Town rejects old guard

For more on the Glengarry election results, see pages 3 and 6.

In less than an hour, a political legacy of 20 years in Alexandria was gone.

Jean Paul Touchette, the renowned singing mayor and Alexandria political icon for two decades, was defeated handily by a relative newcomer to the world of politics — Grant Crack.

Crack, a 31-year-old landscaping business owner and president of Glengarry Golf and Country Club, bettered Touchette by about 450 votes in yesterday's election.

Crack was comfortably ahead of Touchette from the beginning as the poll results rolled at at the Glengarry Sports Palace, with a 300-vote lead by about 9 p.m. yesterday. The gap stretched out even wider as the final results came in.

Crack's win was one-third of a complete sweep of council's top three positions, a clear message of discontentment with council's old guard.

The other two to go were incumbent Reeve Bruno Massie and Deputy Reeve Jacques Joly, close allies of the mayor.

Massie, a political veteran in Alexandria with 19 years experience, was no competition for his challenger Francine Richer.

Richer, an incumbent councillor and arch-rival of Massie's this past term, was first elected to office in the 1991 election.

She handily defeated Massie by about 700 votes, outstripping him in every poll including the advance polls, doubling the number of ballots the incumbent reeve had received.

Hope doubles Joly's vote count

Joly was also a casualty of the voter backlash, swamped by challenger John Hope.

Like Richer, Hope was an incumbent councillor first elected to office in 1991.

Hope more than doubled his rival Joly, defeating him by more than 600 votes.

Winning the six council seats were, in order of votes, Gary Shepherd, Gail Abrames, Richard Lefebvre, Fern Seguin, Archie McDougall and Roger Lemieux.

The only rookie councillor elected was Abrames. Shepherd, McDougall and Lemieux are all incumbents. And Seguin and Lefebvre have both served on previous councils.

Council's new top politicians were greeted by enthusiastic applause as they entered the Glengarry Sports Palace hall around 11 p.m. where more than 200 people had gathered to watch the election results.

The new mayor-elect, the first to take the podium, harkened back to what had become an unofficial anthem during his campaign — "Who is Grant Crack?"

It was no longer a question, but a rallying cry, igniting the emotion of supporters at the jam-packed Sports Palace hall Monday night.

Crack promised the crowd he would offer a new style of leadership, "one that is fair, one that is open, one that is honest."

The newly-elected mayor praised all the candidates for having the courage to run for public office and also thanked his supporters.

"I really say thanks to my original supporters because they knew I wasn't fooling around," said Crack, who told the crowd: "I had nothing to lose going into this election."

Asked after his speech how he felt about the election upset, he said: "I feel like a million bucks."

He said he was confident from early on that he had the support of Alexandria people.

"I had faith in the people to make a choice, a good choice."

As for the clean sweep of council's upper tier, Crack said: "I think it's wonderful."

"The timing was right. The people of Alexandria deserved it."

The upstart politician promised once again that there will be an operational review of the town, an idea he first floated at the town candidates meeting a couple of weeks ago.

He also pledged to bring a new way of doing business to the council table.

"As mayor, I will take the politics out of politics and ensure it (the town) is run as a business."

"Everyone will be treated fairly and equally."

A "very relieved" Nathalie Crack, wife of the new mayor, said she is

Morris edges out Vallance for reeve in Kenyon Township

By Dane Lanken
News* correspondent

Former councillor Gwen Morris edged two-term incumbent Wilfred Vallance by five votes to become the new reeve of Kenyon Township in Monday's election.

It was a neck-and-neck race that kept both candidates on edge until the last poll reported in at 12:30 a.m. Tuesday.

The final tally was Morris 701 votes, Vallance 696.

"In a race this close, no-one really lost," said a relieved and beaming Morris as she accepted congratulations from well-wishers at Kenyon Township Hall in Greenfield.

"Well, I did," said a glum but unflinching Vallance.

The possibility of a recount was raised immediately after Township Clerk Mary McCuaig chalked up the final figures on the election returns blackboard.

And later on Tuesday morning, Vallance indicated he would request one.

In other Kenyon results, incumbent deputy-reeve Donald Besner breezed to an easy two-to-one victory over his only challenger, Apple Hill grocer Rheal Lefebvre.

Besner won in all nine polls in the township, plus the advance poll. The count was Besner 926 to Lefebvre 461.

In the council race, Laggan school teacher and first-time candidate Kent MacSweyn led the way with 893 votes. He garnered most votes in five of the 10 polls.

Incumbent Blair Williams was second with 767. And former reeve and deputy-reeve Norman MacLeod took the third and last council seat with 729 votes.

Incumbent Owen Walker missed out with 655 votes, just 74 behind MacLeod, while Adair McBain trailed with 356.

Voter turnout was relatively light, with 1,418 of Kenyon's 3,127 eligible voters -- just over 45 per cent -- casting their ballots.

"I think we're in for three tough years," said the newly-elected Morris.

"The mega-dump is a challenge we'll have to face right away. And there are going to be more economic cutbacks and fewer grants available to us.

"The people want services for which there is no money, and nobody wants their taxes raised."

On a lighter note, Morris was generous towards Vallance, with whom she served on council for the last six years.

"Wilfred is a good citizen," she said. "He's worked hard. When I decided to run for reeve, I told him first.

"I wasn't going to run at all again. I figured I had done my duty towards my community. But at the urging of some people, including Blair Williams on council, I decided

Kenyon favors reduced, elected counties council

By Dane Lanken
News* correspondent

Kenyon Township electors voted solidly in Monday's elections in favor of reducing the number of representatives on Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Counties Council.

And they want those representatives elected directly by the people rather than appointed from township councils.

Several Kenyon councillors in the last session, including Owen Walker and Blair Williams, had argued for these changes as cost-cutting measures, and asked for them to be made referendum questions in this election.

The final results were 1,050 to 280 in favor of reducing the number of counties council representatives, and 1,077 to 231 for having those representatives elected directly by the people.

In another question also posed to Kenyon voters on Monday, electors agreed by a narrower margin that pay rates for Kenyon's elected representatives should be on a par with those of other Eastern Ontario municipalities.

The vote was 799 to 555.

O'Shaughnessy new reeve for Charlottenburgh

By Sue Harrington
News* correspondent

It didn't take long to declare Leslie O'Shaughnessy the new reeve of Charlottenburgh Township Monday night. From the time the first poll reported in at 8:22 p.m. until opponent George Shoniker conceded defeat with one poll remaining, just 21 minutes had elapsed.

O'Shaughnessy, formerly the municipality's deputy-reeve, was clearly the people's choice with 1559 votes, winning by a margin of 377 over Shoniker, and capturing 20 of Charlottenburgh's 25 polls. Only in Summerstown area, did Shoniker, a former councillor, garner much support.

The speedy tabulation of results for reeve almost caught O'Shaughnessy by surprise, as he arrived at the Charlottenburgh Recreation Centre just moments before he was declared the winner. He was overwhelmed by the victory.

"I don't know what to say. I just can't explain how I feel. I guess it's like winning the 6/49 -- except now I've got to get to work, not retire," said the new reeve, his wife Karen by his side.

O'Shaughnessy said he plans to continue with the "positive attitude" of the last council. "The path has been set for Charlottenburgh and we're going to stay on it," he told the crowd of about 35 people in his acceptance speech.

Reeve-elect O'Shaughnessy called Shoniker a "worthy opponent," and said he had thought the race would be close.

"The best man won," said Shoniker when it became clear that he could not catch O'Shaughnessy.

"It's what the voters wanted. But in a way I win too, because I get to spend more time with my family."

The father of three sons, Shoniker said he thought he would likely run again in the next election. Among accomplishments during his council term, he counts the tennis courts at Glen Walter Park, and the fact that he kept contractors and engineers in line.

Retiring Reeve Dave MacDonald, who openly backed O'Shaughnessy during the election, admitted he was going to miss politics, and that he had had second thoughts after he announced he would not be running again.

But MacDonald said the toll on his business and family was too great.

"I was spending more time doing the reeve's duties than I was running my business," he said.

"If I would have run again, I

Enrolment up at SD&G's public elementary, high schools

By Greg Kielec
News* editor

Enrolment is up at public schools in Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry according to public school board figures.

The public school board's elementary schools boast a total enrolment of 7,042 this year, up from 6,978 and the highest total enrolment in 12 years.

The figures were presented to the school board at its regular meeting recently.

The board's high school enrolment is also up from last year's total of 5,283, at 5,311 for this year. It is the highest enrolment total the board has had in nine years.

Glengarry's two public high schools had higher enrolments this year. Glengarry District High School was up, albeit just by one student, to 435 this year.

Char-Lan had a much more significant increase — from 346 last year to 367. It was its highest enrolment total since 1983. GDHS's total, although higher than last year's, is still the school's fourth lowest total over the past 12 years.

Tagwi Secondary School was the only area high school to experience a drop in enrolment. It's enrolment dropped to 415 from 447 last year, its lowest enrolment total since at least 1983.

Of Glengarry's five elementary public schools, two had their highest enrolment total in 12 years. Laggan Public School went to 220 from 216 and Maxville Public School went to 337 from 323 last year.

The three remaining public schools all had drops in their enrolment totals. Lancaster Public School dropped to 212 from 221, Martintown Public School dropped to 138 from 146, and Williamstown dropped from 305 — its second highest enrolment in 12 years — to 295.

Williamstown's enrolment is still its second highest in 12 years and Lancaster's is its third highest since 1983. Martintown's enrolment ranks sixth in its totals since 1983.

Youth convicted in Cuerrier murder gets 14 months

By Greg Kielec
News editor

A youth convicted of manslaughter in the March, shooting death of an Alexandria man has been given the maximum three-year sentence.

The sentence includes 14 months in secure custody, plus seven months and nine days already served, nine months in open custody, and six months probation.

He is also prohibited from owning firearms, ammuninution of explosives for 10 years after his sentence is served.

The mother of the youth wept openly in the courtroom, as did the youth's fiancé as he was led away by police to jail in Brockville before being transferred to a detention centre for young offenders.

The youth, originally charged with second-degree murder, had pleaded guilty Sept. 22 to a reduced charge of manslaughter for his role in the shooting death of Alexandria resident Gerald Currier.

Details of the incident are under a publication ban by the court to avoid influencing the cases of one other youth and one adult charged in connected with the offence which are still before the courts.

"We are dealing with an extremely serious matter," Judge J.M. Bordeleau said in sentencing the youth in Alexandria court Nov. 9.

"You clearly knew about what was going on in this case. And it resulted in the death of a human being."

But he said it would be "a serious error in law" to impose the maximum penalty asked for by Crown John Campbell without consideration of time already served.

Campbell had urged the youth be given the maximum three-year sentence, "structured as your honor will see fit."

Ron McLelland, the youth's lawyer, had argued that any time served by the youth must be included as part of the sentence.

The maximum sentence should translate into nothing greater than 29 months, "but in all probability something less than that," he suggested.

In the breakdown, he had hoped for a year secure custody, a year in open custody and a year on probation for the youth.

And he pleaded for whatever help that can be given the youth, for pyschiatric, behavior or personality problems, or for substance abuse if necessary.

"You still have a troubled youth. You still have a troubled person," he said.

And if the system doesn't try to fix those problems, he will still be "a troubled follower."

He should not just be put away for three years without any regard for his problems, he said.

A preliminary hearing date will be set Thursday for the adult accused Jason Horvath.

Trial for accused in fatal car crash may be in April

By Pauline Ashton
News correspondent

The trial of a youth accused in the car-crash death of four Alexandria teens may take place in April.

Judge Bruce MacPhee tried to set an April date in Alexandria court last week for the trial of a juvenile charged in connection with the firey truck-car crash which killed four Alexandria teenagers in March.

But he could not confirm with court officials in Ottawa, that the court time is available for trial in April.

"I want a date set as soon as possible for this trial. It has been seven months and delayed long enough," Judge MacPhee said.

He directed the juvenile return to court Dec. 8, for a definite trial date.

The four young men were killed on Highway 34, south of Alexandria, when their car swerved into the path of a transport truck, driving home after celebrating the beginning of spring break at a bar in Dorion, Que.

Police believe a car following the four teenagers was involved in the accident

Friends of the wetlands fight against dump

By Brenda-Jane Kerr
News reporter

More than 200 Charlottenburgh and area residents attended a Friends of the Wetlands meeting on Nov. 8 to come together as a united not-in-my-wetlands front against a possible mega dump in their area.

The committee is objecting to the counties waste management master plan listing a 140-hectare site in Charlottenburgh as one of 14 possible site locations for a tri-country mega garbage dump because the site contains a portion of a protected wetlands area.

The wetlands area is a designated Class 1, provincially significant wetland, protected against development or alteration of its natural state by the Ministry of Natural Resources.

The friends committee contends the selection of site 31, encompassing lots 26 to 30 along Conc. 7 in Charlottenburgh, is an error in the waste committee's site selection process because wetlands is one of the criteria that is supposed to eliminate a possible site.

And they want the waste committee to strike the site from the potential site list immediately.

"All we are asking is to take site 31 off the list," said Mike Beaudin, spokesperson for the friends committee.

"It doesn't make sense to continue," said Beaudin.

But the county waste committee told Beaudin it intends to abide by its elimination process that will see the 14 sites narrowed down to 4 or 5 by the spring and a final selection made by the fall.

Beaudin said he doesn't see why they should wait to drop the site.

"If they've made this kind of mistake at level 1, what kind of errors can they make in level 2?," said Beaudin.

Beaudin said screening of the site can only be done by plane and aerial inspection shows most of the area is encompassed by one designated wetland and one not yet designated.

"We approached the Minster of Natural Resources and the Minister of Environment and Energy and asked them for their assistance in this case."

But he added the committee has not heard from either ministry.

"We basically got the same answer - 'follow the process, follow the process'," said Beaudin.

He added the friends committee will follow the process and attend the counties waste management workshop meeting scheduled for Nov. 16 at Tagwi Secondary School.

Farmers have been 'sold down the river'

Former agriculture minister says politicians, farm leaders dishonest about GATT talks

By Greg Kielec
News editor

Farm leaders have "got in bed" with goverment leaders and sold farmers "down the river," according to former Canadian agriculture minister Eugene Whelan.

Speaking to about 30 people at the Knights of Columbus fundraiser in Apple Hill Nov. 9, Whelan said politicians have sold out farmers on the issue of supply management.

While they went around telling farmers and the media they were doing their best to save supply management during world trade talks involving agriculture, they were actually selling farmers out.

"I will never, ever believe that some of our farmer leaders were honest with their members, either," Whelan said.

"What I'm trying to tell you is they're giving you a snow job," said the flamboyant former agriculture minister, known for his trademark green stetson during the Pierre Trudeau era.

The snow job, according to Whelan, deals with a change in the rules in the General Agreement on Tarriffs and Trade which would open borders and throw out supply management for Canadian farmers.

Right now, farmers in the dairy industry, chicken and egg industry have guaranteed markets and guaranteed income through a system of supply management. Farmers have quotas dictating how much they can produce so there are not oversupplies to glut the market and reduce prices.

