No trespassing

LONG SAULT — The Ontario Provincial Police is warning hunters to obtain permission from property owners before hunting on private property. Const. Bernie Gadbois of the Long Sault OPP detachment, said police have received a number of complaints of hunters trespassing on private property. Hunters who trespass are usually from outside the area, not local hunters, he said. Any hunter caught trespassing faces a $53.75 fine from police.

Up in the air

MAPLE RIDGE — An Ottawa businessman wants another crack at promoting his plan to develop a unique kind of subdivision at the Winchester Air Park. Winchester Township Deputy Reeve Wyman Barton said Tuesday Gordon McDougall has asked to appear before council to present his argument in favor of the subdivision. He is proposing to build eight homes, each with a hangar, on the air park's property in the hope of attracting pilots to settle there. But a couple of residents claiming to represent other residents living nearby are opposed to the proposed development. McDougall is expected to meet with council Nov. 1.

Getting the fax

MAPLE RIDGE — Winchester Township office is shopping for a fashionable piece of technology – the fax machine. "There definitely is a need," said Winchester Township Reeve Wyman Barton, Tuesday. Council has authorized the clerk, Nancy Krisjanis, to look for an affordable fax machine. Krisjanis is pleased with council's decision. "We won't have to run to Chesterville to pick stuff up," she said.

Contract awarded

CHESTERVILLE — Chesterville Council awarded the contract to install a watermain into the village park to Cruickshank Construction Limited at a meeting last Wednesday night. The installation by the Morrisburg-based firm will cost the village $17,000. The watermain is being installed to increase fire protection for the Nelson LaPrade Centre, the swimming pool building, and the Pavillion. A date for the installation has not yet been set. Chesterville Clerk Howard Smith said it would take place as soon as a certificate of approval is issued by the Ministry of Environment. He said he expected the approval to come within the next week or two.

Ridge residents rake council over coals for road name

Yves Cossette

MAPLE RIDGE — About 50 Maple Ridge Road residents have petitioned Winchester township council to have a portion of their road renamed Maple Ridge Road.

Council officially named all municipal roads earlier this year to enable emergency vehicles to find their way on township roads during an emergency.

Residents only found out about the change about a week ago when Ministry of Transport crews posted new signs in the wake of Highway 43's reconstruction.

Maple Ridge Road residents were upset that a portion of the road, which has traditionally been part of Maple Ridge Road, was changed to Belanger Road, which runs in a straight line from Highway 43 north to Boyne Road.

The portion of the road in dispute was between Highway 43 to where Maple Ridge Road branches eastward to meet Highway 43 at the Maple Ridge Cemetery.

"It's been Maple Ridge Road for 111 years and all of a sudden it's changed," said Bryan Helmer one of 13 residents attending a council meeting Monday night.

A spokesperson for the residents, Olive Hutchinson presented the petition with 50 names demanding the entire historical route of Maple Ridge Road be named as such.

"We feel a certain amount of loyalty to our ancestors who named that road," she said.

Hutchinson, a lifelong resident of the road, said she hoped council would comply with the resident's demand.

"We're hopeful that they will give us our given road name," she said.

And that's precisely what council did after hearing residents voice their complaint.

Council passed a motion renaming the disputed portion of Maple Ridge Road. But council insisted on leaving a sign pointing to Belanger Road as well, so that emergency vehicle drivers wouldn't be confused.

Council officially assigned about 50 names to municipal roads in a by-law passed earlier this year. The road naming was done to conform to a new county-wide emergency response system.

Winchester Township Councillors defended the earlier decision to name the disputed portion of the road Belanger Road.

"We're trying to simplify things as much as possible," Councillor Dwayne Holmes said. "As much as possible we went with the old names we knew."

Holmes said more complaints could follow as people realize some changes have taken place. Some changes were also made because the road names were in dispute.

Many of the township's roads were named after original settlers, but have since been renamed by successive township road crews who have identified the roads after current residents, he said.

Winchester Township Reeve Claude Cousineau defended the procedure undertaken to rename the roads. He said the township published advertisements announcing a public meeting on the road naming for four successive weeks.

Chesterville tries again for sewage upgrade grant

Yves Cossette

CHESTERVILLE — Village council has taken a second crack at applying for a provincial government grant to help upgrade Chesterville's sewage pumping station and lagoon.

An application submitted last year was turned down by the Ministry of Environment because the ministry had run out of money. The village submitted another application.

The village is unable to pay for the estimated $2.9 million of work needed to upgrade the pumping station and to expand the lagoon by itself, said Reeve Jim Cook. "At this point in time we're not able to proceed with this on our own."

The pumping station has to be upgraded and the lagoon capacity has to be expanded to handle future growth of the village.

It culd cost up to $2.9 million, to fix the pumping station, to expand the lagoon and to carry out some recommendations in the final report of the Lifelines Study.

The study recommends more storm sewers be installed so that rain water is directly discharged into the river without affecting the lagoon's capacity.

Meanwhile, the Ministry of Environment wants the village to expand the lagoon's capacity so it will only have to be emptied once a year during spring run-off. The lagoon is now emptied twice a year.

The MOE put a freeze on development a year ago pending the outcome of the Lifelines Study and the upgrading of the pumping station and the expansion of the lagoon.

With the Lifelines Study done, council had hoped to get some development started. But until the upgrading work can be done, the extent of subdivision growth is uncertain.

Cook still believes some development is possible within the next year. But he wouldn't say how much.

"I anticipate some (growth), (but) I don't want to quantify that," he said.

The extent of growth depends on the outcome of future meetings with officials from the Ministry of Environment, he said.

Cook said he would like to proceed with the upgrading of the pumping station next summer. The cost of upgrading the pumping station is estimated at $750,000, he said.

"Perhaps the year after (we could) do the lagoon expansion, to allow for growth in the village," he said.

Chesterville facing $122,000 bill to repair sewers

Yves Cossette

CHESTERVILLE — The village is facing a $122,000 bill to fix its aging sewer system.

Chesterville Council received the final report, known as the Lifelines Study, at a meeting last Wednesday night and applied for a grant from the Ministry of Environment to help pay for $122,000 remedial work being called for in the study.

Even with provincial government assistance, the village can expect to pay at least $80,000 of the repair work, said Reeve Jim Cook, Thursday.

The $92,000 study, which was conducted by the Cornwall firm McNeely Engineering Ltd., was started last March to assess the state of Chesterville's water and sewer infrastructure. The Ministry of Environment is paying $77,000, 81 per cent, of the cost of the study.

The engineering firm used state-of-the-art technology to detect the leaks. Video cameras were lowered into the sewer to film the entire length of the system. In all 15, 90-minute tapes were made.

The study has pinpointed several leaks in the sanitary sewer system, including a section which runs underneath the South Nation River, that have to be fixed.

The study estimated about 30 per cent of the sewage lagoon's treatment capacity was being inadvertantly used to treat water from the South Nation because of the ruptures in the sewer pipe underneath the river.

The report recommends new storm sewers be installed to prevent rain water from getting into the village's lagoon and that several sanitary sewer manholes be fixed.

For the water system, the report recommends 10 new fire hydrants be installed, to meet MOE guidelines, and to install stop valves at strategic locations in the system to control the flow of water in the system.

Despite the repairs needed to fix the sanitary sewer and additions needed for the water system, Cook is pleased that the water system is intact.

"The water system is fine which made us feel good, because there is no leaking and it's in good shape," he said. Some repairs to the sanitary sewer have already been made.

Council received a draft report of the Lifelines Study last June. The report prompted council to fix leaks in the sanitary sewer underneath Church Street, which was under reconstruction at the time, and underneath Industrial Drive, before it was to be paved.

"It didn't make sense not to do it and then go back and dig it up," Cook said.

Council had hoped the outcome of the Lifelines study would lead to MOE approval for subdivision development. But the village's sewer pumping station needs upgrading and the lagoon needs to be expanded before more development takes place.

Cook said residential development is still possible in the near future. But the extent of the development depends on talks with Ministry of Environment officials when the Lifelines Study report is reviewed, he said.

Committee formed to forge link with business, industry, education

Greg Kielec

CORNWALL — The Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Public School Board has formed a liaison committee to link business and industry with education.

The Community-Education Liaison Committee will provide a vehicle for communication between the school board and organizations involved in providing educational components external to the regular in-school program.

The committee will liaison the SD&G Industry Education Council, Partnership Project, St. Lawrence College, and school apprenticeship programs. It will encompass alternative education programs and post-secondary transition initiatives for students as well.

Membership will include board trustee, a member of senior administration, principal of T.R. Leger alternative school, executive director of the Industry Education Council, co-ordinator of school-apprenticeship programs, a St. Lawrence College representative, a principal of a secondary school and a vocational consultant.

Board chairman Roy Hastings said the committee was formed to eliminate duplication of services by various groups promoting links between business, industry and education. "The whole thing will be more efficient and more economical."

The committee will make recommendations to various groups concerning the adoption of programs or program changes to better serve the education system, business and industry.

Liaison committees have been used extensively in Toronto because of the large number of groups that education systems must deal with. But the idea has just recently come to Eastern Ontario.

"It's now come to Cornwall. I think it's due," Hastings said.

