Village will repair water tower this fall

by Catherine Thompson
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG — At a meeting here last Tuesday, council took action on the sadly deteriorating condition of the village water tower.

They have hired Dominion Bridge Company, a structural steel company with a head office in Mississauga, to replace the mid-lower section of the riser column which stands nine to 33 feet from the ground.

The new section should last 10 years, and work is to proceed this fall before the snow flies.

Dominion Bridge offered to do the work for $26,564, at a more competitive price than RAN Steel Works at $39,290, Horton CBI Limited at $39,800, and Hess Welding at $32,500.

This past summer, a report by CB Non-Destructive Limited recommended $150,000 of repairs for the water tower, including sandblasting and painting the inside of the tank with water-resistant paint at $90,000.

Originally, replacement of the riser section was estimated at $39,500, and engineering fees of $10,000, a contingency fund of $13,000, and a $1600 replacement vent cover for the top of the tower were included in the total cost.

Council has postponed a decision on sandblasting and painting until next year.

While the village was refused a request for funding from the Ministry of Environment earlier this year, council will approach the new NDP government for grants to replace the entire tower.

According to previous estimates, a new tower would cost over $1 million.

The existing facility serves Morrisburg's 2300 residents, and all of its business and industry.

Council has also approved a streetlighting conversion program awarding a tender to Ruddy Electric to change over 300 streetlights throughout the village to energy-efficient, high pressure sodium lights.

Work is to be completed within the next year.

Costs of conversion are set at approximately $60,000, with an $38,000 interest-free loan from Ontario Hydro to be repaid within seven years.

Petition at meeting stumps councillors

by Kim Toshack
Leader Staff

IROQUOIS — Following last month's meeting of the Iroquois Council, agreeing to go ahead with the beautification project in the Village, members of council have been stumped.

At last Wednesday's council meeting, Carl VanCamp, a 69-year-old retired CASCO employee led a large delegation of river-front residents, who were out to stop part of the village council's most recent beautification project.

Although the proposal involved inprovements to three areas in the village - the Cenotaph area, Beach Street and the waterfront - VanCamp presented council with a petition signed by almost 100 percent of the 20-odd Elizabeth Drive homeowners, opposing the planting of nine willow trees along the shoreline.

"People stop to look at the boats and take pictures," said VanCamp "Not to look at trees."

At the previous council meeting, the proposal was approved, providing sufficient funds were available. The project got the go-ahead when it was found the funds were there.

"I don't think it was the intent of council to inhibit the view, but to enhance it," said councillor Clare Brown.

It was the hope of council that the trees be planted to improve the area, to provide shade and beautification.

As for the choice of tree, Ed Taylor of Taylor's Nursery toured the area recently, and chose the willow tree for a number of reasons.

Willows need moisture, and because of their proximity to water this type of tree would grow well in that spot. As well, willows require minimal maintenance, provide summer shade, and many could enjoy the whisper of the leaves.

It was also thought the willows could assist in developing a park-like atmosphere and complement the pathway.

"It would be a solid green mask," said VanCamp. "I don't think we have to argue, these people are adamant about this."

VanCamp said most of the homeowners moved to the area specifically for the river view. Park land lies between the street and the river, complete with a golf course and beach at the easterly end, a bicycle path running along the shore and a campground on the westerly extreme.

Most of the homeowners on Elizabeth Street are retired and have lived there since the Seaway was constructed in 1959.

After hearing comments from a number of other residents of the Village of Irouqois, council set about making their decision.

Although most had reservations about giving up this section of the beautification project, it was decided that plans for the willows along the shoreline would be omitted.

"It just wasn't worth the hassle," said Reeve John McAllister. "Besides, we have more pressing concerns at this time."

In conclusion, McAllister stated his feelings on the large crowd which turned out to oppose the proposal.

"My only regret is that after the hard work that council has done for the past two year, it takes a few trees to get this many people out to a council meeting," he said.

No customs cuts at U.S. border

BY Catherine Thompson
Leader Staff

OGDENSBURG — A deal reached Sunday between the Bush administration and the U.S. Congress on the federal budget has eased fears of customs closures on both sides of the Canadian-American border.

To lower an expected shortfall of $250 billion in the 1991 budget, the two parties agreed to a deal including $134 billion in tax increases, and cuts of $182 billion in federal spending programs.

The agreement is designed to cut the federal deficit by $500 billion over five years.

If the Congress and the executive had not reached an agreement by October 1, 33 per cent budget cuts would have automatically gone into effect for every federal government agency, including each U.S. customs office along the Canada-U.S. border.

Executive director of U.S. Customs in Ogdensburg, New York, William Dietzel had warned of staff lay-offs and reduced services, including closures on the U.S. side for as long as 24 hours on the Massena-Cornwall and Prescott-Ogdensburg bridges.

"The problem is half solved. We'll be operating under a continuing resolution," said Dietzel.

He explained the resolution will permit the customs offices to operate at full capacity, without any staff lay-offs or service cuts, until the agreement is made law.

"But we'll have to exercise a degree of frugality in the next few weeks on items like telephone calls and use of fax equipment."

He stated his staff is happy that they won't be laid off, but upset that this may have been the case.

For now, "the beast is back in its cage," Dietzel added.

While there have been other years that Congress and the executive couldn't reach an agreement, the problem reached crisis proportions this year.

"There were extraordinary circumstances with a threat of recession, the Middle East crisis, and a huge deficit. There were more lions prowling around on the plain," he said.

To reach the compromise agreement, Bush dropped his campaign pledge for reduction in capital gains taxes, and both sides agreed to tax increases on gasoline, cigarettes and alcohol, increased Medicare premiums, and a new tax on luxury items.

The heaviest cuts in federal spending are slated for the military at $67 billion, but reductions are planned in projected spending for social, pension and agricultural programs too.

Morrisburg and area sees drastic increase in criminal activity

by Kim Toshack
Leader Staff

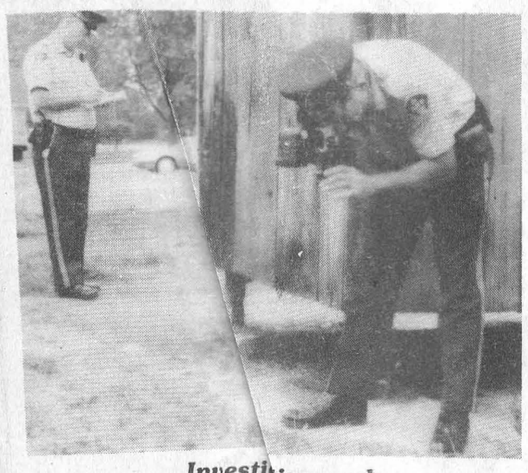
MORRISBURG — Due to the recent rash of crime in the area, the Morrisburg Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police are going to the public for help.

Over a short period of ten days, beginning September 20th until September 30th, Morrisburg and the area saw six cases of break and enter (many included theft) and two cases of vandalism.

Sometime during this time, Ken's Restaurant, Highway 2, Iroquois, was broken into when the rear door was forced. Nothing was taken as the building had been vacant for approximately four months.

The Legion in Morrisburg, however, wasn't so lucky. Less than a week after it was robbed the first time, the Legion was hit with a second break,enter and theft. The activity took place sometime between 10:30 p.m. September 25th and 9 a.m. September 26th. Entry was gained by prying open the rear door. A quantity of cash and a small amount of cigarettes were taken.

