GLENGARRY IN BRIEF

Twice the rain

September was slightly below normal temperature and precipitation wise.

Temperatures reached 30 Celsius only twice this summer (June 26, Sept. 1), much less than normal.

Several killing frosts occurred in September with a low of -5 Celsius. Rain fell 13 times this past month, again mostly on weekends.

A total of 435 millimeters (17 inches) fell during the four summer months, the normal being 328 mm (14.7 inches).

Submitted by George Hambleton, Atmospheric Environment Services, Dalhousie Mills.

$5.1 M worth of grass seized

An estimated street value of $5.1 million worth of marijuana was seized last week in Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry the last week.

The Eastern Region Ontario Provincial Police Drug Unit pulled 5,111 plants. Each one is worth about $1,000.

Police report that growers are planting smaller cultivations, hoping there would be less of a chance the plantations will be spotted.

Boudria seeks Liberal nod

Long-serving Glengarry-Prescott-Russell MP Don Boudria is expected to be acclaimed today (Oct. 11) at the Federal Liberal Association's nomination meeting at the St. Isidore Arena, 20 Eglise St.

On hand will be fellow Cabinet Minister Sheila Copps as well as provincial MPP Jean-Marc Lalonde.

"It is an honour to be surrounded by Liberal colleagues and friends during such an important moment and I hope that citizens of the region will join us," Boudria said.

The meeting begins at 7:30 p.m.

Alliance select candidate

The Canadian Alliance Constituency Association of Stormont-Dundas-Charlottenburgh will hold a candidate selection meeting on Oct. 19 at 7 p.m. at the Ramada Inn, Cornwall.

Nominations for the position closed on Oct. 5.

The nominees are Korey Kennedy of Cornwall, Guy Lauzon of St. Andrew's West and Diane Thompson of Moose Creek.

MacEwen reveals $1.65 M tower

BY JASON MAGDER
News Reporter

Although MacEwen's new blender began operation in the spring, the ribbon cutting ceremony for the new state-of-the-art blending tower took place last Thursday in Maxville.

The ceremony, followed a similar one in Vars, near Ottawa, where MacEwen built an identical machine.

"It's probably three to three-and-a-half times faster," said Jamie Sinden, a project manager for Green Lea Ag Center, Inc, which constructed the tower. "And the other system would have taken more labour. As long as the tower is (fully stocked), this can be a one-man operation."

MacEwen is one of the largest agricultural centres in Eastern Ontario and Western Quebec with plants in Maxville and Vars as well as St. Isidore.

The tower is controlled by a console in a nearby trailer, where the operator can plug in a specific formula to match the customer's needs.

It also enables the tower worker to plug in another formula while the first one is being produced. Sinden said the tower can produce eight tonnes of fertilizer, enough for a large farm, in five minutes.

The two new towers represent a total $2.3 million investment by MacEwen. Company president Jim

NG homeowners show apathy toward blue boxes

BY SANDRA BERRY
Staff Reporter

It seems residents of North Glengarry are not taking full advantage of their blue boxes.

". . .we were appalled to witness the lack of knowledge on recycling and the extreme apathy and disregard for the preservation of longevity of our crowded landfills," states the North Glengarry Waste Audit Report.

The audit was conducted by summer students Helene Cuerrier, Michael Lauzon, Derek O'Brien, Natalie Sarault, Landon Shepherd and Sadie St. Denis.

The students were hired by RARE to complete a seven-week analysis of recycling practices and knowledge in North Glengarry.

Garbage could be diverted

Based on a four-week analysis of garbage in Alexdandria and Lochiel, students tabluated their results to show how much waste could be diverted.

Pooling Lochiel and Alexandria results showed that 33 per cent of North Glengarry's waste could be discarded while 14 per cent could be recycled and 53 per cent composted.

Throwing away $53,000

While environmental activists emphasize the importance of the Earth's health for recycling, there is also an important economic factor.

"The irony of it is that we negligently throw away $53,888 into the garbage every year."

Child seat clinic Saturday

BY JASON MAGDER
News Reporter

The Eastern Ontario Health Unit will be holding a child seat inspection day this Saturday.

The day is part of a program in 40 different towns and cities, organized by the Eastern Ontario Child Seat Coalition.

The Health Unit has enlisted the help of the OPP as well as the Alexandria Ford dealership.

They're offering parents to come down to the dealership between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. and get their child seats inspected. The staff at Ford as well as police officers will perform the inspection. The most important part of the child seat is the strap in the back, known as the tether.

The tether is often improperly strapped or tightened. Many do not even bother with it altogether. It can be somewhat of a hassle to install the tether on older models of cars, which require the parents to screw the strap into the seat.

However, OPP Constable Hugh McClements said the tether is the most important part of the seat as well as required by law in Canada.

"What happens is that many parents who purchase seats to not follow what the manuals declare has to be done. If you don't install the seats properly, death or injury can occur. It's not enough to just use the seatbelt."

That's why staff at the Ford dealership on Saturday will give advice as to how to properly install the tethers. And parents with Ford vehicles will get their tethers installed free-of-charge.

SG Council wants back on

By News Staff

The current members of South Glengarry Township Council looked in the mirror and saw what they liked.

The current Council are all running for re-election for the identical seats they already hold.

Township clerk Michel Samson said Tuesday morning that Councillors Janette Abbey, Jim McDonell and Ian MacLeod have registered.

They join incumbent Reeve Charles Sangster and sitting Deputy-reeve Frank Prevost, who registered last month.

Abbey had decided she would run but was undecided if she should attempt to climb the ladder for one of the two senior positions.

Residents who wish to challenge the incumbents have until 5 p.m. this Friday to slap down their $100 and register.

If they do and they have second thoughts, candidates have until this Monday at 5 p.m. to withdraw their name and get their $100 refunded.

8-7-4 residents vent their frustration on Bell rep

BY GREG PEERENBOOM
News Editor

Representatives of Bell Canada got an earful on Oct. 3 from well over a dozen Lochiel ward residents during a well-attended meeting at the Dalkeith Optimist Hall.

"You don't care about us out here in the country. You just care about making money off of us," shouted one middle-aged man at Gord Jackson.

Jackson and two other Bell personnel were on the hot seat as customers who live in the Glen Robertson 8-7-4 telephone exchange complained passionately about the inadequate local calling area.

"I live only a few minutes down the road from Ste. Anne (de Prescott) and I have to pay long distance," another man said.

There were many other gripes from 8-7-4 customers who can't phone the Vankleek Hill (6-7-8), St. Eugene (6-7-4) and Hawkesbury (6-3-2) exchanges without incurring long-distance charges.

Jackson for his part went into an exhaustive explanation of why Bell has local calling for some exchanges and not for others.

He said exchanges could receive local calling if they met three criteria: 1. be within 40 miles, 2. have at least 60 per cent of the residents calling long-distance for two months in a 12-month consecutive period to a community of interest, 3. have at least 50 per cent of subscribers vote to have their basic rate increased so they would get the expanded calling area.

In August 2000, 30 per cent of 8-7-4 customers called Vankleek Hill, 22 per cent to St. Eugene and 31 per cent to Hawkesbury, Jackson said.

He said all of these criteria must be met for the Canadian Radio and Television Commission to approve an expanded calling area.

He added that Cornwall's exchanges were called more often in recent years than the two Prescott County exchanges.

That is why the Cornwall exchanges were given to 8-7-4 customers in September 1999, but not the others.

This claim was strongly refuted by several people. One resident said he's only phoned Cornwall a couple of times since moving into the Dalkeith area a few years, whereas he has called into St. Eugene and Hawkesbury many times.

Another sore point with several residents was Bell's reliance on information supplied through its long-distance provider Bell Sympatico.

After a show of hands, it appeared that at least 30 per cent of the crowd were customers of long-distance companies other than Bell.

It was roundly suggested that Bell's long-distance calling percentage (eg. 30 per cent into Vankleek Hill) was flawed and that it was, in reality, substantially higher.

Some people wanted to know how many of Bell's local calling customers were with other companies for long-distance purposes.

"I don't have this information with me at this time," Jackson said.

Other residents poked holes in Bell's free calling expansion project of last fall, when it enabled places like Alfred to call Cornwall, about 80 kilometres away, but still left Glen Robertson isolated from neighbouring exchanges.

"You did not follow the criteria," one man said.

Jackson explained that Bell made a special package offer to the CRTC so people could have better access to internet services provided in Cornwall.

Still a few others questioned the possibility of scrapping the 8-7-4 exchange altogether and lumping Glen Robertson and Dalkeith

MacEwen said his company is the only one in Ontario with a mixing tower of this capacity. MacEwen said that approximately 10 jobs would be created as a result of the investment.

"It's high capacity, highly accurate and blends about 100 tonnes per hour," MacEwen said. "It can blend up to 15 different ingredients, including micronutrients. Based on soil samples from the customer, we can custom blend each fertilizer for the customer's needs.

"It also improves our service because in the spring, farmers are very pressed for time, trying to get the crop out between the weather. So we also purchased a lot of equipment to get it from the plant to the farm," MacEwen added.

There were approximately 100 people in attendance for the ribbon cutting ceremony, most of whom were farmers. North Glengarry Mayor Grant Crack was also present as well as MPP for Northumberland, Dr. Doug Galt, and former MPP Noble Villeneuve. Villeneuve cut the ribbon and declared the tower officially open.

There were presentation booths from DuPont, Novartis and other companies which manufacture agricultural goods. The plant also provided lunch for the guests.

area resident in with Alexandria's 5-2-5 exchange.

Jackson said this highly unlikely because if the same logic was applied across the province, there would be huge inconsistencies.

"Where do you draw the line?"

Jackson urged those in attendance to have patience as the local calling industry "is undergoing dramatic changes."

The meeting was held after months of lobbying by a committee spearheaded by Yvonne Willems, who lives only minutes away from Vankleek Hill, but has to call long-distance.

Committee member Serge Buy said Bell has the "moral" duty to open up the boundaries because it is a monopoly it has "responsibilities" beyond that of a normal business.

He said the CRTC is an instrument of the federal government and that local MP, Cabinet Minister Don Boudria, will be well informed after the meeting about the seriousness confronting 8-7-4 customers.

Glengarry Federation of Agriculture president William Hagen also addressed Jackson and the residents.

He said many changes over the last 20 years has forced farmers to call long-distance more often so they could operate their farm more efficiently.

North Glengarry Mayor Grant Crack, who was moderating the meeting, said Council will keep corresponding with Bell to see what progress is made.

Nonetheless, Jackson could not guarantee a time frame to expect any new developments.

However, after the meeting Buy told The News the committee will be sending a formal letter of complaint to the CRTC.

Bill Franklin Wants Unity in North Glengarry

North Glengarry councillor and mayoralty candidate, Bill Franklin, has declared that if he is elected Mayor he will move quickly to make changes that will promote unity and harmony in the municipality.

"It is absolutely essential that our local government treats everyone, and all regions, fairly," he said.

Franklin said he is particularly concerned about the feeling many people have that there is ill will, sometimes even hostility, among various regions of the township. "It's time to heal these divisions where they exist," he said.

Franklin said as Mayor he would go directly to the people in various areas in order to deal with their problems. "The problems that emerged in Lochiel over the past three years could have been dealt with much more fairly if we had gone directly to Glen Robertson or Dalkeith and laid all our cards on the table."

"Politicians" he said, "have a responsibility to deal fairly and honestly with people's problems and sometimes this means getting council out of the council chambers and into the areas where citizens work and live."

Save PUC money for Maxville water project

By News Staff

Despite more conflicting views on the quality of their well water, Maxville residents were virtually unanimous in support of reserving a one-time only windfall of $300,000 for any water works.

When asked if the proceeds from the partial sale of North Glengarry Public Utilities Commission should be kept solely for financing a communal water system, nearly all the hands shot up from the 100-plus who gathered at the public meeting on Sept. 28 at the Maxville Sports Complex hall.

Maxville ward Councillor Johanne Wensink also asked if residents would want a portion of the PUC money to go to the Glengarry Highland Games' expansion project. There was substantially less support.

Other than that revelation, which might still be an election issue this fall, the atmosphere of the meeting echoed a previous meeting in June.

Engineering consultant John St. Marseille of MS Thompson & Associates again explained possible reasons as much as 65 per cent of sampled Maxville wells were deemed unsafe in terms of E.coli and total coliform.

Nonetheless, many of those in attendance disputed this number, claiming that subsequent private sampling did not confirm MS Thompson's tests.

There was also a question of costs shared. One senior wanted to know if those on a fixed income would be compensated in some way.

No, replied North Glengarry Mayor Grant Crack, although he pledged to find whatever resources to reduce the cost.

In progress is the township's application for provincial funding under the Ontario Small Town and Rural Development Infrastructure Program.

Council wants to see what level of funding there is for an environmental study, which is mandatory before any water works could begin.

Once the funding level is determined, Council said it will once again ask Maxville residents for their guidance.

