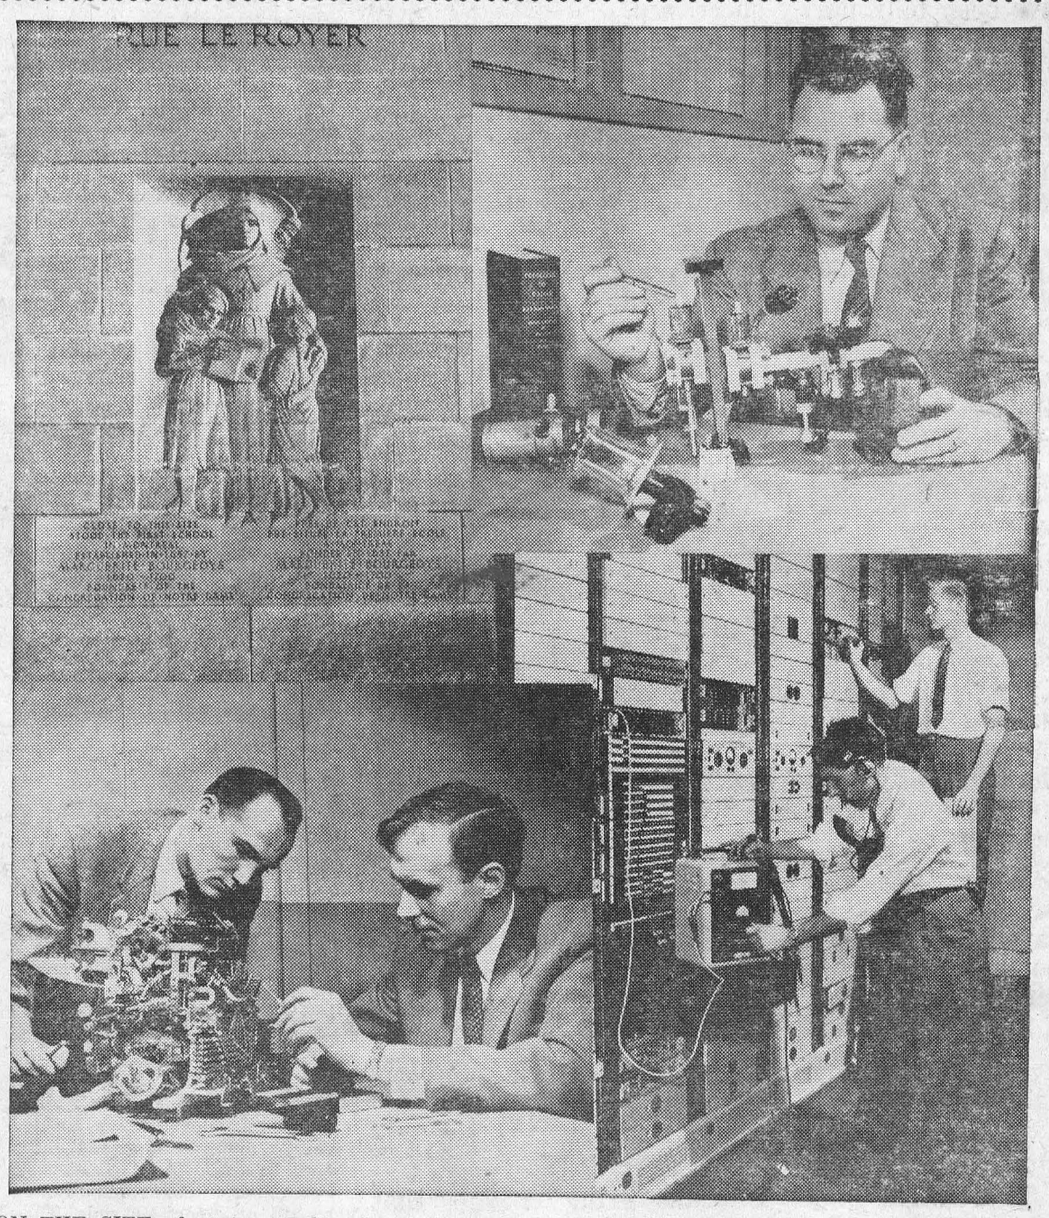
A large circle of relatives and friends attended the funeral of John Brooks which was held from the residence of his son-in-law, Thomas Sharkey, to the Pentecostal Tabernacle where the service was conducted by Lieut. Wood, of the Salvation Army Corps, Prescott.

Pall bearers were Harold Barrett, Henry Legault, Harold Sharkey, Ralph McLaughlin, Earl Cross and Francis Moriarty. Interment was in Maple Ridge Cemetery.

The late Mr Brooks was born in Lakinheath, Suffolk, Eng., 73 years ago, son of the late Mr and Mrs William George Brooks. He emigrated to Canada in 1910 when he acquired land and undertook farming operations in Dundas County.

