Management change gives WDMH surplus

by Andy McLeister
Press Staff Reporter

WINCHESTER — A new style of management has turned Winchester District Memorial Hospital's fortunes around after five years of running steadily deeper into the red.

The WDMH board of governors' report on operations for the 1989-90 fiscal year (ending March 31) shows a more than $400,000 improvement in the hospital's spending performance over the previous 12 months.

According to the board's May 23 report, the hospital accumulated a $20,182 surplus in 1989-90, on an $11.1 million budget. In the previous year, the hospital overshot by $409,284, spending estimates of $10.5 million.

''It's quite a turnaround,'' James Egan, WDMH's executive director, said of the reported surplus. He credited a number of management initiatives undertaken over the past year with pulling the hospital out of the red.

The hospital has ''decentralized'' administrative authority to give department heads more say in running their individual areas of management, Egan said Tuesday. A review group was established to analyze the need to replace personnel when positions are vacated. The hospital has negotiated business contracts - such as one with its natural gas supplier - to realize thousands of dollars in savings, he said.

Attempts have been made to better utilize the hospital's resources in terms of staff and available beds, Egan said. A costly food services contract was cancelled, with hospital staff taking over this function. The hospital also called tenders for its banking needs which resulted in its switching banks.

About a year ago, Egan told the Press, several task forces were struck to look at a number of operational items. The results of their work was the creation of a different ''management culture'', he said.

The hospital board, management and staff have all become ''cost conscious'' as a result of these initiatives, Egan said. ''We are living within financial parametres which we can't exceed.''

''The staff as a whole, when they really get behind something, when they bite into something, they really make it work,'' Egan said. The hospital board of governors and its president, Joan Farlinger, he added, have been instrumental in providing the overall guidance required to facilitate the hospital's new style of management.

Egan said the '89-90 surplus ''shows the sincere commitment of the board of governors and staff'' to bring about changes designed to improve and streamline operations, while not sacrificing the quality of care available at WDMH.

Effective financial management continues to become more critical as costs escalate beyond government grant increases, because of two factors. Egan mentioned payroll deductions to support the revised formula for contributions to the Ontario Health Insurance Program as one item that will cost the hospital between $40,000 and $50,000. There is also the pay equity program which could add between $80,000 and $100,000 to labor costs in its first year.

The latest fiscal report will be used as ammunition when a local delegation tries to persuade Health Minister Elinor Caplan next Monday to approve the entire $6 million hospital

Groundswell of support for Hulbert residents

by Steve Hummell
Press Staff Reporter

HULBERT — A groundswell of community support is building here for nine elderly residents of the financially-troubled Hulbert Lodge that is threatened with closing.

United Church minister John Niles, spearheading a volunteer and fundraising effort, said about 20 volunteers have started working at the lodge to help cut operating costs. Working two shifts a day, seven days a week, they'll be saving about $3,000 in monthly salaries.

Owned by Bernice Ladanyi of Cardinal, the operation encountered lean times after she bought it two years ago and has lost over $100,000. Her efforts to get financial assistance from Matilda Township and the province have been unsuccessful. She also owns Professional Health Care Services, a private nursing and homemaking service employing 285 people.

Rev. Niles said his congregation and members of the Community Christian Reform Church at Dixon's Corners are rallying behind the seniors. The two churches hold services for the residents who range in age from 70 to 94.

Working closely with Ladanyi, Rev. Niles said her bank had been pressuring her to close the lodge, but in light of the effort to cut overhead costs, has agreed to give the operation more time. Ladanyi could not meet her payroll and mortgage obligations mainly because there were too few residents. There are nine, but 14 to 16 are required to make the

No one-issue party

by Steve Hummell
Press Staff Reporter

MORRISBURG — Elmer Knutson, national leader of the Conferation of Regions Party, climbed the steps of the arena here Saturday morning like a man with a purpose.

Stopped for an interview before entering the arena festooned with the new federal party's yellow and green colors for its annual convention, Knutson, a big man carrying a briefcase, said: ''Step out of the sun so I can look into your eyes.''

What he believes he's seeing when he looks into the eyes of the Canadian public is dissatisfaction with the three main political parties and a growing public realization that national bilingualism is infringing on the rights of the majority.

And this Albertan, who succeeded six years ago in establishing the national party, is not wringing his hands over the Meech Lake constitutional crises.

''I believe that the premiers of our country don't have the right to ammend our constitution and create a distinct society and that we have a whole bunch of brain-dead premiers afraid to slap the hand of the brat (Quebec) who's been bothering us for 120 years,'' said Knutson.

He said the recent resignation of Lucien Bouchard from the federal cabinet — which dealt a blow to Prime Minister Brian Mulroney's urgent attempt to ratify the Accord before its June 23 deadline — was ''a con game to scare the rest of Canada to give in once more to Quebec.''

Knutson added, ''Once the Meech Lake Accord is in then they (Quebec) are a distinct society and I don't care what Mulroney says or anybody, it will be the Supreme Court who will decide what that distinct society really means.''

Elmer Knutson

Recognizing Quebec as a distinct society and giving all provinces expanded powers, Meech Lake was designed to win Quebec's support for the 1982 Constitution, but opposition to it has fueled nationalism in the province.

COR, claiming a national membership of 60,000 and to represent the majority of Canadians who are English-speaking, is trying to remodel the face of Canadian politics by giving an equal voice to the Maritimes, Quebec, Ontario and the West.

But making English the country's only official language is one of its more controversial plans that has helped type-cast the party as anti-French with a one-issue platform.

Asked how to shuck that image, Knutson replied: ''We have to depend on you people for that because we want a confederation of regions, we want fixed terms for politicians, we want free votes in parliament, we want to take away the dictatorial power of the prime minister, we want balanced budgets, we want one official language, we want parliamentary democracy established in this country, we want the end of debt financing.''

Knutson agreed that the catalyst for people joining the party, particularly in Ontario and the Maritimes, is the language issue, followed by the constitutional crisis and the federal government's new Goods and Services Tax.

And that image of COR as a one-issue party was formed by biased media coverage, said Knutson.

''I've seen some of the first reports and then I see the end report that comes out after being modified by the editors and you'd think there were two different meetings,'' said Knutson. ''Because we do have a controlled press. Whether we like to believe it or not, we have a controlled press.''

Mobilizing party members to work towards winning the August federal by-election for former NDP leader Ed Broadbent's Oshawa riding will be the single most important accomplishment of the two-day convention, said Knutson.

Then he entered the area, decorated with green and yellow balloons, and began shaking hands.

Wise appeal 'far-reaching'

TORONTO — Judgement was reserved Tuesday at an Ontario Court of Appeal hearing into whether police should be allowed to use electronic tracking devices to gather evidence against suspects.

The two-day landmark hearing stems from an OPP mischief charge against Morewood resident James Wise for toppling a $2.2 million Bell Canada communications tower and later withdrawn after Toronto District Court Judge Bourke Smith ruled that evidence obtained by use of the tracking device was inadmissable.

Wise's Ottawa lawyer, Grant Dunn, said the court of appeal's decision expected to be handed down in several weeks, will have far-reaching implications.

Charged in 1987, Wise, who was also a suspect then in a spate of Ottawa Valley serial killings, was committed to trial after a two-and-a-half day preliminary hearing in Morrisburg Provincial Court in April 1988.

Smith ruled the electronic tracking of Wise, as part of the police's investigation of the serial killings, amounted to a warrantless search and was an infringement on the suspect's civil rights. He said police had no reasonable or probable grounds to believe Wise was a suspect in the serial killings and therefore could not accept evidence gathered by police during their surveillance.

Dunn was expected to argue that every Canadian citizen has the right to privacy and to suggest that the police should be compelled to provide a judge with reasonable and probable grounds before being able to use a tracking device.

In September 1988, the Crown dropped its case against Wise after Smith threw out most of the evidence.

Wise launched a civil suit against police and provincial officials in March 1988, claiming he was mistreated by police during the serial killings' investigation and that his civil rights were infringed. Police have denied any wrongdoing.

Homecoming Sunday for clergyman

by Andy McLeister
Press Staff Reporter

WINCHESTER — A hometown boy who has made his mark in Southern Ontario will return to Winchester Sunday to help St. Paul's Presbyterian Church celebrate its 131st anniversary.

Rev. Ian Johnson confirmed last week that Rev. Harold Rodney will preach at the 11am service.

''He's (Rodney) one of the only bona fide sons of the community who went into the ministry,'' Johnson said. ''He's quite a brilliant man.''

Since being ordained a minister almost 50 years ago, Rodney has distinguished himself in, among other things, the length of service he has given to a single congregation. After serving as pastor of the Ephraim Scott Memorial Church in Montreal from 1941-44, he transferred to Knox Church in St. Thomas, Ontario, and has been there ever since.

If not a record of sorts, the length of Rodney's tenure in St. Thomas is, indeed, a rarity. Johnson said three to five years would be about average for a minister's stay at one church.

''He has a lot of friends in the community that have been asking, 'When's he coming, when's he coming','' Johnson said.

After the 11am service, a luncheon will be held where friends of Rodney's from other churches in the area can renew acquaintance with the guest of honor.

Born in Calgary, Rodney was educated in Winchester public and high schools. A member of St. Paul's from 1929, he completed his secondary school education at Ottawa's Lisgar Collegiate Institute before attending Ottawa and Queen's Universities, earning a bachelor of arts degree. He prepared for the ministry at the Presbyterian College in Montreal.

Rodney was elected five times to the Presbytery of London and in 1963 was elected moderator of the Synod of Hamilton and London. Speaking engagements have taken him to New York, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, Columbus, Ohio, and Detroit, as well as other American and Canadian cities.

He is a 45-year veteran of the Kiwanis Club, has served on the Alma College Board of Governors and the Maple Leaf Foundation. Rodney is listed in the 1978 edition of the American Who's Who in Religion.

Also in 1978, he was royally honored as a recipient of the Queen Elizabeth II Jubilee Medal. The gratitude of his adopted community was expressed more recently when he received the Mayor's Award from the city of St. Thomas as the 1990 citizen of the year.

While the reverend has not been in the area in an official capacity in the recent past, he does maintain a summer cottage on the Rideau River near Kemptville.

Winchester 4-H elects officers

by Carisa Johnstone

WINCHESTER — The first meeting of the Winchester Animal Friends Club was held at St. Paul's Presbyterian Church on Thurs., May 24.

We began the meeting by playing a smartie game, where everyone had to tell something about themselves.

Our leaders Mary Fisher and Susan Johnstone proceeded with the election of the officers. These are: president Jacqueline Lariviere; vice-president, Andrea Sharkey; secretary, Erin Ouellette; press reporter, Carisa Johnstone.

Everyone answered the roll call question, ''What is your favorite kind of animal?'' During the meeting, we discussed what considerations we should think about before purchasing a pet.

Our meeting was adjourned and everyone enjoyed a game of Pictionary and a snack.

The next meeting will be held Thurs., May 31, 6:30pm at the Presbyterian Church.

New appointment

Andre Johnson of Morewood has been appointed Winchester's new roads superintendent. On the job since Monday, Johnson is stressing on-the-job safety and equipment maintenance.

New superintendent appointed

WINCHESTER — The region of Ottawa-Carleton's loss is the village of Winchester's gain.

Andre Johnson of Morewood, has left the region's employ after 14 years' service to accept a post as the village's roads superintendent. Johnson, 40, started work Monday morning in the position left vacant since 15-year veteran Budd Coulter retired at the end of April.

Johnson, a native of Vanier, moved to Morewood about 12 years ago. He resides there with his wife Lise and two children, Shawn and James.

Johnson rose through the O-C ranks to become inspector of road overlay operations, the position he left for his Winchester assignment. ''I started, basically, as a laborer,'' he said last week of his lengthy stint with the region. Through the years, he has ''acquired great knowledge of road maintenance, road reconstruction and water works,'' he said.

In supervising his four-man Winchester crew, Johnson said he will be emphasising safe working practices. ''I'm going to be very concerned about proper maintenance of vehicles and machinery,'' he added.

Surplus

renewal program. Last month, the minister announced a provincial grant of almost $2 million to subsidise the first, $3 million phase of the project.

Armed with an auditor's report that indicates the hospital has made its operations more efficient, Egan feels the delegates stand a better chance to sway Caplan.

''We're trying to persuade not only the minister, but the public here, that we're running the hospital efficiently,'' Egan said. ''We need the public, we need the donations to fix up our physical plant.''

To complete the project to refurbish and upgrade the hospital's physical plant, another $1.1 million in locally-raised money is required. Egan noted that after a short, five-month campaign, the community has already contributed $1.5 million.

Among fundraisers planned for the near future, which will at least in part contribute to the hospital program, is the June 9 tribute dinner at the Chesterville Community Centre honoring Doctor and Mrs. Howard Justus. Held primarily to help pay for the Chesterville District Agricultural Society's new $176,000 grandstand, organizers are also pledging a sizeable donation to the WDMH renewal project.

