Inkerman District Chambions Win 2 in 3 From Cornwall

Inkerman Rockets defeated Cornwall Silkworms by 9-5 last night in the third and deciding game of the Ottawa District Hockey Asosciation Junior finals to win the championship on Morrisburg ice. Each team had won one game in the best of three series.

Inkerman will now meet Ottawa University in the best-of-three series for the right to advance into the opening round of the Memorial Cup playdowns. The first game will be played Friday night in Winchester with the second game in Ottawa next Monday night. Site of the third game, if necessary, has not yet been determined.

The Rockets, paced by Grant McIntosh and Johnny Kirkwood, jumped into a four-goal lead in the first period, while holding Cornwall off the score sheet and were never headed to win their first title. The teams divided four goals equally in the middle frame and split six more evenly in the final heat.

The game was cleanly played with only eight minor penalties handed out by the neutral officials. The teams split the penalties evenly, each getting four.

Johnny Kirkwood, star of the second game at Winchester, and McIntosh each scored three goals to pace the rockets while Lyle Pitt, Frank Salter and Frank Whitteker bagged the other Inkerman goals.

"Lifebuoy Follies" Pack Community Hall to Capacity

On Monday evening, the Community Hall was filled to capacity when through the generosity of Lever Brothers, Ltd., the "Lifebuoy Follies" was presented in aid of the local Red Cross. For the past two years this talented group of professional performers has played to a total of over 250,000 Canadian soldiers in camps across Canada. Under the auspices of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross Society, the show is, for the first time, playing to the general public. The Lever Bros. Company is paying the entire cost of the performance, leaving all the receipts in the hands of the Red Cross Branch. The cast including Jimmy Devon,, former "Dumbell" star whose eccentric dancing has won encores in every theatre of note in England, South Africa and North America; Pat Rafferty, comedian with "Dumbells", the show of the last war which was so successful that it stayed on tour for ten years after; Jack Ayre, who was the original pianist of the "Dumbells"; Norman Evans, Canadian-born baritone; Helen Bruce famous for her work in Gilbert and Sullivan operettas; Irene Hughes, who teams with Jimmy Devon in very excellent dancing numbers; Joan Elaine, whose accordion playing is very popular and Daphine Mac Farlane with song and guitar impersonations.

There were 619 paid admission to this excellent performance making gross proceeds of $309.50 for the benefit of the Red Cross. Tickets were sold in advance by each of the various units of the branch and in the village, the record number of sales being made by Mrs. Cameron Baker, who sold 225 tickets. The executive wishes to thank all who contributed in any way to the success of the evening's performance and especially those who loaned chairs which were needed to accommodate the record crowd, the Oddfelows', the Roman Catholic Parish, the United church Sunday school and the Woman's Institute.

ADVERTISE IN THE RECORD
. . IT PAYS!

THURSDAY, MARCH 16TH, 1944

ANTICIPATION IS A GREAT PLEASURE

In the matter of promises at least a lot of the Ontario farmer in the post war period is to be a veritable bed of roses compared to his prewar lot. Sanitary plumbers are to see to it that he has running water and all other hygenic appliances with the electric light casting a lustre not only throughout the house but in the barn and stables as well. The Government will look after his health for a small impost and see that he plants trees to give him shade against the summer sun and protection from the cold blasts of winter. The war is far from over yet but these reforms are pleasant to contemplate. It has remained for Hydro Commissioner, G.H. Challies, to fill the farmer's lot to overflowing. Through "quick-freezing" units he will be able at low cost to enjoy in midwinter the berries and vegetables he produced in the summer. Mr. Challies, speaking in the legislature last week, said the quick-freezing unit was not a dream but had been worked on for months in Hydro laboratories to sell at a very low cubic foot cost. Hydro was not merchandising but would provide cheap power to bring modern equipment within the reach of every farm home. He knew of one unit already in operation which could hold 60 dozen ears of corn, six crates of strawberries, six crates of raspberries as well as poultry and meat. Through their use farmers could enjoy in the winter their summer surplus. He could not think of anything better than to make it possible for waterworks to be established in every farm house. Electric pumps will make this possible. The change in the service charge setup will permit rural power users to enjoy a reduction of $527.500 in charges, to be covered by the consolidated revenue fund.

WILL TRUSTEES BE USELESS

The attempt at what is described as unionization by the teachers of Ontario by asking the Legislature to enact a Teaching Profession Act seems destined for a stiff opposition. This proposed Act has been set forth in draft form by the Ontario Teacher's Federation and the claim is made that during the provincial election campaign it received the endorsation of Premier Drew although there has been no official confirmation in regard to this. On the other hand the claim is made that such an Act would reduce the status of the average trustee to that of a rubber stamp, probably synthetic at that. As was to be expected the Urban School Trustees Association has issued a brief in which it is set out that "It is perhaps because of our appreciation of the importance of individual members of the teaching profession that we find ourselves unable to agree with several of the provisions of the proposed act. The teacher is employed by a corporate body and receives a fixed annual salary. This salary is paid by the public. The Board of Trustees employing a teacher is not a collective capitalistic organization. It is not a profit-making organization. The members are the elected representatives of the people owing a duty to the teacher not less than to the taxpayer and the children in the schools. Boards of Education and Boards of Trustees must endeavor to hold the scales fairly as between the various interests in accordance with their best judgment." The trustees further state that the teaching profession is too closely tied up with the life of every person in the community to permit the members of that profession alone to certify as to the qualification or disqualification of its members. The qualification "must be under the close supervision of the Government itself."

