GLENGARRY IN BRIEF

Former minister dies

Rev. Norma Baumet, the first female minister of St. Andrew's United Church in Williamstown, and St. Andrew's United in Martintown, died July 4 in Alberta, after battling cancer for several years.

Rev. Baumet ministered here for four years until leaving for her native west in August, 1992.

She will be sadly missed by her husband, Marcel, who looked after her at home during her illness, her children, grandchildren and her many Glengarry friends.

At her request, memorial donations may be made to FFRF, Box 750,Madison, Wisconsin, USA 53701.

Power out Tuesday

Don't plan any power-related activities next Tuesday.

The power will be out from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on July 15 in most of Lancaster Township, most of Charlottenburgh Township, some of Kenyon, all of Lancaster Village, Williamstown and Martintown.

Hydro is interrupting power for line maintenance and pole replacement.

A rain date is set for July 16.

Golf tourney July 18

The 12th annual Eugene Macdonald Golf Tournament is slated for July 18, and organizers are reminding would-be participants that there are just a few openings left in the 144 entry field.

Sponsored by The Glengarry News in tribute to the late Eugene Macdonald, former owner of the newspaper, the competition will be held at the Glengarry Golf Club. Shotgun tee-off time is 1 p.m.

All proceeds from the event will go to the Ontario Heart and Stroke Foundation.

Tournament Chair, Stanley Fraser, said that non-expert golfers need not worry about their lack of skill.

"There will be a scramble format," said Fraser, "and lots of excellent prizes."

Participating golfers are asked to arrive at the club early, in time for registration. Luncheon specials of the quick-eating kind will be available for those who desire.

Following the tournament, a hot buffet will be held at the club before winners are recognized and prizes presented.

SDG dump session

Laflèche Environment Inc. is hosting an information session and open house on July 12 to let the public view plans for an SDG dump.

André Laflèche, company owner, has bought back the land that was sold to Browning Ferris Institute to look into a tri-county dump. The same site is now being studied by the United Counties Waste Management Committee.

The public can view Laflèche's draft terms of reference and conceptual designs at the Moose Creek Recreation Hall between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Wayne and Monique Koggel's cow Gracious was named the tenth highest producing cow in Ontario by the Dairy Herd Improvement Corporation.

Cow graciously accepts tenth spot in Ontario

By Lynn McCuaig
News editor

A Glengarry Holstein farm has made its mark on the Ontario dairy map and is graciously accepting the rewards.

EuroFlair farm's Aero Gracious, owned by Wayne and Monique Koggel of MacCrimmon, was rated by the Dairy Herd Improvement Coporation as the tenth highest producing cow in Ontario last year.

She recorded a BCA of 352 and gave 16,037 Kg of milk in her 305-day production cycle.

Gracious' contribution has also made the 26-cow herd the seventh highest producing Holsteins in the province and the highest in Glengarry.

Gracious was sired by the world renowned Madawaska Aerostar and born to Koggel's cow Gorgeous who was in the top 10 DHI rankings in 1989 with 336 composite BCA.

"It feels pretty good," to have the highest producing herd, he smiled.

"We've increased quite a bit in one year. We've also done the things we needed to increase."

The Koggels bought a new air-tight silo and have worked on balancing their Total Mixed Ration feeding.

"The blue silo really paid for itself," he said.

Koggel makes all his own feed on his 270-acre farm and is always improving its quality – a big part of the farm's successful equation.

"We use the highest milking type bulls in the breeds and top quality feeds.

"It really shows."

They bought Gorgeous from R.J. and Dwayne Baird in 1988 in a $6,000 four-heifer deal.

The windfall came to a head when she started milking way above average the next year and gave birth to two cows, Gracious and Goddess before she died of cancer five years later.

"It turned out really well for us," said Koggel.

And Gorgeous' offspring are living up to her name.

Goddess earned a classification score of 87 out of a 100 and Gracious tallied 85. Classification measures a cow's overall quality from its udders to size and production.

"It's a total picture of a cow. An excellent cow will stand out in a barn."

Their offspring are continuing the same standards. One of Goddess' nine daughters, a six-month old calf, recently sold for $5,000.

Koggel admits the DHI report likely helps Gracious' value, but he wouldn't take a guess as to how much she's worth.

"The interest has been there before in the past," he said.

"I probably would never sell this one. She's been way too good to us."

But the report may bring in some higher prices for Gracious' offspring. The five-year-old is due to calve in December.

Koggel's farming flair came from his father, Morris, who ran his operation with high quality purebred cattle since he came to Canada in 1952.

"He put us in that direction."

But with six other brothers, Wayne knew he'd have to seek his future off the family farm near Glen Robertson.

The Oeggerli family farm in Bainsville also took honors in the DHI report. Heidi Farms was one of 100 farms in Ontario to win a Herd Management Award and was in first in Glengarry in the same category.

He headed to Kemptville College and worked for the government before buying his farm in 1986.

A year later, he married Monique who shares in the farm management and milking.

Koggel admits the first few years building the farm were tough, but now the operation has a herd of high quality cattle and is performing where he wants it.

"Now we've got it to the point where we're happy and looking forward to the future."

With their success running high, the couple is toying with the idea of hiring help for a third milking in September.

If they decide to go ahead with their plans, the cows will be milked at 5 a.m., 2 p.m. and 9 p.m. to help ease the pressure on some of the higher-producing cows.

"Some of the cows that are producing high quality milk are leaking in the afternoon."

"It's more of a relief for the cows."

The new timetable will also be a new avenue for the farm – a change that Koggel is more than willing to make.

"I think if you stand still and don't improve, you just become lost, you're in a stalemate."

Molson label promotes 50th Glengarry Highland Games

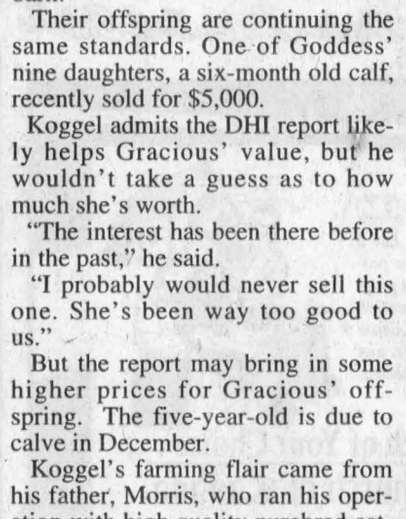
By Sue Harrington
News reporter

You may not be able to judge a beer by its label, but judging the label on Molson Canadian can be of local interest these days, Glengarrians are finding.

Sporting a few strands of Royal Stewart tartan and a familiar logo, the labels which appear on roughly 1.5 million bottles of the beer are being distributed in the next three or four weeks to advertise the 50th anniversary of the Maxville Highland Games.

Michael MacDougall, Molson's territory manager for this area, said that as of July 3 some 60,000 cases of the "Highland Games" brew would be distributed in the area from Amherstview north to Barry's Bay, and east between the St. Lawrence and Ottawa Rivers.

And according to MacDougall, this is something new.



Molson label

"Advertising on the back label like this is a first, possibly in Canada, definitely in Ontario and Quebec," he said.

According to MacDougall, Molson has advertised for Oktoberfest for several years, but only on the neck label of the bottle.

The idea has been kicking around the beer company since the early '90s, and MacDougall said he had been "pushing for it for the last six or seven years."

"I'm very, very happy that it happened. The Games are such a personal thing for me," said the former Williamstown man.

He said the number of specially-labelled bottles being distributed was arrived at using last years' figures. If the company's estimates are correct, the end of the supply should coincide with the end of the Games — give or take a few days.

MacDougall said that it cost Molson in the neighborhood of $10,000 to $15,000 for the special Games labels.

"I hope they appreciate it," he said.

Town flag lifted

By Sue Harrington
News reporter

Who's got the flag? In all the patriotic fever following Tuesday's Canada Day celebrations, someone made off with the large Canadian flag which covered the whole top of the stage at the Alexandria Island Park. And organizers are anxious to get it back.

The flag is a little special — it was given to the Town of Alexandria 20 years ago by MP Denis Ethier, after being retired from its previous post at the top of the Peace Tower in Ottawa.

When not in use for Canada Day or other official occasions, the flag is kept in the safe at the town hall.

Jamie MacDonald, a member of the organizing committee in charge of entertainment and decorating the stage, said the flag disappeared sometime during the night.

"It was there when the sound guy finished at 1.15 a.m., but had disappeared by 6 a.m. when someone went to pick it up," he told The News on Friday.

MacDonald admits that organizers forgot to remove the flag right away, and hopes that whoever took it did so because they thought it had just been abandoned. He asks that the flag be returned to The Atlantic or Champions.

"No questions asked," said MacDonald. "We just want it back."

Publisher assumes helm at the News

Community news remains the focus for county paper

By Lynn McCuaig
News editor

The Glengarry News welcomes new publisher Bill McIntyre who brings with him 32 years of experience from across Canada in the daily and weekly newspaper industry.

McIntyre picked up the reins late last week after he and his wife Fran..e finished a cross-Canada trek from Vernon B.C.

Though the drive was hectic, the McIntyres are pleased to be in Glengarry after only hearing about the area from friends in the West.

"They heard it was a friendly community in a nice area, and they didn't lie to us," said McIntyre.

Originally from New Liskeard, Ont., McIntyre began his career in 1965 and has never looked back.

He worked as a reporter/photographer in Timmins then moved on to Kirkland Lake, Cambridge and Kitchener/Waterloo, as well as Calgary to name a few.

McIntyre's experience isn't limited to writing. He was also the advertising manager in Chilliwack B.C. and became the founding publisher of McCott Publishing Ltd. in the same city which published two weekly newspapers.

His career had brought him from weeklies to dailies to writing two episodes of CBC's Night Heat.

But it's the weekly newspapers where McIntyre sees the real focus shifting.

"The action is really in the community press," he said.

As the dailies changed to carrying mainly national issues, the market opened again for weekly papers to bring community news.

And that's the focus McIntyre is planning to take with the Glengarry News – bringing more community news to its readers.

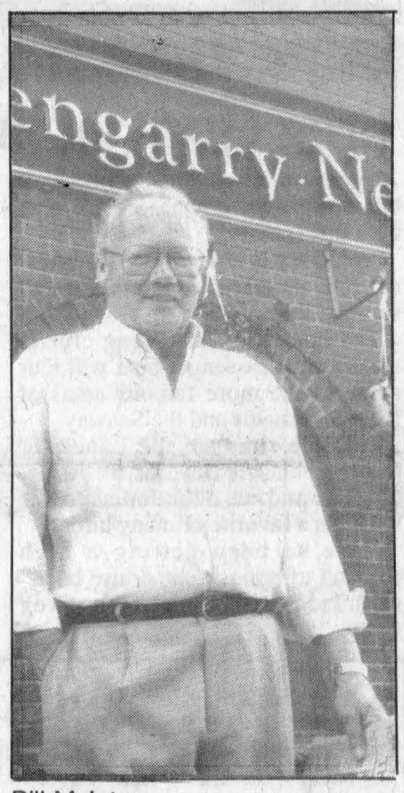
"This area is fortunate to have a newspaper with that kind of commitment to the community. I want to see us continue and expand that," said McIntyre.

More features on your neighbors, on interesting people doing interesting things, are high on his list.

"If anybody thinks there aren't interesting people in Alexandria, I've met several and we've just moved here," he said.

But McIntyre was quick to reassure that "it won't be at the expense of what we're doing now."

McIntyre is expecting to use his experience with The Western Producer and Country Life in B.C. to bring Glengarry's agriculture issues to the forefront.



Bill McIntyre

He will also draw on his work as wire editor for the Sudbury Star, managing editor for the Vernon Daily News in B.C. and as the managing editor for the Kelowna Daily Courier.

Ironically, McIntyre also wrote a television show based on a small town newspaper just before coming to Alexandria. The script is now in the hands of a producer out West.

The highly qualified newspaper man said it was the quality of the Glengarry News and strong family ties in Ontario that brought him to Glengarry.