On June 16, the Gala Kick Off Nite will be held in the Winchester Community Centre. A tax-deductable $25 donation entitles a person to a complimentary, buffet-style dinner and admission to a dance featuring the Don Morrell Big Band Sound.

''It's a pretty difficult event to top,'' Egan said of the Gala.

Ticket sales are brisk but he issued a reminder that there are plenty more available at numerous retail outlets in the area.

Support

operation financially viable.

''They've become like a family and we love them as such and want to keep their home open for that same reason,'' said Rev. Niles:

Besides organizing a network of volunteers to work shifts at the lodge, Rev. Niles has set up a trust fund at the Bank of Montreal in Williamsburg where people can make donations.

He said the elderly residents are traumatized by the prospect of having to move from the place that has come to be their home.

''When you're old and vulnerable and can't get around, these questions become extremely important, so the stress is immense and it's something they're all having great difficulty dealing with,'' said the minister.

Volunteers are making beds, doing laundry, dishes and vacuuming and ''showing the residents the love and care always shown them by their workers at the lodge,'' he said.

Two volunteers are needed to work every day, covering two shifts up to 7pm. Rev. Niles said the more volunteers available, the less often each will have to work.

''They're trying to fill the gap of loneliness because that's the main job the workers do.''

A former social worker familiar with various kinds of facilities for the elderly, Rev. Niles said the care given the residents is exceptional: ''I haven't seen one that is better than this. This is a home for them and not some place where they will just have to live out their last days...''

Meanwhile, owner Ladanyi confirmed that she's bought some time from her bank.

''They've told me that as long as I can cover my mortgage payments and payroll they won't interfere,'' she said. ''If nothing else, we'll go down swinging.''

Ladanyi said she's received over 200 telephone calls from concerned citizens during the past few days and a letter of support from the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry.

She emphasized that volunteers will not work alone or dispense medications. Four staff members will be laid off and possibly recalled when the financial difficulties are resolved, she added.

Her plan now is to try and keep the operation running until she can sell to an owner-operator; since overhead has been cut by the scheduling of volunteers, Ladanyi is confident of staying open at least until the end of June. Because of her other business interests, she is unable to operate the lodge herself; an owner-operator would have less overhead and more chance of success, she says.

Loyalists picnic planned

MORRISBURG — The spring meeting of the St. Lawrence Branch of the United Empire Loyalist Association of Canada was held on Sun., April 29 in Newington United Church, with 40 members and visitors present.

President Lynne Cook reminded the membership of the Dominion Convention being held in Oshawa on May 11 and 12. She also reviewed upcoming events for the branch, namely the June 17 picnic and social day at Iroquois.

It will begin with a church service at 10:30am in the United Church, followed by a potluck picnic at the Iroquois Locks and entertainment. Invitations have been extended to the Heritage Branch, Montreal; Sir John Johnson Branch, Eastern Townships; Sir Guy Carleton Branch, Ottawa and Col. Edward Jessup Branch, Prescott.

The Genealogy Day will be held at the Morrisburg Civic Centre on Aug. 11 and books and records from four local researchers will be available.

On Aug. 19 at the Drop-In Centre, Chesterville, genealogist Clarence Cross will be guest speaker and, if weather permits, members will visit his log cabin. The annual charter night banquet at the Morrisburg Legion Hall is on Sept. 22. The branch's annual meeting and potluck supper will be held on Oct. 21.

A very interesting program followed. Annie Webber of Kingston, formerly of Newington, is a local historian and author of the book 'Newington Osnabruck Stormont County 1826-1987 History and Hearsay.' She was a teacher in area schools for many years, including time as principal of the Wales Continuation School, ending up with 12 years at Cornwall's CCVS.

Branch member Beryl Morrison, 91, told members she had taught Annie when she ''passed the entrance.'' Webber gave a condensed version of her book with detailed accounts of families, individual characters, special celebrations, religious groups; buildings, schools, mills, factories, business and occupations all of which portrayed Newington as quite a business centre situated on the New York Central railroad.

Now Newington is a bedroom community, but this is history.

However, Newington really comes alive on Labor Day Weekend for the annual Stormont County Fair. Florence English, in thanking the speaker for all her wonderful memories, pointed out that Newington's history is so like many other small communities which have become almost ghost villages.

Margaret Duvall, who was very involved in the writing and publication of the History of Newington for the 120th anniversary of the village, spoke on how the book developed and especially how she collected the human interest stories which reminded all of us of life in the old days.

Mock disaster response planned

METCALFE — Osgoode Township High School students will be acting out roles May 31 that could save lives.

They will be playing the parts of Osgoode Care Centre residents during its mock evacuation, when emergency vehicles and experts converge on the scene. The students will be evacuated by bus to the school, but residents will not be moved.

"We feel a responsibility to alert people in the community of our plans so that...those in the community who have friends and relatives here will not be unduly concerned about their safety," said administrator Nancy Shank.

Housing 13 residential level seniors and 57 nursing home residents, the care centre is community owned and built.

Shank said all available staff will be on hand as well as board members, an emergency measures unit, fire department, ambulance services and police, and only one wing will be evacuated.

"Although we want the community to be aware of our plans, we do encourage you not to come to the area to watch as it would certainly interfere with the safety and efficiency of the exercise," said the administrator.

It's mandatory that such facilities conduct such evacuations at regular intervals.

Legion donates $7,000 to projects

Six donations of $500 each were made to Heart and Stroke, Canadian Red Cross, the Cancer Society, Meals on Wheels, Ormond Memorial Fund and the Winchester Dynes Fastball Club.

Other Branch 108 business included the presentation of awards to members George Davidson, Mabel Ogden and Buck Cairncross for their service on the executive.

IMAGINE A new spirit of giving

COR message:

Alternative to Canada's mainstream political parties

by Steve Hummell
Press Staff Reporter

MORRISBURG — Confederation of Regions national party leader Elmer Knutson called for delegates at an annual meeting here last weekend, to help field a candidate in the upcoming federal by-election for former NDP leader Ed Broadbent's Oshawa seat.

"All of you in Ontario have to get to work and we have to win that riding," Knutson told about 200 mostly middle-aged party members. "We're going to unite this country and it's got to start in Oshawa."

Knudson's message was simple and direct: Canadians are fed up with the existing parties and the timing is ripe for the COR party, which advocates English as the sole official language, binding federal and provincial referendums on moral issues such as abortion, fixed terms for government and a reformed Canadian political system giving equal voice to Ontario, Quebec, the West and the Maritimes.

And while Prime Minister Brian Mulroney spent the weekend fighting to save the Meech Lake Accord, the group laid plans to remake Canada without Quebec if it will not conform to the wishes of the English-Canadian majority.

Describing the federal government as a "political dictatorship," the provincial premiers as "brain-dead" and Quebec as "the spoiled brat of the family," Knutson promised to establish parliamentary democracy.

"We in the COR party have decided to represent and unite for the first time in the history of Canada, the English-speaking people who operate under British Common Law and have the same heritage, aims and goals and ideas of morality and freedom," said Knutson.

Archie Pafford, leader of the New Brunswick COR party, said if Meech Lake fails it will provide an opportunity "to start from scratch."

With or without Quebec, Canada will survive, he added, and it's time for Canadians to stop thinking of themselves as francophones or anglophones, but simply as Canadians.

The speakers emphasized that the COR party is not anti-French, but opposes official bilingualism and the current system of government.

Interim Provincial COR leader Gord McGregor, a local restauranteur and former Justice of the Peace who ran in Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry as an independent in the 1987 provincial election, said he's tired of politicians "doing things at their will and telling us it's good for us."

McGregor said delegates Sunday were busy laying the foundation for the provincial organization and getting ready for the next Ontario convention.

Earlier this year COR collected signatures of more than 15,000 Ontario residents to give it official political party status. McGregor expects official registration by next week and says there will be 30,000 members.

In the last federal election the COR party ran 55 candidates; none were successful.

Unknown contender seeks Liberal nod to face Villeneuve

by Andy McLeister
Press Staff Reporter

MOOSE CREEK — While Tories in Stormont, Dundas, Glengarry and East Grenville gather tonight in Avonmore to choose their standard-bearer for the next provincial election, an unknown contender is launching his campaign for the Liberal nod from his headquarters here.

Carson Payne has taken leave from his computer consulting business to work full-time towards winning the Liberal candidacy for what he predicts will be "the first hotly-contested campaign in the last couple of elections."

Carson Payne

A newcomer to politics, Payne said in a recent interview that his opposition to free trade with the United States "was the thing that made me wake up and decide to do something."

After spending seven years in New Mexico and another three in upstate New York, Payne identified some poignant differences between Canada and the States. He fears that the free trade pact between the two countries, as it is now written, could blur these distinctions and foist American values on Canadians.

"The U.S. has got some good points but still it hasn't got the social conscience we've got," Payne said.

As a newcomer to the area (he moved to Moose Creek last fall), Payne realizes that he has his work cut out for him in garnering support among Grits in a rambling riding that stretches from Cardinal in Grenville County to the Quebec border. "That's why I'm (campaigning) full-time," he said.

It will also be an uphill battle for the bilingual 43-year-old to first of all, win the Grit nomination and then successfully challenge the Progressive Conservative candidate at the polls in an historically Tory stronghold. "I think (incumbent PC MPP Noble) Villeneuve is a good man as an individual but, again, I feel our riding can be better served from inside the government rather than outside," he maintained.

In his own party, Cornwall radio station CJSS broadcaster Dennis Sabourin is the person Payne says he will get the greatest challenge from, when the Liberals choose their candidate, likely in late July. Payne feels that the time is right, especially given the anti-Tory sentiments currently riding high enough across Canada because of the Meech Lake impasse and the Goods and Services Tax (GST), for Premier David Peterson to call an election this year.

Payne is running on a platform of promoting honest and effective representation, keeping lines of communication open between riding constituents and Queen's Park, increasing business opportunities in the constituency while respecting the environment, fighting for the riding's fair share of government spending, and consulting with farmers on agricultural issues.

Born in Montreal and raised in Sherbrooke, bilingualism is close to Payne's heart. He supports the provincial French Language Services Act (Bill 8) but concedes that the government has done an inadequate job of selling it to the public.

He feels that bilingualism in general and Bill 8 in particular, are workable, "as long as people are reasonable."

Payne is adamant in his opposition to the federal GST, which he contends will hit poor Canadians harder than the wealthy.

Payne said that if he does succeed in becoming the riding's next MPP, he will become "someone who will truly represent the people," even if this sometimes places him at odds with his own caucus. If he can't get his constituents' points of view across on specific issues, he said he will go back to the voters to get further direction.

"I have to be able to believe in what I'm doing," Payne said, in explaining why he views himself as a maverick, "to a certain extent."

Payne has been married for 19 years to Francine Laine-Payne, and they have two teenaged sons. He is a graduate of Bishop's University, Lennoxville, Quebec, and holds a bachelor's degree in business administration. He also holds a commission as a lieutenant in the Sherbrooke Huzars, a reserve regiment.

Institute remembers Nellie Guy

by Thelma Corey

WINCHESTER — The Winchester Women's Institute answered the roll call of the May 15 meeting with their favorite recipes containing a dairy product.

A minute's silence was observed for the loss of a member, Nellie Guy.

Gifts were given to 4-H leaders Lin Ouellette and Susan Johnson. Gifts were also given to Norma Duncan, past-president and Edna Trory, past-secretary, for work well done. Edna served as secretary for 10 years, missing only two meetings during this period.

Highlights of the meeting were: Flea Market on Aug. 10 from 9am to 1pm — new clothing only. Pickles and jam are to be sold at the September meeting. A donation will be sent to 'Meals on Wheels.'

Hilda Holmes, convener of agriculture, and her committee had as guest speaker Debbie Cooper, Dundas Dairy Princess, from Brinston, Ontario. Debbie hopes to attend Kemptville College in the fall.

Debbie presented a film entitled "Growing for You", with emphasis on the providers, the producers, and the marketers. This film opened our eyes to the amount of food provided by Ontario farmers.

Muriel Rhea thanked Debbie for providing us with an interesting film on agriculture and the many people employed to distribute food to the consumer, and presented her with a gift.

Five members were chosen as district delegates.

Irene Woolford, convener of Canadian industries, will ask members attending the June 19 meeting to answer the roll call with "What do you do to preserve the environment?" There will be a guest speaker and everyone is welcome.

Following lunch, Edna Trory thanked Hilda Holmes and her committee for her great program and lovely lunch.

Computer bulletin board on-line

WINCHESTER — The Computer Den is launching a state-of-the- art, electronic bulletin board service that anyone with the proper equipment can gain access to with a simple telephone call.

Computer users in the area are now able to tap into the over 100 disks of information on file at the Den, located in a portable classroom on the grounds of Winchester Public School.

As long as users have a modem for transmitting computer data over telephone lines, possess compatible equipment and take out membership with the Den, they can scan the bulletin board's index and request specific files which can then be "downloaded" into their own computer memory banks, says Laurie Summers, the Den's vice-president.

