Cole bows out of political spotlight

Greg Hewitt

CHESTERVILLE — After nine years as a member of Chesterville council, Roger Cole has decided to return to private life.

Cole announced last week that he will not seek re-election in November's municipal election, citing a need for fresh faces at the council table as well as work-related responsibilities.

A purchasing and inventory manager at Winchester Cheese, Cole was first elected as a councillor in 1985, and was elected deputy-reeve in 1988. He returned as a councillor in 1991.

"After nine years I think it's probably time to get some new blood in," Cole said, adding that as a councillor, he always did his best to answer the needs of Chesterville's ratepayers.

He said he enjoyed his time on council, and said he found it rewarding. And he said he's not necessarily bowing out for good, adding that he may make a stab at coming back down the road.

Hopefully, village ratepayers will come forward and throw their names into the ring for the upcoming election, Cole says, so that the residents will have a chance to vote. Council in 1991 was acclaimed.

As deputy-reeve from 1988 to 1991, Cole said he enjoyed learning how the county government system operated.

Cache of stolen road signs discovered

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

WINCHESTER — The case of the missing road signs has been partially solved with the discovery of about 60 signs abandoned on an isolated road near Winchester.

The signs, of all descriptions, were recovered by Winchester Township last Wednesday after a Winchester resident discovered them while walking on Gypsy Lane Tuesday night.

Police are still investigating the find and there are no suspects yet.

Winchester Township roads superintendent Arden Carruthers said not all of the 14 signs stolen from the Nation Valley area of the township last week were among those found last week, but others — that had been missing all summer — were among those found.

The remainder of the signs, including yield signs, stop signs and road name signs, belong to the United Counties and Williamsburg and Mountain Townships. Williamsburg Township's signs were returned to its roads department.

Afternoon fire razes Finch-area cattle barn

Record Staff

FINCH — Quick action saved about 120 Jerseys at Payneside farms east of Finch Friday afternoon as fire destroyed a two-storey barn.

Ralph MacKenzie, whose family has been farming in the area since the 1920s, said he was away at the time of the fire.

"It's just fortunate it didn't happen at midnight and that no one was hurt," he said.

Hired hand Benoit Fournier said he left at about 1:15 p.m. and when he got back the barn was covered with smoke.

Fire crews from four departments were able to keep the blaze from spreading to other buildings nearby, including the farmhouse.

Wayne Ouderkirk was delivering mail in the area when he saw flames coming from the barn around 1:15 p.m.

"When I got here, the northwest corner of the building was on fire," he said, pointing to the corner beside the road nearest the farmhouse.

He also said he heard a small explosion, but couldn't be certain what it was.

Ouderkirk and other neighbors helped Fournier move the milking cows to his farm so that the daily chores could continue uninterrupted.

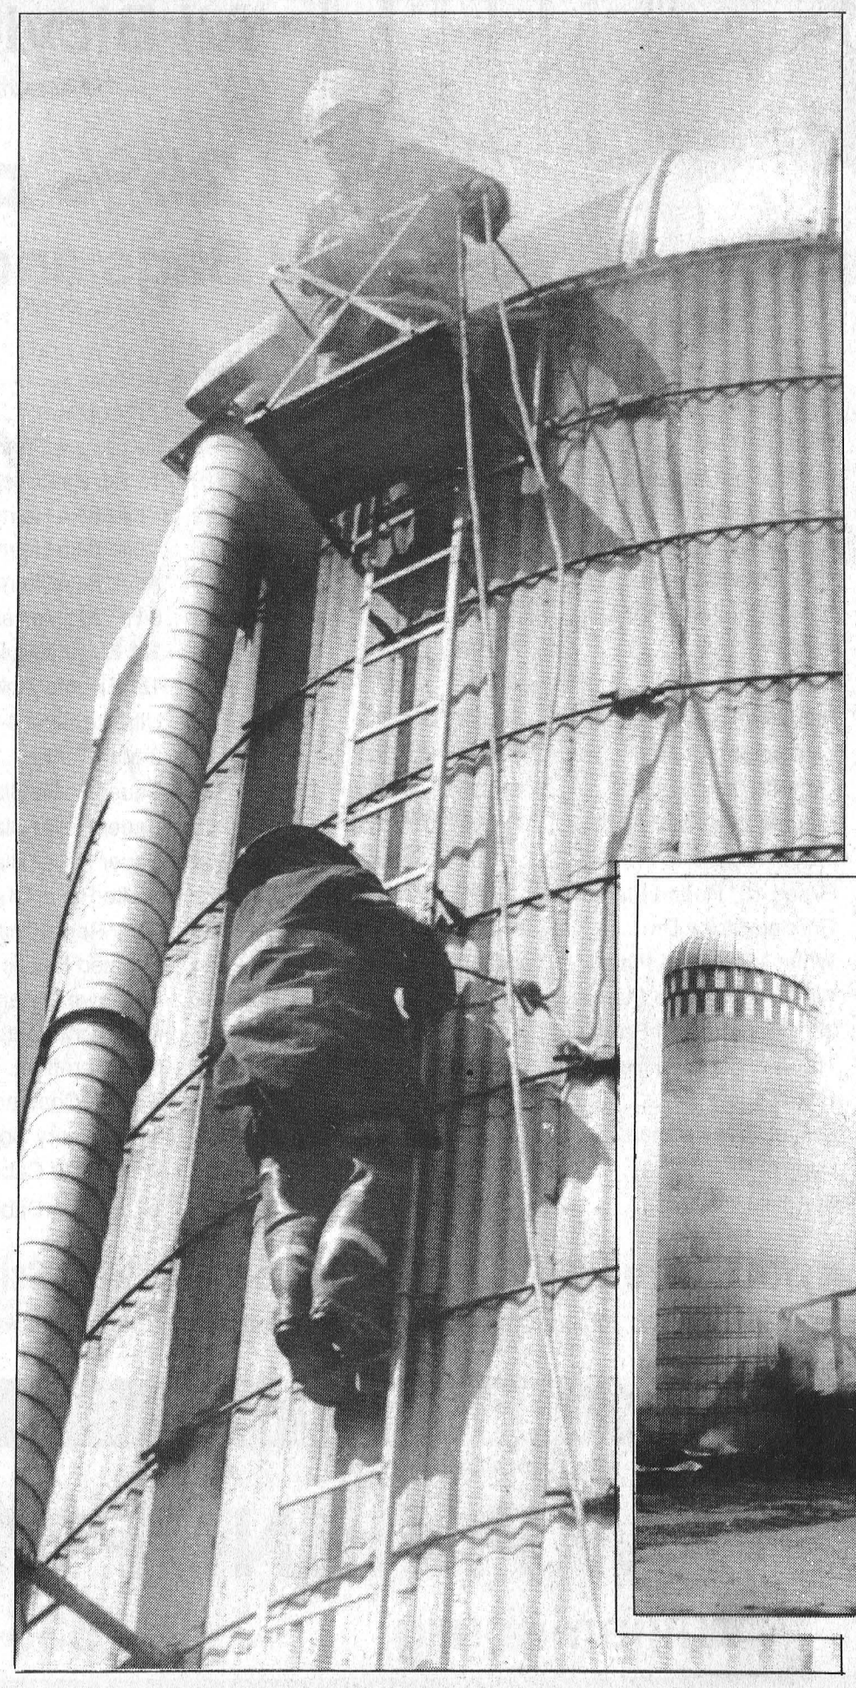
Crews from Finch, Newington, Roxborough and Crysler responded to the call, along with ambulance attendants from Finch.

