Two families homeless, 17 out of work

Fire razes Dalkeith bakery

DALKEITH BLAZE—Alexandria firefighters tried in vain to contain an early morning fire July 25 at the Lanthier bakery in Dalkeith. The fire, which drove two families from their home and left 17 full-time and part-time Lanthier employees jobless, was the second major fire to hit the community in four weeks.

AFTERMATH—Little was left of the Lanthier bakery in Dalkeith after an early morning blaze ripped through the plant on July 25. There were no injuries reported in the fire and a home located next to the bakery, received relatively minor damage.

Second major fire in last four weeks

by Bruce Hayes

DALKEITH—For the second time in less than one month the community of Dalkeith has suffered a major fire.

An early morning blaze on July 25 at the Lanthier Bakery totally destroyed the structure, despite efforts by Alexandria firefighters to save it. The families of Pauline Piche and Patrick Wolfe, who lived in the front of the building, are homeless and a total of 17 part-time and full-time Lanthier employees are without jobs.

Insurance investigators were on the scene Monday and unofficially damage estimates run as high as $1 million.

This is the second time in the past four weeks the community of Dalkeith has been hit with a crippling fire. On June 26 a blaze at the Dalkeith Feed Centre destroyed that business, leaving damage estimated at between $500,000 to $750,000.

Alexandria fire chief Gerry Charlebois said the Lanthier fire started in one of the bakery's huge ovens. Employees emptied five fire extinguishers in an attempt to snuff out the blaze. However, the fire had spread in between the walls and by the time they abandoned the building at 4:55 a.m., the blaze had a firm hold on the structure.

Lanthier Bakery president Claude Lanthier said Monday he hasn't had much time to think about the future. "It's only been three days," Mr. Lanthier said. "I haven't even met with the insurance people yet."

He said his major concern since the fire has been trying to supply his customers with the specialty breads that had been produced in Dalkeith.

"It hurts the cafeterias and canteens the most," he said. "They have our products on their menus and we are the only ones who make it."

For the family of Guy and Lise Duval the morning of July 25 will long be remembered as "quite a nightmare."

The Duvals, along with daughters Guylaine and Caroline, live in a modest bungalow right next door to the bakery. While firefighters were powerless to save the bakery, surprisingly little damage was done to the Duval home.

However, when Mrs. Duval was awakened just before 5 a.m. by a Lanthier worker pounding on their front door, she thought history was about to repeat itself.

Eighteen years ago, in 1966, the family owned a restaurant where their home now sits. Fire broke out and, while firemen were able to save the bakery, the restaurant was destroyed. Fortunately, for the Duval family at least, the end of the story was different this time.

After the 1966 fire, an asbestos wall was erected between the bakery and the Duval home. Mrs. Duval said she is convinced the wall, along with the firefighters and her neighbors, was responsible for saving their home.

Once the family had been alerted and the fire department notified, about 20 area residents came forward to help the family move a houseful of belongings up the road to the St. Paul's Parish Hall.

"(Lancaster OPP Cst.) Chris McDonell said to us, 'Don't hurry, but if I were you, I'd get everything out'," Mrs. Duval said the day after the fire. "Even the fire chief (Mr. Charlebois) said he didn't know if they would have enough water to save the house."

"We had lots of people helping," Mrs. Duval said. "I don't really remember, there were just too many people around, emptying closets and cupboards. That's the wonderful thing about this place. Dalkeith people help."

Not only did the volunteers carry the family's belongings out of harm's way, they also stayed around to bring it all back. Not one item was lost or broken.

"It's just like a miracle," Mrs.

Problems loom over campaign spending

by Phil Rutherford

Four of the six men seeking the Liberal nomination for Glengarry-Prescott-Russell at the convention held in Hawkesbury last night (Tuesday) could face charges under Canada Elections Act for improper advertising.

Jean-Marc Lalonde, J. P. Touchette, Gerry Lalonde and Philibert Proulx all purchased advertising in several weekly newspapers throughout the riding to promote their own candidacies, in clear violation of the advertising "black-out" provisions of the Elections Act.

The two exceptions are Andre Tessier and Don Boudria, current MPP for Prescott-Russell. Mr. Boudria's supporters had also placed advertising in the papers but quickly cancelled them after consultation with Yvon Tarte, legal advisor to the Chief Electoral Office and the Commissioner of Canada Elections.

In a telephone interview with The Glengarry News Tuesday morning, Mr. Tarte said the Act specifically prohibits political advertising in the early stages of a federal election campaign. Advertising through print or broadcast media is permitted only in the final 29 days of the campaign.

The only exception allowed is for advertising a party's constituency nomination meeting, but such advertising must not promote individual candidates and the cost must not exceed one per cent of the advertising spending limit that existed for the riding in the previous federal election. In the case of the local riding, the limit for nomination advertising was $269, which was exceeded by each of four candidates.

The Canada Elections Commission will investigate violations of the Act only after complaints have been received. Following such an investigation, the elections commissioner must decide if charges are warranted.

He could choose to press a charge and proceed by way of summary conviction, with a maximum penalty of a $1,000 fine, or one year in jail, or both. Should he choose to proceed by indictment, however, the maximum penalty would be a $5,000 fine, or five years in prison, or both.

Though the commission was aware of the situation in Glengarry-Prescott-Russell due to the Boudria inquiry, no complaints had been received. Similar violations of the Act are known to have occurred in a number of ridings throughout the country where nominations are being contested.

The restrictions apply to media advertising only, and have no impact on posters or direct mail.

While convictions under the Canada Elections Act can bring stiff penalties, they cannot cause a party nomination or an election to be overturned, Mr. Tarte explained. Though illegal under the Act, such advertising offenses are not defined as "corrupt or illegal practice," he said, which could result in a Member of Parliament being removed from office and barred from seeking election for up to five years.

Alexandria Mayor J. P. Touchette, the first man to announce his candidacy for the Liberal nomination, told The News Tuesday that he and the other candidates were not aware of the troublesome provisions of the Elections Act when they booked their advertising. Late Tuesday he was informed by the riding's Liberal

Collard receives NDP nod

ST. ISIDORE DE PRESCOTT—New Democrats in Glengarry, Prescott, Russell have chosen Annemarie Collard to lead them in the upcoming September 4 federal election.

Mrs. Collard, a 43-year-old mother of four who runs a sheep farm with her husband Frank, won the position by acclamation at a July 26 meeting that lasted slightly more than 30 minutes.

Mrs. Collard, a political novice, said it was "entirely possible" that the party would have a role to play in a minority government after Sept. 4.

She said the issues she would fight the campaign on would be: the opportunity to find a job; the opportunity to participate in a fair tax system; the opportunity for high quality public service; the opportunity for equality for women and the opportunity for world peace and nuclear disarmament.

"On Sept. 4, I'll need your vote so there will be a better life for all of Canada," Mrs. Collard said. "Let's work together for it."

The NDP in the riding has had its ups and downs over the past few years and at times the party has simply disappeared. Riding president Gary Geddes of Maxville said he was pleased at the "newly resurrected" party and compared it to "the Phoenix that dies every now and then and emerges from its own ashes."

"We've been in operation for three weeks now," he told the meeting. "We are quite enthusiastic and the more we see on television, the more excited we get about the prospect for an increase in votes in this area."

Ontario NDP leader Bob Rae, who along with Cornwall MPP George Samis, was the evening's guest speaker, slammed the federal Liberals for the many recent patronage appointments.

"What gets me is the contrast between what they do for themselves and what they do for the ordinary people," Mr. Rae said. "You have to go back to the Roman empire, to the time of Caligula to find anything like this. Caligula, to show his disdain for the council, appointed his own horse. Mr. Turner and Mr. Trudeau picked 250 horses and appointed them but sometimes they didn't pick the whole horse.

"We've regrouped here and we have a job to do," he said, "to reach out to the people. Look at this as a growing experience. At the next meeting there will be 40 people, at the meeting after that there will be 80 and the meeting

Local briefs

Request assistance

Alexandria police are requesting the public's assistance in their continuing investigation of a violent robbery at the Mill Square on Monday, July 23.

A 25-year-old Hawkesbury man received minor injuries and money in his possession was stolen when two or more assailants jumped him as he stood beside his car at 11:45 p.m. No weapons were used.

Alexandria Police Chief Norm Mailhot said Tuesday his department was seeking witnesses to the incident who could help solve the crime.

He said there likely were people walking on the street or passing by in their cars at the time of the robbery, but they may have believed it was no more than a minor drunken altercation, when in fact it was much more serious.

Anyone who witnessed the incident or may have other relevant information is asked to call the Alexandria Police Department at 525-1954.

Motorcycle accident

A 19-year-old Alexandria man suffered major injuries, including broken bones, in a three-vehicle accident late Thursday.

Brent McKay of 100 Victoria St. S., was taken by ambulance to Glengarry Memorial Hospital following the 11 p.m. mishap on Main Street North, at the intersection of Kincardine Street.

Alexandria police report Mr. McKay, who was driving a 1974 Yamaha motorcycle, was attempting to pass two northbound cars when the front car made a left turn onto Kincardine. The motorcycle collided with the turning vehicle, a 1976 Pontiac driven by Kathleen Dicaire, 34, of Concession 1, Kenyon Township.

The collision caused Mr. McKay to be ejected from the motorcycle, landing against another car in the Alexandria Curling Club Parking lot. The motorcyclist hit the parked 1977 Buick with such force that damages totalling $300 resulted. The Buick was owned by Joann Gallant of 139 Main St. N.

Damages to the Dicaire vehicle totalled $700. Police described the motorcycle as a total write-off, with approximately $1,500 in damages.

Mr. McKay, who has since been released from hospital, was later charged with careless driving.

Major injuries

An 18-year-old Alexandria man is in hospital with major injuries after a motorcycle accident early Sunday morning.

Lancaster OPP report that Michel Glaude, 19 Kenyon St., was riding a 1974 Yamaha motorcycle north on County Road 21 at County Road 25, east of Glen Norman, when the bike hit the shoulder and Mr. Glaude was thrown onto the gravel. He was taken by ambulance to Glengarry Memorial Hospital and later transferred to the Ottawa Civic. Damage to the motorcycle is estimated at $800. Cst. Randy Miller investigated.

Smoked meat

A burning roast at a Harrison Street residence brought out the Alexandria Fire Department Saturday afternoon.

Fire Chief Gerald Charlebois said the family of Jack Reid, 15 Harrison St., had gone to visit relatives on the Glen Robertson Road, forgetting about the roast cooking back at home.

Neighbors noticed the smoke and alerted firefighters who quickly disposed of the offending meat. Mr. Charlebois said there was no damage in the incident.

$25,000 grant

LOCHIEL—Lochiel Township has received a $25,000 grant from the Ontario Ministry of Transportation and Communications for bridge improvements.

At the end of June a delegation from the township council met with MTC minister James Snow in Toronto and requested the additional funding.

The two bridges to be widened are both on the MacPherson Road. Tenders for the work will be issued soon.

Bicentennial poem

LANCASTER—A 13-year-old Lancaster girl will have a poem included in an anthology celebrating the province's bicentennial.

Lise Bourdeau was one of more than 3,000 students from across the province to submit a poem to the project, sponsored by the Ontario Bicentennial Commission and several educational groups.

The book, which should be published soon, is titled Celebration in Two Voices—Celebrons a Deux Voix and covers topics from Ontario's history and heritage to friends, school and the seasons.

$5,000 damage

A two vehicle collision Saturday afternoon left damage estimated at $5,000.

Maxville OPP report that at 5:20 p.m., Leonard Raymond, 54, of Two Mountains, Quebec was driving a 1984 Ford south on the Greenfield Road. At the same time, Joseph Maley, 45, of Concession 4 Kenyon Township, was driving a 1978 Ford west on Concession 4. Mr. Maley stopped at the intersection, failed to notice the oncoming vehicle and pulled out, colliding with the Raymond vehicle.

Damage to Mr. Raymond's car is estimated at $3,000 with $2,000 damage to Mr. Maley's. There were no injuries and the accident was investigated by Cst. Paul Evans.

$1,000 damage

A single vehicle accident early Saturday morning caused $1,000 damage to the car of a Martintown man.

Lancaster OPP report that a 1984 Buick, driven by Ronald Lapointe, 18, of RR 1 Martintown, was eastbound on the Gore Road, east of Grant's Corners, when the vehicle drove onto the shoulder, turned around and entered the ditch backwards.

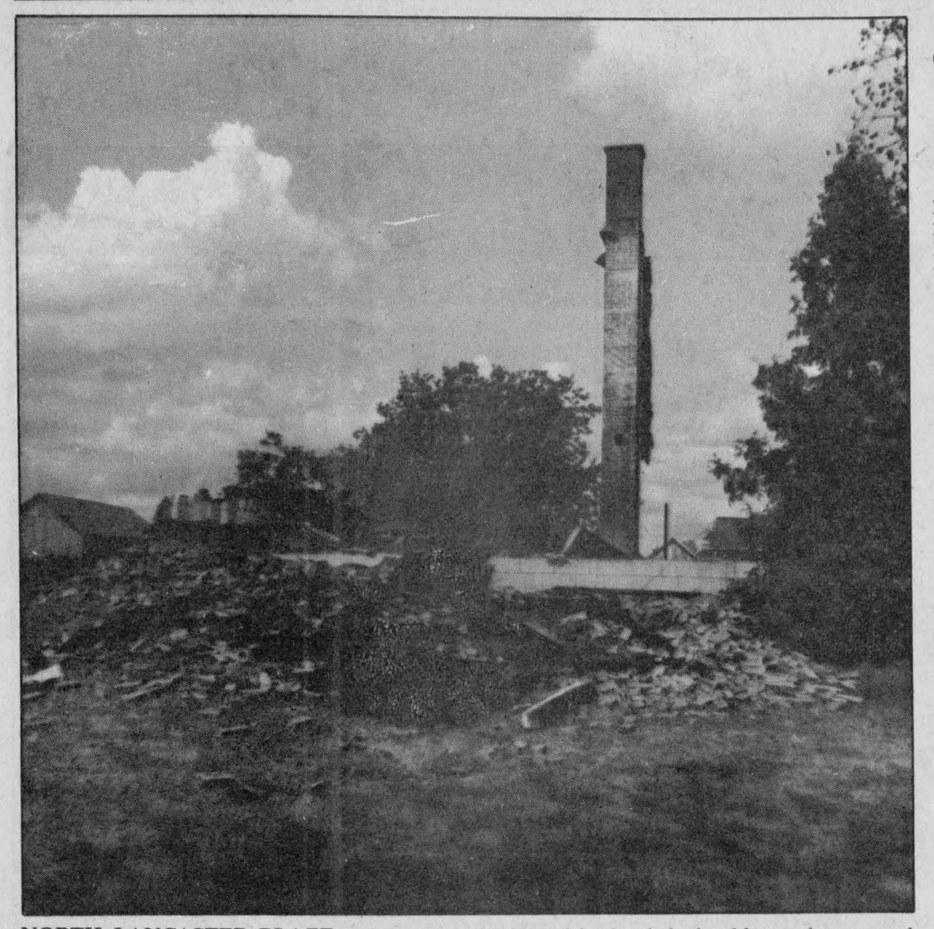
There were no injuries reported in the incident. Cst. Paul Sabourin was the investigating officer.

