Lochiel turns down Sauers' bid for casino

Ron Holla
News* corespondent

Despite strong pleas for support, Ernie and Chris Sauer, the driving force behind the recent casino referendum in Alexandria, were told "no" to their request for Lochiel township council's support for a casino project just north of Alexandria.

Reeve Ron Macdonell said the issue was strongly debated during a closed door session during their regular Nov. 12 council meeting, but at the end, the Sauers were told "no."

"We will tell them no at this time anyway," he said.

"Perhaps if they return with their own referendum results in their hand, we will look at it again."

The Sauers came to Lochiel township council Nov. 12 to request support for a casino and accompanying referendum in Lochiel township.

The proposed casino would be built at the corner of Power Dam Road and Hwy 34.

Ernie Sauer told council members they "were on the spot."

"We stuck our necks out in Alexandria and it cost us almost $10,000, but we are prepared to do that here again," he said.

Sauer told council members that municipal political support was critical for the success of any referendum.

"Municipal politicians in Alexandria supported the casino, but no politician came out and took a stand for it; the Chamber of Commerce came out too late for it," he said.

Chris Sauer told council that had the referendum gone yes on Nov. 5, construction would have started on a new hotel complex at the Hub within a week.

His father produced a fax which he stated he had received before the referendum and it was presented to all members of council, but was not given to the press.

Ernie Sauer said he was only looking for council's backing.

"We're looking for unanimous support, not just during a referendum, but after," he said.

Chris Sauer confirmed that they were only looking for council's support.

"The rest, 99 per cent of the work, will be up to us," he said.

He added that time was an important factor in any decision for a casino, stating that the province of Quebec would not be slow to put a casino in Valleyfield.

"We can expect a casino in Valleyfield and once that is announced, this would be dead," he said.

Township councillors were concerned about the possible impact a casino would have on the township including increased traffic and increased demand on water and sewage facilities.

Ernie Sauer said that those issues would be taken care of, and repeated they would not be looking for additional money from municipalities.

Chris Sauer pointed out the impact a casino could have on Lochiel township and area.

"You would have 5,000 to 6,000 people coming a day to Alexandria and area," he said. "We anticipate at least 1,000 new jobs and spinoff effects for an additional 5,000 to 6,000 jobs.

"The casino would not be built for local people, but for the 3.5 million people who live an hour's distance from Alexandria," he said.

Ernie Sauer revealed details of potential investment which had been rejected by the negative vote in Alexandria's referendum.

"It was never disclosed before, but there were considerations being given to purchasing all the real estate fronting Mill Pond from the Hub to Derby Street including the Beckers building," he said.

Ernie Sauer stated that the decision council was taking would not only affect themselves but many other people.

'We will remember them...'

Glengarry residents young and old came out to honor the county's veterans and to remember the sacrifices of its war dead last Sunday and Monday.

Ceremonies in Alexandria, Lancaster, Williamstown and Maxville were held on Sunday, Nov. 10, under the most mild temperatures for Remembrance celebrations in recent memory. The weather encouraged good attendance at each cenotaph.

In Alexandria, about 175 people including two dozen veterans, gathered at the Glengarry War Memorial. There, school principal Dave Irwin blew the mournful "Last Post" with a WW 1 bugle.

Later, Bessie Clingen laid the wreath on behalf of the Silver Cross Mothers.

Legion veterans there also held Remembrance Day ceremonies on the 11th day at the 11th hour at the legion.

Despite fears that scattered wreaths discovered Monday morning had been vandalized, police said the wind caused the damage.

Court may stay open with federal cases

By Lynn McCuaig
News* editor

The town's courthouse may have to take federal cases and open four days a week to keep its doors open permanently, Mayor Grant Crack said at Monday's council meeting.

Crack said he was told at a meeting with Cornwall judicial officials last week that the town would have to bear the cost of increased court security and accept more cases or the court house will likely close.

"I think it would be in the best interest to keep it," Crack said.

The town agreed Monday to pay for higher security costs which leaves the court's future in the hands of the county court's committee reorganizing the Cornwall system.

Taking on federal cases means the court would likely be open four days a week to handle the huge number of arrests recently made by the new anti-smuggling task force.

Right now, court is only open four days a month and security costs the town about $3,000 a year.

A full time security officer working five days a week would cost a maximum of $36,000 a year.

Crack said acting Chief Guy Binet estimated the cost of sending town officers to Cornwall court if Alexandria's closes would be at least $36,000.

The mayor pointed out the economic spin-offs local businesses and restaurants enjoy with increased traffic to the court house.

"If we lose the courthouse it would be an awful blow to the economy," said Crack.

Councillor Archie McDougall agreed saying: "It would be one more service they won't take away from us."

New owners take over rail line

By Pauline Ashton
News* correspondent

A new short haul freight rail line sporting a golden moose on its engines kicked off service in Glengarry this month.

Called Ontario L'Original Railway the new line operates a 25-mile run from L'Orignial to Hawkesbury and Glen Robertson.

The Glen forms the switching terminal where CN collects the cars shipping them to destinations across Canada and US.

Darryl Crane, operations manager for the new line, bought recently from CN, calls it a courrier or feeder line.

"We do the short haul, CN does the long haul," Crane explained.

One train a day, runs north in the morning and back to the Glen at night, picking up loads from Ivaco Steel in L'Original and from Sib'Pak, Amoco Fabrics and IKO in Hawkesbury.

Ivaco is the line's biggest customer receiving 7,000 cars of raw material and shipping out 2,000 finished steel products each year.

Crane says they've hit only one snag so far., "

"People around here drive cars straight across railway crossings right in front of our engines, without looking or stopping," Crane groaned.

Crane is going into local schools soon with "Operation Lifesaver" talking to kids about railway crossing safety.

"Kids are great nags of their parents' driving habits," Crane chuckled. "We've solved this crossing problem before in other places by visiting the schools."

The L'Original line's parent company RailTex out of San Antonio, Texas, runs three feeder rail lines in Canada, 26 in the US, and lines in Russia, Mexico and Brazil.

"My company buys up lines wherever they can make some profit," Crane said.

They run a line from Sydney to Turuo in Nova Scotia and a Goderich to Exeter line in Western Ontario.

On a historic note, in 1881 Lochiel council granted $40,000 to help build the Canadian Atlantic railway linking Montreal and Ottawa.

In 1891 the branch line was built Linking Glen Robertson to Hawkesbury, through Dalkeith.

This historic line now carries red, royal blue, and gold painted engines emblazoned with the logo of a setting sun fronted by a moose charging down a railway track.

Teachers vote today on 'bottom line' contract

By Pauline Ashton
News* corespondent

Catholic elementary teachers vote today on a "bottom line" contract offered from the Catholic school board.

"We're advising our membership to vote no," chief negotiator Ray Barnes reported.

"But we hope to resolve this at the table by negotiation and avoid a strike."

Barnes branded the offer from the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Catholic board unacceptable because "instead of going after our salaries it cuts us back in other creative ways."

The offer limits the health care package covering drugs, glasses, dental etc., from a 95 per cent board contribution to 55 per cent.

Prep time for teachers would be sliced from 160 minutes per week to 100, and teachers are asked to supervise lunch hours, eliminating board-hired monitors.

Glengarry almost split from counties once before finds historical society

By Dane Lanken
News* correspondent

Should Glengarry county separate from the united counties and manage its own affairs?

That was a topic hotly debated here 90 years ago, and a proposal narrowly defeated in a county-wide vote held in January 1908.

Some areas, including Lochiel township and the town of Alexandria, were solidy in favor of separation. Others, particularly Charlottenburg township and the villages of Lancaster and Maxville, were just as solidly opposed.

The issue, with haunting modern parallels to the current amalgamation debate in the united counties, and the continuing Quebec situation, was the topic presented by Williamstown historian David Anderson at a meeting of the Glengarry Historical Society last Thursday at the Church on the Hill in Alexandria.

History repeats itself as research finds separation movement was thriving in 1908

"One of the voices unabashedly in favor of separation was The Glengarry News," Anderson told the gathering. "It was forever complaining that Glengarry was being 'systematically bled'."

"Glengarry gets the crumbs that fall from the united counties table," one editorial charged. Another complained that Cornwall was the beneficiary of Glengarry's enslavement. "Citizens of Cornwall," it said, "make great efforts to keep citizens of Glengarry in bondage."

Anderson noted that although the debate sometimes involved elevated emotions, it often deteriorated to tedious arguments over minor sums.

"One side would say we lost $55 on this road," Anderson said. "Another would say yeah, but we made $80 here.

"Someone figured out that if Glengarry separated, it would make $16,000 on the deal. Even at that time, that was not a very significant amount of money."

The separation debate began when Ontario Premier Sir James Whitney began a government initiative to form new counties in Ontario.

Even a population of 10,000 people, it was said, was enough to form a new county. Glengarry had then - as now - a population of about 22,000.

The idea of Glengarry independence was not new. There had been grumblings ever since the united counties was formed in the early 1800s, and at least one previous debate and vote on the matter, in 1893.

In 1907, Maxville Reeve Alexander D. McRae wrote and published a 12-

Separation movement flourished

page pamphlet entitled, "Can Glengarry manage its own affairs? Facts and figures relating to separation." (Gordon Winter of Maxville has the only known copy of this pamphlet, and displayed it at the society meeting.)

Alexandria enthusiastically backed the idea, with town lawyers J.A. Macdonell (Greenfield) and F.T. Costello and businessman Donald A. McArthur leading the side.

Anderson noted that the townsmen may have had practical as well as philosophical reasons for backing Glengarry independence. Alexandria would have become a county seat and benefitted from a county building and jail.

Indeed, Alexandria businessman J.T. Schell stepped forward and said he would build the required buildings for $25,000.

The leading voice opposed to separation was Charlottenburg township clerk George H. MacGillivray.

"It is not complimentary to the intelligence of the Glengarry ratepayers," he argued, "to ask them to break from a union in which they and their fathers were born, and in which Glengarry men have always had a predominant influence and are mainly responsible for what may be good or bad in its record."

In December 1907, public meetings to debate separation were held in Dunvegan, McCrimmon, Glen Norman, Glen Sandfield, Lancaster, Kirk Hill, Munroe's Mills, Williamstown, St. Raphael's and Dalkeith.

"It seems like it was often the power of individual speakers that swayed voters one way or another," Anderson said.

"After the St. Raphael's meeting, where Hugh Munro of Munro and McIntosh carriage works was one of those who spoke in favor of separation, there was a unanimous declaration that "old Glengarry should set up housekeeping on her own account."

A similar resolution was passed in Glen Norman, that Glengarry could manage its own affairs "without the aid of Cornwall lawyers and hotelkeepers."

In Maxville, where Cornwall lawyer George Gogo spoke against separation, it was reported that "a good majority of our ratepayers are not in favor of change" (even though the original proponent of separation was Maxville Reeve Alexander D. McRae).

Charlottenburg township threw a curve into the proceedings when its council declared that if Glengarry separated from the United Counties, it would apply to join Stormont county.

The vote was called for Jan. 8, 1908. The question was marvellously straightforward. "Are you in favor of the separation of the county of Glengarry from the united counties?"

The results were close.

Kenyon was marginally in favor, 478 votes to 414. Lochiel more solidly so, 616 to 263. And Alexandria overwhelmingly in favor, 458 votes for, two against.

On the other side, the nays narrowly won in Lancaster Township, 379 to 367.

In the other three municipalities, the nays won big.

Williamstown was 200 to two against, Lancaster village 132 to eight, and Charlottenburg Township 992 to 143.

In total, it was 2083 in favor of separation, 2263 against. With the exception of Maxville, the north of Glengarry voted for separation, thesouth against.

"There was a difference of 180 votes," Anderson noted, "a swing vote of four percent."

Thereafter, the issue seems to have been forgotten.

"There was virtually nothing about separation in the Glengarry News in following weeks," Anderson said.

Teacher's strike

Association, admitted "that during negotiations a strike is always possible."

But he said, "we have to live with each other afterwards and I think we must negotiate."

If the 240 teachers in 19 elementary schools, turn down the offer, teacher negotiators will try to get a better offer on the table.