"Certainly I was impressed with the newspaper."

"With chain ownership, you don't see that serving of and a commitment to the community. With this, it's there."

McIntyre also said that he and his wife were at a stage in their lives where they wanted to be closer to their relatives in Northern Ontario.

Outside of the newspaper, you'll probably see the new publisher horseback riding, fishing or just simply enjoying the outdoors.

He's also travelled extensively through South America and made the mistake of touring Ecuador during the border war with Peru.

McIntyre said he already feels at home in Glengarry and is looking forward to meeting as many people as possible in the coming weeks.

Grant creates six jobs

Sue Harrington
News reporter

Six jobs are expected to be created locally thanks to a Job Creation Partnerships program grant which was announced Thursday by MP Don Boudria. The Garry River Watershed Project, a joint effort between the Raisin Region Conservation Authority (RRCA) and the Town of Alexandria, has been awarded $79,228 in federal funding.

The project will examine and assess the health of the Garry, said to be deteriorating as a result of natural causes and land use practices.

Boudria told the News on Friday that there will be two phases to the project. The first is expected to begin on July 21 and will run for 26 weeks. This phase will study the extent of the problems in the river and will attempt to come up with the solutions necessary to return it to good health and to increase river flow. This phase will be followed by a second one — implementing the corrective measures and doing rehabilitative work.

Boudria said that he expects the second phase will be a youth project, with funding to help out-of-work young people gain work experience. This phase will receive an additional grant.

Workers for the project will be hired through Human Resources Development Canada. According to Gloria Lemoyre of the employment centre in Cornwall, the workers must be EI eligible. The positions mean work for three environmental workers who must have some basic knowledge of chain-saw and hand-tool operations, and for two assistant researchers with a background in environmental studies. A project coordinator, expected to have post-secondary education in the natural sciences, will oversee the work. All employes must have their own transportation, as the work will take place at different sites along the river.

Boudria said that he was pleased that the community was working together on such an endeavor.

"Initially there were some problems getting it (the project) through," said Boudria. "But they were resolved after a series of meetings which resulted in some small alterations. The important thing is that it's a great start."

According to Boudria, the project will raise the level of public awareness toward the Garry, which he said is not only a source for the town's water, but is also a source of beauty.

"This river is an absolutely wonderful sight to see. It is so pleasant, so very beautiful. It reminds me of some of the rivers in Europe," he said.

Alexandria Clerk, Leo Poirier, declined comment on the grant, saying on Friday that his office had not yet received official announcement of the funding, and referring the News to Andy Code of the RRCA. Code, who did most of the groundwork for the project, is on holiday and was unavailable for comment.

Creg Quay offers boat tours

Those who want to be on the water, but don't own a boat, are in for a treat this summer.

Creg Quay is hosting Sunday cruises from its marina in Bainsville all summer long.

The hour and a half long cruises aboard a 50-passenger boat will tour some of the more famous areas of Lake St. Francis and the Seaway.

Possible sites are the Lancaster Cairn, Leblanc's Bay, the St. Anicet Church and an abandoned tower which is a favorite of many birds.

"We've been getting a high demand to bring in the cruise boat," said Jacques Bazinet from Creg Quay.

Bazinet said the 35-tonne boat is ideal for the St. Lawrence since its weight keeps it from rocking too much.

The first three cruises will begin on July 6 but are only open to the winners of the marina restaurant's draw. Anyone who eats at the restaurant between now and July 4 is entered in the draw.

Beginning July 13, cruises are open to everyone at a cost of $13.50 per person.

Tours leave at 11:30 a.m., 1:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m.

The boat is also available for private parties and is equipped with a bar, music and a dance floor.

Former resident and artist paints Glengarry

A former Glengarry resident is getting back to his roots in some of his most recent paintings.

Sudbury artist Daniel Alexander MacDonald is originally from Alexandria, the son of Duncan William and Mary MacDonald (Dunkie Picket and Mary Angus Sandy Hughie Allan.)

Though he hasn't lived in Alexandria for decades, MacDonald still remembers his past and has painted some of the county's most memorable scenes.

"There's a feeling here," said MacDonald.

For the next few weeks, MacDonald's works are on display for sale at Barbara's Mens Wear, a store owned by his former neighbor, Mike Barbara.

MacDonald's work includes an oil painting of St. Margaret's where he attended school and St. Finnan's church where he was an alter boy.

The emotions connected to his subjects spill out into the paintings of Glengarry.

"When you grow up with that, your feelings come out," said MacDonald.

Another piece pictured is the old dance hall in MacCrimmon and the opening of the Maxville fair, a painting it took him a year to finish.

MacDonald said he's been doing paintings of this area for years, but most of them have gone to relatives who have since moved away and want to hold onto a piece of Glengarry.

A Virtuous Home
...A home can be described as a place where someone lives and it doesn't matter if it consists of one person or ten. A house is just a building, but a home is made up of loving, caring, virtuous people. Reading the Bible, trusting in God, and praying are the best ways to instill the virtues within a home that are pleasing to God. Home is where we should be comfortable, relaxed, and safe, and a place where the presence of the Lord is always there with us.

John T. MacKenzie renews acquaintances with Queen Elizabeth during Canadian visit

By Todd Lihou
News reporter

Pipe Major John T. MacKenzie has built a career on piping, and last week, that path led him back to royalty.

MacKenzie was given the chance renew acquaintances he had made with the Royal family during his duty as household piper.

At Governor General's home last weekend, he met with Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip during their Royal Visit to Canada..

MacKenzie piped at the royal couple's wedding some 50 years ago, as well as other special royal occasions.

He would often play as much as once a month for the queen, who was quite a Highland dancer.

He said it took some time before the queen finally realized who she was speaking to.

"One of her aids probably told her," said MacKenzie, who also piped at the funerals of King George VI and Winston Churchill.

MacKenzie was just nine-years-old when he took up the bagpipes in Scotland some 65 years ago – and he hasn't looked back since.

His lifetime of piping has taken him from the rolling hills near his home of Edinburgh, Scotland, to fame as a Second World War veteran as well as household piper for the royal family.

The transplanted Maxville resident wastes no time when it comes to discussing his colorful past. It's difficult not to get caught up in everything he has been through and the people he has met – thanks in large part to the pipes he carries on his left shoulder.

Pipe Major John T. MacKenzie

MacKenzie's piping career started when he was a student at Queen Victoria Military School in Dunblane, Scotland, at the age of nine.

MacKenzie says his grandfather William, first introduced him to the idea of picking up the pipes.

"He suggested I take it up," MacKenzie said, complete with a thick Scottish burr.

MacKenzie says his family, including his mother Eliza and his sisters, were all great singers and it was only fitting he continue the musical tradition.

MacKenzie said the old adage goes "it takes nine years and nine generations" before you become a full fledged piper, and he is only the first "on our side to play the pipes."

MacKenzie's parents were from the Highlands in Scotland, a predominantly rich area of piping tradition.

At age 15 MacKenzie graduated from military school and became a member of the Scots Guard as a boy piper.

His time with the Scots Guard eventually took him to three continents during the Second World War where he not only rallied the troops with his music, but also served as a gunner and a stretcher bearer with the famous Rat Patrol of the Second Scots Battalion.

When he was still 15 and early in his tenure with the Scots Guard, MacKenzie's mentor, Pipe Major G.B. Robertson gave him a lesson in piping he wouldn't soon forget.

"He told me to forget everything I had learned about piping up to then," said MacKenzie. Apparently the piping taught at the military school wasn't the best a young boy should be learning.

"That was the turning point in my career.

"He must have seen the disappointment in my face, because he said 'By the end of the year you'll be winning the competitions.'"

According to MacKenzie, Robertson was right.

Following his return to Great Britain after the war, he was appointed piper to the royal household by the royal chamberlain.

MacKenzie spent 14 years as a piper for the royal household, before becoming the pipe major of the No. 1 Fighter Wing Pipe Band in the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Shortly thereafter Prince Philip paid a visit to the English base where MacKenzie was stationed, and he piped him into dinner.

Afterward, the prince and the base commander were standing at the bar staring at MacKenzie.

"He (the prince) came over and asked me what I was doing with the (RCAF) uniform on. I told him the money was better," MacKenzie says with a chuckle.

MacKenzie eventually settled in Maxville during the early 1950's and retired from the RCAF in 1970.

Shortly after that he began teaching the pipes to area high school students, a practice he kept up for 18 years.

He now keeps up his piping on a vintage pipe made in 1890, which he purchased in 1952. It was made with sterling silver, ivory, African blackwood and leather.

During his visit with the queen, he was pleased to find out she was "very impressed" with the quality of piping coming out of North America, specifically Canada, thanks to old salts like MacKenzie who have kept the piping tradition alive.

MacKenzie estimates he has taught over 2,000 students to play the pipes.

"The pipes were never taught in the public schools as a credited class, so in 1970 they let me teach on an experimental basis to see if it would catch on."

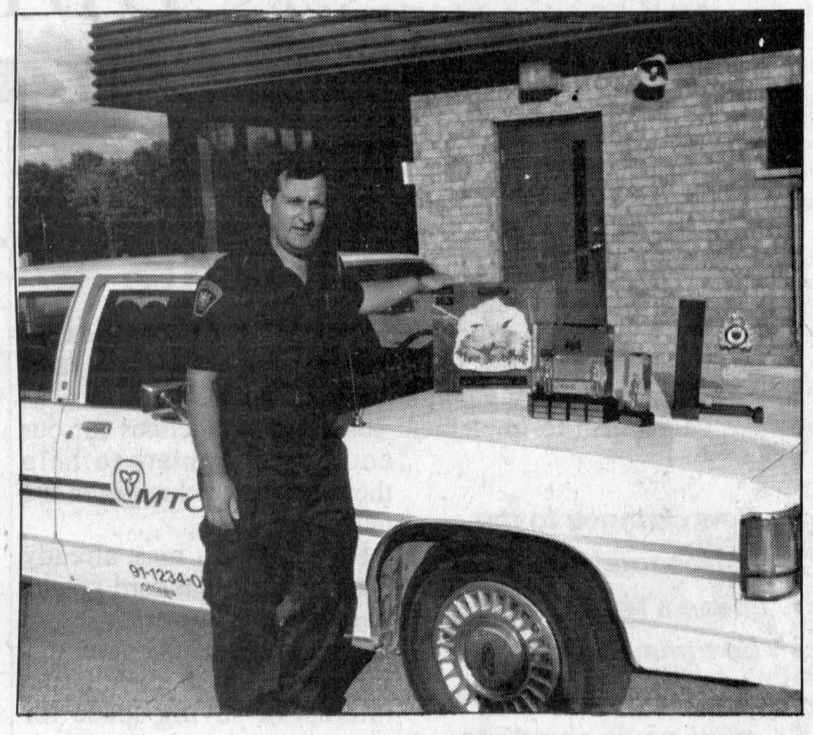
MacKenzie taught at Tagwi, Char-Lan and GDHS, before retiring for good in 1988.

He has also become an integral part of the massed bands that takes place every year at the Maxville Highland Games.

"I was more or less the one who started the first tattoo," said MacKenzie, who now produces the mass bands that opens the games.

MacKenzie says he never imagined his piping would ever take him this far.

But he's glad he had a chance to make the trip.



Ernest Larocque was overall champion at the Provincial Inspectors' Competition in Downsview last week.

Local wins MTO championship

By Sue Harrington
News reporter

A Lancaster man has returned home with an armload of plaques and trophies after being named grand champion in a competition sponsored by the Ministry of Transportation (MTO).

Ernest Larocque, an enforcement officer with the MTO's Eastern Region, placed first overall in the Provincial Inspectors' Competition held July 3 to July 5 in Downsview.

The competition, now in its fourth year, is held in conjunction with the Ontario Truck Driving Championships. And according to Larocque, this partnership is geared to promote safety on Ontario's roads.

"The competition, everything we're doing, is to enhance road safety," said Larocque. "It tries to get officers to excel in their work."

