Project to save Maxville train station is dead

By Brenda-Jane Kerr
News reporter

The plan to save the Maxville train station has run out of steam and the vintage building will likely see the wrecking ball by the end of the year.

"Council basically didn't get behind the project," said Michael Cowley-Owen, spokesperson for the Maxville Heritage Committee.

The heritage committee made its second and final pitch to council last Tuesday night, asking the village to apply for federal and provincial infrastructure funding to save the station.

What the committee got was a promise from council to apply for supplementary funding through the infrastructure program.

The supplement, which can be applied for by any municipality, is a pool of infrastructure program money leftover after the Oct. 1 application deadline and will be awarded on the basis of need.

"There almost certainly won't be any supplementary funding," said Cowley-Owen.

"Council just pretended to back (the project)."

To date, council has not been in favor of the plan to save the station citing a lack of fundraising since the committee was struck in July, a lack of need to restore the building and uncertainty over where the operational costs for the building will come from.

At last week's meeting the committee presented council with secured promises from members of the general public to purchase $12,000 of shares as well as guaranteed loans of $8,000.

Based on those commitments, the Caisse Populaire in St-Isidore extended the committee a $20,000 line of credit.

But "it was not discussed at all," said Cowley-Owen.

"They already made up their minds to put the money into the medical centre."

Council has decided to go ahead with a $108,000-application, representing the last of the infrastructure funding available to the village, to "revamp the medical centre," said McEwen.

Council had been considering giving the centre a "cosmetic face-lift on the outside," said McEwen, but has now decided to renovate the interior of the building as well.

"The medical centre has been on the table since day one," said McEwen.

Council has put the train station request together with a request to upgrade the Maxville fairgrounds grandstand and is making one application for about $500,000 to the supplementary fund.

Cowley-Owen added that because the amount is so high, he doesn't expect the money will come through.

"Because it's tied with the grandstand," said Cowley-Owen, "there certainly won't be any funding."

Maxville Reeve Jim McEwen said that even if there is some funding

Alexandria has highest crime rate of 24 towns in 4,000 population

By Pauline Ashton
News* correspondent

In 1993, Alexandria had the highest crime rate of 24 towns in Ontario in the 4,000 population category, Police Chief Paul Deveau reported.

Deveau told Police Services Board Monday, "only four towns in the province recorded higher crime statistics than Alexandria, out of 34 municipalities under 5,000 population."

High crime towns included Petrolia and Blenheim in Western Ontario, and the far north communities of Atikokan and Michipicoten.

"Every crime in the area gets headlined 'Alexandria' even if they happen out of town and our police have nothing to do with it," Mayor J. P. Touchette complained.

"It makes us look like a crime capital or something."

Alexandria with a population of 3,500 racked up 512 reported criminal offences in 1993, including murder, drug offences, robbery, simple and sexual assaults, and offences against federal statutes.

Actual crimes of violence numbered 43, a violent crime rate of one every 1,229 of population.

Chief Deveau called the violent crime rate "low when compared to other small towns."

There were 195 property crimes in Alexandria last year, the largest category, including break-and-enter, vandalism and theft.

Alexandria had 65 more criminal offences reported last year than Kemptville, which recorded 447 offences for a population of 3,100.

But Kemptville's violent crime rate was higher than Alexandria's, with one violent crime for every 871 population.

A total of 27 violent crimes were committed in Kemptville last year.

Grant Crack to challenge Touchette

There'll be a race for mayor in Alexandria this election.

Alexandria resident Grant Crack has announced that he will run against 20 year-mayor Jean Paul Touchette in the mid-November municipal election.

The announcement was made Monday, to The News by the 31-year-old president of Glengarry Golf Club and landscape manager with Glenview Estates in Ottawa.

Crack said that according to public opinion, it is time for a change in the leadership of Alexandria.

"I've spoken with many people and they're dissatisfied with the way the town's heading."

After 20 years with the same leadership, it is time for a change, he said.

Crack has his nomination papers at the town office awaiting signatures. He hopes to have his papers filed committing him to run for mayor within the next week.

The 20-year Alexandria resident acknowledges he will have a battle on his hands, and says he is serious about running for the position.

"I wouldn't be doing it if I didn't think I could win."

He added, he is not after the mayor's position for himself. "I want to win it for the people."

He said he will issue a press release next week, divulging more details about his campaign and its platform.

Father of suspect pleads guilty to firearm charge

By Greg Kielec
News editor

The father of an area teen charged in the March murder of Alexandria resident Gerald Cuerrier has pleaded guilty to careless storage of a firearm.

Attila Horvath, the father of 18-year-old Jason Horvath, entered the plea in court in Alexandria on Sept. 28 and was given a conditional discharge by Judge Lennox.

As a condition of the discharge, he must do 120 hours of community work directed toward firearms education. He also must serve 15 months of probation.

Horvath was charged by Maxville OPP with careless storage of a firearm shortly after the murder of Cuerrier in March.

According to police, the RCMP officer's service revolver was used in the murder on March 23 this year.

The RCMP has not yet been decided whether disciplinary action will be taken against Horvath, a plain-clothes investigator who has served nine years on the force.

"The matter is being reviewed by the division," Sgt. Don Domenie of the officer support section said in Ottawa on Friday.

The review could last anywhere from a week to a month, he said.

If displinary action is decided upon, it could range from a verbal warning to an outright dismissal, he said.

Horvath's son and two young offenders were charged in connection with the Cuerrier murder in March.

Last week, one of the young offenders pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of manslaughter in Alexandria court. He was originally charged with second-degree murder.

Jason Horvath, and the remaining young offender, have yet to settle the case in court.

Horvath is to be in court in Ottawa Nov. 16 for a pre-trial hearing. The young offender will be back in court for a second pre-trial hearing Oct. 6.

Cross-border stink has area residents crying fowl

Over 100 petitioners protest plans to build chicken manure storage pit in Quebec

By Brenda-Jane Kerr
News reporter

There's a conflict brewing in Dalhousie, Quebec over a potential 'fowl' smell in the air.

Area residents are disgruntled over a neighboring farmer's plans to build and operate a chicken manure storage pit on his property.

On Monday night the dispute came to a head when 120 area residents, armed with a petition of 142 signatures, gathered for a special meeting with the Quebec Ministry of the Environment and the Ministry of Agriculture.

The decision to give the final okay to the project has been postponed until next month as the two ministries argue whether the licence should be for a liquid or dry manure product.

However area residents have launched a strong protest and with the support of the village mayor and four of six councillors they hope to have the licence denied all together.

The residents claim the smell will travel across the Ontario/ Quebec border to as far away as Lancaster Heights, effecting the value of their properties and disrupting their day-to-day living.

"We feel it will effect the quality of life because this stuff smells terrible," said Dave Tyldsley, a 20-year Dalhousie resident nearest the proposed pit site.

"You don't even hang your wash out in that."

"Everybody else will pay the price," said Tyldsley. "There's two winners and everybody else pays."

Tyldsley is referring to a business arrangement between his farming neighbor, Andre Villeneuve, and the Ferme St. Eszotique poultry farm to dump poultry manure 1.5 kilometres from the Village of Dalhousie.

For $10 per dump truck load the farmer will recieve the cheap chicken manure and the poultry company will have a place to store it.

"They (the company) probably don't want it either," said Tyldsley.

The open storage pit will look like an above-ground swimming pool, about 60 feet in diameter and will hold about 100 dump truck loads of manure.

"We're not going to take this lying down," said Stephane Levac, a resident living near the proposed site.

"My house is my investment and I don't want that to go down."

The proposed location will see the pit built in Town stores open this Monday are subject to fines

New regulations in effect since August make shop openings illegal

Local businesses considering opening on Thanksgiving Monday are in for big time fines.

Alexandria Police Chief Paul Deveau said holiday closure laws have changed as of August, making business openings on civic holidays such as Thanksgiving illegal.

Breaking the law by allowing the public into sales establishments, will result in a maximum fine of $50,000 or the day's gross receipts, whichever is higher.

Both business owners and employees can be charged the same fine.

Before August, the New Democratic Party stated it would not enforce the complete retail closure act, permitting stores to open on Sundays but not on civic holidays.

But because the NDP ruling was not law, charges for civic holiday openings had not been laid in Alexandria before.

"If the law is going to be ignored, it's not right to ignore it one day and not another," said Deveau.

the middle of 12 acres of wooded area on Villeneuve's property.

Villeneuve said no smell will be detected from the storage pit which complies with Ministry of the Environment guidelines.

"No way will they smell it, even when we work at it," said Villeneuve.

"If you look at the recommendations of the Ministry of Environment they recommend only 30 metres of woods," said Villeneuve.

"The prevailing winds will carry the smell of this stuff for many miles," said Tyldsley.

Tyldsley and Levac also said before the manure can be unloaded, it will have to be stirred and the smell from it will be the worst.

"When you stir up manure, it don't smell pretty," said Levac.

"That's when it's time to leave and go to Florida or anywhere else," said Tyldsley.

But Villeneuve said the residents are incorrect with their assumptions and don't know enough about the project.

"The real problem is misinformation," said Villeneuve a 10-year Dalhousie farmer.

Villeneuve said his neighbors don't realize the manure will only be removed during and 15-day period at the end of May and beginning of June.

And the pit will only be refilled over the course of one month either in April or January.

He added the manure will be spread over two 150-hectare fields alternately every two years.

As for the smell, Villeneuve said "it depends how we use it because chicken manure smells like hell."

"But we can use it without disagreement to anybody."

Villeneuve said he has developed a mixture during the last five years that he has been using it on 20 hectares of his land.

"I used it and no problems, no complaints, no smell at all when I spray it on the fields."

Villeneuve said his method is not only in how he mixes it down to 70 per cent humidity, but in how he mixes it into the soil when he spreads it.

Last year he used it over 40 hectares and said "I got better crops than with chemicals."

"I don't understand how in a place like Dalhousie, they just don't want any use of manure."

Villeneuve said he is opting for the poultry manure because it is less expensive than chemicals and he prefers organic fertilizer for his corn and soyabean fields.

He expects to save $100 per hectare, or $15,000 per year, using the manure.

Villeneuve also adds the manure is rich in nitrogen, phosphorus and potash, "for corn it's exactly what you need."

Break-in at RRCA office nets thieves $16,000 of equipment

Police Briefs

An estimated $16,000 in office and computer equipment was stolen during an overnight break in at the Raisin River Conservation Authority on Oct. 1.

Fax machines, computers, color televisions, VCRs, cameras and printers were among the stolen goods.

The person(s) responsible also made away with a white 1991 GMC van.

Lancaster OPP are asking for help from readers in the Martintown area who may have seen or heard anything the night of the theft.

Church break-in

The safe was stolen from the Salem United Church in Summerstown overnight on Oct. 1.

The safe did not contain money, but did contain documents police say are important to the church and will hopefully be returned.

The beige safe is two feet by three feet and it is not known how the thieves entered the church.

Break in

About $800 in goods were stolen from a home on Paragon Road in Charlottenburgh on Oct. 2.

Station project dead

available to save the station, "I wouldn't support the project."

"Building it is not the hard part, it's maintaining it," said McEwen.

"They've got to find a need for the building," said McEwen. "We can't find a need for it."

"Apart from some individuals, the community has not stood behind the project, council was definitely not behind it," said Cowley-Owen.

"It's a risky venture that the community should be behind not just individuals."

When asked if the committee will try another scheme to save the station, Cowley-Owen said, "if there was a vague glimmer at the end of the tunnel, we would, but I think the light has gone out."

The committee first went to council for help to save the station on Sept. 15 when it asked council to apply for an infrastructure grant.

Under the grant program, both the provincial and federal government will each match the amount spent by the municipality towards the construction or renovation of roads, sewer systems or buildings.

The committee asked council to apply for $70,000, with the promise the committee would raise $35,000 through a fundraising campaign that included the issuance of shares in the train station building.

Approval for supplementary funding will take several weeks.

Apple Hill forestry centre officially open

By Greg Kielec
News editor

With the sawing of a log Thursday, it was official. With a little bit of sweat and a few breaks for log and saw adjustment, it happened.

The saw cut through the few millimetres of remaining wood tenaciously holding the log together, and the short, bark-covered block finally dropped.

The McKinnon Forestry Interpretative Centre near Apple Hill was officially open.

A number of officials were on hand from Domtar Forest Products and government ministries and agencies to kick-off the opening of the unique nature preservation area on Thursday.

Ed Ross and Jim Farrell labor at the official log-cutting ceremony to herald the opening of the McKinnon Forestry Interpretative Centre near Apple Hill on Thursday, while other officials look on.

The area features a environmentally-friendly log conference centre, a museum located in an old farm homestead, and acres of forest and nature trail demonstrating forest management and sustainable forestry.

In short speeches to begin the ceremony, the centre, which will educate people on the history of forestry and the benefits of sustainable forestry management, the centre was heralded as a tool to change public perception about the forestry industry.

Eddie Ross, vice-president/general manager of Domtar Forest Products, said what is being demonstrated on site "is truly a working forest" showing the public that balanced forest management is achievable.

The centre balances forest production with the enhancement of other areas, such as wildlife preservation and education, he said.

The forestry project is a cooperative effort involving the public, native people, Domtar and provincial government.

John Kerr Wilson, president of Eastern Ontario Model Forest, said it is rare that groups participating in such endeavors have been able to achieve what has been achieved at McKinnon Forestry Interpretative Centre.

He said it is in good part a credit to Domtar's partnership approach, "because it really has been a partnership.,"

"In this case, Domtar is truly a partner. They operate with us as equals," Wilson said.

Jim Farrell, director of forest development and liaison with Natural Resources Canada, said a lot of "time, energy and creativity" has been put into the project.

Farrell said the project at McKinnon will be an example for the nation as a whole. "It will provide sound information and practical examples" for the forestry industry.

What is being done will give people another perspective and allow them to form their own opinions about forestry, he said.

It will "help shape the image and perception of Canadian forestry nationally and across the world."

Canada continues to rely heavily on forestry for its economic prosperity. And it needs to demonstrate that it can undertake forestry work responsibly, he said.

Jim Anderson, district manager in Kemptville for the Ontario Ministry of Natural Resources, said the centre reflects a shared interest in public awareness and public education.

He said it is necessary for the forestry industry to make changes to reflect "contemporary public values", especially with the public demanding more say on how forest resources are managed.

He refers to this recent change as "the refreshing of the relationship."

Kenyon Reeve Wilfred Vallance praised Domtar for locating its interpretative centre in Kenyon Township.

