NO TIME FOR LUNCH—The Quebec liquor store strike gave the staff of the local LCBO emporium its busiest day yet on Saturday as witness the lineup of thirsty Quebeckers caught by the camera at noon. There was no time out for lunch for Ben Proulx and his staff who were kept on the run right through the day. It was the same story, with longer lineups at Lancaster, Hawkesbury and Vankleek Hill. Even Morrisburg is reported to have had a quota of visitors from Quebec. No early settlement of the Quebec strike is foreseen and we hear completion of our new liquor store is being rushed so two stores can be in operation here during the Christmas season. Many At Funeral George McCallum

Funeral service for George Steele McCallum, 82, Lancaster, was conducted at the McArthur Bros. and McNeil Funeral Home, Cornwall, October 3, at 2 o'clock. Rev. John Fortier, Lancaster, and Rev. Kenneth MacDonald, Martintown, officiated.

Mr. McCallum was a lifelong resident in the 4th concession, Lancaster, and was well-known in Glengarry county having been a farmer all his life. He will be remembered for the fine grove of trees, popular with today's tourist, at the S-curve, Highway 34, across from the 4th concession, Lancaster, for it was he who furrowed the perfectly vertical rows many years ago. He and his wife moved from the farm to a home in Lancaster two years ago following his retirement.

Mr. McCallum met death at 2.25 p.m., September 30, when struck at the CNR level crossing in Lancaster by an eastbound train.

Born in the 4th concession, Lancaster, he was the son of the late John McCallum and Nancy Steele. He is survived by his wife Mary Margaret McRae and one son, Rae McCallum, Sept Iles, Que., also two grandchildren, Douglas and Linda. A brother, Malcolm McCallum, lives in Vancouver. Two brothers and two sisters predeceased him. Duncan and John Robert; also Marianne (Mrs. William Godsell) and Lillian.

Tragedy struck this family more than once. A young son was killed when struck by a car many years ago on Highway 34. Mr. McCallum's wife, Margaret, suffered severe injuries when struck by a car in front of her home on the same highway, June 19, this year. Mrs. McCallum is still undergoing treatment at Cornwall General Hospital.

Family Doctor And Friend Feted At Testimonial Dinner Tendered Dr. Dolan

Dr. Dominic J. Dolan was the man of the hour Saturday night when some 250 of his friends feted him at a testimonial dinner in Alexander Hall, here.

The genial doctor who has served Alexandria and Glengarry for close to 50 years heard his work in medicine extolled by several speakers. They described him as one of the last of a vanishing breed of country doctors who travelled the hard roads the pre-auto age practitioners knew in their visits to patients. His life story was reviewed, from his early days in Pakenham, the years he taught in Glengarry schools and his return with a degree in medicine to make this town and county his home and contribute in so many ways to the life of the community.

Dr. Dolan's warm, comforting bedside manner was recalled, his unselfish response to every demand on his services through the years. His devotion to the health needs of the community had been paramount, but there was mention, too, of his involvement in so many other community activities.

The address read by Chairman Henry D. Duggan and the words of C. Campbell Fraser, Bishop W. J. Smith of Pembroke, Monsignor Leo Lesage of Ottawa, reminded of his close connection with educational matters through the years, his political activities, his devotion to his church and fraternal ties, his interests in sports and other fields of community life.

The roll call of his achievements showed him a Knight of St. Gregory, so honored by his pope, recipient of the Centennial Medal, an honorary life member of the Glengarry Memorial Hospital, a past president of the Ontario School Trustees and Ratepayers Association, as well as one-time president or executive officer of many area organizations.

Presentations made to Dr. Dolan included the scroll read by Mr. Duggan and a souvenir book containing the personal tributes of all those present. Mayor Raymond Periard presented a floral basket on behalf of fellow citizens and there was a presentation of flowers from the Sisters of Maria Goretti Academy. Financial proceeds of the night will go to one of Dr. Dolan's charities.

Head table guests included members of the clergy, the counties' medical profession, political and legal lights and their wives. Dr. Dolan's family to two generations occupied a special table fronting the honored guest. His elder son, John Dolan of Ottawa, expressed the appreciation of the family to all who had participated in this testimonial to their father.

In his remarks, Dr. Dolan spoke feelingly of the full life he had known and enjoyed since making Alexandria his home almost 50 years ago. He touched on good times and bad, told intimate anecdotes and recalled friends now gone. His special interest in things educational led him to wonder on the future of a society in which youth had all the answers and so little sense of proportion that the university student now wants to dictate to his professors.

