Province to probe industrial accident at Ault Foods

Greg Kielec
Record Staff

WINCHESTER — The Ontario Ministry of Labor has launched an investigation into an industrial accident at Ault Foods Ltd. here last week which sent two men to the hospital.

Alan Crump, 38, of RR2 Winchester Erwin Skuce, 44, of Winchester, were taken to Winchester District Memorial Hospital and then transferred to Ottawa General Hospital after being overcome by fumes in a tractor-trailer tanker they were filling with lagoon sludge. The sludge was to be used to fertilize farm fields.

Crump had climbed into the tanker while pumping out the lagoon Tuesday to unplug a blockage. He had difficulty breathing and tried to climb back out but was overcome by fumes or a lack of oxygen caused by the fumes, said Bill Stewart, one of eight Winchester village firemen who were at the scene.

Skuce, maintenance supervisor for the Ault plant, went in the tanker to help Crump but was also overcome by the fumes. He was not on duty at the time.

Steven Bradford, who was also helping Crump, ran back to Aults for help to pull Skuce out and Crump was pulled out shortly after by village firemen who arrived on the scene.

"I went in there to help him and that's the last thing I remember," Skuce said Tuesday.

Stewart, who went into the tank to get Crump, said it was an eerie feeling seeing the man laying there and not being able to help.

"It was different seeing him lying there and wondering if you should go in," he said. "It seemed you couldn't do anything about it."

Skuce regained consciousness 24 hours later and was released from the hospital Saturday. Crump is still in hospital but his condition has improved.

Stewart estimated Skuce was in the tank for about three minutes while Crump was in the fumes for 25 minutes. They both were convulsing "quite badly" from lack of oxygen when he arrived.

The accident was one of two in the area last week. A worker at Kraft Foods Ltd. in Ingleside was also injured when a seal in a pipe carrying ammonia burst near him.

The worker was taken to hospital overnight for treatment. "He did get an ammonia burn but he's back at work now," said Kraft spokesperson Ray Lowery.

The plant was evacuated for two hours because of the leak. Employees were given the option to remain at work or go home, Lowery said.

The company has already informed or is in the process of informing the necessary agencies about the accident, he said.

Neither the Long Sault OPP nor the ministry of labor had yet been informed of the accident when reached Monday. Sgt. Russ Lackey said the detachment is supposed to be notified if there's industrial accident in which there's been an injury.

Stephan Grenon, official spokesperson with the ministry, said an investigation has been launched into the accident at Ault Foods. But he said he hadn't been notified about the Kraft accident.

Companies must by law notify the ministry within 48 hours of an accident where there's been an injury, he said.

The investigation into the Ault Foods accident will likely last a few months, he said. The ministry can stop the transporting of the lagoon sludge until the investigation is completed, "but I don't know if that's been the case there," he said.

Stewart, a 18-year veteran with the Winchester Fire Department said the hauling and pumping of the sludge should be stopped until the ministry knows what caused the formation of the gas. "It might take someone's life someday," he said.

Yves Leroux, plant manager for Ault Foods, said the two men are "very fortunate" they made it through the ordeal safely. "It could've been so much worse."

Crump has been pumping out the lagoon on a contract basis for Ault's for the past few years, Leroux said. The accident was likely a "one in a million" thing and its difficult to speculate on the cause, he said.

If the ministry of labor finds the accident was the result of violations of the Industrial Health and Safety Act, charges may be laid, Grenon said.

Newsbriefs

The entertainer

SHELBURNE — Elma native Roma McMillan was judged the most entertaining fiddler at the Canadian open fiddle championships held earlier this month in Shelburne, Ont. Her rendition of A Story in Fiddle Music was considered the most entertaining contribution of the 135 contestants at the national competition.

"I was so amazed and surprised," said McMillan. "I never in my wildest dreams ever expected to receive such an award.

"When I was inducted into the North American Fiddler's Hall of Fame in 1984, I thought it was the best recognition a fiddler could receive. To be so honored in Canada and in my own province of Ontario was like some sort of dream."

Star sale

FINCH — The stars - or at least some of their possessions - will come out Fri., Sept. 9 in Finch to help the village prepare for its birthday celebrations next year.

Beginning at 7 p.m., you can view the work of student artists and then join in the fun as a bidder at a celebrity auction emceed by CJOH weatherman J.J. Clark.

Among contributors to the auction will be items belonging to actors Jack Lemmon, and Carrol O'Connor and Jessie Barfield of the Toronto Blue Jays.

Donations to the fundraising auction are welcome and may be left with Edith Stewart (984-2802) or Don Vollrath (984-2950).

Horse, rider okay

LONG SAULT — A Finch Township man and his horse escaped a collision with a car with only minor injuries last Wednesday morning.

Gerard Lebrun of Green Valley was driving north on County Road 6 when he saw a horse, with rider Schott Aspeck, 24, slip on the pavement as it left the eighth concession.

Lebrun veered into the east ditch but the horse's head struck the side of his car. Aspeck received minor injuries and was treated at the scene by ambulance attendants. The horse suffered a broken jaw and was also treated at the scene by a veterinarian.

Lebrun was not injured, although his car sustained minor damage. No charges were laid.

RIDE-ing again

LONG SAULT — Officers of the Long Sault OPP detachment will be on the look-out for impaired drivers during the coming week in Osnabruck and Finch townships as part of the RIDE spotcheck program. Last week, four motorists were charged with impaired driving and three 12-hour licence suspensions were issued.

Storm's force

LONG SAULT — A mother with two young children narrowly missed serious injury Saturday night when their tent was crushed by a tree.

Const. Bernie Gadbois of the Long Sault OPP detachment said the three campers at the Mille Roches camp site had left their tent to seek shelter in a van only minutes before a severe thunderstorm struck the area.

"The tree crushed a picnic cooler and completely demolished several articles in the tent," Gadbois said Tuesday. "It could have been a fatal incident."

The storm also left its mark on the car of an Ottawa camper at the Mille Roches site. A tree downed by high winds dropped on Jennifer Lake's car, causing an estimated $3,000 damage.

SNRCA may appeal court decision

Greg Kielec
Record Staff

BERWICK — The manager of the South Nation River Conservation Authority says the body will likely appeal a recent Ontario Supreme Court decision holding it responsible for damages claimed in a 1983 lawsuit filed against it by an Ottawa construction firm.

Lawyers for the authority and for the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources still have to look over the decision, but "on first glance, it would appear we will appeal," said Dennis O'Grady.

The suit was launched by Auto Concrete Curb Ltd., in May, 1983. The company claimed negligence on the part of the authority and a Gloucester engineering firm caused it to lose $1.9 million on a 1982 dredging project it did for the South Nation River near Chesterville.

In a recently filed 15-page decision, Supreme Court Judge George Yates held the authority "liable for the cost of the additional work and services performed by Auto on the project", which the company had originally estimated would cost $1.3 million to complete.

He blamed the cost overrun on "insufficient and incorrect" information supplied by the authority, which led to "a change in the character of the work to be done and material furnished by Auto."

The judge said a written order by Kostuch Engineering Ltd., which was representing the authority, stopping work on the project for 12 days and incorrect written information from the authority itself constituted a breach of the project contract.

"Insofar as Auto (Concrete) in this case had to stop and delay and change method, causing an increase in cost, there was 'a change in the character of work,' " Yates said.

The company had planned to use suction dredging for the river but was forced instead to use the much more expensive bucket, and drag line and scoop method involving large backhoes, drag lines and trucks to haul away material from the riverbed.

But while Yates held the authority liable for the cost of additional work and services provided by Auto Concrete, he rejected two of the company's other claims.

The company's claim for $200,000 in punitive damages and its claim for $250,000 in general damages were both rejected. Auto Concrete had filed for general damages, claiming SNRCA's failure to pay the balance owing on the contract caused its failure as a business.

"There is no evidence before me to indicate that the conduct of the authority was the direct and only cause of the business failure of Auto, therefore, no reward will be made in this regard," he said.

The matter still has to be referred to a local judge in Ottawa to determine what costs must be paid to Auto Concrete, after which the matter will be referred back to the Supreme Court.

Building inspector, developer still at odds over apartment lot line measurement

Greg Kielec
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — Council here has rescinded a motion calling for a $500 fine against village builder Peter van Kessel for constructing an apartment too close to a lot line.

Council rescinded the motion Thursdav night after learning it was not van Kessel, but Ritchie Warren, the acting building inspector, who incorrectly measured the distance from the Queen Street apartment to a neighboring lot line.

But before rescinding motion, councillors made it clear they weren't happy with the error.

Councillor Roger Cole said its "ludicrous" the inspector made such a mistake. It's village council who end with "egg on our faces" because of it, he said.