As a result of his victory, Larocque has earned a spot in the International Inspectors' Competition, being held in Minneapolis in late August. There he will compete against inspectors from Canada, the United States, Mexico and Puerto Rico.

"These countries are working together for a uniform standard across North America," he said.

The journey to the championship honors won by Larocque was an arduous one. First there was a written exam to determine the regional champions. From this, the top inspector in each of the five regions, plus the next highest five in the province, were eligible to proceed to the provincials.

At the provincial level there was another written exam. Then the competitors had to put their inspecting knowledge to the test, being judged on everything from inspecting dangerous goods cargo, to commercial vehicle safety, to motor coach inspection, and many others in between. There was also a personal interview.

Larocque, who won several individual championships as well as the grand championship, has been working for the MTO for 20 years.

This was Larocque's second year in the competition. Last year he placed third overall and was named bus inspection champion.

New range for archery fans

By Lynn McCuaig
News editor

At first glance, the Lavigne's forest looks more like a wild game reserve than an archery range.

Some 35 life-sized three-dimensional animals, most that could make National Geographic folk take a second look, lurk in the forests' trails south-west of Greenfield.

But there's one dead give away this forest isn't a scene out of Bambi – every animal has a target over its vital organs.

It's all part of Glengarry Archery's new practice range, one of the few of its kind in the area.

Archers can head out into the bush any time of day to practice shots in a setting almost like the real thing.

And in the pseudo hunt, groups of friends and families can bow hunt together without worrying about scaring the game animals away.

"Hunting is a bit more of a loner sport," said Rob Lavigne, owner of the range.

The course contains 35 life-like foam animals, each of which have targets with different scores on every ring. Pegs staked in front tell shooters where to aim from.

The Lavignes are hoping their range, which takes about two and a half hours to complete, will become a regular practice area for enthusiasts of the sport some people are calling one of the fastest growing in Canada.

"Once they try it, they're usually back," Rob smiled.

Tracy and Rob have put every spare moment into the trails since they moved to the Greenfield area from Apple Hill three weeks ago.

They've already spent $6,000 on targets which include moose, deer, wolves and rabbits to get ready for last Saturday's opening. But the couple are crediting local archers with the trail's success.

Rob Lavigne with one of the 30 targets on his new archery range near Greenfield.

Hunters from the local Border Bow Hunters and Nudell Bush have donated many hours to help the Lavignes in their preparations.

"They're all anxious to see this get going," said Tracy.

"We wouldn't be open this weekend if it weren't for them. They really put their heart and soul into it as though it was their own."

The archery trails are a step up from the more common paper targets, say the Lavignes, since the trails offers the same geography as the hunt does.

"Once you get the slopes and trees, you've got a little more to work around."

With their archery range, the Lavignes are hoping to promote safety and awareness.

The range will have some staff hunters circulating the trails to be sure everyone is respecting nature.

And by practising in a real setting, hunters will learn at what distance they can shoot accurately.

"If you're going to go and hunt, make sure it's a clean kill," said Tracy.

Though he hasn't downed many deer in his bow hunting efforts, Rob picked up archery from a friend eight years ago.

After his first day on the range, there was no turning back.

"Once you go to one, you're pretty well hooked," said Rob.

Rob eventually bought out two archery stores and started his own shop out of his home in Apple Hill 18 months ago.

Now he's running the shop out of his basement in Greenfield.

Town July 1 success with new volunteers

By Sue Harrington
News reporter

The efforts of volunteers at Alexandria's Canada Day celebrations were praised by Recreation Director Mike Depratto. The volunteers, under the guidance of Depratto, came to the rescue after the Lion's Club, which had sponsored the event for many years, decided to give it a rest this year.

"Everyone pitched in and made it almost as close to 100 per cent of a day as it could possibly be," Depratto told the News on Tuesday, saying he would like to publicly thank all who donated their time in order that the July 1 celebrations could continue.

Depratto said that the parade this year was especially good, attracting three bands and a dozen "excellent" floats. He also paid tribute to the firemen who looked after the fireworks display.

Rick Weber, of Little Rikki's Pizza and Subs, echoed Depratto's praise. Operating a concession during the festivities, Weber found the event this year was very well organized.

"You could just feel that it was different," said Weber. "All the picnic tables were put together in one spot, so that there were equal opportunities for all the operators."

Weber also felt that the good planning contributed to the behavior of the crowds. "There were no fights and no people staggering around drunk. It was a really enjoyable time."

The crowd was down slightly from former years, but that might have been because the weather was a little too warm, said Depratto.

Members of the committee were due to meet at lunch yesterday to recap the day and to start planning for next year.

"I hope we can plan it the same way," said Depratto. "At least we'll have a little more time this year."

New guidelines for county columnists

Change is always a shock to the system, but in some cases, change can't be avoided. In the News' case, changes are rampant and recently they've hit the correspondent copy.

We've decided to implement some new guidelines for our county columnists to help them deal with changes in the newspaper.

New changes to the correspondent copy mean a few things will be trimmed down. In the interest of fitting more news copy into the paper, card results, draw winners, random birthday and anniversary wishes won't appear in the columns anymore.

Some of you may already have noticed that card results and draw winners are no longer a part of the columns. This change was made in the interest of saving space for more news copy in the paper. Many are telling us they want to see more news and in response, we've had to cut a few things.

Random birthday or anniversary wishes aren't a part of the News anymore. We will still cover milestone birthdays and anniversaries or ones that in some way have a news context.

Correspondents can now only write about events occurring in their own areas and reminders will be limited. In the past, some groups would call three or four columnists to have an event published three or four times. Repeating announcements will now be cut.

The changes were made with the intention of getting more articles in the newspaper; in effect, giving you more bang for your 80 cents.

We hope you'll find the changes give the paper a wider variety of news, and don't be shy to let us or your local columnist know when something interesting is happening in your area.

Remember, we're your paper, Glengarry.

All parents should be included on council

The following editorial is reprinted from last week. A reproduction problem made the copy difficult for many to read. The News apologizes for the inconvenience.

All parents should be included on council. All parents should be given equal say in their child's education no mater what religion they practice or what language they speak. If the schools are accepting children from all backgrounds, then they must also accept their parents.

But the French branch of the separate school board has gone against that basic right, offering seats on its parents' council only to Catholics and people who can speak and understand French. The board is still accepting children from mixed and non-Catholic backgrounds, but won't include their parents in the process.

All parents should be given equal access to becoming involved in their children's education. The French branch of SDG Separate school board has acted against that right by stipulating only Catholics and French-speaking parents can be on council.

According to Canada's constitution, Catholic schools have the inherent right to discriminate. They're allowed to refuse children who don't want to participate in religious activities and can charge tuition fees to non-Catholics.

While it is the board's constitutional right, is it really an example visible people in the community should be setting?

Civil rights movements have been struggling against discrimination for decades and have crossed some major milestones. But is it time now for families with mixed backgrounds to sit at the back of the bus?

So far, the French section of the school board's answer has been, if you don't like the policies – leave. It has stated that parents can send their children to English schools or to the French public schools which have sprung up in the last few years. In Glengarry, only the Alexandria school Terre des Jeunes is French and public.

If families care enough about their children's religious education to send them to a Catholic school, it's obvious they're not going to act against it. And if parents do not speak French well enough to be understood, but want their children to learn to communicate in two languages, they should be offered a translator.

The bottom line is school councils have an autonomy to choose their own membership. Parents are elected by parents. The board should have confidence in parents to let them choose their own school councils without restrictions.

The answer is not chase families away, the answer is to be tolerant with children from mixed backgrounds and tolerant of parents who want to give their children a different perspective than they had.

To everyone who spotted the error on the editorial page last week - I know they were geese. Some strange foul force (fatigue, frustration?) came upon your editor while she was writing Todd's cutline and she called Canada Geese, ducks.

We had no idea the kind of shock waves it would send through the community. And not to worry, the town police have offered us their copy of the Audubon Guide to Birds.

Glengarry County exceeds expectations

THAT'S LIFE

BILL McINTYRE

First impressions are sometimes better kept to oneself to allow time for reality to temper positive or negative feelings.

In the case of our move to Glengarry County and Alexandria in particular it would probably be wiser to keep my first impressions to myself, but I won't.

After a five-day drive from the Okanagan Valley in British Columbia my wife France and I, accompanied by three Himalayan cats (that's another story) arrived road-weary and somewhat nervously on the outskirts of Alexandria, not knowing quite what to expect.

After checking into The White Rock Motel we decided to have a quick look around to see just what we had gotten ourselves into.

Before I get into that, however, you should know that Alexandria is well known to many people in B.C. In fact, just about every time I told someone we were moving here the reaction was: "Oh, you're just going to love it." Or: "It's really beautiful there."

I thought at the time they were just being kind or wanted to make sure we didn't change our minds about leaving.

Well, the minute we drove into town we realized they were right. The community and the area were exactly what we had hoped they would be, and more.

Since arriving we have often been met with the startled response this way: "You moved HERE from beautiful B.C.?" The implication being we were nuts for doing so. And yes were warned about the winters and yes we were told about the dampness.

But there are things here that are often not found in B.C. There is an inherent friendliness and helpfulness that we have appreciated immensely.

Everyone from the banks and post office staff to the gang at The Glengarry News to waitresses and store clerks have made us feel welcome.

We have travelled somewhat around the country down to Lancaster, up to Laggan and even over to Cornwall and have been thrilled at the variety of restaurants, shops, and sights to see as well as the diversity of the cultures.

You must be very proud that your French and English communities have merged to create such a unique, bilingual environment. It is indeed refreshing.

We are not comparing Glengarry County to British Columbia. Comparisons simply do not apply. The landscape is different, the weather is different and the people are different.

Different means neither better nor worse.

Our first drive through Alexandria saw us admiring the fine, old buildings along Main Street followed by a tour of the old homes along Dominion Street. We were also pleasantly surprised to see the various new well-kept neighborhoods at the north and south ends of the community as well. Forays into the countryside served only to reinforce our original impressions.

Still our arrival here has also prompted questions as to whether The Glengarry News will be changing directions. When I saw my first edition of the newspaper I was impressed by both the quality of design and content.

It was readily apparent that this newspaper is in close touch with and cares about the region it serves. That commitment will not change.

After more than 30 years in this business I have learned that it is much better to build than it is to tear down.

Simply put, the newspaper will continue to function much as it has. If anything changes it will be to provide you with more coverage, perhaps in subjects that have not yet been fully developed and to make improvements where and when warranted.

And as far as winter is concerned I have a healthy supply of shovels and scrapers coming in from B.C. where they were put to good use many times. I am hopeful that my tenure here as publisher will provide a positive contribution to the community.

At this point I can only say thank you for such a warm welcome. Merci.

Tolerating morning people isn't easy

OFF TOPIC

LYNN MCCUAIG

The way I figure it, people are divided into two categories – people who like mornings and people who don't.

It's a determining part of their character. Morning people are usually much more cheery than others and, from my experience, can be perpetual hummers or whistlers. Somehow they know that whistling is the most annoying thing to hear in the morning and try to do it as often as they can.

Others, in contrast, accept morning as a necessary evil. It's the thing that comes before they wake up. Give them at least a few hours wipe the drool off their faces, run into a couple of door frames and they'll be okay.

Don't try and communicate at first. Talking is forbidden before a shower. "Just let me chew my toast and try to focus on the morning news and nobody gets hurt, see."

And nothing is worse to a non-morning person than a morning person. Their cheeriness is enough to make anyone wish they were in a Mad Max movie.

You can pick morning people out of a crowd. Name me a name and I can probably tell you if they like mornings.

Mr. Dress Up – morning person. Valerie Pringle– morning person. Goofy – morning person.

Afternoon, evening and night people are much more subdued, darker, more bitter somehow. I'd be willing to wager Stephen King, Val Kilmer and Brad Pitt are definitely not morning people.