The committee will mainly be used to determine what changes can be made to adapt adult education to the business and industrial sector, he said. The committee may also help increase options for people in adult education, he said.

The school board had been working on forming a liaison committee in the past. The formation of the committee is one of the final stages of the evolution of the business, industry-education link for the board. "The parts are coming together," he said.

Retiring Ault manager to take vacation in Europe

WINCHESTER — Cecil Simpson retires at the end of the month as plant manager at Ault Foods here, but he has one more task to perform before fellow employees will let him just relax and take it easy.

At a retirement dinner last Thursday for the longtime (almost 35 years) employee, Simpson was presented with a photo album of European landmarks. His assignment: replace those pictures with his and wife Margaret's own photographic efforts.

It is an assignment which will be made easier with the second part of the gift fellow employees bestowed on Simpson: an all-expenses-paid trip to the continent, with travel arrangements made flexible enough to allow for an extended visit to Scotland, where Margaret was born.

Linda McMahon, head of customer service at Ault Foods, said the first 11 days of the Simpsons' May 24 to June 11, 1991 trip has been booked by employees. The airline tickets, though, are open-ended so they won't have to return immediately at the end of the planned tour.

Simpson said Monday that he and his wife will likely extend their overseas visit to spend extra time in the United Kingdom.

For Simpson, the trip will be, in many ways, "a return to my old stomping

Finch and District Optimist Club members celebrate a successful second year

Greg Kielec
Record Staff

FINCH — The Finch and District Optimist Club celebrated another year's existence Saturday night, but with a twist.

Instead of focusing on its own members during its year-end meeting, it honored youths who helped out its cause of helping youth.

Nine youths received medallions and certificates at the banquet for their contribution to the club. A number of other youths not in attendance also were named for honors.

The banquet topped off a successful second year of existence for the club which hosts a variety of events for Finch and area youth and raises money for charitable causes.

"We had a very successful year," said Cheryl Short, who stepped down as president Saturday night, in a short speech to club members.

"I won't kid you and tell you it has been great. But its been worthwhile."

Short was awarded with a plaque from club members thanking her for her work as president and she was praised by members and an Optimist official for her leadership role.

But she refused to take sole credit for the club's success. "Without all of these members, it would have been useless for me to be here," she said.

She proceeded to name the members who have helped her throughout the year. "These are the people who made me. My people."

John Ruffo, Optimist district lieutenant governor, said he is impressed with the way the club has grown since its birth.

"Beyond my wildest beliefs, it worked out pretty good. There's a lot of support in the club and it's a good club," he said.

New clubs like the two-year-old Finch organization will bring up the membership in the Optimist movement, he said, meaning more youths will have the benefits of a club in their area.

It is the new clubs which increase the membership in the Optimist movement, he said. There has been more success getting Optimist members through the formation of new clubs than through recruiting new members for older clubs.

It is the goal of Optimists to bring the total number of clubs in the area to 20 to form a mid-Eastern Ontario Convention in Cornwall in 1994, he said. There are 12 clubs now in the Ottawa area.

Career experience

Co-op education: A learning and working opportunity

Yves Cossette
Record Staff

Kathy Edgerton, of Chesterville, still goes to school. But half of her school day is spent in a different sort of classroom.

For the next ten months, Edgerton, a Grade 12 student at North Dundas District High School, will spend half of her school day working at the Bank of Nova Scotia in Chesterville.

"I wanted to get on-the-job experience to see if this is what I really want to do," she said.

Edgerton is one of 33 NDDHS students taking part in the co-operative education program (co-op) offered at the high school this semester. The program offers students the opportunity to get on-the-job training with local businesses, industry and government, while still working towards their high school diploma.

This year the program is bigger than ever. The 33 students enrolled this semester is almost twice the number enroled this time last year, when there were 17.

The program was first introduced at NDDHS five years ago with just eight students enrolled. The program has grown steadily, a tribute to its success, said Murray Shane, one of the NDDHS teachers supervising the program.

"I'd say it's very successful. The numbers show it," he said. "It's really taking off."

The co-op program is taking off throughout Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry County Board of Education schools. Marc Schaefer, the board's superintendent of schools, who oversees the co-op program, said nearly 700 students in the public board's high schools will take part in the co-op this year.

"It's been growing in leaps and bounds in the last three years," he said. Only a handful of students took part when the school board started the program five years ago.

In addition to 33 enrolled in this semester, Shane anticipates another 45 to 50 students will take part in the coming winter semester. Almost one out of every 10 students at the high school is now in co-op, he said.

The co-op program doesn't mean students taking part in the program will lose out in their academic education. Shane stressed they still have to do their basics, English, and math, and they have to take courses related to the type of work they want to do in the co-op.

Students are left a considerable amount of freedom when it comes to organizing their co-op schedules. Barbie Dowell works at Chesterville Public School as a teaching assistant.

She works full-time for the entire semester, and will return back to school full-time for the next semester. Dowell, who aids the teachers of Grade six and senior kindergarten classes, is

The supervisors evaluate the students in the co-op program and help place them with prospective employers. Most of the students are able to find work in their home towns or near home, Shane said.

So NDDHS students are able to get work experience in a wide variety of jobs, including work with the police, government and in one case a student got experience in shoeing horses, Shane said.

The program is popular with students because it gives them a chance to put a career plan to test, to see if that is what they want to do.

For others its a first step to full-time employment. There are some students who want to get out of the classroom environment and still learn something, he said.

Edgerton said her job at the bank will act as a testing ground to see if she really wants to pursue a career in accounting. So far, after two weeks on the job she feels she's on the right track.

"It's fun. I love it here," she said.

At the bank she is learning the ropes of a job which she hopes will help her become an accounting clerk. That means working at the computer terminal, doing paper work and she expects to eventually serve customers at the counter.

contemplating a career in social work, youth work or even teaching.

"I want to work with children," she said.

She said the job training at CPS will give her good working experience with children which is essential to her planned career.

Dowell has learned that helping teach senior kindergarten children is different from helping Grade six students.

"The smaller ones, they have great imagination. (The) bigger kids understand more," she said.

At the end of the term she can earn up to four credits, the equivalent of four courses, the maximum permitted under the co-op program. To earn four credits a student must work 500 hours.

Students are evaluated by their employer and co-op supervisor. Each day Dowell has to fill out a log sheet, a record of her duties at the public school, which is signed periodically by CPS principal Kirsten Gee. Dowell also has to write a diary, or a personal account of her work, which is evaluated by her co-op supervisor.

In class she assists the teacher in giving children individual attention, like helping them with reading.

Dowell's help at the school has proven to be an asset to students attending CPS. "It gives the children some extra individual attention," said Gee.

The extra individual attention is significant, because Dowell assists the teachers of the school's two largest classes. The Grade six class has 28 students, while the senior kindergarten has 24 students.

CPS has benefited from the co-op program in previous years and never said no to requests to place co-op students. "Every time the high school asks us, we always say yes," Gee said.

Dowell and other students don't get paid for the work they do at their co-op jobs, but Gee said that every two weeks she and the two teachers Dowell works with, give Dowell feedback on her progress as a teaching assistant.

Dowell's colleagues treat her as one of the school's staff, which Gee said was important in helping student employees build up their self confidence in a working environment.

For the Bank of Nova Scotia, having a co-op student is a novelty. Ruby Miltimore, the bank's operations officer said Edgerton is the first co-op student to be taken on by the bank.

She said the bank decided to try out having a co-op program when it was approached by co-op's supervisors. Because it's the first time the bank has had a co-op student, it is gradually working Edgerton into the daily routine of the bank without any particular agenda, Miltimore said.

Council voices opposition to elimination of deputy reeves

Yves Cossette
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — The deputy reeves have been turfed out of County Council to save money. But the elimination of deputy reeves entirely may not go down too well with municipal councils.

A report released by the province last year recommended the elimination of the deputy reeve title and advocates municipal government heads be named mayor instead of reeve.

Chesterville's Reeve Jim Cook wants the deputy reeve to retain his position and title. And he plans to introduce a motion for the next council meeting to reject the recommendation calling for the elimination of the deputy reeve.

County council accepted Sept. 17 a recommendation by the report released last year, to cut the size of county council by it eliminating the seats held by deputy reeves. The seats will be eliminated in the 1991 municipal election.

The decision, which reduced the number of seats on county council from 37 to 20, will save council up to $100,000 annually.

But Cook said there is considerable opposition to the elimination of the title and position deputy reeve at county council and Chesterville council. "We feel that it would be confusing for the electorate," he said.

The report on county government recommends that deputy reeves be replaced by a member of council to be called county councillor, who would serve on county council in addition to the reeve, and also sit on municipal council.

But for a Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry municipalities, replacing the deputy reeve with a county councillor is pointless, since the only members of county council are the heads of councils -- mayors and reeves.

"It's kind of redundant as far as we are concerned in that the title will not appear, so the thrust is now to retain the title deputy mayor or deputy reeve," he said.

Cook is also in favor of retaining the position of deputy reeve who would have a specific role in council. With the elimination of county council seats held by deputy reeves, the deputy reeve no longer has a specific function.

Cook would like the deputy reeve to be designated acting reeve and act as a substitute in case the reeve is absent from county council. The county report recommends that no substitution of county councillors be permitted.