Reeve Carl Ward said he can't "fathom" how the inspector made the error. But because the inspector helped van Kessel measure to the lot line, council had no choice but to rescind the motion, he said.

But, reached at his home Tuesday, Warren said it was van Kessel, not he, who made the error. But after van Kessel received his minor variance, he decided to accept the blame, even though it wasn't his mistake.

"It wasn't me that made the error," said Warren, chief building official for the United Counties, but he added, "That's probably the story they got."

He said he wasn't bothered by criticism levelled at him at the council meeting. "I've probably said some pretty harsh things too," he explained. "Probably we're just about even now."

Councillor Shirley Coons said the blame shouldn't all be put on the building inspector. "I am just amazed the contractor (Van Kessel) can't measure also," she said. "This man has built many things. He must have a tape measure."

van Kessel said Monday he's pleased council rescinded the motion but it still wasn't a total victory for him. He still has to pay $250 for a minor variance he obtained in the spring because of the measurement error.

If the inspector would've let him place the building where he originally wanted it, he wouldn't have needed the minor variance, he said.

Cole said council made the decision to impose the fine based on the information it had at a May meeting, when it approved the motion. Once it got information indicating van Kessel wasn't at fault, it had to reverse its decision.

Sliding into summer

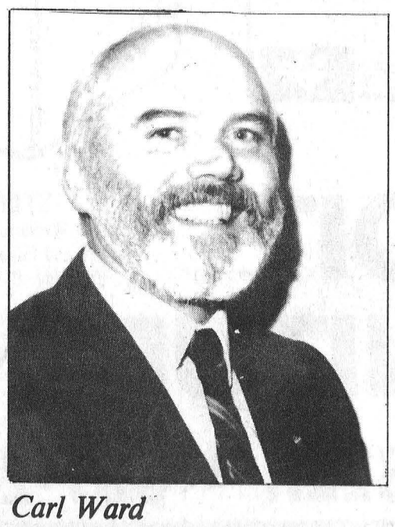
Ten-year political vet steps down

Carl Ward will not seek re-election in November

Diane Johnston
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — After a decade in municipal politics, Chesterville Reeve Carl Ward is calling it quits.

Ward, a North Dundas District high school teacher who will complete his third term as reeve in November, announced Monday he will not seek re-election in the upcoming municipal campaign.



Carl Ward

Ten years, he said, "is a good length of time to be in public life. Let somebody else take over and carry one."

"I think it's important that anyone who would be considering running for that office should be aware of the fact it's open and up for grabs. Why leave it until the last little while?"

Ward, who entered Chesterville's political scene in the fall of 1978 as a councillor, will also be stepping down from the United Counties library board and as the village's representative to the South Nation River Conservation Authority.

He hinted earlier this year he would not run for office again, and said this week other interests have moved to the forefront. He recently obtained his master's degree in education from the University and would like to continue his studies.

"I'm just finding now there's more and more things I'd like to do and I need the time for," he said.

He personally would have liked to have seen the completion of the village's long search for a new source of water. He shares the frustration of village residents who have eagerly waited for an end to the drought that has stalled further development.

"They're not any more frustrated and disappointed than I am," he said. "But it's at the point now it's on its way. It just has to go through all those hurdles."

Ward lists Chesterville's ongoing street reconstruction program, the updating of the village's hydro system and capital recreation projects including the tennis courts and a new pool building among the highlights of his municipal career. But he's quick to point out the accomplishments of the past decade are the work of council.

He has particularly enjoyed the challenges posed by municipal affairs. "Every year there's new and different things that come up that you haven't dealt with before," he said, adding with a smile, "Those are kind of fun."

He acknowledged that he has been criticized for a sometimes autocratic leadership style. "But the perceptions are not necessarily the facts," he said.

He said he's been happy to delegate council's authority, but that authority should always be in the hands of responsible people.

He added that voters tend to blame an individual, rather than council as a whole, for a decision of the municipality. But that criticism is a reality of political life, he said.

"If you can't accept that, don't run for office."

He said he will leave council with "a lot of good memories, a lot of good chuckles."

And he urged anyone, even if they have had no previous experience on council, to try for the reeve's chair. "Get in there and do it," he said. "The best experience is being on the job."

Police, public join forces to curb Chesterville vandalism

CHESTERVILLE — Ontario Provincial Police are hoping a public meeting on vandalism here Aug. 24 will be the first step in establishing "community-based policing" in Chesterville village.

The concept, which would encourage village residents to be "the eyes and ears" of Winchester's 10-man police force, may be the only way to deal with the shortcomings of policing a large rural area with a small force, said detachment Sgt. Jim McWade last week.

The 8 p.m. community hall meeting was requested by the village following a recent outbreak of vandalism that left one merchant calling for the creation of a private police force in Chesterville.

"We have to convince people to watch out for each other and not to be afraid or embarrassed to call police if they think something's going on," said McWade.

"The fact is that a police officer can only be in one place at one time. Obviously, if we can get residents to provide extra eyes and ears, that is going to help us."

McWade said the community based policing concept differs from the Neighborhood Watch program, which encourages village residents to keep an eye on their neighbors' property and report any suspicious occurrences, by getting police out of their cruisers and onto the streets.

A new communications system, scheduled to be in place at the Winchester detachment by the end of next year, will improve officers' contact with the Winchester detachment when they leave their cars, he said.

Meanwhile, a village resident complained to council at a meeting last week of drivers squealing tires and speeding through village streets.

McWade urged witnesses to note the licence numbers of the vehicles or to indentify the drivers if possible and call police.

Chesterville man charged in rash of area break-ins

CHESTERVILLE — A Chesterville man has been charged with a series of break-ins in Chesterville, Morrisburg, Finch Township and Russell dating back to the end of May.

Craig Hatt, 27, of Main Street, Chesterville will appear in Morrisburg provincial court Aug. 23 on six counts of break, enter and theft in Chesterville and Morrisburg. The Chesterville incidents include break-ins at homes and Donna's Kitchen earlier in July.

He has also been charged by Morrisburg OPP in connection with break-ins Aug. 7 at the Morrisburg golf course, the Spinning Wheel restaurant and the Morrisburg Legion.

On Aug. 30, Hatt will be in Cornwall Provincial Court facing a charge of break, enter and theft relating to an Aug. 9 break in at a Finch Township home, when a VCR, jewellery, coins and cash were stolen.

Hatt will appear in Rockland provincial court Sept. 7 on a single count of break, enter and theft at the Russell Legion. On July 31, $2,500 in cash, liquor and cigarettes were stolen from the Legion hall.

All charges were laid Aug. 9.

Election fever warming up

Three in race so far to replace Warner as MP

Diane Johnston
Record Staff

CORNWALL — While debate over free trade may dominate the upcoming federal election campaign, two men seeking the Tory nomination in Stormont-Dundas believe bilingualism will be the riding's to concern.

Three Cornwall and area men have announced they will try to replace retiring MP Norm Warner as the riding's Conservative candidate.

Grant Campbell, a Cornwall area lawyer who represented the riding from 1958 to 1962; Eric Cameron, a businessman and Warner's former assistant, and Denis Carr, a Cornwall alderman since 1985, will seek the party nod at a Sept. 7 nomination meeting. The meeting, originally scheduled for Sept. 28, was moved up to allow the successful candidate more time to campaign for an election many predict will be called for October.

Campbell, 65, said the free trade issue and the furor over amendments to the Official Languages Act that expand bilingual federal services led him back to politics.

"This is one of the most impossible times to be elected a member and it's one of the most fascinating times," said Campbell, a former assistant crown attorney in Ottawa and a member of the Ontario Municipal Board, Monday.

He said nothing will be done to change the contentious language legislation, Bill C-72, until after the election.

"It doesn't matter what I think about it. All three parties have supported it," said Campbell, who is more comfortable writing or reading French than speaking it. "It's the law of the land."

He believes the fate of Canada's official languages policy will hinge on the Supreme Court's ruling on the constitutionality of Quebec's language law, Bill 101. How Quebec and the rest of Canada react to that decision will decide the future of bilingualism, he said.

Carr, who was introduced to politics while working on Warner's 1984 election campaign, supports the principle of Bill C72. He said Monday he would not push for the repeal of the legislation, despite strong anti-bilingualism sentiment in parts of the riding.

"I don't think there is anything wrong with the intent of the bill," the 44-year-old training consultant with St. Lawrence College in Cornwall said.

"People see the implementation of the bill as giving a problem."

He said the bill is not well understood. He blames part of the opposition on detractors who cite specific instances of what they claim is linguistic or job discrimination.

Instead, he said each case should be reviewed individually. "You've got to have all the information before you make a decision."

Campbell said the riding is a difficult one. A successful Tory candidate must have substantial support among both Cornwall's francophones and the small towns and rural areas that have become bases for anti-bilingualism lobby groups.

