Physician search results in new doctor for town

By Lynn McCuaig
News* reporter

Glengarry Memorial Hospital will hand over its $1,000 reward to Francoise Govan, the wife of Alexandria's newest doctor.

Dr. William Robert (Bob) Govan signed on with the hospital last week after his wife read about the reward offered to anyone who could find a doctor for Alexandria in last month's Family Practice Magazine.

The new family physician will set up a practice at the hospital and take on-call duties there in November.

Govan will leave his 12-year-old practice in Marathon, Ontario to come to Alexandria with his wife who works as his receptionist and office manager.

"We welcome him with open arms," Dr. Theo Jaggassar said in an interview Tuesday.

"I think it will be a great relief for doctor Roman and myself," he said. "There will be more doctors to share with looking after in-patients."

Until Govan arrives in November, doctors Jaggassar and Laszlo Roman will be taking care of all in-patients at the hospital except those admitted by Dr. Jean-Claude Nadeau and Dr Killmartin, who was just set up an office in Alexandria in June and was given admitting privileges last month.

The hospital is still looking for two more doctors to come to Alexandria and will continue using recruitment firms and scholarship programs to find doctors.

Although GMH has just signed another doctor, the shortage of doctors in rural Ontario is still a problem for many areas.

When Govan leaves Marathon, the hospital there will have only one full time doctor and one part time doctor in an area which should have at least five or six.

Alexandria "is the norm or worse" than hospitals in Northern Ontario who are unable to sign doctors, Pristanski said.

Smoking bylaw's future is in the cards

Alexandria residents will get a chance to vent their views on the town's smoking bylaw, by simply dropping a postage paid card in the nearest mail box.

Municipal council is debating the issue of prohibiting smoking in municipal buildings and restaurants, following presentations by the Eastern Ontario Health Unit and a counter-response from local restaurateurs.

The postcards, which read: "I am in favor of limiting smoking in eating establishments in Alexandria. The number of non-smoking seats should reflect the number of non-smokers in the town of Alexandria" will be included in the town's postal station mail boxes.

"We've come to rely on the notion that the squeaky wheel gets the grease... or that the most vocal group is also the largest group."

"Obviously, this isn't always the case. This postcard campaign, we feel, will support our belief that the majority of people in Alexandria are non-smokers and therefore would prefer and appreciate smoke free environments," said Dr. Robert Bourdeau of the Eastern Ontario Health Unit, which is spearheading the postcard survey.

The postcard also includes a perforated section which non-smokers can detach before mailing. "This added feature will also give us a clearer picture of the number of non-smokers in this area," said Dr. Bourdeau.

Results of the mail-in campaign will be presented to the town council and released publicly.

Villeneuve defends health care cuts

By Greg Kielec
News* editor

There will be no new money for health care in Ontario, MPP Noble Villeneuve told more than 100 people attending the District Health Council annual meeting Thursday.

"Simply throwing more money at health care is not the answer," he told a packed Glengarry Curling Club.

Villeneuve, at the meeting to speak on rural health issues, said government funding for health care will remain at $17.4 billion a year, even if other government spending goes down.

And he said the government is willing to entertain any ideas people have for the health care system, as long as they don't involve the expenditure of more money.

The Ministry of Health will call on all hospitals, doctors and volunteers for ideas to help shift the health care system "to a more promising track."

"Physicians alone do not own the health care system," nor do hospitals, nor does the government, he said. The taxpayers own the system, he said.

"We must assure we can afford to maintain it and keep it."

He said the government will "move quickly" to eliminate duplication and unnecessary costs in the health care system.

He said the Tories will not spend any more money on buildings for health care, instead electing to spend money on people.

"We need new ways of doing things, of dragging dollars more toward the front lines," he explained.

Villeneuve also backed the government's throne speech, and expressed surprise at the violent protests against the planned cutbacks at Queen's Park.

The speech basically reaffirmed the government's commitment to cut social spending as well as spending in a number of other areas.

"It's somewhat alarming because there shouldn't be any surprises here," Villeneuve said, in what at times sounded almost like a campaign speech.

He said the throne speech reflects exactly what the Tories had promised to do throughout their campaign leading up to the provincial election.

"There are no surprises. Government spending will be reduced quite considerably to balance the budget," he said.

The Tories want jobs for future generations, value for peoples' tax dollars and an end to government waste, he said, as well as a sound health care system and good schools.

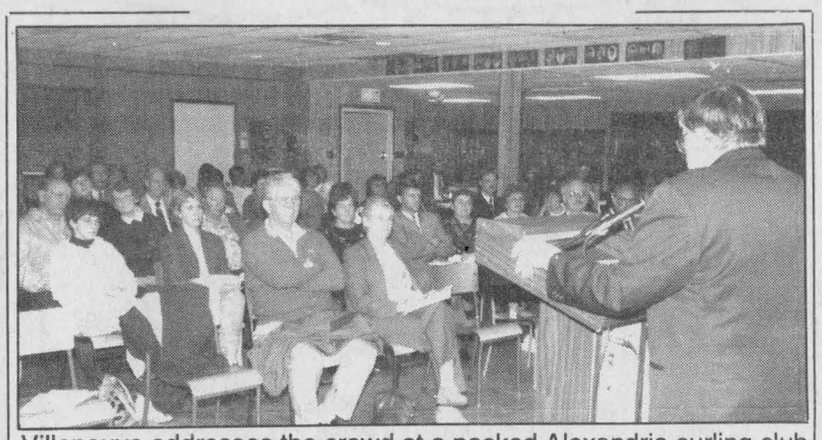
"We want every Ontarian to have a fair chance for a productive and independent life."

The government is "charting a new course" and "we will stick with them (new policies), as much as that seems difficult."

Villeneuve said the government cannot afford to increase the province's debt $100 billion, which costs $9 billion a year to service.

He said in a question-and-answer period after his speech that the Tories had anticipated a $6 billion spending cut would be needed to get finances in order.

But it now appears the government may need to cut $8 to $9 billion more.



Villeneuve addresses the crowd at a packed Alexandria curling club

Villeneuve faces questions on fate of Glengarry Memorial Hospital

By Greg Kielec
News* editor

MPP Noble Villeneuve's talk on rural health care issues, was, if anything, timely at the District Health Council annual meeting Thursday.

With media reports announcing provincial plans to close 38 hospitals, the fate of Glengarry Memorial Hospital was very much on the minds of those attending the meeting.

DHC Vice-Chairman Lorne Lawson anticipated the uncharacteristically large crowd was a result of concern about the news reports.

He said in his opening address that the government had dismissed the report as an unfounded rumor, but noted that people sometimes feel wherever there is smoke, there is "a spark of truth."

As Lawson had anticipated, Villeneuve was questioned about the fate of Glengarry Memorial Hospital in a question-and-answer session at the end of his speech.

He acknowledged there will be hospital closures — media reports have indicated the province plans to close 38 — but he could not say whether Glengarry Memorial Hospital will be a target.

"There will be hospital closings. The District Health Councils have made recommendations," he said in response to a question from Morlin Campbell about the chance of GMH closing.

But he said much of the problem of duplication in hospital services lies in Toronto, were there are six hospitals within a 15 minute walking distance of Queen's Park.

"What occurs, I don't know. But we do have a surplus of hospital beds."

As to what will happen to closed institutions: "Those hospitals will revert back to the community, I suspect," Villeneuve said.

Rescue unit brings peaceful end to six hour village standoff

The OPP tactical rescue unit put a peaceful end to a six-hour stand off between police and a lone man barricaded in his house Sunday.

Lancaster OPP called the tactical rescue unit to the scene shortly after they arrived at 8 p.m. because it was known the barricaded man was armed.

When police had arrived to the Tree Haven residence, they found the man intoxicated and upset, and was threatening anyone who approached the house.

Steven Doychak, 23, was charged with uttering death threats and breach of probation.

Doychak appeared in Cornwall court Monday where his hearing was remanded until Thursday in Alexandria court.

He will remain in police custody in the Cornwall jail until his hearing.

News office is closed on Monday

As the result of the Thanksgiving holiday this weekend, the office of The Glengarry News will be closed on Monday, Oct. 9.

This means the display and classified advertising deadlines for the Oct. 11 issue will move up to Friday, Oct. 6 at 3 p.m. Correspondents are asked to submit copy as soon as possible prior to the morning of Tuesday, Oct. 10.

The office will re-open at 9 a.m. that morning.

Teenager's murder trial adjourned to later this month

By Valerie Marshall
News* correspondent

The trial of a youth charged with second-degree murder in the shooting death of an Alexandria man in March, 1994 has been adjourned until late October.

The next local court date is most likely Oct. 31, although the youth was remanded to an Ottawa court for Oct. 11, 1995. At that time, Provincial court Judge Bruce MacPhee will give a written ruling on a crown request to call one last witness.

The defence has argued that the testimony of the witness is hearsay and should not be allowed.

Defence lawyer Michael Edelson told the court when the issue is decided, he and his client, now 19, will then decide whether or not to present a defense or head right into final arguments.

Two other people were charged in the same incident. Another young offender is serving a 14-month sentence for manslaughter. One adult, Jason Horvath, is charged with first-degree murder and is awaiting a court date.

The three were charged in the death of Alexandria resident Gerald Cuerrier, a man described throughout the trail as a known drug dealer.

On Wednesday, Sept. 27, the court continued to hear the testimony of the 19-year-old who is serving a sentence for manslaughter.

He had told the court previously that he was the lookout and driver the night the three went to rob Cuerrier for money and drugs. He said when the other two returned to the car, he was told by Horvath that he had killed Cuerrier.

In his cross-examination, the witness admitted there was no prearranged plan for alibis if the three were ever caught, and no plan for suicide, as one witness had told the court.

He said Horvath had called Cuerrier's house before the three headed into Alexandria on the night of Wednesday, March 23, 1994. There was no answer, he said.

The witness testified about being addicted to crack cocaine several years ago, stealing money from his family to buy the drug. His drug use in 1994 was "heavy", he admitted to Edelson, using both hash and acid.

He testified the night he went to Cuerrier's house with the two others, he saw Horvath get a gun from the family home, but he did not see him load it, or fire it.

He did see him clean it later that night and throw shells into the Kenyon Dam area. Edelson told the witness a ballistics' expert had testified

Airport expansion underway

By Lynn McCuaig
News* reporter

The $435,000 airport expansion in Summerstown was put in motion Monday at the official sod turning ceremony.

Yvan Gravel, chair of the airport committee, and Leslie O'Shaughnessy, reeve and airport committee member, were on hand to mark the beginning of a project that will make room for eight new hanger lease lots and add 40-tie down areas.

The lease lots will be rented in 50 feet by 36 feet areas and will allow owners to build shelters for their airplanes. The new tie-down spots will combine with the 30 existing spots giving airplane owners a choice 70 spots to park their airplanes.

The new expansion includes security lighting, electricity, taxi connection and a parking area for 30 vehicles.

Charlottenburgh's Clerk Marcel Lapierre said the township is hoping money invested into the airport will turn it into a "revenue generator" and "improve marketability" for the Cornwall Regional Airport.

"We hope over a period of years it will become more self sufficient," Lapierre said.

The new expansion is the second one for the airport which increased its runway to 3,500 feet long and 100 feet wide in 1984.

Water meter project near half completed

By Greg Kielec
News* editor

The installation of water meters in Alexandria homes is nearing the halfway mark.

As of last Wednesday, 700 water meters had been installed by Schlumberger Industries, according to Luc Poirier, PUC general manager.

The project is also right on budget, Poirier told PUC commissioners at a meeting last Wednesday.

There are seven to eight places where the meter location needs adjustment, but Poirier doesn't believe that is significant.

"Seven out of 700 is one per cent. I don't think that's too bad for a project that size."

Commissioner Claude Ouellette suggested the PUC do inspections to determine if there are any other homes where the meter location needs to be changed.

He said it is important for the PUC to locate the problem homes and have the meter location changed before the project is completed.

Commissioner John Cormier agreed the PUC should act immediately. "We're halfway through right now and I think it's time to catch their mistakes."

The contractors are to install the meters as close as possible to the homes' hydro meters, which will allow the meters to be read by one person at the same time.

It is not always possible for the contractors to place the meters side-by-side, but they are supposed to make it a priority, Poirier said.

"It's a big project. They are doing really well," Poirier said in an interview last week.

The firm had hoped to have all the meters installed by the end of October, but Poirier said it is unlikely that with the snags the company will meet its target.

"Good luck for them. I don't think they will be able to," he said Friday.

The company has until the end of the December to complete the job, but had set the end of October as its own target for completion.

But older apartments with poorly identified and separated services, along with homes that have renovated basements have slowed the company down.

Poirier said older, undivided services in some older apartments are making it difficult for the company to install meters for individual units.

Unless water pipes for individual units are accessible and clearly marked for identification, the company is unable to install meters for each apartment unit, Poirier said. In such cases, just one meter is installed on the main line.

Some landlords are upset with the solution because it will make them responsible for collecting the money from individual tenants. But Poirier said the company has no other option.

Luc Poirier says water meter installations are going well, but there have been some complaints.

The PUC cannot justify the expense of setting up separate water lines for individual units because the pipes are on private property, he said.

Homes with renovated basements are also hampering the process because in most cases the renovation work was done with no regard to future access to water lines, Poirier said.

There has also been uncertainty among water users about what they face with the new system. But Poirier said there is no need for concern.

"People are concerned, but I don't think there is a need for concern. If you're not a water hog, it's not something that it is going to be expensive."

Poirier hopes the minimum user rate under the metered system will be cheaper than the flat rate now being charged customers.

"We have to make it attractive, but I'm disappointed in the amount we will be able to lower the rates."

He said the utility cannot set the rates too low or it will risk running a deficit, forcing it to implement a large rate hike to make up for the loss.

The PUC will decide on a rate structure a few months after all the meters are installed. The utility wants to see the water-use tallies from the meters first before deciding how much to charge users, Poirier said.

The water meters are being installed, at the urging of the Ontario Ministry of Environment and Energy, to reduce water consumption in Alexandria, which is about double the provincial average.

The meters are one of a number of measures being used by the PUC to reduce the amount of water used in the town, which in turn reduces the amount of water it must draw from Loch Garry.

The utility was forced to come up with conservation measures after a routine MOEE inspection in the spring determined the PUC had been regularly exceeding the amount of water it is allowed to take from Loch Garry early this year.

The utility has since achieved a 20 per cent drop in water consumption, due to measures such as the repair and replacement of leaking water pipes and new water-saving measures at the filtration plant.

Poirier said the water use seems to be holding steady at 20 per cent below the PUC's limit of 1.2 million litres a day since all the measures were taken.

"We're gaining all the time."said.

Alexandria florist opens Radio Shack

By Lynn McCuaig
News* reporter

Electronics and flowers might seem like an unlikely combination, but for Reina Menard, one is suiting the other just fine.

Menard, who has owned the Alexandria Florist shop on Main street for eight years, has been running the Radio Shack out of the adjoining store since July and opened it officially on Sept. 23.

The "electronic florist" as she's called at Radio Shack's head office, operates the two stores through a small doorway which connects them.

Menard originally came across the Radio Shack franchise as a coincidence.

When the previous Radio Shack owner in Alexandria decided to give up his business, head office approached Menard before advertising the franchise.

"We knew we wanted to do something, but we didn't know what," Menard said.

And with the empty store she owned next to the flower shop, Radio Shack seemed perfect.

"I didn't have an overhead. I bought my inventory and away we went."

Menard was hopeful the flower shop would attract business to the new store, but said Radio Shack has taken off well on its own.

It has taken off so well, that Menard has had to give herself a crash course in electronics and has been learning with customers who visit the shop.

"I learn new things everyday."

Menard said she also depends on her son and husband for electronic advice.

Her husband and children have been her support system from the time she bought the franchise in May, Menard admitted.

"I'm counting on them for help."

Her husband Daniel, is working in the store in his free time but is keeping his trucking job until all the bugs are ironed out of the operation.

Manon, 18 and Anick, 15, both still in high school, worked during the summer and are now helping after school in both stores.

Reina's son Stephane, 23, has taken an interest in the electronics store since a back injury has kept him away from his regular job. His wife Jenny has also put in long hours at the Main Street business.

Her children are not only helping to get the store onto its feet, they are getting valuable job experience.