Cook said it is important to designate the deputy reeve as a substitute because it would ensure a municipality is still represented in the event a reeve is unable to attend the meeting, he said.

Deputy Reeve Roger Cole agrees that the position of deputy reeve should be retained. A deputy reeve, he said, is needed to fill in for the reeve in case of absence. "Historically that's the way its been done," he said.

Under the act a resolution must be passed to select a replacement at a municipal council meeting for the reeve in case of absence. Most councils usually appoint the deputy reeve as acting reeve.

Cole is also opposed to replacing the title deputy reeve with the title county councillor. Cole said the proposed title change doesn't make sense for Chesterville or other SD&G municipalities because deputy reeves will no longer serve on county council.

Yves Cossette
Record Staff

CHESTERVILLE — A self-described organic gardener, Chesterville's Reeve Jim Cook is proposing area residents adopt the Green Cone composter as a means of disposing organic waste.

Cook told council last Wednesday night he will try to persuade Winchester Township and Winchester Village councils to get together with Chesterville Council to apply for a grant to purchase the Green Cones to be resold to residents at a discount.

Cook said the Canadian-made, cone-shaped composter, would give residents an efficient means of diverting all their organic waste and left-over foods, from the dump. The green cone would also act as a soil fertilizer.

"If it works half as good as they (manufacturers) say it works I can see some benefits. The material is not going to the dump or the landfill site, and (I see) some benefits for my garden," he said.

The Green Cone's big selling point is its design which allows it to trap solar heat, enabling the composter to function all year round. Heat is essential to decompsoing organic waste.

"It's very efficient because of its design," he said.

But the Green Cone has competition. The competition is the Soil Faver, a composting device being promoted by a joint environment committee made up of members of Winchester Village, Winchester Township and Chesterville councils.

Winchester Township Reeve Wyman Barton, who is also the chairperson of the tri-municipality environment committee, said the Soil Faver is sought after in 90 per cent of Ontario's communities.

"We thought perhaps it was the better one to go with," he said Friday.

But Barton said that plans on promoting the Soil Faver composter were not yet finalized.

"We're certainly open to looking at other types (of composters)," he said.

He first heard of the Green Cone when fellow environment committee member and Chesterville Councillor Shirley Coons told him of Cook's proposal Thursday.

Barton said the committee still has time to consider the Green Code as the composter to promote, since the committee has put off plans to seek a Ministry of Environment grant to purchase composting devices until next spring.

"The fall just doesn't seem to be the time to promote the composters. We figured it was best to wait until spring," he said.

Barton figured residents, especially gardeners, would be more interested in purchasing composters in the spring, when gardening becomes seasonable.

But Cook is hoping the three municipalities can make a decision on the composters soon and tap into MOE funding.

"I certainly would want to participate immediately," he said.

Cook said the Green Cone is better than the one advocated by the environment committee.

Cook believes the composter advocated by the environment committee won't work well in the winter, unlike the Green Cone, which is able to trap heat and allow the composting process to take place all year round.

The Green Cone is also cheaper than the Soil Faver. The Green Cone costs $50 whereas the Soil Faver costs $80.

Cook, who has had years of experience in organic gardening, said the Green Cone is also practical as a creator of fertilizer. He described the Green Cone as the lazy man's composter. It only needs to be cleaned out once every two years, he said.

"I thought this was an excellent thing," he said.

Winchester Township Council hosted a composting seminar in August in which several types of composting devices were displayed, including home-made ones and the Soil Faver.

SD&G public schools to adopt environment plan by January, 1991

Greg Kielec
Record Staff

CORNWALL — A co-ordinated environment plan should be in effect in the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Public School board by January.

The plan, which includes a number of initiatives the board will take in terms of education and practice in waste reduction, was tabled at a school board meeting last week.

Board chairman Roy Hastings said more study still must be done to determine how waste reduction will be tackled across the board, especially recycling.

"The plan has not been adopted. It's a matter of further studies and more reports."

He said the big concern is where waste will be stored, where it will be sent to be recycled and if there is a large enough market for all the board's waste.

Under the environmental plan the board will support where feasible sound environmental practices at the school and office level, including the reduction, reuse and recycling of waste.

In the 1990-91 school year the plan sets a paper consumption reduction target of 10 per cent and an additional 15 per cent the following year.

The board will seek government help in the form of grants and support from the Ontario Ministry of Environment to locate buyers for recyclables. And the board will provide some transportation to schools to move recyclables.

And under the plan, a manual of suggestions for recycling, reuse and reduction will be developed and an environmental education and practices group will be formed.

For education, the plan recommends the board help schools implement curriculum promoting environmental concerns, provide funds for students or staff to attend environmental conferences and forums and sponsor a environmental leadership conference for high school students and school-based projects to improve the environment.

Federal minister taken to court by rural residents

OTTAWA — Rural Dignity of Canada and residents of four small communities are taking the Minister Responsible for Canada Post, the Hon. Harvie Andre, and Canada Post Corporation to court.

Legal counsel Ian Lawson, of the Public Interest Advocacy Centre, filed a motion Sept. 6 in Ottawa at the Federal Court of Canada to quash the decisions to close the post offices in Arran, Sk., Falmouth, N.S., Meductic, N.B. and Aroostook, N.B.

Cynthia Patterson, national co-ordinator of Rural Dignity, a citizens' group working to save rural postal service, believes legal action was its only recourse.

"Even though Canada Post turned a $149 million dollar profit this year, Mr. Andre continued to allow the corporation to go ahead and close post offices.

"As a result of Canada Post's so called business decisions made over the summer, people in these communities will be travelling considerable distances for basic postal services this winter unless something is done.

Patterson says the corporation ignored communities' clearly-expressed desire to keep the federal post offices which had served them well. Canada Post also ignored a formal request by legal counsel in late August to rescind the closure decisions.

An early hearing date of October 19, 1990 has been set for the motion, in consideration of the difficulties being experienced by the many elderly and fixed income people in these communities who do not own vehicles and are effectively denied access to postal services.

"Several weeks have already gone by during which some of these residents have had to travel up to 22 km. to pick up their pension cheques, send parcels or purchase money orders," Lawson explained.

Wedding announcement

Leroux - Jones

On Sat., Aug.11, 1990, Elizabeth Anne, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Gerry Leroux of Russell, Ont. and Stephen Mark, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Jones of Chesterville, Ont. were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents.

Matron of honor was Charlene Biscope, friend of the bride. Bridesmaids were Suzanne Inglis and Melanie Leroux, friend and sister of the bride.

Best man was Tony Forbes, friend of the bride and groom. Ushers were Ronnie Jones, the groom's brother and Barry Blair, friend of the couple.

Flower girls were Amanda Biscope, daughter of the matron of honour and Megan Lajoie, cousin of the groom.

Soloist for the service was Maureen Heuff. Organist was Colleen Stewart.

Reception followed at the Russell Arena.

The couple honeymooned in the Pocono's and are now residing in Chesterville, Ont.

FROM THE FRONT

grounds." This time, though, he will be visiting as a tourist, not as a soldier fighting on the battlefields of World War II Holland, France and Germany; nor as an Ault executive conducting business with clients in the UK and Switzerland.

McMahon said 300 people attended last week's dinner at the Winchester and District Arena, during which Simpson was both toasted and roasted. Employees, both past and present, company executives, and major customers were on hand for the culmination of an almost 45-year career in the dairy industry.

The dinner followed a classic roasting format, with friends and colleagues offering humorous anecdotes about Simpson and the butt of their jokes getting his own chance to return the favor when he took the microphone. For many, the highlight of the evening was a guest appearance by Spuds Mackenzie, the canine mascot of Budweiser Beer, or at least someone costumed to play the role.

It seemed an appropriate addition to a guest list for a party held to honor one whom close friends and fellow workers know as "Spud".

Simpson arrived at the Ault plant nearly 35 years ago from Douglas, Ont., where he had spent the previous ten years as a butter-maker. He continued in this capacity when he first arrived, later working as a foreman, until being named plant manager in 1982.

He says his management was highlighted by the cheese plant's expansion over the last several years.

His proudest moment came when Ault Foods won first prize at the 1986 world cheese championship in Wisconsin, for a cheddar made by cheesemaker Rejean Galipeau.

After retirement, Simpson will remain in close contact with the plant as a consultant. He will still be involved with exports to the UK, a market that he has "taken under my wing". He will also help out in the sales department when called upon to do so, and may assist in monitoring plant discharges, as regulated by the Ministry of the Environment.

Food prices dropped in August

OTTAWA — Consumers paid lower prices for most food items in August.

Fresh vegetables prices represented the largest decrease in August at 15.4 per cent as domestic salad vegetables reached their peak harvest period. New crop storable vegetables also began to reach markets in August.

Poultry prices fell 2.6 per cent due primarily to increased promotion in several major markets.

Fresh pork prices experienced a 1.6 per cent decrease as a result of lower producer prices combined with retail promotions.

Fresh fruit prices fell 1.4 per cent in August. Apple prices will begin to fall in mid-September as the main apple harvest period begins.

Retail food prices in August, as measured by the Consumer Price Index, fell 1.5 per cent from those in July. Compared with August 1989, food prices were 3.5 per cent higher.