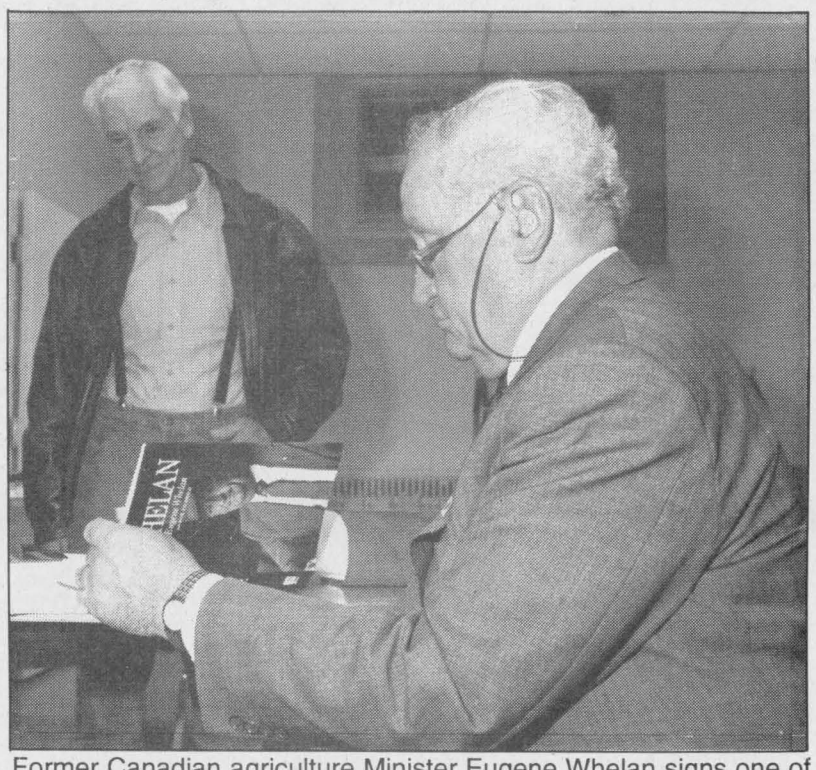
That will change if the GATT agreement on agriculture goes ahead because the United States and other countries would be able to sell their eggs, milk and poultry on the Canadian market.

Because Canadian supply management systems will not be able to control the amount of products coming into the market, they will not be able to control prices and Canadian farmers could go out of business as consumers flock to cheaper U.S. products.

While in the United States, warehouses sat full of butter and prices became depressed because of overproduction , Canada enjoyed good prices for its agricultural produce without a huge glut of excess produce.

"They (the U.S.) said you've been too successful, you must stop that," Whelan said. "No political party in Canada asked that that be changed."

Politicians and farm leaders have told farmers they must increase the size of their operations and become more efficient if they are to compete.



Former Canadian agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan signs one of his books for Milton MacDonald of Strathmore, after his speech at St. Anthony Church Hall in Apple Hill last Wednesday.

But Whelan doesn't buy that assessment.

There is no way Canadian farmers can compete with U.S. farmers who have longer growing seasons, lower taxes and cheaper fuel. "You must be out of your cotton-pickin' mind." he said.

The bottom line is farmers have been sold short by the previous government, he said.

"Who has been there to argue for you since 1984," he said. "I had no trouble defending agriculture."

Farmers should let their political leaders know what they did for them, said Whelan. He then rephrased: Farmers should let their leaders know what they have done "to" them.

"We're losing our democracy. That has to be raised to them to make them come to their senses."

When you deal simply in economics, you are no longer a democracy, he said. "To be in a democracy, you have to have compassion for people."

It takes a long time to build up a country, but it doesn't take long to destroy it, lamented Whelan.

He who spoke at length about the conditions endured by farmers before supply management was instituted and how it has given farmers stability while at the same time given Canadians the second cheapest agricultural produce in the world, just behind the U.S.

Now all that work could be thrown out the window, with the GATT deal.

Project aims to create 'synergy' for vision of United Counties

By Greg Kielec
News editor

The tri-county area of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry needs a vision, according to members of a new project aimed at getting the public, government, business and industry together to look to the future.

Meetings will be held Nov. 19 at Glengarry District High School and Nov. 26 at Char-Lan District High School to gather people together in Glengarry to discuss just what kind of vision is needed for the three counties.

"We're inviting people to get together and determine what's best for the community."

The meeting is being sponsored by SPARTA, a government-sponsored project designed to help the United Counties plan for investment and action for a better future.

"You'll never get there until you find out where you are going," says Jill Proctor, vice-chair of economic development for SPARTA.

SPARTA plans to make a better future for area residents by reducing duplication and waste in community projects and make local communities better places to live in economically, socially and culturally.

The project is not as much an exercise in making physical change as it is a change in the whole way people think of their communities.

People are very "present oriented", says Proctor. SPARTA will work to get them to be more forward looking.

It will try to get people to come up with a general vision of where they want their communities to be in five years time, not specific projects that they want right now — for example, a new community centre.

SPARTA instead takes a proactive approach — visualizing future needs and coming up with a plan beforehand — instead of waiting for events to happen and then reacting.

After the vision is created, the work will begin on how different groups, individuals, businesses, industries and levels of government work to make that vision a reality.

"I think some exciting things are going to happen because of this, but they'll only happen if people get excited," says Jean Marc Boisvenue, social sector vice-chair for the SPARTA project.

Proctor says part of the change must come in the way local government thinks and operates. "There's a tremendous amount of territorialism."

If local governments could work together, taking advantage of the economies of scale, there could be large economic benefits, she says.

And the counties have a lot to offer. But different areas, groups and individuals must work together to promote them, putting together their assets and drive to create a positive "synergy", says Proctor.

"We have some wonderful things to offer here," she says.

SPARTA was formed in February by the Community Futures Board and receives half its funding from the provincial government and half from the federal government.

In August, a two-day workshop was held to get ideas for the project's vision and featured a good cross-section of people from different sectors and industries from across SD&G.

Through the process, it is hoped local people can take control of their own destinies instead of being dictated to by upper levels of government.

"This is bottom up rather than top down," says Proctor.

People in the community are the ones best qualified to determine their future, she says.

SPARTA will be seeking public input until Christmas through questionnaires mailed out last week, visionary workshops and group workshops.

Anyone interested in learning more about SPARTA can call the project office at 933-6080, send a fax at 933-5208 or write to SPARTA, 1001 Sydney St., Cornwall, Ont., K6H 3H3.

Bill 163: A punishment to rural landowners

With Glengarrians and the rest of Ontario safely distracted by the municipal elections, the province is poised to pass land use legislation that is grossly unfair, discriminatory and punishing to farmers and other owners of rural property.

It's a familiar story, another example of what's best for the world as seen through the narrow eyes of the Southern Ontario-dominated NDP government and the Queen's Park bureaucracy, whose view of the province barely extends to the horizon beyond their office windows.

It's made worse by the fact that the commission that provided the impetus for the law was headed by former Toronto mayor John Sewell. The government couldn't have found a better choice of someone with urban blinders on, who didn't seem to get it when farmers told him during public consultations that he was directly and indirectly tampering with billions of dollars in pension funds — their property.

Indeed, Bill 163 is severe legislation that could well strangle rural development, collapse property values and limit farmers' use and enjoyment of their property, despite the fact that many have owned family properties for over two centuries. Under the new regulations, it will "virtually be impossible for farmers to sever a corner lot off their farms to build a retirement home", the Ottawa Citizen said in its Monday issue. Land deemed "provincially significant" will be "sterilized" from development without compensation for the owner.

The bill will require local municipalities to firmly stick to provincial guidelines when it deals with land use. Remember, these are not general concepts that councils will be able to bend to conform to local plans. These are provisions, that, among others, say there will be no development in "significant" areas — period.

That's too vague.

Yet depending on the government's final definition, it could have major implications for property owners. Prohibition from building on the province's new definition of significant lands is another method of land confiscation without compensation; even if the government is not directly assuming ownership, it is voiding previous property values by blocking by law the ability to build on it.

So what good is the new act? Well, it is, as regulations often are, well-intentioned. The aim is to devise a system that would protect the environment and to encourage good development to take place faster.

The problem is, in seeking to do that, Bill 163 requires local municipalities and property owners to surrender what little influence they have left over land policy; municipalities must amend their planning bylaws to conform to provincial policies written from a Toronto vantage point, regardless of the varying circumstances in geography and socio-economic needs across the province. The requirements of Glengarry's communities, so close as they are to the Quebec border, are vastly different in every way than those in a county near James Bay. Yet, Bill 163 assumes they are identical.

So count this as one more in a long string of Queen's Park decisions which have removed the ability of local ratepayers to govern themselves and the properties they own.

All of these points, of course, seem academic and any opposition, futile. Bill 163 went directly to the legislature for third and final reading yesterday. A legislative committee was in the midst of a clause-by-clause examination of the bill, but the government invoked closure on its deliberations last week.

That wonderful piece of government manipulation speaks volumes about the bill's sinister implications.

More broadly, the evidence is too obvious to ignore: until the NDP are soundly vanquished in the next election, the voice of rural Ontario can be considered irrelevant.

To those who lost...

To the winners, go the spoils. And congratulations and good luck as you begin a new term working for your community.

To those who were not elected, or who were not returned for another term — you deserve the gratitude of your community.

But that doesn't seem to be enough, does it? These are people, after all, who spent money, time and risked bruised egos. The incumbents who were defeated, after at least three or more years in the service of the community, have encountered an unfamiliar foe — defeat.

But defeat at the polls doesn't mean their defeat as citizens. The power of the voter remains paramount well after the election is over. Voters forget they can attend council and school board meetings, write letters, spearhead petitions and sit on committees that have a direct impact on council. The experience of all candidates who ran is a valuable source of energy that should not be wasted.

After all, community apathy is the genuine foe.

A tale of two elections

After Thoughts

by Joe Banks

Kenyon Township and Alexandria were expected to be the hotbeds of political excitement in the county during this election campaign and they did not disappoint. More than that, though, the election demonstrated once again that no person, regardless of record or history or community standing, is above the power of the ordinary voter.

Even with that, there are not many words in the English language, or French for that matter, to describe what happened in Alexandria Monday night.

It would be tempting to use the word "upset" in Alexandria's case, but that suggests the results are a surprise. Anyone who kept an ear to the ground from the all-candidates meeting on Nov. 2 knew something was in the wind. The old guard, which ran a lethargic, taken-for-granted campaign, must have sensed it in the final few days leading up to Nov. 14. The streets buzzed as they rarely have over local politics.

The desire for change, combined with some aggressive and smart textbook campaigning by the challengers for the upper posts, was palpable, washing over the town like a wave that crested by the time the polls opened Monday morning.

The voters, young and old, French and English, Catholic and Protestant, merchant and resident, man and woman, voted solidly for a fresh beginning and a new town spirit that for too long was battered by political pettiness, tainted back room wheelings and dealings and old-boy autocracy. They elected a mixture of people who sought and promised serious change in the way the town was run, and how political influence would be shared.

In short, they delivered to the established politicians the same message Canadians delivered to Brian Mulroney and company in last fall's federal election. And for the same reasons.

We see yet again, the political equation in the 1990s is this: People want people in office who place integrity above personal goals and who will listen to them and act on their needs. It's no more complicated than that.

That's not the way it used to be. Times have changed, an era has ended. Maybe forever.

The result, in fact, is historic. Never in Alexandria's history has the council faced so radical an alteration. Changes have come gradually, through the system of promotion from the bottom up. Grant Crack killed that notion. And that in itself speaks volumes about how the town's voters have themselves changed, and about the kind of town they want to see emerge into the year 2000.

But the Alexandria changes are also relevant not only to people who live in the town, but also to those who live outside. That's because of the impact on the surrounding municipalities, which have come to see the town as the important economic centre of the county.

That adds increased relevance to what happened in Kenyon Township, where, as of press time, a recount has been requested by incumbent reeve Wilfred Vallance in the wake of a stunning five vote difference between him and challenger Gwen Morris.

The result suggests the township collectively wavered and indeed was split on the need for change. In fact, it largely attempted to bring back the old days by giving a two-to-one mandate to deputy reeve Donald Besner, and electing former councillor Norman MacLeod at the expense of Owen Walker who many anticipated would be returned on the strength of his running-mate Blair Williams.

Walker didn't deserve the result. He was an asset on council, regularly questioning issues and constructively attempting to improve and forge a closer tie between the community and council.

Given this, it was surprising to see the electorate vote overwhelmingly on the question of reducing counties council representatives and to directly elect them, which Walker strongly endorsed. And they voted almost two-to-one in favor of raising Kenyon council's pay.

All of this might hint that Kenyon's electorate are ready for progressive changes as long as it does not affect their quality of life, and the rural character of the township.

The unfortunate side of Vallance's defeat, if it holds, is that the incumbent has taken the result as a personal affront, "a slap in the face" from an electorate he has served collectively for several years. Yet, voters had to balance his record with what they were hearing from Gwen Morris, who ran a positive campaign offering new ideas like equipment and services sharing with neighboring municipalities.

In both communities, voter turnout exceeded 60 per cent, and maybe that should be the most notable aspect of the elections. It does the heart good to see that voting hasn't yet become the quaint undertaking of a self-righteous few, though there is always the danger that the most evil of community enemies, apathy, will take it that way.

The voter, we learn yet again, is king.

Old guard wears out welcome

News to me

by Greg Kielec

They rode into political life in Alexandria two decades ago and have been a part of the political landscape ever since.

On Monday, voters let them know they were no longer welcome.

They didn't need to ride them out of town on a rail, tar, feathers and all. Those days have long since gone.

All that a staggering 75 per cent of the electorate had to do -- staggering because it was a huge turnout by any standards — was to mark their "X" beside someone else's name.

It was a non-aggressive act with a knockout effect that even famed brawler Iron Mike Tyson would find tough to match.

Jean Paul Touchette, Bruno Massie and Jacques Joly held all the power when they were on council.

The long-serving mayor, reeve and deputy reeve found out Monday, who really holds all the power — the voters.

And the Alexandria voters, in a sweeping condemnation of council's top three, overwhelmingly voted the old guard out and the new guard in.

The buzz on the street even before the election was that it was going to happen, that there was going to be a wholesale change of council's upper tier.

But still, after spending all the time, all those years in service to the town, it must have been tough for the threesome to believe such a thing could come to pass.

They were out of touch with the voters, with the political reality in Alexandria.

And worst of all, they had nothing to offer — nothing at all — to gain voters' confidence again, that confidence that kept them voting the town's political elite, election after election.

The old-time political campaign practice of standing on your name and years of service just doesn't cut it anymore in Alexandria. That's the message to be derived from this election.

Alexandrians don't want political leaders who need rear-view mirrors to see where they are going. They are looking for forward thinkers, visionaries who have an idea of what this town can be and how to take it there.