On the same night, during roughly the same time frame, a break, enter and theft took place at the Esso station on Highway 2, Iroquois. The theft occurred after the air conditioner was pushed in and the thieves climbed through the hole in the wall. A two and a half foot square grey and green safe was removed from the building. The safe was very heavy and contained an undisclosed amount of cash.



Investigative work

OPP offer tips to homeowners and businessmen

Morrisburg was hit again the next night. Late Wednesday or early Thursday morning, the Spinning Wheel, located on Highway 2, was burglarized. The break, enter and theft took place after the back door of the restaurant was pried open. A small safe was broken into, while the cigarette machine was forced open and money and cigarettes were removed.

A quantity of cash was also taken during the same time period from Parcoll Products Ltd., located on Highway 2.

During the night on Thursday, a theft of eight historical flags took place on the property of the St. Lawrence Parks. Three French flags, three variations of the Union Jack, and two large Canadian flags, valued in total at $400, were found missing.

Over the weekend, a break and enter took place at the Seaway Gas Bar, located on Highway 2, Morrisburg. Papers were disturbed in the office but no cash or cigarettes were in the building to be taken.

As well, the St. Lawrence Medical Clinic was broken into and the emergency telephone was torn off the wall. However, the phone still works. No other damage was found.

Police are not speculating at this time as to whether or not the crimes are connected in any way. Despite the short span of time in which the crimes have occurred, there are a number of similarities in the occurrences.

Many of the break-ins involved forcing or prying open a rear door. As well, all acts of crime or vandalism took place late at night or early morning.

"We are experiencing an increase in criminal activity," said Constable Morgan Hill, media and public relations officer, Morrisburg OPP.

"The detachment is doing everything it possibly can with the resources available," said Staff Sergeant Jim Graham. "But we have to rely on assistance from the community as well."

To curb this activity, as well as vandalism, the public are urged to report anything suspicious to the police immediately, whether it is a person loitering in the mall late at night, or a strange car parked in the neighbourhood.

"When an increase such as this occurs, it becomes not only a police problem, but a community problem," said Graham.

The spread of break, enter and thefts, as well as vandalism, is taking place right across the three United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry.

"All of the detachments are exchanging information and trying to resolve the problem," said Graham.

As for the request for aid from the community, Graham states that "we just can't be everywhere and people have to realize this."

Anyone who sees anything strange, whether it turns out to be nothing or not, should call the Morrisburg Detachment's toll free number which is available 24 hours a day. This number is 1-800-267-2677.

If this number is not desired, persons may call Crime Stoppers, a number which pays for tips (assuming the tip leads to an arrest) and does not require the person to give his name. All information can be given anonymously.

Although many people are under the impression that Crime Stoppers only accepts information on advertised crimes, this is not so.

The number for Crime Stoppers is 1-233 TIPS (1-233-8477) or toll free at 1-800-267-2677. Calling this number could qualify the individual for an award of up to $1,000.

Besides issuing tips to the individuals in the area, the Morrisburg OPP have a number of recommendations for the businessman.

Businesses are warned against leaving large amounts of cash in the building, whether it is in a safe or not. If a burglar is looking for money chances are they'll find it.

Also, proprietors should make full use of night deposits at the bank. This ensures that little or no cash is left on the premises.

The third tip, which is extended to homeowners as well, is to get some kind of an alarm system. The Morrisburg OPP are willing to give free advice on building security and many times, this type of protection can be inexpensive and worthwhile.

When an establishment attempts to put insurance on the place of business, just having an alarm system can decrease premiums up to 50 percent.

In many cases, the money saved on premiums can be used to purchase the system. Again, the OPP have information on the various systems available and the best method of obtaining them.

If everyone in the community cooperates and works together, the whole area will benefit. If thieves know they are wasting their time here, perhaps they will move on. "Community involvement is essential," said Hill.

"A direct powerful influence on economic development"

SDG Futures committee elects McCooeye

by Catherine Thompson
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG — Local businessman and village deputy-reeve Peter McCooeye has added yet another duty to an already crowded schedule.

Over the last few years, McCooeye has promoted economic development in the area by participating in the South Dundas Economic Commission, and as a member of the Board of Directors on the S.D.&G. Community Futures Committee.

At an annual meeting August 29, McCooeye was elected chairman of the 15-member board, to succeed Neil Burke.

The Committee is one of about 200 at work across Canada, to address the needs of small rural communities affected by high unemployment.

Executive director Susan Carter says the committee's goals are to maintain, expand and assist in the creation and development of jobs in the area. The committee "encourages entrepreneurship, training and programs needed to provide skilled personnel."

The role of Community Futures is becoming increasingly important during the current uncertain economic climate.

Unemployment figures released by the Canada Employment Centre show that in June this year, 14.2 per cent of the Cornwall labor force, and 11.2 per cent of workers in the United Counties were jobless.

"The committee intends to address the needs of many displaced workers at this time with training, retraining and relocation," says Carter.

Community Futures is funded and advised by the Federal Government under a Canadian Jobs Strategy program, and represented by business and education and municipal government.

As well as McCooeye, local board members are Mike Waddell of Williamsburg Township and Mary Lou Jackson of Chesterville.

"The committee is based on a cross-section of the community and is apolitical or non-partisan," McCooeye states.

He adds it isn't necessary to be a municipal councillor to sit on the committee, and he and the Mayor of Alexandria, Jean-Paul Touchette are the only elected representatives.

"Even though we have one-third counties and two-thirds city representaiton, we're not handcuffed to South Dundas, Cornwall or the counties," he says.

"It is a very encompassing committee and covers many different aspects," says McCooeye. "It has a direct and powerful influence on the economic development of S.D.&G."

Committee spent close to $2 million

Since its inception in 1986, the S.D.&G. Futures Committee has spent $1,796,432 under four programs - the S.D.&G. Business Development Center, Self Employment Incentive Grants, Purchase of Training Options, and Community Initiatives Funds.

One of the committee's first accomplishments was to set up and fund the Business Center in Cornwall on September 1, 1987.

The Center assists entrepreneurs to start or expand small businesses by counselling and helping eligible clients to acquire commercial loans or Self Employment Incentive grants.

In the Purchase of Training Option, the committee works on identifying and delivering training programs for needs not being met in this area.

Through the Community Initiatives Fund, the committee may apply for government funds, matched by funds from other sources for local projects designed to generate new permanent jobs.

Recently, the Community Futures Committee joined a cooperative association with two like-minded organizations - the Industrial Training Council and the Industry-Education Council.

Last Tuesday, the three groups moved to one location at 1001 Sydney Street, Cornwall, and a ribbon-cutting ceremony marked the opening of the new S.D.&G. Center.

The three organizations have in common the goal of long-term economic development for the three United Counties and the City of Cornwall.

"It makes so much sense to join separate bodies under one roof. They have different functions, but have many similar goals, and work with similar people," says McCooeye.

The Industry-Education Council is funded federally and provincially, and aims to provide links between educators, labor and industry to help prepare students for the employment demands of tomorrow.

The Industry Training Council is a committee funded by both federal and provincial governments, and its chief concern is to identify and promote training skills in industry.

UCV holds harvest weekend

MORRISBURG — Visitors will see the culmination of a productive season at Upper Canada Village on October 6, 7 and 8.

Over the course of the long weekend, the focus will be on 1860s harvest activities.

Oats will be threshed at Loucks Farm, putting to the test the newest period technology, a horse-powered threshing machine.

Ploughing and stooking corn will continue as well, therefore rounding off the Village's agricultural cycle.