I once had a roommate who woke up singing. And because of some perverted twist of fate, her room had a heating vent leading directly to mine. She'd jump out of bed in the morning, ready to greet her day and sing. It wasn't until her selection switched to Whitney Houston's I'll Always Love You that things got ugly.

I, on the other hand, experience no greater misery during the day than getting out of bed. The most difficult thing I face every single day is putting both feet on the floor and pushing away from my cosy little cubby hole.

For weeks I had sadistic dreams about what I would do to the baby birds in the tree outside my window. Their mother's fight with a crow woke me up every single morning for weeks. As soon as the day broke the darn birds would start squealing and squawking until I'd yell out the window "I'm up, are you happy now?"

People who feed birds must be serious morning people.

There are always those who can't stand to see people sleep in. Children under five fall into this category. They'll do anything, including pulling out your nose hairs, to get you out of bed. Their favorite trick is jumping on the bed to wake you up. Some people never grow out of it. I recently had a morning person almost jolt a few disks out of place after realizing the ceiling was much lower than when he was five.

What I'm wondering is why they can't invent something to take the bitterness out of mornings. Sure they can send a remote control car to Mars, but can they make mornings more pleasant? In my opinion, science needs to get with it and start working on the things that really matter.

Until then, we'll all have to try and get along with morning people – it's not easy, but once you can get them to stop whistling, it can be a lot more tolerable.

Editorial wrong about Kenyon

To the editor:

Your June 25th lead editorial ("Sadly, Right to Farm is Needed in Ontario") was right in its assertion that farm land and "the right to farm" should be protected. But it was wrong when it used Kenyon as an example of how not to proceed.

Kenyon township has a strong record when it comes to protecting agriculture and the historic role of farming in our area. Our Official Plan, zoning bylaws, and recent planning amendments have all been formulated with an eye to preserving and enhancing rural values. So we have nothing to apologize for, and much to be proud of, on that score.

At the same time, however, it must be recognized that all our citizens have rights and that sometimes these rights are violated by individuals engaged in farm related activities. This, in fact, was the situation in the case you cited in your editorial.

You imply that both the Reeve (Gwen Morris) and I were wrong to support local citizens who were complaining about the effects on their lives of a cattle dealer who is

Solutions to farmer/residential debate

To the Editor:

With "Expect and respect farms in the country", The Glengarry Farmer, Ian Cumming, has hit the nail on the head. Traditional farming and modern residential development do not mix well.

There are, however, several things that can be done to improve the situation – and simple respect is not enough. As the former real estate reporter for a business newspaper here in the farming belt of the Lower Mainland of British Columbia, I've seen many practices that have been successful - and a few ideas that offer some hope for the future.

Certainly, it makes no sense to locate a new house next to a farmer's field. Farming is similar to industrial activity in the sense that farmers must use many substances that can cause unpleasant smells and otherwise affect air quality. Similarly, the everyday activities of residents can be disruptive to farm animals and residential development can lead to toxins being released into agricultural lands.

A first step is to ensure a that there is always a green belt between the two uses. A wildlife park with an eco-tourist trail system provides an amenity for nearby residents which enhances local real estate values and also provides a natural buffer for the farmer. This kind of park has to be wide enough to be useable by wildlife and residents and provide a good buffer, and this has been done in other jurisdictions.

The next step after this, of course, is to seriously re-examine many of our basic assumptions about development and the costs of servicing residential development. Mr. Cumming correctly points out that there needs to be a basic respect for the land. In the past, it was not possible to develop housing without using the land completely, but that has now changed. In many earthquake-prone areas and in major cities, buildings do not rest on the surface of the land but rather on deep footings sunk into the earth. It's not economically feasible to use this approach to the construction of houses -but it might be feasible to build townhouse or apartment developments this way.

A progressive municipality could give a developer the right to build to higher density, and so lower his or her land costs, in exchange for building housing that does not start at ground level but rather at a height of 30 or 40 feet. Clearly, an entrance would have to be built at ground level and parking be placed underground, but everything else could be built higher up. The extra cost of construction would be covered by allowing higher density and the residents would all have views of the surrounding countryside. The municipality should also give the developer a break on development cost charges and taxes when his or her building puts less of a strain on the municipal infrastructure.

A development that is elevated off the ground could offer several advantages, including trees and vegetation below the development. Since this development would likely have several hundred units, it could also have a common, built-in vertical marsh system which would pre-filter sewage and so reduce municipal infrastructure costs and provide more insulation, and soundproofing, to an outside wall. This would be particularly useful for residents if that outside wall faced a noisy neighbour such as a farmer during the harvest season. With a residential development that holds sewage for a short while in a tank before discharging it to the municipal system, there is also an energy saving since the heat from the sewage is recycled. This would help offset the energy loss of having the bottom of the building exposed to the elements. When the footings for the building are sunk into the ground, it would also be relatively simple to also install a geo-thermal heating unit and, with a heat pump and energy-sharing system, further cut down on energy costs.

This form of housing should also have a rooftop garden to reduce rainwater run-off, which erodes the land and pushes toxins downstream, as well as a centralized methane recovery system to recoup both this gas for re-use in a heating system and the solid waste to be re-used as fertilizer. When dried, human solid waste is an efficient fertilizer that does not smell.

Mr. Cumming is quite correct that farms and executive-style houses do not mix. In many municipalities, a denser townhouse or apartment development is often used in the transitory zone between commercial or industrial development and homes. It's reasonable to suppose that a similar type of development - but one that is more ecologically sensitive to the needs of farmers for good quality land - would be appropriate on the outskirts of agricultural land.

I hope these few observations have been somewhat helpful. I will be more than pleased to elaborate to anyone should there be any questions.

Yours sincerely,

holding livestock for auction in what has become a built-up residential area. We think these local residents have a legitimate complaint. They were there first. Several of them established businesses and homes in the area many years ago. In our view their rights don't go out the window simply because someone wants to start warehousing cattle in their midst.

The bottom line is that people cannot move into our area, next to a farm, and then complain about noise, odors, and general farm activities. They have no moral or legal right to make such complaints. On the other hand, those engaged in farm related activities do not have the right either to move in to a built-up area and to foul the water, air, and property of the people who live there.

Rights and responsibilities are a two way street.

Yours sincerely,
Blair Williams,
Councillor in Kenyon.

Resident denied his question

To the editor,

Re: Executive Sub-Committee for North-Glengarry Meeting of June 24/97

Once again I noticed the absence of a reporter from the Glengarry News. I suppose meetings on the future of our new municipality are not particularly important or newsworthy.

Too bad, because the reporter could have observed the continuous battle over finding a location for the new township's office and witnessed my getting thrown out of Lochiel Township hall, again. (The last time, because a publicised meeting called by Lochiel Reeve Ron McDonell was suddenly decided to be closed to the public and the press.

Thanks to Alexandria's Clerk, Leo Poirier's interest in public opinions, I managed to express my concern regarding the location of the new North Glengarry Township office. In my analysis, Alexandria is the only sensible choice, because of convenience for taxpayers to access all facilities, including the land registry office. All the departments of the township could be in one location, central to all taxpayers who go to Alexandria for other errands.

This decision must be made without considering personal preferences of the members of the executive sub-committee, most of whom seem unable to do this. I only hope that the suggestion of a public referendum, coincidental with the November elections to minimize costs, will be followed.

Just to prove how silly this months-long "feud'n" is, Maxville found it appropriate to table another option: Splitting the new township's departments into pieces and keeping all the present township offices, putting some "pieces" into each — maximum cost, minimum convenience to the public!

Then, I had another concern, but before I realized it, the chair, Reeve Ron McDonell of Lochiel, had closed the meeting to switch to an un-publicized in-camera meeting, while several committee members had left the room for a break. He insisted that I not be allowed to speak until after the closed meeting had finished, how ever long that may take! I "thanked" him and left.

I guess some reeves/councillors were elected by the people, but not for the people.

Thank you,
Michael Johl,

MacMillans celebrate

Clan MacMillan will take time out of its North American gathering to visit Williamstown on July 27.

The 40th anniversary gathering, slated for July 25, 26 and 27, will welcome the chief of the clan to the Clan MacMillan church service at St. Andrew's in Williamstown.

After the 11 a.m. service will be a tour of the historic church founded in 1787 by Rev. John Bethune, a United Empire Loyalist army chaplain from Scotland and the first Presbyterian minister in Upper Canada.

The anniversary gathering starts at Carleton University, July 25 with George G. MacMillan of MacMillan and Knap, M.A., D.L., 32nd Chief of Clan MacMillan and his wife Jane, of Finlaystone, Langbank, Renfrewshire, Scotland.

Saturday will be filled with seminars before the Williamstown excursion on Sunday.

The MacMillan chief and his wife will also accompany Lord Macdonald, Chief of clan Donald, as he opens the Maxville Highland Games on Aug. 2.

The MacMillan chief had opened the games in 1971 and his father opened them in 1962.

The chief will also be on hand for the Highland Ball on July 31 and the grandstand show on Aug. 1. On Aug. 2, he'll review the Clan Parade.

For more information contact John B. McMillan, President of the Clan Macmillan Society of North America at (905) 637-3395.

Man charged in break and enter

POLICE BRIEFS

A break and enter on July 1 has resulted in multiple charges against a local man.

In the incident, a Kenyon Street residence was entered and a quantity of meat was removed from a freezer. When police were arresting a man, narcotics were found upon his person.

Charged with break and enter and theft is Claude Lavigne, 33, who was released to appear in court on Aug.7. Lavigne also faces provincial charges under the Hwy Traffic and Compulsory Insurance Acts.

Charges in accident

A Green Valley youth has been charged with failure to yield at a stop sign, after a two car collision July 4 in Alexandria.

Richard Leblanc, 17, was southbound on Macdonald Boulevard when his 1995 GMC pickup collided with a 1985 Chevrolet driven by Donald Roy, 18, of North Lancaster, which was travelling west on Kenyon Street.

There were no injuries in the accident and the vehicles sustained moderate damage.

School vandalized

Vandals entered Glengarry high school during the early morning hours of July 7 and ransacked several classrooms and an office.

Police said that the school was entered through a window on the south side of the building at approximately 3.30 a.m.

Once inside, the unknown persons entered a classroom where they removed a clock, took pictures off the wall, and generally wreaked havoc.

There is no estimate of damage in the incident which is still being investigated, but it is not believed that anything was stolen.

Local youths sought

This week Crime Stoppers needs your help in solving a break enter and theft at the Second Line Road, Lancaster Township.

Sometime in mid-June unknown suspects entered a residence and spent the night partying. Upon leaving the residence these unknown persons stole a large hockey card collection consisting of six or seven boxes, a telephone and liquor.

The nature of this crime indicates that the suspects are probably local youths.

If you have any information on this or any other crime, call crime stoppers and if your information leads to an arrest you are entitled to a cash reward. Reward payments are set up to protect your anonymity. Call crime stoppers at 937-8477, or 1-800-265-8477 if long distance.

Recent graduates included Scott MacIntosh from Laurentian University in Sudbury with an honours degree in Bachelor of Commerce (Sports Administration),and Steven MacIntosh and Kris MacLeod both from the Farm Management and Technology Program at Macdonald Campus of McGill University.

Doris and Weldon were up to Sudbury first and then, along with Stanley MacLeod, were down to Ste Anne de Bellevue .

Doris said the MacDonald ceremonies were held outdoors. The graduates were piped up across a knoll to the presentation area - how fitting for Glengarrians!

Dunvegan WI held its June monthly meeting at the home of Catherine Dan MacRae in Maxville.

The Motto on Women of Canada was a presentation made at a WI conference in Toronto in 1915, and urged women on to greater efforts for Home and Country.

The Roll Call, 'Give a current event that took place in Canada' was answered by several aspects of the 50th anniversary of Newfoundland, the St Jean Baptiste riots in Quebec, the federal election, moving 2000 unwanted Canada Geese from southern Ontario to New Brunswick (where it sounds like they may also be unwanted), and coverage in the Standard Freeholder of a 'buns' contest - and we're not talking baking!

