Maxville detachment will likely be spared from closure

High-ranking OPP official 'leaning' toward keeping station open

Scott Ferrier
News* Reporter

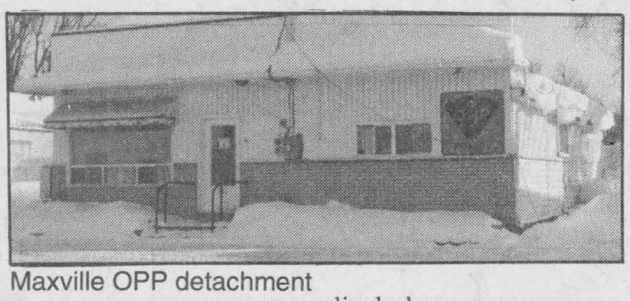
Rumors of Maxville OPP's demise appear to have been greatly exaggerated.

A high ranking Ontario Provincial Police official says the Maxville OPP detachment will likely escape closure.



Maxville OPP detachment

W.G. Closs, chief superintendent of Division B, says there is "absolutely no intent" to close the detachment at this time.

"Do I think Maxville will be closed? I know enough of the operation to say it's reasonably safe and sound.

"I'm leaning more to Maxville staying (than going). That's as close as I can come to saying it will absolutely not be closed," Closs says.

Talk of a possible closure surfaced early last week just days before Carson Fougere, the superintendent of OPP District Headquarters 11 in Long Sault, met with three area township reeves.

Fougere made a brief presentation about the province- wide reorganizational review being conducted by the OPP to improve service and/or cut costs at OPP detachments in Ontario including the one in Maxville.

One of those cost- cutting options is the closure of the detachment.

Maxville Reeve Jim MacEwen, Kenyon Township Reeve Wilfred Vallance and Lochiel Township Reeve Ron MacDonell fired a volley of questions and comments at Fougere during their 90-minute meeting.

"We put up a strong united front," Vallance says. "We're just fortunate that they put all the cards on the table and talked about it. Now, we have time to do something about it."

MacEwen echoes those comments saying: "I commend him (Fougere) for including us in this process. It was a good discussion, very frank."

Stormont, Dundas, Glengarry and East Grenville MPP Noble Villeneuve is attempting to arrange a meeting between the three reeves, United Counties Warden Charlie Sangster and himself with Solicitor General David Christopherson so "we can bend his ear," MacEwen says.

The meeting could take place sometime in early February, when all the municipal politicians will be in Toronto attending the annual Good Roads Convention.

Fougere will draft a report outlining any recommended changes for the detachments in District 11. The points raised by MacEwen, Vallance and MacDonell will likely go into his report on the Maxville detachment.

Closs stops just short of guaranteeing the Maxville detachment won't be closed. He has to keep an open mind to any recommendations made.

"We're simply asking people to take a look at the way we do business. I can't say that Maxville won't be closed because that would pigeon- hole him (Fougere). I'm not absolutely certain what will arrive on my desk.

"But people shouldn't be afraid to propose some radical changes. That's why we gave them a wide latitude on this review," Closs says.

Fougere will complete his report by Jan. 31. Reports from the other 57 detachments and five district headquarters, which Closs is responsible for as chief superintendent of Division B, should be in around the same time.

All of the reports will be forwarded on to a 10-team committee that will look at the recommendations. The final draft of the various reports should be completed by October.

The review, which was ordered by OPP Commissioner Thomas O'Grady, is also focusing on other areas of the OPP such as community policing, contract policing, prevention programs and administrative structures.

(For further reaction on the possible closure and the ramifications, see story below)

Too many reasons available to keep Maxville OPP open

Scott Ferrier
News* Reporter

Maxville would never be the same again if the local detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police closes.

That assessment was offered up by both Maxville Reeve Jim MacEwen and Maxville Chamber of Commerce President Maryanne Kampouris in a pair of separate interviews with The Glengarry News.

"I'm quite concerned. It's a bit of a shock," to hear that the Maxville detachment of the OPP could be closed as part of a reorganizational review, Kampouris says.

"Having a police presence in the community is one of the things that helps give us a sense of community. If they were to leave, local businesses would be affected because this is such a small town.

"The image of the community would be downgraded and there would be less development. I suspect that if a developer was to choose between Maxville, without the OPP, and another town with policing, the other town would win out."

The possibility of a detachment closure is just one of many options that could be exercised as part of the reorganizational review.

The operation of each OPP detachment in the province is being placed under the microscope in an effort to trim costs and/or improve services.

If the Maxville OPP detachment is to be closed, the eight officers would transfer to Lancaster. Both coverage areas would probably be combined.

Maxville OPP is responsible for the safety of 8,000 people and has a coverage area of 654 square-kilometres. Lancaster OPP is responsible for 8,100 people, 14,500 during the summer, and 629 square- kilometres.

If the two are combined the Lancaster detachment would look after 16,100 people, 22,500 during the summer, and 1,283 square-kilometres.

MacEwen argues: "We appreciate that they're under the gun. But they've got to think of the population and the geography.

"Lancaster is more than 40 kilometres away and their quick."

Stormont, Dundas, Glengarry and East Grenville MPP Noble Villeneuve is attempting to schedule a meeting between several municipal politicians and himself with Solicitor General David Christopherson to discuss the future of the detachment.

Villeneuve contends that Maxville OPP are crucial because they patrol Highway 417 and are often involved in the seizure of smuggled cigarettes.

"We have to remind him (Christopherson) that the safety of the public comes first.

"If they choose to close the detachment, they're not going to save a great deal of money. They would save on the building and secretarial position but that's it," Villeneuve says.

MacEwen says each officer would be entitled to a one time relocation payment because Lancaster is more than 40 kilometres away.

Several sources, who requested anonymity, have confirmed that the one time payment would be $30,000 per officer. That would amount to $240,000.

Carson Fougere, superintendent of OPP District Headquarters 11 in Long Sault, didn't know how much money would be saved if Maxville is closed. W. G. Closs, chief superintendent of Division B, was also unable to answer the question.

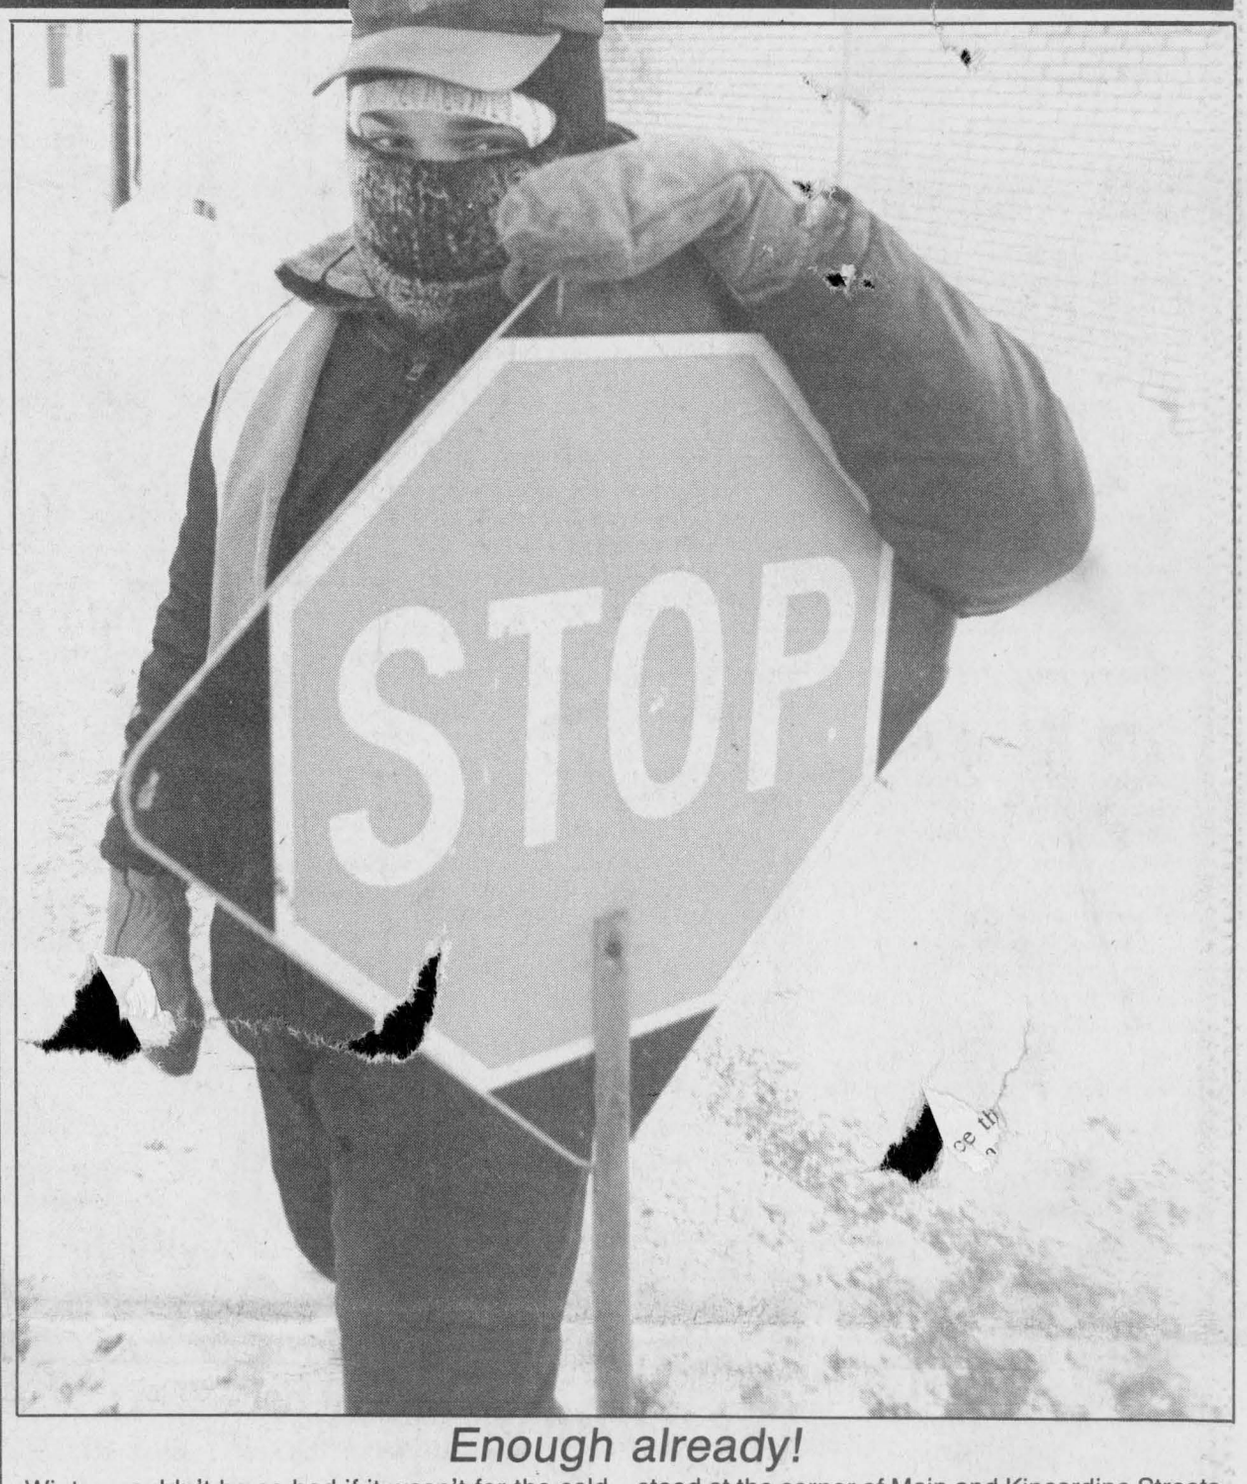
Calls to the Ministry of Solicitor General and the OPP in Toronto were not returned.

Detachment statistics for 1993 point to a heavy workload for the eight police officers who work in Maxville, MacEwen says.

Maxville OPP officers investigated over 1,800 occurrences last year including 469 criminal complaints, 381 of which were legitimate.

And 245 of those complaints were solved for a "clearance" rate of 65 per cent — approximately 20 per cent higher than the provincial average.

On average, each officer looked after 78 criminal complaints last year — compared to a workload of about 65 complaints for police in Metro Toronto.



Enough already!

Winter wouldn't be so bad if it wasn't for the cold temperatures and heavy snowfall. Just ask Daniel Brunet. The Alexandria town worker was probably wishing that Mother Nature would take a hint from the sign he was holding Tuesday morning. He stood at the corner of Main and Kincardine Streets keeping traffic off Kincardine just moments before other city workers were to roll through in snow removal equipment to make the snowbanks disappear. Farmers have the opportunity to get into 'ground floor' of industry

Ethanol the key to putting money back in agricultural producers' pockets

By Greg Kielec
News* editor

Farmers were urged Thursday not to let a golden opportunity to get in on an Eastern Ontario ethanol-producing venture slip them by.

This is the first in a long time that farmers can get in on the "ground floor" of a new industry, right from the growing of the grain to the finished product, Bud Atkins told farmers.

Atkins is a director of Williamstown-based Seaway Valley Farmers Energy Co-operative Inc., which is trying to attract enough investment to construct an ethanol production plant in Maitland.

The farmer-owned co-operative wants to ensure Eastern Ontario farmers get the maximum benefit possible—and that means investing hard-earned agricultural dollars into the venture.

Ethanol production is an opportunity of a lifetime, was the message driven home by a number of speakers at an afternoon information meeting at the Alexandria Legion Thursday afternoon.

The meeting was one of three held in Glengarry Thursday, two in Alexandria and one in Lancaster, to update farmers on a plan to construct a 50-million litre per year fuel ethanol plant in Maitland.

A total of 14 meetings were held across Eastern Ontario last week by the co-operative as it tries to drum up farm support for the ethanol venture.

If the plant goes ahead, farmers would benefit from an increase in the base price of corn. But the main benefit will come through investing in the venture at a cost of $2,500 a share, co-op members maintain.

Other benefits include 160 person years of construction work, 30 full-time plant jobs, increased trucking jobs and spin-off benefits from the extra spending power of farmers.

Larry Johnson of Minnesota, dubbed the Ethanol Answerman for his work promoting the ethanol industry in the United States, urged farmers to get behind the co- op venture.

"Work with your board (members) and give them support because it's your future."

Johnson said an ethanol industry would allow farmers to diversify instead of placing all their eggs in one basket.

"If you're in a couple of different markets, it offsets your risk," he explained.