Women will dry apples and pumpkins to preserve them for use during the winter. The flax crop, which was harvested at the beginning of August, will be ready for process at the Tenant Farm.

Several steps such as breaking, beating and combing are necessary before spinning flax into thread.

At the Cook's Tavern livery, mattress covers will be stripped of their old, lumpy content and re-stuffed with fresh straw to ensure sleeping comfort for the coming year.

Although Thanksgiving was not a public holiday or family celebration in the 1860s, "Harvest Home" services were commonly held by Anglican congregations on any chosen Sunday in autumn.

Upper Canada village will re-create such a service, also called a "choral evensong", on Sunday, October 7 at 2 p.m. Christ Church will be decorated for the occasion as it would have been in the 1860s.

Upper Canada Village's regular season will come to a close on October 15. The Village will offer heritage workshops and many other weekend programs starting at the end of October.

For information on workshops, please call 543-3704.

Economic Development Commission opens local office

by Kim Toshack
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG — As the result of a strategic plan done by Totten, Sims, Hubicki Associates, to show concerns, problems and give recommendations for the areas of Morrisburg, Williamsburg, Iroquois and Matilda, the South Dundas Economic Development Commission has opened an office in Morrisburg.

The SDEDC was first established five years ago, and consists of approximately ten people who have been delegated by Council.

These members of the commission include Blake Noon, chairman, Morrisburg; Mart Prost, vice-chairman, Williamsburg; Michael S. Waddell, secretary-treasurer, Williamsburg; Jacques Asselin, Iroquois; Leonard Bellamy, Williamsburg; Clare Brown, Iroquois; Walter Bailey, Iroquois; Peter McCooeye, Morrisburg; Cameron Martell, Morrisburg; Bill Strader, Matilda; Peter Swank, Matilda; Lyle Van Allen, Williamsburg and Henry Zandbergen, Matilda.

The office, which is located in Morrisburg, is run by Linda Bowers, project manager, Barb Scott, Holly Paquette, and Clara Hall who act as support or secretarial staff.

The project is funded by Canada Employment and Immigration for one year. The support staff receive training through St. Lawrence College or the Alternative School in order to develop secretarial skills.

They work a total of 40 hours each week, with ten hours per week being allotted for courses. The rest of the time is spent receiving on-the-job training on a continual basis.

As well, the support staff are presently taking a number of computer courses.

Now, with the team set up and the funding in place, the goal of the South Dundas Economic Development Commission is to implement some of the recommendations taken from the study.

The four areas of study are: Tourism; Industrial Development; commercial Development and Agricultural Development.

"The office is here as a tool to help with the development of the four municipalities," said Bowers.

The purpose of joining together was as a means of pooling funds as well as resources.

The S.D.E.D.C. was the first joint effort of the four municipalities to work together, while the South Dundas Recreation Committee followed closely in its footsteps.

To date, the commission has been responsible for putting together the walking tour in Morrisburg. Other projects which lie in the future include: the Morrisburg-Waddington ferry, a business directory and getting pamphlets of the area distributed to other centres as a means of attracting tourists.

As well, it is hoped that the S.D.E.D.C. can develop better communications between the Chamber of Commerce and the Business Improvement Association and establish a higher profile for the community.

The commission also needs to work with councils in the area immediately in order to start planning financially. Funding provided by Canada Employment and Immigration will cease at the end of September, 1991.

"There's a lot to be done," said Bowers. "A lot of planning."

Presently, the South Dundas Economic Development Commission office is located in the former Parks Commission building on Second Street in Morrisburg. The office is shared with the Dundas Environmental Resource Centre.

For further information on the commission contact Linda Bowers at 543-4558.

MPP poses questions on local agriculture

QUEEN'S PARK — Stormont-Dundas-Glengarry & East Grenville MPP Noble Villeneuve was sworn in by the Clerk of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario for his fourth term on Wednesday, September 26th.

Having won four elections over his seven years at the Legislature, Villeneuve says he is looking forward to the coming parliamentary session with a great deal of interest and enthusiasm.

"I believe that in opposition, I came to know a number of the NDP members fairly well, and now, of course, those same members are likely to become prominent Cabinet ministers. I'm going to enjoy working with them to solve the problems that need to be dealt with here in Stormont-Dundas-Glengarry and East Grenville and in the Cornwall area." Villeneuve also couldn't help adding: "And I'm also going to enjoy turning the heat on them in Question Period - there is only one farmer among the 74 New Democrats, and we obviously have a very real need for some new and effective farm support programs."

Villeneuve says he is already developing a "fairly long" list of agricultural questions to ask the new minister, but adds that he has a number of specific local priorities, such as the mandate of the St. Lawrence Parks Commission, water quality and economic development concerns that he will also raise in Legislature.

Those creeping euphemisms

It is encouraging to note that there is a move afoot in Canada to write and to speak legal, technical and other facts and opinions in everyday terms, understood by the average readers or listeners.

A writer to one Toronto weekly paper expresses an opinion which may be shared by many who appreciate information being expressed in its simplest, most understandable terms:

"If language reflects social attitudes, this society is in trouble. I refer specifically to the creeping euphemisms which are diluting the English language. We have survived the thought-jamming of officialese as practised by politicians and other orators, who have a vested interest in keeping us in the dark and simultaneously masking their own ignorance. We have even endured a frontal assault by the feminist movement on the last frontier — a frustrated attempt to restructure the language and rewrite everything in print, replacing honest words with atrocities, such as personhole (for manhole) and pesonkind (for mankind).

Our greatest trial, however, is well under way. In retrospect, the previous threats to our language were not seriously destined to damage communication permanently. To most thinking individuals, the blatant stupidity of such trends has made them more laughable than frightening. But now, a much more deadly virus has infected our ranks. Its very subtlety lends it power.

As a great abyss yawns between the haves and the have nots, it must be enormously comforting to that emerging aristocracy of the newly rich, that despite what the Bible says, the poor are no longer with us — they have merely become "economically marginalized".

I suppose that the acid test comes when the economically priveleged suddenly find that, due to corporate downsizing, their positions are no longer strategically viable and they are dropped, with or without golden parachutes, back to earth. There they will discover that things aren't as bad as they expected. The days of unemployment lines and welfare are over. Instead, government clerks have become career counsellors who, rather than subject them to the humiliation of looking for a job, will help them market their skills. Employers will tactfully avoid insulting them with job offers for which they are obviously overqualified, but will suggest that they continue searching for a suitable career position, and wish them luck. Meanwhile, they will be pleasantly relieved to know that people no longer go broke, but only experience temporary cash flow restrictions. And should the worst happen, they can rest assured that social assistance will keep them from becoming nutritionally deficient. So, joining the economically marginalized isn't so tragic after all.

Of course, you can't blame one of them for wishing that more people would call a spade a spade, like they used to a few years ago.

Your property rights

Most property owners are subscribers to the theory that a man's home is his castle. But that may not be always literally true. Private Property Week is observed in Ontario to educate and inform property owners of their rights.

"Property rights" is the term given to those freedoms or rights which Canadians have come to associate with property ownership, and which they consider inalienable. Just what do such rights include? A short list would include:

- the right to buy, hold and occupy real property;
- the right to maintain privacy in your home by excluding others from it;
- the right to sell, rent, lease, or give away your property;
- the right to leave your property to your chosen heirs in a will;
- the right to use your property in any manner you desire;
- the right to enjoy the goods which come from your land, such as agricultural produce;
- the right to destroy your property, should you so desire.

But these rights are not, of course, absolute.