Times have changed, Dr. Dolan felt, but he believed in the basic stability of this new generation. Expressing his appreciation of this wonderful night he concluded with the thought that were he a young medical man seeking a place to set up practise he would make no mistake by settling among such fine people as he had found in Glengarry.

The Irish touch was naturally predominant in a brief program of entertainment which featured songs by Jean Paul Touchette, Jean and Grace Morris. Bishop Smith came through with "My Bonnie Native Glen" and Mrs. Mervyn MacDonald sang a tribute she had composed, covering the high points in Dr. Dolan's career. Three of his granddaughters, Susan, Ann and Patricia MacDonald of Ancaster, Ont., displayed talent in modern music and the MacCulloch dancers pleased with an Irish medley.

The evening was concluded by dancing when friends, for whom dinner tickets had been unavailable, dropped in to join in the testimonial to Dr. Dolan.

Will Attend Funeral

Dr. D. J. Dolan and son Jim leave today for Perrysburg, Ohio, where they will attend the funeral of Dr. James R. McAuley, a brother-in-law of the doctor. Aged 65, Dr. McAuley had planned to be present for Saturday's testimonial dinner for Dr. Dolan but illness intervened.

Died At Lachute

President of Lowe Brothers Dairy at Lachute, Que., James Leo (Jim) Lowe died Sept. 29th in the Montreal General Hospital, following a long illness. He was 54.

Five brothers and two sisters also survive: Martin of Grenville, George, Hugh, Emmett and Clifford of Lachute, Mary (Mrs. Dan Hoysted) of Ottawa, and Lydia, of Lachute. A brother, Bernard, predeceased him 10 years ago.

Standards Of Society Too Material Maione Tells Large Iona Audience

"If the North American Indians had lived by the discrimination practised today, this country would never have been settled by the Scottish, Irish, French and Europeans. Those people were forced by poverty to leave their lands and seek the resources of another country. But today our immigration policy denies the admittance of all but the skilled workers of other countries and we remain with the second highest per capita income in the world, ignoring the misery of destitute nations."

Such were the opening remarks of Romeo Maione, Executive Director of the Canadian Catholic Organization for Development and Peace, as he addressed an assembly at Iona Academy on Tuesday night, Oct. 8th, chaired by the Diocesan President of the CWL, Mrs. Marcel Major.

"Too much money is invested in improving the affluence of progressive nations, rather than promoting the advancement of the deprived countries of the world", he continued. "The rich countries of the world decide what prices will be on products such as tea, coffee, sugar, rubber and bananas. For example, in 1963 we paid Jamaica $163 a ton for sugar; today we pay them 1/6th that amount yet we charge them high prices for our exports. This is a poor extension of justice."

"The standards we live by are uninspiring for our young people. There is something wrong with a society that requires its best college graduates to invent another weapon to kill his fellow men; that sends them into an advertising media to brainwash an already overfed population into eating more food rather than to solve the problem of distributing our surplus food to the starving millions."

Mr. Maione was here at the invitation of the Catholic Women's League, who along with 180,000 other members across Canada have pledged support to the cause of the CCOPD, formed last year by the Canadian Catholic Bishops that there might me a structure similar to that set up by the major Protestant denominations in Canada. This would enable all Canadian Christians to work side by side in promotion of the same objective. This organization has already sent $25,000 to Biafra; a radio school reaching 70,000 people in Honduras has been established

Several projects are being planned by the CWL in support of this movement. Most immediate of these is the suggestion that in lieu of sending local Christmas cards, each family might donate a sum, say five dollars for instance, and each parish could forward the complete donation to foster goodwill throughout depressed areas of the world.

Tenders Awarded

A brief meeting of town council, Tuesday night, awarded the tender for blower service in snow removal this winter to Paul Roy Garage.

There was only one tender for the canteen concession at the Community Centre and it was awarded to the Brunet brothers, Maurice, Pierre and Richard, who had the concession last winter.

PACER TO START AT BLUE BONNETS—Raven Song, owned by Brian Prange, Alexandria, will run at Blue Bonnets race track at Montreal, Saturday, after winning six of eight races he was entered in at Ottawa's Rideau Carleton Raceway. A 12-year old gelding that came to North America from New Zealand in June, he ran a record mile at 2.05 3/5 and should place well at Blue Bonnets. Mr. Prange purchased Raven Song from Stanley Dancer, a New Egypt, NJ, horseman, and now has four horses in the new barn he has erected on his farm, five miles east of Alexandria. Under construction now is a practise track. Raven Song has an Alexandria following as shown in the above picture after he had won the Hotel Sur Le Lac pace at Rideau Carleton, Oct. 5th. Among those caught by the camera are Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan, Mrs. Prange, Roger Leblanc, the horse's groom, Mr. Prange, driver Jean Paul Charron of Gatineau Point, Que., and Paul Roy. Mr. Roy now has a horse stabled on the Prange farm.