Traditionally, farmers have made their operations larger whenever they wanted or needed to generate income.

But that will only work for so long. Eventually farmers must look at other ways to generate more income, he said.

"You just can't keep getting bigger forever."

Government boosts ethanol

Greg Kielec
News* editor

It helps to have friends in high places. And it is helping Ontario's fledgling ethanol industry.

The industry has a big backer in the form of Ontario Premier Bob Rae.

And it has convinced both governments to waive taxes on ethanol, according to Terry Boland of the Ontario Corn Producers' Association.

Other support has come from the federal government in a $14 million ethanol research grant for plants in Western Canada.

And most recently, the provincial government threw support behind the Seaway Valley Farmers' Energy Co-operative Inc. with a $90,000 jobsOntario grant.

"The government has come a good portion of the way to supporting these projects,'' Boland, also public affairs advisor for the Canadian Renewable Fuels Association, told farmers in Alexandria.

But the government also wants to see "up front money" from farmers to show their is support for ethanol production in the farm community.

Fuel with ethanol has been given preferential procurement status by a number of provincial government departments, according to Boland.

And the environmentally friendly alcohol has gotten the support of a number of high- ranking government officials, according to Boland.

That translates into good news for the Williamstown-based energy co-operative's plans for a Maitland ethanol production facility.

The $43-million plant would draw on corn from the area to produce 50-million litres of the environmentally-friendly octane-enhancing fuel additive annually.

Jim Johnson, president of the Canadian Renewable Fuel Association, said the political climate has never been better to get an ethanol industry going in Ontario.

"I'm impressed with what I'm seeing and what I'm hearing," Johnson said in an interview after a Thursday afternoon presentation in Alexandria.

"It looks like there's a real opportunity here."

And chances are, it can only get better, according to the head of the environmental lobbying organization.

"It's only going to get more positive, I think."

Welfare case load forces increase in staff

By Pauline Ashton
News* correspondent

A heavy load of welfare clients from north Glengarry is forcing the United Counties social services office in Alexandria to from a one-day, to five-day-a-week operation.

"We have lineups just to register new clients during the one day our office is open now in Alexandria court house," Administrator Susan Lefebvre told counties council Monday.

Lefebvre is scouting Alexandria for offices to set up full service.

Lefebvre pointed to a dramatic rise in welfare cases since 1989, when her office served 396 cases a month. Now social services copes with an average of 1,100 cases monthly.

The most drastic rise came in 1991, when cases rocketed to 818 from 500 the previous year.

By February, two new case workers will be hired by the department, bringing the total to 10 case workers covering the 58,000 residents of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry.

"The social service office in Chesterville is open five days a week, serving only half the cases that Glengarry has," said Iroquois Deputy Reeve Ed Thompson.

Lefebvre's statistics show 144 welfare cases in Alexandria, covering 301 people; 65 cases in Kenyon, covering 126 people; 40 cases in Lochiel, covering 82 people; 24 cases in Maxville, covering 45 people.

Welfare cases in the northern areas of Charlottenburgh and Lancaster townships are also covered by the Alexandria office.

Charlottenburgh has 73 welfare cases covering 207 people, Lancaster village has 14 cases, covering 26 people and Lancaster Township has 48 cases covering 121 people.

The United Counties have in total, 1,133 cases.

All cracked up

A hydro pole located on Main Street in Alexandria, just north of the Bank of Montreal, was cracked early Sunday morning with the top portion of the pole hanging by the power lines. PUC workers surounded the pole, which had not been fixed as of Tuesday afternoon, with cones. An Alexandria man has been charged with drunk driving after he ran into the pole. Serge Lefebvre, 29, of Alexandria has been charged with drunk driving.

Farmers can get in on ethanol's 'ground floor'

Jim Johnson of the Canadian Renewable Fuels Association, told farmers ethanol is the answer to the dwindling oil supply problem.

"We're going to run out of oil and we're going to have to replace it with something."

It may be sometime down the road yet, but sooner or later it's going to happen. And farmers should be ready, he stressed.

"We need to get this industry started before we can improve on it."

The key is to convince the oil companies that farmers can meet the demand for ethanol, and if they can, that consumers will buy the product.

"Everything we have done is positive, but we have to have the product available before we can sell it," said Johnson.

And preliminary indications are that once consumers are told about the product, their interest is peaked.

"We think that's what's going to drive the market-consumer demand."

Larry Johnson said relying on offshore oil has proven costly for his country.

"We have a terrible problem in the U.S. in that our oil is almost gone," Johnson said during his presentation.

OCA rep delivers hopeful GATT message at annual meeting

Scott Ferrier
News* Reporter

Glengarry County and area beef farmers won't be hurt by changes to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT).

In fact, Bob Dobson said, the agricultural pact could help beef farmers, including those in Glengarry.

Dobson, an Ontario Cattleman's Association (OCA) representative, was the keynote speaker at the Glengarry Cattleman's association annual meeting held Wednesday night.

"The main goal of (GATT) is to expand world trade, as most of you have heard in the news.

"For beef cattle, trade between Canada, the U.S. and Mexico remains basically unchanged, Dobson told a crowd of about 35 beef farmers who attended the meeting.

Local beef farmers will benefit from the GATT deal because government subsidies will be dismantled.

Nowadays, imported beef products coming from New Zealand or the European communities are heavily subsidized. And while the Americans have had a rigid meat import law in place for a number of years, the Canadian meat import law is less effective.

"Our meat import law doesn't have nearly the same teeth to it as the Americans. Now we're going to have our meat import laws synchronized (with the other GATT members)," Dobson said.

Tariffs on subsidized beef being imported into Canada are not as high as the American tariff rate. That allows foreign countries to dump their beef in Canada selling their wares for a cheap price.

By doing away with government subsidies, local farmers will have a stronger foothold in their own market and could compete on the world market, Dobson said.

Throughout his 45- minute presentation, Dobson railed against animal rights activists.

Last year, as a member of the OCA's environment and animal care committee, Dobson worked with the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food to draft guidelines on how to handle downer-cows.

Activists want to place restrictions on the way the downer- cows are handled. Downer- cows are cows that break a leg or had a difficult calving and can't stand on their own and are dying. They can still be taken to the slaughterhouse.

Dobson and several OCA officials worked towards improving the guidelines

"I guess behind this, sometimes we're trying to be proactive and sometimes we're being pushed a little bit too. One of the biggest pushes these days, for a couple different areas of our committee, is the animal rights movement. They have been sort of forcing the issue," Dobson said.

"Then we know what their aims and goals are. And that is to completely eliminate all animal agriculture and all use of animals in society.

"We can't underestimate them. We have to look after these problems and be proactive or somebody's going to force great restrictions on us."

Dobson said the activists would have farmers put down downer-cows immediately. The issue has grabbed newspaper headlines although downer- cows are not common, only about .01 per cent of cows, Dobson said.

""They're causing us a black eye, the animal rights people.

"We've taken too much of a rap for .01 per cent of the animals. We have to be proactive. We just have to do something. We can't afford to have this happen."

Other news or issues that Dobson discussed included:

The Ontario Beef Industry has initiated a special project aimed at improving a host of things. The project, titled "Re-engineering the Ontario Beef Industry for Competitive Advantage", will recommend sweeping changes in the way people in the beef industry think.

The changes include: providing a wider variety of products for a diverse marketplace, greater attention to genetics and feeding to ensure quality and taste and improve the merchandizing of beef at the point of sale.

The need to improve government guidelines in the area of labelling beef products and their country of origin. Consumers who believe they are buying Canadian beef may be in for a surprise, Dobson said.

As one example, he said a sirloin could be imported from Nicaragua into Canada, be cut in half and, under the current guidelines, would be labelled as a beef product from Canada because of that cut.

Kenyon dog tag fees to be added to tax bills

Dog tag fees in Kenyon will no longer be collected from residents at the door by Animal Control Officer Germain Lavigne, but added onto property tax bills.

Lavigne will still canvass township residents for dog ownership, and hand out tags, but tag records will be added onto tax bills this year.

The following fees schedule was approved by council Jan. 11: $20 for each unspayed or un-neutered female or male dog, $10 for the first neutered dog, and $15 for each second or subsequent neutered dog.

Owners must have written proof of spaying or neutering to show to the animal control officer, otherwise the tag charge will be $20, council decided.

Kenyon's new get-tough animal control bylaw drafted last year, which goes into effect July 1, 1994, has had effects already.

Last year 40 dogs were picked up wandering, compared to 1992, when 90 dogs were captured.

Commenting on fees, Councillor Owen Walker said, ''I think we should give a break to people who have neutered their dogs and come down heavily on owners with multiple dogs.''

Permanent gravel pit requested at Laggan

Lionel Grant of Cornwall Gravel Co. Ltd., has asked Kenyon council's approval for a permanent gravel pit at Highway 34 and Laggan Road.

The pit was approved last year by the Ministry of Transport as a temporary wayside pit providing material to resurface Highway 34.

Cornwall Gravel wants to use the pit for future work on the highway with no time limit.

Grant was opposed by nearby residents Ruth Daine and Peter Grace, who appeared last fall at council warning that Grant wanted to change the pit from temporary, to permanent.

They said their home life was being disrupted by dust and noise from the pit.

Grace was on hand at a Jan. 11 meeting to say ''we warned you what could happen, it's the foot in the door approach.''

Council voted to meet with Grant again in two months, after his firm draws up a site plan detailing exactly what Cornwall Gravel proposes to do with the pit.

Deputy Reeve Donald Besner said he was ''not ready to make a decision on this tonight because they can't give us any time limit on the pit.

''I don't know how the neighbors feel, and I don't know how a permanent pit would affect them till I hear from residents themselves.''

Grant promised council he does not plan to make the pit into a quarry.

But he warned he would appeal to the Ontario Municipal Board for a ruling, if council turns down his application for a permanent pit.

Cornwall Gravel recently bought the pit land from J. D. MacLeod. But the firm can't register ownership until the land has been re-zoned for gravel pit use.

Building Official Ken Robbers pointed out that under Kenyon's Official Plan, a change in zoning to allow a permanent gravel pit, would also allow Cornwall Gravel to set up a quarry operation without having to come back to council for permission.

He said a change in the zoning designations might be needed to protect the township.

Councillor Owen Walker charged, ''this pit has come up to council three times recently, at first you wanted permission to have a temporary pit which would be covered over after work on Highway 34 was done.

''Now you are back asking for a permanent pit — it's a real back-door operation.''

Lochiel Township

Council Briefs

Christmas present

Lochiel Township nearly got an early Christmas present Dec. 23, of Alexandria sewage pumped into the Garry River from the town's main sewage pumping station at McCormick Road.

Township Clerk Ray Charbonneau was warned by letter, ''as a precautionary measure, please refrain animals from drinking or entering the Garry River between the pumping station and the Delisle River for a period of 72 hours following the event.''

Charbonneau told council the four-hour sewage dump was delayed till early January. The dump was approved by the Ministry of Environment and Energy, to allow maintenance work on the sewage lagoon, east of Alexandria.

Well discussion

Lochiel council will set up a meeting with Mr. and Mrs. Isidore Davidson to discuss drilling a new well to replace their present well, tainted from salt stored nearby the township roads department.

The well water is being tested regularly until a decision is made about new drilling. Councillor Bill Hagen said drilling costs $25 a foot, and a new well could cost $5,000.

Raises

Lochiel council agreed to increase payments to its six full-time employees pension funds, by 10 cents an hour, raising the total pension contribution to 20 cents an hour.

Salaries of all 10 full and part-time township employees have been frozen for three years, under provincial social contract legislation.

Building steady

New building is steady in Lochiel Township, Building Administrator Dorothy Irvine assured council. ''From eight to 10 new houses have been built here every year for the past decade,'' she reported.

During 1993 total value of construction in the township reached $1.8 million, the highest since 1988, when construction totalled $2.6 million.

In 1993 new home construction totalled $783,000, agriculture construction totalled $376,000, and housing additions cost $200,000.

Some 75 building permits were requested, down from 100, usually issued each year.

Local Junior Achievers close to reality

Scott Ferrier
News* Reporter

The Junior Achievers program is a little closer to achieving lift- off at the Alexandria high school.

Two more people, Andre Larocque and Lucien Chenier have agreed to volunteer time to work as business advisors bringing the total number of advisors to six. Only four more are needed.

Larocque, a dairy and cash crop farmer, and Chenier, a retiree who once owned and managed a stationary store, made a commitment to the program following a Thursday night meeting.

In the Junior Achievers program, students set up and operate their own businesses, giving them practical education and experience.

Other local business people, such as Scott DaPrato, owner of Daprato Insurance Adjuster, John MacDonald, controller of Alexandria Moulding, John Hope, a businessman with Hopes Auto Parts, and Luc Larocque have already joined the program.

Turpin and several of the advisors planned to contact ex- advisors and other local business people who could help fill the vacancies.

The advisors, who will work in teams of two, will share the workload of devising or implementing a business plan in areas such as marketing, production and personnel.

Each advisor team will spend about two hours each week for 13 of the 26 weeks while the program is up and running.

"We've got the money in place. We've got the students - they're all very, very eager. All we need are the advisors, people who can give hands- on advice," Glengarry District High School Principal Ed Turpin explained at the meeting which was held at the town hall.

Turpin and Ecole Secondaire Regionale Glengarry Vice-Principal Raymond Legault outlined the Junior Achievers program and what they hope will be accomplished.

The organization, which was founded in 1919 and has over 1,000 locations, employs high school students who build a business from the ground up.

They sell shares, select a product to manufacture, market it and sell it and pay the profits back to the shareholders.

The program was to start in September, 1993, but had to be delayed for one year because of a lack of advisors.

Another meeting, to be held on Wednesday, Feb. 16 at 5:30 p.m. at the town office, will determine how many people are committed to being advisors.

Turpin, Legault, participating students and the advisors will find out if the program has enough advisors to get the green light.

First French radio station to test the airwaves

Scott Ferrier
News* Reporter

Alexandria residents who have an ear to the future can tune their radio dials to 92.1 FM to catch the first area French language radio station.

CHOD-FM (pronounced CHOD-FM) will be conducting a series of tests for the next three weeks from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

General Manager Patrick Fortin says the tests are being conducted to make sure the station transmitter is working and to determine just how far the signal will travel from the Cornwall station.

A 90-minute cassette will be played repeatedly during the tests with no weather or news reports, no disc jockeys and, best of all, no commercials.

Alexandria residents can tune into the station but Fortin doesn't know what other towns in Glengarry County will pick up the signal.

The French language radio station will begin broadcasting on Monday, March 21. The station will feature mostly pop, rock and country music with some classical, jazz and folk music added to the mix.