People do not live alone. They are a part of society, and as such, must relinquish some of their individual rights in order to make society a better place for all.

For this reason, when activities take place on your property which affect the health, safety, welfare, religion or morality of society as a whole, your rights are sometimes restricted. Where the common good is concerned, we have empowered governments to regulate individual rights.

The concept of private property rights and the need to protect them is not something new. Back in the year 1215, a group of property owners of the day met with their government to demand protection of their rights. The result of that meeting was the Magna Carta, the great charter which the barons forced King John to sign, and which became the basis of personal rights and liberty throughout the English-speaking world.

The judicial system which was subsequently built on the Magna Carta became known as English Common Law, and was widely adopted in Canadian courts over the years. In 1962, Canada, under then Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, produced a Bill of Rights which guaranteed property rights. And this Bill was later incorporated into our constitution, with the single notable exception of the property rights section. The clause protecting such rights was unfortunately deleted in the constitutional debate, for political reasons.

Many other nations do recognize the importance of property rights, and they are upheld by the constitutions of 20 nations, including the United States.

While many national organizations are involved in a continuing campaign to protect owners, the main person who should be involved is you! Make yourself aware of the property rights you enjoy as an owner, and find out how government legislation, at any level, might adversely affect those rights. In a matter of such vital importance to you, ignorance is not bliss — it's sheer folly!

Private property ownership is one of the keystones on which all other private freedoms rest. It is a fundamental aspect of our Canadian lifestyle. Let's keep it that way!

THANKSGIVING

Next Monday, October 8th marks the observance in Canada of the Festival of Thanksgiving, an observance which was first marked on the American continent at the Plymouth Colony in Massachussets on November 21st, 1621. On that date, the earliest settlers of the Colony invited the friendly Indians whom they had found there, to join with them in giving thanks to God for the fruits of their first bountiful harvest. The Indians, it is said, reciprocated by introducing their European friends to such New World delicacies as wild turkeys and pumpkins, and apparently everyone agreed that the celebration was an unqualified success. So much so, that the custom soon became general, and spread to other states.

In Canada, Thanksgiving has also been linked to the Old English Harvest Home Festival, and is now observed on the second Monday in October. Although for a great many, the original deeply religious meaning of the festival has been relegated to a secondary position, it is nevertheless the last holiday before the onset of the long, cold, Canadian winter, and it has become a favorite occasion for family gatherings and feasting, for jollity and celebrations.

In spite of the many troubles which plague most of us at times, surely all of us can find a great deal to be thankful for at this season. Right now, as always, a great number of us are dissatisfied and disappointed with our various governments at all levels, but as has just been demonstrated in this province, we have a civilized way of changing them without the use of either bombs or bullets. Above all, we still have the great good fortune to live in Canada, and for this beautiful and bountiful land we should never cease to give thanks. We enjoy comparative freedom from disease and famine, those twin spectres which stalk so many millions of earth's inhabitants. Our education facilities acompare favorably with the world's finest, and are constantly improving. Our health is protected and our lives lengthened by the best facilities and the most advanced research. So much so, that these facilities and this vast store of medical and scientific knowledge is now being used as well to save the lives of countless patients from less fortunate countries. No other country has more reason to be thankful than does Canada.

All of us can afford to reflect on our good fortune, and to give thanks to a kindly Providence for all those bounties which we enjoy. Some of us might even be influenced to do something a little extra for a neighbor — to express our thanks in a concrete manner.

The first female member of the Morrisburg and District Canadian Club walked through the door of the Morrisburg Civic Centre September 25 at 6:17 p.m., and was cordially welcomed by executive member Roy Brister. Mrs. J.H. "Gertrude" Willard of Winchester, was the honoured individual and becoming the first lady member to attain the Canadian Club was only fitting for a member of the locally famed Willards. The welcome ended 55 years of "men only" memberships in the local Canadian Club, a distinction thought to be the last of this nature in Canada.

With several thousand consumers entering the gate at the 1980 version of the Morrisburg Chamber of Commerce Home and Trade Show, it was labelled an unqualified success by organizers and participants alike. The Honourable Larry Grossman, Ontario Minister of Trade and Tourism got things off to an official start Thursday evening following a well received speech to the Morrisburg and District Canadian Club. Mr. Grossman seemed impressed with the calibre of the show as it was staged in the Morrisburg Community Centre and congratulated everyone involved.

Bill Strader presented a plan to develop a Mobile Home Park on Highway 2 in front of Caravan Camp in Matilda Township. Rowdy Gillard, Deputy Reeve of Williamsburg Township, told The Leader he was in favour of reasonably priced housing for pensioners or for young people seeking a home. The proposed plan would place modular homes and/or trailers on spacious half acre lots, each having its own septic system and water service.

Miss Faye McIntosh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McIntosh of Williamsburg, was Valedictorian at Seaway District High School's Scholastica '70 Commencement on October 9th. The Williamsburg girl was one of the five Ontario Scholars recognized at the special awards night and was the recipient of many other honours. Besides accepting the Proficiency Award presented by Bob Doyon, the outstanding student was also presented with an Honour Bar; Over 80 percent medal; Strathcona Shield for highest aggregate in Grade 13, S.D.&G. Board Scholarship; the Students' Council Scholarship; Jamieson Memorial Scholarship; Boyd Scholarship and the Williamsburg Women's Institute Award.

Mildred McNeely, of Williamsburg, whose enthusiasm resulted in the highly successful walkathon to aid young Rodney Barkley, told another heart-warming story of the universal desire to help this little boy. October 8th, Mildred received a phone call from six-year-old Laurie Bilmer of Morrisburg, who had heard of the good cause, and wanted to help. Laurie dumped out the entire contents of her piggy-bank, $5.35 and it was deported to Rodney's account.

At Heinz' Food Market, fresh young pork, filet end loin roast was selling for .77 a pound while fresh young pork, centre cut chops were .85 a pound. Two boxes of Kraft Macaroni and Cheese was .29.

Visitors to Eastern Ontario hydro-electric generating stations continued at a steady pace throughout the summer months, Ontario Hydro's Robert H. Saunders, St. Lawrence Generating station at Cornwall, and the Des Joachims Generating station 40 miles northwest of Pembroke were hosts to thousands of visitors during June, July and August. At Cornwall, the number of visitors by actual count indicated no decline in the number over previous years. For the three months' period the St. Lawrence River Station attracted 95,524 persons. For the comparable dates during 1959, records showed that 95,603 persons inspected the generating station.

Knox Presbyterian Church Young Peoples Society, Morrisburg, held a come-as-you-are party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fraser, Mariatown. The party began with a scavenger hunt in Mariatown, followed by a sing-song, games and lunch. Committee in charge of planning and refreshments comprised: Janet Fraser, Patricia Arthurs and Billy Magee.

Ninety percent of Ontario Hydro's purchase orders in 1959, $61 million, went to Canadian companies.

The regular monthly meeting of The Morrisburg Fish and Game Protective Association was held October 3rd at the Agriculture Office. There was a very small attendance at this meeting. It was decided to pick up all membership tickets yet unsold by memebers of the membership committee. A short discussion was held on the hunting seasons which were

Around the town

Wow! What a week we had. It wasn't enough to move our clothing store to its new location, but on Thursday and Friday we decided to re-do the front of The Leader office. I think I've seen more painting in the last few days than I care to remember.

Anyway, Margi is now located over in the Morrisburg Mall, and she thinks it is just a great place. With all the colorful people around her over there, I think she'll have new stories to tell me every day.

