21st Winter Carnival

Matilda Carnival bound for success

STEPHANIE WOLFE
Leader Staff

BRINSTON—With record amounts of snowfall this year, it wasn't hard for organizers of the Matilda Winter Carnival to choose a theme for the 21st annual event.

"We choose 'winter'," says Matilda Recreation chairperson Linda Thompson. "We wanted to get away from the Christmas (theme)."

Thompson adds that the nine-day event — which begins this Saturday, January 6 — is supported financially by about 300 businesses, from Brockville to Winchester.

"Without those people, we couldn't run the event," she says. "The carnival helps people get over the winter blas."

There are some 20 different events this year, including the annual Queen Pageant, the annual car and snowmobile rally, Karaoke, line and square dancing, snowmobile rides, tobagganing, dances, bingo, and much more.

Most of the events will take place at the Matilda Community Hall and are free, but organizers encourage donations when possible.

Members of the Matilda Recreation Committee spent eight months planning for the carnival, which last year attracted more than 4,000 people alone on opening night.

This year's logo, "I survived the 21st," will be highlighted on buttons and sweatshirts for sale at any event.

The Matilda Carnival Queen will be chosen at the Queen Pageant this Saturday at 7:00 p.m. at Matilda Hall. Females aged 15 to 18, who are residents of Matilda Township, will compete for the prestigious honor. The winner and runner-up will receive a beautiful rosette.

The eight entries for the Queen Pageant include Tracy Lewis, who is sponsored by Plante Farm Equipment Ltd.; Amy Casselman, sponsored by Frank Ault Excavating; Sherry Shaver —Sechs/The Nook; Vicki Zandbergen —Fred's Farm Supplies; Joanne Fawcett —C & L Seeds; Angie Thompson —Gibson Electric; Stacey Lewis—Cooper Sport Trophy and Leslie McDonnell—Harbers Slame Centre.

Eleven-year-old Bradley Wylie from Dixons Corners will be playing the piano during the pageant, one of four performers for the night.

The following day, there will be a pancake brunch in the morning and Patty Stewart will perform two shows. In the afternoon, there will be face painting, snow sculpturing, a Woodsmen Competition and much more, including a first-time performance by the Matilda Majorettes.

On Monday, January 8, there will be line dancing with Matilda Township's Gwen Bosma and square dancing with Williamsburg's Harold Moore.

The following evening is Amateur Talent Night and 'Karaoke Krazy' will be held for the first time.

An afternoon Tea and Fashion Show — including a 'Fun Fashion Show' — will be held on Wednesday, hosted by the Matilda Womens' Institute and Matilda Recreation.

Bingo will be held Thursday night, with a jackpot of $1,000. A pre-teen dance and teen dance will take place Friday night, with music by Matilda Township's Theatre of Soul.

On Saturday, January 13, the "Dr. Tom Maxwell Annual Car and Snowmobile Rally" will take place during the day, and Winchester's Jim Wicks &Westburg Union will perform in the afternoon and evening.

The carnival will conclude on Sunday with a family sleigh ride and weiner roast, face painting, and a Hymn sing /Ecumenical church service.

User fees around corner for Matilda

STEPHANIE WOLFE
Leader Staff

BRINSTON—Matilda Township Reeve Charles Barkley is adamantly against raising taxes in the new year.

To deal with a 25 per cent cut to the Township imposed by the provincial government, Barkley says council will either reduce services, charge user fees or be forced to do both.

"People can't afford a tax increase now," Barkley says. "Residents will probably see user fees, but they will be minimal."

Barkley is a firm believer in user fees as long as the money is used for its original purpose.

"I have no problem with user fees for the roads, providing the money goes back into the roads," he says.

"The problem is many people are skeptical about where the money goes ... but if the government is honest, people aren't as skeptical."

Barkley adds that although user fees deprive some people of a service — skating for example — he would rather impose user fees than be forced to raise taxes.

Barkley, a cash crop and beef farmer — who is also Warden of the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry — has been a member of Matilda council for 15 years.