The incumbents offered voters the past. The voters looked into the past and didn't especially like what they saw.

The challengers offered a vision for the future. Voters tapped into their vision and liked it.

It was the future that won over the past on Monday. It was the new that won over the old. It was inspiration that won over apathy.

A page has been turned in Alexandria's political history. Now it is time for some new blood to begin writing this town's history.

And gazing into the future, that history looks very good.

Mistakes

In a recent Highland Paths column on the visit of the Archbishop of Glasgow to Glengarry, I mentioned that he was piped into and out of St. Finnan's Cathedral for the special service there by a young altarboy in Highland dress. After the ceremony, the Archbishop expressed his delight on being piped into the church. "It would never happen in Scotland," he said. Shortly after he returned home, by the way, Archbishop Winning was named a cardinal. Cardinal Gordon Grey of St. Andrew's and Edinburgh had been made a cardinal in 1969 and died recently. The piper who so impressed Cardinal Winning is the son of Mary Ellen (Courtwright) and Alan MacKinnon, and I misspelled his name as Ewan. Sorry, Ewen. The Gaelic spelling is Eoin and it is a variation of John (Iain). St. John of the Gospel is always spelled Eoin and is pronounced either as "Yohen" or "Yewen," depending on what dialect of Gaelic is followed. Here in Glengarry it is usually "Yohen." The clan name in English is MacEwen or MacEwan, in Ireland spelled MacKeown. The "mac" part in Gaelic names means "son (of)" and it doesn't matter if it is spelled in the abbreviated form "Mc" or, as it was often written in old documents such as ships' lists, when the writer was fed up writing "Mac" over and over, as simply "M." And it has nothing to do with whether the bearer of the name is Scottish or Irish, Protestant or Catholic. The only proper way to spell "son" in Gaelic (at least in the nominative case) is "mac." It gets more complicated when the name means "the Son of the Son of Alexander," for instance, which is the patronymic of the chief of the MacDonells of Glengarry. There the second "Son" is in the genitive case, not the nominative, and is spelled "Mhic" and pronounced "Vic," so the name is "Mac Mhic Alasdair." Once a Gaelic name (and all names beginning with "Mac" are Gaelic), is translated into English, all sorts of weird and wonderful variations appear.

Every Saturday in January and February, from 2 to 4, the Highland Society will again be sponsoring Highland Heritage courses in Glengarry District High School for anyone interested in learning more about the language, music and culture of the Gael. This time around the emphasis will be on discussion and participation. Each class will consist of a theme, such as the showing of a video, followed by an exchange of ideas, in comfortable surroundings, and the leader will encourage questions and opinions. Each session will be different and not necessarily in sequence, so that if you miss a class or two you will not lose the thread of the discussions. The course is free, but we are always grateful for donations to the Highland Society. Space is limited to about a dozen, so reservations must be made as soon as possible by calling me at (613) 874-2861. This will be a very enjoyable way to spend a Saturday afternoon and even if you have attended previous courses these will be quite different and entertaining.

This column is titled "Mistakes," not only because of my misspelling of Ewan MacKinnon's name, but for a couple of other reasons. I know that several Glengarrians travelled to Montreal in October to attend the Run Rig concert, largely, I am afraid, at my urging. Hubert McDonell, the principal of Iona Academy, tells me that the sound at the concert was so loud that it was unbearable. I apologize to all those who went all the way to Montreal and were disappointed. I guess the only way to appreciate Run Rig is to see the video or play the audio cassettes at home where the volume can be controlled.

The last mistake is really more a case of mistaken identity. The speaker at the November meeting of the Glengarry Historical Society was advertised as "Prof. David Sassenach" talking on Ossian, the 4th century Gaelic poet, but, in the spirit of James MacPherson, whose translation of Ossian was suspect, so was the professor. He turned out to be none other than "our own" David Anderson, of the Bethune-Thompson House and past president of the Historical Society. But his talk was the real thing. He will repeat it at one of our upcoming Highland Heritage courses in the new year.

Timing of dump site selection, wetlands bylaws and election strangely coincidental: property owner

To the editor:

My wife and I, informed by a phone call, attended a meeting on Nov. 1 at Glen Robertson. The subject of the so-called "open house workshop" meeting was to find a landfill site (dump site for garbage).

The meeting and topic was communicated through a flyer put in the mail boxes, usually filled to the top with junk mail and easily discarded as attested by 99 per cent of the people. The flabbergasted officials expected a low attendance and admitted, they did not find it necessary to invite the consultant because they wanted to save money for us.

On Nov. 16 another public workshop will be held evaluating detailed criteria about a new landfill site.

As far as I know, a public meeting does not need or require a pre-registration. But this one apparently does so refreshments can be made available! Money alloted for light lunch should have been spent for buying postage stamps, so one could use the mail informing the concerned owners of these important matters.

Is it coincidental that the Nov. 1 public meeting and the Nov. 2 bylaw publication in Glengarry News, advocating the rezoning of nearly half of Kenyon Township, to a wetland zone came out at the same time? Who was this requested by?

Consider the implications of Nov. 14 election: incumbent out -- new person in. The accountability of the elected official out is nil. But a new person in might say "Do not blame me. I wasn't there."

Nov. 22, the last chance for a notice of appeal, setting out the objection to the bylaw 23-94 (designated wetlands) and the reason to support the objection. This was stated in The Glengarry News, Nov. 2. The effect of the bylaw is that the "reforming will allow the properties to be used; uses permitted in the wetland area form an environmentally sensitive zone."

The bylaw explicitly states what is not allowed. Please read it. The definition of wetlands "means lands that are seasonally or permanently covered by shallow water, as well as lands where the water table is close to or at the surface."

"In either case," the bylaw says, "the presence of abundant water has caused the formation of hydric soils and has favored the dominance of either hydrophytic or water tolerant plants. The four major types of wetlands are swamps, marshes, bogs and fens."

Surprise, surprise! I can't believe what I read.

The top of the second page of Bylaw 23-94 reads as follows: "Land being used for agricultural purposes, that are periodically 'soaked' or 'wet', are not considered to be wetlands in this definition. Such lands, whether or not they were wetlands at one time are considered to have been converted to alternate uses."

My question: What alternate uses? Is a dumpsite considered an alternate use?

I urge all the people directly or indirectly involved to go to the meeting on Nov. 16 at Tagwi Secondary School, Hwy. 43 near Avonmore.

I might add my wife and I personally resent our prime agriculture land, woodlot, gravel, 10,000 new trees, a well, etc, through manipulation, be used as a candidate dumpsite.

Sincerely,
Alfred Czichos,
Kenyon Township,
Conc. 6, Lot 4 east.

Chamber enlisting support for tree ceremony

To the editor:

Well folks, as the Christmas decorations have begun to appear in the windows of various businesses, it would seem the festive season is almost at hand.

For the third year, the Alexandria and District Chamber of Commerce has begun to undertake the planning of festivities on the lighting of the tree in Mill Square, slated for Dec. 7, 1994.

The event, in the past years, has seen hundreds of people come out to kick off the season, enjoy some free candy, hot beverages, music and, of course meet Santa. More than 20 groups, agencies, companies, individuals, and organizations have either volunteered time, or treats toward the evening. This year will see even more effort, and fun to be shared by everyone involved.

An addition to the evening this year will be a hayride along a four km route through various streets in order to provide transportation to as many people as possible who may wish to join in. A wagon train will make two complete trips, along the same route, in order that people who get on at any one point, can also be assured of getting home.

Details will be available via posters, fliers and the Glengarry News at a later date.

We would ask that anyone who could make available, a hay wagon (with or without hay) to please contact organizers as soon as possible. We will pick up and return the above if someone reading will donate them for the evening.

In an early gesture toward the evening's success, and community spirit, a tree has already been donated, but we need your help too!

Please contact: Joe Banks, co-secretary, Alexandria and District Chamber of Commerce, at the News office, 525-2020.

Wishing all a safe holiday season,

Dean Picher,
President.

Teachers and students did veterans proud

To the editor:

Each year Remembrance Day has a particular personal solemnity for each of us who were there. Each year seems to have the same format, the one difference is that each year there are fewer of us.

However, this year in the Alexandria area there was a difference. As a privileged veteran I have witnessed the outstanding work of the teachers and the students at the local schools. The main hallways with memorials on the walls -- if only the public could have seen them. The poster competition was overwhelming with hundreds of entries.

While a joy to witness, it proved to be a difficult work of judging. Each entry was a wonderful personal effort. The public support of the Poppy Fund was outstanding this year, for which every veteran gives a very big "Thank you."

If our young people coast-to-coast are receiving the same leadership, then the future of this great nation is assured.

We should be a proud, thankful, people. The one message given to young people -- may our armed forces always be in the forefront as peacekeepers.

Sincerely,
A. E. Brewer,
Padre, Branch 423,
Alexandria.

Campaigners chastised for religiously campaigning

To the editor:

It is not enough for one to read on every roadside and corner, the names of those wishing to become the public's representatives of one kind or another in local government.

Also when we go to town or some hall for an evening out, to find our cars and trucks littered with your names and intentions, stuck to our windows.

You want our votes and our respect, but I draw the line when I come out of church and find, while we were attending our time set aside for the Lord, guess what, a number of those of you seeking my vote have been at it again with your papers and promises.

Whatever happened to the respect for Sunday?

There are those of us who still have a strong standard for holding Sunday as a time for God, quiet and family.

Is it not enough the country with its stores, and a number of other activities that don't keep Sunday as it was meant to be? One has to wonder what kind of a representative you people are going to be and where my "X" will be.

ELECTION GLENGARRY

Only one new councillor at Lancaster Township table

By Brenda-Jane Kerr
News reporter

There will only be one new face at the Lancaster Township council table this term, the face of newly-elected Councillor Gerald Carriere.

Returning to council with him are incumbents Janet McDonald and Roch Major, who will be joining acclaimed incumbents Reeve Charles Sangster and Deputy Reeve Steve Preston.

The only election in the township was for the concillors' positions, with seven people running for the three positons on Monday.

Carriere, 51, a cattle buyer and feed corn seller from Green Valley, gathered the most support in the seven-way councillor race, gaining 625 votes.

In second place was McDonald, 57, returning for her third term, with support from 575 voters.

Voters gave Major, 40, third-place support with 498 votes to bring him back for his fourth term.

More than 30 supporters and interested residents gathered at the Lancaster Township Hall to watch the tally of the votes come in.

Within two hours of the closing of the eight polls which saw a 45 per cent voter turnout, the winners were announced.

"I feel pretty good," said Carriere once the final votes came in, "a little embarrassed (by all the attention) but pretty good."

He said he started his campaign feeling confident he could come away with a win, but "as I got campaigning, I got more unsure."

Carriere said, as the election day got closer he became more nervous about his chance of winning.

There are no "big issues" in the township, said Carriere, though he said he did speak with voters about the landfill site, paving roads and dividing lots.

"Most everyone agrees we have a good township," said Carriere.

McDonald's nerves also showed while the poll counts came in, as she spent much of the time standing outside on the township hall porch.

But with plenty of friends present to lend her support, McDonald glided to an easy finish.

"It was a good race," said McDonald.

Major said he was going to sleep well Monday night after running in a "nice tight race."

Admitting he was nervous for awhile, Major said "I was anxious to see Green Valley come in."

Finishing closely behind Major was Ian McLeod, Green Valley, with 434 votes and Luc Poirier, North Lancaster with 425 votes.

In sixth and seventh place was Lee McIntyre, North Lancaster with 271 votes and Joanne Stevenson, Bainsville, with 220 votes.

No contest for MacDonell for reeveship in Lochiel

By Pauline Ashton
News correspondent

Veteran Reeve Ron MacDonell surged back to top spot in Lochiel Township, with a massive 1,175 vote of confidence, in Monday's municipal elections.

Challenger Raymond Jacques, running for the first time, in a protest campaign, picked up 232 votes.

Councillor William Hagen swiped the deputy reeve's chair from incumbent Maurice Montpetit by a slim 13 votes. Hagen led with 710 votes to Montpetit's 697.

Both men are respected and well liked for their council work and community involvement.

Lochiel Clerk Ray Charbonneau told The News more than 60 per cent of voters turned out at the polls, "far higher than usual because of the close race for deputy reeve."

Claude Massie, the only new face among three councillors elected from a field of six candidates, won 629 votes.

Incumbents Peter MacSweyn picked up 744 votes, and Armand Paquette topped the poll with 890 votes, in their return to office.

"It looks like people are happy with our past work maintaining roads, recycling and keeping taxes in line, but we've got a big job ahead with problems like location of a mega dump, and improved fire protection," Reeve MacDonell told The News.

MacDonell, who runs a beef farm and auctioneer business east of Alexandria, begins his twenty-third year on council, and what he hopes will be his lucky thirteenth year as reeve.

Newly-elected Deputy Reeve Hagen, who crop farms and raises beef near Glen Robertson, confessed "it took a lot of hard canvassing to win, and I'm particularly looking forward to representing Lochiel on the United Counties level."

Freshman Councillor Claude Massie switched from dairy farming to beef production, freeing up more time to make his bid for council.

"I'm so happy to win and I'll do my best to represent our people, keep roads maintained and taxes down," Massie told The News.

He said he couldn't have run without my "wife Lucie looking after things at home."

Peter MacSweyn, going into his third term on council, was relieved and happy to be going back into office. Armand Paquette starting a second term, was "elated to be voted back and I'll do my best."

Defeated councillor candidates included Dan McIntee with 488 votes, Claude Poirier with 487 votes, and Penelope Spalding with 155.

to try for reeve and here we are."

For his part, Vallance said he had been looking forward to another term.

"I wanted to finish up some of the things I started," he said, "including roads, like County Road 45 and Concession Eight. With funding being what it is, it takes a few years to get things done."

"On the other hand, this was going to be my last election anyway. I've been in public service for 40 years, the school board, 4-H, Kenyon Agricultural Society, the Highland Games, everything.

"And I'm a busy man besides. I work with my sons on the farm, I manage the herd, which is about 125 head of Ayrshire cattle. And with our land and custom work, we're farming about 1,600 acres.

"We've all got our health. And my wife and I like to curl, and to travel when we feel like it. So there's lots to do."

Deputy-reeve Besner expressed relief at his comfortable victory.

"The pressure is off," he said. "I worked awful hard in the last couple of weeks.

"I went door-to-door and tried to meet as many people as I could and listen to their concerns. Naturally, I'm very pleased with the results."

Besner listed the mega-dump, good roads and "proper management" as his prime areas of interest.

"I always try to get along with other people on council," he said. "I will continue to do that, but if I have other opinions, of course I'm going to express them, too."

First-place councillor Kent MacSweyn has taught school in Glengarry for 25 years, but running for office never occurred to him until this election.

"I thought this last council did an excellent job," he said. "They were innovative, and they worked hard at keeping control of the tax dollar. I admired what they were doing.

"Then Joe Banks wrote an editorial in The News encouraging people to do public service, and I thought okay, I'll try it."

MacSweyn also sees the mega-dump as the new council's first big issue.