An information meeting will be held on Monday, Jan. 24 at the French Cultural Centre on Montreal Road in Cornwall beginning at 7:30 p.m. People and organizations interested in working on programs for the community radio station are encouraged to attend.

Fortin will update people on the status of the station and the sorts of programs he's looking for. He'll also field questions from the audience.

As a community station, CHOD-FM will feature area residents such as high school students broadcasting news reports or making commentaries and some organizations will have access to the radio airwaves.

The station has already received a commitment from the Ministry of Tourism for a $100,000 grant which will go toward the purchase of equipment. The Ministry of Employment and Immigration will also contribute $100,000, money which will be used to hire three disc jockeys, a journalist and a secretary.

Anyone who would like more information on the station should call Fortin at 936-CHOD or 936-2463.

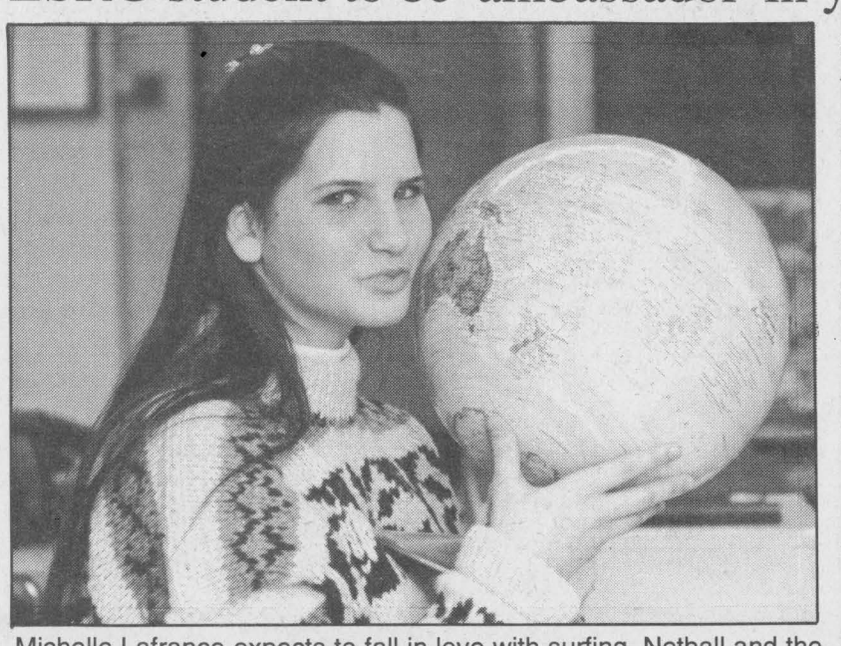
ESRG student to be 'ambassador' in year-long stay in sunny Australia



Michelle Lafrance expects to fall in love with surfing, Netball and the beaches in Australia. The ESRG student will be living in the land down under for one year as part of a cultural exchange.

News* Reporter

Michelle Lafrance was looking forward to her trip to the land down under.

The personable Grade 11 ESRG student will spend the next year or so in Australia serving as a Canadian "ambassador" of sorts, she said.

In a Wednesday morning interview, just four days before she was to have left for the land of kangaroos and koala bears, Michelle was expecting to have the time of her life.

"I'm anxious to try playing rugby or to try surfing. I also want to try playing netball," a sport nearly identical to basketball only there is no net on the hoop and no backboard.

Michelle, the daughter of Gisele and Yvon Lafrance of Alexandria, is going to Australia as part of a cultural exchange organized by the Educational Foundation.

"I'll study at the high school, make presentations about Canada, improve my English and live there to experience a whole new culture. I'm going to have to adapt to their culture," Michelle said when asked what she'll be doing in Australia.

She admitted she'll get homesick for her friends and family at times but the pain will be eased by her host family.

"I'm not going to be a visitor in their home. I'll be more of a daughter."

Michelle will be living in Stuart's Point, a tiny fishing village with a population of 700 people. She'll attend high school in Kempsey, located about halfway between Sydney and Brisbane.

Various organizations throughout Glengarry County helped raise the money needed to pay for Michelle's year- long stay in Australia.

United Counties warden position gets $1,000 pay hike, but doesn't get salary

By Pauline Ashton
News* correspondent

The honorarium paid to County Warden Charles Sangster was boosted by $1,000 to $12,500 by United Counties Council Monday, defeating a move to put him on salary.

Wardens receive close to $35,000 a year, including the honorarium, $110 for council meetings, $80 for committee meetings and 29 cents per kilometre for car expenses.

The honorarium covers the warden's annual banquet expenses and entertaining at conventions attended, and is tax- free, unlike a salary.

Past warden Jim Cook said the warden's job is now full- time and should be paid on a salary and expense basis, just like the mayor of any city.

He confessed wardens often have to dip into their own funds, "and are out of pocket by the end of their term."

He pointed out that with a population of 58,000, the United Counties area is larger than Cornwall, where the mayor's job is full- time and salaried.

Counties council passed a motion, sponsored by Cook, paying Warden Sangster a token $100 monthly salary, as well as his honorarium, meeting payments and car expenses.

Cook suggested the motion as a first step towards eventually paying a salary.

Council members later changed their minds, voting to increase the warden's honorarium by $1,000, which would be untaxable, instead of paying an annual $1,200 taxable salary.

"I can't counsel tax evasion," Cook commented on the switch.

Crysler teaches us how to solve our problems

A beleagered Alexandria-Cornwall Diocese has found itself caught in a stunning controversy that has sent shockwaves reverberating beyond Cornwall into every hamlet and town throughout the charge.

And it appears, unfortunately, that it is not over. The final truth, apparently, has yet to emerge. And that will only happen if and when the details are revealed at a public inquiry or in an open courtroom with full disclosure of the details by both sides.

At stake is no less than the credibility of the church and Bishop Eugene LaRocque, who attempted to divulge details at a press conference Friday of a settlement reached between an unidentified teenager, now a 35-year-old man, and the diocese after the victim was sexually assaulted by a priest in the area 20 years ago. The man filed a complaint with police in December of 1992.

There were no charges laid against the priest after the assault, however, and the Ottawa police were asked by the province last week to investigate why there were not charges laid.

The priest in question was removed late last year from his area parish and is now receiving treatment at a Toronto centre. Concerns have been openly expressed that the lack of charges point to a two-tier system of justice — one for priests and one for everybody else.

Meanwhile, at a press conference in Cornwall Friday, the bishop admitted he ''reluctantly'' agreed to the $32,000 settlement because the man had a considerable bill for counselling. The diocese lawyer said the alleged victim had requested money.

Now the alleged victim has told an Ottawa newspaper that the church never offered him support or an apology, and he never received counselling.

What's going on?

This war of crediblity fought on the front pages is no way to deliver final justice. The publicity is wrenching the diocese and shaking religious faith when all faiths need a healthy boost.

An open hearing where witnesses are under oath is essential. Sexual abuse of children is the most heinous of crimes and in light of recurring publicity of such cases involving Catholic priests, the opportunity must exist for the church to bring this growing scandal to a just resolution.

There is hope. The alleged victim has said he is weighing the risks of public disclosure of the settlement.

Given what has surfaced so far, he would be doing himself, the church and society in general a great favor.

Open hearing is the way to put controversy in the past

Overcoming problems is only an idea away. Proof of that lies no further away than the village of Crysler in the neighboring county of Stormont.

Residents had formed a committee to save the bank. When that didn't work, they began to negotiate with the Royal for the purchase of the building, expecting to lease it to another bank.

It worked. As of Jan. 10, some 16 Crysler residents had purchased the bank building and found a tenant, the National Bank of Canada, which is leasing the structure for 20 years. Effective last Friday, the National Bank was Crysler's official bank.

The push to save the bank originally and then its subsequent purchase has done more than maintain banking services in the village. It produced a groundswell of media coverage that will benefit both the National Bank and the village of Crysler, which will be seen as a desirable place to live by urbanites looking to get out of the city.

Glengarry communities could learn by Crysler's example.

No-one who operates a business, for example, in the centre of Alexandria's Main Street can deny the oppressive impact the closure of the Priest's Mill and other businesses has had on walk-in traffic. It is difficult to say how many more dollars would have flowed into pockets over the Christmas shopping season downtown, had the once-proud restaurant been open. It is, however, reasonable to assume there would have been a net benefit.

How much that benefit is worth to the town's small businesses is a question worth answering. It theoretically could spawn a solution much in the way Crysler found a bank.

There are crazier ideas than assembling a large group of local people to jointly share the purchase of the restaurant. Town council thought of buying, and then selling, the Brown Shoe plant was a good idea, done to facilitate a positive purpose — the eventual moving of another company into the premises.

Crysler has shown how, even with a limited numbers of investors, resources and demographics, great things can happen in small towns. All it takes is the desire, and the will.

The nine lives of Oakley Bush

Faces N' Places

by Joe Banks

He was hospitalized with malaria eight times, survived 10 days aboard a lifeboat in the mid-Atlantic after a ship was torpedoed out from under him, and hunted crocodiles on the Ancobra River in west Africa.

He was nearly bitten to death by a nest of ants and escaped a drowning that killed a team of four horses pulling the wagon he was riding.

But life hasn't always been so deadly for one Oakley Hezekiah Bush of Fassifern.

He'll also tell you he once met with Queen Elizabeth and Prince Phillip, dropped by the Bouvier estate (Jacqueline Kennedy's summer home) at Newport, Rhode Island, owned a pet mongoose and monkey, was foreman at gold mines from Kirkland Lake to Africa, judged Olympic equestrian events and became an internationally renowned expert on vintage horse-drawn carriages.

And, at a young 78, he and wife Dorothy, have little problem maintaining his life's passion — seven horses, a startlingly varied flock of exotic fowl, and 25 horse-drawn vehicles he is frequently spotted by locals and the occasional photographer riding along the Fassifern Road.

But on this cold blustery day, Oakley is out in the barn, gingerly filling the grain buckets for his equine family. Outside, Chester; a big gray he's keeping for a Montreal caleche rider, impatiently nuzzles the frame of the closed barn door, aware of the chores of his keeper, and no doubt pondering the relative warmth of his awaiting stall.

''They know what's up,'' Oakley chortles. Indeed, as he slides the door open, the horses waste no time finding their places.

Each animal has a story and Oakley delights in relating them, rolling out minute details he draws effortlessly from memory. It's telling of the kind of man Oakley Bush is. And so devoted to those and countless other memories he is, he confesses he is toying with assembling his memoirs at the urging of his daughters.

After the chores, Oakley reveals the ''office'' in the modest Bush bungalow. It is crowded with paraphernalia; a framed photograph of his first horse, a picture of a sulky and driver, medals won from countless competitions, mounds of documents, books and mementoes. It's clutter to a stranger, but to Oakley, it's a life of work and recreation that began in 1915 at his birth home of New Liskeard, northern Ontario.

Born to Glengarry-area natives — his mother was from Apple Hill and his father from Moose Creek — Oakley was one of a family of two girls and three boys. His father developed a prosperous chain of six music stores in northern Ontario throughout the 20s.

But like so many other once-thriving businesses, the Crash of 1929 ended the good times; his father sold one piano in three years.

''My dad was quite well-to-do, then boom, the crash came and he never recovered.'' He lost more money after opening a butcher and grocery store in another town but that ended when a chain store opened beside him.

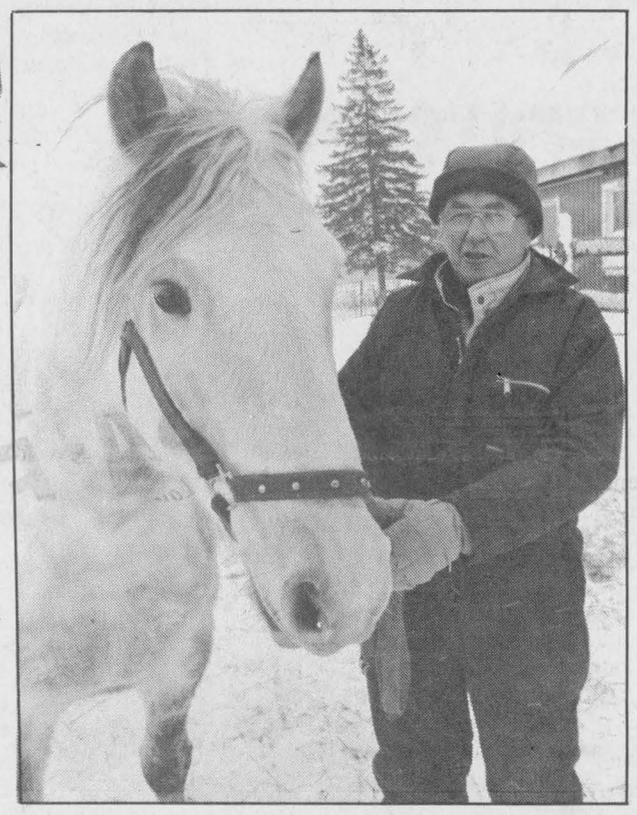
Hard times forced Oakley, the middle child, to leave home in 1934 to earn money at the gold mine reduction works at Kirkland Lake and a new mine at South Porcupine where he was shift foreman.

There, he heard of men like himself making big money in the gold mines of Africa, in particular along the Gold Coast.

That was 1941, and he decided to ship over to Prestea, Africa, 56 miles up country from the harbour. As the ship approached the coast, he was given an ominous warning by a fellow passenger.

'''Mister,' he says, 'that's your grave. You're going to be buried there.'' He went on to advise the young Oakley to stay away from native women and ''not to get drunk.'' The former was a precaution against venereal disease, and the latter was a hedge against staggering into a ditch, falling asleep, and being bitten by disease-spreading mosquitoes.

With that advice firmly in mind, he worked as a plant foreman, with 160 native laborers under his charge. Each was paid 23 cents a day on eight hour shifts, tempting some to steal the gold they were mining. It meant he and the other supervisors had to examine the natives after each shift.



Oakley bush at Fassifern farm with old friend ''Chester.''

Later in the bullion refinery office, he was involved in escorting the refined bullion shipments to the bank, equipped with sidearms and six armed police. Threats of robbery were common; one night his pants were stolen from his bedside and his wallet emptied.

That kind of experience made diversions a necessity. There was golf and tennis, but on Sundays, a favorite activity was to hunt crocodiles on the Ancobra River. Oakley bagged two himself, and once shot a python from his bungalow porch.

But he was a far more devout animal lover, and became known around the village as an owner of exotic pets.