Menard said she's hoping she can offer the store as an opportunity to her two young daughters after they finish school.

And since Anick has been struggling with dyslexia, on the job training may be just the thing for her.

"I'm not shy. I like to work with (the customers)," Anick admitted.

Anick has worked in her mother's flower shop since she was six years old, and is now getting the chance to try her skills on the computerized inventory of a franchise business.

"When you get fed up on one side, you can change," she said.

A variety may be the key to keeping the family together as each depends on the other's strengths to make the business work.

"It's like a team. It's a family thing," Anick added.

People pack the parking lot to catch look at new facility

New facility for 200 head of cattle replaces outgrown Sommers' barn

By Greg Kielec
News* editor

There was no danger of the barn becoming overcrowded. But the same couldn't be said for the parking area at Newbrabant Farms on Saturday.

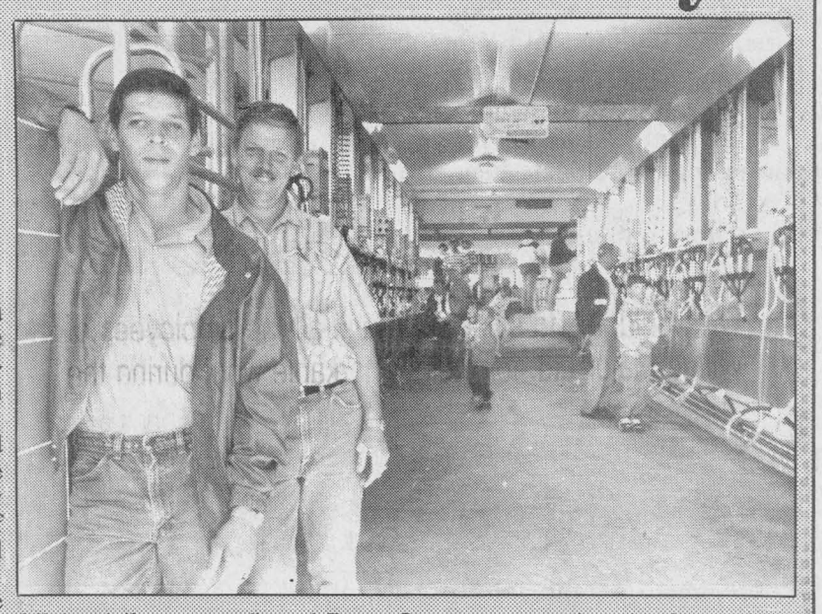
Cars of eager viewers were packed three rows deep across the wide expanse between the new facility and the old barn at the farm of Micheal and Peter Sommers and their families.

People came from all over the county to catch a glimpse of the Sommers' huge new facility, a 200-head freestall dairy cattle barn with a "double 10" parlor milking system capable of handling 20 cows at a time.

The Sommers built the mammoth $800,000 facility on Concession 4, north-east of Lancaster, to replace their old barn, which was becoming overcrowded.

The new barn has pretty-much all the amenities now making their mark in the dairy field — a free stall area where cattle roam, an automatic stable cleaner, mats for cow comfort, a drive-through feed alley and plenty of natural light and natural ventilation.

"We wanted to leave a little room for expansion," said Peter Sommers.



Micheal (foreground) and Peter Sommers stand at the front of the 20-cow milking parlor in their new barn northeast of Lancaster.

And the farm will still be a reasonable size for the two families to manage with the minimum of outside help, something which was a key consideration in building the new facility.

"We were looking forward to this. We had enough cows to justify this," Sommers said.

The Sommers are not going larger in anticipation of the dairy quota disappearing. They built the new barn simply because the old facilities are too small.

"We hope it doesn't go, but we don't know. This was built with the hope that the quota will stay," Peter said.

But if the market does open up completely and the quota disappears, they will be in a better position to compete.

Sommers doesn't think the facility is the largest in Glengarry, but he believes it is probably one of the largest.

The biggest winners with the building of the new barn will be the cows. They will have specially designed mats to keep them comfortable and will get to eat all they want of a specially-balanced "total-mix" ration in the communal feeding area.

"We tried to build it for cow comfort to keep the cow comfortable."

CNIB brings light into a world of darkness for visually impaired

By Lynn McCuaig

How can a person cope when their world is gradually being clouded by darkness?

Where do they go when things taken for granted like reading, writing and grocery shopping are slowly being taken away?

Like many others across Canada, Bob Berrigan is overcoming those challenges with help from Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

The Alexandria resident has been gradually losing his sight because of a hereditary disease called Retinitis Pigmentosa (RP). Although he has always had the disease, it only started to become an obstacle when be began losing his ability to focus this spring.

But his spirit has not faded with his sight. With confidence and enthusiasm, he's just learning to do things in a different way with the help of the CNIB.

The national organization works with people who are visually impaired to help them cope with the changes in their lives and help them find tools and services they need to make things easier.

So far, Berrigan's biggest triumph with the CNIB has been learning to read all over again, this time with his fingers instead of his eyes.

"I was really hungry to learn how to read," he said looking to his worn stacks of paperbacks on the shelf beside him.

In amazing speed, Berrigan jumped the braille hurdle in six weeks and was able plunge back into his love of reading again.

"It's been absolutely wonderful because now I'm getting books in from the CNIB in Toronto. I'm actually able to read again. It's in a different way, but it's still reading."

The braille books are much larger than the paperbacks Berrigan was used to, but he hasn't been scared off by the seven large volumes that make up Louis L'Amour's "The Quick and the Dead" which he's currently reading.

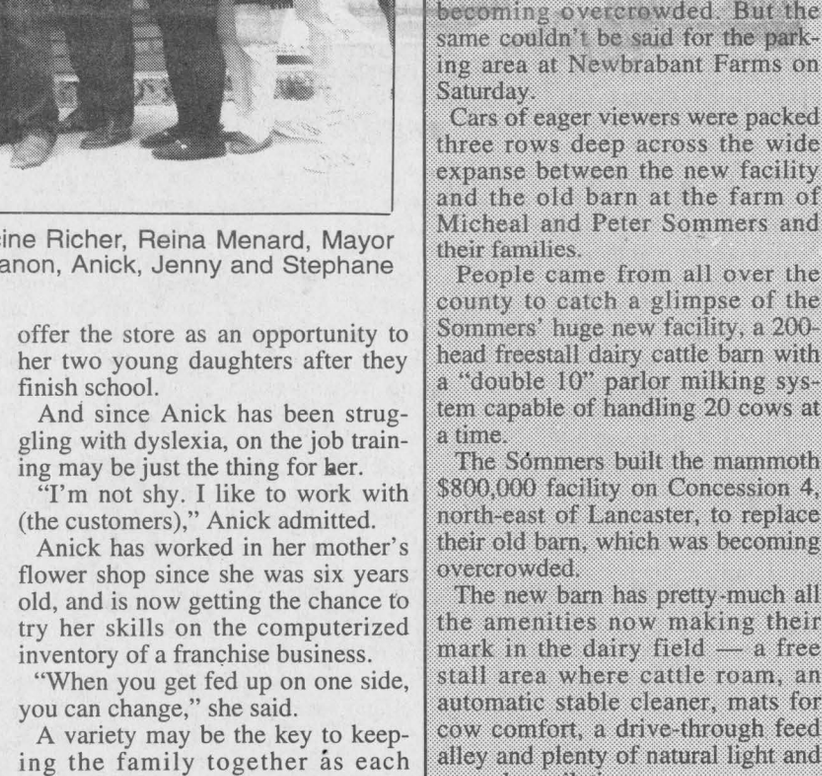
Not only can visually impaired people borrow braille novels from the Toronto library, they can send away for "talking books" that have been recorded by volunteer readers.

Marilyn McGale co-ordinator of volunteers for the CNIB said the talking books are one of the most popular services they offer.

Braille and recorded books are only one service that helps people to cope with loss of sight.

Berrigan has borrowed a brailler to type with, a dinotyper to label household items in braille and a closed circuit television which show words as white on a black background to help him pick out the contrast between letters in a word.

"I don't think I would have been able to cope as well without the CNIB," Berrigan admitted.



Bob Berrigan practices his writing skills on a brailler lent to him by the Cornwall CNIB.

From his braille teacher who would accommodate her lessons around his 11-hour work day with the Canadian National Railway, to his mobility instructor he calls a "god send" and to his RP support group, Berrigan has been touched by the dedication of the CNIB workers.

"They've been absolutely terrific," he said.

Berrigan only realized last April that what he thought was a cataract was actually RP. The disease causes a scaly skin to grow over the retina blocking out vision and making it impossible to focus.

"It's almost like looking into a mirror when you don't have the fan on in the bathroom after taking a shower."

Berrigan had already lost his sight in his left eye in 1987 and had lost peripheral vision when he was three years old.

His prognosis is total blindness although the mysterious disease could stop degenerating the retina at any time.

"The idea of (total blindness) is a little tough to handle sometimes," he said.

"Just getting down there to talk with other people with the same problems and the same disease helps out quite a bit."

Berrigan is one of 900 clients in Stormont, Dundas, Glengarry, Prescott and Russell served by the Cornwall CNIB.

The private organization depends heavily on its 100 regular volunteers and 550 others who help when the institute begins its door to door fundraising campaign every fall.

This year's fundraising campaign began in September and will continue until the end of October and will work toward a goal of $100,000 with $9,000 set for Glengarry alone.

While the CNIB's numbers increase every year as the population grows older, funding has stayed the same although the majority of the organization's money comes privately.

Last year alone, the Cornwall branch saw 100 new clients.

"As our numbers increase every year, we're trying to keep up with the same amount of funding," McGale said.

The CNIB not only provides visually impaired people with needed equipment, they have been instrumental in raising public awareness.

The organization has been behind employment equity legislation and has made people aware of how braille numbers in an elevator or on automatic teller machines keypads help the visually impaired.

Berrigan said he's also hoping to work for public awareness.

He has encountered many people who don't know the meaning of a white cane and has been mistakenly accused of shoplifting a ski pole and a golf club and has even been asked why he was carrying a Geiger counter.

"A lot of people still don't know what it is. They still don't know what the white cane is and what it symbolizes."

Making people aware of symbols and hurdles to the visually impaired combined with bringing services to the community makes the CNIB an important part of life for Berrigan and for others who have had to adjust their life to the challenges a loss of sight can bring.

Referendum symbolic of country's tolerance

Against the backdrop of the Quebec referendum, the citizens of this country and county will still have much to be thankful for during this holiday weekend.

There is no doubt that the majority of people on this side of the border want Quebec to remain part of the country. There is simply too much at stake to throw away in a single vote. Ordinary Canadians know this. It seems, based on poll results, ordinary Quebecers have a similar instinct.

But if the referendum campaign has been distasteful, it is nevertheless remarkable in a world which remains so troubled, that this country or a province contained within it can carry on such a vital debate and referendum in such a civilized fashion.

This is the mark of a true democratic nation — bloodless, and tolerant.

This vote is about no less than the survival of the country from coast to coast. In another country, including the United States, it is dubious whether such secessionist activities would be so tolerated, even in the name of democracy. Civil wars have been fought and hundreds of thousands have died in this decade around the world for much less land, much fewer resources, and much more questionable principles.

Whatever your opinion of the referendum, it has underscored what a truly tolerant nation Canada is. Commentators have scorned the apparent lethargy they say Canadians have exhibited throughout, warning of dire consequences unless every citizen somehow got involved in making Quebecers feel more wanted. But Canadians haven't bought such tripe, and have reacted with exactly the right mixture of emotions, words and gestures.

Closer to home, some developers in this county are feeling quietly they have less to be thankful for. They have believed in the old wisdom, that bad news for Canada is good news for Glengarry. But even with a solid "no" vote, there are still plenty of reasons for Quebecers and companies there to move here. Consider that companies in Quebec pay the country's largest payroll taxes by a wide margin, and the second highest debt burden after Newfoundland (up 44 per cent from four years ago). Said one prominent business leader recently: "It's my feeling that the quality of the labor force is declining in Quebec."

In short, there are still lots of reasons, both before and after Oct. 31, and regardless of the outcome, for both companies and people to relocate here. And there are just as many reasons for Quebec to begin benefitting again under the security of a renewed relationship with Canada.

We hope, then, that the spirit of Thanksgiving gives residents inside and outside of La Belle Province reason to pause and contemplate the blessings they currently enjoy, including the right to vote on dismembering a country.

Cost of GMH closure too high to imagine

Glengarry Memorial Hospital could be a target in the provincial government's hunt for cuts and so far, nobody is coming out of the woodwork to deny it.

Far from it. The regional district health council, which would make the recommendations to the province on the cuts or closures, has said "everything is on the table." But since closure announcements have not been made official, there remains a great deal of uncertainty surrounding the fate of the facility.

This is an outrageous situation, to put it mildly.

GMH's fate, indeed the fate of any Ontario hospital, was never discussed during the spring election campaign, either by MPP Noble Villeneuve or his leader Mike Harris. "Common sense" spending was on the table, yes, but in the context of getting existing health care costs under control. Such radical measures as closing hospitals was never put forward to the electorate.

The closure of GMH doesn't add up to common sense from an economic or demographic point of view. It services a 19,000 population community that is at the outer ranges of both Cornwall and Hawkesbury. It operates annually with a budgetary surplus, a remarkable achievement in these times. It provides vital emergency services for rural and town residents. It is striving to meet the changing needs of an increasingly aged community, located in a pocket of one of the oldest per-capita populations in the province.

This is to say nothing of the enormous economic and social consequences of its closure. The county is already reeling from a high jobless rate and a crippling housing slump. Pulling more than 50 well-paying jobs from the local economy courts economic chaos. Finding family doctors to service the area — already a huge problem for hospital officials — would become impossible, because physicians want to practice where there is access to a hospital.

Voters made a choice, and they expected to face pain based on what Mike Harris and Noble Villeneuve said last spring. They are prepared for that in many of the forms the province has outlined. But this community's hospital is one of the underpinning institutions that make Glengarry work, and a secure place to live.

Closing it is a price that is just too great in the interest of a 30 per cent tax cut.

When the going gets tough

After Thoughts

by Joe Banks

You may notice that writers infrequently write about the travails and triumphs of "real work." That is, those tasks completed with a combination of their own two hands, brute strength, dexterity and intelligence. It's no mistake.

The fact is, those of us who earn a living by pressing little plastic keys and watching them become letters on a computer screen do this because we are hopeless handy folk. Few can nail two boards together without bending the nail. Dry walling is a nightmare. Bird houses wouldn't draw a dragonfly.

There are a few journalists around who can boast of skilled tendencies, but they are off making a fortune writing for trade publications or starring in their own TV shows. Ask Bob Villa.

But the vast majority of us soft-palmed scribblers guffaw when we read do-it-yourself articles like those printed in our fall supplement inserted in this week's issue. Getting your house ready for winter? Sure, just hand me a caulking gun. I might as well squeeze it out on the floor now to save myself the trouble.

The truth is, we stand back and watch true tradesfolk, whether they be pros or Tim "Tool Time" Taylors, and admire their gift to effortlessly construct, repair or manually manipulate things.

There's the brother-in-law who pulled together a beat-up old pump he got out of a junk store, a second-hand 100-gallon plastic tank a jail had thrown out, some rubber hosing and other neat stuff and made a gravity-feed water system for his trailer. Today he and his family enjoy hot showers and enough water pressure to wash his car — all in a powerless remote campsite a stone's throw from Algonquin Park. He is now working on a design to harness the wind power off the adjacent lake to trickle-charge his batteries. The prototype windmill is made from an old bicycle wheel and sheet metal from old printing plates.

We are in awe of such resourcefulness.

But try as we might, we can't escape the inevitable. Budget and a smidgen of masculine pride draws us to the tool box. So when the time comes for us to do real work, no matter how trivial it may be, we tend to overblow our accomplishment. Usually we write about it as if it were some monumental victory of mind over matter. (Writers believe normally if we don't mind it, it really doesn't matter).

And so last weekend when I gingerly scraped around the circumference of a 200-pound (okay, okay, maybe 150) boulder which needed levering out of a hole where a tree was to be transplanted, I invented a deeper meaning in the job, pun fully intended. Sort of a Walter Mitty defence mechanism.

