Local committee formed to sponsor refugee family

(Staff) - A steering committee of local residents has been formed to study the possibility of sponsoring an Indiochinese refugee family in the Chesterville area.

Formation of the committee came following a presentation to about 15 representatives of church and community groups from Chesterville and Morewood at the Community Hall last Thursday night. As well as private citizens, the steering committee will include several local clergymen as ex officio members.

The presentation of the legal aspects of sponsorshop and on the practical side of dealing with the refugees once they arrive in Canada was given by two Ottawa Centretown teachers, Charlene Smith and Isobel Woodridge, and by Pat Barlow, an immigration officer with the department of Manpower and Immigration, Cornwall.

Mrs. Smith, who has been teaching for 15 years, has over 40 Vietnamese refugee children in her English as a second language class describes them as "the most delightful children I have ever taught".

Despite the upheavals they have gone through in fleeing their war-torn country the children are "happy from the inside out and want to learn. They are a real asset to our culture," she said.

Mr. Barlow described the sponsorship process, outlining the costs, methods and legal involvement for those wishing to bring a family to Canada.

He said the government's objective once the families are here is to get them "self supporting and out out on their own as quickly as possible".

A sponsoring group must have $2,500 in either cash or in foods, before it applies for a family and he estimated the cost of supporting them through their first year in Canada at between $10,000 and $12,000.

The meeting was chaired by Rev. Alex Dobson on of Holy Trinity Anglican Church, and he was told by spokesmen of the groups represented at the meeting that $1,650 has already been pledged towards a sponsorship.

This consists of $650 from the congregation of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, and $500 each from the Rotary Club and Women's Institute.

Other organizations will be contacted shortly to see if they will make a financial commitment and the village's other churches will also join the fund raising. Any donations made by individuals or companies will be tax deductible, Mr. Barlow said.

The steering committee will meet at 8pm Thursday in the United Church hall and will report back to a general meeting of organization representatives next week.

He stressed that sponsorship is a legal undertaking and a committee accepts responsibility for the refugees for a full year.

However, once the family becomes self supporting or moves out of the area - even if it is within the one-year limit - the sponsor's responsibility ends.

He described a case in Cornwall last spring in which a Vietnamese family arrived one day, the father had a job the next and received a promotion within a week. He has proven such a valuable employee that he has been taken off the job and given English language training to prepare him for further promotions.

The refugees are hard workers and "employers love

Taxes divide trustees

CORNWALL (Staff) - Local school trustees are divided over the latest equalization assessment which could mean doubled taxes for some rural communities while the tax base in urban centres shrinks.

The first in 10 years, the updated equalization assessment has "caught everybody by surprise," observed Finch and Osnabruck Townships Public School Board trustee Lloyd Markell last week. Finch Township was the hardest hit with an increased assessment of 86 per cent from about 33 per cent for the SD&G Public School Board alone. Osnabruck's assessment rose almost a third, to 28 per cent.

The provincial Ministry of Revenue reassessed property values this year in Ontario based on sales and adjusted its tax assessment accordingly.

Equalized taxes levied in SD&G by school boards and the United Counties have been frozen at the 1970 level.

While property values change annually, the province put off reassessment for a decade, causing a dramatic change in equalized taxes. Most urban centres have benefitted while rural areas have suffered drastic increases.

Mr. Markell would like to see a collective appeal from severely affected municipalities and intends to get in touch with MLA Osie Villeneuve about the "all-at-once bang".

"I don't think taxpayers should be forced to carry the burden all in one shot."

Hoping at least that the province will agree to phasing-in the increased taxes, Mr. Markell blames the Ontario government for the "difficult situation." He says it allowed assessment factors to stay fixed for 10 years without periodic adjustments to reflect actual property values in each township.

"I want to see facts and figures. I want to see how they arrive at this and why," he insisted. "Why did they leave it so long?"

He intends to find out why the province froze assessments for a decade and why rural areas are assessed more than urban.

He is concerned for individuals but believes that only collective action will influence any appeal.

"It (the new assessment) has caught a lot of people who are not in a position to pay - especially older people." he said.

On the separate school board, West Stormont and Dundas Counties' representative Peter Van Moorsel voiced similar concerns but was less optimistic about a reversal of government policy.

He not only represents Finch and Osnabruck Townships residents but also Mountain, Winchester, Matilda and Williamsburg Townships, whose assessments have all risen 35 per cent or more.

He is not confident that he could get enough support to enter an appeal against the sudden hikes in assessment.

"Regardless of the strength from outlying areas, with eight out of 12 trustees on the board from Cornwall (where the assessment has fallen,) I doubt whether I can get any backing for an appeal," he told The Record last week.

He admitted that "perhaps there was an injustice at one time" when urban centres were paying more. Now, however, the board should make sure rural schools have the facilities Cornwall schools enjoy.

"They should be on a par now that the rural areas have to pay more," he stated.

He speculated that with reassessment, there may be a shift in representation, with one

Engineers study drain complaints

BERWICK (Staff) - Cornwall engineering consultants have combed the new Crysler subdivision for faults in the drainage system to back up a writ issued against the subdivider two months ago.

Finch Township council instructed R.M. Kostuch Engineering Ltd., to make a list of deficiencies in the subdivision as part of its action against 358205 Ontario Ltd. at its regular meeting last Monday.

It hopes the added list will force the latest subdivider to complete terms of the original five-year contract drawn up with first owner, Fernand Legault, in 1974.

In July council asked township lawyer Barrie Wilson to issue a writ to 358205 Ontario Ltd., after hearing monthly complaints from homeowners in the 26-lot development about incomplete roads and drains in the southwest quarter of the police village. A few weeks ago the writ was given to the Ottawa sherriff who subsequently hands it to company officials but Mr. Wilson is still waiting for an answer.

The development company has 10 days after receiving the writ to put in a defence and proceed with court action or pay an estimated $50,000 in lieu of work contracted.

The township, as well as subdivision residents, is unhappy with the incomplete construction. Inadequately finished ditches, culverts and paving have stalled work on the Brisson drain - a municipal drain for which homeowners in the subdivision have been assessed.

Residents argue the municipal drain will make no difference until the drainage situation in their development can be improved. The system does not provide proper outlets, they told council, two months ago.

It was designed by A.J. Graham Engineering Consultants Ltd. of Ottawa, but was installed by the subdividers.

"The design may be okay; but we don't know whether the construction is," said clerk-treasurer Arnott Empey last Tuesday.

Valedictory stresses human experiences

INGLESIDE (Staff) - The human side of school life was the most valuable and lasting experience she carries with her from Osnabruck District High School, valedictorian Debbie Dewey told a large audience at Friday night's graduation exercises here.

Miss Dewey, the only Ontario Scholar among the seven-member level V graduating class, told her classmates and the audience, "People are what it's all about and at ODHS we had most intense experiences with our teachers and among our fellow students".

The school's small size created a "safe, comfortable little nest" which was difficult to exchange for the demands of university, college and the workplace, but the strength of the relationships that have been built during their time at ODHS helped prepare the graduates for the challenges that now face them, the valedictorian said.

Miss Dewey, 18, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Dewey, Lunenburg, and is now enrolled in the Bachelor of Nursing Science program at Queen's University, Kingston. She achieved a final standing of 82.3 per cent at ODHS.

She was introduced by principal Les Gauley, who said she exemplified the well rounded student.

During her five years at Osnabruck District, she served on the student council as a class representative, vice-president and public relations representative; made the school honor list for five straight years; was twice awarded the Ed Lumley Citizenship award for contributions to the community; was an area representative at the Ontario Conference of the Canadian Girls in Training; received 4-H county and provincial honors, and travelled extensively, to such places as the Orient, South Pacific and South Africa.

In her valedictory, Miss Dewey said, "Academic teaching, by definition, is the main reason for our being here" but she added that it is only a "portion of the whole" of education.

She stressed the importance of academics, saying it taught students how to face and overcome the challenges they would be pitting themselves against throughout their lives.

It taught her that even though each person has their limitations, each challenge is only as difficult as the individual makes it. Challenge teaches a person how to push themselves to the limit and "every time you do that, you find you can go a little further".

Osnabruck District's close-knit community has a "special aura - a special style" which develops strong relationships between students and which forces them into close personal contact with their teachers.

This gives them a better understanding both of themselves and of those in authority over them and she thanked her teachers for "guiding our studies; having the patience to force us to do things we hated; for listening to us and for laughing with us. You can't forget someone you've laughed with."

Of her own parents and those of the rest of the graduating class, Miss Dewey assured them of their gratitude "for all your support and for doing the little things that just can't be counted".

The combination of all these factors, she said, has taught the graduating class "to take each crisis and challenge as it comes - one step at a time".

John Wise guest speaker

(Staff) - Agriculture Canada minister John Wise will be the guest speaker at the annual banquet of the Stormont Federation of Agriculture, to be held Wed., Oct. 17 at the Avonmore Community Centre. The dinner gets underway at 7:30pm and tickets are $6 per person.