The dispute went to mediation which ended unsuccessfully Oct. 29.

The vote today is on what the board calls its "bottom line best package."

Kids get a taste of a day's work

By Lynn McCuaig
News editor

Grade 9 students across Ontario were given a taste of the work force during the second annual "take our kids to work" day on Nov. 6.

Students tagged along with their parents, relatives or friends in workplaces as close as their own home or as far away as Ottawa and Montreal.

The aim is not only to relate school to the work force, but to understand what their parents do to support the family.

"It gives them a real feeling of what their parents do every day," said Tina Cairncross program coordinator at Glengarry District High School.

Grade 9 student Tony Nussbaumer spent the day with his uncle Heinz Kaswurm learning cooking secrets at the Georgian House.

"I think it's a terrific way to show young people the real life on the job," said Kasswurm.

And his nephew was more than willing to learn.

"We get a real perspective as to what people like my uncle do every week," said Nussbaumer.

"I think it's a very valuable experience for us."

So far, the reaction from students and teachers has been very positive, said Cairncross, who has three bristle board pages full of comments from students that will be displayed in the school.

The feedback ranged from complaints about having to get up so early to other students who said their day was "awesome."

One student who worked at a lawyer's office said the day "rocked."

"It's a big build up, and the kids were really excited," said Cairncross.

Politician's big promises

By Lynn McCuaig
News editor

Like a true politician, Matthew Poirier made a lot of promises when he was running for students' council president at Ste. Thérèse school in North Lancaster.

One of the Grade 8 student's promises was to bring professional hockey player Martin Boisvenue to the school.

But unlike most politicians, Poirier was able to deliver.

Boisvenue, forward for the Val D'Or major junior hockey team who has also a signed three year contract with the Philadelphia Flyers, spent the afternoon with students last Friday.

"It wasn't a hard promise for him to keep," laughed the 19-year old Alexandrian, who has been visiting many schools since he started playing for the Foreurs.

"I do a lot of that in Val D'Or, so I'm used to it now," he said.

In the Quebec town, Boisvenue often signs autographs in the mall and sometimes is volunteered to pull numbers at local bingos.

Boisvenue's good nature was a plus for Poirier who figured he could get his father, Luc to pull a few strings with Martin's father, Robert who is his co-worker at the Alexandria Public Utilities Commission.

"I kind of made the promise before asking," admitted Poirier.

While visiting the classes, Boisvenue answered the children's questions about what it takes to be a good hockey player and told them how important school is even for a professional athlete.

He finished off his class visits with an autograph session for students who brought in ball caps, pucks or autograph books for him to sign.

Though he was able to come good on his promise to get Boisvenue, Poirier may not be out of the water on his election promises yet. He still has a few more to keep.

"He got elected on his promises, and he's doing well," said school principal Lise Prieur.

Gearing up for winter carnival

By Pauline Ashton
News correspondent

Alexandria's Winter Carnival committee is gearing up for a whole week of snowy fun, Jan. 28 to Feb. 2.

Carnival Chair Aline Gareau-Hebert reported "enthusiasm crackled" at the first planning session last week .

Representatives from 10 local businesses and organizations meeting under the wing of Alexandria BIA, reviewed last year's success and lined up future events.

Gareau-Hebert, who chaired last winter's revival of the Carnival after 15 years--said all the big events are back.

Champions restaurant hopes to sponsor the popular hockey tournament in the back parking lot, and the Old Timers hockey tournament is a go too.

There are plans for a talent night, crowning a carnival queen, a teen dance and a magic or illusion family show.

Monday and Tuesday of Carnival week will be marked by carnival events in local schools .

The popular indoor soccer tournament and the tug-of-warare also scheduled. Soccer drew 300 players last year.

Sunday is family day with activities planned on Loch Garry, buggy and sleigh races, hay rides, snowmobile rides, a bed race between local businesses and a waiters race to test local restaurant servers.

Sunday kicks off with a parade winding through downtown to the lake, ending with a spaghetti dinner sponsored by the Knights of Columbus at Sacré Coeur church.

Amalgamation update

The last week's talks on amalgamation have been condensed into an update which highlight the county's deliberations.

Minister urges cooperation

Minister of Municipal Affairs Al Leach sent a letter to Lancaster village with copies going to all Glengarry municipalities urging them to cooperate on an amalgamation plan.

The letter dated Nov. 1 acknowledged the minister received proposals from both the north and south ends of Glengarry, but asked that the county get together on a single proposal.

The north end is advocating a Glengarry-wide proposal while the south end wants to divide the county on north-south lines.

"I strongly suggest that your council get together with all of your Glengarry municipal counterparts to try to reach an accommodation of interest through a common proposal," Leach said in the letter.

North end ignores counties proposal

The north end has not yet filled out information sheets requested by the United Counties to put the finishing touches on its amalgamation proposal to be voted on Nov. 18.

Councils of the four municipalities met on Nov. 6 to compile the information, but decided not to submit anything since the counties' plan calls for a north-south split to Glengarry.

Kenyon Councillor Kent MacSweyn said the north end should stick to its guns on a Glengarry government.

"If we are serious about this, we don't discuss any of this (proposal)," he said.

Town Councillor John Hope disagreed and said the north end should accept that the counties' proposal is already a "done deal" and "stop complaining and whining and get to work."

Lochiel Reeve Ron MacDonell said the four municipalities should lobby Stormont and Dundas to defeat the counties proposal and support a Glengarry government.

"I'd like to see some lobbying done yet. Maybe we can get the numbers," he said.

South end plans its municipality

Lancaster township, Lancaster village and Charlottenburgh met on Monday night to set out plans for an amalgamated municipality.

The meeting was called to fill in a counties' request for more information to fine tune its proposal.

The municipalities were to decide on a new name, the number of elected officials and the division of duties between the counties and municipalities.

Details of the meeting were not available since the meeting was closed to discuss personnel issues.

No vote on Glengarry proposal

The north end cannot submit its Glengarry-wide proposal to the counties because it doesn't meet the first two steps in the process, said Ministry of Municipal Affairs Representative, Yves Drouin at a north end meeting last week.

If a proposal comes from a municipality, it must first have the support of the majority of municipalities involved, then support of the municipalities with the majority of electors and finally support from the county.

The north end's proposal does not have support from the majority of electors in Glengarry. The northern municipalities only have 46 per cent of electors while the south end has 54 per cent.

"You never passed the second step," said Drouin.

But, since the proposal calling for a north-south split came from the counties, Drouin said the steps to approval are reversed.

The proposal needs the support of the majority of municipalities at the county level which represent the majority of electors in Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry.

Drouin told the group the only way to get their proposal on the table was to propose an amendment to the counties' proposal asking for a county-wide government in Glengarry.

Maxville to stay on its own

Maxville will not amalgamate with anyone if the counties doesn't support a Glengarry wide government, said Reeve George Currier.

The reeve said it's a Glengarry-wide government or nothing at all.

"We're not changing our minds," he said.

Municipal affairs Minister Al Leach said he won't force anyone into an amalgamation, said Currier, "we're going to challenge him on it."

"We can get by without grants from the province. We won't have to raise taxes too much," he said.

Currier said the village is planning to have a meeting with its rate payers before going alone.

"If our rate payers think we're wrong, we'll go back to the table."

Council upset over driver's examination office closing

By Lynn McCuaig
News editor

Town council is planning to fight back against the province's decision to close the drivers examination office in Alexandria.

The office, which operated out of the curling club every Wednesday, was closed as of Oct. 23. New drivers and people re-taking their drivers exam will now have to travel to Hawkesbury.

Deputy Reeve John Hope said he doesn't want council to take the news "lying down."

"I want to get up and fight again," he added.

"It couldn't have been costing them a fortune," said Councillor Gary Shepherd.

Council instructed Clerk Leo Poirer to send a letter to MPP Noble Villeneuve asking to know what the costs were and describing council's displeasure.

The town had already sent a letter to the Ministry of Transportation asking them not to close the office.

"Guess that does a lot of good, eh," said Hope.

ALEP program brings real-life learning into a school setting

By Lynn McCuaig
News reporter

A hands-on program combining outdoor education, woodworking and computer technology is giving students a new lease on learning.

The Alternative Learning for Exceptional Pupils (ALEP) program runs three afternoons a week for Grade 7 and 8 students whose needs aren't met in the classroom.

"It gives them another learning channel than simply a desk and a piece of paper," said outdoor education teacher David Filion.

In Filion's outdoor learning component, students can apply their study of migratory birds and plants while canoeing in Loch Garry.

"It reinforces what we do every day," said Filion.

Other academics are stressed in the wood working, computers and social skills programs.

"They're taking the reading and the math and applying it in a practical way," said school Principal Helena McCuaig.

"They can find something in common between what they have to learn and the life situation they enjoy."

The ALEP program began as a pilot in September and is taking four students, each for their own individual reason, out of their regular classes at the Alexander for three afternoons a week to work in a new way.

By Christmas, McCuaig said they're hoping to accommodate eight students from either the Alexander, St. Joseph's or Iona Academy.

ALEP is in its second year at three Cornwall schools which have shown "good results," said separate school Superintendent responsible for special education Bunny Warner.

"It starts with a belief you have to do something different for students," said Warner.

Though it has only been running for a few months in Alexandria, teachers have already noticed a change in the students.

"They're much happier being in school," said Filion.

The change has made those four students more excited about education, said McCuaig.

"I see it as a definite self esteem builder. These students see the concrete results of their work."

"They know that can do things they never thought they could do."

The students themselves even admitted enjoying school those three afternoons a week.

"That's bad when I like going to school," joked Michael Michaud.

Warner likened the ALEP program to shop and home economics classes that used to be part of elementary school curriculums.

As budgets started to shrink, the programs fell by the wayside while academics were given top priority.

"That was a time when University was the be all end all," said Warner.

"Now technical skills are in demand."

McCuaig said she's hoping ALEP will eventually spread into the rest of the school and give other students a taste of ALEP learning.

"If I had the funding for it, I'd make sure every child in every school could be exposed to this type of program," said McCuaig.

Since funding is hard to come by, the school has managed to keep expenses at a minimum.

The separate board committed $500 and a teacher's salary for three afternoons a week to the project.

The budget was spent on tools for the wood shop and the rest of the supplies have come completely from community support.

"We're begging, borrowing and stealing it (supplies) because we can't afford to buy it," said McCuaig.

In the outdoor education program, Filion is using his own canoe and a neighbor's and is driving the students there instead of paying for a bus.

In the shop, students have used donated scrap pieces of lumber and the technology software for the computing program was originally bought for Grade 5 and 6.

"We're trying to get $1 to do the job of $10," said McCuaig.

The Alexandria Legion has already donated a scroll saw and $100 to buy nails, sandpaper and incidentals for the shop.

The Alexandria optimist club is also supporting the project with a Nevada ticket drive.

Much of the three-month success of the Alexander's program on such a small budget can be attributed to the teachers' creative thinking and the community's willingness to help out, said Warner.

"They're pretty keen on what they're doing."

Evidence gathering against restructuring

There is mounting evidence which clearly indicates the province is wrong in forcing municipal amalgamation in this and other regions of Ontario before fully understanding the implications of it. The most recent piece comes from a political scientist from the University of Western Ontario, who says his research shows amalgamation will cost millions of dollars and may not result in any savings.

It's also more evidence that the province needs to either suspend or extend its deadline on its municipal amalgamation agenda until the public has more data and answers.

Andrew Sancton, whose article on the subject is about to be published in the journal Canadian Public Administration, has found, not surprisingly, the consolidation of municipalities usually leads to more spending, not less.

"What surprises me," he was quoted yesterday by The Kitchener Waterloo Record as saying, "is the fact that anybody would really think amalgamation does save money...The larger organizations get, the more difficult it is to control what is going on and the more levels of management there are."

He said politicians seeking to amalgamate municipalities ignore other hidden expenses such as administration and severance costs and merging computer systems. Even reducing the number of politicians will not save money if it means those who remain need to hire more staff to handle the increased work load.

If this sounds familiar, it's because we've heard some of the same views expressed by local politicians, and their staffs: bigger rarely means better and in fact can mean the opposite, both in terms of efficiency and spending.