Several years ago he moved to Lyn, near Brockville, where he was a successful market gardener until forced by ill health to retire, since when he made his home with Mr and Mrs Thomas Sharkey in Chesterville.

He is survived by his wife, the former Edith Workman, of Inkerman; six daughters, Mrs Doris Kennedy, Brockville; Mrs Charles McLaughlin (Berthina), Chesterville; Mrs Rene Valliers (Lavinia), Val d'Or, Que.; Mrs Doug Jones (Irene), Petawawa; Mrs Stuart LeClair (Mildred), and Mrs Thomas Sharkey (Dorothy), both of Chesterville; two sons, Malcolm, of Wales, Ont., and Edwin, of Vancouver; a brother, William, Kingston, Ont., and two brothers and three sisters who still reside in England.



ON THE SITE of a stone stable where Marguerite Bourgeoys first taught the ABC's to children of settlers of New France three centuries ago, history of a different sort is still being made today. In a Montreal building adorned by the bas-relief seen at upper left, young men bound for duty along the Mid-Canada Line are taking a course covering the entire range of modern communications. Instructors selected from amongst engineers and technicians of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada guide the students through a six-month course in the world of up-to-the-minute communication systems. Picture at upper right shows Instructor Gerrie Brent preparing a radar demonstration unit. Seen at lower left are Gil Noall and Bob Herber discussing a special Bell Teletype feature. At lower right, technicians John Radcliffe and Instructor Dick Atkinson put the multiplex training unit through a series of tests.

OPINIONS . . .

Ours and Others

Watching a Giant Being Tamed

Three pages in the New York Times Magazine are given up to words and pictures on the St. Lawrence seaway and power project, says the Ottawa Journal. The article is by Miss Tania Long and the illustrations show striking aspects of the work on both sides of the river in this gigantic international undertaking.

Tania Long writes from Cornwall about what she calls "the mighty task of taming a giant . . . the vast project to harness the mighty waters of the St. Lawrence River for the benefit of industry in New York State and the Province of Ontario" and in its second phase "to open the heartland of North America to ocean-going ships."

Canadian readers will observe that in New York Times tradition its report of progress on the seaway-and-power enterprise makes it clear that Canada is at least an equal partner with the United States and paying its full share of the billion dollars it will cost.

In sharp contrast was the recent attempt of American Television with the CBC to picture the project on television—its disappointing production ignored Cornwall, over-played Massena, N.Y., and must have left many U.S. viewers with the conviction that this was almost wholly an American job.

The Times, on the other hand, is balanced and accurate in its report—as might have been expected.

Inflation Is Where . . . and How

Appearance of inflationary tendencies in many nations at the same time has characterized the last few postwar years, says the Christian Science Monitor. In the United States and Britain monetary authorities have taken steps to check the expansion of credit, which is partly the cause of price rises. These have been only partly successful.

And now France sees the costs of fighting in Algeria mounting while the trade balance goes against France. Higher consumer imports, lower agricultural production caused by the very cold winter, a drain on manpower for the Army—all these influences figure in the French situation.

French experts, it is said, fear the effects of more inflation at a time when there might not be an expansion in business and output.

That would be inflation in an absolute sense. The sort of inflation the Western world has known since the war is not that. It is an inflation due mainly to expansion of production.

It is sometimes forgotten that expansion of output is itself inflationary while it goes on. It creates new jobs, puts more money into consumers' hands before the goods they can make reach the market. Meanwhile consumers bid for the goods already there. It is only when output overtakes demand that the process halts.

Higher taxes, restriction of instalment buying, in addition to raising the price of credit generally, serve as brakes. But the fact that they do not quite stop what we call inflationary trends is understandable. And if they did this they might reverse the trend undesirably.

The goal is stability, but at a high level of output and business and job activity. How to get there and stay there is an art rather than a science, an art of economics that includes a "feel" for intangibles, an alert social conscience, and several other components of the millennium.

'Could Not' Have Been There

(From The Christian Science Monitor)

The United States note answering charges that American planes flew over parts of the Soviet Union last month probably will be taken as disposing of the incident. The note says thorough inquiry shows that no United States military planes "in the European area at the time of the alleged overflights could possibly have strayed . . . so far from their known flight plans."

Possibly this was conceived of as a way of saying that for obvious reasons no American planes did fly over Soviet territory in early June. But does it mean that American planes are assumed to have followed their flight plans and that these did not go near Soviet soil? Or that all such planes were accounted for at check points from which they would not have had time to fly to Byelorussia?

Perhaps the note means to imply American planes did not fly over Soviet cities because they could not have done so; but would it not have been more conclusive and satisfying to say also they did not? This would have made it completely clear that the reports had no basis in fact but were manufactured in Moscow.

