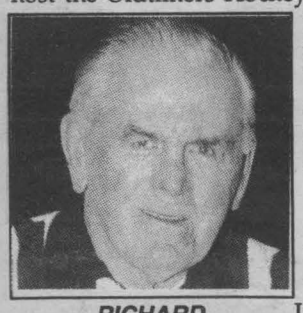
Greatest Hockey Legends on Ice Come To Cornwall

On Friday, November 25, 1994, the Cornwall Civic Complex will host the Oldtimers Hockey Challenge featuring the Greatest Hockey Legends on ice vs The Law Enforcement Torch Team. Legends consisting of Norm Ullman, Maurice Richard, Steve Penney, Guy Lafleur, Rene Robert and Gilbert Perreault will attempt to show our local boys how the game is played.



RICHARD

This year the Oldtimers Hockey Tour will play 45 cities. The final lineup has not been posted for Cornwall as of this date, but we can assure an all-star line up again. Last year, the Civic Complex crowd enjoyed moments we still talk about today.

PERREAULT

Since 1978, when Marc Verreault reunited a group of former "Canadiens" players for exhibition matches throughout Canada, team members have shared their joy in the game with many thousands of hockey fans. Together with retired players from other NHL teams, the Legends team now plays approximately 50 games a year in cities across Canada and the northern United States, all under the auspices of the "Oldtimers Hockey Challenge".

LAFLEUR

Their inspiration comes from you, the fans, whose attendance helps to support worthy organizations locally. Together with you and the knowledge, skills, attitude and effort that are required for success in hockey, or any walk of life, we can enjoy some of "the very best life has to offer" and have some fun!

Tickets on sale at the Civic Complex box office.

The Aces In Syracuse Were You There?

by Marianne Long

If you missed the Booster Club bus trip to Syracust I feel I should tell you - you missed such a great time that you can rest easy knowing that you'll have at least two more opportunities to be a part of the action.

More than 50 anxious Booster Club members - already a rowdy bunch - were greeted by the Syracuse Crunch Booster Club and were treated to exceptional treatment by both the people of Syracuse and their Booster Club.

The Aces fans in attendance were welcomed by the announcer and the message centre flashed the greeting "Welcome To the Cornwall Aces Booster Club". The Booster Club was behind the boys in blue every step of the way, and let everyone in the War Memorial know it. We were armed with our wooden "crankers", signs, and our voices, the most powerful weapon of all. For a group of 50 people, the effect was amazing.

Everyone who went on the trip had something positive come of it - while some made new friends, some met some old ones, and everyone had an enjoyable time. Special thanks to all who climbed aboard the bus and hope to see you again on the next trip.

Come on out to the Civic Complex November 18 and 19 for an exciting weekend double-header when the Aces face off against the Cape Breton Oilers, the 1992-93 Calder Cup Champions.

November 18th is the night the Aces host the community of Maxville - in true Highland spirit! November 19th finds the Aces welcoming the students, staff, and alumni of St. Lawrence College - this will be a game you won't want to miss!

RCAF Atom Girl's Hockey

In girl's hockey action, Silver Streak defeated Lightning 5 to 1. Scoring for Lightning in the first period was Kelsey McPherson and for Silver Streak it was Erin Seymour. In the second period, Nikki Skidders scored the only goal for the period, assisted by Justine Dulude and Andrea Gilfillan for the Silver Streak team.

In the third period, Jennifer Theoret scored for Silver Streak with an assist going to Erin Seymour. Her goal was followed by another goal by Nikki Skidder, assisted by Rosalie Morris and Justine Dulude. The final goal was scored by Andrea Gilfillan, assisted by Erin Seymour and Justine Dulude.

A strong offensive attack by Nikki Skidders and rookie player Justine Dulude for Silver Streak. Silver Streak's Erin Seymour provided a balanced attack with her checking and playmaking abilities.

Jaye McLeod buzzed around the Silver Streak's net all night.

Next game on the schedule is on November 18 at 8 pm when the Lightning take on the Royal Blue.

by Ken McLaughlin
Director of Public Relations

Here's your chance to meet Cornwall's hockey heroes! "Skate with the Cornwall Colts" will take place this Saturday, November 19, from 3 to 4:30 pm at the Water Street Arena. Family fun is the order of the day, with all the players available for autographs and pictures. Slapshot will be on the ice to welcome his many friends. Be sure you get a numbered autograph sheet as you enter the rink. At the end of the event, we'll draw for a Colts autographed stick. A healthy snack will be provided by Ladas' Your Independent Grocer, located in Cornwall Square. Your Colts are looking forward to meeting you. Thanks to Angie and Serge at the Eastern Ontario Health Unit, for their help in organizing this event.

This Thursday, November 17, the Smiths Falls Bears will make their first appearance at the Water Street Arena. The puck will be dropped by members of the Core Committee for a Healthy Community. This anti-drug, healthy lifestyle message is strongly supported by the Cornwall Colts management and players. The game will feature a special "Sumo" wrestling match between Brian Ladas, owner of Ladas' Your Independent Grocer and yours truly, Ken McLaughlin. Brian and I will be placed in inflatable sumo suits during the second intermission. Rumour has it that the WWF is sending talent scouts! Plan to attend for an exciting hockey game and a great time. Game time is 7:30 pm.

As part of Drug Awareness Week, your Colts will be appearing at the Core Committee Information Display, in Brookdale Mall, this Thursday and Friday. Come out for an autograph and learn how to live and play the drug free way. Your Colts, positive role models to Cornwall's youth.

Edition #4 of Colts Talk, our news and information show, will air live on Roger's Community 11 this Wednesday, November 16 at 7 pm. We invite your calls with questions and comments. Be sure to tune in, as we review our last five games and look ahead to upcoming action.

Look for your Colts in the Santa Claus Parade coming up on Sunday, November 20. The entire team will be marching in this festive event. Slapshot will also be trotting along the parade route, bringing smiles to fans young and old.

We'll see you this Thursday, for our second meeting of the season with the Smiths Falls Bears. Colt's hockey at the Water Street Arena ... you can't get any closer to the exciting action.

Resilient Rapids Blank South Ottawa

After getting their feathers ruffled by a 3-1 defeat at the hands of the Gatineau Ambassadors, the Seaway Valley AA Major Bantam Rapids bounced back with a vengeance to whitewash the South Ottawa Canadians 4-0.

A charging penalty to Gatineau early in the second period allowed the Lafleche-Ruest-Tranchemontagne trio to turn on the power and score the first goal of the game. Their glory was short-lived. From that moment on, the Ambassadors took over as the Rapids pondered the profound implications of Murphy's Law.

