Grantley W.A. Holds August Meeting At Casselman Home

The theme for August, "The Good Shepherd," was discussed by the W.A. of Grantley on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Phil Casselman. Some interesting accounts were given by members whose ancestors were shepherds in Scotland and several described the work of the highly trained dogs in rounding up and guarding the sheep.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. Donald Carr and Mrs. Donald Casselman, following the Lord's Prayer in unison. Mrs. Wm. Fulton presided at the piano.

Twelve members and several visitors were present. The roll call for September is to be a short story or quotation illustrating "Brotherly Love."

Mrs. Hesson gave the minutes of the previous meeting and Mrs. Claude Carr reported slightly over $18 received at the meeting.

The president, Mrs. Gordon, read "Korea Thanks Canada for Relief" from the Observer which gives an on-the-spot story of how the clothing we send is distributed to the needy.

After the Mizpah benediction, Audrey Casselman opened the entertainment programme with a piano solo. Mrs. Wilburn Robinson and Mrs. W. J. Sutherland gave readings and Joan Casselman contributed a piano solo. A guessing contest was won by Barbara Fulton who is visiting her grandmother, Mrs. Jas. O. McMillan.

After lunch, Mrs. Wilburn Robinson expressed the thanks of those present to the hostess and invited the WA. to her home in September.

Milk Price Higher For Next Cheques

Sheldon Ball, president of the Chesterville Concentrated Milk Producers Association, has been in touch with the Record just as we go to press. He informs us that the price of milk will be increased for the next pay cheque from the Nestlé plant. They will pay $2.45 per hundred for 3.5 milk.

Mr. Ball pointed out this was an increase of 10 cents a hundred over the minimum price but representations by the Association to the company had resulted in the Nestlé Company agreeing to the higher price. The company is doing this in spite of large committments to manufacture export processed milk which is paid for at a lower price than domestic milk.

The small increase will be welcomed by the farmers here who are feeling the pinch of the dry season.

Berwick W.I. Members Hear Mrs. L. Allison At Recent Meeting

Berwick Women's Institute had the pleasure of having Mrs. Lillian Allison, who writes "Frendlee Farm Chats," as guest speaker at the July meeting. Mrs. W. W. Henry, convener of Public Relations and Community Activities, introduced the speaker, who spoke on how to get along with other people, meet people half way, and to learn to forgive and forget.

The president, Mrs. Walter Smirle, thanked Mrs. Allison for the interesting talk.

Mrs. A. Anderson, secretary, read the minutes of the previous meeting and correspondence which included the Ottawa Citizen Nursing Bursary open to several counties in Eastern Ontario.

Mrs. Alex Rutley reported on the evening spent with the Morewood Branch on their 50th anniversary.

An invitation was accepted from Osnabruck Centre to join them at the Grandmothers' Meeting. It was regretted more were not able to join Mrs. Donald Casselman, of Finch Branch, on the trip to Montreal.

The meeting closed with "God Save the Queen."

Paper Drive Saturday

Scouts and Cubs will be about the town bright and early Saturday to make their summer collection of paper, rags and especially old metal. Anything in that nature you have lying around, let the boys know and they will clean it up.

Have your bundles of paper and rags tied up and handy for the collectors on Saturday, August 13.

Large Potatoes —And Lots of Them!

While digging in his garden for potatoes Mr. Orval Colquhoun, of town, hit the jackpot—16 large ones in one hill. With this summer's dry weather and poor growth, Mr. Colquhoun's fellow gardeners feel that he is quite fortunate.

OPINIONS . . .
Ours and Others

To By-pass or Not

It is more than a little evident the Department of Highways has no intention of doing other than temporarily repairing Highway 43 from the Four Corners on the Finch Road to Highway 31. The repair work is nearly finished now and should last almost until the snow flies. Tarred patches laid on tarred patches, on tarred patches hardly constitute a good surfaced highway.

We wonder if there is not more to the situation than is commonly thought about and if perhaps our cries of pain directed at the Department of Highways are altogether fair. It is just possible the department is not completely to blame, though we do not condone the length of time it takes to do certain of the repair work.