Quilt draw Friday

(Staff) - The Winchester District Memorial Hospital Auxiliary will hold the draw for its quilt raffle at the hospital at 2:30 this Friday afternoon. Total value of the prizes is $355 and the proceeds from the draw will be divided equally between the hospital and the Ontario Heart Foundation. WDMH's share will be used in the purchase of a heart monitor for the operation room.

Rainfall report

Week of Sept. 30 - Oct. 6

	Chesterville	South Mountain
Rainfall	18.2mm	18.6mm
Accumulation	433.2mm	433.2mm

There are 25.4mm to the inch. The Dundas office of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food will continue to record rainfall statistics in the county until the 1979 harvest has been completed.

Osnabruck pool meeting

(Staff) To swim or not to swim - that is the question Osnabruck Township recreation director Joe DuVall wants answered at a public meeting Tues., Oct. 16 at 8pm in the Osnabruck Centre Township hall. He and members of the township's recreation committee will be fielding queries about the tentative facility in Ingleside, its cost, dimensions, operating expenses and use. He hopes experienced persons responsible for the pool in Perth will be on hand to answer any questions concerned ratepayers and interested persons might have.

Discuss communications

(Staff) - The SD&G Separate School Board has scheduled a series of informal public meetings to discuss the state of communications between board, schools and community. Input from these meetings will be used by the board's Commission of Inquiry, conducting the meetings, to try to improve the rapport between the three parties. The first will be tommorrow (Thursday) at St. Bernard's in Finch Village from 7:30-10pm during which the Parent-Teacher Association from St. Bernard's and from Chesterville's St. Mary's will be presenting a brief. Others slated for the same hours are at La Source, Moose Creek on Oct. 15, at St. Mary's, Morrisburg, on Oct. 18 and at St. George's, Long Sault on Oct. 24.

Thanksgiving snowman

With Thanksgiving dinners now just a memory, Eastern Ontario looked even less fall-like Tuesday as a freak storm dumped over an inch of snow on the area. For these students at St. Mary's Separate School it was a welcome diversion from playing in the autumn leaves as they spent their time before school Tuesday morning building snowmen.

Ken Carter's highly publicized attempt to jump across the St. Lawrence Seaway in a jet-powered car failed Friday morning when the car, piloted by his protege, Ken Powers, disintegrated as it left the launching ramp west of Morrisburg. Big splash goes plop MORRISBURG (Staff) - Ken Carter's long-awaited jet powered jump across the St. Lawrence Seaway took place west of here last Friday morning with one important aspect missing.

The "missing link" was Carter himself, who, after four years of preparation for the attempt at the world record car jump, failed to show up at the site near Mariatown.

A substitute driver, Ken Powers, made the unsuccessful attempt and ended up in an Ottawa hospital with a fractured bone in his lower back after the bright yellow Lincoln Continental disintegrated under the stress of the 300-mph attempt and instead of clearing the river ended up stuck in the mud less than 150 ft. off shore.

After the jump, Carter aids explained that the 41-year-old Verdun native's absence was due to an injured wrist which had not recovered sufficiently for him to withstand the force exerted on the vehicle during acceleration and impact.

They claimed Carter had broken his wrist during a stunt in Edmonton on the Labor Day weekend and he was advised by doctors not to go ahead with the St. Lawrence River jump.

Had it been successful, the jump would have established a world record distance by clearing the 2,000-foot-wide channel from the jump site to Ogden Island, NY.

A crowd of about 300 gathered at the site Friday to watch what they thought was the "Mad Canadian" being projected from the towering ramp across the swift, deepwater channel.

What they witnessed instead was a spectacular end to their four-year wait as the jet-powered vehicle left its 800-foot-high launching ramp with its fibreglass body already disintegrating.

Those on the jump ramp said the car lost its stabilizer wings when it began bouncing on the asphalt runway. Its windshield was also blown out before it became airborne.

As the car left the ramp it was caught by the heavily gusting winds and turned in a roll to the right as pieces flew in all directions from its body. Its hood was soon ripped away, causing the rear parachute to open. With the chutes open, the car drifted shorewards and landed on all four wheels in about four feet of water just south of the submerged roadbed of old highway two.

After the abrupt landing, Powers opened the car's roof hatch and began climbing out before collapsing back into the vehicle. He was taken out by stretcher and immediately despatched to the hospital in Ottawa where x-rays showed he had fractured his tailbone. The rough landing also caused the 33-year-old stuntman to bite through his tongue.

Friday's jump was a surprise ending to the four-year-old Carter saga.

He had been at the site Wednesday but cancelled the attempt at the last minute because of the wet weather.

Friday's conditions were not ideal - the crew waited too long in making their preparations and by the time the car was ready to leave the launching ramp, a stiff wind was blowing in off the St. Lawrence.

However, the jump had to take place Friday because key contracts signed by Carter had almost run out.

Am American film company which holds exclusive film rights had set a 3pm Friday deadline, saying it would pull out whether the jump was completed or not and a television crew and still photographers flown in from Los Angeles had to catch a 3:30pm flight out of Ottawa.

Meanwhile, Montreal Urban Community police are still searching for two additional suspects wanted in connection with the mysterious disapppearance in that city of Carter's jet-powered car several weeks ago.

Detective Ken Abrahams of the MUC police auto theft squad reported Friday that two suspects "indirectly connected with the Carter entourage" have been charged in connection with the theft and two more are still being sought.

Ramp must conform with SD&G road setback bylaw

(Staff) - If Ken Carter wants to attempt his "country mile" jump across the St. Lawrence River again next summer, he or his organization will have to prove to United Counties Council that they have enough money behind them to remove or adjust the 180-foot-high ramp that sits alongside Lakeshore Drive west of Morrisburg.

According to county engineer D.J. McDonald, the counties' road department has estimated the cost of moving the ramp back to conform with counties' bylaw at $43,000.

The earth and steel ramp now encroaches on the setback along the road and it must either be moved back by the Carter organization or the counties will remove the offending portions and bill Carter and his backers for the work.

Counties' bylaws state that a structure must be set back 100 ft. from the centre of a county road. The southern edge of Carter's ramp is less than 45 ft. from the road's centreline.

Mr. McDonald estimated that 12,000 cubic yards would have to be removed in order for the ramp to conform to the bylaw.

Counties' Council has an agreement with the Carter group that the ramp will either be removed or adjusted to conform with the bylaw by Dec. 31 of this year.

An extension of the agreement will only be granted if Carter's organization posts sufficient guarantee that it will either remove the ramp or pay to have the counties' do it.

Local committee to sponsor refugees them", Mr. Barlow said.

They are also thrifty, he said, relating how one family in Cornwall managed to save $50 of the $65 weekly allowance they were given to live on.

Most of those coming to Canada are ethnic Chinese who lost their means of livelihood when Vietnam was reunified by the Communists after the United States pulled out the troops which had been propping up the Saigon government.

Mrs. Smith said most of the refugees with whom she has dealt are highly trained professionals who place great stress on the value of education for their children.

She said they are used to working in a competitive job market and that Vietnamese women are used to working outside the home, usually in factories where they are "surprisingly highly paid".

She said over half the adults she has met can speak some English and many also speak some French.

The family is the strongest unit in Vietnamese society, she said, and typically consists of an extended group, which includes grandparents, parents and children.

The disorientation they go through in settling in a new country tends to buttress the family she said.

Mrs. Smith also presented what she said is a fairly typical shopping list for a Vietnamese family - one from which milk was noticeable by its absence - and spoke briefly on the Vietnamese language, which depends largely on inflection to express different meanings.

While Mr. Barlow described the technical side of sponsorship, he advised that the disorientation the refugees go through and the stress of settling in a foreign country, with its differences in language, customs, food and weather, sometimes means that the sponsoring organization finds "the emotional support they must give is more taxing than raising the money" to get the families here in the first place.

He also explained that a sponsoring group can set down quite specific requirements for the family it wishes to bring in. These requirements can set a limit on the size of the family the group is willing to sponsor as well as what job and language skills are desired.

The more specific the requirements, he added, the longer it will take to find a family which meets them.

more trustee in the rural areas and one less in Cornwall.

Nevertheless, he said, the boards have no jurisdiction over the matter of assessment and Mr. Van Moorsel predicts that the separate board will not appeal the new assessment.

On the other hand Morrisburg and Williamsburg Township trustee on the Public School Board Harry Gatward isn't complaining. The village's assessment rose only slightly.

"Morrisburg has always overpaid and it is now getting the break it deserves," he commented.

Naturally it "would be very difficult for me to appeal against my own interests," he admitted, saying the assessment has been long overdue.

Nonetheless, he accused the province of being too "abrupt" in its changes.

"I'm not grumbling, but I think the government was very wrong to do what it did," he said.

About Finch Township's 86 per cent assessment, he commented, "I don't think any township is deserving of this. This is where the government has not been doing its homework."

Trustee Lorne Thompson, representing Winchester Village and Township and Chesterville, wants to wait for further developments before taking a stand.

"With the legislature convening soon, I have a feeling there will be some adjustment."

In the meantime, he may or may not change his mind, he told The Record last week.

Municipalities have until Nov. 1 to file an appeal with the Ministry of Revenue over the new assessment.