"I'm quite honored you saw fit to build this in Kenyon Township," he told Domtar officials.

He said he will continue to cooperate with Domtar on the project for as long as he is reeve of Kenyon Township.

Glengarry Outreach moves ahead

Seniors care body rises out of ashes of personnel dispute

By Greg Kielec
News editor

There was something positive that came from the embarrassing fiasco regarding the firing and subsequent rehiring of the director of Glengarry Outreach Services in June.

That one positive intangible was the impetus for change. It was painfully evident at the time that Outreach needed to change the way it operated.

That was the message board members were given by seniors, and the message board members themselves were given by other board members.

And that is the message board members should have derived from their confrontation with Director Cameron and her lawyer, as they were taken to task for how the issue was handled.

And the board which operates the seniors's-service body has wasted little time implementing changes to improve the organization, heeding advice both from the seniors it serves and Cameron.

It has formed an advisory board to keep the board in touch with what the grass roots volunteers and the seniors they look after and they have appointed a member of the advisory board to sit on the Outreach board.

And a member of the Eastern Ontario Health Unit, Denise Paquette, has been appointed recording secretary of the board. Her appointment will be an asset in terms of the insight and knowledge from the health unit that it will bring to the board, according to Cameron.

The Outreach board has hired a new cook to replace the one that left when Cameron was rehired and also hired an assistant to help Cameron out with her administrative duties.

Job descriptions have been formed for all employees, including Cameron, answering previous criticisms that the roles of the Outreach board employees were unclear, making difficult to meet board expectations.

Even a simple thing, like ensuring board members receive meeting agendas two weeks prior to meetings, has been addressed. And getting a door opener for the garage where the Outreach van is housed, has been tackled, although not quite yet resolved.

The board has opened up lines of communication with another government umbrella organization, Glengarry Interagency, and has set things straight on line dancing at the centre.

Line dancing instructor Gisele Lemay had, albeit temporarily, pulled her line dancing class from the Outreach centre after Cameron was rehired because of differences with Cameron.

"All in all, I'm very excited. The advisory group, I think is a very good start."

"The board is behind me and very supportive," Cameron said.

The board has placed its trust in her and given her the necessary control to operate Outreach properly.

Basically the board has said: "We know you have the knowledge. Run it," Cameron said.

And according to Cameron, the road to change is netting benefits. "Everything is really working out well," she said in an interview Thursday.

Board member Steve Preston was the person in essence left holding the bag after the board had to swallow its pride and rehire Cameron.

Preston chaired a public meeting for seniors to vent their frustrations, bearing the brunt of the wrath for the firing, with the main board members responsible conspicuously absent.

"I'm extremely happy. In fact I think services have increaased," said Preston of Outreach, which delivers Meals on Wheels and hold other seniors events such as diners clubs.

Preston believes things are on the mend at Outreach. "I have no reason to believe otherwise."

And he thinks Outreach is well on its way to accomplishing its objectives."We've covered most of the things the seniors were asking."

The next objective of the Outreach is working to make the organization more bilingual, he said.

The amount of work that Outreach has done is evident just through looking at the amount of meetings that have been held since Cameron's reinstatement June 6.

"A lot of work has been done and we've had a lot of meetings," Cameron said.

Part of the problem in the past was there was not enough communication between she, senior volunteers and the board members. "We didn't meet often enough," said Cameron.

Now, the lines of communications are open. Everything Cameron does is logged, "and I keep them well informed," she said.

The drafting of Outreach policies and job descriptions will also help avoid headaches in the future.

"All the grey areas are being ironed out."

She is still hoping to get more senior volunteers for the advisory committee, namely for the Williamstown and Dalkeith area.

It is the seniors that Outreach caters to, and thats who Cameron wants to hear from.

"They're the ones out there. They're the one doing a lot of the leg work," Cameron said of Outreach's army of volunteers.

These volunteers are Cameron's eyes and ears. They get the contact with seniors that she is not able to get.

What they encounter in their day-to-day travels funnells back to the advisory committee and to the Lan-Char Outreach centre, and keeps Outreach in touch with what the seniors they serve want and need.

But all in all, she is pleased with the direction that Outreach in heading.

"It's an exciting role now because we know where we're going. These people are behind me now and we have this and this and this."

And on the Outreach board itself has come together after its split in June over Cameron's firing.

"Everyone's working in the same direction," Cameron said.

"I've found that my involvement has decreased, which is good, from a political point a view, I don't think we should have a hands on approach to any of these committees other than the direction things should go."

The administration should be left to do its job. With good administration, "the work gets done properly."

That means "giving Rosemary the mandate to do her job and not coming to the board," Preston said.

"You have to realize Rosemary sort of fell into that job with the departure of Sharon-Burnie Gardiner."

"So it took her a while to get her feet wet. She didn't know quite where she stood either."

"Now that we filled it, (we said)'you take the reins, and if you fall, you know you fall. But we gave her the power to do her job and I think she's been doing it."

The following were among the topics considered by Kenyon Township Council at the open portion of its regular bi-monthly meeting at Kenyon Township Hall, Greenfield, Tuesday, Sept. 27, 1994.

Beer and wine

Council approved by a three-to-two decision a request for support from the Eastern Ontario Convenience Store Association that convenience stores be permitted to sell beer and wine.

The association has claimed that such sales would offset a decline in business experienced by convenience stores since large grocery stores began opening Sundays.

Councillor Owen Walker termed the proposal "a positive move," saying it could provide both an economic stimulus and a service to the public.

Reservations were expressed that teenagers might have easier access to alcohol.

But Councillor Blair Williams suggested that a convenience store owner would be unlikely to jeopardize his ability to sell beer and wine by doing so to underage persons.

The final vote was councillors Walker, Williams and Gwen Morris in favor, Reeve Wilfred Vallance and Deputy Reeve Donald Besner against.

A similar request for support was voted down by SD&G United Counties Council on Sept. 19.

Ask the people

Council approved a proposal from Councillor Walker that extra ballots be prepared for the Nov. 14 municipal election that would allow Kenyon Township residents to express their opinions on certain issues.

These issues are whether the size of SD&G United Counties Council should be reduced, and whether representatives to it should be elected directly by the people.

Also an issue is whether the rates of pay for Kenyon Township councillors should be increased and brought into line with other Eastern Ontario municipalities.

Kenyon councillors earned between $3,800 and $4,600 last year, and township Clerk-Treasurer Mary McCuaig noted that this was considerably lower than in other area jurisdictions.

There has been no increase in Kenyon councillors' rates of pay in this current session.

Several councillors expressed the fear that many capable people might be reluctant to run for office unless rates were increased.

Name unchanged

Council discussed at some length a petition from Donat Decaire and others that the portion of the 14th Indian Lands Concession Road that lies outside Indian Lands be given another name.

No action was taken, however, as it was agreed that, "like it or not, that road is the 14th Concession of Indian Lands, and you can't change the name of one end of a road and not the other."

Moreover, noted Deputy Reeve Besner, "I was born in Indian Lands and I still live there and I have no problem with the name."

The strip of land called Indian Lands was set aside by British authorities in the 1780s as a hunting ground for St. Regis Indians, in exchange for the land along the north shore of the St. Lawrence River between Lancaster and Long Sault.

It seems never to have been taken up by the Indians, however, and was settled by European pioneers in the 1810s and 1820s.

Recreational requests

Council referred to the township's recreation committee a request from Ronald Viau on behalf of the Ecole Elda-Rouleau in Alexandria for a cash contribution towards a drainage system for the recently prepared playing fields behind the school.

It also heard a request from Allan MacEwen representing the Kenyon Agricultural Society and the Glengarry Highland Games that it apply for an Infrastructure Program grant of $120,000 as a contribution towards the repair and expansion of the Maxville Fairgrounds grandstand.

MacEwen said the grandstand is in need of repairs estimated at $100,000, while a 1400-seat aluminum expansion would cost a further $240,000.

Council agreed to add the request to its application before the Infrastructure Program, on the understanding that it would be the fifth priority on its wish-list, behind road repairs to the north and south boundary roads, Concession Eight and the Dornie Road.

Apple Hill water

Council approved the hiring of M. S. Thompson Associates, consulting engineers, for the Apple Hill water system study.

Eighty-five per cent of the $64,000 cost of the study will be covered by an Ontario Ministry of the Environment grant.

It also approved the nomination of Deputy Reeve Besner as a member of the Apple Hill water system committee, along with that of Patrick Newland of the local branch of OCWA, the Ontario Clean Water Association.

Tickets 'n' teachers

Council agreed with a request that Nevada tear-open lottery tickets be sold at MacDonald's Store in Greenfield to benefit the Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

And it gave its support to a petition forwarded by the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation in Cornwall that Oct. 5 be declared "Teacher Recognition Day."

Chief hopes to shave $17,000 in officer pay

By Pauline Ashton
News correspondent

Alexandria Police Chief Paul Deveau told the Police Services Board Monday he hopes to save $17,000 on salaries this year with constables working less overtime or taking overtime in days off.

But Mayor J. P. Touchette got into a wrangle over the working hours of Marc Carriere, recently promoted from part-time to a first class officer, on 40-hour week schedules, cutting back on overtime hours worked by the other four constables on Alexandria force.

Touchette said he thought Carriere would still be working a fill-in part-time schedule on the force.

"I want a ruling on this from the conciliation officer," Mayor Touchette said. "We don't need five full time in men, I say it's foolish spending.

"I don't want to be unfair to Marc, I know we took him on full-time to get his benefits, but I understood he would still work on a call-in basis as he did before when he was part-time."

Chief Deveau pointed out that under the agreement between the board and police officers, a first class constable works a 40 hour week and is paid $47,000, with benefits, "and the constable must work the 40 hours consistently."

"We should establish if we have the right under the contract to use this constable as we want," Helene Faubert-Gravel suggested.

"The Police Act does not specify if full-time constables can be used to fill in holes in schedules."

Faubert-Gravel pointed out "it could be just a matter of scheduling to have Marc (Carriere) as a full-time officer but just use him to replace other officers."

Touchette also objected to Deveau's plan to staff Friday and Saturday nights with two constables on full shift, instead of the old plan of partial shifts for two constables covering the problem hours from 10 p.m. to 2 a.m., weekends.

Touchette asked Chief Deveau to price the costs of weekend shifts.

No thanks for the OPP cuts, Bob Rae

When Glengarrians sit down to Thanksgiving dinner this weekend, they can include among their blessings the fact that they happen to live in a peaceful and privileged part of the world, free of the widespread violence gripping places like Haiti, eastern Europe, and parts of Africa.

Yet even given this truth, Glengarry has had, and continues to have, its share of problems. Violence has marred this otherwise quiet little corner of Ontario in the past, and unfortunately, chances are it will once again. Relative crime statistics including incidence of drinking and driving are considered high by any measure. Unemployment and social deficiencies have spawned a variety of crimes and problems from break and enters to teenage pregnancies.

No-one need look any further than the front page of this newspaper in recent months. It seems weekly, there are new and increasingly serious crimes to report, more people hurt as a result of a drunk driver, more human tragedies that seem very out of place in the rural tranquility of Glengarry County.

All of this, obviously, is not helped by the OPP cutbacks at the detachments serving the various sections of the county. And now the police themselves feel compelled to speak out against it.

"Eastern Ontario has always been neglected, and now with cutbacks in the OPP in the last three years, it really seems to get overlooked," Maxville OPP Sgt. Wayne Villeneuve told a recent session of Lochiel council. He went on to say that larger centres like Ottawa get the officers, and the OPP does not seem able to supply new officers fast enough, even though it hires and trains 400 people a year.

Senior Constable Les Howard, also at Maxville, has called the situation "ridiculous" and believes the cutbacks have "gone beyond the critical level."

These are troubling words indeed. But they shouldn't surprise very many citizens. It has been clear for some time that Glengarrians served by Maxville have been grossly shortchanged by the province in terms of law enforcement, as have other jurisdictions throughout rural Ontario. The police have remained quiet because they were worried word of the cutbacks might fuel crime, and the fact they have not traditionally done so.

Now, they cannot keep silent any longer, as the NDP government continues to punish the region for its Conservative bent. But the problem has festered way beyond partisan sword play.

Surely when we begin to see rank-and-file officers of the OPP begin to make public appeals through municipal councils and controversial statements to the press without concern for political retribution, it is time to mobilize public opinion.

Led by MPP Noble Villeneuve, county residents are in a strong position to successfully petition the government for bolstered police protection. But the public appeal should begin before public safety is, as it has been, jeopardized beyond any civilized standard.

Certainly every taxpayer of Ontario must share in the cuts that are necessary to get the province's deficit situation under control. But public safety is at stake. Law enforcement, above all, is a key pillar in the structure of a civilized society.

Its plight in Glengarry has been ignored for far too long.

Time proves train station's nemissis

There is now as strong an indication as ever that the fate of the Maxville train station is sealed. The 11th hour rescue attempt by the Maxville Heritage Committee, as valiant as it has been, seems to have simply arrived too late.

For all of the very worthy and innovative intentions of the committee and the hours of volunteer efforts put in by its members, Maxville council could not reasonably accept any element of risk by agreeing to its recommendations, particularly at the last minute and so close to the end of its mandate.

The committee proposed that it be incorporated as a non-profit organization and that it buy the station building from CN for $1. The village would lease the land on which the station stands from CN. The committee would commit financing of up to $35,000 toward the cost of renovating the building for use as a multi-purpose centre, subject to leasing it to the village.

The village, in turn, would have agreed to lease the building for as long as it remains on the current site, insure it and maintain access.

It is an intriguing proposal, but one based on several guesses and assumptions, including that a use could be found for the building without conflicting with the other municipal buildings already built and maintained by the village.

The proposal realistically needed a qualified expert to research such uses, come up with more exact costs and an array of specific details. In the absence of that, as time has run out both on CN's and the infrastructure program's deadline, council's hands are tied.

Vigilantism as self-defence

After Thoughts

by Joe Banks

Steve Bowskill is a nice guy. He has the kind of gregarious, smiling face you'd expect to meet behind the counter of a small-town drug store. He is also a bright, articulate fellow, having succeeded with a small string of such stores in south and central Ontario.

Steve was a young pharmacist running a drug store in Haliburton village when I knew him there 17 years ago. He had his hand in other business interests, including a hillside ride known as the "Skyslider" that folded a couple of years back. My future wife at the time worked for him as a part-time waitress during summers at his mother's restaurant near Minden, and recalls him as a tough but fair employer.