Plans were made for entering the MacArthur Trophy competition at the Williamstown Fair.

For her citizenship program, Catherine Dan read several articles on Canada and then held a contest on making words out of the word 'citizenship'. Flora Chisholm won with 42.

Hostesses Flora Chisholm and Joyce MacKinnon then served up a lunch that included unusual cream cheese and apple sandwiches and the first strawberry shortcake... all delicious!

The day before Joe Banks left The Glengarry News for good, there was a news conference at the Georgian House, with Kevin Macdonald, the editor Lynn, and the area columnists.

Some changes will be noticed in the future. We have been asked to exclude card party winners, all birthdays except those very special ones, such as 80th or 90th.

We are asked not to include anything that may have been in another column. We should announce any special meeting or event one time only, as a reminder to various groups or club members. If you give an item to your correspondent and it does not make it to the column, perhaps it just did not conform to the current requirements.

These changes may be temporary, depending upon the readers' reactions. If you, as subscribers, do not agree, then call and let the publisher know how you feel. After all, the paper is printed for your pleasure, and the staff wants to please their readers first and foremost.

Your items about family doings, visitors, outings, interesting happenings in your area, holidays, etc. are all most welcome and we hope that you all will continue to give us your news items.

New book being published about St. Mary's church

WILLIAMSTOWN

SUE HARRINGTON
347-2279

The local history shelf at the Williamstown Public Library should soon be expanding, as word has been received of a new book being published in the community.

"A history of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church," will be officially launched at the church this Sunday, July 13, after the 10.30 a.m. mass at which Msgr. Michael O'Brien will be officiating. Compiled by Archibald MacDonell, the book updates the history of the church written some years ago by his mother, Florence MacDonell.

The book launching is just one of many year long activities designed to mark St. Mary's 150th anniversary.

Lynn, Lynn, where have you been? I've been to Ottawa to see the Queen. Lynn, Lynn, what did you there? I watched Conrad Black in his long black wear.

Apologies to Lynn Lafave (but not Conrad Black, because, as the song sort of goes, "He don't own me"), but I couldn't resist.

Lynn and husband, Brent, who is the Lt-Col of the SD&G Highlanders were at a presentation of the colors ceremony for the Governor-General's Foot Guards at Rideau Hall in Ottawa on Monday. Conrad Black who is the Honorary Colonel of the Foot Guards was also in attendance, dressed in a special all black uniform.

Oh, the company they keep!

Lynn says that they had excellent seats during the ceremony, and that afterwards, the Queen did a walkaround on the grounds, and the Lafaves were "close enough to touch her."

Elspeth and Ruth Greer, while driving in Williamstown last week had to make a little stop where no stop sign is posted. As they neared the Paul Rozon Memorial Park, they had to wait for a mother duck and her ten (or so) ducklings to cross the road and go down to the river.

Unlike some of us, Elspeth knows her ducks and is sure that it was a wood duck. During her years of carving decoys, Elspeth has learned that wood ducks were once endangered, but are now making a comeback.

While the drakes are gorgeous, the woodie hens are a little dowdy. Elspeth said that what identified the ducks for her was the white (or pale) eye ring and the irridescent greenish feathers on the momma's flanks.

According to the Canadian Wildlife Service, as soon as they hatch, the young use their sharp claws to climb up the inside of the nesting cavity and jump or flutter to the ground, generally landing unharmed. The female then leads them to the nearest water.

This information seems to clear up an unsolved mystery. Remember a few years back when it was raining ducklings at Ethel Clark's while she was putting out the washing? The babies were coming from a nest in her chimney, but appeared to be just fine after their sky-diving show.

You may have noticed the article elsewhere in this issue about the special beer labels advertising the Highland Games. Apparently when Mike MacDougall was talking with Games officials about the labels, he asked, "Does it matter which tartan?"

One of them replied, "I suppose you want the MacDougall."

Mike conceded that it would have been quite the accomplishment to pull that one off.

Can you imagine having a father with the name of John Angus MacDonald and not ever having been to Glengarry before?

Such was the case with Stephanie MacDonald, who along with friends Gordon Morison and Gillian Murdoch, recently visited in the area with Martin Bowman and Gillian Horgan.

The three young people are from Scotland where they are studying dentistry. While in Canada they will be working for six weeks on a project at McGill to determine the dental hygiene habits of Quebec residents.

Apparently people from the west of Scotland have more dental problems than elsewhere in Europe and those from Quebec have a similar claim in Canada.

The trio will be interviewing people in both countries to ask about their diets, determine why they don't go to dentists, practise preventive dental care, etc., to see if they can find a link.

In the "it's a small world section" of the Williamstown News, son Zachary, who is working in London (Ontario) for the summer was recently visiting the home of a friend, Rob Hess, whose father teaches at Western.

Being the gracious host, Prof. Hess asked Zak where he was from.

When he replied, "Glengarry," the professor asked if he knew anyone from Alexandria.

"Sure," said Zak.

"Would you know.....no, you wouldn't know him; he lives out in the woods," said the prof.

"Who?" asked Zak.

"Henry Beissel."

"Sure I know him," said Zak, remembering back to days in Tom Stewart's English class when Henry helped the students write plays.

So Henry, greetings from your old friend Gunther Hess in London, via the Glengarry connection!

Nancy Jackson, you were missed! In what must have been the omission of the second quarter, Nancy Jackson's name was left off the list of those who helped with the wonderful decorations at Char-Lan's graduation. By me.

Sorry, Nancy! You will no doubt be somewhat mollified to learn that the school called to sing your praises, saying how hard you and Mike worked and how very much your efforts were appreciated.

Sometimes I forget that there are other high schools which are attended by Williamstown young people. I guess when the first thing you see when you look out the window in the morning is Char-Lan, it sort of sticks with you the whole day....every day.

Matt Trudel, son of Viv and Bob, graduated from CCVS recently. Matt, who was an Ontario Scholar and scholarship winner, will attend the University of Waterloo in September.

We wish him the best in his future studies.

Camping at Island Park suggested

Councillor Gary Shepherd proposed that council investigate the idea of opening Island Park in Alexandria to camping.

"We're not using the park to the best advantage of the town," Shepherd said.

"We're spending $13,000 a year on grass-cutting there. We could make some of it up through camping fees."

Maxville expands

The area of the Village of Maxville has increased slightly. It was announced at the June meeting that three lots in the Fox Hill subdivision and a strip along the west side of the Manor property had been annexed from Kenyon Township.

Properties don't pass

Kenyon Council would like to see two township residents improve the appearance of their properties.

Identified by the township's Property Standard Committee as needing attention were the properties of George MacDermid on Concession 4 and R. Lavigne on Concession 6.

Selects whip Avonmore 67's

The Avonmore 67's were no threat to the Alexandria Selects' Cornwall and District Soccer League women's division undefeated streak.

Kelly Lavigueur scored three goals as the Selects thrashed the 67's 10-0 on Sunday.

Lori MacMaster and Meghan MacPherson each scored twice while single markers were added by Shirley Hay, Tammy MacSweyn and Tamara Hartrick.

On June 25, Alexandria downed Jazz Magnolias 5-2 as five different players – Kelly Lavigueur, Becky Howes, Kyra Howes, Shirley Hay and Tamara Hartrick – hit the back of the net.

Hearts boys split with Gloucester

After suffering their first loss of the Ottawa-Carleton Soccer League season on June 27, the Glengarry Hearts boys' under-17 team earned its revenge just three nights later.

The Hearts fell 4-0 to Gloucester at the Hornets' Nest, but bounced back for a 3-2 homefield victory.Cameron Lajoie's second goal of the game midway through the second half was the game-winner.

Kurt MacSweyn also scored for Glengarry.

The Hearts were ousted in the quarterfinals of a tournament in Laval.

Glengarry was eliminated by a 3-1 loss to Optimum Victoriaville. Kirk MacMillan was the only goalscorer.

The Hearts were 2-1 in the preliminary round, beating the Rebelles Sud-Ouest 1-0 and the Laval Etoiles de l'Est 6-0 and losing 2-1 to the Lakeshore Raiders.

Jamie Ladouceur and Kirk MacMillan each scored twice in the opening round with single goals going to Cameron Lajoie, Tim McCuaig, Luc Leblanc and Murray MacLeod.

Hearts' high five sinks Nepean Utd

Five different players scored as the girls' under-14 Hearts shut out Nepean United 5-0 on Thursday.

Brenda Bartlett, Josée Hagen, Josette Laferriere, Loni MacSweyn and Marie-France Lajoie each contributed a goal.

Hagen and Josianne Laferriere shared the shutout.

Sledge hockey on display Saturday

A special sledge hockey demonstration will be held at the Cornwall Civic Complex this Saturday afternoon, starting at 2 p.m.

Sledge hockey is a variation on hockey which has the competitors moving around on sleds. The players use their sticks to not only pass, stick-handle and shoot, but also to manoeuvre the sleds.

The sport was originally conceived to allow physically disabled people to play hockey.

Saturday's demonstration is part of an effort to establish sledge hockey in the Seaway City.

Look out racing world, here comes another Ladouceur. Rookie class driver Lee Ladouceur (left) is making a name for himself at Cornwall Motor Speedway, where his father Laurent (right) is already very well known. Lee's brother Joey (not pictured) is also involved in auto racing – he competes in the late model class at the Cornwall oval.

The fastest family in town

Lee and Joey Ladouceur follow in father's tire tracks

By J.L. Lefebvre
Sports editor

For Cornwall Motor Speedway fans, the name Ladouceur is synonymous with success.

For years, Alexandria's Laurent "Laser" Ladouceur has been one of the top drivers on the Cornwall track and the rear of his vehicle continues to be a familiar sight to many of the other drivers on the modified class circuit.

Ladouceur is a threat to win every week and his long career includes a pair of Cornwall track championships.

The success of Kingston's O'Brien Brothers – Danny and Pat – makes it highly unlikely Laurent will win a third track title this season, but don't be surprised if the name "Ladouceur" and the word "champion" are used in the same sentence later this summer.

That's because Laurent's 19-year-old son Lee is taking the Speedway's rookie division by storm.

Lee won the first four races of the year in Cornwall and has six victories in seven tries overall.

The four-cylinder rookie class is the same division in which Laurent made his racing debut two decades ago.

If that wasn't enough, Lee's older brother Joey, 21, drives a borrowed car and competes in the late model division in Cornwall.

Joey has yet to taste victory at the Cornwall track, but he has cracked the top 10 four times and the top five twice.

Speed has become a family business for the Ladouceurs and if you want proof, check out the clothesline after a busy weekend of racing in Cornwall, Edelweiss and Frogtown. N.Y.

"Now, instead of one firesuit on the line, there's three," said Laurent.

Growing up at the track

It's really not much of a surprise that the Ladouceur boys both followed in their father's tire tracks.

"Racing has always been a part of my life," said Lee. "Everything around me growing up involved racing, so it's natural that I would want to be a part of it.

"I went to the track every weekend and I was part of my dad's crew when I got older."

Before long, Lee wanted to drive a car of his own.

"I guess I've always been attracted by the competition, the speed and the skill of the drivers," said Lee.

Laurent says he never encouraged or discouraged his sons from becoming race car drivers.

"They've been talking about racing for a while. We did specify that they had to finish their schooling first, but then we left the choice to them.

"Actually, if they would have chosen not to (become race car drivers), it would have made our lives a lot easier."

But once Lee and Joey decided to get behind the wheel, Laurent was ready to lend a helping hand.

"I have a certain amount of experience and knowledge and I'll share that with them the best that I can."

Once the race begins though, the second-generation members of the Ladouceur racing clan are on their own, a fact which makes the patriarch a little nervous.

Laurent remembers how he felt when Lee made his racing debut earlier this summer.

"I felt like a mother sending a kid to school for the first time," he says. "You know they're going to be okay, but you can't help but worry."

Lee's skill helped alleviate some of dad's concerns.