Morewood seniors back in fall swing

MOREWOOD (Special) - The Senior Fellowship Club in Morewood is swinging into a fall program which so far has been varied.

Regular alternate bingo and euchre games are held with the last Friday of the month being in the form of a pot luck luncheon.

As usual with the pot luck luncheon, a program of something special took place - the dedication of a memorial plaque.

Already members have several names inscribed and it is sad to think of departed members. The dedication was carried out by Gladys and Kem Broome. The entertainment program was in charge of Jack James.

"Why not get back in the swing of activities now that your harvest is in and taken care of? You will be welcome," a club spokesman says.

Meetings are held each Friday afternoon at 2pm, and on the last Friday of the month at 12:30pm.

October 4 was a banner day- a filled-to-capacity Dundas Tours bus took members to view preparations for the coming Winter Olympics at Lake Placid. Members had a very interesting day, starting at 6am.

A good, long and very educational trip was taken by boat on Lake Placid.

The trip ended with a dinner at the Four Corners.

Children bazaar theme

INGLESIDE (Special) - The October meeting of Ingleside Trinity UCW opened with a worship led by Miss Lena McLaren of Unit Two.

Mrs. Enid Wasson, also of Unit Two, presented a program outlining and discussing human rights. She was assisted by Mrs. Muriel Dixon, Mrs. Beryl Morrison and Mrs. Nancie McAvoy.

During the business meeting that followed Mrs. Lee Hesson, secretary, read the minutes and gave the treasurer's report, in the absence of Mrs. Dora Vance. Mrs. Beryl Morrison read the correspondence on behalf of Mrs. Amy Pollock; Mrs. Hesson read a letter from Dr. Graham's Homes and also one from the UCW's sponsored boy.

The president, Mrs. Margaret Lette, reviewed highlights of the Summer Event held in August.

Mrs. Lois Johnson, bazaar convener, discussed preparations for the bazaar to be held in the Church Hall Nov. 3 from 2 to 4pm. The theme of the bazaar is 'The Year Children Shine', in recognition of 1979 being the International Year of the Child. Children's games are to be a special feature of the bazaar.

Mrs. Lette reminded members of the next meeting, Nov. 7, when Miss Mary Michels will be the guest speaker. Miss McLaren closed the meeting with prayer and the ladies of Unit Four served lunch.

Time to clear garden

(Special) - Frosty fall days mean it's time to clear the garden of withered plants. General clean-up chores should include making a composite pile, advises Bob Fleming, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist.

"Pull up annual flowers, cut back perennial plants, and rake up the leaves," says Mr. Fleming. "These materials can become useful in time if they are placed in a composter or compost pile. By next spring, the decayed organic matter can be spread on the soil."

Take some precautions when forming a compost pile. Avoid adding weeds that have gone to seed. They will flourish in the rich, decomposing mixture and will spread during the next growing season. Exclude diseased plants because they may afflict new plants in the spring, since many plant diseases are hardy enough to withstand Ontario winters.

Besides adding the obvious garden wastes to a compost pile, remember to save kitchen wastes during the late fall and winter months. Egg shells, and vegetable and fruit peelings will break down into usable organic material. For your convenience, have easy access to the compost pile during winter months.

By returning wastes to the soil, the gardener will maintain organic matter levels. This will provide good soil structure and will aid aeration.

Bud the spud

Sterling Flegg, RR1 Brinston, had the magic touch for growing potatoes this year. He wasn't sure what he did right or even different from previous years but he managed to get 400 pounds of the famous Prince Edwards Island spuds from 10 pounds of seed. Five of the spuds tipped the scales at a combined 9¾ lbs. with the largest weighing 2 lbs., 6½ oz.

Osnabruck this week

INGLESIDE (Staff) - With this week's issue, The Record welcomes Richard Waldroff as its new Ingleside correspondent.

Mr. Waldroff's column, "Osnabruck this week", continues the tradition begun in the early 1970s by the late Mike Rowden and carried on for the past three years by Jean Jeacle, who gave it up this summer to pursue other interests.

Mr. Waldroff has lived in Ingleside since October, 1973 and is a lifelong area resident, having been born and raised on the Osnabruck-Cornwall Township boundary at Northfield Station.

He is married to the former Gloria Tinkess of Osnabruck Centre and they have two sons, Derek, 6, and Timothy, two.

Active in community affairs, Mr. Waldroff is a member of the Osnabruck-Ingleside Rotary Club, the Ingleside Volunteer Fire Department, and has been a member of the Osnabruck Winter Carnival Committee since its inception. He is now chairman of the committee. He served a term on township council and was a candidate for deputy-reeveship in last fall's municipal elections.

Mr. Waldroff is employed at Domtar Inc., Cornwall.

Anyone with items of interest to the Osnabruck community is invited to contact Mr. Waldroff at 537-2015.

This column is partly of new birth and a replacement of a previous one known as "Inside Ingleside". Jean Jeacle has decided to devote her time and efforts to other interests and thus has given up her column.

The management of The Record approached me to determine whether or not I was interested in taking up the challenge. I believe by now you have discovered my decision.

In the coming weeks it will be my responsibility to provide you the readers with informative and interesting columns.

Now this is where I call on you the readers to help me out. If you have anything you would like me to write about - drop me a line or give me a phone call. I will certainly attempt to follow-up on your requests. You can get in touch with me at Box 275, Ingleside or by calling me at 537-2015.

Romping Through the 'Bruck

On Tues., Oct. 16 at 8pm in the hall at Osnabruck Centre there will be a ratepayers meeting. This meeting will provide you the public with detailed information on the proposed swimming pool for Osnabruck township.

Anniversary greetings to Mr. and Mrs. John McGee of Lunenburg.

Happy Birthday to Lawrence MacMillan.

Carnival sponsors keep ¾ profit

OSNABRUCK CENTRE (Staff) - Organizations sponsoring events in the 1980 Osnabruck Township Winter Carnival will be allowed to keep 70 per cent of the profits raised at their individual functions and any deficits at carnival events will be covered by the organizing committee, it was decided at the last Carnival Committee meeting.

Chairman Richard Waldroff reported that representatives of seven of the 21 groups that had been invited turned out for the meeting at the township hall here.

He said he was disappointed at the lack of response but has been encouraged by the reception given to the committee's proposal to take only 30 per cent of the proceeds from carnival events. Notices concerning the motion have been circulated to all organizations which have taken part in the carnival.

He stressed that the committee's decision to cover any deficits will only be in force for activities it has sanctioned.

The committee's next meeting will be held at 8pm Thurs., Oct. 25 at the township hall. An executive for the 1980 carnival will be chosen and Mr. Waldroff said the meeting will be open to the public.

Fill regulations to protect wildlife

MARTINTIOWN (Staff) - Landfill regulations in flood areas may be tightened up if the Raisin River Conservation Authority gets needed support from affected municipalities for an amendment to existing guidelines.

The authority has asked municipalities within the Raisin River basin for response to a proposal to add a clause to landfill regulations to restrict landfill in marshland areas and wildlife habitats.

Before it can be adopted it must be approved by the Ministry of Natural Resources. Present regulations governing landfill takes into consideration the effect on flood control, erosion and pollution but overlooks the effect on wildlife.

Applications for putting in fill are screened by the authority.

Reaction to the possible added restriction for dumping fill has been diverse, said authority resources manager Jay Currier. Conservationists think wildlife sanctuaries could be destroyed without the proposed criteria included. Developers, however, are concerned land will remain undeveloped.

If the proposal becomes part of the regulation, the authority will be looking at each application as it comes in. However, in the long term, Mr. Currier expects mapping of these marshlands and wildlife habitats will help the authority judge acceptability of an application.

Osnabruck Township council approved of the new criteria at its regular meeting last Monday. Much of the land which could be affected by this consideration borders the St. Lawrence River.

The authority's advisory board will meet this week to consider response to the proposal.

Newington Institute hosts friendship meeting

NEWINGTON (Special) - Newington "Cedar Brae" Branch of the Women's Institute entertained many friends including the other Women's Institutes of Stormont at a friendship meeting held in the United Church Hall Sept. 27.

President Mrs. Gerald Duvall and vice-president Mrs. Alex McLean greeted the guests and during the first hour a dessert was served. Following this was a short business meeting conducted by Mrs. Duvall, assisted by the secretary, Mrs. George Zeran.

Mrs. Duvall welcomed the guests to the friendship meeting and the Opening Ode, Mary Stewart Collect and Lord's Prayer were repeated.

The theme was "Friendship is what holds the world together, a friend is one who walks in and others walk out."

The answer to roll call was "my funniest experience" in which some of the guests participated. Cedar Brae's board member to F.W.I.O., Mrs. John Schultz, and district president Mrs. Donald Casselman brought greetings.

A humorous program, prepared by the branch directors, was presented with Mrs. Lawrence Steele acting as master of ceremonies. This was followed by two contests.

With a more serious trend, poems and readings on friendship were read and the meeting closed with the singing of God Save the Queen.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Charles Tait on the evening of Wed., Oct. 24.

Parish raises $12,000 for Vietnamese family

INGLESIDE (Staff) - Pledges have exceeded the $12,000 target set for supporting a refugee Vietnamese family as the combined Roman Catholic parish of Ingleside - Long Sault wait to hear from the Department of Immigration.