History was made this week in Ontario with the swearing-in of the NDP Government at Toronto. Premier Bob Rae takes office in the largest province of Canada, and says he wants to work with the business community and labor groups to bring Ontario through the recession.

With all the election promises that the NDP made during the campaign, to clean up the environment, adopt better social programs and help the economy, Premier Rae surely has his work cut out for him.

With Ontario sliding into the so-called recession, if Rae's government can turn the economy around, and start many of his programs, a lot of people will feel pretty happy about voting for the NDP - maybe enought to help Audrey McLaughlin to form the next government in Canada.

With all the break-ins around lately, everyone is being asked to help out. If you see anyone in your neighborhood who seems suspicious, or near any of the local stores, don't be afraid to call the police. Don't forget it's our community, and we don't want it turned into a city-like crime area.

The Upper Canada Village season is soon coming to a close. This weekend will be one of your last opportunities to visit the village and partake in harvest activities, 1860s style.

The Village also offers many heritage workshops, and other weekend programs, starting at the end of October. For more information, call 543-3704.

The public is invited to the official opening of the Dundas Environmental Resource Centre at 17 Second Street, Morrisburg. The Centre officially opens at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday, October 17th.

Golf Club Grounds Chairman Jim Sage is looking for volunteers on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, October 12, 13 and 14, to help rebuild number two green at the Morrisburg golf Club. Anyone who can donate some time for this project, can please contact Jim Sage.

Council awaits written plan before making decision

by Kim Toshack

IROQUOIS — During the regular council meeting at Iroquois on Wednesday, a request was put in by Dr. Monica Zieper, Dentist, for a change in the residential by-law, making a home on Caldwell Street commercial.

Zieper, who lives in Winchester Springs and presently works out of a joint practice in Winchester, has recently come to the decision that she wants to open a private practice somewhere in the area.

Following her own study to find a suitable location for her practice, Zieper set her sights on Iroquois, where at the present time there is only one other practicing dentist.

However, Zieper has come across a technicality. The site she has chosen is located in a residential zone on Caldwell Street.

She hopes to buy this home and convert it into a dental office, which will involve having three chairs on the first level of the building and an office upstairs.

The request for a change in the residential by-law by Zieper brought forth a number of questions from council on her reasoning behind choosing this particular location.

"It's strictly my personal preference," she said. "I want to present the tone of dentistry that I want to work in and I can't do this in a commercial area."

The house in question, a small bungalow on Caldwell Street, has been on the real estate market for three months. It is a one and half storey building, 70' by 150'.

Following Zieper's presentation, council discussed the request at length.

Although all members of council agreed there is room for another dental practice in the village, changing the by-law for one person could bring about anger by other businessmen.

There are at the present time a number of openings in the mall, one of which Zieper could fill. As well, having her office in the commercial zone would aid in bringing business to other merchants.

Basically, the discussion boiled down to equal rights. If Zieper was permitted to have a commercial office in a residential area, others might come up with the same line of thinking and council would be faced with these types of requests by others.

Another concern of council over this issue related to Zieper's practice in the future. The problem would arise if she chose to expand.

Although her plans at the moment include only herself, one assistant and approximately one patient per hour, Zieper did state that there might be a need for a receptionist and an extra hygienist in the future.

This would bring the amount of cars parked at the house up to five. The council feared expansion of the practice would increase the movement of cars on the street, which is supposed to be a quiet, business-free area.

Despite the discussions by council, no decision could be reached and it was determined that they would hold off until Zieper submitted a written proposal to council.

approaching, and there being no further business, the meeting adjourned.

Mrs. T. Rockley Parker presided at a social evening in St. James Anglican Church Hall on October 2nd in honour of Mrs. Percy Nash who left to reside in Montreal during the summer. Mrs. Nash was planning on visiting her daughter, Mrs. Howard Hessell. The Rector, Rev. G.O. Davies and several of the ladies of the congregation were present. Mrs. Parker paid tribute to the tremendous amount of work Mrs. Nash had done for St. James Church over 50 years. She was going to be missed not only in the church but also in her work with the Red Cross during two World Wars, her work with the Women's Institute, and in the community.

Mr. Roy Whyte, popular accountant at the local branch of the Bank of MOntreal since January 1937, was honoured by a group of business friends at a banquet and presentation at the Walrich Hotel on October 2nd, previous to his departure to a new office at the Toronto branch of the band. Acting as chairman for the evening was Mr. R.H. Armstrong, B.A. and the blessing was asked by Mr. Trevor Allison. On behalf of his friends, Mr. George E. Beavers presented Mr. Whyte with an electrical mantel chime clock, and a short address appropriate to the occasion.

A crowd of enthusiastic women of the eastern section of Dundas-Grenville Presbyterial of the United Church met at Winchester Springs on Tuesday, Sept. 30. The session opened at 9:30 with the vice-president, Mrs. George Earle, of Winchester, presiding. The worship service, under the leadership of Mesdames Graham and Houlehan, and Miss Merkley, all of Chesterville, was very impressive. The theme, "The Privilege and Power of Prayer" was ably presented, and indelibly stamped on the hearts of the audience. After the appointment of committees, Mrs. Steele, of Winchester Springs, welcomed the delegates in such a pleasing manner as to make each and every one feel the welcome was sincere. Mrs. Steele urged all to carry out the thought of the theme of the opening worship service. Mrs. A.B. Allison, Morewood replied, thanking the auxiliary for their message of welcome, assuring them of the appreciation of their efforts, and also of the cooperation to make the meeting a memorable one.

Mrs. Henry Clark and Miss Bessie Clark entertained at a delightfully arranged miscellaneous shower in honour of Miss Sadie Lapier, whose marriage was to take place during the month of October. The room was tastefully decorated in rose and white and autumn ferns. Small tea tables were used for refreshments, each with special vari-coloured tablecloths. The bride-to-be entered the drawing room to the opening strains of the wedding march played by Miss Eva Cassell. Many useful gifts were presented to the bride-elect in attractively decorated boxes. Twenty-two guests attended and games and dancing were enjoyed by all.

IN MEMORIAM

FROATS — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Arnold, who passed away October 3, 1981.
He is gone but not forgotten,
And, as dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of him are always near.
Days of sadness will come o'er us,
Many think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow,
That lies in the heart concealed.
— Sadly missed by son, Gary, his wife Connie and Barry; son Ricki, his wife Elaine and family; daughter Chris, her husband Brian and Stephanie. 40p

A valuable lesson

Harland Veinotte Transport Ltd. demonstrates truck awareness

Laurie Day
Leader Staff

MORRISBURG — Recently, Randy Vienotte from Harland Vienotte Transport Ltd., Morrisburg, enlightened the students of Morrisburg Public School on truck awareness and most importantly truck safety.

Two drivers with the Vienotte Company, Larry Hitsman (BullWinkle) and Ron McMillan (Diesel), both of the Morrisburg area, were on hand to display their tractors, a flatbed trailer and a van trailer. They also showed the children how to load and unload cargo with a hitch-hiker.

The students were brought outside by classrooms and Vienotte talked briefly about the importance of always being alert around trucks.

He explained how difficult it is for truck drivers to see small children when they are in front of the truck, and told of the dangers of riding a bicycle near one.

"Because a truck is so big, it creates air turbulence as it is moving and it is very easy for it (the wind) to suck you right off the bicycle," Vienotte told the children.

"And if that happens one of these wheels could run over you or even a car behind the truck," said Vienotte.

