GLENGARRY IN BRIEF

Farewell to Lochiel

Lochiel residents are invited to bid a final farewell to their township this Saturday.

The festivities will run from 12:30 p.m. to 1 a.m. at the township garage on Old Military Road.

The event includes entertainers from Lochiel all afternoon, games and displays as well as a beer garden.

The evening dance will feature Mike Gibbs and Jake at Work, who are both from the township.

Mother - daughter walk raises $13,338

More than $13,000 was raised in the Heart and Stroke's mother-daughter walk in Cornwall Sunday.

Some 250 walkers turned out for the event which takes in all three united counties.

MP Kilger to visit

Bob Kilger, MP for Stormont-Dundas and Charlottenburgh, is setting up a monthly consitutency visit to the township.

"With the addition of Charlottenburgh Township to the Stormont-Dundas riding, I believe it is important to meet with constitutents in their area to discuss their concerns and assist them," said Kilger.

The constituency visits will be held at the arena meeting room in Williamstown on Sept. 17, Oct. 15, Nov. 12 and Dec 17 from 9 a.m. to 11 a.m.

An appointment is neccesary, but can be made by calling 937-4233.

Amalgamation withdrawl supported

Alexandria council supported the Village of Chesterville's motion to withdraw from amalgamation.

The motion was supported by all but two councillors, Grant Crack and Francine Richer.

The town shares in Chesterville's plight since Alexandria never supported amalgamating with all of North Glengarry, but was outvoted at counties.

Chesterville is being lumped in with North Stormont and will likely appeal to counties at its Monday meeting.

Dump dispute

The courts will hear an appeal in January promted by Carmen Viau in her case against the town's dump.

Viau and the town have been at odds over the town's dump for the past few years.

Viau claims the dump is polluting her water, but last year, the court ruled in favour of the town and dubbed the dump safe.

Natural gas in Lancaster by November

Williamstown taken off the drawing board, will wait at least two more years

By Lynn McCuaig
News editor

Lancaster residents should expect natural gas in their homes by mid-November.

Consumers Gas officials "formally announced" their plans Sept. 10 to lay gas lines through Lancaster and South Lancaster.

"If anyone is thinking of switching over for the next heating season, we will have gas," said Richard Rakus, general manager Eastern region.

The new line begins at the Trans Canada pipe line gate station near the rest area on Hwy 34 and continues down the highway to the village.

Lines will follow almost every street in Lancaster giving everyone in the village a chance at considerable saving to their heating bills.

Studies estimate natural gas can save the average home owner 50 per cent off an electric bill and 35 to 40 per cent off oil. The cost to convert to gas depends on what type of heating is being used presently.

Construction is set to begin on Oct 15 in the village and Rakus promises disruptions to lay lines will be swift.

"We'll be in and out of your street in a day," he said.

The company will be responsible for all property restorations, although some may have to wait until the spring thaw.

While Lancaster prepares for its natural gas, home owners in Williamstown will have to wait at least another two years.

Williamstown, which was hoping to get gas lines at the same time as Lancaster, will not be on the drawing board any time soon.

Because of its distance from Lancaster and Glen Walter, Rakus said it's "not feasible" to lay lines to the tiny hamlet.

The company will only lay lines if the project can pay for itself.

In Williamstown, the number of houses using gas wouldn't pay for the cost of laying line.

And though the Trans Canada pipe line runs just north of the hamlet, every hook up costs about $250,000.

New regulations the Ontario Energy Board is expected to release could make the Williamstown project viable again, said Rakus.

Consumers is also looking at alternative routes that could make it worthwhile.

"Bringing gas to Lancaster can improve the chances of gas to Williamstown, hopefully in the next couple of years," Rakus told the News, stressing the word hopefully.

Many people at Friday's information meeting were from outlying areas hoping to latch onto gas lines.

Resident Frank Paquette spoke on behalf of 18 residents on Airport Road who are "very interested in getting natural gas."

Crime stoppers tips lead to three busts

By Lynn McCuaig
News editor

The community can give itself a pat on the back after helping police find $82,000 worth of marijuana.

Three plots of the illegal plants were found by police thanks to tips received by Crime Stoppers.

The first plantation was found on Sept. 2 in Charlottenburgh Township east of Cornwall.

Lancaster OPP destroyed 150 plants with a street value of about $75,000.

Three days later, OPP discovered 20 plants in Lancaster Township with a value of $10,000.

The third bust was also on Sept. 5 where 15 plants, valued at $7,500 were seized and destroyed in Kenyon Township.

All three investigation were headed by OPP Const. Chris McDonell.

"Due to information received from Crime Stoppers, we've been (in) on three plot removals," said Lancaster Const. Hugh McClements.

McClements said its the public's participation in the program that has helped police to net the illegal suabstance.

"We appreciate it," he said.

All of the marijuana plants have been destroyed, some were burned on site.

Police have no suspects, but the investigation continues.

Labour pool could close doors

BY Lynn McCuaig
News editor

The Agricultural Employment Centre is again in danger of closing.

The AEC, a referral service which helps farmers find labourers, needs $30,000 or it could close within the next few months.

This is the second time the AEC has threatened to close, but this time, its woes aren't caused by failing government grants, but by a lack of support from farmers and agribusiness.

Two offices, one which serves Glengarry, Prescott, Russell from St. Isidore and another located in Nepean, are struggling to stay above ground after a $30,000 short fall in its memberships.

The centre sells $100 memberships which allow farmers unlimited access to its farm labour pool. Others pay the AEC per use.

But the biggest problem, said board chair Jack Shaw, is trying to get farmers to pay for the service.

"Farmers know who the workers are and are calling them directly," said Shaw.

By bypassing the AEC, farmers aren't paying fees which sustain the labour pool.

Shaw said freeloaders are a more serious problem in the Nepean office where this is the first year there has been a user fee. St. Isidore clients paid for the service last year.

Prior to March 1996, farmers had free use of the labour pool. It was founded by Human Resources Canada in 1974 and had four offices in Eastern Ontario.

But when funding was cut, the employment centre turned into a "bare bones operation," said Shaw.

It survives on user fees and, this year, a $53,000 grant from HRC.

Shaw said the AEC board has started approaching the county Federations of Agriculture for some financial help and are hopeful the service can survive.

Shaw believes the service, which was mainly used in case of accident, sickness and vacation, may expand as farms grow bigger and some move to three milkings a day.

Glengarry to get fewer trustees

By Sue Harrington
News Reporter

Retired school board trustees will be a dime a dozen following the November election, which will see Glengarry's representation on each of the four new boards reduced considerably.

In the English Catholic Board — which will take in schools in an area including Lanark, Leeds and Grenville, and Prescott-Russell, as well as SDG — there will be two trustees sharing the City of Cornwall and Glengarry.

The other local representative on this board will be responsible for Stormont and Dundas.

Charlottenburgh resident, Ron Eamer, said that he intends to contest the election.

"I have a strong feeling that experienced trustees are necessary to effect a smooth transition," said Eamer, who represents Charlottenburgh, Lochiel, and Kenyon on the current board.

The French Catholic Board will join the counties of SDG and Prescott Russell. There will be eight board members in all, with one person representing the whole of North Glengarry, South Glengarry, South Dundas and South Stormont.

"We had many scenarios to look upon," said Georgette Sauve, the present chair of the Catholic Board's French section, in explaining how

Candidates canvass for next election

Former Reeve in line for South

By Sue Harrington
News Reporter

Former Charlottenburgh Reeve, Dave MacDonald, is the first to announce his intention to run for the office of reeve in the new Township of South Glengarry.

"I am pleased to announce that I will be making a bid to reclaim the office of reeve in the new township of South Glengarry," said MacDonald on Monday in a press release to the News.

"With the provincial government's Mega Week plans to download essential services to the local municipalities, it will be necessary to have an experienced leader at the helm."

MacDonald was the Reeve of Charlottenburgh from 1991 to 1994, during which time he also sat on counties council.

He said this experience will allow him "to step in with the knowledge to lead this municipality into the next millenium."

During his tenure in Charlottenburgh, MacDonald applied his business knowledge and principles to rid the township of a deficit, and introduce a zero percent tax increase.

His council undertook a major staff reorganization, extended the Purcell water and sewer system to Farlinger's Point, and set in motion the new Finney Bridge.

MacDonald, 44, is the president of Dave's Reliable Signs, a sign sales and service company located in Cornwall. He has resided in Charlottenburgh for 22 years, along with his wife, Suzanne, and two daughters, Renee and Tracy.

"My commitment is to work to the best of my ability on behalf of all residents, making South Glengarry a better place to live and grow," he said, acknowledging his desire to improve existing services for township residents and to be accountable to them.

He said the new council will have to work on policing issues, assessment, and the aftermath of provincial cuts to the Ministry of Natural Resources and the Ministry of the Environment and Energy.

MacDonald, who did not contest the last election, pledged that he would listen to the concerns of the ratepayers, reminding them that "one good term deserves another."

Hagen hangs on for deputy post

By Lynn McCuaig
News editor

Lochiel's Deputy Reeve Bill Hagen announced Monday he will throw his hat into the ring in this fall's election.

Hagen will run for North Glengarry's deputy reeve in the Nov. 10 municipal election.

The Glen Robertson area farmer, and father of four children, brings with him a good knowledge of the community and eight years of experience.

He first joined the council table in 1988 when he was asked to replace a councillor in Lochiel.

He was later elected to the post, and in the last contest, became deputy reeve.

"Politics has always interested me," Hagen said.

In addition to Lochiel government, Hagen is serving a term on SDG counties council where he is chair of the social services committee.

Hagen said his experiences with social services has made him well aware of the provincial downloading set for Jan 1.

And, with amalgamation in line for the new year, Hagen believes his knowledge is invaluable.

"With my experience there, I think I could help build a new municipality," he said.

"There are a lot of changes coming up in the next two or three years."

Cooperation on behalf of the politicians is going to be key to building North Glengarry in order to make it a "smooth transition" to a new township.

Hagen said he hopes to be part of that transition and to be instrumental in dealing with all the services

Seguin spies deputy reeve job

Sue Harrington
News reporter

Alexandria Councillor Fern Seguin has announced that he will run for the position of deputy-reeve in North Glengarry.

Seguin told the News that his many years of experience will be useful in dealing with challenges that amalgamation will bring.

First elected to municipal politics in 1972, Seguin has served intermittently since then.

"The next three years will be very difficult because of amalgamation," said Seguin.

"It's too bad that our (restructuring) committee right now has not been able to solve some of the main issues," he said.

"I guess that will be left to the new council to solve."

Seguin, who had some health problems earlier, said that they have now been resolved. He said he also has the time to spend on politics, having sold his hunting and fishing business last year.

If elected, Seguin said he would be watching closely the activities of counties council.

"They're going to have a lot of power. We'll have to make sure that the result is not an increase in taxes," he said.

"They really need people that have experience to deal with these issues."

Gas in village by November

He explained homes plus the airport could make a viable project for Consumers Gas.

"We're always interested in opportunities," said Rakus.

"The more pipe we put down, the more money we make."

If residents request a gas line, the company will look into the possibility by surveying residents' use and the distance between them.

Ideally, the revenues the company makes are higher than the cost to lay the pipe and there are no connection charges.

But, in some instances, a property owner can pay extra to make up for the shortfall.

It's doubtful rural residents would have a chance at gas unless a big user, like a farm with a corn dryer was in the area.

"One big customer can make a difference," sid Rakus.

The company would like to average a house every 16 to 18 meters to make a line profitable.

South Glengarry politicians show off a map of the new Consumers Gas plans for the area. Pictured in front of the company's display van are: (from left) Lancaster Reeve Janette Abbey, Charlottenburgh councillor Leslie O'Shaughnessy, Lancaster Township Reeve Charles Sangster, General Manager Richard Rakus, and Project Manager Bernie Meilleur. News adds crossword

For the first time in its history, The Glengarry News, is adding a crossword puzzle to its regular columns starting with today's edition.

Publisher Bill McIntyre, in making the announcement said "this reflects not only the changing nature of the newspaper, but also responds to requests from readers."

Initially the puzzle will be part of the classified advertising section. Answers to the puzzle will be provided in the following week's edition adjacent to the new puzzle.

"The problem with running a crossword in a weekly newspaper is the long wait between finishing the puzzle and getting the answers," said McIntyre.

"We thought, however, that this was the best way to handle it." He added that the answer could be published the same week if there is enough demand for it.

The publisher also noted that the News is constantly looking for ways to improve content and provide more for its readers.

Fewer local trustees

the seats were distributed in the new board.

Sauve said she would be running in the election.

The new arrangement for the Public Board was expected to be approved at a meeting held last evening, according to Glengarry trustee, Sam McLeod.

McLeod said he would not be contesting a seat in the election. The final man from Glengarry on the Public Board, Art Buckland, said he was expecting to run again.

The new English public board will cover the same territory as the English Catholic board, but will have five area representatives, including one solely from Glengarry.

The French public board will take on a new entity after the election, becoming autonomous. It will cover a huge geographic area, representing the counties of SDG as well as Ottawa Carleton, Prescott-Russell, Leeds and Grenville, Lanark, Renfrew, Frontenac, Lennox and Addington, Prince Edward and Hastings.

In the November elections, there will be one representative for South Glengarry, Cornwall and Stormont, and one from North Glengarry and Prescott on this board.

"As of today (Monday), if the panic doesn't get any higher, I will be running," current French public board trustee, Micheline Ouellette told the News.

Ouellette, who lives in Alexandria, said the creation of the board as a separate entity was a "very positive" thing. She also said she was not daunted by the distance to be covered as a trustee.

"Because there are so few of us we are used to working together," she said of her compatriots in the other school boards.

Mid-terms phased out

By Sue Harrington
News reporter

Char-Lan District High School will no longer be setting mid-term examinations for its students.

The Williamstown school was the last in Eastern Ontario to hold scheduled exams during specific weeks midway through both semesters.

Principal Mary Mayer said that the decision to follow the pack was not taken lightly.

"We weighed the pros and the cons; it was a difficult decision," said Mayer.

The main reason for dropping mid-terms, according to Mayer, was the number of out-of-school activities going on throughout the board. This made scheduling the exams very difficult.

"We were the only high school left in Eastern Ontario which still had mid-terms," said Mayer. "We wanted to enable our students to be able to attend the activities that other students were."

Mayer stressed she wanted to reassure parents that students will still be getting mid-term report cards, and mid-term tests in class.

"It won't be a big change from the students' perspective. The mid-terms were run during a class period anyway. It's just that now they won't be held during a specific week."

Mayer said that some of the school's departments had dropped mid-terms of their own accord in recent years.

"It's really just math and science which are affected," she told The News.

The principal said that she had received no feedback yet from parents.

St. Raphael's native resident remembers Mother Teresa

By Anna Margaret MacDonald

Mother Teresa died last Saturday, Sept. 6. But to St. Raphael's native resident, Malcolm MacDonald, she will always be alive. He has photos with her at her mother house in India. He has a rosary she blessed especially for him: But he treasures, above all, the fact that he was priveleged to meet this world-renowned little "saint" who taught the world about "real" love.

How did MacDonald manage a personal visit to this "almost unreachable" personage? Touched by an angel, perhaps.

Malcolm was working in Bracebridge, Ont. last summer when Father Jocko Putmahawal, a missionary from India visited the parish. He was impressive. When he extended an invitation to "come and see", Malcolm and two other parishioners responded.

In November Father Jocko met their plane in Madras.

He guided them through many sites beyond the regular tourist trail in the Madras and Hyderabad areas, the school, the Development and Peace projects, the seminaries, the hospitals, where the word "overflowing" can be applied to almost all the institutions.

Having done this, their guide had other commitments and departed, promising to meet them in Calcutta.

The schedule did not work out as planned.

The train arrived in Calcutta, long overdue, near midnight. Father Jocko had missed the connection. No one in Calcutta opens doors at night, including the Irish convent where they were to stay. They asked a taxi driver to take them to a hotel.

He did. It was a very nice hotel. Very posh. It cost $500 for the night. It was that or the black Calcutta streets. They opted for the indoors unaware the angels were at work.

Next morning while waiting for Father Jocko in the hotel lobby, they struck up a conversation with a guest. It turned out to be the well-known auther, Navina Chawla, Mother Teresa's biographer. He told them she wasn't giving interviews but he had a book-signing appointment with "herself" and would they like to come along? They would indeed!

Her "mother house" differed immensely from the large impressive buildings of religious orders in America, they found.

Entrance was down an alleyway to a very common building similar to others along the street. The meeting room was a narrow hallway near the chapel. They stood or sat around informally and "just talked." Well, at least they tried.

"All of a sudden we were in her presence and it was such a touching moment we didn't know what to say or to ask.