Light Along The Way

It is so easy to take things for granted. The world is full of wondrous things, and the miraculous often becomes commonplace. Many things have become "common" that are not "common" at all. It is far from commonplace to watch a picture that is being transmitted through space for thousands of miles. It is far from commonplace to board an airliner after supper and alight for breakfast in a different part of the world. These are only two examples of the miracles man has wrought, of the amazing things his effort and persistence have brought to pass.

Even more important things have become too "common." It is commonplace, for example, to fall into the error of believing that life can be lived without faith. Sometimes the material rewards of our existence seem to be enough, and to secure them is the best incentive life has to offer. Many live under the illusion that life must yield what man needs whenever he puts forth sufficient effort. But treasure of the earth must yield to moth and rust; so those who live for gain, sooner or later, find themselves beyond their depth. Like the swimmer who has gone too far, they are without anything firm upon which to stand. They have failed to comprehend the lesson of history where it is clearly indicated that those who really profit from life are those who give life away in some useful undertaking, be it great or humble.

The Church is the custodian of our faith, and it too is often taken for granted. There it is, firm and secure as it has been these many years. We can support it, or we can leave it alone. We can go to church, or we can stay away. The Church will be there when, and if, we need it. Or will it? Is it clear how really vital the Church is to us? Let us suppose that somehow, suddenly, the Church simply disappeared. What would happen to the moral standard that we live by? Where would we find the comfort we seek in sorrow, the strength in the sense of purpose apart from worldly gain, and the fellowship of belonging with one another to something beyond ourselves? The results are only too evident in the shallow lives of those who are not of the living body of Christ.

The tragedy is that mediocrity has already brought a large measure of disillusion and heartache. But what else can be expected when religion and faith become commonplace, The wise man gives his best to God and believes that the highest incentive life has to offer is the blessing of a good and righteous life.

Prompt Action Needed To Remove Tea Stains

Even in coffee-drinking households, the hospitable homemaker is apt to throw the odd tea party. It is a delightful way to entertain a group of friends, but tea has a way of leaving ugly brown stains on anything it touches, so every party leaves behind it the problem of removing the tea stains. This is a simple problem, it it's tackled promptly, before the stains get a chance to set.

Presoak the teapot and cups in hot soap or detergent suds. Then gently rub over the stains with a sponge or cloth laden with suds.

One of the simplest ways to rout deposits from the pouring spout of the teapot is by wrapping a clean pipe cleaner with cotton, dipping it into thick suds and letting it rest in the nozzle for a few moments. Then use the pipe cleaner as a plunger so that the in-and-out motion will loosen any deposit which has formed in the pouring spout. Follow this with a rinse in scalding water and dry to a gleaming radiance.

When you're serving, spread a bit of butter under the spout to prevent tea from dripping onto your lovely tablecloth. But in spite of this precaution, accidents do happen. This is especially true at a large tea party, where guests may be standing up or balancing tea cups on their laps.

You'll find tea stains are easier to remove from linens, too, if you treat them while they're still fresh.

Spot clean tea stains by rubbing with soap or detergent suds. Then rinse and wash the entire item, or let spots dry and put the piece in the laundry hamper until you're ready to tackle it.

Table linens may be washed by hand or in the machine, then rinsed, dried and ironed with a hot iron.

HE'S STILL THERE

Robert W. Paige, 62, of Richmond, Va., lost his job last July, couldn't find another one and end-up in city jail, sentenced to three-month terms on each of six worthless cheque counts.

When the record clerk at the jail resigned, Paige, still a prisoner—took over his duties.

Paige's jail term has ended this week, but he's still at the jail—on the city payroll as clerk and a deputy city sergeant.

"He has done an exceptionally good job," said city Sgt. Frank A. Cavedo, who noted Paige has made several improvements in the record system.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS

By Lillian Allison

I wonder where I could get a recipe for some of the prepared meats—luncheon meats they call them—that we buy already to eat. Not that I have any intention of manufacturing them, mind you. That's farthest from my mind. But I would like to know what they put into them to make them so absolutely tasteless.

We had a nice looking meat loaf the other night for supper. It wasn't red but it looked quite appetizing on the platter. I declare, though, that blindfolded I wouldn't have had any idea what it was. We had two varieties of the red prepared meats a few weeks ago. One had a slight taste of smoke. The other tasted like shingle.

Now there was a time when I was younger that bought meats were quite a delicacy. It was quite a treat to serve guests scalloped potatoes and some of the pretty, prepared meat slices. Churches offered them at their suppers and the diners were most happy. Believe me, we felt we were eating with the gods when we were served that wonderful cooked ham at about 65 cents a pound, even if it had been sliced so thin they nearly missed it. Prepared ham ranked away up with chicken and turkey then, far above sliced, cold home-cooked ham.