FACTS ONLY MUST FORM BASIS

The need for qualified commissioners to deal with assessment appeals against revision court decisions is being urged by several municipalities throughout the province. The question has arisen as to why a county judge could make an unappealable decision on an assessment involving $1,500.00 while his decision on an assessment of $3,000.00 is appealable. J.P. Coombe, supervisor of the Department of Municipal Affairs states that a judge can only make a decision on facts placed before him. He expressed the opinion that all assessment appeals should be dealt with by persons having a thorough knowledge of assessments and land valuations. By land value he explained he didn't mean the price it would bring during the land market boom. The presiding judiciary has to make his decision on facts as presented and often they may not be full facts.

GOOD MACHINES STILL LACKING

One of the great headaches to the Ontario farmer at the present time is the lack of necessary new machinery. It is claimed that despite the labor shortage adequate provisions to alleviate conditions have not been made by giving labor-saving agricultural equipment of the type most urgently required a Class A priority. It has been suggested that much could be done by surveying the needs peculiar to each farming area and allocating new machinery quotas on that basis. The evidence of the great lack of machinery is evidenced by the brisk bidding for used implements at farm auction sales, old machines frequently commanding almost as high a price as when new.

EDUCATION FOR PARENTHOOD

"Parental education should be made compulsory before young people are allowed to marry," Dr. Kenneth Rogers, general secretary of the Big Brother Movement (Canada), advocated when he spoke in a symposium on prevention of juvenile delinquency.

"Delinquent boys and girls come from delinquent parents," Doctor Rogers declared. "Anyone can be a parent. It is the most important calling in the world and we have no required standards for it. Doctors, teachers and ministers must comply with the standards of their profession first. We even have talk of compulsory physical examination before marriage. Why not compulsory parental education before young people are allowed to become parents?"

Dr. C.E. Silcox, director of the Canadian Conference of Christians and Jews, said, "The juvenile collapse is not caused by the war, but by the disintegration of society in our day."

"We are trying to do by law something that law can never do," he declared. "Law can stop evil forces, but cannot make anyone good. Character education, led by the church, should be the principal approach to juvenile delinquency problems.

"Schools must teach the importance of community life and protecting of community property," said Dr. C.C. Goldring, superintendent of Toronto schools.

Reverse

"Is this the pugilist who was run into by a motorist," asked the house surgeon.

"No; he's the motorist who ran into the pugilist."

EIGHTH ARMY ENTERS ISERNIA—IMPORTANT ITALIAN ROAD JUNCTION

When men of a British regiment entered the important town and road junction of Isernia in central Italy a few hours ahead of an American patrol on the night of November 4th, 1943, they found that it had already been evacuated by the enemy. The town itself was in a state of extreme ruin, having been heavily bombed by Allied aircraft and having had all important buildings which were then standing blown up by the Germans before they left.

Picture shows: British troops patrol the debris-strewn streets of Isernia.

ONIONS FROM SOUTH AMERICA

South American onions will reach the Canadian retail market early in April, ending the current scarcity, the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has announced.

Onions are not only a popular but also a useful food, the nutrition division of the Health League of Canada says. One pound of onion contains about 250 food calories, small amounts of calcium, phosphorus and iron, and about 15 milligrams of ascorbic acid. The Vitamin C content of the onion is six times as great if it is consumed raw (as in salads) than if it is eaten cooked.

CONTINUE CONTROL OVER MOTOR TRUCKS

Permit control over the operation of private trucks beyond 35 miles from their registered address must be continued because of the still critical supply of gasoline, rubber and trucking equipment, says a statement issued by the Prices Board. The gasoline supply situation is said to have never been more critical, while the supply of new tires for trucks will not be more than sufficient to take care of the most essential requirements. Moreover, the introduction of synthetic rubber is imposing new operating problems on every truck operator. As for trucks themselves, it is reported that the normal demand for replacements far exceeds the supply of new vehicles to be available for civilian purposes this year. The order does not, of course, cover trucks owned by farmers and used in their own farming operations.

Your motor vehicle permit fee remains the same. A windshield stamp will be issued with your 1944 motor vehicle permit, validating the use of your 1943 plate.

The application for 1944 is provided on the back of the 1943 permit. This is the only form that may be used.

HYDRO RATE CHANGE BENEFITS RURAL ONTARIO

On January 1, 1944, The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario inaugurated a new uniform rate for the supply of electricity to all consumers served direct by the Commission, in the rural areas of Ontario. This new rate has many advantages and provides a saving to most Farm and Hamlet users.

The principal beneficial features of the new rate are as follows:

1. All Rural Power Districts are now co-ordinated into one Rural Provincial Power System with a uniform meter rate applying throughout.
2. The estimated saving to Rural Ontario per year is an amount exceeding $500,000.00, equivalent to 10 percent of the Commission's total revenue from Rural consumers in 1943.
3. The service charge for Farm users has been removed.
4. The service charge to Hamlet consumers has been cut in half.
5. The majority of all Rural customers (approximately 97 percent) are benefited by this rate change, only a small number (approximately 3%) are adversely affected to a minimum extent.

Individual Bills Vary with Use of Electricity

CHECK ALL THREE

In making direct comparisons between your power bill under the new rate and that for a similar period under the previous rate, several conditions must be considered. These conditions include the amount of electrical energy used (kilowatt-hours), the former meter rate, and the demand or peak load where additional equipment has been installed.

For example, your first bill under the new rate may be higher than the bill you received a year ago for the same period, because of increased use, i.e. higher kilowatt-hours. In such cases, a fair comparison can only be made by calculating the bill, using the increased consumption at the old rate, and comparing this amount with your present bill.