Beef prices were expected to remain stable in September. Pork prices will likely fall as a result of lower producer prices. Thanksgiving will bring a decrease in turkey prices as promotions increase for the season.

Nutritious Food Basket

The cost of a Nutritious Food Basket sufficient to meet the needs of an average Canadian family of our was $128.70 per week in August, down $1.97 from the July average cost.

In August 1989, the same basket cost $124.69 per week. The cost of the Thrifty Nutritious Food Basket was $114.22 per week. A year ago, the same basket cost $111.20 per week.

The Nutritious Food Basket is based on the spending patterns of an average-income family and the Thrifty Nutritious Basket is based on the spending patterns of a family living on a reduced income.

Fettered press in a free society

Freedom of the press has always been considered essential to the existence of a democratic society. But there are still those who think the best press is a muzzled press.

There has been a disturbing trend, especially with the federal government, to muzzle the press or limit it freedoms. It was most evident when Prime Minister Brian Mulroney decided on closed meetings for the Meech Lake Accord negotiations.

Information from the Meech meetings was reduced to a trickle and in its ever-increasing desire to get the story, the media, especially television, allowed itself to be manipulated by the PM and the premiers in favor of the accord. What resulted was a media atrocity; the public was done a dis-service.

Media manipulation was not borne from the Meech Lake crisis, nor did it die with it. Attempts to manipulate the media, namely television media once again, was evident during the Oka crisis in Quebec involving the Canadian army and Mohawk warriors.

The television media, through clever spin from the Quebec government and Canadian government, skillfully painted the Indians as the "bad guys" in the dispute. When the military tried to force the media out of Oka by curtailing rations and cutting reporters phones, the television media high-tailed it out of the area of conflict, leaving the print media alone to fight for its rights.

Like in the Meech Lake debate, the public was done a dis-service through the television media's inability to get the story straight. But what is even more disturbing is how the Quebec and Canadian governments stood by and watched press freedoms be curtailed, and even defended the actions.

But while people are shocked at the limitations of press freedoms in areas of Canada and in the world, they are not so willing to stand up for, or even recognize, the freedom of the local press. Freedom of the press, it seems for some people, is applicable only to the national media, not a community media.

Most readers do not mind picking up the paper and reading what is happening in the community, that is, provided that it isn't perceived as negative news. And if it perceived as negative, God forbid it should be about them. If it is about their neighbour or a person down the street, plaster it on the front page, but please, (and they say it again) PLEASE, don't print anything about them.

What most people do not realize is a free community press is essential for area residents to know what is happening in their community; what decisions are being made or what events are taking place which directly effect them. And readers are generally grateful for the news coverage that keeps them informed of community happenings.

But if people want to be informed, they must realize that press freedom is essential in a democratic society, guaranteed in the Canadian Charter of Rights. It is not a freedom that can be curtailed or limited by either the average person or the community power broker who wants absolute control of things around him or her, including the community press.

Anyone who questions the role of the press and its right to pursue the news should consider what our society would be like without a free press. Certainly, there are downfalls to an unfettered press, but the pros far outweigh the cons.

From Chesterville's Past

10 From the Record Sept. 19, 1910

Several drainage cases were heard before G. F. Henderson in Cornwall on Wednesday. Several of the rate-payers of Finch Township were interested in an action brought against the township council. It appears that the council recently incurred considerable expense in cleaning out and improving a drain. The ratepayers benefitted were assessed for the cost of the work. They paid under protest and Arch McMillan took action to recover his money. After hearing both sides, referee Henderson decided that the ratepayers had no right to pay and ordered council to refund them their money which will probably amount to $800.

Mrs. Fred Pelletier of Brockville is visiting in town.

Mrs. Thos. Irving of Winchester left Friday morning for a two month visit to Scotland.

Master Elvin Lasalle left on Sunday night last for Toronto where he goes to attend Trinity College.

30 From the Record Sept. 25, 1930

On Thursday afternoon, September 18, Mrs. Theresa Bayly, one of this month's brides, was tendered a prettily arranged miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Alex Foley. The house was daintily decorated with white streamers, bells and autumn blooms.

This week, Mr. William Smith, who lives about two miles west of Chesterville, brought to the Record office six ears of corn of particularly fine quality as samples of the four acres now standing on his farm.

50 From the Record Sept. 28, 1950

During the past week some confusion has existed in the village and district regarding the change of time. We have been asked on frequent occasions these past few days if someone didn't make an error in the date in the Record last week. This is one time when we can say "no" to that. Our copy for the notice read September 30 and we printed it as such. By Saturday night of this week, all will be cleared up if everyone remembers to turn the clock back one hour upon retiring. Then you will be on time for church.

80 From the Record Oct. 1, 1980

All but one member of Chesterville village council has decided to run for a position on the municipal council in the coming November municipal elections. Both Jim Brennan, presently reeve, and Carl Ward, councillor, have declared their intentions to seek the position of village reeve.

A vehicle stolen from Robin's Service Centre, declared impossible to drive, was found in flames by the Chesterville Fire Department early Sunday morning just off County Road 7, near Dunbar.

Unification precedent setting move

For the Record

Yves Cossette

It's not everyday we see one country taken over by another peacefully. It happened earlier today when East Germany, the German Democratic Republic, ceased to exist, and became part of the Federal Republic of Germany (West Germany).

Most people regard the merger as a unification. And it is. But it's also a takeover because virtually none of East Germany's institutions or laws survived the merger.

What is extraordinary about Germany's reunification is that the Soviet Union allowed it. Is is symbolic of the changes that have taken place within the Soviet Union since Mikhail Gorbechev came to power five years ago.

Germany's unification also signals the end of a period of upheaval which saw all communist regimes of the Soviet Union's Warsaw Pact allies collapse and give way to popular government over the past year.

And Germany's unification ushers in a new era--a post Cold War era--that sees several major powerbrokers instead of just two, the United States and the Soviet Union.

That's not to say the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. lost superpower status overnight. Their power to influence world events has declined over the last two decades at least, as the European Community, Japan, and Third World Countries like China, India and Brazil have begun asserting themselves, economically or militarily.

Both the United States and the Soviet Union, the former by virtue of being a nuclear power, still retain considerable clout on the world scene. The difference is the barrier between them, the mistrust, has disappeared.

In fact, with the latest Middle East Crisis, the U.S. and the Soviet Union are behaving more like allies.

This lessening of tensions between East and West is welcome. It has for the moment wrested the world away from the brink of nuclear annihilation.

But as the Middle East Crisis has shown us, conflicts between nations still abound. Political scientists have long predicted that East-West tensions would someday give way to a North-South conflict, the north being the wealthy developed countries, the south being the underdeveloped Third World countries.

In a way, the current Mid-East crisis has all the trappings of a North-South conflict. The conflict is seen by the under privileged Arabs as an excuse by the wealthy west to exert control over an area that has only one thing of interest to the west - Oil.

That doesn't make Saddam Hussein's invasion of Kuwait any more right. But its clear there are many in the Arab world who resented the wealth the Kuwaitis had acquired and didn't share with their Arab brethren, and thus welcomed Iraq's invasion of Kuwait.

But the feeling that wealth is unfairly concentrated in the hands of a few, the two per cent of humanity that makes up the wealthy west, is shared by other Third World citizens too. Their leaders, not just political leaders, have been clamoring for some kind of change that would balance out the disparity of wealth between the rich countries and the poor ones.

Naturally, westerners are not keen on doing anything that might hurt their standard of living in the West. The potential of further conflict between the North and the South will continue as long as this disparity exists.

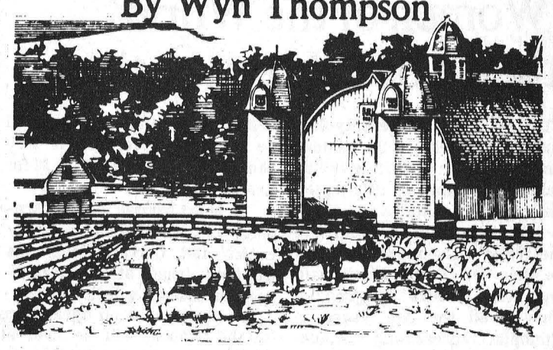
But perhaps there is hope for a solution to this conflict. Afterall, no-one would have predicted two years ago that the Berlin Wall would come down ending the 40-year division between east and west.

The tearing down of the wall and Germany's unification has come to symbolize the interdependence that exists between nations, reducing the need for war, because war is bad for business.

So Germany's unification takes on a significance not only to German people. It's a step forward for the rest of the world as well.

The Farmer's Wife

By Wyn Thompson



Never had we seen summer so deepen into maturity and serene beauty, we decided as we travelled through New Hampshire and Maine - never as this year.

Soon we were in New Brunswick. Then like Alice in Wonderland we went down the garden path to Crocker Hill Herb gardens situated on the banks of the St. Croix River, one-and-one half miles east of St. Stephen.

The Farmer had seen these gardens featured on a Wayne Rostad program last winter and had kept it as a mystery tour for me, knowing I had missed the program, and knowing too, of my lifelong interest in herbs and wildflowers.