But the politician's role, he said, is to "try to reconcile the irreconcilables."

Campbell said the upcoming election "is going to be a referendum and should be a referendum on free trade."

"I have some reservations about free trade but I think it's inevitable. I think it's inevitable because there's no alternative."

He acknowledged that some sectors of the riding could suffer under the deal but he believed his experience and contacts in Ottawa and Toronto could bring compensation and alternative employment.

Carr is also a fan of the trade deal, which he maintained will protect Canada's health care system and natural resources.

He's convinced the deal will open up new markets for Canadians. "For years and years I worked in industry and made attempts at various times to tap into the large American market. Now that's going to be much easier," he said.

"We have to be aggressive and market our product...but we can compete with anyone one-on-one."

Cameron, 29, was not available for comment on Tuesday. In a press release, he too emphasized his support for the agreement.

"While very optimistic about free trade, I am concerned that efforts to scuttle the agreement will result in farmers and business people in Southern Ontario being shut out of an increasingly protectionist U.S. market."

Both Carr and Cameron described themselves as prolifers in the abortion debate.

Carr said that while a woman has the right to her own body, "in this particular instance, when you're talking about the conception of another human being within a woman's body, well, the unborn have to have rights, too."

Campbell would personally prefer restrictions on abortion, but said some areas are "too personal" for the state to interfere.

"I believe abortion is a sin...but I believe the state should concern itself with crime rather than sin, and they're not necessarily the same."

Without public facilities providing abortions, he said the rich would seek them elsewhere while the poor would be left with unsafe practitioners.

He was also influenced by the unanimous rejection by all female MPs, regardless of part affiliation, of amendments that would have limited a woman's access to abortion.

Baking 1800s style

Helen Carr, this year's judge for the Chesterville Historical Society's Heritage Cooking Contest, to be held during the village fair, shows some of the utensils that would've been used for baking in the pre-1900s. Carr has been an interpreter at Upper Canada Village for 13 years and is a specialist there in open-hearth cooking. Entries for the contest must be registered by 12:30 p.m. August 28 at the Exhibition Hall at the village fairgrounds. Judging will take place at 1 p.m.

Warm reception hoped for contest

CHESTERVILLE — Organizers for the fourth annual heritage cooking contest are hoping area residents will cook up a storm for the village fair this year.

Whether it be pickles, cake or baked bread, organizer Caroline Roberts is hoping about 30 people will put their cooking skills to test Aug. 28 — 19th century style.

"Pretty well" anything goes, as long as it is made from a recipe dating to around the year 1900 or earlier. If a person can't find a recipe, he or she is welcome to come to the historical society to look over its selection.

And you don't have to be an accomplished cook or chef to do well in the contest; "just follow the recipe." Even a complex recipe doesn't guarantee success. A simple recipe can win just as easily, Roberts said, adding; "A lot of the early recipes are very simple."

Entries must be at the Exhibition Hall at the Chesterville Fairgrounds by 12:30pm, Aug. 28. They will be judged at 1pm by Helen Carr, an interpreter at Upper Canada Village for the past 11 years who specializes in open-hearth cooking.

There is no fee for the contest but aspiring entrants should contact either The Heritage Centre at 448-2769 from Monday to Friday, 9am to 6pm, Caroline Roberts at 448-3534 or Virley Edwards at 448-2067, during evenings or weekends to register.

A copy of the original recipe and notes about its source and history must be attached to the entry as well as a equivalent recipe suitable for use in a modern kitchen.

The product will be judged on taste, texture and appearance and whether the normal ingredients available prior to the year 1900 were used. It is to be presented in an old-fashioned style with the serving dish reflecting the period of the recipe.

The first prize winner will receive a $35 gift certificate redeemable at the Cloverdale Cheese House. A chef's apron will be given for second prize and the third prize winner will receive a Nestle's gift box. All participants will also receive free historical society memberships.

Last year's contest was won by a chocolate cake recipe by Chesterville area woman Pegi Holtz and a pickle recipe by Paula Shaver of Morewood.

The historical society is also planning to have a railway display at the fair this year. The display will be done by Hubert Jablonski, a museum technology student at Algonquin College in Ottawa. Jablonski's acting as curator for the Heritage Centre for the summer.

Two Solitudes?

As much as federal candidates in Stormont and Dundas would like to see debate over official bilingualism swept away in a tide of interest in free trade, that's not going to happen.

Bill C-72, an act to amend the official Languages Act and expand bilingual federal government services, may be law but the local fight against bilingualism is continuing.

Area members of the National Association for English Rights have joined forces with a new western-based federal party, the Confederation of Regions, which is committed to the dismantling of official bilingualism.

COR proposes taking the battle from newsletters and traditional lobbying tactics to the House of Commons and has hinted it will run a candidate in the riding in the coming federal election.

In Osnabruck Township, provincial legislation, approved almost two years ago, extending French language government services in designated areas of Ontario continues to draw fire. A member of the Alliance for the Preservation of English in Canada announced last week he will run in the November municipal election to draw attention to the language issue's impact on municipalities. And APEC itself is pushing hard to include on municipal ballots a referendum on language policy in Ontario.

Canada's oldest controversy continues to thrive in Stormont and Dundas.

The riding itself, while not exactly mirroring the Two Solitudes, is a small scale stage for the national debate.

Like the party that becomes the federal government, the successful MP from Stormont and Dundas must, to have a legitimate mandate from its constituents, have the support of both francophones and anglophones, the urban centres and the scattered rural population.

In Stormont-Dundas, any politician must talk a thin rhetorical line on language to be successful. But being a skilled politician shouldn't rule out standing by an honestly held conviction, whether for or against Canada's language policy.

It's not an encouraging political path. After two decades of official bilingualism, any revolt against the direction of Canada's language policy is viewed as a step backwards at best, as heresy at worst. But a grassroots anglophone backlash in Eastern Ontario has been gathering steam for more than a year and any politician -- for both his sake and the good of all his constituents -- must be prepared to react.

There are some legitimate fears about job security and employment prospects for a future unilingual and anglophone generation. It's the political representative's obligation to respond to those concerns.

Voters have a right to know where the men and women who seek their support stand on the riding's most sensitive issue. The political hopefuls are bound to honestly explain their personal conviction and defend them.

If they can't -- or won't -- do that, they don't deserve to be the people's representative.

vacation, n.-1. a period of suspension of regular work, study, or other activity (often preceded by "on"); School children are on vacation now. 2. an act or instance of vacating. 3. the opportunity to "get away from it all," followed by a sprint back to the comforts of home.

Last week was my chance for a week in the sun...and the heat and the humidity and the highway traffic jams that gave me insight into the psyches of Los Angeles freeway shooters.

I willingly - even looked forward to - exchanging the wilting temperatures of home for the stifling heat gripping Toronto, the nation's cesspool of grime and home to a Mcdonald's on almost every street corner.

As I approached the land of Jumidex warnings - regular radio bulletins that predicted almost certain death to anyone venturing outdoors -- the city was shrouded in a brown haze beneath a blue gauze of sky.

I had a lot of time to contemplate that sky.

I caught snatches of it when I wasn't watching the brake lights of the vehicles ahead of me and even deeper into a traffic jam that clogged the 401 for three quarters of an hour.

I was trapped beneath an overpass for 15 minutes of that. To the right was a car suffering from squeaky brakes. To my right was a convertible whose driver was sharing the benefits of his hard rock radio station.

Toronto is a pricey city, so dining out meant Harvey's and Burger King. Despite the commercials, the thrill of an Egg McMuffin pales after three consecutive breakfasts.

I was surrounded by mass transit - a subway system, electrically powered buses and regular street buses. So I parked the car (for $6 a day - a bargain) and...walked.

I walked Spadina, University Avenue, Queen's Park, the Kensington Market, Yonge, Bloor, Queen, College, Front. My soft rural feet that strike the accelerator pedal more often than pavement grew calloused.

After a few days in the city and on the highway, I decided I'd had enough of a break.

I arrived home at 2 p.m. to learn the first of an expected seven loads of straw had just been unloaded and I was in time for the second.

It hadn't rained while I was gone, so in deference to our dug well the shower restrictions were still in effect.

But as we finished supper, the worst thunderstorm of the season struck, leaving us without power for almost six hours. I started the supper dishes at midnight while the rest of the family began the evening milking chores.

My vacation drained my purse and I had to borrow $10 to carry me over until I could make it to the bank.

It's good to be back.

Chesterville's Past

08 From the Record Thurs., Aug. 13, 1908

At a meeting of the quarterly official board of the McLeod Street Methodist Church, Ottawa, it was decided to extend a call to Rev. R.G. Peever, Coaticook, Que. The matter of the call will come up at the next conference, and the new pastor will commence services at the beginning of next June. Till then, the pulpit will be filled by Rev. Dr. Hunter of Toronto.