Since the beginning of August the parish has been collecting pledges and donations.

To date finance committee chairman Bill Fairthorne reports $12,120 pledged and a bank balance of $5,668. The money has been raised within the 200-family parish without the aid of fund-raising events, he said.

Two weeks ago the sponsoring committee submitted an application to Immigration for a refugee Vietnamese family, one of many Canada is accepting from war-torn Southeast Asia. It has not had a reply but expects one within six to eight weeks, said Margaret McAuley, committee chairman. She says immigration officials may notify them only four or five days in advance of sending a family.

"It will be a scramble, but we have everything ready," she stated confidently.

From the congregations of Our Lady of Grace, Ingleside, and St. Pius the Tenth, Long Sault, a sponsoring committee was formed in August. The five core members each head branch committees to take care of housing, furnishing and clothing, welcoming and orientation, and finance.

Michael VanderKamp is in charge of housing. Local real estate agents have been contacted but the committee has not yet set aside any accommodation until it hears from Immigration. Mrs. McAuley does not believe it will be difficult to find accommodation for the family when it arrives.

Furnishing and clothing have been collected in list form by Ingleside resident Catherine Tillaart and her group. Because of problems storing the items, they will be gathered as soon as the family settles into the community. The committee has "almost all the essentials" reports Mrs. McAuley.

The welcoming and orientation committee headed by Ingleside's Marilyn Light is making plans to help the family deal with banks, post offices, shopping and cultural differences. Already, says Mrs. McAuley, three teachers have offered to instruct the Vietnamese in English.

The project "has met with a great deal of success," observes Mr. Fairthorne. He and other lay persons campaigned directly from the pulpit to parishonners every Sunday since August.

"The potential is there," he concludes, for a family to get "a foothold in this country."

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn McIntyre, Avonmore, search out the location of Penn Run, Pennsylvania, to find out how far the balloon they found in a bush west of Avonmore Thursday night had travelled. The balloon was released by students at Penn Run Elementary School and a note attached to it included the name of grade two student Eric White and the school's return address. Mrs. McIntyre wrote a letter to the school Friday to inform them that the balloon had been found and asked for information on when it had been released by the students. Penn Run is midway between Pittsburgh and Altoona - about 500 miles from Avonmore.

Fewer fires this year in north Osnabruck

NEWINGTON (Staff) - Osnabruck Township Fire Department Number One Division boasts a decrease in fires this year from 17 to 10.

Fire Prevention Officer for the Newington-area fire department Rick McDermid won't attribute the drop completely to the fire prevention program but he hopes it is a factor in helping reduce fires in the north end of Osnabruck Township.

This week - Fire Prevention Week - he and his five-man team plan to show films to public school children, conduct a fire drill at schools and nursing home in the district and talk about fire safety.

Though this seven-day period is set aside by the Fire Prevention Association annually, Mr. McDermid and his crew carry on efforts to educate the public throughout the year.

Grass fires are the main problem for the 21-volunteer department located in Newington. Occurring most frequently in the spring, Mr. McDermid said "people don't think it can happen to them." But unpredictable wind changes are all it takes to get them out of control, he said.

So not only does the department carry out house inspections during the year, it sends out pamphlets and flyers in the spring and fall warning township residents of the hazards of grass fires and Christmas trees.

To cover possible blazes in the area bordered by highway 43, Dundas County boundary, county road 18 and the Roxborough Township boundary, the department has an 800-gallon Ford pumper which can pump 625 gallons per minute. It is also equipped with a supply truck which can carry 1800 gallons which the department acquired four or five years ago.

Chief of the department is Albert Evans; deputy chief is Neil Rupert. The department has existed since 1953 and is a member of Mutual Aid.

South covers car fires

INGLESIDE (Staff) - Based out of Ingleside, Osnabruck Township's Number Two volunteer fire department has handled about 23 fires this year, slightly less than last year, reports Chief Ernie Gillard.

The department, which covers the "front end" - southern half - of Osnabruck Township, usually has to fight a majority of vehicle fires happening on highway 401. The second most common calls are for grass fires.

Like most area fire departments, number two division is sending some of their 21 volunteers out to schools with educational films for Fire Prevention Week Oct. 7-13. They are conducting fire drills and giving tours of their fire hall west of Dickinson Dr. in Ingleside. But fire prevention is not a topic limited to this week, assured the chief.

During the year volunteers speak to local clubs and organizations about such things as evacuation from burning buildings and safety precautions for wood burning, now a popular heating method.

Organized in 1957 after the St. Lawrence Seaway flooding of Aultsville, the department now operates with two pumpers - one with a capacity of 825 gallons per minute, the other with 525 gallons per minute.

A member of Mutual Aid, division number two supports Upper Canada Village, Long Sault, Morrisburg and Williamsburg departments.

While the community cannot support a full-time fire department, Mr. Gillard said it has had "very good luck with volunteers." He heads the department with deputy-chief Harold Hollister.

The division has a two-company policy, as do others, where two captains each train half the company.

Volunteers work year round

MOREWOOD (Staff) - As one of the youngest in the area, the Morewood Fire Department has also got some very new equipment.

Some of it will be shown to school children during Fire Prevention Week this week. It may be the two-year-old Thibeault pumper, the 1,700-gallon tanker or the emergency vehicle, said Chief Bud Craik.

The eight-year-old department usually tries to show equipment at the schools during this week which is dedicated to fire prevention and safety. It concentrates more on a year-round program of educating the public about fire extinguishers and smoke detectors. It also offers films on evacuation designed especially for babysitters.

This year the 20 volunteer firemen including deputy chief Rick Mattice, have fought four local fires and three in other districts, said Mr. Craik. As members of Mutual Aid they respond to calls not only from Crysler but from Chesterville. They have a working agreement with Russell as well because boundaries overlap in Marionville.

Located next to Morewood Junior Public School, the equipment garage also houses two portable 1,000-gallon tanks and two portable pumps.

Ottawa hosts heritage

The richness and depth of Canada's cultural heritage are reflected in the collections of the four national museums in Ottawa: the National Gallery of Canada, the National Museum of Man and its division the Canadian War Museum, the National Museum of Natural Sciences, the National Museum of Science and Technology and its division the National Aeronautical Collection.

Mouth rinse program advocated for children

CORNWALL (Staff) - A weekly mouth rinse with a fluoride solution reduces dental decay by 25 per cent, and with this fact and others, the Eastern Ontario Health Unit is trying to persuade parents to agree to a mouth-rinsing program for their school-age children.

The first of its kind in SD&G, the program has already been approved by the Separate School Board.

The program would take up some three hours of classroom time over the whole year. The weekly mouth-rinsing would be given to all children in the SD&G Separate School system by persons trained by the health unit.

Medical Health Officer Dr. R.V. Peters issued a statement last week stating that a weekly mouth rinse with a 0.2 per cent solution reduces tooth decay and also cuts down plaque formation on the teeth.

He said that this method of preventing decay is one of the most popular apart from fluoridated water supplies in North America.

"Currently, about six million children are participating in a school mouth-rinsing program," he pointed out.

Apart from Cornwall, there are no fluoridated water systems in the United Counties.

Inexpensive, the program costs approximately $1 for each tooth that would otherwise be decayed, missing or filled, the medical health officer calculated. Other programs fighting tooth decay cost as much as $21 per capita, he observed.

The procedure is also safe. There have been no undesirable side effects attributed to the fluoride rinse, said Dr. Peters.

Any amount of the solution swallowed during the program would be "too small to cause concern about acute toxicity."

The health unit medical officer also listed other advantages of the program: it is easily and cheaply administered; it treats a large number of children with minimal supervision, and it requires little time.

Fire calls down for Embrun FD

EMBRUN (Staff) - Once again, as in past years, members of the Embrun Fire Department are in force visiting the community's schools, nursing homes and businesses promoting fire prevention.

Fire Chief Maurice Gregoire reports the schedule has been hectic for him and his 18 other firefighters.

The Embrun Fire Department is one of the most complete in the area as a member of the Prescott-Russell Mutual Aid Fire Association. It has four trucks- a 1973 service truck, a 1976 tanker and two pumpers.

In 1979, Embrun firefighters have answered 42 calls and Chief Gregoire reports that is a few more than the previous year but well off the mark when over 50 alarms were turned in in 1973.

Many fires that year were grass. The past few months have been slack for the EFD and members like it that way. They battled three major fires in February.

Just recently, said Chief Gregoire, the department received the equipment to rescue persons from silo accidents.

Community involvement is precious to the EFD members. They are currently sponsoring a fire prevention drawing contest in the elementary schools and have raised $1,000 for muscular dystrophy.

They open the doors to the fire department each Sunday with a firefighter on duty and each spring they sponsor a bicycle accident prevention parade for the children.

They are also in charge of organizing events for the community's winter carnival and they will be holding a gala fondue in Embrun Sat., Nov. 3.

The department is responsible for a 60-square-mile area and it goes about promoting fire prevention by visiting associations and meeting the public.

All but two of the firefighters are qualified first aiders and two recently passed a vehicle accident victim restriction course.