The metaphor, which I shared in parental tone with my skeptical 10 year-old, was that if you work with strength and reason and patience and intelligence at a job, by golly, you can accomplish anything. It was a safe lesson to preach, especially after she took one look at the rock in the hole, shook her head and said, "you'll never get it out."

Her doubt was understandable. She'd seen her father at work before, poor thing, and witnessed the ugly results. Just as I had watched my own dad attempt to tack together a back porch, prompting him to throw the level away, there is a great tradition of handyman incompetence in our family I have come by honestly.

Still, her comment spurred me to the task at hand. I methodically chipped, dug down and under the rock, scraping enough clay away to make room for a lever. Some further advice from the forewoman, seated comfortably in a lawn chair, and I worked on loosening it from its earthly grip.

The round mouth shovel firmly in place, I pushed down on the handle, grunting some indignant noise. It may have been my body saying "huh?!", horrified at the job it was being asked to perform.

"It moved!" the observer shouted. "Try it again!"

Stunned at the result, we tried again. It moved again. And again. And again. The rock would be ours. Some levering back and forth across the hole, and the rock loosened enough to jam another shovel underneath it.

All that was needed now was the might to lift it out of the hole.

Neighbor Marc, spotting my fevered toiling, offered a hand, and within minutes we were staring at a gaping hole where once the rock had been. It was a perfect hole for the tree.

In exchange, muscles have taken a holiday. The front garden looks bare where two thriving trees once stood. And we've got the mother of all driveway gravel stones to move to a more permanent location.

But we did it. And I was reminded that nothing worthwhile or lasting is ever accomplished with ease. History is full of examples.

Admittedly, this wasn't cabinet making. But in our trade, any mission accomplished outside of properly striking the return key brings its own reward.

With or without a level.

Singing the automobile blues

News to me

by Greg Kielec

It has only happened a few times in my short time on this planet, but each time it is an emotional experience I would much rather do without.

It is indescribable the feeling of despondence a country-born and bred person goes through when he is without his closest ally, his trusty stallion, his motor car.

As I returned my rental car to the dealership yesterday, I once again had to deal with those pangs I felt for the first time when I blew the motor out of my 1974 Chevy Nova more than 10 years.

There is a certain allegiance that develops between a person and their automobile, like a ship which time after time gets the captain through the storm.

Your vehicle almost becomes a part of you, a part of your identity. When it is gone, you are like the captain who has lost his ship and is stranded on the shore.

I'm not sure where the attachment lies, whether it is actually to the vehicle itself or to the immense freedom it provides.

When you grow up in a rural area, the vehicle is your only link to the outside world. It takes you to hockey practices, brings you to work, buys your groceries, lets you see friends.

Without a car, you become almost a second class citizen. You have to rely on others for your transportation needs or acknowledge the fact you must become a hermit for the rest of your life.

I am fortunate in a sense. I live within short walking distance from work, as does my wife. So even without wheels we are still able to work. If we lived outside of town, as does a large population of Glengarry, we would be in trouble.

Maybe we country people should have our rights to transportation enshrined in the constitution, kind of like the Americans' right to bear arms.

If we could only convince the lawmakers in Toronto (What do you need a car for? Take the subway) of our dependency on the automobile in rural regions.

All we would need is a guarantee that a person in need of a vehicle would never be without transportation. If the government can spend money on public housing, it can certainly help those in private housing stay on the road.

Maybe they could loan out some of those government fleet cars, or send down a car, chauffeur and all to make sure a marooned farm boy or girl can get to where they are going.

The different levels of government spend millions of dollars a year in urban centres to provide people transportation.

What has it done for people living in rural areas, not just for people like me, temporarily without a vehicle while they battle with the insurance company, but for those who cannot afford the huge cost of a vehicle and insurance?

Rural people can't take a taxi, or subway or even a bus if all of a sudden they are left in a vehicular lurch. So it makes guaranteed access to transportation all that more essential.

All I can do is lament my temporary loss of mobility and hope that the transportation gods smile in my favor, and try to cope with that indescribable feeling, those "loss-of-transportation blues".

Highland Paths

by Ken McKenna

When Anne and I arrived at the Hub Restaurant in Alexandria on Saturday for the Gaelic Language and Song class, a young family was waiting for us. They were John and Carol Wylie and their six-year old son Jonathan, and they are typical of the kind of people these Canadian Highland Heritage workshops are attracting each year.

Whether teaching the old language of Glengarry, the Gaelic songs that were sung here for generations, or the Highland traditions that are part of our country's history, we never ask anyone about their particular background. We often find that people who have no Highland or even Scottish blood are most enthusiastic about sharing our Highland heritage with us. It's for everyone, and it's free for the taking.

While chatting with Jonathan and his parents, we learned that they have Norman French, Irish, and English, as well as Scottish, ancestors. Members of the Gaelic Choir and children from the various schools where we teach Gaelic songs are of many backgrounds, French, English, Irish, Italian, Dutch, German, and East Indian, among others. That's the way it should be. We are all Canadians, and the Gaelic and Celtic traditions are part of the history of Canada.

Jonathan Wylie is a very bright and talkative boy. We were a little apprehensive, when we began the class, that he might become restless and soon bored. But we needn't have worried. He sat quietly for two hours, taking everything in and asking the right questions. As with all children, he picked up the Gaelic words and phrases faster than the adults, and his pronunciation was amazing. Unlike so many of us, children have not been told that Gaelic is difficult, and have no hang-ups or preconceived notions about it. They take it in as we all learned our mother-tongue, freely and naturally, from lip to ear. That is the way all second languages are now taught by the most progressive teachers. The idea is to make learning another language interesting and enjoyable, not boring and frightening. And it works. It's sad to think that Gaelic could have been learned so easily and kept alive here, without affecting the learning of any other language. Now one of the oldest languages in the Western World is slowly dying, and with it much beauty.

After learning a dozen or so Gaelic phrases (we supply sheets in English, Gaelic, and phonetics), the class learned a Gaelic song, "Morag of Dunvegan", with help from members of the Gaelic Choir. Iain Millington played the tune on his electronic pipes, and soon the sounds of Gaelic music drifted up from the Waterfall Pub to those dining above in the restaurant. Two women came down to listen. "What's that language you're singing?" they asked, and we told them. Not so many years ago, no one would have asked. They would have known.

Suzanne Lamarche-Blackburn is one of our new "students" this year. She loves the pipes and remembers the time that she was on her way to her 50th birthday party when she heard Pipe Major Roger Martin playing in his backyard and stopped to ask him for a tune. He obliged, she cried, (she says the pipes always make her cry), and arrived late for the party, still wiping away her tears. What a tribute to our Highland heritage! A proud French-speaking Canadian moved emotionally by the playing of another French-Canadian on the once-banned great bagpipe of the Gael. Suzanne remembers her grandfather, who owned a harness shop in Alexandria, speaking Gaelic to his customers, although he himself was French-speaking. "Ciamar a tha thu an-diugh?" (Kimmer uh ha oo uhn joo) he would say, "how are you today?" Suzanne says that her family would sometimes insert Gaelic phrases when they were talking French.

When the class broke up (late — nobody wanted to leave) Jonathan Wylie said "Mar sin

Misspelling on sign upsets resident

To the editor:

I am a Kenyon resident and I am very disappointed with the spelling of the signs that were put up to show the different side roads.

There is one particular sign which is inappropriate: The Loch Garry sign. This sign is spelled incorrectly.

Loch is spelled with a "k" at the end and should be spelled with an "h" at the end. Loch is a Scottish name for lake.

Why are the signs so big? These signs are bigger than the Alexandria sign.

We have to pay more taxes for these signs which should have the correct spelling.

Tourists to this area could very easily be misled by "lock" instead of "Loch".

Where is the "h" in Loch Garry?

To the editor:

We have called and called the Ministry of Transportation number provided to us but no one answers the phone. Perhaps you can find out for us:

Where in "h" has the "h" gone from the "Loch Garry" sign on Highway 43? No "Lock" exists on our beautiful lake – even our morning visitor and sentinel – the stately "blue heron" agrees.

Why support local business?

To the editor,

In a recent edition of The Glengarry News Glengarrians were notified that the promotion cards which people bought several months ago were no longer going to be honored by certain businesses.

These cards were a promotion put out by area business to encourage people to shop in their home town and to give their business to the stores in Alexandria and area. The cost of these cards were $20 and expired in 1996 or after so many visits at the local businesses.

I think it's a disgrace after so many people bought these promotion cards at a cost of $20 that certain businesses will no longer honor the cards. Are they telling the consumer to shop elsewhere? I don't understand why businesses would participate in a promotion if it wasn't going to be honored until the expiry date.

I was brought up in a family-owned business and we soon learned that we had to accept the losses as well as the gains. What incentive is there to continue supporting Alexandria businesses?

Benefits of 10 step program

To the editor,

A "10 Steps to Community Action" program has been organized in this area this fall. It was initiated by the North Glengarry Community Development Group and presented with the support of the Ministry of Agriculture and Food and Rural Affairs. This course was designed by a cross-section of Glengarry-Prescott citizens represented by teachers, farmers, local government representatives, entrepreneurs, churches and newspapers.

The "10 Steps to Community Action" program will aid in developing basic interactive people skills. I believe these skills are especially important in a rural area such as Glengarry County. People in rural areas tend to work with and associate with the same people on a day-to-day basis much more so than urban dwellers. This program will benefit rural participants by allowing them to interact with other community-minded people, visiting, in this case, seven different locations in Glengarry and Prescott counties and discussing the important issues in these areas.

Some of the personal development topics in these sessions include time management, dealing with stress, dealing with change and youth training needs. Completing this course will be a tour to a community that has benefited from past "10 Steps" programs.

As one of the organizers of the course, I feel it would be a missed opportunity if the citizens of Glengarry failed to take advantage of this program to benefit both themselves and their community. The "10 Steps" program is open to everyone of all ages and interests. If you would like more information on "10 Steps," please call Christine Murray at 527-1258.

Sincerely,
Jack Fraser,
R.R. 1, Maxville.

Happy ending

To the editor,

I'm writing in response to the wonderful woman who located my statue of the Blessed Virgin.

Apparently she discovered it in the grave yard, and when she read my letter in The Glengarry News she immediately phoned me, and I could't believe this was truly a miracle. I was very happy.

I have received mail and phone calls from various people who were deeply concerned about my loss. There are sure a lot of ever caring people in Ontario, for which I will treasure for a long time, again thanks a million and also to The Glengarry News for publishing my request.

Sincerely
Mrs. Esther Blanchette

Two charged for drug possesion

Police Briefs

Lancaster OPP charged two people with possession of drugs for the purpose of trafficking Sept. 25.

They were charged after police saw narcotics in a car when officers had pulled it over for a highway traffic offence near the Cornwall flea market.

Charged were: Andrea Menard, 32, who was released on a promise to appear in court on Oct. 26 and Alcide Ceasor, 32, who was released on his own recognizance after a hearing Thursday.

Telephone scam

An elderly Alexandria resident was conned out of $5,000 in a Montreal telephone scam.

The resident was told the company needed the taxes up front in order to win a boat and trailer.

The recent telephone scam is one of a rash of calls local residents have been getting claiming they have won prizes.

Police are asking everyone to be wary of telephone con-artists.

"If a deal sounds too good to be true, it probably is," Const. Jamie McMaster said.

Break and enter

Overnight on Sept. 27 and 28, thieves stole property from a Dominion Street South residence.

Stolen was a AM/FM radio receiver and a television converter with a total value of $150.

No insurance

An Alexandria woman was fined $500 for driving without insurance.

The judge handed Charlene Townsend the fine Monday in relation to an incident in August.

Townsend had been stopped for a traffic violation when police discovered she had no insurance on her car.

Report illegal weapons

This week Crime Stoppers is highlighting illegal weapons. If you have any information on persons in possession of illegal weapons such as sawed-off rifles and shotguns, unregistered handguns and assault style weapons call Crime Stoppers and help get these guns off our streets.

Some of these weapons are being used in violent crimes such as robberies and drive-by shootings.

If you have any information on this or any other crime, you may be eligible for a cash reward of up to $1,000.

Remember, Crime Stoppers does not want your name, only your information.

Township won't foot library costs

By Sue Harrington
News correspondent

Charlottenburgh township has put its foot down on a request from the SD&G county library board to pick up the cost of utilities incurred at the Williamstown branch.

The motion not to take over the responsibility for utility bills at the township's only branch was made at a regular meeting held Sept. 25.

In citing reasons for refusing the library board's request, Reeve Leslie O'Shaughnessy pointed out that Charlottenburgh already pays the most of any municipality in SD&G toward the cost of the county- wide system.

In 1995 the township contributed $78,597, up from $65,257 in 1994.

Charlottenburgh's share amounts to 12.891 per cent, while smaller municipalities, some of which have larger libraries and are open more hours, are paying anywhere from 0.567 to 7.924 per cent.

Only Cornwall Township, at 11.602 per cent comes near Charlottenburgh.

"We had a rather large increase in our levy last year," said O'Shaughnessy. "The cost of utilities at the library is not a budgeted item."

Cost of utilities at the library in 1994 amounted to $2,872.67. The branch is located in part of the Sir John Johnson Manor House which is owned by the federal government.

Deputy-reeve Don Kannon, who said he was a staunch supporter of providing library service to small communities, thinks that "a bureaucratic library system has been created."

"As far as I'm concerned, we have to withdraw from the system," said Kannon.

Reeve O'Shaughnessy urged caution, however. "Let's try to work with the counties on this," he said.

Police launch seat belt awareness campaign

By Lynn McCuaig
News* reporter

Make sure to buckle up if you're travelling this holiday weekend because law enforcement officers across Canada will be cracking down on seatbelts.

Police will launch Operation Impact on Oct. 7 and concentrate on seatbelt awareness for two weeks following the kick off.

The national campaign, comprised of the OPP, RCMP and la Suret, du Quebec, started in 1991 and has seen a steady increase in the number of people wearing seatbelts since then.

In 1993, 84 per cent of drivers spotted were wearing seatbelts with the number jumping to 91 per cent in 1994.

This year, police are aiming for a 95 per cent obedience rate during their checks.

"The objective is to try and get compliance," said Staff Sgt. Gord Luloff of the Lancaster OPP.

Luloff said he's hoping Lancaster can meet the national goal and estimated that more people in the area wear their seatbelt than elsewhere in Ontario.

"We have a feeling that the compliance rate is very good around here."

During the blitz, the Lancaster detachment will have at least one officer checking for seatbelts on every shift.

But police aren't looking to hand out a note pad full of tickets, their aim is to make people aware of the dangers of driving without a seatbelt.

"If we don't get any enforcement action—good," Luloff said.

And enforcement action can be a sour pill to swallow for those who drive without a seatbelt.

Drivers will get a fine of $105 for each person in the car not buckled up and will lose 2 points off their licence.

Money is not the only thing a driver can lose by not wearing a seatbelt.

Transport Canada estimates that since 1980, seatbelts have saved more that 14,000 lives and prevented 295, 000 injuries.

Last year alone, seatbelts could have saved 150 lives in Ontario.

Host families needed

Student Travel Schools is looking for volunteer families to host 10 students from Australia and New Zealand. The students, ages 15 to 18, will be sharing their lives with Canadian families while attending local high school for five or 12 months beginning this January.

Being a host family means opening up your home and way of life to a teenager from another country just waiting for the chance to live and learn with a Canadian family. Host families provide meals, accommodation, supervision and care during a student's visit. All of the students are fully insured and are responsible for their own spending money and clothing allowance.

"Hosting is especially beneficial in opening the eyes of children you may have at home to the world beyond their own backyard. It can reinforce their interest in other countries and cultures", said Lubczynski who heads up the STS office in Canada.

Sauvé, was travelling south on Hwy 34 in a 1984 Ford LTD near the Eastern Ontario Health Unit office when he crossed the centre line striking a 1987 Cadillac.

Colliding with Sauvé, was Edna Lalonde of Alexandria.

Lalonde was taken to the Glengarry Memorial Hospital by ambulance with minor injuries and released that evening.

A department of transportation official inspected Sauvé 's car Tuesday and will release findings at a later date. The police investigation continues.

Arena boundaries anger Lancaster residents

Lynn McCuaig
News* reporter

Lancaster township residents want their children to play hockey and figure skate in Williamstown this winter —without an extra fee.

A delegation of three residents told Lancaster township council they thought the new boundaries which force township residents to use the Alexandria arena or pay an extra $200 in fees was unfair.

