CRUMBS from Graham's Loaf

The column is written this week saturated with humility and guilt. We are about to confess to sins of unholy magnitude; there is little doubt our crimes will cause our faithful readers to shudder and go under but then the burden is too great. At last we join the ranks of the Van Dorens and Dick Clarks and others. We have been accepting payola.

It came about this way. Somehow our frenzied yelping in these columns reached the ears of a public relations man in a nearby city. He mistook the howl for a canine in trouble. This week we received a fine big box of new dog food in the mail with a lovely letter enclosed. It began: "As one dog to another . . ." The rest of the note intimated we would find solace, satisfaction and some small uplift of the soul if we crunched, chewed and generally gnawed our way through the enclosed contents. All the letter forgot to mention was that the writer once knew our mother!

There we were, trapped in our own net of cupidity. The small dash of Scotch blood that somehow slipped into our 57 varieties clamoured we keep the grapenuts for dogs. The Pennsylvania Dutch portion of the diffuse blood stream roared caution in a whisper and the practical Ontario attitude said "Keep the stuff. It might please the cat." In the end, we wandered home to our kennel, carrying the illicit box, feeling as conspicuous as the preacher carrying home a wrapped bottle of javel water.

Then to top it all, another parcel arrived. Here was a fine new copy of the 1960 yearbook of Encyclopedia Britannica, offered without a single string attached. That also we grabbed before the rest of the staff got their hot little fingers on it. The E.B. people seemed to have finally done Canada proud this year. There is a plump front section devoted to Canadian affairs and written by many familiar names to ordinary readers. And having just finished Mitchener's "Hawaii," the section on that island paradise finally resolved a couple of questions. Seemingly Mitchener knew whereof he wrote, even if it took 990 pages to do it.

One nice thing about close neighbours in this trade is the old tie that binds. This week we ended up breathing heavy, and bent over like Ol' Man Huckabone, as father used to say. As usual when the pressure came on we took refuge in a kink in the back. A couple of missed deadlines caught us slightly flat-footed. Thanks to the boys at the Winchester Press office we are still reasonably ahead of our advertisers, but only after we borrowed the complete set of one large advertisement. We may disagree about certain things. Their politics are certainly outrageous, but their hearts are in the right place. We plan to return the ad type one of these days, and perhaps do a little more missionary work politically. The heathen are many and friendly in this county and some of them are our best friends.

It is with regret we note the sudden change of name of another compatriot of ours. Last week the "Record" announced the new president of EOWNA as being Jack Morris of the Prescott "General." Oversights like that happen and we apologize to the staff of the Prescott Advance.

Bad taste is just bad education.

Chesterville Fish and Game members held their annual supper meeting last Wednesday evening in Legion Hall. Over 120 members and their wives were present.

Speaker of the evening was District Biologist Blair Dawson, Kemptville, assisted by Game Overseer Murray Martin, of Winchester.

Chambers - Wheeler

St. Mary's Church, Chesterville, was the scene of a pretty wedding at 11 a.m. on Saturday, May 7, when Agnes Aurea Maxine Wheeler became the bride of Terrence Joseph Chambers. Rev J. P. Collins officiated.

The organist was Rev Sister Remegius and George Anderson, of Ottawa, was soloist.

The bride is the daughter of Mr and Mrs Edward Wheeler and the groom is the son of Mr and Mrs Patrick Chambers, all of Chesterville.

The bride's gown was of white satin with overdress of nylon net appliqued with alencon lace. The tight-fitting bodice had long sleeves and high neckline trimmed with borealic sequins. The skirt was full with alencon lace panels in front and tiers of net trimmed with alencon across the back. A crown of sequins and pearls held her fingertip veil of embroidered net. She wore a gold locket, a gift of the groom, and carried a cascade bouquet of white 'mums and fern centred with carnations in the same shade as her attendants' gowns.

Attending the bride were her sister, Mrs George Parks, as matron of honour, and Miss Elizabeth Dolan, bridesmaid. They wore identical waltz-length gowns of mauve organza and carried cascade bouquets in white and mauve.

Susan Lenahan, niece of the bride, was flower girl and was dressed in white nylon and carried a nosegay of white and mauve baby 'mums.

Richard Chambers was best man for his brother. George Chambers and George Parks were ushers.

The bride's mother was attired in a sheath dress of pure silk shantung in an avacodo shade of green and wore beige accessories. The groom's mother wore a dress of blue and white figured silk with blue velvet duster and white accessories.