Trails' project under fire

Litany of missteps claims ex-director

This is the first in a series of special reports on the development of the Glengarry Trails' project to west of Alexandria in the Garry River watershed area.

BY JASON MAGDER AND GREG PEERENBOOM
News Staff

In the woods of Glengarry there lies a place where varied forms of wildlife and plant life live. Where you can enjoy nature at its finest.

This place is the Glengarry Trails, a concept created by the Raisin River Conservation Authority and the chair of the Friends of Glengarry Trails, Richard Kerr.

"It's just a spectacular site. I don't know any sites like this," said St. Lawrence River Institute biologist Brian Hickey, who wrote a report for the Friends.

The idea was to create a multi-use trail system that would loop around 16-kilometres in the Glengarry area between Alexandria and Apple Hill. Such a trail would be used for recreation as well as outdoor education.

However, the first phases of building the Glengarry Trails is receiving considerable criticism.

Trails have been cleared in some sensitive areas, and the long-term impact for it is not known, particularly in the area known as Lost Lake or Garry Fen where a boardwalk has been laid out over top a marshy fen.

This decision and others has prompted a former director, Robert Graham, to resign in frustration over the lack of planning and concern for the area's natural state.

"They didn't do a complete study and inventory of the area," he said, adding even directors such as himself didn't know construction was taking place.

"It all started when I decided to take a walk to see where a nice trail could be put in and I discovered there was already a trail being built," he said.

That was March 1999, just after workers employed by the Raisin River Conservation Authority built the boardwalk through kilometres of wetland forest and over top the ultra-sensitive marshland beside tranquil Garry Fen.

"They built it during the winter without knowing what was underneath or what impact it would have," Graham said.

"There was a pair of nesting loons on the lake. I could show you the nest. They like privacy. Anyone walking around would disturb them. They're gone.

"Beavers are chewing on the boardwalk because (the boardwalk) cut off access to their food supplies.

"On one hand they tried to enhance, but they end up destroying habitat and altering it."

Graham lays much of the blame on Kerr's chairmanship.

Kerr said the first trail's construction was a logical choice at the time.

"The people that were doing it decided that's where they wanted it because it was the simplest construction and they didn't have to go in the woods and cut trees," Kerr said.

"And they did it in the winter when it was frozen. They knew they were going across a marshy area and that's why it was done in the winter because it couldn't be done any other time."

The trail system had been started during the late autumn of 1998.

Graham said this first project was ill-conceived and done with virtually no input from qualified professionals.

Graham produced from a briefcase a half-inch thick cross sample of a cedar tree.

Although it was only two inches in diameter, it had 82 rings, signifying 82 years of stunted growth.

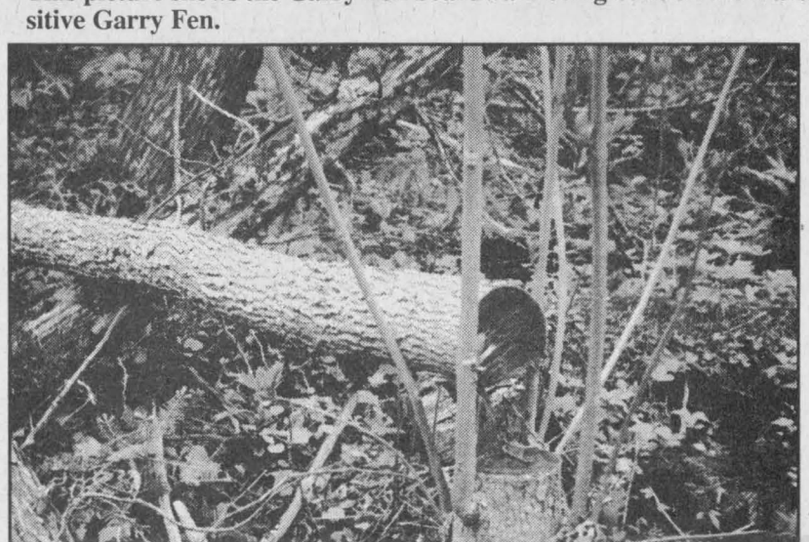
The sample is an example of the area's fragility and why it has been labelled a category 1 wetland, the highest degree of vulnerability for such an environment.

Graham mostly blames the first interim board of directors, formed in 1998, for not starting off on the right foot.

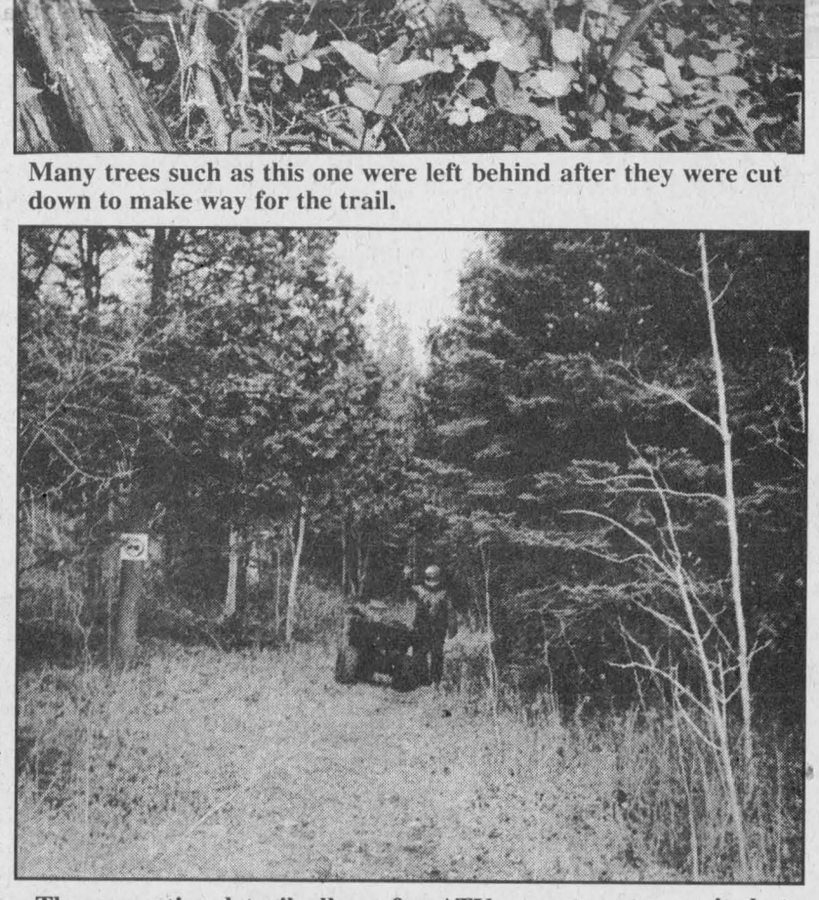
He said lack of public input ensured that a well-thought plan wasn't used.

"They were all self-appointed," he said. A permanent board was established in March 1999, when Graham was voted in.

This picture shows the Garry Fen boardwalk being built on the marsh beside the environmentally sensitive Garry Fen. Submitted photos



Many trees such as this one were left behind after they were cut down to make way for the trail.



The recreational trail allows for ATV operators to use it, but threatens the natural peacefulness.

Graham's concerns are backed by a number of experts.

"I don't know why they decided to lay out (a boardwalk) in that area," said Peggi Calder, an amateur botanist and Friends member.

"I mean you walk around there and there's no chance you're going to see any birds or anything because in the spring time the noise from the people just booms and echoes."

Ministry of Natural Resouces ecologist Don Cuddy was also displeased by the way the trails were organized.

"To me the focus and the concern about this trail is not the specifics so much as it the fact that I think it was damn poor planning from the outset," Cuddy said.

Graham said the boardwalk should never been allowed to go around a third of the pond.

"They wanted to make a loop for cross-country skiing. What they should have done was build the boardwalk to the water's edge and then stop. People could walk up to the fen, take a good look around and then walk back."

The boardwalk's location is one of more than a dozen mitigation measures listed by the Millennium Bureau environmental report, which was done so the Friends could access Millennium funding.

The report states that when the boardwalk needed to be reconstructed, an alternative route should be found.

Cuddy also found faults with the fen boardwalk. His report tabled much the same concerns as Graham.

Not only is planning an issue, but the work performed during construction.

Graham said too many trees were both cut and left beside to rot needlessly throughout the system, not just the two trails linked by the boardwalk from Lakeshore Road near the Garry River to the Bonnie Glen.

"Nobody does it that way," he said. There are other projects similar to this. One thing that separates our project it's all been initiated without any environmental assessment or inventory."

He said members of the board such as the RRCA staff, Andy Code, Cris Critoph and Roger Meek could have followed the lead that others have shown.

He said the small Purdon Conservation Area, run by the Mississippi River Conservation Authority, north of Lanark is a perfect example.

The Purdon area was studied for three years before a trail and small boardwalk were built. The routes avoid any sensitive areas, such as a large yellow lady's slippers orchid growth.

"They took the time to plan it, and worked with professional scientists to lay it out and know what to avoid and what to highlight."

But Kerr maintains that he will follow all of the recommendations by the reports that were commissioned.

"(Don Cuddy) was brought in for advice because of the concerns people had about whether it was done properly and whether there would be damage to the plants."

However, another problem that resulted from lack of planning was the trail that runs parallel to Lakeshore Road.

Here the trail enters a dense cedar swamp.

"They cut it the winter," Graham said. "Then discovered in the spring that you couldn't walk on it. You got up to your knees in water."

Now the Friends are building a 16-kilometre new loop that would connect the current trails to the town of Alexandria.

Once again, Graham is concerned with the lack of planning involved.

Amid protest from some local residents, in April of 1999, Cuddy was called to do a survey of the area and make recommendations for the new trail.

Cuddy wrote two reports. One in April, and another just this last July. He made several recommendations for the new trail, as well as tagged plants that should be moved away from the trail.

One of the most significant recommendations of the reports by Cuddy and later Hickey was to close a section of the trail that hosted an endangered plant, which is protected by the provincial government. It would be a day's work to clear the alternate trail, according to Hickey.

An alternate route was recommended and tagged. Both Hickey's report and the millennium board report said the alternate trail should be cleared as soon as possible. That was two months ago and the alternate trail has yet to be cleared. In the meantime, the trail remains open to the public, a threat to the endangered plant.

Another recommendation was that a botanist be hired to supervise construction and ensure the path doesn't harm the types of plants outlined in Hickey's report as well as a report done by the Millennium bureau, as a condition of a $108,000 federal government grant. This was also not done.

"We don't have any plans to hire anybody," Kerr said. "But we know that Brian Hickey can and has offered to volunteer his time. So when it comes to a sensitive area, we know that we can call him."

Kerr was also unable to explain why the alternate trail had not been cleared but said the group plans to do this "within the next week or so."

But it is not Hickey's responsibility to supervise the construction, he did not even do the whole survey of the land, that was done under his supervision by a summer student. Therefore the inventory taken of the plants in the area is by no means complete.

"We did a very cursory inventory of the site. We finished the report in August," Hickey said. "And before we knew it construction began again, two weeks later."

Cuddy said money is involved.

"They're scrambling like everything to spend the money and they have not had the time to do proper planning. They'll spend $60,000 building a boardwalk across a piece of wetland that's owned by the conservation authority, before they'll spend $ 6,000 getting an easement (land allowance) on the adjacent private property that they could put a trail on for nothing."

Harnessing the information age

Pioneer urges business community to take of advantage of new economy

BY JASON MAGDER
News Reporter

Small communities in Glengarry and area could reap the benefits of Ottawa's high-tech industry which is on the verge of becoming the Canadian version of Silicon Valley, claims a entreprenuer who has been on the cutting edge of the information age.

Denzil Doyle urged the over 100 business people, school officials and town councillors from the area on hand to hear him speak on Sept. 28 to gear the rural industry to what Ottawa is lacking,: locally produced goods and services.

The meeting, held at the Alexandria Restaurant Pizza, aimed to find solutions to the brain-drain that has young people moving in large numbers to Ottawa because of the large growth, specifically in the high technology sector.

Ottawa needs skilled workers

"Ottawa is soaking up people at an incredible rate," Doyle said. "And I predict that in 30 years, you will have 400,000 people working in the high-technology sector. Ottawa is going to be a very large city, which will rival Montreal in size."

Doyle is the president of Doyletech Corporation, a company which has been assisting the growth of Canada's high technology industry. He was called to Cornwall, Kingston and Brockville to give a high tech development strategy for those cities.

He said the problem is that community colleges and job-training programs in the area are training young people with the skills they need to work in Ottawa. Doyle said the focus should be on how local communities can link up to Ottawa.

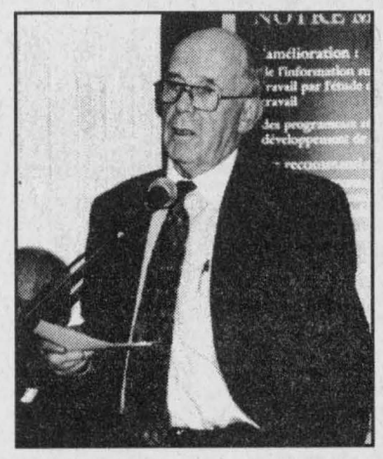
"Firms in Ottawa are importing a lot of their materials because none are available here in Canada," Doyle said.