"Why couldn't the township support more than one arena?" Alex Ferguson asked council at its regular meeting on Sept. 20.

In the previous system, residents north of Concession 5 were assigned to the arena in Alexandria while all those south of Concession 4 were sent to Williamstown with the township kicking in money for fees at both arenas.

As of last year, all township residents signing for hockey or figure skating were required to support the Alexandria arena or were forced to pay extra fees in Williamstown that the township would normally pay.

Because Lancaster owns one quarter of the Alexandria arena, it is responsible for the growing deficit and is now trying to recoup losses by increasing sign-up.

"We're going to have a deficit unless we make use of it," Reeve Charles Sangster said.

"The arena in Alexandria is starting to feel the crunch. Whatever money is going to Char-Lan is no benefit to us financially."

But the extra fees are not being charged to everyone in the township.

The "grandfather clause" the township has imposed allows those who were already signed at the Charlottenburgh arena before the new policy was passed to continue playing there at regular fees. "You're picking on the younger families that are just starting," Bruce Munro told council.

"Those of us with younger families have to go to Alexandria, that's not fair."

Munro, Ferguson and Jack Lalonde were worried about extra driving time in winter road conditions and the fact that their children would not be playing sports in their own community.

"It's four miles versus 13. It's geography," Munro said.

Munro, who owns a Lancaster business, has also been a long-time sponsor to Williamstown hockey teams.

The group had taken a tally of 12 families who would rather send their children to the Williamstown arena. Five have already paid the extra fee and seven others are waiting.

'It's the kids who lose out in the end," Ferguson said.

Council said they would look into a trade with Charlottenburgh which would allow families in Green Valley to send their children to Alexandria, and residents in the south end of Lancaster to Williamstown.

Judge adjourns Cuerrier murder trial until later this month that the gun had not been cleaned after the last firing.

"I'm telling you, I'm not crazy. I saw him (clean the gun). It's not a story, man," said the witness.

"Are you aware that in the course of investigation, the police found no fingerprints, no hair, no fibre, no forensic fibre that would indicate any involvement (of his client) with the shooting?" Edelson asked. "If you were aware of that before, you wouldn't have pleaded guilty?"

"No," said the witness.

As Edelson threw questions at him, the witness said he'd never been told the gun used was an old beat-up gun from Horvath's uncle; that he didn't know anything about a story about Cuerrier being killed at 3 a.m.; that he'd never heard the gun had been thrown into a lake in Quebec and had never heard the gun had been stolen first in a break and enter.

He said he never went into Cuerrier's residence that night and denied testimony that he'd cheered Horvath on.

The witness admitted he based his understanding of what happened that night at the Cuerrier residence on what Horvath had told him when he returned to the vehicle.

"You hate him for it and want revenge," suggested Edelson.

"Yes," said the witness.

Andrew Lalonde, 22, was brought in from British Columbia to testify. He admitted he'd been hospitalized for manic episodes 10 days earlier.

He said the accused, Horvath and himself were "drinking buddies". He told the story of a party in 1994 when he'd been short of money and wondered "how difficult it would be to rob somebody who was selling pot and hash."

The name that came up, he said, was Gerald Cuerrier's. But the repercussions would be dangerous, he testified, because of Cuerrier's connections. He said someone said they would have to kill Cuerrier, but he couldn't remember who said it.

"On my part, for the amount of drugs and petty cash that would be available, that was beyond what I was prepared to do," Lalonde testified.

Under cross-examination, Lalonde admitted to using hash and cocaine, and lithium as prescribed for his illness. He said he began drinking at the age of 11 and had been hospitalized several times under psychiatric care.

The night of the party, he said, they had been drinking beer and had smoked at least one, if not more, joints.

"At that time, your memory is far from clear, isn't that right?" asked Edelson.

Parents will be serving students at the annual Precious Blood Elementary School Thanksgiving lunch on Oct. 6 at 11:30 a.m. Lunch will consist of turkey, mashed potatoes, stuffing, gravy, vegetable rolls, pickles and a lot of desserts.

"We usually end up with a lot of food," said Sandy Esdale, Precious Blood PTA president.

New PTA executive

They came, they saw and they pointed to Sandy Esdale, who will stay on as PTA president at Precious Blood Elementary School for the 1995-96 school year.

Other members of the executive are Anne Durocher, secretary; Chris Jeffrey, treasurer; and members Joan Hanton, Linda Gaudet and Gisele Brasseur.

Alain Dumont, school principal, is also on the committee.

In full swing

Activities at Precious Blood Elementary got into full swing with two scheduled general parent meetings held Sept. 13 and 20, Principal Alain Dumont said.

Parents of children in Pre-Kindergarten, Kindergarten, grades 1and 2 were invited to the school at 7 p.m. for orientation to the school and to the teachers and programs for their children, Dumont said.

A similar meeting for parents of children in grades 3 to 8 was held the following week.

List of teachers

The following are the lists of teachers at Precious Blood for the 1995-96 school year: Pre-Kindergarten and Kindergarten, Claudette Mondoux; grades 1 and 2, Odette Lafontaine; grades 3 and 4, Adele Bourget; grades 4 and 5, Christianne Joanette; grade 6, Suzanne Padbury; grades 7 and 8, Robert Fraser.

Other staff members include Anne Lafreniere, French language monitor; Nicole Carriere and Odette Lafontaine, resource persons; library and music, Vivianne Panizzon; janitor, Richard Theriault; and secretary, Giselle Sinfield.

Hazardous waste days

Hazardous waste collectioin was held Saturday, Sept. 16 from 8 a.m. to 12 noon at the Glen Walter Fire Hall. The collection was sponsored by the township of Charlottenburgh.

Harvest supper time

The past weekend was harvest supper time at Precious Blood Parish on Sept. 17.

Registration scouts

Tuesday, Sept. 12 was the annual fall registration for Scouts, Beavers and Cubs at First Glen Walter. Parents of boys ages 5 to 14 are reminded it is still not too late to register. For further information, contact Claude "Doc" Aubin.

WI member tells why unity is important

Glen Sandfield

by Lorna Chapman

874-2408

Sunday worship services will be held at 10 a.m. in Glen Sandfield United Church and at 11:15 a.m. in East Hawkesbury United Church on October 8 with Rev. Peter Praamsma.

The date of Ken Roach's Christmas concert at St. Finnan's is Dec. 10. Sorry for any inconvenience the error in last week's column may have caused.

The McCrimmon WI members met at the Lochiel township hall on Sept. 21 for their regular monthly meeting with Vice President Greta MacDonald in the chair. She opened the meeting with a poem called Autumn Things.

The roll call of "Why is the Unity of Canada Important to You?" elicited some interesting answers.

Starting with the idea that it is just terrible to think about, one person felt that the founding fathers of our nation should have put it in the constitution, right from the beginning, that Canada must remain whole and they should have made it illegal to try to break up our country.

Canada would become like 10 little pieces of nothing, a house divided falls, it wouldn't be Canada without Quebec were some of the ideas presented. Another member felt that it would be the beginning of total separation.

Much of our history came about in the province of Quebec and it is very much an integral part of this nation. We are fortunate in having the best country in the world in which to live.

We must strive to see that everyone is treated equally, with respect and dignity, and to see that this upheaval does not escalate into a civil war. Look around you, it could happen here, as it has in many countries around the world.

Canadian unity is important to everyone who has a business here because all of this uncertainty brings the dollar crashing down to a very low value.

Housing starts are down, investors are very wary of investing in such an unstable atmosphere and who can blame them?

The group was very certain that they did not want Quebec to separate and destroy the relationship we have as 10 provinces in Canada. We are a family, so to speak, and together we form a great and wonderful nation.

After roll call, a most encouraging financial report was given by treasurer Christina Urquhart.

In celebration of the 80th anniversary there is to be a district rally at the Legion hall on Oct. 25, featuring a potluck dinner, Halloween costumes, and 15 minutes of entertainment presented by each branch. A loonie admission fee will be charged that evening.

Members must remember to please bring along their own plate, cutlery and mug. The time will be 6 p.m. for the start of the festivities.

Joanne Marriott will be leading a 4-H club on cooking. The achievement night will be held in November when all the 4-H members will participate in making a "quiet cake". There are to be 16 taking this club.

Linda Dagneault will be having a sewing club at the high school in Alexandria and will have the same achievement night, when a new 4-H banner will be presented.

The FWIO is having a tea towel design competition in honor of their 100th anniversary. It must be drawn on white paper 8x10 inches with a sealed envelope on the back with the designer's name and branch. There is no fee to enter. The deadline is March 31, 1996.

Embrun will be the site of the Oct. 16 WI convention which will be held in the recreation center. Registration will be at 9 a.m. Members must pre-register for the banquet. Including the sit down banquet the fee will be $28. The dinner is set for 5:15 p.m. Each branch is asked to bring a bazaar item of about a $5 value. There will be no refunds after Oct. 6.

The group was asked to consider a resolution concerning the Young Offender's Act. Margaret MacPherson will attend as McCrimmon WI's delegate. FWIO is looking at restructuring committee meetings to help cut expenses.

Bainsville WI will be joining McCrimmon this month for a day of fun in costume.

Nancy Campbell spoke on the motto "Citizenship like charity begins at home". We should not take the responsibilities of being a citizen lightly or for granted.

One woman in the group is a new citizen of about two years and she holds it dear to now be a Canadian. One must work at it, the same way as one must work at being within a contented family. We can all live in a right way, not breaking the laws or harming anyone.

Being considerate can bring about a happier kind of world. Solid families create solid citizens, leading children to be up right honest and caring people. In the global village consideration would work wonders. People caring for each other as human beings and as part of the world wide family would be the ideal situation.

Unfortunately it is not always how things really are. Sarapee Chaidir from South Thailand and Nancy Greenfield from Hamilton were the guest speakers. They are two young ladies who are part of a World Youth exchange program. They have been staying with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kronwald for three months, learning about rural life and about farming.

They were charming, very enthusiastic about their hosts and have really enjoyed the experience. They will leave in October to go to North Thailand to another farm, which is sure to be a great contrast to this one in Canada.

They grow mostly rice there, the girls said, and they may be wading day after day in rice paddies but they don't really know yet. The two girls have become fast friends and Nancy has learned about 50 Thai words.

Sarapee has had it a bit harder in learning English because her language is so very different. Just an inflection, or the tone in which a word is spoken can drastically change its meaning. They have really had a wonderful time here they said, will hate to leave.

There are 14 young people involved in this cultural exchange and the association is practically world wide. A similar group is called the CDD in Thailand.

Students come from all over Canada, and there are 42 young people in all participating at the moment. They have done some community work like painting benches in the park in Alexandria. They also enjoyed visiting the nursing home.

Their names were drawn from many entries, by lot, to participate in this program and they consider that they were very fortunate to have been chosen.

Betty MacDonald reported on the September director's meeting. Among the items she mentioned was that Bainsville will host the next WI annual. She had a fun time as well and told several hilarious stories.

Light refreshments were enjoyed as the group chatted with their delightful guests.

The next meeting will be Lochiel on Oct. 19. The meeting adjourned and Doris Spencer with Enid Macdougall presided over the bazaar table.

Recent visitors with Besie MacLennan were Rhoda Caldbick and Muriel Stewart of Ottawa, and Glenn and Kay Stewart of Mississauga.

Cheri MacLachlan and her friends Heather Lynch and Carrie Jevons all of Ottawa were recent overnight visitors with Ron and Christina MacLachlan.

There will be a hospital board meeting this Thursday evening in the conference room at Glengarry Memorial Hospital at 7:30 p.m.

As these meetings have been opened to the public it is hoped that there will be a good representation to show the board that we really need our hospital.

Come out and speak up if possible and tell about just what it has done for you and yours in the past.

I intend to write a letter stating that my husband would surely be dead without the care he received from the doctors and nurses at Glengarry Memorial Hospital.

Surely many area homes here must have a similar story to share with the board.

Please, if you value our hospital and do not want to see it close, come out to the meeting and say so.

We have to justify a hospital here in our area to keep it and I know that you will want to help in any way that you can.

This then is the way; show up, speak up and help to keep our hospital in Alexandria where it belongs.

St. Colomba Presbyterian Church was well filled on Sunday last for an evening of music and praise.

Fiddlers played at the beginning and during the program. Rev. McVeigh sang a solo, the Glengarry Gaelic Choir sang three songs and the combined church choirs sang two anthems.

The gentleman who sang at the Kirkin' o' the Tartan service Garth Hampson from Ottawa, was on hand to enthrall the audience once again with three solos.

The last one was a lively hand clapping spiritual in which everyone was invited to join, and they did, with gusto!

He was accompanied by Eleanor Earl. Clara MacLeod was the organist, and Bill Connors played the pump organ and sang in the choir.

They had a wonderful 130th anniversary hymn sing celebration, complete with a special birthday cake and refreshments after the service.

Lancaster Township

Council Briefs

The following is a collection of items discussed at the township's regular council meeting on Sept. 20.

Waste consulting firm chosen

Council hired consulting firm M.S. Thompson & Associates. Ltd. to prepare a waste disposal site study at the township's dump.

The township accepted the proposal which includes the preparation of an operations and development plan and will set up a monitoring plan for the dump site.

The tenders for the project ranged from M.S. Thompson's bid of $22,910 to $42,000.

The repairs are in response to a report done by the province in July that found several flaws with the township's dump.

Severance granted

Township approved a severance that would divide a 100 acre lot into two parcels: one comprised of 92 acres and the other of 8 acres.

William Bray, of Concession 2 will sell the 92 acres and keep the eight-acre lot.

Fire invoices

The township will send Ontario Hydro a bill $314 for firefighter services when a wire fell on a township road 1 km east of Lancaster.

Firefighters spent an hour at the site directing traffic until the line was repaired.

Bridge appraisal

The township should spend $1.6 million in bridge improvements over the next five years, Bruce Miller of Totten Sims Hubicki Associates Consulting firm told council.

The report called for repairs ranging from bridge and culvert replacements to installing guard rails.

Miller's only urgent recommendation was to replace three culverts in the township costing $620,000.

The culvert on the Filion drain on Concession 4, 1.2 km east of County Road 26 is badly bent out of shape and is an "emergency situation."

The firm recorded cracks in the steel multi-plates in the Filion drain on Concession 3, west of the 3rd line road and on Roy's Road on Concession 2, east of the 2nd line road.

Miller said the whole province has had problems with those same culverts and noted they are prone to a "sudden collapse."

Other repairs that were not set at such a high priority include a narrow-ridge replacement on Concession 5 east of Hwy 34, costing $150,000, two bridge widenings estimated at $320,000, and bridge and culvert improvements totaling $570,000.

Since the bridges that have been recommended for widening were built to provincial standards in the 1980s, they are not a priority for rebuilding.

Miller's recommendations came out of a $2,900 bridge appraisal report commissioned by council in April.

After Miller gave his report, council realized that some township bridges were missing from the study.

The township will pay the consulting firm an additional $100 for each extra bridge they examine.

Weekend walking tours at Upper Canada village

The fall generally means kids are back to school, the gardens are being cleaned up for bulb planting, the wood is stacked for the fireplace and there's nothing really to do with the family on the weekends because everything is closed! Well, that is not the case at Upper Canada Village. From Oct. 10 through Oct. 29, Weekend Guided Walking Tours will be offered.

The village will be decked out in fall colors allowing for invigorating and leisurely strolls. Visitors will enjoy the one and a half hour long tours as they embark on a journey into the past.

Accompanied by a knowledgeable guide, visitors will explore the many facets of 1860s life. From the bar room of Cook's Tavern to the mechanized operation of Louck's Farm, walking tours also offer stops along the way and fascinating insights into 19th century lifestyles at the steam-powered flour mills, the fully stocked General Store and the character-building common school.

The "Seasons" slide show will be part of the tour and will give visitors an excellent overview of regular activities and special events at Upper Canada Village throughout the entire season.

The village store and cafe will be opened every day from October 20 to 29 from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Guided walking tours will take place on weekends only beginning at 9:30 a.m. and departing approximately every 45 minutes with the last tour leaving at 3:15 p.m. All tours depart from the village entrance.

Upper Canada Village is located 11 km east of Morrisburg and 24 km west of Cornwall off Highway #2 (Exit 758 off Highway #401).