IT'S OUR OPINION

When Irish Eyes Were Smiling

Patients, former patients and other friends ganged up on Dr. Dolan, Saturday night, when they tendered him a testimonial dinner that was recognition not only of almost fifty years of medical attention but of many other fields in which he has served town and county.

This kind of thing should be done more often, in our opinion. The testimonial dinner was an instrument used frequently by our forefathers for recognizing merit and evidencing feelings of warm friendliness. It must be a thousand times more satisfactory on the receiving end than the vague hope he or she may be honored in death by a wealth of floral tributes and possibly just as flowery an obituary notice.

Dr. Dolan seemed to thrive on the outpouring of goodwill his night engendered; and well he might, for the good things that were being said of him were not being interred with his bones. He was there to discount with suitable modesty all these paeans of praise; but they had to be a source of satisfaction to him, and his friends found warmth in the glow of those smiling Irish eyes.

The speakers dwelt on the nearly fifty years Dr. Dolan has practised medicine here, a half century that goes back to the horse and buggy days and an era of poor road conditions that made heavy demands on medical men. His many years of service to education were recalled as were his interest in his church, in athletics and many other community activities. The roll call of the many offices he has filled outside the field of medicine added up to busy days and nights.

No wonder, his friends must have been reflecting, the doctor's walking pace was almost a running one. He had a lot of ground to cover, many things to attend to; and there were only 24 hours in each day.

He seems to have thrived on a heavy work load for this man of medicine appeared in the pink of health as family and friends did him honor Saturday night.

In his closing remarks Dr. Dolan reflected that were he a young man with fifty years of medical practise ahead he could think of no finer place to settle than right here in Glengarry. This testimonial dinner must have assured him Glengarry would be delighted to welcome his prototype if even Pakenham could produce another son of his stature and sunny temperament.

Problem With The Pill

Dispensers of welfare at the local level must have it tough trying to keep happy both the indigent recipient and the municipal council that wants him to keep some control on welfare expenditures. And sometimes the beneficiaries of public assistance aren't too helpful in putting the work of the welfare officer in the best light.

Like, for instance, the story that's going the rounds of an area welfare officer who was supplying the pill to a woman who'd already feathered her nest with an assured income from the department of welfare. You've probably already guessed it. She neglected to take the pill one day. The result wasn't exactly fatal; it might better be described as fetal.

A total waste were all those pills the municipality had been furnishing her in the hope of limiting its involvement. Now the township and the province face the dim prospect of providing larger monthly payments for years to come to a family that already had it made the welfare way and wanted no more part in the population explosion.

The pill cannot be held accountable for this two-way assault on the welfare dollar. Responsibly used, it probably would have done its job of preventing the addition of another infant indigent to the welfare rolls. But human frailties were involved and they often foul up even the best conceived ideas of planners in government and sociologists.

When Pope Paul vetoed the use of the pill and other man-made methods of birth control he may have had it in mind the pill will prove most effective among the top strata of society. Milady who is among the haves of this world may be better conditioned to effective use of the pill than her have-not sisters who might be less capable of self-control.

Planned parenthood in the course of time could conceivably result in a marked imbalance in the birthrate between citizens of high and low estate, between countries which have a high standard of living and those struggling toward that goal. Inevitably, society as we know it would be downgraded by the sheer weight of numbers.

Man-made laws can be written off the statutes, revised, amended, replaced. Changing the laws of nature proves much more difficult as at least one area welfare officer has discovered to his dismay.

Punitive Postal Increases

Proposed increases in mailing charges for newspapers and magazines are contained in a Post Office bill given first reading in the House of Commons last week. The new rates, especially as they affect daily newspapers, appear to be prohibitively high and calculated to fall most heavily on residents of the rural areas who depend on the mails to carry their reading matter.

We of the weeklies will not be so hard hit by the new rates which retain the present free delivery within a forty-mile radius of the point of publication. Readers beyond the forty-mile zone can expect higher subscription rates as costs of mailing are more than trebled to five cents a pound.