Their words, and those of thousands of other rural and urban municipal leaders across the province, have obviously fallen on deaf ears, and it will be interesting to see if Sancton's findings have any impact.

But in the least, the province should listen to his contention that the government should provide some hard proof that money is going to be saved by restructuring.

In the meantime, David Crombie, chairman of the provincially appointed "Who Does What" commission, is to release a report in three weeks detailing ways to eliminate overlaps between local and provincial governments and deliver services more efficiently.

This report, coming at a time when voters are distracted by the machinations of amalgamation the province has spurred municipalities toward, has immense implications for local taxpayers and where locally-raised dollars will go.

At the same time, a furious flurry of local activity shows Glengarry remains divided over the vision of its future governments. Public meetings have led to different reactions from the participants depending on where they live. Legal injunctions against amalgamation are being explored. Maxville has told every municipality that if Glengarry doesn't amalgamate in its entirety, it will refuse to join anyone. And the province itself has weighed into the local picture by telling the south it wants those municipalities to keep talking to the north.

Turmoil is reigning, and this area, judging by the news flashed across the front pages of Ontario's community newspapers, is not alone.

We've said this before but it bears repeating: the public needs more proof that the Mike Harris government's drive toward dealing with fewer municipalities makes sense.

Plowing ahead with reforms, in light of the Sancton study and the concerns expressed by local politicians across the province, is a foolhardy game of fiscal brinkmanship.

Still a need for an economic boost

The narrow "no" Alexandria gave to the Sauers who paid for the casino referendum told us that 827 voters were not interested in the concept. The other half of the ledger, however, indicated 753 were. That margin speaks to the level of interest in finding a way to give the town an economic shot in the arm.

This interest shouldn't be allowed to wither and fade. It's an interest that needs to be plumbed, solicited, and heard. The town is in dire need of a vision, and a casino on Main Street was the closest anyone has ever come to enunciating one for Alexandria.

First, though, the town needs to take a breather, certainly for the duration of the year at least. The vote divided the town in ways it has never been before. And there needs to be some time for any ideological wounds to heal, and for the full implications of the casino's rejection to sink in.

As well, by then, town council will know the final word on the municipal amalgamation issue. Any plans for the future it may carve out from its explorations of what the casino vote meant, could be influenced by the merger with neighboring municipalities.

Once that picture is clear, however, Alexandria town council has sufficient proof, in the wake of the casino vote, to enlist citizens to work towards a common vision, one of enhanced prosperity and the kind of quality of life those who voted against the casino treasure.

If no to a casino, then what?

After Thoughts

by Joe Banks

Just over 70 people out of the 1,580 Alexandria voters who showed up to cast a vote made the difference between the town setting itself on the casino course, and, for now at least, maintaining the status quo.

This was a vote that pretty much split the town down the middle, in two ways. First, just over half the town was motivated to get out and cast a vote. Second, of those who did come out, slightly under five per cent of that number put the "no" side over the top.

What does it mean? On the surface, this was an issue that enticed a split vote like no other in the town's history. But armchair analysts can only play with the numbers so long before they cease to make sense. There's more telling entrails to read.

One has to do with how people spoke out about how they view the town they live in, and about the kind of town they want in the future. Unfortunately, as good an exercise as it was, the Sauers were the ones who had to pay for it.

Say what you want about their ill-fated gamble, but it was a bold, entrepreneurial stroke small towns like Alexandria need if they are able to find their place in the turmoil of the new economy. That goes for new businesses as well as casinos.

Their quest for the grail, purely from a money-making perspective, was not unrealistic. It never came out during the campaign, but demographers have identified gambling as a rising source of leisure and recreation for the affluent (and growing 50 and 60 year-old age groups).

"Casino gambling is on the verge of a boom because millions of baby-boomers right across North America are pushing 50," wrote David K. Foot in his bestseller, "Boom, Bust and Echo – How to Profit from the Coming Economic Shift."

"Casino gambling is an activity that appeals to people around 50 and over. The regulations that outlawed casinos are being overturned because a massive wave of 50 year-olds is about to wash over North America. Thus the arrival of casinos in localities that once shunned them is largely a normal market response to surging demand."

This is all academic as far as Alexandrians are concerned. But it underscores the establishment of a casino here was founded on some sound assumptions, at least from a business perspective, which a slight minority outside of the business community, seemed to share.

Indeed, throughout the campaign, one could hear the "p" word (profit) and the quest of it by the Sauers and the businesses supporting the initiative, spat out, as contemptuously as a curse. The demonization of the notion that someone would actually be motivated to make money off a casino was palpable and as telling as it was disturbing.

Even Divine Providence was conscripted to back that point more than once, mixing the vision of an entrepreneur with that of an evil hawker intent on stealing money from the poor.

It's true it's written that, "The love of money is the root of all evil." Yet even members of the cloth acknowledge jobs are the handmaidens of faith and social stability. From where will they come?

There were no answers to that question, only the compelling imagery of gambling as a sin and an example of moral decay.

Which brings us to the question in the headline above. If a casino is not the means from which wealth and jobs can be derived in Alexandria, what is? And who will go out and get them?

Our fathers used to say money doesn't grow on trees. And these days, money is showing little aptitude for growing anywhere. Opportunities are rare to find. Opportunities that make someone or some company money, even harder.

The casino was one. It may not have been THE answer for Alexandria. But no question, it was AN answer.

Are there others? Life in the new economy doesn't allow for easy answers like they did in the 1980s.

Yes, the sun did come up the day after the referendum. Neighbors were still talking to neighbors. Life went on. Maybe, just maybe, there is no call to change, no call for enhanced prosperity.

Unfortunately, the evidence of 753 "yes" votes indicates otherwise.

Changing the world as new editor

News column

Lynn McCuaig

Like any person who starts a new and exciting job, I'm going to change the world. Since I was given the editor's job last week, I've just been making plan after plan for world peace and economic prosperity.

Don't anybody worry about the refugees in Zaire, Quebec separation, even the country's deficit. I'm going to solve everything in my new job.

Well, maybe not everything. That Zaire thing sounds pretty tough and pretty dangerous. But I'll get right to Canada's problems.

All except maybe Quebec's separation. Lucien Bouchard looks like a hard nut to crack and I really don't want interfere to in the Prime Minister's job. Being editor should keep me busy enough.

But if The Glengarry News ever pays me $9 billion a year to be the editor, the federal deficit is the first thing on my mind.

I guess I'm really not going to change the world, but I am hoping to bring some fresh air into the News. I know change doesn't come very easily, but I am going to do my best to try and fix what the majority of you think is broken and continue on with the things that make you pick up this newspaper every week.

Which takes me to the first item on my agenda. Talk to me. Don't be afraid to send a short note, a brief call or stop in at the News when you've got something on your mind.

We need to get our story ideas from somewhere. Don't think you're bragging if you or someone you know has done something worthy of recognition.

I may not always be here since my job does take me on the road quite often, though I promise you, I'll read every note that's passed to me.

But, (get out of the way before the other shoe drops on you) with a writing staff of three, we can't always be everywhere every time. Just because we can't be there, doesn't mean we're not interested.

If you've got something going on and have forgotten to call us until the last minute or we just can't make it, don't be afraid to take the picture yourself and send it in.

If you're submitting a photo or a small news item here's a little guide to follow:

- Make sure the item is either happening in Glengarry or involves a lot of people who are from Glengarry. Being The Glengarry News, we'll only cover things relating to this county.
- Remember, items have to have a wide appeal. You may think the fact that you finally got rid of the annoying corns on your feet is very exciting, but I doubt other people in the county feel the same way.
- Don't forget your five w's: who, what, where, when and why. People who read the news want to know who's involved, what happened, where and when it happened, why did it happen, and why do we want to read about it.
- Taking photos can be a little tricky. Don't be afraid to try, but we can't guarantee we'll use them. We're preparing a photography guide as we speak and hopefully in a couple of weeks you can pick them up at the office. Here are some tips in the meantime:

When you're photographing a large group, try to get some sitting and others standing. A photo any more than about six or seven people wide is hard to manage. Put people of a similar height together.

Try to get people wearing dark clothes and who have dark hair to stand against a light background. If people are wearing light clothes and have light hair or have no hair, try to get them against a dark background. Always try to put the people wearing white in the back.

When you're photographing an event, try to get your subjects actually doing it, let your picture tell the story. Don't be afraid to get too close and fill your frame with the subject of the picture.

We'll do our best to get your items in, but remember, there's not always a lot of space in the newspaper. In some cases, your may have to wait a couple of weeks before you see your item there.

I hope to hear from you in the future. For me to change the world, or at least my small corner of it, I'll need a lot of help from all our readers.

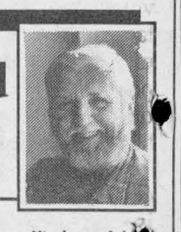
Scone

Highland Paths



by Ken McKenna

A scone (pro. "scon") is a kind of tea biscuit. The Abbey of Scone, where Scottish kings were crowned at one time, is pronounced "Scoon". Please don't ask me why the same word is pronounced two different ways. I don't know. It's one of life's little mysteries, like the Scottish insistence on always pronouncing "Alex" as "Alec".

Lia-Fàil, (pro. "Leeah - Fall"), the Stone of Destiny on which the Scots monarch sat at the coronation in the Abbey is also known as "the Stone of Scone".

The Stone of Destiny is much in the news these days. British Prime Minister John Major has announced that his government intends to return the Stone to Scotland, from where it had been stolen by the English eight hundred years ago, and on which English and, later, British monarchs, have been crowned ever since in Westminster Abbey in London. And this Scottish - English - British business is just about as complicated, although more logical, than the pronounciation of "Scone". Even "Canada's National Newspaper", as the Toronto Globe & Mail calls itself, can't seem to get it straight. In a recent article in that paper it was stated that "the British" had stolen the Stone from Scotland. Please! The legal term "British", as in "British Isles" is the collective word for ALL of Great Britain, if that is what is meant, and includes the people of England and Scotland. So if the "British" stole the Stone in the 13th century, they were stealing it from themselves. To make it even more complicated, there were no "British", as we know the term, until the Union of the Scottish and English Parliaments in 1707, symbolized by the creation of the first Union Jack. The Union of the Crowns in 1603 simply meant that the sovereign countries of England and Scotland retained their ancient independence, but shared a common monarch, and the flag of England remained the St.George's Cross and the flag of Scotland remained the Cross of St.Andrew. The second Union Jack, the one we know today, includes the Cross of St.Patrick and dates from the Union of the Irish Parliament with the British Parliament two centuries ago, but that's another story. This column is about the Gaelic-speaking Highland Scots and their descendents in Canada, and that's involved enough. The Stone of Scone rightfully belongs to that tradition, because it was brought to Scotland by the Dalriadic Scots from Ireland when they settled in Argyll fifteen hundred years ago.

But why did they bring this piece of rock with them? Its older name, the Stone of Destiny, gives us a strong hint. It meant something very important to these early Gaels. The legend that surrounds it tells us that it was considered sacred to the Irish Gaels as well. It was even believed to have been the "pillow" on which the biblical Jacob was resting his head when he saw his vision of the ladder going up to heaven. The Scottish Gaels believed that as long as the Stone of Destiny remained in Scotland, the country would be independent and free. Certainly the English tyrant Edward I, "the Hammer of the Scots", understood the power of this legend when he brought it to London after invading Scotland in the 13th century, and it has remained there ever since, except for a brief time, as part of the coronation throne.

For the next three hundred years, Scottish monarchs were crowned without benefit of the sacred stone, but when Mary Queen of Scots' son James was invited to become King of England, as well as remaining King of Scotland, in 1603, the legend of the Stone of Scone began to come true. Although Scotland remained an independent country, the Union of the Parliaments put an end to that a century later, and ever since, Scotland and England have remained joined as Great Britain. Now the British prime minister has announced that the Stone will be placed in Edinburgh Castle. How the Stone was brought back to Scotland for a short time in 1950 and what happened to it after will be told in a future column.