But have you tasted it lately? It costs somewhere in the neighbourhood of $1.20 a pound now but it tastes like nothing at all. Now, of course, it could be that I've got old and my taste buds aren't as sensitive as they used to be but in my opinion the best prepared meat on the market is cheap, humble bologna. (Excepting that lovely ham that comes in cans.) When the bologna isn't so dry that it takes two parts water to one part meat in order to swallow the stuff it's just about the tastiest on the market.

It's a queer thing. With better methods, better refrigeration, a larger market and more consumer dollars I should think the quality of prepared meats should improve. They're making them more attractive than before, I'll agree, by adding cheese and macaroni and red and green peppers, etc. But the thing we like to buy is something that will taste good for Sunday supper. It is in the interest of the packer, distributor, consumer and producer to improve the taste of the prepared meats. I wonder why they don't, can't, or won't do it.

I wonder why it is that people remark about so many things that "they aren't as good as they used to be." You can't buy a good broom, I've heard women say. Nylons aren't half as good as they were before the war, some of the ladies claim.

And cars! Everpbody has heard the complaint that the new cars are just tin cans compared with pre-war models. A hard look will almost crumple a 1956 fender while you couldn't harm a '38 model with a mallet.

Now these complaints may be purely imaginary. They may satisfy the nostalgic yearnings in us for the glories of the good old days. I hope that is the case. For it would be too bad to have to believe that in this day of better manufacturing methods, of new synthetic materials and improved engineering know-how we are producing products that are inferior to those that were made twenty years ago.

And speaking of things that aren't much good these days allow me to present Exhibit A. Me. Right in the busiest yet the most enjoyable part of this summer I had to get a cold and be sent to bed.

I had to leave vacant my seat on the tractor where I was needed so badly to help complete haying operations. I had to postpone a visit from weekend guests which would have been most enjoyable.

I had to cancel my reservation for a seat on the bus for the Seaway tour sponsored by the Women's Institute—a trip which I've wanted to take all summer.

And worst of all I had to turn

PRICE TALK

SINCE 1946 the average price of Canadian steel rolling mill products has gone up a bit more than 70 per cent.

But the price of scrap, a vital raw material for the steelmaker, went up 181 per cent in the same period; and the price of labour in the primary iron and steel industry by 130 per cent.

Nearly all other prices, including the price of labour, have risen higher and faster than have steel prices in the post-war period.

The Birthplace of the McIntosh Apple

The following article, written by Allan A. Jones, first appeared in the magazine "Ontario Hydro News," and is of special interest to all those who live in this "Land of Milk and Honey"—and the McIntosh apple.

It's only a small tranquil village called Dundela, situated a few miles north of the Village of Iroquois, an important St. Lawrence Valley community now being relocated by Ontario Hydro as part of the seaway and power project.

Like many other Ontario hamlets, though, Dundela's historical significance is ample compensation for its modest size, since in one unique and important way, Dundela has close associations with the history and development not only of the St. Lawrence area, but with the rest of Ontario and beyond. What began here more than a century ago has played a colourful part in the story of Ontario's progress, to which Hydro itself is now adding another new and fascinating chapter along the mighty river.

The beginning seemed insignificant enough. Discovery of nothing more than an apple—even the "McIntosh Red" apple—seems comparatively unimportant when compared with Hydro's present monumental project of building a huge generating station with which to provide vitally-needed electricity for a steadily expanding and power-hungry province. Yet, out of chance seeding, which produced the first McIntosh "Red" tree at Dundela, there emerged a specialized McIntosh apple industry, which, today, accounts for about a third of all the apples grown and marketed in Canada.

"McIntosh" is now a household word in most Canadian and many American homes, conjuring up visions of a bright, red fruit with a succulent, snow-white centre. It is grown in countless orchards in the valley of the St. Lawrence and in other parts of Ontario and Qubec, British Columbia, New Brunswick, and in lesser quantities in other Canadian provinces, as well as many parts of the United States. It is the backbone of the apple industry and has been used as the parent, perhaps more than any other variety, in the development of several new species, such as Melba and Milton.

Fruit growers have rushed to join the McIntosh production line—to such an extent, in fact, that one recent estimate puts the annual North American crop at from fifteen to eighteen million bushels with a total cash value of from thirty to thirty-five million dollars. In Ontario, the proof of the apple's popularity was provided by a 1949 survey, which revealed that 272,332 McIntosh trees were growing in the province, or just short of one third the total number of apple trees of all other types.

Chance Happening

Chance doesn't always yield such spectacular — and profitable — results. Yet it was largely chance—plus a margin of native prudence—that prompted young Scottish immigrant John McIntosh to transplant 20 wild apple seedlings on his pioneer farm at Dundela, about the year 1811, when what is known as the City of Toronto was little more than a clearing in the woods known as "Muddy York." It was one of these seedlings which survived to bear the first crop of the now-famous apples.