COMPARE YOUR USE

INCREASED LOAD

Again, many customers such as garages, service stations, refreshment stands, etcetera, have increased their demand by installing additional or larger equipment. In such cases, their bills may now be increased, since the higher demand or peak load results in a larger number of kilowatt-hours being billed under the first and second block rates.

Some consumers using electricity in very small amounts have received minimum bills. In these cases it should be noted that they are entitled to use additional electricity, as allowed for in the minimum charge, without extra cost.

USE WHAT YOU PAY FOR

These explanations are given as a guide to assist you in applying the new rates. If you need further information, ask your Rural District Superintendent.

NEW SERVICES

Wartime restrictions and difficulties add considerably to the problem of providing electric service. Your Rural District Superintendent will connect approved farm services as quickly as the shortage of materials and manpower will permit.

BABY CHICKS

A lot has been said in these columns about poultry since the war began. It has been said for a purpose —to interest young people and people not so young in keeping and caring for poultry so that every additional egg and chicken produced would be just that much more help in carrying on successfully this dreadful war. So here are today a few hints about the care of baby chicks.

The poultry farmer is usually faced with the prospect of replacing half, if not more of his flock each year, because the profitable laying life of the domestic hen is short. To provide for this replacement, large numbers of baby chicks are hatched each year but far too many never reach a profitable age. With the rapid expansion that has taken place in the industry in recent years there has been an increasing mortality that seems to be out of normal proportion. Too often this loss is the consequence of conditions that can be avoided.

In their own interests, reputable hatcheries have exercised considerable effort to safeguard their customers, but no matter how vigorous and healthy the newly hatched chick may be, if it is stunted and weakened by errors in feeding or brooding in the early days of its existence it will be a losing proposition in the end.

In suitable environment with modern, reliable equipment and scientifically prepared "starter" feeds the rearing of healthy strong chickens is a simple process. But if the mere essential requirements are disregarded and make-shift appliances and feeds of doubtful value are used in an effort to cut down cost, the risk of failure is increased.

A good weather-proof building that provides for plenty of sunlight and fresh air and a reliable heating unit supplied with the best fuel that can be obtained insures the comfort of the baby chick with a minimum of attention and labour for the operator. Once chilled the chick may never recover sufficiently to be profitable. Deaths constitute a loss more serious than generally recognized, as late replacement will never equal the earlier hatched chick.

There is no economy in feeding cheap and inferior rations. Until it gets out on range the chick depends entirely on the feed that is provided in the brooder so that it is essential that the feed consists of all the elements necessary to promote more growth and energy.

In a brooding program that includes good chicks from a reliable source, dependable equipment, sanitary surroundings, fresh water and plenty of suitable feed, for no chick dies of overeating—nature will take care of the rest.

A WORD ABOU NEWFOUNDLAND

Newfoundland has become better known to Canadians during the last three or four years. Boys and girls shuttle back and forth on furlough and Gander, St. John's and Botwood are as familiar to Canadians as Camp Borden, Halifax and Edmonton. These young people are seeing a country which not so long ago was seemingly never out of debt.

As a result of the depression, one-quarter of the people were on relief prior to the opening of the fishing season and many of the other three-quaters were merely eeking out an existence. Annual deficits plunged the country into a perilous condition and by 1934, 65 percent of the national revenue was being used to meet the national debt.

In that year, a "Government by Commission" replaced the one in operation. Of the six Commissioners, three were chosen from Newfoundland and three from the United Kingdom. This plan finally achieved its purpose and with the assistance of grants-in-aid from the United Kingdom Exchequer the books were made to balance. But the economic structure was not greatly improved until 1941-42 at which time Canada and the United States were engaged in establishing extensive defence bases in the country.

Since 90 percent of the goods consumed in Newfoundland have been imported, Canada has supplied important quantities of materials. Buildings, machinery and virtually all essentials were in a run-down conidtion and had to be renewed. Industries such as the two large paper mills, the lead mine and the woollen mill gave many work and the United Towns Electric Company Limited, Canadian Marconi, International Radio Telephone, the Newfoundland Government Railway and Pan-American Airways and other enterprises employed many more.

Canada's exports to Newfoundland amounted to nearly 51 million dollars—army and navy stores amounting to 14 millions dollars of the total. Canned or dehydrated food are two large items, over three million pounds of fruit, 26,000 galions of fruit juice or syrups, and about nine million pounds of vegetables were shipped in tins. Fresh meat, either chilled or frozen, was valued at over two million dollars while meat preparations reached over the million dollar mark. Processed milk amounted to 40,000 hundredweight and over one million dozen eggs in the shell were delivered. A few other interesting exports showing a decided increase in a year were soap, a jump from 276,000 lbs. to four and a half million; musical instruments from $9,000 to $14,000; amusements and sporting goods, including dolls and toys just about double. Our imports consisted chiefly of iron ore, fish and fish products.

The import and export figures are taken from the External Trade Branch's report compiled in the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The Japanese have been driven from the Pacific Coast where they once tried to capture the sealing trade near Alaska. Not only are the seals getting a break from being chased by the Japanese fishermen but both American and Canadian sealers are occupied elsewhere. No fur seals have been caught in British Columbia waters during the last two years.

The seals have been journeying unmolested to northern waters to the Pribilof Islands. An international agreement allows only the British Columbia Indians to hunt the seals but they have no time for sealing now due to wartime employment and enlistments.

There are seals and seals. Those which congregate on the Pribilof Islands are the Alaska fur seals. For commercial purposes the long, coarse outer hairs are plucked, leaving a fine, soft under-fur which is dyed a rich brown.