Letters to the editor

Lack of participation ruined town's growth

To the editor:

Politicians always say: "The people have spoken." Unfortunately for the town of Alexandria and its residents, a lack of voter participation and voter knowledge has destroyed the last creative and productive opportunity for this town's growth. With the potential to become the next Niagara on the Lake gone, now what will happen to Alexandria?

The bible says that good things come to those who wait. Regrettably, in the 1990's, economics doesn't give us that luxury. Suzanne Carriere says that "God has something more in store for this town." Well, as not only an employee, a resident and a Christian, I would love to hear from Ms. Carriere's direct line to God and have some answers to the following questions: 1) Where has God been for the last 10 years, while the town has gradually diminished? 2) How does He plan on creating the extra 800 jobs for Alexandria, that the casino would have? 3) How does the Almighty plan on decreasing the high number of welfare case loads in our area? 4) How does God plan on replacing the missing tax dollars that would have flooded into the area for the town to spend? 5) How does God plan on cleaning up the crime, drugs and gambling that already exists in town and could have been dealt with with the casino's presence? The key here is that Ms. Carriere has rejected a productive and constructive option for this town without coming up with one single solution of her own. If you're going to be negative and counter-productive be sure to have an idea to replace the one you don't like.

Just before the referendum, people claimed to have had many unanswered questions. These questions would have been answered through the feasibility studies that would have followed. As well, the elected officials of this town would have placed certain demands on the consortium to manage and control the layout and design of the building. If you did not trust your officials to do the right thing you could have, as they did in Windsor, created a citizens monitoring committee. The Windsor committee has a say in how the impact of the casino affects their community through, social, economic and security environs. You could have contacted the citizens committee in Windsor yourselves and asked them what questions they had in the beginning, how they had dealt with them, and what they saw as gains or defeats since the casino's opening. All of these pieces would have completed your puzzle and given high ranking architects and designers a chance to come to town and give us something special that we could have been very proud of. I'm not sure about you, but I would rather look at something that looked like Toronto's Panteges Theater, than the hole in the wall that used to be Jessica's Pizzeria.

Please understand, that by refusing the consortium now, there is almost no going back. Whatever good may have followed the introduction of such a powerful element in the tourism industry will not come to town now (ie. water park). The projects that the provincial government would have helped pay for (ie. roads, sewers, hospitals) will not be, when the town does not contribute anything special. Mike Harris isn't opening the purse strings for the more lucrative sections of the province, so he certainly won't be giving Alexandria any special attention.

There is an old expression: "Money talks, bull walks". The $110 million that was talking in this town is now gone – so guess what's left "walking" the streets.

Sincerely,
Claudine Russell,
Alexandria

A crime could have been prevented

To the editor:

I am writing this letter to hopefully accomplish two things. The first being to publicly express my anger, and the second, to prevent such an incident from happening to anyone else.

My family and I live in a rural area of Maxville. We owned a purebred Siberian Husky dog until one unfortunate evening this month.

Our dog was tied up outside when not in the house with us. His collar became unleashed one day while we were not at home. Upon discovering him gone, we tried to locate him physically to no avail. Our next plan of action was to contact the dog catcher of Roxborough township. The dog catcher has no record of our dog, but did inform us that a wolf had been shot in our proximity. He had no other details of the incident except for the name of the veterinarian involved.

By chance, the next day at work my husband learned from a co-worker the address of the vet and contacted him for more details. My husband proceeded to the office where he identified the remains of our beloved pet by its decapitated head. Up to this time, it was understood to be the head of a wolf!

Further details unfolded. A man we know who knew our dog well, was summoned to the property of a third party, to kill a wolf. He proceeded to shoot our Husky dead. There have been animosities between him and my family in the past, and he has verbally threatened to shoot our dog. We believe he seized this opportunity to carry out his threat.

Our dog was a very docile loving animal who our two and a half year old son could get the upper hand with. There is a proper procedure to follow when dealing with suspicious unknown animals, and I presume the public should be made aware of it, especially since the hunting season is upon us. The animal in question is to be caught by the local dog catcher and quarantined for a period of time. It is not to be destroyed.

Charges were pending against the man in question, until we were informed by the police that a law existed which states, "that a loose animal may be shot after sunset and before sunrise." It was estimated that our pet was killed at approximately 7 p.m. I proceeded to ask the police if they had checked whether or not the gun that was used had been registered. I was informed that a farmer does not have to register his gun. The man in question is employed with a company, and does not farm solely for a living.

This is such a senseless crime which a simple phone call could have prevented. Once again, the law fails to serve the wronged party.

I would like to close with one last note. Our pet was neutered, and being a purebred, was tattooed accordingly. How many wolves would match that post mortem assessment?

Sincerely,
Kimberly Simser,
RR1 Maxville

Story inspires reader

To the editor:

It was with great emotion that I read your cover story last week re: the life of Aime Periard. What good news! One person can make a difference. Thank you, Frank for telling us this beautiful story. The greatest compliment we can give a person is to need him/her. We needed to hear this story. The parents and teachers in Holland have been very faithful in teaching their young about gratitude. To remember in appreciation is indeed a precious treasure.

I'm always searching around for people of honor and dedication to whom our students can connect with and emulate. Is it not an amazing grace that such folks like the Periards lived and presently live right here in Glengarry. Pity!

The story the many veterans tell and the torch they carry – we will hold it high and we will pass it on as the people of Holland do. These stories need to be told to our children.

I'm sending last week's article to the Embassy of Holland in Ottawa. Also, I'll be thanking them for their generous and caring attitude towards our veterans.

Sincerely,
Ron Lajoie,

Pole on Hwy 34 cracked after car hits it

Police Briefs

A South Lancaster man suffered minor injuries when his car ran off the road and hit a telephone pole at 6:45 Friday night, on Hwy 34 3 km north of Lancaster.

The telephone pole was cracked in half and the wires sagged near the ground after the two-door red 1993 Chevrolet Z-23 driven by Ronald Paquette hit it.

Paquette was charged by Lancaster OPP for failing to remain at the scene of an accident and careless driving.

Hunters

Glengarry residents are spooked by deer hunters who stray onto private property, Lancaster OPP reports.

The OPP fielded five hunter trespass calls this week from nervous residents who spotted parked vehicles or hunters wandering down back roads toting guns.

Sgt. Wayne Villeneuve explained "most of the calls turn out to be about hunters who do have permission to hunt, or who may have strayed onto other properties by mistake."

Sgt. Villeneuve said deer hunters seemed to have moved farther south this year.

"It sure seems like there are more deer around the area and there have certainly been more car-deer accidents on local roads."

The 14-day deer hunting season will be finished by the end of this week.

Deer alert

Lancaster OPP reports seven car-deer accidents on Glengarry area roads from Nov. 1 to 11.

Sgt. Villeneuve said there seems to be a definite increase in the deer population this fall, and larger numbers of hunters chasing them.

Quiet week

OPP Lancaster reports a quiet week with only a couple of calls coming in about a beaten up mailbox and a vandalized car at Roy's Garage in Green Valley.

No dogs

Alexandria police have dropped the idea of setting up a canine corps to chase suspects and sniff drugs.

The idea was discussed last month at the police service board meeting but Mayor Grant Crack said later that the idea just won't fly.

"At this time it was felt that (the board) had other priorities," Crack said at Monday night's council meeting.

"Maybe we'll look at it again after amalgamation."

Chief Binet agreed that a canine corps "is just not feasible at this time."

Locate illegal weapons

Seaway Valley Crime Stoppers are asking the public for help this week on locating illegal weapons. They are looking for information on persons who possess illegal weapons such as sawed-off rifles and shotguns.

They are also looking for unregistered handgun and assault style weapons. Call Crime Stoppers and gets these guns off the streets.

Some of these weapons are being used in violent crimes such as robberies and drive-by shootings. Crime Stoppers does not have call display on its phones and do not record conversations. Calls are always anonymous. If anyone has any information of this or any other crime they may be eligible for a cash reward of up to $1,000.

Remember, Crime Stoppers does not want your name but they do want your information. Call Crime Stoppers at 937-8477, long distance

Court report

The following are among the cases heard in Alexandria provincial court on Nov. 7.

Drunk driver fined $1,200

A drunk driver who had three times the legal limit of alcohol in his blood was fined $1,200 and prohibited from driving for 18 months on Thursday.

Danny Bickerstaffe, 41, drove off Hwy 2 and into a ditch on Oct. 7.

Bickerstaffe's breathalyser readings were 240 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres of blood. The legal limit is 80.

Pair charged in smuggling bust

Two men received fines after pleading guilty to smuggling cigarettes.

Bernard J. Hamelin, 33, and Lee J. Snow, 24, were arrested on May 16, 1995 after police raided a loading area used by smugglers on the St. Lawrence River near Summerstown.

A total of 900 cartons of cigarettes were seized in the bust.

Hamelin pleaded guilty to possession of 200 cartons of cigarettes and was fined $3,200. Snow was slapped with a $1,600 penalty after pleading guilty to having possession of 100 cartons.

Lead-footed drunk driver fined

A drunk driver with a heavy foot was fined $500.

Tara Murphy, 24 of Wakefield, Que., was pulled over for driving at 127 km/h in a 60 km/h zone on Hwy 2 on Oct. 8.

Murphy was arrested when police suspected she was drunk. Breathalyser tests showed readings of 159 and 150 milligrams of alcohol per 100 millilitres blood, almost twice the legal limit of 80.

Murphy was prohibited from driving for one year.

In another drunk driving conviction, 19-year-old Albert M. Seguin was fined $400.

Seguin had breathalyser readings of 130 and 120 when he was arrested on Sept. 22. He is barred from driving for one year.

'Who Does What' pondered

Suggestions that Ontario take over child welfare and women's shelters while municipalities fund local sewer, water treatment, and transport, got cool responses from local politicians.

Alexandria Reeve Francine Richer branded the recommendations issued by the provincial Who Does What panel, "trial balloons."

Richer said "our town definitely needs provincial subsidies to keep sewage and water system going, we simply can't do it all alone.

"These are just recommendations, I want to see how Queen's Park reacts," she said.

Lancaster Reeve Charles Sangster felt that any moves "rationalizing services are premature until decisions on amalgamating local municipalities are made next year."

Sangster warned, "whatever the province does our local property taxes mustn't go up or be expected to pay for anything more than they are paying for now."

Kenyon Reeve Gwen Morris said everything is up in the air until municipal restructuring is finished.

"Big changes are coming and we may have to follow the province's lead and put out local road maintenance and snow removal to private contract," Morris prophesied.

The Who Does What panel studying the viability of provincial services and programs, suggested Ontario take full financial responsibility for child welfare and women's shelters.

The 55 Children's Aid Societies in Ontario are currently funded, 80 per cent from the province, and 20 per cent from local municipalities.

The panel also wants the province to take over total financing of the 97

Blood donor clinic falls short of goal of 300 units

The Alexandria Blood donor clinic last Thursday fell short by 59 units of its 300-unit goal, but Red Cross officials say they're pleased with the response.

Clinic coordinator Raymond Legault said last week's clinic at the high school brought in 285 people who donated 241 units.

It was the first time in the long history of the clinic that the donation number dropped below 250, he said.

Still Legault said he was thankful for those people who did give, and had special praise for his team of volunteers who helped out – and patient donors.

Some had to wait up to an hour and a half due to new screening and administration requirements, he said.

Who will run Cooper Marsh now?

By Pauline Ashton
News* correspondent

A duel erupted at Raisin Region Conservation Authority board meeting last week over who's to run Cooper Marsh following recent cuts to staff and funding.

Local volunteers, Friends of Cooper Marsh, want to staff the marsh on a partnership basis, with the Authority paying upkeep. They tabled a proposal and contract ready for signing.

A new South Glengarry municipal conglomerate of Charlottenburgh, Lancaster township and Lancaster village, also want to run the marsh , but they have nothing in writing.

Controversy broke out over who's to run the marsh after board members voted to close the marsh visitor centre during December and January.

"This give us a breathing space at a time when visitors are down to a trickle," explained Chair Alton Blair.

Board executive voted to meet the municipal group Nov. 20, and review both proposals for a decision at the board meeting Nov. 21.

But Friends of the Marsh representatives flashed a detailed proposal and contract, with 300 volunteers eager to staff and run programs at the visitor centre throughout the winter.