Liberals meet

CORNWALL—Liberals in the riding of Stormont-Dundas will meet tonight at the Cornwall Civic Complex to elect their representative for the upcoming federal election.

Incumbent Ed Lumley announced recently that he would seek another term in office. He is not expected to be opposed.

Running for the Progressive Conservatives is Cornwall insurance agent and broker Norm Warner. On July 25 the Stormont-Dundas NDP Association met and nominated Cornwall electrician Raymond Lefebvre.



NORTH LANCASTER BLAZE—Little remained of the North Lancaster home of David Sheldon family after an early morning fire July 25. Firefighters from Lancaster Village and Alexandria battled the blaze, that caused damage estimated at between $70,000 and $75,000.

Family of four homeless after North Lancaster blaze

NORTH LANCASTER—A fire early Wednesday, July 25th, in North Lancaster has left four people homeless and caused damage estimated at between $70,000 and $75,000.

The Lancaster Village Fire Department was called to the home of David Sheldon at 3:26 a.m. Mr. Sheldon, along with his wife and two children, managed to escape the blaze unharmed but the two-storey, red brick home was destroyed.

Fire chief Roger Menard said one of Mr. Sheldon's daughters woke up after the heat from the fire caused a kitchen window to blow out. She alerted the rest of the family, who had to escape through an upstairs window onto an adjoining carport.

Mr. Menard said he wasn't sure what had started the blaze, adding that old wiring might have been the cause.

The Alexandria Fire Department was called at 4 a.m. to help battle the blaze and while Mr. Menard said his men might have been able to handle the fire, a strong wind and a diminishing water supply meant he had to call for more help.

"There was quite a wind and sparks were landing on other buildings," he said. "We were low on water and we knew we couldn't contain the fire with the one load we had. I would have hated to see someone's house burn down because we didn't have enough water. It was darn nice to see them (the Alexandria firefighters) pull in."

association president, Pierre Aubry of Alexandria, but by then it was too late to cancel his advertising, he said.

"We were told long after the advertising deadline," he added. "It was simply too late."

The mayor said the restrictions were unreasonable, particularly in cases when there is a strong race for a nomination. The limits do not take into account the number of newspapers in a riding or a realistic cost of advertising, he added.

The other candidates could not be reached in time for publication.

Organizers for the various candidates were predicting a crowd of between 4,000 and 6,000 would crowd into the Hawkesbury Civic Complex for the nomination convention. More than 7,000 new memberships had been sold by the Saturday deadline by the candidates and their supporters.

20,000 expected to attend Highland Games Saturday

MAXVILLE—A crowd of around 20,000 is expected to descend on Maxville and the area this weekend for the 37th annual Glengarry Highland Games.

Games secretary Connie Blaney said on Tuesday that she has received inquiries about the Games from Vermont, South Carolina, Maine, New York, the Maritimes and Manitoba. "They are coming from all directions really," Mrs. Blaney said.

Members of the organizing committee say that all is ready for the weekend event and everyone is keeping his fingers crossed, hoping for good weather.

The Games actually get going on Friday, August 3 with the pre-Games Military Tattoo starting at 8 p.m. Between 7 and 8 p.m. there will be a musical interlude featuring the Black Watch Military Band and the Fiddlers Choice.

CJOH's Brooke McNabb will be master of ceremonies for the evening, which will open with an address of welcome from the chairman of the Games Angus H. McDonell.

The pre-Games show is a must for everyone who enjoys Scottish music and dancing. Those taking part include the Glengarry Pipe Band, the Ottawa City Police Band, the Ogilvy Pipe Band of Ottawa, the Brigadoons, the Ottawa City Police Choir and the Morris Family.

Things begin bright and early on Saturday with the individual piping competition getting underway at 8:15 a.m. Individual drumming also gets started at that time, as does the dancing.

At 9 a.m. the Canadian Scottish Heavyweight championship begins with crowd pleasing events such as the caber toss and the hammer throw.

The Games will be officially opened at 1 p.m. by this year's special guest, American Ambassador Paul H. Robinson Jr. Shortly after the official opening ceremonies the crowd will be able to delight in the mass display of the Highland fling and the parade of bands before the grandstand.

The track and field events, for both males and females, begin at 1 p.m. and there will be no entry fee for these events.

From 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. you'll be able to watch not only the pipe bands competitions but also the drum majors' competitions. The day will come to a close at 5:30 p.m. with the presentation of prizes to the bands.

Why not come out and see the world's largest annual Scottish gathering for yourself?

Tina Chamberlain named Stormont Dairy Princess

AVONMORE — A 17-year-old Crysler girl was named Stormont County Dairy Princess, Saturday, following a short competition in front of the grandstand at the Avonmore Fair.

Tina Chamberlain, daughter of Bill and Marie Chamberlain, won the title over two other contestants, Monica Reusser, a 21-year-old employee of the Ontario Dairy Herd Improvement Association, and Linda Vander Wielen, 19-year-old daughter of Antoon and Anne Vander Wielen of Maxville.

Miss Chamberlain, who will be entering Grade 12 in September, spoke first and described the Ontario Dairy Princess program as "a link between city and country; between the producer and the consumer."

"I'm proud to be part of this wonderful industry," she said, noting agriculture ranks second only to the automobile industry in size. The Dairy Princess' job is to represent the dairy industry and

Last year's Stormont County Dairy Princess, Sandra Campbell, daughter of James and Jean Campbell of Moose Creek, will travel to Toronto on August 24 to represent Stormont in the Ontario Dairy Princess Competition.

"A Dairy Princess is a goodwill ambassadress who represents the dairymen of her area at various functions," Miss Campbell explained. "Speaking engagements at women's groups, school visits, banquets and appearances at all kinds of local events are some typical activities."

Judges for the competition were Bob Chambers, assistant manager of the Royal Bank, Pitt Street, Cornwall; Janice MacEwen of Maxville, a former Stormont Dairy Princess and Ike Sawatsky, plant manager of Kraft Limited in Ingleside.

SD&G MPP Noble Villeneuve came out the winner in a "V.I.P" milking contest, which required all five contestants to milk by hand five different cows for one minute each, with the person holding the greatest volume of milk in the pail coming out on top.

Mr. Villeneuve beat out four other contestants, including Stormont-Dundas Conservative candidate Norman Warner.

RRCA to discuss Cardinal Dam project with public

The Raisin Region Conservation Authority is preparing to go ahead with its plan to reconstruct the Cardinal Dam at Loch Garry and is opening public discussions to decide the fate of a plan to raise the river level.

Project engineer Mike Lalonde said the Authority has the funding for the project and hopes to have reconstruction finished by this fall. A public meeting is scheduled for Thursday, August 2 to settle any misunderstandings the public may have concerning the project.

"The main point is to open discussions," said Mr. Lalonde. "We want to make it clear that with the Cardinal Dam project we're not raising the water level. It's a separate project and at the meeting we want to make that clear."

The Cardinal Dam is in need of repair, but "a lot of people are worried about their property if the water level is raised," said Mr. Lalonde. "Maybe when they find out what it means they won't be worried."

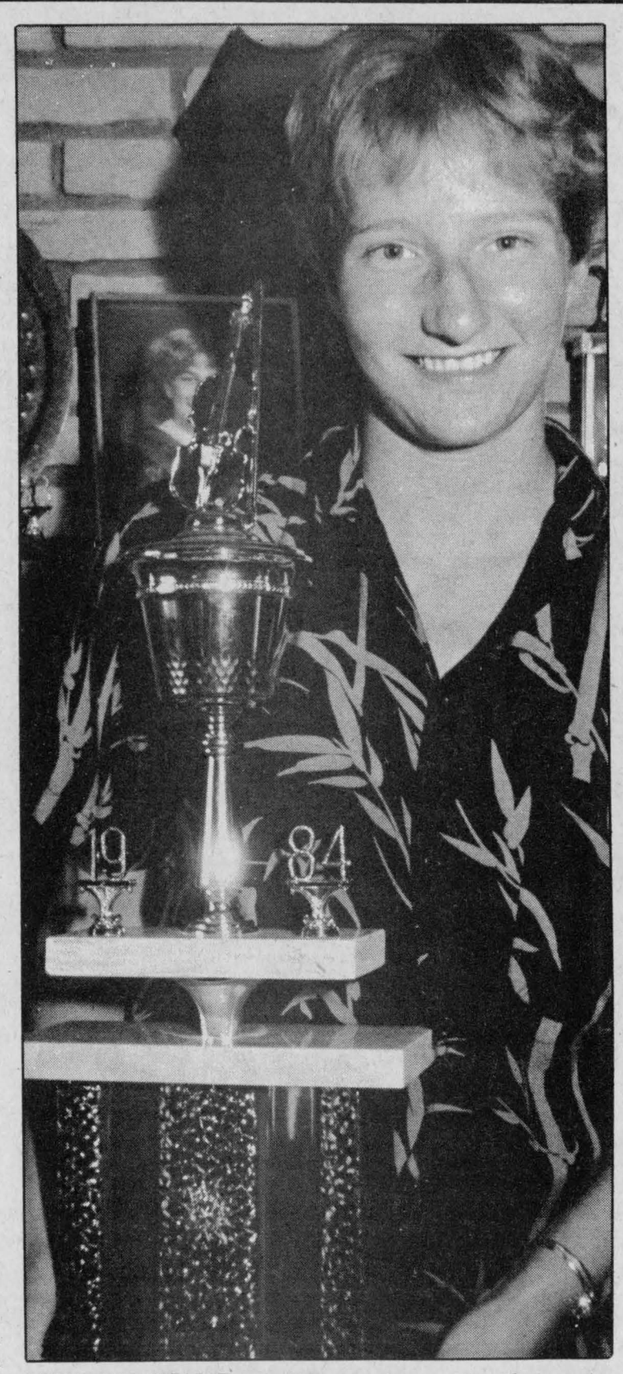
McNeely Engineering of Cornwall did a study of the Garry River system in 1980 and it was decided that the Town of Alexandria would have water shortage problems in the near future. Surveys revealed that Loch Garry was the only suitable storage area for the additional water demands. The Authority is planning to raise the level by one foot which in itself would produce one year's supply of water for the town.

Mr. Lalonde said once the reconstruction is finished the water raising portion is secondary. "The physical aspect of raising the water is really peanuts, it's just the legal problems and settling matters with the cottage owners," he said.

At the meeting the Authority will answer questions concerning the effects of the changes and show sketches of what the water level increase will mean. Mr. Lalonde said 90 per cent of the cottages would see a "minimal effect" and only three or four would have a major problem. Most of the properties have sharp banks and the raised water would only shorten the drop.

Money involved in the project would amount to just some additional engineering expenses, said Mr. Lalonde. The reconstruction of the dam has been funded and most of the surveying completed.

The meeting will be held at the hall at Masterson's Beach at 7:30 p.m.



FIDDLING CHAMP—Chalk up another one for Glengarry's Trottier family. This time the honors went to Kelli Trottier as she took first place in the open class Maritime Old Time Fiddling Contest recently. In addition to the trophy, she was presented with a cheque for $500.

Avonmore Fair draws 5,000 as weekend continues to grow

AVONMORE—More than 5,000 people were here Friday and Saturday to take in the annual Avonmore Fair, according to Jean Canham, secretary for the sponsoring Roxborough Agricultural Society.

The fair was changed little from last year's successful effort, Mrs. Canham told The News Monday, and it continued the growth of the annual exhibition since its resurgence a few years ago.

"It's up continuously, now," she said. "We couldn't be more pleased with what's happening with our fair or with all the people who work so hard to make it a success."

A large new cattle barn was in use during the fair, continuing a facilities improvement program that saw construction of a new grandstand in time for last year's fair.

There was a large number of entries in all the livestock competitions, 16 families entered the family softball tournament and a large crowd was on hand in the grandstand to take in a talent show and the hotly contested outhouse races, filmed by the CBC for a September broadcast on CBOT's Country Report.

A joint outhouse entry by the Canham and Thuot families was judged the fastest and most original in the outhouse races, which Mrs. Canham said were a little dangerous, with a couple of chilling spills.

The St. Pierre family won the A championship in the ball tournament, with the Poirier family taking the B title.

In the Stormont County Barrow Show Terry McElroy of Avonmore was named premier breeder.

In the Holstein show, judged by Sandy Snedden of Almonte, Carl Smith of Chesterville captured the grand champion female title with Akriegervue Willow Leona. Reserve grand champion went to Fawcettdale Shellagh, owned by Allison Fawcett of Winchester, who also took the junior championship with Ivanhoe Kathy.

Montmaple and Hipkin's entry from Avonmore, Montmaple Elevation Nancy, was named reserve junior champion female.

In the Ayrshire show, Soreloise Vivianne, owned by Mode Brothers of Vankleek Hill, was named grand champion female, with the reserve title going to Gold Colleen Carol, owned by Donald Rose of South Mountain.

It was a similar split in the junior category, with Mode Brothers' Bonny Brae Cara named champion and Donald Rose's Rosayne Praline named reserve junior champion.

In the Jersey show, Floyd Dingwall of Berwick captured the grand championship with Spruce Avenue, followed closely by North River Farms of Lachute and its reserve grand champion, Norvale Acres Golden Lady.

An entry by Ron Sharp of Russell took the junior champion title, followed in reserve by Richard Dingwall's Sprucevine Sleeper's Keziah.