The bride travelled in a dress of cotton and tyrelene in beige and brown check design with short bolero. Her corsage was bronze carnations and her accessories were in beige and brown.

After a honeymoon in the central United States, Mr and Mrs Chambers will reside in Chesterville.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was given a miscellaneous shower by her aunts, Mrs Cornelius Kearns, Mrs Peter Manley and Mrs Joseph Manley, and in Ottawa her office associates presented her with valuable gifts.

Fish and Game Association contest winners made a brave showing the other night as they received their prizes. Burnice Wood came up with the high aggregate to win the P. J. Gilroy Trophy and miniature and Janet Black, daughter of new president Archie Black, qualified for the junior Mel Baker Aggregate Trophy. Pictured here from the left are Marion Munro, Biologist Blair Dawson, Mrs Clara Barkley, John Maxwell, Burnice Wood, John Coyne, Jimmy Moran, retiring president Dwayne Munro and Janet Black.—Record Photo.

St. Mary's P.T.A. meets in new school

The final Spring meeting of St. Mary's P.T.A. was held on Wednesday evening in the new school, with George Laflamme presiding. The meeting was opened by Sister Anna Rita.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. The financial report was given by the treasurer and showed a substantial balance.

The euchre which was held May 2 was a success. Plans were made to hold a field day for the school pupils on June 15.

After the meeting concluded, a tour was made of the new school. Refreshments were served by the social committee.

Local school students tour K.A.S.

"We didn't know your school offered such a variety of subjects in the home economics and agricultural courses" was the remark often heard from some 600 secondary school students who visited Kemptville Agricultural School during the week of May 2nd.

Four days were spent by A. M. Barr, principal, and his staff guiding groups of high school students as far distant as Bowmanville.

The guests saw classrooms, barns, greenhouses, sewing rooms, poultry pens and kitchens in a busy five-hour tour in their effort to learn more about the courses offered at K.A.S.

Schools attending were from Chesterville, Iroquois, Metcalfe, Ingleside, Kemptville, Winchester, Vankleek Hill, Kingston, Collins Bay, Maxville, Sydenham, Carleton Place, Belleville, Renfrew, Embrun, Bowmanville, Perth, Marmora, Peterborough, Stirling, Ottawa and Alexandria.

Cadet Corps inspection scheduled for Tuesday

Chesterville High School Cadet Corps, on Tuesday, May 17, at 10 a.m., is displaying its talents for what will probably be Chesterville's last major event as an independent school. As you know, a new school, which will house the present Chesterville and Winchester High Schools, has been planned for occupation sometime next year.

An immense amount of hard work and training on the part of the instructors, R. J. Nuth, G. W. Collins and C. A. Graham, and Cadet members has gone into make the Cadet Corps inspection the finest yet.

Commander W. R. Inman, C.D., R.C.N. (R), Honorary Aide-de-Camp to the Governor-General and Commanding Officer of "H.M.C.S. Carleton," Ottawa, Reserve Naval Division, will be present to inspect the Cadets. Cadet Major Gary Wood, who was selected as the most outstanding Cadet last year, will present the Corps to Commander Inman for inspection.

The Cadets, who number about 130, have been giving the finishing touches to their uniforms during the past weeks in between arduous training practices.

Also featured on the program are special displays, drill teams, first aid and signals. In addition the day would not be a success without the marching music of the colourful band under the direction of G. W. Collins.

Everyone is hoping for a clear blue sky and warm weather to make the morning a colourful and highly successful one.

FIRE CALL SUNDAY

The siren blew Sunday afternoon at about three. A small fire threatened the residence of Miss Edith Harper on Church Street.

Eldon York, a resident of the street, noticed the blaze and promptly turned in the alarm. It was subdued without too much damage being done. Cause of the fire is unknown.

The making of domestic pottery in Britain dates back to before the Roman occupation.

OPINIONS . . .
OURS AND OTHERS

Latin is no worse than English

The controversies stirred in such ancient and august halls of learning as Oxford and Cambridge Universities, not to mention many others of newer vintage, over whether to make Latin a compulsory or optional subject has brought from some so-called modernists the taunt that Latin is a dead language anyway.

This shallow dismissal is silly, when you come to reflect on it, states the Brantford Expositor. Latin of a sort is still widely used in certain ecclesiastical circles. Latin of a more classical variety is still essential among and between scholars, and the legal, medical and scientific professions depend on it heavily, at least for terms and phrases of universal convenience.