The volunteers don't want the visitor centre closed even for two months.

Charlottenburgh Reeve Leslie O'Shaughnessy said the municipalities "don't want to be ruled out as possible custodians of the marsh, but it should be at no cost to our taxpayers.

O'Shaughnessey pleaded for more time to formulate a proposal.

"It looks like our three municipalities will be amalgamated soon and we need time to jointly draw up a new game plan for the marsh," O'Shaughnessy explained.

He promised to outline "investment decisions which must be made to finance a marsh take over" at in-camera sessions following the public board meeting.

Gera Leblanc waved the volunteer Friends contract which pledges to continue Cooper Marsh education programs, maintain the visitor centre and park, take over fund raising, and hire staff if necessary.

"Our group is ready to start right now as soon as you sign this contract," Leblanc challenged.

"We're ready to go now and Charlottenburgh has had since last June to come up with a proposal," she pointed out.

"You're closing the $400,000 (Cooper Marsh) visitor centre for two months, an open invitation to vandals;" Leblanc warned. "Don't let this building go to waste."

Later, replying to a question from Environmentalist Elaine Kennedy, O'Shaughnessy denied that the municipalities have any plans for further development of marsh lands.

"Under provincial legislation there is no potential for development of wetlands," O'Shaughnessy said.

He called rumors of wetland development "scare tactics" to discredit a municipal take over of the marsh.

Bill Cooper, former Charlottenburgh councillor who encouraged the province to buy and preserve the 650-acre Cooper Marsh, objected to the board discussing marsh proposals behind closed doors.

"The public should hear this," he said. " Only finances, personnel and land acquisition should be discussed in camera."

The board signed over Martintown Mill to the Martintown Mill Preservation Society, another step in the authority's downsizing plans.

The authority's Gray's Creek marina will soon be turned over to the City of Cornwall to manage.

The authority is returning to its core mandate of land planning, water quality monitoring, shoreline preservation, and wetlands protection, General Manager Michel Lalonde explained.

Provincial grant cuts forced the authority to depend more heavily on $380,000 pumped in this year from 10 sponsoring municipalities, augmented by $200,000 fees from school education programs, water quality testing and planning consulting.

LALC to declare four historic sites

The public is invited to the upcoming meeting of the Charlottenburgh Local Architectural Conservation Advisory Committee (LACAC), where four properties within Charlottenburgh will be designated as being of Historical and/or Architectural Value and Interest under the Ontario Heritage Act.

The township will present certificates of designation to each property owner. The presentation is scheduled for Wednesday, Nov. 20 at the Charlottenburgh municipal office at 19687 William Street, Williamstown at 4:30 p.m.

Old traditions continue at Remembrance Day ceremony

Williamstown

by Sue Harrington
347-2279

The beauty of small communities like Williamstown, I told my daughter long-distance on Sunday, is the ease with which traditions carry on from one generation to the next. I had just come from the Remembrance Day service at the cenotaph, and had been encouraged, not only by the size of the crowd which attended, but also by the way so many things had remained the same.

The weather was a little less wicked than usual, and the milk truck didn't roar through during the minute of silence. No dog howled at the end of the gun salute — and no infant either. Other differences, if there were any, were so subtle they were lost on me.

There were the veterans marching in their berets; the pipers piping. The air cadets brought up the rear — their leader ramrod straight; their freshest recruits still in civvies, and one poor soul (there is always one), marching to the sound of a different beat.

Over on the lawn, the Char-Lan band, stiff-fingered and magenta-nosed, waited the chance to play the national anthem. "It could have been you there," I told my daughter, remembering her standing tall among past bands, her frozen flute to her lips.

In many cases, it was the "you" of the next generation. Nearby me, the Cattanach family gathered. Three generations were on hand to give remembrance; to lay a wreath in memory of Bill Cattanach, killed in the First World War.

Anna MacDonald represented the Silver Cross Mothers. Anna is the daughter of a Silver Cross Mother.

Other families and officialdom — this generation of reeve and deputy-reeve — also laid wreaths, and were beckoned to the memorial by Huntley McDonell, who was assisted by Bob Campbell.

In conducting the service, Pastor Eric Urquhart said that although there was sadness on such an occasion, there should also be pride, as Glengarry certainly did its part for the war effort. Pastor Urquhart also urged everyone to come and read the list of names on the cenotaph so that those on it will always be remembered.

Take a moment out of the day and stop at the cenotaph — especially if you are presently in charge of the next generation.

That next generation brought the first taste of this year's Christmas to Williamstown on Saturday. Coming out of the cold into the cheery warmth of St. Mary's Centre, and finding it all decorated up for the Nursery School's fashion show and tea, was a pleasurable shock indeed.

Dot Taylor was on hand with a wide selection of Christmas crafts and decorations, while in the hall itself, tea tables were covered with Christmas wrapping paper, which in turn was covered with Christmas baking. And I mean covered! The sinfest season officially began on Saturday, readers!

When I first heard about a tea and a fashion show mingling in a preschool environment, I must admit I had a few nightmarish visions. Would we be served tea in little kiddy cups? Would it be real tea? And if so, how could this event take place without a couple of scalded kids and a lot of cake-smeared outfits?

Good organization, that is how! The tea-cups were full-sized and china, and we could have been sitting in a Milanese salon, so smoothly did the models perform their runway duties. The tea (real) and cakes were kept out of the vicinity of the stars, who seemed, for the most part — just one balking boy — to take a pretty professional approach to their work.

The outfits being modelled were all from Kids Only, and were organized by Laurie Filion, an independent consultant for the clothing club.

Black and red seemed to be predominate colors for this year's fashions and after getting over the shock of seeing such a funereal color as black on little people, I must admit, I rather liked the combo. Black certainly has advantages where children are concerned — unless, of course, you live in a white-pet household.

Leggings with dress length tops were in evidence, providing warm, yet practical school outfits for young ladies. (What a far cry from those leg coverings of the past: mushroom brown, rough, ribbed, gartered, and ALWAYS falling down!)

There were outfits for mothers, too, often co-ordinating with their offsprings', and there were brave mothers to model them: Donna MacLachlan, Antoinette Kuipers and Cathy Byatte, who did super jobs.

Among the young models, little Emily MacLachlan seemed to really be enjoying herself, clapping at every turn, and delighting the tea-takers.

Also modelling were Edwin and Thomas Kuipers, Brenna and Keriann Seguin, Meagan MacDougall, Amanda and Matthew Lavallee, Robin and Brandon Barillaro, Katie Byatte, Hannah Humphries, Maggie Lang, Rebecca, Devin, and Kodie Gills, Kimberly and Crystal Lebrun, Daniel Filion, and Riley and Keegan Filion, as well as the brother and sister tandem, "Nicholas and Jentry."

Congratulations to the Anderson sisters, mentioned above under their professional names, and to Debbie Baker, for organizing this fun event. Will it become "annual" next year? Hope so!

Your opportunity to attend another Christmas tea comes this Saturday, Nov. 16, at the little hall at St. Mary's. The Ladies Guild will be sponsoring the event, and you will have the chance to buy some baking and some crafts for the Christmas season, if you should so desire.

Time of the tea is from 2 to 4 p.m.

"Food for the body; food for the mind:" The Sir John Johnson Manor House Committee is holding a bake and book sale at the Manor House in Williamstown on Saturday, Nov. 23, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Books of all descriptions (paperbacks, hardcovers, children's, etc.) will be sold, as will baking of all descriptions (cakes, pies, breads, etc.)

If you would like to donate books or baking to help the committee preserve our local historic treasure, please call me at 347-2279 to arrange pick-up.

Books may also be dropped off at the Manor House any time before Nov. 22. But better wait till the 23rd to bring the baking!

Congratulations to Char-Lan graduate, Mary Foster, on receiving the degree of Master of Arts in political science from McGill University during its fall convocation held recently.

Mary, who is the daughter of Jane and George Foster, (and the niece of someone special), is currently employed by Berlitz in Montreal, while awaiting some pithy political assignment for which she is very well qualified.

What do you do with your spare caribou hair? Someone creative once made a beautiful little flower picture out of hers, and all the ladies of Picnic Grove WI and the "Quilting Group" had a chance to see it during their recent joint meeting.

But that was not all they saw, oh no. Handcrafted items of all kinds surfaced during the show and tell period as each lady in attendance responded to the motto, "Today's work is tomorrow's heirloom." The exquisite old tatting and crocheted items, along with the latest in quilted apparel, left no doubt as to the validity of the motto.

It was, reported my source, a most enjoyable meeting.

In Williamstown Bridge Club action from Nov. 6, Homer and Lorna Grant were first; Elizabeth Marjerrison and Jim Campbell were second, and Isobel Larocque and Isobel Quail were third.

If you spot gangs of children about Williamstown on Thursday and Friday, do not be alarmed. Parent-teacher interviews at both Char-Lan and Williamstown Public on Thursday, and a PD day on Friday, mean a four day weekend for our young people.

And don't forget that those of you wishing flu shots can have those wishes come true on Thursday at the "last-minute" clinic being held in the Char-Lan cafetorium, from 1 to 3 p.m.

Remembrance Day observed

Martintown

by Martha Merchuk
525-4177

Remembrance Day services were held by the Martintown Public School on Monday, Nov. 11. In a moving ceremony, the students remembered those who made the supreme sacrifice for us so that we could live freely.

Flag bearers, Tyler Doyle and Emily Sloan, were led into the gymnasium by piper Rory Buchan. Principal Garry Atchison welcomed everyone and then passed the reins over to the Grade 7/8 class. Emcees were Stacy Lafave and Heather Robertson. Christie Van der Burg read "In Flanders Fields" and "Sentences of Remembrance" was read by Janis Poirier, Robbie Kinloch, Emalee McCorkell and Shawn Pilon. Stacy Lafave read "Why we Wear a Poppy" and the Grade 1/2 class sang "A Song of Remembrance".

The war memorial names were then read by Chastity Evrall and Jeff Hale followed with the "Last Post" and a minute of silence. Following "Reveille", memorials were presented: JK/SK by Brittany MacDonald and Mathew Annett; Grade 1/2 by Amy Sova and Jordan Schoenmaker; Grade 3/4 by Matthew Leishman and Fallon Ellis; Grade 5/6 by Alyth Kersley and Scott Waldruf; Grade 7/8 by Emily Higginson and Erin MacDonald; LLD by Luke Richardson and Chris Mellon; Optimist Club by Jean Butler; Girl Guides by Jr. Leader Stacy Lafave, Sandra Leishman and Justina Jans. A verse from the bible was read by Walter Merchuk and the ceremonies closed with the singing of "God Save the Queen." After the students went back to class, visitors stayed behind for coffee and cookies prepared by Nancy Poirier (who, by the way, makes the best peanut butter cookies I've ever had.)

The Grade 7/8 class are planing a year-end field trip to Niagara Falls for three days in June. To raise funds to offset costs for this trip, several fund raisers will be held. The first will be a craft sale on Monday, Nov. 25 from 6 to 9 p.m. in the school gym. This will be a good time to pick up some decorations and last minute gifts. Following that a ham and turkey bingo will be held on Wednesday, Dec. 11 at 7 p.m. in the school gym. Refreshments will be available and all proceeds from both the events will be applied towards the field trip. For more information please call Connie Lafave at 528-4302. All are welcome and your support will be greatly appreciated.

Seniors' centre tender awarded

The tender to build the Glengarry seniors' centre was awarded to Dale Coleman Construction, town councillor Francine Richer told council at their meeting Nov. 11.

Coleman came in with the lowest estimate of $388,490 to build the centre where the Alexandria Legion now stands.

The price includes a wheelchair lift, but doesn't cover GST.

The cost of the project is being shared by the town, the counties and the province which brings the town's share down to $39,000.

Richer said that if contruction starts after April, then the company is also offering a financial rebate.

The project still has to be approved by the province again

Students given T-shirts for peace keeping

North Lancaster

by Bernadette Campeau
347-2572

Monday was Remembrance Day and a lovely day it was. After all that rain, the sunshine was a very welcome sight. I hope you wore your poppy to remember those who fought for the freedom we have today.