There is such an aura surrounding herself and her nuns, so unusual, it leaves a memorable impression recalls Malcolm. When reached by phone at his Edmonton residence on Monday.

"We did manage to converse though. She asked about my family and when she heard my brother was a priest, she emphasized "Oh, we really need more priests."

"She asked us to pray for the underprovided and the unloved.

We must learn to love one another, she admonished."

This meeting was short but more were to follow. Father Jocko contacted his cousin, Sister Teresina, who was also one of Mother Teresa's sisterhood. (One of 3,000).

She was able to conduct them through some of the projects the order tends. There were houses for the newborn, the orphanages, the sick, the dying.

The sisters patrol the streets and retrieve the helpless abandoned by their own people. In Bombay, they have a house for lepers.

Their biggest challenge was the House of the Dying. An English lady living nearby warned them, "If you must go, wear a mask, you don't know what you could catch!"

But Mother Teresa's way doesn't include masks. And thus they entered.

"It's beyond description" MacDonald states. There must have been 50 people on cots, the men on one side, the women on the other. The activity, the sounds, the scents, the atmosphere! But through it all, the smiling, compassionate sisters who work as if it was the most important place in the world to be. For the squeamish, not a place to linger. But to Mother Teresa, it was her favorite house."

The congregation always start their day with mass and meditation before starting out to their various charges.

"We need this spiritual strength to meet the demands of our daily rounds," the founder told them.

Determination leads Ripley to 128-pound weight loss – believe it or not

By Lynn McCuaig
News editor

A sense of determination has made a student turn teacher – and helped her shed 128 pounds in the process.

Nancy Ripley, a former Weight Watchers student, devoted a year of her life to peeling off the pounds, and now she's sharing her success, and spunk, with others.

The 60-year old Greenfield woman is an inspiration to many in the Weight Watchers group she now leads.

Her story? After a lifetime of battling a weight problem and trying every new diet, Ripley lost 128 pounds in 53 weeks, from May 1995 to May 1996.

"I was determined, and now I'm determined to never be that way again," she told the News.

A big part of her secret to keeping the weight off is the group she joined in Maxville in 1995.

Weight Watchers served as a support group for Ripley, who shared her stories, laughter and recipes with other women in the same situation.

Now a leader in Alexandria, she finds the group's support just as important as it was two years ago.

"We become friends for life," said Ripley.

"We have a lot in common, I know what they're feeling."

And now that the tables are turned, the year-old leader feels a wave of emotion every time someone in her group reaches their goal.

"I would like them to feel what I feel now," she smiled.

"I never had much self confidence, but now, I feel that. I want to help them feel that way because it's a fantastic feeling."

But the feeling wasn't always fantastic for Ripley, who was over-weight even in her child hood.

"My mother doesn't remember me this slim," she said.

Throughout her life as an army wife, Ripley tried to lose weight, but could never reach her goal.

She was never unhappy with herself, but had hoped for a better self image. The energetic, confident woman inside was trying to make herself known.

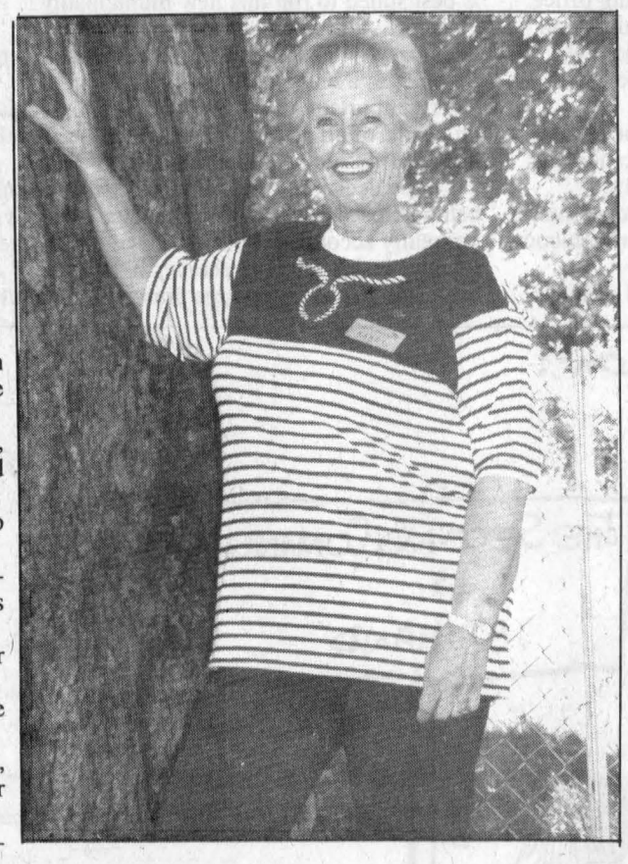
"I must have been this weight at one time, but it must have been in the middle of the night and I missed it" she laughed.

She had once lost 50 pounds in Weight Watchers, but gained it back again when the couple moved from their home in Edmonton to Nova Scotia.

Then, she decided to learn to love herself that way.

It wasn't until her children, which are spread all over the country, decided to have a family reunion that gave Ripley the final push.

"I wanted to be my goal weight for the reunion.



Nancy Ripley lost 128 pounds and now she's trying to help others do the same.

"I focussed and that's what it takes, you have to be focussed."

Now living back in Kenyon, she saw an advertisement for Weight Watchers in The Glengarry News, but didn't take much notice. But when the ad appeared again the next week, she decided to give it a try.

"It was really hard to walk in, to walk into a group when you're so heavy."

She lost six pounds in the first week and was hooked.

The key to weight loss is to get active, said Ripley, who walks 6km every day.

"When I first started, I could hardly walk to the mailbox without being winded, now I can do six kilometers in an hour."

Her only regret is that she didn't take that step to being active sooner.

She still follows the Weight Watchers program, a schedule she calls a way of life.

And as for her group: "They tell me they're encouraged by my weight loss and my determination," said said.

"But I get more than I give because I love to watch them lose. I know what they're feeling."

Her inspirational story was even picked up by Weight Watchers magazine this spring.

A new Weight Watchers group led by Ripley starts next Tuesday (Sept. 16) at 5:45 p.m. in the arena in Alexandria and runs for 10 weeks.

Kids praised for KRAPP project

By Sue Harrington
News reporter

Kenyon Reeve Gwen Morris believes in givng praise where it is due -- especially when it concerns young people.

Morris and Kenyon Council were instrumental earlier in the year in getting (and adding to) a grant from the United Counties to hire four students for a pilot project for waste reduction.

"We're always hearing about the problems with youth." said Morris. "I did a quick survey among the local kids and asked them what it was they wanted. Summer jobs was their biggest priority."

Morris said she had approached Counties Council with a proposal which would allow Kenyon to hire young people for the summer. Counties agreed to contribute $4,500 on condition that the students prepare a written report on their findings.

Kenyon Township put in another $2,000, which permitted them to hire four people to carry out The Kenyon Recycling Awareness Pilot Project (KRAPP). The township was not disappointed.

"They did a wonderful presentation,"said Morris, of the report the students gave to council on Aug. 28.

Not only was there a written report, the students -- Devin Baggs, Melanie Raymond, Jeff Fontaine and Jeremy Dubeau -- also gave an oral presentation complete with overheads.

As part of the project, the students

Alarming stats from audit

Recycling programs have reduced garbage in Kenyon Township by more than 22 percent in the past five years. But some residents are still throwing away materials that could be recycled or composted.

Those are among the findings of an eight-week study of the township's waste habits undertaken this summer by four area students in conjunction with Alexandria's RARE recycling facility.

The students analyzed the contents of some 300 randomly selected garbage bags dumped at the township waste sites at Apple Hill and Dunvegan. They found that between three and six percent of the garbage - amounting to several hundred kilograms - was composed of glass, cans, paper and plastics, all products now easily recyclable through the township's blue-box program.

There were also substantial amounts of hazardous household wastes, including paints, oil, cleaning agents, batteries and aerosol cans - and a discouraging number of non-biogradable, space-taking disposable diapers.

It proposed both continuing education to get more people to recycle - and the use of clear plastic garbage bags to "deter residents from trying to hide their recyclables and their hazardous waste in their garbage."

In addition, the students surveyed almost 600 Kenyon homeowners on their recycling habits. They found that 59 percent used their blue boxes weekly, 34 percent less often, and 7 percent never.

Take ownership of police : Luloff

The following is the first of a series of stories written by Marg Millett, with the encouragement of the Lancaster Community Policing Committee, to help the area get to know its police officers

By Marg Millett
News correspondent

Meet Staff Sergeant Gordon Luloff.

No stranger to the warmth and friendliness of small communities such as ours, Staff Sergeant Luloff brings 27 years of experience to our local O.P.P. Detachment.

From Long Lac, Staff Sergeant Gordon Luloff started his career in 1970, and has been posted to the northern communities of Iroquois Falls, Moosonee, and Englehart.

With the rank of sergeant, he transferred to Long Sault in 1989, and made his home in Cornwall.

In 1994 he assumed the role of detachment commander and the rank of staff sergeant for the Lancaster/Maxville cluster.

Luloff and his wife Aurore have been married for 24 years. They have two daughters. Jennifer is in her fourth year at the University of Ottawa and Janice is in Grade 13.

Outside of regular duties he is always active in his community. Luloff has worked on the Snowsuit Fund and he is currently on the Board of Directors of Community Living, SDG.

Luloff enjoys downhill skiing and runs and jogs all year round.

When talking with the detachment commander, his wish to work closely with the communities in his charge is obvious.

Staff Sergeant Gord Luloff

We talked about the development of community policing committees. He states that, in the early part of his career, co-operation with people and the O.P.P. has always been a strong factor, albeit in a more casual and less structured way.

In reference to neighboring detachments, Luloff stresses that there are no boundaries. Whenever the need arises, all detachments work together, providing a strong network of support.

Luloff obviously enjoys working with co-op students from our local high schools. Each year, one student from Char-Lan, Le Relais (ESRG), and GDHS, spend 100 hours with the detachment.

This is a learning process, he says, from the first interview to trips to court, on patrol, attending functions and doing various secretarial tasks in the office.

This experience, says Luloff, is great for their resumes whether searching for more education or looking for a job.

Our local detachment works with four policing committees providing a liaison officer for each. In Lancaster we have Mike Brodie. Charlottenburg's liaison is Gilles Ruest. Further away, Mike Greenwood works with Lochiel, and the liaison for Kenyon is Tim Brown.

In fact, liaison officers and some members from the C.P.C.'s were attending a seminar in London, Ontario, as we spoke.

There, policing committees, O.P.P., and other policing services have gathered to learn and to share ideas.

Luloff has great respect for the pool of talent provided by the citizens who volunteer for these committees.

As far as amalgamation in '98 is concerned, the structure of the committees will change only through the will of the people, says Luloff.

Asked if he had a message to us, Luloff replied that he would like to instill the idea of ownership. This is our detachment, within our community. He sees us working together as partners.

Luloff would like us to know that his ears are open to suggestions and ideas and that he is available for advice.

In all, Staff Sergeant Luloff serves our community well.

Coming election an important milestone

That Glengarry County is poised to undergo profound changes brought on by amalgamation Jan. 1, 1998, is without a doubt the most significant milestone to come about in the region's recent history.

For example, the small communities that have been in existence in the county for more than 100 years will no longer be separate and distinct entities.

Instead, they will become part of the larger municipality of North Glengarry.or South Glengarry. While they will not physically disappear they will no longer operate autonomously.

Election and amalgamation debate crucial to smooth transition in Glengarry County

Residents throughout the new municipality will have a direct say in what happens in any particular part of the new community.

This is not such a bad thing in that whatever one municipality has done in the past has affected its neighbors.

Undoubtedly many issues will have to be faced in coming weeks and months. The most immediate, of course, is the pending election Nov. 10. In this election reeves, deputy reeves and councillors will be chosen to form new councils.

Each of the existing municipalities will have a representative on council along with a reeve and deputy reeve at large.Make no mistake about it, the transition will not be an easy one.

We are not suggesting that there is any lack of goodwill to make the transition a smooth one, but there are still local loyalties involved. The new council will have to be fair in its allocation of resources; creative in handling revenue and creative in taxation issues.

People in this region tend to feel closely connected to their individual communities. This will not go away. Old rivalries will be difficult to set aside for the good of the new municipality.

To make the transition residents will have to choose the most qualified candidates. These candidates must know what the issues are; must be able to look beyond their former municipal boundaries and must have the vision to make it work.

In attempting to help the process The Glengarry News is inviting area residents with a variety of backgrounds to contribute to the debate through guest columns.

Kenyon Township councillor Blair Williams, a political scientist who is not running in the coming election, will be talking about the issues in a regular column starting this week.

Mr. Williams brings with him a record of active involvement in the region through his interest in local history, economic development and his own business activities.

He will be joined by others who will be asked to participate in the process. Letters to the editor are invited from readers. They will generally be published in the first edition closest to the time they are received.

We are looking forward to constructively advancing the amalgamation and related debates in coming weeks and months as we move toward a new chapter in the history and development of Glengarry County.

Job centre should close if not supported

Agriculture is often treated like the poor cousin among the engines that drive our economy. Often it gets no respect.

This might, in part, be due to the high profile subsidies and support systems it has enjoyed in the past. We can think of Income Stabilization Programs, marketing boards that keep farmgate prices up, generous crop insurance programs and the similar supports that were meant to ensure Canadian farmers survived.

If farmers are not supporting the Agriculture Employment Centre it should close up shop.

Welcome to the 90s, the realities of the global economy and free trade and government attempts at both the federal and provincial levels to get out of the subsidy business.

In provinces farmers are seeing services provided through agriculture departments severely reduced or eliminated altogether.

Now, however, a new twist has been added to the cutbacks story with the announcement that the region's Agriculture Employment Centre (AEC) is facing the prospect of closing down.

The centres in the past have provided farmers with a source for labour. Ironically it is not government cutbacks that are to blame but farmers themselves who won't support the service through a user pay system of $100 memberships.

We would hope that area farmers are not taking the approach that if the government doesn't pay for the service, then too bad.

Certainly it is a service that is provided solely for the benefit of farmers and the people who want to work for them. There is no reason it should be subsidized.

If farmers are not prepared to support it then let it close.

There is no room for secrecy in elections

THAT'S LIFE

BILL McINTYRE

Over the years I have covered or sat through innumerable political campaigns.

Some have been rancorous. Others have been relatively civil. Many have been dull, boring and predictable.

On Monday, Nov. 10 voters in Glengarry will be going to the polls to elect new reeves, deputy reeves and councillors for the amalgamated municipalities of North and South Glengarry.

While it's too early to tell, it seems there is a movement afoot to make it some kind of secret election or perhaps a by-invitation-only affair.

What sparked all this is the secret meeting arranged by Alexandria's mayor Grant Crack. As I understand it Mr. Crack held a by-invitation-only meeting to announce to his friends and supporters that he is running for the position of reeve.

While I am not sure if Mr. Crack intends to represent the entire municipality of North Glengarry or just those select few, I would suggest that everyone else also has an interest in the outcome.

Generally when politicians are seeking office they announce that fact publicly, usually at an open forum of some kind. In his wisdom Mr. Crack has decided that only a select few residents are worthy of hearing the news.

This leads me to wonder just how the election will be run. Will candidates hold all-candidates meetings from which the public is barred?

That would not be surprising since most municipal councils operate that way now through committee-of-the-whole meetings.

It is at those meetings where elected officials debate the issues safely behind closed doors so their constituents won't find out what they REALLY think about any particular issue.

The logic is simple: What the people don't know won't hurt them and, I presume, the politicians as well.

Certainly I realize that the usual trappings of municipal elections will go on as usual. But in this case a tone has now been set by Mr. Crack and his handlers that could easily be misconstrued by the rest of the voters.

For example some voters might ask if Mr. Crack thinks only the 50 or so voters at his little meeting will be enough to get him elected? What about the rest? Might they not feel they simply don't count?

Will people also be kept more in the dark than they already are after the election? Will we be able to find out where the politicians stand on the issues of taxation, development, planning and all the rest?

How will voters make up their minds as to who is best suited to run this new municipality?

We must all remember that the new North Glengarry will suddenly become a major corporation with a multi-million dollar budget.

Very important decisions will have to be made on behalf of all residents that affect their livelihood, economic health and quality of life.

If these decisions are going to be shunted off behind closed doors then the elected officials are not really accountable for their actions are they?

And it is this tone of secrecy, this policy of exclusion that marginalizes those who are not insiders and excludes them from the debate. It will be interesting to see how the scenario unfolds in the coming weeks.