As a kid not long out of his teens, I found him likeable and interesting. In short, Steve Bowskill was not someone who the rest of us would view as vastly different from ourselves or anybody else we knew.

And that is why Steve Bowskill's name is important right now. If you haven't twigged to his name yet, he is the Colborne, Ontario druggist who had charges of careless use and unsafe storage of a firearm dismissed in a provincial court in Brighton last week. He had been charged last February after he fired two slugs into a van just before it fled his pharmacy after an early-morning robbery.

The decision has been considered a small blow against gun control, because Bowskill readily acknowledged in court that he opened fire. But he'd been robbed eight times in two years, and the judge agreed that he was "compelled to act" to save his business.

This is a big departure from previous decisions in Ontario, where firearms owners have always been held criminally responsible for using firearms in similar circumstances.

But the decision is eye-opening for other reasons, especially to folks here serviced by the Maxville OPP in Glengarry County. Lost in the gun control debate, and all of the rhetoric that has caught the public's attention on Parliament Hill last week, are the deteriorated policing conditions that led to Bowskill taking the law into his own hands.

The general feeling around Colborne is that what Bowskill did was justified, and obviously the judge agreed. The citizenry feel the provincial police routinely take too long to respond to calls from the community. In fact, many people from the Colborne community rallied to Bowskill's side and helped raise about $6,000 toward his $20,000 legal bill.

Red necks? Gun fanatics? NRA members? Hardly.

These are not the actions of an irrational people intended to help a dangerous man. And therein lies the implication, and Glengarry's own relationship to the Colborne situation.

It all sounds very familiar. This county is home to dozens of Steve Bowskills, otherwise law-abiding, peaceful people trying to make a living and get ahead. And at the same time, a headline on page 3 of last week's issue pretty well summed up the policing situation in the county outside of Alexandria. "Are the local Ontario Provincial Police forced into a game of Russian roulette with public safety?" it asks. And it's an excellent question.

It doesn't take Dick Tracy to understand that if a druggist can protect himself by shooting at a van in Colborne, it can happen here. And for all the same reasons.

Staff shortages within the Maxville detachment here alone has resulted in one officer working to protect 7,000 citizens in an area that takes 45 minutes to drive across. That translates to three officers to cover an entire area that was once covered by eight. At least two years ago, the same statistic for the RCMP nation-wide was one officer for every 423 citizens.

Not clear is the point at which a standard becomes intolerable. Is Steve Bowskill's decision to fire a gun at some thieves a sign that the limits in Colborne have been reached?

Normally discreet police officers, fed up with the situation, are speaking out. They see the cutbacks as beginning to seriously erode their ability to respond to crimes in progress, or to any other quick-response emergency.

"The reality in rural areas is it's very difficult for the police to respond. Maybe it's time that situation was addressed."

The quote, which sums up the law enforcement deficit we are in, may well have come from one of them. Or a Maxville-area citizen. Or a Kenyon politician.

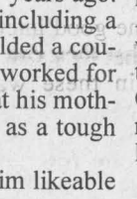
But it didn't.

It came from one man reflecting on the dismissal of the charges against him, a Canadian citizen really no different than you and I, one Steve Bowskill.

Push for progressive thinking

News to me

by Greg Kielec



There are plenty of issues out there for Glengarry's candidates to tackle in the upcoming municipal election. But how many politicians or aspiring politicians will have the backbone to tackle them.

It is always easier, and safer to campaign on the motherhood issue of lower taxes, but certainly there is much more to municipal government than simply cutting.

Municipal government, whether in Alexandria, Kenyon, Charlottenburgh or anywhere, should be a body of leadership.

Too often it is not. Instead it is a body that follows: It follows previous practices, established tradition, and conventional wisdom.

It is often a reactionary body, leaping into action only when there is an emergency, going from crisis to crisis with little time to think or plan ahead.

It need not be that way. All that is needed is some forward thinking on the part of the municipal council, hence, a need for forward-thinking municipal councillors.

But it is up to the electorate to make it clear that progressive, forward thinking is what it wants. How does it do that?

It does so by carefully listening to what its candidates have to say during the election campaign. And may take some prodding as well.

If candidates are talking about what they have done in the past, ask what they will do in the future. If they talk about what is wrong with the municipality, ask them what they will do to make it right.

The tax issue, while important to everyone because it affects everyone, should not be the be-all-end-all issue.

A candidate may have a sensational idea that will either improve the town's cosmetics, or attract business or draw tourists. That candidate may do more for the municipality than a candidate who promises to cut back. But because he is going to spend money, he may be ruled out by voters in favor of a more frugal candidate.

So there is more to look at during the upcoming election than who is going to cut what. There is an old adage in the business world that you have to spend money to make money.

Municipalities may not be able to make money by spending, but they can certain generate other less obvious benefits by investing and spending their money wisely.

There is no sense watching pennies if you're not paying attention to the dollars. And often the pennies that you don't want to spend end up costing you dollars in the long run.

Take for example Alexandria's sewage system upgrade. Ten years ago the work would have cost thousands. But the leaders of the day were too busy penny pinching to spend the money needed.

While they were pinching pennies, the work went from something that would have cost thousands to a project running in the millions.

It is a costly example of how expensive a crisis-management style of government can be. Unable to put off the work any longer, the town was forced by the Ministry of Environment bite the bullet, no matter what the cost.

Spending at the municipal level has to go hand-in-hand with progressive, proactive thinking. That means electing people with the vision to see the issues of the future and making the most out of them before they become problems.

Symbols of Thanksgiving

Highland Paths

by Ken McKenna

Every year at this time we are bombarded by symbols of Thanksgiving -- not so much our Canadian Thanksgiving, but the symbols of our neighbors to the south. Ads on Canadian TV and in Canadian publications often use pictures of "The Pilgrim Fathers (and Mothers)" to promote their wares at this season, and local schools have even been known to dress children as American Puritans landing at Plymouth Rock in Thanksgiving skits. It makes some sort of sense, perhaps, because Americans invented Thanksgiving, and we copied them, although it has never caught on here to the same extent as in the States.

But did the Americans really invent Thanksgiving? They can certainly take credit for the modern version, complete with spectacular parade down 5th Avenue in New York. The Americans are the greatest show people in the world, and once they get their teeth into a promotion, watch out! We introverted, up-tight , quiet Canadians can only stand by and watch the parade. As far as who can claim credit for the spirit of thanksgiving, a little thought will reveal that all people at all times and in all places have always given thanks, in many different ways and to many different gods, for the results of a successful hunt or a good harvest. All that has been done in modern times is to limit it to one special day. As this column is dedicated to the traditions of the Gaelic-speaking Highland Scots who first came to Greater Glengarry over 200 years ago, here is how they might have given thanks, according to that greatest of all collections of Gaelic lore, Alexander Carmichael's "Carmina Gadelica," first published in 1899:

Beannachadh Buana -- The Reaping Blessing

The day the people began to reap the corn (grain) was a day of commotion and ceremony in the townland. The whole family repaired to the field dressed in their best attire to hail the God of the harvest.

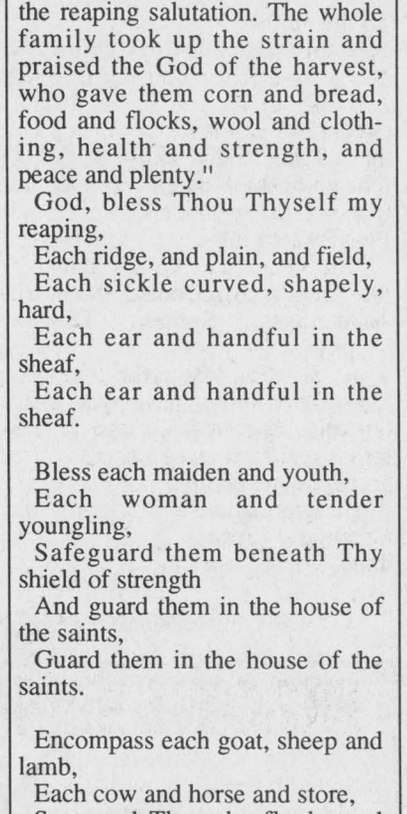
Laying his bonnet on the ground, the father of the family took up his sickle, and facing the sun, he cut a handful of corn. Putting the handful of corn three times sunwise round his head, the man raised the "Iolach Buana," the reaping salutation. The whole family took up the strain and praised the God of the harvest, who gave them corn and bread, food and flocks, wool and clothing, health and strength, and peace and plenty."

God, bless Thou Thyself my reaping,
Each ridge, and plain, and field,
Each sickle curved, shapely, hard,
Each ear and handful in the sheaf,
Each ear and handful in the sheaf.

Bless each maiden and youth,
Each woman and tender youngling,
Safeguard them beneath Thy shield of strength
And guard them in the house of the saints,
Guard them in the house of the saints.

Encompass each goat, sheep and lamb,
Each cow and horse and store,
Surround Thou the flocks and herds,
And tend them to a kindly fold,
Tend them to a kindly fold.

For the sake of Michael, head of hosts,
Of Columba of the graves and tombs,
Columba of the graves and tombs.



Letters to the editor

Anti-Christians infiltrating the church

Letter to the editor:

This summer I came by a newsletter on summer lectures at Queens Theological Seminary. A noted Anglican bishop was going to be one of their main features. He has gained much publicity and fame with his popular denial of the Resurrection of Jesus Christ. He is by far not the only one in an ecclesiastical office in the mainline stream of Christianity these days who is marketing his anti-Christian philosophy in the Church. Why such a person would even be in the church is disturbing at best but we know that many such anti-Christian beliefs are held also by the United Church of Canada and many other people in various mainline and even evangelical churches in Canada, the States, and just about every country in the world. Most denominations have been influenced by these leaders who want secular thought to become Christian truth. It is clear that God and His truth has been abandoned by these people for pagan ideas. As a minister in the Presbyterian Church of Canada I can say that I have found this denomination seriously plagued by such characters too.

I was talking to some people recently from Switzerland who belong to the Lutheran Church of that country and they said that their denominational leaders are also in denial of the belief in a physical resurrection of Christ. They are very distressed over this issue and rightly should be. Without this truth there simply is no faith called Christianity. This truth is the heart and soul of the faith handed down by the apostles. It is the basic tenet of Christian belief. It does not make sense to say it is only meant to be taken figuratively. Those individuals within the churches and seminaries who teach against a literal and historical interpretation of the biblical account of the resurrection of Christ's body from the grave, do a great deal of harm to God's people. They are really what the bible refers to as "thieves" and "wolves in sheep's clothing." They are out to fleece the sheep.

It is interesting to note that in the past the churches greatest threat from attack had been from outside her walls by liberals and humanists. However, today these people and ideas have moved into the church and have been excepted as comrades even though their ideas are anti-Christian. It may sound rather absurd but this has happened. The church is being held captive by an anti Christian ecclesiastical leadership who's hidden and blatant agenda is to destroy the Christian faith. As a result, humanistic thought, not Christian thought, is quickly becoming the established belief of the church. A scary fact.

Luther at the time of the Reformation faced a very similar threat to the church by a corrupt ecclesiastical leadership. The problem he faced was how to liberate the people of God from under the heel of the Pope and the priests and establish them as a people under the Headship of Christ. Today, the need in the protestant churches is the same. The church must try and apply discipline to those so called "masters of divinity" called "reverends" and those who supposedly profess to "know" who are called "professors". There is a serious defect in their divining and knowing. It is not of Christ. It is not Scriptural. Those who are reading this article and are Christian will know where their source originates. They have slipped into Christendom by the back door since they obviously do not share our faith. They should be shown the front door. It is rather puzzling to many Christians why the bureaucracy of most mainline and even the evangelical churches, are pushing these Anti-Christian individuals into positions of leadership.

I believe the church today is faced with a dilemma. Either she allows this dechristianizing of the church by the leadership to continue or she sees to it that these people are removed. If church discipline is not possible then really we do not have a church. What we actually have is a cult or a group of people who have been absorbed into the beliefs and values of the culture, not the biblical faith of Christendom which should always be a stand against culture. The people of God will continue to leave those spiritually abusive denominations and find healthy Christian pastures elsewhere.

The bottom line here is that we need a liberation of God's people from under the heel of these professional academic bureaucrats. They are simply out to destroy the church. They are quickly turning the church into a "new age" cultic beast that has denied the inspiration and authority of Scripture, the Resurrection of Christ and the high Christian standard of morality based on the 10 Commandments. They have effectively turned the church upside down and are at this time preparing for the fatal blow as they bury the church.

Is it not about time for God's people to rise and stand against this destruction and reclaim what is rightfully theirs under God? As I understand the church, the church belongs to those who are Christian, not anti-Christian. For some rather unknown reason today's anti-Christians seem to think the church should be their domain.

There are some good intentioned folk who think that they can have a positive effect in these wayward denominations. Many soon realize that they are unwelcomed and get abruptly thrown out. It is true even in the church that you "don't buck the system," even if it is abusive and corrupt. You either submit to the "wisdom" and "counsel" of your superiors or else. Luther never intended to lead his reform of the church from outside the castle church. He simply had no choice.

The increasing exodus of people from the mainline churches would appear to be a sign that the church is in trouble and is no longer a home. It has certainly been my experience that this is the case. The light in many of these secularized churches has definitely gone out and God's judgment has come. It is time for the remnant to move on.

One thing remains certain amidst our present day apathy and chaos in the church. Reformation and revival is absolutely necessary. We need a miraculous intervention of God if the church of today is to be saved from the deadly disease of secularism and returned to a biblical Christianity. This act of God is our only hope. All our human attempts to resurrect this dead carcass will fail. Anti-Christian pagan philosophy will continue to dominate the majority of mainline and evangelical churches. Only God can correct this present day dysfunction of our time.

In the interim God calls us to pray. The Word of the Lord came to Solomon in a time of unfaithfulness to God, such as ours and said: "If my people, who are called by My name, will humble themselves and pray, and seek My face, and turn from their wicked ways" and then I will hear from heaven and forgive their sin and heal their land."

Thank you,
John Simpson

Township resident sets record straight

To the editor:

I would like to correct a statement attributed to me during the Sept. 21 Lancaster Township Council meeting and the ensuing discussion of recycling. I stated to Council that the MOE official responsible for Lancaster Twp. assured me that they would not investigate the landfill site and demand changes on the back of such a worthwhile project as a recycling depot.

Council states that they are committed to recycling but do not want to tamper with their certificate of approval. Their reticence to have the landfill site inspected and their voiced fears of possible closure, make one wonder what they have to hide.