How the seedlings came to be there in the first place seems to be something of a mystery, but a number of guesses have been made. One is that they were planted or scattered by French settlers who moved into the St. Lawrence area after the British conquest of Quebec.

Whatever the origin, when John McIntosh had tasted the fruit of the surviving tree he knew he had, not just as good, but a superlative thing. His wife, Hannah, was evidently even more aware of it, because it was she more than John, who tended and nursed the "astonishing Red." It was through her, in fact, that the fruit first became known as "Granny's apple," a title bestowed by her grandchildren.

The name by which it is now known was apparently the inspiration of John McIntosh's son Allen, who is also given the credit for having perpetuated the tree through budding and grafting. Allen is said to have learned the technique from an itinerant farmhand who visited the farm one day and was so impressed by the taste of the apple that he stayed to help with its propagation.

Despite the enthusiasm of its discoverers, however, it was not until about the turn of the century that the McIntosh began to make its presence felt throughout the country. The apple would have died slowly of neglect in fact, if others had followed the advice of some commercial growers, who, late in the 19th century, argued that it was not worth producing.

Fortunately for present generations, almost everyone else was optimistic, including Dr W. T. Macoun, Dominion Horticulturist in 1900, who prophetically observed at that time:

"I think the McIntosh is going to be one of our leading dessert apples."

Damaged by Fire

It was only about eight years after Dr Macoun's report that the original tree at Dundela, now close to a century old, finally yielded the last of its fruit and succumbed to the ravages of time. Its death was hastened by fire, which had partly crippled the tree when the nearby homestead, built by John McIntosh and his son, Allen, burned to the ground in 1893.

Today, anyone passing through Dundela can see the monument, which the grateful people of Dundas County—aided by a grant from the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association—erected in 1912 to perpetuate the memory of the original McIntosh apple tree. This is only one of several monuments in the area, which now keep alive the legend of the fabulous apple.

There is a monument to John McIntosh, for example, at St. John's Cemetery, east of Iroquois, and another to his son, Allen, at the McIntosh family Cemetery in Dundela. About one mile north of Dundela stands a cairn honouring Hannah McIntosh, John's wife, and last but not least, a granite stone marks the spot where the original tree grew in Dundela.

Another memorial perhaps equal to or even better than any form of stone is the gathering of the McIntosh clan, which now takes place every year at Doran's Point about a mile east of Iroquois. Since 1939, descendants and "in-laws" of John McIntosh have gathered annually at the Point to enjoy a basket picnic, and to lend an appreciative ear, which often only a Scot can give, to the wailing skirl of the bagpipes.

Clan Chief Present

In August of last year, Doran's Point was once again host to the clansmen and boasted none other than the McIntosh clan chief, Vice-Admiral Lacklan Donald Mackintosh, CB, DSO, DSC, of Moy Hall, Invernessshire, Scotland.

Among the clansmen, too, were two great-grandsons of John McIntosh, both of whom still live in the St. Lawrence area where the "Red" was discovered. One of them is S. A. McIntosh, who lives at Dundela on the site of the original McIntosh farm, and has a thriving "Red" orchard. The monument to the tree stands on his front lawn, but otherwise there is no other sign that it was here the world-famed apple was born.

The other great-grandson is Dr P. A. McIntosh, a venerable but still busy "country doctor" at Spencerville, near Dundela, who is largely responsible for the erection of the monuments to his famous forebears, John and his wife Hannah, and is the guiding spirit behind the annual gathering of the clan.

Dr McIntosh has a great interest is the general history of eastern Ontario, and of the McIntosh apple and family in particular and among the mass of historical data he has accumulated over the years is the following somewhat whimsical account of the name "McIntosh." ,

"The name McIntosh, spelled in various ways, originated in 1163 when Shaw McDuff, nephew of King Malcolm IV of Scotland, received appointment as governor of the rebellious tribes of the Moray district of Scotland. He, being the leader, was designated 'Toisich,' a Celtic (Gaelic) term meaning leader or chief, and his followers became 'Mhic-an-Toisich,' or sons of 'Toisich'."

And so, by a long and mysterious process, "Mhic-an-Toisich" became McIntosh. It was lucky for the famous "Red" apple, at any rate, that it did. Anybody like a Mhic-an-Toisich?

FIDDLE KING—The King of the Fiddle, King Ganam, headlines a new half hour of country and western music, "Country Hoedown," seen every Saturday night over the CBC Television network.

Mrs J. J. Shaver Mourned at Prescott

A former Prescott resident who had made her home there for the greatest part of her married life, Mrs John J. Shaver, died at the home of her daughter in Detroit.