Before leaving town for Toronto, a number of young men gathered in the dining room at the McCloskey House last evening, and spent a social hour with the Doctor and Mrs. Shields. Light refreshments were served, after which the Rev. W.F. Crawford was appointed chairman, when a number were called upon for short speeches. Before retiring, they presented Dr. Shields with a beautiful suitcase, showing the esteem in which he was held in Chesterville by his young men and associates.

As advertised, races took place at Monkland on Friday last. The weather was favorable and quite a large number of horses were present. Three races were called and all but one was finished, which was concluded Saturday, together with a running race. The contests were exciting and some very close finishes were witnessed. Mr. Jas. McAvoy's mare won first money and Mr. Ed Flynn's mare second money in the green race, both Chesterville horses.

Dr. J. Cleary Wray, L.D.S., successor to Dr. John Shields, has arrived in town, together with Mrs. Wray and three children.

Tuesday evening at Morewood, Chesterville made first place safe in the Dundas County Baseball League when they defeated the home team by a score of 9 to 1. Although there is one more game to play with South Mountain, the result of it will not have any bearing on the league leadership. In the mysterious manner in which championships are decided nowadays, although Chesterville stands at the head of the league they have not yet acquired the right to represent this league in the play-downs. The second club, Winchester, although not strong enough to make first place, plays off with the winners in another series to see if they can do any better than they have already done.

Farmers lead the classification list in point of ownership of motor cars. Approximately a third of the more than a million motor vehicles owned in Canada are owned by farmers and even in Ontario, the most manufacturingly industrialized and urbanized province in the Dominion, farmers own about a quarter of the cars and trucks. This rural motorization is not a new development and it is entirely logical. Nothing has done as much, not even the radio, rural delivery and telephone combined, for the rural population socially and educationally as the motor car.

Mrs. Wm. Kinsella and Mrs. J.H. Ouderkirk of Saskatoon, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. E.W. Van Dusen, the latter being the mother of Mr. Ouderkirk.

A hungry fox that had been preying on residents of the chicken houses and coops of the community on the Forward headline tried it once too often last week and for his pains got a charge of birdshot that sent him to a fox's Vallahalla in a hurry. Stanley Shav has been missing some of his plump pullets and decided that a thief of either the two-legged or four-legged variety was in the neighbourhood. On Friday the thirteenth, last week, the culprit resolved itself into a large red fox, sneaking around the barn with a chicken in its mouth. Stan raised the shotgun and at the blast, Mr. Fox became a good fox. Friday the thirteenth was most unlucky for Reynard.

Bulging barns and overflowing granaries record the bounty of nature to the farmers of this district. For the first time in years, the crops are at their peak and farmers are finding joy in handling a bumper harvest. Rain at the right time all through the season has spelled plenty and crops filled and ripened with nearly everything in their favor. The overflow from the barns may be seen in the large stacks of hay and sprawling piles of yellow straw left from the hungry maws of busy threshers.

With prize lists in the mails, the prospects for the Chesterville Fair being bigger and better than ever look good. The cattle showings alone promise to be more than usually interesting with three breed events slated. They are the Grenville-Dundas Red and White Day, the Guernsey Regional Show and the Jersey Parish Day. The special prizes are in their usual generous number.

According to Rotary Club treasurer Dick Finigan, $3,000 should be realized from the "Walk for a Club House" staged last Saturday. Some 103 young and old walkers took part and all but four finished the 12.2 miles.

Chesterville Fair people are all ready and waiting for the crowds and Fair president Eric Casselman is sure this year will be the topper of them all. The first night, Tuesday, will feature the Lamp Lighters of Smiths Falls. Some forty members of the marching and precision drill band will be on hand for a hour-long show. Their program will include stirring band music, flag drills of delightful precision and continuous syncopated movement to their own music. The band is claimed to be one of the best of its type in Ontario.

In the opinion of an Ontario Municipal Board official here, Osnabruck Township Council's choice of financing for the Ingleside water sewer levy is legal, but the method of billing is still subject to appeal. Dorothy McRobb of the OMB told The Record Monday council is perfectly within its rights to finance the expenditure, which is to pay for the $158,300 expansion of the water treatment plant, out of current revenue as it did, but if ratepayers object to the method of billing, that is another matter altogether.

An experimental commuter bus service between Chesterville and Ottawa was inaugerated Monday morning and will run on a trial basis until the end of September.

The burning wall crash, slide for life, human battering ram and ramp-to-ramp leap in a stock automobile are some of the events scheduled for Fri., Sept. 1, as the Trans-Canada Hell Drivers help kick off the 111th edition of the Stormont County Fair.

The Farmer's Wife

by Wyn Thompson

As our tour bus pulled away from the little village where I grew up, we were a happy lot. This has become an annual midsummer field trip for ladies of the church and community-at-large.

No men allowed. I say this in a hushed and revered voice, for I acknowledge it as being a sexist statement if I ever heard one.

En route to Ottawa, we saw ample evidence of the drouth-stunted crops plaguing the agricultural community. Then the beautiful view of the capital city skyline lifted our thoughts as we crossed the Macdonald-Cartier bridge.

The paper mill at Gatineau loomed and further on logs being held in a boom in the river caught our eye. Our hostess for the day reminded us that the town of Templeton we were approaching was originally settled by Scottish settlers.

At Angers we thought of Canada's "king of the track", Henri Filion, who grew up there on his father's farm. Both he and his brothers have been first-class race horse drivers, but Henri, in particular, has become famous as a race horse driver in both Canada and the United States.

Masson, we were reminded, was the place where fine timber was once assembled for shipment down river to Montreal and, from there, to Britain and Europe, in the days when Ottawa Valley white pine was the finest timber obtainable.

We smelled Thurso on this drizzly chunk of a day overladen with low-hanging clouds. Heavy dependence on forest resources was evidenced by the large pulp and paper mill with its belching smoke-stacks and piles of pulpwood at the mill site.

Plaisance, literally a "pleasant place" with its waterfall and picnic area, came next. Beyond it was La Petite Nation River. Our Nation River, a pleasant river, empties into the Ottawa River almost directly across from it.

On to Papineauville, home of a very lovely church, the town being the original centre of the Seigneurie de la Petite Nation acquired by Joseph Papineau, a notary from Montreal.

Shortly thereafter, we halted at Le Chateau Montebello, a place of extraordinary structure and beauty.

Le Chateau Montebello was built in 1930, just at the beginning of the Great Depression. The first log was laid on April 7, 1930, and it took thousands of workers (about 3,500 skilled, I believe), laboring day and night to complete this lovely six-pointed, starshaped log structure in a record time of three months.

It seems that the "good Priest of the day" frowned upon Sunday work by his Catholic parishoners, so the "powers-to-be" saw fit to fulfill a life-time dream of the priest, indeed of any priest, I should imagine, of travelling to Rome to meet the Pope. When the good priest returned some three months later, behold, the log structure was completed, and all sins forgotten. How sensible to kill two birds with one stone, or so it seems to me!

Several celebrities from the political establishment have enjoyed the exclusive Seigniory Club, as it was first known, and Le Chateau Montebello as it has been called since it was taken over by the Canadian Pacific Hotels Corporation in 1970.

We recalled the television shots of this secluded and beautifully-forested area with its unique log hotel hosting the economic summit, at which the heads of the most industrialized nations in the world exchanged ideas in 1981 and 1983.

As I walked about the grounds drinking in the beauty of such a woodland setting, I contemplated the thought of suggesting a cross-country ski weekend to the Farmer. The idea was soon discarded as not being very feasible in this year of the great drouth, the worst in our area since 1888.

But, as farm people are prone to do, I muttered under my breath, "Maybe next year!" and hurried to catch up with my group, who were learning that the Seigniory of La Petite-Nation as it was then known belonged to Bishop Montmorency de Laval, a founder of Quebec.

In the 19th century the property changed into the hands of Joseph Papineau, a member of the legislative Assembly of Quebec and then to his son Louis-Joseph Papineau, who played an important role in the Rebellion of 1837.

We visited the Papineau Manor on the grounds of the hotel and which was built by Louis-Joseph between the years 1846 and 1850.

The Manor, now a museum, is indicative of the time in history when politics were stormy in Lower Canada and Papineau was a member of the Legislative Assembly which held the purse strings.

In 1822, when a union of Upper and Lower Canada was first proposed Papineau went to England and spoke so well against it that the proposal was dropped.

Reform of the government system proved impossible; Papineau and the group known as the Patriotes wanted an elected Legislative Council, but it was no go, even though many English-speaking Lower Canadians were in support of the cause.

When talk failed, the Patriotes undertook armed rebellion, but after a few skirmishes, this too, proved fruitless. Papineau was forced into exile, and charged with high treason - a price on his head of 1,000 pounds.