This column will no doubt be misconstrued as a personal attack on Mr. Crack. Some might think I have an axe to grind with the mayor.

On the contrary. I have only met the man once and it wasn't at a closed-door meeting.

Personally I am politically neutral. This newspaper is here to serve all readers and advertisers, not just a few. I also do not think it is my place to "promote" one candidate over another through the pages of The Glengarry News.

I believe people can make up their own minds as to whom they will choose.

What does upset me are politicians who take people for granted. While Mr. Crack might not feel this way at all, it is a perception that is being created here.

This perception could produce an atmosphere that will stifle debate at a time when public debate and input are sorely needed.

Make no mistake about it. This region has arrived at a crossroads from which there is no turning back.

While I readily admit that I am new here and may not understand how things are done in Glengarry County I can still see the ramifications of amalgamation.

Back in the early 1970s Galt, Preston and Hespeler in southwestern Ontario were amalgamated into the new City of Cambridge.

That forced marriage was a rancorous and divisive union. And while it is history now, I remember it as a really bitter time for all concerned.

The people of this area do not need a slap in the face from their politicians. They deserve better treatment than that. It's time to bring people together not keep them apart.

The Mailbox Massacre is upon us

OFF TOPIC

LYNN MCCUAIG

There's a conspiracy sweeping across the Glengarry. Children are running, screaming; animals are stampeding for shelter; and good Christians are doubling their evening prayers.

No one knows just where to turn in the face of the Mailbox Massacre.

It's here. The terrified faces of mailbox owners show it, the suspicious glances at neighbors show it and hundreds of recent police reports in the eastern part of county show it.

Mailbox manglers are upon us.

Its supporters come out in the dark, oozing from their day-time holes, to creep across the country side. Covered by the cape of darkness, the conspirators search the country side until they find the perfect victim – a new mailbox.

It's a recently emerging specimen that is leading the massacre. Its latin name, Youngus Punkus, is derived from its foul behaviour and youthful appearance.

But don't let appearances fool you. The group of vandals are extremely dangerous, especially if your head is made of tin.

Often, the punks drive by an unsuspecting mailbox with a baseball bat dangling out the window. The bat flails as the car speeds up, drawing closer, closer, closer.

The postal patriot glimmers in the moonlight, proudly facing the elements to ensure its owners will find their mail tomorrow, safe and dry. But the mailbox, on guard at the end of the lane every night, is hardly a match for massacre.

Once it's caught in the culprit's scope, there's only one destiny left. Complete and absolute destruction.

The first strike does the most damage. Its face is crushed inward and its once shiny red flag hangs limp, powerless, never to mark the passing mail again.

The second blow comes from the other side and loosens the letter lover from its hinges. The mail box's mind races, wondering just what it is it has done to bring on this kind of brutality. Is it a disgruntled postal worker, a neopostal mail hater or an employee laid off from the Sears catalogue?

The mutilator comes again, this time out of his car. He raises the bat and slams it into the mangled mail carrier repeatedly. Again and again, the blows meet their target.

The culprit gains energy from his destruction, perhaps venting anger planted during his early years. He was the fourth child, neglected, alone. Is it possible his mother's failure to breast feed him has brought him to this uncontrolled rampage?

His work is done. He speeds off with a car full of other young punks, headed for the next mail box.

A second deranged scoundrel emerges from the car and repeats the destruction.

The mail box... It lies alone on the road, waiting to be discovered the next morning. It is dented beyond recognition, paint is chipped and a forgotten crumpled letter drips from its mouth.

But they are the lucky ones, those which have been destroyed. Their pain is over, all that's left is a final heave into the dumpster.

It is those missing in action who must be remembered now. Where did the conspirators take them? What are they planning to do with the slight tin cubes?

Are they fresh subjects for some sort of cross genetic testing; being transferred to alien aircraft; or even worse, being loaded into cargo ships headed for third world countries where mail delivery is as sporadic as finding pork in canned pork and beans?

Mourn the mailboxes and keep a sharp eye out – your friend and letter guard could be next in the massacre.

Nov. 10 elections to mark beginning of new era

GUEST COLUMNIST

BLAIR WILLIAMS

Over the summer months there has been more and more talk about the amalgamation of our local municipalities. In the fields and backyards of Glengarry County, people are gradually realizing that the municipal elections of Nov. 10 will mark the beginning of a new era in local government.

When the present municipalities were established, in the 19th century , it was indeed another era. There were no cars, trucks, and high powered machinery; no electricity, telephones, TVs, or computers. It was a simpler time when communities of interest were truly local and the thought of a global community was the stuff of science fiction.

Local jurisdictions, which have endured relatively unchanged for decades, are now being forced to unite and accept new responsibilities from the province, and this represents the most significant reform of local government in more than 100 years.

Change of this magnitude is never easy, especially when it involves long established public institutions. When the changes are rapid and radical, as with the current provincial government, the apparent risks, and the level of uncertainty, are multiplied many times over. Moreover, people are cynical about government and are inclined to be skeptical about the judgement of politicians and the real motives behind the reforms.

However, despite well founded doubts there are powerful positive arguments that can be made in support of the current municipal reforms and the benefits they may provide.

The communities of Eastern Ontario, for example, need the kind of sensible, coherent economic development strategies that can probably be provided by municipal governments that are larger and more integrated than those we now have.

In Glengarry, the traditional indicators of economic prosperity and growth are not encourag-

Time to stop taxing health care facilities

To the editor,

A large percentage of the $72 billion it costs to fund Canada's health-care system, is not being used for health-care. When considering the fact that the system is short of money, consider how much is collected from Canada's hospitals through various forms of government taxation. There are taxes on their telephone bills, hydro bills, equipment and maintenance bills, property taxes, provincial taxes, federal taxes, fuel taxes, taxes on their heating bills, water taxes and taxes on everything they must purchase in order to provide health care.

These various forms of taxation come from the money needed to provide health care to Canadian citizens. If all of the taxes collected from Canada's health care system were channeled directly back into it as extra funding, this process would provide hundreds of millions of dollars, rather than deplete it of this desperately needed funding.

We, the people, have paid for the land, the buildings, the furniture, the equipment and literally everything regarding hospital facilities, yet for some debauched train of thought, our various governments continue to overtax these public facilities to the point where, due to insufficient funds, we now have to close them down and still pay taxes on the land and the vacant buildings.

In 1996, Canada spent over $15 billion on medical products made in the United States. That's $15 billion in American money or better put, $21 billion in Canadian dollars. I'll even go one better: $21 billion is, $1,000 million dollar bills! Did this money purchase high-tech, state of the art machines that Canada doesn't make? No! Canada bought toilet paper, pens, curtains, floor wax, disinfectants, window cleaner, paper towels, garbage bags, light bulbs, pencils, and a host of other "widgets" that could have been made right here in Canada with our 10 per cent unemployment rate.

Question from the peanut gallery: "Where does the money for Canada's health care system come from?" This funding comes from Canadian employers. If there is no demand for "widgets" there will be no demand for the jobs to make them, thus no employers, thus... Did I mention that Canada's health care system is short of funding? Almost 21,000 million dollar bills worth of Canada's productive capacity, and the jobs to fill that demand, went to the United States and their employers.

What did Uncle Side-winder Sam buy from Canada, to balance off the $21 billion purchase from Canada's health care system, providing jobs for U.S. workers? Non-labour intensive, raw, natural resources at 72 cents on the Canadian dollar! It's one thing to be ripped-off by foreign governments, but when your own government trades raw, natural resources for foreign-made, finished products, produced with those same resources, one surely wonders whose best interests the government of Canada is protecting. This, in spite of the fact that Canada has a 10 per cent unemployment rate; the highest sustained level of unemployment since the great depression! I boldly speak for all Canadians, when I say that we, the people, are getting sick and tired of this economic treason!

Is anyone on Parliament Hill using his or her head for something other than blowing Uncle Sam's horn? Years ago there used to be a saying: "a penny for your thoughts." Times have changed. Now it's: $21 billion, your forests, oil, minerals, water, natural gas, your fish and your jobs, and keep your thoughts to yourselves! This thought is obviously directed at Canada, but it comes from our own government! I'll tell you true, if national, political integrity was dynamite, Canada's duplicitous politicians wouldn't have enough to blow the wax out of their ears.

Princess doesn't live happily ever after

To the editor:

With disbelief, disorientation of emotional feelings followed by a period of numbing shock, one mourns the cruel death of Diana, Princess of Wales.

One feels such sad empathy for the incredible pain inflicted on Diana's sons, William and Harry. Regardless as to one is born of common or royal birth – each and every human emotion trespasses any boundary of pain or joy. A common sharing of the human species.

Once upon a time there lived a very beautiful Princess Diana. She had a great heart. She did not live happily ever after...and so the Princess died tragically.

Diana, Princess of Wales became a goddess.

Sincerely,
Suzanne Blackburn,

Glengarry News commended for "splendid article"

To the editor:

I am writing to commend the Glengarry News for the splendid article on the presentation of the "achievement award" to Char-Lan teacher Mary Jane Ferguson, complete with photograph in the July 30th edition.

As school opens this week, it is most refreshing to be made aware that there are teachers who are dedicated to their subject and to their students.

It is especially reassuring to know that there are students who are striving for excellence in the oral and written expression of their own language.

The story as told by your able News reporter, Sue Harrington, does much to maintain our confidence in the public education system.

Our small investment in a subscription to the "News" is worthwhile when you bring to our attention and give public prominence to the many good deeds performed by Glengarry residents in their daily lives.

In these days when the reporting of news often concentrates on the tragic or scurrilous, it would seem that the press, in this instance, was guided by St. Paul's injunction –"...whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue and if there be any praise, think on these things."

Again congratulations to all concerned.

Ernie Spiller,
Williamstown.

Nov. 10 marks beginning of new era

ing. Unemployment is high, businesses are insecure, opportunities for youth are limited, and there is no clear sense of optimism.

And yet this region has numerous untapped strengths. It has a strategic location between the large urban centers of Montreal and Ottawa, an attractive rural environment, clean air, a largely bilingual population, positive community values, and a deep and intrinsically interesting history. These are elements that enrich our lives in many ways, but they have not been brought to bear in a way that effectively secures the future of this region.

What is needed is a strategy to convert these strengths into economic opportunities. It should be a strategy that is based on a widely share division of the community and its future, and it should incorporate a plan of action that has some real chance of success.

This is where the potential for larger, more efficient, local governments can be realized.

For too long small municipalities have either ignored community economic development or have worked at cross-purposes with each other. This can, and should, change with amalgamation.

The creation of larger municipal units will provide an opportunity to kick-start the system. It will ensure that local governments reflect the natural economic and social relationships that now exist.

In North Glengarry, for example, most Kenyon and Lochiel residents shop in Alexandria, and many of them go to church and attend social events in Maxville. However, under the traditional structure the local governments in these municipalities have been divided and autonomous, and this has discouraged common economic development strategies.

Today most industrialized countries are encouraging local institutions to unite to form units that are better able to use their common resources to market and promote their region. This is what should happen in the regions of Eastern Ontario when the local municipalities are amalgamated.

As residents of Glengarry approach the Nov. 10 elections, they should bear in mind that successful community economic development strategies will only come from local government officials who are motivated, skillful, and open to new ideas.

Candidates who are activists and who have practical ideas about community economic development should be encouraged. Candidates who are stuck in the past and believe that the status quo is good enough should be challenged.

Crank caller terrorizing town residents

A Chronic crank caller is on the loose again and this time he claimed to have kidnapped a girl.

A man police suspect is the same caller who has been periodically terrorizing town residents in the past few months made three calls on Saturday afternoon.

In once instance, he told an Alexandria woman he had her daughter trapped in a barn.

He told the woman to follow instructions and her daughter wouldn't get hurt.

Luckily the daughter was away for the weekend, and the woman knew it was a crank call.

The call, which came in at about 2:15 p.m. was traced back to a Brookdale Avenue pay phone.

Two other calls were made earlier from a pay phone at a gas station on Hwy 138 between Cornwall and St. Andrews.

In the first call, at 1:15 p.m., the man called a town home with a bomb threat.

Half an hour later, he called a woman and told her he had nude pictures of her and was going to distribute them through town.

Alexandria police chief Paul Deveau said the caller seems to know the people he's calling and asks for them by name.

"It appears to be someone who is familiar with Alexandria," he said.

Police are still investigating, but have no suspects.

No horsing around

A multi-horse/motorcycle accident on Aug. 31 ended in the death of one horse.

The accident occurred around 4:10 a.m. on the seventh concession of Lancaster, 1km from the Quebec border.

Two horses had broken loose and were on the road when two motocyles, one driven by Gilles Sauvé and the other by Pierre Quenneville crested the hill.

Quenneville struck one horse and Sauvé was launched from his bike after hitting holes in the road.

The men did not sustain injuries, but the horse, owned by Edmond Vachon, died.

Motorcycle theft

A 1987 Honda motorcycle was stolen from a Charlottenburgh Township home on or about Sept. 7.

The bike was taken from a barn on the property.

Ornament offing

A lawn ornament, valued at $125 was stolen from a Victoria Street home between Sept. 5 and 7.

The small deer with white spots is still missing.

Builders' break and enter

This week, Crime Stoppers is asking for your help in solving a break-in at Alexandria Builders' Supply situated on Main Street South in Alexandria sometime over the weekend of Aug. 24 and 25.

Entry was gained to a safe and cash was stolen. Also taken were two walkie talkies, a lap top computer and a display of high speed drill bits.

Remember, Crime Stoppers does not have call display and does not record conversations.

If you have any information on this or any other crime, call Crime Stoppers. If your information leads to an arrest, you are entitled to a cash reward.

Reward payments are set up to protect anonymity.

Call 937-8477 or 1-800-265-8477 for long distance calls.

Police contract dispute ends

Town and police are pleased with arbitrator's resolutions

BY LYNN MCCUAIG
News editor

The Alexandria police finally have a new contract, even though this one expires in December.

The contract between the police and town expired in April 1996 and had been brought into arbitration earlier this year.

The two sides met halfway in the agreement, in which the main sticking point was wages.

"The main thing is the officers got a two per cent salary increase retroactive to April 1, 1996, and another two per cent retroactive to Jan. 1, 1997," said town police Chief Paul Deveau.

The police had been asking for two 3.5 per cent increases while the town had offered one two per cent increase to last the life of the contract.

The new contract brings the first class constable wages up to $50,122.

The secretary also got a 10.4 per cent increase the day the contract was signed.

But, the position's pay only increased two per cent retroactive to April 1996 and another two per cent back to January 1997.

In the contract, officers also got an extra week's holidays after 25 years of service, bringing the total to six weeks.

Town Mayor and police board member Grant Crack told council at its Monday meeting the police board had defended the tax payers will and were "successful on most things."

visited every house in the township and surveyed the residents about their waste disposal habits.

They also monitored the Apple Hill and Dunvegan waste sites, doing reccycling audits.

"The audits of Kenyon's two landfills enabled us to see the possible results of inefficient waste management. Although thoroughly examining waste was not the most glamorous work we had ever done, light spirits, positive thoughts and always keeping the product in mind got us through it," said their report.

The students paid tribute to the help they received from Ruth McGuire and Rene Jeurond at RARE where they spent a week learning about the recycling industry.

As a result of the project, the team had several recommendations for council regarding waste management.

Blue box pick up should be every second week instead of every week. This would allow the money saved to be spent on a custodian who would monitor the sites for more than just one day a week. In fact, the students would like to see someone hired full-time for this position.

Residents who are conscientious recyclers could be provided with two blue boxes, if necessary.

Kenyon and Charlottenburgh Townships should meet and come to some agreement regarding waste pick-ups on their shared road. Currently two separate trucks -- one from each municipaltiy -- service it.

Concern over the amount of hazardous waste ending up at the sites, led the students to recommend more hazardous waste collection days throughout the year, with more available drop-off centres.

Some people seemed unaware what constituted hazardous waste, according to the students. A follow-up on educating the public is of prime importance.

The students concluded that householders had a way to go with recycling. They found some people were still hiding recyclables and hazardous waste in green garbage bags.

Kenyon township resident, Heidi Johl, who was at the Aug. 28 meeting, praised the students for the "tremendous" presentation. "They definitely earned their money," she told the News.

Fox adds 'seasoning' to Glengarry vegetable season

By Sue Harrington
News reporter

Help has arrived in Glengarry for vegetarians -- a minority group that is rapidly growing by leaps and bounds.

Chloe Fox, a nearly-new arrival from Montreal is offering food services and cooking lessons for those who prefer tofu and grains to liver and bacon.

Fox told The Glengarry News that she will be offering to fill orders of vegetarian specialties for people who would like to have a dozen or so in their freezer.