A very nice ceremony was held at the Ste. Therese school to mark the occasion and help children understand what the poppy is all about. Everyone gathered in the gymnasium where Chris McPherson played the bagpipes and Eric Prieur stood by dressed in a soldier's uniform. Each class made a short presentation (poem, prayer) and a film was offered by principal Lise Prieur showing scenes of war time.

A student was chosen as a peace keeper from each class and was given a T-shirt from the Optimist Club showing an emblem of non-violence.

Those receiving were as follows: Pre-Kindergarten, Steve Glaude; Kindergarten, Melanie Lapierre; Grade 1, Stephanie Campeau; Grade 2, Michel Lapierre; Grade 3, Sarah Cholette; Grade 5, Pascal Maheu; Grade 6, Marilyn Oliveira; Grade 7, Isabelle Legros and Grade 8, Lianne MacDonald.

Congratulations to all.

Please make a note that Thursday and Friday, Nov. 14 and 15, will be P.D. days for both elementary and secondary schools. Enjoy!

The Optimist Club held their monthly brunch last Sunday in the Optimist hall. The men were hard at work serving bacon, eggs, ham, beans, toast, pancakes, coffee and juice. A 50/50 draw was held and the winner was Jocelyne Cusson.

Last Sunday evening, the Glen Nevis parish held a euchre party which brought many, many players out.

Sixteen turkeys were donated as door prizes by Lucien and Dorina Theoret, Bessie McDonell, Therese and Pierre Bourbonnais, Real and Bertha Deschamps, Bruce and Lorelei McDonell, Maurice Maheu, Albert Lalonde, Cecile Laferriere, David and Lise McDonell, Ray and Katherine McDonell, Archie and Helen McLeod, Pat McRae, Alex and Rollande Titley, Allan and Helena McCuaig, Dale and Cathy Thompson and Bernard MacDonald. Thank you.

Those winning a turkey are: Cecile Campeau, Mr. Derepentigny, Real Diotte, Lucille Campeau, Marcel Glaude, Therese Valade, Pearl Leroux, Jack McDonell, Rollande Titley, Alice Dubeau, Armand Bissonette, Mathieu Charlebois, Angus McDonald, Catherine Fraser, Germaine Lalonde and Pauline Leroux.

The 50/50 draw winners were: Archie McLeod, Hector Lavigne, Claire Campeau, Eric Pilon, Murielle Bellefeuillle, Lucy Shorez, roger Carriere, Maurice Maheu, Hector Lavigne, Orey St. Onge, Helene Sabourin, Jacqueline Leger, Janice McLeod, Lillian Benoit, Therese Valade, Jack McDonell, Jacques Laurendeau, Catherine Fraser and Tony Oetelaar.

Thanks to all for your participation. The next euchre will be on Nov. 24 and it is "ladies' night" where females pay only $1.50 to enter.

All are welcome.

Happy birthday this week to Mathieu Claude on Nov. 17 and happy anniversary to Andre and Helene Decoeur on Nov. 16. Best wishes.

Program most important in winter

Seniors' Prime Time

by Rosemary Cameron

Winter is fast approaching as we are all aware. Many people do not realize this time of year is the most difficult for our seniors and disabled citizens.

Not only are they on a daily basis house bound due to our famous Canadian winters, but it is the time of year that their loved ones and friends are not home on holidays to give them that little extra.

We would like to remind not only the seniors and disabled of Glengarry county, but the caregivers of some of our programs and services that we'll assist our loved ones and give peace of mind.

The following are two programs that are highly requested:

Meals on Wheels Program: A hot, nutritious, well-balanced diet, consisting of choice of homemade soup or a chef salad; a main course of meat, potato/pasta, vegetable and dessert. This delicious hot meal is delivered to your residence at noon hour by two dedicated volunteers. The cost of this meal is $3, which most of our clients make not only lunch, but supper out of.

Our clients and/or caregivers have a choice of paying for their meal on delivery or having an invoice issued on a monthly basis.

Special diets are available on request.

Transportation Program: Can you imagine being a senior or disabled person living in your own residence and unable to access transportation on a fixed income?

If you require transportation to a medical appointment, one of our volunteers will pick you up at our residence, take you to your appointment, wait with you and return you home.

Enjoy an outing on our Outreach van, whch seats eight people. Our van is scheduled on set days in your municipality for trips to the Alexandria and Cornwall area.

For all our transportation, you must call our office for reservations.

Anyone wishing more information on any of our programs and services, please call our office at 347-1175.

Clan MacLeod marks anniversary

The Clan MacLeod Society of Glengarry celebrated its 60th anniversary on Oct. 5.

Over these years, the society has held concerts, picnics, anniversaries, supported the pipe band and hosted visitors from New Zealand, Australia, United States, Canada and Britain.

The late Dame Flora MacLeod of MacLeod, Dunvegan Castle, visited the society many times as has her grandson the present Chief John who was welcomed on Aug. 25.

The 60th anniversary was celebrated with Scottish entertainment provided by young pipers, the Old Tyme Fiddlers, Gaelic Choir, highland dancers, young Ashley MacLeod, violinist, North American champion highland dancer, Heather MacLeod and accordianist Ruthanna MacPherson.

The guest speaker was John C. MacLeod, eldest son of John D. MacLeod who organized the Society in 1946. John C. recalled a few events from the past and spoke of the future activities for the society.

The program ended by honoring the living past and present executive members. This was done by the two oldest members, Hattie MacLeod (93) and Lottie MacLeod (90).

Lunch was enjoyed over a social hour and the evening ended with dancing to the Seanachies Orchestra.

Farmers eligible for PST rebates

Ontario farmers are eligible to claim refunds of the provincial sales tax they pay on materials bought to build or modernize farm buildings, Finance Minister Ernie Eves said recently.

The temporary retail sales tax rebate on building materials, which was announced in this year's provincial budget, is expected to provide eligible farmers with a total of $20 million in tax relief.

A temporary sales tax rebate program has been established for commercial farmers who buy materials for use in building or modernizing a structure used exclusively for farming purposes. The government will rebate the retail sales tax (RST) paid on the purchase of building materials and on the cost of building qualifying farm structures. Examples of such structures include barns, silos, greenhouses, and buildings that house farm machinery. The RST rebate will apply to materials purchased by farmers between May 8, 1996 and March 31, 1997.

Farmers who apply for a sales tax rebate must ensure that their applications are received by the Retail Sales Tax Branch no later than Dec. 31, 1997. Claims for rebates should be mailed to the Retail Sales Tax Branch, 2nd Floor, 1600 Champlain Avenue, Whitby, Ont. L1N 9B2.

The Ministry of Finance's Information Sheet, entitled How to Claim the Temporary Retail Sales Tax Rebate for Commercial Farmers, provides complete information on how farmers can apply for the rebate.

Copies of the Information Sheet, as well as general refund application forms, may be obtained from your local Retail Sales Tax office (phone numbers listed in the blue pages of the telephone directory), or by calling the Ministry of Finance at 1-800-263-7965. This information will also be available at the field office of the Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs.

We extend our deepest sympathy to Raymond Rickerd upon the death of his sister, Dorothy Rickerd.

Dorothy was well-known for having worked for the CNR close to 40 years, starting back with Alex St. Louis and then Norman Milke as a station agent. Later on, she was agent in charge of freight and express until the station in the Glen closed up.

Many a time she would be happy to flag down the train to a halt in the Glen so that local people could get to their destination.

GDHS student wins second prize at major chess match

By Joe Banks
News publisher

A Glengarry District High School OAC student is the second best secondary school chess player in Eastern Ontario and Western Quebec.

James Tang of Alexandria competed at The Ottawa Citizen tournament in that city which pitted up to 100 students from Montreal, Ottawa, Kingston and the valley against each other. It is considered the top high school chess competition in the region.

Tang placed second after playing five opponents, winning three times, drawing once and losing one match.

"There was one guy who beat me," a smiling Tang said during an interview. "He was really good."

Tang is the current Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry champion and will be defending his title this year.

GDHS chess team spokesman, teacher Gary Harris, said that it has been "a long road" for Tang to reach this level of achievement "and I'm very glad he got there. He worked hard for it."

Harris said GDHS is at a disadvantage competing against larger areas, so Tang's achievement is especially sweet.

"We're kind of in the boonies out here. Ottawa's got the Recreation Association Centre. One player wrote down all the moves of each game...He was really good."

He said the Ottawa area in particular, given the level of education in the high tech community, has a "more elite" level of competitors than other areas.

What's in store for Tang after graduation?

"Maybe computer science in Toronto," he said.

He also plans to continue to compete at the university level.

James Tang's next move will be to defend his title as SDG high school champion.

But aid was suggested for municipalities unable to finance total costs of bringing water/sewage systems up to provincial standards.

The panel called for continued study of the program for handing over provincial highways to municipalities.

The Ministry of Transport estimates up to 50 per cent of provincial highways are now being used primarily for local traffic.

Crusaders lose in volleyball semis

Both Char-Lan teams were eliminated in Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry boys' high school volleyball playoff action last Tuesday.

The junior Crusaders were in Iroquois where they lost a best-of-five "A" division semifinal match to the Seaway Spartans three games to one. The scores were 15-3, 15-2, 9-15 and 15-10 in favor of Seaway.

Meanwhile, in a senior division semifinal played in Avonmore, the Crusaders fell in three straight games – 16-14, 15-12 and 15-4 – to the Tagwi Warriors.

In Thursday's finals, the Tagwi Warriors beat Seaway for the junior crown while the Rothwell-Osnabruck Lancers claimed the senior title by beating Tagwi three games to one.

MacDonald has a new OHL home

For the second time in as many seasons, Ryan MacDonald has been traded.

The Ontario Hockey League's Ottawa 67's acquired the defenceman from the North Bay Centennials last week in exchange for a sixth-round draft pick.

The Alexandria native joins another local product – Green Valley's Joel Trottier – on the 67's roster.

MacDonald, who started his OHL career in Detroit, had four assists in 14 games with the Centennials.

Boisvenue out with injured hip

Alexandria's Martin Boisvenue will be out of the Val D'Or Foreurs line-up until the New Year.

The 19-year-old left-winger had played sparingly with the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League club this season because of what was originally thought to be a hernia, but the injury was recently diagnosed as a fractured bone in the hip.

Boisvenue – who scored six points in four games with the Foreurs before being sidelined – is expected to miss about 12 weeks before returning to action.

Poirier's Raiders ousted in playoffs

The season is over for Alexandria's Lisa Poirier and her teammates on the Lindsey Wilson College Raiders women's soccer team.

The Columbia, Kentucky based school was knocked out of the conference playoffs on Friday after losing 2-0 to Midway in the semifinal round.

It was a good year on a personal level for Poirier as the sophomore landed a spot on the conference academic team as well as garnering second-team conference all-star honors.

McDonell collects first OHL point

After a long and frustrating wait, Kent McDonell of the Guelph Storm has his first point in the Ontario Hockey League.

The Williamstown native picked up an an assist on a goal by Todd Norman in the Storm's win 6-2 over the Sudbury Wolves in Guelph on Sunday.

McDonell, a second round pick by the Storm this summer, was playing in only his eighth game of the season after missing the start of the campaign while recovering from off-season surgery on his right wrist.

McDonell is a rookie on a Storm team that is ranked No. 4 in the country with a record of 13 wins, three losses and one tie.

Two points for MacSweyn in tie

Laggan's Kurt MacSweyn had a goal and an assist as the Seaway Valley major bantams tied Kingston 4-4 in a "AA" minor hockey game on Saturday.

Derek Wagar, Travis Albers and Derek Wintle also scored for Seaway.

On Sunday in Maxville, Ian McConnell and Shawn Freeland scored in a 3-2 loss to Nepean.

Junior Gaels win first SDG volleyball title

By J.L. Lefebvre
Sports editor

The Glengarry junior boys' volleyball team made a little bit of history in Alexandria on Friday.

The Gaels swept the St. Joseph's Panthers in three straight games to claim the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry "AA" high school championship, the first such title in Glengarry's history.

In fact, the championship is the first SDG boys' volleyball title in either the junior or senior age groups for ESRG-GDHS.