At present, the Den will concentrate on servicing members who have IBM or IBM-compatible computers, as well as those who have Atari 520ST, 1040ST and MegaST computers. If interest warrants it, the service can also technically be expanded to include other makes of computers.

Furthermore, Summers says the Den is working closely with the Dundas Computer Users Group in formulating its bulletin board program, and hopes to cement similar relationships with other groups, particularly in the Ottawa area.

"What this (bulletin board service) becomes, is what people interested in it make it, because we don't have any set agenda," Summers said last Friday. "We want to make it a useful service."

Initially, there will be no charge for Den members who dial 774-5290 to tap into the service. Summers expects that down the road, though, annual user's fees of $15 to $20 will be charged in addition to Den membership dues. The Den, a non-profit organization, now charges $10 for family memberships and $5 for individuals.

The chief features of the service allow users to obtain information, enter computer system problems for other members to help solve, browse through indexes of available software, download programs onto users' own disks, "upload" copies of some programs for others to use, and enter messages in any one of the various information, computer news or service channels.

Summers described the service as a "pooling and sharing" of information.

The Computer Den is in its fourth year of operation, having got its start with the help of funds for equipment acquisitions from the provincial government. Organizers have built up a bank of 15 AppleIIE computer terminals plus an Atari 1040ST. The Atari is the centrepiece of the bulletin board service.

The Den uses WPS's portable classroom in exchange for letting students (who comprise most of the Den's 250 members) use the equipment. Adult members use the equipment outside school hours.

Summers is optimistic about the bulletin board's chances for success. He noted that Winchester's location is ideal for the computer service because it lies at the centre of a large toll- free telephone region that includes Chesterville, Williamsburg, South Mountain, Metcalfe and Russell.

Rec. co-ordinator needed

METCALFE — A consulting firm has recommended Osgoode Township hire a recreation co-ordinator within the next six months.

Tom Robinson and Gerry Leering of the Greer Galloway Group made the announcement at a public meeting called to introduce the municipality's updated recreation master plan.

The consultant's report explained that the complex nature of the township's recreation system demands improved co-ordination.

Robinson said he found an excellent community spirit, "but what was lacking was a township-wide recreation co-ordinator."

Leering said such a move would result in a more streamlined and efficient operation.

A co-ordinator is needed to assist the township recreation committee and community centre boards, say the consultants.

Councillor Blaine Ball, a recreation committee member, said the person hired would be responsible for facilities, co- ordination, special events and park development.

The apparent lack of public meeting space in Osgoode was addressed, with the consultants suggesting better use of school facilities being pursued.

"A better utilization and sharing of these is encouraged throughout the entire year," Robinson suggested, adding cost sharing and reciprocal agreements with the board of education may be useful.

The report also claimed hiring a full-time co-ordinator may assist with facility promotion and co-ordination, leading to better year-round utilization of all facilities.

With that in mind, Leering recommended a complete review of the budgets for the four community centre boards. He added particular attention should be paid to assessing their roles and functions and their ability to deliver the recreation system to their respective communities.

"The boards of management require an injection of municipal funding to enable and ensure a better use of the community centre facilities by community groups," he explained.

Community centre boards operations are based on a "zero based" budget, meaning maintenance and operation costs are offset by the collection of rental income. Municipal funding is only expended for capital projects.

In the decade past, the net balance for all community centre boards in the township showed an overall deficit of $6,284 or $628 per year, an accomplishment the consultants saw as "an outstanding achievement."

Presently the township recreation committee administers grant application funds and specific ratepayer requests for recreational facilities.

However, the consultants pointed out the role and activity level of the committee varied depending on the availability of provincial grants.

Leering suggested the committee's role should be broadened to include responsibility for all park development within the municipality.

"A related budget allocation with potential revenues from development charges would be appropriate," said Leering.

A recent user survey identified several non-competitive types of leisure activities that could be developed. Examples included arts and crafts classes, dancing lessons, theatre groups, and mom and tots activities.

A recreation co-ordinator would be instrumental in organizing this type of programming as well, the report suggested.

It was no surprise the master plan contained a recommendation to undertake a feasibility study into the possibility of building a swimming pool.

In duscussion with user groups and compiling the results of questionnaires received from township residents, Leering and Robinson both said a very strong interest was shown in a swimming pool facility.

The report recommends council undertake a detailed study to examine the related cost benefits.

Specific considerations should include size, location, type (indoor or outdoor), capital and operating costs and the possibility of sharing the facility with the Carleton Board of Education.

Ball said the township could afford to build the facility, "but there was no way it could afford to run it after it was built."

Mayor Albert Bouwers said council has discussed building a pool in the past if the school board would maintain it under its physical education program.

Osgoode Township trustee Carol Parker said at the unveiling of the master plan, the school board was not willing to pay for or maintain the swimming pool "because education taxes should be used for education."

Bouwers maintained it makes sense the two sides enter into a reciprocal agreement "since the same taxpayer pays for both township and recreational facilities."

Meanwhile, Ball terms a recommendation to administer the recreation budget on a township-wide basis "a major one."

The three-term councillor says the recommendation was "a long time in coming" and should reduce disparities from occurring in the different villages.

The report stated the recreation program, including funding, should be administered on one geographic area as opposed to three distinct recreation divisions.

"The administration of one township-wide recreation budget will reduce administrative complexities and benefit all residents," Robinson claimed.

"The current practice of administering the township recreation budget on the basis of distinct recreation areas creates unnecessary complications and an inequitable distribution of financial resources," he added.

The various types of recreational funding has tended to be administered separately and on the basis of the three distinct recreation taxation areas.

Examples used include the recreation tax levy, development charges, cash-in-lieu of parkland contributions and grants.

One area the consultants stressed should be highlighted is the continued promotion and honoring of volunteer achievements and their involvement in the community.

Get fleeced at UCV this weekend

MORRISBURG — Those visiting Upper Canada Village this weekend will have an opportunity to observe some old fashioned sheep shearing.

Twenty Leicester sheep will be relieved of their winter wool and visitors will learn about the commerce of wool as it existed in the 1860s.

Taking place from 10:30 to 3:30pm daily in the main barn of the Loucks' farm, the sheep will be hand-shorn using period techniques and tools; a yield of about 140 pounds is projected.

The fleece will be hand-processed at the village's McDiarmid House over the weekend and throughout the summer by either spinning, weaving or dyeing.

The Asselstine Woollen Factory will grade, wash and blend the rest of the wool with Leicester and Cheviot wool purchased from local breeders and make it into knitting yarns and warp and weft for blankets.

In the early days, the production of wool linked together the farm family, the mill owner and merchants off the villages.

Open from 9:30 to 5pm daily, the village's regular activities include cooking, baking, tinsmithing, coopering, quilting and agricultural.

NDDHS sprinters give sterling performances

OTTAWA — Laura Zrymiak, Matt Gordon and Tonia Foley distinguished themselves here at the Terry Fox Sports Faclity Friday.

The trio of sprinters from North Dundas District High School's Devils' track team all tested themselves against the best athletes in Eastern Ontario and came away with positive results and silver medals.

"They all did very well," commented Devils' coach Hugh Conlin. "Their times are very competitive and if they improve a little more they should hit the top four at OFSSAA (All-Ontario Championships this weekend in Sudbury."

Laura Zrymiak, SD&G's Top Midget Girl Track Athlete, finished second in both the 100m and 200m sprints here at the Regionals. The seconds are the first for her. She had gone undefeated in both sprints until reaching Regional competition.

Zrymiak finished second to Hillcrest's (Ottawa) Chantal Desjardins in both runs. Desjardins won the 100m in 12.60 seconds while Zrymiak clocked at 12.98. In the 200m the times were 26.27 to 26.98.

This year's trip to Sudbury and OFSSAA will be the second for Zrymiak. Last year she didn't qualify for the finals but coach Conlin figures she can make that final eight this time around.

Tonia Foley also had to play second fiddle to Desjardins in the midget girls' 80m hurdles losing out by a slim 12.67 to 12.86 seconds.

Coach Conlin felt Foley's times were excellent noting she was running against a strong wind, which could have meant a difference of two or three tenths of a second.

Matt Gordon is the third member of the Devils' All- Ontario squad and this year's Top Midget Boy Trophy winner (SD&G) will compete in the 200m. Here Friday, Gordon clocked a 24.10 while Manuel Compas of St. Pat's won it in 23.50 seconds.

Junior Sean Salter, second at EOSSAA, was sixth in the junior boys' javelin and missed the top four qualifying spots. He recorded a throw of 44m, a personal best.

The Devils' senior girls' relay squad of Stacey Berry, Laura Zrymiak, Tonia Foley and Amber Hutt also earned a sixth place ranking, finishing four tenths of a second out of a qualifying spot.

Midget long distance runner Megan Filion, senior Gary Streng, a hurdler, and Stacey Berry (senior girls 200m) also competed for North Dundas at the Regionals.

Coach Conlin said he was proud of North Dundas' accomplishments here, noting the Devils had the most qualifiers reach the Regionals and the most to advance to the All-Ontario Championships. He added only five of 10 SD&G schools had athletes qualify for the Regionals.

Weatherman, Williamsburg combine for great weekend

WINCHESTER — Even the weather man co-operated. The 1990 edition of the Winchester Dynes Fastball Tournament has been described as a huge success.

The championship showdown Sunday night even provided fans with a local team to cheer for but not for long.

Williamsburg, Rosie's Tavern, decided the issue early, providing the crowd with a lot of action early as they cruised to an easy 9-2 (five hit) victory over Kingston's Edwards Ford.

The 1990 tourney champs earned $1,500 for their perfect five- win record and had two members of the squad named for individual awards.

Pitcher Greg McLaren was named Top Pitcher and second baseman Bruce Casselman picked up the Best Hitter award. Both received Labatt's prizes.

McLaren fired two shutouts and posted three wins in three starts. He surrendered just two runs on five hits and struck-out 23 batters in 22 innings of work.

"Big" Bruce Casselman clobbered five homers in five games, hit 10 for 18 and drove in nine runs.

Kingston's Peter Hutchinson was deemed MVP. He hit three homers and collected eight RBIs as Edwards Ford cruised to five wins and two losses.

Kingston pocketed $900 while two Eastern Ontario Fastball league clubs, Bernwood Contractors and Turpin Pontiacs earned $700 and $500 respectively.

Benny Wallace of Greely was also a big winner collecting $291 in the Dynes' 50/50 Tournament Draw.

The championship squad had a distinctive Winchester Dynes flavor to it as the Morrell brothers, Jim and Roger, recruited heavily from the event's sponsoring team.

Bill Hogaboam caught all five games. Greg McLaren pitched three. Bruce Casselman swung a hot bat. Other Dynes playing for the winners included Wayne Hughes, Bobby Jack Hart, Tim Oshier, Jeff Johnstone and Dave Guy.

Reg Hyndman, playing with Kemptville after several seasons with the Mountain Mets, was Williamsburg's DH.

Other Winchester Dynes playing the tournament included Dan Hogaboam, Pete Holmes, Dan MacMartin and Jack Martin who worked with Osgoode. Osgoode wound up with two wins and two losses in four games.

FIVE FOR FIVE

Williamsburg completed the three days of competition in impressive fashion, knocking Kingston out of contention in five innings, beating them 9-2.

Greg McLaren and Bill Hogaboam teamed up and formed the winning battery. McLaren gave up two runs on two hits, an error and struck out six.

Kingston started Bob Storring but the 'Burg knocked him out in the first inning. Jamie Hall and one other Edwards Ford man tried to stop Willyburg's big bats but couldn't.

Williamsburg struck early taking a 2-0 lead in the first inning. Reg Hyndman walked after Wayne Hughes had grounded out and scored on a Bruce Casselman double. Third baseman Larry Skinner then delivered Casselman with an RBI single.

Hogaboam crowns Royals, hurls five-inning no-hitter

WINCHESTER — Veteran left-hander Dan Hogaboam blanked the Kemptville Midget Royals 9-0 here in the Winchester Dynes' Monday night Eastern Ontario Fastball League encounter.

Hogaboam fired a no-run, no-hit game over five innings, holding the Royals at bay until the EOFBL's mercy rule came into play. He walked one man, Dave Tubman, in the third but Kemptville stranded their only base runner of the game.

Hogaboam faced one man over the minimum, earning his first victory. Bobby Jack Hart worked behind the plate and called signals on four strikeouts.

Monday night's 9-0 victory helped ease the memory of a 3-1 loss to Convent Glen in Ottawa last Thursday.

Last Wednesday, in an exhibition game in Carp, the Dynes dropped a 4-0 decision to the Carp Valley Pride. The team able to knock off the Pride receives a cash prize.

Winchester's playing manager Bill Hogaboam was proud of his team's effort against the powerful Pride squad, Dynes' Bruce Casselman joins the Pride lineup for these exhibtion tilts.

Greg McLaren worked the first five innings for Winchester and Dan Hogaboam fired the last four of the nine inning affair.