"They're spending up to $80 million on machine parts per year. Now if you're a machine manufacturer in Cornwall, the last place you'd think to supply to is Ottawa.

"Most of these companies have no idea that there is business for them in Ottawa. But if the companies in Ottawa can get the goods in Canada, it is much cheaper for them."

Doyle said a second strategy that small communities have to undertake is to encourage start-up businesses, such as Cornwall Capital Network.

This company links entrepreneurs with the financial powerhouses of the area, to help them develop a network and get funding and assist with their businesses locally.



Denzil Doyle

"The thing you have to understand about high-technology start-ups is that they are started by very, very young people and they don't have the kind of connections that the people in this room have."

Doyle also spoke of the enormous potential high-speed internet, that runs on broadband deliveries sysems, such as fibre optics, has for small start-up companies.

He specifically praised a local faciliator, Peter Burpee, for his work with CEONET, a non-profit company which aims to develop high-speed telecommunications in united counties of Stormont, Dundas, Glengarry and Prescott-Russell.

"You should be very proud of the steps you're taking to provide broadband infrastructure in this area," Doyle said. "I personally think its going to be a huge selling point for this area.

Similar economic revolution

"Broadband internet," Doyle added "will do to the high-tech industry what the railroads did for rural Canada in the 1880s. It gives everybody access."

Doyle spoke for about 30 minutes and then took questions from the audience.

Other speakers at the meeting were Denis Vaillancourt, director and secretary of education for the Conseil scolaire de district catholique de l'Est ontarien as well as Denis Thibault, executive director of the Eastern Ontario Training Board.

Vaillancourt spoke of the programs to prepare youth for the job-market such as an apprenticeship program. He pressed for a permanent funding body for job-training programs, which are currently funded on a year-by-year basis.

Glengarry-Prescott-Russell MPP Jean-Marc Lalonde rounded out the list of speakers and spoke of problems small towns have in attracting and keeping large companies. See story below.

Work needed before region hits potential

BY JASON MAGDER
News Reporter

Glengarry-Prescott-Russell MPP Jean-Marc Lalonde believes that the future is bright for rural Ontario but that there is still a lot of catching up to do.

"The best place to develop an industry is right in the rural sector," Lalonde said, at the recruitment meeting on Sept. 28. Why? Because we do have the labor force. We have people that don't care the number of hours that they put in to be trained. You can't get that type of labor force in the big municipalities."

However, there are still some obstacles to development. One problem, Lalonde said, was with antiquated population signs in the communities. The signs have not been changed in about ten years.

"Just recently," Lalonde said, "I was talking to a company and they said that there's not enough people in this area. I said, 'Actually, they haven't changed the population signs in many years.' Make sure you are up to date with the identification of the population that you have in your municipalities."

He said the signs make a large difference for companies coming to the area. The signs are misleading companies who pass through into thinking that there is not enough of a work force in the area.

In terms of high-technology, Lalonde said programs such as CEONET are very important because the area is poorly served by communications companies in terms of access to high-speed communication.

Municipalities should be spending money to attract large companies as well as ensuringthatcompanies in the area continue to have their needs met.

There should also focus on training personnel in the rural towns so that any new jobs created will go to residents of this community instead of importing workers from Montreal or Ottawa.

For his part, Lalonde said he is discussing with Industry Minster John Manley to get towers installed on top of existing water towers that would enable high-speed internet in schools and businesses for the area.

"This new high-speed communication that we're talking about will be wireless and will attract industry as well as help us keep the industry we have. It can be done within the next few months, but we need government help."

He also discussed the lack of cellular reception in the area.

"Cellular is terrible here. We have to get the CRTC to put pressure on the companies to build a tower here to service this area. The government will put pressure for this."

He said a lack of development in the area will add to the brain drain if nothing is done to improve services.

"I attended most of the graduations of the high schools this year. I stood there and I watched all the people who were going off to universities and colleges and said, 'Will there be any of those coming back to our community after that?

"'Do we have the industry to attract them?'"

Reality doesn't apply to 8-7-4 phone exchange

The fast pace of technological change hasn't invaded every community in Canada. One of them is right in Glengarry's backyard – the fields and woodlots of eastern Lochiel ward in the Township of North Glengarry.

But it's not the residents' fault. There are many home owners who are hooked up to the internet, albeit they receive some of the slowest downloading times around.

People there, and elsewhere, are willing to put up with this reality for now, because it is in its relative infancy.

What people in the 8-7-4 exchange don't want to put up with any more is the limited free calling area offered to them.

What people in the 8-7-4 telephone exchange don't want to put up with any more is the limited free calling area offered to them.

This set of circumstances doesn't exist because a new technology is being implemented. Phone service, as we know, has been widespread for almost 100 years.

The problem is the antiquated method of determining who gets free phone calling to what area. In the 8-7-4 exchange, free calling is allowed to Alexandria (5-2-5) Lancaster (3-4-7) and the eight Cornwall exchanges (9-3-0 to 8).

Meanwhile, there are many exchanges in both Glengarry and Prescott counties that have free calling to all their neighbouring exchanges and new ones since September 1999.

One could understand that Alexandria and Lancaster should be in the free calling area as their exchanges border 8-7-4 and Alexandria acts as a major commercial, educational and medical centre. However, most people in 8-7-4 exchange would agree that free calling into the exchanges that include Vankleek Hill, St. Eugene and Hawkesbury is just as important.

It doesn't take long after looking at a local map to see these communities better serve a significant number of 8-7-4 residents than even Alexandria, and especially Cornwall.

Bell was able to skip some of the criteria so it could proceed with the "package" that allowed exchanges with little in common to Cornwall to get access there for the purpose of getting internet service.

A Bell Canada representative, Gordon Jackson, explained at a meeting last week that phone exchange boundaries were set many decades ago. He said to change boundaries without following a criteria could cause a snowball effect across the province.

This situation clearly shows that decisions made under a whole different scenario simply do not apply to the wants and needs of 8-7-4 residents today.

He also explained that Bell must follow Canadian Radio and Television Commission criteria in order for it to expand free calling zones for a particular exchange.

What becomes even more frustrating is the fact that Bell was able to skip some of the criteria so it could proceed with the "package" that allowed exchanges as far away as Alfred, west of Hawkesbury to access Cornwall for the purpose of getting internet service.

If such special circumstances could be given to a large, monopolistic company like Ma Bell, then why can't certain residents in a specific area be better served also?

This should be the argument made to the CRTC, which is none other than an arm of our elected federal government.

Trudeau – Our national father figure

FIRST PEERSON

GREG PEERENBOOM

The passing of Pierre Elliott Trudeau, both his life and his body through Glengarry, has seemingly provided new revelations of the man who for so long was part of our national consciousness.

For me at least, it seemed to become crystal clear. There was only one other man that I could compare him with, believe it or not, as I grew up in the 1970s and reached adulthood in 1980s.

He was like a second father.

He was always there, and he seemed such a natural for a prime minister. I did not know of course any other, just like I had one father.

His death brought back my earliest perception of him: strong, resolute, stern, but also fun-loving and spontaneous.

People accused Trudeau of not showing his real self. But were all his pirouettes, banister gliding, middle fingers and "fuddle-duddles" some kind of an act?

It certainly is true that he brought out a love-hate relationship from Canadians coast-to-coast. Perhaps as we grow up at least some children have the same feelings about their own fathers, especially when they're being disciplined.

Even in our own household, Trudeau inspired poles of conflicting feelings. My mother, from all accounts, admired him. But it was a different story with my father.

He despised him as much as any politician that I knew, especially when Trudeau adopted Robert Stanfield's "wage and price controls" in 1975 after denouncing the measure during the 1974 election.

"Wage and price controls" – it was the first time I could remember a governmental phrase being repeated over and over again. My dad never forgave Trudeau for that one.

At the time I had this notion that Trudeau had pulled a fast one, that he was indeed a sneaky, dirty politician.

But years later I came to grips with Trudeau's about face.

I can't remember exactly – it might have been the Memoirs series – but they showed a portion of Trudeau's televised address to implement wage and price controls.

I was struck by his rigidity and seriousness. His words and sentences were slow and measured, even for him, but they came out as if he was under great duress. He was absolutely taking no pleasure in performing this duty. But the deed, according to him, had to be done.

It was indeed like a father sitting down beside his child and telling it exactly the way things have to be. It was tough-love.

So whether we disliked or applauded his policies, it was plainly obvious he loved his country very much the same way parents love their children. And if we only had an inkling before, it was all too evident when Justin gave his eulogy, even if he was relating from a child-parent relationship.

Something clicked, and we understood, much like years after we've grown up and we think of our fathers.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editorial on all-candidates meeting wrong

To the editor:

I am writing on behalf of the North Glengarry Community Economic Development Group with regards to your editorial concerning our planned All-Candidates Meetings.

We find it quite discourteous of The Glengarry News to turn down our offer to co-sponsor this series of events by means of an editorial that contains a number of distortions. We were still expecting to meet with Mr. Peerenboom to discuss the details of these events, when we read your page 4, much to our dismay.

The editorial calls us "autocratic" for "unilaterally" choosing to organize these meetings. Mr. Editor, whom should we consult to do this? Should we hold a public meeting to decide on the format of the meetings? Please.

Hopefully you were not REALLY suggesting that we poll the candidates themselves as to what they want to do, because this would likely mean few chances of agreement and the meetings would never take place!

We would also like to clarify that these meetings are NOT debates. The format we proposed is as follows: the candidates for Mayor, Deputy Mayor, Councillor-at-Large, and Councillor for the Ward in which the meeting is being held will be invited to speak for three minutes outlining their platform. The meeting will then be opened for electors to ask questions of the candidates. Questions may be posed to all candidates or to candidates running for a specific position. Candidates will have two minutes to respond to a question. Questions directed at individual candidates will NOT be allowed, and neither will questions deemed confrontational.

We wanted to have this format so that no one candidate would be unfairly singled out, to avoid personal attacks and uncivil behaviour. For this we are being called autocratic. A bit harsh, don't you think?

Now we will proceed with the meetings as follows: on Oct. 24 for the Alexandria Ward at the Alexandria Sports Palace;

Oct. 26 for the Lochiel Ward in the Glen Robertson Community Centre; Nov. 1 for the Kenyon Ward in the Greenfield Catholic Church Hall; and on Nov. 2 for the Maxville Ward in the Maxville Community Centre.

Finally we are a bit puzzled about your seemingly derogatory description of the NGCEDG as a "private group". Yes, we are a group of private citizens. But we have no membership fee, and our only criteria to belong is an interest in economic community development. Keeping voters' and the community's interests at heart is what we aim to do, always.

Sincerely,

Doreen Ashton Wagner,
vice-chair, NGCEDG

Editorialist could have been more informed

To the editor:

This is in response to your editorial of this past week concerning the proposed all-candidate debates. I was one of the organizers of the debates in 1997 and have nothing to do with organizing them this year. It is clear that your comments are based on limited research, misinformation and misunderstanding. It appears that the only persons you talked to before writing the editorial were the current Mayor and Garry Smith of the NGCEDG.

The result is you appear as the mouthpiece for the Mayor, serving whatever agenda he may have. Had you contacted any of the organizers (there were several of us from the now-defunct Focus on Canada group) you would have learned several things that might have better informed that editorial.

They include:

The fact that only the Alexandria debate ran until 10:30 p.m., and ALL candidates had spoken by that time.

The fact that in 1997 NONE of the debates had speakers for all seven positions. Each of the four was in a different ward and thus ONLY the council candidates from that specific ward spoke. The result was there were only speeches by candidates for the four positions of Reeve (as the position was called then), Deputy-reeve, Councilor-at-large, and the Councilor from that ward.

The fact that three of the four wards had a total of 16 candidates running (four for reeve, five for Deputy-reeve, four for Councilor-at-large, and three for Councilor). As of this writing there are only six candidates declared for this election in any one ward. We are likely to have as few as a third of the number that we had in 1997, thus making for a very manageable evening of debates.

I am very much in favour of as fair and equitable a system as possible for the debates this year. I want every candidate and any citizen to have full and fair access. As well, I hope that any format chosen will not privilege one office over the other. I consider all my representatives to be worthy of the opportunity to share their views in a debate.

I also hope that we will get local election coverage and comment that is based on better research and more complete analysis than was evidenced in that editorial.

Thank you,

William Gilsdorf,
Alexandria

Riding constituents made Boudria proud

To the editor:

Once again, the residents of Glengarry-Prescott-Russell came through. On Oct. 2, the remains of Canada's most famous citizen, the Right Honourable Pierre Elliott Trudeau left Ottawa for Montreal on board a funeral train. On that journey, Canadians from far and wide saw, through the media, the citizens of East Ontario at their finest.