Another visitor in Pacific waters is the large seal called the sea-lion. Fishermen have launched the complaint that this animal eats too many salmon and other commercial fish and have therefore destroyed numbers of them. These two classes of seal have two physical features different from hair, bearded, gray and hooded seals. In the former class, the ears are external and the hind feet are free from the tail enabling the seals to move about readily on land. The latter have no external ears and the hind feet are united to the tail. They are hunted chiefly for their oil. The Eskimo uses the small ringed seal and the bearded seal for food.

There were 25,000 hair seals caught and landed in 1942 from which 21,000 skins were marketed and over 88,000 gallons of industrial oil obtained, according to the Fisheries and Animal Products Branch of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Radio Forum News

S.S. No. 10 met at the home of Thos. McCadden last Monday night. 25 members present; Hulbert Cross convenor. The broadcast was intended to stimulate discussion on co-operation methods of farm interests both man power and machinery. In general, the group was not in favour of co-operative projects, except in a few exceptions such as co-operative ownership of threshers, silo filling equipment, potato diggers, etc. The favoured the old neighborly method of changing work informally as against the possibly more business-like method of exchanging equal hours of labour and paying for extra hours with cash. It was collection night and $5 90 was forwarded to the Ontario office.

Matilda South Forum, which includes part of the 2nd and 3rd concessions of Matilda, held their meeting in the township hall in Brinston. The convenor, Rev. Mr. Hutton of Iroquois, stated to the 54 members present that the object of attempting a township meeting was to interest more farmers and their families in forum work so that they would be ready to start new forums when the broadcasts start again next fall.

Mountain township forums are holding a joint meeting in the Consolidated school next Monday night review night. The members of S.S. No. 10 have been invited to attend this township forum. It is hoped that the members will attend in good numbers.

The last meeting of the season for S.S. No. 10 will be held in the home of Hugh Smith on Monday, March 27th. There will be a slight difference in the programe and should be of special interest to forum members.

CHANCE TO FARM SHOULD BE OPEN TO EVERY FARM BOY

After the war every farm boy should have a chance to farm, said Dr. G.S.H. Barton, Dominion Deputy Minister of Agriculture, in a recent address to the 44th annual meeting of the Ontario Agricultural Societies held in Toronto.

"With the return of the armed forces under the Veterans Land Act farm manpower in Canada will be reinforced temporarily to some extent, but that will not insure the maintainance of the farm population. It has been estimated that farm ownership changes once in every period of twenty-five years" he said. "Our present farm ownership population is much older than normal, so it may be expected to change quite rapidly in the next decade. The returned soldier who desires to become a farm owner will be in a position to purchase a farm under favorable terms. The farmer who owns a farm and has a son who desires to farm can make it possible for that boy to farm. A few farmers may be able to make it possible for more than one son to farm, but many farm boys who may desire to farm are unable to do so, because they are unable to purchase a farm. The farmer who has no boys, or none who want to farm, is obliged to sell the farm when he is through. The farm boys in any community ought to be the logical successors of farms in that community as they were in previous generations. There is good reason to believe that they would continue to be were it not for the fact that the cash investment required under present conditions is beyond their reach. These boys ought to be just as good a farmer risk as they ever were and if means could be found for assuming that risk every farm boy would have a chance to farm.

FOUR TESTS WHEN BUYING A FARM

If you decide to buy a farm, the question is how are you to know what kind of farm to buy, observes J. Coke, Economic Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture, in the Economic Annalist. There are many factors to be considered, he says, but there are four unfailing tests. The first is soil. There is no way of overcoming the defects of infertile soil without incurring excessive costs. The second test is are related to soil, climate, typography, and farm practices. Consistenty low yields mean low productivity. Third, there is location in relation to markets which will determine what sort of farming you may profitaly engage in. The markets are the basis of the net income you can get out of that farm. The fourth test is what kind of neighbours you will have and what they seem to have been able to get out of their land. You may prove to be a better or a worse farmer than the present operator. The neighbours tell the story of what you may be able to do.

Mr. Coke gives the following advice: "Before you buy a farm, ask yourself where does the money come from? A farm must produce an income. The income you can get out of it determines what you can afford to pay for it. In reaching a decision, take past performance as your guide. Buying a farm is a long-time investment. A farm is a business and a home. It emphasizes the permanency of farming. That is something that has not been concerned about recently and others unable to attain. It will always be impossible for some because they will lag behind in the pursuit of a good living.

"In an ordered economy, agriculture should enjoy a degree of permanency consistent with the idea of a dynamic world. In the past 20 years agriculture in Canada has undergone many changes. Still others appear to be in store. It is necessary that the majority of farmers be able to farm efficiently and to adjust farm practices and management to changing conditions, so that agriculture will contribute a full share to the national income and national life. Inflated and deflated land values will prevent farmers from entering into this happy hunting ground."

LATENT HEAT IN ICE.

Much is being said these days about the farms that are to be made easy of requisition by our Armed Forces overseas, and many of the farm problems they will have to deal with are being discussed. A wealth of valuable instruction material has been published and, no doubt, much will be added.