The highway follows a reasonably straight course now from Alexandria until it reaches a point just south of town. Up to that point, the steady attention the road has received in the past few years shows. It is really an excellent highway, wide, well paved and fast. Then, like a runner running out of wind, the highway reverts from the present day of modern road to something an Indian would have scorned if a good bush trail was handy. How might we be responsible for the situation? What possible reason for thinking our community might just be a little on the careless side about the highway too?

Perhaps if we have the answer to a simple question, we might see the picture a little clearer. The question is: Where does the continued highway go, past Chesterville to the south and west or through town? How do you answer it? Or have you bothered to express yourself lately to your local government on the matter? Does the reeve have any idea how the majority of his town thinks on the route of the highway in relation to Chesterville when he calls on the Minister of Highways? Will the Minister of Highways be right or wrong if he asks for an expression of opinion, and upon receiving an indefinite answer, be in the driver's seat when he puts the matter aside once again? Has the MLA of this riding yet felt the weight of public opinion on the matter, so he may express the majority opinion?

Perhaps we should not be so insistent regarding the construction of the last eight miles of the road, but it rather irritates our civic pride to have out-of-town cars take Water Street for the Queen's Highway, and not know the difference until they hit dirt road at the dam. If we could make up our collective minds about where the highway should run, then perhaps the almost continuous surveys would stop and some road building would start again where it left off.

Scarce Water—Don't Waste It

The pages of the Record this week carry a notice placed there by the management of the Nestlé plant here asking for consideration in the use of water from the town water system. The request points up continued dry weather we have been experiencing this past summer, and the need for care in the use of the river water.

It is questionable if anyone knows how many homes and other buildings are tapped in on the town system that is supplied with water by the milk plant. Each time there is a break in the pipe and some of it has to be uncovered, then the connections show, and there are a surprising number, even though it is some time now since the city fathers have sanctioned any new hook-ups.

If each of those lines uses water without due thought, the load on the company pump rises quite high. In high water times the matter is accepted by the plant as another village service and nothing is said. In low water times, as now, it is another matter. The Nestlé plant must have large quantities of river water each day to stay in operation. So much so that one can literally see the fall of water in the village pool day after dry day. The plant needs the water, but so also does the town for its fire hydrants. When a fire starts, there is not any time for economy in water use.

Balance the needs for the water from these facts. The factory does not want to resort to upper river pumping until the last possible minute. When that happens, one good fire will empty the river basin here in about twenty minutes.

Turn off your river water taps, tight, and use them only if necessary. If your garage burns down, it won't matter whether you washed the car or not.

Letter to the Editor

Finch, Ontario,
Tuesday, August 9, 1955.

The Editor,
Chesterville Record.
Dear Sir:

When Mrs. Donald Gordon, president of the Woman's Association of the Grantley Church, asked me to contribute something at the August meeting two lines from verses published in 1922 in a Masonic magazine came to me—"Gone on trusting and true/With God supreme in his manly breast . . ."—and I decided to recite the entire poem for the ladies, a group that exudes sincerity without scheming, strength without intrigue, steadfastness of purpose.

As I explained to the ladies this poem brought magnificent response to a great opportunity and a great privilege, to give money through the Red Cross to the St. John's Ambulance of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem in World War II. This privilege was granted by Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth in response to an offer to help the St. John's Ambulance Brigade, the Order under which I served during the First World War.

The author of the following poem is unknown today by me; 33 years have dimmed the picture.

Kate Mackinnon Wiggins
(Now Mrs. W. J. Sutherland)

I want to walk by the side of the man
Who has suffered and seen and known;
Who has measured his pace on the battle-line,
And given and taken the blows.
Who never whined when the scheme went wrong,
Nor scoffed at a failing plan,
But took his dose with a heart of trust
And the faith of a gentleman.
Who has parried and struck and fought and given
And scarred with a thousand spears
Can lift his head to the stars of heaven
And isn't ashamed of tears.

I want to grasp the hand of the man
Who has been through it all and seen—
Who has walked with the night of an unseen dread
And stuck to the world machine.
Who has beaten his breast to the winds of dawn
And thirsted and starved and felt
The sting and the bite of the bitter blasts
That the mouths of the foul have dealt.
Who has harassed, crucified, rose again
And gone on trusting and true
With God supreme in his manly breast
And his spirit burning anew.
I'd give it all, be it little or great,
To walk by his side today,
To stand up there with the man that has known
The bite of the burning fray,
Who has gritted his teeth and clenched his fist
And gone on doing his best
Because of the love of his fellow man
And the faith in his manly breast.
I would love to walk with him hand in hand
Together journey along
For the man who has fought and struggled and won
Is the man who can make men strong.