"Tumble (Greg McLaren) threw a couple of rise balls that just hung there. And you just can't do that. You can't make a mistake against a team like that because they can hit it out of the park."

Hogaboam added, "and we hadn't faced pitching like that (Mike Finn and Eric Wilson) before so with some more games under our belts, I would like to try them again."

Andy Rossit doubled and gave the Pride a 1-0 lead in the second inning. Don Burnett homered (2-0) in the third. Larry Skinner homered in the fourth for a 3-0 edge. Rossitt doubled and made it 4-0 on Skinners' RBI double in the eighth.

Winchester's two hits were singles by Wayne Hughes and Peter Holmes.

Last Thursday the Dynes returned to EOFBL action at Carlington Park where they dropped a 3-1 decision to league-leading and undefeated Convent Glen.

Dan Hogaboam registered his first EOFL victory here Monday. The Dynes' left-hander blanked the Kemptville Midget Royals 9-0 over five innings. He didn't allow a hit and walked just one.

Press Photo—Van Bridger

Dan Hogaboam got the start and surrendered all three runs in the fourth inning. Jeff Vaive led it off with a triple and made it a 1-0 game scoring on a wild pitch. A one-out two-run homerun finished the scoring and brought Greg McLaren to the hill. He blanked Convent Glen over the final two frames.

A solo homer broke Earl Kearns' shutout and gave Winchester their only run in the sixth inning.

NINE RUNS

Winchester's bats came back to life here Monday night as they chased Kemptville starter Pete Johnston in the second frame.

Johnston gave up five and reliever Troy McLean four Winchester runs. The Dynes drilled 10 hits off the pair.

Lead-off man Pete Holmes got the Dynes on the board early slashing a single down the third base line. With two out, Bill Hogaboam crushed a Johnston offering blasting a right field homer scoring Holmes for a 2-0 lead.

Jeff Johnston singled to left with one out in the second inning launching Winchester's second attack. Dan MacMartin followed with a single through the gap at third. Both runners trotted home on Pete Holmes three-run blast to straight away centre field.

The Dynes got to Royals' reliever Troy McLean in the fourth. Pete Holmes' third hit in three at bats (a single) keyed the explosion. Tim Patterson's basehit to left scored Holmes.

Bill Hogaboam then doubled home Patterson for a 7-0 lead.

Dave Guy followed with a walk. He and Hogaboam scored easily when Jeff "Hawg" Johnston belted a two RBI triple into the right field corner.

Holmes had three hits and three RBIs. Tim Patterson (one RBI), Bill Hogaboam (three RBIs) and Jeff Johnston (two RBIs) all ripped two hits each.

NEXT GAMES

Next Monday night, June 4, the Dynes will not be at home. They will be in Manotick to play the Rideau Valley Pioneers.

Winchester's home date will be Thurs., June 7, with an 8pm start time.

Vikings deal Vice first loss of year

WINCHESTER — A 22-run, four-homer attack propelled the Morewood Vikings to a 22-14 Winchester Lob Ball League victory over formerly undefeated Inkerman Vice here last Thursday.

The Vikes' victory enabled them to remain undefeated (three wins, no losses) and dropped Inkerman's record to three wins and a loss.

In Thursday's other encounters, the Blue Jays belted five homeruns en route to a 26-6 decision over J.R. Vice. Stage West dropped Morewood Marauders 7-2 and Hansma-Top Valu Bad Boys nipped Legion 108's 12-11.

To date, the Vikings, Inkerman and Top Valu-Hansma have earned six points each. Chesterville and Blue Knights have five apiece. Blue Jays and Stage West are even at four points. Shoneroy, Legion and J.R. Vice have two apiece. 40 Pounders and Morewood Marauders are still looking for a point.

Danny McMahon, Brian Thatcher, Brian Como, Jeff Vanderveen and Chris McKibbon led the Morewood Vikings' charge, scoring three runs each. Vanderveen clouted a three-run homer in the third as they came from a 1-0 deficit to take a 5-1 lead.

A 13-run sixth inning blasted the Vikings into a big 22-12 lead. Jeff Armstrong and Brian Thatcher each clubbed two-run homers in the big uprising. Thatcher had smashed a two-run shot in the fourth frame.

John Stewart pitched the win and scored a pair of runs. Jeff Armstrong and Neil Beehler also scored twice. John Brown added a single run.

Karl McRoberts swung Inkerman's big bat belting a two-run homer and scoring three times. Bruce Angus, Mark Redmond and Bazil Pemberton crossed the plate twice. Larry Simms, Rob "Col." Saunders, James Milne, Todd Findlay and Don Fawcett completed the attack.

Peter Marriner ripped two homeruns and collected four RBI leading the Blue Jays to a 26-6 win over J.R. Vice.

Ben Henry was the big Jay with the bat, belting a two-run homer, two triples, a double and a single. He also scored five times.

Kevin Gowdy, Dave Coleman and Barry Redmond all touched home four times. Redmond belted a three run homerun in the eight-run sixth inning. Pete and Perry, the Marriner brothers, scored three runs each. Chris Gibson (2) and "Walt" Patterson supplied the other runs. Gibson supplied a two run shot in the third inning.

Bill Steele (2), Mike Casselman, Gary Baker, Mike Toodners and Ron Norris replied for J.R. Vice.

A seventh inning single by Roy Hansma delivered Andy Laneville (single) with the winning run as Hansma-Top Valu Bad Boys edged Legion 108's 12-11.

Seventh-inning runs by Mark Armstrong and Doug Winters had pushed Legion into an 11-11 tie but Hansma's single snapped the draw before an extra inning was needed.

Joe Patterson drilled a three run homer, tripled and scored twice for the winners. Wayne Hunter and Garth Hansma also touched home twice.

Greg Erwin hit a two run homer and supplied one run as did Andy Laneville, Roy Hansma, winning pitcher Ken Wrightson, Syd Davies and Bill Doornward.

Stage West got two runs from Terry Richardson and singles from Gary Milne, Zeke Sanders, Phil Lyall, Bill Lillico and Ron Winters as they cruised to a 7-2 win over Morewood. The Marauders finally scored in the sventh when Cory Coweel homered with Greg Stickle on base.

PERFECT WEATHER MAKES SUCCESSFUL TOURNAMENT

It takes a great deal of planning and lots of hard, long hours to run a good three-day ball tournament, but the organizers did a great job, right down to having perfect weather conditions for the entire tournament. Williamsburg ended up as overall winners by defeating Kingston in the final game on Sunday night to end some first-class matchups with good, interesting ball for the fans to enjoy all weekend long. Crowds were good and the dances well attended, which is gratifying for the organizers who take a big gamble if everything does not jell. However, with this kind of tourney behind them, everyone leaves happy. A lot of very tired guys and gals, but it feels a lot better knowing that everything went well and there is now some much-needed money in the bank.

Owen Sound drafts Hawks' Dave Boyd

WINCHESTER — Dave Boyd, a rookie, Midget-aged defenceman with the Winchester Junior B Hawks has been drafted by the OHL's Owen Sound Platers.

Boyd, who wore sweater No. 20, was a fan favorite here during his first season, dealing out thunderous body checks and rushing the puck out of his own zone to create scoring chances for his forwards.

The Gloucester resident was also the property of the Kanata Valley Blazers of the CJHL and played during the playoffs for that Jr. A club after Winchester had been eliminated from their St. Lawrence Jr. B Division post-season series.

Boyd went 204 overall and in the 13th round of Saturday's annual OHL player draft.

Winchester's own Terry Carkner, now with the NHL's Philadelphia Flyers, is the only other Hawks' player ever selected in the OHL draft. Carkner went from the Brockville Jr. A Braves to the Peterborough Petes in the early '80s.

Ault Foods creams Kemptville TC 16-1

KEMPTVILLE — Marlene Fawcett pitched a one hit, one run 16-1 victory here Monday night leading undefeated Winchester Ault Foods to their fourth straight victory.

Aults' latest Kemptville Ladies Fastball League victim was Kemptville T.C.

Fawcett combined with catcher Marilyn Williams for the five- inning win. She finally gave up a run in the third inning when T. Gandza reached base on an error by Fawcett and scored, cutting the deficit to 13-1.

Aults jumped into a 6-0 first inning lead. Debbie Patterson, Darlene Simms, Marilyn Williams, Marlene Fawcett and Diane VanMoorsel all scored. Donna Leach delivered two of the runners, belting a two-out homerun.

Winchester gained a 9-0 advantage in their second at bat as Debbie Patterson singled, Darlene Simms walked, Marilyn Williams doubled and all three scored on back-to-back Kemptville T.C. errors.

Aults struck for five more runs in the third with Teresa Valtkamp's triple chalking up two RBI. Veltkamp scored Patterson and Simms. She touched home on Williams' RBI sac fly to left. Fawcett and VanMoorsel singled and completed the inning's scoring.

Marlene Fawcett supported her own cause, scoring her third run of the game in the fourth, scoring on a Diane VanMoorsel double. Donna Leach then singled in VanMoorsel for Aults' 16th and final run.

Green Machine's Paul Melenhorst (L) attempted to block White Crusaders' Chris Van Bridger's pass to teammate Greg Kelly during last week's C/WMHBL action. Rod Casselman scored three times for the Machine in the 3-3 tie. Van Bridger set up two goals helping the Crusaders into a 3-1 lead.

Red Wings strike early and often

CHESTERVILLE — Kevin Boyce, Scot "Mr. Set-up" Bell and Doug Armstrong put on a four goal passing and scoring clinic here last Wednesday night, and their one period exhibition was all Rene's Red Wings needed to remain undefeated.

The Red Wings chalked up a 4-1 win over John Guy's Grey Ghosts to remain the Chesterville/Winchester Men's Ball Hockey League's lone undefeated team. They have earned eight of a possible eight points to date and are three points up on their nearest competition.

The second-ranked Yellow Jackets gave the Black Plague a lesson, thumping them 7-2, to improve their record to two wins, a loss and a tie.

In the evening's other contest the White Crusaders charged into a 3-1 lead on Scott Barkley's Mean Green Machine but had to settle for a 3-3 (overtime) tie. Rod "Earl" Casselman was the difference in that game scoring all three Machine goals, including the tying marker with just 49 seconds left in regulation.

BBA LINE HOT

The Red Wings' BBA Line (Boyce, Bell, Armstrong) could do no wrong in the first period of their game combining for all four of their team's goals.

Once goalie Richard Gauthier had the 4-0 cushion to sit on, he was tough to beat. The Ghosts finally scared up a goal when Ken Byers connected from Ben Henry and Garry Geertsma at 10:22 of the second period.

Doug Armstrong opened the game, pounding a one-timer behind a startled Mark Goupil. Kevin Boyce had worked the ball to Scot Bell who moved behind the Ghosts' net. Armstrong moved into the slot and Bell put the ball right on his stick. Armstrong fired immediately and made it 1-0, Red Wings at 10:18.

Boyce upped it to 2-0 when he took a Bell-Armstrong relay in the deep slot and blasted a waist high slap home at 6:20.

Scot "shortest stick in the league" Bell then cashed in a beautiful three way rush at the 3:07 mark, tapping in a cross- crease relay fed him by Boyce after Armstrong's pass had generated the opening.

Kevin Boyce upped it to a 4-0 advantage when he was in the right spot to knock in a loose ball created by an Armstrong shot and a Bell pass. That goal had the Ghosts' reeling 36 seconds before the first period break.

The BBA combo cooled out in the final two frames but their early explosion was enough to stake the Wings to a 4-1 win.

EARLY LEAD

Perhaps they weren't used to working with the lead. Whatever the reason, the White Crusaders' couldn't save a 3-1 lead and had to settle for another overtime tie, their second in as many weeks.

Rod "Earl" Casselman was a big reason for the Crusaders failed campaign. He scored three times, including twice in the final period, to give the Green Machine a 3-3 draw.

Casselman's first goal opened the game. He beat Brad Pringle ripping a rising shot up into the top of the Crusaders' cage 13:50 into the first frame.

The Crusaders, still searching for their first win, charged back and led 2-1 after the first period. Chris Van Bridger and Greg Kelly put Kevin Moore in position and Moore tied it up 1-1 with 2:38 left in the period. Baxter Roberts won a face-off in the Machine's zone and Sandy Johnston one-timed it past Don Marcellus to make it a 2-1 issue at the 41 second mark.

Van Bridger's break-out pass started the Crusaders' third goal. Greg Kelly took the defenceman's relay, put the second pass onto Kevin Edgerton's stick. Edgerton broke in alone on Marcellus and blasted a 10 foot shot through the goalie's pads at 13:17 of period two.

Shots by Paul Melenhorst and Steve Thompson enabled Rod Casselman to cut the lead to 3-2. Casselman picked up the rebound and lifted it over a sprawling Brad Pringle with 11:05 left in the game.

A Gary Klein-Swormink pass put Casselman into the Crusader zone in the final minute of play, with 49 seconds left in regulation time. Casselman's high shot tied it up 3-3.