Paul Bourgie is the deputy chief and captains are Jacques Emard and Lucien Bertrand.

The fire number in Embrun is 443-2113.

PC Dick Aubry biggest spender

CORNWALL (Staff) - Unsuccessful Progressive Conservative candidate Dick Aubry was the biggest spender in Stormont-Dundas in the May 22 federal election campaign.

Mr. Aubry, who finished second to Liberal Ed Lumley, spent $27,313.

According to audited reports of the election expenses of the three candidates in the election in this riding, Mr.Aubry was not only the biggest spender, but his organization was the only one to end up in the red. His organization received $25,606 in contributions.

Mr. Lumley, who kept a low profile during the first few weeks of the campaign, received $45,898 in contributions and his expenses were listed at $21,719.

NDP candidate Brian Peters received $6,098 in contributions and spent $4,266.

All three candidates were below the $28,173 spending limit set for the constituency.

This was the first election in which candidates expenditures were limited by the number of voters in the riding. The reports were prepared by auditors for each candidate, and do not include the names of those who made contributions.

$3,000 raised for heart monitor

The operating room of the Winchester District Memorial Hospital will be the home of a new heart monitor by Christmas, say WDMH Auxiliary officials. The auxiliary jointly sponsored a country and western show in Chesterville recently with Steinberg Motors of Williamsburg and the benefit netted $3,000. Paul Steinberg, president of the local auto dealership, made the money presentation Friday to Olive Cass, left, past president of the auxiliary and chairman of this fund raising event, and WDMHA president Louise Sloan.

Dear Ann Landers:

Dear Ann Landers: You missed a bet when the devout churchgoer complained about the choir members seated on the pulpit behind the minister. Some of them yawned and even slept during the sermon.

Why didn't you tell the outraged parishioner that according to Claudia Cassidy, distinguished critic-emeritus of the Chicago Tribune, "Sleep is a legitimate form of criticism."

—A Faithful Reader

Dear Faithful: You also must be a "faithful reader" of "The Critic," that delicious Thomas More Assn. publication which reviews books twice monthly.

I saw that line in "The Critic", too (Dan Kerr, president of Thomas More Assn., dredged it up), but too late to use in my own column. I'm glad you spotted it and dusted it off for me. Thanks, friend.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 30-year-old mother of two young children. At first, I fell into this frightening habit to get rid of my anger. Now I do it for excitement. My thing is starting fires in trash cans in alleys. No one ever has been hurt, nor has any property been damaged -- so it does seem like a harmless way to have a little fun. But in my quieter moments I worry that maybe I will go further and set fire to a building and cause some serious damage.

When crowds gather to watch the flames extinguished (someone always calls the fire department), I feel very important. Then there are times when I want to run to the nearest policeman and say, "I did it!" but I'm afraid of what might happen if I confessed.

I know I'm a person who needs to feel important or I wouldn't be doing such things. I also get a feeling of power when I see what I can stir up. I admitted all this to my therapist several months ago, and he told me to stop -- but I can't control myself.

I am writing to you because you are a level-headed person, and I think you can set me straight. Please try.

—A Harmless Firebug In A Western City

Dear Friend: My first suggestion is get another therapist. Your present one sounds weak and ineffective, to say the least.

You have a mental illness called pyromania, which most authorities believe is related to a sexual problem. People who are emotionally disturbed, as you are, can be extremely dangerous not only to society, but to themselves and their families.

I urge you to call the Mental Health Assn. in your area, or the American Psychiatric Assn. in Washington, D.C., at once. The phone number in Washington is 202-797-4900. Describe your problem and ask that they recommend a therapist who specializes in this illness.

Dear Ann: Like you, I have an only child, also a daughter. Although my son-in-law is a good person, I feel that he has replaced me in my daughter's heart. Being a widow, this is very hard to take.

How can a woman be fond of her son-in-law when HE becomes the most important person in the life of a daughter who used to love HER best? Be honest.

—Molly

Dear Molly: My son-in-law is Ken Howard, the star of the CBS television series, "The White Shadow." He is a marvelous guy, and I do not feel "replaced," just delighted that he has made my daughter and her three children so happy. How sad that you don't realize there are different kinds of love.

Are your parent too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

Happy Face Nursery School open house next Wednesday

WINCHESTER (Special) - Happy Face Nursery School, a part of life in North Dundas County for five years, has started a new school year with a new teacher in brightly-painted surroundings.

The 17 three- and four-year-old children from Winchester, Chesterville, Ormond and Inkerman and the surrounding farm community have already gone on their first field trip, to a local orchard, as part of the weekly program of play-and-learn sessions.

Next week the cooperative nursery is inviting parents with pre-school-aged children and the general public to visit the school in the basement of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Winchester.

On Wed., Oct. 17 between 9 and 11:30am teacher Nancy Bowman and her parent helpers will welcome visitors and their children to watch the program in action. The newly-elected executive of the school will hold its first meeting in the school at 8 that evening and anybody with questions is invited to come.

Mrs. Bowman, who recently moved with her husband and two sons to a farm near Morewood, has been helping and teaching in nursery schools for six years. Nearing the end of Algonquin College's two-year diploma course in early childhood education, she was the unanimous choice of the nursery school executive after a busy summer of organization and talent-searching.

"Being a parent is a heavy responsibility and parents have to have a break," said Mrs. Bowman. "With three half-day sessions a week, the parents still have plenty of time with their children. I can see a whole new enthusiasm when they come to pick them up."

Mrs. Bowman said, "We have a daily routine of painting, playing with blocks and music and other activities but this isn't a factory where we are turning out little people. Within the limits of safety, the children choose and carry out what they like to do.

"I've noticed that they are starting to feel that the school is really theirs. They're learning to play and enjoy and respect other children. In the large families of the past that was easy to do but it's not so simple now."

In addition to paying a $25-per-month tuition fee, parents are actively involved in the daily program, preparing schedules, maintaining the school, planning field trips and raising funds through bake sales, ticket sales and other activities.

Under provincial regulation, the school has room for 15 children in each of its 2½-hour morning and afternoon sessions. At present there are 12 enrolled in the mornings and five in the afternoon. There is always one adult present for each five students.

The nursery school got its start in Chesterville in 1974. For several years it received some government assistance but in 1976 the province cut off grants to nursery schools.

In the ensuing financial crisis the nursery found the cost of heating and renting a building in Chesterville was too much to bear and accepted the offer of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church to move to Winchester.

The school committee is hoping to generate enough interest in the Chesterville area so that a car pool could be started.

Omission

(Staff) - A human error prevailed last week in the cutline regarding the 60th wedding anniversary of Thomas and Margaret (Armstrong) McMahon of Crysler. The fact was omitted that persons attended from Windsor, Mississauga, Timmins and Chesterville.

chesterville's past

FROM THE RECORD
THURS., OCT. 12, 1939

Almost without exception, every farmer of this section with whom The Record has talked about the crops says this year has seen the finest crops harvested hereabouts. Corn of less than twelve feet in length is hardly worth speaking about.

At the Chesterville Community Theatre Friday and Saturday: "Oklahoma Kid" with James Cagney, Rosemary Lane, Donald Crisp and Humphrey Bogart. Also "Return of Dick Tracey".

While the eyes of the world keep turning speculatively toward Europe, Canada has some guessing of her own to do, as the provincial election campaign in Quebec swings into action. The Hon. Ernest Lapointe has challenged Duplessis' move against conscription and for provincial autonomy. The federal cabinet minister declared the provincial premier's action was one against Canada's national war effort; that he and his fellow Quebec members would fight firmly against Duplessis' crowd; and the verdict of the Quebec electorate would be accepted.

A short time ago when Parliament was in session and some members were talking about conscription of wealth, it caused considerable uneasiness in the minds of men who had a few thousand dollars invested in bonds and other securities. They wondered if what they had toiled for was about to be demanded of them. It would be well if someonw would explain just what constituted this wealth that should be conscripted.

In another timed outburst Hitler has renewed his so-called peace offers and has threatened Britain and France with terrible destruction unless they give in to him. German troops had previously lauched a series of heavily gun-supported infantry raids along forty miles of Westwall, and propaganda experts had fed the people of Berlin with rumors that the British Government had resigned and the war was at an end. Nothing, however, has come of Hitler's howling.

The International Plowing Match in Brockville featured Charles F. Rath, of Lansdowne, who will be 99 in December. He first plowed with the modern tractor and then went back to the days of his boyhood and demonstrated his ability with a yoke of oxen.

A giant osprey, a species of fish hawk comparatively rare in this section, was shot by Walter Bookhout, worker on the Cornwall canal, a few seconds after it had plummetted to the surface of the St. Lawrence River and soared away with a fine 2½-pound bass in its claws. Although the osprey's body is even smaller than that of the fish it caught, it had a wingspread of five feet, three inches, and carried its burden with ease.

Happy Gang's "Goon Club" is now 300 strong and Hugh Bartlett, the announcer, reports that "goon" stories have been pouring in from all points east and west. The Happy Gang program is heard five days a week on CBC radio at 1pm.