A study of the ancient tongue not only affords good mental stimulus, but contributes to a better understanding and more fluent use of the English as well as the Roman languages of our own time. About a quarter of our English words are of Latin origin and we use, daily, many terms and prefixes that are straight Latin. It has survived in a corrupted form, via folk-Latin, in the Romance languages we have already mentioned—Italian, French, Spanish, Portuguese and Romanian.

When we hear and read some of the debased and garbled lingo that, for want of a better name, passes for English nowadays, we may wonder, a trifle wistfully, if we shouldn't stage a full-scale revival of Latin as a means of general communication. It is notable, as few languages are notable, for its accuracy of expression and perfect mechanical structure. Consequently it is not difficult to learn, if one puts his mind to it. The same can be scarcely said of English. Ask anyone whose native tongue is not English! For that matter, ask some students whose native tongue is English! They seem to have plenty of trouble with it.

Plan severe punishment for cheats

The decision of the University of California at Los Angeles to administer the most severe academic punishment for cheating is welcome, says the Christian Science Monitor.

Henceforth any kind of cheating, helping others to cheat, or plagiarism, will carry a penalty of dismissal if the chancellor and president of the university agree with findings of the faculty committee on student conduct. There will be no second chances, no lesser penalties.

This approach makes sense. One of the strongest incentives for scholastic cheating is the rationalization that everyone else is doing it and getting away with it.

It is this claim reaction in American schools which has led some cynics to speak of current students as the "cheat generation."

We believe this is an exaggeration that itself does great harm. For the use of such a callous expression tends to encourage youngsters who would otherwise shun such behaviour to wonder if they are going against the trend.

A recent summary of "the age of payola" in Look magazine pointed out how many current forms of cheating in America—on income tax, on expense accounts, on insurance reports, on local liquor and traffic ordinances and in school—reflected a loss of moral purposefulness. Honesty was found to be the rule where personal contacts were involved. But where individuals were dealing with such impersonal entities as the corporation, the government or the school—or with large amounts of money—the materialist urge to get as much as possible often prevailed.

The survey further found that much youthful cheating stemmed from the example of parents.

Your Member Reports . . .

Although I do not particularly seek contentious issues to comment upon, neither do I particularly avoid them. It sems to me that one man is bearing too much of the load of this very contentious Bomarc issue, so it is more from a deep-seated demand for fair play, rather than great knowledge of military affairs, that I express an opinion.

None of us nas every quality needed for success. Admitting that General, the Hon. George Pearkes, does lack that political glibness, the super shrewd play on words, the facetious dodging that some feel makes a good politician, the intelligent, thinking people, and you are thus, or you would not be taking the time and trouble to read this article, judge the person and his purpose behind the personality traits or the political technique.

Unfortunately, there are hundreds and thousands who judge quickly and cry for his head because he is not of this popular politician mould. We who spend at least 14 hours a day hearing, talking, thinking, acting politics, can usually spot the coating on the pill, the dagger however cloaked. It is refreshing and encouraging for us, and I'm sure for many honest, straight-thinking Canadians, to find a person who wastes no time beating around the bush.

It is with fierce affection that we see this much beloved Minister taking slurs and insults. Cruel to say he is ruled by pride and stubborness. Those who know him better know he is ruled by most unusual courage and convictions, based on years of experience, hard work, two world wars, and the widest acquaintance in military circles of any living Canadian. By our system of government no man has so much power, therefore should not receive so much blame. Major government policies in any department are passed by majority of Cabinet. Even if General Pearkes were proud and stubborn, the Cabinet could overrule him if they did not support him. Indeed, it is easier to criticize than be correct.

We may expect that the Bomarc affair will be repeated in many forms. How else but by investing and testing and gambling can we discover what is the next step in defence. The R.C.A.F. had no more proof against the Bomarc than General Pearkes had for it when these positions were first taken. In the beginning the Air Force faced the same fight from the Cavalry, and when war is a thing of the push button, the manned aircraft may compare as a cavalry regiment now does to a jet.

The Bomarc has been a necessary step in our day. Why blame General Pearkes if he gambles as little as possible and lets the U.S. Government pay $375 million to our $125 million on the project.

I am not a military expert, but within my capacity and when I know whereof I speak, I like to say what I think. I know of no more honest, more capable, more trustworthy man in Canadian public life at any level. Let us leave it to those few who may know more than he does, and certainly more than we do, to judge him harshly. This is not happening. Who could have done better in the puzzling, fast changing world of defence and armaments? Such serious criticism can only be justified if it is constructive, and who has suggested the replacement, the man better fitted than General Pearkes for Defence?