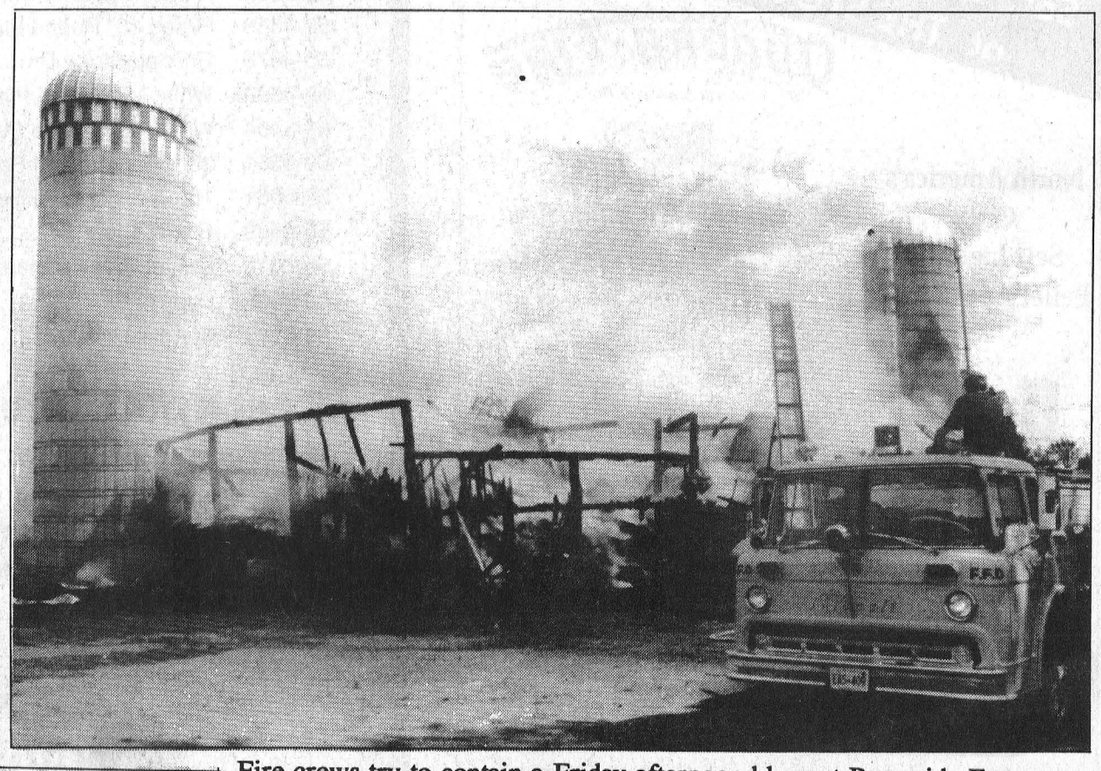
Winds from the west helped to spread the fire to the rest of the barn and caused problems for firefighters.

They were still trying to extinguish fires in a silo furthest from the road two hours after it all began. Ladders and ropes were used as firefighters climbed to the top of the silo to hose down the structure.

While many similar fires have been caused by wet hay, MacKenzie said he didn't suspect that in this case. He said the downstairs stalls in that corner were empty and the upstairs had dry straw in it.

Crysler firefighter Hubert Benoit said the department arrived at the site around 1:45 but there wasn't much they could do except contain the fire's path.





Fire crews try to contain a Friday-afternoon blaze at Payneside Farms east of Finch. A barn was destroyed, but no animals were lost.

Ethanol plant still in search of a home

Dianne Fetterly
Special to the Record

WINCHESTER — Approximately a year after Seaway Valley Farmers Energy Co-operative's announcement that it found a proposed site for its 50-million litre ethanol production plant, the co-operative is once again looking at alternatives.

A resolution to look at alternative sites was passed at a meeting of about 60 shareholders in Winchester last Thursday evening. SVFEC decided to make the changes after a recent review found the Nutrite sites may be too expensive to operate out of, said SVFEC President Bud Atkins following the meeting.

Besides the proposed Nutrite Chemical buildings in Maitland, the review found that three other sites should be considered as possible locations for the ethanol plant. They include some Dupont property in Maitland, vacant land in Prescott and property formerly used by Courtaulds Fibres in Cornwall.

A final decision on the site of the ethanol production facility for Eastern Ontario will be announced this fall. This will enable the co-operative to proceed with the next stage of the project.

And once the new business plan is complete, financing will be arranged and project managers will start preparation work.

The SVFEC is also placing a high priority on product marketing as it continues its search for domestic and foreign ethanol users.

The June 30, 1994 decision of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency on a Renewable Oxygenate Requirement (ROR) under the Clean Air Act is influencing the supply and demand for ethanol. According to SVFEC, the EPA ruled that by 1996, 30 per cent of ROR must be renewable. As well, Canadian ethanol supply is at a premium.

The SVFEC is also working with other members of the Canadian Renewable Fuels Association to secure favorable long-term tax treatment from the federal government. It is seeking a 10 year guarantee of the 8.5 cent per litre excise tax exemption currently in place.

It is also in the discussion state of negotiating an ethanol manufacturer's agreement with the Ontario government. The agreement could secure the 14.7 cent gas tax remission on ethanol produced for the provincial market until 2010.

The Seaway Valley Farmers' Energy Co-operative Inc. was established in 1992 as a farmer-owned co-operative. Its objective is to produce 50 million litres of ethanol from a dry-milling process utilizing five million bushels of Ontario corn.

The plant will also produce 40,000 metric tonnes of dried distillers grains or livestock feed.

Cole bowing out of village politics

Cole said there have been ups and downs for the village over the last nine years. He said the last three-year term on council was more difficult because two other members of council, councillors Peter Van Kessel and Martin Derks, had interests as developers. Cole said he has noting personal against the two, but said he found council often tended to lean toward development issues rather than the long-term interests of the village.

He also said he has been disappointed by decay in the downtown area, with vacant properties and land.

"I think the village needs a bit of a wake-up call in to become more aggressive in some areas," he said, adding that more should be done to stimulate the village's youths.

But overall, Cole says the village has done well in the last nine years, noting the water and sewer improvements, as well as a tight line on municipal taxes despite tough times and higher tax increases at the county and school board level.

"I think the village in the last nine years has certainly made some progress, with the water pumping station and street imporvements," Cole said.

"I think that what I'd like to see is some new people sitting around the council table that have an interest in long-term growth in the village."

Members of the Winchester White Sox watch as their coach, Don Griffith and Denise Carkner of D's Collision present a cheque to Stacy Paul and her mother. The Winchester Township business and sports team held a fund raising car wash Saturday for the Paul family, which is in need of a van and wheelchair lift.