Light Along The Way

The vastness of the heavens when night has fallen, has always proved a mysterious attraction to man. Their glory defies description, and the comfort of the twinkling stars has been a consolation for many. So the author of the Eighth Psalm stood in awed appreciation of the living beauty of the Oriental night. The galaxy of stars, reaching from horizon to horizon, made him aware that the Creator is not bound by the little limits of man. National and geographic boundaries were of little consequence to Him whose reach is universal. Indeed, in the face of such splendour, what is man?

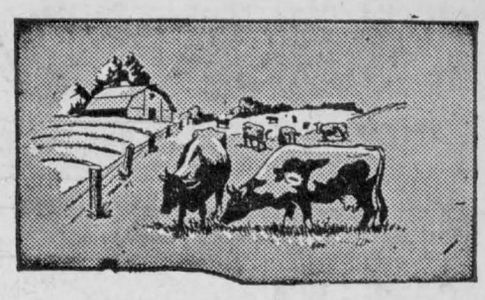
The significance of man come to him immediately. This creature is only a little less than God, who hast crowned him with glory and honour. He is God's! All men, like the Psalmist, are God's creatures. He brought them into being, and so they are His concern. The stars overhead, each in its appointed place, make it evident that all men are God's. He is not concerned with one man alone, nor with one nation, or one race; for He is the Creator of men of every race and clime. They all belong to Him, and are His concern.

The heavens remind the Psalmist that God's hand is impressed upon the whole world. Wherever man turns he sees the might of God. The growing trees and grass, the flowers and birds of the air, all attest the power of God. But the greatest of these is man. It is man alone who has been entrusted with the power to reason; it is he only who has dominion over the other creatures of the universe. Surely man can expect God to care for Him far more than He does the rest of the universe; and the fact that the heavens cover the universe suggests to the Psalmist that God's care is equal for all men.

There are many things that deny this. The differences of race divide men from each other so that there is no equality and one race is looked upon as the inferior of another. Social distinctions set one group above another so that brotherhood is impossible. The differences of creed make some men claim that they hold the whole truth, and admit no authority but what they themselves conceive. But these are differences of men, and they do not destroy, though they do deny, the relationship which men bear to one another as creatures of the One God. As the stars are set in a company, so men are set in a family, each a child of God, and one has no more claim upon Him than another.

The Indian name of Kawarthas, a group of sparkling Ontario lakes within ninety miles of Toronto, means "Bright Waters and Happy Lands," and the chain was once the favourite water route of the fiery Iroquois in their expeditions against the Hurons who lived in the Georgian Bay area. Champlain was the first white man on record to travel the chain, when he made his historic trip in 1615.

FRENDLEE FARM CHATS



By Lillian Allison

If there were nothing at a convention but people the convention would be quite worth while. At least that has always been my opinion and I certainly didn't change it during the International Sunday School Convention I attended recently in Cleveland.

Every morning and evening we met in Cleveland's huge auditorium for general sessions. And what a thrill it was to look around at that crowd of five, six or seven thousand people and realize that all of them were interested enough in Sunday School work to have travelled the many hundreds of miles from California, Newfoundland, British Columbia and the southern States.

Who are they? Well, just let me introduce a few.

There was a gentleman from Newfoundland who was presented to the convention one evening. He had waited 75 years to go to a Sunday School convention, he said, and was glad to be there. Mrs. George Dorey, wife of the Moderator of the United Church of Canada, was interviewed one night too. She attended the World Sunday School Convention in Rome in 1903 and recalled some of her experiences there.

Contrasted with these and other oldsters were many teenagers who seemed overjoyed at being privileged to attend such a gathering. Their enthusiasm was high, untouched by the many discouragements and the monotony of the work which their elders have experienced.

And, of course, there were many Negroes among the group of conventioneers ,their dark faces radiant with an inner joy and peace. There was no racial discrimination either. Negroes and white people sat side by side, walked arm in arm and shared their similar experiences from time to time. I shall never forget the quiet, reverent way in which a young, coloured chap conducted a worship service in one of the smaller groups one morning.