Established in 1978 by artist and decoy-carver Steve Smith and his wife Gail, Crocker Hill studios has grown from an original gallery to include extensive gardens and a gift shop offering a selection of fine gardening and herbal books, dried flowers and herbs, and unique hand-made items.

The Smiths blend their herbs and flowers for potpourri and sachet, and also make herbal wreaths and bouquets of everlasting wildflowers. Dried herbs and herbal teas are hard to pass up.

Artist Steve Smith offers watercolour paintings and hand-carved decoys for the collector. His work has been exhibited throughout Canada and the eastern United States.

But, he really works his magic in his gardens, we decided, as we wandered about the gardens with Steve.

The gardens are the glory of the St. Croix. Nearly one hundred varieties of herbs grow in beautifully landscaped plots devoted to culinary, tea, scent, and medicinal plants.

In one spot grew a variety of silver-leafed herbs; in another, those with yellow flowers, including yellow loosestrife, a newcomer to me. Of course, much has been made of purple loosestrife which has so dramatically coloured our little corner of Eastern Ontario this year. And which, if the powers-to-be have their way, will be declared a noxious weed.

The lovely creeping thyme provides good ground cover in some areas of Crocker Hill and it may be walked on without damage to it.

A bird bath and reflecting pool provide a private spot for songbirds. "Osprey and loons frequent the area, and the bald eagles occasionally appear as do seals who often come upriver to fish and frolic," said Steve.

We view these gardens, vibrant with colour, through a gentling fog. The combination provides a calming, relaxing atmosphere to two travellers from Eastern Ontario. It is a haven as well for the honey bee, and I can almost taste wildflower honey.

The Farmer and I compare the beauty and respite found in the Crocker Hill Gardens to that which is found in the gardens of Evergreen Farm, home of Larry and Anstace Esmond-White in Eastern Ontario.

Granite and wooden benches were placed to afford the visitor splendid places on which to sit a while and contemplate the world of herbs or listen to the gentle chimes hanging about the gardens, stirring gently in the river breezes.

The rafters of the drying sheds and studio are totally covered with drying herbs and wildflowers. The Smiths begin the harvest about August first.

I have often tried to dry Queen Anne's lace, without success, so viewed Steve's drying method with great interest. The leaves were stripped off the stems which in turn were thrust through the one-quarter to one-half wire mesh of a drying rack hung from the ceiling. The mesh thus supported the lovely heads for drying. It will be too late to try this method when I get home, but next year I promise myself.

No insecticides, pesticides, fungicides, nor commercial fertilizers are used. It was with great interest that I learned Steve spread chopped tansy around the gardens for cutworm control.

Steve drew our attention to pailfuls of manure tea with which he fertilizes the vegetable, flower and herb gardens. I query him as to the ratio of manure to water.

"I place one shovelful of manure in each two gallon pail then fill with water, and stir. With the tea thus generated, I fill a watering can one-half full, fill the remainder with water, and pour on the soil, being careful not to let any touch the foliage," replied Steve. He then puts more water in the manure tea pails.

"I will surely tell my daughter-in-law about your organic gardening practices, as she, too, is a firm believer in organic gardening."

"In fact, she and I have a continuing debate going in regard to organic farming and farming with the aid of agricultural scientists, you might say," laughed the Farmer, "for having farmed a large acreage I was always in favour of securing all the help I could get to bump up yields."

"But you do see the merit in organic farming on small acreage," I said, to which he remarked, "if one doesn't have to feed the world." We cheerfully left the subject.

On the door of Steve's combination tool and drying shed, hangs a blackboard on which Steve posts each day's agenda. The gardens are certainly indicative of a strict adherence to each day's agenda.

Tidiness, exquisite handiwork, good stewardship of the land, an appreciation of nature, and artistic beauty are abundantly evident at Crocker Hill.

"And a great deal of labour - no doubt from sunup to sundown," said the Farmer to Steve, as we turned back at the top of the path for one last look at the lovely gardens, before exchanging greetings with people entering the gardens from Portland, Maine.

In addition to giving tours of the gardens, Steve was also preparing for the arrival of a group of travel writers, picking and drying flowers, and keeping abreast of the myriad things needing to be done each new day. He appeared to be a man content in his field of endeavour -very, very content. Contentment, a rare ingredient in today's world!

At the top of the garden path as the gate clicked behind us, we took one last look at the beautiful vista of the river and garden and sky, and breathed in the wonderfully free, fresh air.

Traffic fatalities down from previous year

TORONTO — With the number of road deaths down this year, the Ontario Provincial Police is hoping that Thanksgiving Holiday Weekend fatality statistics will be lower than last year.

"We've established a good record during the first nine months of this year," said Insp. Bill Wicklund, noting that the 563 vehicle and pedestrian deaths investigated by the OPP are down 8.8 per cent from the same period of last year.

Most road deaths in Ontario occur at week's end (on Friday and Saturday) and holiday weekends often result in a higher death rate.

During Thanksgiving weekend 1989, 11 people were killed in accidents investigated by the OPP, the same number as in 1987. In 1988, 10 people were killed Thanksgiving weekend.

Failure to wear seatbelts continues to be a contributing factor. Persons killed in 113 of the 380 fatal vehicle accidents recorded so far in 1990, were not buckled up.

"October is Buckle Up Ontario Month and we'd like more people to join those of us who do comply with the law, even on short, local trips," Wicklund says. "It's for their own safety to wear their seatbelts, obey the speed limit and not drink and drive," he says.

SALUTE TO THE Firefighters

STOP FIRES

Play It Safe ...Everywhere You Go!

Carelessness has no boundaries. No one can predict when or where the next tragic fire will happen. That's why it's important that we all do our jobs and practice fire prevention in every way. Make it your business to look for fire hazards...in the home, on your property and where you work! Fix any faulty wiring...immediately; empty trash regularly...avoid buildups; keep heating and cooking equipment in top repair; store old oily rags in metal containers. Make sure you and everyone in your family knows what to do in a fire emergency...before it happens. Play it smart...be fire safe!

Fire Safety Tips:

A grease fire can go a long way to ruin your day. If you have one, cover the burning pan with a lid, or use an extinguisher with a rating that includes the letter "B". Turn off the heat. Slide the pan off the hot burner. Leave the lid on until the pan is cool. It is wise to contact the fire department just in case the fire has spread through vents into the attic area.

To extinguish grease fires in broilers: close the oven door. Turn off the heat. Leave the door closed until the broiler is cool. If the fire does not go out, call the fire department.

If you are planning to build your own home, budget for a residential sprinkler system. Too expensive, you say? Talk it over with your home insurance agent. Over the long term, and depending on your policy, you may not only save money, but your life!

Stop, drop and roll. If clothes ever catch on fire, this is what you should do. Have the family practice "putting each other out" by rolling one another up in blankets, rugs or towels. The worst thing you can do if your clothes are on fire is run for help.

The moment at which a material turns into gas and ignites is called the "ignition point". Here is an example -- have you ever popped a pizza box in the oven "just for a second", only to smell the scorched box moments later? That smell is the cardboard turning into gas. Heat the pizza up, but take it out of the box first.

Never touch or attempt to carry a flaming pot. It's too hot to hold, and if you do manage to carry it more than a few feet the contents may spill over, burn you and set the home on fire. Protect your hand, smother the flame with a pot lid, turn off the heat and wait.

Know your fire area and its fire call!

Literacy council trains twenty tutors

WINCHESTER — It looks like the Tri-County Literacy Council's Dundas County satellite is here to stay.

Village council offered the literacy satellite a more permanent home at 512 St. Lawrence Street, the municipally-owned building which now houses the local branch of SD&G Developmental Services.

Claire Bonneville, co-ordinator of Tri-County's satellite project, says the St. Lawrence Street quarters will likely be occupied by Oct. 1.

And literacy proponents were buoyed by the response to a workshop held here last weekend, where 20 tutors were trained to teach adults to read and write.

The workshop was attended by people "from all walks of life," Bonneville said Monday. "I think the eagerness to want to help someone learn the skill of reading was so apparent. I think that was the thing that made them so keen, the desire to help somebody."

Tutors trained in Laubach Literacy's one-on-one method of teaching reading and writing ranged in age from 19 to 81 years, Bonneville said. She feels this will give students a good selection of tutors to choose from, an essential aspect of the Lebauch philosophy.

When a student approaches the council for help, attempts are made to match them with a compatible tutor. Bonneville said students are evaluated to determine at what level their literacy training should begin, and they are asked what type of tutor they would like to work with, in terms of age, sex, background and interests.

Tutors were also recruited from all over Dundas County and beyond. People from Winchester, Chesterville, Morrisburg, Williamsburg, Metcalfe, Crysler and points between attended the seminar.

At Friday evening's introductory session, instructors Bonneville and Kathleen Murray, from the Lachute, Quebec-based Laurential Literacy Council were overwhelmed by the turnout. Bonneville said she hoped to recruit 10 volunteer tutors and "never dreamed I'd get such a response."

The challenge for the Dundas literacy group, now, is to seek out and recruit students.

"We have some (students) who have come forward," Bonneville said. There were also several tutors at the weekend seminar who have prospects in mind, she added.