Net effect of these new rates apparently will be to drastically cut the circulation of all newspapers and magazines. The weekly paper will still circulate in its own trading area but its outside readership may be curtailed by a higher subscription price made necessary by increased mailing charges. The daily papers and magazines will be available in urban areas via carrier boy and on the newsstands. Cost of mailing them to distant points or to rural subscribers will be so prohibitive as to rule out the reader who cannot be serviced except by mail.

Commenting on the proposed mailing charges, the Ottawa Journal points out these increases may add $20 a year to the price 10,000 rural families in Eastern Ontario and Western Quebec pay for delivery of Ottawa daily newspapers. About $10 of the present subscription price of the Journal now goes to the Post Office. Under the new rates, a Journal official estimates, mailing charges could go to $30 a year. We will have to pass on the $20 increase to the subscriber and we doubt many rural readers would be willing to absorb it. The probable result "is that they will all cancel their subscriptions".

As we noted earlier, this paper will not be too hard hit by the proposed new rates. We will lose readership among Glengarrians away from home as subscription prices rise to meet an increase of more than 200 per cent in mailing charges. Many of these subscribers are already plagued by pitifully poor postal service that sees as much as a week's delay in delivery in some cases.

We will understand the subscriber's reluctance to pay more for such service but we will regret the loss of these names from our mailing list. The first editor of this newspaper saw as an important part of its role the link with home it provided for Glengarrians away. We, too, have had many evidences that the paper is appreciated in distant places and we would be unhappy to see this tie broken by inordinately high mailing charges.

They would bear most heavily, however, on residents of rural Canada who are regular readers of daily newspapers and periodicals. Subscription prices would in many cases be prohibitive and unless he travelled daily to the nearest newsstand the farmer might be left dependent on radio and television to keep him informed on current events.

These media can prove most unsatisfactory in keeping one informed in depth.

We are left wondering if the government at Ottawa has sufficiently reflected on all the possible repercussions inherent in these higher postal rates for newspapers.

Millions of dollars are being spent on school plant in this province and we are moving to regional school boards which we are told will guarantee equal opportunities in education for city, town and country. We have adult education courses, expensive retraining programs designed to raise scholastic standards. The federal treasury shares in the huge costs of these programs.

How can it reconcile these expenditures aimed at raising rural standards of knowledge with a Post Office policy that may result in a blackout of the printed word from the rural scene? Reading is the first of the basic three "R's" in education and newspapers are currently used in the classroom. Yet they may be prohibited from reaching rural Canada because the government has forgotten the Post Office was intended to be a service, not necessarily a profitable one for the national treasury.

Postmaster-General Kierans may be profit-oriented from his background of big business activity. He has inherited this plan for postal increases from his predecessor but if he would prove his administrative acumen to the Canadian people he might better seek ways of cutting costs in his department rather than take the easy way of higher taxes.

Increased postal rates for newspapers and magazines can be justified; but not, in our opinion, at the proposed levels. These are so punitive as to possibly infringe on one of the people's most important rights—freedom of the press to keep the public informed.

JUST ANOTHER SQUARE

Indians success stories, and there are plenty, are seldom told. The Indian who competes successfully off the reserve and makes his way in the world is just another "square," and squares don't count to those looking for causes to support.

U.S. ELECTION IN CAPSULE

RR1 Balderson, Ont.
Sept. 30, 1968

The editor,
The Glengarry News,

"U.S. politics may never be the same!" exclaimed an Ottawa Journal headline of Aug. 29th.

A significant change is taking place in American politics today. The liberal "New Deal" philosophy of Roosevelt is being questioned and challenged by modern philosophiscal conservation. Over the last thirty years, the liberals dominated the Democratic Party and were a very important factor in the Republican Party. During this political era, the individual had little alternative from the "liberal establishment". As liberal plans failed to meet objectives, discontent grew and finally in 1964 a major break-through for conservative forces occurred, as Senator Goldwater captured the Republican nomination. For the first time in decades, the conservatives gained complete control of the Republicans, as the Eastern Liberal Republican establishment went down to defeat.

Senator Goldwater, deserted by the liberal republicans (a la Rockefeller), faced a united democratic party. A hostile press dominated by liberal writers stooped to unprecedented distortions and character assassinations, urged readers to vote Democrat.

Even in Canada, a one-sided picture of the 1964 campaign was

North Hills News-Record, Pittsburg, Penn.

A Canadian board of education will experiment with a new teaching alphabet with about 100 youngsters. The alphabet, devised in England, is supposed to be "a tool by which children learn to read more quickly".

Here's an example: Wuns thaer was a man in an oeld house.