After the talk, Vienotte then let the children walk around the trucks before they were ushered into the back of the van trailer.

"OOOHH! It smells gross in here," said one of the students.

"That smell is dog food because this is one of the trailers we use to haul for Berry's Pet Food," Vienotte explained.

McMillan and Hitsman then took the students through their truck and as they did so most had to 'blow the horn'.

"Look at the bedroom!" a student said as he got a look at the bunk where the drivers had to 'rough it' while on the road.

Hitsman showed the students how to hook and unhook a trailer and McMillan explained what the placards were for which were attached to all sides of the trailer.

"These cards are put her to let the police or firemen know what is on board the trailer if we are ever in an accident and we can't let them know ourselves," McMillan said. "They know by which placard is posted as to what method is use in case of fire."

After the presentation, the students were allowed a few minutes for questions before the next class came outside.

Safety First

Not only is truck safety important for those in public school, but there is a little something for everyone to learn from this valuable lesson.

Transport drivers are professional drivers and each one has to complete extensive testing before driving a transport.

Before a driver even gets a license, a medical examination and a written exam must be taken and passed.

The perspective driver must first pass the medical before a written test is even looked at.

On the written exam, numerous questions on road safety, air brakes, street signs and common sense have to be answered with a minimal room for mistakes.

After the driver makes it through these tests, the next step is actual driving.

Some take courses in transport driving and safety, which can cost up to $2,500.

If the person is lucky enough to know another trained driver, he can teach the perspective driver until confidence and knowledge is assured for the passing of the final driving test.

Sometimes more than one driving test takes place until the Ministry of Transportation feels the driver can handle a transport with the utmost care and control in any situation.

Upon successful completion of these mentioned tests, the driver is then known as a "professional truck driver".

The PTD has a very uncalled-for bad reputation due to a few bad apples in the bushel.

Not all truckers are 'cowboys', 'grubs', 'dirty ol' men' or 'crazy people'.

An often heard complaint is "they don't even know how to drive," but more often than not the situation spoken of is usually brought on by an unthinking motorist in a car or other smaller-than-a-transport vehicle.

These truck drivers do know how to drive or they wouldn't be classified as Professional Truck Drivers.

A few common problems are very easy to conquer if all those who used the roads were more courteous and used common sense.

Many motorists are nervous about passing a transport because of the size and the amount of turbulence when doing so.

Passing a transport is the same as passing any other vehicle on the road and the same rules apply.

Once a motorist has decided to overtake a transport, caution should be used to maintain proper steady speed.

The truck driver may lose speed on a hill and has to drop many gears, but once the truck driver has resumed normal speed, more often than not he has to pass the mentioned behicle because it is "stuck in the road".

Other times the motorist will pass and then stop suddenly to turn. This causes problems for the transport driver becuase the amount of weight on the trailer will not allow it to stop on a dime.

Therefore, a thought should be taken as to why the passing of the transport took place in the first place.

Another complaint of truck drivers are the hazards that can happen at intersections.

Most trailers have a sticker on the rear stating 'DANGER-WIDE RIGHT TURNS.'

That means if a transport has its blinker on, nine times out of ten the driver is going to turn right. He is not riding close to the yellow line for any other purpose than to acutally turn right.

The reasoning behind the wide right turn is to keep the trailer from riding over the curb or taking out a light post or pedestrian.

Sometimes motorists will take this time to squeeze between the trailer and the right hand side of the road to turn right themselves, resulting in a small crunching session with the trailer riding over top of the car, because the driver can't see the vehicle.

Tailgating, backing up, and rolling back are other problems that truck drivers are faced with every day.

Never tailgate a transport because the driver can't see directly behind him and this could be life-threatening if the truck driver has to make a sudden stop.

Backing up creates a blind spot for the driver too. If a transport is temporarily blocking the main access to a roadway, due to unloading merchandise, a motorist may become impatient and try to quickly dart in behind the transport in an over-anxious attempt to get through the blocked area.

If the driver cannot see the motorist in time, again ... squish!!!

When coming to a stop behind a transport, give the truck plenty of room. When the driver takes off from a stop on a hill (or otherwise) rolling backwards will often occur. This safe practice can also save the hood of a car or small truck.

On multi-lane highways truckers rely on the second lane for overtaking other vehicles and if this lane is blocked by stragglers who should be in the first lane, the trucker is forced to back down often at great risks and inconvenience to other motorists.

There are signs stating 'SLOWER VEHICLES KEEP RIGHT' solely for that purpose, to keep the slow traffic out of the 'hammer' lanes in order to avoid traffic congestion.

Above all, common sense and courtesy should prevail and be used by all drivers on the roadways. This will result in fewer accidents and save more lives.

Truck is the lifeblood of the economy

Whether known or not, almost everyone depends on trucks for day-to-day living, from the food eaten to the cars driven. The truckers of Ontario play an important and never-ending role.

Often trucking companies are called upon to finish the deliveries of commodities brought to Ontario by air, water and railways.

Trucking is cost efficient, highly flexible ahd have just-in-time delivery services.

Seventy per cent of supplies shipped in Ontario are done so by transports.

The largest and most dominant trucking industry is in Ontario, with more than 40 per cent of Canada's total activity rate. Ontario has the largest fleet of transports topping out at over 218,000 trucks, tractors and specializing vehicles.

There are now oever 230,000 Ontarians earning a living in the trucking industry from accountants and mechanics to administrators and executives. These figures account for five per cent of the provincial labour force.

Trucks carry 70 per cent of imports from the United States and 75 per cent of the exports from the U.S.

The truck transportation industry pays more taxes than any other mode of transporation, with most money going towards diesel fuel taxes, a figure of 90 per cent.

The next time a transport is seen driving down the highway, think about what a great job they're doing for everyone, because all of Ontario needs the Ontario Truckers to survive.

Randy Veinotte asked the students of M.P.S. to stand in front of the transport. One of the teachers then got into the truck to actually see how limited the driver's vision was. The teacher only saw the children farthest away from the grill of the truck. This was one of the many things Randy translated to the students about the dangers associated with transports.

Arena ice is in

MORRISBURG — The arena was busy with the sounds of skating this week, as the hockey season officially began.

The minor hockey league held a practice last night and the ol' timers claimed the ice afterwards.

The Jr. B Lions will be in this evening for their first practice.

Arena manager, Don Smithson was hard at work all week, but because of the warm weather and the malfunctioning compressor the opening date was held back a day, creating a little turbulence for the figure skaters, who were scheduled to have the ice for Monday afternoon and evening.

"The unseasonable warm weather has been the cause for the trouble with the compressor," Smithson said.

Once the temperature is cold enough it takes three days to put the ice in.

The cement surface has to be cleaned first then, flooding takes place until there is approximately one quarter of an inch of ice.

The next step is the white washing of the surface, another quarter-inch of ice and then the lines are painted on.

Finally the surface is flooded once more leaving a final quarter-inch over the lines.

Volunteers needed!

MORRISBURG — On the weekend of October 12th, 13th and 14th the Morrisburg Golf Club will be rebuilding the number two green, and volunteers are needed to help.

Fifteen to 20 members (or non-members) are needed for a few hours each afternoon and they are asked to call Jim Sage.

Is it a strike?? A spare??
Pat Servais is this year's president of the women's bowling league in Ingleside. She demonstrates her technique for strikes "almost every time". The women's league got underway last week with results available for next week, Bowlers are still welcome to join as there is room for a few more.