The next day, it was Miguel Lafleche again who got things underway against South Ottawa. Then, working the puck behind the nets, Kent McDonell managed to direct a perfect pass to Bubba Ferguson who turned on the light with a one-timed shot. Pierre Tranchemontagne's whirl-and-fire marker and forechecking Stephane Loyer's solo performance completed the scoring.

Despite the lopsided final score, Seaway Cerberus Gerry Goulet earned his first shutout of the season the hard way, robbing the Canadians of sure thing scoring opportunities, repeatedly sprawling as hard shot after hard shot was drilled at him and deftly doing photo-op glove saves á la Terry Sawchuck.

South Stormont Peewee Selects

The South Stormont Peewee Selects played their first league game on Friday, November 4th. The Selects defeated Cornwall by a score of 4-2. Scoring for South Stormont was William Bruining with an assist going to John Sullivan. Kevin McCue scored the second goal unassisted. Shane Bergeron scored the third goal unassisted and he also had the fourth goal with an assist by Scott Dunne.

Digirolamo/Roxborough Rapids Take Split

The Digirolamo/ Roxborough Bus line Seaway Valley Major Atom 'AA'Rapids took on the Nepean Raiders at the Nepean Sportsplex and came away with two points on a 3-1 victory. Nathan Beausoliel put the Rapids up 1-0 when he scored from Jesse Winchester and Peter Barnett in the first period. The Raiders came back to tie it in the third on a power play before Patrick Turcotte scored the winner on a penalty shot. Jesse Winchester got an insurance marker on an outstanding shorthanded effort when he picked off a pass at the blue line and outskated the defenceman who finally hauled him down from behind but Winchester got a shot away lying on the ice and scored. Greg Fargo was strong in goal for the win.

On Monday night the first place Gloucester Rangers came to play and took it to the Rapids blowing out the local squad by a final score of 5-1 with Nathan Beausoliel notching the lone Seaway marker on assists from Jesse Winchester and B.J. Pelkey. Despite the score Jeff McIntyre was very strong in goal.

How about a date?

How long since you've had a date? Be honest now. A good sweet date? Pleasingly plump and stoned?

Ten dates, for instance, contain only 240 calories and are a source of magnesium, potassium and fibre. Chopped dates are great toppings for cereal, yogurt or vegetables. Whole dates are the ideal snack anytime.

ELECTION NOTEBOOK

• Etienne St. Aubin is an incumbent School Board Trustee. He's running for re-election. How then can he say he's not a politician? Sounds like he wants his cake and eat it too!

• Guess what Gord Lanctot?!?! Expense accounts of elected people at City Hall ARE open to the public.

• In a case of who's on first and what's on second, the OSSTF and District Labour Council each thought the other was sending out the invites to the Mayoralty candidates for their debate. Result ... invitation only arrived five days prior to the event. Result less than 100% participation.

• How's this for a leap of logic? Candidates Daniel Morin and Etienne St. Aubin suggested low attendance at their debate means ratepayers are pleased with the job the board is doing. WOW!!

• It's official ... Jocelyn Sauvé is the successful candidate for Secretary to the Mayor. So whoever wins the Mayor's seat ... having Jocelyn there is going to be a big plus.

• At the Labour debate, a crystal clear difference of views shown by Mayoralty candidates on the question of contracting out .... Gabe Martel and Francis Guindon are opposed; Jess for it and the others unsure ... Martelle was absent.

• Mayor Martelle dominates coverage of Labour Council/OSSTF debate even though he's not in attendance.

• Joining Marc Pilotte and guest colour commentator Tom Green for CFLC election coverage will be former Alderman Ray Lalonde (who won't be telling you about the red licorice). Tune in.

• Cable 11, Cornwall will be providing live television coverage of the results of Municipal Election '94 live form the Cornwall Civic Complex, Monday, November 14th at 8:00 p.m. Hosting this year's broadcast will be Kevin Wilson, Morgan Major and Alan Bojarski. Election computers for the first time will be linked to election central allowing views to see the results faster than ever before.

DOG TAGS

My family owns a Pekinese dog named "Peek-A-Boo." One Sunday morning the newspaper had just been delivered, and my mother went to pick it up. The delivery man was going down the walk as my mother appeared at the front door with her hair in curlers and wearing my father's robe. Seeing our dog across the street, she yelled, "Peek-A-Boo!"

Our newsman promptly turned around and said, "I see you, lady."

"It is impossible to maintain civilization with 12-year olds having babies, 15-year olds killing each other, 17-year olds dying of AIDS and 18-year olds receiving diplomas they can't read." ... so says Newt Gingrich, the Georgia Republican who is now destined to become speaker of the U.S. House of Representatives.

A motorist had the ill fortune to become bogged down in a muddy road and finally had to pay a passing farmer $20- to pull him out of the mire with his tractor. When he was back on dry ground, the motorist said to the farmer, "Mister, at those prices ^would think you would be pulling people out of that mud hole night and day."

"Nope. "Can't," replied the farmer. "At night I haul water for the hole."

New homeowners should understand their ventilation system

ON THE HOUSE

(NC)—Invisible yet vital, the air in a new home should be every new homeowner's concern.

Understanding your new home's ventilation system and its proper operation and maintenance is the first important step to not only controlling indoor air quality but protecting your new home warranty. Problems arising from homeowner neglect are not covered by the Ontario New Home Warranty Program (ONHWP).

Acquainting yourself with the type of ventilation installed in your new home and its regular maintenance procedures can be as simple as asking the builder for information. The pre-delivery inspection is an excellent time to ask questions.

All too often homeowners do not understand the role they play in ensuring their home's air quality. For example, preliminary findings from a recent mechanical ventilation assessment research report sponsored by the Ontario Ministry of Housing, Ontario Hydro, the Ontario Natural Gas Association and ONHWP, indicate homeowners with exhaust only ventilation systems often do not continuously operate the ventilation fans to ensure safe and healthy air quality.

New homes require continuous ventilation during the first year of occupancy. Since many construction materials contain water, especially poured concrete and wood, new homes need six months to a year to dry out. During this time, you will probably need to run the ventilation and circulation fans continuously whenever the windows are closed.

After the first year, the need for ventilation will depend on your family's lifestyle. How much moisture is generated in the home from smoking, cooking and washing? Many homeowners use fans extensively during the heating season while others run the ventilation system for a set period of time each day.

An indicator of the humidity level in a home is on the windows. If there is a build up of moisture on the windows, you probably need to run your fans more often. If your nose and throat are constantly dry, turn the fans down or run them for shorter periods. Consider buying a simple humidity meter from the nearest hardware store for a more accurate humidity indicator.

Some ventilation systems have automatic controls which turn the fans on when the humidity climbs above the selected level. New home buyers might want to ensure they receive this convenience by asking the builder to install automatic controls.

It is important that homeowners locate the switches for ventilation and circulation fans. These switches are normally located near the thermostat.