Township road signs recovered

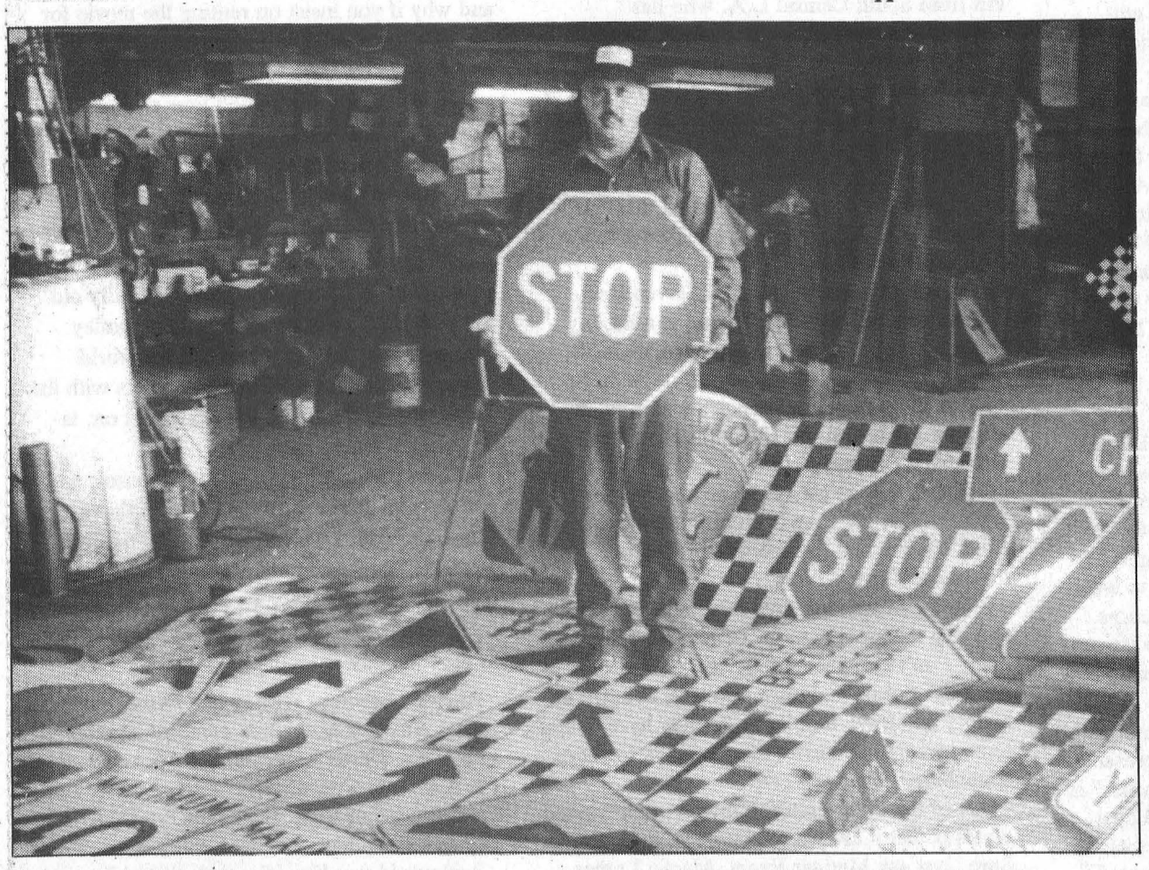
Carruthers said Winchester Township employees will now have to return the signs to their respective locations, and put in new posts in cases where the posts were damaged.

In an interview last week, an angry Carruthers noted that the township's taxpayers have to foot the bill for road signs that are stolen, as they are not covered by any government grant or subsidy.

Road signs are not kept in stock by the township, and signs still missing must be ordered, which could take weeks.

Winchester OPP Sgt. Brent Mattice said that acting on a tip in an unrelated matter, police visited a local residence recently and discovered a collection of road signs. But he said the signs legally belonged to the resident and said there are no leads in the Gypsy Lane discovery.

Mattice asks that anyone who has any information on the theft and dumping of road signs call police or Crime Stoppers.



Stop stealing our signs, says Winchester Township roads superintendent Arden Carruthers. About 60 signs, stolen from eastern Ontario roads, were found recently near Winchester.

Off to the races

The first shots have barely been fired, but municipal election races are heating up. We go to the polls November 14 this year, and some of our local councils will look very different the next day.

At this point, reports of who's staying in and who's bowing out are beginning to trickle out of local council chambers.

Chesterville council will welcome at least one new face, as councillor Roger Cole, after nine years at the table, has announced that he will not seek re-election.

In other municipalities, like Roxborough Township and Winchester Village, organized groups of concerned citizens have battled the councils over various issues, especially in the last year. The election could tell whether they've swayed public opinion or not.

The election promises to introduce fresh faces to local council tables, but more importantly, fresh ideas and styles, and new outlooks.

Being a municipal politician is not a glamorous job. It involves a lot of late nights, number crunching and tough decisions. Each candidate has his or her own reasons for taking it on.

Those who are elected are not above the rest of us, nor do they have special privilege. They are simply those who have said they want the job, and have demonstrated to us that they have the qualities to do it well.

They are the ones we have chosen, from our own community, to represent us, to make our decisions and to listen to us.

There are two things local voters should bear in mind. The first, simply, is that it is important to exercise your right to vote. The second is, that it's important to make an informed vote.

It may take a little effort for some to become familiarized with the issues, with the new candidates and with what the candidates want to do.

Attend the all-candidates meetings, follow the local media's coverage leading up to the election, and talk with the candidates themselves.

It's important to vote, but also it's important to have reasons for your decision.

D2: Mighty Ducks leave a foul taste

By Robin Morris
Movie Critic

I know, I know, I know. A couple of weeks back I defended the Disney animated feature The Lion King against the politically correct ravings of a lunatic Boston psychologist who couldn't tell a cartoon from a car phone and who maintained that the central messages of the film were sexism, racism and homophobia.

But now I feel as if the side has let me down after having watched D2: The Mighty Ducks, another Disney effort to sully this country's national winter sport and yet another example of that particular brand of self-absorbed ethnocentrism that makes American patriotism so obnoxious.

Yankees don't know much about what goes on outside their borders, or within their borders if you take as an example the sign on I- 81 welcoming you to Pennsylvania "Where America begins". Is it any wonder most Americans can't find the U.S. on a map of the world if the governor of Pennsylvania, over whose signature the message is proclaimed, doesn't know where his own state is situated? It's south of New York State, you moron.

D2 picks up the story of the Mighty Ducks, a scrub hockey team in Minneapolis-St. Paul coached by Gordon Bombay, a cocky lawyer (You mean there's another kind?) whose sentence for impaired driving is to perform community service. In a Bad News Bears Go to Maple Leaf Gardens scenario, the Mighty Ducks graduate from an outdoor rink to win the league championship. The coach learns from his young charges and decides to pursue his real dream, chucking his law career to play minor league pro hockey.

D2 picks up on the theme of overcoming adversity but with a twist. Chosen to represent the U.S.A. at the "Junior Goodwill Games" in Los Angeles, the Ducks are sponsored by a sporting goods company whose president, the lugubrious Michael Tucker, who co-starred with the equally loathesome Jill Eikenberry in those forgettable Shoppers Drugmart ads, seduces the coach with promises of the good life if only his team can keep winning.

Coach Bombay, the folks at Disney are quick to point out, has lost sight of the true meaning of sport, which is to play for the love of the game. It is wrong, they tell us, to permit sport to be hijacked by commercialism as we watch the coach descend into a slough of despondency as his team loses to top-seeded Iceland (Iceland!?!) and its sponsor threatens to yank the delights of Tinseltown away from him.

Meanwhile, the team recruits a young black kid from South Central L.A. who has developed some nifty rollerblading hockey moves (hockey being so popular in South Central that the city named its NHL team after Rodney and can advertise that every game at the Great Western Forum is a "real riot").

Armed with this secret weapon and with coach Bombay's sudden realization that MONEY IS BAD, Team USA makes it to the final against Iceland.

Now where in hell did writer Steven Brill come up ith the idea that Iceland is a hockey power? Except for having the word ice in its name the country has no connection with the sport other than being the entry immediately after ice hockey in the 1965 edition of the Encyclopedia Britannica (look it up).

Couldn't they at least have picked on the Russkies? Or are they off limits in the post Cold War era and the opening of Russian theatres to Disney films?

Why do Americans have this perpetual need to pump themselves up by demolishing straw men? Can't they just quietly realize that they inhabit the richest and most powerful country in history and leave it at that? Do they have to continue invading countries like Grenada to prove something to themselves?