Six plead guilty to impaired charges

Six men were fined and had their driving privileges suspended in Alexandria Provincial Court last week after pleading guilty to charges of impaired driving.

Gerald MacDermid, 25, of Monkland, was fined $403 following an incident June 22 when he swerved to miss a parked car on Main Street in Maxville and hit a moving car causing $300 damage. He was given a three-month licence suspension and given the same amount of time to pay his fine.

Judge Reginald Levesque said he imposed a higher fine than usual because the case had involved damages and Mr. MacDermid had to be halted by police after it appeared he wasn't going to remain at the scene of the accident.

Paul Gauthier, 24, of Lancaster was fined $303 after a single vehicle accident in Alexandria July22. Police had witnessed Mr. Gauthier speeding and when he stopped in the Mac's Milk parking lot police approached him. Mr. Gauthier sped off and was apprehended after losing control of his motorcycle turning onto McDougall Avenue.

A 32-year-old Cornwall man was given a $103 fine and three-month licence suspension following an incident July 18. Dan Rabey was spotted on County Road 20 wandering in and out of his proper lane and charged after police noticed a strong odor of alcohol on his breath. Two breathalyzer readings revealed 175 mgs of alcohol per 100 mls of blood, over the legal limit of 80.

A Lancaster man who drove up on a curb and hit a street sign on Catherine Street in Alexandria was given a fine of $453. Patrick Rousseau, 30, was charged with impaired driving after the accident July 24. Mr. Rousseau had no previous criminal record, but Judge Levesque cited the accident and high alcohol readings as reasons for the severe fine. Mr. Rouseau had readings of 230 and 211 mgs of alcohol per 100 mls of blood following the accident.

A 31-year-old Nepean man who almost collided with a Maxville OPP officer was fined $283 after pleading guilty to impaired driving. On July 14 Cst. Norm Champagne had to swerve to avoid a car driven by Jude Leduc on County Road 20 near Maxville. The officer pursued Mr. Leduc into Maxville and laid charges after a breathalyzer revealed readings of 180 mgs of alcohol per 100 mls of blood. Mr. Leduc was given three months to pay the fine.

Roger Yelle of Montreal was fined $283 for an impaired driving charge that stemmed from an incident on Highway 401. Mr. Yelle and his wife were apparently lost when Mr. Yelle took over the wheel. He was pulled over by police after swerving into a guide rail and charged after alcohol tests revealed readings of 180 mgs of alcohol per 100 mls of blood.

Stante condemns Liberal hopefuls

On the eve of this riding's Liberal nominating convention, Tory candidate John Stante has blasted two of the contenders for the Liberal crown.

On Monday, the day before Liberals would meet in Hawkesbury to pick their candidate in the September 4 election, Mr. Stante held a news conference where he tore a strip off nomination candidates Jean Marc Lalonde and Don Boudria.

Mr. Stante said Mr. Lalonde is a card-carrying member of the riding's Progressive Conservative party.

"Twelve days before my nomination (May 16) he was to decide if he would run for the Progressive Conservative nomination," he said.

He also said that former Prescott-Russell MPP Don Boudria used to be a member of the Conservative party and he ridiculed Mr. Boudria's description of himself as a "Liberal's Liberal."

"He has betrayed his mandate," Mr. Stante said. "The people of Prescott-Russell elected him provincially, not federally. He has a penchant for quitting on the people."

Mr. Stante also wondered why so many poeple had come forward to contest the Liberal nomination. He suggested it was merely a way for them to get some patronage appointments.

"The population has been taken for granted for too long," he said. "There is no such thing as a safe seat in this election."

PUC truck damaged

The Alexandria Police Department responded to a robbery late Friday night at the Public Utilities Commission yard on Gernish Street.

Three doors on a large PUC truck had been forced open on the right side, hidden from the street. A quantity of tools and other items of undetermined value were stolen.

Police were called around 11 p.m. when people in the area heard strange noises and witnessed suspects fleeing from the scene.

The same truck was robbed in a similar manner in March. Cst. Paul Deveau is investigating both incidents.

Women being heard

Seventy-two years have passed since Canadian women were given the right to vote and for most of those years political parties and their leaders paid them little attention. It was generally assumed they would vote as their husbands did and there was little need to address their concerns.

Times have changed. Women account for 52 per cent of the electorate today and can make or break governments entirely on their own, if they are united. On many issues, women are united, much more strongly so than men. Politicians are finally paying close attention.

Conservative leader Brian Mulroney and Liberal leader John Turner are promoting women as candidates for their parties, giving them important jobs in the campaign, and promising high profile roles in the next government.

All this has left the NDP and Ed Broadbent, who committed themselves to economic equality for women five years ago, wondering why it took so much longer for the larger parties to open their eyes.

Turner says he would make a woman deputy prime minister. Tough luck, Jean. Mulroney says he would double the number of women on federally appointed boards and commissions. Would they be Conservative women?

There are record numbers of women contesting party nominations throughout the country and more than ever before will be running for office.

Like American pollsters, Canadian politicians are discovering the "gender gap"; the fact that women, as a whole, differ substantially from men on a wide range of issues, particularly social concerns.

Priorities differ sharply. Men and women both see the economy as the biggest concern, but their approaches vary. Women are naturally much more supportive of increased funding for day care services across the country, making it easier for women, particularly single mothers, to find and hold jobs.

With women still earning only 60 per cent, on average, of what men are paid in this country, they are firm believers in affirmative action to force employers to give females important jobs on a par with men.

They are demanding equal pay for equal work. Politicians have long said they agreed with the sentiment, but women are forcing action to match words.

Women are far more supportive of the disarmament movement than men, which leads us to wonder whether the arms race would continue if Reagan and Chernenko were to step aside in favor of their wives.

Women are demanding the government set the example for all employers by giving women a fair chance at promotion in the civil service. Females hold 40 per cent of all public service jobs but only 3.7 per cent of top management positions.

Polls show that women distinctly prefer the Liberals over the Conservatives. They strongly supported Joe Clark when he was Conservative leader, but moved over to the Liberals in far greater numbers than men after Mulroney took over.

Despite apologizing for previous remarks and the strongest assurances the man is capable of, many women still doubt Mulroney's sincerity.

They're having similar trouble with Turner's bottom patting.

Women may not be overly fond of either major party leader, leaving their votes open to the highest bidder. One thing seems certain, however. If a competent woman—Iona Campagnolo or Flora MacDonald, for example—were to take over the leadership of the Liberals or Conservatives, she would be all but unbeatable. Canada's first woman prime minister may not be far off.

Fair growing again

Just a few years back many people had given up on the Avonmore Fair. Attendance was down, facilities were worse and attractions were few. Most predicted the historic annual fair would simply come to an end.

A few dedicated people wouldn't accept the demise, however, and set to work correcting the problems that have plagued the annual event, putting the fair back on a solid footing again. Instead of bemoaning the problems and blaming it all on circumstances beyond their control, they sought solutions.

Today the Avonmore Fair is still far short of being the biggest, let alone the most successful fair around. Its attendance may not come up to par with some of the others. But thousands of people are attending and enjoying themselves. The fair is on a firm foundation and growing again.

Along with more and better attractions, there are also new facilities, including an expensive grandstand and a new cattle barn.

As long as the same dedicated people keep working, and like-minded individuals join them, the Avonmore Fair is assured of permanence. It will be with us and growing for many more years.

There must be a satisfying feeling among the organizers and their volunteers. Success certainly didn't fall into their laps. They didn't inherit it, either. They had to work for it. They would all agree the effort was worthwhile.

We'll be looking forward to still greater success in 1985 and the years thereafter.

Abolish fee

Alexandria is blessed with a huge waterfront park that is the envy of most municipalities. Tennis, softball, swimming and many other activities can easily be accommodated any day of the week, without one disturbing another.

Families come out every day for a picnic and to play with their children. A well-equipped playground is fully utilized.

Alexandrians and their area neighbors can take pride in the park, created and maintained largely due to the financial support and hard work of service club members.

But the town has erected a barrier to the public's use of the park and all its facilities and green space. Sunday visitors are stopped at the gate and forced to pay $1.50 to park their cars in a huge, under-utilized parking lot. Most people are offended.

Some people pay, but they're left with a bad taste. Visitors to the town are understandably offended.

Many refuse to pay and park on the street instead, which creates an unnecessary traffic hazard and blights the view of the park. Many more have turned around and gone home fuming, some of them never to return.

The parking fee may be a petty amount, but no more petty than the thinking that established it.

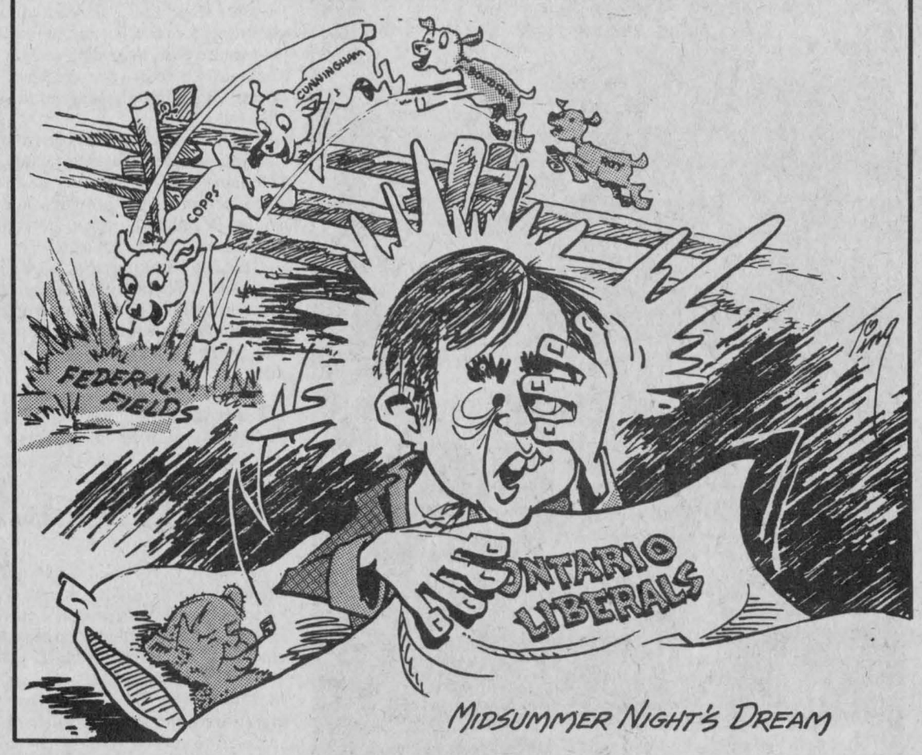
Instead of discouraging park attendance on Sundays, town officials could serve a much more positive end if they attempted to offer regular activities to attract people.

The wages paid a bored parking attendant could be better spent on cleaning and maintaining the park's washrooms, which are often in a disgraceful condition.

The Sunday parking fee should be abolished immediately. The town's financial condition is not so bad that it needs a few miserly dollars painfully extracted from citizens who want no more than a quiet Sunday afternoon in the park.

The parking lot should be left open to as many people as may want to use it, encouraging them to take their cars off the street.

The parking fee looks like no more than a cheap money grab. It certainly serves no positive purpose.



MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM

The post office was 'saved' midsummer night's dream

Our rambling reporter

Lying abed one night waiting for the sand man to take over we must have been thinking on the ability of oil to still troubled waters. The Good Book tells us oil has that soothing effect on the angry waves though we're darned if we know whence comes that power to pacify the sea.

Those oily thoughts must have triggered our dreaming and, unlike most dreams, this one survived the dawn.

Seems a TV evangelist, Reeks Humbug or some such name, thought up a new gimmick for extracting money from the gullible. He mailed out thousands of cellophane packages of salad oil, asking the faithful to daub a bit of oil on their green stuff before sending the money or cheque to him.

Don't know how Humbug came out on the deal but his packets messed up the mails when they sprung a leak and the results were totally unlooked for. That oil proved so soothing it pacified practically all the Post Office people.

This must have happened before the Post Office became a Crown Corporation cause it still had a Postmaster General. He must have come in contact with some of that oil for all of a sudden he was demoting himself to the rank of Postmaster Sergeant and pushing for more democracy in his department.

A bird called Alouette or something was caretaker of the postal workers club house at Ottawa. Overnight he quit complaining and his fellows were amazed to find him preaching peace. He suggested the workers and management might get together for a game of golf one day. "If there are any differences to be ironed out," he suggested, "they can be discussed at the 19th hole."

That oil was permeating the entire postal system and it was powerful stuff. One member of the postal club suggested a debate be held on the proposition: "Resolved we go back to penny postage and pay our way." He argued a return to the two-cent stamp would bring back business to the P.O.; the posties could do a day's work again and everybody'd be happier.

Other suggestions came thick and fast:

—Let's have a new motto, Post Haste—and speed every day's mail on its way.

—Couldn't we cut down on the overtime?

Let's quit sending mail to No Man's Land.

—Second class mail should be handled first class.

We've got to win back the business we've lost to the private carriers, somebody was suggesting, just as we woke to the new day.

It was only a dream, we realized, but still we were left wondering if that guy Humbug hadn't used castor oil instead of salad oil. The castor oil of our youth was calculated to clean out the system just as the Post Office had been cleansed in that dream.

Community leaders evicted, what an embarrassment

Second look

by Phil Rutherford

When a group of Glengarry's leading citizens, including some of its top political leaders, are barred from a local restaurant for being too loud and vulgar, for forcing waitresses into early retirement and for driving away business, we should all feel ashamed.

What must visitors to Glengarry think when forced to witness the spectacle?

They may be dimming in middle age, but this ignoble group of men still claims some of the community's leading citizens within its ranks. If this is supposed to be Alexandria's and Lochiel's best, what must the rabble be like?

It may be sad, but it's certainly true. A quick glance around the group of 10 to 20 hapless souls and you instantly recognize a few of the blank, drooping faces.

There's a reeve and a couple of town councillors, a township councillor, a board of education superintendent, a police chief, a postmaster, an insurance office manager, a couple of real estate brokers, a furniture dealer, a postmaster, a caterer and one or two newspapermen (there had to be a couple of uplifting faces in the crowd).

How bad could they be? We can't describe it all in a family newspaper.