''I had a lot of pets,'' he chuckles. ''I had a reputation of, if you had anything alive, Mr. Bush would buy it.'' He had four dogs, a mongoose — ''the best pet I ever had'' — a monkey ''which I developed malaria from at one point'' and a small bush deer.

Despite all of this, African life, says Oakley, was harsh. The climate was always too humid and promoted ''a terrific number of skin disorders.'' He contracted malaria eight times, and many of the men involved with native women developed venereal diseases.

Fortunately, he paid heed to the advice from his ship companion.

And there were the dangers of nature. One day while walking through the jungle with his servant, he carelessly poked a ''huge nest'' of ants clinging to a tree branch. It fell down, broke open and within seconds, he was covered with ants. His servant quickly stripped off his cloths, revealing welts all over his body. Fortunately, they both escaped serious injury or death.

That kind of harsh living, and Oakley's desire to enlist in the armed forces, ended his year-and-a-half stay in Africa. But his journey back was to be far more eventful; the ship he was travelling on, an American freighter, was torpedoed by a German U-boat in the mid-Atlantic.

The ship was out about six days, headed for the Virgin Islands, when the torpedo hit amidships. Oakley and 34 other suvivors scrambled aboard a lifeboat, but the danger wasn't over. After the ship sunk, Oakley says, his voice choking with emotion,''the sub surfaced and turned its lights on, and they manned the gun on the foredeck. Men came running out of the conning tower, trained its guns on us, but they didn't fire.''

A tense moment passed until the U-boat captain invited the freighter captain aboard to gain any military information about the convoy that had earlier accom-

The Lady of Lawers

Highland Paths

by Ken McKenna

Lawers is about 10 miles east of the loveliest village in the Highlands, Killin, on the north shore of Loch Tay. It is the place where the Lady of Lawers lived 300 years ago. She was a seer, someone who had the ability to foretell the future, an ability that she shared with many other Gaelic seers throughout Scottish history. In the olden days every area seemed to have had people who, from time to time, could predict coming events. Most of them and their auguries would have been known only to those in their immediate neighborhood, and long forgotten now, but the Lady of Lawers was different. All of her many predictions except three have come true, the last one as recently as 1948.

Breadalbane, Bràghad-Albainn in Gaelic, means ''the breast (or breadth) of Scotland.'' It is a vast area that stretches from the eastern Highlands to Loch Awe in Argyll. Grant Campbell Q.C. called his home near Williamstown ''Kilchurn Castle,'' because it was from the castle of that name (pronounced ''Killya-hurran'') that the Campbells of Glenorchy spread eastwards. By the end of the 17th century, the first Earl of Breadalbane could boast that he could ride in a straight line for 100 miles and never be off his land. It was also the land of the MacNabs, the MacLarens, the Dewars and the MacGregors.

It is believed that the Lady of Lawers was a Stewart of Appin who married a Campbell and came as a bride to Lochtayside about 1650. One of her early prophesies concerned a new church that was being built at Lawers. ''The ridging stones will never be placed on the roof'' she said. ''If they are, then all my words are false.'' Everyone scoffed at this strange prediction, but when the carved sandstone capping stones were unloaded and piled on the Loch Tay shore, a violent storm arose in the night and washed them into the loch. They could not be recovered and some can still be seen buried in the sand in deep water. Different materials were used to finish the church.

After her weird prediction about the church stones came true, the Lady of Lawers was listened to with great respect. Very few could read or write Gaelic, so the oral tradition was the means by which anything of importance was passed on. The ability of the Celts to memorize a vast amount of knowledge was recorded with amazement by the Romans when they invaded Gaul (France) and ancient Britain. Auguries from someone as famous as the Lady of Lawers would have been remembered word for word in Breadalbane and beyond, for they were not jokes and often referred to people and places that were easily identified. It was very important to be able to recognize the omens and portents she foretold so that they could be avoided if possible. The only problem was that no one knew just when her predictions would come true. Few came true in her lifetime, which was probably lucky for her. In an age of great superstition and cruelty, she may have been burned as a witch if her predictions were considered the work of the devil or if they offended those in authority. Kenneth MacKenzie, the Brahan Seer, was boiled in oil by Lady Seaforth because he told her, unwillingly, that her husband was cavorting with another woman far from home.

One of the Lady's well-known auguries ''the jaw of the sheep will drive the plow from the ground'' came true a hundred years after her death when the Lowland sheep were brought in to displace the people, resulting in the Highland Clearances. Another of her prophecies also referred to depopulation: ''The land will be sifted and riddled of its people.'' The second Marquis of Breadalbane started clearing his lands of people in 1834. Today there are less than 100 people living on Lochtayside panied them.

He was released, and the small boat, relatively well-equipped with a sail and oars, maps and rations, began an arduous 10-day journey west to Barbados.

One of the passengers parlayed the story into a book, "Standing Room Only" which later became the Hollywood movie "Lifeboat." Oakley himself sold the story to a New York yachting magazine for $750, but criticizes the book as full of exaggerations.

"She (the author) said the men were fighting over Mrs. Fowler (another passenger) in the lifeboat. Well believe me, when you're living on four ounces of water a day plus a square of chocolate or hardtack biscuit, the last thing on your mind was amorous activity."

Upon their unexpected arrival in Barbados, the survivors were taken to various locations for treatment. Oakley was taken to a prison, where he was scrubbed down by a "big black man." He started to regain his normality by "drinking gingerale by the gallon."

Several years later in 1970, after stopping into a Montreal paint store, Oakley coincidentally met that man again.

"He told me he remembered me telling him that the last time somebody scrubbed me like that, it was my mother." Oakley still hasn't forgotten him.

Upon his return to Canada, he tried to sign up for military duty, but none of the three services would accept him because of his low blood pressure, possibly a side-effect of his bouts with malaria. In the midst of his medicals, a corrupt private told him that for $2, he could see to it that he would fail the eye examination.

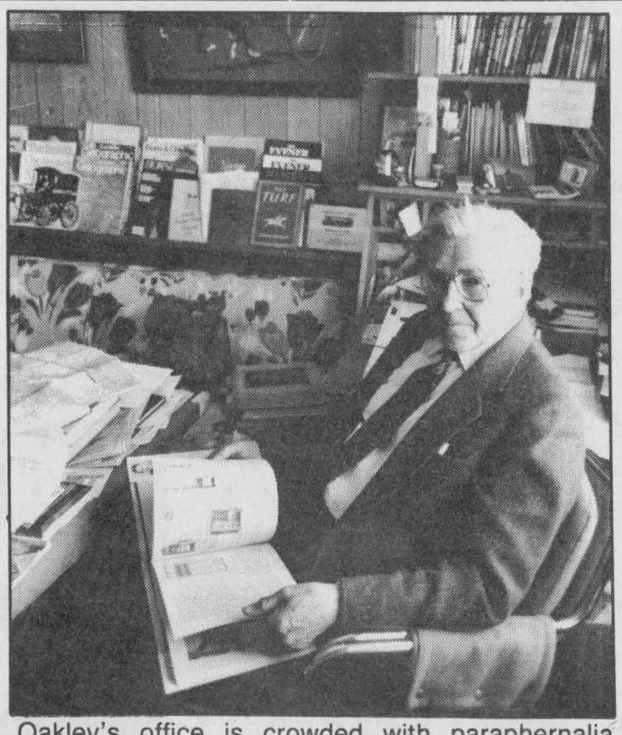
"I told him I didn't want to fail," Oakley says, smiling at the irony of the situation."I wanted to get in." The private was sacked after Oakley reported the bribe attempt to a friend. But that still didn't get him into the military.

He worked on the Montreal docks for a short time, manufacturing Corvette-class boats, but that wasn't satisfying.

His experience with mineral extraction equipment helped to land him a job in Arvida, Quebec, with Alcan, where he remained for 36 years, employed in various sales and senior positions including chemical sales until his retirement in 1980 at age 65.

Throughout, he has maintained a keen devotion to horses and pleasure driving which began at an early age, sharing the pastime with his family and friends. Oakley and Dorothy, who celebrated their 40th anniversary last year, have rarely known a time without horses, cutters and buggies hanging around the house.

The family bought their existing farm in 1976 after selling pieces of the old family acreage in Dominionville. Oakley's knowledge of horses and vehicles expanded, and he has been asked to judge international competitions throughout Canada and the U.S.



Oakley's office is crowded with paraphernalia gathered from decades of interesting experiences.

At one in Saratoga Springs, N.Y. in 1983, acting as referee and riding aboard one of the entries, he was pulled into a deep, man-made lake with four Arab horses during a 10.6 mile marathon. Fortunately, there was no loss of human life, but the four horses were drowned.

A press conference in 1986 in England, as a result of Oakley's directorship with the carriage association, afforded Dorothy and him the chance to meet fellow member, Prince Phillip at Buckingham Palace.

"Horses have been more exciting to me than any other activity I've dabbled in," says Oakley of his horses and carriages. "It's almost like a smorgasbord; an indefinite number of horse activities, that opens up so many doors" suiting scores of different tastes. His keen interest in animal welfare in general is reflected in his involvement as a regional director for the humane society and the SPCA, as well as long-standing involvement in 17 different horse and carriage associations.

Last summer, his expertise was contracted for five days by the Museum of Civilization in Hull, to identify 220 toy-sized models of horse-drawn vehicles. And he is occasionally asked to appraise private carriages for insurance purposes.

But you're more likely to find Oakley Bush most at home in the barn or out on the road doing what he loves best — enjoying the gentle hum of spoked wheels on a country concession, or the silence of runners through new snow.

There, Oakley Bush is at home.

BIA meets for the first time

With little fanfare, the Alexandria Business Improvement Association (BIA) held its inaugural meeting last Wednesday night in the town office.

It didn't wait long to get down to business, as the group of nine directors elected its first executive.

Its first chairman is Alain Giroux, a Main Street south business owner. Sheila Olson, chamber president and Main Street centre shop owner, is vice chairman, Karen Davison-Wood, also a Main Street centre store owner, is secretary and Daniel Surprenant, accountant, is the treasurer.

Town clerk Leo Poirier distributed relevant documents to the members including copies of the Municipal Act involving BIAs, a draft constitution and other materials.

The meeting, which lasted about an hour and a half, covered a wide range of topics, mostly ideas at improving the business climate in town. The state of the downtown core and improving the park received the most attention.

It was agreed, however, that before any budget is struck with specific programs, the funds of which will come from a special tax to every assessed business in the town, the general members will be consulted through a meeting to solicit their input.

The board will meet again at the call of the chair, after all directors have digested the materials relating to the BIA.

Court Report

The following were among the cases heard by Judge Belanger in Alexandria provincial court on Jan. 13.

Hefty fine for smuggler

A Hagersville, Ont. man was fined over $20,000 for smuggling a large quantity of tobacco.

Guy Martin, 22, was arrested on Hwy. 401 in Lancaster Township on Nov. 10 when 990 cans of smuggled tobacco were found in his vehicle.

The exact amount of the fine is $21,384, which represents twice the duty value of the tobacco. Martin was given two years to pay. In default of payment, he'll serve three months in jail.

Long Sault man jailed

A 34-year-old Long Sault man has been sentenced to 14 days in jail after pleading guilty to drunk driving.

Michael Lapensee was driving on Hwy. 2 in Charlottenburgh Township on Aug. 15 when he struck a boat and trailer parked on the shoulder of the road.

Blood tests taken on the day of the accident showed that Lapensee was driving with two-and-a-half times the legal limit of alcohol content in his blood.

In addition to the jail term, Lapensee was prohibited from driving for one year.

Drunk drivers fined

The following drivers received fines after pleading guilty to drunk driving on Thursday:

Michael Montroy, 26, was fined $1,200 as a result of his arrest on Aug. 15.

Montroy, a resident of Cornwall, drove his vehicle into a hydro pole on County Road 19 in Charlottenburgh Township, causing minor injuries to himself.

Blood samples taken at the time showed Montroy's alcohol level to be 224 milligrams per 100 millilitres of blood. The legal limit is 80.

Steve Pemberton, 32, of Winchester was fined $300 after registering readings of 118 and 115 following his arrest on Jan. 7.

The minimum fine was imposed because of the low readings, the quick entry of a guilty plea and the fact that no erratic driving was noticed at the time of Pemberton's arrest.

Both Montroy and Pemberton were prohibited from driving for one year.

Alexandria's Rolland Leroux, 33, was fined $1,200 for drunk driving.

Leroux was arrested on Dec. 4 after hitting a parked car. His blood-alcohol readings were 210 and 194.

Because Leroux is a truck driver, the court only imposed a six-month driving prohibition although the province will likely issue a one-year suspension.

Sawatis Benedict, 47, of Cornwall Island was fined $700 and prohibited from driving for two years after being arrested for drunk driving in Lancaster on Sept. 21.

Benedict's breathalyser readings were 115 and 111, but the court imposed a two-year license suspension because he has since been convicted of another drunk driving charge.

Head-on collision sends area residents to hospital

Police Briefs

A 16-year-old Lancaster man was rushed to Hotel Dieu in Cornwall after he was injured in a head-on crash on Highway 2 Saturday evening.

Ryan Flaro was driving his 1993 Buick westbound on Highway 2, three km west of Summerstown Road, when he lost control and slid into the eastbound lane on Dead Man's Curve.

Another car, driven by Phil Anderson, 51, of Cornwall was rounding the curve at the same time, and the two cars collided with each other at 6:27 p.m.

Anderson was sent to Cornwall General Hospital.

Both cars sustained serious damage.

Information on the condition of both drivers was unavailable.

Charges are pending.

Fender benders

Slippery road conditions are being blamed for four fender benders that took place in Alexandria on Monday.

The most serious mishap took place on Main Street and involved three cars.

The domino-like accident took place on Main Street near St. Paul Street.

Sylvie Latulippe, 30, of Dalkeith was southbound on Main Street and was waiting to turn on to St. Paul. Donald Beaupre, 19, of Williamstown was also southbound on Main and stopped behind Latulippe.

However, Raymond Legault, 49, of RR 2 Alexandria was unable to stop in time and rear-nded Beaupre's car which shot forward and rear-ended Latulippe's car.

All three drivers escaped injury.

Their cars sustained light damage.

Alexandria police laid no traffic charges. They blamed the accident on slippery driving conditions as a result of the snow and ice.

Hit and run

A woman driving in Kenyon Township was the victim of a hit and run accident last Wednesday.

Annie St. Denis, 40, of Kenyon Township was driving her 1990 Oldsmobile north on Highway 34, just south of the Sixth of Kenyon when she was rear ended.

St. Denis stopped to turn onto the Sixth before being hit at 10:30 p.m.

She escaped injury but her car sustained moderate damage.