I would also like Council to pay attention tot he two reports in last week's News, concerning the successful Household Hazardous Waste Days held locally on Sept. 17. I would ask Council to obtain details of their successful drive and inquire about joining them next year, as they plan to make it a yearly event. We are the only township or municipality in Glengarry County that is NOT involved in those Household Hazardous Waste Days.

Sprites deserve recognition too

To the editor:

I am writing in regards to your article as above mentioned I would also like to let you know that the Greenfield Sprites also are part of the "The new kids on the (championship) block" as they are the team that won the G.S.L. Sprites First Place trophy.

The Greenfield Sprites also won the Gerald MacDonald Memorial Tournament Sprites Division Trophy.

It is the first year that the Greenfield Sprites have won either one of those trophies and I think they should get recognition for their great playing ability.

Congratulations to all the Greenfield Sprites -- a job well done.

Thumbs down to school play

To the editor:

On page 3, Wed., Aug. 17, 1994 Sue Harrington hit the nail on the head when she wrote an article about the play in Blyth, "Glengarry School Days."

I figured it as a total disaster, the day I viewed it, there were quite a number of negative remarks, some patrons left at half-time.

Please be sure to let me know when Glengarry County is removed from the Quebec border and settled near Kingston. It will shorten my drive.

Area people enjoy Montreal theatre

Glen Sandfield
by Lorna Chapman
874-2408

About two dozen expectant area people boarded the bus for Montreal on the evening of Tuesday, Sept. 27 to attend the first preview play of the season at the Centaur Theatre in old Montreal. Everyone was glad to greet their friends again after the summer and to welcome several new members to the group.

On arrival, the group was met with an incredibly long line of play goers, that wound away from the door where they entered, back through the large waiting lounge area, on into the hall and past the front door to the stairs.

This got everyone keyed up and thinking that they must know something about this play that we didn't. While waiting, we noticed a few familiar faces from past seasons among those of this play's cast's photos, on the walls.

The play being presented was called The Master and Margarita, written by Michail Bulgakov.

The little blurb said this: Satan and his wild entourage visit Moscow; Pontius Pilate judges Christ and Margarita's love survives all in a story that swirls with black magic, humor and theatrics.

Satan visits Moscow to present a show of black magic at a ball. He is a tall distinguished gentleman accompanied by Behemoth, his black cat. The master is now a schizophrenic in a mental hospital, and had written a book about Pontius Pilate which was a failure.

He recounts his life story to another inmate and tells of his romantic attachment for Margarita, a beautiful married women.

The inmates play out the two stories and their themes and Margarita's own story; while she becomes enmeshed, with her little servant girl, in Satan's evil web following the master's disappearance.

It was great fun, told with great energy, but most of the group became totally lost in all the confusion onstage. It was a mind boggling experience; was one opinion. Another said, "Black is beautiful!" Everyone agreed on both counts!

Nancy and Jim Campbell were off travelling last week. They went down to Waterloo, Ontario to visit their daughter Sue and her husband Jay Treacy. They all attended the Stratford Festival play Cyrano de Bergerac, which they enjoyed thoroughly. They spent some time on their way down and on the way back, in Kingston, visiting with Jim's mother.

A reminder that the CWC meeting will beheld on Oct. 13 at 7:30 p.m. at the Villa Mont Joie and will begin with a fashion show. Adrienne Berard will be the entertaining guest speaker and Ken Roach will provide the special music that evening.

At the area policing meeting recently, it was mentioned that there is much thievery of tools, gardening and entertainment equipment going on hereabouts. One way to protect your belongings is to identify them by engraving a code of your own on each item. There is an engraving tool gathering dust in Maxville, that is available, on loan, for this purpose. The police there would be only too glad to lend it to any interested person for a short period of time, to encode their property. It would certainly make their job a good deal easier if we could give the authorities a number for any of our stolen property and we would be much more likely to get it back if everything is properly marked for identification.

Library news

The library has just received a number of children's books in French and English dealing with stories of Halloween and Thanksgiving.

There is a book showing how to make costumes, skeletons and other scary things for Halloween.

Music lovers will be interested in our small collection of classical music audio cassettes. These can be borrowed just like books.

There are also some children's cassettes including "read along" stories. Why not drop in and browse?

Library hours are on Tuesdays 6 to 9 p.m. and on Thursdays from 2 to 5 p.m.

For their 40th wedding anniversary on Sept. 11, Rollande and Ernest Lefebvre were treated to a limousine drive to the Chateau Mirabel where they enjoyed a lovely weekend compliments of their children.

Pearl and Jerome Lalonde are back home from a 12-day tour from Halifax where they visited different places such as Peggy's Cove.

Lill and Jim MacDonald flew to Calgary, Alberta from Sept. 7 to 17th to celebrate their 57th wedding anniversary and visited with their nephew and niece, Jim and Joan MacDonald and family.

Jim enjoyed seeing his little sister, Agnes who is now in a new senior citizens apartment in Calgary.

They had a beautiful trip both ways. In Calgary, the weather registered 80 degrees all week and with no rain and beautiful sunsets.

Seeing the Canadian Rockies brought back many happy memories and the time goes by so quickly when you are sightseeing and going out for special suppers.

With God's help, they enjoyed a beautiful holiday.

Jim and Lill are sending special thanks to the Township of Lochiel for the anniversary greetings they received on Sept. 4.

To close the Optimist season with the old team, many Optimist members and families attended a barbecue at Linda and Henke Van Den Oetelaar's home on Sept. 24.

The fall weather was super and it really felt like a warm summer night and as a bonus -- no mosquitoes.

Hot dogs, hamburgers and sweets were enjoyed by all. Some tried their luck at singing and a mime session took place all in good fun.

Thank you, Linda and Henke for your hospitality.

Last Saturday at the social centre 45 Optimists gathered for the transfer of powers.

Sue Poirier and Ron Carriere were masters of ceremonies.

Lieutenant governor Henri Jeaurond swore in the brand new team for 1994-95.

Robert Massie will be club president, Secretary -- Daniel Lefebvre, Treasurer -- Pierre Larocque, Vice-President Intern -- Sue Poirier, Vice-President Extern --Johanne McCarthy, one year director -- Conrad Charette, Louise Carriere, Denise Lacombe, two years director -- John Van Den Oetelaar, Guillaume Decoste, Roseanne Theoret. Ex-secretary, Dianne Larocque and ex-treasurer Butch McCarthy received plaques for all their dedicated work.

Sue Poirier was voted member of the year and also received two certificates for being an exceptional member for 1993-94.

Special guest, Governor Guy Marois of Kingston spoke on the Optimist theme of 1994-95 which is "Act to make it a better world."

Every good action we do even though sometimes we or some people think it is insignificant does make a difference.

We are bombarded with so much grim news and Guy insisted on being positive.

Linda Van Den Oetelaar received a bouquet of flowers and we certainly would like to thank ex-president, Henke Van Den Oetelaar and all his team for doing a great job for the kids. Good luck Robert Samuel Rozon picked the lucky capsule winner of the $1,000 monthly draw last Sunday at l'Heritage which was Michel Boucher of Glen Robertson. Yolande Boucher was the vendor.

Last week a local newspaper printed a story about a near tragic accident involving a car passing a school bus on the right with the lights flashing.

What does a person like that think of? Doesn't he or she care about human lives?

It's our job as bus drivers to transport these children, your children, to and from school securely. How do we do this with people like that who have no respect for school bus lights?

We don't put them on for the fun of it. Maybe these people should lose their license for a week or two or why not have them ride on a school bus for a week. It might give them a better outlook of what they have done.

Birthday wishes going out to Brent McDonell Oct. 6; Tania Lacombe Oct. 7; Joanne Faubert Oct. 8; Laurette Viau Oct. 12. Happy wedding anniversary to Roddy and Jeanette MacLennan Oct. 6 and to Andre and Fernande Menard Oct. 7.

VOLUNTEER OF THE WEEK

Jean Van den Oetelaar

Jean Van den Oetelaar, who grew up in Lancaster, went to school in Williamstown, and now lives just outside Alexandria, is our Volunteer this week. Jean lives with her husband Martinus and her two children: Michael who is fifteen and in grade ten at Glengarry District High School; and Catherine, who is twelve and in grade seven at Saint Joseph's Elementary School.

Jean gives her time to the Alexandria Figure Skating Club, organizing the Can Skate Program. She groups the students, finds volunteer coaches for them, and generally ensures that the program runs smoothly. This is her second year as organizer of the program.

Jean never took figure skating herself but became involved in the program through her children. She first enrolled Michael in the Can Skate Program but once he could skate, Michael switched to hockey. Then she enrolled Catherine in the program; seven years later, Catherine is still in the program and is taking private lessons.

Jean works parttime at the Boutique Shoe Store in Alexandria and keeps the books for Martinus, who is a self-employed electrician. Occasionally Jean works weekends at Jean's Bargain Store in Alexandria. When she can find the time, she enjoys knitting and reading.

If you know people who volunteer their time in community service, let us know. We would like to acknowledge their contribution. Phone Ruth Stanton, 525-4386.

Birthdays and anniversaries are usually a time for joyful celebration and the members of Glengarry District Women's Institute are eagerly making plans to celebrate their 80th ind 1995.

A red rose shrub (cost $10 each), named after founding member, Adelaide Hoodless, will be appearing in yards and gardens throughout Glengarry after spring planting as a result of a special purchase being made by a local greenhouse.

Branch members in Bainsville, Dunvegan, McCrimmon, Martintown and Picnic Grove are taking orders for these shrubs prior to November 1st.

Women's Institute members have always been generous with their time and financial support to 4-H Homemaking Clubs, scholastic achievement awards, museums, local fairs, nursing homes and historical societies. Many a Canadian veteran had warm feet due to the knitting needles which fairly flew during the war years!

There are many aspects of today's society which are enjoyed by all as a direct result of Women's Institutes' resolutions presented to various levels of governments -- even to the United Nations through Associated Country Women of the World.

If you would like to join in this anniversary celebration but require more information, please feel free to call District President Sheila Urquhart at 347-2262.

The senior Kindergarten class from Lancaster Public School visited Marlin Apple Orchard on Friday, Sept. 23. The rain did not manage to dampen either the children's or the parent volunteer's spirits. Everyone enjoyed the excursion. Thank you, Diane Lunan!

The Grade 3 class thoroughly enjoyed a visit to Cooper Marsh recently, where they researched water insects. Armed with buckets, scoops, dip-nets and magnifying glasses, the students collected water samples and then examined them for inhabitants. Council Briefs

A regular meeting of Charlottenburgh Council was held Sept. 26 in Williamstown. The following items are among those dealt with by council.

Caution lights at Glen Roy?

A request to have caution lights erected on County Road 25 east of Glen Roy, will be referred to the County Road Department in time for its fall road tour.

According to a staff report, traffic on the road warrants a warming light, and the hill east of Glen Roy on the County Road "does create a circumstance of reduced sight line."

Lots of hazardous waste collected

The township's annual household hazardous waste collection day was even more popular this year than last. Held Sept. 17 at the Glen Walter Fire Station, 142 vehicles dropped off enough paint, oils, pesticides, aerosols and acids to fill 66 drums. This total was up from 102 vehicles and 44 drums in 1993.

In addition, some 250 vehicles made the trip to the North Landfill Site to take advantage of the day's free access.

The scoop on the Manor House

Williamstown
by Sue Harrington
347-2279

What manner of man is it who knoweth not the Manor House? Well... let's see. Probably most men and women who came to these parts in the last few years. Probably most area residents who have noticed that big white house down the lane when they have come to the township hall to pay their taxes. That's the Manor House. Yes, indeed!

Apologies to all readers who were left scratching after last week's stirring plea to come out to the meeting in support of the rehabilitation of the Manor House. I should have realized that more background about the house was in order so that it could become your "cause celebre" for the coming year.

Now you know which house it is -- for those of you who don't pay taxes, it's the majestic looking mansion on the slight hill overlooking the Raisin, that's usually floodlit in the evenings (and sometimes mornings, but we won't get into that) -- here's a bit of bio about it.

Birthdate questionable (one of life's more pleasant unsolved mysteries) but thought to be in the late 1780's, early '90's, making it a member of the exclusive historic 200 Club. Built by Sir John Johnson, man who led flocks of Loyalists into Upper Canada in 1784, and who gave Williamstown its name (his father's name was William!). Sir John never actually lived in the house, preferring Montreal over Williamstown (how could he?). Sold in 1818 to Hugh McGillis of North West Company fame, who resided here for 32 years, living the life of the Laird of Williamstown. (To the Manor born?)

There followed a string of other owners, to be mentioned in a subsequent column, and it is here, readers that I am asking for your help. In order for it to come alive in the hearts and imaginations of those who are new to the area, I would like to hear from anyone who has memories of this grand house. Did you go there to visit? Play? Work? Pray? Do you know about the ghosts? Have you recollections of the former owners? Are any still living?

Please call me at the above number, or fax me at 347-1325, so that I can document these tales before the big meeting at the museum on Oct. 13.

First comes Thanksgiving, then, just as the last old turkey bone has been picked clean, comes one of those social whirl-wind weeks.

Facing off with the Manor House meeting on the 13th, the puck is then passed to the annual dinner meeting of the St. Lawrence Valley Agricultural Society, (aka the Williamstown Fair Board) which takes place Friday, October 14, at St. Mary's Centre. Cocktails are at 6 p.m., with the dinner itself starting at 7:30.

If you were a participant in this year's fair, or would like to support it, or if you would just enjoy an evening out, plan to attend. I hear there is a speaker, but so far his/her identity remains a secret. Perhaps it is someone with a big name!

For tickets, please contact any fair board member, or call President Garry O'Connell at 347-3478.

The next morning, Saturday, Oct. 15, you'll be up at the crack of dawn, preparing for your workers to arrive and help you with your fall property clean-up. If you've not yet ordered your helper from St. Andrew's Sunday School, please call Shelley or Mike at 347-1693, or Lynn at 347-2491. Remember, all children will be accompanied by adults, and all monies received will go towards Ronald McDonald House in Ottawa.

Congratulations will be in order for later that day (Oct. 15) when friends will help Brigitte and Ziggy Loos celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary at the Charlottenburgh Recreation Centre.

A family dinner for relatives from Germany, the U.S. and Canada will be held first, followed by an open reception beginning at 8 p.m. Brigitte says there will be German, American and Canadian beer at the bar, and that the lunch at 11 p.m. will feature "Fritz" sausage-on-a-bun.