He has worked through many challenges, but expects amalgamation of municipal governments to be one of the biggest obstacles next year.

"I'd like to see SD & G stay together and certain things stay through (the counties council in) Cornwall," he says.

"We don't want to lose grass roots with the people. We're the last link. If we get away from that system, it will be harder to please people. Now we can get a problem solved before the end of the night."

Barkley agrees some of his councillors may be apprehensive about losing their jobs with the proposed amalgamation of municipal governments in 1997, but says they did not join council to make money; they were just residents of the community who wanted change.

Barkley is pleased with council's accomplishments this year — including road work, a senior citizen's centre, and the completion of road and construction work on the Baldwin Bridge — a project which combined the efforts of several municipalities.

"We've done good work on roads and bridges with infrastructure money (from the federal and provincial governments)," Barkley adds.

Unique Christmas present

Charlotte the prancing pig

STEPHANIE WOLFE
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG — She's a personable, prancing porker.

Charlotte, an eight-week old Vietnamese pot belly pig, has been the subject of conversation around the village for the past couple of weeks, since she was given as a surprise Christmas gift to Michael Jarvis.

She's one pig that people will be talking about for months to come.

For some unknown reason, Charlotte becomes a 'dancer' whenever Jarvis plays one particular song by the Tragically Hip — "Grace Too".

She points her tiny hooves to the left and then to the right, then shakes her bottom wildly.

No joke.

She then dashes furiously up and down the living room. One can only laugh.

"It's the strangest thing," Jarvis said with a chuckle. "I guess it's the tone of the music, the constant hum."

Unaware she was buying a 'dancing' pig, Jarvis' girlfriend Camille McInnis got Charlotte on Tuesday, December 19 from a family in Rockland, just east of Ottawa.

Instead of simply giving the pig to Jarvis, McInnis decided to really surprise him. (She stashed Charlotte overnight at her brother's place in Morrisburg.)

She called the Bear radio station that day and asked Doc and Woody on the morning show for their help.

The following morning, Jarvis awoke from a deep sleep at 7:30 a.m. to answer a call from Doc and Woody.

They directed him to the kitchen to look out the window. After stumbling out of bed, he managed his way to the kitchen where he found three notes — "Stay calm, don't swear and I love you."

He then looked out the window and screamed, "Je---, it a pig!" (The notes obviously didn't work.)

The complete conversation was broadcast live throughout hundreds of homes across the region.

"He was talking about getting a dog or a cat," McInnis later told The Leader. "When I saw the ad in the Ottawa Sun, I didn't know if he'd like her, but I knew we could give her away if not."

Its been two weeks and it appears Jarvis is enjoying his new household pet.

"She definitely has a personality," he said. "Sometimes she likes to be cuddled, other times she doesn't.

"She grunts all the time, is constantly sniffing and will eat anything. We have to watch her all the time."

Charlotte weighs about 15 pounds, but Jarvis expects she will grow quickly. In the summer, he plans to leave her outside, with her own pool.

Jarvis and McInnis welcome anyone who is interested to drop by their home and visit their rather eccentric pig.

MNR advising public not to feed the deer

With the early arrival of winter this year, the Ministry of Natural Resources is starting to get calls about the local deer population.

More specifically, people are concerned that the deer are going to starve. One of the most common questions the MNR receives is "What are you people going to do to prevent the deer from starving to death?"

"We at the Ministry of Natural Resources recognize that there may be some stress placed on the local deer population as a result of the combined cold weather and early snow," says spokesman, Kevin Lamacraft.

"We would also like to make it knows that while we do indeed care about the animals, we recognize that nature has provided adaptations for the individual animals to meet these environmental stresses."

One of the most important physical adaptations allows deer to lower their rate of metabolism. Similar to turning back the thermostat in your home to conserve energy, deer reduce their activity levels and metabolism to reduce the amount of energy (fat reserves) they use.

Along with this, the animals are able to reduce their body temperature, especially in their legs. This helps to further reduce energy loss.