Maxville OPP are investigating.

Snowbank blamed

A snowbank is being blamed for a two-car collision that took place in Lochiel Township Thursday morning.

Sophie Seguin, 18, of Alexandria was driving her 1989 Chevrolet north on Boundary Road. Raymond Beaupre, 45, of RR 1 Lancaster was driving along Viau Street and stopped at a stop sign.

Beaupre attempted to cross or turn onto Boundary Road but a hugh snowbank obstructed his view. Seguin hit Beaupre before either driver could react in time.

Both drivers were uninjured.

Both cars sustained moderate damage.

Escaped injury

An RR 1 Apple Hill woman escaped injury Sunday morning after she rolled her van.

Michelle Joy-St-Amour, 28, was westbound on the First of Kenyon, about 4 km west of Highway 34, when her left front tire blew. Her 1992 Chev Astrovan slid into the west ditched and rolled over onto its roof.

The Astrovan sustained moderate damage.

Area residents use imagination to beat the cold

Glen Walter
by Ron Holla
931-2658

The outside temperature may be cold and our area in the grip of this winter's worst deep freeze, but it appears the hearts of Glen Walter and area residents were overflowing with warmth as they practiced the art of being good Samaritans.

This writer could see on every street during this past weekend that area residents were attempting not only to get their own vehicles started, but also lent helping hands, and in several cases, booster cables, to their neighbors struggling to get their vehicles started.

It seems area residents are no slouch either in the creativity department. Necessity is the mother of invention and it was fascinating to watch the efforts and tools some people used in an effort to get their vehicles started.

Everything from hot coals from a wood stove placed underneath a car to one individual who used a hair-dryer plugged into his house to thaw his frozen engine block could be seen this past weekend. (P.S. the hot coals and the hair dryer appeared to work — I saw those vehicles on the move several hours later.)

School closed

The Precious Blood elementary school fell victim to the cold temperatures as a broken watermain forced the school principal to send all students home this past Monday, Jan. 17.

The weather however seemed to be on the students' side as the temperature rose and fresh snow fell creating the ideal environment for young children to while away those hours they were not in class.

Citizen of the year

The search is on by the Glen Walter and Area Chamber of Commerce for the area's citizen of the year.

Jim Standing, secretary of the chamber, stated the chamber is requesting area residents to write and submit names for consideration by the chamber as a possible citizen of the year.

The only qualification for consideration is that the individual has worked in some way for the betterment or improvement of Glen Walter and area.

According to Standing, interested residents are asked to contact him at 931-1875 for more details. The citizen of the year will be announced during the chamber's annual fundraising ball in February.

Leaders sought

The Scout group committee is on the lookout for leaders for the Beaver group or Cub pack Joanne Marion, group committee chairperson stated.

According to Marion, either part time or full time participants are welcome. Interested persons are asked to contact Joanne or Barry at 931-1047.

Glasses collection

The First Glen Walter Scout troup is asking area residents who have spare or old eyeglasses to donate them for their collection drive for Third World countries.

In addition, the Scout Troop is also collecting Independent Grocer cash register tapes for charity.

According to Joanne Marion, Independent has agreed to donate one dollar to charity for every $100 dollars in cash register tapes.

MUNICIPALITIES AND CONTRACTORS

We would like to take the opportunity to thank you sincerely for your participation and encouragement in the R.A.R.E. recycling program. Lately, we have encountered some minor problems which we would like to address. In order to assure quality control and a superior sorted product with end markets, the following would be of great help to us all:
— remove plastic wrapper from soft drink cases, only the corrugated cardboard is recyclable — remove caps from plastic containers such as bleach bottles, fabric softener, water containers, etc...
— NO ceramics, NO dishes, NO drinking glasses, NO window panes, etc...
— NO waxed milk and/or juice containers
— NO oil product containers of any kind
— NO plastic bags of any kind
— NO Christmas or birthday wrapping paper of any kind

We thank you in advance for your collaboration in this matter and hope that again we can count on you for your support and continued effort in the recycling program, because without each and everyone of you this project would not have been a reality.

ALL EXTERIOR GREEN BOX USERS

We would like to thank you for your past and continued support. Now that Alexandria and surrounding municipalities have their own blue box programs, the exterior green boxes are no longer necessary. As of February 1, 1994, the service will be discontinued. Should you be a resident from a township or municipality which does not participate in the blue box program, we urge you to contact your clerk in order to perhaps begin implementing such a program.

Once again, thank you for your contribution to the success of the recycling program.

INDUSTRIAL, COMMERCIAL, INSTITUTIONAL

This information memo is directed to all industrial, commercial and/or institutional facility that R.A.R.E. currently services on a weekly basis. We have included a list of recyclable products which are currently accepted at R.A.R.E., however should you have any questions, these could be directed to the following contractors:

Local resident will pedal with the "big shots"

Maxville
by Gordon Winter
527-2888

Jeff Oakes is a Sandringham resident and a father of two children. He commutes to work in Ottawa and considers himself very lucky for a very unselfish reason.

One morning last week on his way to work Jeff heard on radio about the 30-person bicycle that is to be ridden at Winterlude time to raise funds for the Children's Hospital of Eastern Ontario and that organizers were seeking volunteers. He phoned in when he arrived at work and had his name added to the list that will add up to 30. Jeff understands that most of the names will be those of "big shots" but he should consider himself very special too in getting involved.

If you are interested in adding your name to the list Jeff's sponsors, do phone him at 538-2406. He promises to do his best when he adds his strength to one of the 30 pedals on the bicycle to get it going at Dow's Lake next month.

Sunday was one of the coldest days of the year, yet, as many as could turned out to the United Church to extend a very warm welcome to their new minister, the Rev. Ed Gratton and his wife Kim. After an excellent sermon which inspired and challenged all, Mr. and Mrs. Gratton met many from the Maxville-Moose Creek Pastoral Charge at a coffee hour afterwards.

Gagetown, N.B. has been home to the couple where Mr. Gratton has ministered to a four-point charge for three and a half years. He is a native of North Bay and a graduate of Carleton and Queen's Universities while Mrs. Gratton is from Ottawa.

On behalf of the Maxville and Moose Creek communities, a very sincere welcome is extended to the couple and when you meet both or one of this young couple, indicate that ours are friendly communities and that we are happy to have them among us.

Best wishes go out to another young couple too. Patricia Freeland, youngest daughter of Pat and Bill was married last Saturday to Steven Lafontaine in Cornwall. They are living in the Freeland subdivision so Patricia only has to walk across the road to Freeland Flowers where she is involved in this highly respected and long established family business. Steven commutes to work in Cornwall.

Rita Seguin has been in Picton for a visit with her brother, Omer and Mrs. Derouchie.

After a two-month study tour and holiday in Australia, Rene Auer and Thomas Bill returned home last week, well-tanned and very enthusiastic. We just wonder now what will happen with all the information that these two young bachelors have stored in their little black books.

VON Week is next week from the 24th to the 29th so keep this important organization in mind and realize how its nurses attend to several local residents. In order for you to know more about it, on Saturday, there will be an information table set up in Tracy's Country Corner. You are cordially invited to drop in at the store, view the display, ask questions and acquire information. Say hello to Tracy as well. She is just getting started in this business and interested in getting to know everybody.

The winners in last week's Lions Club calendar draw were Stephane Seguin, Embrun, Jim Kilpatrick, Orleans, Bernie Villeneuve, Sr., Dyer, Joe McDonell, Maxville and Gerry Guindon, Ottawa.

One additional fact on the Fisher-Campbell ice harvest operation has come from Hugh Fisher. His father, Andrew and Wm. F. Campbell started in 1932 and continued until 1957. Bordens no longer required ice and the dairy farmers were turning to electrical refrigeration systems.

Who ever thought of having pizza for lunch at school? Well, the local public school students are going to be able to enjoy this treat every second Thursday, starting tomorrow.

Melissa Tyrell was the winner of a smoke detector in a draw at the school's end of the month assembly. The local firefighters provided the detector.

Willy Marie Gillingham is the president of the school committee and conducted the last meeting in the school's library on Jan. 12.

Sue Harrington, Williamstown's correspondent has supplied details on the Glengarry School Days movie. After the Man from Glengarry movie was filmed, a photoplay edition of the book came out with scenes from the movie. It was shown in Alexandria in October 1922. This correspondent is wondering if there is a photoplay edition of Glengarry School Days. It would be easy to identify it and the publishers would likely be Grosset and Dunlap.

The seed catalogues are arriving and may help to ease the gloom of these stormy and cold days. We have grown a very tall plant with pink, pendulant flowers for many years while we always called "Angus Joseph's" (Macdonell). Dora Bill identified it as "Kiss Me Over The Garden Gate" which apparently is its correct name. However, I can't confirm anything because we don't have a gate.

The plant readily seeds itself, so if a reader has a gate and would like to grow it, we can probably supply some plants. In the meantime, may your dreams of spring shorten this winter for you.

For our Martintown readers especially, D. R. McCallum sent out a Christmas card in 1881 which said, "In retiring from Business in this Village, where I have enjoyed such pleasant relations with my Customers and the Public, I beg to tender my heartfelt thanks and at the same time wish you and yours a Happy Christmas and a Bright New Year. On the front of the card is a colorful bird and a Christmas message.

I have also come across a snapshot of a horse and wagon with several people and a load of fruit baskets. On the edge of the wagon's floor is printed "Glengarry Fruit Farm." The photo was taken along a railroad track and there are rows of fruit trees in the background. Could the farm have been in the Lancaster or Summerstown areas?

The Dec. 27 issue of the Toronto Star carried a photograph and article on the Cappuccino family at Christmas time. Under the photograph is printed "Family Reunion: Bonnie and Fred Cappuccino of Maxville, east of Ottawa enjoy a Yuletide gathering with their large brood of adopted children and their offspring. The headline for the article is "Parents' big hearts span globe" and the sub-heading "Kids of all races home for holiday." These summarize much for this well known Baltics Corners family.

Thanks go to Dawn Thomson, Toronto for sending the clipping to Maxville.

News of the rare pileated woodpecker have come from a reader living just west of Riceville. Other readers from Alexandria and Dominionville have a pair of cardinals each. The former reader also reports 24 mourning doves at their feeders. We have only six, which is one less than a week ago because a hawk has taken one while being viewed in this considered cruel act which is only natural for the hawk.

A Dyer resident has ruffed grouse (partridge) feeding at their corn crib and for one night at least, sleeping under an evergreen tree, snuggly buried in the snow.

To escape the cold, we had a pigeon roosting on our chimney on Sunday. We don't like the thoughts of lost heat but at least there apparently isn't too much pollution in the smoke.

Jackpot winners of the bingo held last Saturday were Anita Roy of Ste. Justine, Françoise Ranger of St. Eugene, Denise Major of St. Rédempteur, Lucille Sabourin of Rigaud and Marie Marleau also of Rigaud.

Mystery game went to Huguette Fournier of Dalkeith and the bonanza to Jeannine Levac of Ste. Marthe. Next bingo date will be on February 12.

People on the move

A group of people from the Glen had a very pleasant trip last Friday visiting the Oratoire St. Joseph in Montreal.

A few stops on the way were effected for passengers and the bus was full.

There were 250 stalls representing different countries displayed and it was a marvellous exposition.

Supper was enjoyed at the Vieux Munich. Everyone had a good time.

How about trying your luck at gambling? A trip is being planned for this Thursday, the 20th to visit the casino in Montreal. If you are interested, please phone Juliette at 874-2267.

Optimist news

Did you hear her on the radio? Our Sue was ecstatic. Sue Poirier was the lucky winner of a $1,400 computer on the great combination contest from CFLG of Cornwall on Dec. 23. Congratulations, Sue.

At the Optimist meeting last Sunday, there were a few guests who participated in the "Essaie Littéraire." Family members were also present.

Title of the essay was "Les limites de la liberté" and each contestant had to write from 400 to 500 words on the subject.

Third place winner was Julie Horvath, second — Normand Lacroix, first — Michel Lortie.

They received pins, a certificate plus a pen and pencil set. Julie was absent.

Judges for the event were Roxanne Menard, Berthe Larocque and Francine Rouette.

Michel's script will be sent for the finals which will be held at a later date and we wish him the best of luck.

Congratulations to all the winners and to all those who participated.

Rene Caron, a French and popular comedian will be coming to this area in April to talk against violence and about the program T.R.O.P. which stands for travail de réflexion pour des ondes pacifiques.

Violence is a fact of life in today's society and a disease that affects us all.

In today's society, a child, by the age of 12 years has seen 8,000 murders and 100,000 acts of violence on TV. Incredible isn't it?

After many hours of watching violent shows, you get to a point where you think it's normal and even acceptable.

If a person comes to you and says that they have been a victim, don't judge them — just offer them your shoulder, your help.

There is never an excuse for violence, that's right, NEVER. No amount of violence is acceptable. Zero violence is acceptable.

Prayer week for unity

From Jan. 23 to Jan. 30 is the week of prayer unity.

Our Holy Father invites us all to unite and pray especially for peace in the Balkans.

He recommends fasting on Friday, the 21st, which is also our day of adoration in the parish.

He invites everyone to unite and pray this coming Sunday for peace.

On that day he will celebrate a special mass and ask the Lord to change the hearts of men and never let the world despair in the face of war and evil forces.

The year 1994 has also been declared as the international year of the family. Good families are the most important aspect of society and our hope for the future.

Have a good week!

Five-year-old Jessica Lepage of Alexandria, pictured here getting fingerprinted by Capital Security employee Darin Bougie, was one of 175 kids brought to the child identification clinic held Saturday. The Safe-T First Identification Systems clinic created a child identification record of each child, consisting of a picture, fingerprints, height and weight. Each parent was given one copy of the record and can be used in case a child goes missing.

Looking back at the past

I think Charlie Munroe played a few games with that team.

The coach was Clint Benedict, one time NHL goaltender. He got credit for being the first goaltender to drop down to the ice to stop low shots. Sports writers called it the 'Benedict Flop.' Today all goalies do it."

Seventy years ago, James Vallance, father of Allan and Wilfred became deputy-reeve of Kenyon. Twenty years later, he died suddenly in his truck while delivering milk to Bordens. Mr. Vallance did set a precedent for his two sons who went into township politics.

Gladys Cluff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Cluff did not become a nurse but apparently switched to teaching. She taught here for several years as Mrs. Art Charlton.

The home Dan MacLeod bought here 50 years ago is now that of Mrs. Albert Boisvenue. Mr. MacLeod brought a few Jersey cows with him and pastured them on the few acres that went with the house. He sold cream in bottles in the village.