Best wishes on the big event!

The next day is Sunday, October 16, and that should be reserved for St. Mary's Roast Beef Supper, at St. Mary's Centre, from 4 p.m. until 7 p.m. A spokesperson for the Ladies Guild, who will likely thank me more for leaving her name out than putting it in, says, "We are really stressing our take-out service this year. We've always had it, but a lot of people don't seemed to know about it."

They do now!

A few days of rest follow before the Nor'Westers' Beaver Club of Glengarry hosts its Autumn Levee on Friday, Oct. 21, at St. Mary's Centre, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Fur trade or Highland dress is appropriate, though optional, and, if attending, you are asked to bring canapes of your choice and something for the Harvest Raffle Basket.

Please contact Mary Caron at 347-7338 for more information.

The Gala Card Party held at the arena a while back was a great success, according to Nor'Westers and Loyalist Museum Committee Chair, Joan P. MacDonald, with $594 being raised.

The committee would like to sincerely thank all who helped with desserts, door prizes, card tables, cards, and, of course, all who came to play.

Special thanks is extended to Onagh Ross who helped with the euchre, the arena staff for its gracious help, and the Grices -- for doing all those dishes!

"We are very grateful," says Joan.

Open house at the high school, held last week for the parents of Grade 9 students at Char-Lan was attended by 75 interested persons. The parents attended presentations dealing with school policies, extra-curricular activities, and support services.

Following the presentations, parents and staff chatted informally, sharing information on the school, curriculum, and their students' progress.

The Char-Lan staff wishes to thank the parents on the School Committee for the many hours they spent in helping to organize the evening.

Special thanks are sent to Bev Schaefer, Tish Humphries and Theresa Litshauer for volunteering their time to decorate tables, solicit food from the parents of the Grade 10 students, serve refreshments, and stay behind and clean up!

"Your hard work was much appreciated," says Principal Mary Mayer.

Recognizing a long-time dream, Mary J. Smith of Williamstown has opened a new travel agency in Lancaster. Called Glengarry Key Travel, it is located at 203 Military Road.

Mary, who took a course last year in Montreal, will be doing the books and managing the business, while travel agents, Colleen Winters who has six years experience in the travel field, and France Sauve, who is bilingual, will be available to make your travel arrangements.

Although Glengarry Key Travel (tel. 347-4000) is already open for business, an official opening will take place on Oct. 22. "We hope to have something special happening that day," says Mary.

This Thursday, Oct. 8, the Glengarry Historical Society meets in Alexandria at the Church on the Hill at 8 p.m.

It should be an interesting meeting. Members of the Friends of the Macdonell-Williamstown House of Point Fortune will be on hand to talk about this former home of John Macdonell, (Scotius), son of Spanish John.

Everyone is welcome to attend.

Church celebrates

Martintown
by Lillian Rouleau

A celebration of the faith of our fathers and the building of the first church in Martintown took place this past weekend in the United Church.

On Saturday evening, a delicious pot luck supper was enjoyed by the congregation. A social time followed, with McCulloch Dancers Megan Bold and Dawn Aubin performing. Memories of days gone by were shared and an old-fashioned hymn sing was enjoyed.

The Sunday morning anniversary service was well attended, with members from the Williamstown United Church and Martintown's Presbyterian Church coming to join with other friends to celebrate this special occasion.

The clergy, Rev. and Mrs. Clifford Evans, Rev. Caroline Turner and husband Ron Turner, assembled at Donnie Ross' garage, to be chauffeur-driven to the church, preceded by several members of the Glengarry Pipe Band.

In accordance with a tradition used in the early church, "the Little Entrance" was made into the church with piper Rory Buchan leading the processional, followed by "the Beadle," Charles Kinloch, fittingly dressed in his kilt.

He was carrying the Bible which had been presented to his great grandfather, George Kinloch, by the Kirk Session of St. Andrew's Church on November 16th, 1862, in token of appreciation of the value of his service in conducting the Sunday School and in passing the Psalmary. Charles was followed by the choir and the clergy.

Rev. Caroline Turner conducted the service, with Rev. Clifford Evans as guest speaker. His sermon was entitled "Why We Celebrate the Church," and he told of the importance of the church to our forefathers, it being the centre of their lives, a place where they could meet with friends and family to celebrate God's love and be thankful for His many blessings. These same values need to be celebrated today.

During the offering, violinists Martin Gaudet, and Marland and Devon Murray played "O God, Our Help in Ages Past" and "Blessed Be the Tie That Binds." They also accompanied on the last hymn, "God Be With You 'Till We Meet Again."

Rev. Turner pronounced the benediction, and the clergy were piped out of the church. A lunch and social time followed in the church hall, and everyone had a great time reminiscing.

The Thanksgiving Service will be held at 11 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 9.

Women's Institute

Mrs. Marion Thompson was hostess to members and friends of the Martintown Women's Institute at the September meeting held at her home.

Joan MacKenzie, president, welcomed all who attended in the evening. Roll call was "What's my beep?", one reply being "those incessant phone calls soliciting for this and that, and generally at supper-time too!"

Mrs. Sylvia Thomson, covenor for Family and Consumer Affairs, was pleased to introduce her guest speaker, Sylvain Mainville of Cornwall Lock and Alarm Co. He thoroughly explained what was now available to the consumer to protect homes and valuables, and the information was of great interest to all the members and most timely.

An invitation is being extended to McCrimmon Women's Institute to join with Martintown WI at the November meeting.

Will members please also take note that Oct. 20th, 1:30 p.m. will be the date, time, and the Presbyterian church hall, the place for the next meeting. Also, at that time, be sure to bring an article for the "secret auction," with money raised from this auction being donated towards "Pennies for Friendship."

Hazel Driscoll, director, gave a most amusing reading; as always a good laughter well-shared.

A lovely lunch, shared laughter and a friendly get-together, rounded

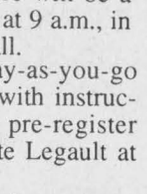
Big event at Salem United

Glen Walter
by Ron Holla
931-2658



If you're looking for that special gift or Christmas bargain or if you're just itching to try some of the area's baking, then Salem United Church Hall is the place to be on October 15 between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

This is the date of Salem United's Big Event sponsored by the Salem United Church Women (UCW), Betty Holden, UCW president said.

"There will be all kinds of items featured at this event," she said.

"Home baking, preserves, crafts, antiques, collectibles, native Indian items, bazaar items and gifts for Christmas."

Holden added that light lunches will also be available and that admission to the Big Event is free.

"All proceeds will go to the upkeep of the church," she said.

Family visit

A trip to visit their daughter, Valerie Mott, is in the cards for Betty and Matt Holden.

Betty is taking a break from her home responsibilities this Thursday to travel with her husband to the Bruce Peninsula to visit her daughter and is not expected to return until Tuesday.

Church painted

A major painting project was undertaken at Salem United Church this past month which saw the entire exterior of the church painted, Betty Holden, president of Salem United's UCW announced.

"All the clapboard was scraped and painted," Holden said. "The money was in part provided from the UCW."

The work took a week and Holden said it adds a little pride in coming to church.

Club folds

The members of the Optimist Club of Glen Walter decided Sept. 19 to dissolve their new club, club official Daniel Bedard announced.

"This difficult decision was reached after each member's busy schedule does not allow the time and commitment necessary to start and maintain an active club," he said.

Club draw winners

In the last official draw of the Optimist Club held Sept. 18 at the annual Precious Blood Harvest Supper, the first prize went to Gilles Bourgon of Glen Walter.

Second prize went to Paule Belanger of Rosemere, Quebec and third prize went to Yvette Belair of Ste. Sophie, Quebec.

Bedard said the net proceeds will be handed over to the community.

1994 ...It's our year

The torch is passed

Marcel Ranger of Alexandria did two important things in 1965. One, he bought land on Main St. South and built a TV and furniture store. And two, he had a son.

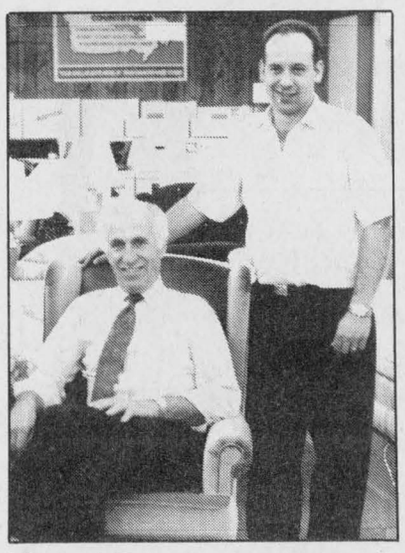
Now, 29 years later, Marcel TV-Furniture Ltd. has grown into the biggest furniture and appliance store in Glengarry County. And the son, Stéphane, has grown into a businessman who this month took over the operation of the store his father built.

"I started here as a kid," Stéphane said recently amidst the stoves, fridges, armchairs and bedroom sets in the spacious Marcel showrooms. "I grew up in the business. I always wanted to take it over."

Stéphane has been at the store full-time for 10 years. And one of the major decisions that father and son made together recently was to align the store with the cross-Canada buying network called Countrywide.

"It's a way for stores like Marcel TV-Furniture to stay independent but to centralize their purchasing power," Stéphane explained. "We can get the items for less, and we can pass the savings on to our customers. We couldn't survive otherwise, not in this day and age, and certainly not with major appliances."

Some 500 independently-owned furniture stores from Newfoundland to British Columbia have united under the Countrywide banner. This enables them, in some cases, to buy entire production runs from major Canadian, U.S. and overseas furniture, appliance and electronics manufacturers. Thus there are savings both through bulk sales and in distribution costs.



Marcel Ranger, seated and son Stephane

Incredibly, appliance prices have also dropped slightly in the past few years because of the Canada-U.S. Free Trade Agreement. "It's a sad fact," said Stéphane, "that less stuff is manufactured in Canada now and more is imported from the U.S., where appliances have always been cheaper. It's been bad for the Canadian labor force, but good for the customer."

Appliances are still being made in Canada. Wood is a Canadian line of fridges and freezers. And the easy-to-clean lift-top Admiral kitchen range, manufactured in Montmagny, Québec (and on display at Marcel TV-Furniture), is the best-selling range in North America.

All the top names are to be found in the Marcel showrooms, Inglis-Admiral and General Electric kitchen appliances and washers and dryers, Ceran space-age glass-top stoves, Sharp microwave ovens and RCA home entertainment centres. Maytag dishwashers are there, too, though that's one manufacturer that never sells to central buyers. "You have to be a licensed Maytag dealer," Stéphane noted, "and there are not too many of us."

There are Sealy, Simmons, Serta and King Koil mattresses at Marcel, too. And tables and bedroom sets and upholstered furniture by Palliser, Sklar-Peppler, Ashley, La-Z-Boy, Citation House and other top names. Upstairs there is a showroom devoted only to juvenile furniture. And downstairs there are rows and rows of dining room sets, "good, better and best," as Stéphane said, from imported budget items to first-quality solid oak or birch ensembles manufactured in Canada.

There have been seven or eight additions added over the past 29 years to the store that Marcel Ranger built in 1965. There are now some 8,000 square feet of showroom space.

The guard is changing. Marcel is leaving to devote more time to his hobby farm, his fishing and his grandchildren. And Stéphane, just 29 years old but already an experienced veteran in the furniture business, is taking over. "The name is staying the same," Stéphane emphasized. "And I hope to give the same value and good service like my dad taught me for another 29 years at least!"

Alexandria's Hamish Cunning (2) unleashes a shot in the direction of Char-Lan goaltender Luc Mulvaugh during last Friday night's Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League season-opener at the Billy Gebbie Arena. The Glens rallied from a 2-0 first-period deficit to win the game 6-3.

Glens open season with split

The Alexandria Glens have a win and a loss to show after the opening weekend of the 1994-95 Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League season.

The Glens started things off with a 6-3 home-ice win over the Char-Lan Rebels on Friday night and finished in Kemptville on Sunday where Robert Boisvenue's club dropped a 5-4 decision to the 73's.

The win over the Rebels on Friday was Alexandria's first in the traditional season-opener between the two clubs since 1991.

American rookie Derek Derocher, who spent the first part of training camp with the Rebels, had a big night for the Glens with three goals, all on the power play.

Jason Hall also scored with a man-advantage for Alexandria while Carl Bougie and Luc Chaumont had even-strength goals. Bougie added three assists for a four-point night.

Tim Corput, Lyle Sproul and Jamie Herrington scored for the Rebels.

Char-Lan actually led the contest 2-0 after 20 minutes thanks to goals by Corput and Sproul and 16 saves by Luc Mulvaugh.

Bougie finally got the Glens on the scoreboard at the 8:31 mark of the second period when he streaked down the left side and beat Mulvaugh with a blast inside the far post.

By the end of the middle frame, the Glens took the lead on power-play goals by Derocher and Hall.

Alexandria made it 6-2 with three consecutive third-period goals before Herrington closed out the scoring with 16 seconds left in the game.

Ricci, Hutt pace 73's

On Sunday in Kemptville, Derek Hutt and Jeff Ricci each scored twice as the 73's edged the Glens 5-4.

Ryan Mahoney also scored for the winners while Carl Bougie, with two, Darcy McDonell and Carl Cadieux had goals for Alexandria.

A slow start proved costly for the Glens as Kemptville had a 3-0 lead before the game was 12 minutes old.

"Kemptville came out like lions," said Boisvenue. "They always play very aggressive at home and they play hard from the beginning of the game to the end."

Despite Sunday's loss, the coach was happy with the weekend as a whole.

"The team gave me pretty much what I expected. Our defence is big enough, but as a whole we're not going to be a team that plays real aggressive. We're going to rely more on speed and finesse."

Boisvenue hopes the team will continue its strong defensive play.

"We've given up an average of four goals a game so far, and if you can do that for a whole year, you can win championships.

"Of course, it's early and we know the other teams will get better, but it's a good start."