We thrilled to see on the opening night such an important man as Mr. Harold E. Stassen. Mr. Stassen, who is President Eisenhower's right-hand man, had just returned from the conference at Geneva and his report on that event was optimistic indeed. We were thrilled to learn that this high-ranking American statesman was also president of the International Convention of Christian Education and had been re-elected for another four-year term. Religion and politics do mix.

But we met many people at the convention personally. You see, each delegate wore a name tag with his name and address printed on it in large block letters. So it was very easy to turn to the person beside you and say, "You're a long way from home." And often we'd hear someone say to us, "Another Canadian! It seems everyone here is from Canada."

And so I met the young chap from Massachusetts who had been in the army for three years and is now teaching a class in his home church. The lady from Sheridon, in Southern Ohio, who thought we were hearing an orchestra instead of a band. The Sunday School superintendent from Leamington, Ont., who knows my uncle there. The young chap from Seaforth, Ont., who hadn't realized he had an accent until someone thought him a southerner and I figured he was English. The lady from Collins Bay who had some of her belongings stolen from their parked car.

The young lady from St. John's, Nfld., who is superintendent there of a Sunday School with about 1,100 members. A minister from Winnipeg who was taking movies. A lady from Vancouver, another from Colorado, and on and on. Yet never in the four days did we meet the minister and his wife from Finch.

Of course there were many learned speakers. There were pictures, films, panel discussions and all that. There was music—a band, a symphony orchestra, singing and so on. There was pageantry—one pageant which alone cost $5000 to present. It was all, splendid inspirational and uplifting.

But it was the people who made the convention worth while. It is knowing as we return to the humdrum tasks of Sunday School work that scattered across Canada and the U.S.A. there are thousands of other teachers and workers who have the same problems that we have and that knowledge will help to give us the courage to carry on. For we found at Cleveland that we are not alone in this important job of Christian Education.

Outdoor Roundup

with Joe Foster

This past week we visited with some friends who have a cottage on one of the many popular resort lakes that are scattered throughcut Quebec's Laurentians. This lake was developed as a family summer resort quite a number of years ago, so that today there is scarcely room for another cottager. Nine miles long, a winding shore line and dotted with islands, it still provides ample water space for the enjoyment of fishing, swimming, sailing, water skiing and power boating. Ah, power boating! A lazy fellow I—why exert yourself when with one or two pulls on the starter of an outboard and you can speed from cottage to supply store for extra groceries or troll for deep-feeding lunkers of the finny tribe.

Where Are Their Manners?

Today there is scarcely any body of water large or small whose surface isn't being constantly churned to a froth by an ever-increasing throng of irresponsible and speed-crazy characters whose thoughtlessness and carelessness menaces the safety and peaceful enjoyment of these same waters by the more sober minded vacationist. Reg Fife writing in a recent issue of "Rod and Gun" hit the nail on the head when he said: "The water, traditionally, is a place where men show the utmost politeness to each other. Seldom do you pass another boat and not acknowledge or give a greeting. Everyone on the water is your friend—neither he or you knows which of you is going to need help and when. But this new crop of boating enthusiasts haven't had their boats long enough to realize the significance or the responsibility attached to that friendliness on the water."

A Tightening Up

With the mounting trend towards speed on the water, we can look for a tightening of the regulations of the Canada Shipping Act, which governs the operation of small boats powered by outboards of more than ten horsepower. In the past the enforcement of these regulations has been left pretty well up to local authorities. Generally speaking, this has resulted in little if any enforcement and it now looks as though the federal authorities will have to step into the picture.

Mounties Active

Around where we live there is already evidence that something is being done and the Mounties have been quite active on the waters of Lake St. Louis and the Ottawa River, Lake of Two Mountains area. Patrols are checking boat owners and advising them in no uncertain terms that the regulations must be complied with, which means that all boats powered with ten horsepower or more must be properly licensed under the Canada Shipping Act. Boat operators are also being cautioned that they are obligated to carry adequate life-saving equipment. I'm sure every good sportsman will welcome this tightening up and co-operate willingly. Just how and when the federal people can get around to checking the smaller resort lakes throughout Ontario and Quebec I wouldn't know. I would think, though, that through a combination of local authority and the provincial fish and game depart-

MODERN ART WON PRIZE ANYWAY

V. Douglas Snow, a member of the art faculty at Utah University, Salt Lake City, can't help wondering.

Snow ,a modernistic painter, entered one of his finer pieces in the Utah State Fair art exhibit. A judge called to tell him the work had won honourable mention.