The Dundas group's new home should also help recruit students, organizers feel. Since the project began in the spring with seed money from Laubach Literacy of Canada, it has been operating out of borrowed space in the Winchester Municipal Building. While the literacy group appreciates the village's support, Bonneville feels the set-up was not conducive to attracting potential students, who may feel stigmatized by their inability to read and write. With the new location, organizers expect the Laubach emphasis on confidentiality will be better served.

Furthermore, Bonneville says one of the two upper-storey rooms the literacy group will occupy can be used for tutoring.

"What we hope we can do is to keep the centre open one or two nights a week so people can go there to tutor," Bonneville said.

If the Cornwall-based council's experience is repeated here, students will also be referred from other agencies that deal with literacy and adult education. Sometimes the one-on-one system of teaching adults serves as a stepping stone to other programs where a classroom setting is the norm, Bonneville indicated.

Word of mouth is another medium that draws out prospective students. "They always have someone to help them," Bonneville said of adults who struggle through life without developing reading skills.

Whereas the illiterate might not be able to decipher the written messages on posters and in newspapers publicizing literacy programs, his or her friends or relatives can.

Bonneville is optimistic about the future of the Dundas literacy project. "I have a lot of confidence in the volunteers, because I can tell the people coming forward are really sincere," Bonneville said.

Until the literacy group settles into its new home (donated office furniture would be gladly accepted, incidentally), Bonneville will be using the village office when she is in the area. The telephone number there is 774-2105.

Bread Busters bake loaves

CHESTERVILLE — The second meeting of the Chesterville Bread Busters was held at the Community Hall Sept. 18.

Eight girls attended where they were shown by Florence Hoople how to prepare and bake basic white bread and French bread. The girls helped in the kneading of the dough.

Later the members discussed the coming Achievement Night on November 9 at Matilda. Then they had a taste of each kind of bread before leaving.

SLPC revenues up, visitors down

CORNWALL — Regional parks and tourist attractions recorded higher revenues this season but the number of visitors was below last year's mark, according to one official of the St. Lawrence Parks Commission.

Tourism at Upper Canada Village, for example, dropped from 225,000 visitors to 193,000, said Parks Commission information officer Gabrielle Thomas. But, at the same time, receipts are up over previous years with combined ticket and gift shop revenues of nearly $2 million.

"The reason is we put up our entrance fees this year because they were underpriced compared to similar attractions elsewhere," Thomas explained in a recent telephone interview.

This year's fees were $7.25 for adults, $2.50 for children with special group and senior rates available, she added.

It was the same story at the Upper Canada Golf Course where 17,600 visitors brought in $333,000 this year as compared to nearly 19,000 tourists one year ago. Both Crysler Beach and Riverside Cedars experienced fewer visitors without suffering any loss of tourist dollars.

But the parks service is worried the decline in tourists is a negative sign for regional tourism.

"We're seeing fewer Americans because of higher gas prices, hotel rates, everything is more expensive, Thomas said. In addition, tourism from Quebec is dropping off, too, because of "political tensions", she added.

According to Thomas, the commission is aiming to improve its attractions in the coming year. For instance, the parkway between Ingleside and Long Sault will be spruced up with kiosks and, for the first time, Upper Canada Village will remain open all winter, she said.

"The village used to close Oct. 15 but starting this year it will be a year-round attraction." She said it will even be open during Christmas with special workshops and activities being planned.

But whether these improvements will draw more tourists is still too early to tell. "Most people are nervous about a coming recession," Thomas said. "With the economy we're in, we'll just have to wait and see what next year brings."

Marion, Como spark the flame that burns Raiders for 9-0 Vikings victory

WINCHESTER — Guy Marion fired in four goals and picked up two assists to lead the Morewood Vikings to a nine point shutout victory over the Winchester Raiders here last Sunday night.

Marion, the driving force in the Vikings offence, racked up a total of 12 points during the first two encounters in the Winchester and District Broomball League. Marion tops the league's scoring list thus far into the season.

The Vikings' Brian Como also got the better side of his rivals. Como marked two goals and five assists during the 50:00 contest. He is the league's second highest scorer with a point total of 10.

The Marion-Como duo, could not be controlled by the undermatched Raiders. The powerful duo teamed up on five of the Vikings nine goals.

Two assists were made by Chris McKibbon, while Brian Thatcher and Lou Proulx helped out on one each.

Ormond 6-Toyes Hill 0

The Ormond Cloverdales had an easy 6-0 win over Toyes Hill Roadrunners.

Dave Hess opened up the scoring for the victorious Cloverdales. He capitalized on an assist from Carl Patters with 5:22 played in the game.

Hess and Doug Sloan both netted two points against the Roadrunners. Hess also managed two assists, while Sloan helped out on one.

Tony Vanderlaan and Bill Timmins both slapped in a point to support a Cloverdales advantage during the encounter.

With the game in a one-one deadlock and time running out, Dewan's points came as the contest winners.

There was just 4:54 left in the encounter when Dewan slapped in the tie-breaker for the Prescott squad.

Dewan's second point came with 1:51 left to endure, putting the Knights' two points up on their game rivals.

Steven Bekkers was the first contender to net a shot during the contest. His unassisted point gave the Voyageurs an early lead with 16:48 showing in the first frame.

Manotick 4-Newington 0

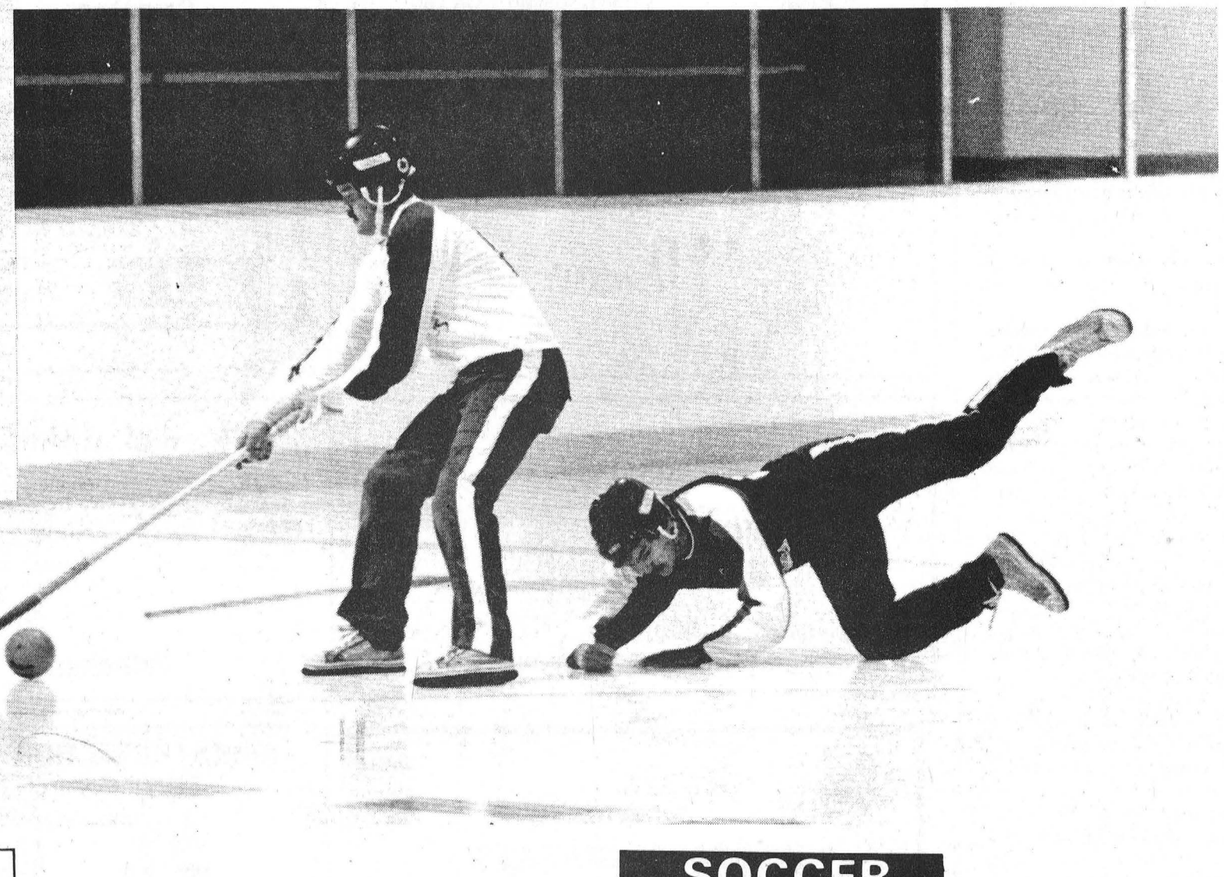
Rick Cureston broke the ice for the first point of the contest on behalf of the Manotick Merchants with just 3:54 played. Cureston slapped in the shot with help from Darryl Payne.

The Merchants second point saw Paul Downey connect on a pass from Eric Ruiter. Downey nailed in the 2-0 lead with 8:23 left before the intermission.

At the 15:30 mark of the second period Jamie Bold took advantage of a pass from Downey and tallied the Merchants third goal.

Peter Smiley slapped in the Merchants fourth and final point of the encounter. Smiley reacted with assistance from Ruiter.