Glenformation: Ryan Cunning's regular season debut with the Glens was a short one. The rookie forward was ejected seven minutes into Friday's game against Char-Lan for hitting from behind...Meanwhile, defenceman Richard D'Aoust's debut was put on hold by a two-game suspension. The suspension was related to some problems D'Aoust had with the Seaway Valley Minor Hockey Association, where he played last year...The Glens' three-goalie rotation has been cut to two. Head coach Robert Boisvenue planned to alternate Pascal Gasse, Kevin Lemire and Andrew Allan for the first few weeks of the season before making a decision on which two netminders would be kept, but Allan has been recalled by the Central League's Hawkesbury Hawks before ever playing for the Glens. Allan will remain on a junior B card and suit up with the Hawks as an affiliate...Centreman Chancy Lajoie missed Sunday's game because of illness...Former Glens defenceman Ricky Latreille has signed with the Morrisburg Lions. Latreille was in the line-up as the Leos beat Winchester on Sunday afternoon....Former Univeristy of Ottawa goaltender Pierre Cholette is the Glens' new assistant coach. Cholette is an Alexandria native and a former Glen...The Glens host Winchester on Friday and will pay a visit to the Morrisburg Lions on Sunday afternoon.

Doiron takes checkered flag in Brockville

Alexandria's Ovide Doiron earned the payoff of a lifetime when he won Roger Lalonde's Dream Weekend Race at Brockville Motor Speedway on Sunday.

Starting from the pole position, the veteran driver and his small-block engine car crossed the finish line ahead of 28 competitors from Ontario, Quebec and New York State, many of whom were driving more powerful large-block engine vehicles.

Doiron earned $25,000 for his victory. In almost 35 years of racing, the single largest winner's purse he had previously ever won was $5,000.

"I was lucky," said Doiron from his home on Monday. "When we were picking (for starting positions), I drew the pole. When we started, I was very careful and I avoided getting into any trouble."

It wasn't a wire-to-wire win for Doiron, but it was close. He estimates he led for 175 of the race's 200 laps.

While it would make a great story to say that Doiron had a special feeling about his chances of winning heading into the race, that just simply wasn't the case.

"To be perfectly honest, I didn't even think I'd qualify."

With the race offering such a big cash prize and with the event being open to large-block engine cars, Doiron may have expected the competition to be too strong, but the veteran pilot has had an outstanding season in his own right.

Doiron was the points champion on the Frogtown, N.Y. circuit this past summer, and he finished fourth in the limited racing series at Cornwall Motor Speedway.

Doiron, who began racing in 1959, is planning to return for another season next summer when Cornwall returns to a weekly racing format.

Senior Crusaders rout Vikings for second win

Pregent, Struthers notch hat tricks for Char-Lan

The Char-Lan Crusaders picked up their second victory of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry senior boys' high school soccer season by cruising to an 8-1 win over the General Vanier Vikings last Wednesday in Cornwall.

Ben Pregent and Jason Struthers each scored a hat trick for the Crusaders, who are now 2-1-1 after four games.

Garry Benson scored twice for Char-Lan while General Vanier's only goal was scored by former Crusader Chris Lumley.

Also last Wednesday, the junior Crusaders remained at .500 by playing to a 2-2 with the St.Lawrence Saints.

Tim McCuaig and Derek Wereley scored for Char-Lan, now 2-2-1.

Soccer notes: The Crusaders will be the first SDG team to complete its 1994 schedule.

While the regular season concludes on Oct. 17, the Crusaders play their final games at home on Tuesday (Oct. 11) against Rothwell-Osnabruck and La Citadelle.

After Tuesday's games, Char-Lan must then sweat it out as the rest of the teams play out the string and the playoff picture is settled. With the league being so close this season, the race for the final post-season berths could go down to the final day of the year.

Until then, every game is crucial for both the seniors and juniors, including the battle between Char-Lan and the Tagwi Warriors tomorrow in Williamstown.

Poitras sinks Rebels in OT

Lions rookie goes from goat to hero by scoring game-winner

In the past two seasons, the Morrisburg-Char-Lan rivalry has blossomed into one of the best in junior B hockey.

Both teams were loaded with talented offensive players and each club subscribed to a philosophy stressing hard, but clean hockey.

Each time the two St.Lawrence Division opponents met in recent years, the result was usually an up-tempo, end-to-end battle which provided a wonderful spectacle for local fans.

While the rivalry showed no signs of cooling off on Saturday, there was plenty of evidence to suggest that there will be a very different style of game played between the Rebels and Lions this year.

For example, how many Morrisburg-Char-Lan games in the past have been tied 1-1 after two periods? Or how many have ended 3-2?

With superscorers such as Andrew McEwan, Yvon Besner, Marc Bellemare, Denis St.Jean and Cory Maxam gone, neither Morrisburg nor Char-Lan is the offensive machine it used to be.

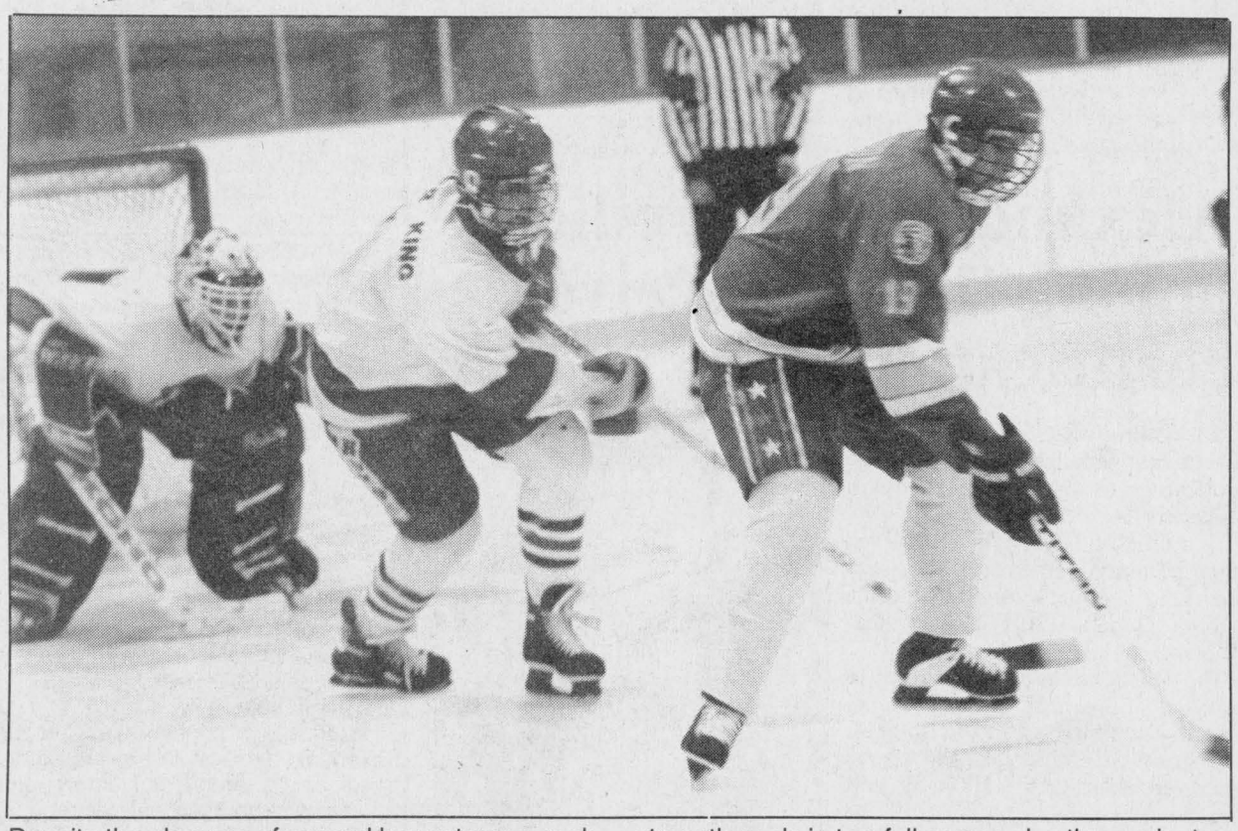
Instead of outgunning opponents, each team must now get a solid two-way effort from its skaters and strong goaltending to pick up victories. The Lions and the Rebels did well in both departments on Saturday, with Morrisburg getting the edge and two points thanks to an overtime winner by Shawn Poitras.

The rookie Morrisburg forward got off a very large hook by scoring the game-winner. Poitras was in the penalty box for roughing when the Rebels tied the game at 2-2 with just over two minutes left in regulation.

Francis Briere had both regulation-time goals for Morrisburg while Rob Curran and Lyle Sproul scored for the Rebels, who get one point for the overtime loss.

Early goal drought

The Rebels already knew that goals would be much harder to come by in 1994-95, and the offensive struggle was made even more difficult by the absence of forwards Dave Campbell, Terry O'Farrell and Melvin Pyke and slick defenceman Paul Rozon on the weekend.



Despite the absence of several key veterans, rookies Ben Flanagan (far left) and Kevin O'Farrell (centre) helped the Rebels turn in a strong defensive effort on the opening weekend of the 1994-95 junior B season. Char-Lan gave up only five even strength goals in two full games plus three minutes of overtime. The offence was a different story as the Rebs were limited to a total of five goals by the Glens and Lions.

The result - the Rebels scored only five goals in their first two games of the season.

Rebels coach Jeff Carter thinks the return of the missing players, plus the signing of a second overage player, will help bring the offence to life.

"Having those four or five guys back in the line-up will make a difference," said Carter. "It looked like Morrisburg was suffering from the same thing without McEwan and (Geoff) Hare. It'll take some time for the offences to get going."

While the offence has been slow to come out of the gate, the early returns from the rookie goaltending tandem of Luc Mulvaugh and Ben Flanagan have been good.

Mulvaugh kept the Rebels alive for two periods against Alexandria on Friday while Flanagan had a strong game against the Lions on Saturday.

"Yeah, that's something I'm pretty happy with," said Carter. "Both goaltenders have definitely played up to par this weekend."

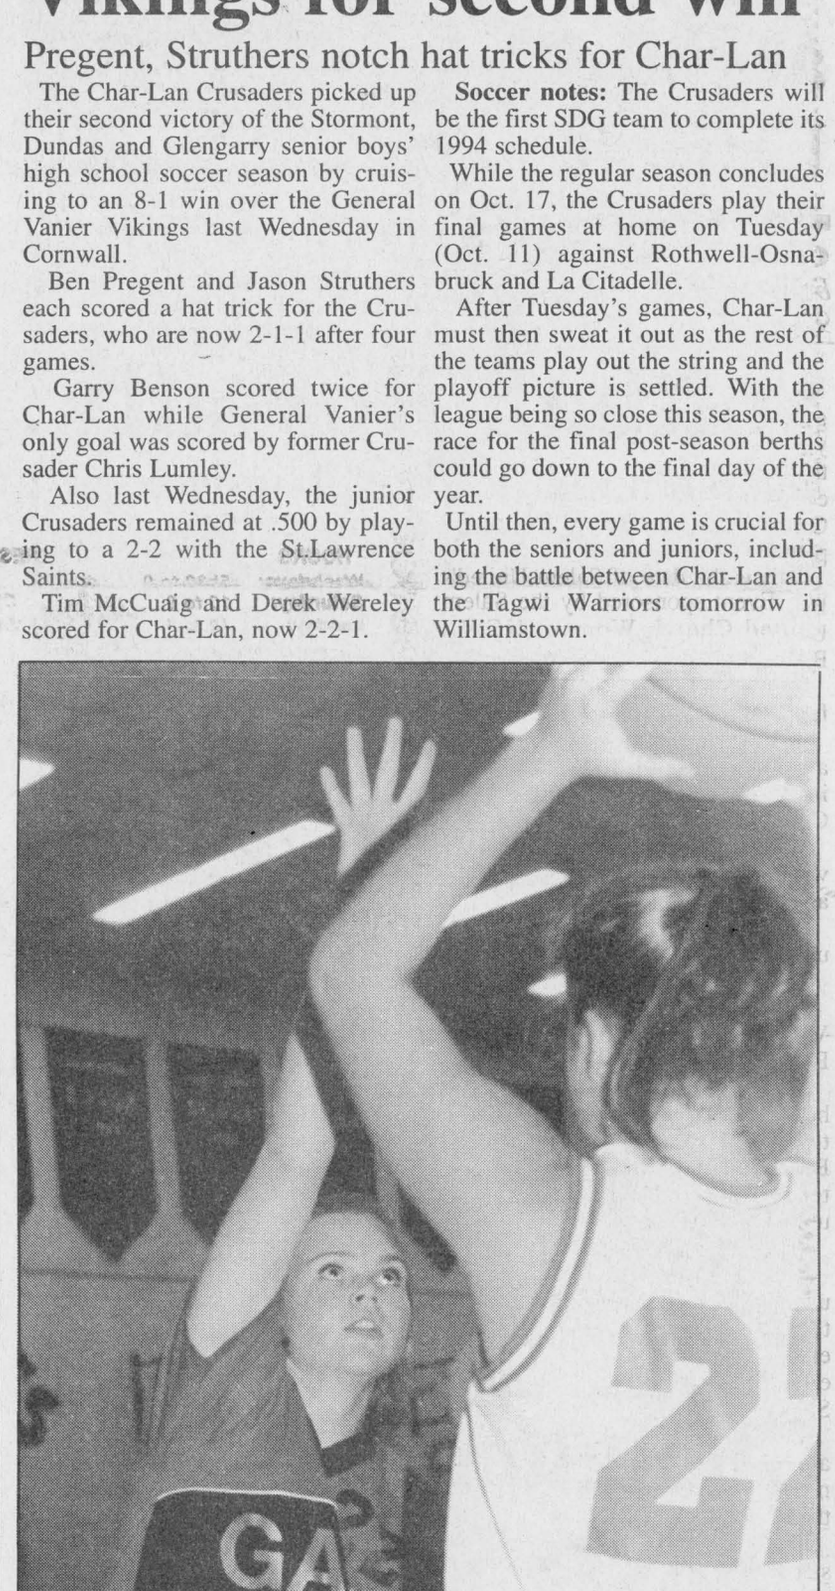
Morrisburg coach Jim Notman was also pleased with his netminder - veteran Dennis Villeneuve - and says strong net play by both teams, not sputtering offence, was responsible for Saturday's low score.

"I thought both teams played quite well tonight," said Notman. "You have to give credit to the goaltenders, who both had to stop quite a few shots."

Notman says if the offence is somewhat lacking at this point, it's a natural state of affairs for a league where each team is breaking in so many rookies.

"We're like all the other teams right now. We're trying to get some lines together and get a system going."