In the summer months, deer eat up to nine pounds of quality food each day. This allows them to develop fat reserves essential for winter survival. In the winter months, food intake drops to one to three kgs of lower quality food (browse) each day. The winter diet consists of twigs and buds from both deciduous and coniferous trees. This material is of poor quality because it is low in protein. In fact deer may use more energy to process this material than they get out of it. They must supplement this poor energy intake with their own fat reserves. Animals with low fat reserves may not make it through the winter because of this. It is easy to see the advantages of being able to decrease your energy (fat) consumption.

Deer have specific habitat requirements in the winter months. The most important is a yarding area. This is an area that has mostly coniferous (evergreen) tree cover, with areas of low brush available for browse.

The coniferous trees provide much needed shelter from winds and heavy snow accumulation. If the snow is too deep, the deer use up too much energy moving from place to place.

There are usually a number of deer at a good yarding site, creating trails and travel corridors through the lighter snow under the forest cover. This is different from their usual more solitary behavior.

Aside from all of them coming together to share quality habitat, yarding also provides the group with more eyes to stand watch for predators such as dogs.

Some researchers view this activity as a survival mechanism.

Despite the early onslaught of winter this year, our deer herds are not in any immediate trouble. This past summer was a good one for them.

There was lots of quality food to eat, and most animals have built up a healthy reserve of fat. The only concern would be the heavy crust resulting from the ice storms of late November.

The crust may make it harder for deer to find some food sources, such as nuts and grass. The crust is thick enough to hold up deer, so dogs and coyotes do not have an unfair advantage. Deer are having few problems getting around.

Thinking of starting a deer feeding program. Lamacraft has just one word on that... DON'T.

"It is far too early in the season to even consider this activity," he says. "One of the major problems with stating any type of wild animal feeding program (from birds to deer) is that the animals become dependent on you. This means that you must finish what you start and must use a food source that meets the deer's energy requirements. The wrong food will do more harm than good. We suggest a pellet mixture of equal parts oats and corn."

There is still plenty of food out there and the deer are not having any problems finding it or moving to it. If snow conditions get to the point where a feeding program would help, "we will offer advice to those wishing to start one. At present, you can help by keeping trails open and cutting natural browse such as cedar and maple."

Keep your dogs close to home during winter

The Ministry of Natural Resources would like to take this opportunity to remind dog owners to keep their dogs close to home this winter. MNR is receiving an increasing number of calls from people who see dogs chasing deer.

"Not only is it responsible pet ownership for dog owners to have their dogs under control, but it is your legal obligation as well," says conservation officer Ben Burley.

"Chances are good that a dog running loose will bring his owner home a ticket!"

This is an offense under the Game and Fish Act, and subject to a fine of $155.

Left on their own, deer can handle almost anything winter can deliver. Problems arise when dogs chase them. The deer then struggle in deep snow and use up considerable amounts of their stored fat reserve. This cannot be replaced with the food available to them during the winter.

"It doesn't take a long chase for a deer to become exhausted," says Burey. "The end result can be the death of the deer."

The snow conditions this winter have been particularly difficult. Snow, followed by freezing rains and even more snow has created conditions which make it hard for deer to get around, but easy for dogs. Deer have small, pointed hooves which break through the crust. This makes for tough walking or running. However, the crust is thick enough to support dogs, giving them an unfair advantage.

The public is encouraged to please give wildlife a break this winter by keeping their dogs under control at all times.

Don't forget Alzheimer's

It's a devastating disease that slowly attacks then eventually destroys the victim's dignity, personality and, inevitably, the memories of a lifetime.

Alzheimer Disease currently affects more than a quarter of a million Canadians and the prognosis for the future is not optimistic. As January has been officially designated as Alzheimer's Awareness' month, we should reflect on those who suffer from this insidious disease.

Research has shown that Alzheimer's is a degenerative disorder that destroys vital brian cells. There is no known cure. Even more frustrating, the diagnosis cannot be confirmed until an autopsy is performed on the brain after death. Often patients presumed to be suffering from senility may have circulation problems, be adversely affected by medications or even be clinically depressed.