Suffice it to say, business must have burgeoned in the Nashville immediately after the ruffians were kicked out. Twenty years was enough. The proprietors could take it no more.

The gang has moved to the Hub, taking over several window seats where passing pedestrians can take due warning.

We know Ewen and Agnes are tolerant people. Should they have any trouble, however, they can always move the mangy lot to some remote corner of their huge building, where neither staff members nor customers are likely to be disturbed.

Should even that fail, there are always empty cells in the basement of police headquarters. The chief will even provide the coffee, for a price.

Always ready to turn on one of their own, some of the scoundrels are pointing accusatory fingers at Archibald McDonald, insisting he and his loud ways were the cause of the embarrassing eviction last week.

I find that hard to believe. Between the reeve and our local printing competitor, there was never much of an opportunity for Archie or anyone else to be loud.

That won't be hard for anyone to believe.

Second thoughts on Mr. Turner

Editor's notebook

by Bruce Hayes

I would never be the one to say, 'I told you so,' but wasn't I the one who said recently that the federal election would make for an interesting summer?

While the 1984 summer Olympics in Los Angeles might monopolize the airwaves for the next little while, the federal travelling circus just keeps rolling right along, giving people like me lots to write about.

In their purest and most basic form, election campaigns are an opportunity for the citizens of a democracy to listen to the politicians and then decide which one they would like to see in power. The theory behind all of this is that the person best suited for the job and exhibiting the best qualities will become, in this case, prime minister.

Well, the 1984 federal campaign might be remembered as the election where the prize went, not to the most deserving and qualified, but to the one who manages to fall on his own sword the least number of times.

Although the election is slightly less than one month old, it has been an entertaining, if not somewhat disconcerting, mixture of charges, counter-charges and mistakes. Oh boy, have there been mistakes. The campaign has resembled, at times, a Monty Python's Flying Circus of the north.

These mistakes aren't the exclusive domain of the man-who-would-be-king, our own Gerry Ford of Canada, John Napier Turner. While Mr. Turner, a man who occupies the Prime Minister's Office in spite of the fact that none of us voted for him, isn't the only one suffering from mental lapses, he certainly is the leader of the pack at this stage of the game.

Actually, if the election were to be held today, based on campaign performance, Mr. Broadbent would be our leader, with Mr. Mulroney a close second.

A prime minister is supposed to inspire confidence. He's supposed to let us know, through words and actions, that he knows what is wrong with Canada, he knows how to fix it and he knows how to do it in a way that won't hurt too much. I don't know about you, but when I see John Turner coming I start to feel a little uncertain about the future of this country.

I know by now that all the Liberals out there will be screaming about the mistakes Mr. Mulroney has made and, I'll admit, he's made some great ones. I don't think anyone will forget his comments on patronage that he thought were off the record.

However, Mr. Turner, when it comes to saying dumb things and then sticking to them, stands head and shoulders above the rest.

There's the case of his explanation for the decrease in Manitoba's unemployment rate. He claimed it was going down only because the province was losing 2,000 people every month. In truth the population of Manitoba is increasing. Oops, wrong briefing book.

Then there was the time Mr. Turner said Mr. Mulroney had said he, Mr. Mulroney, would eliminate 600,000 civil service jobs if elected. Uh, Mr. Prime Minister, said a confused press corps, aren't those figures a little high. "Yes," replied our leader-in-waiting, "they are. But Mr. Mulroney deals in high figures."

Got to give him credit though. He stuck to that version the rest of the day. However, toward the end he had to agree that, considering there are only around 500,000 civil servants across the country, that figure might be a bit inflated. Another page from the briefing book bites the dust.

It's not just these major mistakes that give me cause to wonder. He just doesn't seem prime ministerial. He still hasn't got around to getting his own campaign jet and when he speaks he hesitates and sounds unsure of himself.

Even a highly placed member of the Ontario Liberal party agrees that if Mr. Turner doesn't soon get his act together he might wind up sitting on the wrong side of the House, or even worse, in the visitor's gallery.

It could be that the Liberals who chose Mr. Turner to lead their party way back in June now wish they had voted with their hearts and not their heads.

Hole up for winter after Montreal

Home sweet home. There's the old song about hanging your hat somewhere and calling it home. It's geared mainly for the rovers among us, those who need a home base like everyone else and aren't given one because of their transient spirit. I've often tossed my hat into the ring of the mobile, but after more than four months in Glengarry I've come to feel almost as stable as the next fellow. Almost, only

Off the Mark

by Mark Mitchell

because I haven't had the opportunity to get away as often as the next fellow. So I put on my hat and figured I'd hang it in Montreal for a night and call that home.

It might be home to the Concordes, but my fond feelings for the city were bruised somewhat over the weekend. It's a good sports town and I don't think the bar scene is paralleled anywhere in Canada. What sticks with me after my visit isn't the comfort of Olympic Stadium or the eye-opening effect of stopping in every second brasserie on the way home. It's the continuing language clashes that have rocked city, province and country for I don't know how long. Makes one wish that Wolfe and Montcalm had either wiped out all of each other's forces or seen the light way back then and started a brewery together.

The residents of Glengarry and most of the areas of Ontario that border Quebec should be thankful their schooling and locale afford them the opportunity to be bilingual. They aren't the problem. Though not from the area, my mother is of French descent and thanks to her I'm not the problem either. It's no revelation to anyone that the ardent backers of either language have kept this battle alive. I would like to believe that the morons on both sides of the fence will someday give it up so when the issues for the next election are set out and there appears to be little ground on which to differentiate the parties, a fresh plan to again address the bitter barrier will swing my vote.

Whatever problems we here in Canada may have, it seems the tide of foreigners anxious to confront them is neverending. In all my days of hitch hiking I can't say I ever really enjoyed it, but if someone had been chasing me, or I figured they should have been, the travelling would have been much worse. In any case there were a number of defectors from a Polish tall ship last week and one guy thumbed his way from Gaspe to Winnipeg. Now I can understand if he wanted to catch the Winnipeg-B.C. Lions football game on the weekend, but that's not what he had in mind and I guess he just wanted to see his brother or cousin who is living there. Top marks for the effort and I just hope he doesn't have good enough command of our language to land a job at a Winnipeg newspaper that I might need some day.

It's hard to believe that summer is almost over, but after talking to the Glengarry ag rep and several conscientious husbands struggling to get firewood in for the winter, it seems the time has come. Like the bears and squirrels we humans have to prepare for the deep freeze though it's too bad we can't just curl up and wait out the onslaught. We're good for at least another month of hot winds, though I'm not so sure I'd like it to continue and have to participate in another water polo match at the Sandfield Road Club. Played in my first game the other day and the animal instincts certainly floated to the top. Watching a "friendly" game in the pool an observer would think we descended from piranha if not apes. Could be too because I don't think piranha do any hibernating and for the most part neither do we.

Letters

Reader thankful for alternative in next election vote

Dunvegan

The editor,
The Glengarry News:

It is all too obvious to mention —the moral basis of our social structure is, every day, being eroded.

Governments, provincial and federal, are fighting like two Mafia gangs over the lucrative operations of our lottery gambling pools. Each is greedily extracting a large portion of revenue from exorbitant taxes on the sale of alcoholic beverages. Mulroney talks of patronage benefits as rewards to 'whores at the trough', asserting, he himself, in Bryce Mackasey's position, would have been right in there, with his lumpy chin, swilling at the trough.

Trudeau, himself, constructed the enormous patronage trough—made it large enough to accommodate 200-odd swillees. After listing the lot, he appointed a few, then, (in his own Machievellian way) inveigled Turner, his would be replacement—into assigning the rest.

One muses—did he do this with some constructive hope of shocking the Canadian electorate into anger, and revolt against both the old line parties? In any event Turner accepted this assignment, without thinking. It may have been the kiss of death.

These are only some of the minor political and parliamentary amoralities we have been called upon to witness in the last few years. We cannot build a solid based moral social structure on such foundations.

In this context, your July 11th editorial on exercising our vote on Sept. 4 bears repeating—particularly this portion:

"If this exercise in democracy is to mean more than a rubber stamp, the average Canadian must toss aside blind party loyalty. Don't vote Liberal or Conservative simply because you always have, or your parents did, or your friends do. Make up your own mind and base your decision on what you honestly feel would be best for your riding and your country."

Before, and while in the voting booth, we must consult our conscience and weigh social moral values and vote in a way constructive and promising for the future of the country.

Thank God, we have an alternative to the old line parties. The NDP—with an intelligent and competent woman—Anne Marie Collard—ready to go forward with the banner. She may not win. The old line parties are too rich, organized—and will, as they usually do, bulldoze ahead. But a vote for her would be a vote against the blatant public immoralities so defiantly practiced in open insult to the Canadian electorate. Our votes are power, win, or lose, we need not submit. Let our voice be heard across this land--not "with a whimper, but a bang!"

W. B. Ayre

More producers, less counters

RR2 Green Valley

The editor,
The Glengarry News:

The academic ability of our local youth as reported in The Glengarry News of July 18 is highly commendable—12 Ontario Scholars of 1984 from GDHS. Their choice of university subjects however is somewhat less impressive. It appears that the major benefit to the community at large will be eight Administration and Arts graduates against only four in production related fields such as Science and Agriculture.

Unfortunately, what the country needs right now are creative people who produce the goods, rather than count the proceeds. High technology Canadian companies are constantly being held to ransom by creative engineering and science graduates, who are in short supply. The number of graduates they hire will determine the amount of expansion which can be undertaken, as Canadian technology has found that it is every bit as good as another country's best. Many of our graduates know this as well and have decided to develop their own businesses rather than join a well established company. If they have a problem with accounts or management, they buy the appropriate program for their home computer and take a brief business administration course.

As far as I can see we have a potentially very healthy situation for this country and the emphasis should be in encouraging more of these creative individuals to acquire education to develop new, productive ideas. Let us hope that in the future the realities of this country's needs penetrate to the academic level, and that next year's announcement of the 1985 Ontario Scholars will redress this year's imbalance.

Yours truly,
Maxwell Rutherford

Scottish appeal

London

The editor,
The Glengarry News:

May I appeal through the columns of your newspaper for the support of exiled Scots in the campaign to restore Scotland's independence and her own control over our nation's resources?

No matter where you are there is still something which you can do to help the country of your birth, which at this very moment needs the goodwill and aid of all her friends across the world.

The British government has recently moved to close down the overseas offices of "Locate in Scotland"—an agency set up with public funds—because it has attracted too many overseas companies to invest in Scotland.

Not only this, but as you watch the British pound sliding further down the scale, you might reflect that if it were not for the thousands of millions of pounds which is daily contributed to the British economy from Scotland's North Sea oil, then the British economy would collapse.

All this is happening against a background of recession in Scotland herself. All Scotland's major industries—steel, coal, shipbuilding, vehicle assembly, have been decimated by insensitive and cruel policies masterminded by the London government which ignores the wishes of Scottish people.

The Scottish Lobby has been set up to rally exiled Scots throughout the world. We need people who will contribute funds to our cause. People who will write to the newspapers, as well as people who will pressure the BBC World Service to give more time to Scottish affairs. Will you help us?

If you have never thought about the land of your birth then please think now. Scotland faces extinction due to the unrelenting process of centralization and the stifling of democracy. Only by supporting Scottish independence can you stop Scotland from disappearing altogether.

Please write to us at 71 Hillfield Ave., Hornsey, London, N87DS.

Protest by voting

The editor,
The Glengarry News:

Real "Public enemy No. 1" is voter apathy.

In your July 18 issue "Our Rambling Reporter" writes a story headlined "Public enemy No. 1 is still to be contained—inflation."

Inflation, most certainly, must be contained—and urgently! But the real "Public Enemy No. 1," I think, is revealed in the last part of his article. It is essentially the corruption and manipulation of the democratic process by the blatant insulting use of political patronage by the Liberals, and the stated intent of the Progressive Conservatives to do likewise.

Your Reporter indicates how this has affected the political scene as he writes:

"The way politics is played today the local Member has no say in how government is conducted. As a result his or her role has been down-graded to the point it matters little who we send to Ottawa or Toronto to represent us."

Reflecting on this he is resigned to such apathy he "may decide not to vote at all."

Your Reporter would abandon the right and power of his vote to fight back? Wash his hands and turn away—divorce himself entirely from the democratic process.

It is this kind of apathy which is the real public enemy No. 1.

Under certain conditions, he states—if a certain potential candidate is running—he "Just might vote."

To fight the 'blight' in the political field we must fight back. If alternatives to the Liberal and Conservative candidates are not in the running, or not deserving of our vote we can still exercise our franchise by a protest—destroying our ballot. We can go to the voting booth on Sept. 4 and mark our ballot with a large X across the whole face. This is exercising our democratic right far truer in principle than, in apathy, walking away, merely whimpering.

Destroyed ballots are a definite statement and cannot be ignored. Such positive action will have a firm effect in fighting the 'blight'; and will contribute much more toward shaping a constructive future for Canada than not voting at all.

Hydro misses point

The editor,
The Glengarry News:

It's good to know that the poisons used by Ontario Hydro to kill brush under hydro lines have been approved by Agriculture Canada (D. L. Venutti's letter July 18). Two things seem to escape Ontario Hydro: the stuff is poisonous and it is unnecessary.

Just about any weedkiller is poisonous and will find its way into our water sooner or later. We allow our farmers to use herbicides because our need of food is judged to be more important than traces of poison in our water. Ontario Hydro seems to use the same argument when we are told that we need acid rain so that we can have cheap coal-fired electricity. Now we are told that to kill trees which might grow into power lines we need to have traces of poison in our water.

Anyone who has seen the dead and dying saplings on our roadsides knows that what Ontario Hydro is killing is young trees. Couldn't the job be done just as well with chainsaws and brush-cutters? Or is Ontario Hydro determined to poison us all?

Maxville News

by Velma Franklin

The euchre pairs are coming up again—on Tuesday, August 7th at St. Michael's Church Hall at 8 p.m., with the Young at Heart Club, and the following evening, August 8th at the Maxville Manor. Come along. This is where you meet all your friends.

Velma Franklin spent a few days in Kingston, visiting Dr. and Mrs. Rene Jooste, and enjoyed touring Bellevue House, the newly-opened Fairfield House on the Bath Road, a fantastic collection of early tools at the MacLachlan Woodworking Museum, just west of Gananoque.