Items such as broccoli burgers, cajun burgers, mushroom vegetable pie, and Kimlan tofu chunks are among the things on her menu.

She will also cater to parties, saving the lives of hostesses who have invited vegetarian guests and don't know what to serve them.

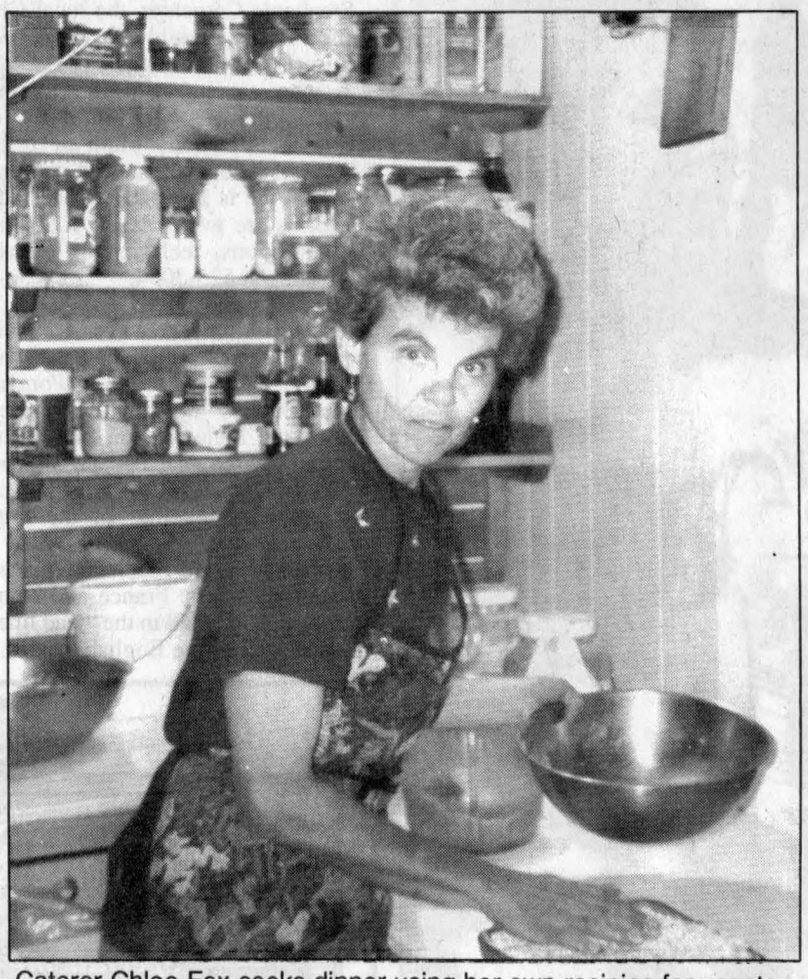
Her cooking classes -- a two hour class costs $20 -- will net the student 16 recipes and samples to take home plus, of course, eating what has been made in the class.

Fox, who operates out of her home kitchen on the First of Kenyon, has many years of experience in the field.

A former health food store owner in Montreal, she and her husband followed two of their five children down the vegetarian trail about 15 years ago.

"Our eldest daughter was given a sheepskin coat for her 16th birthday," said Fox. "She told us she couldn't accept it, because she had decided to become a vegetarian."

The couple's youngest son also stopped eating meat for humanitarian reasons after visiting an abattoir and being repelled by the way the animals were slaughtered.



Caterer Chloe Fox cooks dinner using her own recipies for vegetarian cooking.

Like most concerned parents, Fox said she and her husband tried to coax him to eat meat, thinking he would come to harm without the nutrition that meat provides.

"We used to have a health food store in Montreal. Then we started preparing vegetarian food for customers and we were more successful selling that,"said Fox.

They closed the store and began working from their home. Their son joined in the cooking and soon they opened a small kitchen in Montreal.

The son continues to cook to this day, working at Thompson House (a graduate house) at McGill University.

Fox said that her health has improved since her conversion to meatless meals.

"I was chubby in the past," she said, admitting that one of the reasons she likes vegetarian food is that it allows her to eat a lot.

"I like to eat. I'll take thirds, where others will have seconds."

Fox raves about the miraculous qualities of tofu. She uses the soybean product instead of eggs in her recipes, and said it works in almost anything, "except angelfood cake."

Her tofu cutlets are great to throw on the barbecue, especially when there is a vegetarian among a crowd of hamburger eaters.

She also recommends little cubes of tofu made to taste like spare-ribs which can be tossed into a stir-fry or pasta.

"If people have tried tofu and didn't like it, it's probably because it was lousy tofu."

Fox said she buys hers in Montreal and it is "mild and has a sweet taste."

While she said that she has to go into the city to get some of her products, a lot of things are available right here in Alexandria.

With local gardens overflowing with vegetables these days, the News asked Chloe Fox if she could recommend some recipes from the cookbook that her family produced a few years back. The following are her choices.

Spring Salad

This is one of the easiest of all tofu recipes. It can also be made without the vegetables, in which case it resembles plain egg salad.

If you know any people who love chopped egg but hate tofu, try this one on them. Most are fooled and really enjoy it.

1/2 block tofu
1/2 red pepper
1/2 green pepper
1 celery stalk
1 carrot
1 shallot
2 Tblsp chopped parsley
1 Tblsp chopped dill (optional)
1 tsp. dijon mustard
2 to 3 Tblsp mayonnaise
1/2 tsp. tumeric
salt and pepper to taste.

Grate tofu on a coarse grater and chop vegetables finely. Throw them in with the tofu, add spices, mayo and mustard. Adjust seasonings.

Great in a sandwich, or as a fight lunch.

Hearty Soup

A very fast soup to make.

1 onion chopped
1 tsp olive oil
2 cups sliced zucchini
2-4 carrots, grated
1 cup corn
1-2 parsnips, grated
1 cup of cooked rice (brown or white)
1 cup V-8 juice
1-2 tblsp onion soup powder
salt and pepper to taste
chopped parsley
5 cups water

In a soup pot, saute onion in olive oil. Add zucchini, grated carrots, parsnips, tomato juice, soup powder and water and bring to the boil. Lower heat and simmer, leaving lid slightly off the edge of the pot. Cook until veggies are soft.

Soup can now be pureed in a processor, or left as is, if you prefer. Add corn, rice and chopped parsley; adjust seasonings and serve.

Kraft bridge out until Oct. 31

By Sue Harrington
News reporter

Residents of Williamstown will be having to make more detours in the near future.

Beginning Sept. 15, the Kraft Bridge, which crosses the Raisin River near the Kraft Food plant, will be closed to vehicular traffic.

This means that residents will no longer be able to take the zippy route down the Glen Road to get on to the 401.

It also means that Loyalist Road residents will have to go down to Finney's Bridge to cross the river.

The $150,000 bridge project has been in the works for several years. It was orginally estimated that the cost would be $110,000.

The work will include full rehabilitation of the bridge, except for the guard-rails and approaches.

The project is expected to be completed by Oct. 31.

Meanwhile, Williamstown residents are still making detours to avoid repairs on the Johnson Road.

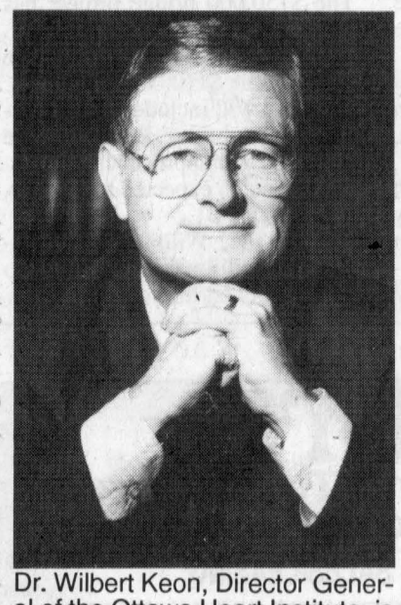
Heart surgeon featured speaker at dinner



Dr. Wilbert Keon, Director General of the Ottawa Heart Institute, is the featured speaker Sept. 19, for the first annual joint meeting dinner of the three Heart and Stroke chapters in Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry at Creg Quay Marina Restaurant, in Bainsville.

Famed Canadian heart surgeon Dr. Wilbert Keon is the featured speaker for a dinner Sept. 19 at Creg Quay Marina Restaurant in Bainsville.

The dinner, which is not a fundraiser, marks the first annual joint meeting of the three Heart and Stroke chapters from Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry.

Dr. Keon will outline latest advances in heart research, followed by a wide open question period giving diners a chance to get answers from an expert.

An Ottawa Valley boy, Dr. Keon is famed for setting up the Ottawa Heart Institute, based at the Ottawa Civic Hospital. He travelled Eastern Ontario fundraising for the institute which has grown into the major heart treatment centre for the area.

He was the first surgeon to implant a total artificial heart as a bridge to transplant, and pioneered the now accepted treatment of emergency revascularization in acute heart attacks.

Dr. Keon has received a flock of honors including appointment to the Canadian Senate.

The Heart and Stroke dinner at Creg Quay Restaurant, hosted by Glengarry Chapter, begins with a social hour at 6 p.m., dinner featuringa four course "heart healthy" menu, followed by Dr. Keon's speech.

Dinner tickets at $17 each, can be reserved by phoning 347-2416 or 938-8933.

Barra MacNeil juniors stopping at Bonnie Glen

Slainte Mhath, a dynamic young group from the Eastern Provinces, is making a stop at the Bonnie Glen, Sept. 13.

This quartet is constructed of the perfect mix of family, friends, and an abundance of talent. They include Ryan and Boyd MacNeil (younger siblings of the Barra MacNeils). Ryan plays piano, Uillean pipes and Boyd does fiddle, banjo, mandolin, and percussions. Bruce MacPhee, is the Pipe Major of the Grade III World Champion Gaelic College Pipe Band and master/teacher of Highland/Small Pipes. A fourth band member, Bhreagh MacDonald, is a fiddler, dancer and bodhran player.

Slainte Mhath music has its roots firmly planted in Celtic tradition, but is still keeping an ear to the contemporary ground. The group's unique blend is a product of combining 11 instruments to produce a flavor in Latin American percussion, jazz chords and rhythms, and the traditional tunes of Ireland, Scotland and Cape Breton. The energetic arrangements are characteristic of the group's ability to interpret traditional music, as well as create their own original material.

The group will be joined on stage with a local Celtic group Brandy and Port featuring Paddy Kelly along with Jenna and Jason Lalonde performing their Riverdance Routine as well as an appearance of Gaelic Soloist Meaghan MacDonald.

The show will begin at 8 p.m. on Sept. 13 at the Bonnie Glen, with entertainment continuing until 1:30 a.m. Tickets are $15 and can be reserved by contacting Tartan Promotions at (613) 527-1740. A midnight lunch is also included in the ticket price.

Lancaster holds off on letters about water and sewage

Property owners in Lancaster Township whose land is being studied as possible sites for new treatment plants or pumping facilities might be getting letters from the township – or they might not.

Council couldn't decide if it would inform property owners after receiving a recommendation from study engineers Totten, Sims, Hubicki that they do so.

The letter from the engineering firm read at council's Sept. 3 meeting said informing property owners now might avoid some problems later.

But after some discussion, the township elected to hold off on letters and talk with the village and Charlottenburgh who are also part of the water and sewage project.

Some members were worried that informing property owners their land is a possible site for a pumping station might cause undue alarm.

The study, now in its third and final phase, won't be ready for months and, if it is approved, it would be years before work starts.

"If and when there's a system, we can talk about it," said Reeve Charles Sangster.

The proposed water and sewage system would run through Lancaster village, into the township to Bainsville and touch on Charlottenburgh.

About 15 to 20 property owners are affected by the proposed treatment and pumping stations.

Lancaster goes pro-farm

Lancaster Township council decided not to support Ashfield Township's fears of a Right to Farm law that would give farmers too many rights.

The new Right to Farm law, which is still getting final touches in the provincial legislature, will enhance farmers' legal rights.

The law will ensure farmers are not shut down for emitting smells or making noise through the night and can override a restrictive municipal bylaw.

Lancaster came out in favour of farmers' rights.

"If there is an over-restrictive bylaw, then they should be able to override it," said Deputy Reeve Steve Preston.

Plus, provincial laws are usually more restrictive than local ones, added Clerk Mike Samson.

Controversial House Plans

House builder Eddy Oetelaar will be invited to Kenyon Township Council to discuss his plan to build up to nine residences just east of Maxville on County Road 22 (the Sixth of Kenyon).

"The builder says Maxville is now within the commuting sphere of Ottawa," Councillor Blair Williams told council Aug. 28. "That makes the Sixth prime real estate.

"But nine properties in a row on a county road? Is that what we want?"

It was noted that Oetelaar's plan calls for three-to-four-acre building lots on land described as Rural Marginal.

"Just the same," said Councuillor Kent MacSweyn. "It looks like strip development on a main artery."

Pow Wow honours vets

The Annual Akwesasne Mother Earth Pow Wow, held Aug. 30, 31 and Sept. 1 attracted large crowds to the many events.

Contestants from U.S. and Canada participated in the singing, drumming and dancing competitions and a special ceremony honoring Canadian Aboriginal veterans of WW2, The Gulf War and Vietnam was held.

A replica of the 20 ft. high monument to be erected in Ottawa was displayed and local veterans were on hand to explain, in detail, the meaning of the eagle, and the other animals depicted in the design.

Montreal illustrator demonstrates techniques at museum

A small pool of artistic potential gathered at the Pioneer Museum on Sunday, Sept. 3 to be taken through a group of drawing exercises by Brenda Kennedy, Montreal illustrator, who now lives at Baltic's Corners.

Brenda began by explaining about the different types of pencils – do you remember trying to write with an 'H' or '2H' pencil, and then how nicé and dark the 'HB' pencils were? She recommends using a properly sharpened '6B' pencil.

After doing 'blind contours' (looking only at your subject and not at your drawing) and then 'modified blind contours' (taking a few peeks to see how your drawing is progressing) participants produced surprisingly accurate pictures of some of Brenda's garden produce, artistically displayed for the occasion.

This coming Sunday, Sept 14, the Twistle Guild will gather at the Museum and will demonstrate some of the finer points of spinning and weaving.

Come on down and join in for a fun afternoon.

DUNVEGAN

PEGGI CALDER
527-5293

The Dunvegan area was saddened to hear of the passing of Lloyd Nixon on Tuesday, Sept. 2.

Lloyd had farmed all his life and even after 'retiring' a few years ago still kept his hand in when Glenn took over the farm.

Although quite ill in recent months, he and Eunice had celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a well-attended party last November.

Lloyd was quick to tease and joke. I'll always remember when the Women's Institute sold their hall to the Dunvegan Recreation Association and all the WI ladies were lined up on the front steps of the hall for pictures.

We were attempting to look appropriately official and serious but Lloyd, hidden from view behind the partially opened door, was trying to make us laugh - and succeeding.

The condolences of the community go out to Eunice, Bev, Donna, Glenn, Lois and their families.

If your front lawn has suddenly sprouted a large white basketball overnight, you are now the proud owner of a giant puffball, an edible and delicious member of the mushroom family.

When cut, it should be snowy white inside. A slightly yellow colour indicates that it is too mature to eat.

To cook, you simply peel off the outer rind and slice or dice about 1" thick, then saute just as you would any mushroom in butter or margerine... but be prepared to add lots, as it will soak up an amazing amount as it cooks.

The rafters rang and the foundations shook at the St. Bernardin hall last Saturday night as Mr. and Mrs. Scott Graham celebrated their wedding in true Glengarry style.

Scott and Julia were married earlier in a beautiful ceremony at Kenyon Presbyterian Church conducted by Rev. David Mundy of Sudbury, whom they had met while attending Laurentian University and who had become an important influence in their lives. He was assisted by Rev. Jim McVeigh.

Harpist Lucile Hildesheim of Richmond played at the service and later commented on the beautiful accoustics of our church.

Guest soloists were Barbara (MacLeod) Armstrong from Subury and Lisa Waites a classmate of Julia from Newmarket who had composed two songs for the occasion.

The dinner was catered by Heinz and Debbie of Georgian House 1888 and one guest described it as the best wedding meal he'd ever had.

The dance later was termed 'just like a house party' - the ultimate compliment.

Scott and Julia are now relaxing in sunny Jamaica on their honeymoon.

Unfortunately two of the cedar trees that had been rented as wedding decorations, were taken hostage in an early morning skirmish at the hall.

If anyone woke up Sunday and found themselves with something that was still potted (or needed to be planted) and wasn't sure of quite how to proceed, give me a call to arrange the return.