Sadly, those who do have Alzheimer's can live anywhere from two years to a maximum of 20 years. Initially, victims have difficulty with routine tasks, experience a progressive decline in language and communication skills and have problems making decisions about daily matters. Short term memory is affected first; ultimately, all memories and cognitive abilities are lost.

For loved ones caring for someone with Alzheimer's, the disease can be as devastating as it is for the victim. Helplessly watching someone you love deteriorate day by day can be a very emotionally draining experience, especially as the victim forgets who you are.

Alzheimer's is not a new disease. Ancient Greek and Roman writers as well as Elizabethan chroniclers accurately described symptoms of Alzheimer's Disease, suggesting that it has long been a part of the human condition.

The Alzheimer Society of Canada estimates that by the year 2030 more than 750,000 Canadians will suffer from Alzheimer's and other dementias. As a society, we must support the research efforts. Until we can battle the disease with a cure, the least we can do is to provide emotional support for the victims and their loved ones. We should also remind our political representatives that as the Canadian population ages, more of us will be struck by this horrendous, soul-destroying affliction.

For more information, please call the Alzheimer's Society of Leeds-Grenville at (613) 345-7392.

This Week In Morrisburg's History

Compiled from The Leader's fyles by Laurie Day

1986

Justin Calvin Elliott was pictured on the front page of the January 1st edition of The Leader. He was the only Christmas baby born at the Winchester District Memorial Hospital. Weighing in at 7lb. 13 oz, the blue-eyed tyke was decked out in a Santa suit. His parents, Sandy and Calvin Elliott were convinced that they couldn't have received a better Christmas present.

Morrisburg's minor variance committee had all but cleared the way for Williamsburg builder, Fred Pinkus, to build a fourth duplex on land behind the east-end shopping centre.

Reeve Bill Dillabough was not what you'd call a nervous guy. But he was anxiously marking off the days on his calendar as a needs study was being carried out by the Seaway Valley District Health Council and was due at the end of January. Commissioned by the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas, Glengarry, Prescott and Russell and the City of Cornwall, the study was to tell how many nursing home beds were needed in the area and who was in line to get them.

The Christmas baby born in 1975 was to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sherman of Morrisburg. Their daughter Peggy Lee weighed in at 6lb. 3oz.

The Morrisburg Atom Lions were in Chesterville for a tournament and won the event with a 3-2 win over Cornwall Township. On the team were Bobby Deleavey, Donald Black, David Black, John VanAllen, Carl Barkley, Sean McAllister, Dean Cassell, Andrew Brown, Eric DeGrey, Peter Westphal and Michael Stewart. They were coached by Earl Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Casselman of Williamsburg were the winners of the Barn's "Great Escape Draw" which included a trip for seven days and nights at Lacayan Harbour Inn in the Bahamas, meals and entertainment. The couple was to leave Ottawa on January 25th for ... vacation. The lucky ticket was drawn by Marty Garlough, and all three were pictured in the January 9th issue of The Leader.

Headlines in the January 6th issue of The Leader read: Three perish in Williamsburg fire. Three Williamsburg people died and two others were injured in a tragic fire which swept through the large frame home of Mr. and Mrs. Weldon Beckstead. Although the exact cause of the fire was unknown, it was believed to have started from an overheated cookstove in the summer kitchen. The home was located directly across from the United Church and housed one of the village's

Let's get Personal

Stephanie Wolfe

I was blessed this holiday season to be celebrating the magic of Chanukah and Christmas with most of my closest family and friends.

On December 23, the seventh night of Chanukah, my immediate family — my Mom and second Dad, Ted, my grandparents, Bubby Anne and Zaidy Ralph, my brother, Stewart from Toronto and I — plus my crazy Newfoundlander, Louis, and Stewart's new girlfriend, Robin — gathered at my parents' house in Gloucester for a magnificent feast.