"It made me proud to see the way he handled the car."

Judging from the early results, dad will have a lot more to be proud about before the racing season is through.

Barry and I took a hiatus from our local Canada Day this year, the first in 14 years... not from the celebrations, but from all of the work involved. Despite our expectations this was not an easy thing to do!

We had a great time on the river with family and friends but were still a little concerned about all that went on in our village for the Celebrate Canada festivities.

It wasn't hard to discover that the parade was great, and the entertainment was good, and all went very well in spite of the intense heat that prevailed.

We were present in the evening for the fireworks... great as usual, and to see many old friends, a most delightful end to the holiday!

Although not present, I do know about the work that is involved to make this a happy time for us.

I know that our Chamber of Commerce is totally responsible for Canada Day and that all of our service clubs, including the South Lancaster Fish and Game and the Lancaster Antique Car Club, make this day possible as well.

It really is a united effort to allow our community to have a great Canada Day. In the end, our hats go off to the Lancaster Firemen, well trained, who present a wonderful fireworks display, Thank you!!!

Winners of the parade are:

Overall Parade Entry, The Lancaster and District Chamber of Commerce, Parade Theme Award, Tante Lyne Kids. Most Original float, The Lancaster Rodeo. Most Entertaining Entry, Lancaster Joint Fire Department. Equestrian Entry, The Glen Scott Pony Club. Animal Entry, Corey and Melissa Mader. Special Merit, Mounties on Rollerblades, and Edelweiss Riding Academy. Classic Car Award, Ron Lafrance and the 1937 Custom Ford. and for the Peoples Choice, SDG Highlanders Pipe Band.

Congratulations to all. To all of the entries, thanks for participating... hope you had fun!

In Lancaster and Charlottenburgh $31,144.75 was collected in a very successful campaign by the South Glengarry Branch of the Canadian Cancer Society. With this kind of support it is certain that cancer can be beaten.

The Branch would like to thank the captains, volunteers, canvassers and the generous people of our area.

A special thanks to Joyce Muir for her presentation on Sun Sense at the June 3rd meeting.

In summer, with many on holidays, we see heavy traffic and parking in the village. The Lancaster Community Policing Committee asks pedestrians to be careful when crossing Main Street. Please use the new crosswalk in front of the library. Who knows! We may get another one at the other end of the village.

Special thanks to Paul and Diane Mongeon of the Green Valley B.B.Q. for hosting the L.C.P.C. breakfast/seminar on the 28th.

On the same note, I have been informed that a local couple have been the victims of a hit and run accident near the Corner of Rob Macintosh and Hwy 2.

Last Thursday (July 3rd.) driving eastward on the South service road at dusk, their Buick LeSabre was sideswiped by an out of control driver. The car, a large, squarish, dark brown vehicle, sped off immediately. Any information that anyone might have on this incident would be appreciated. Call our O.P.P. detachment.

Do you remember the Lancaster Coffee Break, last September?

Sheila Urquhart was presented with the Outstanding Volunteer Recognition Award at a recent meeting of the Alzheimer Society of Cornwall and District, for 1996/97.

In accepting this award, Sheila stated that the Chateau Gardens staff and volunteers contributed by supplying creamers, sugar, cups, cookies, and staffing for the 13 stations in the village.

Also, without the co-operation of the local businesses from one end of the village to the other, the 1996 Coffee Break would not have been such a success. So, Sheila shares this award with the entire village. Nice, Sheila!

Several areas of service were recognized but President Michel Bourdeau cited the remarkable achievement of funds raised in Lancaster, In raising almost $500 in one morning, Lancaster brought in almost one third of the total raised in SDG.

Across the province nearly $120,000.00 was realized in this unique fundraiser.

Get-togethers and outings are really important for the Sunshine Gang. Recent meetings included Show and Tell, quizzes and singsongs, as well as fortune telling and birthday celebrations.

The Sunshine Gang wishes one and all a happy and safe summer.

Glengarry Outreach Services gains centre in Alexandria

SENIORS' PRIME TIME

ROSEMARY CAMERON

Hello everyone. No I didn't leave the country; I have been involved in endless meetings and then I tried to disappear to get our 1997-98 Ministry budget done. It was due July 1.

My column this issue will be on the role and mission of the Corporation of Glengarry Outreach Services. The reason I am writing this is to bring everyone up to date on the growth of our corporation and to put to rest any rumors or worries that you my have heard.

Our role and mission is to provide numerous programs and services to the seniors and disabled residents of Glengarry County. The Long Term Care Division of the Ministry of Health provides 70 per cent of our budget to ensure the above residents' needs are met and that they can reside in their homes in Glengarry versus premature placement to an institution. We also receive 20 per cent funding from the United Counties. The other 10 per cent comes from the clients' user fees.

We began in December, 1989 and served our two satellite sites, Martintown/Williamstown and Glen Robertson/Dalkeith. In February, 1990, we started our Lancaster and area site. September 1991, we formed our fourth site for the Alexandria and area location. In 1992, the Province of Ontario funded the capital dollars to construct our Lan-Char Senior Support Centre, located in Lancaster. Prior to our move into our new centre, we operated out of a volunteer's basement.

With our rapid growth, the Outreach Committee decided to become a corporation. On July 7, 1995, we officially became the Corporation of Glengarry Outreach Services. The board of directors is made up of an elected official from each of the seven municipalities of Glengarry, along with senior/volunteer representation from each of our four sites, along with representation from the Eastern Ontario Health Unit. This committee advises the board of directors of the seniors/disabled needs in their community. It also makes recommendations for improvement of services, fundraising ideas, etc.

The spring of 1997, construction began in the town of Alexandria, to build our second support centre. The location of this centre is where the Royal Canadian Legion facility was located. This location was chosen because of the high density of seniors. The Legion will occupy the main floor area, while we (Outreach), will operate from the second level. There is a board room on the main level which will be shared by both parties.

Glengarry Outreach Services will be setting up a second office in this new facility in August and will be operational in September, 1997. Our new centre will serve northern Glengarry (Alexandria, Green Valley, Lochiel, Dalkeith, Glen Robertson, etc.) Please note, this does not mean our satellite site at the Glen Robertson Centre will close. Our normal programs and services will still operate from this location, eg. Diners' Club, Footcare, etc.

The Lan-Char Senior Support Centre located in Lancaster and the Martintown/Williamstown satellite site will serve Southern Glengarry (Bainsville, North Lancaster, Glen Walter, St. Andrews, etc.

Presently, we have three staff, executive director, administrative assistant and cook, we are in the planning stages of hiring two more staff.

The growth of our corporation was made possible through the communication and promotion from other health related agencies, libraries, donations from the people of the community, etc. But utmost the countless hours given to us for our senior/disabled residents by our 401 volunteers to ensure our coordinated programs and services are delivered.

Next Saturday, the Glen-Scott Pony Club will be competing in the Regional Pony Club Dressage Championships to be held in Williamstown. We wish them lots of luck and lots of fun!

Sunday, July 6 was a memorable day for the Poirier "clan" when 105 of 114 family members, all descendants of Edouard and Cecile Poirier, gathered in Alexandria to celebrate over 300 years and 11 generations of Poiriers in Canada. Four branches of the family have recently taken up residence in the Glen Nevis/North Lancaster area.

CONTEMPORARY DESIGN FOR CORNER LOT

This fashionable home has a pleasing face on three sides with the garage and front entry set at right angles. The exterior boasts board and batten siding with an accent of stone facing, a multi-level roof with gables and a raised entry.

The foyer and living room feature a 12'0" ceiling height. Decorative columns frame the entrance to both the living and dining room. A gourmet kitchen provides plenty of cupboard and counter space, a work island and a boxed out breakfast area. The family room is a good size and features a cosy gas fireplace. The den, just inside the front entrance and separate from the main traffic areas would make an ideal home office.

Upstairs, two secondary bedrooms each boast a boxed out window seat. The master features a large walk-in closet and a five piece ensuite with double sinks.

Plans for U-982 may be obtained for $520.00 for a package of five complete sets of working prints and $45.00 for each additional set of the same plan. Allow $15.00 extra to cover the cost of postage and handling. (BC residents add applicable sales tax to plan total) (All Canadian residents add 7% GST to plan total plus postage and handling).

This is one of our new designs. Many innovative plans are now available in our home plan catalogue for $13.85 including postage and handling and 7% GST.

Oeggerli farm wins DHI award

By Lynn McCuaig
News editor

The Oeggerlis didn't set out to have the top farm in Glengarry or be on the Dairy Herd Improvement (DHI) Corporation's top 100 farms list, it "just happened."

"We just try and do the best job we can," said part-owner Walter Oeggerli.

Walter runs the 470-head Holstein operation near Bainsville with his father Paul and brother Paul Jr.

The family on Heidi farms, named for their matriarch and fourth owner Heidi Oeggerli, concentrates more on business than recognition.

"But it's nice to see when it all comes together," Walter admitted.

Making the farm come together is what DHI's new Herd Management Awards are all about.

Farms are measured according to their milk value, udder health, calving age and interval, longevity and percentage in lactation.

As opposed to the BCA average scores which measure the average milk per cow a herd is producing, herd management is an all-round assessment.

The Oeggerli's 202 milking-cow farm came up above the provincial average in almost every category measured.

"Who wants to be average. You don't strive to be average," smiled Walter.

In fact, the Oeggerli's farm is anything but average.

The 550-acre farm boasts the biggest free-stall barn in the county – 330 feet long and 90 wide.

It ships 5500 liters of milk a day, uses roughly 4,500 tonnes of feed and its animals produce more than two million gallons of manure every year.

But for all the farm's success, neither brother can put a finger on what led them there.

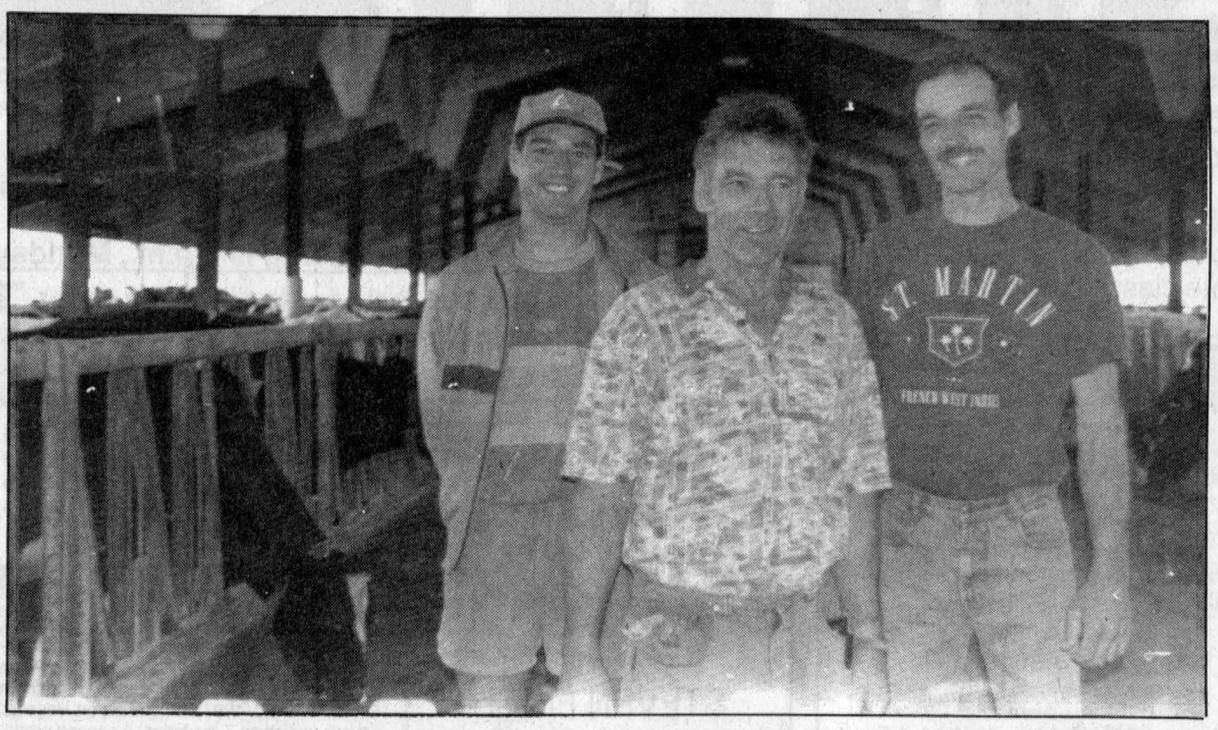
"It's a hundred little things rather than one big thing," said Walter.