To many a harassed businessman it seems that students already are graduating from high school and going into jobs with that spelling entrenched. Why encourage it at the primary level?

Surely it is just as easy for a child to learn to write "there" as it is to write "thaer" and "old" is simpler than "oeld".

True, some of the words in the English language are complex but it would seem that the experimenters are seeking the easy way out until the stage is reached when nonteaching is the fashionable thing. Then, each child will have his own spelling style. After all, if "wuns thaer was a man" is accepted, what is wrong with "wunce ther wus a man" and everyone is his own dickshunary? Or should that be dixshonerrie?

RAMBLING REPORTER

REFLECTIONS ON REFLECTIONS

We don't want to cast any reflections on the Royal Bank, mind you. That institution is the custodian of most of our wealth and we'd be foolish to infer anything that might start a run on the bank or otherwise shake the confidence of our handful of readers.

Neither do we mean to spark a feud between neighbors of long standing, nor get those two banking goliaths, the Royal and the Nova Scotia, at each other's throats.

Come what may we feel impelled to alert Andy Comeau to the fact something nasty is being done nightly to that handsomely renovated west wall of his bank. Your Rambling Reporter was almost dumfounded a few weeks ago as he wearily rambled home. It's his habit to con the place over carefully for burglars who might be after his horde secreted therein. He couldn't credit it when he saw flaunted boldly across that west wall "The Bank of Nova Scotia".

The sign was down side up and back to the front, mind you; but that was no puzzle to a printer who long ago learned to read type the wrong way.

Less than a minute's reflection and we knew this to be a reflection of that new neon sign Leopold Seguin put up on his bank. A bit more reflection and we had it figured the new sign would be no reflection on the other bank if the Royal's front door wasn't angled. It is, though; and it's been thataway all these years.

Could it be possible, Andy, that the Bank of Nova Scotia is using psychology, or something, to lure business its way? That new sign that's so opportunely positioned replaces one that badly needed rejuvenation by the Bank of Scova Notia. For months that old sign lighted up only the first two words "The Bank".

That could have been a boast; and even a reflection on the service across the street

Further reflection suggests that pulling down a blind on the door of the Royal Bank would end any further reflection from that other bank.

Still further reflection brings the thought that maybe the Royal is happy to flaunt the fact its opposition can be a bit backward.

Canada's banks are so close knit what one does is apt to reflect on another.

GOTTA TAKE A CHANCE

Why don't you write an editorial on Bingo, someone suggested to the editor just the other night?

He wouldn't touch it with a ten-foot pole. Ye editor is all for women's rights since he long ago learned he couldn't win an argument or get in the last word when the weaker sex was involved.

So he passed on the suggestion to us. When the editor suggests, his Rambling Reporter has learned to start rambling and so we had to hone up on this business of Bingo.

Seems there's only one game played regularly in town and those gals who are really infected by the gambling fever have to take bus trips to Cornwall, Casselman, Hawkesbury and assorted points where the real action is.

God bless them, we figured; it's a cheap way of getting out of town and more power to them as long as the bus stays between the ditches. But this fellow who's anti-Bingo points out a lot of local money is going out of town and besides these women might better be home cleaning their kiddies clothes, pressing hubby's pants, or otherwise occupied.

There they sit, as he tells it, ruining their eyes and ears scanning maybe a dozen cards and waiting with baited breath for "Under the "N" 37. Somebody yells "Bingo" and all the others say "damn".

That's more or less the way we see Bingo. It gives us the shudders. But in fairness to Bingo bugs we sought the slant of one who is addicted.

The way she tells it, it's all his fault. She goes out to Bingos cause there's nothing better to do at home. Hubby's too tired even to watch TV and he's gone off to bed. Faced with the alternative of bed or bored, she goes out to Bingo.

Seems Bingo is just another angle of the eternal triangle. Seems woman, like man, likes to take a chance on something. And when the chesterfield is old stuff, even Bingo may be resorted to.

Fashion experts say the mini trend will continue, but it looks as though the end is in sight.

presented as the Canadian Press devoted coverage to such men as James Reston and Walter Lippmann.

Senator Goldwater lost the election although gaining nearly 40% of the vote, while running on a strictly conservative platform. Conservatism was firmly established as a major force in U.S. politics.

The present trends have been profoundly influenced by the events of 1964 as well as the lawlessness and violence in American society and the Vietnamese war. As a result, the foundations of the two established parties have been shaken.