For information on Upper Canada Village or the Fall Weekend Guided Walking Tours, please call (613) 543-3704.

Three new businesses launched

Business Beat

By Joe Banks, 525-2020

Three new business have opened in Glengarry County.

Karol's Kidz has announced the opening of their new shop on Main Street in Lancaster village.

With over 20 years in the retail fashion business, Karol's Kidz specializes in "easycare funwear" outfits priced for everyone. The store supports Canadian labels and offers lines in sizes ranging from 12 months to 14 years.

Karol's Kidz is formerly of Williamstown and owners invite in all loyal customers, friends and new clientele.

Also in the village, Aubrey Johnson, a top commercial/fine arts photographer, has started a photography studio and laminating business.

The new business will offer photographic services not only for commercial photography but also for advertising, weddings, illustrative portraiture, sports and custom laminating.

And on the first of Kenyon, Joanne Quesnel, a native of Green Valley, has started up the "Pretty Paws" dog grooming business.

Joanne, who completed a five-week course in grooming in mid-August, is qualified to trim coasts, wash and blow dry, clean ears, cut nails and empty anal glands.

Joanne will be taking clients on week nights (from 5:30 p.m. daily) and weekends (10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays) since she is a full-time teacher's aid at Rouleau school in Alexandria. Her fully-equipped grooming salon is located at civic address 20037 on Con. 1.

Rumors of death "exagerrated"

We're always happy here to announce new business openings. But when one is supposedly closing that is in fact not, we'd like to help set the record straight.

"Rumors of my death are greatly exaggerated," Denis Lefebvre, owner of the Alexandria Foodtown tells us. "I strongly suggest that I am alive.

Denis has a good sense of humor for somebody whose business was rumored to be closing. As it turns out, Denis was just changing his supplier, which he says will enable him to better service his customers.

Lots of positives here

Alexandria is a great place to shop and live.

That's the opinion of a new couple who moved into town recently who have lived all over the world. Office clerk Carol Chisholm related this little quote from the people in to place an ad:

"This town is wonderful. People actually wait to see what you'll say after they ask how you are."

And the merchants? Listen to this.

"I stopped in at a local gas station and realized after he'd filled the tank I forgot my wallet," Carol said. "He said it was okay, you can pay for it later."

Former businesswoman dies

Our sympathies to the many family and friends of Jeannette Crevier, a well-known local resident and former diner owner, who died in Cornwall on Monday, Oct. 2.

Jeannette operated the small diner that sat near the high school for years. It was a popular place for Alexandrians to visit to catch up on the latest local news. Jeannette was well-known in curling circles for years, and was a key organizer of many bonspiels and the seniors curling league. She frequently defeated this writer in many matches, but off the ice she was a tireless worker for many fundraising causes and will be greatly missed.

Relatives and friends may call at the Munro and Morris funeral home today (Wednesday) from noon to 1:30 p.m. Mass of Christian burial will be held at Eglise Ste-Marie-de-l-Assomption in Green Valley on Wednesday, Oct. 4 at 2 p.m. Cremation to follow at South Branch crematorium in Cornwall.

Caisse Populaire has new hours

Alexandria's Caisse Populaire has new hours to better serve their customers.

The Main Street bank will now be open Mondays and Tuesdays, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Wednesdays from 9 a.m. to noon, Thursdays and Fridays from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon.

The new hours are effective this Monday, Oct. 9.

Standard-Freeholder says bye Bob

Our colleagues at the Standard-Freeholder in Cornwall bade a happy retirement to Bob Bedingfield, former advertising representative and past ad manager, at a party in his honor Saturday night.

Bob had been with the paper for 42 years, effective last Friday. His fellow ad staff got up one by one to recount the many hilarious moments they shared with the popular, easy-going ad man. Bob and his wife Francis plan to spend their new-found time golfing at Myrtle Beach during the winters and heading to auctions.

The same week as Bob was marking his retirement, another long-serving former ad man who was a native of Maxville, passed away.

Thomas Johnstone, who was raised in the village up to his late teens, was best known as director of advertising at the Ottawa Journal for 46 years.

Moms unite for business

Two moms from Alexandria, Laurie Filion and Colleen (Kennedy) Poirier, have opened a home-based Kids Only clothing business.

Manufactured in the Kids Only plant in Calgary, the clothes are made of colorful prints ranging from plaids, moose and polar bears, flowers and bright, solid colors The clothes are 100 per cent cotton, are comfy, fun to wear and made to last for several years. Sizes are available from six months to adult sizes.

For the finishing touch, headbands, bows, hats, suspenders, purses, belts and socks are available to match all the Kids Only outfits.

All the clothes can be seen at your convenience by contacting Laurie at 525-5570 or Colleen at 525-1307.

10 steps to community action

The North Glengarry Community Economic Development Group and the Ministry of Agriculture and Foods is encouraging interested people to increase personal and professional growth and increase contacts through the "10 Steps Program to Community Action Program" to begin Oct. 26.

Although the program spans a six-month period, the time commitment is only three hours a month with one two-day weekend. The content of the program will complement the needs of the participants. Guest speakers will address the following areas: Self esteem and empowerment, quality of life, community wellness, dealing with stress, communication skills, public speaking, deadling with the media, motivation and particpation, change and life-long learning, youth education and training needs, visioning and decision making and the political process.

Contact Marie Ouimet at 1-800-267-1722, Jack Fraser at 527-2572, Christine Fripp-Murray at 527-1258.

Development group meets with success

After little more than a year in existence, the North Glengarry Community Economic Development Group is making strides towards promoting the community and economic development of North Glengarry.

The 10 Steps to Community Action program has been developed locally, in cooperation with the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture, Food and Rural Affairs, to assist rural communities in the area find leaders with the personal potential and skills to effectively manage community resources. Based on the very successful 10 Steps program for farmers, this is the first course of its kind in Eastern Ontario.

In seven monthly sessions, which will take place between Oct. 25, 1995 and March 29, 1996, participants will develop basic leadership and "people management" skills, work with other community leaders form the area, learn to understand and identify rural community issues, and start to build a network for community leadership action. The program includes a weekend workshop retreat in early December, a study tour and a graduation celebration.

The total cost to participants is only $135 (including GST), which includes refreshments, meals, accommodation and transportation (where appropriate). The remainder is supported through funding from the Ontario government.

This opportunity is open to everyone in the area, but the deadline is fast approaching, so anyone interested should sign up now.

To enrol or to find out more contact the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture Food and rural Affairs in Alexandria (613-525-1046 or 1-800-267-1722) or Christine Murray (613-527-1258).

Are Hollywood fortunes on the horizon for our Erin?

Glen Roy
by Laurie Mayer
525-0645

Heather Locklear is filming the "Father Goose" movie in Picton, Ont. this week.

One of the local chosen actresses was our very own Erin, and you can't possibly be surprised. This combination of beauty and talent easily glides through Hollywood's gates.

But alas, Erin will not trade her studies for stardom this week. There is another destiny awaiting you Erin. Does this mean a bigger part in a movie not scripted yet? Stay tuned fans.

TIPS FOR SAFETY HEATING:
1. Follow the manufacturer's instructions: Carefully follow the manufacturer's instructions for installing and maintaining your chimney or appliance. If you do not have instructions, call the manufacturer. For masonry chimneys, call the builder.
2. Inspect and clean your chimney regularly: The Ontario Fire Code requires homeowners to maintain the safety of their chimneys and inspect them at least once a year. Your chimney could have a problem you cannot see. If in doubt, consult a WETT (Wood Energy Technical Training) certified chimney sweep.
3. Check stovepipes and connections: Ensure screws are located at every joint. Also look for leaching at every joint. This could be a sign of chimney trouble – consult a WETT certified chimney sweep.
4. Check for creosote: Creosote can form quickly and is a major cause of chimney fires. Check chimney and flue pipes often and clean when necessary – never let creosote or soot build up.
5. Check walls for excessive heat: If the wall is very hot, it could be a sign of improper installation of the chimney or stove pipe. Check with a WETT certified chimney sweep.
6. Install a rain cap: A rain cap should be installed on top of all metal and masonry chimneys.
7. Watch for smoke coming into the room: This could indicate a blockage in the chimney or a faulty damper control mechanism.
8. Protect floors and walls from heat and sparks: Keep combustibles safely away from your appliance. Always use a properly fitting screen for your fireplace.
9. Regularly check for signs of problems: Your heating appliances, flue pipes and chimney can deteriorate over time.

FACTS ABOUT SMOKE ALARMS:
1. Protect yourself and your family: Remember only a working smoke alarm can save your life.
2. Smoke alarms save lives.
3. One smoke alarm is not enough: Install smoke alarms on every level of your home.
4. Where to install smoke alarms: There are certain locations to avoid such as near bathrooms, heating appliances, windows, or close to ceiling fans.
5. Test your smoke alarm regularly.
6. Change your clock back of forward, change your battery.
7. Gently vacuum alarm every six months.
8. Smoke alarms don't last forever: If they are more than 10 years old, replace them with new ones.
9. Plan your escape: Make sure everyone knows the sound of the smoke alarm and what to do if a fire occurs. Regularly practice our home fire escape plan.

CHECK YOUR HOME FOR FIRE HAZARDS:
1. Kitchen: Remove pans of cooking fats and oils from the stove when not in use. Have an approved fire extinguisher handy for grease fires.
2. Living Room: Provide fire screens for fireplaces. Do not use extension cords in place of permanent wiring.
3. Bedroom: Never smoke in bed.
4. Basement and Attic: Remove all unnecessary combustibles from the basement and attic areas. Have your wiring checked periodically.

Rebels rack up the goals in opening weekend sweep

By J.L. Lefebvre
Sports editor

The Char-Lan Rebels' offence was firing on all cylinders during the opening weekend of the 1995-96 Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League season.

While the St. Lawrence Division's four other teams combined to score 25 times in five games, the Runnin' Rebels pumped in 23 goals all by themselves.

Char-Lan's special teams played a huge role in a 13-2 win over the Alexandria Glens at the Billy Gebbie Arena on Friday.

The Rebels scored 10 power-play goals and one shorthanded marker in whipping their longtime rivals.

Terry O'Farrell had three goals and three assists for the Rebels while Marc Bellemare had one goal and four helpers.

Defenceman Mario Gibeault scored two legitimate goals and was also given credit for a marker that was obviously scored by Dave Campbell.

The other Char-Lan marksmen were Dave MacNally with two, Derek Gladding, Kacey MacDonell, Eric Fontaine and Owen Swamp.

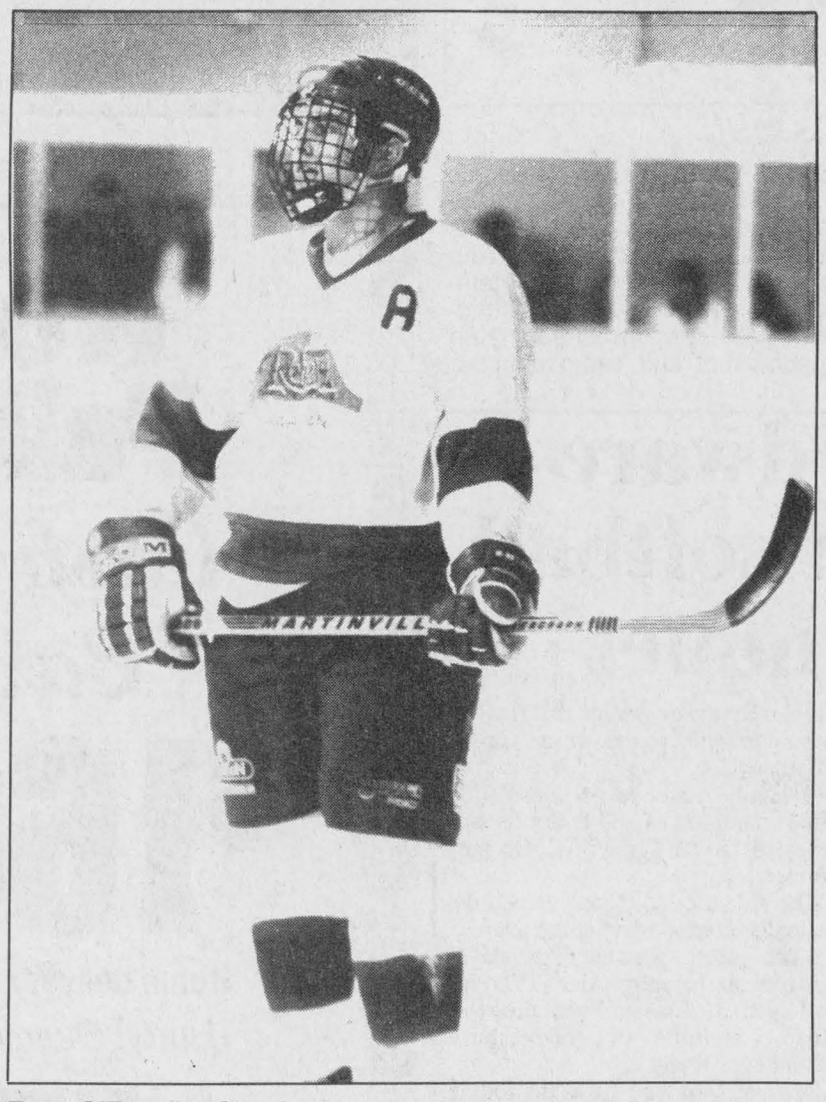
Kevin O'Farrell had four assists while goaltender Jason Pilon was a winner in his first ever junior B start.

Scott Nielsen and Patrick Cadieux had the Alexandria goals.

A steady string of penalties turned the contest into a two-and-a-half hour marathon.

Referee Luc Comtois called 167 minutes in penalties, including 91 to the Glens and 71 to the Rebels.

The penalty-minute totals including fighting majors for Richard D'Aoust and Daniel Methot of the Glens and D.J. Zaluski and John Robertson of the Rebels.



Terry O'Farrell - Char-Lan's new captain - scored four goals and added four assists in two weekend victories by the Rebels.

Another big night of offence

The Rebels turned in another double-digit offensive performance in their home-opener against Morrisburg on Saturday, taming the Lions 10-3.

Char-Lan led 3-0 before the contest was six minutes old, but the Lions scored goals 26 seconds apart to cut the Rebs' lead to one.

Char-Lan re-established control and outscored the Leos 7-1 the rest of the way.

Marc Bellemare finished the night with three goals and four assists for a total of 12 points in the Rebels' first two games.

Dave Campbell had two goals while singles were added by Lindsay Campbell, Terry O'Farrell, Eric Fontaine, Kacey MacDonell and Mario Gibeault.

Chad White, Tim Waldroff and Chad Duguay scored for Morrisburg.

The Rebels seemed intent on allowing the Lions to get back into the game by taking a string of needless penalties in the third period, but for now at least, this Char-Lan team is good enough to overcome occasional lapses in good judgement.

"There's no doubt we're ahead of the other teams in a lot of respects right now, but the other clubs will improve and that gap will close very quickly," cautioned Rebels' coach Jeff Carter after Saturday's game.

Despite his team's overwhelming success in the infant stages of the season, Carter says there's room for improvement.

"We have a lot of work to do on our defence, and I'm talking about the forwards as well as the defencemen."

While the Rebels work on improving their play in the defensive zone, the offence seems to be taking care of itself.

"We've been filling the net, that's for sure," said Carter. "Offensively, we've got two lines that are going to score a lot of goals."

The troika of Dave Campbell, Eric Fontaine and Marc Bellemare combined for nine points on Friday while the Tim Corput, Terry O'Farrell and Dave MacNally line also had nine points.

Carter shuffled the lines for Saturday's game after Corput picked up an automatic three-game suspension for a spearing match penalty on Friday.

Bellemare played with Campbell and Owen Swamp against the Lions and the threesome combined for 10 points.

O'Farrell, MacNally and Fontaine had a six-point night.

Rebels' notes: Left-winger Terry O'Farrell, who is entering his fifth season with the Rebels, has been named team captain. Marc Bellemare and Mario Gibeault will be the assistants...Defenceman Ian Main - a member of the Char-Lan midget team - was dressed as an affiliated player on Saturday...The Rebels outshot the Lions 49-44 on Saturday. Dennis Villeneuve made 41 saves for the victory.