Responsible government finally came after years of struggle (1848-9) and Papineau was allowed to return. He had spent much of his exile in France and was much impressed with French culture and built his Manor house on the Chateau Montebello property - the name Montebello being given it by Papineau in honor of the French duke who had become his very good friend in France.

As I stood in the large room which had once housed seven bedrooms for guests, I felt the ghosts of distant times whisper of intrigue, plot bloody rebellion, and heard the murmurs of acquiescence, the hush of despair.

I shivered and moved out to the balcony to enjoy the picturesque Outaouais river, one of the routes the first "voyageurs" used, and the majestic Laurentians rising up behind it.

Reluctantly we left that lovely spot to enjoy the barter and trade and bargain-hunting of the Lachute Flea Market. Then it was on to Hawkesbury, Alexandria, Chesterville and home - Eastern Ontario, bathed in sun and cloud, lovely in the dying minutes of a midsummer day.

'Tanks, but no tanks'

CHESTERVILLE — Nationview Service Centre is eager to dispel rumors that two tanks were recently removed from the Main Street station because they were leaking gasoline.

Manager Judy Heerkens explained the empty 2,000-gallon BP tanks, which hadn't been in use for at least nine years, were removed as part of renovations at the service station. Two new 4,000-gallon fibreglass tanks were installed earlier this month to allow the station to offer super unleaded gasoline while cutting down on the number of deliveries fuel suppliers must make to the Chesterville garage.

But the work had spawned fears the old tanks were leaking pollutants.

"People kind of put two and two together and said, aha, your old tanks were leaking," Heerkens said Monday.

When Frank and Judy Heerkens purchased the station six years ago, they installed gasoline and one of the smaller tanks will offer leaded fuel.

Further renovations to the service station, which was purchased by MacEwen Fuels when the Heerkens' contract with Petro-Canada expired, include the repaving of the lot.

Ida May Lawlor

Funeral services were held Aug. 3, 1988 for Ida May Lawlor, a former Morrisburg resident. She died Aug. 1 at Glen-Stor-Dun Lodge, where she had lived for the past two and a half years. She was 74.

She is survived by her husband, Arnold Lawlor. She also leaves children Hughine (Mrs. Mac Laverty) of Dunneville, Vivian Chalmers of Kingston, Phyllis (Mrs. William Dillabough) of Morrisburg, Rita (Mrs. Charles Sayeau) of Cornwall, Bernice (Mrs. Emmet Norton) of Morrisburg, Arnold Jr. of Dorchester, Garnet of Long Sault, Carole (Mrs. Douglas Hodgson) of Milton, William of Ottawa and Charles of Iroquois.

She is also survived by a sister, Irene (Mrs. Charles Boyle) of British Columbia, 14 grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

She was predeceased by a grandson.

She was born Oct. 7, 1913 in Brandon, Manitoba, daughter of the late William Craig and Ida Munhall. On Jan. 9, 1936, she married Arnold Lawlor in Montreal.

She attended St. Mary's Church, Morrisburg, from where Rev. James MacGillivray conducted funeral services. Interment was at St. Mary's Cemetery.

Pallbearers were grandsons Bill Dillabough Jr., Gord Dillabough, Charles Sayeau, Michael Sayeau, Mike and Jeff Lawlor.

Darcy Elmer Richmire

Darcy Elmer Richmire, a Morrisburg area resident, died Aug. 11, 1988 at Winchester District Memorial Hospital following a three-month illness. He was 56.

Born May 19, 1932 in Cornwall, he was the son of the late Hazel Ault and Irwin Richmire. On Jan. 4, 1957, he married Margaret Rose Tyo in Morrisburg.

He attended Christian Reformed Church, Williamsburg and was a retired laborer.

He is survived by his wife and children Randy of Brinston, Carolyn (Mrs. Sydney Markell) of Morrisburg, Raymond at home, Brenda (Mrs. Gerald Fyke) of Williamsburg, Doreen (Mrs. Peter Montroy) of Morrisburg and Gordon of Crysler. He also leaves seven sisters, a brother, three grandchildren and several nieces and nephews.

Walt DeRuiter officiated at funeral services Aug. 12 from Fairbairn Funeral Home, Morrisburg. Interment was at New Union Cemetery, Williamsburg.

Peter Montroy, Nelson McCooey, Graham Casselman, Walter Casselman, Roger Meunier and Rocky Richmire were pallbearers.

SD&G corn yield 'normal'

CHESTERVILLE — Although they won't match last year's bumper crop, SD&G agricultural representatives expect normal yields for corn producers this year.

The area could use some rain, but considering the plight of farmers in southern Ontario who have been hit by extremely dry conditions this summer, farmers here aren't complaining, said Martin Schneckenburger, a director with the Ontario Corn Producers Association.

At a recent meeting with agricultural representatives from across the province, he was one of only a few expecting normal yields this year, said Schneckenburger, who runs a farm with his son Arden near Morrisburg.

Farmers in southern Ontario are expecting yields of 35 to 55 bushels per acre this year. Their yields usually average between 55 to 100 bushels per acre.

"We have been very lucky," Schneckenburger said. "The summer so far, has been very good."

Farmers were fortunate enough to get rain a few weeks ago, just when the corn was beginning to tassle, he said. But a few more showers now would do some good. "We could use a little bit right now."

He'll likely begin harvesting his silage corn in about five weeks, with the rest of the crop being combined around mid-October. He and his son planted about 900 acres of corn this year, he estimated.

Howard Giles, of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food office in Winchester, said some of the crop in Dundas are suffering lack of rain, and uneven germination caused by dry spring weather.

But he predicted area farmers will still reap an average crop this year. "As far as I know, it's looking pretty good," he said.

About 21,000 acres of grain corn and 12,500 acres of corn silage were harvested in the county last year.

Glen Smith, agricultural representative for OMAF in Glengarry County, also predicted a good crop in his county, but added it won't match the yields of last year's crop.

"I wouldn't say it was any better. Last year was a bumper crop," he said.

Farmers in the county have been blessed with good weather this season, but "weed escapes" due to dry weather earlier in the year could reduce yields for some farmers.

Dry weather early in the growing season reduced the effect of herbicides used by some farmers and late-germinating weeds are now posing problems, he said.

"A lot of weeds are there," he said. "But these fields are in the minority."

An affected field could have its yield reduced by 10 to 15 per cent, Smith estimated, and some may even drop to 50 per cent of their normal yield.

But on the average, the county's 35,000-acre corn crop looks "very good", he said. "We don't really forsee any problems as long as we get a reasonable length of a growing season."

Dale Miller, agriculture representative for Stormont County, also gave high marks for the estimated 20,000 acres of corn planted in the county this year.

Farmers should have a good "standard" crop, he said. "It's coming along nicely. (There's) lots of ears."

More of the same weather with a few showers should ensure a good crop for harvest, he said.

The barley crop in SD&G is also looking much better than last year's crop, according to the agricultural representatives.

"We're getting a great barley crop coming off; much better than last year," Miller said. Farmers have been enjoying good yields and good heavy grain in their crops.

Smith said the bushel weight of barley in Glengarry "seems to be very good" although the yield may be down some. The county's oat crops has also shown some improvement this year, he said.

'Ho-hum' response to $650,000 grant

Wayne Riley
Record Staff

CRYSLER — The president of Women for the Survival of Agriculture says she is "not terribly excited" by a federal plan to pump $650,000 into Canadian farm women's groups over the next five years.

"I hope this is just a first step," said Dorothy Middleton. "Certainly it's not much when you consider it's $150,000 a year divided between 10 provinces and 90 farm women's groups.

"I'll be very pleased if this is just the first step in a series of steps to fund these groups."

The $650,000 Farm Women's Advancement Program is designed to encourage farm women to become actively involved in the agri-food sector.

"It is essential to recognize and reinforce the vital contributions of farm women to Canadian agriculture," Agriculture Minister John Wise said in announcing the program August 3.

But Middleton said the money will do little more than allow the two-year-old National Farm Women's Network to have its first meeting.

"We haven't even been able to meet because of lack of funds," said Middleton of the organization created to bring together representatives of Canada's farm women's groups to discuss issues and policies.

"I think the bulk of the funding will be needed just to get that off the ground."

Although criteria for funding eligibility has yet to be worked out, Middleton said a working copy of the rules expects the applying groups to be actively involved in projects.

And that, she added, may be asking a lot of groups like WSA who have been coming up with projects for 11 years to qualify for funding.

"For 11 years we've run on project funding and it's nearly burned our membership out," said Middleton. "We need funding now just to step back and have time to organize our organization again."

The WSA is currently on a summer sabbatical to give members a chance to recharge.

Middleton said the new funding could be "very positive" if it allows farm women's groups to directly deal with farm issues.