New homes have a switch in each bathroom and some homes have another supplemental fan and switch in the kitchen for additional ventilation. These switches control local moisture and odors from showering and cooking. Some bathroom fans are equipped with a timer to control humidity during a bath or shower.

The ventilation system requires frequent maintenance to ensure its safe operation. Homeowners should establish a monthly maintenance and cleaning schedule. Start by checking to see if the hoods over intake and exhaust openings outside the house are broken or blocked. Clean all grilles or filters. Replace or clean all in-duct filters. Homeowners with a heat recovery ventilator should clean or replace filters. Regularly scrub kitchen grease filters with hot, soapy water.

Some exhaust fans need to be oiled and cleaned according to manufacturer's instructions. Always disconnect the power before cleaning fans.

New homeowners may encounter a ventilation system that includes an open air inlet. Basically designed as a hole in the basement wall, this hole should never be blocked despite the possible occurrence of a draft. Instead, homeowners should ask their builder to install a damper.

Homes containing a wood burning fireplace or wood stove may be required by law to have a carbon monoxide (CO) detector to detect dangerous levels of gas. Some ventilation systems are designed so that a CO detector is not needed. Check with your builder to determine if your home has the necessary requirements.

High concentration levels of carbon monoxide can cause death. If your CO detector alarm sounds, call the fire department. Open up the doors and windows to get fresh air into the house and turn off your ventilation system, including all exhaust fans.

Your ventilation is designed to protect your home against moisture damage and ensure your home has an adequate amount of fresh air.

For further information about ventilation systems call your nearest ONHWP Regional Office or toll free 1-800-668-7504 to obtain the free booklet, Information About Your Home's Ventilation System.

Phil's Basement

(NC)—When our twins were little, Em and I used to think they were a lot of work. Cute, yes, okay, but work! Well, it turned out that we didn't really know what work was until they became teenagers. Work, I found, is trying to come to an agreement on an acceptable time for their curfew. Especially when I wanted 10 p.m., Em wanted 11:30 p.m., and Belinda and Kyle were going for 1 a.m. We settled on midnight.

So, I was thinking about all this as I installed a timer on our front porch light. We have a snazzy, new energy-efficient light in there, and I'm going all the way and putting a programmable timer on it so that it comes on and goes off automatically. That way, we only use as much energy as we need and don't have to worry about accidentally leaving it on all day. I'm also going to put a motion detector on our side door so the light only comes on when it's needed.

I like to think of the new timer as "The Enforcer," though. If I set it to turn off at midnight, Kyle and Belinda will know whether they've made their curfew, or turned into pumpkins. And so will old mom and dad upstairs. Ha! On went the timer.

But, seriously, it's smart to leave some lights on when you're away from home for a long time, too, to give the place a lived-in look. You don't want them on all day and all night, though, because that also sends the message that nobody's around to turn them off. Keep 'em guessing, I always say, and programmable timers and motion detectors are perfect for the job. They're also a good deal this month at your hardware store—look for the Power Smart label and take advantage of the rebate offer, too.

Now I'm off to the library. I'll need a good book or two while I wait to see if the timer does its work with Kyle and Belinda tonight.

This newspaper, in conjunction with Power Smart Inc. member utilities across Canada, is bringing you Phil's Basement to help "bring home" ideas on how to save energy. For further informatian about home energy efficiency, contact your local utility.

Dressing With Diamonds:
Fashion's Hottest Trend for the Holidays

Nothing lets a woman shine quite so beautifully as diamonds, and no time is more dazzling for diamonds — to wear or to receive — than the holidays. Thanks to one of the biggest resurgences of diamond jewelry in decades, holiday gift-giving and diamonds are this year's most brilliant combination.

The new glamour in fashion is the picture of a feminine, confident woman who isn't afraid to show her womanliness or any of the ways she pursues pleasure. Stiletto heels, Jean Harlow makeup and satin curves are the perfect backdrop for the comeback of diamond jewelry. In fact, the rage for the real is so heightened that women are wearing diamond jewelry morning to night.

When Donna Karan talked about "diamonds and denim" as one of her favorite looks, millions of women paid attention. Today, an irreverent, free-spirited attitude towards diamonds translates into "scatter diamonds" thrown on cuffs or shoulders, or in diamond drops on multiple leather strands dripping to slip over a satin chemise or cashmere turtleneck. "Diamonds are like light itself," says jewelry designer Angela Cummings.

The diamond rage started, experts say, last March when English designer John Galliano accessorized his fall collection with important diamond pieces from venerable French jewelers like Rene Boivin. When Galliano visited New York in June for his first U.S. showing at Bergdorf Goodman, he repeated his love of diamonds by again accessorizing with diamonds — this time from Van Cleef & Arpels. Meanwhile, New York's hot young designer Marc Jacobs had already shown his fall collection in April with diamond earrings and scatter pins which he designed himself. The rage became very real.

To make the desire for diamonds even juicier, Chanel announced its first real jewelry collection since the '30s — brimming with diamonds — which arrived on American shores in October. Now, venerable stores like Cartier and Tiffany's are designing new diamond collections and increasing their overall stock of the rocks. Naturally, diamond rings — traditional to modern — are classic sparklers for the holidays. Even newer are brooches and diamond bracelets. Celestial themes — stars, moons, comets — are some of the most popular diamond pieces.

What's new about today's diamonds is that they are worn any time of day or night, yet they have none of the ostentatious quality of the '80s. Today's rage for the real is just that — customers are wearing diamond jewelry not only because of its timeless beauty, but because they see these pieces as investments in quality and enduring value. There is a craving for authenticity in the mid '90s, and women look at their diamond pieces as the real thing to be worn today — as the heirlooms of tomorrow they don't have to wait to enjoy.

But Marc Jacobs may have the best reason of all for owning diamond jewelry: "Diamonds make me smile."

HOLIDAY'S NEW SPARKLE: grown-up and glamorous — polished nails and red lips, and bright makeup that looks feminine, but not frivolous. Starring in this season's glamour story — what else but diamonds? Sprinkled on a lapel, sweater, beret or just about any place imaginable, diamond pins look best when scattered irreverently. Scatter Diamonds™, by Marc Jacobs for Andrew Turi, are available at Neiman Marcus stores nationwide.

HOLIDAY SHOPPING TACTICS

- Try to shop in the early morning, before the salespeople have become overwhelmed and stocks depleted; you'll be less tired then, too.
- Go shopping with your list in hand or at least a game plan; this is no time to let inspiration be your guide.
- Instead of buying several small gifts for each member of a family, buy a family present, such as a hammock for the backyard or patio, a Ping-Pong set for the playroom, challenging computer software, or a video or CD sampler.
- Give yourself the gift of a bill-free January. Whenever possible pay cash for Christmas presents; it's also one way to ensure you won't go too far over budget.
- Before Thanksgiving, stock up on stamps, batteries, film, glasses, paper products and any other staples you might need. If you intend to give gifts from the kitchen or entertain, this is also the time to pick up the nonperishable and beverages.
- If your gift list gets too long, agree with friends and family to give gifts only to the children. Many will feel relieved at this suggestion.
- People close to you often let you know indirectly what they want. Pay attention to hints, listen and remember.