"It's all the little things that add up."

In the 1996 DHI progress report, their milk value rings in at $5,130 per lactation (305 days) per cow while the provincial average is only $4,184.

The farm's udder health was graded by DHI at 2.2 which means their Somatic cell counts are lower than the provincial average at 3.1. Lower Somatic cells means the cow's in better health and can produce more milk.

Longevity, the percentage of cows in their third lactation or longer left the Oeggerlis slightly behind with 39.8 per cent, less than the average 41.7 per cent.



The Oeggerlis – Paul Jr., Paul Sr, and Walter – won the DHI herd management award for their 470-cow operation near Bainsville.

Walter said the decision to keep younger cows is a pragmatic one.

"We keep them as long as we can," he said.

But if a cow starts performing below what the farm expects, then it's not long before the animal is shipped off.

"The fast food industry is good for us," he joked.

Oeggerli's cows are calving younger than the provincial median with its average cow calving at two years and 33 days. Ontario's average is 26.9 months. And their calving interval is up to 13 months, against the provincial average of 13.5.

In the final category of percentage of cows in lactation, Heidi farms racked up 88.3 per cent against the average of 84.3 per cent.

The Oeggerlis aren't breaking open the champagne to celebrate their results, they're careful not to put too much faith in competitions.

Some days on the farm couldn't be better agreed Paul and Walter, but on others, the problems pile up.

"You give yourself a pat on the back one day and the next day you get a hammer over your head," Walter laughed.

But both brothers admit it's always nice to come home to their farm.

The massive operation, which can almost be mistaken for a compound, has four separate areas for milking cows, calves and sick cows, dry cows and a holding area with a milking parlor.

The freestall main barn, built in 1991, could be almost dubbed the Hilton for Holsteins.

Cows are kept inside all year to ease their stress and keep them out of the mud, but with big area to walk in – complete with back-scratchers – the cows have little to complain about.

And technology has also made milking a lot easier for the family.

Paul demonstrates an automatic arm that falls behind the cows to bring them into a milking parlor. As they're going into the parlor, a scan reads the tags and brings up its records, automatically registering the amount of milk its giving.

Another button lifts an arm to let the cows go back to their stalls.

The temperature is controlled automatically by digital thermometers in every corner of the barn. If there's one degree change in temperature, the side curtains lower on their own and the roof-top chimneys are open to let the warm air out.

The work isn't as back-breaking as it used to be, said Walter, but there's always a lot of it.

"You're still going to work the same hours, you just do more stuff.

Cows get bum rap on gas output

Global warming is sometimes blamed on cows because they produce methane during digestion. But research may help clear Bossy's name by finding the straight facts on how much gas is actually emitted by cattle.

It's already common knowledge in the world of science that the cow has probably been unfairly victimized. Driving your car 3.2 kilometres kicks out as much methane as a cow produces all day. One landfill site in the Vancouver area produces more greenhouse gases than all the cattle in British Columbia. On a worldwide scale, Canadian cattle are responsible for just 0.15 per cent of the methane produced.

Still, Canadian cattle can be made to release less methane.

Poor quality hay diets are responsible for higher levels of methane, according to University of Alberta Professor G. W. Mathison.

to the Blessed Virgin Mary for your intercession. Our prayer for what we thought was impossible was answered. Two things that we have learned are: Never give up hope and never take anything for granted. Also don't just say the Rosary when times are bad - say the Rosary when times are good too! Parish on countdown to Galarama '97

St. Raphael's parishioners are engaged in a flurry of activity as they prepare for the upcoming Galarama on Sunday, July 27.

The hugely successful pie contest will return this year. For a fee of $2 a pie and the donation of the pie, anyone can enter as many pies as they wish. The organizers have decided that this year only double-crust pies will be admitted.

Judging will be by five anonymous (and very fortunate) experts. Prizes will be given for the top three pies that score highest for a number of criteria from presentation to taste.

Pies must be delivered to the back of the church by 1:30 on the day of the Galarama. Isabelle McDonald is in charge of this event and can be reached at 525-4298 for further details.

There is a draw for a total of $1,500 in prize money – one prize of $1,0000 and, five for $100 each. In addition, there will be at least eight door prizes. The draw for these will be at 5 p.m.

Winners of the door prizes will have until 7 p.m. to collect their prize, failing which another name will be drawn, as people must be on the grounds to collect.

Another outstanding quilt has again been produced to be raffled by the CWL.

For our entertainment pleasure, program director, Teresa McDonald, has enlisted many familiar favorites in the local entertainment field – Sylvester and the Clansmen; MacCulloch Dancers, Dennis Carr, Bob Taylor and Luane Doyle; Lochiel Strings; Van De Burg Dancers; Glengarry Strathspey and Reel Society; and, Jean Lajoie Group with Uncle George, who do a tribute to Don Messer. A new dance troupe that will be joining us this year is the Murray School of Dancing, headed by Colleen Murray, who placed eighth in Canada in a dance competition.

These are just some of the highlights in store for all of us on July 27, when St. Raphael's hosts the 20th anniversary Galarama. The big tent is reserved again, so rain or shine, plan to be there!

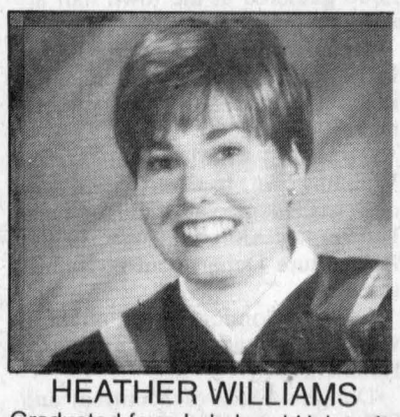
Attended anniversary celebration

Mervyn and Anna Margaret MacDonald were accompanied by Barton and Betty McDonell of Glen Robertson on a trip to Chicago to join in the diamond anniversary celebration of Sr. Mary Liguori on June 29.

The celebrant, the former Annabelle MacCosham is an aunt of Barton and Anna M. A native of Bridge End, she had entered the Congregation of St. Joseph in 1921 and taught in various schools in the Chicago area. Still active and concerned in various tasks at the Mother House at La Grange, she was greeted by dozens of former students and friends at her afternoon reception following an anniversary mass.



HEATHER WILLIAMS

Graduated from Lakehead University with a Bachelor of Education, May 1997. She is the daughter of Carole and John Williams, Maxville. In September, Heather joins the staff at Seaway District High School, Iroquois, as a Mathematics and Science teacher.

Glen Robertson celebrates Canada Day

Canada Day celebrations in the Glen started off with beautiful and sunny weather. Mass was celebrated outside by Father Denis Lefebvre and over 320 people enjoyed a delicious brunch.

The parade was headed by RCMP Guy Pilon and Howard Barclay, a veteran from the Alexandria Legion. Six random names of people participating in the parade were drawn and the winners were: Wyman Wylie of the Glen, sponsored by the Township of Lochiel, Rolland Brisebois of Ste. Anne de Prescott sponsored by the Glen Robertson Optimist Club, Ron Valade of the Glen sponsored by Club 65, Rosaire Thibault of St. Timothé sponsored by Community Police, Robert White of Cornwall sponsored by the Easy Cruiser Car Club and Andrea Fortin of Nepean sponsored by the Recreation Centre. Each winner received $25.

The Dallas Dancers from Hudson gave us a sample of their Western line dancing along with the local folks.

The Easy Cruiser Car Club made many trophy presentations for the best bikes, tractors, trucks, the longest distance driven to the centre by an antique car driver, special interest award, best club support and favorite car. Watching the smiling faces of the kids on this very hot day, the best part had to be watching them squirt water at each other. I even got a taste of it a few times and it was a relief. I saw a few adults getting in on the fun too and it was nice to see people relaxing and just enjoying the day.

President of the Recreation Centre, Dennis Prieur would like to thank everyone who helped to make it a success and fun day.

Constable RCMP Guy Pilon formerly stationed in Rouyn, Noranda has been transferred and is now residing in the beautiful region of St. Jérome. Good luck, Guy!

Congratulations to Chantal Poirier and Bryan MacDonald who exchanged wedding vows during the celebration of the mass last Friday in St. Martin of Tours church. We wish you much happiness together.

Township looking at dump extension

Initial investigative steps are being taken by Charlottenburgh Township with regard to obtaining an extension certificate of approval on the municipality's North Landfill Site. The current certificate expires on Dec. 15, 1998.

The township has been "working diligently to comply with the obligations of the certificate of approval," says a staff report on the issue, and feels it is prudent to proceed with the quest for an extension.

Charlottenburgh's North Landfill Site/Environmental Public Liaison Committee will work in conjunction with township administration in the process.

Council supports sign complaint

A resolution from the Village of Iroquois regarding tourism signs was strongly endorsed by Charlottenburgh Council at its June 10th regular meeting.

Iroquois is urging the Ontario government to reconsider the removal of tourism signs along major highways, saying that municipalities would be forced to pay for the erection and upkeep of new signs advertising municipal attractions.

Charlottenburgh, which rarely endorses the resolutions of other municipalities, declared itself "very supportive" on this one.

Hazardous waste day

Charlottenburgh will continue to hold a household hazardous waste collection day this year, despite a plan by the United Counties to hold a similar event for SDG.

In deciding to proceed with a collection day for its own residents and those of Lancaster Village, Charlottenburgh council cited precedent (since 1991) and the fact that funding for the day is in this year's budget.

Administrative staff worried that funding for the SDG proposal is not yet in place, and might end up costing the municipality more than was forecast.

The township's hazardous waste day will be held in the morning on Saturday, Sept. 13 at the Glen Walter fire station.

Clan chiefs

HIGHLAND PATHS

KEN MCKENNA

As we know, Lord Macdonald, High Chief of Clan Donald and Lady Macdonald will be the guests-of-honour at the 50th anniversary of the Glengarry Highland Games this year. He can trace his Norse-Celtic ancestry back a thousand years, but so what? Most of us can list our forebears for only a few generations back, and some can't even do that. Some people just aren't interested, believing that it doesn't make any difference who your ancestors were or what they did — it's what you do yourself that matters. They're right, of course, at least from a practical point of view. We can't allow ourselves to be so obsessed with what some ancestor did or didn't do that it hampers our own abilities through shame or false pride. Between the extremes of those who base everything on heredity and those who base nothing on it there is the common-sense view that there is nothing wrong with a healthy interest in those of our line who have gone before us. In a world where technology seems to be replacing humanity many are finding a new interest searching out their roots. Genealogy is one of the fastest-growing hobbies in the world.

The Highland Scots seem to have a particularly strong interest in their ancestry. Clan means children in Gaelic, and the clan system was based on family. The members of the clan, no matter how humble or remote from their chief, felt that they were related to him. Even if they had assumed the clan name for one reason or another and had no actual blood relationship, there was still a strong, almost mystical connection to the chief and to the other members of the clan. The children of the leading families were expected to memorize their family tree and the common members of the clan shared in the collective pride of heritage. The system of fosterage ensured that the chief never lost touch with his people. His first-born son was given to one of the ordinary clan families to raise. In this way the child was made aware of life away from the "big house" or castle. The clanspeople expected the chief to advise and protect them, lead them in battle and mete out justice. In return, the clansmen were expected to help support the chief and join the clan regiment when required. A clan chief, although he held power of life and death over his clan, could be deposed if he was found unworthy. But this system, based on a simpler way of life, could not last into the modern age. Before the feudal system that marked the beginning of the end for the old Gaelic culture arrived with the Saxons and Anglo-Normans in the 12th century, clan territories were seldom defined by written charters. The land was held in common and often 'by the sword', such as was the case for generations with the MacDonalds of Keppoch. Although the MacIntoshes held legal title to much of Glen Roy, the MacDonalds refused to acknowledge it and were seldom challenged. The chiefs acted as custodians, defining land use according to a complicated and ancient system. And boundaries changed as often as one clan defeated the other in the rivalries and bloody feuds that were among the evils of the clan way of life.