Thousands of people from our region stood along the railway in Vars, Limoges, Casselman and the Alexandria train station to offer their respects to Mr. Trudeau. They carried roses, photographs, and yes even a paddle as testimonies to this great man. Legionnaires came in blazers, cadets wore uniforms, students were accompanied by teachers, pipers graced the occasion with their wonderful music, scouts were present, as well as volunteer firemen and many other people simply put all priorities aside for this special moment.

As a minister of the Crown, and as the Member of Parliament for Glengarry-Prescott-Russell, I have been extremely proud to stand alongside my constituents for this display of respect and emotions.

The Right Honourable Pierre Elliott Trudeau is often associated with the rose, as he wore this lovely flower on his lapel. In this world of sometimes thorny indifference, the residents of Glengarry-Prescott-Russell are truly a rose.

Thank you Glengarry-Prescott-Russell from the bottom of my heart.

Yours truly,

The Honourable Don Boudria

Proud that Trudeau was Canadian

To the editor,

We will never forget.

A bright light has gone out in our hearts and in Canada. On Sept. 28, 2000, the 15th prime minister of Canada, Pierre Elliott Trudeau, passed away at age 80. We will always remember where we were when we heard the tragic news.

I was nine years old when Mr. Trudeau was elected in 1968. I was stunned by his vigour, youth and charisma. I was proud that my first vote was going to him. He had a vision, which I think, no other had. He was well loved both here and abroad. He was to us what President Kennedy was to Americans in 1960.

People from all over the country gave Mr. Trudeau what he gave them as leader: love and respect.

I was on Parliament Hill on Sunday, Oct. 1. I talked with people form all over who expressed love, respect and gratitude towards this great leader. We waited six and a half hours to pass near the flag-draped casket and pay our last homage to Trudeau. People chanted O Canada in both French and English.

He would have loved those crowds.

I laid a red rose on his casket as a sign of thankfulness. When I left the Hill at 9:30 that night, the line was still growing. It was comforting to see them coming to repair Pierre Elliott Trudeau for all the good he did for our country.

The next day, I was at Alexandria Station to witness the passing of the funeral train. After my arrival, the crowds were still growing. I felt pride at the sight of this.

I was so close that I touched Justin Trudeau's outreached hand. I will never forget his expression. There was grief but also joy and comfort at the size of crowds.

For giving both Sacha and Justin this beautiful welcome at this time, I thank you people of Alexandria.

I know that I am not alone when I comment that of all the tributes we heard during those five days, none touched our hearts more than Justin Trudeau's tribute to "my dad". These words are from the heart. He made us remember his father by his gestures and words. When he spoke, his voice braking "Je t'aime, Papa" (I love you Dad) we cried with him. Mr. Trudeau is gone but he left us his legacy and his sons.

Now we are joined in grief and we united to mourn his passing, let us continue his work of keeping Canada beautiful and united as one.

As we had put our trust in him to govern our country, now he is putting his trust in us to continue his legacy.

This , my fellow countrymen, will be the ultimate homage he would want. Let's go forward with his hope in our hearts and minds.

Thank you, Pierre, for the memories and years of dedication.

François Luc Périard,
Alexandria

Pork producers have spent over $1 M in environment research

To the editor:

I'd like to respond to the multitude of articles on the environment I've read in the media lately. Dealing with the environment on the farm is and always has been an important part of our livelihoods. It's not a money-making or media grabbing cause, but rather just the opposite.

Ontario's pork producers have invested over one million dollars on a wide range of environmental research projects in the last five years, including everything from improving manure spreading techniques, odour solutions, and using pig manure to also invested a lot of time and effort working with other farm groups, conservation authorities, and government partners to develop programs like the Nutrient Management Planning Strategy, Environmental Farm Plans, and the Pesticide Safety Course.

No flashy media spins or press conferences, just plain old fashioned commitment to finding solutions and scientific answers for a sustainable environment for everyone.

Yours truly,

Sam Bradshaw,
Environment Specialist,

Thanks for supporting inaugural Fall Festival

To the editor:

On Sunday, Oct. 1, the Glengarry Pioneer Museum in Dunvegan was the site of a wonderful Fall Festival and Harvest Market. The Festival was organized to raise funds to support the Museum in its mission to preserve and promote appreciation for the way of life of early pioneers in Glengarry County. Well over 50 volunteers gave their time, energy and donated goods to make the day such a success, not only in terms of fun for the several hundred people who were there, but also in terms of money raised for the Museum.

Those who attended watched local artisans demonstrating their crafts, sampled freshly pressed apple cider, bought homemade jelllies and baked goods, and stocked up on plants and seeds donated by many friends of the Museum, including the Maxville and District Horticulture Society.

Throughout the day, festival goers enjoyed the music of the Old Time Fiddlers, the Lochiel Strings and a fine young piper, Sarah MacCrimmon.

The First Annual Glengarry Zucchini Contest saw awards going to imaginatively dressed zucchinis, great 10-pound zucchinis and tasty dishes made from zucchini. As the sun was setting, the historic bar in the Museum's Star Inn was reopened for the first time in 100 years, putting a fine finish on the day.

We would like to give our deepest thanks to each volunteer who demonstrated their craft, donated goods for the Harvest Market, poured coffee, or handled countless other jobs that made the day so full and fun.

We would also like to thank the following local merchants who donated goods to the Festival: Muir's Bakery, Tamarack Creek Communications, St. Albert's Cheese, Giant Tiger, Marlin's Orchards, and Tran Cappuccino of Cappuccino Express, Inc.

Under the guidance of Curator Brenda Kennedy, the Glengarry Pioneer Museum continues to grow into a real treasure that everyone in Glengarry can be proud of. Many thanks to all those who help keep this piece of local history alive.

Sincerely,

Organizing Committee:

Dalkeith hall will heat up

There will soon be heat at Dalkeith hall.

The last North Glengarry Council meeting told Dalkeith Recreational Association member Phyllis Noble and Dalkeith Scouting leader Darlene Desmarais to go ahead with ordering a furnace.

Council had approved the granting of $10,000 to purchase a furnace for the library building and community centre.

However it may be possible to get a used furnace for cheaper from one of the buildings slated for demolition to accommodate the Island Park project.

Stop illegal hunting

Each week Crime Stoppers spotlights a crime that has been committed in the area. Crime Stoppers would like to remind you that we need information on all crimes not just the crime of the week.

This week Crime Stoppers is asking for your help in stopping the illegal activity of poaching. Now that the fall season is here poaching will increase and we should be on the lookout for these illegal activities. Hunting deer at night with the help of powerful spotlights, referred to as "jacklighting" is a common practice used by poachers to hunt. We need your information, not your name. You will remain anonymous. If you have any information on this or any other crime, please call Crime Stoppers at 937-8477 or toll-free at 1-800-265-8477.

They're boots to die for

ARTS SCENE

LORNA FOREMAN, 347-1338

I have a confession to make. My big passion in life is footwear. Oh how I love shoes and I absolutely adore boots.

So my interview with Lynn Macnab, Dalkeith boot maker, was not work but more like a pilgrimage to Mecca.

Working out of a beautiful log home, Lynn, under the business name of Oshonto, creates works of art for your feet.

"I worked in Alberta for three years for a business doing saddles and repair work," Lynn told me. "I always had an interest in boots and I eventually I took a course from the Agricultural College in Olds, Alberta.

"It was a 2-year leather course. We studied everything; building saddles, clothes, and boots, among other things. After the initial course I did two more specific boot making courses, eventually earning a diploma.

"While working for an Orthopaedic specialist in Red Deer, I learned the important methods of making lasts," Lynn explained as she showed me just a few of the hundreds of lasts she owns. "Eventually I set up shop in Pinoka, Alberta doing everything but most of the work was cowboy and rodeo related."

As Lynn talked to me, I found myself writing, but constantly looking at her selection of beautiful boots. How tempting.

Eventually Lynn returned to this area in 1995, not with the intention of staying, but stay she did. She works out of the log house and at the moment is reconstructing a log building that started life as a log home to 22 people; turned into a cow shed and now restored to a log dwelling which will be her workshop.

The table was piled high with pieces of leather. Exotic snake skin, emu, and my very favourite – ostrich. Apparently ostrich is not only beautiful to look at it, but is extremely strong. Dyed a rich burgundy colour I found myself fantasizing as to what design I would want my boots to be.

Should they be round toed or pointed? What height heel? Low cut or up to my knees. Sigh, what decisions.

"I started off doing mostly western boots," Lynn told me. "But now I have a large clientele who order polo boots. I receive orders from Hudson, Quebec, New York and as far away as California."

Clients visit Lynn's workshop but if that is impossible, she will send out a kit requesting specific measurements. Lynn then chooses the last that best fits the requirements and does a mock up of a boot using scrap leather. The client can tell and mark where there are any problem areas like tightness, etc.

Lynn does all her own designs even the painstaking carving that is so beautiful. The only decorating that she does not do herself is the beading but she told me that she rarely gets requests for beaded appliquês.

The boots are all leather and are extremely sturdy even though they are flexible enough to mold themselves to your foot. That's what makes them so very comfortable. It is difficult to buy commercially made boots or shoes that are all leather. We have come to accept manmade material but these do not breathe and until you experience the pure joy of wearing made-to-measure, all leather boots or shoes, you don't know the difference.

It takes about twenty hours to produce a plain pair of boots. For more intricate ones, approximately thirty hours. Lynn told me that one pair of carved leather boots took her about ninety hours.

Lynn is pretty busy but still has a bit of time to ride with her children and attempt a large vegetable garden.

Lynn can be contacted at 874-2838.

EASTERN ONTARIO HEALTH UNIT NEWS

There's nothing like growing up in Canada

WILLIAMSTOWN

SUE HARRINGTON
347-2279

Yesterday, I watched a group of local children playing a game of "pickup" football in the Char-Lan field. They were running around, pink-cheeked in the nippy fall air, having a grand time. Seeing them, I was reminded once again how wonderful it is to be young and to grow up in Canada.

The freedom that our young people enjoy, particularly here in the country where there is plenty of room for them to play, is a privilege that is not enjoyed by all children in the world. But why I am telling you something you already know?

The reason is simple. On Sunday, at 10 a.m. at St. Andrew's United Church here in Williamstown, Arnold Engel, a 15 year-old Montrealer, will be the guest speaker at the worship service. Arnold is an activist for the organization "Free the Children," which was started several years back by (then) 12 year-old, Craig Kielburger.

Arnold has been involved in "Free the Children" for the past four years, and has a resume of speeches, lectures, conferences and workshops which would not appear skimpy on the CV of a middle-aged United Nations delegate.

The purpose in having Arnold talk to the people of Glengarry, is, as Rev. Andrea Harrison says, "to have your hearts moved, and be inspired into action."

It would be wonderful if the young people in the area would take up the challenge of establishing a chapter of "Free the Children," to create greater awareness of the issue of child labour and children's rights; to pressure world leaders to make the protection and education of children a priority; to participate in programs to help free children from exploitation and abuse, and to work in co- operation with children in developing countries and around the world.

Those of you with no religious affiliation (or with different affiliations — Arnold himself has a Jewish background), but who believe in the rights of all children to health, happiness and education, are especially invited to attend St. Andrew's on this one special Sunday, and to encourage your children to do so as well. It is hoped that you will be inspired to take the message home and get involved. As Rev. Harrison says, "Let's see our rural churches roll into action, and accomplish more than anyone ever thought we could."

Following the service, a reception will be held in Irvine Hall.

Well, after spending the morning at St. Andrew's, you will be ready to head over to St. Mary's for its annual roast beef dinner, which is being served from 3:30 p.m until 7:00 p.m. in St. Mary's Centre.

Cost of the dinner is $9 for adults, while six to 12 year-olds can eat for $5 and nibblers under the age of six, are free.

For those of you who are house-bound or prefer to eat in solitude, take out meals are available.

The turkey carcasses are starting to show up in the garbage bags of the nation, and we here in Williamstown are no different. No sorry sagas of dinners gone awry have reached my ears this Thanksgiving, nor, it seems, have the names of guests.

I am aware — through cars parked in driveways, cars turning into driveways, attendance at church, and from telephone conversations — that guest/s were present for the holiday at the Geneaus, the Conways, the Sloans, the Kubelkas, and the Gertlers.

I must 'fess to being something less than vigilant at the window this holiday — too busy running around (ha!) getting yet another Harrington off to the United Kingdom, to look out for activity out-of-the-normal down the street.

Yes, Zachary has joined Joshua, Johanna and Sarah across the waters. The plan is to find a good computer job in a country said to be in need of programmers. He'll be home (temporarily?) for Christmas, but in the meantime, this old house sure seems empty, And, wouldn't you know it? The day after Zach's departure, my computer started making a noise like the sound of coins being rattled in a man's pocket. Habitually. Really fun to write to.

Thanksgiving was on the road for the Anderson family as they travelled to New Brunswick after receiving word on Wednesday of the sudden passing of Delande's father.

Our sympathy is sent to Delande, David, Nara and Winston, at this sad time.