Col. S.S. Weatherbie, of the Department of Munitions and Supply who is a veteran of the First Great War and owns a well-equipped farm in Prince Edward Island, sends to the editor of the Fact a Day a very useful little study on what might be called the "Latent Heat of Ice." Col. Weatherbie says: "I built a small electric plant on my farm in Prince Edward Island. The wheel was an overshot one and the water supply was conveyed through an 18-inch pipe to a pen-stock in the power house. The pipe was 26-feet in length and unprotected for its whole length. The water supply is a pond with an area of about 20,000 square feet, with a maximum depth of 8 feet. The dynamo is 110 volts D.C., 1½ K.W. maximum and the power take-off direct from the machine through a switchboard. After 'lights out' the power is cut down to idling so as to conserve water. The amount of water coming over the wheel at idling is quite small.

One morning during January the outside thermometer registered 26 degrees F. below zero, yet the temperature within the power house was 39 degrees above zero, or a difference of 65 degrees from the outside air. No artificial or other heat was used in the plant, yet the latent heat from the water released in passing over the water wheel was sufficient to keep the house warm in any weather. At the time mentioned, there was a sheet of ice 24 inches thick over the power pond. Snow had fallen during the night. On top of the flume pipe there were six inches of snow, while underneath there was a deep fringe of icicles from the snow that had melted on the top of the pipe.

Similarly the 1-inch pipe, 45-feet long, used as the drive pipe of the hydraulic ram from the same pond, did not freeze although entirely unprotected in the air. The non-freezing of this pipe, is due more to water movement rather than to latent heat from it."

Children's Welfare

The first of a Series of Seven Articles which will appear in these columns.

Have you even grieved over a lost dog?

How well the writer remembers, over twenty-five years, that little Boston Bull who was lost for a whole week. How the family searched for him, lay awake at night thinking of that little loving, faithful friend—hungry, cold, lonely—strayed or stolen from home!

And when one morning she was seen coming up the street—what overwhelming joy! Bedraggled, utterly exhausted, he just dragged himself along. But what a pathetic effort he made to respond to the welcoming arms! And when he lay in his basket loving hands stroking him, his great brown eyes gazed full of unutterable memories. They told all he had suffered in a little dog's panic and heartache.

But what about a little lost child—lost to love and care and happiness?

This is the first of a series of articles to be published in this paper about the work that is being carried on every day throughout the length and breadth of this province to protect and salvage the lives of children. It will tell you something about the struggle of over half a century to enact laws and establish children's courts and develop Children's Aid Societies with this one aim and purpose: That no little boy or girl in Ontario should be neglected or abused—living without proper care, without happiness, without a just and fair chance of growing strong and sound in body and mind.

There is no work in the community comparable to this work among the children who have been deprived of normal homes, natural loving parents and an equal chance to grow to happy and useful citizenship with the other children in their community! Nothing comparable because it embraces a hope and a value that only work among children can bring. It is a work that every man and woman in every community throughout Ontario can help in some way or another.

Some can help through volunteer work on local Children's Aid Committees, some by participating in the management of the Children's Aid Society—which is the people's own democratic organization. Some can help by offering boarding homes for little homeless children. All can help by understanding just what the local Children's Aid Scoiety is doing and trying to do and by using their influence as citizens to bring about even stronger laws and higher standards for child care in this banner province of the Dominion.

Let us go back not much more than half a century ago and see how the neglected and ill-treated child was faring at the hands of comfortably placed, well-fed citizens whose own children were enjoying every care and protection! How much thought was given to these little waifs—girls as well as boys—who used to run the streets night and day selling newspapers in Canadian Cities at the tender age of ten and even younger? What laws protected children against brutal, drunken, depraved children? What shelter was to be found for children with actually no homes at all, good or bad?

Do you know that in Canada, the United States and England the movement for the protection for animals actually preceded the movement for the protection of children?

There was a good woman in New York—a Mrs. Wheeler—who one day about the year 1880 heard of a poor woman dying of tuberculosis in a tenement and visited her. But when she sat by her bedside the dying woman said: "It is too late to do anything for me—see what you can do for that poor little fellow across the hall whose drunken parents beat him so unmercifully!"

Mrs. Wheeer went across the hall and found a child so bruised and battered, so foresaken and unhappy that she went out all over New York city to enlist aid in bringing the parents to justice. She visited clergymen, lawyers, police courts, only to discover that no law existed there under which parents could be charged with cruelty to their own children. Finally she went to the president of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and this gentleman, who was also a lawyer, was deeply interested and between them they decided to attempt to make a charge of "cruelty to a human animal!"

They secured a conviction and this astounding case aroused public interest and sympathy and thus was initiated the movement for laws and institutions to protect children throughout the United States.

In the next article I will tell you how a group of humane people first sought protection of Toronto children under a common banner for protection of animals; and what happened when an effort was made to have a Winnipeg animal protection society extend its interests to neglected and ill-treated children whom no one had thought to protect.

Ontario President-Elect Returns From Overseas

Returning home after a two months inspection trip of Red Cross which took him through a London blitz, and over 3000 miles in England and Scotland, C. Bruce Hill, president-elect of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross Society says that the thing which impressed him most was the overwhelming gratitude of the British people for what the Red Cross has done for them. Such heartfelt gratitude is a challenge, he feels, to Canadians in the Society's current campaign for $10,000,000 which Red Cross is asking as its Dominion wide objective.

At the headquarters of the Women's Voluntary Services, chief distribution point of clothing and supplies from Canadian Red Cross, at the 14 nurseries which Canadian Junior Red Cross maintains and where jam and honey and other nourishing food and clothing is provided; in the British Convalescent Homes and Red Cross Hospitals the story is the same of deep gratitude to the Canadian people for what they have received through the Canadian Red Cross. "Every place I went and no matter whom I talked to, government or service people or just plain folks, the story was the same."