"If municipalities are just going to be able to dump their garbage somewhere else, there'll be no incentive to cut down," he said. "That's no solution at all."

New councillor and retired Dunvegan dairy farmer Norman MacLeod foresees problems for this council, too, particularly with economic cutbacks and waste management.

"But I've been reeve and deputy-reeve," he said, "and I figured with my experience, I'll be able to help council adjust."

Defeated reeve is seeking recount after losing by five votes in Kenyon Township

By Joe Banks
News publisher

There will be a recount for the reeve's position in Kenyon Township.

Incumbent reeve Wilfred Vallance confirmed Tuesday morning that he will sign a formal request for a recount, in light of the five-vote margin separating him and reeve-elect, Gwen Morris.

Morris polled 701 votes to Vallance's 696.

It is unknown when exactly the recount will be done, but provincial law requires the application to be submitted no later than Nov. 24.

The recount must then be held within 21 days of the request submission.

Vallance has the option of having a lawyer present during the recount which will be conducted by township Clerk Mary MacQuaig and a scrutineer.

In an interview yesterday morning, the reeve admitted he was "very disappointed in the people because I thought we did a pretty good job over the past three years."

He said the result, whether the numbers are overturned or not, tells him that "evidently there is 600 people who don't want me in as reeve anymore."

"It's a slap in the face, but in politics, that's the way it goes sometimes."

Kenyon favors reduced counties

Kenyon council saw a referendum on the pay rates issue as a means of allowing an increase in representatives' pay, without the always-difficult process of councillors voting themselves a pay raise directly.

Kenyon council did not vote itself any increase in the last session.

There was no option in the pay rates referendum Monday other than raising rates or leaving them as they are.

But an election officer disclosed that there was at least one spoiled ballot on which a voter had written, "No, pay rates should be lower!"

"very excited and very proud."

"I guess it paid off. It was worth it," she said of all the pavement pounding and knocking on doors.

She said it was the door-to-door campaign and her husband's reception at the candidates debate that convinced her an election win was within grasp.

"It was so encouraging. The response was so overwhelming, you couldn't help but feel good about it."

New reeve, Richer, told town residents that by their vote, they have allowed her to continue working for the betterment of the town.

"Now I promise my honesty, commitment, partnership and leadership. And I will work hard for all of you."

"Open all the doors and windows and let the fresh air of change blow in," she said to the cheers of the crowd.

"We'll do it and we'll do it all together."

New deputy reeve, Hope, said the voters have given him a mandate and he will ensure over the next three years that it will be carried out.

"You have spoken loud and clear for change. I promise your voices will be heard."

The victims of the sweep, Touchette, Massie and Joly, all said they believed they had served the town well, but gracefully accepted the will of the voters.

"You made a decision. I have to abide by that," said a contemplative Massie. "I accept the verdict."

Touchette said he can still drive around and see "a little bit of J.P. in the town," whether it be in the industrial park or a new subdivision.

"I worked hard, with all my heart for Alexandria," said a surprisingly upbeat Touchette.

He said he will not be going anywhere and will work as hard or harder for the town while in private life.

"And as you know, I'll be watching," he warned the new council.

Joly, in an emotional speech, thanked the town for giving him 17 good years.

It is a change, he said, and added: "It's democracy."

would have said up front, "Pay me $30,000 to do this job'."

MacDonald thanked council members for the work they had done.

"I do believe Charlottenburgh is now a better place to live, and I hope the new council will continue to make it even better."

The rest of council, including Deputy-Reeve Don Kannon, was acclaimed.

Administrator-clerk Marcel Lapierre attributed the fast-paced election returns to the fact that more polling stations had been created this year, and that election officials were instructed to count all the votes for one office first, before moving to the next.

"They really did a super bang-up job," said Lapierre.

Alexandria voters endorse cutting size of town council

Alexandria residents have voted overwhelming to cut the size of Alexandria council.

Town residents voted 1,351 to 752 in favor of cutting council from nine to seven members on Monday. The results of the referendum are binding, Town Clerk Leo Poirier said yesterday.

He said that council must now pass a bylaw to put the reduction into effect.

The cut will come at the expense of two councillor positions, reducing the number of councillors after the 1997 municipal election to four from six.

The planned reduction has been a hot issue at the council table. It's fiercest opponent is veteran Councillor Archie McDougall, who has sworn he will never vote in favor of a council size cut.

Other council members have also indicated recently they are having second thoughts about the reduction.

Abbey new Lancaster reeve

About 63 per cent of villagers vote

By Ron Holla
News correspondent

Long time councillor Janette Abbey is the new reeve of the village of Lancaster, outpolling her rival Roger Menard 256 votes to 166.

"It was a very clean campaign," Abbey said after unofficial results confirmed her victory.

"I feel I have a good team with the councillors who have been elected.

"We feel we should make good progress with the projects before us over the next three years."

Roger Menard said Abbey ran a "better campaign."

"She had more time to campaign and that helped to make the difference. I really want to congratulate her."

Benoit Veilleux placed first among the candidates for council with 241 votes followed by George Baker (233), Bill Kitching (225) and Richard Anderson with 189 votes.

Veilleux said he was most surprised at the number of voters who came out and added he feels placing first has made him very conscious of meeting voter expectations.

"I'm aware of high expectations," he said. "Now the real work begins."

George Baker echoed Veilleux's sentiments. "They've elected us -- now it's up to us to keep up our end of the bargain."

Unsuccessful candidate for council Richard Walker said it was a friendly race.

"It was a friendly dog-eat-dog kind of race. I knew it was going to be tight from the beginning."

Voter turnout at Lancaster Village was relatively high -- 63 per cent, or 422 of 666 voters casting ballots.

Court Report

The following cases were heard by Judge Bruce MacPhee at Ontario Court (Provincial Division) in Alexandria, Nov. 10.

Assault

Alexandria resident Ghislain Beland, 45, pleaded guilty to a March 12 assault..

Judge Bruce MacPhee gave Beland a suspended sentence and put him on 12 months probation directing him to take counselling for alcohol abuse and anger management.

Beland's lawyer reported that the victim and the accused had reconciled and that Beland sought professional help after the assault.

Break and enter

Joel Pilon, 19, of Apple Hill, was remanded for sentencing to March 2, 1995, after pleading guilty to a break and enter charge at Brown House store last March.

Judge MacPhee called for a pre-sentence report on Pilon.

Crown Attorney Guy Simard reported $450 damages to the store door, and $100 worth of video tapes stolen, with no return or restitution made.

Drunk driving

One man was jailed and another man fined in Provincial Court, after both pleaded guilty to driving with higher than the legal limit of 80 milligrams of alcohol in their bloodstreams.

Daniel Lalonde, 35, of Ste. Justine de Newton, Que., was sentenced to 21 days in Cornwall jail, had his license suspended for two years, and prohibited from drinking alcohol for two years by Judge Bruce MacPhee, after an accident in May. The jail sentence will be served on weekends.

Police found Lalonde's car on its roof in the ditch on Con. 9 of Lancaster Township, May 19. An ambulance took Lalonde to hospital in Cornwall to treat his injuries, where his blood tested 252 milligrams of alcohol, three times the legal alcohol limit of 80.

Bainsville resident Viesturs Gioba, 60, was fined $800 and had his license suspended for two years by Judge MacPhee.

Police found Viesturs car run off into the ditch of the South Service Road, near Lancaster July 10. He registered 181, and 192, milligrams of alcohol in breath tests following the accident, twice the legal limit of 80.

Viesturs' lawyer Patrick Rudden explained that his client was ill: "In an appalling state of health."

Smuggling

Montreal resident Daniel Joannette, 28, was fined $6,007 and $3,254 by Judge Diane Nicholas for smuggling contraband Canadian cigarettes and American spirits into Canada.

The fines are twice the excise tax evaded on each of the items. He was given two years to pay.

Joannette pleaded guilty to violations of the Excise Act after he was picked up June 6, in the Charlottenburgh area, on a tip from a surveillance unit.

OPP officers found his car loaded with boxes of cigarettes and liquor covered by a blanket.

Recreational trail vision proceeding

The vision of an extensive recreational trail network within the five counties of Prescott, Russell, Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry was shared by the sponsoring steering committee partners of a master plan and feasibility study.

The partners were South Nation River Conservation Authority, the United Counties Prescott and Russell, the United Counties of Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry, the Ministry of Culture, Tourism and Recreation and the Parks of the St. Lawrence.

On Oct. 12 the Steering Committee for the five counties recreational trail received and approved the final report of the master study.

The appropriate representatives from two groups of United Counties, Past Warden, James Cook of SD&G and in United Counties Prescott and Russell, Michel Lalonde will present the final draft to their councils and ask for adoption of the master plan study.

After councils' adoption, the five Counties Recreation Trail Steering Committee will facilitate the process to structure a working group to be the actual trail management with all interested user groups being invited to a meeting to commence the design of a working agreement, bylaws, constitution, etc.

The development of a master plan for Recreational Trails for the Five Counties area provides a unique opportunity to respond to evolving trends in recreational tourism.

The master plan builds on the scenic beauty, the rich heritage and the variety of rural and settlement patterns that characterize the Five Counties area.

The proposed trail network also builds on the foundation of existing trails in developing an integrated system for various users be it cyclists, snowmobilers, equestrians, cross-country skiers or hikers.

The backbone of the proposed network of 16 (new) trails are the two bicycle trails which follow the St. Lawrence and Ottawa River corridors respectively and the multi-use trail which is aligned with the abandoned rail corridor extending from Ottawa to Cornwall.

These trails have interconnecting linkages to existing trails in Quebec, the northeastern United States and Ontario.

Construction of the balance of interconnecting trails across the counties will set into place a regional framework which encourages both local as well as visitor usage.

The economic impact will be substantial.

The projected usage within five years of 143,000 users will inject benefits of $6.8 million per year not to mention an additional $2.0 million in construction.

This will create job opportunities which are both short and long term.

The greatest impact will be in the service industries that cater to the needs of trail users such as in providing accommodation, food and fuel and equipment sales and services.

The success of the plan depends on its implementation and more particularly establishing a partnership between the public and private sector.

Strong leadership from an umbrella organization is necessary in taking the initial steps to build on the enthusiasm expressed by the public and area municipalities.

The trail management plan requires the establishment of a committee representative of county and area municipal governments, conservation and trail user groups as well as service industries.

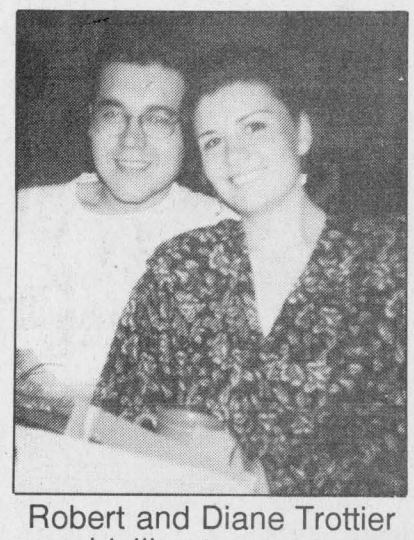
The commitment of this group is a pre-requisite to soliciting funding from all levels of government as well as the private sector.

It is this group that must also set the framework in place for promoting the trail network to visitors and tourists since the largest economic impact will be the injection of fresh dollars into local businesses and services by outsiders.

To maintain a quality product, a further commitment is required in the maintenance and upkeep of the trail network.

This is a responsibility which may be shared by local government, outdoor-minded conservation and community organizations and the private sector, all of which can benefit from the strengthening of the economic base of the five counties.

The conclusion of the Five Counties Trails Study is that an integrated network of trails is economically and physically feasible, is financially realistic if phased in over a period of time and is in the interest of local and county government, the province and the private sector to build and maintain.



Robert and Diane Trottier would like to announce the engagement of their son Yvan to Carole, daughter of André and Aline Bidal. The marriage will take place next summer.

Elections see one new trustee join seven incumbents at the school board

By Brenda-Jane Kerr
News* reporter

School board trustees are also breathing a sigh of relief now that the elections are over.

In Glengarry County, there were five trustee election races launched for both the SDG public and separate school boards and three acclamations.

Among the races were two for SDG separate school board French trustees, the first of which was contested by newcomers Georgette Sauvé and Gerry Lalonde.

Sauvé, North Lancaster, was elected to represent the townships of Lancaster and Lochiel as well as the village of Lancaster and the town of Alexandria, winning over Lalonde.

Sauvé, 60, who believes the government has to be pushed into action, clinched the win with a narrow margin of 14 votes, edging out Lalonde 1,139 votes to 1,125.

The second French trustee race pitted newcomer Denise Theriault against incumbent Nicole Bourgeois who won by a decisive vote.

Bourgeois, 40, a translation student at the University of Ottawa, won the election by a vote of 923 to 843.

Bourgeois will represent the townships of Cornwall, Kenyon, Charlottenburgh and Roxborough as well as the village of Maxville.

On the English side, there were also two races for positions with the SDG public school board.

Newcomer Lloyd Gorling stepped forward to be counted in, but lost the bid to incumbent Art Buckland.

Buckland, returning for his seventh term representing the Township of Charlottenburgh, is a college professor who sees funding as the main issue for school boards.

Buckland took an easy win, with a vote of 831 to 457.

The other English public trustee race was between former trustee Lusia Jasiewicz and incumbent Don Munro.

Munro, 40, came away with nearly a three to one victory, electing him to represent Roxborough Township and the village of Maxville.

Munro, who says programming is the most important school board issue, won the election with a vote of 771 to 268.

The final trustee race was for the SDG public school board French trustee position, representing Glengarry County and parts of Stormont and Dundas Counties.

Incumbent Micheline Ouellette held off challenging newcomer Donald Jones by 54 votes.

Ouellette, who said she wants to improve communication at the school board level, will take the trustee's chair for her third term.

Ouellette won the seat with 160 votes over Jones' 106 votes.

The final three English trustee positions on both SDG public and separate school boards were filled by acclamation.

Incumbent Sam McLeod was acclaimed as English trustee for the SDG public school board representing Alexandria, the village of Lancaster and the townships of Lancaster, Kenyon and Lochiel.

Also acclaimed were incumbents Denis Sabourin and Ron Eamer who will return to the table as English trustees.

Sabourin will represent the townships of Cornwall and Roxborough, as well as the village of Maxville and the town of Alexandria.

And Eamer is the trustee for the townships of Lancaster, Charlottenburgh, Kenyon and Lochiel as well as the village of Lancaster.

Group debunking myth

How much do you really know about schizophrenia? You're not sure, right? But you have heard that it has something to do with split personality, or that it's an illness caused by poor family upbringing.

These are both popular myths but don't feel too bad if you believed them. Lots of people do. Too many, says Ontario Friends of Schizophrenics.

"For some reason," says Stella Giroux, the group's Cornwall Chapter president, "it's very difficult to dispel the misconceptions surrounding schizophrenia. Probably because it's such an ugly illness people would rather accept what they hear on movies like, One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest or Sybil rather than examine the illness closely to find the truth."