The funeral service was conducted at the H. K. Locke Funeral Home, Prescott, by Rev Russell O'Brien, of the United Church. Interment was in Sandy Hill Cemetery.

Mrs Shaver was the former Catherine Merkley, of Finch, where she was born on December 3, 1875. She married John J. Shaver at Waddington, N.Y., and shortly after moved to Prescott to reside, where Mr Shaver was employed with the Department of Transport. Mr Shaver predeceased her in 1952.

She is survived by three daughters and two sons: Mrs Percy Moulds (Tena-, of Ottawa; Mrs C. W. Brownell (Hazel), Detroit; Mrs A. B. Morrow (Florence), Ottawa; Alonzo Shaver, Pontiac, Mich., and Osborne Shaver, Finch. Also surviving is one brother, Charles Merkley, Norwood, N.Y.

Mrs Shaver has resided with her daughter, Florence, in Ottawa, but had been visiting her daughter in Detroit for the summer.

"Have you been a dentist very long?"

"No, I was a riveter till I got too nervous to work up high."

Two women were discussing the best method of getting rid of unwelcome visitors.

Said Mrs Brown: "My dear, it's quite simple. I always put on my hat and coat when I hear the doorbell. Then, if it's someone I don't want to be bothered with, I just say, 'What a pity, I'm just going out'."

"And suppose it's someone you do want to see?"

"Oh, then I say: 'How forunate, I've just come in'."

The first time a man speaks in public he probably suffers more agony in a short period than during any other part of his career.

A young man found himself in this predicament when facing an audience at a pre-election meeting.

"Mr—er—Chairman," he stammered, "when I—when Ileft home tonight only two people on this earth—my father and myself—knew what I was going to say; now—er—well, now only my father knows."

PARKING PROBLEM

Police at Orange, Va., understand the hazards of parking. For the third time the department's only police car has been ruined while standing still.

A car caromed off a trailer truck and did it this time. Two years ago a garage fire did it and in 1952 a train smacked a lumber truck and the flying timbers buried the prowl car.

SPOKE TOO SOON

Mead Miller, senior Oklahoma County excise board member, has been receiving complaints from a friend for weeks that his taxes were too high.

Finally, Miller sent out appraisers to check the friend's property.

He reported back to the friend: "You're paying less than the regular valuation. We'll have to raise your taxes."

$60 ARGUMENT

Buffalo's coffers were enriched by $60 because Leo P. Ratka had a hot verbal battle with his wife.

Appearing before City Judge Willis G. Hickman, the 30-year-old motorist was accused by police of running six traffic lights and driving partly on the wrong side of the street.

"I was having an argument with my wife, and I guess I blew my top," explained Ratka.

Judge Hickman meted out a $60 fine, while Mrs Ratka looked on unhappily.

"I once loved a girl who made a complete fool of me."

"What a lasting impression some girls make!"

MAKES SADDLES FOR LIVINGROOM COWBOYS

A Chicago inventor and manufacturer says he's selling more saddles for livingroom cowboys than any one U.S. manufacturer is selling to honest-to-goodness horses.

The manufacturer, Haskell Benson, caters to TV-crazy junior cowboys.

He makes a real leather, custom-made saddle seat complete with conchos, leather tie strings, bedrol and bright saddle blankets. It's mounted on a stationary tripod, he says, so the kids can't fall off no matter how wild the chase or rugged the terrain in the Western screen thriller.

Teacher: "Where's your brother this morning?"

Boy: "In bed. He hurt himself."

Teacher: "How did that happen?"

Boy: "We were seeing who could lean out of the window the farthest and he won."

BAGGY PANTS FOR PARSONS

Rev J. W. Griffiths, of London, said if a person is doing his job properly his pants will be baggy and seldom creased.

Writing in his parish magazine Griffiths said:

"Nearly every self-respecting parson is scolded by his wife because his trousers lack a razor-edge crease. But if he's doing his job properly he will never wear nice creases.

"His calling demands that he shall constantly be on his knees in prayer and kneeling is ruinous to the crease."

GET BETTER GAS MILEAGE FROM YOUR CAR

A little care can save a motorist money by giving him more mileage for each gallon of gasoline.

Here are some of the tips offered by the auto industry for longer mileage from each gallon of gas:

Avoid quick starts and stops and eliminate all jerky driving.

Drive at a steady pace and allow enough time for a trip so excessive speeds won't be necessary. Steady cruising at about 50 miles an hour will combine reasonably fast travel with good fuel economy.

Have the engine of your car tuned so top efficiency is attained.

Watch stop-lights by looking ahead and adjusting speed so a stop for a red light will not be necessary.

Don't let the engine idle for a long period. Shut off the engine if you are going to have a long wait. Idling an engine is a real gas consuming thing.

Don't use heavier lubricants than the owner's manual for your car specifies. Heavy motor oil materially increases engine friction.