Crossing the ocean, Mr. Hill became acquainted with a British merchant seaman who had been torpedoed for the fourth time. "This man could not say enough for what the Canadian Red Cross had done for him at St. Johns, Newfoundland. Anyone who had knitted socks and sweaters for the men of the Navy would want to go on knitting for another ten years in appreciation of what these men are doing in escorting convoys under all sorts of weather conditions."

One of the lesser known services of Canadian Red Cross is the tracing of prisoners and Mr. Hill found much evidence of the speed and efficiency with which the Canadian Red Cross worked, and the resultant happiness to the prisoner's family. Everywhere the British people talked of the wonderful Canadian Red Cross food parcels and there were many repatriated men who talked of little else. It seemed as if the thankfulness of the British people was brimming over and Mr. Hill told of being present at a social affair when an R.A.F. officer gave unsolicited testimony of the benefits he and other R.A.F. men had derived from Canadian Red Cross.

The Ontario Division's president-elect had high praise for the speed and efficiency with which the British air raid organization works. During the big air raid he witnessed in London only a few days ago, he saw Red Cross Corps members in the thick of it, working calmly and efficiently. "You'd think they were just going out to breakfast," he said.

Mr. Hill, along with Harold Leather, chairman of hte Hamilton Prisoner of War Packing Depot, attended the presentation of a mobile canteen to the National Fire Services at Cheltenham. Major General C. B. Price, D.S.O., D.C.M., V.D., the Overseas Commissioner, made the presentation, which was the gift, through Canadian Red Cross, of a Montreal citizen. Another highlight of Mr. Hill's visit overseas was the opening of the Canadian Red Cross Officers Club in London, at which the Duchess of Kent officiated.

Mr. Hill says that the generous contributions and the work of Canadians have put the Canadian Red Cross among the leaders in the 17 Red Cross organizations represented in London. "If the people of Ontario realized what the spirit of the Canadian Red Cross means to the British people, and to our own service men and women, they would not hesitate to give and give generously in this campaign," he concluded.

One of the most interesting performances of the great American classic, "Rip Van Winkle," took place in the village of Catskill itself.

Before the performance, Joseph Jefferson, the incomparable portrayer of Rip, was dining at his hotel when he heard a Negro waiter giving a graphic and detailed account of the legend of the Catskill Mountains to one of the guests.

"Yes, sah" marveled the waiter, "Rip went up into de mountains, slep for 20 years and when he came back in dis very town his own folks didn't know him."

"You don't believe the story true, do you?" asked the guest.

"True?" exclaimed the darky. "Ob course it is. Why—" pointing to Jefferson—"dat's de man."

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dixon, Chesterville, visited Mr. and Mrs. G.C. Merkley.

Here is one for Bob Ripley.—What night in the year when most people in the valley forget to discuss all the mistakes of the King Government, spring seeding, progress of the war, the ceiling on farm products and so on. Answer: March13th, Mr. Geo. C. Merkley's birthday, this being his 74th. Big oaks from little acorns grow, is about the way the annual affair started and grew. The late Norman Moodie was about to retire one March 13th when around 11 p.m. he finished reading, and remembered he hadn't gone over to wish Mr. Geo. C. many happy returns, as he couldn't go to bed with a clear conscience, he walked over the half mile and as Mr. Merkley had retired he got up and went down to receive a sincere hand clasp and good wishes. From then on the valley has followed this glad example. We often think that such an occasion as this could very well be copied by other districts and also more of it in our own districts. Several get-togethers would promote much enjoyment, good will. Mr. Merkley is 74 years young and we mean young. He is one of the few who will never grow old. The evening was spent in games and sing song with Mrs. K. Merkley at the piano. A contest asking who could name the greatest number of inventions and so on in use now that were not even dreamed of when Mr. Merkley was a boy, such as telephone, radio, etc. Mrs. Enos. Merkley took 1st prize for the ladies and Mr. C.S. Munro for the men. Around midnight the birthday cake with its 74 candles appeared and Mr. Merkley and his grand children had quite a time blowing them out. Lunch followed, cake, sandwiches, ice cream and coffee, served by Mrs. Geo. C. Merkley, assisted by Mrs. Harry Holmes and Mrs. Lloyd Merkley. The enjoyable evening came to a close with "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and good wishes and an invitation back in 1945.

Every Man His Own Monopolist

Reprinted from The Statesman, Bowmanville, Ontario.

This is the sixth in a series of articles reviewing the latest book and the current speeches of the CCF. We said in a previous article that Canada's socialist party had really placed a spurious meaning upon the word "democracy". Another word that they have distorted equally if not more so, is "monopoly." In all their literature, including their latest book, "Make This Your Canada," it is their considered and consistent practice to use the word "monopoly" and the phrase "monopoly capitalism" to condemn all sorts of free enterprise, without any regard to the facts.

Let us have a look at it. The CCF says that we are living under a system, not of democracy—(they are the only true democrats to hear them tell it)—but of monopoly capitalism.

There are more than 90 daily newspapers in Canada—monopoly-controlled, according to "Make This Your Canada". Take a look at the Toronto Star, the Toronto Telegram and the Globe and Mail, pursuing the most violent competition in what is probably Canada's most highly competitive newspaper city. The press is no monopoly. But the CCF would strangle it. To take their view of it, Canada's 90 odd daily newspapers, 800 odd weekly newspapers and many national magazines, all competing against each other and owned by a variety of sharheolders, are "monopolistic."