Seaway News

By Kelly Lackey

For the last two weeks, Seaway has been collecting Canadian Tire money from the homeforms. This money is going to be used to buy a barbeque which will be used many times throughout the year. In total, they raised about one hundred and forty dollars.

The chocolate bar drive will be starting next week. The students will be let out Friday afternoon for an assembly discussing the procedure of selling the bars. This money will be wisely used by the students' council.

School rings are going on sale the end of this week. Deposits for the rings are posted throughout the school. There are many sizes and styles to choose from. You also have a choice of silver or gold. Gold is more expensive than the silver rings.

The students' council has scheduled a MuchMusic Video dance for this coming November. This dance is very popular throughout Canada. MuchMusic is a twenty-four hour rock video station that is offered with cable television.

The senior and junior volleyball teams will be travelling to Cornwall, October 10th. The coach for the team is Mr. MacKenzie. The team hopes to come back with more success than the last game. Good Luck Guys!!!

Prize winning essay

Local girl wins $250 scholarship

by Catherine Thompson
Leader Staff

KINGSTON — Chosen Matilda Carnival Queen in February, Kelly Smail of Brinston has again shown herself to be a winner, but this time in the literary field.

Smail is one of two area students who have been awarded a $250 scholarship from the Cornwall and District Labor Council for their prize-winning essays in an annual contest sponsored by the council.

"It was the first time in the history of Seaway High to compete in the contest," said Smail.

Along with 29 other students in her class, under the guidance of her teacher Janeen Wagemans, Kelly submitted an essary last spring on labor's role in health and safety, as a creative writing assignment.

Kelly said she was totally surprised when she heard about winning the award, and is glad for the financial assistance towards her university education.

Patricia Lavers of General Vanier Secondary School was also chosen a winner for an essay which focussed on rules and regulations in the workplace.

A total of about 60 contestants entered the competition from an area including Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry and the City of Cornwall.

The announcement came as a crowning honor on a banner year of essay writing for Seaway High.

Last March, the school won a hot air balloon visit for placing among the province's top 10 schools in an essay contest sponsored by Tele-Direct Publications.

Shortly afterwards, Grade 11 student Trisha Elliott came first among hundreds of contestants in a province-wide creative writing contest sponsored by the Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation.

"My essay stresses the importance of safety in the workplace. Companies should keep up to safety standards and have a knowledge of first aid," Kelly said.

And the essay as follows, speaks for itself.

INDUSTRIAL HEALTH AND SAFETY

A young woman sat next to me at the unemployment office one morning. Both of us were reading the weekly newspaper in hope of finding employment. As I glanced over, I noticed she was reading a particular death notice. It read:

Gray, Evan

Unexpectedly at work on Wednesday, April 18, 1990, in his 25th year. Evan beloved husband of Rebecca. Son of Jonathon and Anna Gray of Woodland. Friends may visit at the Tubman Funeral Home Westboro Chapel. Interment Capital Memorial Gardens.

A tear trickled down her cheek as she stared hopelessly at the notice.

"Excuse me but are you alright?" I asked her.

"Oh yes. I'm sorry but everytime I read this, I can't seem to control the tears," she replied.

"Was he someone close to you?"

"Yes. He was my husband. Four months ago we were happily married. We always planned a future together. This is supposed to be my honeymoon. Opening up wedding presents, writing thank you's ... now I have to give away my presents because they remind me of him. Now I have to write these," she said as she pointed to the page of the newspaper.

"I do not want to intrude but how did he pass away at work?" I asked.

"Evan died unexpectedly at work during an accident about a week ago. Safety inspectors informed the owner to improve the safety shields on the saw blades. Through negligence, some of the shields had come loose and fallen off.

This was very hazardous to those who operated these blades. Management had been notified by the workers but didn't do anything about it. His hand slipped when he was sawing lumber. The blade cut a major artery in his arm. By the time the ambulance got there he had bled to death. No one knew enough first aid to help him."

"That is terrible. Your husband died because the employer did not replace the safety shields and no one was familiar with the proper first aid treatment."

"I understand they operated like this for years with never an accident. My husband was the first to die. They are closed down now until all safety measures are followed and until management completes a first aid course."

"I am so sorry for your loss. Please accept my sympathy."

"Thank you. I never thought I would be a widow looking for a new job to support myself so early on in my life.

I am also going to lobby other companies and make them realize that industrial health and safety is an important issue.

There is no one reason for employees to be injured through negligence and carelessness. Life and limbs are too valuable and precious."

BRINSTON — The Community of Concern, a reform group in the United Church of Canada, formed a chapter in the area in the spring, and held their first official meeting here last Tuesday.

About 100 interested persons from the Seaway Valley Presbytery gathered to hear Dr. Allen Churchill, minister of the Dominion-Chalmers United Church in Ottawa, and a founding member of the COC, speak on some issues facing the United Church.

The Community of Concern formed around the same time as the 32nd General Council in Victoria, B.C. 1988, when the council made its controversial decision to allow the ordination of gays and lesbians along with other recommendations.

Because of a large number of dissenting petitions at the time, Council invited more responses from the church, and heard from 1.255 pastoral charges over the following two years.

Of these petitions, 876 (70 per cent) were opposed to the decision made by the previous council, 84 (7 per cent) were in favor, and there were 295 (23.5 per cent) mixed responses including suggestions on how the resolution could be improved.

The petitions were sent to the 33rd General Council held this August in London, Ontario.

But despite the negative opinions expressed, the "Membership, Ministry and Human Sexuality Sessional" committee recommended Council approve the 1988 statement unaltered, allowing no barrier to ordination for any category of persons.

Nevertheless the committee admitted that in the response received from congregations across Canada, "the predominant view is one of opposition to the 1988 MMHS statement."

"Our area is very concerned as is 70-80 per cent of the church," says Rev. John Niles, minister of the Matilda Pastoral Charge, and a founding member of the Community of Concern.

Ordaining gays isn't the only issue

He says the issue of ordaining gays and lesbians isn't the only subject of debate, and there are concerns on a variety of issues. In fact, the Community of Concern lists 40 Articles of Concern, in which they affirm allegiance to orthodox Christian faith and values.

Included are a committment to Biblical ethics for personal and social behaviour, a recommendation for a code of conduct among clergy, and freedom of speech for dissenters.

While acknowledging the concerns of feminists, the Community of Concern prefers to give primacy to the hitoric language of the Church in public worship, referring to God as Father, Son and Holy Spirit.

"We're not a breakaway church. We're faithful members of the United Church, and adhere to the basic faith of 200 years," Niles says.

"We feel the orthodox Christian faith is being compromised, and when it's compromised, so is our future down the road."

"The Community of Concern brings reform and renewal. We aim to work in the church structure, to proclaim the Gospel," he adds.

"We want to offer a sounding board, and a place where people with concerns can speak, to help United Church people who feel alone in the situation.

But in reality, you're not. We're in the majority," he says.

Niles says that most members of the Community of Concern are active church members, holding positions as elders, teachers, or stewards within the Church.

While some members feel obliged to leave the Church because they disagree with views held by the heirarchy, the majority remain.

And the Community of Concern intends to support both those who wish to remain and those who feel they must leave.

The local chapter of the Community of Concern will hold a steering committee meeting wthin the next two weeks, and another general meeting in two months. A place has not yet been decided.