Let us not crucify and break the hearts of men of this calibre. Canada has always needed them. We always will.

Mr Smith explained the rules and regulations regarding the club and Malcolm MacGregor, local leader, had charge of the election of officers.

Officers elected were: President, Bill Smirle; vice president, Doug Cheney; secretary, Lorna Irven; press reporter, Barbara Wagner.

Nineteen boys and girls joined the club. Following the 4-H pledge, the meeting was adjourned.

The BIBLE TODAY . . .

The need of Africa's two hundred and thirty million people, of whom about thirty million are Christians, is evident to all people today. The Bible Societies are distributing approximately one and one half million Scriptures annually in 392 languages; 59 whole Bibles, 114 New Testaments and 219 single Books of the Bible.

The Congo distribution is an illustration of the accelerated pace at which the Scriptures are being made available in Africa. In the past three years (1957-1959) there has been supplied to the Congo about half the amount of complete Bibles as were distributed in the previous fifty years (1905-1956). During this same three years 200,000 New Testaments were distributed which is approximately 25% of the whole circulation during the period 1893-1956.

Yet all this is not sufficient to meet the need even for the Christian churches. At present for all of Africa south of the Sahara over 40 complete Bibles are in various stages of completion and fifteen more are being revised. In a few years it is hoped that Africa will have the whole Bible in over one hundred languages and the New Testament in 150-200 languages.

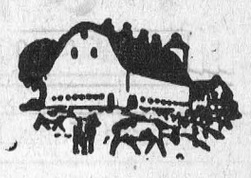
FRENDLEE FARM CHATS



by Lillian Allison

"Granny's Knee is Missing to Counsel Today's Teens" was the big headline in the young people's page of the feature section of our daily newspaper the other day. Under it a 26-year-old actress chided today's middle-aged women for trying to keep ridiculously youthful, for spending their time at the beauty salons or yakking it up at a bar with other middle-agers.

You can't find a real grandmother any more who will even permit the little ones to use the name, she said. They prefer "Nonie" or even their first names from the small fry. According to this young actress of whom I had never heard, Grandmas just aren't what they used to be or what they ought to be.

Which, of course, set me thinking about my two grandmothers who certainly qualified as grandmothers on every count.

When I was a girl at home my paternal grandmother lived several miles away. It was far enough that when she came to visit us she usually stayed a week or so. The length of her stay depended directly on the amount of work we could gather up for her to do. Mother tried to save the mending, the making-over, the quilting, etc., until Grandma came. She would sew, mend and knit from morning until bedtime. Then when the end was in sight she'd say, "Now if there's nothing more I can do I think I'd better go home tomorrow."

Those were the words I dreaded to hear. I loved having Grandma visit us. While she mended I sat nearby and asked her questions. She always seemed very old to me and she could remember so long ago. I made her repeat over and over the story about her father and grandmother who came to Canada from Scotland and built a log cabin in the bush. I loved the part about the wolves coming at night. Her grandmother would take the chickens into the house at night to keep them safe from the wolves. Then she would keep the candle burning all night to scare the wolves away. Far better than westerns were these stories of pioneer days.

She told me how to wash sheep's wool and card it. How she used to spin it into yarn and weave cloth or knit socks and mittens for Dad and my aunts and uncle.

Of course I had the pleasure always of sleeping with Grandma when she came to visit. And after we'd go to bed, sometimes, she'd repeat for me the verses she'd learned for memory work when she was at school some sixty years before.

My maternal grandmother lived about a half mile down the road. She was as different from the other one as could be. She never talked of the past. She always seemed to be young. In fact she told us year after year that she was 39.

She too had a great capacity for work but not just the sewing and mending kind of work. She liked to come and help clean house. She seemed to delight in handling a big mop or a huge broom. She liked to scrub and wash things.

She came to help when we had the threshers or silo men. She could peel more apples and make more pies in a given time than anyone I ever knew. And they were good pies too.

Granda had a great respect for Sunday. I remember how strictly she adhered to the Fourth Commandment and saw to it that everyone around her observed it too. I didn't dare play anything but hymns on the organ when Grandma spent Sunday with us.

On summer evenings it was a familiar sight to see her walk up the road to visit with us for a while. We'd sit on the veranda and talk until the bats came out and the fireflies filled the air. Then Mother and I would walk halfway home with her. She would never stay all night wit' us in case she'd get sick.