Canada's life insurance companies some of them owned by tens of thousands of shareholders but a large number of them mutual, being owned by millions of policy-holders, are monopolistic. Just take a look at it: 47 life insurance companies, fighting each other tooth and nail for business with a vast proportion of the profits going to the policy-holders, are, in the eyes of the CCF, a "monopoly." The trouble is the CCF sees "monopoly" around every corner and under every bed.

Canada's banks are a monopoly according to the CCF. The fact that they are owned by more than 50,000 individual shareholders doesn't mean a thing to Mr. Scott, to Mr. Lewis or Mr. Coldwell.

A few weeks ago a "wildcat" gold mine in Northern Ontario in which people had bought shares at 5 cents each, jumped overnight to $1.50 a share bid on Bay Street. Why? Because the company, drilling on its property, had obtained a "drill core" that showed remarkable gold values. All the little people who had invested at a nickel a share and who suddenly found themselves enriched through having helped to finance this instance of free enterprise are "monopolists" in the eyes of the CCF. All Albertans and others who subscribed to penny shares in Alberta oil companies and cashed in—all the tens of thousands of people in Ontario and Quebec who furnished the venture capital which brought in Lake Shore and Wright-Hargreaves and Kerr-Addison and a score of others—well, according to the CCF, they are "monopolists."

Destroy individual enterprise, take over the natural resources, remove venture opportunity, compensate the shareholders and tax them back the compensation, remove personal initiative and the hope of gain, wipe out profit—even to the individual on mining shares—that is what the CCF proposes to do to this nation of hated "monopolists."

It is significant that in their discussions of monopoly capitalism, Mr. Scott and Mr. Lewis, especially extol the co-operative movement as an alternative to present-day capitalism. First they forget that co-operation exists side by side with capitalism and is part of the national economic system in this and other countries, notably Sweden.

Next, they extol at page 80 the Canadian Wheat Pool as the high example of Canadian co-operative effort. Of course Professor Scott and Mr. Lewis omit to mention that these great successful co-operatives achieved their success by being financed—by our wicked "monopolistic" banks. How can the CCF for one moment contend that "monopoly capitalism", which they say is inherent in our banking system, thwarts, controls or frustrates the will of the people as manifest in these great co-operatives. The very reverse is the case.

THE FARMER MUST PAY AND PAY

Not only has the policy of the CCF failed to declare specifically against nationalizing the farms—now or at any future time—but its authors would compel the farmer to pay more into the national treasury.

Under their plan with regard to Unemployment Insurance, the farmers will take on new exactions out of proportion to some other classes of the community. At the same time, where the CCF glibly promises relief in regard to income taxes, the proportion of benefits would be less for the farmers than for others because farm families are only 31.2 p. c. of the population, as is shown on Page 90 of "Make This Your Canada."

At page 178 of "Make This Your Canada," the latest CCF book, appears the following: "The CCF would immediately extend the Unemployment Insurance Act to cover the various types of workers now excluded, such as wage-earners engaged in agriculture . . ." Now that plainly means that the farmer is going to have to pay premiums under the National Unemployment Insurance Act to cover his hired man and his other casual labor who, at present he is not required to insure. So the farmer will be paying more into the national coffers than he does now. We do not mention this by way of discussing the merits of the proposition, which is another matter. We merely state it as a matter of fact, because it is one fact that the CCF can be pinned down to.

All Clear But—

The pilot had taken great pains to explain all about his machine to the pretty young visitor at the airport—its mechanical features, purpose of this and that, what pilots did to meet actual flying conditions and so on. He looked at the girl and smiled. "Now you understand, don't you?"

"All but one thing," replied the girl.

"And what is that?"

"What makes the thing stay up?"

His Dry Clean.

"Life's very difficult," moaned Smith. "The doctor told me the only way to get rid of my rheumatism was to avoid anything damp, especially getting wet."

"Well, that's easy enough," remarked Robinson.

"Is it? Well, I feel like a fool sitting in an empty bathtub, washing myself with a vacuum cleaner!"

How to Get New Books And What They Look Like

The following facts concerning the forthcoming distribution of the No. 4 consumer ration books are given by the Local Ration Board as of general interest to the public:

The distribution of the new books is to be made during the week of March 26 on dates to be announced in different communities. These may easily vary from place to place depending on local conditions and arrangements.

It is essential that consumers familiarize themselves with these dates as failure to obtain the new books at that time will penalize them to the extent of being unable to get them before April 17, before which time the new books will be in use.

Distribution will be effected, as usual, through centres so situated as to be of the greatest convenience to the public. Volunteer staffs will supervise the distribution and volunteers are still needed for this form of natinal service.

Consumers must complete and sign the application card, printed in red, at the back of the No. 3 book, and present that book with the card intact, at the distribution centre. One adult member of the household may apply for all its books and in rural sections an adult neighbor may perform the same service. But each individual book-holder, if literate, must sign his or her own application card. If illiterate, a mark may be made in the accustomed manner in the presence of a witness.

The No. 3 book must be retained by the consumer even after the No. 4 book has been issued. The No. 3 book is not to be surrendered nor destroyed as certain coupons remaining in it will still possess value.

Farmers to Resume Deliveries to Factories

Farmers who supplied milk to cheese factories before Sept. 30, 1943 but who are now selling to fluid milk distributors, creameries and to concentration plants, are required to resume deliveries to cheese factories as soon as possible, the agricultural food board announced Tuesday.

The Board also said that farmers who were selling cream to creameries or milk to concentration plants, before Sept. 30, 1943, are required to resume sales to their former markets or to other dairy manufacturers between now and April 30. Purchasers of milk are responsible for making these adjustments, said the board.