The Crusaders held the territorial advantage in the extra session but the Machine had the best chance and put the ball into the Crusaders' net, a second after the final buzzer had sounded.

YELLOW JACKETS STING

The Yellow Jackets had little trouble curing the Black Plague beating them 7-2.

The winners led 2-0 after a period and were up 4-1 after 20 minutes.

Paul "Squig" Bjergso posted the win only allowing goals by Plague's Kevin Byers and Gary Beisheim in the second and third periods (respectively). Todd Marcellus, Scott Helmer and Gary McInnis picked up Plague assists.

Dwayne Bazinet and Dennis Ouellette paced the Jackets with two goals, one assist efforts. Bernard Grady snapped in a pair of goals while Rob Steele hit for one. Steele and Doug Newman also earned assists.

Dignard qualifies

OTTAWA — Joanne Dignard continued her winning ways, finishing third in the senior girls javelin and fourth in the shot put.

The Osgoode Township High School student fired a throw of 31.84 metres in the javelin. Her longest shot was 10.31 metres.

Track coach Steve Clark expects her to place somewhere in the middle of the pack at Sudbury. Approximately 30 athletes will be competing in both of Dignard's events.

Bill Bronsema was the only other Osgoode athlete to almost make OFSAA. He lost once again to Chris Lee of St. Paul's in the midget boys 800 metres, placing fifth in the final standings.

"Everybody else ran well," said Clark, "but the competition at this stage was just too much."

Chris Vaughn and Colleen Bonfield will be leading the South Carleton track and field team to the provincial meet in Sudbury this weekend.

The two seniors finished near the top of their respective events to qualify for the meet.

Bonfield placed third in the 400 metre hurdles, falling to Ann-Marie Vannesie of St. Pius and Jenny Dickson of Sydenham. She completed the long jump in second place, landing her longest jump at 5.21 metres. Bonfield also ran the anchor leg of the 4x100 metre relay which took first place in front of Fenlon Falls and Sydenham.

Vaughn finished 0.4 of a metre behind nemesis Jon Dewar in the long jump and third in the triple jump. His jump in the triple was 6.42 metres.

"I think that both Chris and Colleen have a really good shot at medals," said coach Bob Irwin. "They have been there before and have the experience."

The midget boys 4x100 metre relay team qualified in fourth place in a time of 47.75 seconds. The squad consists of Josh Bishop, Rich Greatox, Elliot Spencer and Tom Arnold.

"It's been a great year for the team," said Irwin. "We'll give it all we've got in Sudbury."

Irwin has been assisted this year by rookie coach Debbie Pestet and he feels her presence has been "a big plus for the team. She has done a fantastic job."

Malcolm Weir of St. Mark's High School finished the junior boys 400 metres in 51.51 seconds to qualify for the Ontario Federation of School Athletic Associations championship in Sudbury, June 1-2.

Weir's second place time was slower than his 51.2 at the National Capital meet, but it was fast enough to beat a strong field of runners.

"If he runs a personal best, he might be in the medals in Sudbury," said track coach Ken Souliere. Souliere feels that Weir's time should improve with the tougher competition.

Junior long jumper Angie Baird also qualified for OFSAA albeit in a rather round about way. Baird finished fifth but moved up to fourth when a jumper decided not to compete beyond the regionals.

According to Souliere, her jump of 4.80 metres was "nowhere near her personal best, so she just might land one."

Though only two qualified, several other athletes also had good days. Lucinda Stone finished 10th in the senior girls 3,000 metres and Gary Kavanagh completed the junior boys 3,000 metres in seventh. The junior boys 4x100 metre relay placed fourth in their heat but did not qualify for Sudbury.

Turpin blanks Pioneers 3-0

MANOTICK — Maybe it was the dark clouds hanging in the sky, threatening to let loose a rain shower? Maybe the umpires just wanted to go home? Whatever the reason, there were some strange calls Monday night as Turpin Pontiacs downed the Rideau Valley Pioneers 3-0.

This was the third loss to Turpin in five days. The Pioneers dropped a 1-0 decision on Wednesday at Carlington Park.

Rideau Valley also played a three game tournament in Winchester over the weekend and lost 3-2 to Turpin.

The Pioneers were minus catcher Kevin Daly Monday night as well. Daly, one of the team's few consistent hitters, tore ligaments in his left leg and could be gone for up to four weeks.

The Pioneers continued to struggle at the plate and were held to just two hits by Turpin pitcher Ron Dewar, who went the distance.

Pitching duties for the Pioneers were split by right-handers Kevin Leeder and Jason Smith. Leeder struck out five batters in 4-1/2 innings while Smith blanked six in 2-1/2 innings of work.

They gave up only three hits but were hurt by errors in the infield that cost the team three runs in the sixth inning.

Leeder tried to help his own cause by driving a single up the middle in the second inning and leftfielder Todd Henry tried to get things going in the third with a single and a stolen base.

"The errors killed us," said manager Vince Daly. "And too many guys were caught looking on the third strike."

The inexperience may be showing, but Daly feels that the "pitching is fine, we just need to get the bats going with it."

The Pioneers will be playing in Kemptville this Thursday but will be back in Manotick next Monday.

Lottery profits help hospitals.

On the night of the car accident, Bruce was not expected to live. Fortunately, a specially equipped and staffed trauma unit was ready and standing by at a nearby hospital. This special facility helped Bruce beat the odds and he has returned to work.

All eyes were on the ball during last Thursday night's W/CLBHL's game between Marie's Marcedes and the Burgundy Bombers. Marie Shelp, centre, and Vikki Holmes, back, of the Marcedes encountered the Bomber defence during this action.

B-52s ground Flyers

CHESTERVILLE — Dianne Shane posted her second shutout in as many games, backing Fawcett's B-52s 2-0 victory in the second half of the weekly Winchester/Chesterville Ladies Ball Hockey League's weekly double header.

In the opening end of the twin bill, Marie's Marcedes got in gear and rolled to their first victory, a 4-0 decision over Fraser's Flyers. Elaine Teplate registered the perfect game.

After two weeks the B-52s are on target with two wins. The Marcedes and Flyers have two points each and the Burgundy Bombers are still looking for their first two points.

Marie's Marcedes broke into the win column blanking Lori Garlough's Burgundy Bombers 4-0.

Nancy Johnston broke the ice putting the Marcedes on the board when she drilled a Marie Shelp pass into the back of the Bombers' net with 9:34 left in period one.

The Marcedes put two more goals on the score sheet in the sandwich session. Vikki Holmes made it 2-0 when she took a pass out from Lori Marriner and scored from the shallow slot at 7:18. Marriner then upped it to 3-0 connecting on an unassisted play with 17 seconds left in the period.

Vikki Holmes completed the scoring at 9:37 of the final frame.

Holmes gathered in a loose ball between the face-off circles and slapped it against the twine, making it a 4-0 final on an unassisted play.

The second part of the double header also went the shutout route as Wilma Fawcett guided her B-52s to a 2-0 win over Amy Fraser's Flyers.

Dianne Shane blocked everything the Flyers fired at her for the perfect game.

B-52s captain Wilma Fawcett supported her goalie, scoring the winning goal on a relay provided by Debbie Shaver with 4:41 left in period two.

Fawcett earned her second point of the game drawing an assist on Jackie Boulanger's insurance goal (2-0) with just 1:01 left in the contest.

O'Brien, Ladouceur Speedway leaders

CORNWALL — Pat O'Brien and Laurent Ladouceur shared top billing here at the Cornwall Motor Speedway on Sunday evening, as the 1990 racing season was launched.

On the first night of the 1990 racing season, O'Brien, from Kingston, and Ladouceur from Alexandria, each captured the checkered flag in one of two 20-lap Modified features.

O'Brien — the track champion at Cornwall two seasons ago — started from the pole position in the first feature and never looked back. He never relinquished his lead, holding off second- place finisher Ladouceur. Chico Dingwall of Prescott finished third.

The second feature was a rerun of the first, with the top two finishers changing positions. Ladouceur held off O'Brien, winning his fifth feature race so far in this young racing season. Ladouceur also won once at Can Am Speedway and three times at Edelweiss.

Bill Woodward of Norwood, N.Y. won the Semi-Pro feature, with Guy Brisson of St. Albert, Ontario in second and Kevin Fetterly of Massena, N.Y. in third.

In the Duke stock feature, Donald Binette of Dalkeith took home the checkered flag in the feature.

Drivers in all three classes experienced growing pains with the Speedway's newly shaped and surfaced track.

Over 450 loads of clay were added to the track in the off season. In addition, the track has been changed from oval to D- shaped.

Hospital Auxiliary re-elects Van Noy

by Rose Campbell

WINCHESTER — Gail Van Noy was re-elected president of the Winchester and District Memorial Hospital Auxiliary at the recent annual meeting. Supporting her are Reta Bray and Arlene Davidson, vice-presidents, Lee Wenz, treasurer and Mary Fisher, secretary. Lillias Lancaster assisted by Reta Bray will look after memorial fund donations.

Approximately 25 brightly colored cotton lap robes for patients in I-East are urgently needed this summer: the size—36x36 or 39x39 inches hemmed. Lap rugs can be left at the nurses' station I-East at the hospital.

The old furniture from the main waiting room has been sold. A smock inventory has been taken and new larger size smocks hopefully will be on hand when In-Service volunteers return in September.

The Chesterville Unit brought in seven knitted baby sets (white ones are needed), socks for patients in I-East and $1,200. Golden Valley brought four crib quilts for the Gift Shoppe. Morewood brought $1,375 from its dance and bridge. Mrs. Baker also reported that Glen MacGregor, who won the cash prize at the dance had returned it to the auxiliary.

The Winchester Unit plans to run the July and August bingos in Winchester this summer. The members are also selling tickets on a beautiful hand-made quilt which has been donated to them and will be drawn for at our fall bazaar.

June 21 from 1:30 to 3pm in the Conference Room will be the annual tea for ''All Volunteers''. The first Tuesday in July, the Sunshine Circle plans a strawberry social for patients in I-East.

The members voted to pay wages of a Teen Volunteer supervisor for July and August and also to give $150,000 to the hospital rebuilding fund over three years, the first $50,000 this fall.

In the past year, the auxiliary has purchased six complete bed units, a chemistry analyzer, decorated two waiting rooms, the Gift Shoppe, the pediatric common room, pictures for patients' rooms and cubicle curtains. Vernon Women's Institute sent $1,000 to redecorate the room that they had furnished when the hospital was built.

The June 14 meeting will complete our work until Sept. 13 when we start again.

Vernon WI welcomes Homemaking Clubs

by Vivian Alexander

VERNON — The meeting of the Vernon Women's Institute opened with the Ode and the Mary Stewart Collect.

The president welcomed everyone and our special guests, the 4-H Homemaking Clubs, their leaders and mothers from Dalmeny and Vernon.

The minutes were read and approved. Our annual plant auction was a great success again this year. A new member was welcomed, Mrs. Boland of Vernon.

The report on the Kemptville Workshops, at which 150 attended, was given. The report on the District Annual was given by Ann Velthuis and Evelyn Cowan and an invitation was extended to them to come to Vernon next year.

A donation of $50 was given to the 4-H clubs to help with their trip to Prince Edward Island. A trip to the Little Theatre in Ottawa was planned for June 5. The bus will leave Vernon Recreational Centre at 7pm.

Happy Birthday was sung to Ollie Cameron, and may you have many more.

The next meeting will be June 19 at Vernon Hall at 8pm

South Dundas initiative

Members of the South Dundas Economic Commission have taken their area's flagging economy by the shoulders and given it a shake. Now they need to grab the provincial government by the ankles and shake the quarters and freshly minted Loonies out of its pockets.

By taking the initiative to establish the Commission and then formulate an economic strategic plan, the members have accepted responsibility for the development of their own back yard.

Now, at least, we know the strengths and weaknesses of the area which encompasses the villages of Morrisburg and Iroquois and Matilda and Williamsburg Townships. And how, really, can one expect business and industrial growth if these aren't identified.

But now, with the strategic plan in hand, the Commission is facing another problem: a lack of money to put the recommendations fully into place. Commission chairman Blake Noon is too much of a diplomat to say that implementation of the strategic plan is being hampered by a shortfall of funds.

Yet when the plan suggests a budget of $90,000 to hire an economic development officer and staff an office in South Dundas, and the annual Commission budget is a meagre $12,000, something's going to be left out.

Noon suggests the four municipalities, which largely fund the Commission, cannot afford such a high budget. Of course they can't during these days of high interest rates and spiralling taxes. But, as the saying goes, you have to spend money to make money — though it doesn't necessarily have to be your own you spend.

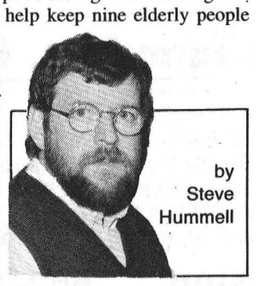
The Commission now is going to the province for grant money and planning to hire a part-time economic development officer. Since opening an office and hiring an economic development officer is the key to implementing the plan, the Commission shouldn't settle for second best.