Cruise ship makes stop over weekend

Many Morrisburg and area residents viewed with considerable interest, the American-Canadian Caribbean Line cruise Ship New Shoreham II, which was docked at Morrisburg on the weekend. The beautiful small cruise ship stopped here while on its annual fall foliage cruise. Leaving its home base at Warren, Rhode Island, the cruise proceeds along the New England shore to New York, up the Hudson River to the Erie Canal, and thence to Lake Ontario at Oswego, N.Y. Passengers then enjoy a cruise through the Thousand Islands, and on to spend two nights each in Montreal and Quebec City. Leaving the Quebec Capital, the final destination is the Saguenay River, where the cruisers have an unequalled opportunity of whale watching and viewing the fall foliage beauty in Canada. It is then back to Montreal, where the passengers are bussed back to their embarkation point in Rhode Island. While in Morrisburg, many of the passengers braved the inclement weather to tour the village, and make purchases at the local mercantile establishments.

LaPrade holds workshop on home restoration

by Laurie Day
Leader Staff

CHESTERVILLE — The Nelson LaPrade Centre in Chesterville was the meeting place for a six hour workshop on "Restoring Your Own Home" with the group leader Ian K. Woods of I.K. Woods and Partners Inc.

This chartered surveyor from Markham, Ontario was on hand to solve some of the problems involved with restoring older homes.

He was assisted by guest speaker, Barbara Humpries, who works with the Rideau Township LACAC (Local Architectural Conservation Advisory Committee) and together they combined expertise and knowledge for dealing with technical and practical problems which often arise when doing a restoration project.

This particular workshop is one of the Ontario Historical Society's (OHS) most successful. It was co-sponsored by the Chesterville and District Historical Society.

The OHS is a non-profit charitable organization and it is open to anyone interested in Ontario's history.

There are many other programmes throughout Ontario and the most popular services provided are the workshop programs.

Such workshops included are: The Politics of Preservation; The Heritage of Ontario Cemeteries; Everything You Wanted to Know about and Historical Society But Were Afraid To Ask; Getting Young People Involved in Heritage Programs in Your Community; Making It Look Good-Displays, Graphics and Labels, Herbs in History; Medicine and Magic and Food and Fragance.

The organization was founded in 1988 to bring people together who are interested in preserving some of the Ontario History.

It encourages and assists museums and historical societies to research and preserve the artifacts, architecture, archaeological sites and archival resources of local communities and give members the chance to exchange ideas of the same.

88-year-old physician still practising

Doctors dedicate medical library to Dr. Howard Justus

Catherine Thompson
Leader Staff

WINCHESTER — Although it's hard to find a gift for someone who has everything, the doctors of Winchester Hospital have made a unique presentation to Dr. Howard of Chesterville.

Justus was honored for years of faithful service to the hospital in a library dedication ceremony here last Wednesday.

Almost the entire medical staff attended, and also Hopsital Director James Egan, president of the Board of Directors, Wayne Burns, several board members, and Manager of Medical Records, Mrs. Holly Forrester.

"This year the Chesterville community decided to honor Dr. Justus and held a large dinner for him. Almost everybody had a gift for him, although most made a donation in his name to the hospital," chairman of the Medical Library Committee Dr. Suru Chande explained later.

"It was hard for the medical staff to give something to someone who has everything, so we tried to decide on what he would willingly accept, and that would benefit everyone," said Chande.

As a result of discussions, the staff hit upon the idea of refurbishing and renaming the library.

The doctors raised sums of money towards the renovations, assisted by the hospital, and Holly Forrester, and Housekeeping Manager Judy Lannin organized the effort.

Renaming the library from the Winchester Medical Library to the Howard Justus Health Science Library required permission, freely given by the Hospital Board.

The room now has an entirely different look with the addition of a new carpet, furniture, and lighting. A photographic portrait and a brass plaque with a dedication to Dr. Justus hold a prominent position behind a main desk.

Chande, who spearheaded the doctors' efforts, further explained why they chose the library for their attention.

"When Dr. Justus founded the hospital 40 years ago jointly with other medical people, there were just a few GPs - they had to work hard to keep abreast of the times.

He worked hard at continuing medical education, attending seminars and so on to maintain proficiency."

"People couldn't wait to see a specialist in those days. It was too long a distance and they had to pay for it," he added.

"The renovations were our idea, our suggestion, and we all worked towards it," Chande concluded.

"I didn't instigate this. They came and asked if I'd accept it," said Justus in an interview.

Over 60 years in the medical profession

Born in Mountain Township, graduating from Queen's University in 1928, the physician had his first practise in Melford, a small town in Saskatchewan.

In 1938, he worked at Cornwall's St. Lawrence Sanitorium for patients with tuberculosis, and diseases of the chest.

Justus has resided and practised as a general practitioner in the Village of Chesterville for 50 years since moving here with his wife Margaret in 1940.

At that time, his practise included a wide variety of medicine. "I used to be in the operating room every morning at 8 a.m. and in obstetrics at night," he said.

Today he still runs a restricted practise, seeing some patients in his office in Chesterville.

In the 1940s, he was one of a few founding doctors and community members from Winchester, Mountain, Osgoode and Russell Townships interested in setting up a small hospital in Winchester.

From 1944-48, Justus chaired a fund-raising committee to found the hospital. Monies were raised by private subscription , a $20,000 grant from Winchester Village and Winchester Township, and a government grant of $1,000 a bed.

The hospital which initially provided for patients in the immediate area eventually encompassed the whole of Dundas County which it serves today.

Doctors rename library

Hospital Auxiliary needs helpers

WINCHESTER — President Gail VanNoy welcomed a large attendance to the September meeting of the Winchester Hospital Auxiliary and issued an appeal for male and female volunteers. If you can spare a couple of hours once in a while get in touch with Gail or the unit rector in your area.

Many knitting needles were busy over the summer. Chesterville brought in 8 knited baby sets, 4 pairs of baby socks, 4 pairs of long bed socks, and a pullover sweater. They are also holding another Linen and Collectible Fair, October 13 from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Morrisburg knitters sent 72 pairs of mittens, 2 baby sets and an afghan. Golden Valley Unit sent 2 baby sets and 6 pairs of spiral baby socks. Jennie Moore, a Winchester Sr. Citizen sent a whole shopping bag full of knitted slippers.

Summers-Cass Bridge, Maple Ridge will be holding their canvass before the Bazaar.

Arlene Davidson, Winchester Unit Director reported recepits of $6586.92 from their summer bingos with an approximate profit of $5000.

The meeting welcomed Board chairman Wayne Burns who once again acknowledged the tremendous assistance given to the hospital both financially and through the Volunteer program as well as the help with re-decorating the waiting rooms and Gift Shoppe.

Louise Shaw gave a glowing report of the Junior volunteers over the summer. The season ended with a pizza party, presentation of Pins and certificates. Some of these young folks could be used on weekends and after school this winter.

The meeting approved the recommendation of the purchasing committee to purchase two Anesthetic Monitors at a cost of $50,700 from The "In Memorium Fund".

Joanne Jones, volunteer co-ordinator, gave her final report as she is moving to New Brunswick. She introduced her successor Edna Levere who will be known to many because of her numerous years of working in the hospital.

The Sunshine Circle reported a busy summer and voted $150. to continue their work with patients in 1-East.

The next Bazaar meeting will be held October 11 at 10 a.m. at the hospital. In the meantime keep in mind the Bazaar on October 27 at North Dundas High School where your extra jams, jellies, crafts and garden produce will be most welcome.

Teens who have worked as Teen Volunteers and are furthering their education in a Health related field should get their applications in to Lynne Cummings, Chesterville for the auxiliary Teen Bursary, right away.

The Fall Conference will be held at the Talisman on October 25.