After lighting the Chanukah candles and singing the blessing, we began with Ted's made-from-scratch chicken soup followed by Caesar salad; the piece-de-resistance was a 30-pound free-range, organically-fed turkey, which was roasted to golden-brown perfection; in addition, there were potato latkes, Ted's usual wonderful stuffing,mashed potatoes, home-made cranberry sauce and carrot 'Tsimis'; we also enjoyed two Israeli white wines and finally, a choice of deserts — mincemeat pie, fat-free cheese cake and Moroccan oranges. We counted our blessings!

After supper, we sat around the huge, hexagonal coffee table, which was overflowing with gifts for everyone from the Chanukah Faerie. We took turns opening gifts, but it was difficult because my Zaidy Ralph insisted on behaving like 'Scrooge', regularly moaning, "Bag, humbug!" Poor Bubby Anne didn't enjoy herself much either. They both suffer from Alzheimer's Disease, which is a sad affliction because it affects the victim's core personality. This may be the last time we could all be together but we counted our blessings for all the years we had enjoyed. We also called Granny Eileen in Winnipeg and everyone wished her a happy holiday.

The following day, Stewart, Robin, Louis and I went tobogganing. After only one hour of terrifying and humiliating slides down the hill on our 'Crazy Carpets', we discovered we had reached the age where abusing our bodies so foolishly meant hours of heating pads, ice compresses and pain killers.

That evening, Louis and I were invited to join Ted and Mom for their traditional Christmas Eve visit with their dear friends, Bill and Shari, who always share their Christmas tree and festive home with Ted, who, despite his conversion to Judaism, still enjoys a taste of the Christmas spirit. We sipped delicious rum eggnogs, nibbled on shrimps and other delicacies and enjoyed a quiet visit gently illuminated by the sparkling lights of the tree.

Louis and I spent the early part of Christmas Day with my first father, Julian, who is an atheistic philosophy professor. We teamed up against Julian in games of Trivial Pursuit and Scrabble and lost both ignominiously. Julian is a fierce competitor who has memorized countless trivial facts as well as all of the Scrabble Players' dictionary.

That evening, we celebrated the last night of Chanukah and Christmas with some long-time friends of my parents, Marilyn (who is Jewish) and John (who is Christian) and their three children. Other friends, Jean (Christian) and her boyfriend, David (Jewish) and their children also joined us, making 17 of us around the table — Christians and Jews — celebrating the holidays together. After another incredible feast, we played dozens of games, including the Jewish driedle game. Later, we gathered by the fireplace and listened to stories. Ted read a special holiday story he wrote years ago. One of the younger children read a politically correct version of the 'Tortoise and the Hare', which was hilarious.

On Boxing Day, I got together with my three best friends — Michele, Kelli and Teresa for our 10th annual gift exchange.

Michele and Teresa were both recently married so this year was not as carefree as usual as I listened to them talk about possible babies and other serious issues about the future.

This Chanukah-Christmas I realized that life marches on. My grandparents are in the last stage of their long lives; two of my best friends are married and serious about the future; my crazy Newfoundlander and I will be celebrating a whole year together the first week of January.

But, the magic of this special holiday season continues and I continue to count my blessings.

Happy New Year!

This Week In Morrisburg's History

best loved families. The tragic loss of the three victims left the Williamsburg's residents grief stricken.

Pictured on the front page was Morrisburg's council for 1956. The councillors were A.W. Guay, M.D. Wilson, J. Arthur Edgerton and Harry B. Duvall. Also pictured were Reeve George E. Beavers and clerk Jas. T. Davis. At the council's inaugural meeting it was proposed by councillor Wallace Guay that council should investigate the steps to be taken to incorporate Morrisburg as a town.

Believed to be the victim of a hit and run driver, who struck him from behind while riding a bicycle west of Morrisburg, Ted Edward Smith of Mariatown, popular clerk at the local Brewers' Retail, was listed as critical at the Ottawa Civic Hospital.