Snow proudly went to the fair to claim his ribbon—only to find the picture had been hung sideways and was judged in that position.

The artist wonders what he might have won had the picture been displayed right side up.

A FAST-MOVER

Two enterprising eight-year-old Windsor boys, who set up a roadside refreshment stand to help people beat the recent heat wave, found their lemonade wasn't selling too well.

So one of the boys went home, took 24 bottles of beer from the refrigerator and started to offer that to parched passersby at 35 cents a bottle. Their supply was cleaned out in less than an hour. Police are still wondering what, if any, action should be taken against the boys.

Telephone Exchange Set Up At Niagara-on-the-Lake For Scout Jamboree

A Bell Telephone Co. exchange has ben established near Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., to serve the mile-square tent camp which will house the eighth World Scout Jamboree this summer.

Appropriately named "Jamboree, Ontario," the exchange, which has required weeks of planning, engineering and construction, will exist only for the 10 days, August 18 to 28—that the Scouts will be in camp. It will then be dismantled.

About 10,000 Scouts and their leaders from about 50 countries are expected for the Jamboree. To accommodate them, a temporary town will be set up on the camp site, an army training centre along the Niagara River.

The temporary Bell exchange will be listed at every long distance centre on the continent. To reach the camp by telephone, a caller need only call long distance and ask for "Jamboree, Ontario."

The call will be received at the telephone exchange ,located in the Niagara-on-the-Lake Recreational Centre buildings, and the individual Scout will be contacted through one of the 10 sub-camps and informed there is a call at the exchange for him.

A microwave radio relay circuit will also be set up by the Bell to enable television broadcasters to transmit television programmes from the camp. These facilities will consist of a temporary tower from which the broadcasts will be beamed to the Company's microwave radio relay tower at Fonthill from where the broadcasts will be carried on the regular Buffalo-Toronto circuit.

Telephone equipment will include a three-position switchboard equipped to handle up to 200 individual telephones and 39 trunk lines. There will be 20 public telephones and individual telephones at Scout headquarters, sub-camp headquarters and the various service offices such as those for the hospital, canteen, chaplains, police, transport and travel agencies. Operators at the long distance switchboard in St. Catharines will handle out-of-town calls.

The Company is also provinding radio circuits for broadcasts from the camp teletype facilities, and mobile telephone units to be stationed at the beach on nearby Lake Ontario while Scouts are swimming.

The Bell Telephone Company's representative at the Jamboree will be J. S. Cruden, of Toronto, a Bell employee with a long association with Scouting.

Although Scouts will come from about 50 countries and will speak about a score of languages, half will be residents of North America and most will be English-speaking. There will be 3,500 Canadians, 1,500 from the United States, and 1,000 from the United Kingdom. Official languages will be English and French.

SHARON MORRIS, Niagara-on-the-Lake Operator, shows 11-year-old Scout Kent Boucock around the Bell Telephone office set up for the Boy Scouts' World Jamboree at Niagara-on-the-Lake in August.

SOUNDS CONFUSING

Omaha postal clerk Joe Weber says nobody has to believe it but it did happen to him.

A woman walked up to his counter and tendered a $5 savings certificate to be cashed in. Weber told her it would cost a dime, because her certificate hadn't been held for a month.

"I don't have a dime," the lady exclaimed and hurried away before Weber could tell her he could take it out of the $5.

Soon she was back with a dime.

"I borrowed it," she smiled.

Weber took the certificate and the dime and pushed out the $5 bill.

"Please change it. I have to pay back the loan," the lady said.

A silent Weber broke the bill.

Rain Stops Threshing

Threshing operations were stopped at the wekend when a grand rainfall came to this vicinity on Thursday and on Saturday night and Sunday forenoon. Rain fell for several hours, which was badly needed following several weeks of over 90° temperatures which were parching the pastures and the season's crops.

Threshing operations resumed on Monday afternoon.