Gift Ideas for the '90s Man

The true man of the '90s enjoys his work, but also takes time to play, relax and "smell the roses." Adventurous and curious, he makes it a point to explore his world — whether it be on an overnight camping trip or a month-long trek through Nepal.

This multi-dimensional guy takes delight in many things; that's why finding him a holiday gift is always a pleasure. Yet, because he's so interesting, it's important to give him something that reinforces his unique approach to life. (Translation: Soap-on-a-rope will never do!)

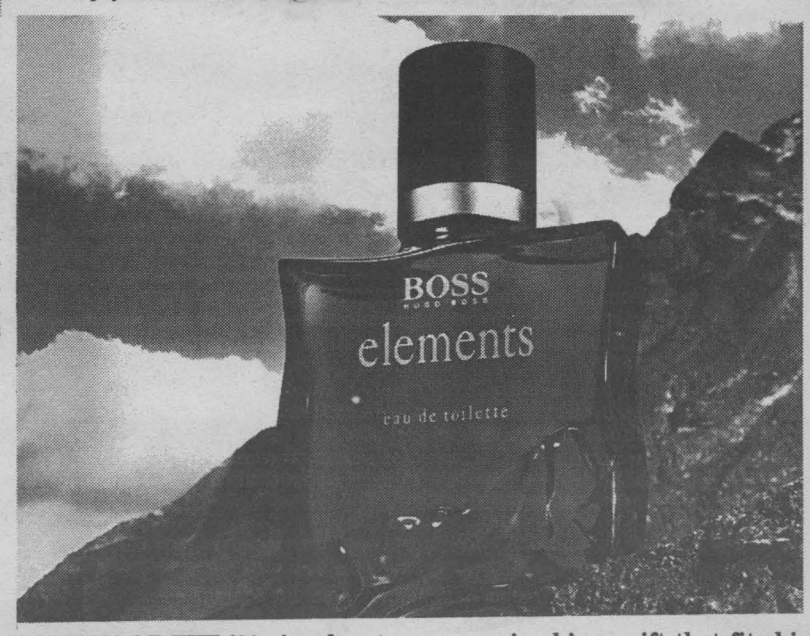
So, if you're wondering what to give the '90s man on your list, here are some on-target gift ideas from the experts at Hugo Boss fragrances for men:

• An Amazing Adventure — If you're feeling especially generous, send him packing (with you along, of course). A mountain-biking expedition in Utah or sea-kayaking off the coast of California could be just the ticket. Browse the outdoor and travel magazines for exotic and unusual excursions he'd enjoy.

• A Scent Designed for Him — The scent that will appeal to this guy is as dynamic as he is. One new fragrance, Boss Elements, certainly epitomizes the '90s man's attitudes with ingredients inspired by the four elements (earth, air, fire and water). It's a truly masculine fragrance that is both sophisticated and understated — like him. And this holiday season, it's available in three special gift sets that offer really great values on full-sized products.

• A Handsome Journal — The man who savors life to the fullest will want to remember his many experiences. Why not give him an attractive leather-bound journal in which he can record his adventures and jot down his special thoughts (about you). To make this gift really special, include a great fountain pen — it wouldn't do to write one's memoirs with a ball point pen.

This holiday season, give the man in your life a gift that lets him know you think he's truly unique, whether it be an adventurous journey, a scent he'll enjoy every day or a book he can write himself.



THE MAN OF THE '90s is adventurous, so give him a gift that fits his personality. Boss Elements, a truly masculine fragrance, is a scent that is as dynamic as he is. HL945470

Gift Will Lift Spirits, Touch Heart and Soul

Touch a soul this holiday season with a beautifully illustrated collection of inspirational poems and messages of comfort and hope by noted motivator, psychic and lecturer, Larry Horne.

"To Touch a Soul" lifts the spirits and takes readers on an extraordinary journey of Inner Discovery. In poems such as "Endless Transition," "Moments" and "Traditions," Horne, whose celebrated "Inner Discovery" system of personal empowerment has motivated thousands of people both here and abroad to discover the power within themselves to achieve cherished dreams and goals, moves and inspires with his messages of hope and comfort.

"Life is a journey, not merely a destination," says Horne, "...a journey which offers endless opportunities for new experiences and growth."

Uniquely illustrated by celebrated artist Michael Vollbracht, "To Touch a Soul" is a collection to savor today and cherish for many tomorrows. Printed on fine recycled parchment paper, the collection is nestled in a clear acrylic box adorned with ribbon and dried flowers. For the joy of giving or the delight of keeping, "To Touch a Soul" is available for $20 plus $2.50 for shipping and handling by calling Inner Discovery at 800-795-3441.

Quick and Easy Gift Ideas

Making gifts can be more fun than buying them. It takes just minutes to create an elegant gift from simple materials.

RIBBON ORNAMENTS

A handmade tree ornament is a wonderful hostess gift. Using strips of fabric or ribbon, make a pretty star ornament by stitching strips in different colors and widths on a fabric square. Draw a star pattern and pin it to the ribboned fabric. Cut out two and stitch together. Fill with stuffing (available at craft and dime stores) and add a satin ribbon loop for hanging.

PICTURE PERFECT

Give new parents or grandparents a favorite photograph in a faux finish frame. It's easy to enhance inexpensive plastic or wood frames with Formby's Pearl, Marble or Granite Decorative Touches Finish.

WRAPPED UP

It doesn't have to cost a fortune to custom-decorate your gifts. Simply buy plain, colored matte wrapping paper, then spray it with a Gold or Silver Marble Highlights Finish. Wrap all your presents with the same paper to surround your tree with shimmering reflections.

TASTY TREATS

Bake a batch of Christmas cookies and pack them in a special tin of your own making. All you need are ordinary tins you might find at a thrift shop or yard sale. Finish each one with faux Marble spray to create a new finish. Line with colored tissue, fill with your own baked goodies and tie with a beautiful ribbon for a delightfully personal gift. HL946002

Make Your House Beautiful

The holidays are a magical time, and a time for beautiful celebrations. The holiday transforms a period of short days and chilly weather into a time of warmth, generosity and renewal. We dress up our homes to please ourselves and to welcome friends and family; we seek out gifts, carefully chosen and joyfully bestowed. Treasured ornaments are again brought out to hang on the tree.