The Republicans fared the best. The liberal forces led by Rockefeller could gain only 20% of the delegate ballots at the convention this year. Richard Nixon won handily, in spite of tremendous expenditure by Rockefeller and widespread support for him in the eastern press. Conservatives, although preferring a more conservative candidate like Ronald Reagan, realized that Nixon was acceptable to a greater portion of voters.

The Democrats suffered more serious divisions. They were divided not by political philosophies, but by a steamy brutal jungle war in a small faraway land.

Senator Eugene McCarthy and the late Senator Kennedy opposed President Johnson's war policy. They gained significant public support in the primaries. When President Johnson dropped out of the running, Hubert Humphrey became the "administration" man, supporting the war policy. Hubert Humphrey, supported by the party establishment, decisively defeated the McCarthy forces but the bitterness remains.

The Democrats face another division as they may lose the southern support. Traditionally, the Democratic Party maintained power by holding two diverse groups under the banner. It is possible that the southern conservative Democrats will leave the northern liberal Democrats and support George Wallace or the Republicans.

Not only do the two established parties suffer divisions. A great number of Americans are dissatisfied with both of them.

George Wallace, the "third party" candidate seems to be holding his very widespread popular support, reputed by many observers to amount to 25% of the total vote. He seems to be in control of the southern states and commands significant support in the border states and appeals to many whites in the riot torn northern cities. George Wallace's statement that "those two big parties of ours who think they've got a divine right to carve this nation up", will gain the support of many who feel that the Democrats and the Republicans are the same thing under different labels.

There is also a possibility that the leftwing anti-war forces will field a team of their own. If such a ticket is available, it will gain the support of many McCarthy supporters.

In conclusion, 1968 will be a year of change in a most complicated election campaign. Liberal "new deal" policies are on trial. Conservatism has become a major force. The Democrats are divided. Irregardless of who wins the election, many issues will not likely be settled until the 1972 campaign. Americans are searching for a solution to their problems.

Yours truly,
Jim McCann,

BELL LINES

by L. M. Holtby
your telephone manager

Bell Canada has always urged employees to use all possible safety precautions when working and in recent years has stressed safe driving habits. One of the safety groups in our Company recently circulated a report of an experiment made by a tire company and a precision instrument maker. The astonishing results show that too fast, tense, erratic driving is not only dangerous but saves little time.

Two identical cars were fitted with instruments which registered every driving detail during a 1,000-mile trip. The devices showed how often the driver braked, and how hard; how many cars he passed and how many overtook him, and the total driving time. One driver was told to do what we all do when we are in a hurry —overtake when it's safe and take bends at the maximum speed the car and our own ability will allow. The second driver made the trip in a relaxed style, avoiding any risk and moving as the traffic flow permitted.

Results show that after 1,000 miles the speedhog finished 31 minutes ahead of the easy-does-it driver. The speedster had almost 2½ times as many swerves, stomps on the accelerator and "here-I go-hope-I-make-it" bursts on the wrong side of the road. In the test the faster driver used about 10 gallons more gas than his competitor. The added wear and tear on the hard driver's brake linings, suspension and engine was obvious.

During the drive the fast car had four emergency brakings and 1,335 other brakings as compared to no emergency brakings and 652 other brakings for the slow car. The fast car overtook 2,004 cars as compared to 645 by the slow car and was overtaken by 13 autos while the slow car was passed by 142.

It looks like we'd be doing ourselves and our cars a good turn by slowing down — especially when only a few minutes are lost in the process.

What's a half-hour over 1,000 miles?

When the country's largest computer installation was delivered to Bell Canada headquarters in Montreal last month, the most crucial part of the move-in was lifting a 5,400-pound memory storage unit seven floors up the outside of our building. If tipped more than 10 degrees, the unit would be damaged. We're happy to report that high-spirited proof was given that it arrived safely. A full champagne glass was taped to the top of the huge crate before hoisting began. Crate and glass arrived untipped.

When in operation the computer will do the mammoth job of handling details of Bell Canada's total investment, operating costs and manpower resources. It will be capable of performing 1,100,000 functions per second and will be linked by TWX, Dataspeed and other Company facilities to Bell Canada offices throughout Ontario and Quebec.

TB Association Broadens Program

"When people in this area receive their Christmas Seals in a few weeks, they will note that our Association is now the St. Lawrence Tuberculosis and Health Association. The addition to our name seemed to us to be a first step in letting our supporters know that we are widening our program," John McBain told the Glengarry News following a meeting of the executive this week.