Although they needed a comeback to win the third game 16-14, the Gaels were never really seriously challenged by the Panthers in the best-of-five final.

Glengarry won the final 13 points to win the first game 15-2 and jumped out to a 9-0 lead in the second game on the way to a 15-7 victory.

The Gaels advance to the Eastern Ontario championships, which will be held today in Cornwall.

Gaels avenge loss in 1994 final

The SDG title caps an amazing season for Marc Sauvé's club.

The Gaels won all 11 matches during the regular-season, with 10 of the victories coming by a three-game sweep.

Glengarry lost only one game all season.

It's the second time in three years the junior Gaels have gone through the regular-season with an unbeaten match record, but the final chapter of the season story was much more pleasant for the Gaels in 1996 than it was in 1994.

The '94 Gaels had won 27 consecutive games heading into the SDG final against St. Joseph's, but the Panthers pulled off a big upset by knocking off Glengarry three games to one.

While none of the Glengarry players from the 1994 team remain on the Glengarry junior roster, Gaels coach Marc Sauvé remembers the year well.

"We didn't want (the Panthers) to come back into this building and do the same thing to us this year," said Sauvé.

The Glengarry coach added he was particularly happy to beat the Panthers following the Gaels' loss to St. Joe's in a senior division semifinal earlier in the week.

"(The St. Joe's senior coach) said in the Cornwall paper that he expected a lot more from Glengarry. We didn't appreciate that, and we wanted to pay them back a little today."

Sauvé says depth is the primary difference between this year's club and the 1994 team.

"That team a couple of years ago had only one big hitter, and that was Tommy Tuppert. This year, we have three or four big hitters that I feel comfortable leaving out there in any situation."

The most prominent power players on Friday were co-captains Francois Elie and Guillaume Ouimet, who had numerous big kills for the Gaels.

"They're our two big leaders and they made a lot of big plays for us today," said Sauvé.

Semifinal results

The Gaels knocked off the Cornwall Collegiate Golden Raiders on the way to the junior championship.

Glengarry beat the Raiders 15-7, 15-3 and 15-10 in a semifinal match played in Alexandria on Wednesday.

The senior Gaels' season came to an end on Wednesday in Cornwall as Glengarry was eliminated by the St. Joseph's Panthers in a semifinal match-up.

The Panthers bumped off the Gaels in three straight games – 15-0, 15-13 and 15-4.

Coach Marc Sauvé and the Glengarry bench celebrate a point during Friday's SDG junior boys' volleyball final. The Gaels beat St. Joseph's in three straight sets to capture Glengarry's first ever United Counties junior volleyball championship.

Late rally gives Alexandria tie with Hawks

By J.L. Lefebvre
Sports editor

The Alexandria Jr. B Glens found a way to claim two points out of a game with the Winchester Hawks at the Billy Gebbie Arena on Sunday.

Down 6-3 with less than three minutes to play in regulation time, the Glens scored three power-play goals in less than two minutes to force overtime.

After a scoreless five-minute OT period gave each club a tie and one point, the Glens earned a bonus point by winning the shootout in a second round.

David Dumont scored a goal in each shootout round for the Glens while Sebastien Laplante stopped Winchester's last four attempts.

Miguel Delisle, Jason Poirier and Scott Nielsen also scored in the shootout for Alexandria.

It was Delisle who forced overtime when he slipped a puck past Hawks goalie Pat Neville with 33 seconds left in the third period.

Pat Burroughs had started the Glens' comeback when he wired a shot over Neville's shoulder with 2:27 remaining to cut the Hawks lead to 6-4.

Alexandria got to within a goal when Yves Ruest scored on a six-on-three power play (Laplante had been pulled for an extra attacker) with 1:06 to go.

The Glens' first three goals were scored by Delisle, Poirier and Dumont.

The Hawks replied with two-goal efforts by Ryan Nichol and Mike Hutt and singles by Garth Byrne and Chad Barnhart.

Glens win in Morrisburg

Although it wasn't nearly as dramatic as Sunday's comeback, the Glens also had to rally in Morrisburg on Friday.

The Glens were down 3-0 after one period and 5-4 after two, but third-period goals by Richard Hutt and Patrick Burroughs gave Alexandria a 6-5 win.

Hutt's goal – his second of the game came with 5:40 left in the third period while Burroughs scored with 3:35 showing on the clock.

Christian Cadieux, Yves Ruest and Darcy MacDonell also scored for Alexandria.

Marc Menard had three assists while David Dumont had two helpers.

He'll sit out Friday's game against Kemptville. The current leaders are Gilles Gareau (278 points), Roger Menard (250) and Andre Cuerrier (246).

Kemptville beats Rebels again

For the fourth time this season, the Char-Lan Rebels went down to defeat in Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League play on Saturday in Williamstown.

For the third time, the Rebels' loss came at the hands of the Kemptville 73's.

The 73's – unbeaten in 13 games to start the season – handed the Rebels a 6-2 loss.

The win – coupled with the 73's 6-5 victory over Morrisburg on Sunday – gives Kemptville a five-point lead over the second-place Rebels in the St. Lawrence Division standings.

73's get early jump

Kemptville took a 3-0 lead over the Rebels on first-period goals by Ryan Forbes and Hamish Fraser and an early second-period marker by Jason Valcour.

Char-Lan captain Eric Fontaine scored a pair of goals two-and-a-half minutes apart to get the Rebels back to within one, but the 73's put the game away with three unanswered goals in the third period.

Dan Coleman accounted for two of the insurance goals while Dave Ralph had the other.

Kevin O'Farrell had two assists for the Rebels, whose home ice record falls to 4-3 on the season.

Dupuis, Fontaine ground Hawks

While the Rebels have been merely mediocre on home ice, the team continues to dominate games away from the Charlottenburgh Recreation Centre.

Char-Lan's road record improved to 5-1-1 on Friday as the Rebels doubled the Winchester Hawks 6-3.

Dan Dupuis and Eric Fontaine each scored a pair of goals for the Rebels with singles going to Nick Brunet and D.J. Zaluski.

Mike Rankin had a couple of assists.

Ryan Byrne, Chris Bailey and Eric Savard replied for Winchester.

The Rebels outscored the Hawks 2-1 in each period.

The 73's converted on one of the power-plays and also added a shorthanded marker...Owen Swamp sat out the first game of a three-game suspension on Saturday. The second-year winger was assessed a match penalty for spearing against Winchester on Friday...The Rebels play in Morrisburg on Friday. The Alexandria Glens will visit the Rec Centre on Saturday.

The Crusaders advanced to the championship game by edging the L'Héritage Dragons 35-33 in a nail-biting semifinal contest on Friday in Williamstown.

Dave Coir had three goals and two assists as Dave's Drywall whipped Cappuccino Express 7-0 in Sunday's other game.

Steve Nutall, Sandy MacLeod, Robbie Waldroff and Marc Massia had single goals. Keith Presley picked up the shutout.

The win gives Dave's a one-point edge over Guy's in the West Division standings.

Sixty-fifth wedding anniversary congratulations go to Pearl and Fred Boisvenue who will be celebrating this event on Nov. 16 at the Manor. Married in the Greenfield Church, the couple were village residents for many years and now Mrs. Boisvenue, aged 86 on Nov. 30, is a Manor resident. Her husband at 90 years of age is able to live in their Moose Creek home and visit at the Manor regularly. Their children, Leah Villeneuve, Dyer, Carol Dubeau of Orleans and Fred Jr. of Ottawa are hosting a reception at the Manor on Nov. 16 from 2 to 3 p.m. Five grandchildren and three great grandchildren will also be assisting and all other relatives and friends are invited to be present.

Mrs. Boisvenue is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Napoleon Lagroix. The late Mr. and Mrs. John Boisvenue were the parents of the groom of 65 years ago. Your correspondent extends best wishes on behalf of many.

Two days later at the Manor, the 71st wedding anniversary of Ella and Duncan Bethune will be recognized. Mr. Bethune happens to be a weekly bowler every Tuesday in St. Isidore. Our best wishes go also to this couple who are better known in the Moose Creek and Avonmore areas.

Maxville Sparks, Brownies and Guides helped plant trees on Saturday beside Maxville Manor in a program sponsored by the village, the residence and the South Nation Conservation Authority. Above, from left, Emily Vallance, Kayla MacMillan and Rachel Phillips prepare to plant a cedar tree.

Herb Ferguson, brother of Rae and Donald lives near Peterborough and knows Jim Harris. Imagine Herb's surprise when Jim recently admitted he came from Maxville too. Known as James way back, Jim was the son of the first minister of the United Church, here and due to the illness of Mrs. Harris, the family, including sister, Margaret, left the village about 1931 or 1932.

Your correspondent received a phone call last week from a gentleman working on his family tree and who was looking for information on ancestors by the name of Beggs. This family lived in the Dominionville area. If a reader has any information for this researcher, I will be pleased to pass it on.

The deer season opened last week and the excitement at a Dyer home reached a fevered pitch as a fine big buck apparently had a premonition that the father was going to be out hunting and decided to meet the enemy in the family's backyard. However, the son saw the deer first, was able to get outside, take aim and get his trophy. Dad had to assist with the clean up before going afar for his deer hunting experience. Justin Blair was the successful hunter in his own backyard and he is the older son of Terry and Marilyn.

Our first village reeve A. D. MacRae, elected in 1891, remained in municipal politics and in 1906 started a movement to have Glengarry separate from the three United Counties. This move was the subject of David Anderson's talk to the Glengarry Historical Society last Thursday evening. In the vote that followed, Mr. McRae's plan was turned down. However, it was the residents of Glengarry who made the decision. It seems ironic that members of Counties Council have the final decision in the on-going amalgamation issue here in Glengarry.

Under temporarily clearing skies, the War Veterans Club held a memorial service on Sunday at its monument on Mechanic Street West. The 15th anniversary of the club was recognized at the service. The flag bearers in the parade were Grace Doth, Mr. and Mrs. Kowalski and Teddy Zmejewski.

Ivan Coleman served as chairman, the service was opened with O Canada, the Rev. Father Marc Piche offered a prayer and the Rev. Ed Gratton read a scripture passage. Reeve George Currier spoke and Shawn MacRae was the piper before and after the two minutes of silence. Joe Rolland read In Flanders Fields. The ceremonial laying of many wreaths then took place. These wreaths are prepared by a committee of the club membership and presented an impressive picture at the base

Date set for 38th annual Santa Claus parade

Lancaster

by Marg Millett
347-2207
Fax 347-1297

Last Tuesday the Lancaster and District Service Club council met at Roger's Garage to plan our 38th annual Santa Claus parade.

The parade will start at 1 p.m. sharp from Smithsfield Hall on Saturday, Dec. 7. As most of you know, the many service clubs and organizations, including our newest member, the Lancaster Antique Car Club, work together on our parade. So the representatives of these groups now have the plan for Christmas 1996.

This year the theme is "Please on Earth at Christmas Time." Again, the parade will end at the Legion hall where the little ones and the young at heart may visit with Santa.

For those of you who wish to enter a float in the parade please pre-register with Marg Millett. Call my number of fax me and I will make sure that you are registered and that you have all of the information needed.

So, come on... Join in the fun. Time is a wastin' and this is always a great event in Lancaster.

The cobwebs have cleared, the witches' brooms are closeted for another time and most of the spirits of Halloween have disappeared. But some are swirling about with a story to be told. Here's one.

It wasn't a dark and gloomy night... just a cool, grey afternoon in Lancaster. Two unsavory looking characters entered the Cottage Blue and walked about in a rather odd manner... very unsettling indeed to the sales clerk.

At one point, one of the pair asked a customer for two dollars in a rather persuasive manner, again rattling the clerk. Not a nice situation to be in, especially on Halloween!

As quickly as they came, they disappeared.

Just as quickly the clerk raced to the phone and called the police, in time to give them a license plate number of the suspects' truck.

Holy spooks and goblins! Imagine the surprise to learn that the truck belonged to a very well-known female auctioneer!

Upon further investigation it seems that the other perpetrator bore a very strong resemblance to the first. A sister no doubt!

No treats but an early trick! All in all, it was a good spook.

My informant says that it brought back memories of many spooky and fun filled Halloweens in Grant's Corners.