For nearly 100 years, House Beautiful magazine has been helping enrich our Christmas holidays, and now their best new ideas have been collected in an elegant new book. "House Beautiful Christmas" (Hearst Books). It's rich with all you need to know about decorating, celebrating and entertaining during this most festive of seasons. The book's lovely color photographs invite you into homes where garlands of juniper float around doorways, Christmas angels nestle in yards of pleated silk ribbon, and mantels are swathed in holly and ivy.

Keeping the holiday vital often means creating new traditions as well as invoking old ones — maybe something as simple as filling the house with all-white ornaments and flowers rather than the usual reds and greens, or letting each child decorate his own Christmas tree. "House Beautiful Christmas" is a wonderful source of ideas for both approaches.

The book is divided into three parts: "Decorating," "Celebrating" and "Entertaining." Dozens of wonderful trees and imaginative ornaments, as well as beautiful and clever ideas for wrapping gifts, bring the Christmas spirit to life. It can be as natural as lush green garlands or as elaborate as tabletops glittering with gold and silver baubles.

And if hospitality is the essence of the season, "House Beautiful" heightens the pleasure with its superbly laid tables and gloriously presented food. Possibilities are endless for table settings and party feasts, whether casual buffet or formal sit-down. Enjoy a Christmas Eve glass of port by the fireside, a country breakfast buffet or a sit-down meal for two or 20. Whether traditional or offbeat, table settings and decorations are witty and elegant, and serving suggestions for favorite foods are superbly presented. Throughout, inspiration and advice are offered by the country's foremost interior designers, floral designers and caterers.

Hopefully, the ideas captured in "House Beautiful Christmas" will enrich the holiday for many. By adapting the look of a wreath, the design of a table setting, or the mood of a fantasy room, you may just launch some wonderful new holiday traditions of your own.

Blank Tape, Consumer Electronics Accessories Make Great Stocking Stuffers

Okay, you've decided on that top-of-the-line audio/video center for dad, a new Radio Broadcast Data System car radio for Uncle Bob, and a multimedia upgrade kit for your cousin Joanne. Now that you've taken care of the big holiday gifts, it's time to figure out what you're going to stuff those proverbial stockings with.

How about some blank audio and video tape or consumer electronics accessories? They all make great stocking stuffers, and are guaranteed to put smiles on the faces of your friends and family. What's more, fresh blank tapes and accessories help to extend the lives of consumer electronics products, a tremendous benefit to their owners.

"Open the stocking wide this year," says Lee Kennedy, marketing director for Scotch magnetic tape at 3M Company. "Blank audio and video cassettes are the type of gifts that anyone can now use, and everybody in the family will always enjoy, especially around the holidays. Video cassettes for camcorders are perfect for capturing those once-in-a-lifetime moments with friends and family. And cassettes for the VCR record all the classic holiday movies to add to the family video collection, while still other tapes catch the holiday TV specials both children and adults love to watch.

"For audio buffs, blank audio cassettes are terrific gifts for making recordings that can be used holiday after holiday — and throughout the year as well," Kennedy continues. "With the widespread use of camcorders, VCRs and audio systems, blank audio and video cassettes are natural stocking stuffers that even Saint Nick would appreciate."

Peter Brinkman, national marketing manager for Maxell Corporation, says blank audio tape is "the perfect accessory to buy for the holidays, especially for people who love music. Since people are probably going to get a lot of prerecorded music as gifts, the idea of stuffing holiday stockings with blank audio tape is a great one — people can then make taped compilations for their car and on-the-go listening."

Tim Sullivan, national promotions manager for TDK, says, "Camcorder users and home audio enthusiasts are always thrilled to receive blank tapes as gifts, and it's especially gratifying for them when the grade of tape they receive matches the type of recording they love most.

"Home movie buffs, for example, need an extra high-grade tape formulation that can handle the tough durability requirements of video editing, a variety of lighting conditions and repeated viewing, while maintaining the highest standards of picture and sound quality. And, for those music lovers who want the best sound when recording audio programs from CD, a high-bias audio tape is ideal. Normal-bias audio cassettes are best for high-speed dubbing and boombox use."

Accessories complement and extend the lives of all types of consumer electronics products. If you're purchasing a gift for the multimedia fan in your life, you might think about stuffing those stockings with some of the new cleaning systems available for CD-ROM discs, floppy disks and compact discs. It helps to keep them clean and shiny, so they will operate at peak efficiency.

Addicted to home theater? There's a wide array of accessories that will keep your home theater running in tip-top shape, from projection television screen cleaners and wireless speakers to universal remote controls, which combine the operation of multiple components into one unit and help eliminate "remote control clutter" on your coffee table.

Do you know someone who is operating a home office? Plenty of accessories are available for the home office maven, including fax controller switches, also known as line sharing devices, for directing phone calls to the appropriate place, such as your fax machine, the fax/modem card in your computer or your answering machine. There are also screen cleaners, which keep your computer monitor static-electricity-free; tangle-free telephone cord danglers, which prevent your telephone cords from getting twisted; and ink refills for inkjet and laserjet printer cartridges, which offer tremendous value and savings over purchasing new cartridges.

And don't forget storage devices. Whether the people on your gift list are into home theater, home audio, car audio, home computing or any other consumer electronics products, it's important to have the proper storage devices on hand to keep CDs, audio and video tapes, and video game cartridges — not to mention computer diskettes — clean and dust-free. Today's storage devices are designed to fit in with just about any home decor, so you can rest assured there's one that should look great in every room in your house.

It's a great idea to give accessories along with any consumer electronics products you may be giving as gifts this holiday season. You'll help your loved ones get on the right, preventative track, right from the start, and help keep their consumer electronics products running smoothly for a long time to come.

Now, get on down to your local retailer and see the latest accessories and blank tape offerings available for stuffing those holiday stockings. And don't worry — your friends and family won't forget you!

Try psychology—it works!

(NC)—Selling is a motivational process according to the Canadian Professional Sales Association. If you are excited about your product, your prospect will be too. Although it sounds odd, the Association recommends that you practice being enthusiastic.

"It's hard to be up and positive all of the time," says CPSA president Terry Ruffell. "But successful salespeople know that enthusiasm is contagious, so no matter how tough their day is going they always put on a smile."

Other tips offered by CPSA include matching your selling style to the prospect's personality: if the buyer is practically-minded, sell pragmatically. If the buyer is socially-minded, sell using warmth, empathy and charm.

'Home Office' for the Holidays

Call the '90s, if you will, the decade of the home office — a phenomenon that finds more and more adults operating their own home-based businesses, or bringing work home from the office.

Setting up a home office can mean moving away to a better area and fewer commutes, all made possible by advances in telecommunications and computing products.