Printed on the front page of the January 4th issue of The Leader was a history of the S.D.&G. Highlanders who had returned home from overseas. The history of the Regiment was said to date back to 1784 when the sidebanded officers and other ranks of the 84th. The Royal Highlander Emigrant Regiment, the first Battalion (King's Royal Regiment of New York), Sir John Johnston's Greens and a Corps of Butler's Rangers settled in the United Counties. In 1804 new troops settled the counties when 600 disbanded officers and men of the Glengarry Fencibles from Scotland arrived. The regiment fought in the War of 1812 but then fell apart and was not mobilized again until the rebellion of 1837 in Upper Canada. Following this episode in Canada's history, the volunteer militia was again allowed to lapse and in 1862, largely as a result of the Trent Affair the previous year, two rifle companies were formed, which were to be the nucleus of the 59th Stormont and Glengarry Batallion. From this point on the history of the regiment is similar to that of many others. Units fought in the Boer War, the First Great War and sailed for England June 1941 where they were involved in landing at Normandy as well as many other battles.

The Morrisburg Junior Hockey team won its second victory in three starts when it defeated Iroquois 12-4.

With this issue The Leader began its 84th year of publication. Originally founded as the Dundas Courier the name was changed to The Leader at the turn of the last century. The Leader at one time in Morrisburg's heyday was a semi-weekly paper. Publication of the paper had been in the hands of the Laurin family for almost 35 years.

R.H. Bradfield and Co. was selling 200 foot rolls of paper towelling for 35 cents and paper napkins were 15 cents for a package of 70.

The January 1st edition of The Leader reported Chas. S. Colquhoun, a Morrisburg merchant and Arthur Flynn were running for the position of reeve for the village of Morrisburg in the upcoming municipal election.

The ice was ready at the Morrisburg Curling Club and all members were urged to get some practice in before the rinks were drawn up.

Moving day at Pier 31

Vicki Boivin (rear) and sister Val St. John didn't know where to start as they began their moving expedition over the weekend. The girls say that the move of their store, Pier 31 Gifts, is a good one as they now occupy the former House of Carpets store in the Morrisburg Shopping Plaza which boasts a larger "open" area, and customers now have easier access to all their products. New store hours are in effect, Monday to Thursday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Friday 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday 9 a.m. to p.m. The post office box has also moved!

Letters to the Editor

Editor, Morrisburg Leader
Morrisburg Ontario
Dear Editor - Once again, area individuals and organizations responded generously to make the 19995 Christmas Angel Tree Program a success, and a full measure of appreciation is owed to many.

Firstly, the Morrisburg Leader and Laurie Day must be thanked for stepping in and providing excellent coverage during a campaign that was slower to gain momentum than in the past years. Her informative coverage rallied an immediate response from the public.

The Bank of Nova Scotia in Morrisburg and Bank of Montreal in Williamsburg again hosted Angel Tree locations along with Beavers Dental Social Committee who were very enthusiastic and supportive. Additional gifts and donations were provided by McGillis Home Hardware, Rohm and Haas and as in the past several years, Brooks Caldwell Social Committee of Iroquois.

And lastly, obvious heartfelt thanks must go to all who anonymously provided a variety of quality gifts for the needy children in our area. Over 170 children enjoyed a better Christmas because of their efforts.

On behalf of President Jim Adlington and the entire Morrisburg and District Lions Club, a genuine thank you to all...for sharing your Christmas.

Sincerely,
JACK NOTMAN

Dear Editor - We are pleased to inform you that on December 20th, South Dundas County displayed true spirit of community. Food baskets were filled to overflowing by many merry volunteers and a gift was sorted for each child at the Morrisburg Legion. And 192 families experienced a happier Christmas because of our efforts.

Our Christmas Exchange committee all expressed the feeling that our community believed it was time to increase compassion, support and assistance this Christmas season.

It is with a great deal of pride that we acknowledge your contributions and thank you for your interest in this community effort.

The media plays a critical role in communicating the goals and needs of an undertaking such as this. We are extremely grateful for your cooperation and wonderful press coverage.

Dear Editor — What has become of courteous drivers?

Recently within one week, I witnessed two male drivers (about 45-55 years-old) take parking spaces directly in front of stores from elderly drivers.

In both cases, the latter had signal lights flashing, awaiting a car to back out. While waiting for a lull in traffic, these two culprits approached from the opposite direction taking the spots.