In this group of threshers there are three men of the group off the job this year—one who has passed away to his eternal reward, one confined to hospital following a motor accident and one is laid up with illness. This group finished theshing on September 21st, 1954. The wet weather delayed the work until then.

PURINA BULKY-LAS
"Cow's Best Friend"

Bulky-Las is nourishing feed—bulked out with beet pulp and bran, fortified with minerals often lacking in grain and roughage, loaded with conditioning and appetizing molasses—palatable, laxative and nutritious.

Bulky-Las is extremely useful for lightening, loosening solid, heavy rations, helping out when pasture runs low or hay is poor, relieving constipation, helping relieve mastitis flare-ups. (Mastitis is a germ infection —no feed will cure it. But cutting off milking ration and substituting cooling, laxative Bulky-Las is often very helpful in reducing fever and bringing milk back to normal.)

Purina Suggests: (1) Feed good hay even on good pasture, if you have it. (2) Feed Bulky-Las, a gallon night and morning. Cows will eat it when they refuse hay. (3) As soon as cows will eat it after turning out, begin feeding dairy ration. (Many good dairymen feed Bulky-Las and grain, half and half, while pastures are good, and switch to milk-stimulating dairy ration when pastures grow short and dry.)

Giant House Mover Makes Debut at Iroquois
Hope to Relocate 250 Homes at Rate of One Per Day

Arrival of the William Hartshorne House Mover at Iroquois last week will speed the job of rehabilitating the village and it is anticipated that the first house will be moved from the present village into the community by the middle of the month.

"Bill" Hartshorne, owner of the mammoth vehicle, arrived early in July to take charge of the operation of moving more than 250 residences to the new site. He is busy supervising unloading of the machine which is capable of carrying a 200,000-pound load over smooth or rough terrain. A schedule of one home a day has been tentatively set by officials.

The first cellar is being readied for the arrival of the first home as Hydro officials prepare for an all-out drive to move much of the residential section of the community before the year's end. All but a few of the present homes will be moved, renovated where needed, with new basements, modern bathrooms, painting, etc. Ontario Hydro has already purchased a number of village properties, the first of which will be moved from the north-east part of the village over a road prepared for this purpose.

Meanwhile, Beaver Contruction Co. has ben busily digging and laying water and sewage lines on contract with Hydro. The job is expected to be completed by the end of October.

Dirt roads with an open excavation containing the pipes are attracting hundreds of sight-seers from all over the country on the weekends and in the evening. Parents are being warned to keep children away from the site unless accompanied by an adult.

Hydro officials say they are reluctant to enforce restrictions and hope the matter will be taken care of by residents themselves.

House Moving Machine

Moving a house is a complicated operation at best, but the William Hartshorne house mover makes the task as simple as possible.

Capable of carrying a 200,000-pound load over bumpy roads, the mammoth mover will shift approximately 250 homes in the Iroquois area. At a speed of five miles an hour, the machine probably will move one house each day. It can take a house 45 x 75 feet.

Wheels of the mechanical giant make a man look small in comparison. The mover has two huge "fangs" which fit on the sides of the house as the machine backs up to the building.

Holes are knocked in the foundation of the home and steel prongs are inserted through them so they rest on the arms of the mover. The whole building then is raised electrically and the journey begins.

The mover carefully deposits its load on the foundation which has been built at the new site.

Holes are cut in the new foundation, leaving space for the steel beams. When the house has been placed on its new site, the beams are removed and the holes filled in.

SIZZLING SELL-OUT

The sign on the Kalamazoo, Mich., front lawn read: "August clearance of January stock."

WHY NOT SING ABOUT TOMATOES?

THERE ARE SONGS about a lot of different kinds of fruits and about some vegetables, but I can't think of one about tomatoes. They just don't seem to inspire the musician or the poet. And, don't you think a tomato is just as inspiring as a banana or an ear of corn? If tomatoes don't inspire the poets and musicians, they certainly do interest the nutritionists and dietitians—and why not? They are chuck full of vitamins and minerals, have a marvellous flavour, and are tempting to the eye as well. What more could one ask?

Tomato Surprise Salad

6 medium-sized tomatoes
½ cup diced cold chicken
½ cup diced celery
1 tbsp. chopped pimento
1 tbsp. green pepper
Mayonnaise
Lettuce

Plunge tomatoes in boiling water to loosen skins. Peel and chill. Remove pulp from centre. Mix chicken, celery, pimento and green pepper with mayonnaise. Fill tomatoes with mixture. Arrange on lettuce leaves and garnish with mayonnaise and parsley.