Today's home office setup can serve one or more family members, and should offer convenience with practicality and affordability. Space should be properly planned and equipment properly positioned to avoid getting the phone cord tangled up with the fax machine.

Sanyo is offering a wide range of space-saving, affordable core components to help people pick up on the home office trend. Whether you're shopping for a friend, or making a wish-list of gift ideas for yourself, home office products are a great gift idea.

Facsimile or "fax" machines have revolutionized communications technology, and doing modern business without one is certainly an outdated notion. Sanyo's SFX-30 offers the ultimate in quick, convenient document transmission and functions as a 3-in-1 telephone, facsimile and photocopy machine — all for less than $600.

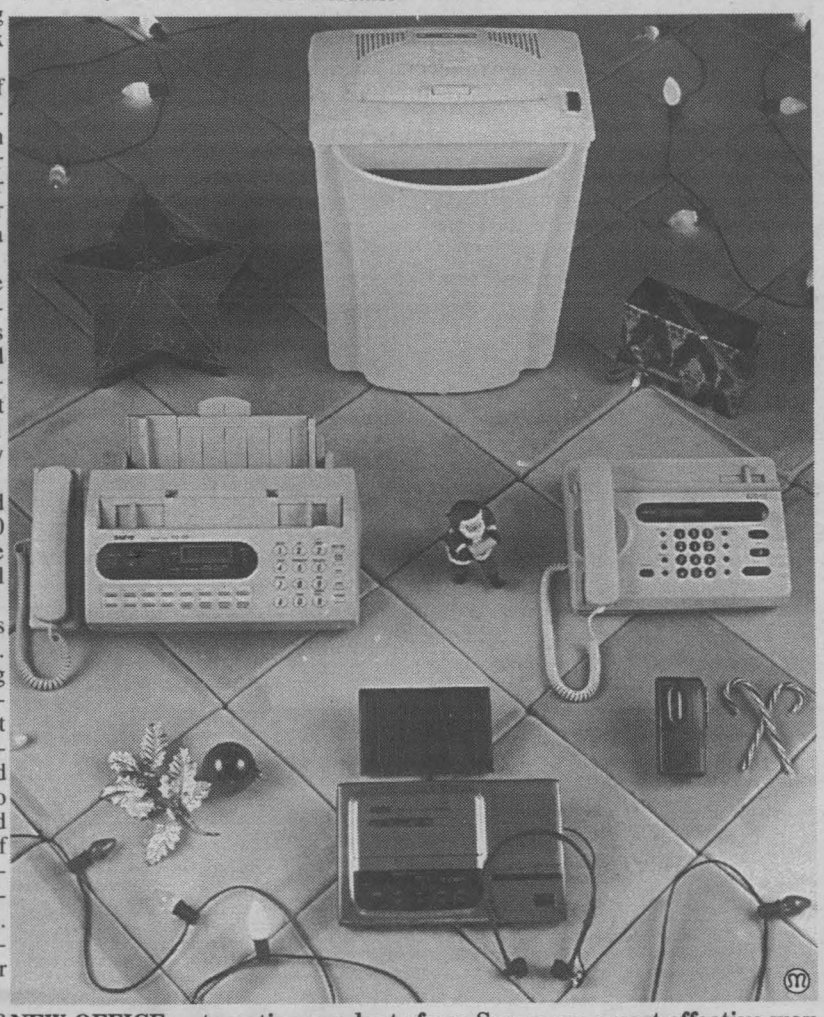
Since no one has time to stand and send a fax sheet by sheet, the SFX-30 loads up to 10 sheets at a time. The unit's 28-number one-touch speed-dial memory saves valuable time.

Shredding confidential documents isn't just something unique to politics. More and more businesses are using automatic paper shredders as a foolproof security measure. Dad can use it in his home office to shred old confidential bank statements, credit card statements and legal papers. Sanyo offers the SBS-620 shredder (priced at about $330) that is capable of shredding nine sheets of 20-pound letter-size bond paper into thin, unreadable ¼-inch strips in just 2.6 seconds. The shredder sports an automatic sensor switch that starts upon paper insertion and stops after shredding.

Another handy office product is the personal microcassette recorder. Pocket-sized recorders offer the business person the assurance that a word won't be missed at important meetings, or when dictating letters. Noted for its small size, Sanyo's model TRC-660M ($44.99) is a one-touch voice-activated microcassette recorder that measures a mere 2⅞ inches by 5⅝ inches by 1 inch deep. The voice-activated recorder on the model can be switched on or off.

For professional transcribing from recorded microcassette tapes, Sanyo offers a new sturdy design and foolproof operation with the TRC-5200 ($339.95). This model features feather-touch operation, high-speed erase, and a handheld microphone with single-slide control recording and playback, which allows convenient one-handed operation. With two-speed recording, a standard 60-minute microcassette can record for 120 minutes, and an automatic one-tone index search helps you quickly locate recorded materials.

For information on the new Sanyo office automation lineup, or to find a store near you carrying these products, send a self-addressed envelope to Sanyo, 21350 Lassen St., Chatsworth, CA 91311-2329.



NEW OFFICE automation products from Sanyo are a cost-effective way to run a business in the comfort of your own home.

A Holiday Tabletop How-To

Everyone loves to decorate for the holidays. Even those who feel all thumbs most of the time get inspired to make something at Christmastime. It's fun to create a tabletop decoration for the entryway or dining table to add cheer to your home. Here, Leslie Linsley, author of "Leslie Linsley's Weekend Decorating" (Warner Books), has assembled ordinary household items and revived them with a touch of creativity and new aerosol faux finishes to create a festive holiday tabletop. Here are Leslie's easy how-to hints for replicating the design in your home.

CANDLESTICKS

Use a variety of candlesticks and candle holders of different heights to create a welcoming glow and draw the eye to the tabletop. The candle holders can be made of all different materials, in clashing colors and different shapes — an aerosol faux finish will cover their flaws. (Hint: Old salt and pepper shakers can become candle holders. Simply turn them upside down, remove the stopper and finish the container with your choice of Granite, Marble or Pearlescence Finish. Then insert a slim candlestick.)

Directions: Spray the Marble Base Foundation over entire surface of the candle holders as directed on the can. (We've used Hunt Club Green and Winter White Base Foundations from Formby's Decorative Touches products alternately.) Let dry thoroughly. Next, apply the Gold Marble Highlights for a marble look.

GLASS COMPOTE BOWL/SHELL

The glass bowl was found at a yard sale. You can use a basket, ceramic dish, an old wooden salad bowl or even a plastic bowl to fill with pine cones as your centerpiece.

Directions: Spray entire surface of container with Pink Snow Pearlescent Finish. It will become iridescent. Next, spray a bunch of pine cones with Icicle Pearlescent Finish. They will look silvery pearl. After bowl and pine cones are dry, fill the bowl with the pine cones. You can even transform a shell with a coating of Pearlescent Finish.