The winning essays of the local Chamber of Commerce were entered in the finals for the whole of Eastern Ontario. Sponsored by the combined Boards of Trade for Eastern Ontario, the final results of judging found Chesterville entries winning second, third and fourth places with the first prize going to a Russell girl. The winners were: Mary Grace, Russell; Graeme Miltimore, Chesterville; Beverly Shaver, Chesterville; Hubert Tupper, Chesterville.

The other day the Post Office noted a sudden increase in the sale of $2.50 radio licenses. There was practically a line-up clamoring for the blue slips. The sudden activity came after the unannounced appearance of a polite gentleman from the Department of Transport made a quick trip up Joseph Street and Victoria Street checking the expiry date of householders' licenses.

At the Chesterville Community Theatre: "Unfaithfully Yours" - If you don't vote this the fastest comedy hit of the season, you're just an old Fuddy-Duddy...who's forgotten how to laugh at what happens to a wolf ...a lonely wife ...and a wandering husband with Rex Harrison, Linda Darnell and Rudy Vallee.

Editorial: Communism is not new. The Early Christians failed completely in their effort to make it work and the Pilgrim fathers suffered greatly from the failure of their experiment with it. The only new thing about Communism is the fresh failures of the efforts of its modern victims to make it work.

Under the leadership of Fire Chief S. Morris, the members of the Chesterville Fire Department attended Evensong at the Church of the Holy Trinity this past Sunday evening at the beginning of Fire Prevention Week.

The man who was elected president of the Canadian Good Roads Association in Vancouver brings the quality of natural leadership to an organization responsible for spending one of the nation's largest budgets. Frederick McIntosh Cass, 46, described by those who work with him at the Ontario Department of Highways as a fire-ball and go-getter, is already creating road building tradition in his job as Minister of Highways for Ontario.

Chesterville village council dug deep into their responsibilities last Tuesday night over the district high school question. They held a long discussion with trustee John Coyne, council representative on the board; final decision, without a recorded vote, was to support the central school idea, half-way between Winchester and Chesterville.

A plan to develop a wild life sanctuary west of Ingleside within the next 10 years was outlined to the reeves and councillors who attended the tour of the Ontario-St. Lawrence Development Commission Parks last week.

Ronnie Doering came up with the winning number of product labels for the grand prize of a trip to New York over Thanksgiving holidays. He was followed closely by Michael Thompson, and it was so close Fulton Bros. arranged with IGA that he, too, would be awarded the same trip with Ronnie.

Chesterville High School finally got their field day events under way last Monday after a postponement because of wet weather. When the points had been added up a couple of new faces appeared as champions. Susan Graham won senior girls' championship, Thea Van Delst was girls' junior champ, Doug Miltimore was senior boys' champ and Bob McPherson was junior champion.

the editor's notebook

Ken Carter's much-ballyhooed attempt to "jump a country mile" from west of Mariatown to Ogden Island, NY, ended appropriately last Friday morning when his bright yellow jet-powered car disintegrated as it left its 180-foot-high launching ramp and instead of sailing across the Seaway came to rest ignominiously in the riverbottom mud about 50 yards from the Canadian shore.

Keeping intact his four-year string of broken promises about the jump, "Kamikaze Ken" failed to show up for the attempt and his reserve driver ended up with a broken back, torn ligaments and lacerated tongue for his efforts.

Considering that four years of planning and preparation had gone into the attempt, Friday's spectacle ended up as an absolute fiasco. After having squandered his time and money (not to mention that of local residents) repeatedly cancelling the jump, Carter reportedly ended up with only about three and a half hours to stage the event or lose key financial backing. He couldn't have chosen a poorer day - a stiff breeze was shipping in off the St. Lawrence and the second the car left the ramp it was flipped over by a gust, thus ensuring the accuracy of predictions of disaster.

Now it is rumored by the Carter organization that another attempt at the St. Lawrence will be held next summer. If this is true, the "Mad Canadian" and his entourage of hypesters, heavies and hangers-on should be firmly disinvited from staging another of their debacles in Dundas County.

Want participation in SD&G

Humane Society proposal

The Editor:

The SD&G branch of the Ontario Humane Society is negotiating with the participating municipalities of the United Counties to be given charge of animal control within their jurisdictions.

Our modern control methods would cost (ideally) about $1 per capita more than the present system. As the executive of this organization we would like to provide our reasons why we feel the extra cost is well worth the extra service.

Few aspects of our society have remained unchanged over the last 50 years. Two that we can think of are human nature itself, and the dog-catcher. Both have their weaknesses but the latter has little to recommend it, and can be changed.

First of all, it does not work now and never has.

Our studies show that people who allow their dogs to wander won't pay the fine to bail them out. Their irresponsible argument is that they can get another dog free somewhere else, so why pay for the old? Their dog is then destroyed at taxpayer's expense. This type of owner probably won't be bothered to have his animal neutered either, so he helps to increase the number of strays.

Secondly, many animals simply can't be caught, particularly at night which is often when they attack livestock. In frustration, some municipalities have authorized their dog catcher to use shotguns. This is extremely dangerous (to people) and usually unsuccessful. And again, if the dog is killed, this type of owner will simply take another. The whole cycle begins all over.

For these reasons, humane movements (which ironically must do much of the killing) believe that the dogcatcher role is out-dated, totally inefficient, and useless. We propose instead a system based on penalizing irresponsible owners, rather than the animals. Our ultimate goal would be to enact bylaws making it virtually impossible for certain people to own animals.

Although our main motivation for introducing this system is to eliminate cruelty to animals, by a happy coincidence, we could at the same time offer an effective control method to communities. This is not really surprising, as cruelty or indifference are the causes of both the brutality and neglect which we see, and increasing numbers of strays.

Nevertheless, the concept takes a while to sink in and a rural councillor who may feel strongly that a dog's place is outside the house, is probably a little disconcerted at the thought of being an ally with someone who wouldn't think of letting 'Flossy' go out without a coat!

Of course the two positions are extremes and we're learning much abcut each other in the process. Many rural people have a great regard and respect for their animals, even while they are being raised for slaughter. And similarly, many Humane Society supporters are very tough individuals who have to face daily the unpleasant chore of putting down young healthy animals who are homeless.

The point is that we do have a mutual goal and common aims have produced much stranger bedfellows than us, throughout history. Never has a solution been more urgently needed by both parties, either. Without a single exception, elected representatives of communities report that the problem about which they receive more complaints than all other issues combined, is stray dogs.

How exactly would our plan, if adopted, work? The SD&G branch of the Ontario Humane Society would build a modern shelter, as centrally as possible within the United Counties.

This would be financed by private donations and the backing of the Ontario Humane Society's considerable capital assets, or borrowing power in other words, an out-an-out gift to the United Counties.

In return, we would require committments of several years for our operating expenses. If our services proved inadequate, individual municipalities would have the option of not renewing our contract. There is virtually no risk involved except to the Humane Society, a risk we are willing to take. We have built numerous shelters throughout the province, the most modest of which is far superior to any of the existing facilities in this area.

Our shelter would actively care for and seek homes for all animals in need - not just dogs. Those that cannot be placed are humanely destroyed. In cases of cruelty, we would have provincial authority to remove the animals involved. We would offer an education program and in conjunction with local vets, a subsidized spaying program. We would use the society's experience to push for bylaws to fine heavily those who don't purchase licences for dogs and for those who allow their animals to run loose and cause damage. More importantly our trained staff would enforce these bylaws in those communities which negotiate with us for this extra service.

Obviously we couldn't do all of this for the price that is paid to a single dogcatcher, but then he can't possibly cope with the existing situation. If all of the municipalities (excluding Cornwall, with which we are also negotiating) subscribe to our services the cost per capita would be about 1.50. If only half of those come in, the cost would be almost double.

Obviously then, we would prefer that as many as possible commit themselves at this point. For this reason we have tried to outline our position as clearly as possible. Extreme financial restraint, applied in the wrong areas, can prove more expensive in the long run. In the case of dog control it could literally be a matter of biting your nose to spite your face.

Tagwi Warriors fire blanks at General Vanier Vikings

Tagwi running back Dale Bray found some daylight on this play but the open space was closed up quick enough as an unidentified General Vanier defender moves in for the tackle. Vikings won the game 20-0 to leave Tagwi in fourth and last place in the SD&G Football League.

- staff photo -

AVONMORE (Staff) - Tagwi Warriors are running out of options and time.

Head coach Don Bond is probably now wishing he were at the helm of a Canadian Football League team so he could at least get on the hot line to call up some NFL cuts and place them on five-day trials.

But, good fortune has not been with Bond and the Warriors this season or even last as they continue to stumble offensively. Friday's SD&G Football League encounter with the defending champion General Vanier Vikings was a mirrored effort of Tagwi's first two starts.

The final result was 20-0 with Tagwi offering little offensive threat to score as they dropped into last place in the four team circuit.

Warriors have a tie and two defeats and they meet Cornwall Collegiate Golden Raiders in Avonmore tomorrow (Thursday) with kick-off time at 2pm. CCVS dropped the Warriors 20-0 two weeks ago.

A number of members on the young Warrior team are already looking to next season and their conclusion may be fitting with only the top two teams qualifying for the single game final. They are already behind the eight ball with only three games played.