Rebel Yells: The Rebels' long list of missing in action on the weekend included Melvin Pyke (10-game suspension), Terry O'Farrell (three-game suspension) and Paul Rozon (on the sidelines after having his wisdom teeth extracted). Dan Carriere served a one-game suspension on Friday while Dave Campbell missed Saturday's game because of an unspecified injury...Because of all the absentees, the Rebels used forward Eric Fontaine and defenceman Jim Gray as affiliated players on the weekend...The St.Hubert players of the game on Saturday were Ben Flanagan and Lyle Sproul. Luc Mulvaugh was Saturday's Chumps Road Warrior...It's a rare weekend off for the Rebels as this week's schedule includes a game in Winchester tonight and a home date with the Kemptville 73's tomorrow.



Pats sweep Gaels

Glengarry's Isabel Campbell applies defensive pressure on a La Citadelle inbounder during last Wednesday's SDG senior girls' high school basketball game between the Gaels and the Patriotes. The Pats won 58-38 to complete a triple-header sweep. See inside for full story.

Soccer Gaels still unbeaten

The Glengarry boys' soccer teams remained unbeaten in Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry high school play with wins over the Rothwell-Osnabruck Lancers on Monday afternoon in Ingleside.

The seniors improved to 4-0-2 by pounding the Lancers 11-0.

Mike MacDonald scored four times for the Gaels while Alain Decoste and Chad McRae each netted a pair of goals.

Karl Hehn, Paul St.Denis and Nygel Pelletier had singles.

The juniors won 7-2 as Andrew Fraser paced the offence with a hat trick.

Ian Robertson, Jason Nixon, Jason Poll and Jonathan Hamelin also scored for Glengarry, which stretches its season-opening win streak to seven games.

The only negatives for the junior Gaels were the two goals allowed, the first surrendered by Glengarry all season.

The Glengarry defence - led by goalie Steven St.Denis, centre-half Andrew Fraser and fullbacks Craig Calvank, Allan Campbell and Jonathan Hamelin - had recorded six straight shutouts heading into Monday's game.

Three-for-three in Cornwall

The Gaels were also in action in Cornwall last week, with the juniors and seniors combining for three wins in as many tries.

Alain Decoste's two goals led the seniors to a 5-1 win over the St.Joseph's Panthers.

Brennan Cameron, Toni Boos and Daniel Steiche rounded out the scoring.

Meanwhile, the juniors won a pair of 3-0 games, downing St.Joe's and Cornwall Collegiate.

Mike Libbos scored twice in both games. Ian Robertson scored against the Panthers while Jamie MacDermid's goal rounded out the scoring against Cornwall Collegiate.

Softball Roy-alty

Veteran hurler leads club to victory in Game Five of women's final series

BMR-Menard Lumber made quite a series out of it, but in the end, Roy's Pontiac-Buick-Cadillac did win the Alexandria Women's Softball League championship.

Roy's beat BMR 7-2 in the fifth and deciding game of the final last Tuesday night at Alexandria Island Park. BMR had forced a fifth game by winning Games Three and Four the week before.

Roy's win caps a storybook playoff run for the veteran club.

Winners of the consolation championship last season, Roy's qualified for the "A" playoffs on the last night of the 1994 regular season.

Roy's then shocked undefeated regular-season champions Caisse Populaire in a first round series that went the three-game limit before knocking off second-place BMR in the finals.

The championship is the first for the Roy's-Sealtest-Roadrunners franchise since 1977.

Two players - Peggy Lafave and Viola McRae - remain from that 1977 team, and it was McRae's pitching that made a title possible in 1994.

After giving up a run and five hits in the first two innings, McRae held opposing batters to two hits in the final three frames while quashing any thoughts of a BMR comeback.

The ageless McRae (actually, she's 58) has been playing in the Alexandria league for 23 years and her involvement in softball dates back four decades.

And while she has the most experience on the team, McRae is far from being Roy's only veteran.

Lafave and Diane Riley have been in the Alexandria league for over 20 years and Roy's has four players - McRae, Lafave, Riley and Janice MacLennan - that have been playing together for 15 years.

Poor defence costly for BMR

Lost in the shuffle of Roy's win last Tuesday was the strong pitching performance of BMR's Elaine Oetelaar.

Like McRae, Oetelaar held her opponents to seven hits, but five BMR errors led to four unearned runs for Roy's.

Tracey Grady, Glenys Bartlett, Janice MacLennan and Jackie Prieur each drove in a run for Roy's while MacLennan and Sue Stewart scored two runs apiece.

Glengarry junior spikers sweep foes

Rebuilding senior Gaels go oh-for-six

It was the best of times, it was the worst of times.

The Glengarry senior boys' volleyball team had a Dickens of a time on the opening day of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry high school season, but the junior Gaels established themselves as championship contenders with a pair of sweeps.

The two Glengarry teams contrast sharply - the junior Gaels have eight players returning from the squad that went to the SDG finals last year, the seniors have only eight players on the entire roster.

Coach Jean-Yves Jeaurond has no players with senior experience and only two who played on the junior team last season.

The lack of experience was obvious last Thursday at North Dundas as the Gaels fell in three straight games to the host Devils and St.Lawrence.

The North Dundas seniors won 15-3, 15-10 and 15-5 while the Saints took the games by scores of 15-1, 15-7 and 15-3.

Meanwhile, Marc Sauve's junior squad was sweeping matches from North Dundas and St.Lawrence.

The Gaels beat the Devils 15-7, 15-5 and 15-7 and the Saints 15-7, 15-10 and 15-8.

Both teams were back in action yesterday as Rothwell-Osnabruck and La Citadelle travelled to Alexandria.

Four games for junior Warriors

The Tagwi volleyball teams also got their season under way last week, as the Warriors were in Cornwall last Monday to play General Vanier and Cornwall Collegiate.

The juniors won four of six games, beating General Vanier 15-9, 15-9 and 13-15 and Cornwall Collegiate 15-9, 10-15 and 15-9.

The senior Warriors won one of three games from General Vanier but were swept in three straight by Cornwall Collegiate.

Bid made to save loop

A meeting will be held this Friday night in an effort to save the Border Hockey League.

The Alexandria-based recreational league was put on ice last month when no one could be found to organize the loop.

Chris McDonell has since stepped up in a bid to keep the league alive, and anyone interested in entering a team is asked to attend a meeting at the Glengarry Sports Palace in Alexandria this Friday night at 7:30 p.m.

Senior Gaels take "B" title at hoops tourney

It seems Glengarry basketball teams can win at La Citadelle after all.

After coming up empty in a Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry girls' high school basketball triple-header at the Cornwall school last Wednesday, Glengarry finally got a taste of victory when the seniors won the consolation title at a tournament held at La Citadelle on Saturday.

Rachel Denner scored 18 points as the Gaels downed Seaway 47-40 in the consolation final.

Katharine MacLachlan added 12 points for Glengarry.

The Gaels were relegated to the consolation round after losing 46-41 to General Vanier in the semifinals. Glengarry had beaten the Vikings by 14 points in league play on Sept. 22.

The Gaels started the tournament with a 49-36 win over the Rothwell-Osnabruck Lancers. Julie Aube led Glengarry's offence with 14 points.

Pats bury Gaels

For the second year in a row, the Gaels went oh-for-three in league play against La Citadelle as the Patriotes swept a triple-header last Wednesday afternoon.

The senior Gaels lost 58-38 as Rachelle Prevost led the Pats with 15 points.

Katharine MacLachlan had 12 points for the Gaels while Rachel Denner added 10.

Naomi Carrara's nine points led the La Citadelle juniors to a 41-19 win.

Katie Danaher had eight points for Glengarry while Laura Johnson scored four.

The midget Gaels fell 42-21 to the Pats despite a 10-point effort by Tina Bond.

Glens earn three points

The Alexandria Eddy Oetelaar Novice Glens earned three out of a possible four points in minor hockey pre-season action last week.

On Wednesday, the Glens blanked Vankleek Hill 1-0 as Tim Owens scored the game's only goal.

On Sunday, Alexandria hosted Kemptville as the Glens and Royals played to a 4-4 draw.

Shane O'Brien scored twice for Alexandria while Mathieu Lalonde had a goal and an assist.

Phillipe Richer also scored.

Alexandria's Latreille among first to receive certification from CGTA

Alexandria's Ricky Latreille is one of the first people to be certified as a golf instructor by the Canadian Golf Teachers' Association.

Latreille and two others received their teaching certificates after successfully completing a course at the Upper Canada Golf Course near Morrisburg last month.

The course included a rules exam, a playing ability test and a teaching exam. Only three of the 12 students who paid $1,250 to take the course received their certification as golf teachers.

It's the first year the course has been offered by the Tallahassee, Fla.-based United States Golf Teachers' Association under the CGTA banner. Previously, Canadians had to go south of the border to try and earn their teaching certificates.

Canadians who previously received certification through the USGTA - such as Alexandria's Pasquale Mongillo Jr. - will be switched over to the CGTA within the next year.

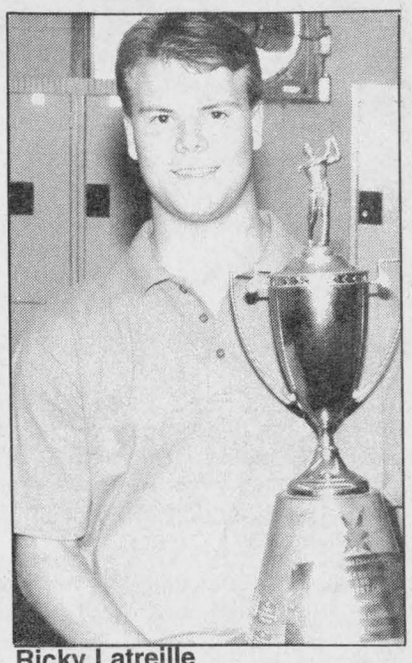
An investment for the future

The 20-year-old Latreille became one of the first to be certified by the CGTA by successfully passing the three-step course.

Latreille had a score of 90 per cent on the rules exam and he shot a two-round total of 152 in the playing ability portion of the course (students had to shoot 166 or lower).

Then came the teaching exam.

"It's a twenty-minute exam that deals with grip, stance and ball alignment," said Latreille, a three-handicap golfer. "You have to explain each (element) in detail and show the ability to teach them to other players."



Ricky Latreille
CGTA certified

So what do successful students get in return for their effort and money?

In addition to receiving instruction from top-notch golf professionals throughout the duration of the course, certificate recipients get the right to use the CGTA name when offering golf lessons.

Being a certified golf teacher could also help Latreille earn a job as an instructor or pro. He's hoping that his first teaching job will be at his hometown Glengarry Golf and Country Club course.

Glengarry currently has a part-time pro who comes in from the Ottawa area.

VON CANADA Caring for Life
By Dr. George McKiel

This is a Honey!

Now don't dismiss this as another holistic medicine ploy. This is for REAL, proven by competent medical researchers that honey can eradicate the bacteria that causes peptic ulcers. When I discussed this with Mary and Marcel Levac of Green Valley, our local producers and packers of honey - their family has been in the honey business for almost fifty years, they were delighted and added, "Don't forget that bees, in pollinating fruit and other agricultural crops, are estimated to be worth at least $1 billion to Can agriculture". So the benefits of honey are not just in eating it for its fructose sweetness and variety of flavors, we now have solid medical implications for healing. Mary Levac also pointed out that bee pollen is being tested and used to combat some cancers. Then there's the other spinoff of apiarists, royal jelly, which appears to augment our immunologic well being.

CAUTION: Don't give honey to infants under 1 yr of age. Their stomach acid is not strong enough to destroy botulism spores that may be present in even pasteurized honey. -- Carmen Ubbink, dietitian with E.O.H.U.

The botulism spores are also resistant to moderate heat, prolonged boiling and domestic cooking. Linda Vickers, dietitian at our Glengarry Memorial Hospital, sees no problem with honey for people on normal diets but points out that fructose (the main sugar in honey) is so quickly absorbed into the bloodstream that diabetics could roller coast their blood sugar to a dangerous peak. Linda also, sensibly, points out that if a natural antibiotic occurs in foods, such as honey, you may have to consume a lot to obtain adequate benefit of the antibiotic. Which leads us to the honey medical breakthrough. Early this year, the N.Z. Medical Journal published the news that studies done with manuka honey (a N.Z. flowering shrub) killed off, every time, the bacteria that cause peptic ulcers. It appears that the honey contains a powerful antibiotic. I have not found any further studies on other types of honey to confirm this finding but until that happens, it is sensible for peptic ulcer sufferers to replace the sugar intake with honey.

Historically, honey has always been valued by mankind, the early Saxons recognized its healing potential, the Koran mentions honey as a "medicine for men", and anthropologists are able to point out primitive cultures who go to considerable trouble locating and climbing for caches of honey from wild bees high up in tall trees. The ancient Egyptians used honey as a component in their embalming.

A Glengarry mother buys the dark (buckwheat) honey from Mary Levac and says that her asthmatic child is helped far more with that type of honey than all the medicines that have been prescribed. Perhaps there are other Glengarrians who have had similar findings, if so, please let me know.

It's interesting to know that a tablespoon of honey has more calories and carbohydrate content than white or brown sugar but less calcium and about the same amount of phosphorus and iron. Honey also contains small amounts of vitamins: thiamine, riboflavin and niacin. To further titillate your palate, here's a delicious recipe from the Levac's brochure:

BEAN SALAD:
2 - 20oz cans of green beans, drained
2 - 20oz cans yellow beans, drained
1 - 15oz can kidney beans, drained
1 - 15oz can lima beans, drained
2 med onions, cut into rings
1 large green pepper, cut in strips

Dress with a cup of Glengarry honey, 1 cup of vinegar, 1/2 cup salad oil, and 1 and 1/2 tsp of salt and pepper. Shake all these dressing ingredients in a jar, pour over the beans and marinate well. Enjoy.

Maxville Manor renovations complete

Maxville
by Gordon Winter
527-2888

The renovation program at Maxville Manor has been completed and last week some residents were moved to other rooms to accommodate the re-organizational program.

The latest renovations were in what used to be known as the Centre Wing. Now it is "B" wing. This wing plus the adjoining one known as "C" form a unit for special care residents and has rooms for 41 residents.

The three new wings have some double rooms for couples and others who wish to be together. Otherwise all rooms are now private ones.

An official opening is being planned for the spring. In the meantime, visitors are most welcome at the Manor to have a look at the splendid facilities and while there, if you don't know any residents, stop and talk to a stranger. Your chat will be appreciated.

Ninety-six-year-old Bill Williamson, a Manor resident, is very happy to announce that his niece, Nina and her husband Murray MacEachern have emigrated from Mr. William's native Scotland and are living on his property in the Dalkeith area. We welcome them as do their closer neighbors.