The Maxville Horticultural Society annual flower show will be held on Wednesday, August 8, at the Sports Complex. Entries must be in by noon; judging will be done in the afternoon, and the show will open to the public at 6:30 p.m.

Camp Kagama, out on the St. Lawrence, has just had successful sessions for junior campers, but fewer inquiries about the intermediates. Children come to these from all over this area, as far away as Vankleek Hill and Hawkesbury, and perhaps the information has not been received.

There is still room for intermediate boys, aged 12 to 15, from August 11 to 18, and intermediate girls, same ages, August 21 to 28. For more information call Freda Brownell at Ingleside, 537-2576.

Visiting with Millie Eppstadt recently were Susan Gamble of Edmonton, Rev. and Mrs. W. Henderson of Waterford, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Michael Burnstein and daughter of Orneaux, P.Q., and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Grant and Donald George Grant from St. Laurent, P.Q.

MAXVILLE MANOR

The July birthday party at the Maxville Manor was hosted by the Canadian Calorie Counters, with Fleurette Longtin as master of ceremonies.

Margaret Jack and Milvi Vlastaris presented gifts and corsages to those celebrating—Helen Emmell, Annabelle Leroux, Alexina MacKinnon, Jessie MacLeod, Frances Ryan, Ernest Cameron, Oscar Campeau, Rene Carriere, Fletcher Chisholm, Norman Edwards, Neil B. MacLeod, Alexander MacNeill and Tony Poulin.

Rene Carriere sang, Rev. E. N. McColl gave a reading, and Craig Munro brought best wishes from the Manor. Lively music was provided by Yvon Leblanc, Donald Besner and Cathy Clay. Margaret Jack and Dorothea Connors led the singing.

Two weeks ago the Manor residents enjoyed a picnic at the farm home of John and Mabel Patton, having a delightful afternoon in their beautiful gardens and grounds and being entertained with outdoor games.

BABY CONTEST

The baby contest last Friday brought in a joyful number of entries, and the judges, Alma Martin, Anna Mae Albright, Hazel Coleman, Everad Helmer, and Verda Chappell, had a time coming to the following decisions.

The youngest entry was Angela, daughter of Leona Sabourin. In the other categories winners were: to six months, Rachel Hughes; to one year, Melanie Richer; to 1½ years, Charlene Durocher; to two years, Khrystal Hughes, and to three years, Roxanne Lacombe.

Crystal Sabourin and Christopher Richer had the cutest outfits, the biggest smiles adorned Megan Steele and Christopher Russell, Roxanne Lacombe and Josh Perette had the longest hair, but Crystal Sabourin's hair was curlier.

Dawn Hughes and Christopher Richer had the biggest eyes and the rosiest cheeks shone on the faces of Laura Dragone and Josh Perette.

MUSEUM SPECIAL

This Sunday afternoon, August 5, there will be a special display of historic photographs at the Dunvegan Museum. Many of these are from a private collection and feature individuals, groups and community activities in Stewart's Glen, Skye, Bonnie Hill, Baltic's and Dunvegan.

Several senior residents in the district will be at the museum to help identify the people in the photographs. Also on display will be photographs from the museum collection, which includes the Ostrom albums from Alexandria, with their emphasis on sports and municipal politics, and the photos of local homes included in the 1967 registry of historic houses in Glengarry.

Our history abounds in these pictures. In a private collection there is a photograph of a group of men, perhaps 20, and a couple of boys. They are proudly standing underneath a banner that proclaims "The New Dominionville City" as it was named in 1867. For a while the little settlement on the Delisle prospered and grew. There were mills, stores, churches. But the river was small, and the railway went through to the north. The village dwindled to a handful of little homes, almost unnoticed by motorists speeding through on the county highway.

In the past two years there has been a resurgence of interest and activity in Dominionville. Shabby houses have been spruced up and renovated and several new ones are being built, marking a new era for the old settlement.

Honda's theory on the making of a technician.

It is our experience at Honda, that becoming an expert in anything requires a full time commitment. It is for this reason that the technicians who service your Honda are put through an exhaustive training programme, by full time Honda instructors who make it their job to make experts out of the eager.

What's more, school never lets out for a Honda technician. Every month, along with the paycheque, he can expect a brand new product update and a whole new test. And, we at Honda expect him to pass.

All this to say, that although a lot of people can lift the hood on your Honda, nobody, but nobody can hold a match to your Honda technician.

Why have the Highland Games succeeded?

by Angus H. McDonell

Many times during our travels I have been asked by Glengarrians, proud of their grassroots, "What is the secret to success of the Glengarry Highland Games?"

I had one condensed answer, "Continuity of leadership by dedicated personnel."

Glengarry's sport achievements are punctuated with memorable legends. Among the most historic recorded is one dating to the wee hours of August 7, 1948. The first Highland Games were over. The attendance of unexpected thousands made a shambles of well drafted plans. Traffic, parking and catering were major problems. There wasn't a loaf of bread available for breakfast from Greenfield to Moose Creek.

In general, the results, apart from finance, would have caused sponsors of less determination to throw in the traditional towel of defeat. But that was not to be.

A few of the leaders huddled at the crack of dawn, like an offence football platoon. There were two quarterbacks instead of one. Co-founders Peter MacInnes and Dr. Don Gamble. The play they called figuratively speaking, was the one that carved Glengarry out of the wilderness by our ancestors almost 200 years earlier. They would duplicate the same heritage and courage and, working together, make our Games rate among the best in the world.

Having recalled how the foundation bottom logs were verbally hewn and laid in place, let us go on to the molding of the personnel structure that has led the way to success, confirming the old cliche, "There isn't anything that succeeds like success."

The first year, Peter MacInnes served as organizing president. The next five were all single terms. The program of continuity was launched in 1954. John Jamieson then filled the president's role for three successive years. From that tenure down through the years presidential candidates were chosen from the ranks of the various committee chairmen. In their initial two years they are second vice, two terms first, then the top office for the ensuing two years.

That wasn't the only policy adopted. Various chairmen usually held and supervised their assignments, even if they occupied the top office. Following the Games each chairman files any errors or complaints. They are rectified and not repeated.

Surplus funds were used to acquire more parking space. Improving the grounds was a yearly objective. Today some 65 acres and modern facilities make the Kenyon Agriculture Society property, on a pro rata basis, among the most picturesque and accommodating in Canada. One of the reasons Pipe Bands return each year, striving to be crowned North America champions.

Now, let us identify the 1984 personnel who will demonstrate how smoothly each unit fulfills its assignments, maintaining the Games' lofty reputation of efficiency by mostly dedicated volunteer help.

President Dave Munro is serving his first term, but he is also the veteran chairman of camping. Carrying on for the president while he is officially occupied are the Old Timers hockey team headed by Dave Finlay. Incidentally, camping is reserved for competitors and family groups.

The demanding secretarial work is cared for by Connie Blaney. Mr. and Mrs. John Jamieson had capably filled the role for 25 years from 1957.

The treasurer is the president's wife, Cheryl Munro. Assistants are Brian Arkinstall, Wayne Fraser and Doug Symons.

The important role of public relations is cared for by Don Gamble Jr., and vice-president Murray MacQueen, who also attends to compiling and printing the programs. He is joined in deserving credit for editing an attractive booklet by Cornwall's Charles Lant. Program sales are handled by the Big Brothers of Cornwall.

Caring for the pipe bands, awards and trophies are Pipe Major J. T. MacKenzie, Piper Arnold Munro and Mrs. Blaney. They also form the Friday night tattoo concert committee. Donald MacMillan assists in awarding the pipe band trophies.

The chairperson filing Highland dancing entries is Mrs. Jim Campbell, a talented dancer in her day. Competitors are supervised by another veteran of dancing and teaching status, Mrs. Alex (Rae) MacCulloch, dating back to Caledonia (Lachine) Games. She is ably assisted in this lengthy program by her husband.

How are the vast number of cars parked and the crowd of upwards of 25,000 ushered through the gates from early Friday evening to late Saturday? Well, the gates are manned at three p.m., Friday, and at six a.m., Saturday. Count on Walter Blaney, Cecil MacRae and Donald Bahn MacMaster as the veterans at the various entrances. Assistants are Bill Campbell and Robert and Allan MacEwen. The latter is also chairman of parking and 2nd vice-president. On the field directing drivers to parking spaces are members of the Cornwall Shriners and Maxville and Alexandria Lions, totalling upwards of 75. Their compensation goes to charity.

Concessions this year, states chairman Jim Campbell, will extend to and include the new barn at the north end of the grandstand. Souvenir sales are handled by Mrs. Allan (Sandy) Blaney.

Apart from the food concessions, the dining room is supervised in a motherly fashion by Irma Marshall. Gordon Winters is assistant.

Keeping the grounds and buildings among the most attractive in any similar Fair circuit in Canada is the pride and joy of "Doc" Gamble, co-founder of the Glengarry Highland Games 37 years ago.

This year the sports program will rate among the best in North America, the result of negotiations by chairman Don Gamble Jr., Dale Munro and heavy events convener Don Bond, with Doug Fales and Lloyd Kennedy as officials.

The grandstand will be taxed to capacity by fans viewing the top features, the massed bands and heavy events, like the caber and "56." Chairman Garry Smith will have the Legionnaires on hand as ticket takers and ushers.

The grandstand seats about 2,500. At Friday night's tattoo concert another 2,500 seats are provided by benches and bleachers in front of the grandstand. They are all in orderly rows. Maxville Fire Chief Bruce McDonald and his volunteer brigade arrange the temporary seating plan. As soon as the crowd vacates the infield after the program, Bruce, his aids and trucks, remove the benches, tidy up the grounds and all is in readiness for Saturday morning.

While the firemen are working, in the Angus Gray Hall the tattoo cast and some 10 pipe bands are being entertained "Ceilidh" style. Bill Munro and more volunteers are the hosts.

Over in the Sports Complex another veteran chairman, Ian MacLeod, and a staff of more than 50 entertain at the Friday and Saturday night dances, plus the hospitality bar Saturday afternoon.

The foregoing, Glengarrians near and far, reveals the Highland Games secret of success. The village of Maxville, fewer than 1,000 people, annually becomes the magnetic point of Scottish history repeating itself staging the Highland Games. From the village and neighboring farms come the personnel that do the work with efficiency and the pioneer spirit of helping a community project rate in world class. If they were to be paid a minimum hourly wage there would be no Glengarry Highland Games. In return, all those hardy, enthusiastic workers expect is that you show your appreciation by attending.

MAY WEDDING—Carole (Ladouceur) Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adrien Ladouceur, and Robert Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Daniels and Charles Young, were united in marriage on May 4, in Ste. Marie's Church, Green Valley. The couple delivered their vows before Father Poirier and the bride was given in marriage by her father Adrien Ladouceur. The maid of honor was Suzanne Ladouceur, the bridesmaids were Lise Ladouceur and Karen Ranger and the flowergirl was Sophie Ranger. The best man was Richard Ladouceur, the ushers were Robbie Coleman and Steven Martel and the ring bearer was Brent Palmer. A reception was held at the Glengarry Sports Palace and the couple left for a wedding trip to Montreal. They will reside in Halifax, Nova Scotia. Those attending the wedding came from Collingwood, Ottawa and Toronto.

Clergy Comments

by Rev. Gordon C. Saville

"Extinction is not something to contemplate, it is something to rebel against." With these words Jonathan Schell reminds us of an issue that might just get conveniently lost in all the political hype and preoccupation with domestic issues surrounding our upcoming election.

In a frightening book Canada and the Nuclear Arms Race, the authors not only examine our drift to annihilation, but also show how Canada is contributing to it and explain the policies that Canada could adopt to encourage the reversal of the arms race. Surely this is one issue which should be a top priority among those vying for our votes.

But it won't be an issue unless we work hard to ensure it becomes one. Our politicians assure us that they do listen to our concerns. But they seem to listen just a bit better during an election. Now is the most opportune time to raise some very serious questions with the candidates, to ascertain their position, and demonstrate our rebellion against the threat of extinction.

If you are concerned with the fact that more arms do not make humankind safer, only poorer, and if you would like some guidance in raising this issue with the candidates, then you are invited to meet with a representative from Operation Dismantle tomorrow evening, 7:30 p.m., at the United Church Manse, 118 Bishop St. N. Even if you can't attend the meeting, I would urge you to keep this issue before our political candidates.

This year alone, we Canadians will spend $8.8 billion on the military. One billion dollars would buy vaccine for six diseases for everyone everywhere. In the words of Dwight D. Eisenhower: "Every gun that is made, every warship launched, every rocket fired, signifies a theft from those that hunger and are not fed, from those who are cold and are not clothed."

If you are concerned and want to do something, then now is the time.

Still time left to get name on voters list

Since July 27 hundreds of federal enumerators have been scouring the riding preparing the official voters list for the upcoming September 4 election.

A small army of 155 rural enumerators and 90 urban workers will knock on doors until August 2, taking down the names of those eligible to vote.

However, if you've been missed by the enumerator, local returning officer Gerald Bender says there is still time to get your name registered.

If you live in a rural area, and all of Glengarry is considered to be a rural area, a revision day will be held on August 15 from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. On that day eligible voters will be able to contact their local enumerator by phone and get their name placed on this list.

Mr. Bender admits that no system is perfect and if something goes wrong and when you enter the polling station on September 4 and your name still isn't on the list of eligible voters, don't panic.

In rural areas, you merely have to show some form of identification to prove where you live, have someone vouch for you and you will be allowed to take an oath and vote.

Apple Hill News

by Aline Gormley

Jim Hummel, engineering technician speaking on behalf of Donald J. McDonald, county engineer for the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Road Department, addressed the people of Apple Hill at the Activity Centre on Monday, July 30.

Mr. Hummel reviewed the project of reconstruction of Main Street, including sewers and sidewalks to the north limit of Apple Hill, which will begin this week.

Money for the county road system coming from the Ontario government approximates 80 per cent of the costs, the remaining 20 per cent is the input from local taxpayers. In this case, the township will eventually pay 75 per cent of the local cost and the remaining 25 per cent will be absorbed by the county road system, including the cost of relocating utility poles from Ontario Hydro and Bell Canada.