"We are still very much interested in tuberculosis and have no intention of slackening our tuberculosis prevention program," Mr. McBain continued, "in fact if the sanatorium is closed, it probably will be extended, but the alarming rate at which other lung diseases is increasing seemed to leave us no choice but to bend some of our energies, and some part of our Christmas Seal funds, to programs aimed at prevention of these diseases.

"Emphysema, bronchitis and lung cancer are the three most conspicuous", he continued, "but the Canadian Tuberculosis and Respiratory Disease Association (which has also expanded its name and program) is now stocking educational material on 14 respiratory ills."

In emphysema and bronchitis, prevention is every bit as important, perhaps more important than in the case of tuberculosis. There are drugs that cope with tuberculosis. So far, no cure has been found for emphysema—called the fastest growing disease in the western world. Twenty years ago few people had heard of it. In our centennial year it killed more than 900 Canadians and in combination with bronchitis, close to another 800. We can expect the figure to go up until we persuade people not to start smoking or, if they have started, to stop.

Yet the death toll from emphysema is considered by many to be the minor part of the tragedy. Emphysema sufferers live for years so short of breath that many cannot earn a living, cannot climb stairs, cannot walk at a moderate pace. Some have difficulty swallowing. It is a hard life.

Canada is not the only place where tuberculosis associations are expanding their programs to include prevention of other respiratory diseases. The British and American Associations devote substantial sums to research in these fields and are deeply involved in anti-cigarette smoking and anti-air pollution programs.

"We think this new challenge will tax our energies every bit as vigorously as they have been taxed in the past," said Mr. McBain, "but we have a good bit more confidence now than we had when Tuberculosis Associations began their long haul. We have learned that the public responds to a challenge. We value their loyalty and we will work hard to merit their support. It will be no easier to fight diseases whose cause is rooted in habits than a disease cause by a germ, the tubercle bacillus, but we are on our way—and we hope the people of Cornwall and the United Counties are with us."

Pledged Vows At Kirk Hill

BARTON—BLAIR

A wedding of interest took place at St. Andrew's United Church, Kirk Hill, Saturday, September 21, at 11 a.m., when Vivian Nan, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Blair, Bonnie View Farm, Dalkeith, became the bride of Garfield Morris, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Barton, RR2 Vankleek Hill. Reverend Ernest Barratt officiated at the double-ring ceremony with Mrs. Clarence MacMillan at the organ and Mrs. Ernest Barratt as soloist.

Given away by her father, the bride wore a long gown of white antique satin and Chantilly lace with empire waist, lace-trimmed bodice, bell sleeves and lace-edged cathedral train. Her shoulder-length silk tulle veil was held in place by a Queen Anne cap. She carried cynbidium orchids on a white bible and wore a single strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Eldred Brodie, Cornwall, sister of the bride, who wore a full-length gown of salmon antique satin with matching velvet trim. The attendants, Miss Isabel Blair, Kemptville, sister of the bride, Miss June Barton, Ottawa, sister of the groom, Mrs. Lorne Abell and Mrs. Michael Ross, Montreal, all wore apple-green gowns of antique satin similar to that of the matron of honor.

The groomsman was Cecil Runions, Cornwall, uncle of the groom, and the ushers were Barry Barton, Vankleek Hill; Lorne Johnston, Eldred Brodie, Cornwall and Arden Johnston, Ottawa.

The bridal party was piped from the church and at the reception by David Thornton, Montreal.

The reception and dinner was held in St. John Anglican Church Hall. The toast to the bride was given by her cousin, Iain Douglas of Montreal West.

Mr. and Mrs. Barton left for the Maritimes, the bride travelling in a green wool coat with a bronze green plaid dress and pill box hat and black patent accessories. On their return the couple will reside at RR No. 2 Vankleek Hill.

Guests from a distance were from Cornwall, Toronto, Ottawa, Mallorytown, Montreal, London, Asbestos, Que.; Burlington, Ont. and Danville, Que.

Prior to the wedding the bride was entertained to a trousseau tea at her parent's home; a His and Her Entertainment Shower at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael C. Ross, Montreal; a China Shower, by Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Abell, Pierrefonds, Que., and a community shower tendered by the ladies of the district in Kirk Hill United Church Hall.

The Bank of Nova Scotia introduces the Cheque Guarantee Card.

What's it good for?

Paying by cheque, your own personal cheque, even in places where you're a complete stranger. Cashing cheques without question, delay or embarrassment.

What's so different about this card?

1. It carries your photograph. In living colour. This is proof positive that you are who you say you are. 2. It is proof positive that The Bank of Nova Scotia guarantees payment of your cheques. Anytime. Anywhere.