For the final 8:51 the net remained silent. This enabled the Merchants to capture their first win of the young season in a four point shutout victory.



Sweeping up

The Morewood Vikings had no problems finding a victory over the Winchester Raiders last Sunday night. The Vikings counted a nine point shut-out. 86ers express their way into the 1990-91 hockey season

FINCH — The North Stormont 86ers will no longer compete in the Junior "C" hockey league. Instead, the renamed squad, which is now known as the North Stormont Express will take to the ice in the 1990-91 season.

Co-coaches, Steve McRae and Kevin Mackler said that the explanation for the new name was as simple as "it was time for a change."

The change entails new home and away jerseys for the hockey club. Mackler said the organization raised money during the off season, and they also picked up three sponsors to help with experience.

The name isn't the only change that the Express squad will undertake this season. Their home games will be played on Thursday nights at 8, instead of last season's 8:30 p.m. starting time.

Mackler said that the time change will be of more convenience to the fans, especially the children.

The Junior "C" league will also be the guinea pigs to a new play format, McRae said. The league will play without the red line for experimental purposes.

McRae said every team in the league will have to learn how to play with the absence of the centre line because it changes the game.

However, McRae also said the format change will be beneficial to the faster teams in the league.

He adds the lack of the centre line will "speed it (the game) up quite a bit."

"It's going to take a while for some of the guys to get used to that," McRae continues.

The Express have not yet signed any players to the roster. McRae said "we (club management) like to sign all our guys at the same time."

Although McRae admits that places have already been filled, he says every team member will be signed at the same time.

Mackler said that the guys will be announced just prior to the club's first regular season game. The Express will travel to St. Isidore on Sunday, October 14 to break in the new season.

Their first home game is on Thursday, October 18. The Express will host the Russell Jr. "C" squad.

When asked how the club is shaping up for the fast coming season, Mackler says "we're just not very talkative at this point and time."

He continues by saying, "we'll let our kids do the talking on the ice, rather than the coaches doing the talking off the ice."

McRae backs Mackler's statement by saying, only time on the ice against the other teams in the league will tell us what the team's potential is.

Fourteen veterans came to the Express' training camp, and McRae said it is likely that all will be a part of this season's squad.

Flyers hope to profit from draft

CHESTERVILLE — Jerrold Boulanger has thought of a unique way to help raise money for the Chesterville Junior "C" Flyers.

For the past several weeks Boulanger has placed advertisements in several local papers announcing the first hockey draft in the area.

Boulanger's brain child has sparked an interest in many National Hockey League fans in the area.

In an interview last Friday, Boulanger said that 25 people had entered the hockey draft. At the beginning of this week the total had grown to about 40 participants.

"I saw the one (hockey draft) in the (Ottawa) Citizen and I thought it would be a good idea to have one out here," Boulanger explained.

Boulanger added that the idea to start the draft "was a last minute decision."

The reason behind the draft is to make money for the local Jr. "C" hockey team. However, Boulanger is not confident that the draft will generate funds the first year running.

Boulanger hopes his idea will make money, but he says "I'm not planning on it."

The purpose of the first year is "just to get it (the pool) going."

"Next year we can put more time and effort into it," Boulanger said.

The weekly statistics will be compiled by Boulanger. The results will be listed each week in the paper he said.

"Me and my computer," will tabulate the $25 weekly cash winner, along with the end of season's winners.

Boulanger is also the official statistician for the Junior "C" organization.

To take part in the draft, an entry fee of $10 is charged. However, Boulanger said it only takes one weekly win to play for the enrollment fee. Each week a new weekly winner will be chosen.

To enter the draw, just select one player in each of the nine categories in this week's advertisement on page 17. Then, send it off with $10 cash, cheque or a money order to the Chesterville Sports Club.

The hockey draft deadline is Friday, October 12, 1990. Be looking in the paper every week for up-to-date statistics.

VanDelst performes a flawlessly in junior Devils one point advantage over the Warriors

MAPLE RIDGE — An "outstanding" performance by keeper, Cory VanDelst, enabled Brendan Bumbaco's goal to stand as the winner in a cliffhanger one point victory over the Tagwi Warriors.

Murray Shane's junior squad played for their second win in the SD&G soccer league at home on Tuesday, September 25.

The 1-nil victory increases the Devils record to two wins, a loss and a tie.

The Devils took the disadvantage during the first half of play. The team faced stiff wind, making it difficult to gain control of the game.

Shane said the players had problems passing the ball and several chances were left unfounded. The half ended in a pointless tie.

The jr. Devils went into the second half with the wind on their side. And with just under a minute played after the intermission, Bumbaco hit the Warriors webbing to lift the home team into a slim 1-nil lead.

"The wind really helps your defence move the ball down the field," the coach noted. But the squad didn't take full advantage of their situation.

Although Shane said he was pleased with some single performances, namely VanDelst's guarding, he adds the team didn't play to their full potential.

"They didn't play as well as they could have," he voiced. "We were very fortunate with the win."

Shane credited VanDelst with his constant performance during play in the league. VanDelst has only allowed three goals against the Devils squad.

The Warriors' coach Paul Frigon said although his team did not prevail, they did keep the contest interesting.

"They (the Warriors) played very well, but we can't buy a goal, and that's our problem," Frigon added.

Senior Warriors victorious

A pair of markers by Rob McGilligan led the Senior Tagwi Warriors to an easy 3-1 victory over the Dundas Devils.

The sr. Devils' coach, Doug Carroll said, "It could have worse," for the home team.

The contest was kept "respectable" by keeper Simon Wilson. Carroll adds that Wilson played an excellent game in the Devils' cage.

Carroll respected the talent on the Warrior squad. He said "Tagwi has good speedy forwards and they seemed to be too much for our full backs."

The Devils defenders were trying to strip the ball away from the Warrior attackers, but after separating the ball from its carrier another opponent picked it up, Carroll said.

"It seemed our defence was always turning around and running toward the net. And you can't do that all game long," he added.

Carroll said the speed of the Warriors "kept us off balance and we could capitalize on their back line, which I thought could have been exploited."

The Devils' Willy O'Connor was the only player to boot in a point for the losing cause.

McGilligan's two goals were accompanied with a single point nailed by Warriors' Bob McLeod.

The 3-1 loss drops the sr. Devils record to a win, two losses and a tie.

Hitting high

The North Dundas junior Devils had a difficult time defeating the Tagwi Warriors, last week in SD&G soccer action. The Devils blanked their opponents with a 1-nil score.

SUGAR STRESS

Hypoglycemia is a symptom, rather than a disease, but its impact can make normal people behave as if they were severely neurotic or psychotic or hypochondriacal.

Obviously, hypoglycemia would make life even more miserable for schizophrenics, many of whom have this condition to complicate their disease and to impede their response to therapy. Low blood sugar (hypoglycemia) may often occur in hyperactive children, and has been reported in autism, and in mental retardation. It may enter into or even simulate some types of epilepsy, and it may be a cause or complication of alcoholism, gastric ulcer, allergy, migraine headaches, and diabetes.

It must be emphasized that low blood sugar is NOT caused by lack of sugar in the diet. Civilized man has an oversupply of sugar, with no need of even a grain of it.

The average Canadian swallows about one and a third teaspoonfuls of sugar, every thirty-five minutes, twenty-four hours a day. Before we hastily deny this, we should remember that in America, one hundred pounds of sugar per person is made or imported. Somebody is eating it.

We tend to only look at candy, as having sugar, of which nineteen pounds is made for every living person yearly.

We feel virtuous if we use our sugar bowl sparingly. We forget that most of our sugar intake is invisible, until it appears on our hips.

There is sugar added to salt, see the term "dextrose" on the label, and a startling amount in ketchup. There is sugar in canned green peas, in the syrup in which frozen and canned fruits are packed, in salad dressings, in bread-which is at least 8% sugar, sometimes 10% in cake, cookies, and breakfast cereals. Some of the new "natural" cereals are over 40% sugar - a highly unnatural carbohydrate.

A doughnut has up to seven teaspoons of sugar. A portion of apple pie has twelve teaspoons, and served a la mode, has eighteen per portion.

The antacid taken to relieve the indigestion caused by too much sugar is itself frequently made with it, or coated with it, or both. Your vitamin tablet may have sugar in its formula. Baby foods with too high a sugar content, (as in many recipes), may help to create the craving for it.

The average intake of 100 pounds of sugar per year is deceptive, like most averages, for there are those who don't consume their share; little babies, calorie watchers, reducers, diabetics, and those who know nutrition or who have consulted a competent dentist or nutritionist. This brings the average intake to more than one hundred and twenty pounds per year, with sugar thus supplying more than 20% of the calories in many diets.

In addition to helping incite vitamin deficiency, hypoglycemia, and diabetes, such a physiologically unhealthy amount of sugar tends in more than half of its consumers, to increase fasting levels of blood insulin, cholesterol, uric acid, and triglycerides. It can increase the production of hydrochloric acid and pepsin in the stomach. This raises the adhesiveness of blood platelets, and can coax the body to part with chromium - a metal needed for proper metabolism of sugar.