That same day a couple in a 4X4 pulled into the disabled parking space in front of the liquor store. A prominent minister of our town kindly informed the passenger of the error. His remarks were disgruntled and the vehicle remained.

How rewarding it would be if only we could afford a parking supervisor.

International Warranty 1996

By: Aubrey LeBlanc, Ontario New Home Warranty Program

TORONTO—Ontario new home buyers have a marked advantage over consumers in other provinces. All new homes built for sale here are protected by a comprehensive warranty lasting up to seven years and backed by the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (ONHWP).

All provinces (except the Northwest Territories) have new home coverage but ONHWP remains the only mandatory new home warranty in Canada and one of the few in the world. Ontario builders and vendors are required by legislation to register with ONHWP and enroll each unit for sale prior to construction. Currently more than 275,000 homes remained covered.

This unique characteristic gives added security to new home buyers since ONHWP's protection also applies to builders who operate illegally and fail to register and not enroll the homes they build for sale.

Outside Ontario all provinces (except the Northwest Territories where no program exists) have new home warranty programs that are voluntary for builders and optional for consumers. This means a new home warranty is marketed as a 'value added' selling feature. In some provinces consumers do comparison shopping among warranty providers to acquire the protection that suits their needs or pay extra to obtain an extended warranty.

For example, in Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia (which covers the Yukon) new home buyers who wish to extend their five year structural warranty by five years can pay an extra premium for the increased coverage.

After years of consumer pressure the Quebec government is introducing legislation to establish a mandatory new home warranty. If the act is passed, the province's 26,000 licensed contractors/builders will be required to register and enroll their new homes with one of the government sanctioned warranty programs of their choice.

Meanwhile, for a one-time fee, Ontario homeowners receive $100,000 total maximum coverage on each home or condominium unit. in comparison, Saskatchewan has a maximum structural claim amount of up to $20,000 during its five year warranty. Quebec's warranty covers structural worth up to the original selling price of the new house.

In this province homeowners are also protected against deposit loss, not exceeding $20,000 and a one year warranty against defects in work, materials and Ontario Building Code violations.

In 1991, ONHWP enhanced its warranty adding a second-year extension to then single-year warranty coverage on several items for new homes enrolled on or after January 1, 1991. As a result, no other provincial warranty protects the complete building envelope including the basement or foundation walls around the home and all the electrical, plumbing and heating delivery systems for two years. Materials and work in the exterior cladding, caulking, windows and doors must be defect free.

New homes in Ontario enrolled on or after january 1, 1991, have major structural defect coverage lasting for seven years. Homes enrolled before that date receive a five year warranty against major structural defects.

There is also protection against delayed closings and delayed occupancy. Substitutions made without a homeowner's agreement are covered if the items of construction or finishing were specified in the Agreement of Purchase and Sale.

Warranties between provinces differ on items including the maximum amounts homeowners can receive upon a successful claim and the warranty time lines.

Only three provinces in Canada provide a condominium warranty on common elements with ONHWP offering the largest maximum coverage of up to $50,000 times the number of units to a total of $2.5 million for seven years from the date of condominium registration. The Atlantic provinces and Quebec provide less generous warranties of $30,000 and $15,000 respectively for a maximum claim coverage per unit up to $1 million. ONHWP also offers $100,000 maximum warranty coverage on individual condominium units.

Consumers can learn more about ONHWP's unique warranty in the booklet What Every Home Buyer Should Know. To receive your free copy call toll free at 1-800-668-7504.

Cornwall economy suffering in new year

CORNWALL—The Cornwall area is expected to start the new year with a slumping job market, according to results of the most recent Employment Outlook Survey from Manpower Temporary Services, the world's largest temporary firm.

The first quarter hiring forecast shows that 13 per cent of the area employers asked about their hiring plans intend to add more workers during the January/February/March period, while 26 per cent anticipate staff cutbacks. Another 58 per cent foresee no change in current personnel levels and the remaining three per cent are unsure of their plans.