Community centre meeting scheduled Monday

On Monday, Sept. 15 there will be an information meeting held concerning the community center of Green Valley at 7:30 p.m.

There will also be an election for candidates to sit on the executive committee, so please plan to attend – this is your community center.

The Green Valley Guides will be holding a registration evening from 6:30 p.m. to 8 p.m. at Ecole Ste. Marie on Thursday, Sept. 18. Guides are for girls ages nine to 12 years. A uniform is required but used ones are available for $20. For more information contact Guide leader Stephanie Carpenter at 525-3004.

Congratulations go out to Mrs. Josephine Seguin who has celebrated her 99th birthday on Sept. 5. She is a former resident of the 7th Conc. of Lancaster in Green Valley. For this occasion a family gathering was held and supper was served at the Green Valley Restaurant. Family and friends wish her health and look forward to celebrating her 100th birthday in 1998.

Sympathy from the community goes out to Betty (Dupuis) Bourck and her brothers on the death of their mother this past week.

Aurel and Rejeanne Lajoie enjoyed a week's vacation at the end of August. They motored down to the Maritimes where they saw the bridge which unites New Brunswick to Prince Edward Island. They also visited several sites in New Brunswick and Quebec. They had a great week, beautiful weather and were glad to return home.

Congratulations to neighbors Yves and Colleen Poirier who, after three boys, have had a baby girl born on Aug. 17. Hannah Ellen weighed 6 lbs. 9 oz. at birth.

Congratulations also go out to Sylvain and Julie Leger of Gatineau on the birth of a son, born on Aug. 25. He weighed 7 lbs. 11 oz. and is named Francis. Proud grandparents are Richard and Noella Leger of the 8th Conc. of Lancaster and great grandparents are Gerard and Jacqueline of Green Valley. It seems Richard was hoping the baby would be born on his birthday which was on Aug. 27, but I don't think Richard minds, he's still walking on air. Being a parent is special but being a grandparent is extra special.

On Wednesday, Sept. 3, the ladies of UCFO held their first monthly meeting for the new year. An outline of activities for the year 1997-98 was given by the president, Therese Valade. Several games of bingo were played and Madeleine Aubin won the craft drawing and the 50/50 draw, door prize went to Therese Valade. A light lunch was enjoyed before returning home.

The Daughters of Isabelle will be holding a special meeting on Sept. 11 at 7:30 p.m. in the Sacred Heart Church hall. This meeting is to prepare the budget and plan out the coming year. All members are asked to attend.

I read the article in The Glengarry News "Drivers can help keep children safe", I agree, but what caught my eye was school bus drivers pulling over and letting vehicles pass, a lot of us bus drivers do this already, but others don't and it can be quite frustrating, everyone seems in a hurry to go nowhere. People have to understand if we're on the road it's because we have a job to do, taking your children or grandchildren, nieces, etc. to school. We are patient with you, so please be patient with us and obey the rules of the road.

To the driver of the van license number 073 X7P who passed a school bus on the double yellow lines gong in to Green Valley – what about your passengers? And, if you don't obey stop signs, or use blinkers, where did you get your drivers license.?

God bless and have a safe week.

Clean Your Vehicle's Undercarriage of Winter Dirt Build-up
TERMINATE METAL WINTER KILL
CORROSION FREE ZONE™
THE CLEAN ALTERNATIVE TO RUSTPROOFING

What is Metal Winter Kill?
During winter, mud, sand and salt, saturated with acid rain; accumulate in the seams and hidden cavities and lapped joints of the metal in your vehicle's under carriage. This build up of contaminants along with the heat of summer is the perfect recipe for 'Metal Winter Kill'. It begins during the spring warm up and it literally cooks the rot into your vehicle's vital parts and its body structure.

Corrosion damage can be expensive
Consider these factors. It costs $350 to replace a gas tank, $225 for gas lines and $500 for brake lines. Damage to the structural integrity of the frame and floor pan is extremely expensive to repair and can never really duplicate the original factory specs.

18 Month Corrosion FREE protection
After the power wash, we will thoroughly apply Corrosion FREE formula 3000 with CSC 850 to your vehicle's Bottom. This drip free, solvent free lotion-type formula gives your vehicle 18 months of real and effective protection. It offers the added benefits of being a lubricant for all the moving parts in your vehicle. It specifically protects the gas tank, emergency brake cables, floor pan and frame members.

Control winter damage for only $49.95*
The good news is, that for this very extremely economical sum (just $10 more for Pickups and Vans), you can control winter damage and minimize the risk of expensive and unnecessary corrosion related repairs. In fact a Protect Your Bottom treatment by Corrosion FREE will remove the causes associated with 'metal winter kill.'

Discover the merits of a Beyond The Future Warranty
1996 and 1997 vehicles are automatically covered by Corrosion FREE's Beyond The Future Warranty 1993, 1994 and 1995 also qualify. This exclusive warranty is tied to an 18 months maintenance schedule and it covers items the manufacturers exclude form their warranties.
(See Beyond The Future Warranty for full details.) Convenient. Practical. Effective. It's one of the best warranties in the business. Ask for a copy.

Older vehicles benefit too
Older and even rusty vehicles also need the low cost Corrosion FREE maintenance program, because it will save the aggravation and expense of big repair bills when you least expect them.

Smooth Operation
Customers are always telling us how smoothly and quietly their vehicles operate after a Corrosion FREE treatment..

Former Glengarrian here from Alberta for 88th birthday

GLEN SANDFIELD

LORNA CHAPMAN
874-2408

There will be a Sunday morning worship service on Sept. 14 at 10 a.m. in Glen Sandfield United Church. East Hawkesbury United Church will celebrate their Memorial Sunday service at 2 p.m. that afternoon.

Birthday greetings to Bessie MacLennan on the happy event of her 87th birthday. Your many friends join us with their good wishes for your continued well being.

Mrs. Alice Fletcher, formerly of Alexandria, flew down from Raymond, Alberta at the beginning of August to visit her son Sam McCracken and his wife Monique. While here, they gave her a little party to celebrate her 88th birthday. Several friends joined them at the Airport Hilton in Dorval for the occasion, where the guest of honour was presented with a beautiful bouquet of flowers and a special birthday cake, Mrs. Fletcher came down unescorted and returned home alone, by plane, on Aug. 12. She is one remarkable lady! We wish her many belated happy returns.

The members of the Glen Sandfield UCW met on Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 2 for the regular monthly meeting at the home of Margo MacRae. Lorna Chapman led the devotional period. The meditation called Information Please was taken from Chicken Soup for the Soul book, number three. Readers during the meeting were Della MacDonald, Margo MacRae and the leader. Bessie MacLennan accompanied the singing of the three hymns on the piano. The Member's Purpose opened the business portion, with Della Macdonald in the chair. Phyllis Noble filled the role of interim secretary for this meeting by reading the August minutes and recording the September minutes. Treasurer Margo MacRae gave the financial report and reminded the group that they will be settling their 1998 budget at the November annual meeting.

Announcements given by the leader were: The UCW Area 1 Rally will be held in Maxville on Sept. 23, with Glen Sandfield UCW leading the devotional portion; the Lochiel farewell celebration will be on Sept. 13 at the Lochiel garage, and on Sept. 14 the Convenanting Service for Carolyn Byer takes place at the Church on the Hill, Alexandria, for which Glen Sandfield has been asked to bring sandwiches. Sept. 19 is the official opening of the Senior's Support Centre in Alexandria and on the same day the Alexandria United church congregation will present its annual turkey supper, in the church hall, from 4:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. The CWC will meet in Hawkesbury on Monday evening, Sept. 8, in the Benair Golf Clubhouse, everyone welcome.

The meeting ended with the benediction, repeated in unison. Light refreshments were enjoyed at the end of the meeting.

The Glen Sandfield United Church congregation held its annual Labour Day Hymn sing, on Sunday evening last, with the Rev. Alister Rose filling the roll of leader. Before the service, a moment of silence, in memory of Princess Diana, was observed.

Hellen MacLeod of Kirk Hill was the guest organist, Linda Ferguson of Vankleek Hill was the special musician and she accompanied her several beautiful solos on her guitar. The choir sang My Shepherd is the Living Lord, Shall we Gather at the River and Jesus Keep me Near the Cross. Lorna Chapman, and the choir, sang Turn Your Eyes Upon Jesus. The six well loved favourite hymns, sung by all, had been chosen by the congregation prior to the service.

The music selections were interspersed with readings by Ernie MacMillan, Phyllis Noble, Christina MacLachlan and Margo MacRae, congregational members.

Refreshments were served after the service by the church ladies during the coffee hour.

Sunday, Sept. 28, 11:15 a.m. there will be a communion service for Glen Sandfield at East Hawkesbury only. The other churches will have communion on Sunday, Oct. 5.

The Alpha Group in Dalhousie is organizing an Alpha Group in September. This is an introduction to Christianity, with video tapes and discussion. For more information, please call Ethel McKay 514-269-2639, Muriel Moore 347-1638 or Rev. Al.

On Sunday Sept. 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the Alexandria United Church there will be a convenanting service for our Ministry Intern, Carolyn Byers. This is for all points in the charge.

On Saturday, Sept. 6, the 39ers Senior's Club choristers presented a mini concert at 12:30 p.m., in the sanctuary of the Church on the Hill. For those people who were waiting for the bazaar to open at 1 p.m., it was very well received by the small but attentive audience. The music of Muriel Moore, June Cameron, Lorna Chapman and guest singer George Harland was accompanied by Gerald Daeschel on the organ and at times, on the piano. June Cameron and George Harland sang a beautiful duet called Whispering Hope. Muriel Moore's tender solo was The Rose, and Lorna Chapman's solo was Jesus, Jesus, Fill us with Your Love. Each special selection was followed by a congregational hymn.

At the end of the half hour concert, the Rev. Allister Rose gave the blessing, and everyone adjourned to the hall where tea was being served and sale tables awaited covered with craft work, home baking and garden produce. The white elephant table of previously loved treasures was quite popular as well. The club members hope that they will be allowed to continue with the annual bazaar, their only fundraiser, in the future at the new location.

Bainsville WI starts new season with monthly meeting

LANCASTER

MARG MILLETT
347-2207, FAX 347-1297

It's good to hear from the Bainsville Women's Institute. Their September meeting opened with a minute of silence in remembrance of Princess Diana. Forty three members and guests were welcomed by hostess Tibi McRae. She told the gathering that her home was built by her husband's father over 90 years age.

The roll call, Name a Safety Tip , was a good lead in for guest speaker, Staff Sergeant Gordon Luloff, of the Lancaster/Maxville OPP Detachment.

His talk addressed the changes coming in January, 1998. A new policing policy is currently in place to encourage the involvement of our community. The restructuring within the OPP is still in progress and the department is looking for more cost efficiencies. There are 22 constables working out of Lancaster. In January the police services will be paid for directly by the municipality.

The Community Policing Committees should be representative of all areas of our citizens. Their in-put will be seriously considered. Their mission is to help identify and solve problems within the community, develop plans, assist in some of the strategies devised by the OPP and other functions.

Gillian Williams reported the summer activities during the business meeting. Mention was made of the upcoming Area Convention on Monday, Oct. 20.

A PRO workshop will be held in Frankfort on the 18th of September. The Bainsville PRO and two others will be attending. PRO for the branch, Pat Ager, reported on July 1st ceremonies at the Bainsville W.I. Park.

Thanks go to all those who gave time, effort and materials to make this centennial project a success. Thank you Mackie Robertson, Gauthier's Greenhouse, Sangster's and Sons, Melvin Gardiner, Fred Ager, Dave Olgivie, Don Boudria, Archie Robertson, Ron McRae, Ron Brown, Carl Marchand, and Jim Sangster.

Pat also mentioned that the 12 Days of Christmas ornaments, badges and other items are now available. Thanks went to those who made the August bake sale a success.

Georgina Mitchell distributed pamphlets on Osteoporosis and informed members of the availability of a driving course,"55 Alive.

Presentations were made in June to Ecole St. Therese and S.J.MacLeod Public School. Two graduating students, one from each school, received a thesaurus for excellence.

Guests and members enjoyed a "cup of tea" and had an opportunity to catch up on everyone's summer activities at the meeting's end.

On Sept. 15th, 1940, the German Luftwaffe staged a massive effort on Britain to ascertain it's air superiority, prior to a possible invasion. More than 60 German aircraft were shot down. This was enough to convince Hitler that the battle of air supremacy could not be won in time for a Fall invasion.

Winston Churchill's comment, Never have so many owed so much to so few congratulated the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. pilots. They fought off raids from May to December of that year.

Branch 544 of the Royal Canadian Legion, Lancaster, is planning a church parade on Sunday, Sept. 14, in honour of those who lost their lives in the Battle of Britain.

All members are asked to meet at 11:30 a.m. at the Legion hall. They will march to Knox United Church for a noon hour service. Upon their return to the Legion, near 1 p.m., a wreath will be laid at the Cenotaph to honour these men.

Everyone is invited to the service and the wreath laying. For information call 347-2262.

New Senior Support Centre to open Monday

SENIORS' PRIME TIME

ROSEMARY CAMERON

It is now official, Monday, Sept. 15, 1997, our doors will be open at the new Senior Support Centre, located at 48 Elgin Street in Alexandria.

At our new senior centre in Alexandria, we will serve Northern Glengarry seniors and disabled, all our Outreach Programs and Services. Please write our new telephone number down, 525-4443, and our new fluently bilingual secretary, Audrey Cooper, will be glad to assist you. If you are a resident of the Brown House North, please call 525-4443; if you are south of the Brown House please call Simone Grublak at 347-1175 at our Lan-Char Support Centre, which will serve Southern Glengarry.

I would like to take a moment and reassure seniors, disabled, volunteers and anyone else affiliated with us – we are not closing any of our satellite sites – located in the Martintown Community Centre and Glen Robertson Community Centre, or are there going to be any reduction of programs and activities.

We are proud and honoured to say we have expanded our much needed senior and disabled program activities. The new Senior Support Centre located in Alexandria was a decision of the Province and the Three United Counties, wih the guidance and direction Corporation Board of Directors to meet the ever growing needs of the rapidly increasing numbers of seniors and disabled of Glengarry County. Our role, goal and vision is to meet the needs of these people to ensure their well being, physically and mentally, to avoid premature institutional placement.

As I have mentioned numerous times before, we as the staff and the board of directors can coordinate and budget the dollars for these needs but, none of this would be a reality without the countless hours of dedication put forth by our wonderful, care giving "volunteers" of Glengarry County.

I would also like to thank all the clients, volunteers and committee members of Southern Glengarry for their patience and understanding, as over the past number of months I may have not been on location as much as I have previously been over the past number of years. I know you have been in good hands with my co-workers and I would like to reassure you that when this new centre is up and fully operational, I will be there for you.

My role is to oversee the two centres and our two satellite sites, along with the assistance of our two office staff at each centre.

I am always a phone call away,

Starting Monday, Sept. 15, Meals on Wheels for Northern Glengarry will be prepared at our new centre. The Alexandria and area Meals on Wheels will be picked up at this location. The Glen Robertson and Dalkeith sites, the drop off/pick up point will be at the Larocques Convenience Store, located on Main Street, Glen Robertson.

If you have any questions or concerns, please call our office.

With growth always comes changes – some we like and there are some changes people have a hard time adjusting to – we are all human and I am sure at some point in our lives, we have experienced changes of some sort or other. Yes, I am proud of our growth.

Over the years of working with so many people, whether it was the client, volunteer, another health related agency or an outside contractor, you humanly grow attached.

I would like to say how very much I have appreciated the chance to get to know and work with Rita, Neils and Nina Nielsen. Seven years ago they signed a contract with the Outreach Committee to prepare the Meals on Wheels. since then, there have been changes – the new Senior Support Centre in Lancaster was built, including a commercial kitchen. Now the new centre in Alexandria is here with a beautiful kitchen to prepare all our meals for the various programs. Six months ago, I met with the Nielsens to hand them a letter of the changes that would be taking place in the fall of 1997. They have not only accepted the letter graciously, but wished us all well in our future growth. The Nielsens will still be a part of us for our Diners' Club in the Glen Robertson Centre and Martintown Centre and have also offered to cover vacation and sick time.

Rita, Niels and Ninna, on behalf of the board of directors, volunteers, staff, myself, but utmost the "clients," thank yo for being the true, caring community persons, we all knew you were.

Please look in this edition for a calendar of programs and activities for the new centre commencing Sept. 15.

Here are a few to give you an idea of some of the programs:

Monday, Sept. 15, 10 a.m. to noon, Encore Seniors' introductory French course; Tuesday, Sept. 16, 10 to 3 p.m., Francophone Day away program; Wednesday, Sept. 17, 1 to 4 p.m., Anglophone Day away program; Thursday, Sept. 18, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Alzheimer Day away program.