"In the past, working under the Secretary of State, we've always had to make our projects fit under the criteria of "women's issues', " said Middleton.

"This project may allow farm women to get in on farm oriented projects."

The federal government has defined farm women's issues as different from women's issues because of special circumstances like rural child care, farm credit and family responsibilities on the farm.

Blues and Daniels takes series' leads in ladies ball hockey

CHESTERVILLE — The old hockey axiom that defence wins playoff games was borne out Thursday night when Big Blues and Jackie's Daniels both took one game leads in their best-of-three Winchester Ladies Ball Hockey League final series'.

Big Blues, known for their offensive prowess all year (they scored 36 regular season goals -- no other team scored half as many) relied on a strong defensive effort to edge Rhonda's Rippers 1-0 in overtime in game one of the championship final.

Hali Adair ended the proceedings scoring the only goal of the game 22 seconds into a second five minute overtime period. Her game winner was unassisted.

Nancy Vanderveen recorded her fourth shutout of the year, and second in as many weeks for Blues.

Blues' defensive corps haven't surrendered a goal since their first play-off game, a semi-final tilt against Jackie's Daniels two weeks ago.

Rippers' Elaine TePlate held Blues off the scoreboard during regulation.

Blues will have an opportunity to wrap up the league title when the two teams meet in game two Thursday night at 8 p.m.

Blues have now beaten Rippers all four times they have met this year, twice during the regular season and one once in exhibition play, in addition to game one of the finals.

Blues advanced to the finals winning a two-game total goals semi-final over Jackie's Daniels 4-1. Rippers defeated Heather's Bruisers 4-2 in their semi-final.

The consolation final, pitting Heather's Bruisers against Jackie's Daniels, also went to an extra session, with Daniels posting a 2-1 win.

Charlene Skuce scored the game winner 1:13 into OT. Valerie Shaver and Debbie Shaver drew assists.

Skuce was in on their first goal, picking up an assist when Kim Moran scored giving Daniels a 1-0 lead two minutes into the first. Debbie Shaver also assisted.

Bruisers came right back two minutes later tying it on a goal by Janet Post. Tara Berry and Kerry Kennedy assisted.

The two teams played scoreless hockey the rest of the way until Skuce's dramatic game winner.

Daniels will have an opportunity to wrap up the consolation title with a win Thursday at 7 p.m.

Bruisers finishers in third place in the regular season one point ahead of fourth place Jackie's Daniels but Daniels picked up three of their five points in head-to-head meetings against Bruisers, winning and tieing in their two contests. Daniels also defeated Bruisers in an exhibition matchup.

Both teams were bounced to the consolation round after dropping their semi-final series'.

Flyers clinch first in men's ball hockey with win over Toons

CHESTERVILLE — It took a victory on the last week of the regular season, but Flyer Truck Flyers clinched first place in the Chesterville Men's Ball Hockey League with a 6-2 win over Looney Toons Wednesday night at the Chesterville Arena.

Goal scorers are unavailable.

Flyers (9-3-2) finished atop the league standings with 20 points in 14 regular season games. They're riding the crests of a three game winning streak as they head into playoff action, beginning Wednesday night.

Flyers will meet third place Sports Unlimited in a best two out of three semi-final series, with game one slated for 7 p.m.

Second place Rowdies will face Chin's Chargers in the other semi-final at 8 p.m. Chargers finished fourth overall. The two winners will advance to a best of five games final in September.

With the loss, Toons season came to an end. They fell to 3-8-3, good for nine points and fifth place overall, but not good enough for a playoff berth.Sixth place CountryBoy Pacers (2-10-2, 6 points) won't be planning any post season strategy either, as they lost for the fifth straight week, this time 5-3 to Chin's Chargers.

Chargers (7-6-1, 15 points) are peaking at the right time, having won four straight games. They finished one point behind Sports Unlimited in their late season run at third place.

Red Wings lost out in their battle for second, dropping a 6-5 decision to Rowdies. Rowdies (9-5, 18 points) ended a three game tail spin with the victory. Sports Unlimited finished up at 8-6, with 16 points.

Unlimited set the stage for their second place showdown winning the previous week, 8-1 over Pacers. Mike McManus led the Red Wing offensive assault with a four goal game. Todd Blaine added a deuce. John Guy and Jim McIntosh added singles.

Both McIntosh and Rene Boulanger picked up three assists in the contest. Guy and Randy Leclair added two helpers apiece.

Pacers Ken Byers spoiled Wing's shutout bid with an unassisted goal.

Jr.C Flyers end five month search for new coach

'Laid back' Kirk Anderson leading team in 88-89 campaign

Todd Hambleton
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — The search is finally over.

Five months after Chesterville Junior "C" Flyers president Tom Van Dellen relieved John Mackler of his coaching duties at the end of the 87-88 hockey season Van Dellen announced he's found a new coach to lead the club into the 88-89 campaign.

He's 34-year-old Kirk Anderson of Avonmore, who's had previous coaching and playing experience in the junior ranks.

"We're very happy he joined the team," Van Dellen said Thursday. "We had a good meeting with him, he explained to us (board of directors) what his views on coaching are, and we all seem to agree with them.

He seems to know what he's talking about. He's played a lot of hockey in the junior leagues, and he said he coached some junior "C" a few years ago. He seems to be a capable person to handle the kids. We have a lot of confidence in him."

Anderson, a native of Montreal who spent eight years in Edmonton before moving to Avonmore three years of ago, says he's looking forward to the fast-arriving season.

"I'm looking forward to it, there's no doubt about it. I'd like to be part of a winning, exciting team in Chesterville and have everybody come out and enjoy it."

But the founder and manager of Rural Route, a community newspaper based in Avonmore, does admit he faces a big challenge in the upcoming months. "It will be tough, especially the first year. I don't know what sort of players we're going to have, I don't know the numbers and I don't know the calibre of the team. But that's probably par for the course for most junior "C" coaches just starting out with a new team. Things will begin to fall into place when training camp opens," he predicts.

Anderson found out about the opening from a neighbor of his, Winchester Jr. "B" Hawks coach Bill Murphy back in the spring, but he waited to see "if they were going to bring somebody on", then finally decided to apply for the volunteer position. "I just decided I'd like to get back into coaching, it's something I wanted to do," he said.

Anderson then contacted Van Dellen a few weeks ago, but the appointment wasn't made official until early last week. "We couldn't get together for the past several weeks. We had a couple of meetings cancelled because some of the board of directors were on holidays," said Van Dellen. "There's no point in me having a meeting with the coach alone, so we waited until everybody could be there, so that it would be the club's decision, not just mine."

Flyers finished in seventh place out of eight teams in the Eastern Ontario Jr. "C" League last season with a 4-22-2 regular season record. They failed to qualify for the playoffs.

Anderson is hopeful he can improve on last year's showing. "If we lose to a better team we'll try to get 'em next time, but there's no fault in losing to a better team. If we lose to a poorer team because we're undisciplined then we have a problem. I feel that at the Jr. "C" level the calibre from team to team should be approximately the same, and the team that executes should win," he says.

Anderson describes himself as an easy going, laid-back coach -- but his players better be performing at full throttle at all times. "If everything's going smooth and everybody's putting forth their best effort win or lose then I'm very easy. But if they're lazy and not carrying out their assignments there could be some rough practices," he warns.

For Van Dellen, Anderson's appointment ended nearly a half year of searching for someone to coach his club. At one point in the spring the president was forced to advertise the position in the Record. He's glad the ordeal is finally over.

"You can't run a team without a coach, and for awhile, it didn't look like we were going to have one. It takes up a lot of time to do the coaching, not everybody wants to take the time to do it.

"You begin to think nobody's going to come forward then all of a sudden Kirk showed interest in it. We're very pleased," he said.

Van Dellen says Anderson's joining the club with training camp just over a month away shouldn't pose any serious problems. He doesn't think Anderson's unfamiliarity with the league and last years team is anything to worry about, either.

"He doesn't know any of the kids around but we'll send out letters to the kids we know and the one's who played with us before, inviting them to the camp. It's always difficult figuring out who will come out until you have your first practice. A lot of kids themselves don't know what they're doing yet. Some might be going to college or doing this or that, and you never know until the time comes who wants to play. I've never been worried about that because it always happens, year after year.

"Nowadays hockey isn't as important to the kids as it was in the old days. To get on a junior "C" team was really something but it doesn't seem to mean much anymore. That's why so many kids in the summer time are uncommitted, they don't know if they'll be coming to camp or not. But in the end most of them show up," Van Dellen said.

The president says he's trying to have home games switched to Sunday afternoons from Saturday nights, but the initiative will have to be approved by Chesterville town council before it's official.