That's precisely why Ontario Friends of Schizophrenics has declared October Schizophrenia Awareness Month.

"We hope to achieve compassion through understanding," says Giroux. "This is a chance for us to educate people about the reality of schizophrenia and its victims."

Kenyon Township

Council Briefs

The following are among the items discussed by Kenyon Township Council at a meeting Oct. 25.

Severance

Kenyon council did not object to a severance application from Gerald Paradis, severing 4.8 acres from lot 2, Con. 1, to be used as an addition to a neighboring parcel of land. The land is a potential area for future subdivision, Building Officer Ken Robbers explained.

Reeve's contest not so much of a race

Williamstown
by Sue Harrington
347-2279

If you blinked you might have missed it. The race for reeve was over almost before it had begun and some people who turned up at the Charlottenburgh Recreation Centre all set for an evening of fun on Monday, arrived too late.

Without a race for council, and with well-known wizards counting the ballots, the election process sped to its conclusion almost faster than a worker takes for a coffee break!

In fact there was nearly a moment of panic when it became evident that Leslie O'Shaughnessy was going to be the new reeve and he was nowhere to be found. Sort of the baby's-about-to-be-born-where's-the-doctor scenario.

As it turned out, Les and his wife, Karen, were taking the long and scenic route to the arena, via Finney's Bridge, the same route, in fact, which they took three years ago when Les was elected deputy-reeve. Their lucky route!

Caught in the instant-after by this political hound-dog, Les was quite literally speechless about his victory. But he soon recovered, and said the right things, and he and his entourage left for a celebration party at the Edgewater Inn.

Meanwhile, back at the arena, people filtered home, wondering what had happened to the fizz in the political fizz.

A huge chart at the arena was posted for all to see. An interesting chart. It named all the "poles" in the municipality; all 25 "poles" in fact. That's a lot of poles. Should be a good year for the McKays....

Brent Daigle chuckled at the error.

Defeated candidate for reeve, George Shoniker, was gracious about his loss. A lot more gracious than a lot of losing reeves have been in the past. A lot more gracious than the hound-dog would have been if she had been defeated!

George almost seemed relieved that he would now have a lot more time to spend with his wife and sons.

The man behind the humane approach to counting the ballots quickly (each poll reporting in the totals for reeve before starting the school trustees count) was Marcel Lapierre.

Marcel said the candidates had been "on an emotional roller-coaster," and it wasn't fair to prolong their suspense.

Not that re-elected Public School Board Trustee (do I really have to qualify it further?) Art Buckland, would be driven mad by any unnecessary delays. Art would no doubt find something to amuse him during the wait. Something like "pole" for instance.

Congratulations to all our Charlottenburgh candidates, whether successful or not, on having the gumption to run. It's not an easy task!

There's a new book in Glengarry these days. A very attractive, very professional-looking book which was "launched" at the Nor'Westers and Loyalist Museum on Saturday.

"Launched" is an appropriate term for "The Lochaber Emigrants to Glengarry," featuring as it does on its cover a reproduction of a painting by Stuart McCormick of the three ships which brought the emigrants from Scotland. (On second thought, given the present slang meaning of "launch," maybe not!)

According to one of the contributors to the book, David Anderson, approximately 160 people attended the event, which included performances by the Williamstown Public School and adult Gaelic Choirs.

Big name historians were there in profusion, along with interested locals such as Annette MacDonald and Maynard Gertler, as presentations were made and announcements given.

Somehow I have the feeling that this event will be covered in exquisite detail in another column in The News. If not, look for more here next week.

One interesting announcement which I cannot let slide, however, is that publisher, Barry Penhale, has negotiated with relatives of Dorothy Dumbrille's to come out with a new edition of her popular books, "Braggart in my step," and "Up and down the Glens." Royalties will go to the Glengarry Historical Society and the Glengarry Highland Society.

A fellow who had something to do with me, (great-great-great grandfather) Alexander MacMillan (Callich) and his wife, Marjorie Cameron, came to Canada on one of those three ships, and I would have been interested in attending the launching, had it not been for a one-of-a-kind wedding which drew me to Kingston on the weekend.

Tiffany Stones, daughter of Barbara and David Stones of Williamstown was married in a quiet ceremony on Saturday to Benjamin Shaw whom she met several years ago when they were both students at McGill.

Not for Tiffany the ten foot veil of tulle illusion, or the satin gown decorated with a million tiny seed pearls. Tiffany chose instead, a paisley silk shift in autumn tones, an Indian raw silk jacket and topped off her outfit with a black bowler hat, looking for all the world as though she had stepped straight off the cover of a fashion magazine.

Following the ceremony, guests, some of them running to catch it, boarded a ferry for a trip over to Wolfe Island, where they sat down to dinner at the General Wolfe Hotel. Then it was back to Kingston for some lively entertainment at the Wellington.

And where will the newly-weds reside? Well, Ben will be remaining in Kingston where he is working on a doctorate in Chemical Engineering at Queen's University, while Tiffany heads back to Montreal where she is employed in her father's business.

Congratulations to the bride and groom from us all!

Hunting season ended this past weekend, and all over Williamstown hunters are telling their annual tales. Meanwhile their wives cringe. The following item was submitted to me by one such wife, who hopes the message will get through. She has titled this, "A Hunter's Wife's Secret Prayer."

The alarm-clock sounds....it's 4 a.m. What is going on? I usually set it for 6 a.m.....it's so dark....now I remember -- it's the first day of deer hunting season.

My husband has jumped out of bed like a shot. He tells me to go back to sleep, as he stumbles over the dog, opens and shuts drawers, looking for his long johns. He accuses me of moving them and I tell him to turn on the light to find them.

Then he is off to the kitchen where he picks up his gear and loads it into his truck. Meanwhile the high-pitched whistle of the kettle seems to go on forever! Finally he tip-toes back into the bedroom with his boots on, and kisses me goodbye, while I tell him to be careful.

I lie in bed, wide awake, wondering what on earth it is that men enjoy so much about hunting. as the thoughts of helpless animals running for their lives race through my head, I worry about does being shot illegally in the heat of the hunt, fawns hopelessly looking for their mothers and countless numbers of wounded animals left behind to die slow deaths....and I say a silent prayer for the deer.

Santa's parade on Dec. 11

Martintown
by Lillian Rouleau

The Martintown Fire Department has set the date of Dec. 11 for their annual Santa Claus Parade. The floats will assemble and leave from the Laidlaw bus garage at 1 p.m., and will follow the usual route to end at the fire hall, where Santa will hand out treats to the children and where the trophies will be presented to the best entries.

Anyone wishing to enter a float or be in the parade may do so by contacting Doug Lafave at 528-4094.

Remembrance Day service

The Remembrance Day service was well attended at the Martintown Public School. Grade 7/8 students made presentations on the Background to W.W. II and Canada's Role.

The guest speaker was Archdeacon P. S. Irwin, father of principal Dave Irwin. The choir sang "God Made You and Me" and "The Maple Leaf Forever."

Dave Irwin played the Last Post and the Reveille on the WWI bugle, and the Lament was piped by former Martintown Public school student Rory Buchan.

Memorial wreaths were presented by two students from each class, and Carol Ann Ross presented a family wreath in memory of Marcella and Glenn Lafave and Alwyn Ross.

School trustee Art Buckland had some closing remarks which were followed by the choir and audience singing Shalom. Visitors stayed after the service to socialize and enjoy a delicious light lunch.

Thanks are extended to Penny Stokes for musical accompaniment and to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church for flags.

School news

A dental hygienist with the health unit will be at the school to do dental screening for Grades Senior Kindergarten, 2, 4, 6 and 8 on Thursday, Nov. 17 in the morning.

Report cards went home with students Tuesday and interviews with parents and teachers will be held Thursday afternoon and evening and Friday morning, by appointment.

There will be no school Friday, and classes will resume Monday, Nov. 21 at 9 a.m. Hot dogs will be served on Thursday, Nov. 17.

Bus cancellations

A notice has been sent with students from both school boards concerning the cancellation of transportation to school because of bad weather or poor road conditions.

When transportation is cancelled, the schools will remain open for students and staff. Announcements will be broadcast starting at 7 a.m. on CJSS, CFLG and CFRA. If transportation is cancelled in the morning, afternoon transportation will not operate.

If roads become blocked during the day, or are judged to be risky, rather than closing school early, students will be kept at school until parents come to pick them up or transportation becomes safe once again.

Bus drivers have been instructed not to stop in fog patches where visibility is significantly reduced. In this instance, children will not be picked up in foggy areas, to avoid the risk of other motorists colliding with stopped vehicles or students crossing the road. It is recommended that children not wait for the bus in such fog but be instructed by their parents to return home.

Beavers registration

Registration was a success on Nov. 10, with some 10 boys signing

General secretary of Montreal district bible society visits area

St. Elmo
by W. MacKinnon
527-2348

Sympathy is expressed to Helen of Cornwall and Glen of Brampton, Ont., in the loss by death of their mother Mrs. Margaret Renfrew of Cornwall, and to her grandchildren.

Margaret (MacPherson) Renfrew's parental home was on a farm at Tayside. She and her husband the late Bert Renfrew and their children lived west of St. Elmo in Roxborough Township for some years before making their family home in Cornwall.

The Rev. Harry Vibe, interim General Secretary for the Montreal District of the Canadian Bible Society was in Maxville on Sunday, Nov. 6 and gave messages on his work at the morning worship services in the Anglican, United and Presbyterian Churches.

On Sunday at 6 p.m. interested supporters of the Canadian Bible Society met for a pot luck supper at the United Church where they heard a message by Mr. Vibe accompanied by picture slides of his visit to parts of the Soviet Union, Moscow and area, Kiev and area in the Ukraine and the city of Petrograd. Mr. Vibe said it was very encouraging to meet with Christian believers as they gathered together to worship God in well filled churches of the different denominations of the Christian church: Mennonite, Baptist, Eastern Orthodox, Reform and Roman Catholic.

Among experiences in fellowship with these Christians which deeply impressed him were, the enthusiastic rejoicing of those people in their new freedom to worship God openly, and their desire to have the message of the Bible in their own language. Very much in evidence also was their hope for the mission of the church in their own country and in the world, and their spirit of thanksgiving to God for the blessing of freedom after many years without it.

The Canadian Bible Society helps to provide Bibles or portions of them in 187 countries of the world and in more than 2,000 languages. Christian missionary workers appreciate that the Canadian Bible Society helps to make available to them the message of the Bible in the language of the people where they are serving and regardless of the branch of the Christian church to which they belong.

Program supports families caring for Alzheimer patients

By Brenda-Jane Kerr
News* reporter

Organizers describe it as the second best place to home and somewhere to visit with community family members once a week.

That second home is the new Adult Day Support Program being offered at Glengarry Memorial Hospital for persons with Alzheimer disease or other dementias.

"People can come to the centre and we have a structured program," of activities for clients, while providing home care givers some respite time, said Program Supervisor Lynn Siminoski.

The adult support program is being offered every Thursday from 9:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. and is a non-clinical day of fitness, arts and crafts, movies, talking and excursions.

"The whole essence of the program is based on adult-like activities," said Cathy Millar, program activities co-ordinator.

The idea is to give the clients the opportunity to be active in a social atmosphere and give their at-home care givers a needed break.

"They can send their loved ones without worrying about them," said Siminoski.

She added the program was created to give support to families who want to keep their loved ones at home, rather than enter them into institutions.

Siminoski said families giving care to someone with Alzheimer disease or dementia at home are often reluctant to accept help because they feel it's a sign of weakness.

"Sometimes is rural communities the problem stays in the home and we're trying to break that," said Siminoski.

She said she hopes to teach families that taking advantage of programs such as the Adult Day Support Program can add "quality of life for their loved one and themselves."

The quality comes when both the family and the loved one has the opportunity to pursue some outside interests, said Siminoski.

June Newman of Glen Robertson said she found her day of making jewelry, getting some help with the rug-hooking project she brought with her and talking, enjoyable.

"I've liked everything I've done so far," said Newman, the first client of the program.

She said she will return and looks forward to meeting others who will be joining the group.

One or two new clients per week will be joining Newman over the next few weeks until the program reaches the maximum of eight people.

Funded by the Ministry of Health, the program is organized by Siminoski and Millar who are registered nurses working for the Alzheimer Society of Cornwall and District.

Arrangements to enter new clients can be made by calling 932-4914 to set up an in-home assessment appointment.

Federated Women's Institute convention held at Greely

On Oct. 18 the 79th annual convention of the Eastern Ontario Women's Institute was held at the Greely Community Centre at Greely. The theme for the meeting was "Year of the family."

The meeting opened with the Ode accompanied on the keyboard by Roma MacMillan. Greenly Mayor Albert Bowers welcomed the meeting to Greely. Area President Mrs. Donald MacLeod of Cobden presided. The second half of the morning session was presided over by first vice-president Mrs. Erma Bennett of Kemptville.

It was announced that five branches had disbanded, but this was offset by many new members.

In 1979 the Federated Women's Institute of Canada will celebrate the 100th anniversary of the founding of the W.I. On Wednesday, June 14/95 the Centennial kickoff will take place at Milton, Ont., with a barbecue.

Thank you letters were received from Peggy Knapp, FWIC and Margaret Munro, FWIO for entertaining Associated Country Women of the World President Valerie Fisher while visiting Eastern Ontario, during the summer of '93. Mrs. Fisher visited Canada from her home in Australia. As president of ACWW she speaks for eight million women around the world. While in Ontario she sat at the table where the constitution of the world's first Women's Institute was signed.

Donna Russett, provincial president, asked that donations to the office fund not be compared, as they vary according to population

Dollar store opening next Wednesday

Business Beat

By Joe Banks, 525-2020

The opening of Alexandria's first dollar store, located in the former Stedman's building, will open its doors in time for the Christmas shopping season next Wednesday, Nov. 23.

Le Monde de Dollar, located at 26 Main Street North, Alexandria, will be officially opened at 9 a.m. on that day by the company's purchasing director B.R. Grover and the town's mayor.

The opening will mark a new life for the former Stedman's building, which has been closed for over two years. Local business leaders are hailing the purchase as good news for the business core, which has been hit with business closures and vacant stores over the past few years.

Everyone is welcome to attend the opening, and to partake in seeing the many specials the business has to offer.

Chamber parade scheduled

For the third year in a row, the Alexandria and District Chamber of Commerce is planning an evening caroling parade and festivities centered on the lighting of the town Christmas tree in Mill Square the evening of Friday, Dec. 2.

The event has seen hundreds of children and adults come out to kick off the Christmas season, enjoy some free candy, hot beverages, music and of course, to meet Santa. Over 20 groups, agencies, companies, individuals and organizations have either volunteered time, or treats toward the evening.

An addition to the event this year will be a hayride along a four km. route through various streets in town in order to provide transportation to as many people as possible who may wish to join in. A wagon train will make two complete trips, along the same route, in order that people who get on at any one point can also be assured of getting home.