On Friday, Sept. 26 we are hosting an "open house" at our new centre from 1 to 4 p.m., watch for this notice also. Everyone is welcome.

Thank you again for all your support shown to us over the past few months on this transition.

Correspondent tells of travels to Belgium and surroundings

GLEN ROBERTSON

COLETTE SAUVÉ
874-2076

I'd like to start off by saying that my husband, Maurice and I had been visiting with our daughter, Manon and son-in-law, Stéphane and granddaughter, Stéphanie Leroux in Visé, Belgium for a period of five weeks. A going away surprise party was held for us on July 23 at the residence of Barton and Betty McDonell and Rita MacDonald. A special thank you to our hosts, all those who attended and to our daughter, Nicole and son Joel who prepared everything without giving us the slightest hint.

Visé is a very scenic city of about 7,000 people. Houses are built mainly with bricks and wood is considered a luxury as it is extremely expensive. While there, we visited Liege on a Sunday where a huge outdoor market was held and hens and rabbits were on sale. We visited Henri Chapelle Cemetery and Memorial where 7,989 American soldiers were buried and 450 missing in action in the war of 1939-45.

We also went to Antwerpen to visit a great zoo which is situated right in the middle of the city. We visited Amsterdam but came back the same night since it's only a two-hour drive from Visé. Accommodations were hard to find and very costly. It's a picturesque city, where bikes have the priority and are everywhere. Your driving skills must be in grade A shape to survive.

Brugge, a town renowned for its lovely lace and chocolate, was on our list. Brugge is dominated by 15th, 16th, 17th and 18th century houses and a great number of magnificent buildings are reminiscent of the town's unsurpassed flowering during the Middle Ages. Before visiting Brugge, we stopped in at the Adegem Canadian Cemetery where many soldiers of the commonwealth died in the 1939-45 Second World War.

We spent a week in Switzerland and in driving there we passed through five different countries – Belgium, Holland, Luxembourg, France and Switzerland. In Strasbourg, we made a short visit to the Notre Dame Cathedral which has been for nearly a 1,000 years a landmark in the life of the city. In Gruyères, we had to drop in at the cheese factory where the famous cheese Gruyères is processed.

For a breathtaking panoramic view of the highest summits in the Alps, we went in three different cable cars up to 3,000 metres to the Glacier of the Diablerets. We started our trip wearing shorts and T-shirts since it was a very hot day, but by the time we got to the top, we were very happy to wear our jackets. Using the ski lift, we took a tour of the glacier by snow bus. It was a great experience walking in the snow and the view was out of this world. We also visited the Nestle's plant in Broc where the very friendly staff demonstrated all about the making of the famous Swiss chocolate which was followed by the best part, which was the tasting.

We also spent some time in Interlaken, the region of Montreux and visited many beautiful places in Holland and Germany.

We celebrated our granddaughter's second birthday on Aug. 3, it was pretty special. The real treat came at Stéphanie's sleeping time when she'd give us a kiss and a hug before she'd go to bed. I babysat her a few times and she was a real angel. Since Manon and Stéphane do get The Glengarry News in Belgium, a sincere thank you for the great hospitality, the good meals, all the traveling and especially the great company. It was a super vacation that we will never forget. Even though I suffered a bad fall in Germany, I enjoyed every minute of it and if God willing, I hope to go back again next year.

Farewell parties

Parishioners of St. Martin of Tours gathered together recently to bid farewell to Father Denis Lefebvre who had been our pastor for the past nine years.

Father Lefebvre celebrated mass as usual at 8 p.m. on Friday, Aug. 22. However, on this special occasion, Father Gérald Poirier was invited to co-celebrate with him.

The altar was beautifully decorated with hundreds of gladiolas, thanks to our "flower lady," Antonia Den Otter. Following the mass, a reception was held in the church hall and a delicious lunch was served. The children's choir sang a special song written by Moira Van Nooten; Florence Montpetit spoke on behalf of the French speaking parishioners and John Van Nooten thanked father for his dedication and work in the church and with the children over the years. He wished him well in his new ministry at Precious Blood Parish in Glen Walter.

Father Denis was presented with cards and gifts of money as additional signs of our appreciation. Rev. Eric Robichaud o.f.f.m. has been named administrator at St. Martin of Tours and at St. Paul in Dalkeith and we welcome him in our community.

Our best wishes also go out to Michel and Yolande Boucher who have moved away from this area. Although they were among us for only four years, they touched many people and were a great help volunteering in the community. A few friends held a small reception in their honour to thank them and wish them good health and happiness in their new home.

Following the mass, a barbecue for friends and family members was held at Annette Lyman's home. Don Blackadder played the bagpipes as the families left the church as well as at the luncheon. A great time was held by all!

Along with the rest of the world we were alternately shocked and grieved to hear of the death of Princess Diana.

Then, our emotions were assaulted with a multitude of pictures and videos of all of the wonderful things that she has accomplished in her short life here on earth.

Yes, I did arise at 4 a.m. to watch the funeral, as it really happened. It made me think of Shakespeare's lines

The evil that men do lives after them.

The good is oft interred with their bones

For Diana, this is not the case. The very technology of our modern days, and the very media that bears at least some part in her death, will insure this.

In reality, Diana was a very human person, who had the grace and opportunity to touch needy people and to work for good causes in a manner that inspired us. Many sad events in her life only served to endear her to us.

Ironically, the death of this Princess of the People has united nations in a way that has never occurred in history.

I am reminded constantly these days to question much that I read, to be less judgmental, and to try to be more compassionate to everyone.

Kindness and compassion could be the most important legacy of Diana, the Princess of Wales.

So, we in the Lancaster area, say good-bye... to an English Rose.

Have a good week!

Safiya Williams scored twice on Saturday as the Hearts rolled to a 7-0 victory in Game One.

Jennifer Quesnel, Heather MacMaster, Brenda Bartlett, Josée Hagen and Loni MacSweyn added singles while Hagen and Josianne Laferriere recorded shutouts.

Laferriere was in nets for the entire game as the Hearts wrapped up the series with a 2-0 victory on Sunday.

Jennifer Quesnel and Brenda Bartlett were the goalscorers.

Kent McDonell, Joel Trottier camp out with NHL teams

A couple of local lads are skating at National Hockey League training camps this week.

Green Valley's Joel Trottier is in Wilmington, Mass., where the Boston Bruins camp officially opened yesterday.

Trottier – a right-winger who had a stellar season with the Ontario Hockey League's Ottawa 67's last winter – was a seventh-round choice of the B's at the June draft.

A seventh-round selection doesn't usually make the jump to pro the year he is drafted, but Trottier is a special case.

He has completed his regular junior eligibility and the Boston organization in threadbare in talent both at the NHL and the minor pro level.

This is actually Trottier's second appearance at an NHL training camp. A year ago he was a free agent at the training camp of the Chicago Blackhawks.

Trottier has yet to sign a contract with Boston, but he's a good bet to at least crack the line-up of the Providence Bruins, Boston's No. 1 farm team.

Should things not work out at the pro level, Trottier would still have the option of returning to junior for an overage season. His OHL rights now belong to the Plymouth Whalers.

Meanwhile, Kent McDonell of Williamstown is almost certain to be back in the OHL.

The 18-year-old right-winger is currently in Greensboro, N.C. at the camp of the Carolina Hurricanes, but he is ticketed for a second season with the OHL's Guelph Storm.

McDonell had an injury-plagued campaign with the Storm last season, but the Hurricanes (the former Hartford Whalers) still saw enough talent and potential in the big kid to spend a ninth-round draft choice on him.

THE POINT AFTER

J.L. LEFEBVRE

A third Glengarrian is listed on an NHL training camp roster, but it's unlikely Alexandria's Martin Boisvenue will get on the ice at the Philadelphia Flyers' practice facility in Voorhees, N.J.

Boisvenue will undergo surgery to insert pins in his hip this Friday in Albany, N.Y.

Boisvenue cracked a bone in his hip early last season and even though he returned to play with the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League's Val D'Or Foreurs, the injury never healed properly.

This week's surgery could wipe out the entire 1997-98 season for Boisvenue, who signed as a free agent with the Flyers almost a year ago.

Even if Boisvenue does return to action this year, it won't be with the Foreurs. His QMJHL rights now belong to the expansion team in Baie Comeau.

More letters from camp

Another local skater trying his luck at the pro level is defenceman Ryan MacDonald of Alexandria.

MacDonald completed his OHL career with Ottawa last year and has landed a tryout with the Columbus Chill of the East Coast Hockey League.

At the junior level, forward Lindsay Campbell and defenceman Kacey MacDonell spent time at the OHL camps of the Erie Otters and the Plymouth Whalers respectively, but both players have since joined the Cornwall Colts of the Central Junior A (Tier II) Hockey League.

Other local players at Central League camps are Kevin O'Farrell and Lee Klazinga (Hawkesbury Hawks), Chancey Lajoie (Ottawa Jr. Senators), Brent Lauzon and Derek Wagar (Cornwall Colts) and Kurt MacSweyn (Brockville Braves).

Other local pucksters making their mark elsewhere include:

•Mike Rankin of Williamstown and Steven Van den Oetelaar of Alexandria were cut by the Colts last week, but will retain affiliated player status with Cornwall.

•Former Alexandria Glens winger Karl Hehn is skating with a junior A team in Trenton.

•Matt Gray of South Lancaster returns to London, Ont. for a second season with the University of Western Ontario Mustangs.

•Frank Morris – originally of Kenyon Township – has decided to play another season with the Fife Flyers in the British premier league. Morris won the scoring championship last season with Fife.

•Andrew Meth will soon head overseas for a second season with Lechbruck of the German league.

Did we miss anyone? If you know of any hockey player who is playing or trying out for a top class junior, college, university or pro team, please call us at 525-2020.

Minor soccer coach and organizer Mike Duval received the Louis Shepherd Award for his contributions to the sport of soccer in Glengarry.

Duval and Raymond receive special honours

Longtime Greenfield player and coach Russel Raymond is the 1997 recipient of the Glengarry Soccer League's Gerald McDonald Dedication Award for lifetime contributions to the GSL.

Known for his penchant for wearing long pants in even the hottest of weather, Raymond was an aggressive centre half during his playing days for Greenfield, one of the GSL's most decorated franchises.

Raymond coached the team at the end of his playing career and he was responsible for dubbing Greenfield's men's team "the Marauders," a nickname that survives to this day.

Benny Phillips, Donnie Morris, Brian Filion, Herbie Maley and Adrien St. Denis are just some of the players Raymond coached during his tenure on the sidelines.

Shepherd Award goes to Duval

The GSL's other special award went to Mike Duval.

Duval receives the Louis Shepherd Award for his efforts in promoting the growth of minor soccer.

He helped establish the Hearts' minor soccer program in the Ottawa league and coached the girls' 16 and under team himself.

Duval also proposed changes to the GSL minor system including a playoff system that allowed all teams to participate and the institution of a new division – the micro age group.

Duval also was involved as a coach with the Alexandria junior girls and was co-ordinator of the Alexandria association along with Ann Ladouceur.

Young stars featured on GSL awards night

BY J.L. LEFEBVRE
SPORTS EDITOR

Youth was served at the 1997 Glengarry Soccer League senior awards banquet at Alexandria's Atlantic Hotel on Friday.

While the list of the GSL's senior award winners normally has a familiar ring to it, this year's honorees included a slew of young stars and first-time winners.

For example, this year's winners of the most valuable player awards ended long streaks by previous winners.

Laggan's stalwart midfielder Tammy MacSweyn is the women's division MVP, ending a three-year run of MVP titles for Lisa Poirier of the Alexandria Bees, who did not play this summer.

The men's division saw its first new MVP in six years as Chancey Lajoie of the regular-season and playoff champion Glengarry Stars was voted the league's top player.

Glen Campbell of Glen Nevis had won five consecutive MVP awards prior to this season.

MacSweyn wins twice

MacSweyn is a first-time winner of the MVP trophy, but she's no stranger to league awards – she has won four in her two seasons at the senior level.

MacSweyn won the best back trophy for the second year in a row on Friday. She also the league's rookie of the year in 1996.

Speaking of first-year players, one of MacSweyn's Laggan teammates is the top rookie for 1997.

Forward Shonna Atchison is the fourth Laggan player to be named rookie of the year in the six-year history of the award. She also collected the top scorer's trophy.

Glen Nevis' Becky Howes – the 1994 rookie of the year – won the sportsmanship trophy.

Her Glen Nevis teammate Lisa MacDonald regained the best goalie award.

MacMillan voted top coach

Dunvegan's D.A. MacMillan was named the top women's division coach. MacMillan guided the Big Blue to first place in the regular season and a berth in the playoff final.

Bobbi Jo MacLeod of Dunvegan and Elaine MacDonald of Laggan are co-winners of the playoff MVP award.

The other women's award winner is Glen Sandfield A's Lauren MacPherson, who was named best forward.

Friday's GSL women's division award winners included (left to right) Bobbi Jo MacLeod of Dunvegan (co-winner of playoff MVP), D.A. MacMillan, also of Dunvegan (coach of the year) and Tammy MacSweyn of Laggan (most valuable player and best back).

Lajoies win trio of awards

The Glengarry Stars' Lajoie Brothers combined to win three men's division awards on Friday.

Chancey Lajoie is the league's MVP for 1997 while younger sibling Cameron was the scoring champ and co-MVP of the playoffs.

George Theoret of the Greenfield Marauders was the other co-winner of playoff MVP.

Now that Glen Campbell has been dethroned as regular season MVP, the longest streak of award wins goes to Eric MacSweyn of the McCrimmon Combines.

MacSweyn was selected as the league's best keeper for the fifth year in a row.

Pine Grove's strong regular season was capped with five individual awards.

Tim McCuaig was selected as best forward, Daryl Howes won the most gentlemanly player trophy, Barry MacSweyn is coach of the year, Kurt MacSweyn is top rookie and Allan Campbell claims the best back award.

The GSL's education bursaries were given to Craig Calvank of McCrimmon, Aidan Burgess of Glen Nevis and Jessica MacLeod of Laggan.

AGAIN, IT'S LAGGAN: Laggan continues to dominate the Glengarry Soccer League. The team won its seventh women's division championship in eight years last week by beating Dunvegan three games to one in the final. The team members are (front row, left to right) Tammy Bond, Tanya Macdonald, Katie MacLeod, Nancy MacLeod, Laura Urquhart, Shirley MacLeod, Bonnie MacLeod, Elaine MacDonald, (back row) Sandra Pasco, Karen McIntee, Tammy MacSweyn, Shonna Atchison, Tina Bond, Cindy Laferriere, Carol MacLeod, Jessica MacLeod, Melissa MacPhee and coach Lynn-Marie Duhart. Missing from photo is Wendi Lawson and Tara Barton.

Boys' high school soccer gets under way

The high school athletic season begins today and one of the local teams will be in action.

Boys' soccer is the first sport of the year and the Char-Lan Crusaders travel to Cornwall today to take on the Patriotes of La Citadelle in a senior-junior doubleheader.

Today's soccer schedule also features a contest between the St. Joseph's Panthers and the St. Lawrence Saints.

The Glengarry Gaels get their season under way Friday when they host the General Vanier Vikings (senior game) and the L'Héritage Dragons (junior game).

Tagwi also sees action this week as the Warriors will be in Iroquois tomorrow to take on the Seaway Spartans.

The other fall high school sports get going later in the month – the boys' volleyball season begins next week while girls' basketball is under way the following week.

"Business as usual" at Char-Lan camp

By J.L. Lefebvre
Sports Editor

Jeff Carter has been through five training camps with the Char-Lan Rebels, but for a while it didn't look like he would ever take part in a sixth.

Carter openly admitted at the end of the 1996-97 junior B hockey season that he would look for a coaching job in junior A over the summer after five years in Williamstown, including the last three as head coach.

The opportunity to move up never materialized however, so Carter was back in his usual perch in the corner of the Charlottenburgh Recreation Centre on Monday as the Rebels kicked off training camp.

But if you think Carter is disappointed to still be at the helm of the Rebels, think again.

"My feelings about the game haven't changed. I'm a coach because I love hockey and I love working with young players," said Carter.

"That feeling doesn't change no matter what level you're at.

"I'm a little disappointed something didn't pop up in junior A, but that's hockey. It's business as usual with the Rebels as far as I'm concerned and our job is to put a winning team on the ice."

To help him ice a contender, Carter will have a new face and a familiar face behind the bench this season.

As reported last week, former Concordia star Blake Hambleton has been hired as an assistant.

"Blake is an easy-going guy, he loves the game and he has experience as a coach at the university level," said Carter. "He'll be a tremendous asset for us."