The youngsters today who don't know the joys of having a real grandmother are certainly missing some of life's greatest blessings. The sack of peppermints she brought with her, the first lessons in knitting, the stories of the good, old days, her faith in God, her solidarity, her spoiling of her grandchillren just a little—these are things every child should know.

A dinner and reception was held in Legion Hall, Chesterville, to honour Mr and Mrs Emmett Shane on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary.

The dinner table was centred with a beautifully decorated three-tiered wedding cake flanked by a bouquet of spring flowers. Mrs Shane was presented with a corsage of yellow 'mums and Mr Shane with a white carnation boutonniere.

Relatives and friends were present to extend many congratulations and gifts to the happy couple.

An address was read by Mr Murray Shane and a presentation of a purse of money was made to the honoured couple. A second gift to them was two wrist watches from their four sons and daughters-in-law, Mr and Mrs Hubert Shane, Ottawa; Mr and Mrs Charles Shane, Exeter; Mr and Mrs Leonard Shane and Mr and Mrs Donald Shane, of Chesterville.

Out-of-town guests were Mr and Mrs Ted Smith, St. Andrew's; Mrs H. A. Shane, Pendleton; Miss Edna Shane, Lemieux; Mr and Mrs Henry Seguin, Fournier; Mrs J. Merrill Mission Band meets for May

The key-note of the May meeting of Merrill Mission Band was "The Seed is the Word of God."

Gathered in a friendship circle, the children sang "Tell Me the Stories of Jesus" and Tommy Forward read a Scripture verse taken from the 8th chapter of St. Luke.

A story of sowing was read by Mrs D. Docksteader, followed by prayer. The offering was taken and dedicated by Nancy McMillan.

After the singing of the Mission Band Hymn, Diane Bailey read the minutes of the April meeting and Betty Lou Casselman called the roll. The 9th chapter of "Boloji" was told by Mrs J. Fulton and then the members coloured an African scene entitled "Unpacking Gospel Seeds."

The Mission Band Purpose, repeated in unison, closed the meeting and a game, "Two Friends," was played on the church lawn.

She didn't have to wonder very long.

ICE CREAM TRICKS

THE FOLLOWING RECIPES are from Marie Fraser of the Dairy Foods Service Bureau, who reminds us that ice cream is not only a treat, but is a real food. It supplies all the food essentials of milk, such as first class protein, calcium and riboflavin.

Caramel Peach Crisps

(Makes 4 to 5 Servings)

1 (28 oz.) can peach halves, drained
¼ cup peach syrup
2 tbsps. brown sugar
2 tbsps. melted butter
¼ cup brown sugar
¼ cup chopped blanched almonds
½ cup rice flakes or crisp rice cereal
1 (1 pint) brick vanilla or peach ice cream

1. Pour peach syrup into shallow baking pan. Arrange peaches in pan, cut side up.
2. Sprinkle 2 tbsps. brown sugar over peaches and broil until bubbling and slightly browned.
3. Combine butter and ¼ cup brown sugar in a saucepan. Stir over low heat until sugar is dissolved. Remove from heat.
4. Add almonds and rice flakes or crisp rice cereal and stir until blended.
5. Spoon into peach hollows. Return to broiler with heat turned off for about 15 minutes. Serve warm with scoop of vanilla or peach ice cream on top.

Raspberry Crunch Ice Cream Pie

(Makes 6 to 8 Servings)

18 large marshmallows
1 tbsp. milk
1 tbsp. butter
2½ cups crisp rice cereal
1 quart vanilla or fruit-flavoured ice cream
Fresh or frozen raspberries

1. Combine marshmallows, milk and butter in top of double boiler. Stir and heat until marshmallows are melted. Remove from heat.

IN MEMORIAM

TUPPER—In loving memory of Mrs Richie Tupper who passed away May 6, 1959.

We do not need a special day
To bring you to our mind,
For the days we do not think of you
Are very hard to find.
If all this world were ours to give,
We'd give it, yes, and more,
To see the face of Mother dear
Come smiling through the door.

Mr and Mrs Arza Beckstead.

IN MEMORIAM

TUPPER—In loving memory of Mr Richie Tupper who passed away May 9, 1949.

Today recalls the memory
Of a loved one gone to rest;
And those who think of him today
Are those who loved him best.
The flowers we lay upon his grave
May wither and decay,
But the love for him who lies beneath
Will never fade away.

Mr and Mrs Arza Beckstead.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our most sincere thanks and appreciation for the acts of kindness, messages of sympathy and floral tributes received during our recent bereavement in the loss of our son, Mark.