This winter, staff cutbacks are expected in construction, while mixed intentions are reported in non-durable goods manufacturing, wholesale /retail trade, services and public administration.

Nationally, expectations are below those of three months ago. A total of 11 per cent said they would add employees, 66 per cent intend to remain at the present level, 16 per cent plan staffing decreases and seven per cent are undecided.

Canadian 4-H council to recieve $300,000 grant

OTTAWA—The Canadian 4-H Council will receive $300,000 a year for four years from Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada (AAFC) to support activities focusing on developing leadership and citizenship skills and raising awareness of key issues such as farm safety for rural youth.

An agreement between the Council and AAFC, which comes into effect this fiscal year, is one of the initiatives under the $60-million federal adaptation and rural development fund announced as part of the 1995 budget.

The funding will also assist 4-H in its efforts to raise awareness on current agricultural and food issues, such as the importance of farm safety, food quality and nutrition, the sustainability of natural resources and the environment.

Lions plagued with injuries

The Morrisburg Junior B Lions have been struggling with injuries and illnesses over the past few weeks. Presently there are four guys on the bench including Jason Rice (broken leg), Jon Saunders (finger), Travis Froats (knees) and Jeremy Gowsel (wrist). Coach John Morrow says the team has been "just sort of lagging along" and as a result, have lost their last three games including a 6-2 upset to CharLan at home Sunday (pictured here), a 7-1 thrashing by the Winchester Hawks Friday, and they lost a 7-1 game to Kemptville which snapped their 10-game winning streak two weeks ago. Coach Morrow says that fortunately for them the team has a pretty strong grasp on the number four playoff spot. This weekend, the Lions are in Alexandria Friday, and Sunday they host Kemptville at 2:30 p.m.

Town League

Yellow still on top after win

MORRISBURG—It was a battle for first place in town league action here last Thursday as the top two teams locked horns.

Just Another Day... or two

Laurie Day

Never get me in a barn and expect me to just stand in the way. Although, I must admit, I am very handy at that.

I almost got tripped up by a mad dad and a wheelbarrow, but he was nice enough to say "excuse me" before he tried to mow me down.

One day last week, I had the pleasure of taking up space at a dairy barn, and while I watched with great interest at a father and son doing the everyday rituals associated with the 50-head operation, I learned a lot about the bond these two share and was able to pick up on what makes their operation a success.

But they wouldn't even let me do anything. Not even feed the 100-year-old dog, or the 17 million cats. So I just stood there, taking up space, and asking all the questions in my search to find some answers.

It's a matter of reference I told myself. You can do much better research if you shut your mouth, watch, learn and try to comprehend.

So I watched with great intent at the relationship between father and son.

I saw a little of the passion that drives each one of them. How similar they are, but uniquely different—complementary if you will, like burgers and fries, or apple pie and ice cream.

"I usually do the milking and Joe (not his real name) does the feeding, but today I'm doing the feeding," says Dad.

After milking, there's hay to throw down, a manger to be swept, calves to water and feed, and pens to muck out. Then there are dishes to be done.

Pardon?

Dishes?

In a barn?

"You know it's getting pretty bad (in the kitchen) when you have to do the dishes in the milkhouse," says Joe, who proceeds to rinse out his milk jug.

The cats know it's milk time, because all 17 million come running to their spot outside the milkhouse door.

Just when they think they may have an hour or two to grab some much-needed sleep, along comes something else my farmer friends have to do. Like go to the dump, pick up some furniture or even offer an ear and a half a pot of coffee to a friend.

It's a crazy cycle that these guys live, along with half a million other farmers in the country.

So many lives depend on them, but they depend on each other most of all.

I guess that's the secret to being successful—to be good at what you do and to love doing it.

Without that, what else is there?

IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORIAM to John Anderson Dalrymple of Williamsburg, who passed away January 5, 1989.
Gone is the face we loved so dear
Silent is the voice we loved to hear
Too far away for sight or speech
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember him who was here
Who, gone away, is just as dear.
–Lovingly remembered by Enid, John, Jim and families 1p