Further details will be made available in the weeks to come.

In the meantime, the chamber is looking for help to make the evening a success. Anyone who could make available the use of a haywagon for the evening is asked to contact Joe Banks, co-secretary at the chamber, at the News office at 525-2020.

Sewing to success

This area has long been known for its expertise in textile manufacturing and finishing. And a small business located on Sabourin Road near Breadalbane in Lochiel Township is determined to continue that tradition.

Business is brisk in the shop of Heirloom Collection, a high-quality children's clothing company, owned and operated by Michele St. Amour. Recently, the at-home industry introduced its "Victorian", "Michele" and "Heirloom" lines of clothing. The Heirloom line is the fledgling firm's sports line available from size 2 to adult. Its colorful design incorporates graphic motifs of 13 international endangered species of animals.

But what stands the manufacturer apart is its very high quality and the fact that it was named Prescott-Russell Entrepreneur of the Year last year, mostly as a result of its disabled clothing project.

Michele says the clothing has been more than two years in the design stage, with help from government funding, and is ready for manufacture and marketing. The project has caught the attention of the media. Michele's company was featured in "Eye on Ottawa", the CJOH-TV's current affairs show.

Heirloom Collection also boasts a growing account list of four to 500 accounts, and employs about four part-time support staff, in addition to Michele who says she routinely puts in 60-hour weeks.

The clothing, she said, is mostly marketed to small boutiques that specialize in premium-quality clothing. Four agencies are selling the company's wares across Canada and the U.S.

Michele says she developed her self-taught expertise 10 years ago as she was providing sewing and knitting services. She saw a need for high-quality kids clothing then.

Michele is married to husband Gilles and has two children, Sasha, 11 and Nicholas, 9.

Glengarry goes international

A graduate of Glengarry District High School and the company he works for — Glengarry Biotech — is going international.

The company, situated on the Glengarry side of Boundary Road near Cornwall, has been awarded by Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada a contract to set up a dairy herd testing laboratory in Seidlce, Poland, a small city just east of Warsaw.

As a result, Rufina MacKinnon, a graduate of GDHS and McGill University, and Martintown resident Martyn Would, will spend several weeks there training lab personnel in the determination of bacteria levels and the presence of antibiotics in milk. They'll also be supervising the installation of automated equipment for analyzing protein, fat and lactose in raw milk.

The international market is not new to Glengarry Biotech, but exporting is. The company was founded five years ago to import and distribute food safety products in Canada.

"We specialize in the acquisition and distribution of microbiological and biochemical tests related to food safety and food allergies," explained president Robin Flockton. It supplies tests for antibiotic and or sulfa drug residues in milk, meat, fish, eggs and honey, colostrum levels in milk, and the presence of gluten in various foods. The tests are available to farmers, food processors, researchers and educational institutions.

"In short, our products assist the agri-food industry to respond to consumer demands and government regulations for food safety testing," he said in a recent release.

The high-tech manufacturing and distribution company was the only North American firm to exhibit at the quadrennial International Dairy Federation Congress in Melborne, Australia in September. There, it introduced two "niche market" products, shelf-stable standards, used for milk analyzers that are manufactured at its Cornwall plant.

It has distributors of the product in the United Kingdom, Ireland and the United States, giving the company the opportunity to negotiate distribution arrangements for Australia and Eastern Europe.

Glens continue home ice victory, as streak extends

Pair of wins leaves record at 11-3-0

Alexandria Glens goalie, Pascal Gasse, makes a save, while Marc Menard (4) and Hamish Cunning(2) try to get Hawk's player out of the crease. The Glens won the game 7-1 on Sunday night.

By Wendi Lawson

The Glens are back on the winning streak.

The Alexandria Glens won a pair of games in the Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League.

On Friday night in Morrisburg, Carl Bougie's hat trick performance in the third period helped the Glens double the Leo's 4-2.

Jason Hall added two goals and two assists for a four point night.

Derek Durocher finished off the scoring with one goal.

Bougie and Carl Hehn also added two assists on the night.

Hall and Bougie contributed 14 points in the two weekend games giving them top spots in scoring in the St.Lawrence division.

The Glens were tied 1-1 after 20 minutes of play and were losing 3-2 after 40 minutes when 40 seconds after the Glens tied it up at two, a Glens player made a mistake causing the Lions to step in and get the go ahead goal.

The Glens came out flying in the third period to bounce back three goals.

Coach Robert Boisvenue thinks maybe it was the practise on Wednesday night that the Glens saw victory on Friday night.

"I made the them skate 90 minutes non-stop. I really made them work hard. Richard D'oust, made a comment in the dressing room between the second and third period. He said to the guys, either we skate for 20 minutes in the third period or we skate for another 90 minutes on Wednesday night at practise. It worked ," said Boisvenue.

Goaltending by Kevin Lemire was also a key factor for the first place Glens.

"Kevin responded very well. Morrisburg didn't even have a chance in the thrid period. We came out flying and played really well. We deserved that win," added Boisvenue.

Glens Still Perfect At Home

On Sunday night at the Billy Gebbie Arena, the Glens won their 7th straight home game by hammering the Winchester Hawks 7-1.

After 20 minutes of play, neither the Glens nor the Hawks were on the scoreboard.

"We played a good defensive period. Both teams had their chances."

Early in the second period, Glen's netminder, Pascal Gasse, got hurt causing Kevin Lemire to continue the hard-hitting game between the pipes.

"Pascal was having a very good game and when he got hurt I was really worried because we had to use Kevin who was cold on the bench. Kevin responded really well as he usually does."

Glens finally got on the scoreboard when Carl Bougie slipped a goal past Hawk's goalie Dale Wilson.

Bougie had one other goal and added two assists for a four point night.

Richard Hutt, Jason Muree, Jason Hall, Chancey Lajoie and Derek Durocher each tallied once for the Glens.

Both Hall and Nygel Pelletier added two assists.

Chris Napier connected for the Hawks lone goal.

Again the Glens came out flying in the third period getting four goals.

The Alexandria coach thought they (Glens) might get caught when the Hawks started to play hard and rough.

"When we're ahead by a lot, we knew they (Hawks) would come out strong and play rough. The guys were very well disiplined and stuck to hockey. They didn't get caught fighting. They just walked away," said Boisvenue.

Boisvenue gives a lot of credit to the solid defence played by the Glens.

"The defence played extremely well. They did what they had to do."

He also put strong emphasis on Glens captain, Carl Bougie.

"Carl deserves a lot of credit. He got nine points in the last two games. Carl played the way he should play," added Boisvenue.

The Glens record now stands at 11-3, good for first place with 22 points over second place Morrisburg Lions.

Stars rally in win over Warriors

The Stars rallied back late in the second half to defeat first place Mother Vanelli's Warriors 4-3 in the Char-Lan Indoor Soccer League in Williamstown on Monday.

The Warriars got away an early lead in a very physical game.

The Warriors failed to take advantage when cautions were given to Star's players Robbie Starkauskas and Alain Decoste and were ejected in the first half.

Brian Cameron scored two goals for the Stars while single tallies were made by Tony Boos and Steve Cameron.

Scorers for the Warriors were Jamie Myers (2) and Dennis Acheson.

The Williamstown Thunder doubled M and D Sports 4-2.

Jason Struthers lead Thunder with two goals.

Singles were added by Brian Deschamps and Ben Pye.

Rudi Payer Sport bombed the Nomads 9-2 on Monday night.

Travis Giroux lead all scorers with five goals.

A St.Joseph player blocks the spike of a Glengarry junior volleyball player. The Gaels lost to the Panthers in SD&G junior boys' volleyball on Friday.

St. Joe's Panthers shock Gaels in final

The Glengarry boy's volleyball team were stunned after the St.Joseph's Panthers upset them in Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry junior boy's AA volleyball championship on Friday.

The Panthers shocked the Gaels after winning the best three matches out of five. The Gaels were able to win the second game 15-10 but could not rally back losing 15-11, 15-13 and 15-2.

Glengarry coach Marc Sauve is not quite sure of what happened to his team but he knows that he is very disappointed.

"We've never had a season that great before(9-0) and after winning all those games and losing in the final, it's very disappointing." said Sauve

Sauve thinks his team was very discouraged.

"In game four, I could see that the guys were disappointed in themselves not the team as a whole. They never yelled or got discouraged with their teamates on the floor."

Sauve also thinks that the Panthers were surprised that they defeated the Gaels.

"I think St.Joe's were surprised themselves that they beat us after we had a perfect regular season," added Sauve.

The season for the Gaels was the best season in junior volleyball that Glengarry District High School ever had in 15 years.

"We were looking at the championship trophy and we (Gaels) didn't see Glengarry on it anywhere, so we thought it might be nice to see the Gaels for 1994," said Sauve.

Sauve also thinks that if the Gaels would have played the final on Tuesday they might have won.

"We played amazing against La Citadelle in the semi-final on Tuesday. We were spiking the ball really well. We had the momentum. Only a couple of boys' could do anything in the final. We just couldn't put it together. We had a good year and we have nothing to be ashamed of."

A lot of the members are graduating from the junior team to the senior team to reinforce the weak senior team that only won one game this year.

"The junior team should do well next year since two strong midget teams are moving up. We will re-group and try again next year," Sauve added.

Rebels win doubleheader, sweep series against Kemptville

Carter's team looking to turn things around with 4-10-0

By Wendi Lawson

The Char-Lan Rebels won a pair of games over the weekend in Williamstown Saturday night to increase their record to 4-10-0 in the Eastern Ontario Junior B Hockey League action.

Saturday night the Rebels and the Kemptville 73's had to finish the last 12 minutes of a game which was called on October 6th due to a power failure. The Rebels were leading 9-5 with 12 minutes left. The Rebels ended up winning 11-7.

Robert Curran contributed a hat trick performance, while Brent Lauzon and Dave Campbell tallied twice.

Singles were added by Pierre Lauzon, Jamie Herrington, Terry O'Farrell and Kent MacDonell.

Terry O'Farrell added four assists, while brother Kevin O'Farrell and Pierre Rozon added three each.

Overall, coach Jeff Carter thinks his roster played very well.

"We played really good hockey. We played a good defensive game. The guys played well."

The Rebel's were only allowed to play with the players that were playing on October the 6th when the power outage occured.

The Rebel's are turning things around as they defeated the 73's 7-3 in the regular scheduled game on Saturday and are only six points behind the 73's.

Carter thinks his roster is coming back slowly and can get further in the league.

"We are only six points behind the pack. There is a lot of hockey left so we aren't about to lie down or settle down," said Carter.

Rebel's used former player Marc Bellemare who got four goals and added an assist.

"Marc Bellemare was off for the weekend so I decided to use him. Why not when he is the leading scorer in the Central Junior A League," said Carter.

Robert Curran, Ken MacLeod and D.J.Zaluski added singles.

General Manager Randy Larocque is fully aware of the importance of the last two games.

"It was nice to get those four points. It would have been nice to gain six points this weekend but we will settle for four," said Larocque.

Char-Lan Rebels stand around while a Kemptville player was being aided when he went head first into the boards. Char-Lan defeated the Kemptville 73's in a doubleheader.

The Rebels are looking to turn things around.

Coach Jeff Carter has signed new player Matt Reid, a former USA National under 16 team player.

"Matt should help us get things going for us. When his schedule doesn't conflict with ours, we should see him out at the games.

He should play about 10 to 15 games with us and hopefully we can turn things around," added Carter.

Carter is making a lot of new changes to the club including the signing of two new players this week.

Hawks beat Rebs

On Friday night in Winchester, the Rebels lost to the Hawk's 9-5.

Leading 4-2, the Rebels played shorthanded for nine minutes in the third when Melvin Pyke was thrown out of the game for fighting and was given three minor penalties at the 4:38 mark while Hawk's player Chris Ivany received only a roughing minor.

Carter thinks the Rebels shoud have gained the two points instead of Winchester.

"We should have won on Friday night. The refereeing was bad causing the Rebel's to be shorthanded for nine minutes for no reason. There was the intent to fight by both players and nothing really happened. In the end, the referee gave our man a game misconduct and the Hawk's player two minutes. It would of been an easy two points," said Carter.

The Hawk's took advantage of the powerplay and scored four goals.

Despite the loss, a solid performance was made by Terry O'Farrell, collecting two goals.

Kent McDonell, Paul Rozon and Pyke added singles.

Carter added that next weekends games are an important factor in the league standings.

"Next weekend is a big weekend for us. If we can beat the first and second place teams, we will have a good chance at making a comeback," Carter said.

Rebel Yells: Rebel's Ken MacLeod, Paul Rozon, Matt Reid, Dan Carriere, Tim Corput, and Lyle Sproule all missed the 12 minute remainder against the 73's due to not playing on the 6th of October... St.Hubert offensive and defensive players of the game on Saturday were Marc Bellemare and Dan Carriere. The Chumps Road Warrior on Friday night was Terry O'Farrell...The Rebs host first place Alexandria Glens on Saturday night and will pay a visit to Morrisburg on Sunday.

Cadets: Something different for young people

Young people are afforded the opportunity to learn to fly while gaining leadership skills

By Brenda-Jane Kerr
News* reporter

An often-heard complaint in rural areas is that there is not enough for young people to do.

As the Lancaster Air Cadets squadron begins its recruitment drive, they promise a lot of activities for the young.

"It really gets you involved," said Warrant Officer Laurie Baker, 17, in an interview on Sunday.

"They teach you a lot but at the same time you have fun learning."

"There are lots of opportunities," said Brian Baker, Flight Sergeant, 15 at the Lancaster Legion on Sunday.

"You can choose whatever you're interested in and just follow that."

Sponsored by the Lancaster Legion, the local Air Cadets offer youths between the ages of 12 and 18 years, training in public speaking, first aid, outdoor survival, gliding and flying.

Aside from training, the cadets can also take part in planned activities including summer camps, sporting competitions and tours that often include other squadrons from across Ontario.

The cadets also offer two-week summer courses for survival skills, band and swimming instructors, air frame technology, air studies and power engine courses.

(LtoR) Flight Sergeant Brian Baker, Warrant Offier Lauire Baker and their commanding officer Captain Don Kannon poise on the steps of the Lancaster Legion which sponsors the local cadets squadron.

But one of the main attractions to the Air Cadets is the opportunity to learn to fly without cost.

By the time a person is ready to leave the cadets at age 19, they may have obtained their pilot's license which would cost about $6,000 to obtain privately.

"I'm going to get my glider's and pilot's licence through the cadets and then go on to some sort of military-type service," said Brian.

His sister Laurie added, "It's not just flying, it's there to teach you citizenship and leadership."

The two are part of the teaching class of officers and are now in command, responsible for teaching the younger cadets.

The cadets move up through four levels during their service.

In the first level, the basic training, much of the teaching is marching drills.

Standard first aid is taught during the second level, followed by emergency first aid in level three.

At the final level, the cadets work on public speaking and begin teaching the lower levels. They also begin touring to schools and speaking to other young people as part of the recruitment drive.