If the car doesn't have an automatic transmission, shift quickly into second and high to get the gas savings of high gear driving.

In 1787, Mackenzie, an ambitious 23-year-old Scot, built a fur trading post at Fort Chipewyan on Lake Athabaska.

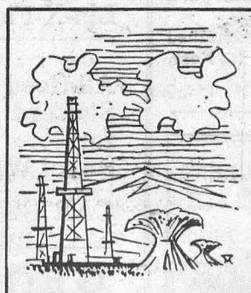
Seeking a new route to the Arctic, he left Chipewyan in June, 1789. At Whale Islands his guide failed. Mackenzie turned home.

Undaunted, Mackenzie dreamt of opening new territory—right to the western sea. In May 1793 he set out again.

Rising above his ill-health and setbacks, Mackenzie and his men finally reached the Pacific coast on July 22nd, 1793. There, for Canada, he carved his name on a rock. They had won through!

Travelling companion to Edward, Duke of Kent, on his Canadian tour, Mackenzie in 1801, published the results of his explorations. Soon others followed where he had led. Daily new settlers moved in.

Writer, administrator, explorer, builder, Mackenzie gave his health . . . his whole life . . . to opening up the Canada we know today.



Mackenzie could have achieved nothing without the encouragement and financial backing of his partners—men like Gregory, Frobisher, Simon McTavish. They were his partners in helping Canada grow.

Today, financial backing is just as important to our modern business pioneers. And, through The Bank of Nova Scotia, you too, can share in this nation-building partnership.

For when you deposit your savings with The Bank of Nova Scotia, you help swell the funds available for Canada's development—funds which in turn finance thousands of enterprises, large and small.

GOOD MECHANIZATION PAYS BY GETTING A LOT DONE WHEN CONDITIONS ARE RIGHT

A big advantage of good mechanization is its ability to get a lot of work done in a hurry once you can get on the land to put the crop in or into a field ready to be harvested. This work output of good equipment pays off in two ways—it enables you to offset or forestall the effects of unfavorable conditions and with it you can make the most of the period when conditions are most favorable. You stand to benefit the most when you can do a lot of seeding or harvesting when the time is right.

From the 1956 Massey-Harris and Ferguson lines of equipment engineered to meet the needs of farming today you can select machines that will enable you to gain the advantages of modern mechanization —your local dealer will be glad to give you full particulars.

PREPARING VEGETABLES FOR FREEZING

Asparagus

Select young tender stalks with tightly closed tips. Remove tough purplish or white scales. Wash thoroughly to remove sand. Cut stalks in uniform lengths, to fit containers. Blanch 3 minutes. Cool quickly and drain. Pack dry or in brine to cover.

Beans (Green or Wax)

Select young tender beans. Wash, trim end and string, if necessary. Leave whole or slice crosswise. Blanch 3 minutes. Cool quickly and drain. Pack dry or in brine to cover.

Brussels Sprouts

Select compact heads of deep green colour, not wilted. Wash thoroughly, watching for worms. Blanch 3 minutes. Cool quickly and drain. Pack dry in brine to cover.

Cauliflower

Select compact white, tender heads. Break head into small flowerettes, about 1 inch in diameter. Wash thoroughly, watching for worms. Blanch 3 minutes. Cool quickly and drain. Pack dry or in brine to cover.

Corn (Off Cob)

Harvest early in morning. Select ears with rounded kernels, milky juice and sweet flavour. Avoid cobs with hard or immature kernels. Prepare immediately. Remove husks and silk. Wash in cold water. Blanch cobs 3 to 4 minutes. Cool and cut kernels from cob. Pack in brine to cover or pack dry.

Corn (On Cob)

Select corn as for Corn (off cob). After husking, trim cobs to even length to fit containers. Blanch 6 to 8 minutes. Cool quickly and drain. Pack dry or in brine to cover or wrap each cob in moisture-vapour-proof paper, sealing or tying ends securely.

Peas

Harvest early in morning. Handle quickly. Select only young and tender peas, avoiding over-ripe ones. Shell directly into cold water, discarding over-large, hard peas. Wash, drain and blanch 2 minutes. Cool quickly and drain. Pack dry or in brine to cover.

Spinach

Select only tender green leaves. Remove all discoloured or bruised leaves and tough stems. Wash thoroughly in cold water to remove sand and grit. Blanch 2 minutes. Cool quickly, avoid matting of the leaves during cooling. Drain. Pack dry or in brine to cover.

Squash, Pumpkin

Use only well-matured squash or pumpkin with dry pulp. Cut or break apart, remove seeds and pithy portion. Cut in small pieces and steam, boil or bake until tender. Cool quickly and remove rind. Mash or sieve and pack dry.