Sympathy also goes out belatedly to Jocelyne and Frank Nysten and family on the passing of Jocelyne's father which occurred in September.

Help is needed for the teen dances being held at St. Mary's Centre every few weeks. Allan Paradis reports that more than 200 young people (under 16) attended on Friday, and, if such numbers continue to increase, more adult volunteers are urgently needed to help supervise.

If your teen/pre-teen enjoys going to these dances, please volunteer your time to help out. If you bring along a friend or two, so much the better. It can be fun!

A reminder that tonight (Wed.) is the night for those interested in the creation of a Performing Arts Club in the area, to meet at 7 p.m. in the library at Char-Lan High School.

Anyone who is interested in acting, singing, dancing, or "behind-the-scenes" work, is welcome to attend.

Tick, tick, tock, tock. Can you hear it? Another possibly annoying sound, symbolizing, in this case, the running down of time for you to file your papers if you intend to run in this November's municipal election.

The lack of candidates who have come forward to date in South Glengarry is alarming. Unless we have a flurry of activity before Friday (the last day to file), some positions may be filled by acclamation.

Think about it and act accordingly.

Audrey's supper/duplicate bridge club met on Friday night, and the following proved that they are able to eat food and play bridge too.

East/West — 1. Kathy Eveleigh and Rhea Colette; 2. Audrey Pasco and Lydia Johnson; 3. Bernice Barlow and Bill Henderson.

Williamstown Bridge Club results from Oct. 4 show North/South winners as: 1. Bob and Francoise Govan; 2. Jim Campbell and Elizabeth Marjerrison; 3. Marvin and Jeanette Scrimshaw. For East/West, it was: 1. Homer Grant and Hanz Schulz; 2. Joyce Madden and Audrey Blair; 3. John Roulston and Naylor Sargent.

Was glad to be able to answer the query about where the "talking" feathered roosters could be obtained. (Town and Country in Alexandria, according to my source.) Now I would like some more answers, this time to questions that readers posed some time ago, and which have been loafing around in my file waiting for a skimpy column like this to have the room to be asked.

The first: What has happened to the Johnson Road signs? The person who made this query now lives in North Bay but returns to the area from time to time and noticed the absence of the signs following the road construction several years ago.

The second: This summer, a house on the South Branch Road was seen to be flying a large Norwegian flag. Why? A special occasion? A visiting Norwegian? A reader with a more-than-passing interest in Norway and things Norwegian, is curious.

Call me with answers, all you who sleuth for a hobby.

Andrew and Alanna at Trudeau's funeral

Honouring the memory of Pierre Trudeau

Those of us who watched the coverage of the state funeral for Pierre Elliott Trudeau may envy Andrew McIntyre of Glen Nevis who, with Alanna Shephard of Alexandria, joined the lineup at Notre Dame Cathedral's side door at 6:30 a.m. Only three to four hundred were allowed inside. The ceremony was very moving and the couple was most impressed with Justin Trudeau's eulogy which rang out strongly. What an experience to participate in those few hours of Canadian history. Later that day, Andrew and Alanna found themselves just 15 feet from Fidel Castro who acknowledged bystanders as he left a restaurant.

Lancaster Pharmacy re-opens

By Jason Magder
News Reporter

The doors are open again at the Lancaster Pharmacy, which is now under a new partnership with Quebec pharmacy company Essaim.

The pharmacy located on Lancaster's Military Road remains independent. It is owned and operated by Ken Legare.

However the partnership allows Legare to put out a flyer to local homes every week and will bring other perks like a complimentary blood pressure machine that will be available within the next six weeks.

During the three months that it took to renovate, Legare continued to operate and run out of a location across the street, in a store that was formerly a flower shop.

The pharmacy re-opened in its usual location in mid-September with a completely new look.

"We changed pretty much everything," Legare said.

The store was re-merchandised and offers a broader selection of merchandise. Legare now considers it a full-range pharmacy and now boasts an improved natural vitamins section and more cosmetics and baby care items.

Legare will also expand his staff by one or two, but that does not include another pharmacist, currently Legare is the only certified pharmacist working in the pharmacy.

First annual Glengarry cancer run/walk

The first-ever Glengarry cancer run/walk will take place this Saturday starting at 10 a.m. at 4th Line Road (Curry Hill Road) just off Highway 401.

All participants are urged to be there at least half an hour before their event. All proceeds from the race will be donated to the Canadian Cancer Society.

Glen Campbell along with Cathy MacLean, Henry Dore, Lynne Titley and Chantal Secours are the main organizers of the first run/walk.

"I'm amazed at how much financial support from local business as well as volunteers have come forward," said Campbell. As we speak I have 130 runners registered. By race day I'm hoping to have well over 200."

There will be three races in which runners can register: 5 km ($15), 10 km ($20), 21.1 km ($25).

There will be a post-race meal and awards ceremony at St. Lawrence Church where registration race kits will also be picked up.

The course is flat and well-paved and there will be a water station every 2.5 kilometers.

The top three finishers in each category will receive a prize and the overall male and female winner of each category will also receive a trophy.

Application forms may be picked up at Shepherd Motors, Alexandria Athletic Club, the Brown House and Marche Luc and Tanya.

Runners can still sign up right up to Saturday. Please try and be there before 9:15 a..m.

If interested in registering in any of the events you can do it in person or by phone by reaching Glen Campbell at 347-2205.

In goal for the Rebels are J.F Leblanc and Simon Belouin.

In the Rebels only exhibition game so far they fell to the Alexandria Glens 4-1.

The Rebels host the Cornwall Royals tonight in Williamstown.

Glens outlast Rebels comeback

Coach Sauve says he has a good feeling at what lies ahead this season

ALEXANDRIA JUNIOR B GLENS

By Todd Anderson
Sports Editor

The latest saga of the Battle of Glengarry went to the Alexandria Glens.

The Char-Lan Rebels' woes continued despite a late comeback that brought last year's St. Lawrence Division's second best team within one goal at 3-2.

Quickly the Glens put a stop to the rally as they potted the game's final two goals to score a 5-2 decision. It was the Glens fourth win of the year in five tries.

The Glens were coming off a 4-3 overtime loss to the Kemptville 73s Friday night at home.

The Glens have now played every team in the division except for the Akwesasne Wolves. In their five games the Glens have caught the eyes of other teams.

Clearly the Glens are back as a competitive team in the league.

"We played the top two teams in the league last weekend," said Rebels head coach Jeff Carter about the 73s and Glens.

For the Rebels their fifth straight loss had a familiar beginning, like the four previous games.

After 20 minutes the Rebs were already down by three goals.

"We had a strong start but they managed to get it back to 3-2," said Glens coach Marc Sauve.

"We got a break with our fourth goal but I think they (Rebels) played very well."

Glens 5 Rebels 2

The Glens used a balanced attack once again versus the Rebels and assistant captain and 1999 leading scorer, Ghyslain Valade had his most productive game of 2000 in the win.

Valade scored a hatrick in the win to raise his season total to four goals (he scored his first of the year a night earlier against Kemptville).

Linemate Nicolas Besner had another fine evening dishing out four assists.

Through the Glens five games, Besner has racked up 15 points.

The Glens early lead started when Valade scored his first on the powerplay from Besner and Simon Menard 6:37 into the game.

At 14:29 Louis Brisson doubled the lead when he made no mistake off a pass from Michael Lauzon. Marc Mainville also drew an assist.

With just eight seconds remaining in the period the Glens made it 3-0 when Valade scored his second on the powerplay from Besner and Menard.

In the second, the Rebels potted their first of the game with 3:04 remaining in the period.

Troy Sinfield scored from Stephane St. Denis and Pat Smith.

In the third the Rebels came within one of the Glens when Marc Lemire scored his first in a Rebels jersey from St. Denis and captain Doug Ferguson.

It wasn't enough though. Glens defenceman Jeff Lobb stopped the rally with 4:09 left in the period when he scored the Glens fifth goal from Luc Lanthier and Besner.

Valade completed the hat trick scoring with 2:09 remaining from Stephane Maltais and Besner.

The Glens were outshot by the Rebels 32-28 despite the win.

Tim McCuaig made his return to the Rebels net after missing a couple of weeks with a leg injury.

The game was a clean affair with only eight minor penalties being called between the two clubs.

A night earlier the Glens hosted the 1999 EOJBHL champion Kemptville 73s.

73s 4 Glens 3 OT

In a battle of the only undefeated teams of the EOJBHL St. Lawrence Division, the Glens came up short . . . barely.

Kemptville scored just 20 seconds into overtime after an unlucky play for the Glens to salvage the win.

73s veteran Craig Stanley took advantage of a play that resulted in the puck hopping over a Glens defenceman's stick and raced in alone on goaltender Felix Limoges.

20 seconds into overtime it was over as Stanley made no mistake of the opportunity.

The goal gave the Glens a loss but also a point as teams in junior B hockey receive one point for losing in overtime.

The loss spoiled a gritty performance by the Glens.

Each time the 73s took a one goal lead the Glens would come back to tie it.

The third period saw the Glens score within a minute after the 73s second and third goals.

At 14:26 of the first, Jason Valcour gave the 73s a 1-0 lead.

The second period was scoreless until Glens forward Michael Cunning scored from Lanthier and Besner on the powerplay at 3:45.

Kemptville's Matthew Lang made it 2-1 scoring at 14:12 of the third period.

At 13:42 Besner scored from Menard and Valade to make it 2-2.

With 3:24 remaining Steve Saunders scored for the 73s, their third powerplay goal of the game.

At 2:32 Valade tied things up once again taking passes from Maltais and Eric Leroux.

"We're looking fine, we know what the division looks like now," said Sauve.

"We just haven't played Akwesasne. I think our division has always been considered one of the best and this year is no different."

Sauve said he was pleased with the weekend but said his team has to work on their discipline.

"They (Kemptville) scored the powerplay goals after three dumb penalties. We may have shot ourselves in the foot. We addressed that problem before the Char-Lan game Saturday."

Note: The Glens were called for just three minor penalties Saturday night.

Glens notes:

The Glens will welcome back defenceman Jeremy Lefaivre this Wednesday. Lefaivre was previously with the Gloucester Rangers of the Central Junior A Hockey League.

With the addition of Lefaivre, expect to see more cuts this week.

With 2:09 remaining in the game against Char-Lan Saturday coach Marc Sauve called a time-out to remind his players to keep their cool as they had to play the Morrisburg Lions the coming weekend.

With Sauve having confidence in goaltender Felix Limoges and Bryan O'Shaugnessy the Glens are taking more chances offensively, something Sauve said they didn't have a chance of doing last season.

On Saturday the Glens host the Morrisburg Lions at 7:30 p.m.

It will be minor hockey night and any player wearing his minor hockey jersey will be admitted free if he / she is accompanied by a parent.

The Glens also have a rematch against the Kemptville 73s Sunday at 7:45 p.m., this time at their arena.

Rebs still looking for first win

Help could be on the way as GM hints big trade

Rebels

By Todd Anderson
Sports Editor

Despite an improved effort last weekend the Char-Lan Rebels Junior B club lost their sixth straight game to start off the 2000-01 Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League season.

The Rebels have yet to win (or tie) a game this year and find themselves in desperation as they hope to rebound from a terrible start.

"We're down 2-0 to the Wolves (Akwesasne) and the Hawks (Winchester) in the win column," said Rebels general manager John Chafee. "We can't fall too far behind them. It's pretty imperative that we get points this weekend. With a record of 0-6 we'll take anything we can get."

Although the Rebels are desperate there could be help on the way.

Chafee said he has had talks with the Winchester Hawks about forward and All-Star Adam Beehler.

Beehler would be a nice fit to the Rebels and according to Chafee he has agreed to play with the club.

"It's just a matter of working out a deal," said Chafee during an interview Monday. We hope we can get something done before the weekend."

Other players possibly appearing in a Rebels uniform not so sooner than later are former Cornwall Colts standout Lindsay Campbell, and 1999 Rebels defenceman Kerry McDonell and forward Mike Rankin.

"I've talked to all three and there might be a possibility they'll join us later in the year. Lindsay is going to Algonquin College and has a part-time job. He wants to see how he does before making a decision. Rankin is playing varsity soccer for Loyalist (College in Belleville) and also has a part-time job that takes away his weekends. MacDonell may be ready to play this weekend, he has been working out."

The Rebels have struggled in the early stages of five of their six games.

Heading into Kemptville Sunday night the Rebels had trailed by at least three goals after the first 20 minutes.

Things got better Sunday somewhat because of the solid play of goaltender Louis Phillipe Raymond.

The 73s took over in the second period thought to erase any chances the Rebels thought they might have had of their first victory.

73s 5 Rebels 1

For the first time in 2000 the Rebels had a good first period but all their efforts were overshadowed by a disastrous second frame.

The 73s scored four goals in the second period as they jumped out to an insurmountable lead.

Two of the goals were scored on the powerplay while one was shorthanded.

Captain Kelly Winsor from Jason Valcour and Matt Lang had the first powerplay goal for the 73s only 40 seconds into the middle frame.