Because the governments that built the St. Lawrence Seaway were responsible for changing the course of development of Morrisburg and Iroquois by inundating the downtown cores of the villages, and then providing charmless shopping plazas to replace them, perhaps they should be more generous with grant money designed to rejuvenate the South Dundas economy.

While Morrisburg enjoys more prosperity and its shopping plaza has just undergone a major facelift, Iroquois' plaza remains shabby and faceless, with several storefronts vacant.

People, these days, seem to get good and angry about environmental issues; they often wave placards and embark on letter writing campaigns. But what does it take to get them mad enough to fight for improvement of their own back yards?

Alone amid the people



by Steve Hummell

The young Rev. Niles, an affable man with kind eyes who is spearheading a fundraising and volunteer drive to help keep nine elderly people from losing their home at Hulbert Lodge, knows about isolation of the human spirit.

As a former social worker who's experienced the pain and misery of those trapped in nursing homes, and prisoners trapped in a different kind of hell, he empathizes with the residents, aged 70 to 94, who are threatened with the closing of their financially-troubled lodge.

Last week, sitting in his simple office in the clapboard manse of the United Church in Brinston, with the clatter and wail of his young children coming from other parts of the house, we spoke about the old peoples' plight.

Their vulnerability, says Rev. Niles, is immense and the stress accompanying such a threatened move is a major crises in their lives.

A psychologist told me that such a forced move for anybody creates a level of stress comparable to that felt by a soldier in combat. People forced out of their homes, for any reason, often never recover, he said, and could suffer from depression the remainder of their lives. And he was referring to people of average age, not the elderly who are nearly always isolated anyway from mainstream society.

Because of that isolation and the fragility of their existence, such a simple thing as being forced to move becomes a nightmare.

Having moved recently from an isolated community after living there many years, I know how the stress can affect you.

I grew accustomed to my world which had narrowed to a small Arctic town. And inside the town you tended to make it even smaller by establishing habits and daily routines which often excluded walking through certain parts for weeks and months. The isolation, itself, was comforting since it simplified your life. Satellite-delivered television and radio programs kept you informed, but they were remote and unreal. An avid reader of newspapers in the South, I'd often go six months without picking one up.

When I came here last June, I was returning to a once-familiar home territory. Yet the pace of life was vastly quicker and since you could do more things, go more places, see more people and spend more money, we did all those things. And I felt like an alien inhabiting my house. Like I didn't belong anywhere — certainly not there. I was miserable and confused, since we had looked forward to moving here for several years.

It's difficult to describe the emptiness that dwelt inside me; I had returned to an area that seemed to hold nothing for me, no promise or happiness and all I wanted was to go back to the North; yet I knew, also, that my time there had really come to an end.

Next month it will be a year since we returned and it's taken all that time for me to adjust.

Yet I'm a good 30 to 50 years younger than the nine residents of Hulbert Lodge; I have the support of my family and goals and accomplishments to look forward to.

When I put myself in the position of a resident of Hulbert Lodge, physically weak perhaps, or infirm, unsure about my future, about my friends and family still visiting at a new place, about the treatment I may receive elsewhere, it sends shivers up my spine.

Our elders deserve better than that.

Reflections: History repeats for Robertsons

by Steve Hummell
Press Staff Reporter

MORRISBURG — While 80-year-old Don Robertson has spent a lifetime working his eighth-generation St. Lawrence River apple orchard, he foresees a bleak future for the one-man operation his son, Scott, now farms.

Having lived through an era that's gone from the horse-and- buggy to putting a man on the moon, Robertson, a tall solidly- built man whose sure, steady voice belies his age, says it's costing the small farmer too much to produce apples.

"I don't see any future for the farm," Robertson said, as he rested his elbow on the dining room table of his farmhouse situated on the shores of the St. Lawrence about two kilometres west of here.

He said producing other crops — like strawberries which Scott introduced several years ago — helps offset costs, but farmers like his son who remain in the business do so largely for the lifestyle, not the cash.

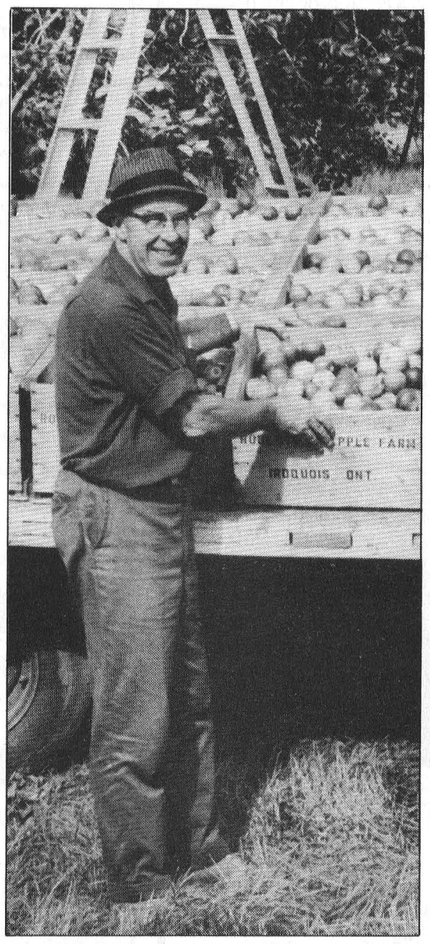
"Your prices can only go so high before you get buyer resistance," said the grower who graduated from Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph in 1931 with a horticultural degree.

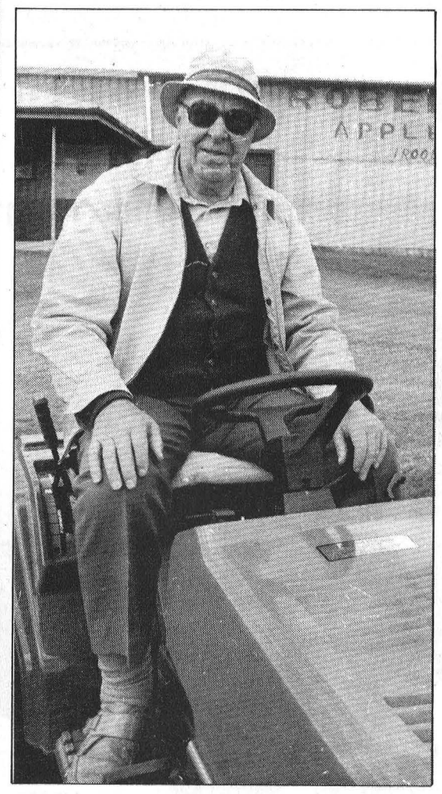
He says free trade is hurting the fruit business because Canadian growers cannot compete with growers from Mexico and California where labor costs are lower and the climate more favorable. Large Canadian farm operations stand a better chance than the small growers, he said, because they can spread out their production costs and operate more economically.

History, they say, has a way of repeating itself. And for Scott Robertson that proved true to form. Just as Don took over the operation when his father, Ernest, called on him, Scott left a position with Sun Oil to work the farm when Don got sick about 10 years ago with kidney failure.

Now with his workload limited to mowing the grass, some pruning and other chores, Don's well-deserved retirement gives him time to reflect on the evolution of the apple growing business.

Aged 26 when he came home from a "high-pressure" job with Canada Packers, Don Robertson returned to a general farm with a large number of hens. They switched to poultry production, growing to a 3,000-bird operation before the farm began evolving towards apple production.





Apple grower Don Robertson keeps his hand in the work around the orchard.
Press Photo—Hummell

"I was a horticulturist and I was interested in fruit more than livestock," recalls Don. "I hated cows. Every time I had to milk cows I'd find an excuse to do something else. Anyhow, we dropped out of animal husbandry fast."

When Scott took over the operation he planted semi-dwarf MacIntosh trees to replace the larger trees which developed from the original MacIntosh grafts at Dundela. That move, coupled with technological improvents, changed the face of the apple business.

"It's a different type of orchard entirely from what I started with originally," said Don. "We had the standard type tree and they were too high and too cumbersome to work and cost too much money to keep them."

In those days, production topped 10,000 to 15,000 bushels, he said, and now with the smaller trees and some 25 acres less in orchards, production is about 8,000 bushels.

The modern, semi-dwarf trees grow to about 12 feet high, whereas the standard trees required 20-foot ladders for picking. None of the original trees remains.

"But it was entirely a different system years ago and we were spraying with an automatic piece of equipment mostly hand- worked," said the grower. "It would take three men three days to cover the whole orchard and now Scott does the whole thing alone with a concentrated sprayer in a day."

Adds Don with a chuckle: "And it was a hell of a lot harder work because we were lugging a hose through the orchard with 600 pounds pressure and if you didn't watch yourself it would throw you down..."

Don and his wife, Caroline, have been married 51 years and their four children — Scott, Dale, Sandra and Guy — have given them 12 grandchildren.

When Don returned to the farm to help his father, horses were still used.

"I remember the first tractor we got, my father jumped on and was ploughing the field east of here and he came up to the headland and yelled, 'Whoa,' and the tractor went right on into the fence," laughed Don. "I'm glad I saw that."

When the St. Lawrence Seaway was constructed, 10 acres of orchard were flooded and his farmhouse relocated to higher ground, and Don recalls a Saturday night party being thrown in honor of the flooding. Each hour somebody went down to the river to measure the progress of the flood, but it only came up eight inches during the whole night.

"Everybody expected this great flood of water and here it took several days to reach its level, it was very gradual."

Once active in the Federation of Agriculture and the Canadian Club and a golfer and curler, Don's activities have slowed down a little and yet having lived on the shores of the St. Lawrence River most of his life, he never found time to take up fishing.

And he probably never will.

Seventh Column

by Joe Rowan

There was excitement galore at "Baker's Corners" last weekend. The weatherman came through with glorious daytime sunshine and warm evening breezes assuring the success of action-packed programs. Friday evening (and well into the following morning), the curling rink-turned- ballroom proved an ideal setting for the annual Metcalfe Agricultural Society fundraising dinner-dance, where more than 300 danced the night away with those fabulous 'After 8' musicians on stage. But perhapsT we should explain. They don't call the place Baker's Corners anymore. In 1845 (or thereabouts) pioneer builder Adam J. Baker was 'upstaged' by the then Governor General Charles Theopholis Metcalfe. Gosh, sure glad they didn't call the tiny settlement 'Theopholis.'

But more about that busy, hectic, and very enjoyable weekend. One might have been forgiven for thinking the late-night 'socializing' at the Society Ball would hamper the spectacular day-long official opening (or official recognition if you prefer) of the main corner park. Not so! More than a thousand men, women, girls, boys, children and babes in arms joined in the revelry and atmosphere of goodwill that always prevails when rural folk get together. It would be to venture onto very thin ice if this column attempted to focus attention on highlights of the day and evening. Suffice to say the 'Highlight' began when Frank Foley and his barrel organ rolled into town at 10am and concluded when local volunteer firefighters presented an amazing fireworks display that echoed and re-echoed across the Valley and turned the late-night sky into a dazzling blaze of color. Truly a day and a night deserving a prominent page in the village history.

Of course, it would be folly to suggest this columnist, with just a trace of premature grey(?), could spend all those happy hours in the gaily-decorated park and not occasionally peek behind the curtain of time and see it as it was a few decades ago. Why it seems only yesterday the very spot where we were standing was right in the centre of what was then the beautiful garden where no weed dared to challenge the ruthless swing of the late Bert Warren's hoe. NOTE: Mr. and Mrs. Warren and their family were the last to reside in the historic 'Victoria House' before it was demolished.

As we pound away at the battered typewriter keys this morning, only hours after absorbing radio and television newscasts and searching pages of both dailies (Citizen and Sun), we have to ask ourselves how 'Big Time' editors, publishers, reporters, photographers (and even columnists) establish their priorities. 'Hours' and 'pages' telling and re-telling, and re-telling again, tales of 'Meech,' 'Strikes,' 'Separation,' 'Distinct Society Clauses,' and on and on and on. But, alas, not even a miniscule line referring to an event most Osgoode Township residents will long remember. A day when two uniformed RCMP riders delighted both young and old; when Ontario Provincial Police officers spent leisurely hours assuring children that 'policemen' are their best friends; when firefighters displayed super-modern equipment; when highly-trained police dogs exercised their skills; when a striking Lions Club 'Friendship Arch' was dedicated; when historical society president Bob Usher briefly traced the site's historic past; when Mayor Albert Bouwers declared the park officially open and unfurled the new municipal flag designed by students; and when an evening 'Old Fashioned House Party' attracted a capacity crowd at a school gymnasium. And there was even more. Local businessmen eagerly participated with both 'specials' and downright 'giveaways.' And yes, we'd have to say there was a 'highlight' here. Mike (of Metcalfe Variety Store) and Al (of AJ's Catering) successfully 'managed' to 'give away' a total of 2,400 hot dogs — complete with all the trimmings. That's right, and obviously it all went completely unnoticed by those who claim to have their thumbs on the pulse of the nation. Yep! you're right — thank God for weeklies.