Warriors were well aware of the score because Bond laid out the plan straight in a brief sideline pow-pow prior to the game. "This game means everything to us. It could mean the difference between making the playoffs and not" he commented.

The comment failed to shock his charges back into reality because they failed to move the first down markers until the final play of the first half when quarterback Wayne McDonell ran a keeper straight ahead for a dozen yards.

By that time, General Vanier had already ground out a 13-0 lead as Tagwi players lost their desire to play and Bond was kept active maintaining their interest in the game.

Tagwi went into the game forced to show offensive changes and they did, breaking away from the stereotype ball control to the more imaginative.

After halting the Vikings on three downs on the first series, Tagwi broke out over the ball with everybody set to the right of the centre.

McDonell also went to the air with more frequency than he had in the two previous outings.

	W	L	T	F	A	PTS
CCVS	2	0	1	48	18	5
General Vanier	1	1	1	41	22	3
Glengarry	1	1	1	13	22	3
Tagwi	0	2	1	1	41	1

General Vanier's Brett Doll intercepted a Tagwi pass at the Vikings' 53. Doll, going both ways, came back with a 25 yard pass and run play to Pepino Distafano and a 10 yard rough play call against Tagwi moved the ball to the 25.

Doll lugged the ball to the 19 and Larry King moved it six yards closer. He went to the 10 on the next play and Kevin Thompson went around the left end and in for the major on the following effort. Don Gault's convert was wide.

Early in the second quarter, General Vanier kept picking on Tagwi's left side (absent the injured outside corner linebacker Ewen Hunt). They pecked away until Distafano crashed in from the six for another six points. The convert was blocked and the Vikings led 12-0.

On Tagwi's first play from scrimmage following the kick-off, General Vanier recovered a fumble on the Tagwi 47. The Warrior defence held tight and forced the Vikings to punt.

Warriors escaped, only momentarily, unscored upon but McDonell was sacked back to the two on second down.

Punter Gordie McDonell, the lone Warrior to score a point this season, was sent in and instructed to concede a point so they could kick-off from their own 35 and escape danger.

Vikings quickly moved the ball back down the field with time ticking away. When the half ended, they were on the Tagwi 11.

Tagwi came out throwing to open the second half and Bob Poapst made the reception on the first play but after being hit lost the ball to a Viking defender.

Vikings again came back with their straight-ahead running attack as Distafano scored on a third down gamble from the Tagwi six. The convert was good to make it 20-0.

Later in the quarter, Tagwi put together their best march of the year before it was stalled. McDonell connected with Poapst for a long gainer and he hit Danny O'Rourke on the next play for a 39 yard gain.

That moved the ball to the Viking 31 only to have McDonell sacked back to the 44 on the ensuing play.

Tempers flared again this week with defensive half and punt return specialist Rick Marleau trading punches with General Vanier's Paul Boucher in the final quarter.

Bond was obviously upset with the defeat as is any coach but he still noted "we'll give these guys some experience if we're not going to win a championship".

He may be counting his team out as a contender for the title with that statement but he still has one role to fulfill- be a spoiler.

CCVS beats Gaels

CORNWALL (Staff) - A 14 point second quarter was all that was required as Cornwall Collegiate Golden Raiders remained unbeaten in the SD&G Football League Friday.

Backed by the able support of a strong defence, CCVS got past previously unbeaten Glengarry Gaels 14-4 to move into sole possession of the first place in the local gridiron circuit.

Glengarry got an early first quarter field goal from Marc Titley before CCVS' offence took control.

In the second quarter, Cornwall Collegiate quarterback Bobby Lumley hit Dale Snider for a 10 yard major score. Mark Nadeau kicked the convert.

Later in the same period, CCVS moved in front when Glengarry's Laurie McRae was tackled in the endzone attempting to run out a Jeff Ridal punt.

Cornwall Collegiate padded their lead before the half ended with fullback Mike Barker crashing into for the score.

Glengarry got their fourth point in the final quarter when Andy Kinstler conceded a point on a John Marelic punt.

Xmas tournament rejection upsets CDMHA officials

(Staff) - Minor hockey officials here are upset the local association has been rejected as host of the annual Christmas break Carleton Dundas Minor Hockey League tournament.

Russell was awarded the tournament last year and Winchester was the site selected over Chesterville for this year's event.

Both years, Chesterville tendered the lower bid and both times the other municipality has been chosen.

The concern started when it was learned the Winchester bid was $6 per hour higher than Chesterville who was low bidder.

Chesterville and District Minor Hockey Association has written a letter to the Carleton Dundas MHL expressing its displeasure.

It reads: "Concerning the league meeting dated Oct. 2, 1979, during which X-mas Break Tournament was open for bidding. Our concern was started when it was found that Winchester was $6 per hour higher than Chesterville who was low bidder. For the second time in two years our association was rejected and the tournament was given to Winchester. Following bickering between CDMHL and Winchester to lower their bid, we would like it to go on record that we do not appreciate being rejected as low bidder for whatever reason and that if Winchester was given the X-mas Break Tournament before hand why even ask for bids from the other associations. Hoping you will also take concern in this matter and correct it next season."

New sporting goods store for Avonmore

Burns McIntyre discusses hockey equipment with his sons, Todd, left, and Scott in his new sporting goods store, Centennial Sports, in Avonmore. The store opened Sept. 29 on Centennial Drive east of the medical centre and Mr. McIntyre has stocked it with an extensive line of hockey, broomball, cross-country ski and snowshoe equipment. The store is a new venture for Mr. McIntyre, who will continue to operate the plumbing business he has been in for the past 25 years.

Minor hockey merger advances another step

(Staff) - The proposed amalgamation of minor hockey systems between Chesterville and Crysler has advanced another step.

Executive committees of the two associations sat down last Monday and their list of proposals was approved by the general membership of the Chesterville and District Minor Hockey Association here last Wednesday.

The only stumbling block remaining to hurdle was a meeting with the Ottawa District Minor Hockey Association. That meeting was to be held last night (Tuesday) in Ottawa with representatives of the Chesterville and Crysler associations to be present.

The idea is to retain the name of "Chesterville and District Minor Hockey Association" and include Crysler within the local association's drawing area.

Under the amalgamation, Crysler would inject some 60 youngsters into the CDMHA which would then have a total registration of approximately 160.

That, many officials, say will be sufficient for Chesterville to ice two competitive teams in each division of the Carleton Dundas Minor Hockey League.

The following is a brief outline of amalgamation proposals made by the Chesterville and Crysler committees. The list could be altered considerably after Tuesday's meeting with the ODMHA in Ottawa.

- disbanding of Crysler Minor Hockey Association.

- re-election of executive officers for Chesterville and District Minor Hockey Association. Outline for first year would have president, secretary and treasurer from Chesterville and vice-president and referee-in-chief from Crysler. Each municipality would have a convenor.

- following erection of Crysler arena, Friday night home games would be played on alternating basis with games in Chesterville one week and in Crysler the following. This only applies to A division teams.

- Crysler agreed to send a grant to Chesterville for financial assistance of arena for 79-80 season. The 80-81 season would have to be changed upon erection of Crysler arena. Grant would be extra to registration fees from Crysler.

- possible arrangement of combining one coach and one manager from both towns per team only where both sides agree. Arrangement would be strongly urged.

Harlem Globetrotters at Cornwall Oct. 30

CORNWALL (Special) - Dr. James Naismith may have invented basketball, but it's the Harlem Globetrotters who have given it to the world.

The Globetrotters will display their unique brand of basketball and cage comedy Oct. 30 in Cornwall at the Civic Complex at 8pm.

The Globetrotters have played before nearly 90-million people in their 53-year history, and many of those fans had never seen a basketball game until the Globetrotters came to town.

This season the "Magicians of Basketball" will increase to 97 the number of countries they have visited, and for many of those nations, the Trotters were the first look at the sport of basketball.

Often, the Globetrotters game inspired the formation of national teams, and many countries, including Australia and Israel, give the Globetrotters credit for the creation of Olympic basketball squads in their countries.

All seats for the Cornwall show are reserved at $6.50 and $5.50 with $1.50 off for 12 and under and senior citizens. Group discounts are available for the show.

Town league drafts for balance

(Staff) - Chesterville Town Hockey League officials are only hoping for overall balance in the standings at the conclusion of the 1979-80 regular season.

The league operated with four teams last year but by the midway point of the schedule it was clearly a two-way race for the pennant and another two team battle to decide third and fourth.

The new season gets started at the local arena at 9pm next Wednesday with four teams again playing.

Red and Green will open the campaign at 9pm and Black will meet Maroon in the 10pm contest.

In an attempt to balance the teams, officials balanced and designated former Jr. C Chesterville Jet players onto the four teams.

Then the remaining players who signed up to play were entered into a draft.

A 15-point spread resulted last year over a 21-game schedule.

This Saturday, the league will be holding a dance in the Community Hall. Music is by Blaine's Disco.

The following is the first half of the regular season. The first game listed starts at 9pm and the second at 10pm.