At 13:40 Dennis Vincent scored with the man advantage from Curtis Morrison and Joe Gianetti.

At 10:37 Valcour scored from Steve Saunders and Joe Gianetti.

Valcour rounded out the second period onslaught scoring shorthanded from Craig Stanley with four minutes remaining.

Clearly special teams has been a problem for the Rebels this year and Chafee said coach Carter realizes the importance of making some changes and making the team understand how important discipline is.

"It seems almost every time we get a powerplay, a minute or so later we get a penalty of our own. Jeff (Carter) realizes the problem and has started to bench players when they are not disciplined. Unfortunately with a short bench you can't do that too long."

The Rebels had 15 penalties in the

Mustangs earn first win

Three new faces gives Maxville three solid lines

By Todd Anderson
Sports Editor

The Maxville Mustangs have added a trio of new players to their 2000 squad.

With the Long Sault Vipers taking a one year sabbatical from the Eastern Ontario Junior C Hockey League this season, their captain Trevor Wotherspoon and one assistant captain, Renel Cadieux, were looking for somewhere to play.

Both have signed on with Maxville but will return to the Vipers if they return to play next season.

Learning from the mistake St. Isidore Eagles management made last year, Vipers general manager Richard Waldroff asked the league that his players be released as free agents for one year only. That way the Vipers may reclaim the players if they return to the EOJCHL.

Pat Berlinguette, Pascal Gratton, Martin Theoret and Patrick Roy (over-ager now not eligible to play) all joined the Mustangs last year from the Eagles as free agents. The remaining three players are only eligible to play in Maxville because Eagles management did not think of making them free agents for only one year.

The Mustangs have also signed goaltender Mathieux Seguin from the Vankleek Hill Cougars.

Seguin had a terrific season with the club last year but received some flack after an on-ice situation with a Casselman Stars player during the final game of the year.

Mustangs head coach Ivan Coleman has decided to give Seguin a shot in Maxville despite the incident from a year ago.

"We've just solidified our goaltending situation," said a confident Coleman.

"He's 20 and has been great in this league. He was fighting the puck in the first period Sunday but once he calmed down after the first period he was great. He's very quick going up and down and covers both posts well."

Seguin made his debut for the Mustangs Sunday in Rockland.

Nats 4 Mustangs 3

Seguin was named the games second star in the first game with his new team.

He signed with the Mustangs earlier in the day after being released from Vankleek Hill Saturday night.

Maxville actually got on the scoreboard first after a play between two of their newest players.

Wotherspoon capitalized on a play from linemates Eric Bourgeois and Cadieux.

Coleman said the threesome has formed a talented third line.

Pat Berlinguette, Scott Coleman and Martin Theoret form the number one line while Keith Brown, Brad MacMillan and Pat Lafleche form the second line.

The Mustangs tied things up at the 14 minute mark of the second period when MacMillan scored from Brown and defenceman Nick McRae.

The Nats responded going up 3-2 with 5:05 remaining in the middle frame.

The Stangs tied it at three with 2:50 left in the second period though.

Cadieux scored from Bourgeois.

The Nats scored the game-winner with 12 minutes remaining in the third period.

In the second period assistant captain Brad Crawford dropped the gloves with a Rockland player.

Crawford did this after his counterpart kneed a Mustangs player and there was no action from the referees that they were going to make a call.

After the fight was broken up, the Rockland player was assessed a kneeing penalty on top of his fighting penalties.

During the game Coleman noticed that sniper Berlinguette didn't look comfortable so he has been switched to centre with Coleman's son Scott moving to left wing.

On Saturday night the Mustangs hosted the St. Isidore Eagles and earned their first win of the season.

Mustangs 5 Eagles 1

The battle of the 417 was rekindled Saturday night in Maxville.

The Stangs defeated the Eagles 5-1 thanks in part to the play of keeper James Lalonde.

"He didn't see an awful lot of rubber but he played quite well," said Coleman.

The Stangs got off to a great start when Crawford scored just 52 seconds in from Theoret.

At the 14 minute mark they went up 2-0 when Theoret scored from Berlinguette.

The Stangs doubled their lead in the second period when Berlinguette tallied from Gratton and Coleman at 19:19 and Wotherspoon scored from Lafleche with seven minutes left in the period.

Theoret and McRae assisted.

In the second period Gratton received a game misconduct penalty after he gave a vicious slash to an Eagles player.

After being knocked down Gratton was trying to lift himself off the ice when another player knocked him down again.

Both players were about to receive penalties but Gratton retaliated anyway.

The Mustangs have not received word on the length of his suspension but a game misconduct usually brings a three-game suspension punishment.

Glens notes:

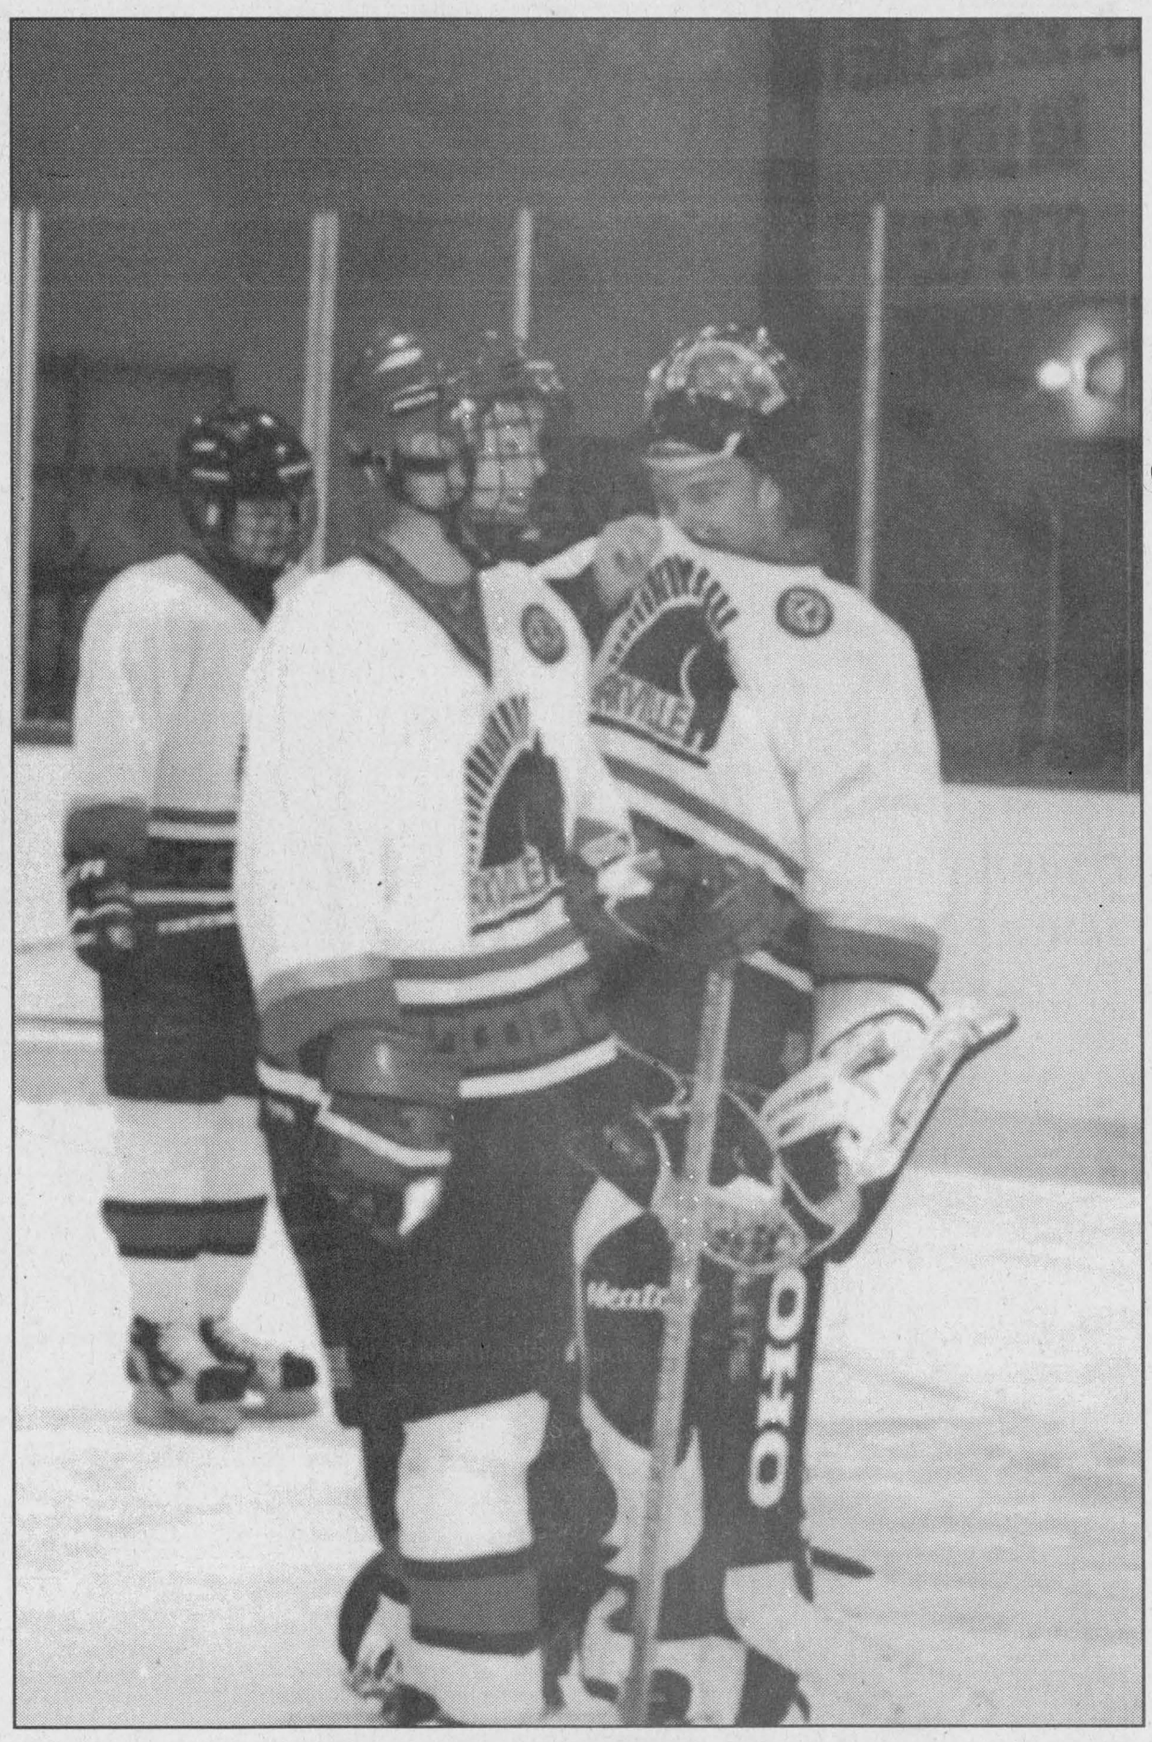
The Mustangs have also picked up forward Jonathon Bray who has recently been cut from the Junior B Alexandria Glens.

"He looked really good Saturday night," said Coleman.

"He's got speed and will be a great affiliate."

The Mustangs play only one game this weekend.

Seguin will be in goal against his former team as the Mustangs host the Vankleek Hill Cougars at the Osie Villeneuve Arena in Maxville at 7:30 p.m. Saturday night.



Mustangs Brad MacMillan (left) scored once in a 4-3 loss to Rockland Sunday and goaltender James Lalonde allowed just one goal in Maxville's 5-1 win over St. Isidore Saturday.

game. Four of those came while on the powerplay.

The 73s went up by five goals at the 10:35 mark of the second when Tom Gianetti scored from Valcour and Joe Gianetti.

The Rebels spoiled veteran 73s netminder Tim Craig's bid for a shutout with 3:02 remaining when Nick Dube scored from Troy Sinfield and Chris Corput on the powerplay.

Coach Jeff Carter feels things are getting better though.

"We played the top two teams in the league last weekend. I think we've definitely improved, by 50 per cent. We took it to Alexandria pretty good and I feel we dominated the second and third periods. In Kemptville it was 0-0 after the first period and then we took some stupid penalties. We have to work on our discipline."

Rebs notes:

Dube did not play Saturday night because he was still feeling the effects of an injury he suffered the weekend before after being hit from behind.

Coach Jeff Carter has made his presence felt. Last week Carter cut two players and sent another two to their bantam teams Cut are Stephen Alguire and defenceman Denis Guay.

Goaltenders Evan Koronewski (Char-Lan Midgets) and Dan Desnoyers (Cornwall Midgets) were both sent down. Don't expect the changes to stop there. Carter said there should be quite a few more changes.

Seasons are starting

Last year Grant Vanderburg and Mark Leger won awards for their accomplishments in the Char-Lan Minor Hockey League. The two are looking for another solid season as hockey season begins for most minor hockey teams shortly.