It's the photograph that does it. Your Scotiabank Cheque Guarantee Card introduces you with instant face-to-face identification. So there's absolutely no risk to the person who's accepting your cheque.

Another advantage. If you should happen to write a cheque for more than you have in your account, there's an automatic line of credit built right in.

What does the card cost you?

Two dollars. And that's it. There's no cost at all to the person who's accepting your cheque.

Come into The Bank of Nova Scotia. We'll photograph you with our special colour camera.

When you get your Cheque Guarantee Card, carry it at all times. Present it whenever you write a cheque. In a store. In a restaurant. Anywhere.

SPORTS in the GLENS

by ANGUS H. McDONELL

This was the first Thanksgiving holiday in many years that we did not make the trek to St. Catharines to join our kinfolk in the traditional turkey festivities capped by a picturesque drive through the Niagara fruit belt and take in a Rider-Ticat gridiron classic. Hamilton is usually the winner and that made the drive home always feel much added mileage.

This year the co-pilot was grounded by Dr. Nadeau who is doing a fine professional chore in trimming the suet and seeing that the ticker is ticking close to normal.

So we had an enjoyable holiday night here in the Glens.

Thanksgiving, to us, got underway last Wednesday, when St. Lawrence High from Cornwall, a formidable EOSSA "A" football team, visited Alexandria and were thoroughly extended to win an exhibition game over GDHS 17-8.

It is no secret that this writer estimates that our local student football squad rates EOSSA "A" and belongs in that St. Lawrence riverfront league.

Stan Fraser, his assistants and players by virtue of this exhibition near-victory has convinced us that they are heading in the right direction.

St. Lawrence quickly discovered this game was not going to be any romp. Paul Poirier hauled in a MacGillivray pass that was converted and Bruce MacCuaig tossed in another point to put GDHS in an 8-point lead before the visitors began to move. By half time the Saints tied the score and then won the game in the last half by adding another TD and two singles to make the final 17-8.

GDHS with a bit of luck might have closed the gap, even go on to win. Neil Macdonald, quite a student of the game and one of the top pass receivers in this league, dropped two passes that ordinarily he would have hung onto but that is what makes football the attraction it is from school ranks to CFL.

St. Lawrence stuck mainly to a ground attack, in fact only threw two passes during the game. So, much credit goes to the defence platoon.

Defence Captain Roger Jeaurond, a brother of teacher and assistant coach, Jean-Yves, set the blocking pace to hold the Saints ground attack. Lee Taillefer was another along with corner line backers Bob Benn and Douglas Dumouchel greatly aiding the front line.

Shannon Collier and Paul Hurtubise starred at defensive half, while middle guard, Howard Cameron anchored the line ably supported by Jean-Guy Seguin, Gerald Laframboise and Richard Vaillancourt. Glen Allan MacPherson earned respectable yardage in his punting efforts.

Moving on to Friday's school schedule Char-Lan were a TD better than Maxville winning 20-12 while Hawkesbury moved back into first place by thumping the Hill's VCI squad 25-0.

This Friday, one of the season's most important games is slated for our new local field as GDHS hosts Williamstown. A win for Alexandria just about gives Ourtown's students first place as they have already met and won over the Hawks.

Over in the Indian Lands, Vankleek Hill will visit Don Bond and his Maxville team that are below last year's strength due to an early season leg injury to Don Blaney that has hampered his play.

HITHER AND YON

Between the turkey and pumpkin pie courses . . . John Chornabay, Center manager, had first class ice for the holiday weekend and limbering up hockey practises . . . we regretted missing the Dr. Dolan social evening . . . Bishop Smith, Msgr. Lesage and Doctor Tallon were among several of the old sport brigade attending . . . Argos win over Lions was expected and for once we were right in our call to have Riders take Ticats . . . wasn't that a contrast on the squawk box gridiron to switch from Als 1968 demise, to that classic in Regina. No Hollywood writer could draft a more exciting script except Bobby Hull's appearance in Chicago. We doubt if there is another team in the CFL that can display more collective guts than the Jolly Green Giants as they hurdled the Stampeders into first place . . . Ron Lancaster's intercepted pass by Calgary with seconds to play in the first half and then the fumble in the first sequence of the second would discourage just about any other club . . . but not Roughriders. We still think they will represent the West.

Weekend predictions . . . GDHS over Char-Lan . . . Maxville to top the Hill . . . Riders to jolt Ti-Cats and of course Argos to hang another on Als.