Elizabeth and Bob Krug from Pasadena, California visited in the area last week with her aunt, Catherine (Neil) MacRae and with her cousins, Rae and Donald Ferguson and their families. Elizabeth is the daughter of the late Oliver and May (McLennan) MacRae.

We extend sympathy to Anne (Mrs. Phillip) Michaud and all members of the family in the death of her son, Lawrence, of Cornwall. Mrs. Michaud helped to raise a large family and her two daughters, Gloria Rolland and Jean Villeneuve, Dyer, are the only two left.

Readers are always interested in having news of family members who have moved away. Marie Campbell, Warina, supplied us with the following: Belated but good news from Bev and Marie Campbell. Their daughter, Susan, and her husband, Jeff Wood, presented them with a beautiful grandson on June 25 at Kingston General Hospital. Caleb Jeffrey was welcomed by his sisters, Bailey and Morgan. The family lives near Napanee where Mr. Wood is the minister of a small country church.

The grandparents helped out for some time after the birth and otherwise, Bev is enjoying his new career in carpentry after retiring from teaching at Tagwi High School.

Daughter Sandra spent most of her summer on staff at the Circle Square Ranch while other daughter, Melanie, who works for the Children's Aid in Toronto, was home for the Labor Day weekend.

The year has gone by quickly and Tracy O'Flaherty, proprietor of Tracy's Country Corner is celebrating her first anniversary on Oct. 8. We extend congratulations to Tracy and thank her for operating her fine business which has retained the traditions of the former proprietor Ruby MacGregor and her assistant, Jean Chisholm. Drop in to the store on Saturday and celebrate with Tracy.

If you read that new supplement in the Standard Freeholder each Saturday, you would have seen a photograph of Pearly Lewis, one of the village's newest residents. The family lives in the former Presbyterian manse and Mr. Lewis works for MacEwen Petroleum Inc. where he is in charge of oil furnace sales and service.

Retired teachers from here who attended the annual meeting of District 25, Superannuated Teachers of Ontario in Iroquois last Tuesday were Claire Besner, Helen Hunter, Jean MacCuaig and Gordon Winter. The guest speaker, lawyer Doug Grenkie from Morrisburg, gave an informative talk on power of attorney and offered answers to many questions. The social hour with friends was enjoyed as was the excellent meal provided by the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion.

Mrs. Besner and Gwen Morris, Alexandria, are Glengarry's directors on the District Board.

With extended best wishes to Marilyn and Dan McGale and family as they take up new residence in Cornwall. We trust her father, John T. MacKenzie will remain a well known and highly respected member of this community when he is not in Florida.

Their residence, the former Dr. Howard Munro home, has been purchased by Helen and Jim McKay and will be used in part for the business Mrs. McKay operated as a cafe and bake shop farther north on Main St. Best wishes for much success are extended to her.

Nomination day for reeve and councillors is fast approaching and there seems to be no talk around town as to the intention of the members of the present council or of new candidates who plan to offer their services. Election day is Nov. 14 and candidates for the offices must file nomination papers by 5 p.m. on Oct. 14 and then have until 5 p.m. on Oct. 17 to withdraw their nomination papers. Our village deserves the best.

The project of cleaning up the wooded area of the park at the north end of the village is under way. A special grant has provided funds to hire unemployed individuals to carry out this project as well as to organize the material in the village's office which accumulated mainly during Centennial year and which will become archives. Associated with this material are about 40 copies of Maxville: Its Centennial Story 1991. If you still plan to buy a copy for a family member, you are advised to do so before the Christmas rush.

The good people of the Martintown Presbyterian Church have issued a warm invitation for readers to attend their ham supper this evening (Wednesday) at the church from 4-7:30 p.m.

You are also reminded of the local United Church turkey and ham supper on next Saturday, Oct. 15, from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the church hall.

Councillor Allen Douglas who was in charge of the hazardous waste collection for the village was delighted with the participation and interest shown on Sept. 17. Overall, there was twice as much waste collected than expected and from the village, 26 households were represented with 23 cars driving through.

The newsletter from the public school is always interesting reading for your correspondent and contains items of interest for readers of this column.

Dress styles have certainly changed down through the years and many of us are aware of the changes. However, Manor residents had a fashion show staged by students of the school recently to update them on the latest. Two student volunteers from each class modelled their new school clothes and were Amanda Albert, Cassandra Watson, Brittany Quesnel, Ashley Derouchie, Victoria Jackson, Darryl Gougeon, Melissa MacLeod, Danny MacGregor, Jessica Wallis, Katie Jean-Louis, Gwynydd Cowley-Owen, Malcolm Chisholm, Bodeene Amyot, Ashley Miller, Natalie Jackson, Chris Coleman, Kevin Durocher, Megan Steele, Shannan McIntosh, Shannon MacEwen, Sara Mayer, Shawn Quesnel and Matthew Morrow. Older readers will also be noting the trendy names of the students but oldtimers should be able to spot two boys named after great grandfathers.

The inter-generational program at the Manor is also under way and students in Grades 5-8 are visiting with an assigned resident at the Manor at noon once a week. Student volunteers are to be commended for taking part in this program but are well rewarded when they bring pleasure to their special friends.

The Seniors Outreach Services program at the Manor continues to expand and serve many. There may be a few spaces left for the Gatineau Parkway bus trip and shopping at Orleans on this Thursday. Swimming sessions at the Training Institute in Cornwall will be held each Tuesday and Thursday from 3-4 p.m. All those interested are invited to phone for reservations and transportation.

Bowling continues at St. Isidore each Friday morning at 10 a.m. and there is still room for some more bowlers.

The members of the Diners' Club meet next on Oct. 13th at 12:30 p.m. A pharmacist will speak on related subjects and introduce the pharmacy courier service which is being introduced through the S.O.S program. On this Thursday, the blood pressure clinic will be conducted from noon to 3 p.m.

Last week, the first euchre was held at the Manor with an excellent turnout. Constant readers will note from the winners list that many of the regular players at the Young At Heart Seniors euchres were in attendance. The winners were Jessie Renwick, Catherine (Dan) MacRae and Alice Richer for the ladies and Ted Lapensee, Norman MacLeod and Alex Tittley for the men.

On Tuesday, Oct. 18, there will be a flu clinic from 1:30-3:30 p.m. sponsored by the Eastern Ontario Health Unit.

For information and reservations for any of the above activities you are asked to phone the Manor at 527-2170 and then punch in local 228 for Phyllis Burtenshaw or local 237 for her assistant, Kim Aube.

One hundred years ago, A. L. McCallum was attending McGill University. I was guessing that he was a son of the Rev. Daniel McCallum who was minister of the Congregational Church here at the time.

Eighty years ago, Dr. Neil MacLeod was already on his way overseas to serve as a medical doctor in World War I. He was a brother of Mrs. Peter Christie and an uncle of Jessie McIntosh (nee McLean) of the village and her sister Hilda of Westport.

Seventy years ago, Florence McKinnon, daughter of Duncan, left for Queen's University to become a high school teacher. She later operated a business college in Ottawa. She married Art Allin and died last year.

The next item your correspondent remembers and so does John Coleman. A field near the cemetery was used to pasture cows owned by residents nearby. W. H. "Lennie" Metcalfe, grandfather of Bill, was injured by a Jersey cow as the item of 70 years ago depicts. John was there to take the cows home to his aunt Tena's barn. In those days, there were quite a few village cows, some of which were pastured at "Christie Fisher's" the site of the Manor.

Fraser Cumming, the son of the late John and Lizzie, nee Alguire, of Dyer, was earning scholarships for Queen's 40 years ago. He is an Ottawa resident.

HOPITAL GLENGARRY MEMORIAL HOSPITAL PHYSICIAN RECRUITMENT UPDATE

Last year there was doubt that the Emergency Department at the Glengarry Memorial Hospital could stay open because of a shortage of emergency physicians. However, the Board of Directors on behalf of the community recognized the value of the Emergency Department and increased financial support for hospital administration to successfully recruit emergency physicians. The new Chief of Emergency, Dr. Poole, has over 15 out-of-town physicians (mainly from Montreal, Ottawa and Cornwall) to cover the emergency department 24 hours a day seven days a week. Emergency physicians work 10, 14 or 24 hour shifts. Some of the local physicians help out by filling gaps in the schedule and provide backup if available when requested for multiple emergencies or when the emergency physician has to leave to accompany a patient in an ambulance.

Recently there have been a couple of departures of physicians with full time family practices in Alexandria. Again, the Board has been very supportive by approving relocation and incentive grants to help attract physicians in exchange for guaranteed years of service in our community and at the hospital. Hospital Administration started placing advertisements in provincial and national medical journals last July. There have been many replies; however, to date only three have visited our community and hospital to further investigate their relocation options. All of the physicians inquiring are interested in joining an existing group practice or clinic. Unfortunately, the only ones that presently exist are the Bishop Street clinic and the Centre de Santé Communautaire de l'Estrie which only have part-time hours available or none at all. New physicians seem somewhat reluctant to start their own solo practice.

Recruiting new physicians to a rural community such as Alexandria is not an easy task. This is a problem all across Canada. Almost 25 per cent of Canadians live in rural areas but only 11 per cent of general practice physicians work in these rural areas. Alexandria is competing for new physicians against heavy odds. Some communities in northern Ontario designated as being under serviced for physicians are assisted by the Ministry of Health who provide up to $40,000 tax free grants (over four years) to qualified physicians to relocate there. However, physicians relocating to some rural communities up to $275,000 to construct medical clinics that help attract new physicians. To top it off, U.S. hospitals are actively recruiting Canadian physicians with lucrative offers.

The Hospital Board and Administration are presently addressing options to attempt to alleviate these recruitment barriers but it will not happen overnight. In the meantime if you no longer have a family physician and cannot obtain another one, then you are welcome to visit the hospital's emergency department. A physician is always available, but please be patient when emergency patients arrive.

In Memoriam

CADIEUX, Albert -- In loving memory of a dear husband and father who passed away Oct. 4, 1989.
We cannot clasp your hand, father dear;
Your face we cannot see;
But let this little token
Tell that we still remember thee.
-- Sadly missed by your wife Margaret and Diane and family. 40-1p

CHOLETTE -- In memory of our father, Wildy, who died 10 years ago, October 9, 1984.
Someday, somewhere the joy we had in him we lost will be Renewed again beyond the veil for all eternity.
-- Your sons and their families.

RICHARD -- In loving memory of Mrs. Marie Jeanne (Jeannette) Richard, who passed away on August 8, 1993. You are now joined by your brother, Rolland Robidoux, who passed away on September 9, 1994. We miss you.

YOU

Tonight while thinking of you,you are so far away from me in my sleep. I think of you who left us with no reason.
So much sorrow, you caused us. For your children and grandchildren that loved you so much.
The life with you was very warm and full of happiness. You were always there to make me laugh and punish me, these moments I didn't really like them but you always knew how to make me laugh.
Every time I went to your place, seeing your rocker so empty made me feel so sad, I always ask myself why? Why you! You that loved us so much! I love you grandpa!
Now I got older, I'm 15 years old and have a boyfriend that you would love too. You would probably tease him, saying; "You better take good care of her". He too, would love you.
I never forgot all the love you had and you still have for me and grandma.
I would like to ask you one big favor! Please take good care of yourself in heaven and keep one eye open for me and I will take care of grandma for you.
Grandpa don't forget that I know you were always there when I was little and even if you are gone now, I know that you will always be there when I need you.
I love you,
Your grand-daughter,
Sonia Ménard

In Memoriam

CHOLETTE -- In loving memory of a dear husband, Wildy, who died 10 years ago, Oct. 9, 1984.
O happy hours we once enjoyed,
How sweet the memories still
But death has left a loneliness
The world can never fill.
-- Your wife Lucia. 40-1p

FRASER, Mary -- In loving memory of a beloved mother and grandmother who passed away October 4, 1993.
A silent thought, a secret tear,
Keeps her memory ever dear.
Time takes away the edge of grief,
But memory turns back every leaf.
-- Sadly missed and always remembered by Dona, Gwen, Jack, Rae and families. 40-1p

MacGillivray excels at match

Dalkeith
by Jean MacLennan
874-2385

Last week I missed some important items but "better late than never."

Congratulations to Lloyd Howes who was recently inducted into the Glengarry Agriculture Wall of Fame. It was a well deserved honor.

Ross MacGillivray, who competed at the International Plowing Match in Renfrew County placed second on two days and third on two days. The final tally has not been received yet. He and his wife Helen were pleased with the results and also happy to see so many local friends at the match.

* * *

Congratulations to the Glengarry News on the third place win in the OCNA advertising awards.

* * *

Hector Burton, now of Fassifern, officially retired from the SD&G County Road Department on Sept. 30. He had worked there for 27 and half years and surely well deserves his retirement. A party is to be held this Friday, Oct. 7 at the Bonnie Glen -- see ad.

* * *

Teresa Hay, who spent some time in the Alexandria hospital is back home and we wish you continuing good health.

* * *

Congratulations to Ruth (McRae) and Gordon Howes who were married on Saturday, Oct. 1 at Knox Presbyterian Church, Vankleek Hill. The Rev. R. Martin officiated. They will live at Kirk Hill.

* * *

The Breadalbane Women's Mission Circle is planning a 50th anniversary celebration on Thursday, Oct. 13 at 8 p.m. at the Breadalbane Baptist Church. Mrs. Curtis (whose husband was minister at the time) organized the Circle and was first president and passed that on to Iva Capron. Everyone is welcome to join the group for the special occasion.

The Community Planning Committee held a meeting in Dalkeith on Tuesday, Sept. 27 with Michel Boucher in the chair.

Two of the members, Jennifer Desjardins and Jerry Fralic had attended the Community Policing Conference in Kingston in September and brought back reports.

A committee was appointed to study a constitution and present it at a later meeting.

The committee members are John Strudwick, Yolland Boucher, Jennifer Desjardins and Jerry Fralic.

Sgt. Wayne Villeneuve of the Maxville detachment OPP was present to answer questions and make suggestions.

He reports that many residents of Lochiel are using the engraver to identify valuables.

It is available through the OPP. Morlin Campbell and Hubert Hay were present from the Quigley Cheese Mfg. Assoc. to present a cheque to the committee to cover costs of mailing, etc.

Treasurer Jerry Fralic reported $297 in the bank account.

The Dalkeith Optimist Club had kindly supplied coffee and a fellowship time followed the meeting.

Kirk Hill United Church service will be held at 11 a.m. for the balance of October.