This salad can be varied by changing the filling. Chopped cabbage mixed with boiled dressing is one suggestion.

Baked Stuffed Tomatoes

2 cups soft bread crumbs
1 tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
2 tbsps. butter
6 tomatoes
6 strips bacon

Mix bread crumbs with salt, pepper and melted butter. Cut a thin slice from the stem end of the tomatoes and remove a little of the pulp. Fill with stuffing. Bake in a moderate oven one hour. Place a strip of bacon on each tomato about 10 minutes before baking is completed.

Ripe Tomato Relish

30 lge. tomatoes
6 onions, chopped fine
6 pears, chopped fine
6 peaches, chopped fine
6 apples, chopped fine
1 quart vinegar
4 cups white sugar
2 tbsps. salt
1 red pepper, chopped
Small bag mixed spices

Slice tomatoes, sprinkle with salt, let stand overnight. In the morning, drain, add chopped fruit, vinegar, sugar, red pepper and spices. Boil two hours; bottle.

Eggs with Tomatoes on Toast

1 small onion
2 cups tomatoes
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
6 eggs
Toast

Cut the onion into small pieces and place with the tomato in a frying pan. Stew slowly till fairly thick. Add salt and pepper, reduce heat. Break eggs and slip on top of the tomato, being careful not to break the yolks. Cook until eggs are set. Serve at once on buttered toast.

This makes a good supper dish.

Ham and Tomato Sandwiches

1 cup minced ham
1 tsp. parsley
Cayenne pepper
Few drops lemon juice
¼ cup butter
Onion salt or juice
Sliced tomatoes
Mayonnaise

To the minced ham add the parsley, cayenne, lemon juice, onion salt and softened butter. Mix well. Spread slices of bread with the mixture and put two slices together with a thin slice of tomato which has been spread with mayonnaise. Toast, garnish with stuffed olives or small pickles and serve hot for supper.

Baked Corn and Tomatoes

2 cups cooked corn
2 cups tomatoes
1 tsp. salt
Pepper
1 tsp. sugar
1 cup fresh bread crumbs
3 tbsps. fat or strips of bacon

Mix seasonings with corn and tomatoes, pour all into a greased baking dish. Cover with crumbs; dot with fat or lay strips of bacon over top. Bake in a moderate oven 30 minutes.

FOOD MYTHS DEBUNKED BY PROFESSOR

Fish is not brain food, white eggs are no more nourishing than brown ones, raw meat isn't more nourishing than cooked meat, food left in open cans will not spoil and raw foods are not the best.

These and other popular myths about food have been exploded by Wayne University professor Marquetta Huck.

"These food fallacies," said Miss Huyck, "stem from theories based on insufficient laboratory evidence and distortions of facts for personal exploitation.

Miss Huyck pointed out that meat proteins are not damaged by heat and cooked meat is more palatable and easier to digest than raw or rare meat.

The difference between white and brown eggs is merely one of geographical preference. There is no difierence in nutritive value.

Food left in an open can in the refrigerator is safe, although acid

Fish is not a brain food and no one has yet discovered that it specifically aids brain activity, Miss Huyck said.

Raw foods are not the best because cooking kills germs and improves digestibility, said Miss Huyck.

On Making Duck Decoys

The greater part of the army of men who go duck shooting may not know it, but the designing, carving and painting of duck decoys has come to be quite a hobby. The author of one of the latest books on the subject, Eugene V. Connett, is not only a well-known sportsman, but he and a fellow called Joel Barber have always been considered authorities on the art of making duck decoys. There have been many articles written on the subject, but this is the first book to be published giving scale patterns, colour designs for painting and all other information needed to turn out some 32 different duck species. You will find ample instructions for rigging them so that they will rest naturally on the water. You do not make duck decoys to save money, because you can buy them more cheaply than you can make them. It is a most interesting hobby with a surprising number of devotees. The author is a charming gentleman, a sportsman of the old school, and a noted editor. You will enjoy his many references to the history of duck decoys. It is published by the D. Van Nostrand Co., Inc., of New York.