Glens are off to a rocky start

Moments after the Alexandria Glens' crushing 13-2 opening-night loss at the hands of the Char-Lan Rebels on Friday night at the Billy Gebbie Arena, ex-Glen Chancey Lajoie dropped by the dressing room for a quick visit.

"You realize once you enter that room, you have to stay with the team," Glens coach Robert Boisvenue told Lajoie.

If only that were true.

Lajoie's offensive skills would have been a welcome addition to a club that was outscored 18-5 in a pair of opening weekend losses.

Between Lajoie, Carl Bougie, Jason Hall, Randy Gebbie and Karl Hehn the Glens have lost 128 goals from last year's club.

With American Derek Durocher unavailable, Carl Cadieux injured and Luc Chaumont suspended, the top returning goalscorer in Friday night's line-up was Richard Hutt, who tallied 11 times in 1994-95.

The lack of firepower combined with undisciplined play added up to a very, very long night for the Glens at home on Friday.

The Rebels scored 10 power-play goals en route to a 13-2 thrashing of their cross-county rivals.

The Glens were much better in Kemptville on Sunday, but Alexandria still ended up on the short end of the score, losing 5-3.

"We have to stay out of the box," said Boisvenue, who was disappointed in the play of some of his veterans on the weekend.

"I was counting on the veterans to set the example for the young players, but the way things are going it might be the kids who show the example for the older players."

The coach was especially unhappy with the number of players that have taken early showers in the first two games.

Sophomore defenceman Richard D'Aoust and rookie forward Stephane Belisle were ejected from both weekend games while Richard Hutt, Daniel Methot and Mark Arquet all took early exits from Friday's contest.

Boisvenue says the first weekend of the year proves the Glens have a long way to go.

"I knew from the beginning that we had a young team that would need a lot of work," said Boisvenue.

"I think once we get Carl Cadieux and Marc Menard back in the line-up, we'll have two more good veterans to help work with the youngsters."

Cadieux missed the first two games with a broken wrist but should be back on skates this week after being fitted with a lightweight cast.

Blue-liner Menard has a knee injury, but he too is expected to resume skating this week.

If there's anything positive to be taken out of the start of the year for the Glens, it's that the team's second game was much, much better than the first.

"The kids defended themselves very well in the first period (in Kemptville on Sunday)," said Boisvenue. "There was a bit of a letdown in the second period, but the team showed some character in the third period.

"I'd say that third period in Kemptville was by far our best period of the weekend."

The Glens went into the the third stanza down 4-0, but a strong burst by Alexandria over the final 20 minutes made the final a respectable 5-3.

Special teams were a factor again as the Glens yielded two goals to the 73's power-play.

Hamish Fraser, Jeff Ricci, Brent Rodger, Kelly Windsor and Chad Valcour had goals for Kemptville.

The Glens' third-period rally included the first junior B goals for rookie forwards Eric Hagen and Stephane Loyer and the first of the season by three-year veteran Richard Hutt.

Jason Poirier collected a pair of assists.

Glens need blue-collar ethic

While the Glens had problems all over the ice on the weekend, a shortage of offensive firepower was particularly noticeable.

Boisvenue says it will take a few more games to determine which first-year players will develop a scoring touch at the junior B level.

"The kids will have to learn that this isn't minor hockey anymore. You can't come into the zone and expect to beat the entire defence.

"They have to learn to shoot more. Look at (Friday) night. Scott Nielsen shot the puck from way out and he scored. The young players will have to get used to carrying the puck in, making one play and then shooting."

While the rookies learn the tricks of the junior B trade, the coach is counting on some of the veteran players to produce.

"I'm counting on guys like Carl Cadieux, Luc Chaumont and Richard Hutt to carry the offence and score the goals for now. I need my veterans to show up for every game.

"The whole team will have to work harder because we just don't have the natural talent we had last year."

Glens' notes: Luc Chaumont served a one-game suspension on Friday. The suspension stems from Game Six of the Glens' St. Lawrence Division championship series against the Winchester Hawks last spring. Stephane Boisvenue had to serve the two-game suspension he picked up with the Alexandria bantams last season...20-year-old defenceman Daniel Methot has been named team captain. Methot's alternates will be Chaumont, Richard Hutt and Michel Jeaurond...American Mark Arquet signed last week and was one of Alexandria's better performers on the blue-line on Friday and Saturday. Another late arrival was Jason Houle, a St. Isidore minor hockey product who had an assist in each of the Glens' first two games...Gerry Goulet played the first two periods on Friday and was shelled for nine goals, all power-play tallies. Goulet left the game after being speared by Tim Corput at the end of the second period, and Pierre Tasse yielded four goals in 20 minutes of relief work. Supported by a much stronger defence and facing a far less potent attack, Chris Motard turned in the best net performance of the weekend for Alexandria, going the distance while giving up five goals against Kemptville...Patrick Cadieux took some good-natured kidding in this space for failing to score during the 1993-94 campaign for the Glens. The big defenceman took care of that detail early this season as he found the back of the net during a third-period power-play on Friday...It appears the Glens will grant Jason Hall's wish to be released. The Vankleek Hill resident scored 40 goals for Alexandria last season and was the league's all-star right-winger, but had expressed a desire to play his overage season for his hometown junior C club...Jason Poirier became part of the first father-son-son combination in Glens' history when the diminutive centreman suited up Friday. His father Raymond and older brother Steve preceded him in Alexandria. When Stephane Boisvenue plays his first game, he and father Robert and brother Martin will become the second such tandem.

The Battle of Glengarry is a standoff in boys' senior soccer

Gaels edge Crusaders 2-1 in junior edition of traditional rivalry

Nothing was decided as the Glengarry Gaels met the Char-Lan Crusaders in Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry senior boys' high school soccer action last Wednesday in Williamstown.

The teams battled to a scoreless tie in the most recent meeting of two of the SDG loop's fiercest rivals.

The tie, coupled with a 5-0 victory over the General Vanier Vikings, leaves the senior Gaels (4-0-1) undefeated heading into yesterday's home game against the North Dundas Devils.

Jason Poll scored twice in the win over the Vikings while single goals were added by Daryl Howes, Alain Decoste and Andrew Fraser.

The Crusaders also defeated the Vikes on Wednesday, claiming a 7-3 win as Ben Pregent scored five times.

Pregent has scored 11 times for the Crusaders in six games.

Kris Wolochatiuk and Derek Abrams had solo markers.

Junior Gaels split games

After extending their season-opening win streak to five games with a 2-1 win in the junior Battle of Glengarry, the Baby Gaels lost 3-2 to the Cornwall Collegiate Golden Raiders.

Kurt MacSweyn and Murray MacLeod scored in the win over the Crusaders while MacLeod and Joseph Sugden had goals in a losing cause against CCVS.

The Crusaders tied the Raiders 1-1 in Wednesday's other junior game.

While the Gaels returned to action against North Dundas yesterday, the Crusaders will be back in the field tomorrow with games against Seaway and Tagwi in Iroquois.

Tournament action

St. Pius won both the junior and senior portions of the Gaels' invitational tournament in Alexandria on Saturday.

Nothing was decided when Richard Malo's Crusaders met Chancey Lajoie's Gaels last Wednesday in Williamstown (above). Kurt MacSweyn (left) had a goal in the junior Gaels' 2-1 win over the Crusaders.

St. Pius beat St. Mark's of Manotick in the junior final while the senior X-Men repeated as senior champions by whipping Trinity 4-0 in the senior final.

For the second year in a row, the Pius seniors reached the championship game by shading the host Gaels 1-0.

Pius beat the St. Joseph's Panthers 5-0 in its other preliminary round game.

Meanwhile, the Gaels beat the Panthers 3-1 on the strength of a two-goal performance by Alain Decoste. Chancey Lajoie also scored for Glengarry.

In junior play, Glengarry I failed to make the final after losing a shootout to St. Mark's. Glengarry II was winless in the preliminary round.

Major Peewee Rapids square record

The Seaway Valley Major Peewee Rapids evened their Ottawa District Minor Hockey Association record at 1-1 with a 5-1 win over the Nepean Raiders last Wednesday night.

Nicholas Dube, Jason Vickers, Danny Lafave, Miguel Delisle and Marc Banville each scored once for the Rapids.

Jesse Kirady - one of three Alexandria area products on the team - recorded the victory in nets and also recorded an assist.

The other Alexandria minor hockey grads on the club are Jason Vickers and Eric Nielsen.

The Char-Lan minor hockey association is represented by Graham Charbonneau, Nicolas Dube and Danny Lafave.

Rapids lose to Kanata

Seaway Valley lost 3-1 to Kanata in its regular-season debut.

Nicolas Dube scored the lone goal for the Rapids in a losing cause.

School's out

The 130 participants of L'Ecole de Hockey Glengarry received some going away presents at the conclusion of the 1995 edition of the annual hockey camp last week. The school's 115 boys and 15 girls were given free hockey tickets courtesy of the Cornwall Colts and the Alexandria Glens organizations. From left to right are camp memberJeffrey Adam, 8, Yves Joanette, one of the school's head instructors, Glens player Eric Hagen, Colts public relations director Ken McLaughlin, Cornwall Colts mascot Slapshot and camp member Steve Allen, 7.

Home Hardware wins big at softball awards banquet

Home Hardware pitcher Elaine Oetelaar was named the most valuable player of the 1995 Alexandria Women's Softball League season at the league's annual awards banquet at the Alexandria Curling Club on Saturday.

Oetelaar beat out fellow nominees Julie Montpetit (Atlantic Hotel), Jenney Bourbonnais (Caisse Populaire), Claudette Poulter (Hawkesbury Chimney Sweeps), Brigitte Lobb (M and D Sports) and Carrie Fusee (Roy's Pontiac-Buick-Cadillac) for the top player award.

The MVP prize was just part of a big silverware haul for Hardware, the league's regular-season and playoff champions.

Linda Lanthier was named the "A" playoff's most valuable player as Home Hardware swept the final in three straight games from Caisse Populaire.

Jeannine Lalonde of consolation final champion M and D Sports was selected the "B" playoffs' top performer.

The Atlantic Hotel was named the league's most sportsmanlike team.

The most sportsmanlike player award was shared by Alanna DaPrato-Leger of Caisse Populaire and Rose Latulippe of Hawkesbury Chimney Sweeps.

Sue Derby of Roy's was the rookie of the year while teammate Tammy Kenny got the nod as the league's most improved player.

Aline Gareau-Hebert of the Atlantic won the individual batting title for average.

Campeau scores four, Midget Glens beat Rebs

The Alexandria Midget Glens won consecutive exhibition games on the weekend as part of the team's preparation for the 1995-96 Upper Canada Minor Hockey League season.

On Saturday in Alexandria, Sylvain Campeau's four goals lifted the Glens to a 7-4 victory over the Char-Lan Rebels.

Jason Poirier had a goal and four assists while Darryl Howes had three helpers. Marc Gauthier and Jean-Gerard Beriault also scored for Alexandria.

Ian Main, Jason Bacon, Mike Rankin and Chad McIntosh replied for the Rebels.

On Sunday in Hawkesbury, the Glens skated to a 5-1 victory.

Jean-Gerard Beriault and Marc Laferriere each had a goal and an assist to lead the Glens' attack. Sylvain Campeau, Eric Lavigne and Marc Gauthier also scored.

Bantams rally for ties

The Alexandria bantams played catch-up hockey on the weekend and ended up with a couple of exhibition ties.

On Saturday against Char-Lan, Pascal Lavigne and Ghislain Valade scored as the Glens erased a 2-0 deficit to earn a 2-2 tie.

Alexandria fell behind 3-0 to Hawkesbury on Sunday, but goals by Lavigne, Greg Lalonde and Chris Corput gave Alexandria another come-from-behind tie.

Peewees win pair

The Alexandria Peewee Glens won twice in exhibition play last week, including an 8-1 decision over South Stormont on Sunday.

Joel Quesnel and Dominic Decoeur each scored twice for the Glens while single goals went to Jeff Lobb, Jonathan St. John, Andrew McIntyre and Jean-Francois Menard.

The Glens defeated Cornwall 6-1 on Friday.

Dominic Decoeur had a two-goal game while single tallies were added by Jean-Francois Menard, Jeff Lobb, Jonathan St. John and Stephane St. Denis. St. Denis also had a pair of assists.

Senior Lancers rally to beat Char-Lan hoopsters

By Daniel Steiche
Sports reporter

The Char-Lan Crusaders opened the United Counties girls' high school basketball seasons in Ingleside on Wednesday, Sept. 27, winning two of three games against the Lancers of Rothwell-Osnabruck.

In the senior match, the Crusaders jumped to a 20-4 lead after the first quarter as Shonna Atchison and Ariana Winn each scored eight points.

Char-Lan was unable to maintain its high offensive pace and was doubled in scoring - 36-18 - by the Lancers in the final three quarters of the game, losing 40-38.

Atchison finished with 13 points, while Winn ended the match with ten.

The junior Crusaders also jumped out to an early lead against R-O, going up 14-2 in the first quarter.

Unlike their senior counterparts, the junior Crusaders were able to ward off a Lancers comeback, winning 33-26.

Kirsten Charbonneau led the Char-Lan scoring with ten points.

Six members of the midget Crusaders contributed offensively to the team's 18-6 win over R-O.

Are Gaels rebuilding or reloading?

Talented Glengarry juniors look to add to school's great soccer tradition

By Daniel Steiche
Sports reporter

Like the parent passing the family business on to his child, the athletics department at Glengarry is looking to the next generation to carry the heavy responsibility of maintaining its famed tradition of soccer excellence.

Every few years, there is an emergence of young players who join the Gaels' soccer program, creating a core of talent which develops and unites to become the program's leaders, and the cornerstones of it's hopes, for the remainder of their high school careers.

Such charismatic combinations of skill, leadership, desire, and success from the past are presented in the photographs which line the Alexandria school's athletic "walls of fame."

The most recent group of players to carry the Gaels' boys' soccer program to the heights of its potential is those players, ranging from Grades 11 to OAC, who make up the core of this year's senior team.

This unit really began to take form in 1993 as Glengarry's junior team and has gone on to have an undefeated season, win Glengarry its first junior boys' Eastern Ontario (EOSSAA) championship in eight years, and earn bronze medals at the first provincial "AA" boys' high school soccer championships in Sarnia last spring.

However, as many of that group are in their final year of high school, the 1995 season marks the start of a new era in Glengarry boys soccer.

Generation: Next

With all but three members of last year's EOSSAA-finalist junior team having moved on to the senior ranks or left the high school soccer scene altogether, there are a lot of new youngsters sporting the black and white this season.

Joining Jason Nixon, Ian Bratberg, and Cameron Lajoie - the only Grade 9 student to make last year's squad - on this year's junior team are a host of young players, the majority of whom were the leaders of the three most dominant teams in the Glengarry Soccer League's bantam boys' division this past summer.

The Laggan team that was ousted in the bantam semifinals this past August has churned out two young talents for the junior team in Kurt MacSweyn and Joseph Sugden, as well as two Grade 11 players, Jeremy McNaughton and Kent MacCrimmon.

However, the rivalry that took place in the finals between eventual champions Alexandria Co-op and Glen Sandfield could very likely transform into a partnership that Glengarry hopes will bring it much success in the near future, as more than half of this year's junior team is comprised of members of those two summer teams.

The Glen Sandfield team has provided the Gaels with the services of sweeper Luc Leblanc, keeper Marc Bigras, strikers Murray MacLeod and Eric Quesnel and a speedy right winger named Nick Quenneville.

The Alexandria team, which also boasted Lajoie and senior team members Jason Poirier and Ian Wilson, has contributed five rookies to the Gaels' soccer program. They are Nick Moffat, Ryan Nielsen, Tim Van Overbeek, Jean-Francois Lafrance and Greg Lalonde.

The Gaels' other newest member is Leo Bedard, a product of the Greenfield bantam squad.

Young Guns

It appears that offence will be one of this group's strengths in years to come, as veteran playmaker Lajoie has at least four new junior teammates who can mix it up in the midfield and on the front line.

Kurt MacSweyn is a natural born leader and playmaker, while the diminutive Murray MacLeod is a crafty, slashing player with a knack for making crisp passes to his teammates or hitting the back of the net on his own.

Laurent Rivard's junior Gaels appear thus far to be strongest on the wings, with Tim Van Overbeek on the left and Nick Quenneville, the only Grade 9 team member besides

MacSweyn, on the right.