Forty years ago Donald C. Munro became minister of the United Church here. He was married after he moved here and Mrs. Munro became a very active community worker with a lovely garden. They retired to Kingston in 1965. Since then, the church's ministers have been the Rev. Ernest Henderson, the Rev. Paul Grassie, the Rev. Harold Alston and the Rev. Frank Bailey who retired here last summer. Forty years after Mr. Munro started with the charge, the Rev. Ed Gratton is its new minister.

Give me shelter!

Residents searching for winter escapes

Selling much ice cream these days, Alex? Booking many vacations to Alaska, Barb? Any takers for sandals, Roger? Beanshaves in big demand, Rollande?

Yes, with my tongue firmly stuck to the inside of my metallic cheek, even I can't do much but mumble about the cold. While big-time car boosters might be enjoying a bit of repartee in between doing the neighborly thing, social correspondents have been shut-in, shut-down, and regrettably, shut-up!

Movie rentals and book borrowing are at an all time high as Williamstowners pass leisure time snuggled in front of fireplaces, heaters or open oven doors. Young men get a glimpse of the way they will look in the future - white eyebrowed and mustachio'd, while women chuck vanity for headgear weird enough to wind up in newspaper editorials.

Yes, hoary frost days are upon us and it feels ba-a-d-d!

But...while we wimps whine for warmth, our elders, who have been-through it all before and no longer have to worry about a change in facial hair coloring, are carrying on in usual fashion.

Both of our local clubs, The Friendly Neighbors and The Glengarry Community Club, have met recently and enjoyed their outings.

At the Glengarry Community Club's Open Euchre, ladies high winner was Reta Heath with Simon Fraser winning for the gents. Other winners included Anne Lalonde, Ileen Latreille, Alex Lalonde and Delard Dubeau.

Edna Edmunds went home with the door prize, while Margaret Kennedy, Margaret McLennan, Edith Abrams,ethel Clark, Arlene Munro and Carol Dubeau shared 50/50 prizes.

The group's January birthday party was held in honor of January babies - Alice Portant, Florence Dubeau and Delard Dubeau. Alda Major made the cake for the occasion.

Meanwhile the Friendly Neighbors birthday party was held on Thursday. Card winners included Theresa Bourdeau, Ella Bergeron, John Krol and Austin Abrams.

Alda Major was rewarded for her cake-making by winning the door prize and a 50/50 draw. Other 50/50 winners included Annette Chretien, Rita Poirier,Cecile Lebland and two-time winner, Gilberte Marsh.

Marie Vendette brought the birthday cake to this party for Eleanor Gibson, Alice Portant and Annette Chretien, who all celebrated in January.

Williamstown lost a wonderful person last Tuesday with the passing of Kay McDonald who died after a brief illness. Kay, whose cheery laugh and good humor warmed many a heart, will be remembered for her many acts of kindness, especially to newcomers to her church and community.

To her husband, Bernie, and Kerry, Cheryl, Donna and Kim and their families, we extend our most sincere sympathy.

Sympathy too, goes out to the MacDonald family, Annette, Emily, Duncan, Albert and Bob, on the passing of their brother,John Edward MacDonald of Summerstown who died Jan. 12.

The news has been received that a former resident of the Third Concession, Jean (nee Calder) Dorland died at her daughter's home in Kitchener in December. Mrs. Dorland was the last of the Calders, having been predeceased by her sister Mary and brothers, Alexander, Donald and Roy.

The league-leading Char-Lan Rebels Jr. B. hockey team should be able to remain on top of things for the next few years if the local talent pool is anything to go by.

The Char-Lan Midget Rebels captured the Silver Stick North American "B" championships in Sarnia on the weekend, putting Williamstown on the map. In fact, I'm willing to bet there are some teams from the southern states who have hauled out their atlases to see just where our hamlet is located.

A good contingent of parents accompanied the boys to the tournament and were rewarded for their support.

To coach, Randy Larocque, assistants Brian Reasbeck and Brian Fisher and the team, we offer our congratulations.

And just who is "the team?" Hats off to: Gerry Valade, Ryan Derry, Kelsey Lemire, Scott Giroux, Jason Corput, Marty McDonell, John Fisher, Stephane Veillette, Craig Hopkins, Jim Gray, Jason MacCuaig, Darrell McDonell, Marc Menard, Steve Gareau, Joey Dupuis, Jason Flaro and Jeff Proctor.

A scuttlebutt item in the Seaway News reports that Audrey (Koelmans) Adams has yet to receive her invitation to Williamstown High School/Char-Lan DHS Reunion.

Relax,Audrey, you are not alone! Many former students have yet to receive the coveted invite, but rest assured that diligent volunteers on the reunion committee are doing their best to leave no one out in the cold!

The problem remains that organizers have yet to hear from some people who are supposed to be hunting down the addresses of classmates. Take this week, for instance. Organizers suddently have learned that the person who they thought was responsible for "doing" the list of students who were in Grade 9 in 1984-85, is unable to help.

An S.O.S. therefore is going out to anyone from that year who can help out in this emergency and do so QUICKLY. If you are willing, please call Jean Fraser at 931-1003 or Phyllis Major at 347-1734. In the meantime, please be patient. You will receive your invitations in plenty of time.

This week the Reunion Committee seeks information leading to the whereabouts of the following: Carole-Anne Paquette, Denise Paquette, Doris Petzak, Ward Phillips, Norma Quesnel, Richard Raby, Carol Racine, Lynn Rochon, Sherry Rochon, Dennis St. denis, Theresa Theoret, Billy Voutianitis, Judy Waldron, Diane Whitford, Brenda Flaro, Joanne Massia and Alan Primeau.

Social contract changes public school calendar

Martintown
by Lillian Rouleau

Martintown Public School

In his January newsletter sent home to school families, principal Dave Irwin reports the following changes to the school calendar, due to the social contract.

1. There will be no P.A. day on Wednesday, Feb. 2;

2. Interviews will be held on Friday, March 11.

3. Monday, March 21, will be a "Rae Day," and there will be no school, but an extra day off for students, tagged on to the March Spring Break.

Other advanced dates to note are Thursday, Feb. 24, when there will be an in-school science fair, and Friday, Feb. 11, when the school will have its winter carnival. Students will travel to the Char-Lan Arena for an afternoon of skating.

Christmas food drive successful

The Christmas food drive at the school was a great success, and $210 was collected through the Christmas appreciation card program, whereby students replaced the gift exchange with a small contribution and a card.

The monies thus collected were presented to the home for abused women in Alexandria during the holidays.

Christmas concert video available

Anyone wishing a copy of the Christmas concert on video is asked to contact student Corey Kalsi at the school.

General school committee meeting

There will be a general school committee meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 25 at 7:30 p.m. in the school gym.

The purpose of the meeting is to keep parents informed as to the long-term goals of the school and to bring more awareness of new programs and how they will affect the children.

Specific time will be given to outdoor education and how children will be assessed and evaluated in accordance with the common curriculum.

Parents are asked to make an effort to attend.

Blueberries fundraiser

The school committee will once again be selling frozen Nova Scotia wild blueberries and order forms will be available soon, with delivery sometime the week after the March break. More details in the near future.

Cemetery can't expand until rezoning goes through

By Scott Ferrier
News* reporter

Plans to expand the cemetery at St. Andrews United Church hit a small snag because of improper zoning.

The problem was learned at Lancaster Township Council's meeting, held Jan. 5.

The land had not been zoned for industrial use — required for the cemetery. And the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations insisted that the land be rezoned.

The application for rezoning was approved by council at the Jan. 5 meeting.

The application will be forwarded to County Planner Kay Stone for preparation of the required documents.

The item is expected to return to council at its meeting to be held tonight (Jan. 19), Clerk- Treasurer Mike Samson said.

After the meeting, Samson explained that the church was built long before zoning designations were required for parcels of land.

Somehow the church slipped through the cracks and was never zoned.

The January Bible coffee meeting led by Shelia Paterson and Nancy Campbell met on Thursday, Jan. 14 for a special luncheon get-together at a restaurant in Hawkesbury with 24 area women present.

Humorous little skits about how one should invite others to attend a CWC meeting were presented by Doris Spencer and Lorna Chapman, and another one by Jean Bush and Margaret MacPherson.

A duet by Della MacDonald and Lorna Chapman followed and was aptly named Sweet Hour of Prayer.

The assembly separated into groups for the devotional part and then reassembled for community prayer.

People who believe that much can be accomplished by prayer meet every month to pray for their country, communities, for others and special ministries.

Though these are just ordinary people, who perhaps cannot go out to battlefields, to front lines, or to disaster areas, they are faithful supporters, who quietly offer regular prayer support when and where they can. This meeting was one such gathering.

Horticulture Society executive to meet Saturday, Jan. 22

Martintown Goodtimers will be held Thursday, Jan. 27 at 1:30 p.m. in the community centre.

Horticulture society executive meeting

Members of the executive committee of the Martintown and District Horticulture Society will meet (weather permitting), at the home of John and Elizabeth Peters, Saturday, Jan. 22 at 1 p.m.

They will be planning the year ahead concerning program and speakers, yearbook, premiums, etc.

A joint meeting with the Williamstown Greenthumbers is being planned for April 25, with more information to follow as it becomes available.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church news

Sunday morning's service was conducted by Dave Geddes, in the absence of Rev. Ian MacMillan. The Adult Bible Study meeting has been cancelled for this week, but will resume next week, on Wednesday, Jan. 26.

The joint Youth Group of Martintown/Lancaster churches will meet at the home of John and Connie Ferguson in Lancaster, Saturday, Jan. 22, at 7:30 p.m. The group will enjoy pizzas and see a video.

Enjoying feeding birds

Lilian and Vince Fraser, who live on Island Road (6th Concession) near Martintown, report seeing three male and two female cardinals at their bird feeders this past week.

There are countless birds searching for food during these harsh winter days, and the Frasers enjoy seeing several species coming to their feeders, among them bluejays, a dozen woodpeckers, snow birds, finches, grosbeaks, and mourning doves.

It seems the birds live in the cedar bush on Pearl and Marland Murray's land, and come in for feeding at the Frasers and hurry back to the shelter of the bush.

Midget Rebels are North American champs

The Char-Lan Midget Rebels travelling team made Glengarry hockey history on Sunday by winning the ''B'' class of the North American Silver Stick championships in Sarnia.

The Rebels become the first local team to win the North American title, going one-better than the 1988 edition of the Alexandria midget team that finished as runner-up in Sarnia.

The Silver Stick championship represents a zenith in the 12-year coaching career of Rebels bench boss Randy Larocque.

''The (regional tournament) in Pembroke was a real big one because we had five very tough games,'' he said. ''I had a good feeling after my second year of junior B (1991-92) even though we didn't make the playoffs, but these tournaments in Pembroke and Sarnia are a real highlight.''

Char-Lan wrapped up the championship with a 5-2 victory over a team from Bristol, Pennsylvania in the final on Sunday morning. The Rebels qualified for the championship game by beating Bristol and Wheeling, West Virginia and tying Huntsville, Alabama in the preliminary round.

For Larocque, the Rebels' championship performance was satisfying for two reasons.

''I think it'll take a few days for the whole thing to hit me, but what gets me is the way everybody contributed to the victory,'' he said. ''Plus, I'm very happy with the way they behaved. They're real good kids and I didn't have any problems with them at all.

''I'm very proud of the boys,'' said Larocque. ''I also have to mention the work of the assistant coaches - Brian Fisher, Brian Reasbeck and Art MacCuaig - and manager Larry Gareau. These guys are a main reason why we were able to be successful in Pembroke and Sarnia.''

Lemire stars in final

Kelsey Lemire had three of Char-Lan's goals as the Rebels beat Bristol to win the North American title.

The line of Lemire, Jeff Proctor - who scored once - and John Fisher combined for eight points in the game but it was Scott Giroux who got the Rebels going by scoring 30 seconds into the contest.

The Rebels led 4-2 when Bristol went on a power play with less than two minutes remaining. The Pennsylvania club pulled its goalie to get a six-on- four advantage, but Larocque felt confident his team would hold on.

''I guess I had a lot of faith in the penalty-killing because I just didn't think they could score two goals in the time left,'' he said.

The Rebel penalty-killers proved worthy of their coach's confidence and Lemire iced the contest with an empty-net goal in the dying seconds.

''We felt pretty confident going into the final because we had already beaten them (in the preliminary round),'' said Rebels defenceman and captain Marc Menard. ''We knew that if we worked hard, we could beat them again.''

Menard said the Rebels' play in Sarnia was a repeat of the team's strong showing in Pembroke last month.

''It was pretty similar to the way we played in Pembroke because of how we came together as a team.''

Menard's strong play was one of the keys to the Rebels winning efforts as the 17-year-old Green Valley native was named to the all-tournament team along with teammates Kelsey Lemire (left wing) and Ryan Derry (goaltender).

Preliminary results

The Rebels opened the tournament by defeating Wheeling 7-2 on Friday night.

Darrell McDonell scored twice for Char-Lan while single goals were added by Jason MacCuaig, Jeff Proctor, Marty McDonell, Steve Gareau and Kelsey Lemire. John Fisher had three assists.

In their second outing, the Rebs downed Bristol 5-3 as Marty McDonell netted a pair. Joey Dupuis, Marc Menard and Stephane Veillette also scored while Scott Giroux had three assists.

Huntsville held the Rebels to a 1-1 tie in the final preliminary game as Stephane Veillette scored the only Char-Lan goal.

It was easily the Rebels poorest effort of the competition.

''The game was played at 8:20 on Saturday night but it should have been played at 3 a.m. with the rest of the low-grade horror movies,'' observed Larocque.

The Huntsville Horror Show was perhaps the only low point to interrupt the series of highs that brought the Silver Stick championship to Williamstown.

The Rebels went 7-0-2 in the nine qualifying and final round games with 31 goals for and a mere 15 goals against.

''It's such a great feeling,'' said Menard, summing up the whole scenario nicely. ''We're the best team in North America in the ''B'' division.''

Cornwall indoor soccer leaders play to draws

A pair of summit meetings highlighted the slate of games in the Cornwall Indoor Soccer League on Sunday.

Both games ended in ties as women's division co-leaders Minimax Hearts and Bergeron Chargers played to a 4-4 draw while top men's club Atlantic Storm were were tied up in a 2-2 knot by second-place Filion Trophies.

The Hearts and Chargers remain tied at the top of the women's division as each club has 21 points.

Carol MacLeod had two goals for the Hearts on Sunday while Bonnie MacLeod and Kathy McDonald added singles. Lisa Celone - with a hat trick - and Josee Houde connected for the Chargers.