A previous survey by the field crew revealed some storm systems will be reconnected. The old system by the church will stay in place. New ones will be hooked up. Health regulations will not allow open ditches.

Excavation of some 20 inches of material will be removed and replaced with a rough granular material and topped with crushed stone. Cornwall Gravel will apply the concrete.

The county road department, under the supervision of Alton Blair who attended the meeting, will put in the concrete sidewalk. An inspector will check any cracks from way back. If damage is done in construction, it will be corrected. Driveways will match the build-up with suitable slope. Since the project is late starting, trimming of top soil may have to wait until next spring.

Main Street will be widened to 28 feet. The existing granular shoulders will be covered with asphalt, leaving a 20-foot driving surface separated by a white line, allowing for an eight-foot parking lane on the west side, permitting easier snow clearing.

Rolling down a new pavement will result in infinite amounts of dust and dirt, but attempts will be made to keep it down to a minimum by frequent sprinklings.

In order to maintain the flow of traffic and give access to places of business, digging and excavating will be done by half portions of the road and covered up at night. We were told that by the end of September or mid-October the job should be completed.

The Apple Hill Recreation committee meeting scheduled for this past Tuesday has been postponed until Thursday, August 2nd. Make an effort to attend.

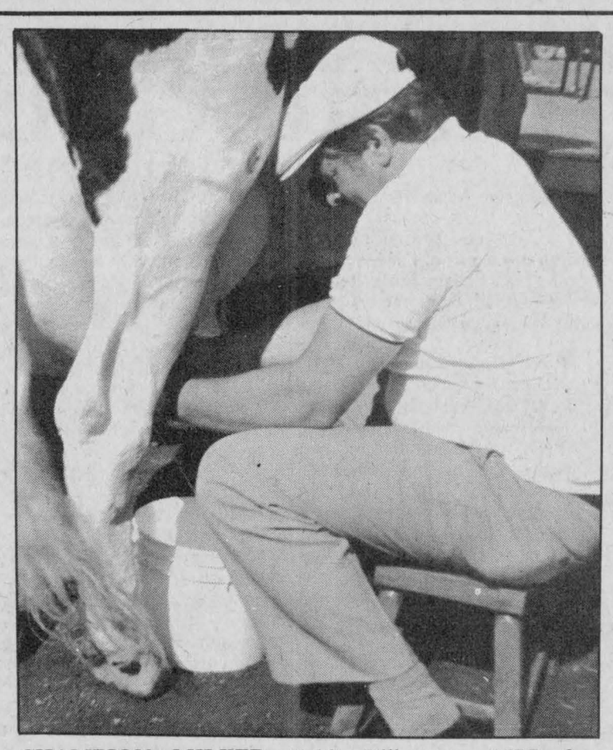
Fortunate people that we are, we find ourselves still in the thick of great entertainment near at hand.

The Glengarry Highland Games opening in Maxville this Saturday, August 4th, will for a few be in competition with the Los Angeles Olympics. Still, I bet you anything it won't make a bit of difference.

The St. Raphael's annual Galarama on Sunday, August 5th, is bound to attract its fair share of supporters.

Square dances, marionettes, fiddlers, the MacCulloch Dancers, the Clansmen, the Piper Wheeling Glens will entertain while a sports competition will go on and you can also enjoy a barbecue supper.



CHAMPION MILKER—Noble Villeneuve, MPP for Glengarry-Prescott-Russell, had the opportunity to dust off some old skills from his farm youth when he was called upon to compete in a "V.I.P." milking contest Saturday at the Avonmore Fair. Mr. Villeneuve won the contest over four other contestants.

On July 21 the Vagabond Theatre presented "A Seaway Story" at the Maxville Manor. I was lucky enough to be there that night and had the opportunity to attend. It was well worth seeing, and I hope they are able to bring other productions out this way. If anyone has the chance to see them, I'm sure you will enjoy it as I and many more did.

The Dunvegan Branch of the Women's Institute held their regular meeting on Thursday, July 26 at the WI Hall, with Marion Loewen president, in the chair.

The motto was an old fashioned hymn sing, lead by Dorothy Fresque, and Angus MacQueen at the piano. Some of the hymns sung were Amazing Grace and In the Sweet By and By. Shall We Gather at the River was sung by Mrs. Fresque, Eunice Nixon, Mrs. Dan MacRae, Grace MacLeod, and Mrs. Sander Stewart. The roll call was answered by a number of interesting recollections in history: The Welland Canal; Cornwall became a city in 1945; the Cairn at Lancaster; the Dionne Quints, 1934; the area post offices; Deseronto and the Mohawk Indians, and many more.

The curator, Mrs. Wesley Chisholm introduced the speaker, Ewan Ross. His topic was Col. John Macdonell (Greenfield) (1785-1812) a representative for Glengarry in the Sixth Parliament.

Mr. Ross made the account of this man's life extremely interesting, showing us that Canada (and Glengarry) have heroes who can take their place with any in the world, if we but take the time to find out about them.

Mrs. Sybil MacPhee thanked Ewan Ross for his interesting and educational story. A social hour was enjoyed by all, and then a business meeting concluded the meeting.

Area man's hobby is up in the air

by Mark Mitchell

For most people a weekend morning means catching up on sleep or waking a bit early to spend a day at the beach. But for Rick Hicks and a growing number of ultralight airplane enthusiasts, the rooster's crow signals a quick look out the window to cehck the weather.

"If the wind's blowing I go back to bed," says Mr. Hicks who lives in North Lancaster and, along with his brothers in the Maritimes, distributes the American-built Wizard line of ultralight airplanes in Canada. "They're really fair weather planes. You spend a lot of time sitting on the ground," he said, "because in anything over 15 mile an hour winds, flying is chancey. The light tube, cable and fabric planes aren't made for it."

So why would anyone attach himself to a sport that is so dependent on the weather and has only permitted him to fly just twice this year? "Fun. Sitting out there in the open you're aware of everything. You can smell the hay floating around at 450 feet. On a good day you can shut down the engine and hear the dogs barking on the ground, milk cans rattling, that type of thing," said Mr. Hicks.

Mr. Hicks had big plans for an ultralight flying program at the Alexandria airport this summer, but the weather has delayed them. The wind problems have started a vicious circle for the Air Canada supervising mechanic. He had planned to build a hangar at the airport to protect the planes, but first needed a trailer to transport those he sold. While he was finishing the trailer the wind whipped up and damaged the two-seat instructional plane left tied, but unprotected at the airport. He fixed it up and it's ready to go, though Mr. Hicks is tiring of the gusts that keep him on the ground.

Ultralight planes, in one form or another, have been on the market since 1979. Just last year the Ministry of Transport made pilot licences mandatory, a move that has gained the support of most flyers in face of a fatality rate that was highest in the United States. American pilots still don't need a licence and Mr. Hicks thinks that is the root of the problem there.

"(The fatalities) are all plain stupidity. Aerobatics is what kills people in ultralights. It'll kill you every time, (the planes) aren't made for it," he said.

Getting a pilot's licence for an ultralight takes less time than a conventional plane since there are fewer instruments to deal with. Mr. Hicks is currently trying to get a commercial licence so he can teach. With the weather clipping his wings here, he headed for Halifax last weekend in order to get tested for the rating, but poor conditions prevailed there as well. In the meantime he's selling planes.

He said the agriculture industry is looking into the light planes because of their mobility. The planes only weigh about 300 pounds and can take off just 60 feet down the runway. With a 50 horsepower motor they don't travel too quickly (55 mph with the nose pointed straight down) and that's perfect for spraying fields. "The amount of weight you can carry on one of these is just phenomenal. If you got one the size of a 747, good Lord, you could carry the world," said Mr. Hicks.

Aside from problems getting off the ground because of weather, the planes have encountered airborne trouble of a different nature. "Everyone is interested in them so when (other pilots) see you up there of course they have to fly close to get a better look," he said. That causes problems for the new kids on the block because the turbulence from the bigger aircraft tends to bounce them around. Ultralight pilots have to stay on their toes. "The big difference is you've got to be much more aware of local weather conditions. With a conventional plane you would just come out here and take off, but I would have a look and if I saw some dark clouds then I'd know there's going to be some bumps," said Mr. Hicks.

"Most of the general public look at this as a toy. Well it's a toy alright, but it's a lot harder to land than anything else," he said.

Until last year ultralight pilots were having trouble landing anywhere, even if they knew how to. The transport ministry was leery of taking over ultralight regulation, but it has and the sport is now safer for it, said Mr. Hicks. Companies making poor planes are being weeded out and the safety factor has vastly improved. However, if you've always had nightmares about having to parachute out of a plane, you'd better bring one along if you go in an ultralight because they aren't standard equipment yet.

With the cable construction on the planes, jumping out would be "akin to crawling out of a harp," so the parachutes are hooked to the plane's centre of gravity and you float to the ground on it.

Not wanting to interfere with other aircraft, ultralight pilots have verbally agreed to fly in patterns 500 feet up. At that height when something malfunctions and it's parachute time, "you don't fool around, you let it go," said Mr. Hicks, though he's never had to and says he wears the somewhat cumbersome parachute because it's a good security blanket.

The planes cost about $7,000, by far the cheapest way to fly. Lessons that include 20 hours of ground school and five to eight hours in the air cost about $600. Conventional aircraft licences cost about $3,000. Mr. Hicks figures maintenance for the ultralights at about $3 an hour compared to $25 for other small planes.

"When people hear them they think it's a helicopter because it's so noisy, but it isn't really. It just takes longer for it to pass over so it seems louder. It's not even fast enough to make your eyes water," he said.

GETTING IN TUNE—Rick Hicks of North Lancaster was out at the Alexandria airport early this week checking up on his ultralight plane. He's a distributor for an American company that builds them and plans to open a flying school next summer. He's a mechanic with Air Canada in Montreal during the week and prays for light winds on weekends so he can take flight. Lately the weather hasn't been co-operative so the plane stays tied up. His brother in Halifax plans to challenge the world record of 33,400 feet altitude in the near future.

Don't miss Friday

by Angus H. McDonell

Some 20 years ago veteran members of the Glengarry Highland Games' executive began discussing the innovation of a pre-Games concert on Friday night. The idea was the suggestion of some elderly patrons who found the Saturday program a bit lengthy in summer heat. A few pipe bands would be billeted in the area on Friday. There were fiddlers like Father MacPhail, Clif Britton and Willie Munro, to mention a few, Highland dancers and the ever popular Howard Morris singing Scottish numbers. That would easily provide a two-hour show.

The proposal led to the launching of the first pre-Games concert in 1965. I seem to recall that we had one more pipe band than the total on opening Games day in 1948. The crowd was about 400.

The program talent each succeeding year increased the attendance. The approximate grandstand seating is 2,500 and that became inadequate. Such problems were not new to Highland Games executive. They had been met and solved in the past.

Lumber was purchased and converted into benches. The original crowd of 400 became 4,000 and all were provided with seating accommodation.

The program committee of secretary Mrs. Walter (Connie) Blaney, Pipe Major J. T. MacKenzie and piper Arnold Munro introduced a Tattoo format. A professional sound and stage lighting added to the class of the setting.

The approaching Friday night Tattoo will be of the same entertainment calibre.

The following pipe bands will be in attendance: Glengarry Pipe Band, Canadian Forces Base, Rockcliffe, Cameron Highlanders, Ottawa City Police, Ogilvy, Sons of Scotland; the latter four all from Ottawa, add Syracuse, Kemptville, Cornwall Optimist-Legion, Port Hope Legion and Toronto Metro Police Band.

The Montreal Black Watch Association Concert Band, (brass) will join our Glengarry Pipe Band in a special number.

In addition to the Morris family vocalists of Celtic songs, the Ottawa City Police male chorus will also contribute to the vocal numbers through the courtesy of Police Chief Arthur Rice. The Fiddlers Choice and the Brigadoons will also take part.

The Rae MacCulloch lassies will dance a variety heritage and modern dances, especially the Highland Heather dance accompanied by Glengarry Pipe Band and organist, Western Home, first and then Athol Highlanders.

The Black Watch Concert and organist David MacKillican will render pipe band melodies, Liverpool Lou, Waters of Kyleskuhills of Alva. As an encore they will play two additional numbers.

In the Glengarry Pipe Band-Black Watch Brass Band number the host Glengarry Band will form a circle in front of the stage. When in position the Black Watch band will join the pipes and drums.

There are no reserved seats. Gates are open as early as 3 p.m. Choice of seats is on a first come, first served basis. There will be a musical interlude, 7-8 p.m. by the Black Watch Military Band and The Fiddlers Choice.

Master of Ceremonies will be Brooke McNabb of CJOH-TV, Ottawa.

Reshaping worker compensation in Ontario

The services provided by the Workers' Compensation Board of Ontario are very important ones. As most of you know, the board judges claims and compensates injured or disabled workers. It also helps people to return to work through medical and vocational services. These services are paid for by the board which collects funds from the province's employers.

The government of Ontario has, over the past several years, conducted an extensive study of the entire workers' compensation system. The review process was carried out in consultation with labor, management and a range of interested groups and individuals. As a result, Labor Minister Russ Ramsay has introduced the Workers' Compensation Amendment Act.

In short, the new legislation deals with reform in two areas: it proposes changes to the administrative process of the Workers' Compensation Board, as well as improvements to benefits.

The administrative reforms will make the board more open and responsive to client needs. For example, the new legislation proposes the establishment of an independent appeals tribunal. Independent medical assessors will assist the tribunal in its deliberations.

Workers' Compensation benefits will undergo significant changes as well. The maximum covered earnings ceiling will be raised from the present $25,500 to $31,500. Benefits will be based on 90 per cent of pre-accident earnings rather than the current 75 per cent.

For the first time, rehabilitation supplements for partially disabled workers will provide for inflation adjustment for their pre-injury earnings. As well, WCB rehabilitation supplements will be integrated with Canada Pension Plan benefits. Receiving CPP benefits will no longer be a bar to receiving WCB supplements.

The legislation proposes a new scheme for the surviving dependents of workers. According to the circumstances of the particular case, dependents will receive a lump sum payment of between $20,000 and $60,000, as well as a continuous benefit. The continuous benefit will be a fixed proportion of the deceased's pre-accident earnings.

As of July 1 this year, the benefit levels for pensioners, surviving spouses and dependents will increase by five per cent. The covered earnings will be raised by five per cent to $26,800 and there will be corresponding increases to burial and clothing allowances, and the minimum benefits payable.