FLOWER HOLDERS

Plain-Jane plastic cups, given a coat of iridescent Pearlescent Finish, become ideal holiday vases when filled with sprigs of holly.

After everything is thoroughly dry, simply arrange artfully on a tabletop with a little holiday greenery. Happy Holidays!

CREATE THIS STUNNING holiday tabletop design quickly and easily with expert how-to hints from Formby's Decorative Touches products.

Parents Perplexed Over Plethora of Playthings Look to Kids for Toy Picks

'Tis the season for parents to sift through the avalanche of new toys and games and brave miles of toy aisles nationwide. But parents — take heed — the task of selecting the best toy is much easier than it appears if you know where to look.

• Look for toys that encourage social skills. It's important for kids to get along with other kids. Playing with toys that require two or more players encourages children to interact with one another. Through playing, kids learn important skills, like communicating, cooperating and negotiating with others.

• Consider your child's hobbies and interests. Your child's favorite activities will provide clues to the kinds of toys he/she would enjoy. For example, a child who is fascinated by bridges and the way they are built will appreciate a construction set. Children who show an interest in science might enjoy using a junior microscope set.

• Follow age guidelines. Always look on the toy box for age recommendations. They are provided by toy manufacturers for both developmental and safety reasons, and should be taken seriously.

• Provide the power to play. For any toys that require batteries, such as hand-held games, make sure you have the right number and size of batteries. Long-lasting alkaline batteries, such as Duracell, are recommended. For even better value, look for batteries in multi-packs.

• Offer options. If you object to a toy your children choose, be honest and tell them why. Then try to offer some alternatives. You might be able to find a toy you can both agree on. For example, if your child wants an elaborate racetrack set, compromise and offer a radio control racecar.

• Select a few toys that travel well. The holiday season is a popular traveling season. Keeping your child busy during that long ride to grandmother's house can be a breeze if you bring along some well-chosen portable toys. Many toy companies now offer travel versions of their more popular games.

• Don't overlook time-tested treasures. What's hot in December may be old news by March. Time-honored favorites are always a good choice if you want to stay away from very trendy toys.

'Yule' Be Breathing Easier: Asthma-Proofing Your Home for the Holidays

The holidays usually bring warm, cozy feelings, but if you have asthma, this time of year may make you feel like The Grinch. Decorative Christmas trees, holly plants, candles and chestnuts roasting over open fires — the very symbols of the season — are also asthma triggers for about 10 million Americans.

"Many patients with asthma consider wintertime a safe harbor from asthma episodes, but that simply isn't true. During the holidays I see a significant increase in patients with asthma symptoms because of exposure to triggers such as holiday plants, decorations or even smoke from the fireplace," says William Davis, M.D., director, Allergy-Immunology Program, Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center.

Avoiding these triggers completely may not be possible, but here are some tips to keep you breathing easy during your holiday celebrations:

- Deck the halls — but not with holly. Holly may harbor mold, which can trigger an asthma episode. Instead of holly, try a string of lights, festive ribbons or beaded garland to set that holiday mood.
- Avoid poinsettia plants, and, alas, even mistletoe. While festive, they can promote mold growth and collect dust if not properly maintained. Mold and dust are major culprits in asthma.
- Choose unscented festive candles; their scented counterparts can irritate the airways and trigger an asthma episode.
- A roaring fire may feel great on a cold winter's night, but if you have asthma, keep the fireplace off limits. Smoke and ash may trigger an episode.
- Keep your fireplace flue open, except in the coldest weather. An open flue disperses airborne asthma triggers.
- Ask smokers to enjoy their pipes, cigars and cigarettes outside.
- Place oranges studded with cloves in bowls, instead of potpourri, throughout the house.
- Minimize dust dispersal by using a damp mop, rather than a dust mop or broom, when you are cleaning the house for holiday guests.
- Choose an artificial tree, as real evergreens carry pollen residue that can provoke mild to severe asthma episodes. Artificial trees are just as authentic looking as their natural counterparts, and they last years longer.
- Use a box of baking soda in the room to absorb stale odors in place of that "natural evergreen scent" in a can.
- Wear a scarf or bandanna over your nose and mouth if you are bringing the holiday decorations down from a dusty attic. Better yet, trade chores with someone else.
- Be sure to have your inhaled beta-agonist (e.g., albuterol — Proventil® or Ventolin®) on hand as rescue medication in the event of an acute asthma episode. If you are taking an inhaled anti-inflammatory agent such as nedocromil sodium (Tilade®), or triamcinolone acetonide (Azmacort®), an inhaled corticosteroid, continue to take your medication as prescribed by your physician even during symptom-free periods. Anti-inflammatory therapy helps manage inflammation — the underlying cause of asthma.

For more information about asthma, and to receive a free brochure, "Living With Asthma: Guidelines for a Healthy Lifestyle," write to The Asthma Information Center, P.O. Box 790, Springhouse, PA 19477-0790.

Quick and Easy Christmas Decorating Ideas

It's exciting to think about decorating the house for the holidays. But most of us don't have the time to do half of what we'd like. For Leslie Linsley, author of "Leslie Linsley's Weekend Decorating: 1001 Quick Home Decorating Ideas, Tips and How-To's" (Warner Books; $9.99), holiday decorating is a snap. Following you'll find an exciting selection of Leslie's sensational, seasonal ideas for adding holiday cheer to your home.

HOLIDAY TABLE

1. Create a shimmering centerpiece by spraying an ordinary glass fruit bowl with a silver Pearlescence finish, then fill with silver pine cones. Add sprigs of real holly or evergreens and fake berries.
2. Spruce up old wooden or ceramic candlestick holders in minutes with green or white base coat, covered with silver or gold marbleizing veins such as Formby's Decorative Touches Marble Highlights. Place them on each side of the centerpiece.

LIGHT UP THE HALLWAY

Create a welcome glow in the hallway. Loop a wide, plaid taffeta ribbon around a wreath of greens and place it on a table. Fill the center with fat, red candles of varying heights.

SCENT-SATIONAL

Pierce lemons and limes around the middle with cloves and set in clay saucers. Fill a small vase, basket or white bowl with cinnamon sticks tied with plain red ribbons and set on the coffee table. The air will be nicely scented with the smells of Christmas.

DRESS UP YOUR PLANTS

Give ordinary plastic plant pots the look of stone with a spray granite finish such as Formby's Decorative Touches Granite. Fill several with red poinsettias and tie each pot with wide red ribbon. Group them together on the fireplace hearth or place them going up the stairs in a hallway or line them on a window sill. (These make great gifts, too.)

CANDLE, CANDLE BURNING BRIGHT

Polish red and green apples and cut a hole in the top large enough to hold a tapered candle in each. Line them on the window sill or cluster them on a table.