One of the most enduring myths of the United States is that it always roots for the little guy. Sure. Just ask Medgar Evers, Martin Luther King and the guy with no medical insurance.

This would explain why we're supposed to root for the American little guy (population 250-million) against Big Bad Iceland (population 250,000). Just how innocuous can a country be? Iceland didn't even get its full independence from Denmark until 1944 and besides having the world's oldests parliament, its only claim to fame is that it was involved in the North Sea cod war with the UK in the late 70s.

But it's not enough that we are served a hearty dose of Yankee jingoism in D2. Nosirreebob.

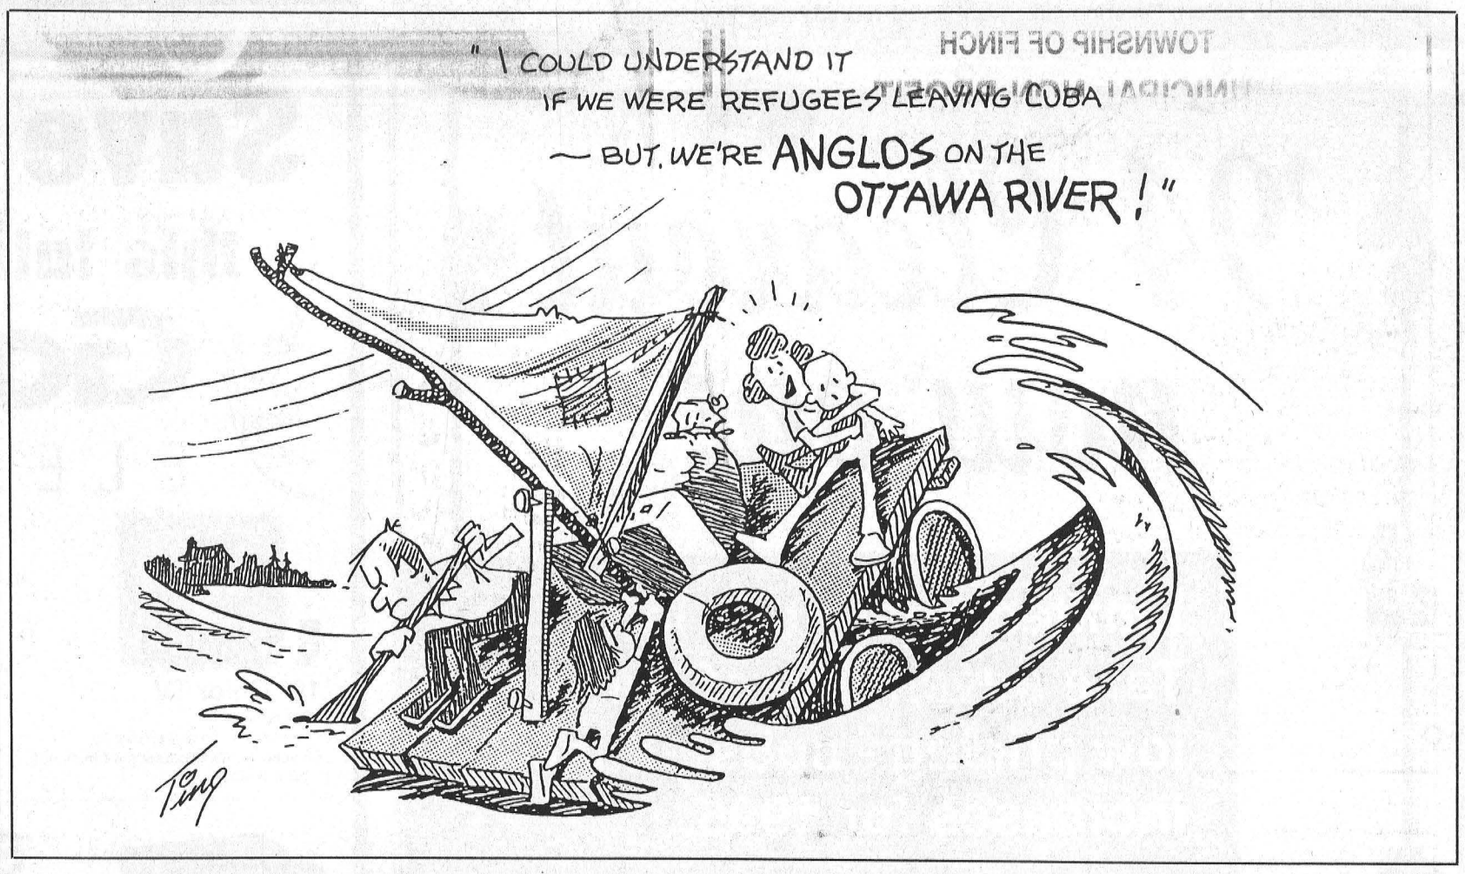
What makes the movie so particularly odious, and why if you insist on renting the movie for the kids you should slip Night of the Living Dead inside the case to make the little buggers swear off Disney for a good long time, is the insidious and shameless plug the entertainment giant manages to insert for itself during the film's denouement, if a Disney movie can be said to have such a thing.

Trailing Iceland at the end of the second period, coach Bombay's mentor, a kindly old Swedish skate sharpener, shows the motley former Ducks how they can win the world championship. Take off those sweaters with the Team USA and sponsor logos and put on, ta-da, Mighty Ducks sweaters!

Jettison your country, and your sponsor, and put on the sweater of the NHL team that every Canadian kid knows was hatched by the first movie in this Disney series. Win the world championship not for your country, but for an entertainment conglomerate and the champion of the little guy.

America becomes Disney and Disney becomes America as the two meld inseparably into Never Never Land and the true meaning of the American Constitution - Life, Liberty and the Purchase of Endorsed Team Products - becomes self evident.

And would you like fries with that sir?



THE FARMER'S WIFE

By Wyn Thompson

I went to the 90th birthday party of a lovely lady the other day. In her reply to the greetings of family and friends, she said that in the western world life was compared to a ladder up which one must keep climbing and learning while, in the eastern world life was compared to a wheel where no spoke was higher than another yet, in its turning it made for harmonious living.

As my youngest granddaughter was visiting me at the time, she accompanied me to the party. As we discussed the ladder and the wheel on the way home, she told me her Guide leader had told them at camp that life was like a box of chocolates, for when you picked one you never knew what you would get.

Surely, these are three good comments to keep in mind!

I'm still watering my young trees and what a joy it is to look at them. It was the spring to plant seedlings for with the abundant summer showers, they have flourished.

Now, let me confess openly: over a lifetime I have been having a love affair with trees. I can watch them for hours and follow their seasonal cycles with excitement. I've walked enraptured among many stands of trees and, I've also unabashedly picked up a piece of milled lumber and smelled it. "There's no lovelier perfume," was my father's never failing comment when he entered a lumber yard. His occupation showed.

Playwright Thornton Wilder once wrote that "the planting of trees is the least self-centred of all that we do. It is a purer act of faith than the procreation of children." I agree. I like to imagine the two oaks we planted four years ago still growing two hundred years from now, huge and beautifully sturdy specimens admired by all who see them, centuries after we are gone and forgotten.

The Farmer recalled the following comment that had stuck with him for many, many years although he couldn't recall the author's name, "To plant trees is to give body and life to one's dream of a better world."

A short time ago I saw a newspaper clipping how a professor at the University of Calcutta had estimated the financial advantage of a common tree. Living for fifty years, it was estimated that a tree produces $31,250 worth of oxygen; recycles $37,500 worth of water; creates $31,250 worth of soil fertility; provides $62,000 worth of air pollution abatement and $31,250 worth of shelter for animals. Not counting shade, fruit or beauty, a common tree is worth about $200,000 by this interesting estimation.