The duo agrees that a variety of interests can be served through the cadets.

"We urge people to come down on Wednesday night and see," said Brian, "but that's just a quarter of what we do."

Young people aged 12 to 18 are welcome to attend one of the weekly cadet meetings at the Lancaster Legion between 7 p.m. and 9 p.m.

Village of Maxville

Council Briefs

The present council met for its last regular meeting on Nov. 8 with Councillor Allen Douglas absent, with regrets. Three members of the in-coming council were present. The following are items of business transacted.

Fox Hill Subdivision

The village had agreed to annex lots on the circle at the east end of this development from Kenyon.

However, the developer, Gordon Campbell, has reconsidered the agreement made earlier and now does not wish to pay for the annexation costs and for street lighting.

Council recommended that the in-coming council seek to enter into an agreement with Mr. Campbell.

Recycling grant

For the curbside pickup of recyclable wastes, the village will receive $4,667 from the Ministry of the Environment and Energy to cover the year April , 1994 to March 31, 1995.

Infrastructure program money

Stephen Titus, manager and sports director of the sports complex was present to plan for the projects which have been given approval.

A sign at the corner of Main and Fair Streets is to be installed with the local costs shared by the complex, Kenyon Agricultural Society, Glengarry Highland Games and the Glengarry Sports Hall of Fame.

Preliminary work for the tennis court and basketball court will be started this fall.

The front entrance will be completely renovated while final decisions for the new washrooms and kitchen will be left until next spring or summer.

Municipal water supply

When the preliminary water supply study is given approval, it will be followed by a vote by all village property owners who will have to give a majority approval for the project to proceed.

Hydro rates reduction

Since Ontario Hydro has not increased its rate to the Hydro Commission and since the financial situation of the local comission is very satisfactory, the resolution was passed that the rate charged to consumers would be reduced by 0.5 per cent for the 1995 year.

Women's convention in Greely and economic capabilities.

Peggy Knapp is running for ACWW president and Margaret Munro for secretary-treasurer at the convention in New Zealand. They hope to bring the ACWW convention to Ontario in 2001.

Mary Inglis reported on the resolutions, saying three were sustained at provincial level. She never realized how important the position was -- she received a personal reply from the Minister of Finance and a bill was passed in Parliament to change the Library Act.

The education committee has been set up. The poetry committee reported $8,000 has been passed into area funds. A second book will come out in the fall of '95. It will carry the new centennial logo and two per cent will go to the centennial project. There will be 3,000 copies printed.

ASK THE CHIROPRACTOR

Q. Can chiropractic care help bursitis?

A. Many cases of bursitis, inflammation of the bursa, a sac containing synovial fluid, which acts as a lubricant are helped in chiropractic offices. As there may be several causes of this condition the treatment may differ in various cases. A blow to, or fall on the shoulder, may be a direct cause, but often a forgotten and minor neck injury can precipitate the condition.

Lochiel Township

Council Briefs

The following items were discussed by Lochiel Township council at the monthly meeting Nov.8, at the township hall.

Severances for developers

Zoning watchdog Eric Covington vowed to appeal a triple severance application at Lochiel council from a group of local developers because, "they are not following the intent of the township's Official Plan."

Lochiel council decided not to object to the three severance applications from developers Scott and Alan DaPrato and John Clingen, creating five lots on property at Eigg Road, and Highway 34.

"They're speculators out to maximize profits by using a trick of geometry to manipulate the zoning bylaws," Covington warned council.

Covington told The News he would appeal the severances at (United Counties) Land Division level.

The proposed building lots front on Eigg Road, in an area designated as waste disposal. Zoning Administrator Dorothy Irvine explained the designation is outdated because only a corner of the property was used as a dump "many years ago."

Truck delayed

Lochiel council voted to spend $1,000 on tires and brakes to make an old roads department truck last another year, after opening tender bids for a new half-ton truck from local auto dealers in the $22,000 range.

"I'd rather have $20,000 in the bank drawing interest and fix up the old truck," Councillor Armand Paquette said.

"If we blow a motor on a snowplow this winter we'll need that $20,000."

Paquette suggested leasing the next truck instead of buying.

River Road lights

Ten residents of River Road asked Lochiel council to share the cost of installing two street lights estimated at $500 each.

Council authorized cost estimates for the job be brought back to the next council meeting for final decision.

Rust control

A Hawkesbury rust control centre estimated $600 to oil frames of three Lochiel Roads department trucks, cutting down winter salt and snow damage.

Councillor William Hagen suggested oil spraying one truck this winter to see if the rust treatment really works.

If the treatment is effective it could lower costs of sandblasting and repainting roads vehicles each spring.

Severances

Johann and Anneliese Boekhoff applied to sever a retirement lot from their farm on McCormick Road, lot 17, Con. 2. Council raised no objections.

Zoning Administrator Dorothy Irvine explained the Boekhoff's are not selling their farm, usually the reason for retirement lot severances, but setting up a corporation, in which they are part owner.

Lochiel council also did not object to a severance application from Ginette Lefebvre, to divide a vacant field on Main Street in Glen Robertson, into two residential lots.

Fernand Campeau applied for severance of a retirement lot from his farm at Lot 26, Con. 2, Massiedale Sideroad, and for a second severance on the same property for a lot addition. Council did not object to either application.

Meetings/clinic

Public information meetings to discuss setting up village volunteer fire response teams are scheduled by Lochiel council Nov. 17 at Glen Robertson Recreation Centre, and Nov. 23 at Dalkeith Optimist club. Both meetings will start at 7:30 p.m.

Lochiel council will hold a meeting Nov. 24, at 8 p.m. in the township hall to form a property standards committee.

Lochiel council voted to co-sponsor an application with Kenyon council for infrastructure grants to help finance a medical clinic at Glengarry Memorial Hospital.

One disadvantage of writing a weekly column is that at times events outstrip the column's writing. By the time this column is read, the results of election day polling will be known and the race for reeve of Charlottenburgh Township will be decided. However, at the time of this column's writing, voting is still proceeding.

Shoniker leads

George Shoniker continued the trend he established since the first days of Gilles' barbershop poll, taking Glen Walter 56 votes to four for his opponent Leslie O'Shaughnessy.

"People commented they came away from the Nov. 9 all candidates debate with some different ideas," Gilles Bourgon, poll organizer, said.

Bourgon added that the poll's operation raised $75 and this will be donated to the Children's Christmas fund with a cheque presentation scheduled for Nov. 16.

O'Shaughnessy leads

Leslie O'Shaughnessy continued the trend he established since the first days of Kevin Bougie's Mini-Mart poll, taking Summerstown Station 24 votes to two for Shoniker, Debbie Bougie, poll organizer, said.

The final week's vote tally was taken Saturday, Nov. 12 after 4 p.m., but Bougie said people in the Summerstown area were waiting for the actual election day results.

"We'll all know the real polling results by Monday night," she said.

The money raised by the poll's operation will go to cross country ski trail maintenance in the Summerstown Station county forest, Bougie added.

Good turnout

Despite only five races for reeve and school board trustees, more than 100 people came to the candidates debate at the Knights of Columbus hall November 9.

Sponsored by the Glen Walter and Area Chamber of Commerce, the all candidates debate gave an opportunity for all candidates for the five races to present their platforms and then answer questions.

While the four other council positions were filled by acclamation, successful candidates were present at the debate as well.

The lack of an election race disturbed Frank Prevost, acclaimed councillor, but he took the lack of election in stride.

"It would have been good to present one's positions in an election, but I'm viewing my acclamation as an election after six years instead of after three."

Entertainment European night raises funds for CHEO

Maxville
by Gordon Winter
527-2888

Those in attendance had purchased their tickets early because they were expecting to have an excellent meal and social time at the European night last Saturday evening. They were not disappointed.

It was organized by three ladies -- Dora Bill (Swiss), Gertie Auer (Austrian) and Christine Jans (Dutch). The buffet dinner provided the experience of enjoying potato salad, sauerkraut, sausage, and ham along with a variety of desserts and coffee.

The hall was tastefully decorated with wall hangings of dried plant material as were the tables with small arrangements and candles. Some wore traditional costumes of their own countries. As usual Anne and Tony Vander Wielen and Christine and Gerald Jans wore their wooden shoes without missing a beat. Mr. Jans also served as chairman for the evening.

The Edelweiss orchestra kept the dance floor filled. A couple sang several songs in their native tongue and two young men from Switzerland who have been here temporarily entertained the capacity crowd with music played on their Alpine horns.

We thank the three ladies for organizing this event and also thank them for donating the proceeds to CHEO.

In case you don't have it marked down, be reminded of the craft sale this Saturday and Sunday sponsored by another group of our European friends. This is another experience you should not miss.

Marcella Lemberg, St. Catharines, was in the village for a few days last week to visit her aunt, Flora MacIntosh, at the Manor as well as other relatives and friends, roundabout.

Former resident, Doreen Hayman from Brantford, while visiting her numerous relatives and friends, stayed with her sister, Sylvia and Allen Douglas.

Dawn Thomson, Toronto, was the weekend guest of her sister, Carole and John Williams.

Daniel Frei, a student at the Kemptville College of Agricultural Technology, was home with his family for the weekend.

We welcome to the village, Elise Ellis and Keith Forrest who are the new owners of the Lynn and Bruce MacGillivray home on Fair St. We trust the couple will always be happy that they chose our village in which to live.

The sudden death of Charles Proudfoot, a prominent farmer who lived at Fenaghvale, east of Fournier, was a great shock to his friends and relatives in this wide community. To his wife, the former Adeline Colbran of Maxville, his sons, David and Phillip and all the other family members, we extend our sincere sympathy.

There have been several other deaths of people with local connections. To Marjorie MacPherson we extend condolences in the death of her sister-in-law, Margaret Renfrew of Cornwall. Mrs. Renfrew, her husband Bert and children Helen and Glen were former residents of McDonald's Grove.

Warren Smyth, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Smyth, grew up on the farm now owned by the Franklin family, St. Elmo east, and died last week in Ottawa.

The present Snikeris farm east of the village was once the P. P. Christie farm and the home of six sons. One of those sons, Donald MacLeod, "Mac" died recently in Halifax at the age of 85. He is survived by Hugh, Belleville, Duncan, Sutton and Neil, Cornwall, and was predeceased by Peter and John who had taken over the farm.

It is of interest to note that one of John's daughters, Elaine Shields and her husband Jack, are now living in St. Augustine, Que., near Quebec City . A job transfer necessitated the couple's move from Orleans.

A member of one of the village's early families, the former Janet Lang died last Friday in Ottawa. Her father, Allan, had operated a painting business out of the building now occupied by McDonald Electric. Mrs. Thomson-McCloskey is survived by her sister Marion Baker, Ottawa and brother Irwin, U.S.A., and was predeceased by Isobel, Evelyn, Ralph and Winfield.

Also, the former Gertrude McMaster, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan McMaster whose farm is now that of the Crites family, died last week. Mrs. McEwen-MacPherson is survived by her sisters Mary MacKillican in Palmer, Alaska and Isabel in Fredericton.

We compliment Dale Munro and his brother, Ronald, of Alexandria, for their business accumen and expansion of their Munro and Morris Funeral Home Inc. business with the purchase of the McArthur Bros. and MacNeil Funeral Home in Lancaster.

The Glengarry Curling Club here has been chosen as one of those across Canada to host 24 Scottish curlers who are visiting Canada as a Scots' Good Will Curling Group. The visitors will be curling against 24 local curlers this Friday afternoon at 3 p.m. At 6 p.m. dinner will be served followed by entertainment at 8 p.m. This is your invitation to attend this eventful afternoon and evening of curling and socializing with these visitors from Scotland.

The Remembrance Day Service was held in the chapel of the Manor at 2 p.m. last Friday and was organized and conducted by Major Grant MacGillivray. The Rev. Frank Bailey, co-ordinator of pastoral care services at the Manor, assisted. Evelyn McColl was the organist and Carolee MacIntosh, the soloist.

Resident Bella (Mrs. Donald Hughie) McIntosh read the 23rd Psalm and 96-year-old Bill Williamson, a veteran of World War I, recited most capably, In Flanders Fields.

The chapel was filled to capacity with people who well remembered the horrors of World War II and with some who could go back to World War I.

We thank Mr. MacGillivray for assuming the responsibility of organizing this service each year.

The winners in the Lions Club Calendar draw last week were Annette Desforges and Albert Montpetit, Fournier, Claudette Finnerty, Cornwall, Walter Barton, Dunvegan, Lyle McDonell, Alexandria, Alex Titley, Laggan and Louise Quenneville, Moose Creek.

Another "classy" event is coming up when the Kintra Artists Club holds its annual show in the banquet hall of the sports complex on Nov. 26 and 27. For the Saturday, the hours will be from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and on the Sunday from 2 p.m. to 6 p.m.

There will be music by Sym at the keyboard, door prizes, a quilt raffle and a cafe with tea leaf reading by chance and for fun.

The snowsuit fund will benefit from this show which is organized each year by Lyn MacGregor and supported by many local artists.

The next attractions at the Manor under the Seniors' Outreach Services program will include first of all, the second Diners Club dinner of the month on the 24th at 12:30 p.m. It will be followed by information and a demonstration on foot care at 1:30 p.m. The regular foot care clinic will be held on the 28th from 1-4 p.m.

On the 29th of November, Ruby MacGregor will give a demonstration and workshop on Christmas crafts starting at 1 p.m.

Then on Nov. 30th, the gang will all be expected for the monthly euchre party starting at 1:30 p.m.

For additional information and registration do not hesitate to phone the Manor at 527-2170 and punch in local 237 for Kim or 228 for Phyllis. If your phone has a rotary dial, wait for Barbara's recorded message to be completed and then she will come on the line, live, to assist you.

The Santa Claus parade on Sunday formed up in the parking lot of the Manor under ideal weather conditions. It was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce and prizes were gift certificates which will be honored at any of the participating places of business.

All those who entered the parade are to be thanked for their support. It is a time consuming task to prepare for the parade and excuses can readily be found for not doing so.

The entry of the Girl Guides was awarded first prize, that of the Maxville and District Horticultural Society, second, and that of the Brownies, third. Honorable mention went to the Gravel Hill Horse Club with two of its members, Sharon Presley and Sharon Michaud entering a typy 3-year-old mare hitched to a buggy.

There were two individuals who would not identify themselves but their participation in the parade was an added feature. One was a bunny and the other a gift box with big bows hiding the face.

Annie and Adrian St. Denis and two of their children brought three riding horses and another to pull the carriage for Santa Claus. This family is owed our thanks for its support.

Other entries in the parade included those of the Home Hardware Store, the Boy Scouts, the Chamber of Commerce, Highland Toyota, the King George Hotel, the Maxville Firefighters and a large van sponsored by the Prudential Insurance Co. and the OPP. The community police office sponsors the snowsuit fund and the van was driven by Colin Kinnear, a gentleman very active in this work.

If you have little activity at your bird feeders, do not despair. With our exceptional autumn weather, the birds are still finding sufficient feed for themselves but from all reports, they are visiting feeders occasionally and will make use of them when their needs arise.