Warming up to winter

(NC)—Does the coming of winter make you feel like a bear? Do you wish you could just hibernate for the next few months?

Don't retreat to your den for the winter. The snowy season can be fun, if you exercise and take a few sensible precautions. The first aid and health promotion experts at St. John Ambulance would like to offer you a few tips on how to stay safe and comfortable during winter sports and other outdoor activities.

Chilling out

The most obvious thing about winter is that it's... well... cold. But we Canadians spend so much time in heated buildings and cars that we sometimes forget how hazardous cold can be. When the temperature inside your body drops below normal, you suffer from hypothermia. Cold can also damage your skin through frostbite.

To avoid the dangerous effects of cold:

Bundle up. Always wear sufficient clothing, even if you're just popping around the corner to the mail box. Layering is an effective way to trap heat without sacrificing comfort or mobility. Several layers of loose-fitting clothing—say, an undershirt, an overshirt, a sweater and a jacket—will protect you better than a big thick coat that you can't move around in.

You can lose a lot of heat from your head and extremities. You may think it's «cool» to go bareheaded. It's more than cool, it's frigid. If you think you're overheating, it's better to open your jacket than to doff your hat or gloves.

Stay dry. Avoid getting wet, even from sweating. Any moisture on the skin increases cooling by evaporation. But even wet clothing still has some insulating value. So before you take off your wet clothes wait until you're in a warm place, or you have a dry set to change into.

Stay alert. Listen to the weather forecast and try to stay inside during extreme cold or blizzards. On normal winter days, you should still limit the time you spend outdoors. Stay with a partner so you can check each other for signs of frostbite and hypothermia. If you're going outside the city, be sure to let someone know where you will be and when you plan to return.

Keep up your energy. Your body needs the right kind of fuel to keep warm. When you go on a winter excursion, take raisins, nuts and other high-energy foods to munch on at regular intervals. If you're participating in a sport, those warm-up exercises are more important than ever.

Don't push yourself to the point of fatigue and avoid tobacco and alcohol. These contribute to heat loss and increase the chances of injury caused by the cold.

WINTER FIRST AID AND SAFETY TIPS

First aid for frostbite

Frostbite makes the skin white, waxy and numb; actual ice crystals have formed under the skin which causes the tissue to harden.

To relieve frostbite, warm the area gradually with body heat. Do not rub; you could damage the skin. If body parts are actually frozen, get the victim to a hospital. Don't attempt thawing unless medical aid is far away and there is no danger of refreezing. If there are blisters, cover them with sterile bandages (very gently, to avoid breaking the blisters). Get medical help as soon as you can.

Hypothermia

The signs of hypothermia are shivering, slurred speech, stumbling and drowsiness. In the later stages, the person may stop shivering and actually feel deceptively warm to the touch. Unless the victim gets help, he or she may lose consciousness and eventually stop breathing. If you suspect that someone has hypothermia, remove him or her to shelter. If this isn't immediately possible, cover the person and make sure their head is wrapped. Be gentle: sudden movement or rough handling may upset their heart rhythm. Remove any wet clothing and wrap the victim in warm covers. Rewarm neck, chest, abdomen and groin—but not the arms and legs. It is best to apply direct body heat. If the person is conscious you can give warm drinks other than alcohol or coffee. Monitor the victim's breathing; if it stops, perform artificial respiration or ask a trained person to do so. Call for medical aid. If you must transpôrt the person, try to keep them in a horizontal position and remember to do so carefully.

Don't be afraid to join the fun this winter. It could leave you with warm memories that last all year.

St. John Ambulance teaches first aid, CPR and health promotion with an emphasis on injury prevention. For more information about cold injuries and first aid, contact your local St. John Ambulance office.

SPARTA Progress Report

"SPARTA Visioning sessions in North Dundas and Cornwall have been well-attended and energetic," SPARTA Chariman Gilles Metivier reported recently. "I would say enthusiasm, wisdom and creativity are the characteristics of the first two SPARTA community workshops."

120 politicians, students, entrepreneurs, community activists and concerned citizens have taken part in the SPARTA Visioning sessions in Winchester and Cornwall.

"It is very reassuring to see how many people want to improve our communities and to take part in the process that we hope will achieve such change," said Metivier. "The politicians who attended have certainly gotten an earful. People are starting to speak out; if the politicians are to have any credibility and impact, they have to actively listen to their electors."

Vision statements emerging from the workshops will serve as a basis for community initiatives in the coming year and for some years to follow.

"The intention of SPARTA is to serve as a catalyst to bring people together to develop actual projects. We are hoping that their sense of unanimity will cause people to believe that they can achieve these projects, simply because they realize that other people share their vision," Metivier added.

Comments by participants:

"This session educated us; we feel there will be real, tangible results."

"This is a chance for making a difference."

"An excellent day! Great chance to network with people from the area, all with strong community interest. Kept on track."

"Politicians have to listen to us."

"It opened my eyes to what the community could possibly need in the future."

The village VET
Dr. Paul McCutcheon

Your pet's annual exam

Like their owners, dogs and cats should have a thorough physical examination once a year and any time there are signs of illness.

Your veterinarian will look, feel and listen to various parts of the pet's body to assess its condition and take a history from the owner. Report things such as appetite, digestion, activity level, and any other concerns.

Vet runs hands over the pet's entire body including legs, chest and abdomen feeling for any abnormal signs.

EXAM COVERS...
- Ear, eyes, mouth and teeth.
- Coat and skin.
- Heart and chest.
- Other internal organs like kidneys, testicles, thyroid gland and lymph nodes.
- Taking temperature, pulse and breathing rate.
- Assessment of animal's general demeanor – is it responsive and lively or lethargic?
- Fecal test for internal parasites such as roundworms.

Signs for concern
- Unusual lumps anywhere in the body.
- Behavior change, for instance lethargy.
- Recurrent infections, such as in ears.
- Bleeding gums, inability to eat, lack of appetite.
- Sudden weight loss.
- Coughing and/or sudden weight gain.

Look closely and you'll probably recognize a familiar face– a neighbour, an old schoolmate, a friend. Lahaie & Sullivan's three decades of service to Cornwall families has proven that compassion and caring always outlasts the change that the years inevitably bring.

Inflation seems to be one of those changes that just won't stop. Look at today's costs for college. For new cars and houses. Land. Don't you wish you could have frozen these costs years ago when prices were much lower?

Lahaie & Sullivan realizes that funeral expenses are no exception to the laws of inflation. That's why we offer plans to help you freeze today's funeral costs at their current rates. And for your convenience, you can even make easy installments on your prearrangement plan. Besides, wouldn't it be comforting to know your family won't be met with unexpected costs?