First annual GDHS alumni football tournament

The first annual Glengarry District High School Alumni tag football tournament attracted over 100 local athletes to GDHS last Saturday.

Eight teams were formed with nine players.

Team captains were Glen Campbell, Brian Filion (Benny's boys), Sheldon MacDougall, Randy McDonell, Roch Lajoie, Kennedy MacDonald, Brendan MacDonald and The Atlantic also had a team.

Campbell's team won in a thrilling final over Benny's Boys.

The team scored in the third last play to edge their counterparts 19-14.

Team members of the winning squad were: Glen Campbell, Bobby Bowles, Mike McDonell, Stuart MacDonald, Tim Van Overbeek, Tim McCuaig, Jamie Ladouceur, Phillip Truesdale and Findlay McLeod.

Each player was charged $15 dollars for a total of about $600 dollars which will be donated to the GDHS senior boys soccer team.

The tournaments' organization started in the spring, some time before the work-to-rule situation in Ontario high schools.

Every team was guaranteed three games with both teams in the final playing five.

Play started at 9 a.m. and lasted until 6:30 p.m.

Rumour is there were quite a few sore bodies across Glengarry Sunday.

UCW Thank Offering meeting held

GLEN SANDFIELD

LORNA CHAPMAN
874-2408

The UCW met in the church for their annual Thank Offering meeting on Oct. 3.

Margo MacRae led the meeting beginning with the devotional portion. Her theme was A Harvest of Righteousness. The hymn 522 from Voices United was sung and was followed by the scripture. Psalm 103 was read responsively led by Della MacDonald. The second scripture reading was taken from Psalm 136 read by the leader, followed by a prayer for the sick, distressed and mourning. The third scripture was Philippians 2: 1-12. The short meditation was called Thanksgivings, Acts of Kindness, taken from one of the Daily Bread booklets.

Each member received an apple to remind them of Earth's bounty and each person was requested to share an act of kindness they had received during this past year.

One helpful neighbour carried back the blue box every week during the nasty winter months for one lady. Another one was thankful for two neighbours who helped by cutting brush and mowing grass.

The leader was grateful to the congregation of her mother's church out west who brought in food for the grieving family when her niece died. Another member was thankful for her family's good health this year. An old gentleman kindly made deliveries right to the back door of one lady's residence. The group read a beautiful prayer together titled, I Offer Myself, which brought to a close this part of the programme. The business began with the Member's Purpose, repeated in unison, followed by the minutes of August's meeting.

The leader spoke about the current situation at Lazarus House due to the delay in receiving their bequest of $30,000. They have put in a bid on a building to house the mission, which was accepted, and the sellers wish to be paid.

Lazarus House was set up in a former feed storage shed which was cold and damp and they needed to relocate and this building was perfect for their needs.

Several short loans have been received to date from private sources to help them out.

A discussion on how their food bank is managed and how much is given to each family revealed how everything that is given out is carefully monitored.

The Nov. 7 meeting will be held at the home of Margery McCaskill with Christena MacLachlan leading the Remembrance Day programme. Pumpkin pie and whipped topping was enjoyed by all including, an unexpected but most welcome guest, Hazel Jamieson.

The morning worship service on Thanksgiving Sunday will be held at 10 a.m. in Glen Sandfield United Church. Everyone of welcome.

Sincerest sympathy is extended to Lloyd and Isabel MacLennan and all of the family on the recent death of her brother Elbert MacLeod. The funeral was held on Oct. 4 in St. Columba Presbyterian Church at Kirk Hill.

The 39ers will be meeting at the Alexandria United Church at noon on Oct. 18 for their regular monthly meeting.

There will be a pot luck meal that day and all members are asked to bring something for the dinner. Anything is welcome: salads, hot dishes, scalloped potatoes, home baked beans, casseroles and/or meat. There is always a great variety of food on the menu for these occasions so there is sure to be an excellent selection to tempt the diners' appetites.

Campaign office opens

North Glengarry Township mayoralty candidate Michel Depratto, top row, second from right, was joined by many family members and friends in opening his campaign office at 1 Main St., Alexandria. Cutting the ribbon was Isabelle McPherson. Voters will be able to access the voters' list and other election information, as well as find out more about Depratto and his platform. It is open during regular business hours.

Arthritis "heroes" honoured by Joints in Motion fundraisers

BY GREG PEERENBOOM
News Editor

It's not very far for two local women to find a "hero" worth raising money for by participating in the Canadian Arthritis Society Joints in Motion half and full marathon.

"We have to raise $5,000 each. We have to do it for an arthritis hero – someone we admire for the way they handle it," said Flip Flockton of Apple Hill.

Her Glengarry partner on the Joints in Motion Ontario team of 50 is Glen Nevis's Kathy Thompson.

"I'm doing it for my daughter Phyllida," Flockton said. "She's had psoriatic arthritis since she was 20."

Phyllida Flockton, a graduate of Ecole Ste. Marie in Green Valley and Glengarry District High School is now 31 and has endured the arthritis onset to become a fixed income specialist with the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce Investor Services.

Meanwhile, Thompson has picked three "heros": two seniors, her mother Aileen MacDonald and Kathryn McDonell, both of North Lancaster, and Sheldon Carr of Bainsville.

Both women have been afflicted with arthritis for many years while Carr, a dairy farmer, was diagnosed only two years ago.

Thompson admires the two women for adapting to the limitations imposed by the disease for so many years, and for Carr's resoluteness to carry on farming.

Thompson said she is not only trying to help them but perhaps also herself one day.

"My aunts also had (rheamatoid arthritis) really bad. And all they could do back in those days was aspirin."

All four "heros" have agreed to let Flockton and Thompson have their names stand as sponsors.

Not only must the two local fundraising women collect donations, but they have to train for the Joints in Motion event, the Walt Disney World Marathon in January.

The expenses for the three-day stay in Florida is covered by corporate sponsorship.

Flockton, the senior of the two, will be walking the half-marathon (20.98 kilometres) while her partner will challenge the full-marathon (26.2 mile) run.

The Glengarrians are also pledging money themselves.

The provincial chapter of Joints in Motion hopes to raise $250,000.

There are about four million Canadians with over 100 forms of arthritis. Sixteen Canadian medical schools will receive 90 per cent of funds which assist research and training. The rest pays for operating the program.

All contributions are tax deductible and donors will be issued tax receipts.

For pledge forms or for more information, contact Flockton at 525-2483, email flockton@glen-net.ca or Thompson at 347-1299, email Macdale@glen-net.ca.

Winner off to Toronto

This year's show reflected the hard work that these 4-H members have done all year. Calves were well turned out and the judges did not have an easy time picking winners as there were many good quality calves and exceptional show people. Good luck to the members that will travel to Toronto next month for the Scotia Hays

Munro's Mills saga continues

The piece I wrote on the school exhibit at the Manor attracted the attention of Alma Runions who offered me the loan of a record book that her grandfather, Mack Munro, kept from 1882-1898. He was the treasurer of the school at Munro's Mills which included two school sections, S.S. No. 16 Kenyon and S.S. No. 18 Charlottenburgh. In 1890 the two sections seemed to have split and Mr. Munro looked after Kenyon, only.

In 1882, the municipal grant was $27.71 and the legislative grant $28.85. D.A. McDonald collected from the rate payers and small amounts were entered in the receipts pages.

Mr. Munro had each teacher sign at the bottom of the year's page for the salary paid in full for the year. The payments were not regular.

Supplies were minimal and very cheap compared to to-day. The sum of $5.00 was paid for the building of the fire during the winter and $1.00 was sufficient to have the school cleaned. In 1994, Mr. Munro started to receive $5.00 for his services as treasurer.

In 1888, the total payments were $215.40 and the total receipts $242.34. They had a surplus!!

Perhaps there are some readers who are related back to the teachers. Their salaries will appear in brackets, if I can determine them:

Miss E.J. McGregor in 1893, Mary Ann Cameron in 84 ($108.08), in 85, Mary Gauthier, Marie McPhadden, in 86 and 87,($152.70), James McKillop in 88 ($190.00), Frank Kerr in 89,($220.00), Lilly J. Lawson in 90 and 91 and in 1890 the Kenyon section was alone after an apparent school being built in the southern section.

J.J. Wasson was the teacher from 92- 95 and then Gustavus McIntosh was the last teacher listed.

The auditors throughout were D.A.McDonald and J.A. Munro.

For Thanksgiving, Jacqueline and Paul Sinclair and their two boys had Mrs. Sinclair's parents visiting. They are Dulcie and Allistair Cross and this was a very special visit for Mr. Cross because it was the first time that he was off his native island, Newfoundland.

Eileen Colbourne has enjoyed having guests from Port Angelus, Washington. They were her cousin, Fred McNamara along with his son and daughter-in-law. Mr. McNamara is a native of the little third of Kenyon and the trip home is very meaningful to him.

I didn't know where this road is and had to ask Eileen. It is the road that angles south eastward just east of the Apple Hill road and ends at the Loch Garry Road.

Our Thanksgiving week-end was a bit extended and we spent it in Grimsby and in London where all the family were together on Sunday.

There are two men in the United Church who are not faint of heart and attended the meeting of the U.C.W. last Tuesday afternoon to hear Warren MacIntosh give an illustrated talk on his recent trip to Russia. The Rev. Howard Clark and myself were the two who accepted the ladies' invitation.

Warren spoke most eloquently and his slides were excellent. He was over there as an observer of the Holstein breed but he also gave us an excellent insight into farming conditions.

The farms he visited were all collective ones, a carry over from the communistic days. They are large, with herds numbering from 800-2000 animals, women do the work with the cattle, their Holsteins show poor development but it is hoped that their offspring, sired by Canadian bulls, will be much better, the milk is not refrigerated and appears to be used for cultured milk like yogurt and very thick butter milk, the workers are paid the equivalent of $3.00 Canadian, the farms are over staffed and the men are bad to drink .

Warren noticed that the young men are very anxious to learn and to improve farming conditions and he would like to see a program organized that would take perhaps 10 young men over here to study our farming methods.

Members of the Lions Club would like to thank the Maxville Fire Fighters for their assistance at the last breakfast which fed 198 people.

Our local fire chief is Donald Sabourin and this year he is also the District Chief for North Glengarry. We congratulate him for the confidence that has been placed in his leadership.

Peter Hess has been over to his native Switzerland for his class reunion, a visit with family members and perhaps a holiday from farming. While away his wife, Elizabeth, was in charge and saw that everything went well at home.

Now they know that they have to be a bit more careful what they talk about in Richard Scott's (Scotty's) convenience store. They may never know when a reporter is within ear shot.

Last Monday morning when the large crowd had gathered for the Trudeau train to travel through, a reporter from the Ottawa Citizen over heard Bill Metcalfe berating Walter Blaney, a supposedly true blue , for being there. Fortunately the reporter was very diplomatic (I almost wrote conservative) and didn't report all he heard.

Last Wednesday, the Ottawa Citizen carried an interesting piece on Rediscovering my Gaelic Roots which included Alex McDonald, formerly from the 6th of Kenyon and now of a care facility in Alexandria. We got to know him as a recipient of the Meals-on-Wheels program. A friend at the Manor has told me that his knickname is Alex, the Turkey.

The caption under his photograph reads Alex McDonald's fluency in Gaelic is an essential part of his culture and his soul. At 95, he has outlived all his family members and friends who could speak the language with him.

Rosalind and Tom Nugent live on Mr. McDonald's farm now.

At least two of the local churches, if not all four, are participating in a project this fall called Operation Christmas Child. Boxes about the size of a shoe box are available, and one is expected to fill it for Christmas with things that an under privileged child in a foreign country would appreciate. You are expected to indicate if the filled box is for a boy or girl and the age of the recipient-2-4, 5-9, or 10-14. Margaret Phillips (527-2036) or Helen McKay (527-3035) will be pleased to answer all your questions for this project which is growing and is in its seventh year.

At the 500 card party on Oct. 2nd, Hormidas St. John, Jack McDonnell and Alex Tittley were the recipients of the prize money while Beatrice Lalonde, Elizabeth Briere and Catherine MacRae were also the prize winners.

In the draw, Vina Brown was twice lucky, with Mrs. MacRae and Emelda McDonnell the other winners. Isabel MacPherson received the door prize.

This is the time of year that the blue jays (not the baseball team) are hard at work storing sunflower seeds. I am not convinced that they ever use them but what can we to prevent this from happening.

The mourning doves are coming around and feeding under my hanging feeders.

I read in a bird column that if you are finding that the bird feed is too expensive, that you could put out slices of whole wheat bread. There will certainly be some birds that will eat it.

The first fall meeting of the Maxville Rainbow Women's Institute will be held on Monday, Oct. 16 at 7.30 p.m. at the Manor. The theme of the meeting is awareness of Literacy Issues.