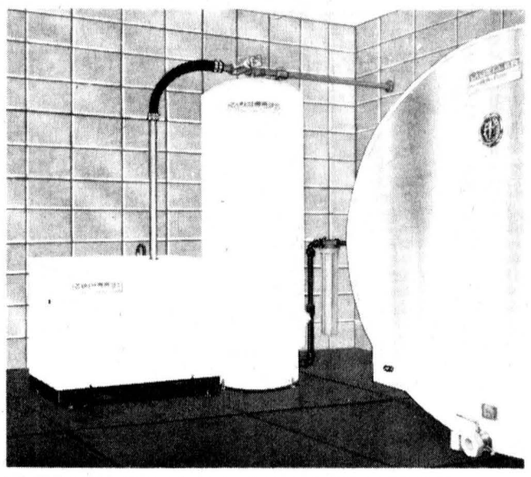
MUELLER FRE-HEATER®



- THE MUELLER FRE-HEATER MODEL "18-B"
Conserves energy!
Captures heat now wasted!
Provides "FREE" 140° hot water!
Reduces refrigeration service problems!

HERE'S HOW:

Special water-cooled condenser transfers heat from refrigerant to water.

A thermostat controls water temperature at approximately 140° F.

Storage tank automatically fills with hot water.

The Fre-Heater is installed indoors.

There's no air-cooled condenser, no noisy fans to fail, no cold weather starting problems or hot weather failures.

Head pressure is stable, ensuring longer compressor life.

HOW MUCH HOT WATER CAN BE GENERATED?

There are many variables, but as a rule of thumb, a Fre-Heater operating on 60° F well water can produce an amount of 140° F hot water comparable to the amount of milk cooled.

Beat Berwick 10-5 in seventh game

Newington wins third straight NSIMFL crown

NEWINGTON (Staff) - There's something about playoff time which brings out the best in Newington's entry in the North Stormont Intermediate Men's Fastball League.

For the third successive season, last Tuesday, Newington made it to the winner's circle but it keeps getting more difficult.

This time around, Marvin Waldroff's gang was pushed to the limit in the semi-finals by pennant-winning Ingleside and to the seventh and deciding game in the championship series by Berwick Hotel.

"The Ton" won the deciding contest with relative ease 10-5 and the game was far from being called a classic.

In the seven game series, Newington outscored Berwick 54-47.

Errors also filled each game as Newington came from behind in the set to reclaim the title. They trailed 3-2 in games at one point.

Last year, Newington ousted Osnabruck Centre in three straight games before taking Chesterville in six for the playoff crown.

The year before, Newington dropped first place Berwick in seven and beat Osnabruck Centre in four straight for the crown. They were playoff finalists four years ago.

Both teams made a common practice of leaving runners stranded in scoring position. They combined for 22 in the final game with Newington leaving 13 and Berwick nine.

Newington got on the board in the bottom of the first with lead-off batter Grant Simpson reaching base on an error. Terry Gove walked and Dave Tait went down swinging.

Tony Marini followed with a shot to deep short area to force Berwick's Don Foster with no other play but to first as Simpson scored. Ed Gove followed with a single to centre to score his older brother Terry.

They ran the score to 4-0 in the second frame with a two-out rally started when pitcher Gary Lefebvre dinged Mark Prendergast on the head with a pitched ball.

He stole second before Simpson drilled a shot to Berwick second baseman Steve Burd. He had problems scooping it up and Prendergast scored from second. While the play was being made at home, Simpson hustled to second. Terry Gove followed with a triple to left-centre.

Berwick got two runs back in their half of the third. Don Foster singled to left to start things off as Steve St. Pierre reached base as Newington third baseman Charlie Campbell had problems picking up a bunt.

They advanced a base on a wild pitch as designated hitter Don Rushford swung out.

Him Hume slashed a shot to Newington shortstop Dave Tait who threw Foster out at home. Catcher Tony Marini turned to throw out Hume stealing second and had his toss go to centre field allowing two runs to score.

In the bottom of the sixth, Newington added four more runs to put the victory all but in their hind pocket.

Campbell walked and moved to third on Kent Snetsinger's single to right. He was replaced by courtesy runner Paul Hunter.

Prendergast singled to fill the bases after Barry Zeran struck out and before Simpson singled in Campbell.

The second run of the frame scored as Terry Gove received a bases loaded walk. With Tait at the plate, Berwick catcher Hume attempted to pick Gove off first but his throw went to the outfield, permitting Prendergast and Simpson to scamper home.

Campbell scored again in the seventh for Newington after he walked, moved to second on a passed ball and scored on Snetsinger's third safety of the night.

Terry Gove got Newington's tenth run in the eighth as he hit a bunt single, moved to second as Tait walked, went to third on Marini's ground out and scored on Eddie Gove's infield ground out.

In a last ditch effort, Berwick counted three runs in the top of the ninth.

Once again it was Foster who got the ball rolling. He had a dribbler get past Tait at shortstop and he moved to second on a passed ball before St. Pierre flied out.

Rushford walked and stole second as Hume trailed with a two-run single to right field. He moved around to third on passed balls and scored as Burd grounded out.

Terry Gove was the winning pitcher, striking out eight and walking seven. Jamie Doane and John MacNaughton each had two hits off him as St. Pierre, Hume and Foster got the others.

Lefebvre was the loser with eight strikeouts and as many walks. Snetsinger collected three hits in a winning effort for Newington. Terry Gove had two as singletons went to Eddie Gove, Simpson and Prendergast.

Newington won the title with a 10-5 decision over Berwick in the seventh and deciding game of their championship series at home last Tuesday night. Members of the winning team include: front, left, Tony Marini, Eddie Gove, David Tait and Charlie Campbell; back, left, Terry Gove, Grant Simpson, Barry Zeran, Kent Snetsinger, Mark Pendergast, Paul Hunter, Garry Brownlee and coach Marvin Waldroff. Large scale die-off cancels moose hunt

CORNWALL (Special) - No controlled moose hunt will be held in Eastern Ontario this fall, Natural Resources Minister James A.C. Auld announced Oct. 8.

Last November wildlife managers from the district office here held a hunt in the Larose Forest, a county-owned timber management area in Prescott-Russell between Limoges and Bourget. A morning lottery controlled the number of hunters and the hunting area was limited.

The hunt was a pilot project aimed at reducing the size of the moose population in Larose Forest which was in danger of overpopulating the limited habitat there. Close monitoring of the herd during the past winter and spring showed a healthy herd there, indicating the hunt had been successful, says conservation officer Bill Lannin of the ministry's Cornwall office.

This success might have led to a similar hunt on a larger scale in the Alfred Bog area where an even larger herd of moose was located.

There were more than 86 moose in the Alfred Bog a year ago. Over the winter and spring 40 of these have disappeared; 27 are known dead. The die-off is due to a variety of reasons, but most deaths linked to overpopulation of a limited habitat area, Mr. Lannin reports.

Biopsies of over 20 carcasses from the Alfred Bog die-off indicated the moose were under stress from heavy tick infestation and from an inadequate diet.

A lack of the proper type of food, and not an actual lack of food, led to a weakened condition and susceptibility to diseases causing blindness, lung and bowel disorders and other health problems, he says.

Although the main reason the hunt in Larose Forest was held last fall was to reduce the population density, it also was a pilot project on which a larger scale hunt could be organized in the Alfred Bog.

Wildlife managers and conservation officers would face a more difficult task there where the property is privately owned; there are a number of land owners; there are more moose; the area is larger, and the terrain makes travel difficult, he says.

The hunt in Larose last fall was the first lottery type hunt held in Ontario for moose and the first big game hunt in Southern Ontario for decades.

The Eastern Ontario moose herd is unique in the fact that the overpopulation problem is just the opposite of the moose management problems being tackled in Northern Ontario, he states.

Because of the uniqueness of the situation, detailed information about overpopulation stresses was not available to wildlife managers. Wildlife managers knew moose in Eastern Ontario would fall prey to these stresses, but they did not know how soon.

In actual fact, the growth of the moose herd in Eastern Ontario was in itself unique, he says.

Under the protection of Ontario hunting laws and local conservation officers, the moose herd had grown from only a handful 10 years ago to over 100 before the fall hunt which took 20 and the winter die-off which took approximately 40 more.

It was first known that overpopulation was becoming a problem in the spring of 1978 when heavy tick infestation was first discovered. It is known from Northern Ontario experience with moose that ticks are an indication of denser populations, he reports.

However, in the north, moose are able to solve their own problem by wandering to new locations.

Mr. Lannin says moose have not evolved to live as close to one another as they have been in Eastern Ontario where there is no place to which they can wander because they are surrounded by roads, farms and towns.

Some moose have wandered out of their habitat area, however. In the past few years, moose weighing over a half a ton have wandered into Ottawa and Brockville. Frightened and confused, the moose presented a danger both to the public and themselves, Mr. Lannin says.

Moose have been killed by vehicles on roads in Eastern Ontario and have fallen into farm drainage ditches where they became trapped by the steep embankments, he says.

The monitoring and protection of moose in Eastern Ontario is continuing along with a public education program as wildlife managers plan for better management of this wildlife resource when the population increases again, he concludes.