Ontario's workers' compensation system is widely recognized as one of the best. The reforms that have been introduced retain the positive features of the current law and are a major step forward in making our workers' compensation system even better.

Local family celebrates

One hundred and ten descendants of the late John Joseph Fourney, a long time resident of this area, met Saturday, July 21 to honor the founder of the local branch of the Fourney family.

Mr. Fourney died at the Cornwall General Hospital on April 4, 1960, at the age of 97. He was born at Allen's Corners, Quebec, in 1863. One of 10 children, he moved to Sombra, Ontario, when the remainder of the family relocated to that area 100 years ago. However, he soon moved his wife and, at that time, one son, George, to Lancaster Township, where he spent the rest of his working life.

He was married to Jane Anne Smith of Aberdeen, Scotland. Tragedy struck the family in 1900 when Jane Anne died, just 10 months after the eighth child was born, leaving a 13-year-old daughter, Maud, grandmother of Carolee MacIntosh of Apple Hill, to run the house, bake the bread, churn the butter and mother the younger children. The older boys helped run the 400 acre farm they then operated in the 4th concession of Lancaster Township.

The Williamstown fairgrounds was the scene of activities when 110 Fourneys and descendants of their founder met to renew acquaintances, enjoy games, compare notes on who got married, who had a new baby and to visit friends. A centre of attraction was a four by ten foot family organization chart showing nearly 200 names of the local branch of the family.

Although a number of the family still follow the profession of their founder and are farming in the area of Cornwall, Martintown, Williamstown, Lancaster and Bainsville, many have moved to other activities across the country and are to be found from St. Johns, Nfld., in the east to Vancouver in the West, and Florida in the south.

In addition to the local family, guests from other branches of the family included—Eva Fournie from Wilkseport, Ontario, Verna, Harold and Marilyn Fournie from Lambeth, Ontario, Burt and Mona Fournie from Sombra.

Personal

Mary Leroux and Chris Gill recently returned from a tour to Western Canada going by train to Banff for two days, then by bus to Jasper and Lake Louise.

While in Banff they toured the National Park and rode on the gondola lift up Sulphur Mountain. In Jasper a visit to the Columbia Icefields and a boat ride on Maligne Lake was enjoyed.

In Lake Louise a visit to Yoho National Park and Takakaw Falls.

Producers welcome support, for some it's too late

OTTAWA—Canadian pork producers will receive an increased stabilization payment for 1983-1984 hogs marketed up to March 31, 1984.

The announcement, made July 18 in Ottawa by Agriculture Minister Ralph Ferguson, said the increase in payments would work out to $59.1 million and would see support level of 95 per cent of the previous five year average price.

The secretary-manager of Agriculture Canada's Agriculture Stabilization Board, Al Proulx, said the increase came after pork producers complained that drastically reduced profit margins—between cost of production and sale price—made the lower stabilization payment less beneficial.

"Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan first introduced the bill to the cabinet in mid-May," Mr. Proulx said. "But at that time there was a problem with finding the money. Then later, it was difficult to get ministers to focus on other things apart from the leadership race. The proposal was re-submitted recently by the current minister Ralph Ferguson and it was approved."

The additional funding will see the stabilization level rise from $2.16 a hog to a theoretical price of $8.19 a hog. The new support system is available only to the 79.8 per cent of producers who sold their hogs domestically and the federal government will deduct any provincial support payments producers receive from their federal support payments.

"It's better than the statutory minimum," said Mr. Proulx, "and it's not the moon."

Marion Myers, a director and councilman with the Glengarry pork producers said she was happy that the federal government raised the support level to 95 per cent, saying the Ontario Pork Marketing Board had been pushing for that for a long time.

"I am very glad that the federal government finally made the announcement," Mrs. Myers said. "The producers can use the extra money coming to them."

The president of the Glengarry County Pork Producers Association, Robert Irwin of Vankleek Hill, said the money was "certainly badly needed," adding there have been more bankruptcies among Eastern Ontario pork producers in the last few weeks.

"It is very good news," he said. "It won't come close to compensating the losses many producers have suffered. For some, it's too late."

McCrimmon WI meets

by Lorna Chapman

There were 50 ladies on July 19 when the McCrimmon WI met at the McCrimmon Hall for their July meeting. The hall is where this branch began, and once a year they have a special meeting to commemorate their beginnings.

This particular meeting was honoring the bicentennial as well, and members were in old time costumes.

The roll call was answered by members and it was "An event in Ontario's history." It was a learning experience, as the answers came in about the 75th anniversary of the OPP, the rural school system began in Salt Fleet Township on Feb. 19, 1987, by Mrs. Adelaide Hoodless, with 20 pupils; Mrs. Hoodless was the founder of the Women's Institute. It is now worldwide, and even Queen Elizabeth is a member. We heard how Queen Elizabeth visited Alexandria in 1939, and of the Golden Age of Canals, 1820 to 1850.

The first Presbyterian Church was established in Williamstown in 1787, the first minister there was Rev. Donald Bethune; John Sandfield Macdonald was Ontario's first prime minister and Hotel Dieu Hospital was on the site of his home. Laura Secord warned the troops of the coming American invasion.

Reeve concerned

The reeve of Lochiel Township says he is worried about what will happen to the village of Dalkeith, the scene of two major fires in the past four weeks.

Ron MacDonell said he was "shocked" when told of the July 25th fire that totally destroyed the Lanthier bakery in Dalkeith, leaving two families homeless and 17 employees without jobs.

The Lanthier fire comes slightly less than one month after fire levelled the Dalkeith Feed Centre, leaving damage estimated at between $500,000 and $750,000.

"For a small village like Dalkeith, it really hits hard," Mr. MacDonell said. "With those two fires we've lost 25 jobs. The township is willing to do anything it can to help the feed mill and the bakery get going again."

Mr. MacDonell said letters had already been sent to feed mill owner Andre Raymond and Lanthier president Claude Lanthier pledging whatever help and support the township can offer.

"It's bad for Dalkeith and it's bad for the township," he said. "It's going to hurt the village stores. It's a severe blow."

Burglary

Police were called to Alexandria Park early Tuesday morning after town staff discovered two buildings had been burglarized.

A tool shed and the lifeguards' change room had been forcibly entered and a quantity of tools and a portable radio were stolen, with the loss estimated between $500 and $600.

Constables Leo Lemieux and Murray MacDonald are investigating.

OPP run spot checks

During the week of July 22 to 29 the Maxville OPP stopped a total of 57 vehicles in its continuing anti-impaired driving spot check.

As a result, officers laid one charge of impaired driving and handed out two, 12-hour licence suspensions.

New hospital executive

The new executive of the Glengarry Memorial Hospital was voted in at a meeting July 25.

This year's chairman, Roger Roy, had been elected to his position at the board's annual meeting on June 27. Those elected on July 25 are Ewen McDonald as vice-chairman, Bob Leroux as treasurer, Gerry Adams as secretary and Morlin Campbell as past chairman.

Stage clothing stolen

About $400 worth of stage clothing was stolen from a band as musical equipment was being loaded following a performance at the Alexandria Hotel early Sunday morning.

Steve Hanna of R.R. 3, Perth, Ontario called police shortly after he noticed a satchel containing the clothes was missing around 2:45 a.m. It had been left outside, behind the hotel, as band members went inside for more equipment.

Hill Fair runs Aug. 9-12

VANKLEEK HILL—August 9 to 12 will be a special time for the residents of Vankleek Hill and the area as the 140th edition of the Vankleek Hill Fair gets underway.

One of the fair's directors, Murray Allan of Vankleek Hill, says last year's attendance, at around 10,000 people, was the best ever and this year organizers are hoping to have the same number pass through the gates.

Popular events this year will include a horse draw on Thursday night and a rock and roll band in the arena on Friday night. Mr. Allan said in the past the fair has not catered that much to the younger crowd and the band is an attempt to correct that.

Organizers are also hoping for enough antique tractors to be able to put on a pioneer show.

"All we're doing now is hoping for good weather," Mr. Allan said.

Firemen prevent disaster

Quick work by the Alexandria Fire Department last Wednesday prevented a minor fire from escalating into a disaster.

At 12:15 p.m. firefighters were called to the Alexandria rail yard to extinguish a flaming rail motor car, a vehicle used to transport work crews to job sites.

While the men had the fire out in a matter of minutes, the situation could "have been much worse," according to Fire Chief Gerry Charlebois.

The tiny car was parked next to a tanker car full of powdered magnesium, a white metal-like chemical that burns with intense heat.

"Once that stuff starts to burn, it's very difficult to put it out," Mr. Charlebois said. "Half the station would have burned and even the (Atlantic) hotel across the street wouldn't have been able to stand the heat."

Steve Bannan of Ottawa was one of the three Canadian National employees who had ridden the motor car back into town from their job site in Greenfield. Their day finishes at noon and the group was sitting in the hotel across the street drinking beer when "we looked across the street and it was on fire.

"We were all done for the day, we came in and the next thing we knew, it's on fire," Mr. Bannan said.

Mr. Bannan speculated that faulty wiring might have caused the fire. Damage is estimated at between $1,000 and $1,500.

Locals talking hockey already

Here we are, the end of July and already people are starting to talk about hockey.

I received word from Jim McDonell last Friday that he and a few people are attempting to organize a men's or recreational league for the upcoming hockey season.

To date, two teams from the Border League—Glen Nevis and St. Raphael's—and a

Peter Conway

Lancaster group have confirmed they would enter teams in the proposed league.

McDonell also mentioned he was confident the Dunvegan team from the Border League would participate.

However, McDonell is hoping to attract more teams for the new circuit. Good ice time is available at the Glengarry Sports Palace, Charlottenburgh Recreation Centre and Maxville and District Sportsplex.

Mr. McDonell hopes, depending on the number of teams, the league would operate out of the three buildings.

Anyone interested in icing a team is asked to call Jim McDonell at 931-1797 or Ian McLeod at 347-2144.

Mr. McDonell also pointed out that ice time must be reserved in the near future and anyone interested should contact him or Ian McLeod as soon as possible.

WHO WAS THE LEADER?

It seems the gremlins got into a story in the July 25th issue of The News.

We reported that Mike Connah led the C class with a 95 after the first round of the Glengarry Golf and Country Club men's championship.

But the leader at the time was Fraser MacLeod who had shot an 87.

Sorry about that Fraser and Mike. I hope both of you played well in the second round last Sunday.

SLIDING OFF THE BANDWAGON?

I haven't completely fallen off, but I'm sitting on the edge of the Montreal Expos' bandwagon.

Most of us expected the Expos to be competitive this season in the National League East Division.

And if they didn't win the flag, well we at least assumed they'd be in the thick of the pennant race.

So, as I head off for vacation, the Expos are 11½ games back of division-leading New York Mets.

After listening to Dave and Duke on both radio and television, I'm ready to admit that the Expos are at or around a .500 ball club.

The "Team of the '80's," as they have been tabbed by the Montreal media, should now be known as the "Team that never was."

Perhaps, for their patient fans sake, the Expos can finish the second half season with a flourish and salvage something from a dismal season.

The official slogan for the Montreal Expos?

Wait 'til next year! What else?

McCOMAS COMING TO GAMES

Anyone who plans to take in the heavy events this weekend at the Glengarry Highland Games is in for a real treat.

Ed McComas, who is 50 years old and a former American champion of Highland Games heavy events, has confirmed he'll be coming to Maxville to compete.

Maturity key for Bellefeuille at Hawkesbury Hawks camp

by Peter Conway

Maurice Bellefeuille hopes a year of maturity will make the difference—whether he skates for the Central Junior Hockey League's Hawkesbury Hawks, or if he returns for another campaign with the Alexandria Junior B Glens.

Bellefeuille, 18, of Alexandria, will be attending Hawkesbury's training camp in early September for the second consecutive season.

He's hoping the same experience at last year's camp doesn't happen his second time around.

"I was only at the camp for three days last year. I was out of shape and didn't have a good camp. So, I decided to come back home. I also wanted to play for the Glens," he said.

Bellefeuille feels being a year older and having matured could be a deciding factor on climbing up the hockey ladder to Junior A.

"Well, I'm a year older and I feel I'm more mature now. Another reason I'm going back to try out for Hawkesbury is that I won't have to worry about schooling now that I have grade 12. I'd like to give it a shot at Junior A hockey," says Bellefeuille.

Bellefeuille played most of the season as a centre with the Glens.

He enjoyed a productive season as a rookie, leading the team in scoring with 40 goals and 19 assists.

Should he stick with the Hawks, he would primarily be used as a right winger.

Bellefeuille will be considered a rookie when he steps on the ice at training camp, but he won't be a stranger to Hawkesbury Hawks' coach Doug Harvey.

"I was called up for three games last year and I practised with them a couple of times. The Glens were affiliated with the Hawks last season," says Bellefeuille.

"I think I have a pretty good chance at making the Hawks because I had a good year in Junior B. When the Hawks called me up they wanted me to stay because they needed a right winger and they had injuries at the time."

Bellefeuille says he gained valuable experience in the games he played with the Central Junior Hockey League club.

"When I was called up I got a lot of ice time and even got the chance to play on the powerplay a couple of times. I played three games on the road against Gatineau, Brockville and Ottawa," said Bellefeuille, one of Hawkesbury's five territorial protected players.

Bellefeuille won't be the only Glengarrian trying to earn a spot on Hawkesbury's roster.

Pierre Roman and Blake Hambleton, both chosen by the Hawks in the Central Junior Hockey League draft in May, will also be attending the camp.

Bellefeuille is confident he can help Hawkesbury this season if he makes the club, but he makes it clear he can contribute only if he gets a fair amount of ice time.

"I'm going to try hard to make the team. But, if I make the team I want a fair amount of playing time. If things don't work out I'll play for the Glens," he says.

Sandilands and Thomson fare well in Chicago

Ian Sandilands and Robin Thomson took a break from their Highland Games heavy event training on the weekend, but they couldn't stay away from the Scottish sports.

The pair travelled to Chicago for a pipefest and competition and came home with good results. Ian finished third overall in the nine-event program and Robin took fifth spot.

"It was good practise and a good travel break," said Robin after his return. "But it's going to be tough competition in Maxville. I don't know how we'll do. We won't be at the top but we won't be at the bottom either," he said.