Although I don't know the real reason the powers-to-be chose September for the Labor Day's celebration, I can certainly see why. It's an energetic month. School begins, vacations end, serious projects and meetings suddenly engross us. September is launched into real busyness.

Now come the autumnal equinox, cool nights, hot days, and harvest time. In families with children, it is new shoes and new clothes month. The weather can be as maybe yes- and-maybe no as at any time in the year.

And it is a grand month, indeed. There is always one day, at least, in late September when you are suddenly content to be where you are, doing what you're doing, perhaps the only day like that in all the 365.

Last September, that day caught me looking up through an anesthetic fog into the Farmer's face thankful that I had survived major surgery, and with nothing to do but recuperate. That day, when it arrived, seemed to me to be as perfect as days come.

It's the season of the year when all the little creatures seem to be stirring, maybe house-hunting against the arrival of winter. There's the giant spider that greets me from the ceiling of the gallery each morning. Some day soon, I will catch him and put him outdoors, so he may enjoy the feel of the day and the earth, too.

Indoors is great, too. I enjoy meal-getting with the cool air making me think of soups and stews, of big apple cobblers and wedges of apple raisin cake.

As a matter of fact when I tackled a bit of housecleaning, it seemed to me to be very good work. When I stopped for tea I thought how good it tasted on a cool afternoon. I even got out the polish and rubbed up the little tea kettle, liking the way it gleamed and thinking of the good fun I had buying it at a lawn sale a few short weeks before.

It is a time to dig in the earth and prepare the ground for bulb planting later on. I think of that mythical story in the Bible where poor mother Eve was standing there in her garden, hearing those fateful words: "In sorrow thou shall bring forth children...In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground, for out of it was thou taken for dust thou art and unto dust shall thou return."

There's that theological theory that she got us into our trouble, but I choose to think that we inherited from her a pleasure in the earth and the necessity of sweating to get our bread. I like digging in the earth, and I suspect Eve found it a consolation for some of those troubles that came her way.

This is the season when butterflies are everywhere in the country. The goldenrod attracts flocks of sulphur moths, the milkweed the far-flying monarchs.

All kinds of classes are starting this month. I usually sign up for one. Nothing too strenuous though, really something pleasurable.

For, it is still the time to enjoy summer as it wanes, and to cherish every mild dreamy day.

To ponder: "My mother was indeed a virtuous woman (Proverbs 21). She was once asked which of her children she loved most. Her reply was without hesitation: "The child that is sick until that child is well. The child that is lost until that child is found. The child that is troubled until that child's troubles end. The child that is farthest from home, until that child is safely home." (Bill Duncan, Capital Press).

Accolades to the fair directors

To the Editor:

One of the largest events of the year in Chesterville, is the Chesterville Fair. With support of the community and district, the Fair will continue to be a success. In recent years, the fair board has attempted to provide activities and entertainment for all ages. Professional entertainment comes at a high cost. In order to bring Professional Wrestling, Eric Nagler, Prairie Oyster and other quality entertainers, the gate fees have had to reflect their costs. With reduced attendance at the Fair, and coming elimination of federal and provincial grants, the Fair will be unable to host this type of entertainment any longer.

The board has attempted to alleviate costs by hosting other activities during the year, such as the Lobsterfest in June, the Horse Show weekend in July (both will be held again next year!) and a Yuk Yuk's commedy night and dance Oct. 28.

We have tried to encourage the local community groups to participate through concessions, demonstrations and other activities. We believe that the Fair is for the community and should be representative of the community.

The directors are all volunteers and all of them have busy lives, too. But these dedicated individuals work all year to prepare an event for all ages to enjoy. During the Fair, many directors and volunteers have little time to spend with their families or enjoy the Fair. For many, the hours are long and the satisfaction is the smiling faces and positive comments. Too often, the public are quick to criticize and grumble about this and that. Not frequent enough are accolades given to those who do try to make changes and have the courage and commitment to follow through with new ideas despite the odds.

Rarely have I had the opportunity to work with such a talented, committed and hard working group of individuals. It is a busy but certainly enjoyable experience.

You are welcome to join the volunteers who are working to keep Chesterville Fair a success for the 64th Fair in 1995. We need your support. We also welcome and need your positive suggestions and recommendations as well as your encouragement and thanks.

Avonmore Oktoberfest: Ready to treat European tastes

The Roxborough Agrucultural Society proudly announces the second annual edition of the Avonmore Oktoberfest, our local autumn celebration, to be held on the Avonmore Fair Grounds in the cavernous new Fair Tent this Saturday, September 10.

The evening's festivities begin at 7 p.m. with a complete buffet dinner until 9 p.m., featuring a wide range of authentic Oktoberfest foods.

A live band, Edelweiss, from Montreal, will entertain from 8 p.m. until 1 a.m. with music suited to the occasion as well as popular favorites.

A wide variety of refreshments will be available, as will Oktoberfest souvenirs, including Bavarian hats and "Kiss Me I'm German" pins. Seating for 600 is available, but advance tickets at $12 per person (including all food and entertainment) are going fast!

It is entirely fitting that Avonmore should be the home of one of the very few Oktoberfest celebrations in eastern Ontario. For, although sometimes overlooked, it is an indisputable fact that the vast majority of the first European pioneeers to settle in Stormont and Dundas Counties following the American Revolution were of German origin, some having settled in the 13 colonies as early as 1709.

Such names as Ault, Casselman, Crysler, Schwerdtfeger, Hough, Shaver, Dillabough, Merkley, Hess and Barkley (to name but a few) bear witness to this contribution at the very outset to Ontario's and Canada's cultural mosaic.

More recent German, Dutch and other central European immigrants, especially in the farming communities of Stormont and Dundas, have reinforced this multicultural tradition, helping to create a new awareness of the earlier settlers' ethnic heritage.

Tickets are $12 in advance or $14 at the door. For further information, call 346-5765.

Rotary Club thanked for kind generosity

To the Editor:

Earlier this summer The Record printed a photograph of the Chesterville Rotary Club making a major donation to the Easter Seals Renovation Fund for Camp Merrywood. This is a summer camp near Rideau Ferry for children with special needs. One must see the campers at Merrywood to begin to understand how precious your assistance truly is.

During the last week of August our family had the pleasure of attending family camp at Merrywood. The counsellors provided full day programming for the children. Our children had their first taste of canoeing, sailing and tenting. Even the parents were hard pressed to decide which tour to join or fishing hole to favor. It was a holiday to banish the cares of the rest of the year.

Each family had a member with special needs but if you asked we could not tell you the needs. We were friends on a first name basis having fun together. That was all that mattered.

A mere letter of thanks for the benevolence over the years from groups like the Chesterville Rotary Club is inadequate to express our gratitude. Chesterville Rotarians have been bringing a part of heaven to earth for local special needs children ever since Bob Gilroy's father drove Marilyn Fawcett to Camp Merrywood not long after the Second World War ended.

At Merrywood the stress of the work-a-day world evaporates in favor of a week of smiles and giggles from children playing and learning with newfound friends.

We thank the Chesterville Rotarians for enabling us and the Pauls from Winchester to enjoy such a refreshing holiday.

Chesterville's Aurea and Ariste Genier proudly show off the tall inhabitants of their Mary Street garden — sunflowers that reach heights of 11 feet. Aurea said she bought the seeds at Chesterville's Co-op and at Williamsburg's Canadian Tire store. The couple had no explanation for the incredible height of the plants.