It is conducive to constipation, and may be implicated in disorders of the digestive tract. It may cause enlargement of the liver, and to a lesser degree, of the adrenal glands, and shrinkage of the pancreas. All this translates into sugar acting as a stress on the organism, pushing the body in the direction of diabetes, coronary heart disease, stroke, gastric ulcer and atherosclerosis.

My Silent Achiever this week has lost over 80 pounds in two years. This is the BEST way to do it. She positively glows with inner and outer beauty. Her kindness and enthusiasm knows no bounds. For all these reasons, plus the fact that we can't get rid of her, I found that I just HAD to hire her. Thank-you.

We are so very luck to be able to do it for ourselves.

Sr. Devils burst in fourth quarter

MAPLE RIDGE — The North Dundas Senior Devil girls' basketball team got off to a slow start, but once they got going they were unstoppable.

The Devils trailed their rivals at the half, but a strong fourth quarter showing lifted the squad to a 43-25 victory over the Tagwi Warriors, in SD&G action on Tuesday, September 25.

"I had a super effort from the girls, but basically in the second half," the Sr. Devils' coach Peter Fortin said.

At the start of the game "they (the Devils) came on confused." However, Fortin adds they put their game together after the half.

A tight defensive struggle during the opening half kept the scoring low for both teams.

After the first quarter of play, the Warriors held a 4-0 lead over the Devils. Corrina Polanko and Susan Konink each sunk two points to give the visiting team an early advantage.

The Devils' outscored their opponents (9-7) during the second quarter, however the Warriors lead was not relinquished. The Warriors were in command of the 11-9 score after the first half.

Katie Carkner, Sandy Gonderman and Raffaella Malaguti all hit the hoop for the double points in the second quarter.

Stacey Berry was successful on two foul shots and Vicki Gryspeerdt scored on one of her four foul shot attempts to narrow the gap for the Devils.

Making the points for the Warriors was Konink and Kristi Poirier. Both totalled three points with a double and single basket. Tracey McNichol made a single point on her two attempted foul shots.

Although the Devils' made several shots on the basket during the opening half, they were unable to capitalize on most of them.

"During the first half of the game they were hitting everything but inside of the basket," Fortin said.

The half time break gave the Devils the opportunity to go outside and release some steam, the coach said. The squad returning for the start of the second half with a fresh attitude.

Fortin said the Devils had "a complete change of attitude after the break, from one of frustration to control of the game."

The Devils' took control in the third quarter by outscoring the Warriors 16-10. The home squad went into the final quarter with a 25-21 point advantage.

Gonderman shot in six points for the Devils' during the third quarter, while the Warriors' Julie Crites duplicated her opponents performance.

Berry sunk four points to add to the Devils third quarter lead, while teammates Malaguti, Shealyn Summers and Chris Lightfoot all counted two points for the Devils.

Poirier and Lorie Ferguson helped the Warriors' game by scoring doubles.

The Devils allowed the Warriors to hoop four points during the fourth quarter, but in return scored for 18 points.

Vicki Gryspeerdt tallied half of the Devils points in the last quarter to break the Warriors hold on her.

Fortin said "Vicki (Gryspeerdt) was stumped during the first half," Fortin said. The Warriors had a two-man coverage on the veteran, but in the last quarter she just exploded.

Gryspeerdt made nine of her 10 game point total in the final quarter.

Crites drove in all four of the Warriors points to bring the team's scoring game to 25 points. Berry hooped in four points for the Devils, while Gonderman and Summers both sunk a two points basket.

Berry was the game's highest scorer. She counted four double point shots and three single foul shots to total 11 points for the Devils.

Gryspeerdt and Gonderman were right behind their teammate with 10 points; while the Warriors' Crites also made 10 points.

Summers "played a heck of a game," Fortin said. Summers counted 10 defensive and three offensive rebounds along with five turnovers in the game.

Five was Gryspeerdt's magic number. She totalled five offesive and defensive rebounds as well as five turnovers.

"A super effort"' was given by Carkner, Fortin said. She totalled five defensive and two offensive rebounds.

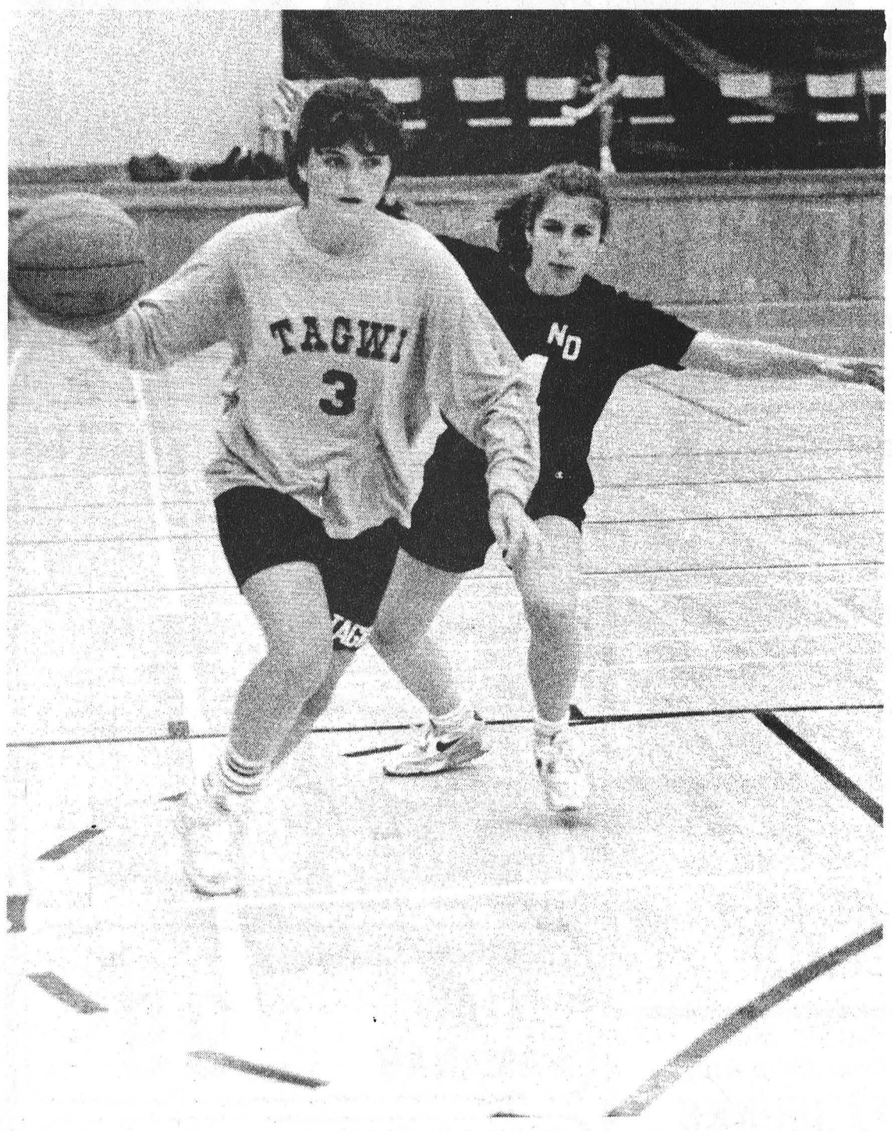
Gonderman led the Devils' with nine turnovers, Malaguti was close behind with seven.

Jr. Devils 25-Warriors 21

The North Dundas Junior Devils pulled off a slim victory in an exciting cliffhanger at home on Tuesday, September 25.

"It was a really exciting game," the Devils' coach Deanna Corbett-White said. The Devils held a 21-19 lead with only 3:00 left to play.

The contest ended with a 25-21 victory for the home team. To give the squad a perfect 2 win record in the SD&G league.



Amy Stephens manages to get past Devil's Laura Zyrmiak in SD&G junior girls basketball action last week. The junior Devils took the better half of a 25-21 score over the Tagwi Warriors.

The Warriors took a 6-3 advantage over the Devils in the opening quarter. Amy Stephens managed to hoop in four points for the Warriors.

Jody Cain picked up a deuce for the Warriors, while Tania Foley did the same for the Devils first two pointer. The Devils' Tamara Bond made good on one of the two foul shots awarded to her.

The Devils tightened the Warriors lead by one at the half, the score was 11-10 in the visitors favor.

Foley, Catie Clapp and Sherry James all hit for a deuce in the second quarter. James also took advantage of a foul shot.

After the third quarter the Devils marked a 20-19 lead-Laura Zrymiak hit three times during the quarter, for six points.

The Warriors' Andrea Villeneuve counted six points for the team. Her teammate Carrie Libbos hit for the double point.

The Devils' Clapp and James connected for the deuce.

During the final quarter, James and Andrea Lannin made the final double points for the Devils. Rebecca Kennedy hooped one of the four possible foul shots.

Villeneuve was the only Warrior to make points during the closing quarter. She hit for two foul shots.

"They really played well under pressure and it was exciting. I didn't know how it was going to end up," Corbett-White said.

Don Perrigo, the Warriors' coach, said it was a rough game. Two of our players were injured during the first quarter and three fouled out.

The Warriors' Villeneuve topped the chart with eight points. Stephens hit for seven Warrior points while James made seven for the Devils.

Zrymiak sunk the ball three times for the double point. Her teammates, Clapp and Foley, both made four points for the Devils.