The pre-Games billing this year has the field of competitors offering the closest race for the title in a long while. The eight heavy events in Maxville will be tackled by at least 15 competitors and Robin expects it will be a very long day. "You hope for a nice day, but not a nice, hot sunny day," he said explaining how the players get drained in the hot weather.

Ian and Robin have benefitted in training by the fact that they live close to each other and can train together unlike most other Scottish event enthusiasts. One can offer pointers to the other and gets a break between throws by having a partner.

Both are looking forward to their performances on Saturday in Maxville, but concede that the crowd will win either way. "The crowd is going to get a real awesome display of throwing. Something they'll remember," said Robin.

Four way tie for first in Cornwall and District soccer

After weekend action in the Cornwall and District Soccer League four teams are tied for first place in the women's division.

On Sunday in Williamstown Cindy Gordon scored three goals and led Char-Lan United to a 3-2 victory over Cornwall Strikers. The win moved United into a four way tie with Cornwall Classics, Johnny Mac's and Cornwall City.

Last week Johnny Mac's and Cornwall Classics were tied for first and the two met in Cornwall Sunday night. The Classics led 3-1 at the half, but early in the second half three players were ejected and the tide turned. Cornwall lost two players and Johnny Mac's one. The game ended in a 3-3 tie so the two clubs picked up one point to join Char-Lan United and Cornwall City who got two points for weekend victories.

In men's division action, Char-Lan United dropped its fifth game in a row. United have five games left to pick up some ground and avoid dropping to second division play next season. The loss on Sunday was to Cornwall Rangers 5-1.

The second division Char-Lan U 2's surprised everyone on Sunday by taking a 4-3 decision from the Osnabruck Cosmos. Roddie McKenzie, Ricky Byatte, Christian Glaude and Greg Austin all had goals for the U 2's in only their second win of the season.

In the Mosquito All-Star game in Williamstown Monday night the Char-Lan All-Stars played to a 1-1 tie with the visiting Cornwall Kinsmen all-star team. Jeff Lapierre scored for Char-Lan and Brent Celone got the goal for Cornwall. Both goals came in the second half.

A rematch for the 11 to 13-year-old mosquito all-stars is scheduled for Friday at 7 p.m. at the Cornwall Collegiate and Vocational School.

Sunday, Char-Lan United vs North Dundas, 2 p.m., Winchester.

Sunday, Char-Lan U 2's vs Hellenic Stars, 2 p.m., Cornwall.

Highland Motors keeps grip on second place with tie and win

Highland Motors picked up three points in two games last week to retain its grip on second place in the Alexandria Men's Fastball League.

Last Thursday Highland Motors defeated ABS 6-4 and on Tuesday night Menard Farm Supply battled Highland Motors to a 4-4 tie. Mike Vaillancourt pitched both games for Highland Motors and would have collected two wins in the week if not for a solo homer in the fifth inning by Robert Boisvenue that tied the game for MFS.

Last Thursday Giroux Sport trounced Sealtest 9-2 with everyone on the team getting at least one hit.

Sealtest suffered its second loss of the week on Tuesday dropping a 3-2 decision to ABS.

Martintown tourney

The third annual Martintown Fastball Tournament was held this past weekend in Martintown and 11 teams were out for the title.

In the "A" final Highland Motors took a 9-1 decision from The Locker Room. Shawn O'Neil of The Locker Room won the most valuable player award and Jean-Luc Desautels was most valuable pitcher.

In the "B" final Heritage Restaurant defeated Gauthier Beanhouse 9-1. Gauthier pitcher Steve McGillis was the most valuable pitcher while Heritage's Herbie Seguin was most valuable player.

Sauve and Major win

NORTH BAY—Bruno Major and Maurice Sauve went to North Bay for a training run and returned with the Nugget Amateur Trophy for canoeing.

The local pair have been winning races all season and had planned to limber up in North Bay in preparation for the Canadian Masters race in Fredericton when things went the winning way again.

"We were going for a long training run, but once we got eight miles into the race and saw we were in second place, we went," said Mr. Sauve.

Forty-four teams were entered in the prestigious race which ran 40 miles. Major and Sauve won the expert class race in five hours, 47 minutes crossing the finish line two and one half minutes ahead of the second place finisher. "We train an hour and a half every day and our training is really starting to show up," said Sauve. "We had our pace that we had agreed on and we just followed it. At the 30-mile mark we were going to go all out and that's what we did. At the 28-mile mark someone yelled that we were two minutes behind. Well we made up five minutes in the last stretch."

Things are looking good for the local pair in the national championships soon to come.

Glengarry slow-pitch teams gearing for playoffs

The Glengarry Slow-Pitch League is winding through its season with several teams still in the running. All teams will make the playoffs, but some of the lower teams still have a chance to climb in the standings and compete in the "A" championship playoffs.

The eight-team league plays every Sunday and most clubs have just three or four games to go. This Sunday in the Alexandria Park the two top teams will be battling for first place with just one point separating them in the standings. Chevalier de Colomb currently stands in first place one point ahead of Nordair though they have one game in hand. The two teams will tangle at 12:30 p.m. in the park.

Little room in Glengarry soccer standings

After another week of action, standings atop the seven divisions in the Glengarry Soccer League continue to offer little breathing room.

In the senior men's division, Greenfield won two straight to climb into a first place tie with Glengarry Stars. Lochiel has no pool, but 78 children learning to swim

Now that the warm weather is here, Lochiel Township residents are really getting into the swim of things.

The municipality's summer swim program has attracted 78 children this year, ranging in age from four-year-olds to early teens. What makes Lochiel's swim program stand out, is the fact that the municipality doesn't have its own pool. Instead, four local families agree to let the swimming courses be taught in their own pools.

Joanne McBean is the program co-ordinator and she, along with Dawn Kirton, Kirsty MacLeod and Bonnie MacLeod, teach youngsters the basics of how to stay afloat and move around in water.

"We've been doing this (using private pools) for five years now," Miss McBean said. "Before that, the area children had to go to Alexandria for swimming lessons. We have four pools to use and two are going all the time. Then we switch over to the other two pools."

Pool owners agree to let the municipality use their pools for free and, in turn, the swimming program buys a summer's supply of chlorine for them. The five-week, five-day-a-week program only costs $5 per child with the remaining program costs covered by a Canada Summer Works Program grant from the federal Ministry of Employment and Immigration.

Parents help out by providing extra poolside supervision during lessons and organizing car pools to take the children to the pools.

Miss McBean said the swimming program tries to strike an even balance between instruction and fun.

"The first part is the lesson and the last few minutes we give them time to dive for golf balls, use the slide, the diving board and just play," she said.

Glen Scott Pony Club competes

The Glen Scott Pony Club participated in the regional horse rally at Richmond, near Ottawa, for four days last week. The riding team, captained by Vanessa McKiel, included Stacey Kronwald (Glen Sandfield) and Anna-Marie Moss (Plantagenet) and they competed with 10 other teams from Hudson, Ottawa, Kingston, Vaudreuil, and Kemptville. The competition consisted of dressage on day one, cross-country with 12 jumps on day two and, stadium jumping on day three. Helping the riders, as grooms, were Claire Mitchell (Dalkeith) and Kelly Thistle (Maxville). Jonathan McKiel (Glen Norman) also attended as a groom for the riding team from Vaudreuil.

The team and helpers were also responsible for stable management and the two keen-eyed judges kept the teams gear, stabling, exercising and care of the horses under close scrutiny for the three days. Any omissions, dirty gear or improper management cost the teams penalty points and so added up to their final standing.

Most of the pony clubs also had more senior riders competing as individuals so that two different levels of competency were tested. From the senior level a composite team (or perhaps two) will be selected to attend the national rally to be held at Mohawk later this summer.

The Glen Scott team gave the other teams a good ride, winning two ribbons with Anna-Marie Moss, riding Caesar's Ghost, capturing 5th place overall.

The next major event the Glen Scott Pony Club is involved with is the National Tetrathlon when some of the families in Glengarry will be helping by billeting

In Memoriam

CHRETIEN—In memory of a dear son, brother and grandson Paul, who passed away 4 yrs. ago Aug. 1st, 1980.
Fond are the ties that are broken
Dear is the one that is gone
In memory we shall keep him
As long as the years roll on
As we loved him, so we miss him
In our memory he is dear.
Loved, remembered, longed for always Bringing many a silent tear.
- Love, Mom, Dad, brothers and sisters and grandmothers and great-grandmother. 31-1p

MACMASTER—In memory of our dear Ellen who left us August 2, 1983. She sought wool and flax and worked willingly with her hands.
She considered a field and bought it: with the fruit of her hands she planted a vineyard.
She laid her hands to the spindle, and her hands held the distaff.
She made herself coverings of tapestry; her clothing was silk and purple.
Strength and honor were her clothing.
—Dad and Mum, brothers and sisters. 31-1p

PIDGEON—In sad but loving memory of a dear son, brother and Uncle William Pidgeon who passed away August 1st, 1960.
He suffered with courage,
He never complained.
We thought he'd get better.
But all was in vain,
And so God took him Home,
To his garden of rest.
And it's true what they say,
He takes only the best.
Memories are treasures no one can steal,
Death is a heartache no one can heal.
Forever remembered by mother Mary Pidgeon and all the family. 31-1p

SHAW-GARNER—In loving memory of a dear husband, father, grandfather and great-grandfather who passed away Aug. 3, 1975.
A light is from our household gone,
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
Some may think you are forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more,
But in memory you are with us,
As you always were before,
Sadly missed by your loving wife Adelaide, children, grandchildren, and great grandchildren. 31-1p

CROWE—In loving memory of Steven Crowe who passed away July 27, 1982.
Your presence is ever near us.
Your love remains with us.
Your memory will always last yet.
Lovingly remembered by Mother, Arthur, Sharon and Katherine. 30-1p

MICHAUD—In loving memory of a dear son and brother Douglas who was killed two years ago July 23, 1982.
We do not need a special day to bring you to our mind, for the days we do not think of you are very hard to find,
if all this world were ours to give,
we'd give it yes and more to see the face of Douglas come smiling through the door.
—Sady missed and always remembered by Mom, Dad, Cindy, Barbara & Larry. 30-1p

Antique gun collectors see history in firearms

by Mark Mitchell

CORNWALL—Though they appear to be all like average citizens, collectors of history in any form are a different breed. Most prefer to remain anonymous, known only to their own when buying, trading and selling their treasures.

At a firearms show in Cornwall July 22 more than 50 antique gun enthusiasts set up shop and proceeded to wheel and deal. They fancy themselves akin to any other collectors, looking over the items to be had, comparing prices and searching for that gun that has eluded them. The show at the Cornwall Civic Complex runs once every two months giving collectors a chance to see what their cohorts have been up to and find out what's new in the business.

"We're all students of history collecting a tangible part of history," said once collector, adding that for most of them it's just a hobby. When they first take a liking to collecting guns they make the rounds to flea markets and spend a good amount of time getting to know the markings and check-spots for quality. Once they know what they're doing, all that remains is to get the items they want, usually by selling relics they've grown tired of and almost always by keeping their ears open and striking deals through contacts.

"I used to go to all the flea markets and fly all over the country, but now I just wait for the guns to come to me," said one collector. "By talking to everyone here they know what I'm after so eventually I'll get it. We keep a lookout for each other."

At a show you don't see much real money changing hands, but the deals up to that point are sealed. The collectors are a bit shy when it comes to advertising a purchase. Like an art collector they'll go home and look at it, but the whole world doesn't have to know what they have for them to enjoy it. There's no need to shout if you're homeward bound with an antique you've waited 10 years to get your hands on. A certain amount of anti-gun sentiment and sensational press combined with the value of the old firearms have led the collectors to keep a low profile.

Included at the show were a wide variety of history books, medals, knives and swords with a collector beside them willing to share most of what he knows about the lot. Supply and demand play a part in the pricing of the items though a buyer relies on his knowledge of telltale markings in making a decision.

Within the ranks of the gun collectors there is no clear cut definition of what they do with the guns. Some fire them and others wouldn't dare. "Some guys think it's useless to have the guns if you're not going to use them, but I live in Montreal and it's tough to find a place to use them so I don't bother," said one collector who is currently keen on Alexander Henry double barreled guns from the mid-19th century. You can get ammunition for most of the guns though many of the collectors are content to keep them in good repair and become historians of bygone eras.

Also on display was the latest in microfilm library literature from the new Canadian Micro Information Concepts. On a four by six inch sheet of film can be stored 94 pages of a book. They deal mainly in reference books and maps, churning out 24 new maps a week and several books. Viewers to project the type are rapidly being revamped so the average person can afford them. The compact maps are geared for outdoorsmen and a new portable viewer is priced at $8. From there the home viewers run up to $500. The Beauport, Que., company has a catalogue listing all sources available including Bibles, Readers' Digest entries and a variety of technical reference books.

PRESERVING HISTORY—Collectors of old firearms and other weapons met in Cornwall this past weekend to see what their fellow collectors had to offer and make a deal or two. The show at the Cornwall Civic Complex runs every two months and the next show in September will probably be the biggest of the year. Aside from the old guns a variety of history books, knives, swords and medals were also on display.

Operation dismantle to canvass all candidates

Candidates in the September 4th federal election from across the country will be asked to tell voters just where they stand on the issue of nuclear disarmament and the growing arms race.

A national lobby group, Operation Dismantle, will send a questionnaire to each candidate in every riding asking them their stand on a variety of issues.

Heading the campaign in the riding of Glengarry, Prescott, Russell is Operation Dismantle's Vankleek Hill chapter. Michelle Landriault, secretary of the chapter, was in Alexandria last week to outline her group's program.

"We'll be going to each of the candidates and encouraging them to answer these questions on disarmament, nuclear and otherwise," Mrs. Landriault said. "We'll also give them some background material to read. We're not demanding, we're just asking each candidate to give their answers."

The Election Priorities project features a total of 13 questions covering topics such as the arms race, the Canadian role in the arms trade, a non-nuclear policy and Canada's role as a peacemaker.

"We're not pro-Soviet and we're not pro-NDP," Mrs. Landriault said. "We just want, for the record, what their platform is. This is a non-partisan project devoted to the issues. The voters, given sufficient information, can make up their own minds."