Seaway Valley Tourism Board focuses on new visitors, revenues

MORRISBURG - The Seaway Valley Tourism Association's annual general meeting, themed "Challenge and Change" was held August 17 and attracted 100 tourism operators and influencers from across the area, who heard, in several presentations, that it has to change to meet the challenge of attracting more visitors to the area.

And change it we did a new look board was struck by the members consisting of a 13-person management board, representing primarily industry interests, and a 13-person advisory board, representing the various cultural, heritage, natural and business interests across the Seaway Valley.

The purpose of the new structure is to ensure that all interests from the SD&G area are represented, have a common forum to meet and discuss relevant issues, and a valuable platform upon which to promote tourism, according to the association president Louis DeSousa.

The Seaway Valley Tourism Executive comprises: president DeSousa of Howard Johnson Hotel, Morrisburg, vice-president Wendy McRae-Rozon of Capricorn Capers Bed and Breakfast, Williamstown, secretary-treasurer Sheilah Duchart-Law of Elephant Stew, Avonmore, and directors Marion Stewart of Creg Quay, Bainsville, Stephen Preston, Deputy-Reeve, Lancaster Township, Linda Bowers of A.J. Bowers Ltd., Morrisburg and Lola McEvoy of Turn of the Century Bed and Breakfast, South Mountain.

The Management Board also includes Gary Ivens of Maple Ridge Farms, Apple Hill, Chris Reid of Lockview Gift Shop, Iroquois, Sandra Laneville, Deputy-Reeve of Winchester, Douglas Leighton, Deputy-Reeve of Osnabruck Township, Astrid LeMaitre, Parks of the St. Lawrence, Williamsburg Township.

One opening remains for the South Stormont area, which the board anticipates filling shortly.

The advisory board is made up of Charles Sangster, Warden of SD&G, Deidre Cuggy, Lancaster Chamber, Art Buchanan, Moose Creek Chamber, Sheila Olson, Alexandria Chamber, Anne Marie Dawley, Morrisburg Chamber, Sandra Dobry, past president and Chris Puddicombe, MCTR. Six positions, representing conservation, historical, agricultural, cultural, and business associations remain open and will be filled by the board.

"Our membership drive continues. Results to-date demonstrate a dramatic increase of over 300 per cent from last year," said incoming president DeSousa, "and a significant level of operator interest in participating in our association. We will have recruited 100 members by year end!"

The mission of the new board is to attract new revenues and tourists to Seaway Valley. "Our industry cannot afford to sit back and wait for visitors to arrive," DeSousa added. "Investing co- operatively in tourism promotion through Seaway Valley Tourism will attract those visitors and reap significant dividends for all —it's a win- win-win situation!"

School marks 20 years of happy faces

Greg Hewitt
Record Staff

It's back to the books this week for local students, as the summer holiday is now just a memory.

And for the younger set, it's back to the sandbox at Chesterville's Happy Face Nursery School, celebrating its 20th anniversary this year.

Happy Face Nursery School, nestled between the Nelson LaPrade Centre and Centennial Pool in the community park, has the capacity for 16 pre-school students, aged 3 and 4, and 12 toddlers, or two-year-olds.

Toddlers are entertained for two hours on Fridays, while up to three two-and-a-half-hour sessions per week are available to pre-schoolers who are enrolled.

"We concentrate on learning through co-operation and sharing," says Happy Face supervisor Carol Heymans.

"And for the parent, it gives them a chance to relax from the day-to-day child rearing situation."

Activities offfered include play time, housekeeping play, games, puzzles, arts and crafts, song and story time, and the popular snack time.

The school held an open house Friday morning, for registration as well as to give parents and new students a chance to take a look at the facility and meet the people involved.

Heymans said the school has served a valid role in the community, bringing parents into the area and allowing them to meet others in the community, especially because the school is run as a co-operative.

Parents take turns attending classes, helping the teacher on duty. Also, the school's executive is made up of parents.

"It's a good time for the parents to be involved in their kids' education," Heymans says. "It's the one time in their education that the parents are going to have full input and be a part of the classroom."

Chesterville's Birket Foster brought his two-year-old son Myles to the school Friday to get a taste of the Happy Face environment.

"They learn to play with other kids, and a lot of other things," Foster said, noting that Myles is the third of his children to attend Happy Face.

"A lot of it is for the social interaction with the other kids. It's not like renting a babysitter, it's more like a school."

Foster also noted that children who attend the school can form friendships with other youngsters that will continue when they enter the regular school system.

The nursery school receives a direct operating grant from the government to help with the teacher salaries.

Also, fund raising events, such as a reunion dance for adults at the end of the year, are planned, says parent\president Cindy Clement.

Clement says the school hopes to raise about $5,000 to go toward the cost of supplies, repairs and general school expenses.

Road is no dump, Osnabruck man says

Record Staff

INGLESIDE — Ever since he bought a piece of land off Dafoe Road in Osnabruck Township seven years ago, Garrett Crites has had problems with poachers, trespassers and illegal dumping.

Both the provincial police and the Ministry of Natural Resources have been called in to investigate incidents along the road. Most recently, loads of household garbage, building materials and car parts have been left on the road and in drainage ditches on either side of the road.

The tresspassers use the old Parker Road to gain access to the back portions of the Crites' property.

The road used to provide access to the St. Lawrence River for township residents before the Seaway came. It stretched nine miles from the Finch Township boundary to Farran's Point.

Today, its bridges have been taken away and its shoulders are overgrown, but portions are still used by four-wheelers and all-terrain vehicles for illegal activities.

Ingleside's community services officer, Const. Roy McGrath, says an investigation is continuing and charges are pending on the case, but could not release any details.

The garbage is expected to be cleaned up within days, and the charges are expected to be laid. But Crites says he's looking for a more permanent solution.

The household waste and poaching are all having an impact on the area's wildlife population, which sometimes eats the garbage and drinks the contaminated water in the ditches.

Closing the road sounds like the obvious solution to the problem, but not everyone in the township supports the idea.

Councillor Oscar Ouderkirk, who also chairs the township's recreation committee, says council has no immediate plans to close the road. He says the local snowmobile club is thinking of using the access as part of a trail through the township.

Ontario Hydro also uses the property for routine maintenance of a power line that crosses the old road and Crites' neighbor, on the other side of the road, would also have to consent.

Council discussed the situation at their last council meeting and agreed to take immediate action on the dumping.

But they decided against action to close the road until all interested parties consented and asked Crites to contact his neighbors.

Terry Fox Run set for Sept. 18 at North Dundas District High School

Melissa Batchilder
Record Staff

People of all ages are expected to be on the move in this area for the 14th Annual Terry Fox Run Sept. 18.

More than 60 participants are expected for the non-competitive event in which people may walk, run, wheel or rollerblade the course. The event begins at 1pm at North Dundas High School.

Organizer John Roosendaal says all funds raised will be appreciated, "but we are hoping to raise at least $6,000."

Of course, this depends on weather conditions and the participant turnout, he adds.

As in the past, Mary Dixon's family will be out in full force. Each year the family, which is made up of Mrs. Dixon's children, grandchildren and great- grandchildren, appear in full-force to participate.

"The Dixon family is always there and is expected again this year. Sometimes there are as many as 20 members of the family out walking."