He's also lobbying to have practices held on Thursday nights, at Anderson's request. "The only night he can't make it is Wednesday. We don't have any hockey on Wednesday nights unless a team like Clarence Creek has a game on that night, but he won't miss many," Van Dellen says.

Van Dellen will know more about the 88-89 schedule when the league holds its season kickoff meeting August 22 in Embrun. "Hopefully if we get the Sunday home game we'll have better attendance because there's not much going on Sunday afternoons," he says.

If the crowds do improve and revenue is generated, the president says his volunteer coach could have more than his expenses paid for. "Right now since we don't have the money I told him everybody works for free and he was willing to do that.

"But it all depends on how the team does and how the attendance is. If there's money at the end of the season he'll certainly get his share of it. The coach gives up a lot of his time during a season, it would make it a little bit more worthwhile for him."

Gold medal winner

Stephan Van Bruinessen was Chesterville Swim Team's only gold medal recipient at the Winchester Swim Meet, held as part of Winchester's centennial celebrations last week. Van Bruinessen won the boys 13 and 14 freestyle swim. Russell won the meet, defeating host Winchester Marlins by 25 points.

Coach can't clear Olympic hurdle

OTTAWA — Physical education teacher Hugh Conlin will be on the North Dundas High School campus, not at the 22nd Summer Olympic Games in Seoul, South Korea, come September.

Conlin hoped to be named to the Canadian hurdles team coaching staff as an observer coach, but he now says the chances of that happening are slim to none. "They're (Canadian Olympic Committee) not going to be sending an observer hurdles coach because of, as far as I know, a lack of funding," said the 44-year-old Ottawa resident, contacted at his home earlier this week.

"That was the only possibility I would be going (to Seoul) was as an observer coach, but they've had a lot of financial problems with the World Juniors in Sudbury recently, and as also money was used in other ways for programs in Canada like hurdles training centers and so forth so they had to cut something out.

"The official team list won't be published for a few days but it's highly unlikely I'll be on it," he speculated.

Conlin spends his summer vacation coaching hurdles at the Ottawa Athletic Club. He says his chances of being chosen would have been much improved had one of his athletes made the Canadian Olympic Team at the Canadian National Hurdles Championship in early August, but it wasn't to be.

"One of my athletes, Moranda Kirby, was fourth in the women's 100 metre hurdles but that's as close as we got. If we had someone on the team it might have made a difference," Conlin said.

The Canadian hurdles team coach at the 1987 World Championships in Rome, Conlin says he has no qualms about the coach selection of process. "The selection for coaches was made last November, and they're based on your athlete's previous year's performance. Brent MacFarlane was picked last November as the hurdle team head coach. He will more than likely be selected and approved as Olympic coach shortly," said Conlin.

He adds Canada's hurdle team this year is small -- there are only four members -- so appointing additional observer coaches is unnecessary. "As of now there's just one coach (MacFarlane). We only have four athletes right now who have made the Olympic standards. The standards are pretty tough to make."

Conlin has been involved with the national hurdles team for two years now, having attended the 1986 Commonwealth Games in Scotland as an observer coach in addition to his head coaching duties in Rome a year ago. He says he will not look towards 1990.

"I'm more or less starting over developing a younger group and I feel we'll (OAC) be back up there shortly. I'll hopefully be attending the New Zealand Commonwealth Games two years from now. You just keep working, it's a pretty fair system. Basically if you have athletes that are on the team you go as one of the coaches."

He says Kirby is one of his younger athletes who should be a force in Canadian hurdles in the future. "She's only 20. She made the Canadian junior team, which is the group just below the national team, and she'll be representing Canada in European pre-Olympic competitions over the next two weeks. She has great potential for future success at the international level," Conlin says.

Invaders set to break stalemate

European trip will introduce women's hockey to Czech-mates

Michele Tancorre
Record Correspondent

RUSSELL — As the flag is raised, the national anthem begins to play.

The country has just won the first Olympic gold medal in women's hockey.

Although women's hockey isn't part of the Olympics yet, it could be if the International Ice Hockey Federation (IIHF), the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) and the Russell Invaders have anything to do with it.

In an effort to further promote women's hockey the two organizations as well as the Ontario Women's Hockey Association (OWHA) are sanctioning a trip by the Invaders, a women's hockey team in the Ottawa District Women's Hockey Association (ODWHA), to Czechoslovakia. The team would be the first women's hockey team behind the Iron Curtain.

The Russell team, made up of players 19 and older from Russell and surrounding areas, plays in the Senior II Division of the ODWHA. They are the only ODWHA team representing the various communities in this area.

Women's hockey has been one of the fastest growing sports, said Empey. This fact can be seen by the attraction of the first ever Tournament, held last spring in Canada, where there were teams not only from Canada and the United States but also from Switzerland, Sweden, Holland and Japan. Representatives from Australia, England and West Germany also attended.

But Empey, and the hockey organizations, admit if the sport is to be taken seriously and became an Olympic event, Eastern Bloc countries must also be involved.

"The thrust this year is Czechoslovakia. Next time it will be Russia," said Empey. "Our long term goal -- 15 to 20 years out -- is to ensure that women's hockey is an Olympic event."

The Invaders would play seven games in four cities during the two-week trip to Czechoslovakia, which would be in early March 1989. The team would play two games in Prague, Hardec Kraloue and Templice and one in Slany.

Because the trip is expected to cost in excess of $35,000, money will be attempted to be raised by various methods, said Empey. Along with fairs, dances, and bingos, the team will attempt to collect the funds through local businesses as well as corporate sponsors. They are also looking for support of the Ministry of State for Fitness and Amateur Sport.

Since plans first came together last Easter, Empey said "everybody is on the track to raising funds."

He adds the team members have been assigned to specific fundraising projects and if they are serious in attempting the trip they must help in the money raising.

"If they want it they have to work for it."

However, Empey added if not all the money is raised, it would not block his passage to Czechoslovakia.

"I'm looking forward to it and I'm going to make sure it happens. One way or another this group is going," he stressed.

In conversations with area residents, Empey said many people are surprised how far the project can go.

"Now that we've been discussing it with people from the village there is excitement that a small place like Russell has the capability to play someone like Czechoslovakia -- and be the first women's team there."

Since the ODWHA season runs from November to February with playoffs in March, Empey is hoping to come to some agreement with the league so the team will not be left out of the playoff picture. The Invaders are the league champions, winning last year in their second year of operation.

"I'm sure that since we're promoting girls hockey, there may be some forgiveness," he said. However, he added, he is not concerned if provisions aren't made. "We're willing to take that chance."

To help acquaint the team with the Olympic-sized arenas, Empey will be taking them to Belleville for games.

"Get them the feel of the largeness of the ice surface," he explained. The team attending the trip will consist of the same players beginning the hockey season.

Russell dominates swim meet

WINCHESTER — Russell swim team dominated squads from five other local communities winning the Winchester Swim Meet Thursday at Centennial Pool.

Russell scored a total of 228 points, beating host Winchester by 25. St. Andrews took third accumulating 180 points. Rounding out the pack was Avonmore (102), Cardinal (93) and Chesterville (48).

Fourth place Avonmore swim team was led by Lynn Wattie, who tied for top girl in the 13 and 14 year age bracket with 11 points. Wattie won the 100m race, finished fourth in freestyle and fifth in breast-stroke.

Steven MacMillan was the only other Avonmore swimmer to claim a gold medal. Participating in the 13 and 14 year group, he won the fly, finished second in the 100m race and third in freestyle.

Picking up silver medals for Avonmore were Amanda MacMillan in breast-stroke and backstroke races (eight and under), Eric Belanger (9 and 10 freestyle), and Cindy Dixon (13 and 14 freestyle).

Angela Rashotte was Avonmore's other bronze medalist, placing third in the 11 and 12 year breast-stroke race.

Six other Avonmore swimmers picked up points contributing to their team total of 102. Mark Rashotte picked up three fifth place finishes (9 and 10 freestyle, breast-stroke, backstroke) while Steven Neville had two fourths (9 and 10 breast-stroke, backstroke) and a sixth place effort (freestyle).

Danielle Belanger was fourth in 11 and 12 year old breast-stroke, Todd Brownlee finished fourth in fly (11 and 12) and Danny Neville, also competing in the 11 and 12 year group, was sixth in fly.

Avonmore enjoyed limited success in relay races. Their highest placing was a second in the girls 13 and 14 medley. Teams finishing in third were the boys 11 and 12 freestyle, girls 9 and 10 medley, boys 11 and 12 medley, and boys 13 and 14 medley squad.

Finishing fourth was the girls 9 and 10 freestyle, girls 13 and 14 freestyle, boys 13 and 14 freestyle.

Chesterville relay teams fared better, picking up two silvers (boys 13 and 14 freestyle, boys 13 and 14 medley). The girls 9 and 10 freestyle team and 11 and 12 freestylers turned in bronze medal efforts.