It is the general consensus among those involved with the program that these two wingers have enormous potential for success.

Van Overbeek is a hulking young man who continues to grow rapidly both as a physical presence and as a scorer.

Quenneville, who confesses that this past summer was only his first serious experience playing organized soccer, is a mature, muscular youngster with superb speed and an uncanny first step, which should provide him with numerous scoring opportunities in the years to come.

In fact, Quenneville's apparent potential for success in the sport is so great that he, as has Van Overbeek, has received praise from Laggan bantam coach David Filion, himself a former soccer dynamo at Glengarry in the early 1980's.

The Gaels also seem to be strong defensively, with a back line anchored by Luc Leblanc, and Marc Bigras, the first new keeper to start for a Glengarry boys team in three years, between the pipes.

As the season progresses, the torch of tradition will be slowly passed from one generation of players to the next, who, with the support of their school and predecessors of soccer glory, will strive to keep the tradition of success alive and perhaps create a dynasty of their own.

Friendly league champions

Glengarry midgets and juniors claim hoop wins

By Daniel Steiche
Sports reporter

The Glengarry girls' basketball teams opened their 1995 seasons in Alexandria on Thursday, Sept. 29, winning two games out of three against St. Lawrence.

The junior Gaels had a strong outing in their opener, defeating St. Lawrence 40-14.

Jean Lefebvre received diverse offensive contributions from his squad, as nine of the eleven Glengarry players scored in the match. Tina Bond led the Gaels' attack with nine points, followed by Kim MacLachlan with seven.

The midget Gaels also earned an opening-day victory, pounding the Saints 29-8.

Never trailing in the match, strong defence translated into offence for Glengarry, as Julia Winkiewicz led the team's scoring with eight points while Tamara Hartrick contributed six.

In the senior match, the Gaels fell to St. Lawrence 26-15. Tammy MacSweyn had six points in a losing effort.

Litterbuggers spoiling our village greens

Williamstown

by Sue Harrington
347-2279

The phones have been strangely silent this week. Maybe it's the great weather we've been having, with the result that you people are all too busy out making news to have the time to talk to me about it. Or maybe — the thought worries me — you are using that new large print phone directory recently released by a city daily.

You see, in that book, there is a listing for an "S" Harrington in Williamstown. But it isn't I!

When bursting with news, please call the number printed above, look me up under the other Harrington in the phone book (I do have a husband, if only when he takes a sabbatical from his computer), or fax me at 347-1325.

We used to be jitterbuggers; now it seems we are litterbuggers. Although the falling leaves are masking the debris, it seems to me that our village greens have been the victims of more carelessly discarded junk food packaging than ever before.

Sitting in my fo'c's'le so near the schools, I am appalled in this age of environmental awareness to see so many young people throwing garbage to the wind. It isn't just outsiders, either. It's your children, and unfortunately, mine. Please take a moment to do the wise and judicious parent thing and try to discourage this behavior.

Meanwhile, a new environmental club is up and running at Char-Lan, ensuring recycling of paper and aluminum cans. Composting of cafetorium wastes is also being considered.

One other idea: If prisoners are going to be let loose on the banks of the 401 to clean up, what about students with detentions having to clean up the park?

Any thoughts, teachers?

Tonight is Grade 9 parents' night at Char-Lan High School, beginning at 7 p.m. If you fit the description, then fit the event into your evening.

If you shop at Farm Boy or Your Independent Grocer, please save your grocery tapes and donate them to Char-Lan's School Committee.

The committee is hoping to raise a little money this way. Just bring the tapes over to the school — an envelope is available in the office for them.

I've often said it, and I hope I will be able to say it often again: Glengarry connections crop up all over the place. The other day, Imelda Chretien gave me a newspaper clipping from the "Cape Breton Post," which had been sent to her by her daughter, Jackie.

The article was about "Oranaiche Cheap Breatuinn" —the acclaimed Gaelic choir which had participated in the Highland Games at Maxville this summer. Kay MacDonald, the choir's instructor, is quoted as saying the trip was the best the singers have ever taken.

"People were so nice it was just like home," said Kay of their Glengarry hosts, and made the comment that they felt "like family" at the Games.

And so they should, shouldn't they?

You may remember back in 1987 when Rose-Marie Chretien (of Cooper Marsh fame), spent some time in Jersey, Channel Islands, working at Gerald Durrell's conservation centre. It seems she wasn't forgotten.

When Durrell died a while ago, Rose-Marie wrote to express her sympathy. In return she received a letter from Lee Durrell thanking her for her "kind message about Gerry."

The letter continued to say that Mr. Durrell's ashes were resting "in a lovely, quiet spot in the zoo, under a stone of warm Jersey granite. The carved inscription is one that he loved so well and lived by: 'The beauty and genius of a work of art may be re—conceived, though its first material expression be destroyed; a vanished harmony may yet again inspire the composer; but when the last individual of a race of living beings breathes no more, another heaven and another earth must pass before such a one can be again.' (W. Beebe, 1906)."

Gerald Durrell's books on his efforts to preserve endangered species are many. Ask for one the next time you visit the Williamstown Library.

The library is having a bookmark contest for all area children in Grades Kindergarten to Grade 8. Winners will have their designs placed on bookmarks to be used in the Williamstown branch during Children's Bookweek (Nov. 18-25).

Registration forms for the contest are available at the library and entry deadline is Oct. 22.

Many new books for children and young people have been arriving lately —check them out! Literally.

"Fie thee for shame," (an old expression of my mother's) and one which I think is fitting here.

Apparently there are 10 little girls, aged five and six who have signed up for the Sparks program of the Girl Guide program, but there is still no one who has volunteered to be their leader. Lots of mothers have indicated a desire to "help" but no one to "lead". I don't understand it. As anyone who has ever been the president of anything knows, it's the helpers who do all the work!

There is still time to come forward. Please call Lynn Larkin at 347-2491 in order to save the day.

The end of the month saw the relocation to Cambridge, Ontario of a Williamstown family. Anne and Bob Donkers and children have moved back closer to Bob's turf after spending a while on Anne's.

The Donkers will be missed — not in the least for their many hours of volunteer work in the community.

The Glengarry Community Club's birthday party was held Sept. 20 at the Charlottenburgh Recreation Centre.

Honored were those celebrating in August and September: Clarice McPherson, Carol Dubeau, Rita Lauzon, and Ethel Clark. Alda Major made the birthday cake for the occasion.

Winners at cards were Viola Pilon and Clarice MacPherson for the ladies, and Roger Pilon and Donald MacGregor for the gents.

Margaret Leonard was down and won the door prize, while the 50/50 winners included Joyce Lalonde, Kathleen Theoret, Dorothy Croll, Theresa Bourdeau, Donald MacGregor, Alda Major, Mary Rose Pilon and Germaine White.

Congratulations this week to Ralph and Grace Gordon on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary.

The Gordons were feted at "toast and roast" reception on Saturday, organized by their children: Laurie and Nancy, Darcy and Annie, Cynthia, and Catherine and Steve — all of whom were in attendance, as were four grandchildren.

Best wishes Grace and Ralph!

And now, I'm looking for your help. It has come to my attention that recently I have omitted some names from condolence items in this column. For this I am truly sorry.

I have lived in Williamstown for the past 23 years, and am reasonably knowledgeable about who lived here during that time, their family connections, etc. But prior to then, there are some gaps.

I would be most appreciative if those of you who are truly "natives" (the other choice was "old-timers") would let me know when someone with Williamstown roots has died, and also give me the names of their family still in the area.

Thanks!

Church welcomes bible society rep

Martintown

by Martha Merchuk
525-4177

On Sunday, Sept. 25 the congregation of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church, Martintown, welcomed the Rev. George Legault of the Canadian Bible Society, Montreal Division.

Rev. Legault informed members that all of the donations received go to providing bibles and translations of the bible.

Donations are not used for overhead or administration.

To date 600 million bibles have been provided world-wide with translations done in 2092 languages.

Rev. Legault's sermon "The Promise" was enjoyed by all.

N.B. If you have any news for this column, please leave it at Warden's Gar Bar or K.C.'s. Please make sure that it is there by Sunday mornings at around 10 a.m. My deadline is Monday mornings and I usually type the column on Sunday afternoon. Thanks.

Finney Bridge opens

With the official opening ceremony on Sept. 6 of the Williamstown-area Finney Bridge, the Raisin River was bridged with a safer structure with a higher load-bearing capacity.

The new structure provides direct access for the dairy industry to local farmers and improves the township's transportation network. The federal provincial infrastructure program funded $671,737 of the $845,000 project, with the municipality contributing the balance of the funds.

"I take pleasure in joining my provincial and municipal partners to officially open Finney Bridge and I am pleased that our government was able to contribute towards this important project," said MP Don Bourdia at the opening.

"With the assistance of the infrastructure program and thanks to former Reeve Dave MacDonald and council, we are pleased to replace the aging Finney Bridge and offer an improved transportation link to our residents and reduce a pending liability on the township," said Councillor Les O'Shaughnessy. "Joint ventures and working together to maximize limited resources in the way of the future."

Canada/Ontario Infrastructure Works is a $2.1 billion shared-cost program designed to improve local infrastructures, and is expected to create approximately 40,000 direct and indirect jobs.

St. Joseph School

The students of Pre-Kindergarten and Kindergarten had the chance to learn about all the rules and security used on the school bus from Mrs. Normande Beaupre and Mrs. Nancy Trottier. These two bus drivers explained all the regulations.

The school is recommending to each student riding a bicycle to wear their helmet and to keep in mind that it is the law for persons under 18 years of age.

School personnel would like to welcome the new "comité foyer-école" and are sure that lots will be accomplished including a lot of activities for the progressive learning of the students.

The committee is made up of President Huguette Rummens, Vice-President Nicole Dupuis, Secretary Lynne Savoie, Treasurer Sandra Barnes, Priest Mgr. Rudy Villeneuve and Counsellors Barbara Moussea, Madeleine St. Pierre, Pauline Paquette, Rachelle Lefebvre, Odette Bonneville, Marlene Millar, Bonnie Cumming, Linda and Guy Dubeau, Louise Dixon and Rose Good.

The first parent/teacher meeting was a real success.

A sunny day greeted the delegates to South Lancaster and the Westmount Branch Police Reunion held at Lancaster Inn on Sunday, Oct. 1.

Approximately 70 police men and women and their spouses (150 persons in all) came together to renew their friendship and share old times. They had worked for the Westmount Police Force, R.C.M.P. and even C.S.U.C. but now most delegates were retired.

Many had come from great distance such as Vancouver and the Maritimes.

Others were closer to our area such as present Deputy Chief Bill Cavanaugh and his wife from St. Thomas, Ont.; Detective Ron Rollauer of the Durham (near Toronto) Regional Police, retired officer Doug Priestly and his wife form Ile Perrot, Que. and retired Park Officer (no gun) and Policewoman Dorothy Munde of Montreal, Que.

For many, it was 20 years since they had seen each other as the last reunion was eight years ago in Montreal.

Most had trained at Westmount Police station in the late 1950's under Training Officer Andy Lowson. Mr. Lowson, now 88 years of age, was present and very much in command of the situation as he renewed acquaintance with the men he had trained many years ago. The Montreal Urban Community (M.U.C.) Police force was not formed until January 1972.

A bulletin board had been set up at the rear of Lancaster Inn and on it were pictures of Westmount Branch and its officers in their day to day activities as well as team sports, such as hockey.

A motorcycle helmet and a police hat were also exhibited.

The prime organizer of the reunion was retired Sgt. Gord Kerr of Lancaster, with much assistance from ex-Sgt. Detective Ross Delo, formerly of Westmount, now living in Cornwall.

They worked for the past three months writing, phoning and planning this event.

Gord Kerr's wife, Yvonne, said she was impressed by the dedication to this task shown by both men.

Together they created a reunion that has lots of excitement, joy at meeting old comrades and, for one person, goosebumps every time an old friend arrived.

Club 65 elects new executive

Glen Robertson

by Colette Sauvé
874-2076

Club 65 held its annual general meeting at the Glen Robertson Social Centre on Sept. 27 at which the 1995-96 executive was elected.

Members are Maurice Montpetit, president; Pauline Roussin, vice-president; Lill MacDonald, treasurer; and Betty McDonell, secretary.

All councillors who held office last year were re-elected.

Past-president Florence Montpetit thanked the committee for the co-operation she received from them during her term in office.

Reminder that the next Glengarry Outreach Diner's Club will be held at the social centre on Oct. 12. Anyone interested should call Rosemary or Simone at 347-1175 for reservations.

Glengarrians on the go

by Julie Larocque

Never mind what a Scotsman wears under that kilt. The most burning questions now circulating through Glengarry is: "Have you joined the walking club yet?"

So far, more than 100 people in Glengarry can answer yes. The walking clubs, launched by the Eastern Ontario Health Unit (EOHU) in the spring are enjoying solid support through the five counties.

"We're really proud of the interest and participation for Glengarry's club," says Julie Larocque of EOHU. "The feedback from members and the community has been really encouraging. Seems as though people here were just looking for an opportunity to enjoy their own community and boost their fitness levels at the same time."

The walking clubs provide members with walking kits, tips and suggested walking routes – all for free. The walking club offers walks every Monday and Wednesday at 7 p.m., starting at Loeb. For more information about joining the walking club in your area, contact Julie Larocque at 525-1112.

MacLEOD – I want to thank everyone for visiting, cards and prayers on my behalf while I was a patient in the hospital in Alexandria, Cornwall General and the Heart Institute. I hope I can return and fulfill all the generous thoughts of friendship and friendliness throughout the rest of my life. Thanks to one and all including the lovely doctors, nurses and staff of all the hospitals. Special thanks to Dr. Roman, Dr.Reddie and Dr. Rubens.
Norman M. MacLeod 40-1p

FOURNEY, Eileen Lillian (nee Edgar):
The family of the late Eileen Fourney would like to offer their heartfelt thanks for the loving support received in the loss of a beloved wife, mother, sister-in-law and grandmother.
For the excellent care offered by Dr. Raymond Gatien and the 5th and 3rd floor nurses and staff of the Hotel Dieu Hospital, for all the comforting visits, prayers, cards and flowers there; and for those who assisted in the time of bereavement, who expressed their sympathy and love through visits, cards, memorial donations, beautiful floral arrangements, thoughtful gifts of food, hospitality and help; for all these generous acts of kindness the family is deeply grateful.
Sincere thanks is extended to the Rev. Ian MacMillan for his comforting words, to the organist and those forming the ecumenical choir and to the ladies of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church who provided a delicious lunch following the funeral service.
Eileen's legacy is one that upholds family, faith and friends everywhere. Her wholehearted devotion to others touched the lives of many who were privileged to share her life's journey, enjoy her friendship and the strength of her love, her faith and her courageous spirit.

Card of Thanks

BOUGIE

I wish to express my deepest appreciation to my family and friends who supported me at the time of my wife Barbara's illness and up to her passing.
Floral arrangements, mass cards, baked goods and personal expressions of sympathy were truly heartwarming.
Special thank you to the V.O.N. of Alexandria, especially Judy Seguin and Alix Baxter for their devotion and care during Barb's illness.
I am also very grateful to Dr. Jo-Ann Toop for her exceptional care, certainly above and beyond the call of duty.
Much appreciation to Marlene Millar who took care of our son, Richard, in our time of need.
Finally, thank you to special friends Judy Rutter, Linda Baker, Cathy Picard and Pauline Laframboise who were there around the clock during Barb's final struggle with her disease.
Again, thank you all.
Sincerely, Dr. Daniel Guillet

Local men travel to Ayr for match

St. Elmo

by W. MacKinnon
527-2348

The Rev. Dr. Wm. J. Klempa, principal of the Presbyterian Theological College, Montreal, conducted the morning worship service in St. Andrew's Church, Maxville, this past Sunday at 11 a.m.

His message was based on the words of the Prophet Jeremiah, Chap. 9, verses 23 and 24. "Let not the wise man glory in his wisdom, neither let the mighty man glory in his might, let not the rich man glory in his riches: But let him that glorieth glory in this, that he understandeth and knoweth me, that I am the Lord which exercises loving kindness and righteousness in the earth: for in these things I delight saith the Lord."