Hambleton will coach the defence along with Steve Carter, who has decided to return to the club. The head coach's brother was uncertain if he would be back with the Rebels because of other commitments.

"The refs will be glad to know Steve's back," quips Jeff.

Opening night

The Rebels coaching staff had approximately 40 players to evaluate on the first night of training camp on Monday.

Several veterans are in camp (including D.J. Zaluski, Mike Duffy, Eric Fontaine, Mike Rankin, Doug Ferguson and Tim McCuaig) but many of last year's players are still at junior A camps.

Richard Laganiere (Pembroke Lumber Kings), Kacey MacDonell (Cornwall Colts) and goalie Shawn Grant (Colts) have already signed with Central League teams.

Kevin O'Farrell, Lee Klazinga, J.S. Larocque, Lindsay Campbell and Nick Brunet are among the former Rebels still with junior A teams but who have not yet signed.

"It's tough to tell what kind of team we'll have," said Carter. "I don't think we'll know anything until the dust settles from the junior A situation."

In addition to the large contingent of players camping with other teams, the Rebels are also facing the loss of Mario Gibeault (an overaged player last year) and Tim Corput (who is attending school in Toronto).

Veteran winger Dave Campbell is a question mark.

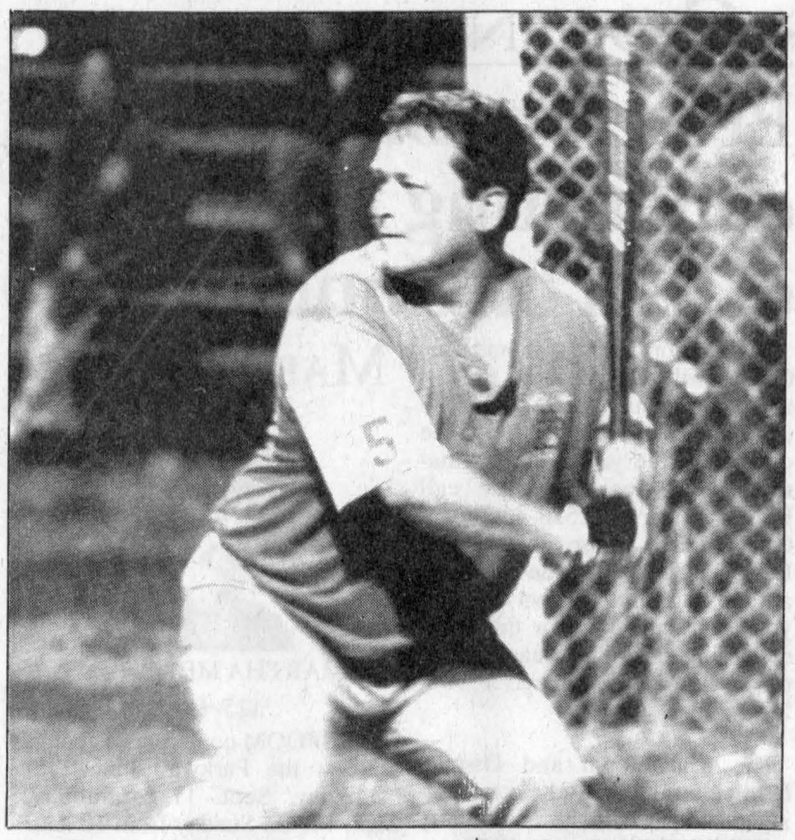
Jamie Wheeler is attending Canton ATC in New York, but he'll be available for some games in December and late in the season.

While second-year veteran Tim McCuaig figures to have one goaltending spot wrapped up, the competition is one for the other puckblocker's job.

Former Alexandria Glen and Morrisburg Lion Gerry Goulet is in camp as is local product Doug Long and Jamie Ross.

Among the rookie skaters in camp, Jonah Leroux, Jeff Legue and Ian McConnell are three who have caught the head coach's eye.

"Those are three guys that should be able to step in and help us right away."



TWO DOWN, ONE TO GO: Guy Quesnel (above) and Pretty Paws Grooming need one more victory to wrap up the Alexandria Men's Softball League championship. Pretty Paws took a two games to none lead in the best-of-five final with an 11-10 comeback victory over Jans Signs on Thursday. Keyed by a big hit from Bugs Sauvé, Pretty Paws scored four runs in the top of the seventh inning to overcome a 10-7 deficit and then survived a bases-loaded scare in the bottom of the inning. The Pretty Paws comeback ruins a two-homer, six-RBI night by Jans slugger Jean Lauzon (right).

Glens experience a big in-crease in goaltenders

The Alexandria Glens opened the doors for the start of junior B training camp on Sunday and club officials soon found themselves knee-deep in goaltenders.

Puck-blockers are normally a scarce commodity, but the Glens have no fewer than 14 goalies on their training camp roster.

Glens head coach and general manager Marc Sauvé says the number of netminders will be trimmed to four prior to this weekend's home-and-home exhibition series with the Clarence Castors as well as Saturday's Red and White intra-squad game.

One of the masked men is incumbent Patrick Ruest. Alexandria's other goalie last season was Sebastien Laplante, who is making a strong bid to make the Hawkesbury Hawks of the Central League.

Besides Ruest, the Glens camp features 12 other players who played with the team last season.

If most or all of them are still around when the junior B season kicks off next Friday, Alexandria would certainly be one of the most experienced teams in the league.

Marc Angrignon, Marc Menard, Steven St. Denis, Marc Gauthier and Jean Theoret are the five defencemen on the pre-season roster with junior B experience.

The Glens also have Alexandria minor hockey product Jean-Gerard Beriault, who almost made the team as a midget-aged player last season.

The Glens forward contingent could also be an experienced crew with Yves Ruest, Jason Poirier, Scott Nielsen, Dan Tremblay, Darcy MacDonell, Stephane Loyer and Cameron Lajoie among the returning players.

In addition to Laplante, the Glens still have a couple of players at tier II training camps. Christian Cadieux has already signed with the Cornwall Colts while Olivier DeMeester is still in camp with Hawkesbury. Top scorer Miguel Delisle will be skating with a junior A team in Caledon.

The Glens are not expecting defenceman Travis Young to return while Rick Hutt and Daniel Methot are gone to graduation.

Big night caps Speedway season

A huge field of 142 cars entered the eight-cylinder race at the season-ending Fireball Enduro event at Cornwall Motor Speedway on Sunday.

There were so many entries, track officials decided to hold two races. Mike Champagne of Cornwall won the first race while Jim Peters of Smiths Falls took the checkered flag in the second.

Lee Ladouceur of Alexandria was third in the second race.

Case Van Winden of Hallville, Ont. won the four-cylinder event while Finch's Debbie Gillespie was first in the women's race.

RAISIN RIVER COUNTRY

Williamstown is bustling with activity once again

WILLIAMSTOWN

SUE HARRINGTON
347-2279

It's that time of the year again in Williamstown. The great Canadian start-up weeks are upon us and organizations are jostling for manpower and members.

There is a group to which I must make amends. Last spring during shut-down time in the village, there was enough news to stretch from here to St. Telesphore (papers laid end to end, that is). Some of it made it into the inner circle in the Williamstown News, and some, usually because of sheer volume, unfortunately did not.

So when I heard of the new season for Brownies and Sparks, I decided to paw around for the reports from last year, in order to show some of you who might be on the brink of flocking to Brown Owl, how fun the experience can be.

Del Oxley, leader of the Sparks last year tells about the evening last spring when 20 little Sparks (Sparklers? Sparkettes?) camped overnight in Irvine Hall with eight Leaders (Leads? Leaderettes?).

Kathleen Phillips was on hand to lead the girls in games; Shelley MacNaughton to lend a hand with the crafts. The Sparks made pictures with crayons and then ironed their work onto pillowcases which Shelley had made.

They also made their initials out of bread dough, baked them, and then ate them with maple syrup glaze.

Glow in the dark bracelets were next — a good way to keep track of the little fireflies as they darted about the hall.

Mike Seguin brought along his guitar and a singsong was held, lulling the littles ones before bedtime.

In the morning it was the men's turn. Bright and early the daddy brigade arrived to make pancakes: B.J. Danaher, John Hugh Munro, Gary MacGregor, Kevin Pelley, Jay Phillips, Jonathan Oxley, and Mike Seguin.

"It was a night we will remember for a very long time," said Del.

So what did the Brownies do last year? Leader Lynn Larkin reported that they had a special trip to the nature museum in Ottawa, where they slept in the minerals gallery, surrounded by a quarter million dollars worth of gold nuggets.

The time machine presentation with talking stones and a moving floor was really geared for children, according to Lynn, as was the little cave with bats flying around.

The Brownies learned about endangered species, ate supper (meatless?), and made some crafts. Once again, it was a very memorable trip.

So how does one join Sparks or Brownies? Registration is being held on Wed. Sept. 24 from 7 p.m. to 8.30 p.m. at Williamstown Public School in the gym.

Girls must be in Sr.K and Grade 1 for Sparks; Grades 2 and 3 for Brownies.

There will be a uniform sale at this time. Anyone with old uniforms to sell is invited to do so at this time.

There is still no Williamstown Girl Guides, but Stephanie Carpenter, the Guide leader in Green Valley, invites all area girls aged nine to 12 to her troupe.

Registration will be held on Sept. 18 from 6.30 to 8.30 p.m. at Ecole Ste Marie. Once again, used uniforms will be available for sale.

It's rabies clinic weekend! In what has become an annual CHS (clawing, hissing, scratching) event, animals will be vaccinated at the firehall from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, with lucky vet, Brian MacNaughton doing the honors.

Eleven dollars a shot will protect your animal from the ravages of raccoon rabies, said to be moving north from the US.

One new, and two recycled faces have appeared among the Char-Lan High School staff this semester.

New to the school and to the teaching profession is Karen Rorabeck, who joins the science department. Karen's arrival means that all science areas at Char-Lan are covered by specialists.

Jane MacMillan, who, as Jane Gordon, attended Char-Lan as a student a while back, will be teaching English and History.

And Homer Grant, who taught at Char-Lan early in his career before going off to France on a sabbatical and then teaching elsewhere in the SDG Board, has returned. He will be teaching French and English.

What else is new at the school? The playing field is being remodelled. Probably that is not exactly the right word, but the sod has been turned by midnight machines, and the gulls are having the feast of their lives.

The work on the soccer fields is being done in partnership with the township, so that the Char-Lan pitch next season should be in a class by itself.

New lockers are also coming to the school by December. Those of you with special fondness for that unique shade of orange-pink salmon will no doubt be colouring your hair in memory of things past.

The first meeting of the year of Char-Lan's School Council takes place on Sept. 18 at 7.30 p.m. in the school library and all parents are invited to attend.

The council executive was elected last year for a two year term, so you are off the hook there. Another member from the community (not having a student in the school), is needed, however.

On the agenda will be planning for activities for the school year.

Wanting to improve your French? Learn French? Delande Anderson will be starting her classes beginning this week at her home in Williamstown.

Please call her at 347-2361 for information on how you can learn in this relaxed and informal setting. All ages/stages are welcome.

The congregation of St. Andrew's United Church is hosting a BBQ picnic lunch on Sun. Sept. 21.

An intergenerational service, to which the Martintown St. Andrew's congregation has been invited, will be followed by the lunch, at amazing prices.

Games and activities and possibly a ball game (weather permitting), will be held.

As this coincides with the Apples and Art Tour weekend, visitors are welcome to take a look at our local artisans (more on this in next week's column), and have lunch at the church.

Williamstown Public School will hold a meeting for parents on Tuesday, Sept. 23 in the school gym, beginning at 7 p.m. Staff will be introduced, school council elected, and classrooms visited. Those in attendance will also have the chance to shop for some books at the Scholastic Book Fair, which begins on Sept. 22 and runs until the 25th.

* * *

Ladies broomball is also starting this Sunday, Sept. 14. Ladies of all ages are invited to join the girls for this spot of exercise and fun. Please call Elaine Pye at 347-2678 for more information.

On Friday night, Sept. 12, the Char-Lan Rebels will launch the season with an exhibition game against the New Jersey Jr. Devils, at 7.30 p.m. The next day the team will have a pre-season tournament with New Jersey, Kemptville, South Grenville, Renfrew, and Morrisburg all attending. Everyone in the community is invited to these games.

Registration for Sparks and Girl Guides will take place on Sept. 8 at the community centre from 6:30 to 8 p.m. There is a registration fee of $28 for the year. For information about Sparks, please call Brenda Rivers at 528-4666 and Girl Guides, please call Connie Lafave at 528-4302. The Brownies are looking for a "Brown Owl." If you can spare time for this most rewarding position, please get in touch with Diane Lauzon at 936-2591.

The Martintown and District Horticultural Society held a meeting on Sept. 3 at the community centre. A decision was made to help purchase a much-needed photocopier machine for the Martintown library.

Secondly a date was set for the Fall Plant Auction. The auction will be held as usual at the home of John and Elizabeth Peters at 1 p.m on Saturday, Sept. 13. All are welcome.

The Martintown Mill Preservation Society Corp. will be conducting a tour of the mill on Sunday, September 14, for the participants of the 25th anniversary, 1997 Society for the Preservation of Old Mills (SPOOM) Conference. The conference includes a series of seminars, a full day visit to Upper Canada Village and an opportunity to tour other mills in the region.

The SPOOM conference is being held at the Parkway Inn, from Thursday, Sept. 11 to Sunday, Sept. 14. On Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. the participants will be able to take an industrial walking tour of Cornwall or visit one of three mills.

The Martintown Mill, a four storied stone grist mill, was erected by Alexander McMartin in 1846, replacing the original wooden grist, saw and carding mills built by his father, Malcolm McMartin in the early 1800's.

For 101 years, the residents of Martintown and surrounding areas depended on the mill to grind flour, saw lumber and finish textiles.

With cycles of renewal and decline, "McMartin's Mill" ceased operation in 1947, when other more modern mills with gas-driven grinders came into operation.

Threatened with demolition after many years of disuse, the mill structure was saved by a three-year stabilization project completed in 1987, that preserved this historic grist mill on the banks of the Raisin River.

AGRICULTURE

Protecting property adds to farm agenda

By Sue Harrington
News reporter

The recent discovery of marijuana planted unbeknown to farmers in Glengarry fields poses the question of how farmers protect their lands from trespassers.

Increasingly there have been incidents of trespassing year round on farm properties. In the spring it is wild garlic pickers and tree thieves, many of whom appear to come from out-of-province.

Young cedars are particularly vulnerable, although maples and oaks have also been spirited away in broad daylight.

In the fall, the hunters arrive, often without permission.

And in the summer and winter months, recreational vehicles tear along green roads or forge new trails, often leaving a trail of garbage on farmer's lands.

That land is also subject to those dumping heavy objects, who are unwilling to pay tipping fees at landfill sites. Old fridges, couches, and even car carcasses are abandoned willy-nilly on private property.

Due to their acreage and the inaccessibility of some lands, farmers are often not able to monitor their property easily. What can they do?

In Ontario a law passed several years ago states that if lands are not posted as being public property, they must be assumed to be private, and should not be trespassed upon.

Most local farmers are reluctant to bring in the police for trespassing infringements for fear of getting involved in lengthy court battles. Often they just chase off the intruders themselves.

For most farmers, trespassers are a nuisance more than anything else.

Walter McIntosh, who farms near Apple Hill, says that the hunting season is the worst time.

"The local hunters come and ask you for permission and you can get along with that," he said.

"It's the ones that don't ask, that aren't from around here that you mind."

McIntosh said he had a very liberal policy in the past, letting anyone on his property to hunt, but that changed when he found a heifer that had been shot. Since then he has been more selective.

He said he doesn't post "no trespassing" signs, feeling that people should know better.

"You wouldn't go into the city and walk on someone's property," said McIntosh.

Ron McRae who farms near Bainsville has similar thoughts about the people who trespass on his property. Although he has never had any incidents which caused him any risk, it does bother him the way strangers treat his land.

"It bugs the heck out of us," said McRae, who said that people often just throw their garbage on his property.

"They're not even respectful of it. They go fishing and then just throw their containers and garbage around."

McRae thinks the solution to the problem lies in teaching people.

"I think we have to educate the public to respect private property."

What has been encouraging is that the marijuana plants were found thanks to tips received from Crime Stoppers.

Neighborhood Watch groups may also prove to be effective deterrents.

Getting started in farming today is challenge

The Glengarry Farmer

families farming together works for one generation.

The past half decade has seen a doubling of farm land prices across Ontario. Glengarry hasn't been an exception, although Eastern Ontario prices still lag well behind those west of Toronto.