Stephen Van Bruinesson was Chesterville's only gold medalist in individual events, winning the 13 and 14 year old freestyle race.

Denis Desormeaux picked up a silver in the 13 and 14 backstroke, and a sixth in the freestyle swim.

Claiming broze medals were Monica de Bruijn (9 and 10 freestyle) and Kathleen Fodrek (9 and 10 breast-stroke). de Bruijn was sixth in breast-stroke, Fodrek recorded a sixth in backstroke.

Three Chesterville swimmers cruised to fourth place finishes. April Harper was fourth in 11 and 12 freestyle, and Danny McLeod and Melanie McLeod, also swimming at the 11 and 12 level, finished fourth in breast-stroke and backstroke races, respecitively.

Top individual performers in girls category were, eight and under, Corrie MacRae (St. Andrews) with three gold medals and a total of 18 points, nine and ten, Laura Algive (St. Andrews) with a gold, bronze and fourth place swim.

Top girl in the 11 and 12 group was Tiffany Baker of Cardinal, with two firsts. Wattie of Avonmore tied with Tara Baker (Cardinal) for top swimmer in the 13 and 14 group, with a gold and silver medal swim.

In boys eight and under, Shawn Habermek of Russell was first in the division, with a first, second and fourth place finish.

Peter Bergman (Russell) won the 9 and 10 age group, with gold medal swims in freestyle, breast-stroke and backstroke.

Scott MacDonald of St. Andrews equalled that feat in the 11 and 12 grouping, recording firsts in backstroke, fly and freestyle races.

Russell's Mark Rowsell was top boy among the 13 and 14 year olds, placing first in the 100m swim, first in backstroke and second in breast-stroke.

Froats paces Newington to victory

NEWINGTON — Travis Froats hurled a complete game victory and scored three runs as Newington pee wees jumped out to a 1-0 lead in their Osnabruck and District Minor Softball League final series with a 19-8 win over Cornwall Thursday (August 11).

Froats fanned eight Cornwall batters in going the distance.

Todd Walker and Kevin Lalonde also scored three runs each.

Game two of the best-of-five series will be played in Cornwall Wednesday night. The series switches back to the fairgrounds in Newington for game three Thursday.

Regular season pennant winners Newington (14-1, 28 points) advanced to the playoff final with a semi-final series sweep of Finch. Second place Cornwall, 10-4 in the regular campaign, eliminated Long Sault in their first round series.

Newington was also involved in tournament play this past week, winning the "B" trophy in Stittsville, Saturday, Aug. 6.

Newington rolled over Addison 22-7 in the final game. They reached the final with an 11-2 decision over Peterborough. The locals were dealt to the "B" side after losing their opener, 7-3 to Amherstview.

Club championship held

The final round of Cedar Glen's 1988 club championship was played Sunday (Aug. 7). Paul Casselman, left, won the junior A Class trophy. LeaAnne Munro carried off the A Class ladies' silverware and Rick Barkley won the A Class men's award.

Munro, Barkley, Casselman claim Cedar Glen club titles

WILLIAMSBURG — Lea Anne Munro, Rick Barkley and Paul Casseman stroked their way to their respective club championships here at Cedar Glen Sunday (Aug. 7).

Munro, of Winchester, held a very comfortable 11-stroke lead heading into Sunday's final round. She would up with an aggregate score of 171. She carded an 80 and a 91 to become A class champion. Chesterville's Carol Droppo was second with a 175 total.

Ladies' B champion was another Chesterville golfer, Ann Cook who fired a 101 and a person best 98. Cook and Brenda Waddell were tied at 101 after one round.

Elsie McIntosh nipped Lori Hutt by a stroke in a C Class playoff to take that division title. McIntosh, Hutt, Donna Casselman and Barb Phifer were all within a stroke of each other after round one.

In a D Class showdown Phyllis Lamoureux hit rounds of 120 and 114 to defeat Joan Larocque and Pam Whitteker.

Rick Barkley earned another Cedar Glen A Class championship, recording rounds of 71 and 74. Dave Bird, Al McNairn, Johnny Morrow and Brad Mayhew were among the top finishers.

Cornelius Dutch DeRooy's final round 79 bested the B Class' best. Todd Morin, Bob Harper, Bruce Whitteker, Gerry Belanger and Brad LeClair.

Bob Vanasse carved out a second-round 83 after an opening 85 and won the C Class trophy. Don Fawcett, Steve Dillabough, Don Pilon and Jeff Byvelds were among the contenders.

Ray Lamoureux, Tim Kikkert and Steve Barkley led with a first-round 94 but John Lexmond stormed from one shot back to take the D Class trophy.

Paul Casselman took the Junior A Class with a 167 total. Todd Larocque won the B, Troy McMillan captured C Class and Joanne Larocque was the Cedar Glen Junior D Class champion.

Fitness forum

by Jennifer Gregoire, Reg.N.

Rx: EXERCISE

1. Should I Warm-up? In order to prepare the body for exercise of any sort, a good warm-up is highly recommended. A combination of rhythmical, stimulating, yet sensible movements will increase circulation and raise body temperature, thereby warming the muscles in preparation for the stretching to follow. This aspect, combined with stretching of ligaments and mobilization of joints, is helpful in the prevention of muscle soreness or injury during heavier exercises. The length of the warm-up depends on the type of activity to follow, but 5-8 minutes should be considered the minimum. I personally feel that for an aerobic (or any other structured exercise class) routine that the absolute minimum for the warm-up should be 12 minutes.

2. How Often Should I Exercise? The ideal situation for improving overall fitness would be to exercise every day for 30 minutes or more. However, the minimum exercise requirement to show a significant increase in fitness is 3 times per week for 30 minutes each time. Of this 30 minutes, about 15 minutes should be relatively high intensity exertion (this is based on "target" heart rate as shown below). This portion should always be preceded by the adequate warm-up, and followed by a "cooling down" period of at least 5 minutes of lessened activity. The exercising should be continuous for the entire half hour or more, and provisions should have been made to allow intensity to build over the following weeks. One common misconception is that an extra-long bout of heavy exercise once a week can take the place of the 3 times per week program. However, the effects of an exercise period are lost within a few days, unless the exercise is repeated.

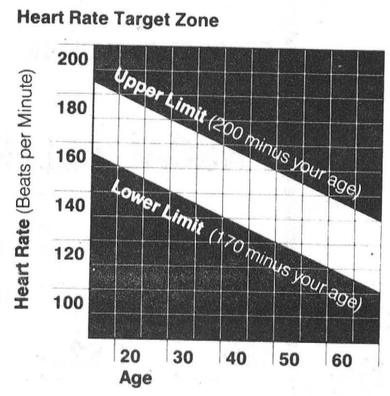
3. Am I Exercising Hard Enough? It is relatively simple to assess whether or not you are working hard enough to improve your cardio-respiratory fitness. You should be checking your Resting Pulse Rate (the pulse before you begin exercising) at the start, and your Strenuous Pulse Rate (your pulse rate just after you finish exercising, and just before your cool down) at the end.

The diagram below describes the principle of the Heart Rate Target Zone. The following general guidelines may be used for computing your personal Target Zone.

Above the upper limit there is little added benefit from increasing the intensity of the exercise; below the lower limit the intensity of the exercise is insufficient to adequately improve cardiovascular (cardio-respiratory) fitness. You should spend a minimum of 10 minutes within the Heart Rate Target Zone to achieve a significant conditioning effect on the cardiovascular system. Beginners should attempt to maintain a heart rate close to the lower limit. As your fitness level increases you may want to go to higher rates within the Target Zone.

My Silent Achievers this week are all of you who get your exercise by walking. I am especially referring to the two pretty redheads and the handsome elderly couple I pass daily on the road to Chesterville, south of Morewood. Walking is one of the very best exercises to benefit every part of our being. Not only are you increasing your fitness level, you have the added benefit of fresh air and beautiful countryside. Well Done!!

We are so very lucky to be able to do it for ourselves.



Jays grounded 8-4

WINCHESTER — Visiting Brockville scored three times in the eighth inning to break a 4-4 tie that held Winchester Blue Jays to two runs in the bottom of the extra frame to steal a 7-6 victory in Winchester Wednesday (Aug. 10).

Jay's Chris Hart and S. Drouin scored in the bottom of the eighth but Jays couldn't tie the Dundas Senior Baseball Little League game and force another overtime session.

Brockville broke on top with three runs in the fifth, but Hart, with his first of three runs, got one back for Winchester in the bottom of the inning.

Brockville added an insurance run in the top of the seventh but Jays rallied scoring three times in their half sending the contest into OT.

Hart, S. Bell and J. Tessier all scored for the birds in their seventh inning comeback.