In the Filion-Atlantic game, Mike Cafariello scored both goals for Trophies while Brian Cameron and Steven Cameron replied for the Storm.

Atlantic tastes defeat

Sunday's action also featured the Atlantic's first loss of the season as the Storm was upset 2-1 by La Maison.

Steve Hughes accounted for both La Maison goals while Brian Cameron scored again for the Atlantic.

Meanwhile, 1994 is off to a good start for M and D Sports as the team won its second game in a row to start the New Year by outgunning St.Lawrence College 6-3.

Craig Calvank and Toni Boos each scored twice for the winners with singles going to Brian Mosher and Martin Stadelmann.

Rudi Payer Sport blanked the King Edward Flyers 6-0 as Roy MacDonell paced the offence with two goals.

Pat Burke, Junior Blanchette, Greg Deschamps and Andy McCuaig also scored for Rudi's.

In Sunday's other men's division games, Mr. Sub outscored Porky's 9-5, Filion Jewellers shut out Osnabruck 2-0, La Maison beat Best Western 5-2 and Filion Trophies downed Jiggers 5-1.

Hay leads Kirk Hill

Shirley booted in a pair of goals as Kirk Hill got back on the winning track with a 5-2 victory over St.Lawrence College.

Jenny Lowe, Kelly Villeneuve and Lisa Poirier also scored for Kirk Hill. Christine Villeneuve and Charlene Willard scored for St.Lawrence.

Elsewhere in the women's division, the Bootleggers beat the French Fry Factory 3-1 and Jovana's blanked Marlin's Travel 3-0.

Thunder is silenced

Travis Giroux and Bruce Mitton each scored once and Chris Smith recorded the shutout as Rudi Payer Sport defeated the Williamstown Thunder 2-0 in Char- Lan Indoor Soccer League action on Monday.

The loss is only the second for the Thunder this season, with both setbacks coming at the hands of Rudi's.

Williamstown played to a 4-4 tie in their other game on Monday as Vanelli's Warriors earned their sixth point of the season.

Jeff Proctor tallied twice for the Thunder with singles going to Garry Benson and Brian Deschamps. Peter Mesman, Andre Gravelle, Dennis Acheson and Jason Robertson replied for the Warriors.

The Thunder's inability to collect more than one point on the night allowed the Glengarry Stars to move back into sole possession of first place.

The Steiche Brothers paced Glengarry to a 6-2 victory over the SDG Nomads on Monday as Matthew netted four goals while younger brother Daniel added a single. Alain Decoste also scored for the Stars.

Pierre Seguin and Cyril Dixon accounted for the Nomads scoring.

Next week, the Warriors will play the Stars at 7 p.m. and Rudi's at 8 p.m. The Nomads will square off against the Thunder at 9 p.m.

Kingston edges atoms

The Char-Lan atoms came out on the short end of a 3-2 score in the heart- stopping final to a minor hockey tournament played in Brockville on Jan. 9.

The championship game featured five overtime periods, and not surprisingly Char-Lan netminder Eric Bishop and his Kingston counterpart both excelled in the contest. The duo shared the tournament's best goalie award.

Graham Charbonneau and Jamie Leger scored for the Rebels in the final.

Danny Lafave scored twice as Char-Lan reached the final with a 4-2 win over Cornwall in the semi-final round. David Periard and Nicolas Dube also scored.

In the preliminary round, Char-Lan posted 7-2 wins over South Stormont and Kanata as well as a 6-1 victory over Willowdale.

Graham Charbonneau had six goals for the Rebels in the preliminary round while Jason Gales scored four times.

The Rebels' other scorers were Nicolas Dube (three goals), Jamie Leger and Jordan Reasbeck (two each) as well as Patrick Smith, Matthew Verdone and Darren Meloche.

Novices

The novice Rebels were also involved in a tournament earlier this month, although they didn't enjoy the same success as their atom counterparts.

Bradley Flipsen and Devin Bancroft each scored once as Char-Lan opened the Arnprior tourney with a 2-1 win over Kemptville, but the Rebels then suffered a 4-2 loss to the host club and a 4-3 defeat at the hands of the South End Capitals.

Leo Dignard and Robb Schaeffer scored in the Arnprior game while Schaeffer had a deuce against South End. Chris Laperle also connected against the Caps.

In a league game played on Friday, the Rebs lost 5-2 to Smiths Falls as Robb Schaeffer and Dominic Dube scored for Char-Lan.

Bantams

The Char-Lan bantams notched a pair of wins last week, downing Alexandria 5-1 on Wednesday and shutting out South Stormont 3-0 on Sunday.

Kent McDonell, Patrick Dubeau, Jason Bacon, Eric Matte and Chris Roy each scored once against the Glens while Matte and Kacey MacDonell each assisted twice.

Cory Benton picked up the shutout against the Flyers while Bradley Reid scored twice. Darryl Knight also scored.

Rob Curran (left) had a goal and two assists as the Char-Lan Rebels defeated the South Grenville Rangers 5-2 Saturday.

Rebels beat Rangers as quartet sits out

For a team that has been in first place since the opening days of the Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League season, the Char-Lan Rebels are going through some mighty tough times.

The Rebels looked absolutely lifeless in dropping a 10-7 decision to the Alexandria Glens on Friday (see related story), a game which was just the latest in a series of ho-hum efforts by the Char-Lan skaters.

The Rebels had more than their fair share of passengers in the Alexandria game, a fact which did nothing but add to the frustration of the team's coaching staff and management.

Head coach Philip Brown decided to stomp the boot down the next night when four players arrived late at the Charlottenburgh Recreation Centre for the Rebels' game against the South Grenville Rangers.

Despite already being without winger Jason Chilton and defenceman Dan Carriere, Brown told the tardy foursome - defenceman Chris Petry and forwards Marc Bellemare, Pete St.Jean and Dan Desjardins - to get undressed after the warmup.

The remaining 12 skaters then went out and claimed a 5-2 victory over the Rangers.

''To be successful, you have to be a team on the ice and off the ice. Lately, I haven't been happy with the overall commitment shown by the players,'' said Brown.

''I'm getting sick and tired of guys being late for warmup and just generally not caring about the team. There are too many players that are taking things for granted. Some of the stuff that's been going on simply can't continue''

Brown has verbally chastised his players after poor efforts several times this year, but this is the first time he's taken disciplinary action. Brown hopes the benchings, as well as the solid effort put out by the dozen Rebels who did play on Saturday, will provide a wake-up call to the team.

''In all my experiences on previous teams, guys that sit out have a tendency to come out and play harder the next game. As I heard Mike Keenan say: 'A wounded animal is a dangerous animal.'''

Reserves come up big

Denis St.Jean and Rob Curran each had three-point nights, but it was the solid play of irregulars D.J. Zaluski, Corey Payment and Ian Laplante that paved the way to the Rebels' win on Saturday.

CHAR-LAN Rebels

JR "B" HOCKEY CLUB

Payment contributed a goal and an assist offensively and all three demonstrated the work ethic the Rebel brass would love to see from this team every night.

Denis St.Jean had two goals - including his 50th of the season - while Rob Curran and Bobby Bowles had singles.

Bowles and blue-line mates Paul Rozon, Kyle MacDonell and Dan Methot were both busy and effective while goaltender Jeff Cicchini turned away 33 of 35 South Grenville shots.

Doug Thompson - who scored twice - was the only Ranger to get a puck past Cicchini.

Rebel Yells: Ex-Rebel Andreas Andreasen was back in town on Saturday night as a member of the Rangers. The defenceman assisted on South Grenville's second goal...Dan Carriere sat out Saturday's game after being suspended for a third-period scrap with Alexandria's Denis Dodd on Friday...Pierre Rozon, who plays for the Cornwall midgets, dressed as an affiliated player on Friday...The 10-7 loss to Alexandria marked only the second time this season the Rebels have allowed double digits in goals. Char- Lan lost an 11-10 shootout decision to Morrisburg on Oct. 8...Friday's Chumps Road Warriors was Evan Thompson. Saturday's St.Hubert players of the game were Jeff Cicchini and Rob Curran...The Rebels are in Winchester on Friday while coach Philip Brown will have five of his players with him at the all-star game in Athens on Saturday. Pete St.Jean, Marc Bellemare, Brett Thompson, Bobby Bowles and Denis St.Jean will all take part in the mid-season classic.

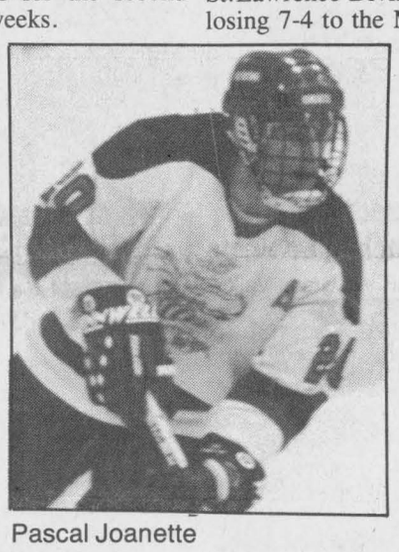
Joanette meets the challenge as captain

In his first game as team captain, Pascal Joanette scored four goals to lead the Alexandria Glens to a 10-7 victory over the Char-Lan Rebels at the Billy Gebbie Arena Friday night.

Joanette, who took over possession of the ''C'' from the recently-departed Randy Gebbie, also had an assist as the Glens defeated their cross-county rivals for the second time in as many weeks.

Carl Bougie and Martin Boisvenue - Joanette's linemates - scored once as did Jeff Gebbie, Richard Hutt, Denis Dodd and Normand Decoste.

Evan Thompson had two goals for Char-Lan while Dan Desjardins, Denis St.Jean, Rob Curran, Marc Bellemare and Pete St.Jean each scored once.



Pascal Joanette

Double homecoming

Burly winger Normand Decoste is back with the Glens after a year's absence and junior B stopovers in Winchester and Clarence.

Defenceman Luc Duval also made his return to Alexandria on Friday after almost four years in the junior A ranks. The Glen Robertson native recorded one assist against the Rebels.

''The addition of Luc is really going to help us because we needed to improve the defence,'' said Joanette, who will be one of Alexandria's three representatives at this Saturday's all-star game. ''Randy was a very good player and I liked playing with him but we're still pretty strong up front, especially since we've added Norm.''

Meanwhile, the 20-year-old winger is enthusiastic about accepting the responsibilities of the Glens' captaincy.

''This is definitely something I wanted. In fact, I would have liked to have had the opportunity before this, but now that I've got it, I'm going to do the best job I can.''

Joanette is the only Glens' player to have suited up for all 34 games this season, and with 37 goals and 50 assists, he's already surpassed his previous highs at the junior level.

''I'm very satisfied with the way things have gone for me this year,'' he said. ''I was shooting for a 100-point season and I think I'm on the right track.''

Glens can't pass Lions

The Glens missed on a chance to move into second place in the St.Lawrence Division on Sunday by losing 7-4 to the Morrisburg Lions.

The Lions are now three points ahead of Alexandria with a game in hand.

Mark Donnelly and Andrew McEwan each scored twice for Morrisburg with single goals going to Mike McAllister, Ken MacLeod and Josh Gowsell.

Carl Bougie had a hat trick for the Glens while Patrick Sauve scored once.

Bougie completed his hat trick with 7:21 left in the third period totie the game at four, but Donnelly scored 30 seconds later to put the Lions back on top.

Donnelly and McEwan scored 13 seconds apart in the next-to-last minute of play to put the game away for Morrisburg.

Glenformation: Pascal Joanette, Denis Dodd and Craig Villeneuve will be representing the Glens at the Rideau-St.Lawrence all-star game this Saturday in Athens...Luke Murray hasn't gone to Alberta after all. The Glens blue-liner was supposed to accompany Randy Gebbie out west, but has taken a job in Ottawa instead. Murray was in uniform against the Lions on Sunday...Darcy McDonell and Jeff Gebbie were called up from the midget team to play on Friday. Alain Decoste played his first game as an affiliate on Sunday in Morrisburg...Michel Jeaurond has completed his three-game suspension and will be back in the line-up as Morrisburg provides the opposition at the Billy Gebbie Arena on Friday night. The Glens will be in Kemptville on Sunday.

Glens stripped of win

The Rideau-St.Lawrence Conference announced last week that it is taking two points away from the Alexandria Glens and awarding them to the Winchester Hawks instead.

The move comes following a protest from Hawks general manager Bill Wammes, who argued that Robert Boisvenue should not have been allowed to be behind the Alexandria bench when the Glens visited Winchester on Dec. 29.

Boisvenue was told to leave the bench after a melee broke out in the late stages of a Dec. 23 game between the Glens and the Kemptville 73's.

A bench minor was called against Alexandria as a result of the incident, but there was no indication of a game misconduct - which carries an automatic one-game suspension - on the official scoresheet. Boisvenue's ejection was noted in the referee's report that was filed separately to the league office.

Unaware that there had been a game misconduct assessed against him, Boisvenue took his place behind the bench in Winchester on Dec. 29. The Glens won the game 5-3 but Wammes threatened to protest.

Even though Boisvenue eventually did serve his suspension by sitting out a Jan. 2 game against the Hawks, the league ruled in Winchester's favor early last week and officially informed the Glens on Friday.

''They've made their decision and that's that - we're not going to push it any further,'' said Alexandria general manager Archie Stewart. ''We lost the two points, but in my mind we still got the win.''

Hoop Gaels get swept

All three Glengarry boys' basketball teams have kicked off the 1994 portion of the SDG season with consecutive losses as the Gaels continue to struggle.

The North Dundas Devils swept the Gaels in Alexandria on Jan. 5 while the Patriotes of La Citadelle won three in a row last Wednesday in Cornwall.

Seniors

Rod Merkley scored 20 points to lead North Dundas to a 53-34 win over the Glengarry seniors earlier this month.

Robert Meth led the Gaels scorers with 10 points, followed by Devin Baggs (nine), Derek Menard (seven) and Rick McCorkell (six).

Last Wednesday at La Citadelle, Meth and Baggs each collected 11 points but the Gaels still lost to the Pats by a score of 51-25.

Juniors

The Glengarry juniors are still winless in 1993-94 as the Gaels dropped their fourth and fifth consecutive games this month.

North Dundas' Chris Wilson netted 19 points as the Devils downed the Gaels 45-33 on Jan. 5.

Daniel Steiche led Glengarry's scorers with 15 points while Ben Williams had 10.

Williams had 15 in a losing cause as the Gaels were bounced 58-30 by the Pats last week.

Midgets

The midget Gaels' win total remained at one as Glengarry lost 21-13 to North Dundas and 27-16 to La Citadelle.