Hold it right there! There's still more to tell and we're downright proud to report that both the always-popular 'Good News Singers' and the now-famous Osgoode Township Male Choir provided a delightful prelude to the dazzling fireworks display. And we just have to tell you this. Members of the male choir had, earlier in the evening, performed as part of a genuine professionally-programmed presentation at the swank new $88,000,000 Regional 'Palace' before a crowd of approximately 200. But hear this — when their buses arrived at the park at 9:30 that evening, the singers were noisily welcomed by more than a thousand enthusiastic fans...country folk of all colors, races and creeds joined harmoniously in a common cause. Maybe our troubled Prime Minister might be well advised to call on rural Canada to help him mend the ever-widening 'separation' gap.

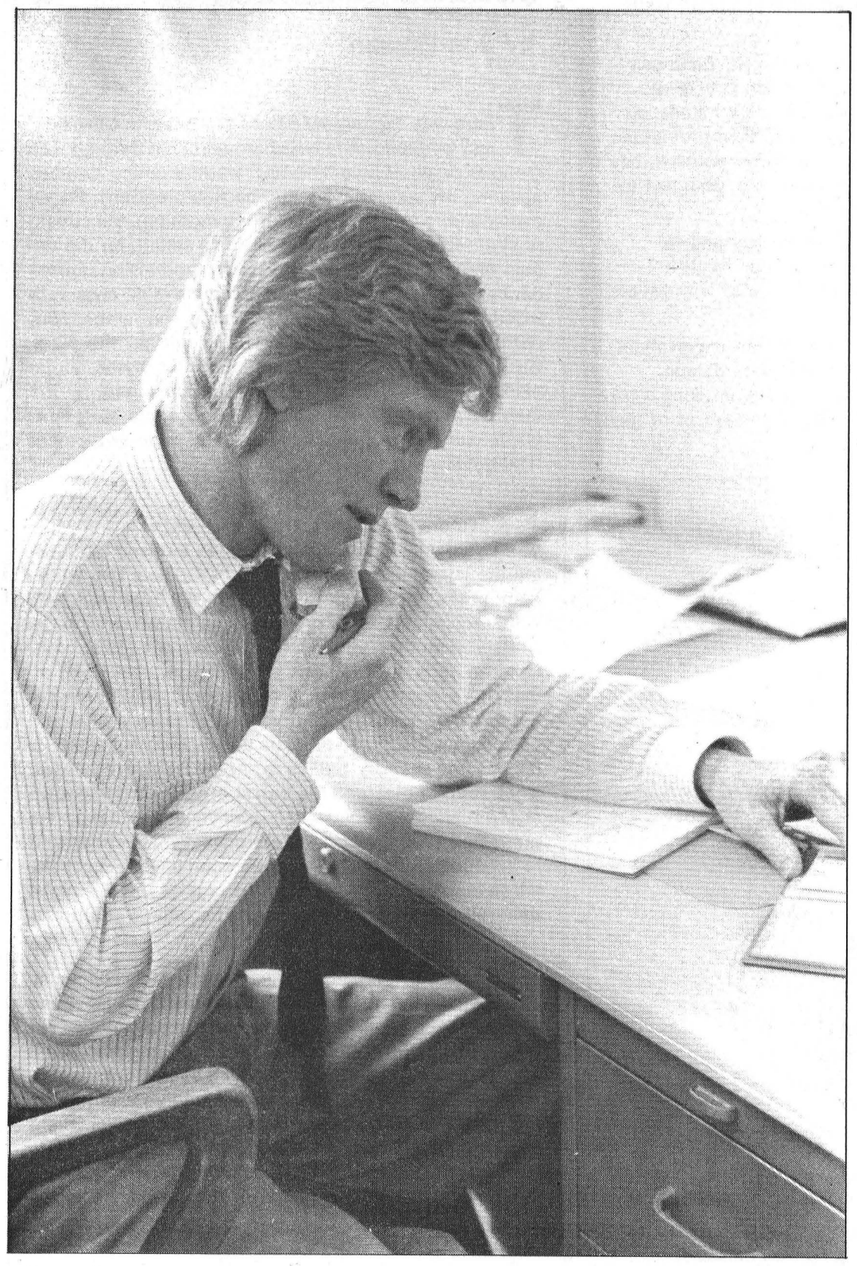
Farm update



Familiar territory

Tom Redpath finds himself in familiar territory at Kemptville College. The new Agriculture in the Classroom conference co-ordinator received an agriculture diploma from the college in the early 1970s. The fall conference is scheduled for October.

Agriculture in Classroom fits co-ordinator's lifestyle

by Dianne Fetterly
Press Staff Reporter

KEMPTVILLE — The new Agriculture in the Classroom (AITC) conference co-ordinator says the position should fit nicely into his lifetyle since it deals with his three favorite things — youth, education and agriculture.

Tom Redpath was hired recently by the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food (OMAF) to organize activites for the AITC Fall Conference being held in Cornwall next October.

According to Redpath, the bilingual conference is targeting for 200 participants, comprised of about 75 per cent educators (teachers, superintendents and trustees). As well, he hopes to include representatives from agribusinesses, farm organizations, community groups and members of the AITC volunteer committee.

The conference will draw representation from the counties east of, and including Lennox-Addington and Renfrew.

The concept was the brainstorm of the AITC sub-committee on communications who felt a conference was the best way to give the program a higher profile and increase public awareness.

The AITC program was designed by OMAF to increase students' awareness about the environment, biology, physics, mathematics, commerce and social sciences through the study of agriculture. It lends itself to integrated curriculum programs currently being adapted by many school boards throughout Ontario.

Redpath stressed the importance of media attendance at the conference.

''Reporters would be able to explain to communities what we are trying to accomplish,'' he said from his office at Kemptville College.

The environment at Kemptville College is not new to the 40- year-old Redpath. He received a diploma in agriculture from the college in 1972.

Having grown up in Montreal, Redpath said he always had an agricultural career in the back of his mind — specifically, owning a farm.

Redpath and his family lived in Kemptville while he worked as a curator at Upper Canada Village near Morrisburg. Then he took a managerial position with the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers Association in Carleton Place.

The position with the Wool Growers included editing a small wool growers' magazine that zeroed in on producer education. This meant talking to sheep producers and visiting farms and field day events. Redpath's involvement in the industry grew until his position became what he described as ''a sort of field rep.''

With interest increasing in the sheep industry, Redpath decided to take a cross-Canada working sabbatical, to learn more about it. He and his wife and daughter stayed at different farms across the country throughout the four-month trip. During this period he met a sheep shearer who suggested he visit a country where sheep were recognized as a viable commodity.

Redpath spent 18 months in New Zealand, where he worked on a 3,500 acre farm with 10,000 head of sheep and 800 Black Angus cattle.

He said he, along with a manager, a shepherd and another helper, ran the operation with a lot of help from 15 dogs.

''The dogs did most of the work,'' said Redpath. ''We counted on them for a lot.''

He explained that the Border Collies were used mainly for rounding up the sheep and steering the herd, while the Huntaways (a German-Shepherd mix), dispersed the sheep throughout the paddock. Sheep, he added, tend to have a very strong flocking instinct and graze too closely together, so it is important to have the dogs to spread them out.

After a six-week stint in Australia, Redpath returned to Canada where he took a job with Natural Resources in the Clayton area. In the winter months he helped out a farmer in poor health.

Redpath finally realized his dream of owning his own farm that spring when the farmer decided to sell the 300-acre operation.

He and his wife started off with 90 sheep, increasing the herd to 250 over the next couple of years. But the farm could not sustain itself and Redpath found it necessary to work off the farm.

Neighbors had demanded his skills as a sheep shearer and before long he was in business. His clientele grew across Eastern Ontario and Quebec. He found as his business expanded so did his commitment to the sheep industry. He became president of the Ontario Sheep Association around 1985, and the chairman of producer education as well.

Redpath was the Canadian Sheep Council's Ontario representative and went on to become national chairman, representing Canada at the international level.

In 1988 Redpath had been struggling with a decision to get out of the shearing business so he could devote more time to other commitments — a serious car accident made the decision for him.

Although he almost totally recovered, damage to the nerves in his legs left Redpath unable to handle the physically demanding sheep shearing job or the farm work. He and his wife sold the farm and moved to Almonte where they now live with their five children.

After several months recovery, Redpath became a consultant with the 4-H program. With the program being restructured, he rewrote the Sheep Club program to appeal to 10-year-olds.

Redpath's agricultural involvement isn't in any way limited to his newest job as AITC Conference coordinator. He still helps out with fundraising for the Advanced Leadership Program, of which he was previously acting program director, and is still involved with the 4-H program.

As well, he started working in January with a private firm which organizes agricultural tours from other countries.

States-provinces accord opens lines for communication

TORONTO — As the American delegates who attended the States-Provinces Agricultural Accord Meeting in Toronto prepared to leave for home, host David Ramsay, Ontario Minister of Agriculture and Food, expressed his hope that the meeting would ensure continued and open communications between Canada and the United States on agricultural issues.

''I hope that agriculture will become less of a 'them versus us' industry; that co-operation and understanding be encouraged among all levels of agriculture, domestically and internationally,'' he said.

The Accord is a consultative body, comprised of Canada's ministers of agriculture and the board of directors of the U.S. National Association of State Departments of Agriculture. It was formed to improve agricultural trade relations between Canada and the U.S. through dialogue and problem solving.

''There are challenges before all of us — subsidy wars, GATT negotiations, the impact of the Free Trade Agreement, trade barriers between countries, states and provinces,'' Ramsay said at the conclusion of the Accord meeting.

''Despite these, I believe that we all would like to foster a climate of healthy competition and a level playing field. And this requires willingness. A willingness to put aside self- interest and find out what our colleagues are doing to meet challenges. A willingness to give advice and share innovative ideas. A willingness to negotiate and a willingness to respect our differences,'' he said.

Some of the ideas shared during the course of the two-day meeting included discussion on the challenges of the next century. Robert Mitchell, director of Michigan's Department of Agriculture presented his state's strategic plan, called ''Reaching 2020.''

He outlined the five key themes of the paper, which included consumer orientation; investment and economic development food safety; environmental accountability and leadership coalitions and institutional change.

''The Michigan and Ontario visions of the future are very similar, since we both enjoy common land resources, climates and markets,'' Ramsay said. ''There is a great advantage to both of our jurisdictions if we can find common understanding and possibly common approaches to realizing opportunities for our industries in the '90s and into the new century.''

The Ontario ministry has also been involved in a strategic planning process and will release its plan in June.

Another issue discussed during the meeting was food safety. Ministry director Jim Pettit brought the delegates up-to-date on the development of the ministry's enhanced food quality and safety program.

Other program components involve consumer education, a situation response team, food standards legislation and research and marketing initiatives.

''In Ontario, we feel it is important that the entire agri- food industries actively develop both consultation and education programs with consumers,'' Ramsay said in his introduction of Pettit.

''Consumers can no longer be considered merely the end-users of our products. A dissatisfied consumer, or a misinformed consumer, has immense power over our industry.''

Sessions were also held on Canadian and American agriculture and food policy, trade dispute mechanisms and ''the challenges of the next century.''

Chesterville man receives KCAT excellence award

KEMPTVILLE — Hard work paid off for students last week as Kemptville College held its graduation ceremonies.

Robin Merrifield of Chesterville was presented the Roy Class Memorial Award for demonstrating academic excellence along with creativity and leadership in horticultural activities.

The former Ottawa resident also received one of six Ottawa Carleton 1983 International Plowing Match scholarships for overall academic standing in the first and second semesters and on successful completion of the diploma courses.

Merrifield, 28, obtained a 79.8 per cent average in the horticulture production and management program and is currently employed with the United Co-operatives of Ontario on Hwy. 31, in the horticulture centre. According to his mother, Merrifield worked for four years before attending Kemptville College to pursue a career in his first love — horticulture.

Osgoode-area graduate Dianne VanBoxtel was also a recipient of an Ottawa Carleton Plowing Match Scholarship for academic achievement. The 19-year-old plans to work on the family dairy farm with her father. She received a 75 per cent average.

Other area graduates include: Joanne Hughes, Kemptville, food services management; Diane Sparling, Kemptville, food services management; F. James Bennett, Kemptville, dairy cattle production; Gordon 'Ted' Boewe, South Mountain, dairy cattle production; Ian A. Porteous, Winchester, dairy cattle production; Debbie Sugrue, Edwards, equestrian program and Dianne Fetterly, Mountain, agricultural journalism.

In all, 92 students received their diplomas or certificates at the ceremonies held at the W.B. George Centre, Thurs., May 24. The total number of agricultural graduates was down from last year's figure of 54, to 44 this year.

AG. JOB PROSPECTS

The number of off-farm jobs advertised on campus rose to 160 this year, about half of them in landscaping.

The other 85 were advertised by agri-businesses looking for salesmen, lab assistants and indoor technical workers. Governments looked for a handful of inspectors.