The menu was wonderful! The chef was that ever popular... Tony Koggle. Chef Tony and "sous chef" Cathy cooked galantine of chicken with veloute sauce... vegetables strudel... duchess potatoes and charlotte de pommes... mmmm!

Where was this restaurant you say?

Actually, this was all part of food night at the meeting of the Women's Institute of Bainsville and Martintown. After a brief business meeting at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in South Lancaster, the focus was on food.

Tony and Cathy showed, step by step, how to prepare this gourmet meal. During the demonstration Tony kept up a constant chatter, giving great hints, and answering questions as well as telling stories.

As each dish was prepared it was sampled. Of course the samples were delicious. This news came from Faith Burgess.

Last weekend, Optimist President Steve Van de Nieuwegiessen and his wife Connie, along with the Millets, attended a quarter board meeting for our district, in Mississauga. Along with the usual meetings, training sessions were offered.

Guest speaker for the weekend was the international vice-president of Optimist International.

Just a reminder to all members, the Lancaster Optimist Club regular meeting will be on Wednesday, Nov. 13, Smithsfield Hall at 8 p.m. sharp.

The Optimist mandate is "Friend of Youth." In that vein the club recently donated $100 to Chateau Gardens in the name of two young volunteers, Amanda Gunn and Emily Carr.

Circus coming to town

A circus is coming to Alexandria, but residents will have to wait until next August to enjoy the Big Top.

It was announced that a contract has been signed by the Alexandria Lions Club and Kelly-Miller Ltd. for the exhibition of the Kelly-Miller Circus to be held in Alexandria on Friday, Aug. 8, 1997 for two performances.

Founded in 1938 by the famed Miller family of Oklahoma, it is one of the few remaining tent circuses in America.

Co-owner and manager, David Rawls, said "our business is built on tradition" and promptly extended an invitation to the public for a free preview on circus morning starting at 7:30 a.m. to see the animals unloaded and the tents raised.

The tents will go in the air between 8:30 and 9 a.m. and guides will be furnished for children of elementary school age.

"The upcoming year's circus event promises to be an even grander affair that in years past, as David and Carol Rawls present the '97 edition of the Kelly-Miller Circus," the Lions said in a press release.

The circus is just one of the many fund raisers the club has each year in order to raise money for the many services it provides the community.

Always in our thoughts and prayers, Donnie, Susan, Scott, Joanne, Tami, Richard and Marshall. 46-1p

Century-old rail line sold on Nov. 2

Dalkeith

by Jean MacLennan
874-2385

A new firm bought the local railway line that runs from Glen Robertson to Hawkesbury through Dalkeith on Nov. 2.

Originally called the Canadian Atlantic railway, it was built in 1891. Through the years it became the Canadian National Railway.

It was a very busy line with many cars carrying freight like coal, cattle, hay, straw, lumber, cheese, etc. It served as a passenger line too as my mother-in-law (Hattie MacIntosh MacLennan) writes in an article prepared for a WI presentation.

"The mails came in by train rather than by stage as formerly"

After that, a spur line from Hawkesbury to L'Original was built and the main products carried through Dalkeith in the last few years were steel.

Moment of silence observed

St. Raphael's

by Serge Dreimanis

At the monthly meeting of the Brown House Circle on Nov. 4, a minute of silence was observed by the membership in memory of Remembrance Day on Nov. 11. Many citizens of this community and its surrounding area were killed in two world wars. We owe them by remembering this always and doing all we can, every day, in the maintenance of peace everywhere.

An Important Message From

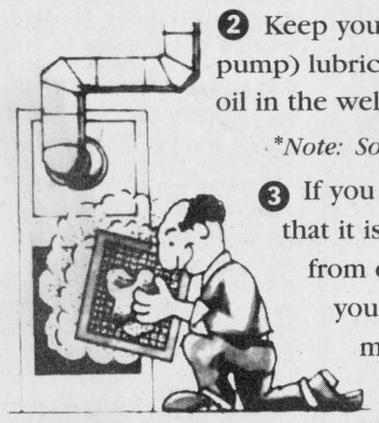
CONSUMERS GAS

IT'S TIME TO PREPARE YOUR HEATING SYSTEM FOR COLD WEATHER.

For better heating economy and efficiency, follow this easy step by step checklist.

Heating system check-up

❶ On warm air systems, clean furnace filters or replace disposable filters before the winter. A dirty filter can reduce air flow and cause your system to work harder than it has to.



❷ Keep your electric motor and fan bearings (and/or pump) lubricated for greater efficiency. (Two drops* of oil in the well each year should do it.)

Note: Some new motors do not need lubricating.*

❸ If you have a hot water heating system, ensure that it is filled to the proper level by bleeding air from each radiator. If you observe these basics, you will soon find that using gas can be even more economical.

Chimney check-up

It's difficult to know when you have a chimney problem. First, answer the following questions:

❶ Does your chimney have a metal chimney liner?

❷ Is your heating system connected to a metal venting system (that is, not a brick or stone chimney)? If you answer "Yes" to either of these questions, you probably need not worry about your chimney being able to adequately vent your furnace.

Any brick or stone chimney should receive periodic inspection from a chimney expert. However, here are three simple checks you can make yourself:

❶ Check the cleanout pit at the bottom of your chimney: Should you find any debris, remove it. If it contains bits of mortar, brick or stone, erosion could be taking place.

❷ Use a mirror to look up your chimney, through your cleanout door, during daylight hours. You should have an unobstructed view to the outside. There should be no visual evidence of crumbling mortar, brick or stone. Your chimney may be "offset", which will not allow you a visual inspection with a mirror. In such cases, we suggest an inspection by a chimney expert.

❸ Check outside chimney brickwork. You should not see a white, chalky substance on the bricks, stone or mortar.

If you have a problem

❶ If there is any chimney blockage above the vent connection, turn off your heating system (and your gas water heater) immediately. Call a chimney repair company for an inspection.

❷ If there is more than an inch of broken mortar, brick or stone in the cleanout pit and you cannot see daylight using a mirror, follow the instructions in step 1. If there is no blockage, call a chimney repair company for an inspection. You may operate the furnace and water heater until the chimney is inspected, but you should check the chimney periodically for blockage until you have the chimney contractor's report.

❸ If you see a white, chalky staining on exterior brickwork, stone or mortar, but the cleanout pit is clear and there are no obstructions in the chimney or signs of deterioration on the chimney's exterior, ask a chimney repair company for an inspection. In the meantime, you may operate your heating system safely.

Consult your Yellow Pages for Chimney Builders and Repairers.*

Some conservation tips

Follow these simple rules and the result will be a better, more economical heating system.

❶ Make sure you have well fitting doors and windows. A good fit keeps cold air out and warm air in. Proper weather-stripping and caulking also helps.

❷ Rugs, furniture, drapes, etc. should not be allowed to obstruct warm air outlets and cold air returns.

❸ Proper attic insulation means lower fuel costs.

❹ Dampers in open fireplaces should be closed when the fireplace is not in use.

❺ Hot water radiators will not heat effectively if air is in them. All air should be bled off.

❻ Make sure your humidifier is working correctly. Proper humidification can contribute to heating economy and your comfort level.

Drop by our office and ask for our leaflets: "What every householder should know about carbon monoxide" and "Your home needs fresh air".

Pub named after Dunvegan, Scotland

Dunvegan

by Peggi Calder

527-5293

Come out to the Dunvegan recreation meeting Sunday and join in with that fun group that gave you the Halloween party.

The meeting will be at the DRA hall at 8 p.m. and they would welcome new ideas.

On October 18th, the Glengarry Strathspey and Reel Society played in the opening ceremonies for a new pub in Ottawa – "The Dunvegan".

Named after Dunvegan, Scotland, the "local" will offer a fall Scottish program of music, dancing lessons, poetry and artistic sessions.

When Duncan J. MacDonald mentioned that he was from Dunvegan, they were suitably happy to have him playing fiddle at their opening.

Happy Birthday today to Doug MacLeod.

Calling all farmers and rural landowners with woodlots! – La Cité Collégiale in Hawkesbury has organized a woodlot information day through their wetlands/woodlands/wildlife program. This will be held Saturday, Nov. 16 from 9 a.m. to noon.

The tour will be visiting a number of demonstration sites that will teach how to plant and care for trees and wildlife shrubs, how tree shelters help hardwood trees grow faster, how to restore eroded shorelines with willows, how to manage forests to obtain wood products and wildlife. They will also be covering the new managed forest tax rebate program.

To register call 632-2952, Jacques Bouvier (ext. 5024) or Leslie Howes (ext. 5018). The tour is open to everyone and is free.

On Thursday, Dunvegan WI hosted the November birthday party at the Maxville Manor.

Fiddle music was provided by Duncan MacDonald and Allan Munro. Rev Jim McVeigh entertained with several beautiful songs, and Flora Chisholm gave a humorous reading. Eileen Campbell was the accompanist. .

Dunvegan WI members, including Maxville Rainbow WI member Dora Bill, sang several numbers and small gifts were distributed to the birthday celebrants.

Last Wednesday the South Nation River Conservation Authority breached the big beaver dam on the Scotch River section back of the village and installed a beaver baffle.

The baffle is a large pipe that is set across the breached dam. The beavers rebuild the dam around it and the baffle acts as a water leveller. Both ends are under water and it will allows some degree of control on the height of water.

The water has dropped nearly a foot and the change can be seen at the bridges near Concession 8 where it meets the road to Greenfield.

Checking the river the same day, I found several small fish that had been left up in shallow pools and returned them to safe water. There was a great blue heron standing by, obviously making the most of this opportunity.

One of the tiny fish was a stickleback – it was about two inches long and had three very noticeable spines on its back.

In the spring, the male will build a tiny house of vegetation glued together with mucous and will protect it quite ferociously.

The female lays her eggs inside the structure and once the young hatch, the male looks after them, even taking them into his mouth to protect them.

Maxville parade is set for Nov. 24 of the monument. The parade then led most of those in attendance to the Glengarry curling club where refreshments were served. As usual, it is always good to have the Maxville Scouts and Beavers and the Guides and Brownies with their leaders in attendance at this service.

Ken Johns already had his 50th birthday but the celebrations are to be held on Nov. 23 in the United Church from 12:30 to 4:30 p.m. there will be a musical program and refreshments following. All Ken's friends are cordially invited to attend this party.

The annual Santa Claus parade is to be held this year on Nov. 24 with the line-up starting at the Manor at 12:30. The judging for three prizes will be based on originality, representation of the theme which is "The Sounds of Christmas" and workmanship. Judging will take place at 1 p.m and then the parade will leave the Manor for the village route at 1:30 p.m. This parade is sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and Michael Cowley-Owen at 527-3131 is handling registration.

The Chamber of Commerce is also organizing its second annual Christmas dance for Dec. 7 at the Sports Complex. D. J. Pierre Villeneuve will supply the music and there will be a midnight buffet. There is an advance sale of tickets from postmistress Doreen Crites, Judy Gibbon at 527-2662 and Julia Danskin in the gift shop. Your support will be appreciated and you are assured of a very pleasant evening.

The Women's Institute is meeting on Nov. 25. It will be a craft evening and for complete details you are invited to contact Doreen Crites at 527-5685.

* * *

If you still have leaves to rake or stored in garbage bags, make sure you have them ready for the leaf pick-up on Nov. 20. They will then go to a compost site and not go to waste or use up space in a landfill site.

The winners in last week's calendar draw sponsored by the Maxville and District Lions Club were Catherine Hartrick, Maxville, David McDonald, Cornwall, Ford MacMillan, Avonmore, Marie Aubin, Dyer and Grace Doth, Maxville.

There hasn't been anything in this column about the birds the last while because there hasn't been anything to write. The gold and house finches are visiting our niger seed feeder in small numbers and the blue jays are feeding on the sunflower seeds in another feeder. On Monday, the first woodpecker put in an appearance. It is too mild yet to put out fat for them but they will take sunflower seeds as do two nut hatches and a chickadee which came the same day.

My official count for the Long Point Bird Observatory starts next week and I would hope for greater numbers if it didn't mean that worse weather would have to come too.