Allan Campbell had six points against the Devils while Stephane Boisvenue was the Gaels' top scorer against the Pats with nine.

Senior spikers are 5-0

The Glengarry senior girls' volleyball team has been extremely successful so far in the 1993-94 United Counties high school season.

Not only are the Gaels undefeated in five matches, Tina Cairncross' club has yet to lose a game in any of their outings.

Glengarry's latest sweep came by scores of 15-8 and 15-11 at the expense of the Cornwall Collegiate Raiders last Thursday in Cornwall.

The junior Gaels improved their match record to 4-1 with a sweep of their own at CCVS. Glengarry easily won back-to-back games 15-2 and 15-4.

The midgets were the only Glengarry club to come back to Alexandria without a match victory as the Raiders prevailed 15-10, 15-10 and 7-15.

Junior Crusaders still unbeaten

At the "A" level, the Char-Lan Crusaders continue to be the class of the junior division as the Williamstown school is now unbeaten in six matches.

Last Thursday in Ingleside, the Crusaders swept Seaway 15-9, 17-15 and 15-3 while taking two of three (15-4, 14-16 and 15-6) from the host Lancers.

Char-Lan has won 16 of 18 games in its six matches.

The senior Crusaders are at an even .500 halfway through the season, including a win over Seaway and a loss to R-O last Thursday.

Char-Lan beat Seaway 15-12, 15-2 and 15-2 but lost a nail-biter 16-14, 13- 15 and 16-14 to the Lancers.

LSPL leaders dominate

The competition for the 1993-94 Ladies' Sponge Puck League championship is strictly a three-team race between Art Benton, SunLife and Tapis Richard Ranger.

Benton, SunLife and Tapis have a combined record of 27-0-0 when playing MacMillan Insurance, M and D Sports and L.C. Electric.

Three of those wins came last Wednesday night at the Billy Gebbie Arena as Tapis blasted L.C. 10-0, Benton beat M and D 5-1 and SunLife downed MacMillan 1-0.

Five points for Stewart

Sue Stewart led Tapis' offence with three goals and two assists as the defending league champions improved their record to 10-3-2.

Mary Nixon and Vivian Lewis each added two goals for Tapis while Elaine Oetelaar and Ann McMillan scored once. McMillan also added three assists while Sue Poirier picked up the shutout.

Benton got two-goal efforts from Debbie Nadon and Karen MacDonald in winning its 12th game of the season.

Chris Deneault had the other goal for the winners while Melissa Mallette replied with M and D's only score.

Bar Cottage earns point

Stephane Gareau scored with 4:22 left in the third period to give Bar Cottage a 3-3 tie with BMR-Menard Lumber in SDG Broomball League action in Maxville on Sunday.

In addition to netting the equalizer, Gareau set up B.C.'s other goals - which were scored by Kevin Leduc and Gilbert Pilon.

Eddy McDonald, Rejean Duperron and Stephane Davidson scored for BMR.

Meanwhile, Norman DeRepentigny scored twice to lead Guy's Radiator to a 3-1 victory over Van Riel Construction.

Dan Bourgeois also scored for Guy's while Henry Pynenburg provided the goal for Van Riel.

As was the case last week, two games were defaulted on Sunday.

Zoppas Construction gets credit for a win over Hunt's Insurance while the Monkland Kings will receive two points for their scheduled game against Allan Crites Excavation.

Jane McCuaig will be playing in a series of exhibition games as part of the Eastern Ontario intermediate women's hockey team.

Lancaster skater make Eastern Ontario team

Lancaster resident Jane McCuaig was selected as a member of the Eastern Ontario women's intermediate hockey team following tryouts in Kingston earlier this month.

The 18-year-old left-winger, who normally skates with a "C" class intermediate team in Cornwall, and her Eastern Ontario teammates will now face off against university and college teams in a series of exhibition games.

Organizers of the Eastern Ontario intermediate squad - which features players in the 18-20 age group - hope to eventually establish "AA" hockey in this region in order to qualify for the national championships.

At the present time, most "AA" women's teams in this province are located in Southern Ontario.

Currently an OAC student at Alexandria's Glengarry District High School, McCuaig has been playing hockey for six years and is looking to continue her career at the university level next season.

McCuaig plans to attend the University of Guelph in September and hopes to land a spot on that school's hockey club.

Familiar foe does damage as Lancers beat Char-Lan

For the second time in as many senior boys' basketball meetings between the Rothwell-Osnabruck Lancers and the Char-Lan Crusaders this season, Jason DeMary stole the offensive show to lead the Ingleside school to victory.

DeMary scored 22 points as the Lancers downed the Crusaders 67-54 last Tuesday in Williamstown. On Dec. 7 in Ingleside, DeMary had 24 points in a 59- 56 R-O win.

This time around, the Lancers sharpshooter barely edged out Chris Lumley for top individual scoring honors as the Char-Lan guard poured in 21 points.

R-O's Steve Telewiak (15 points) and Char-Lan's Trevor Agnew (12) also reached double figures in the contest.

Char-Lan's record is now 1-3.

Juniors lose, midgets win

Despite a game-high 15-point performance by Jason Struthers, the Junior Crusaders dropped a 60-53 decision to the Lancers last Tuesday.

Jeff Proctor added 12 points for Char-Lan while R-O's top scorers were Shawn McEachern (11 points) and Robbie Beckstead (nine).

The Crusaders prevented a Lancers sweep by winning the midget contest 38- 20.

Shawn Brabant led Char-Lan's attack with 10 points while Adam McCosham chipped in with seven.

Seniors host tourney

Earlier this month, the senior team hosted a tournament which featured a pair of "AA" SDG clubs - St.Joseph's and La Citadelle - as well as Plantagenet from the Prescott-Russell loop.

The Crusaders beat Plantagenet 60-49 but lost to St.Joe's (49-37) and La Citadelle (75-47).

Chris Lumley scored a total of 50 points to lead Char-Lan in scoring at the competition while Mike Bissonnette was second.

Harrington scored twice as Malyon played to a 3-3 tie against Munro Agromart.

Menard, Ed McCorkell and Tyson Currier had goals as Munro edged Kalrim Sports 3-2 on Saturday. Jean-Norman Giroux and Stephen Lefebvre scored for Kalrim.

Kalrim's previous outing was a 5-2 win over Longevity as Phillip Hadzocos fired in a pair. Pat Alguire, Jean-Norman Giroux and David Vande Ligt completed the scoring for the winners.

Darryl Major and Willie Larkin scored for Longevity.

Last week's other game saw Longevity blank Munro 2-0. Julian Sarda and Daniel Carr were the goalscorers.

Dick's takes over top spot

Dick's Paving Stones is alone at the top of the Alexandria and District Industrial Hockey League standings after defeating Ernie's Cement Works 3-1 in Maxville on Saturday.

Junior MacDonald netted his fifth and sixth goals of the year to help Dick's improve its point total to 16 - two better than Ernie's and one ahead of Legion Br. 423, which also won on Saturday.

Wendell Lafave also scored for Dick's while Glen McMillan accounted for the only Ernie's goal.

Meanwhile, the Legionnaires outscored Decoste Welding 10-5 as Mike Campeau paced the winners with three goals. Campeau now has 14 tallies on the season and is tied for third in the ADIHL in that department.

Morris McCormick and Andre Seguin each scored twice for the Legion with singles being added by Lee Taillefer, Lyndon Cameron and Gerald Cholette.

Taillefer and Cholette also had three assists as each player turned in a four-point afternoon.

Sylvain Levert had a goal and two assists for Decoste. Maurice Leduc, Robert Decoste, Danny McKay and Joel Doiron also scored.

Bantams can't buy win

It has been well over a month since the Alexandria bantams have won a hockey game as the Glens dropped two more contests last week.

On Wednesday, the Glens were beaten 5-1 by the Char-Lan Rebels as Mark Laferriere scored the only Alexandria goal.

The Glens were blanked 4-0 on home ice by the South Grenville Rangers on Saturday.

Alexandria will get another shot at winning its first game since Dec. 5 tonight in Cornwall.

Caring for Life

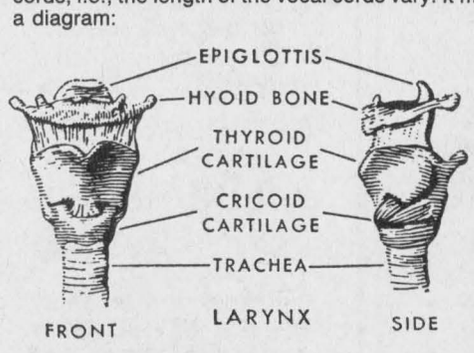
VON CANADA

By Dr. George McKiel

"The Voice"

Dedicated to Ken Roach

It takes a singer, like Ken, to make us really appreciate our voice box, the larynx, for with Ken we can soar, be thrilled with his rhythmic phonations. So how do we manage such a repertoire of sounds with a voice box that is less than the size of a tin whistle? The sounds originate from vibrations of the vocal cords which set up sound waves in the column of air above it; in the pharynx, nose and mouth. Speech doesn't come from the larynx but is molded by shapings of pharynx, palate, tongue, teeth and lips though the larynx moves up and down during phonation. That laryngeal movement changes the length of the columns of air above and below it and this is accompanied by relaxing or firming the edges of the vocal cords, i.e., the length of the vocal cords vary. It may be easier to understand with a diagram:



The walls of the larynx are made up of 9 pieces of cartilage, 3 single and 3 paired. the 3 single are called thyroid cartilage, epiglottis and cricoid (a ring). The epiglottis, or trapdoor, plays an essential role when we swallow, for the larynx moves up and the free, leaflike flap becomes a lid, sealing off the air passage so food/liquid are routed into the esophagus.

The thyroid cartilage (Adam's Apple) is 2 fused plates making up the front wall of the larynx and giving it a bulging triangular shape. This Adam's Apple is always larger in the male. The other male difference is that the vocal folds are both thicker and longer so the voice pitch is lower as the vocal cords vibrate more slowly.

The major function of the larynx is, however, to provide an efficient passage for moving air between the trachea and pharynx. The larynx can play a significant role too in expelling foreign material by increasing the air pressure and then blowing it clear with a cough. We must also give the larynx some credit for increasing the thoracic pressure when we are straining hard in lifting, defecating.

Thyroid, incidentally, derives from early Greek and means "shieldlike". Note from the sketch that the thyroid cartilage has a downward nick on its top rather like a Greek shield of Homeric times. You can easily feel the nick with your fingers if you place them in front of the Adam's Apple, just under the chin. There is a legend that when Adam swallowed the bite of apple in Eden, he couldn't quite get it down so the mark of his effort is present in all Adam's male descendants as the bump of the larynx. This is completely unbiblical and unrealistic but it is a cute explanation for Adam's Apple. Another paired laryngeal cartilage is called arytenoid cartilages and small muscles attached to these rotate the arytenoids so that the vocal cords move away from each other, forming a V with the apex forward. This produces a wider opening so air passes up and down without affecting the cords.

FOR BIRD LOVERS ONLY

Our feathered friends do not possess a larynx. Instead, they produce song or calls with an organ unique to birds, a syrinx, situated at the base of the windpipe. By tightening or relaxing the membranes in the syrinx the bird can set up air vibrations differing in pitch. The songsters have 4 to 9 pairs of muscles attached to the syrinx accounting for the precision and suppleness of their singing. The bird song can be thought of as a secondary sexual characteristic, a badge of masculinity analogous to a human beard. When female birds are injected with the male hormone, testosterone, they begin to sing. So, in birds, singing is tied to the reproductive cycle and outside of it the "song center" in their brain shrinks - they seem to forget to sing.

LARYNGITIS and CANCER

Laryngitis is an inflamation of the larynx, most often caused by a respiratory infection or irritants such as cigarette smoke. When the cords are inflamed you experience a hoarseness or even a total loss of voice as the vocal folds can no longer vibrate. Many long term smokers acquire a permanent hoarseness due to chronic irritation of the vocal folds.

Cancer of the larynx is found almost exclusively in smokers (at least 4,000 Canadians every year). This type of cancer, if diagnosed early, can be treated with radiation and there's an 85% chance of beating it.

In Memoriam

BLANCHETTE, Colette — In loving memory of a dear daughter and sister, who passed away January 18, 1989.
A part of my heart has gone with you that can never be replaced
A look, a sigh, a laugh I need, or just to touch your face.
I hear your whispered voice at night, sleep tight, don't cry, I'll be all right.
—Sadly missed by her mother, sisters and brother. 3-1p

VAILLANCOURT — In loving memory of a dear husband, father, grandfather and father-in-law, Eldege Vaillancourt, who passed away January 18, 1992.
Remembering you is easy,
We do it every day;
Missing you is a heartache
That never goes away.
You had a smile for everyone
You had a heart of gold,
You left the sweetest memories
This world could ever hold.
To us you were someone special
What more is there to say,
Except to wish with all our hearts
That you were here today.
—Always remembered by loving wife, Laurette, daughter Jeannine and Raymond, son Richard and Catherine and grandchildren.

HAMELIN, Marie-Ange (Théorêt) — In fond memory of a dear, dear wife, mother and grandmother, who sadly passed away January 16, 1993.
No one can ever know the emptiness in our hearts this past year. Your unselfishness, kindness, example of faith, your tenderness - a person as special as you. Everyone remembers you fondly because you touched all who knew you. We appreciate the time you gave to your grandchildren: we will keep your memory alive for them. We pray that Mary the Mother of our Lord will keep you and us in her care.
Until we meet again, rest peacefully, Mom, with all our love.
3-1c —Your Family

In Memoriam

MacDONALD, Alexander — In loving memor
a dear husband and father who passed av
January 19, 1973.
If we could have a lifetime wish —
One dream that could come true;
We would pray with all our heart
For yesterday — and you.
—Always remembered by Jean and Barb
Mae. 3

HAMELIN — In fond and loving memory
dear sister and sister-in-law, Marie-A (Théorêt) who passed away January 16.
Dearer to us than words can tell,
Are the thoughts of one we loved so well.

Why do bees hum? Because they don't know the words.

Why is the letter ''A'' like a flower? Because ''B'' always comes after it.

Brown House Circle

It is still not too late to mention the gala dinner attended by the members and guests of the Brown House Circle just before Christmas with beverages of many types, good food, good friends and lots of games and prizes afterwards.

Is it any wonder that the seniors were loath to leave St. Raphael's Parish Centre at the end of their annual celebration on Dec. 15.

They even had the energy to attend the monthly meeting last week, even defying the snow and winds to start making plans for the coming year. May they live long and prosper.