Two years ago, agri-business advertised 109 permanent positions, a remarkable recovery from the early '80s when only a handful of college graduates found jobs.

Len MacGregor, Kemptville College placement officer, says the starting salary for jobs in agribusiness ranges from $20,000 to $22,000, a rise of $2,000 to $4,000 over two years ago.

Only about 12-15 graduates of the agricultural diploma programs have been looking for jobs this spring. The rest have returned to farms, says MacGregor.

While the number of jobs advertised has risen, the number of recruiters on campus has dropped. This year only four companies held interviews on campus. "Most companies prefer to hold interviews at their place of employment," MacGregor says.

The number of farmers looking for permanent help has declined, probably because the College has not been able to meet their manpower needs. Only 20 advertised this year, compared to more than 200 in 1988.

Maxville Hostein Show

Numbers down but quality still there

MAXVILLE — The numbers weren't there, but the quality was at the Maxville Spring Holstein Show Friday. A total of 160 head were featured at the show, down from 176 last year. Murray Howes, one of the show's organizers and president of Holstein Canada, said he was pleased by the quality of the show but disappointed in the number of exhibitors, especially local exhibitors.

Weather was likely to blame for the low turnout of local exhibitors. After a couple of weeks of rain, many farmers were out on the fields Friday trying to finish spring planting.

Taking the grand champion title at the 1990 show was Glenaylor Ned Hilda, exhibited by James A. Walker of Guelph. The four-year-old also had best udder at the show.

Winning the reserve champion was Don A Dal Ned Crystal, exhibited by R. Jack Fraser and Dr. George Woods of Brampton. The five-year-old also won for highest BCA.

Show judge Lorne Elsass, of Wapakoneta, Ohio, had nothing but praise for the grand champion. "The cow is 'more youthful', a good udder and correctness in her rear legs." And he felt, being a four-year-old, the cow had more future than the reserve champion.

He also had words of praise for the reserve champion. "The cow has a beautiful open rib and is well framed," he said.

Howes was impressed with the quality of the show winners and with the general quality of the show.

"I think it probably was the best show we had," he said. "There were top quality cattle and both the grand and reserve were winners at other top Ontario and Quebec shows."

"The cows all had good udders and the classes were top-notch, all the way from the calf and yearlings to the senior cattle classes," he said.

The show featured exhibitors from as far as Guelph, from Prince Edward Island and from Quebec and the United States.

Premier breeder at the show was Sandycrest Holsteins of Arnprior with Oak Ridge Farms Ltd. of Richmond Hill taking the reserve banner.

Sandycrest also won in another category. The farm won the reserve title for top exhibitor. Winning the premier exhibitor title was Pamton Farms of Hudson Falls, New York.

Local exhibitors also fared well at the show. Sunnylodge Farms of Chesterville placed third for intermediate heifer and placed fifth in the five-year-old category.

Campbell Murray's Murrayholm Farms near Cornwall placed first for intermediate heifer. Another area farm, Cherry Crest Holsteins of Martintown, placed third in the three-year-old category.

John and Mary MacLeod of Dalkeith placed fifth in the senior yearling category and Breeze Hill Holsteins, at the south end of Carleton County, placed fourth and fifth in the two-year-old category.

Communications skills stressed

KEMPTVILLE — Agribusiness managers have rated courses that develop communication and academic skills higher than agricultural and business courses.

In a questionnaire returned to Kemptville College by 19 companies, a course in interpersonal skills topped the list followed by basic mathematics, science, salesmanship and writing in that order. Practical farm skills (calibrating a sprayer, etc.) tied for sixth position with public speaking.

Business management ranked eight, analysis of farm operations 10 and accounting 11.

Respondents were asked to rate 13 courses as very important, needed or not needed.

Questionnaires were given to 49 people, all selected because they were known personally by a member of the College faculty. The purpose was to get some feedback for revising the curriculum.

In the section asking employers to rate knowledge and skills, employers ranked writing, salesmanship, speaking, practical know-how, mathematics and the ability to conceptualize at the top of the list. Ability to do research ranked 11. High marks came last. Technical farm skills ranked eight while use of the computer and business management tied for ninth position.

However, averages can be misleading. For example, though high grades were ranked last, one company rated them as very important and 11 others as important. Similarly, though business management was ranked ninth, three employers ranked it at the highest level and another 11 said it was important.

Public speaking was the only skill that did not get ticked in the unimportant column while writing was checked 10 times in the most important column, topping all items.

Though most companies praised the agricultural production knowledge of two-year diploma graduates, many shared the view of Phil Renouf, recruiting administrator at Canada Packers Inc., that graduates are weakest in their ability "to present and convince both orally and (in) written form".

The only financial institution to return the questionnaire, Farm Credit Corporation, criticized the colleges for the emphasis on production management "at the expense of financial and risk management".

The questionnaires appear to reflect the concerns of the Canadian Business Task Force on Literacy, which estimates $10.7 billion are lost annually because of functional illiteracy. Literacy, according to the Ontario Ministry of Skills Development, is "the ability to meet the demands new technologies place on us: for increasingly sophisticated reading, writing and numeracy skills".

Functional literacy has become a problem for the farming industry as well as for - to name a few - the Canadian Army, forestry and auto makers.

Rudy Brown from Ridgetown College, who runs the provincial Grower Pesticide Safety course, said a number of people failed to complete the exam at the recommended level. Among other things, he expects low literacy and numeracy skills to have been causes.

Of 60 respondents to the Press survey, 29 were in favor of capital punishment and nine against. Those in favor of the death penalty with reservations numbered 23. The results of the Press' survey, and those conducted by other weekly newspapers across Canada, will be forwarded to the federal government.

Mr. and Mrs. John Boyd were among the hundreds of people evacutated over the weekend from Northern Ontario towns threatened by raging forest fires. John, a former resident of Winchester, is attached to the Grassy Narrows OPP detachment.

"Unbelievable" is how Winchester firemen describe the road toll they held in the village on Saturday. Firefighters raised $1,374 for the Children's Hospital of Eastern Ontario's burn unit at two voluntary tolls set up on St. Lawrence and Main Streets.

Finishing up

After a couple of weeks of wet weather, local farmers were able to get back onto the land last weekend to try to finish up planting the crops. Area Crop Specialist Gilles Quesnel says crops planted in the quicker drying soils were planted on time, while crops planted on the heavier soils were delayed up to two weeks. He also said corn planted on time may be a week behind because of the cold soil temperatures. Press Photo—Fetterly

Country musicians gather

CHESTERVILLE — Some were singing, others were playing instruments and more were dancing, all to the familiar strains of country music.

It's a familiar scene at the Legion Hall in Chesterville when, once a month, members of the Tri-County Country Music Association meet to have a good time.

On May 12, the association kicked off its third year of existence with the first of its summer-long dances with more than a dozen musicians taking the stage and dozens more waltzing onto the dance floor.

The club has grown quickly since its inception three years ago, when Bill MacLean, who is a guitarist with the local country band, Classic Country, got together with local bass guitarist Brian Allison to form the association.

The Tri-County Country Music Association offers local amateur musicians, who normally don't get the chance to perform, an opportunity to entertain. Musicians who show up at the dances are not obligated to perform.

"There's no pressure on anybody. Nobody gets paid. It's (for) whoever wants to come out at night. That's what makes it easy for anybody who wants to get up and entertain. If they don't feel like it, they don't have to," said MacLean.

But the club also appeals to professional musicians like MacLean. On most weekends, MacLean is performing professionally with his band Classic Country, but when he gets the chance, he joins the musicians at the Legion and has fun, he said.

The association is not restricted to just musicians. Anyone can join. At the opening night almost two weeks ago, about 100 people attended. Most of them just came to dance and enjoy the music. MacLean said the club helps promote country music. "It's keeping the country music going," he said.

Membership is dominated by people over the age of 30, but MacLean said the club has a broadly-based appeal. "Our club is one that can accommodate the young ones more. Mostly (clubs) it's just fiddle music, but in our club we've kept to a lot of singing, country music, rather than just old-time fiddle music," he said.

The club now boasts about 100 members, but MacLean doesn't know how many of the members are actually musicians. The dances often feature guest musicians from all over Eastern Ontario, sometimes from as far away as Smiths Falls.

The entertainment enjoyed by club members is not limited to once-a-month on Saturdays. Every year, the association organizes the Tri-County Country Jamboree. This year it will take place at the site of the Finch Steam and Antique Show on the last weekend of July.

MacLean is hoping the jamboree will attract between 50 to 100 musicians. "We'll have a lot of them out there," he said.

This year's jamboree will once again feature the infamous "hairy legs contest," where men show off their legs while wearing dresses.

Another event members can look for, is the annual bus trip to popular country music areas in Tennessee. Last year, club members went to Nashville. "There are entertainers on the bus, all the way down. I went on it last year. It was a good trip," he said.

This year the club has secured a package deal to visit Dollywood, which is named after country entertainer Dolly Parton.

School bell tolls no more

At 105, bell finds home in Osgoode Township Museum

METCALFE — Former Metcalfe Public and Metcalfe Continuation School students will fondly remember when the bell in its lofty tower summoned them to classes and was the disgusting reminder that 'recess' had ended.

This week, the historic reminder of another era has found a permanent home at the Township of Osgoode Museum, Vernon...and has most likely been silenced forever.

Manufactured in 1885, it was installed at Metcalfe Public School in 1888...many years before the Continuation School addition was built. When the sturdy brick school was demolished in 1955 (approximately), the bell was moved to the Fire Hall and mounted in a rather makeshift belfry. Note: That building now houses Mike's Beauty Salon.

The bell moved again with the fire department to its new home a few years ago, when the new township garage (Scrivens Drive) was opened and firefighting equipment occupied the abandoned garage on Victoria Street.

For several more years it gathered dust in a forgotten corner but, during those years, Fire Chief Peter Griffin assured it was not abused and last year carefully transferred it to the new, ultra-modern combination fire protection and police headquarters.

The retired chief, realizing the bell's historic significance, sought approval to have the bell find a place of honor where it might be admired by future generations and, last week, Township of Osgoode Historical Museum officials enthusiastically accepted the symbol of days long gone.

Recently retired Chief Peter Griffin handed over the bell to museum officials Murray Little, Bob Usher and former pupil Audrey Graham, who relived her memories of school days and the friendly echo of the bell.

Old bell finds new home

Now, 105 years old, the bell has found a new home where it will be on display as a quaint reminder of school days long gone. Retiring fire chief Peter Griffin, right, hands the treasured artifact to, left to right, Township of Osgoode Historical Museum executive members Murray Little and Bob Usher, while former MPS pupil Audrey Graham looks on approvingly.

Metcalfe Public School was erected in 1885 and, according to early records, a bell was installed two years later. In the early years of this century, a one-room continuation school, and a few years later, a second floor was added. The main entrance to the present public school is within a few feet of where the pupils above began their educational careers. Note: Little girl, front row centre, is Ethel Simpson (Mrs. E.H. Rolston), mother of Kemptville funeral director Keith Rolston and Phyllis (Mrs. Harold Boyd) of Ottawa.

Mountain Musings

by Shirley Mills

Remember the Demolition Derby that was cancelled last March because of the mud? Well, now there is another chance to get in on the fun. On Sun., June 10, from 12 noon, a Demolition Derby will be held at the South Mountain Fairgrounds. This is sponsored by the Mountain and District Lions Club. The proceeds will be given to the Winchester Hospital and other Lions' activities. There will be five heats: pickup trucks; wagons and heavy cars; compacts; and two heats with cars and wagons. Prize money is $100. For more information, call Roy Sherrer at 989-2781.

As you may have noticed, seniors are invited to participate in physical activity during the last week in May. (In our area, the Mountain Seniors are doing the walk on May 30.) What I object to, however, is the patronizing tone of this invitation to participate.

You might not have noticed, but anyone over the age of 55 is invited to join the seniors groups (or take part in the walk). There is nothing wrong with that as from what I hear, these seniors are having a lot of fun. But, let's get serious. We have all met those who act old at age 30 and others who retain their zest for life until well into their 70s and 80s. But why should the 'powers that be' suggest seniors could take a gentle walk around the block during this particular week? What do these people think seniors do for the rest of the year?

Most of the 'mature' people I know walk miles each day, keeping up with housework, gardening, helping on the farm, running businesses, serving at church suppers, volunteering their time and energy for worthwhile causes, not to mention things like bowling, curling, bicycling, walking, swimming, etc. Actually, a little walk around a block might be a welcome relief from the race of day-to-day living.

For the next decade, seniors are invited to total their miles walked during this week each year, and attempt to cover the distance from Pluto to Neptune. Let's face it. If all the miles walked by seniors during daily living could be tallied, I'd bet the distance could be covered in just one year.

I wrote a poem a few years back which appeared in the Ottawa Journal. It was written for someone else, but it fits any age:

BIRTHDAY

The calendar betrays,
It tells of age,
Though yesterday, a girl,
Life beckoned.

No need regret the things undone,
For striving never ends.
The outer shell it matters not,
That girl, still young, within.