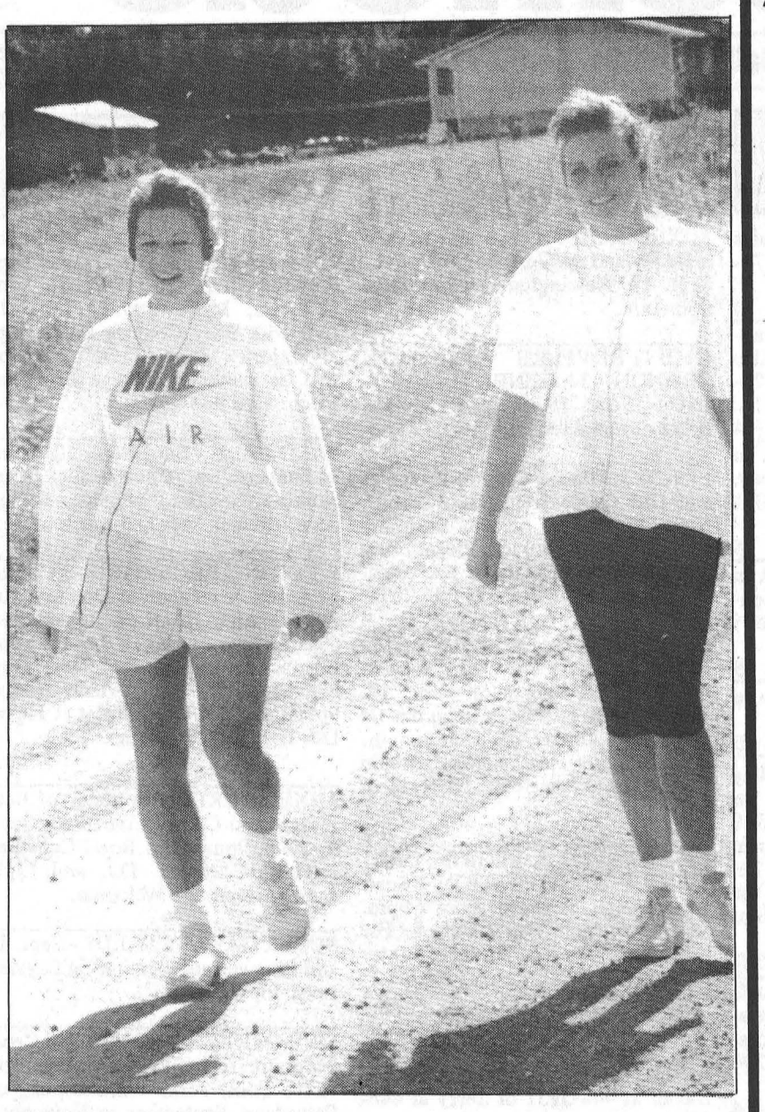
The support of this particular family really serves as a backbone to the event in this area. Its interest stems from the loss of a daughter to cancer a number of years ago.

Terry Fox is remembered as the courageous young man with an artifical leg from Port Coquitlam, B.C. who ran from St. John's, NF, to Thunder Bay, Ont. in 1980.

Calling his run, The Marathon of Hope, and raising $24.17-million, he was forced to stop when cancer reoccurred.

"Cancer has touched the lives of so many Canadians," says Martha McClew, Ontario Director of the Terry Fox Foundation. "That is why Terry's mission continues to inspire people to participate in record numbers each year."

Those wishing to participate in the run can contact Mr. Roosendaal at 774-3990 or pick up a pledge sheet at the Liquor Control Board or Scotiabank.



Fox trot

The annual Terry Fox Run for cancer research is planned for Sept. 18, beginning at North Dundas District High School. Participants can walk, run, bike or complete the course in any manner they choose. The local run is held in conjunction with other runs across Canada, in honor of Terry Fox, whose Marathon of Hope inspired the nation and raised awareness of the need for cancer research.

Police ask after-hours callers to please leave a message

LONG SAULT — Answering machines are the wave of the future with the Ontario Provincial Police in District 11.

As of Sept. 12 callers with be able to contact local detachments 24 hours a day. This new initiative is in accordance with other districts across the province.

Long Sault OPP Constable J.W. Doiron says the new enhancement to the telecommunications system will allow the public to make direct contact with its detachment anytime day or night.

"These machines will be used to provide a better service to the community. When detachment staff is unavailable, the machines will assist the caller in using the 1-800-267-2677 police service number to contact the OPP communications centre at Kanata," he explains.

The option is also there to leave a message if the matter is of a non-urgent nature.

If the message is for a specific officer, it may be left for his or her attention. If it pertains to a general inquiry, an officer will return the call as soon as possible, adds Constable Doiron.

If the caller needs to contact the OPP immediately, he or she should use the 1-800-267- 267 number.

"The answering machine capability will assist the police in dealing with the day to day inquiries of the community and free up the emergency number for police assistance calls from the public," says Constable Doiron.

The answering machines will only be used after regular office hours.

Smash and crash - demolition derby 8 cylinders of fun

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

NEWINGTON - The future of the demolition derby is the four cylinder car.

The Stormont County Fair opened for the 127th time this past weekend with the ever popular Demolition Derby.

Jay Quesnel of Crysler was the big winner when his Hyundi Pony was the only car left moving on the field.

The derby revved up when the first heat, consisting of six cars, collided together and turned Andrew Whitton's (Ingleside) car on its side. He walked away from his overturned car, unharmed, as Ron Bovin of Crysler went on to win the heat.

The remaining four heats were filled with cars crashing into each other on purpose, while engines were overheating, tires were squealing and cars were getting stuck in the sand traps.

This year's derby had 63 cars participating. The average is approximately 75 but it has gone as high as 110 in past years, said one member of the Derby Crew.

"There was a derby in South Mountain last week that wiped out about 30 cars," explained one annual participant who noted the turn out. What makes the demolition derby so popular with the drivers whose ages average in the early 20s?

"It's because of the rush," explained Chris Bilmer of Newington.

The most popular reason for entering the derbies was not to win the prize money but it was "you can do things here (at a demolition derby) you can't do on the road," said Ron Bovin who has participated in the Stormont Derby for the past six years.

Once the cars are in the ring, a semi-grassed area barricaded by cement blocks, it is not a free-for-all-smash-em-up-until-there's-no-one-left. There are a few rules the drivers must follow, primarily to ensure the safety of the drivers.

"Nobody's been hurt yet," said one veteran Derby Crew member who inspected the cars as they entered the pit before the races.

The rules include: removing the gas tank from the rear of the car; removing all of the chrome and windows; the car can not be reinforced with concrete; the battery must be on the passenger's seat; contact can only be made while in reverse; all doors must be sealed shut; the driver's side door can not be hit; the driver must wear a CSA approved helmet as well as a seatbelt. The driver must also be a minimum of 18 years old and have a valid driver's license.

There were five heats run with the winner of each heat receiving $200 and the opportunity to go into the final heat and vie for $500.

The majority of the cars entered in demolition derbies are six or eight cylinder Fords and Chryslers found in junk yards. But this year Stormont added a special four-cylinder heat that consisted of Toyota's and the winning Hyundi Pony.

Most cars entered in derbies come from junk yards and are already in pretty poor shape when the driver and crew start prepping it for the derby.

Just by looking at the cars it was quite obvious the most important aspect to the car was the exterior paint job.

Most cars had the entire interior stripped out. However, Lorne Neville's vehicle boasted a working radio, while other cars opted to display exterior paraphernalia only they could understand the meaning of.

One example of the amount of effort put into readying a car for one derby is Neville's car. Thomas Brown, one of Neville's supporters who helped prep his car explained the process.

They found the car in a junk yard and paid $50 for it. Neville and four friends then spent about 100 hours stripping the interior and making it conform to derby regulations. They then topped it off with a custom paint job. The total cost $300. Most, if not all of which was paid by the sponsor of the vehicle - usually the driver's employer.

All of this effort for one use of the car - to demobilize all other cars and be the last car moving.