Record grain prices in the past couple of years have contributed to the demand. But even with the recent levelling of corn prices, getting hold of land has become akin to a blood sport, where the strongest and largest win. Big equipment makes a mockery of an extra 100 acres, spreading the same fixed machinery costs over more tonnes of corn.

Astronomical quota prices are another investment necessary to increase output of milk, broilers, or eggs. There is no price differential between the regions of Ontario, but the inequality remains. The big farmers find quota an attractive investment, the small, an impossible one.

Low interest rates (not a bad thing) have resulted in the lowest saving account investment in history, and farmers are no exception. Factor in the psychology that the land will be around a lot longer than the money, and some farmers are willing and able to pay more than what the net profit on a tonne of corn dictates.

Some – the young – are not so able. Sadly, skill and initiative aren't enough to become a player in the world of modern agriculture. The frustration is evident as farmers realize their helplessness in competing with people entering the country with suitcases of money.

The Blackstone Capital Corporation, a merchant bank from Manhattan, purchased and stripped 22 dairy farms in British Columbia last year, and has bought another seven in Ontario, with many more in the works. The company helicopter flies directly to each farm and remains idling (they claim it's cheaper) while the executives negotiate the deal at the farmer's kitchen table.

High real estate values in Europe mean farmers can move to Canada and buy larger operations than they can afford at home, paying prices Canadians can't afford. The benefits to the surrounding community are tremendous, as barn construction and machinery purchases inevitably follow.

Moving to more marginal land, or diversifying with off-farm income enables Canadians to stay in farming. Families farming together helps them to build a large operation. Unless eventually split, however, every farmer I know would sacrifice, or spend six-figure retirement money to give his children a chance in the business. No farmer I know would give his neighbour's son or daughter such a break. Nor should they.

When I started farming, many neighbours gave me a break, as they did to each of you that farms: loaned machinery, silo filling at a cheap rate, extra help. The list goes on and on, and they shared the pride in watching us grow. But in today's world, even community support is not enough to allow a new farmer to begin.

The other dilemma facing every farmer is the fairness of giving one child a $500,000 break so he/she can afford the family farm, while only providing the others with education, or pocket money assistance. All of us with children will have that to sort out sometime in our future.

One can rage at the unfairness, but is there a solution to return things to the good old days? Short of adopting communism or banning immigration, no.

Logically (and the fact that our assets have increasing value,) we can accept the changing times. But there is a gnawing sense of unease that we haven't maintained traditional values for the next generation, the way our parents did for us.

Columnist returns from wedding

ST. ELMO

W. MACKINNON
527-2348

I returned on Tuesday, Sept. 3 from a week's visit in Canmore, Alta, with my daughter Grace and Donald Nickle and their family on the occasion of their daughter, Flora's marriage to Mark Giesbrecht which took place on Aug. 31 at Nokoda Lodge, near Morley, Alta, east of Canmore.

I had the pleasure and privilege of sharing a part in the marriage ceremony with the Rev. Frank Scrugges of Calgary. Due to dull weather and wind the ceremony which was to be on the lawn of Nakoda Lodge on the shore of Chief Hector Lake with a lovely view of the Rocky Mountains, was held inside in front of the large fireplace in the entertainment room of the lodge where the wedding for 150 guests enjoyed a few hours of refreshments and dancing after the ceremony.

As the Highland Games was held in Canmore on the same day as the wedding I was disappointed to miss the Highland Games celebration held annually in Canmore, Alta.

The Seaway-Glengarry Presbytery attended to two items of regular business prior to the Presbytery Service in St. Andrews Church, Prescott, Ont. to Rev. C. Ian MacLean as the minister of the Joint Pastoral Charge of St. Andrew's Church, Prescott and St. Andrew's Church, Spencerville.

The meeting took place in St. Andrew's Church, Prescott at 7:30 p.m. on Sept. 7.

The first item of business was the presentation, by Mr. Reg. Evans of Cornwall, Presbytery clerk, of a call to the Rev. Leslie Walker of Finch, Ont., to become the pastoral minister of the congregations of St. Andrew's Church, Virden, Man., and Lenore Presbyterian Church, Lenore, Man. On being presented with the call, the Rev. Leslie Walker indicated she accepted the call and would leave shortly to begin her ministry in that pastoral charge.

The second item of business was the appointing of the induction service for the Rev. Ted O'Neill as the minister of the Pastoral Charge of Knox Church, Moose Creek, St. Andrew's Church, Maxville, and Gordon Church, St. Elmo to take place in St. Andrew's Church, Maxville, Sunday, Sept. 28 at 7:30 p.m.

Titles

HIGHLAND PATHS

KEN MCKENNA

Now that the visit of Lord and Lady Macdonald to Glengarry is but a memory, perhaps we might devote just one more column, for the record, to explaining this business of titles. Most Canadians are not comfortable with them. They have not been bestowed in this country since the Liberal government of MacKenzie King abolished them over 60 years ago. After that time, any Canadians who thought that they deserved a knighthood or a peerage had to make their domicile in Britain, and a few did just that. Of course, any Canadian heir to a hereditary title can claim it. Although not officially recognized in this country, the title can be used as a courtesy.

This column is called Highland Paths because it is concerned with the heritage of the Gaelic-speaking people of the Scottish Highlands who made up about 90% of the original settlers here in Glengarry, but to discuss titles we have to go farther afield and talk about British titles.

A peer is one of those English words that has two distinct and opposite meanings. It can mean an equal, such as a jury of one's peers, or a member of the nobility. The Oxford English Dictionary, (with my additions of the female equivalents) describes a peer as "A member of one of the degrees of nobility in the United Kingdom, a duke (duchess), marquess (marchioness), earl (countess), viscount (viscountess), or baron (baroness)". Marquess (or marquis) is usually pronounced "markwiss" in England and "markiss" in Scotland. Viscount is pronounced "vyecount". They are all lords, but the spoken term "baron" is now obsolete. Members of the peerage are seldom members of the Royal Family, although some may be closely related to it. The sovereign's sons are princes and the daughters are princessess. Many peers have several titles, which are formally listed in order of importance.

Peers are of three classes: peers of Great Britain, all of whom may sit in the House of Lords; peers of Scotland, of whom 16 are elected to each Parliament as representative members to sit in the House of Lords; peers of Ireland, of whom 28 representatives are elected for life to the House of Lords. To complicate matters further, a peer of Ireland, for instance, may have a very Irish title but not be Irish at all, as in the case of Lord Macdonald. The House of Lords also consists of the Spiritual Lords of England (Anglican bishops). That's why bishops of the Church of England are addressed as "my lord". Judges of the High Court are Law Lords, but do not sit in the House of Lords and, of course, this courtesy title is not hereditary.

Two hundred years ago in Scotland, Robert MacQueen, Lord Braxfield, was known as the "hanging judge". In spite of his family name, he was not a Highlander and was particularly harsh with any Jacobite brought before him. But then, he was cruel and unfeeling with everyone. One time an old friend with whom Braxfield had often played chess was convicted of murder. After passing the terrible sentence of death on the unhappy man, Braxfield leaned over the bench. "And that's check AND mate, Willie" he said. The "hanging judge" was described as "beetle-browed and red-faced, with glowering eyes, and growling voice". When angry or drunk, both of which he was most of the time, he reverted to a thick and almost impenetrable Lowland accent. One of his favourite sayings was "hang a thief when he's young and he'll no steal when he's auld". When he was elevated to the High Court in Edinburgh in 1776, a fellow judge saw him sitting in his club in deep thought, scribbling on a sheet of paper. "Working on a judgement, MacQueen?" his acquaintance said. "I'm tryin' tae choose a suitable title" said the future Lord Braxfield. "How about Lord Help us All" said the other judge.

Because of the aristocratic nature of Celtic society in ancient times Scotland had a larger proportion of titles than England, such as "thane", a royal appointment based on the law of tanistry; "mormaer", possibly a sea-lord; "jarl", a Norse title which evolved into "earl", and "toiseach", (pronounced "tosh-uck") a chief, which is remembered in the clan name Mac-an-Toisich, Son of the Leader, MacKintosh (and about 30 other spellings) in English. All these old titles have been obsolete since the Middle Ages in Scotland. In Ireland, however, the President of the Republic is known as the Taoiseach, pronounced "Tee-shahk" in Irish Gaelic. The Scottish word "laird" refers to a landowner, who may or may not be titled and a "bonnet-laird" is a slightly disdainful term for a man who behaves like a man of property but has none.

Earlier this summer I encouraged Laggan folks to write to Eliza (Urquhart) MacRae to tell of old stories about Laggan (her birthplace) or pictures. Just today (Sept. 8) I received a letter from her son Donald telling me that Eliza passed away after a short illness on Aug. 21, 1997. She was 94 years.

Throughout the years she read The Glengarry News and kept quite up to date on Glengarry affairs. If anyone want Donald's address I would gladly give it.

Laggan Public School

The first week of school is complete and the enrolment for this year is 245. This figure includes 39 students who are new to the school. The teaching staff has a few changes with new teacher Karen Baker in grade 1. Former Grade 1 teacher, LeeAnne Vallance, has moved to the Grade 6 class. Shelley Willock has returned from her maternity leave and is teaching the Grade 4 students. Margaret Bartnikas has taken the duty of Grade 8 teacher and Pat Horan is filling in at the Grade 5 level until Wendy MacDonald returns from her maternity leave later this fall.

The lunch program starts this week with slices of pizza from Little Rikki's being sold on Tuesday. Hot dogs are sold on Thursday and grilled cheese sandwiches will be sold every Friday.

We are still trying to walk across Canada. When classes ended in June, we had reached Regina. Classes will start recording their mileage once again. Three trips around the soccer field measures a kilometer. If parents wish to get some exercise, do some laps around the field and get us across Canada, stop by and join the students any day.

Sports Hall of Fame honours local youths at junior head table

Three of our young people were honoured as junior head table guests at the Glengarry Sports Hall of Fame dinner on Aug. 27. Leslie Brown, daughter of Peggy and Jim, has excelled in basketball at Tagwi High School, in track and field at the regional and provincial levels and as a member of the Cornwall Cougars Track Club and as a MacCulloch Dancer for 10 years.

Jeannie and Ivan Coleman were proud twice over as two of their three sons were honoured. Peter is the youngest Level 4 referee in Ontario, attended the invitational Western Hockey League School of Officiating this summer and referees hockey from Novice to Junior A Tier II. Scott enjoys many sports. He competed for Tagwi at the track and field regionals, he played hockey with the Midget NGS Braves, soccer with the Avonmore Division II team and basketball and volleyball with the Tagwi Warriors.

We congratulate these three students.

At the same time we extend best wishes for some of our older students who are continuing their education away. Nancy Scott is at Laurentian University in Sudbury for her second year, Jamie Munro is commencing his third year at Western University in London and Wes Munroe is attending college in Perth. Kemptville College of Agricultural Technology will be educating Charlie Jack in his second year and Logan McIntosh and Chad MacRae as new students. These last two were popular members of Richard Scott's staff for the last while.

Two local ladies who are now Manor residents, are celebrating birthdays soon. Evelyn Willis, who has considered Maxville home for over 40 years, will be 90 on Sept. 20. Isabel Cameron who was born at Dominionville West on Sept. 23, 1899 marks her 98th birthday on that date.

We extend our best wishes and congratulations to these two who have served their families and community well over the years.

Last week, Rae and Joyce and

Donald and Shirley Ferguson attended the funeral of their cousin Douglas Ferguson in Ottawa. The late Mr. Ferguson was the son of Stanley Ferguson, the brother of Dan Ferguson who made the Ferguson name very familiar on threshing mill sold across Canada years ago.

Jean Chisholm has had two of her daughters and their children home. Linda Saunders with Jamie and Blaire were here form North Vancouver and Helen Owen with Lindsay, David and Danny came from Toronto.

Over the Labour Day weekend, Lorna and I enjoyed our fifth family reunion at the Sky Dome Hotel with all of our immediate family present. The two baseball games we watched were both losses for the Blue Jays but that did not spoil the weekend. However, the news of Princess Diana's death was shocking on Sunday. At the game that day, a minute's silence was observed and that evening we passed the Princess of Wales theater and saw flowers being placed in front.

I also took the three oldest grandchildren up the CN Tower and found the experience for me just as scary as in former years. However, it was worth it, especially when the three were thrilled to chase wisps of clouds around the observation deck.

It is always good to see local businesses expanding. A new cement silo is under construction for the MacEwen Agricenter here. Jim MacEwen must be anticipating good crops and prices that will mean larger volumes purchased or stored at his facility. There are tractors hauling in the crop already, barley, I expect.

Yes, it is 30 years since PM John T. Mackenzie arrived in Maxville to organize the Glengarry School of Piping and Drumming. A group from the Glengarry Pipe band executive had realized that a school was necessary in order to keep the ranks of the band filled and PM Mackenzie became available on Saturdays at just the right time.

In very short order, a school was organized with excellent teachers who continued under his direction for 20 years. During the past 10 years, excellent leadership has been provided by PM Colin MacLellan and PM Ed Bush, assisted by highly qualified instructors.

As the 31st year begins, the high calibre instruction will continue. While the numbers of students have increased over the years, beginners in piping and drumming are being sought. Classes are of one hour duration and the ideal age for beginners is around 10 years. At this age, hands are sufficiently large to reach the scale on the chanter and strength great enough to march and carry a drum. Also, an understanding of elementary arithmetic is required for the music's timing.

Classes are usually divided with those 12 years and under in one and teenagers in another. Teenagers are not too old to start classes – it is the talent and commitment that counts. There will also be a chanter class for adults.

All former students are encouraged to return. Many levels of instruction are offered and efforts are made to fit new pipers into the right classes.

All beginners and new pipers and drummers are asked to register with one of the following in order that there will be sufficient classes and instructors on the opening of the school on Sept. 20. All beginners are asked to bring their chanters or sticks and pads to the public school in Maxville at 9 a.m. Those who may be phoned to register are: Janet MacCrimmon 525-1184, Judy Blackadder 528-4691 or Helen McKay 527-3035.

Contrary to what was printed in the Maxville Public School Newsletter in the spring, there will be Girl Guides this fall. Registration will be held at the school on Wednesday, Sept. 24 from 6 to 8 p.m. Sparks, girls aged 5 to 6, and Guides, girls aged 9 to 12, will be registered. It is also hoped that Brownies, girls aged 7 to 8, may be registered but at this time no leader is available. Adult leaders are still required for both the Brownie unit and at least one for the Guide unit. If you are interested or know of anyone who might enjoy becoming a leader in the Girl Guides of Canada, please contact Dianne Finnerty 538-2680 or Patsy MacKinnon 346-2486.

Dr. Royce MacGillivray is seeking information on a mysterious poet who wrote under the name of "Lochinvar" and who used to publish obituary tributes in the Cornwall newspapers in the 1920s. He dated his poems at Fairview which may be a location between Fassifern and Maxville but on one occasion he suggested a Gavel Hill connection. If anyone know about this person, I will be pleased to pass the details on to Dr. MacGillivray who will be visiting in the area shortly.

The Memorial Service under the auspices of the Maxville Cemetery Board was well attended when it was held on Aug. 31 in St. Michael and All Angels Anglican Church. The Rev. Janet Staniforth conducted the service and refreshments were enjoyed in the church hall afterwards.

Many floral tributes were placed in the cemetery prior to the service and with the trend to place these tributes on the west side of the tombstones, the well groomed cemetery appeared very attractive from the road.

The September meeting of the local Horticultural Society will be held on Sept. 17 at 6:30 p.m. in the United Church hall. This is the time for the fall auction of plants and vegetables and there will be no pot luck supper. However, light refreshments will be served after the auction and short business meeting.

This auction provides an excellent opportunity to dispose of surplus stock while assisting the Society financially and to fill your requirements at reasonable cost. There will be two unusual lots up for sale. Two Cornwall Freeholders dated 1909 and 1910 have been donated to the Society and a pod of Jack-in-the-pulpit seeds will be sold.

You are cordially invited to attend this meeting which opens the fall season. Also, if you have prize money from the August show coming to you, it will be given out at this meeting.

A reader phoned about a flying creature that was smaller than a hummingbird, yet behaved like one. I have concluded that it was a hawk moth, sometimes called a hummingbird moth. Our encyclopedia describes a hawk moth as having a powerful streamlined body with long slender front wings and small hind wings. It flies fast and skillfully, hovering in front of flowers and sucking nectar much like a hummingbird with its long slender proboscis. Unlike a bird, it has a pair of antennae.

These moths are considered very rare.

The total rainfall during August, as measured on my rain gauge was 89 mm. This did a great deal to get lawns green again, pastures better and improvement in the soybeans and corn crops.