St. Bernard's Parish Holds Social

St. Bernard's Parish Church, Finch, held a social on the church grounds recently. A large number of people attended and the various booths were well patronized.

Entertainment was provided by musicians from Ottawa, Bobby MacDonald, British Columbia's youngest piper, his sister, Catherine, who is also a piper, and talent from Martintown, Cornwall and vicinity.

Winners of drawings who have not yet claimed their prizes are: a garden swing, ticket No. 0822; executive desk, ticket No. 0943; aluminum chair, ticket No. 0805; 25-pound pail of pressure gun grease, ticket No. 0878. Ticket holders were asked to get in touch with Father Leo MacDonell.

Other winners were: Miss Maureen McLaughlin, Martintown, a panda bear; Paul Brunet, Alexandria, an eight-pointed star quilt; Mrs Joseph Gordon, Dickinson's Landinv, a set of dishes.

Bean guessing contest was won by Paul Gauthier, of Winchester, netting him a $5 prize.

FINCH MISSION BAND HOLDS WIENER ROAST

Chalmer's United Church Mission Band, Finch, held a wiener roast on Tuesday evening at the home of Mr and Mrs Edgar MacLean when about forty children enjoyed wieners roasted at an open fire.

Ice cream and sandwiches were served and games played, under the direction of Mrs A. Graham. A worship service and sing song was led by Rev Mr Dukelow.

Although the weather wasn't too hot, the children as well as the parents had a good time.

GOLDFIELD CEMETERY—

Malcolm MacLean, grandfather of Hawley MacLean, who presently owns and operates the farm of his grandfather.

The following is quoted from a short historical sketch compiled by Rev H. M. Beach for the re-opening of Chalmer's United Church in 1951: "The records of 1887 show that under the ministry of Rev D. Brill, the Mission (official board of the Methodist Mission) decided to purchase land and bulid a church in Goldfield." The land purchased adjoined the little cemetery to which reference has been made.

Buy More Land

At a later date additional land was purchased toward the north and the church was renovated and moved to the new section leaving the southerly portion for burial grounds. A few of the older residents recall this incident but there are no dates available as the original minute book of the recording secretary was destroyed in a fire. The first recording secretary for the Methodist congregation was Harvey Shaver, father of Mrs Roland Droppo.

In 1925 the Methodist congregation of Goldfield became part of the Chalmer's United Church congregation in the church-union movement of that year.

The little Methodist Church was purchased by the Loyal Orange Lodge of Finch, and was moved to Finch during the winter of 1926. It is now known as the Orange Hall. The moving of this building to Finch was contracted for the sum of $300 and D. A. Gillies recalls many humourous incidents as he worked with his team on this project.

In 1941 under the direction of Rev H. M. Beach, a Board of Trustees was formed — Roland Droppo, Smith McMillan and Donald Gillies. Peter Shaver was engaged to draw up plans of the cemetery and Mr Beach assisted greatly in searching titles obtaining deeds, etc.

No further work was done until a Board of Management was appointed at a meeting of plotholders and all interested parties on October 2, 1953, with a view of renovating and landscaping the cemetery. Members of this original Board of Management were Miss Martha Nephew, chairman; John D. Dunbar, Hugh Gillies, Hawley MacLean. An improvement fund was established on October 10, 1953. with a view to obtaining funds to make this dream come true.

Isaac N. Harper, 82

Isaac N. Harper, well known district farmer and Holstein cattle breeder, died at his home in South Mountain Monday, July 23, after a short illness. He was 82.

Mr Harper was a son of the late Barnabus Harper and Ellen Rice and was born in the United States. He was a carpenter by trade and had lived in Chesterville on the present John Maxwell farm for many years before moving to South Mountain. His wife, the former Dora Miekle, of Prince Edward Island, died in 1933.

Mr Harper leaves four sons, Bruce of Williamsburg, Brock, of Toronto, Milton and Cecil, at home, and one daughter, Ruth, also at home.

TRAIL RIDERS HOLIDAY IN ROCKIES—The majestic beauty of snow-capped mountain peaks—the exhilarating thrill of camping in the Canadian Rockies—the panorama of azure blue lakes and alpine scenery—all this awaits the trail riders of the Canadian Rockies. This summer, the organization's mountain holiday includes a five-day ride, from July 13 to July 17, and a six-day ride, from July 20 to July 25. Opportunities for photography, fishing, trail riding and nature study are plentiful during the day's excursions. In the evenings, sing songs and other campfire entertainment are restful and relaxing preludes to a night's sleep under the stars. In the upper left photo is a trail rider base camp, set at the foot of a towering mountain. Upper right shows a trail rider admiring the wonderful alpine scenery of the Rockies. Saddling up in the crisp, cool morning air in preparation for the ride is a pleasant beginning to a wonderful holiday.—C.P.R. Photo.