Long before the final defeat of the Highland clans at Culloden the clan system and the powers of the chiefs were disintegrating. The amount of land a chief could legally claim became more important than how many men he could bring to the battlefield and the administration of law in the country as a whole could no longer tolerate a separate justice system controlled by the whims of clan chiefs. The powers of the chiefs were abolished in 1746 and the clan system as it had been known for centuries ceased to exist. The chiefs became landlords, or 'lairds' as they are known in Scotland, and the clansmen became tenants. The ties that existed between chief and clan were broken forever, ensuring that the Highland clans would never again threaten the peace of the country. But although the clan system no longer existed legally, and although Highland chiefs as landlords were often a disaster, the idea, the mystique of chief and clan continued and continues still. It speaks from the heart. That is why the High Chief of Clan Donald from the Isle of Skye will open the Games here on August 2. George G. MacMillan of MacMillan and Knap, 32nd Chief of Clan MacMillan and his wife will also be honoured guests at the Glengarry Games, as well as presiding at various events in Ottawa and Glengarry during the preceding week. (More on Lord Macdonald next week).

Summer wedding celebrated

GREEN VALLEY

MARGO PEPIN
525-3581

A beautiful summer wedding was held on Saturday, June 28 at Eglise Ste. Marie by Father Marcel. Sylvain Pepin, son of Roch and Margo Pepin, and Lise André Lapierre, daughter of Robert and Françoise Lapierre, were united in marriage. A supper and reception followed at the sports palace in Alexandria.

On Monday morning the young couple left for a cruise to different parts of Mexico. The Pepins would like to thank everyone who came out to this memorable event.

Congratulations to Jacques and Monique Lefebvre who celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary on July 1. For the occasion, their family and friends gathered at Stephanie's in Hawkesbury. Also celebrating that evening were Jean Louis Lefebvre who retired after 22 years at Nestlé and Gracia Seguin who retired from teaching after 35 years. Congratulations to them all. I hope you both enjoy your retirement.

God bless and have a safe week.

Tagwi District High School celebrates 23 years of graduations

The twenty-third commencement of Tagwi Secondary School was held on June 25. The program included presentation of Ontario Secondary School diplomas, Ontario Scholarship awards, other awards and bursaries, and the valedictory addresses. Don Munroe, our local school board member, brought greetings.

The following students' names have been picked from the printed program as those from our area. If anyone is missed, your correspondent will include the name next week.

Ontario Secondary School diplomas were received by Peter Coleman, Amanda Ducross, Susanne Frei, Logan McIntosh, Wesley Munroe and Shelley Villeneuve.

There were many awards and bursaries presented. Wesley Munroe received the Robert Rolland and Sons Plumbing and Heating one. The Slanted Floor Art Gallery Award went to Amanda Ducross. Peter Coleman received a St. Lawrence College entrance scholarship and the Melanie McDonald Memorial Bursary.

For her contributions to the life of the school, her academic achievements and the fact she is continuing her education, Susanne Frei received the St. James CWL award, the MacEwen Petroleum Inc. award and the Robert Kilger one.

Shelley Villeneuve received three as well – the Todd Blaine Memorial award, the Scott's Convenience award and the Maxville and District Chamber of Commerce one.

Logan McIntosh topped this list with five – the Maxville and Moose Creek United Churches award, the Glengarry Curling Club award, the Tagwi School Council award, the Maxville High School Alumni bursary, and the Sam McLeod award.

We congratulate these graduates and express our pride in them, at the same time we acknowledge that their parents deserve credit too as do the members of the staff at our local high school.

Stuart Pollock graduated this spring from Waterloo University with an honors degree in Computer Science. He is a graduate of Tagwi and the son of Elaine and Howard. We offer Stuart our congratulations and best wishes for the future.

Jennifer Smiley, daughter of Merydie Fjarlie, is another Tagwi graduate who received her BA degree with combined honors in history and contemporary studies jointly conferred by the University of King's College and Dalhousie University. Jennifer is presently employed with the Chrysalis Training and Consulting Company in Halifax. Congratulations and best wishes go to Jennifer, too.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Cameron, recently married, from Bentley, Alta., have been visiting his mother, Isabel (Mrs. Harold) at the Manor as well as other relatives and friends and plan to continue their drive to the East Coast.

Erin Blair is home from Iqaluit, Baffin Island, where he continues to be a member of the teaching profession.

* * *

Neil Scott, a Westport resident with strong ties here, has retired as a school principal . A well attended retirement party in Westport enabled friends, relatives and colleagues to thank Neil for his years of service and to offer him best wishes for a happy retirement.

* * *

Gertie and Herb Auer have been entertaining four guests from Austria which include Mrs. Auer's sister and cousin.

* * *

The village has lost two young families recently. Ruth and Luc Laviolette and their three daughters have moved to their new home in Hawkesbury, while Kelly and John Simpson and their three sons have moved to a farm home on the 5th Con. Roxborough.

* * *

At the same time two new couples have moved to the village. Mr. and Mrs. J. K. Munroe have purchased the home of the late Ethel MacKinnon and Roxanne and Jamie Robertson are the new owners of the home of the late Dorcas MacDougall. We welcome these new residents to Peter Street and the village.

His friends offer much sympathy to Bill MacDiarmid, Ottawa, in the death of his wife Gladys. At the same time, Mr. Mac Diarmid's son, Donald, and his family are remembered. Also, Kathleen (Mrs. R.B.) Buchan, a former resident died recently, after living in Morrisburg for many years. Her husband had been a bank manager here for 13 years before his retirement in 1949. We offer our condolences to the two Buchan daughters, Jean and Dorothy and their families.

A communication has been received from Russ Hamel, Timmins, who is seeking information for his family tree. His father was Howard Hamel, born in Apple Hill on Feb. 11, 1921 and was raised in an orphanage. His paternal grandmother was Lilly Bell Yaumell (Youmelle) who was born in Maxville on June 12, 1901 and was the daughter of Peter and the former Bell Miller. Lilly Bell married Ernest Pickin in 1923 and died in 1972.

If any reader can contribute information for this family tree, I will be pleased to forward it to Russ Hamel.

After caring for seven goldfish last summer, wintering them and returning them to an attractive outside tub this spring, a local resident is mourning the loss of them. A racoon is being blamed for catching these medium sized fish, eating parts of them and leaving remains on the driveway as evidence. Hence a warning – if you have gold fish outside, cover the container with a screen. Racoons are both clever and dexterous.

A note received from Margaret Emond, nee MacRae, formerly from Dyer, contained two clippings. One was an article written by the Rev. Larry Scott of Banff and the other was on son, Alex, who is becoming well recognized as a watercolor artist. Margaret and Ken also visited their daughter Jane and family while in the West.

Many village residents have been waiting for this announcement. The 50th anniversary signs are now available at Debbie's Country Corner and are to be used to decorate premises for the Highland Games anniversary. There are 10 large ones for businesses and 100 smaller ones for homes. Recipients will be asked to sign for their signs which are to be used in the village and on homes on the extension of Mechanic St. W. The date for the judging will be announced later.

The Centennial Book Committee has also been responsible for having a bed of decorative shrubs planted at the north approach to the village. The suggestion for this project came from Ruby MacGregor and has been proven to be a popular one already.

While the Games are celebrating a 50th anniversary, it must be remembered that they were first held in 1948, 49 years ago.

We were away for several days for two reasons. During the first weekend we were in Guelph for the 50th anniversary of my graduation from the Ontario Agricultural College. An excellent reunion of my class was held and I am fortunate enough to be able to be among the 50 people of my class there.

For the following weekend, Lorna and I made the long trip to Thunder Bay by way of London, Sarnia and through the States to Sault Ste. Marie and then by Highway 17 to Thunder Bay for the 91st Ontario Horticultural Association convention. Our stay there was extended because I had to attend Board meetings as chairman of the Past Presidents Council.

The theme of the convention was "Superior by Nature" and was an excellent one. Because of distances, the attendance was down to about 340 but with very enthusiastic organizers, an excellent hotel facility and ideal weather, everyone enjoyed it. By the way, the OHA consists of 272 societies and 42,035 members.

Ann Kerr, another delegate from our Society, accompanied us home. We used Highway 11 and the trip was a total of 1,575 kms., done in two days.

Ten years ago, Vi (Mrs. Menzies) MacRae made the news as a member of a ladies' softball team at the age of 51. Mrs. MacRae is still a very active player as a pitcher and looks no older than she did 10 years ago. She is on the staff at Highland Toyota here but lives on the family farm west of Moose Creek.

For those who enjoy reading about the birds, my only contribution this week is that I saw some house finches up near Kapuskasing. So we know that this bird has moved that far northward.

My rain gauge recorded a total of 42 mm. for the month of June, not much and it all came during two rainy spells.

There may be a few tickets left for the Horticultural Society's bus trip on July 16. All those travelling on the bus must be society members for insurance purposes. The bus will leave the LCBO parking lot at 9 a.m., travel to a perennial nursery near Newington, then to Upper Canada Village for lunch at the Willard Hotel with a later stop at Mrs. Besner's gardens near Long Sault and a tour of Cornwall gardens as time permits. The arrival time home should be around 5 p.m.

* * *

The summer reading program has started at the Maxville Library which is in an annex at St. Bernard School. Children six to 12 years are invited to join Sarah MacMillan, a student programmer, "explore the marvellous mystery island" on Tuesdays from 6-7 p.m. on July 15, 29 and Aug. 12.

* * *

The country outings for Manor residents are starting on Tuesday mornings when three cars and the van will be used. Phyllis Burtenshaw requires a few more volunteer drivers for these trips which last about two hours, and she can always find uses for student volunteers.

July 14 is the deadline date to make reservations for the bus trip to Ottawa and the cruise on the Ottawa River on Aug. 14.

The phone number for these contacts is 527-2170, ext. 228.

On Saturday some of the Andrew clan made a lot of area calls. Joyce (Irvine) Andrew, daughter of Nora (MacGillivray) Kingston, and the late Stuart Irvine wanted some of her family to come back to Glengarry. So she and husband George Andrew (retired Queen's U.) of Ajax, daughter Susan, her husband Dr. Kevin Nolan and their children Megan, Andrew, Elizabeth and Michael of Ottawa visited with Douglas, Dorothy and Stewart Irvine, Irvine Rd. and our house before going on to McCrimmon, Ridge, Dunvegan and Maxville. Their tour escorts were Elsie (Urquhart) and Kenzie MacLeod, now summering at Lancaster.

Later that day we had a call from Lois and Don Hartling, Nepean, who had also visited with Emerson MacGillivray, Kirk Hill and Flora Ann MacGillivray, Maxville Manor.

W. MACKINNON

Recent visitors to St. Elmo were Ann Crain, her granddaughter Chris and husband Jamie Boyes. Ann, a former resident of the St. Elmo manse, is the daughter of the Rev. Wm. B. MacCallum and Christie Anna Fraser. She brought her granddaughter and Jamie Boyes to see the St. Elmo manse, the Gordon Presbyterian Church where she was married, and to visit the St. Elmo Cemetery where her father and mother are buried.

Another recent visitor to St. Elmo was Harry Shott who told me that as a young boy he lived with his parents at Baltics Corner and is now in Edmonton. He is a photographer and had his camera with him and took pictures of the Gordon Church, the old Congregational Church and the new St. Elmo History Centre building.