The prophet Jeremiah's message was a positive one for the people of Jerusalem at a time when they were being misled by their temporal leaders and encouraged to continue in that way by the priests of the temple. It was not a message of doom and gloom, but a challenge to change their outlook on life and give heed to God whom they worshipped.

Dr. Klempa was pleased to report that the Montreal Presbyterian College has 26 young men and women registered for the current college year in theological studies.

Ralph McIntosh, his grandson Christopher and his granddaughter Jessie Jackson were on a trip to Ayr, Ont. for the week of the International Ploughing Match going by bus and enjoying a day at the annual ploughing match and visiting St. Jacobs and the very large Farmers' Market there.

Hugh Fisher, Allen Moak and Neil F. MacCrimmon were also in Ayr, Ont. for the Ploughing Match. They were all surprised to see a large field filled with school buses and so many school children enjoying a day at the Ploughing Match. And the reports are that the weather was very good during that week for the Ploughing Match Sept. 19 to 23.

The Rev. Garry Van Bruchem who has not been available for his pastoral work during the past few weeks, due to injuries from an accident, expects to return to active pastoral duties in about 10 days or two weeks.

4-H members rough it out in the wild

4-H News

by Angela Dorie
347-7120

The Picnic Grove 4-H members led by Ursula Flipsen decided that instead of doing the usual six, two-hour meetings to complete a club, they would have a hike and overnight campout to complete a Walk on the Wild Side project.

On Sept. 14 that was exactly what approximately 16 of them did. The following is one of the write-ups which the participants were required to submit after the outing.

Camping in September
by Amy Mainx

Members started hiking from Ursula's at approximately 5:30 p.m. The hike took about one hour and 10 minutes. By the time members got to the camping area it was around 6:40 p.m. and they started to pitch tents and collect firewood.

When everything was set up and organized they started to cook supper, hot dogs and hamburgers. Everyone pitched in on bringing the meals.

It was very cold that night, around minus 3°C. Members stayed very close to the campfire. They stayed up to about 12:30 a.m. telling stories, jokes and roasting marshmallows.

The next morning members woke up around 5:30 a.m., the grass was wet, even in the sunshine. Members started cooking breakfast, eggs and toast over the fire and we also had chocolate milk.

After breakfast, they went on a hike and saw deer. When they came back through the forest they saw fox holes, fallen down trees and lots of other things. It was nice and quiet.

Members started to pick up and pack up and headed off around 10:15 a.m. By the time they were back at Ursula's it was about 11:25 a.m. I was happy to have gone but happy to be back. I had lots of fun!

Any press reporters from clubs which were held this summer are invited to submit a write-up of their club's activities for this column. This will give others an idea of what it entails and, maybe encourage them to join next year. Give me a call.

Closure for hunting geese remains in effect in this area

The Canadian Wildlife Service has announced some changes in good hunting seasons and limits along the Atlantic Flyway, which are not incorporated in the Fall 1995-Spring 1996 Ontario Hunting Regulations Summary.

For hunters who hunt in Wildlife Management Unit 65, which included the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas, Glengarry, Prescott and Russell, as well as the townships of Cumberland, Gloucester and Osgoode, there is a closure in season from Sept. 21 to Nov. 5. The season re-opens Nov. 6 to Dec. 30, with a daily limit of three birds per day and a possession limit of six birds.

Thailanders visiting given medal

Dalkeith

by Jean MacLennan
874-2385

To finish the sentence from last week's column – with reference to the nine young people from Thailand and Canada who help the Optimists in the kitchen at the brunch.

To show them some appreciation the lieutenant-governor (Henri Jeaurond) presented each with a merit medal. They were very happy and appreciative of this token from the Dalkeith Optimist Club.

The next brunch will be on Oct. 15.

Just as I write this column on Monday morning I received the news of the passing of Manda (Mrs. Grant) MacGillivray on Oct. 1. Both Manda and Grant were born in the Kirk Hill-Pine Grove area and after marriage and moves retired to Pine Grove. Now they had settled in Maxville. Sympathy is extended to Grant, their daughters Myrna and Jean and the extended families.

This Saturday is the pumpkin festival at the recreation centre at Ste. Anne de Prescott. Last week I encouraged you to have your big pumpkin to the centre between 10 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. At 1:30 p.m. the music starts and they hope to have at least 60 participants to sing, dance and make music. From 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. a hot meal will be served and the desserts are all to contain seasonal fruits.

Mass will be observed at 7 p.m. at the church and by 8 p.m. the rest of the gala will be at the centre.

For many months, Pastor Paul DeGraaf and his congregation at Breadalbane Baptist Church have been associated with other local churches in preparation for the "Barry Moore Crusade". Dr. Moore is a Canadian Evangelist from London, Ont. and the Crusade Soloist is Mr. Art Perri. Activities are from Oct. 14 to 20 with the services at Vankleek Hill Collegiate Institute or at Laurentian Elementary School in Lachute. For more information check with Pastor Paul DeGraaf at 874-2869 or at the church 874-2398.

Laurier Carriere school news

Last Wednesday, the school had a huge turn-out for their annual parents' and teachers' meeting.

The school took advantage of this reunion to introduce "Carousel", its managers and its function in the French community.

There was also a presentation by Lise Bissonette from the Ontario Health Unit on how to prepare nutritious packed lunches and snacks for school.

During the evening this year's school committee was elected and the following members were voted in: Robert Massie, Marriette Dewar, Michelle St. Amour, Miria Roy, Pina Stante, Gerald Larocque, Gilles Decoeur, Maurice Menard, Marcel Lanthier, Linda Van den Oetelaar.

The topic for Friday's Pedalogical Day was on how to achieve zero tolerance for physical and verbal abuse in and around the school.

Monday was election day for the students. The incumbents for president were: Greg Hagen, Carlo Stante, Shannon Hardy, and Pierre-Paul Decoeur. Vice president: Travis Hagen, Stephanie Lavigne, Melanie Seguin, Luc Lanthier and Sylvain Diotte. Sceretery: Lucie Decoeur, Jean-Pierre Diotte, Luc Lavigne, Marc Sauve. Jason Van den Oetelaar. Results will be published next week.

Laggan Public School news

The soccer tournaments last Thursday were very successful. It turned out to be a beautiful, crisp fall day. In the junior coed division one of the Laggan teams won the consolation match. Players on the team were Dan MacPherson, Blake McMillan, Nelson Shearer, Blair McMillan, Kenton McBean, Caleb Jamieson, Rory MacLennan, Leigh-Ann Redmond, Rachelle Kirady, Lony MacSweyn, Ashley MacLeod, Amy Crooks and Stephanie Vander-Byl. In the senior division at Williamstown the boys team won. Members of this team were Rory McLeod, Brad McMillan, Jesse Kirady, Jeff Boesch, Eric Nielsen, Bruce Nixon, Stuart MacLaren, Scott MacLeod, Frank Safruk, Jesse Steiche, Eddie McCorkell, Jason Robinson, Andre Rozon and Eric Lajoie. The lunch program for our 16 visiting teams was assisted by Billie Nixon, Janet Keusch and a hard-working group of Grade 6 and 8 students. They did a terrific job of getting everyone fed.

There was an excellent turnout for our open house last Wednesday. There was a brief meeting in the gym where new Principal Maureen Hart introduced this year's staff. Bus drivers Gary Shepherd, Rodney Shepherd, Karen Kingston, Hugh Angus Kennedy and Bob Gibbs had a display set up and were available to answer any bus route questions. The Eastern Ontario Health Unit had an informative display on tips for school lunches. Volunteer sign-up sheets were posted for any parents who are available to help at the school in various areas. The book fair was going on the entire evening in the library.

Firefighting hopefuls get before-the-job training

North Lancaster

by Bernadette Campeau
347-2572

Last Tuesday, a few applicants for the fire department got a real live practice as employees of Major Feed Mill noticed smoke and flames in the mill shortly before lunch.

As we have not yet received our own fire truck and our fire squad not yet been chosen, outside help was called and arrived in a very short time.

With the proper equipment and knowledge and also help from the employees the fire was under control before too much damage was done.

Norm Campeau, Pierre Quenneville and Roch Rozon, who had given their name for the North Lancaster firefighters' list, understand a little better what it's all about.

The ladies of UCFO will be holding their monthly meeting next Monday evening at the Ste. Therese School.

There will be a guest speaker from St. John's Ambulance to inform members about first aid.

New members are welcome.

The Optimst Club held a brunch last Sunday morning in the new hall. The attendance was satisfactory although a bigger crowd is hoped for the next time around which might be next month.

We wish a speedy recovery to Bernard Larocque who is hospitalized due to a foot injury. Hope you are back real soon.

Happy birthday to Marie Josee Samson on Oct. 1 and former North Lancaster resident Carmen Roy on Sept. 7

Best wishes to all

Yvonne "Desjardins" and her husband Lute Hulshes from Calgary and Gerald Desjardins from Trenton, Nova Scotia were down for two weeks visiting with their mother Eva Desjardins. While here they also went to visit their sister Muriel of Cornwall and brother Leo of Ottawa, they also took time to visit uncles and aunts in the area.

Father Marcel and his group of students enjoyed their trip to the Lac St. Jean region. He gave a short recount of their trip Sunday, and he looked quite tired at Sunday mass. I guess the students really kept him hopping.

Those who took the time to attend the Old Tyme Fiddlers fall dance really enjoyed themselves. When all the fiddlers played together you couldn't help but tap your toes.

But among all these old tyme fiddlers was one young fiddler by the name of Ashley MacLeod.

She began by tap dancing then played the fiddle like a real pro, yet she is only 11 years old and has been playing fiddle for only one year.

She is the daughter of Ian and Karen MacLeod of Dalkeith. I must mention her dad also plays with the old tyme fiddlers, well done Ashley.

Ad person had local connections

Maxville

by Gordon Winter
527-2888

When the names of our village and of the Glengarry Highland Games appear in the newspaper, local readers are bound to seek connections. Thomas Johnstone, the director of advertising of the Ottawa Journal for 46 years and a distinguished gentleman of that city, died last week at the age of 85.

His obituary indicated he was raised in Maxville and that he was on the first planning committee of the Glengarry Highland Games. It can only be assumed that he was invited to be on the committee because of his advertising expertise.

As far as this correspondent knows Mr. Johnstone maintained a friendship with a Maxville native, the late Anna Dingwall, who died in Ottawa about two years ago at the age of 97. No contact with village residents is known.

The Rev. Thomas Johnstone was the minister of the Presbyterian Church here from 1912-17. His widow, Laura, was left with three young sons, Thomas, Robert and Ian. They may have lived in the manse for a while but for the last few years of their residency here, they lived on Peter Street at what is now #14 and next door to the home of this correspondent. With a bit of an educated guess, the family moved to Ottawa about 1927. Mrs.. Johnstone used to come back to visit her friends here for a number of years.

Agnes (McEwen) Campbell remembers the Johnstones well when they lived on Peter St. Their backyard was just a field away form her McEwen farm home to the south.

Heather Williams is back home after enjoying a two-week tour of Scotland and England. She was accompanied by her sister, Julie, of Guelph and by their friend Tanya Wheeler, formerly of St. Andrews, for part of the time.

Margaret Munroe has been out to Regina to visit with her brother Robert and Audrey MacKillican and at the same time her brother William and Mary MacKillican were there from Alaska.

Margaret Hunter, Toronto, was home with her mother, Helen, for a week, recently.

Claire and Bruno Besner and Lorna and Gordon Winter toured the Ormstown area on Sunday to view the very colorful fall foliage and to visit Thelma Hughes. Apart from her arthritis, Mrs. Hughes is very well, is a regular reader of The Glengarry News and wished to be remembered to all her friends here. Mrs. Hughes' sister-in-law, Ethel Coleman, happened to be there at the same time. Mr. Winter also enjoyed a short visit with an old friend Ken McDonald and his wife, Myrtle, who are the parents of Diane Miller, Pigeon Hill.

The fall meeting of the members of District 25 of the Superannuated Teachers of Ontario was held last Tuesday in Finch. A delicious beef dinner, prepared by the members of the Ladies' Recreation Committee, was appreciated as was the fact that the proceeds from the meal were directed for minor sports.

Among the 143 members present were about 20 newly retired members including Audrey Warwick, Don Bond and Mel McCormick from here. Other local retirees in attendance were Claire Besner, Thelma Colbourne, Joyce Ferguson, Jean MacCuaig and Gordon Winter.

An oversight occurred and there are two weeks of winners in the Lions Club Calendar draw to report. For the week of Sept. 18, the lucky ones were Bill Kippen, Maxville; Carmen Jeaurond, Alexandria; Linda Antoine, Cornwall; Laura Jean McRae, Moose Creek; Reney and Angela Schuerman, Moose Creek and Richard Trepanier, Dunvegan.

For last week they were Alice Thompson, Cornwall; Natalie D'Aoust, St. Bernardin; Maureen Benton, Monkland; Julie Danskin, Maxville; Evelyn and Bev MacQueen, Skye and Laura Mitchell, Perkins, Que.

A merchant in Cornwall is advertising that he has solved the problem arising with the introduction of the $2 coin. He will no longer use the cent coin for change and will therefore have a space in his till for the new coin.

It is my opinion that the cent should be taken out of use. It is of such minimal value that it has become more of a nuisance than anything else. Watch how children do not bother to pick it up on the streets or in the halls of schools. Without these coins, the weight of the new $2 coin should make little difference in men's pockets or ladies' purses.

Last week, the first official frost for our backyard was reported. There hasn't been one since and our impatiens plants are still blooming well in this beautiful weather, as of Monday.

The first flock of Canada geese was observed last Thursday evening at dusk. It was a large flock whose formation was constantly changing and we couldn't help but wonder what it was going to do. It seemed too dark for landing and yet, could they fly all night? Perhaps the lights of Cornwall would direct some wise old gander or goose to the waters of the St. Lawrence.

As far as hunting the geese is concerned, they are now safe until Nov. 5 in SD&G and Prescott and Russell counties. The season reopens for hunters on Nov. 6 and runs until Dec. 30 with a daily limit of three birds and a possession limit of six birds.

Flocks of robins are being reported. Some have been feeding on the crab apples in our tree.

Some may think it is too early but I have sunflower seeds and niger seed out in the feeders. The finches are coming back and it is interesting to note that the gold finches have gone through their molt and the males are in their dull winter colors.

This is Meals-on-Wheels week which is being celebrated provincially with the motto: "Serving Ontario and Your Community."

While the service has been available here for over 20 years, the Manor has provided the meals and a local committee was in charge. Now the service is under the Seniors Outreach Services Program at the Manor.

The meals provided consist of hot soup or a salad, with a main course consisting of meat, the choice of potatoes, rice or a pasta and a vegetable along with a dessert consisting of fruit or something baked. There are also provisions available for special diets.

The next diners' club at the Manor will be on Oct. 12 with the guest speaker, Allan Mills, speaking on Toast Masters. The dinner is served at 12:30 p.m. with the speaker featured around 1:30 p.m. Last week, 25 enjoyed the twice monthly event.

Seventy years ago, Mrs. A. J. McEwen was in Martintown to organize a Mission Band for the Presbyterian Church there. Mrs. McEwen belonged to the pioneer McEwen family at the south east corner of the village with her husband a prominent business man and village reeve. Later, Mrs. McEwen was in charge of the local Bell Telephone office here for several years. She was the mother of Agnes Campbell, Catherine McKay and the late John W. and the mother-in-law of Gwen who lives in the family home. Mrs. McEwen lived to the age of 102 years and was a widow for 56 years.

Eighty years ago, Dan Ferguson was busy drilling a well. That was a family operation for many years and was continued by his sons Rae and Donald for some years. Mr. Ferguson's name was known Canada-wide for his threshing machines that were manufactured here.

Denise Legault (far left) and her family present a $1,635 cheque to Noreen Richer (second from left), president of the Cornwall Cystic Fibrosis chapter. Legault is the grandmother of Julian Legault, 3, shown with his mother Martine and grandfather Maurice (far right). Julian was diagnosed as a baby with Cystic Fibrosis. The Legaults raised the money in a yard and bake sale held on Aug. 19, during which they also received many donations. Denise Legault said she plans to organize another type fund raising event in the future, but said it will be something other than a yard sale. Cystic Fibrosis is the most common life-threatening hereditary disease of children and is incurable. The disease causes thick mucus to build up in the lungs, causing lung damage which can lead to death.