Appointed by the Government last year to direct the distribution of agricultural foodstuffs, the agricultural food board is empowered to stabilize the distribution of milk by preventing its diversion from urgently needed manufactured dairy products.

Last fall, the board restricted cheese factories, creameries, fluid milk distributors and concentration plants from buying from other than their regular patrons except by permit. Although most of these permits expire on either March 31 or April 30, the board said yesterday that in exceptional circumstances it might renew them if dealers apply for an extension.

Hot Stuff

A writer recently described a hero in a bit too hot-headed fashion, like this: "His whole face was lit up. His cheeks flamed, he gave a burning glance, and then, blazing with wrath and boiling with rage, he administered a scorching rebuke."

THE MIXING BOWL

By ANNE ALLAN

Hydro Home Economist

Hello Homemakers! Butter bought with coupons 52 and 53 may be made to last until March 23rd. This will be no hardship for the thrifty homemaker. The elimination of meat rationing will enable folk to get ample of this heat-providing food, because now they may purchase more bacon and pork products that contain a lot of good fat to substitute for butter.

Render fat trimmings, using low heat and put in a glass or enamel container. Cover and store in the upper part of the electric refrigerator. Another amount of dripping may be added whenever fat meat is bought. Do, however, keep different kinds of drippings in separate containers—beef in one jar, pork in one jar, and chicken, duck or goose in another. Lamb or mutton fat is the least successful fat to re-use.

When you use these victory fats in place of butter, use two tablespoons less of the drippings per cup than of butter or other commercial shortening

Pan Broiled Bacon

Place slices of bacon in a cold frying pan. Do not overcrowd the pan. Cook slowly. Turn bacon to cook evenly. If crisp bacon is desired, pour off fat as it accumulates.

Broiled Bacon

Place slices of bacon on broiling rack. Broil about three inches from top of electric element of oven. Turn to cook evenly.

Picnic or Boston Butt

Better grades may be baked like ham or water cooked. Cover with water, simmer, but do not boil. Allow about 30 to 40 minutes per pound. Cook until tender.

Everyday Cake

2 cups sifted cake flour, 1¼ cups sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1-3 cup lard, 2 eggs, ¾ cup milk, teaspoon vanilla.

Sift together all the dry ingredients and blend about 1-3 cup of the mixture with the lard until very soft and light. Add the unbeaten eggs and beat well. Add all the rest of the dry ingredients together with about ½ cup of milk to which the vanilla has been added. Stir smooth. Add the rest of the milk and stir smooth again. Bake in 2 eight-inch layer pans in an electric oven 375 degrees F. for about 20-25 minutes.

Shamrock Cookies

7-8 cup shortening, 1 cup sugar, 2 egg yolks, 2 tablespoons milk, 2 teaspoons vanilla, 4 cups flour (or less), ½ teaspoon salt, 1 egg white, Green sugar crystals.

Allow the shortening to stand at room temperature and then cream with the sugar and egg yolks. Add the milk and vanilla alternately with the flour and salt to make a dough stiff enough to handle. Chill thoroughly. Toss on a lightly floured board. Roll, cut with shamrock cutter, brush tops of shamrock with egg white, sprinkle with green sugar and bake in electric oven at 400 degrees F. six to eight minutes. Green sugar is coarse granulated sugar sprinkled with one drop of green colouring.

Butter Spread
(Suggested by J.B.)

We make one full cup of unsweetened custard using 1 cup of rich top milk, one or two egg yolks and ¼ teaspoon of salt. Cook in top of double boiler and strain. Half a cup of butter is allowed to stand at room temperature until it is soft enough to beat but not oily, then the almost cold custard is whipped into it. This makes one pound of stretched butter from half a pound of butter.

TAKE A TIP

1. Instead of using butter, grease pans with other mild flavored fats.
2. Drippings from beef and pork roasts can be used in meat and vegetable dishes, and for pan-frying many foods.
3. Instead of using butter in cream sauces for vegetables, substitute other fats.
4. Grated cheese on vegetables also will take the place of butter.
5. With baked potatoes, cut a gash in the top and squeeze open—put butter on when served.

If crusts are to be cut off bread for sandwiches, this should be done before buttering.

THE QUESTION BOX

Mrs. J.S. asks: How do you render fat without it spattering over the range?

Answer: We render or try out fat by putting it in a deep pan and placing it over low heat for some time.

Or you may render it in the top part of the double boiler. Pieces of potato heated with the fat will absorb some of the flavour and make the natural taste less strong.

Mrs. M.C. says: Since we can't get as much butter as usual, what can I use to furnish Vitamin A in the menus?

Answer: Vitmain A found in butter is also found in other sources. Serve grated raw carrots or raw beets moistened with mayonnaise. Liver contains much of this important vitamin; and children who take a teaspoon of cod liver oil daily, receive an adequate amount.

UNCLE HY

A man came in to pay his bill and we just stood to chat, we talked of quite a lot of things, of this and of that, but when we came to talk of men of John and Pete and Ned, I found him very much at home, for this is what he said:

"Y'know, Hy., men they vary much you'll find no two alike, there are those who from the very first you'll take a strange dislike but that is when you're often wrong, the fault is all in you and you will find them quite alright, if you'll do what I do.

"If I should meet a man like that, and if I get his name, I do not say the fault is his, but I assume the blame, the next time that I meet that man I shout 'Bill, how are you,' and like as not I find that man, a bit of jake-a-loo."

And so I pass on this advice, to whom it may concern, for no one is too doggone wise, each one has much to learn a hello Bill or hello Jack costs little and it's true, that those you greet in such a way, will yell it back at you.—Trenton Courier Advocate.