Attendance at this year's derby reached approximately 3,500.

The following are the heat winners. Each earned $200.

First heat: Ron Bovin, Crysler; second heat: Archie Sypes, Iroquois; third heat: Richard Bouchard, Finch; fourth heat: Jay Quesnel; 5th heat: Bruce Belanger, Chesterville.

Custom paint jobs added to the competition

Left: This menacing demolition derby entry looks like it just came from another derby with its already caved in front end.

Future of the derby: 4-cylinders

Below: Four-cylinders like this Toyota were new to the derby. A Hyundi was the underdog butsuprise overall winner.

Frog's Flyers unstoppable - new C/WMBHL champs

CHESTERVILLE—Win number nine was the sweetest for the Co-operators' Frog's Flyers squad. Their consecutive win string, stretching back to the end of June netted them the 1994 C/WMBHL championship here last Wednesday.

Powered by the scoring talent of Todd Marcellus, who collected nine goals, 14 assists and 23 points in five playoff games the fifth-place Flyers swept to the championship.

For their efforts, devoted to teammate Jamie Kennedy who passed away just prior to the championship series, the Flyers accepted the new Jamie Kennedy Memorial championship trophy.

The Flyers got a good battle from the Legion Blues in the final match. They trailed the Blues 2-1 after a period and were tied 2-2 with 0:03 left in the middle session.

A late second-period goal by captain Mike Desormeaux broke the game open as the Flyers soared to a 6-2 victory.

They had opened the best of three final with an 11-3 route.

Over the five-game post season slate the Flyers out-scored their opposition by a 36-16 margin.

Todd Marcellus opened the final game scoring at 10:23 of the first period. Shawn Clark and Simon Wilson engineered the play.

But the Blues roared back into contention potting unanswered goals at 6:47 and 3:31. Dennis Ouellette, who had missed the opening game, netted both beating Pat Brugmans on a play started by Aaron Sherrer and Gene McInnis to tie it and again on an unassisted play to put his team ahead 2-1.

The Flyers pulled ahead for good in the second frame. Cory VanDelst finished off a scramble involving Cark and Marcellus at 10:50 to knot the score at two. With 0:03 left in the period Mike "Frog" Desormeaux scored what would prove to be the winning goal.

Desormeaux, being covered by a Blues' defender three feet out of the goal crease, managed to swing around and got his stick on the ball, which he managed to bounce into Carl Andre's net off of an opposing defenceman.

Jason Kennedy and Clint Holmes drew assists on the play.

Desormeaux made it 4-2 scoring from Holmes and VanDelst at 12:04 of the final period. Shawn Clark scored from a sharp angle with 5:14 left and increased the difference to 5-2. Marcellus and Jeff Holmes picked up assists on the play.

Cory VanDelst slapped in an eight-foot shot with 2:43 left in the season to make it a 6-2 final. Mike Desormeaux and Simon Wilson helped out on the play.

O'Brien 3-peats as Mr. Dirt in Cornwall

CORNWALL - Kingston's Pat O'Brien revved up for a run at the Mr. Dirt Small Block title by winning Cornwall Speedway's "Canadian Tire 200". The richest small block modified race in Canadian history was the grand finale to Cornwall's 25th anniversary season.

The 30-year old O'Brien held off his younger brother, Danny, for the checkered flag and earned a payday in excess of $15,500 from the $40,000 purse.

Just four cars finished on the lead lap with Dave Heaslip of Smiths Falls, Ontario placing third and Pete Bicknell of St. Catharines, Ontario winding up fourth. Cornwall's Marcel Lafrance checked in fifth, one lap down, and picked up a guaranteed starting position in the 358-Championship race at Syracuse, New York during Super Dirt Week.

The "Canadian Tire 200" served as the first of 13 events on the McReary/Sunoco Race Fuels Mr. Dirt Championship trail. O'Brien is the only three-time winner of the title.

"This definetely ranks as the biggest win if my career," stated O'Brien, who also captured Cornwall's Small Block Track Championship with the victory. "Because of business commitments this is probably the last year I'll follow the championship trail and I would really like to win one on my own."

O'Brien's three previous Mr. Dirt Championship. in 1988-90-92, came when he was driving for the Cornwall-based Sheldon League racing team.

35 small blocks converged on Cornwall's quarter- mile layout to contest the 200-lap event. The O'Brien brothers won 10-lap qualifying events, as did Keith "Chico" Dingwall of Prescott, Ontario and Mike Bruno of Fairhaven, Vermont with Kevin Fetterly of Massena, New York taking a consolation event that completed the order of the 30-car starting grid.

Laurent Ladouceur of Alexandria, Ontario set the pace for the first 28 laps before being passed by Dave Camara of Poultney, Vermont. Camara was the front-runner until lap-88 when Pat O'Brien took to the high side racing groove to go from third to first by powering around both his brother and Camara. Pat ran strong for the remaining 12 laps and collected $1,000 from Canadian Tire for being the leader at the halfway point.

Racing resumed following a mandatory 20-minute pit stop, with 20 cars returning to the fray, eight of them on the lead lap. Danny O'Brien pulled into the lead lap 122 just before yellow came out because of a fender bender involving Marcel Lafrance and Pierre Dagenais of Gatineau, Quebec.

The younger O'Brien, running strongly but heavily into lapped traffic, found trouble on lap-136 when Ladouceur spun in front of him and the leader had nowhere to go. As the number one slot reverted back to the elder O'Brien, Danny lined up at the back of the pack, which still contained 20 cars. He quickly churned his way through the field and moved around Dave Heasel and back into second place on lap-165.

The final 41 laps were run consecutively under green and, although he could hear the hum of his brother's motor a couple of times in lapped traffic, Pat O'Brien enjoyed a comfortable cushion at the finish line.

"I probably should have changed the brake pads during the pit stop," said the "Canadian Tire 200" champ. "But I didn't want to take the chance of something going wrong. My legs are awfully sore because I really had to pump hard on the brakes in those last 100 laps."

Supporting class racing was provided by the Street Stock division with Stephane Brisson of St. Albert, Ontario winning a 15-lap feature contested by a dozen entries. Chris Herbison of Brockville, Ontario was the runner-up and that finish made him Cornwall's 1994 Street Stock Champion. Sam Vanderlinden of Athens, Ontario was third Quebec drivers Dean Ranger of Grenville and Donat Hamelin of St. Lazare finishing fourth and fifth.

Cornwall's silver anniversary season comes to a close on a Sunday afternoon, Sept. 11th, with the "Fireball Enduro". It's 200 laps of racing for Street Stock type cars, starting at 2 p.m.

Awareness is important, not toughness

Sandra Dillich
Record Staff

If you want to learn self defence or enjoy a different form of exercise than the Maple Ridge Tae Kwon Do school may be just for you.

Maple Ridge will be holding its registration on Wed., Sept. 6th at the Maple Ridge Senior Elementary School from 7-9 p.m. The school is located on Hwy 43 across from North Dundas District High School.

Wednesday night is also the first night of classes. The junior class runs from 7-8 p.m. and the senior class goes from 8-9 p.m.

"You can learn self-defence as well as develop confidence, balance and conditioning," explained Maple Ridge's head instructor Mike Lecuyer.

Maple Ridge is starting its 14th season and they are also the oldest affiliate of Master Tae E. Lee in Ottawa.

Lecuyer, a third degree black belt, says you don't have to be tough, just aware.

"It's not the physical aspect of it (Tae Kwon Do) but the mental aspect that is important."

The cost is $30/month for people 18 years and older and $20/month for 18 years and younger.

Classes are held Monday and Wednesday nights from 7-9 p.m.