We have had our first goldfinches come recently for the black sunflower seeds.

Well known gardening expert, Trevor Cole from the Central Experimental Farm wrote last week that he attracts mainly house (English) sparrows to his backyard. However, he welcomes these common birds because he realizes that they reward him in the summertime by consuming many insect pests and weed seeds.

One hundred years ago, Lizzie Munro commenced her nursing studies at Montreal's General Hospital. She was 22 years old at the time and a sister of Peter A. Munroe. The members of the branch of the clan consistently spell their name with an "e" now.

Can you imagine a hole in the road large enough to trip a horse so severely that it broke its neck? The Duncan McIntyre from Finch, who lost his horse along the St. Elmo East road, was probably visiting with his relatives which included the Dunc D. McIntyre who many remember.

Eighty years ago, Bennett McEwen was having medical problems which necessitated a special train to take him to Montreal for another operation. He later became a medical doctor like his father and died not long ago.

Mrs. D. D. McKercher broke her ankle 70 years ago. She lived with her daughter Margaret and Dan McEwen at St. Elmo and lived to be almost 100 years old. She was the grandmother of Ethel McKinnon.

The social club in 1934 met in a room beside Smillie's store that was once a millinery shop.

Marc Boisvenue Bursary Fund

A mixed supper was held on Nov. 6 at l'Heritage and the $1,000 monthly Optimist draw was held. Michel Major of Alexandria was the lucky winner and Ron Carriere the vendor.

A $200 cheque was presented to Michel and Diane Boisvenue by Sue Poirier on behalf of the Optimist club.

The ball tournament is now dedicated to the late Marc Boisvenue and every year we will donate to the fund $10 per team that enters.

Besides being a major fundraising for our youth activities, it also helps fund the studies of our future adults graduating from high school.

Welcome to two new members of the Optimist club -- Rita Chartrand and Albert Bott. They each received a kit and an Optimist pin plus a good hand of applause.

Pierre Larocque received a certificate for a life membership of the club.

Only a little bit more than a month left before Christmas and at this time I would invite everyone to open your hearts and be very generous to the people of our community who are not as fortunate as we are.

Baskets were distributed at the following places -- the church, village video, l'Heritage restaurant and corner store, Glengarry Tire, Laurier-Carriere School and the social centre.

Small banks will also be at your disposal near the Christmas baskets for those of you who prefer giving a money donation instead.

I made a boo-boo last week in my column. The 50/50 draw at the Knights of Columbus breakfast on Sunday, Nov. 6 and won by Archie Michaud was $50 and not $100 as stated. I apologize for the error.

In the following weeks, people will be going around collecting for the Diabetes Association, so please give generously.

The disease attacks at any age. I spoke to a lady the other evening whose five-year-old daughter has this disease.

Upon rising she has to do blood work, take insulin, then a huge breakfast, all this before getting dressed for school. How lucky we can consider ourselves. Let's help those who aren't so lucky.

Well, Christmas isn't so very far off. Only six more weeks. Christmas parties will be taking place. So please have fun but have a designated driver or take a taxi. Your families want to have you around for the holidays.

UCFO members get facts on cancer at monthly meeting

North Lancaster
Bernadette Campeau
347-2572

Last Tuesday evening the ladies of UCFO held their monthly meeting at the school with 16 members present.

After the opening prayer, Fleurette Major welcomed everyone and Gloria Poirier introduced the guest speakers Francine Chenier and Marie Viau who work with the "Centre de Santé communautaire de l'Estrie" in Alexandria and Cornwall.

They spoke about cancer in general and breast cancer in particular. Many facts and statistics were given along with pamphlets for more information.

Their talk was very interesting and members appreciated the time for questions.

Later in the evening, it was decided the December meeting will be held on Monday the 12th when a pot luck supper will be enjoyed by all.

The winners of the 50/50 draw were Lucille Campeau and Fleurette Major. The door prize was taken by Suzanne Loupret and the craft prize went to Florence Legros.

I have learned recently that Suzanne Glaude received an award last October for second place of first year students who study Interior Design.

She attends Algonquin College in Ottawa and the award is given by the Association of Registered Interior Design. Way to go Suzie!

I trust the ladies (and men) are busy these days preparing for the upcoming bake and craft sale on Dec. 3 at the township hall. If everyone does their little share, the event will be a success.

Happy anniversary this week to André and Hélène Décoeur on Nov. 16. Best wishes.

Caring for Life
VON CANADA
By Dr. George McKiel

TMD/TMJ Syndrome

It's probably best to use the above name rather than call the affliction TEMPORAMANDIBULAR JOINT SYNDROME or Temporomandibular disorder. It's only recently that the painful condition was recognized for what it really is - dentists thought it was misaligned teeth, called macocclusions,which put excess strain on the jaws. To correct the misshapen teeth the dentists used extensive reshaping of the teeth, a most expensive procedure,but found such attempts to correct the bite didn't cure TMD. Now most dentists agree on 3 primary causes (1) muscle strain (2) slipped disc inside the joint (3) degenerative diseases such as arthritis.

TMD/TMJ syndrome probably afflicts up to a third of Canadians. In most cases of TMJ the discomfort is minimal and professional treatment is NOT necessary.

There will be painful chewing, possible neck pain, some vertigo (disorientation of coordination), tinnitus (ringing in the ears), clicking and popping sounds whenever the jaw is moving. Of course our jaws get constant workout, talking, swallowing, grinding, even snoring...The pain can vary from moderate and intermittent to intense and continuous pain in the head, neck, shoulders or back. basically, the cause is malalignment of one or both temporamandibular joints.

This joint where the mandible,the lower jawbone articulates with the temporal bone, is the only joint in our skull in which the bones do not come in contact with each other. Instead articular cartilage caps the bones and synovial fluid (lubricant) circulates through the joint during movement. There is an articular disc that separates the joint cavity into superior and inferior compartments. To support and reinforce the temporomandibular joint there are 3 ligaments binding the joint together. The other unique aspect of this joint is that it functions by a special hinge and gliding motion, hence the extraordinary range of movement.

To assess yourself for possible TMJ, firmly place index fingers just in front of your ears. Then open and close your mouth. You will feel the bones moving. Normal will be a fully mobile, symetric motion with a smooth and comfortable feeling. The abnormal, TMJ syndrome will clearly be felt and heard as a grating, clicking sound accompanied by tenderness and referred pain (felt away from the jaw area).

Before dashing off to your Dr. or dentist if you find your assessment is abnormal, try some of these pointers.

1. try to relax for most TMJ is concommitant with high stress
2. stop nightly mouth grinding by using a mouth guard
3. heat - use a hot wet washcloth with a heat pad over it for 20-25 min. several times a day
4. ice - fill a washcloth with ice cubes and that helps prevent pain as well as reducing any swelling. Then apply heat again.
5. yawn - don't let wide ones,stretch your hand under the chin when you feel it coming
6. don't use chewing gum or prop the telephone on your shoulder, or put a pencil top in your mouth
7. avoid long phone calls, even if you do all the listening!

In Memoriam

KEMP -- In loving memory of a dear father, father-in-law and grandfather, Louis Kemp, who passed away Nov. 16, 1990.
It is hard when our loved ones have reached their day
When they say goodbye to all;
But harder by far when they pass away
With no goodbye at all.
Could we have been there at the hour of death
To catch the last sigh of his parting breath,
His last faint whisper we might have heard
And breathed in his ear one loving word.
-- Always remembered and sadly missed by Susan, Donnie, Scott, Tami and Joanne.
46-1p

MacPHERSON -- In loving memory of a dear brother, brother-in-law and uncle, Arnold MacPherson, who passed away Nov. 20, 1993.
I often stand beside his grave,
My heart is crushed and sore,
But through the gloom there comes the words:
"Not lost, but gone before."
-- Sadly missed and lovingly remembered by Donald, Susan, Scott, Tami and Joanne.
46-1p

LACOMBE, Jos. -- In loving memory of a dear father who passed away Nov. 14, 1993.
One year has passed, dear father,
Since you were called away;
How well do I remember
That sad and weary day,
You suffered much, you murmured not,
We watched you day by day;
We cried and prayed that your dear life
Would not be taken away.
-- Sadly missed and always remembered by son Yvon, Denise, Chantal, Manon, Maryse and Simon. 46-1p

MONTGOMERY -- In loving memory of a father and grandfather Nelson who passed away November 18, 1978.
It happened so sudden,
And you were gone,
We will always remember you
No matter how long.
-- Always remembered, Roger Mabel and family. 46-1p

KEMP -- In loving memory of a dear father and father-in-law "Louis" who passed away November 16, 1990.

BESNER -- In loving memory of a dear dad, Leo, who passed away November 19, 1993.
This month comes with sad regret,
It brings back a day we'll never forget.
So suddenly your day had come,
And you were called away.
What we would give if we could say,
"Hi Dad," in the same old way.
You are no longer in our life to share,
But in our hearts, Dad, you'll always be there.
-- Remembered always by your wife, children and grandchildrern. 46-1p

TAILLEFER -- In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Roger, who passed away Nov. 18, 1992.

MacPHERSON, Arnold -- In loving memory of a dear brother who passed away Nov. 20, 1993.

Teams can enter in their own club or neighboring clubs up until Thursday, of their particular bonspiel. Below are listed the dates and locations for the various bonspiels:

The Glengarry Natural Food Buying Group will be holding an ordering meeting at the OMAF board room in Alexandria on Thursday evening November 17 at 7:30 p.m.

This will be the last meeting until February /95. The group is always looking for new members.

The more orders that go in the more likely every item will be delivered. Newcomers are certainly most welcome.

On Saturday afternoon, Nov. 12, at the Nor'Wester Museum in Williamstown, the Glengarry Gaelic choir participated in the launching of the new book "The Lochaber Emigrants to Glengarry," edited by Rae Fleming.

Local contributing authors include David Anderson and Kenneth McKenna, who with several other writers, combined their talents for this book.

The newly-formed Gaelic school children's choir in Williamstown sang a set of mouth music called Brawkin Lowm, and S' Ann An Ile Bhoidheach, and Ho Ro Mo Neaghan Donn Bhoidheach with the senior choir joining them for the chorus in the first number and all of the last song.

The senior choir sang Cha Till Mac Cruimein with Gerry Tibbals singing the solo, also some mouth music called Fhuakas am Pige, Rua Dh.

There was a surprisingly large crowd in attendance and they were most enthusiastic with their applause for the singing. Two accomplished area fiddlers entertained -- Donald Joseph McPhee and Hugh A. MacMillan and a fine young piper Ewen MacKinnon also played some traditional pieces. Light buffet refreshments were served to the crowd afterwards.

There were two women from Vermont at the "launching" and they were most impressed with the wonderfully warm feeling that they experienced.

"Everyone was so friendly, even chatting pleasantly with us, strangers" said Bernice Coleman's mother. They were made to feel right at home. What a wonderful compliment to us up here in Glengarry. Unsolicited too!

A birthday surprise for Perle Brunet was the unexpected arrival of her daughter Manon Joly and family of St. Constant on Sunday with a lovely Black Forest birthday cake and many gifts.

That evening daughter #2 Lucie Racicot and family of L'Orignal treated her to dinner at the Maison du Defricheur in St. Redempteur, Que.

Many happy returns also from your friends here.

I have been asked to invite everyone to attend the Jingle Bell sale at Glengarry Memorial Hospital, in the lobby, on Friday, Nov. 25.

It all begins at 10 a.m. and there will be beautiful crafts available for your Christmas shopping, and a special novelty treasure table of lovely gift items that could be new, at a most reasonable cost.

There will also be a table of tasty baked foods on sale, and the tuck shop will be open. The Hospital Auxiliary ladies hope to see many of you out in force.

You know that the money will be going to the hospital to help provide more efficient care for patients in our community. It's certainly a worthwhile cause; please do come and support these devoted workers for our hospital in this fundraising event.

CWC news

Last month there were 75 present for the first evening meeting ever.

The special guest was Ken Roach. Among his songs were He Touched Me, Abba Father and I'll Never Walk Alone.

He accompanied the first two songs on his guitar, but sang the last moving song a capella, and he just mesmerized the crowd with his warmth and his wonderful voice.

The feature was a fashion show of casual wear with soft skirts, slacks and sweaters to mix and match, suits with soft blouses and vests, many of tapestry, that is so popular now.

Winter coats were shown in a variety of lengths and an interesting set of dresses, evening two-piecers consisting of tunics and pants.

A most wearable collection. Adrienne Bedard spoke on It's Inside That Counts. She remarked that "It's a mid life crisis when your clothes and your children are the same age."

She really had the crowd laughing along with her and certainly kept everyone's interest during her talk.

On Nov. 7 the CWC meeting was in the afternoon, with over 80 people present.

A school bus driver from Morin Heights sang a medley of western songs, several of which even I knew. Talkin' 'bout my girl, I love my Wife, Over and Over Again I keep Fallin' in Love with Her.

He accompanied himself on guitar and he was just delightful, so friendly and with a rich baritone voice.

Ann Steparnof was both the special feature and the speaker. She had on hand a fascinating display of part of her 2,000 key collection. Some keys were from the middle ages. She had several Roman keys over 4,000 years old.

The oldest key came from Ninivan. She had two car keys, one from a Ford Model A and one from a Model T. One bronze key came from the Battle of Hastings, another from St. James Palace -- a key to the royal apartments.

Roman finger-ring keys 2,000 years old rubbed shoulders with dungeon keys, victrola keys, Windsor Castle keys and a key to St. Paul Cathedral, to name but a few.

She had over 100 keys on display; just a few of those that she has collected in the 20 years that she has had this hobby. Each key represents a bit of history and each has its own fascinating story.

At the intermission, Doris Spencer was the recipient of a hostess gift for choosing #13.

Mrs. Steparnof spoke of marking your possessions for safety as being most important. She said that we are locked in our homes, while the criminals roam about outdoors.

Locked doors only keep out your friends; if a criminal wants to get in, he will. Locks won't hinder him at all. There never has been a pick-proof lock made yet.

She told about her father, who during the depression, had the chance to get in on the ground floor by being offered, very reasonably, some Ford Motor stock. He refused, because he felt the automobile was only a passing fad and would never amount to anything. "They aren't feasible" said he. Famous last words!

The key to quality living is the state of being safe and secure and anyone who counts on our heavenly father attains that quality. Jesus, the key to heaven, means security for evermore.

Congratulations to the organizers for providing a most memorable and unique afternoon program.

The Stonecroft Bible study group will resume on Nov. 25 at 1:30 p.m. at the home of Marion Fraser to begin lesson #4, the first one this season.

The McCrimmon WI will meet on Friday, Nov. 18 at the Lochiel Township hall at 1 p.m. Please note change of day. The guest speaker at that time will be District President Sheila Urquhart. The McCrimmon WI will go to Martintown on Nov. 17 as guests of the Martintown WI to the Senior's Room at the social centre at 1:30 p.m.