Regiments
Highland Paths

KEN MCKENNA

On Thursday evening, October 5, at the Nor'Westers Museum in Williamstown, the monthly meeting of the Glengarry Historical Society took place. The speaker was Winston Johnston of Prince Edward Island, who has Glengarry connections. He is preparing a book on the Glengarry Fencibles of 1812.

The Glengarrry Light Infantry Fencibles, as the 1812 Canadian regiment was officially designated, has often been confused with the Glengarry Fencibles raised in Scotland in 1794.

The first regiment, under the titular leadership of the GLengarry chief, was actually raised almost entirely through the efforts of Alexander Macdonell, the future Big Bishop, who served as chaplain. Some years earlier, Father Macdonell had followed his dispossessed Glengarry people to Glasgow, where they eked out a precarious living in the factories that were the precursors of the Industrial Age. Unused to city life, many were unilingual Gaelic-speaking and had difficulty communicating with their new neighbours. They also professed a religion that was virtually outlawed in Britain.

It had been almost 40 years since the clans had been defeated at Culloden in the last of a series of vain attempts to return the Stuarts to the British throne. Jacobite Highlanders gradually accepted the fact that their cause was lost and sought to find ways of surviving under the Hanoverian regime. As soldiering was the only trade many knew, they joined their former enemies in the British regiments being raised throughout the Highlands.

From Louisbourg to the Plains of Abraham, from British North America to India, Highland soldiers achieved fame and renown, earning the respect and admiration of those who had previously distrusted and even reviled them. Father Alexander quite rightly decided that raising a regiment of Catholic Highlanders would prove their value and loyalty to the British Crown.

The first Glengarry Fencibles were disbanded in 1802. The widely-held belief that they then came to Canada with Fr. Alexander in 1805 is not correct. A few did come as individuals, but seem to have settled to the west of Glengarry.

The Glengarry Light Infantry Fencible regiment was raised to defend Canada from American invasion in the War of 1812. This is the regiment that is properly identified as having a Canadian connection. Alexander Macdonell also played a part in encouraging enlistment and was the Catholic chaplain. It is this regiment that Winston Johnston discussed at the Historical Society meeting.

Because of the scarcity of records there is some confusion as to whether a Glengarry ancestor served in this regiment or in the Glengarry Militia. Mr. Johnston hopes to learn more when he searches the records of the War Office in London in the near future.

The hardships suffered by soldiers on active service at the time of the War of 1812 are chillingly related in the documents Mr. Johnston produced - the poor pay, the terrible conditions, the fact that more men died of disease than were killed by the enemy, the disgusting punishment of the lash - poses the obvious question: Why would any man choose such a miserable life? The answer is simple. After three years of service, each common soldier was entitled to 100 acres of land.

The lure of free land titles to men who could never hope to own any real property in their own countries of origin brought Scots, Englishmen, Irishmen, Americans and, as Mr. Johnston discovered in his research, natives of just about every nation in Europe into the ranks of the Glengarry Light Infantry Fencibles of 1812. They were evidently willing to risk their lives and the welfare of the wives and children who often accompanied them for the promise of their own land. Many ended up occupying only a six by three foot plot.

Mr. Johnston hopes to have his book on the Fencibles ready for publication in 2002.

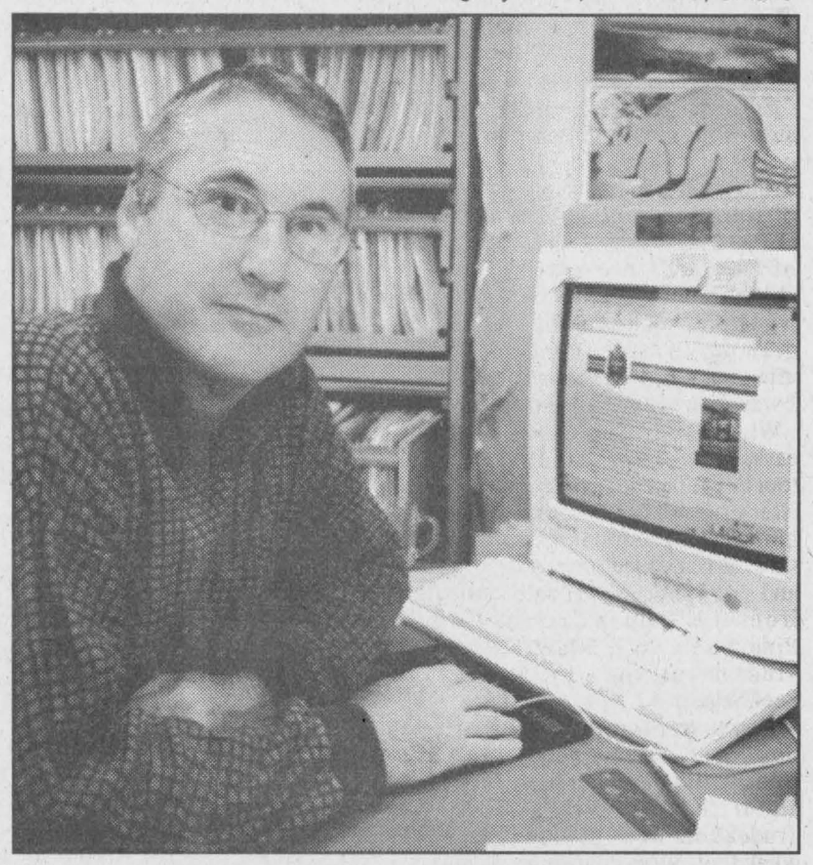
I am looking for a few more pictures to be included in the new Highland Paths book, due out in November. If anyone has any old photos that I can have copied for the book I would appreciate a call. Any picture used will entitle the owner to a free book. Many advance orders are already coming in. To order a copy or to contact me about the loan of a picture, phone 613-874-2861. Call collect if you are outside the area code. I'm also looking for more stories about the legendary Foghorn McDonald and will soon be calling on those who have already volunteered information.



A new way to serve

North Glengarry Township chief building official and drainage superintendent Ken Robbers took on a new project over the last few months in overseeing the development of the township's new website, www.northglengarry.com, which officially welcomed surfers on Monday. The website will allow residents to get information on many facets of municipal operations and services.

Local attorney shares memories of Trudeau

Endless personal and uplifting stories underline the care and concern and curiosity that Pierre Trudeau had for people of all walks of life. Thank you, Murray MacDonald, QC and Crown Attorney of Cornwall, for taking time to share this one with me. Murray, who lives in Casselman and who grew up in Lancaster, called me after his sister Moira told him that I was interested in his story.

While attending law school in the early 1980s Murray found it highly touching that a former prime minister of Canada took time to talk to him and other students of McGill Law School as Trudeau walked to and from work. The daily journey from the Trudeau residence on Pine Street to his law firm took Trudeau past the Law Faculty on Peel Street.

Murray has fond memories of the times that Trudeau conversed with students outside, questioning them about their studies and ideas. Trudeau showed genuine interest in what they were learning and what their law professors were teaching them about the Charter of Rights.

"He was intelligent, warm and had a very pleasant manner", says Murray.

Murray reiterated the fact that our former prime minister was not aloof, nor a dilettante but rather an intelligent statesman who was truly interested in the students' thoughts and what they were learning.

It is certain that Trudeau also left the students with startling memories of being touched by greatness. Thanks again, Murray, and thanks to Murray's sister, Moira Ross of Bainsville.

Thinking of a cruise

Have you ever taken a cruise? After listening to Guelda MacRae of Lancaster I am thinking seriously about the idea. Robert and Guelda returned last Tuesday from a two-week holiday. Running a bed and breakfast, MacPine Farms, allows the MacRae family to meet interesting people from around the world, so the idea of a cruise to visit some of these places seemed like a great idea.

Joining J. J.'s Celebrity Cruise along with 90 others, 80 from the Ottawa area, they had a wonderful and busy trip: Montreal. Paris. Istanbul. Finally, reaching Barcelona, their cruise started.

With only two sea days, the rest were see days as the 2,600 passengers on the Grand Princess cruise ship stopped for day tours in Istanbul, Athens, Venice, Naples, Capri, Florence, Monte Carlo, Nice and finally back to Istanbul in Turkey.

Guelda says that they had many opportunities to spend time with J. J. and his wife Linda, including sharing a dinner table. It was interesting to note that wherever they travelled it seemed that people in all of these countries are just like us, wearing the same fashions, having similar concerns, and looking for the same things in life.

As always, it was just great to be home again!

Antique Car Club

The Lancaster Antique Car Club now has 41 renewed members and expect more. Members are asked to submit their $15 dues for the year 2001 to any member of the executive.

Please note that the Car Club welcomes anyone who wishes to join. You don't need an old car, just the interest, and you get to serve our community as well. The mailing address for this club is PO Box 165, Lancaster, ON. K0C 1N0

At their meeting on Sept. 12 at the Legion Hall, members were informed that a profit of $1,980 was made at the last Car Show in Lancaster. Due to fine weather the largest number of spectators attended this show as 187 cars were judged and the 50/50 draw prize was for $425. Many members worked hard to make this event such a success and plans are already in the works for next year. Any and all ideas are welcome, especially if it comes with a promise to help!

The club won the Best Theme Float award on Canada Day. Thank you Cathy Viau for organizing the float.

Nov. 18 is the date of our banquet at the Legion Hall. At this time there will be elections for the new executive. All positions are open. Note, this will be a non-smoking meeting and guests are more than welcome. Tickets costing $20 may be purchased from any executive member. Wine will be provided by the club and arrangements are being made for the food. Music will be provided by the jukebox that is in the Legion, compliments of Jean-Marc and Frank Viau.

Celebrating 213 years

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in South Lancaster will celebrate its 213th anniversary on Sunday at 11 a.m. Guest speaker for this occasion will be native son, the Rev. Dr. Robert Fourney.

Following the service a Thanksgiving Luncheon will be held in the church hall.

The community is warmly invited to help celebrate this special milestone in the life of this historic congregation.

Errands of colour

Running errands through South Glengarry this week allowed me a chance to see the spectacular display of fall leaves through the beautiful hamlet of Bainsville and on up north to the end of Caber Road in the Martintown area.

My last stop was to visit my friend Ursula Flipsen at Misty Brook Farm. Ursula is much more laid back than Martha Stewart but, with her family of four youngsters and husband, Dan, I'm sure that she does just as much and just as well. I noticed some alpacas moving amongst the sheep as I drove in. Not enough wool from them to make anything, comments Ursula, but her sheep wool is sent away and turned into wonderful blankets. These she markets herself and it's a successful growing business. Dan Flipsen just returned home from a training session in London and is on his way to work, as I write, to the offices of London Life in Cornwall. If anyone is interested in natural sheep's wool blankets, call Ursula at 528-4441.

Community breakfast

Sunday is the next Knights of Columbus Community Breakfast. Come to the Parish Hall from 9 to 12:30 to enjoy a hearty meal with many choices. Adults $4, children $3.50. Everyone welcome.

Have a super week!

No date on new hirings as Alltech expands

By Jason Magder
News Reporter

While Alltech Inc. was recently awarded a $151,000 federal grant to help get its Alexandria plant to full production, Operation Manger Kevin Perraut does not expect that to happen anytime soon.

"The company was founded in 1980," Perraut said, "and as far as I know none of the plants has ever reached full production because we grow better than 20 per cent a year. We just keep expanding."

The grant, issued by Human Resources Development's Canada Jobs Fund, is specifically earmarked for 15 new employees that the company must hire within the next 24 months.

"As a result of the grant, Alltech is investing many, many times more (than the amount of the grant) in the area," MP Don Boudrias said from Ottawa. It's a good, good news story. I think it's the beginning of a new era for Alexandria, the era of biosciences."

However, at Alltech it is still unknown when they will hire the 15 new employees, because of a lengthy expansion process.

"I don't have a date," Perraut said. "Only because it's dependent on too many factors, such as contractors, contracts. There's too many variables to say when it's going to happen."

Alltech manufactures natural solutions to problems facing animal production. It is a multi-national company which exports to over 70 countries worldwide.

In Glengarry, the plant is currently producing two products: Bio-Moss, to be put in the animals' feed to encourage more efficient production from milk cows and beef cows and pigs. Bio-Moss is an all-natural growth producer which essentially does the same job a steroid would.

The other product is Bio-Peptides, which are alternatives to feeding animal proteins.

Alltech currently employs 22 employees all of whom are Glengarry and area residents. Perraut said that it would not be a problem filling his staff with workers from the area.

The company is in the middle of phase two of a three-phase project. This involves bringing up the plant's third spray-dryer, which will increase production efficiency. Phase three will see the construction of the Bioscience-centre as well as quality and research labs.

When phase three is completed, the company will hire a research staff to do work that is presently being done in the U.S.

Perraut said the company chose Glengarry last February because there happened to be a plant, with a spray dryer, for sale when they needed it. However he says that logistically, the Alexandria plant is very convenient.

"We have good distribution in Quebec and Ontario and good access to the ports of Montreal," Perraut said and added that another advantage of the plant is that it is cheaper to export to Europe from Canada than it is to export from the US.
