Kinsmen Concert of The Stars

The Kinsmen Club of Cornwall will host the 43rd Annual Concert of the Stars, this Sunday, May 25th.

"Everyone is invited to join us to watch the performances of the selected entrants nominated by the adjudicators for outstanding performances" said Kim Baird, Chairperson for the Kinsmen Music Festival. "All these students are selected from the Kinsmen Music Festival held in April and May.

Admission is free and the concert starts at 7 p.m. at Aultsville Hall.

Once again this year, Roger's Community 11 will salute our young musical stars and will be taping the evening's events.

Community 11 is your local cable station and the only service where you can see the events that happen in your community on television. On Community 11 your neighbours and friends are producing shows that showcase our community's interests and events just like the "Concert of the Stars".

"It's an evening that reflects the great talent we have here in Cornwall and area" said Baird. "It's an event the Kinsmen are proud to present free to this community." Don't miss it!

Lilac Festival Blooms Saturday, May 31st

The Lilac Festival Committee announced its final program for the 4th Annual Lilac Festival to be held in and around Lamoureux Park on May 31st.

Lilacs planted in 1993 are expected to be blooming. The committee suggests that people interested in enjoying the blossoms should take a walk around the marina area and the parking lot east of the clock tower. With this years planting, there will be about 1300 lilacs of 68 varieties in Lamoureux Park.

There are several new activities planned this year to provide fun and entertainment. Canada Trust is sponsoring Jazz Band Showcase as the first activity of the day. Other new activities will include Cornwall General Hospital Foundation Bedrace and Marina 200 decorated flotilla sail pass.

The parade will start from the East Parking lot of the Civic Complex and move north on Sydney Street to Third Street, turn west to Pitt Street, down south to Water Street and back to the Civic Complex. The parade is expected to take one hour to pass through. This could create some delays for the traffic in the area.

The program for the day is as follows:

9:30 am - 11:30 am: Canada Trust High School Band Showcase (Bandshell).

10:00 am - 6:00 pm: Children's games and Youth activities (Lamoureux Park).

11:00 am - 7:00 pm: Food Stalls Open (Lamoureux Park).

12 Noon - 1:00 pm: Parade (starts at East Parking Lot Civic Complex).

1:30 pm - 2:30 pm: General Hospital Bed Races (East Parking Lot Civic Complex).

1:30 pm - 4:30 pm: Entertainment at Cornwall Square ... • Square Dancers • Cornwall Cloggers • McCullough Dancers • Blessed Sacrament Choir.

1:30 pm - 5:00 pm: Entertainment at the Bandshell ... • Blessed Sacrament Choir • Cornwall Gymnastic Club • S.D. & G. Highlanders • Glengarry Old Time Fiddlers • Top Hat Dance School.

2:00 pm - 3:00 pm: Model airplane flying demonstration (east of Marina 200)

3:00 pm - 4:00 pm: Decorated Boat Flotilla Sail Pass (behind Civic Complex).

7:00 pm - 9:00 pm: Entertainment at the Bandshell ... • Country Music Singer - Joy C. Lynn • Studio C Dancers with a rendition of Joseph and the Amazing Technicolour Dream coat Mega-Mix.

Attractions for Children: Pony ride, plane ride, Kiddy whip, Indy 4 Kids, Jolly Rogers pirate ship, face painting and more.

Young and Young at Heart: Bungee Run, Human Spheres.

Variety of foods ... come and enjoy with us!

Advances in Cataract Treatment Mean Faster Recovery

(NC)—Cataracts are the most common vision problem among Canada's aging population. Studies have shown that about 50 percent of the Canadian population over the age of 60 have a cataract and the vast majority of Canadians will have some cataract formation by the age of 70.

Medical experts are urging cataract sufferers to ask their doctors about a significant new development in cataract surgery, the recently available ACRYSOF® acrylic foldable IOL (intraocular lens). The fields of medicine and technology are working together to keep aging Canadians healthy, active and independent.

No more need for needles or stitches

"This is of utmost interest to patients because we can now create a much smaller incision through which we insert the acrylic foldable IOL," says Dr. Mintsioulis, ophthalmologist and Associate Professor at the internationally renowned University of Ottawa Eye Institute at the Ottawa General Hospital. "The procedure may not require needles or stitches and after the operation, many of the patients will immediately note improvement in their eyes. The entire healing process is much faster."

As cataracts form, they cloud the eyes' natural lens and vision gradually blurs. Bright lights become bothersome. Vibrant colours seem faded or washed out. If left untreated, cataracts can lead to total blindness. Cataract surgery involves removing the cloudy lens from an afflicted eye and replacing it with an artificial version, the IOL. The replacement lens is permanent and requires no special care.

For years, the standard IOL was rigid, restricting ophthalmologists as to how small an incision they could create during surgery. With the new acrylic foldable IOL, the incision can be half the size (around 3 mm, or about half the width of a pencil eraser). For patients, this means no stitches or needles and a faster recovery time.

Though cataracts may be caused by eye injuries, diabetes, kidney disease and occasionally hereditary factors, they generally occur as part of the natural aging process. There is no way to prevent cataracts and once they appear, no way to stop their progress.

A change in eyeglass prescription may combat the problem for awhile, but cataract surgery is the only solution. Today, the operation is so easy that patients can go home within hours after surgery.

Shopping For a Home in Cyberspace

(NC) - You are being transferred from Toronto to British Columbia and you have less than a month to find a new home.

•Solution: You can look for your new home on the Internet at the very moment you learn of your move.

• Searching for a house in cyberspace is now possible through the online Multiple Listing Service® sponsored by The Canadian Real Estate Association on behalf of its members.

• When you type the MLS® Online address, http://www.mls.ca, you will land on the MLS® home page. It contains a series of easy-to-understand icons or buttons to help you navigate through the system.

• You can search for properties by area, type, price, number of bedrooms and bathrooms.

• Once you've made your choice on a particular property, it is easy to contact the REALTOR. There is usually an e-mail link directly to the REALTOR, along with his or her phone number.

• The Canadian Real Estate Association (CREA) is one of Canada's largest single-industry trade associations, representing approximately 70,000 real estate brokers/agents and salespeople working through 116 real estate boards, 10 provincial associations and one territorial association.

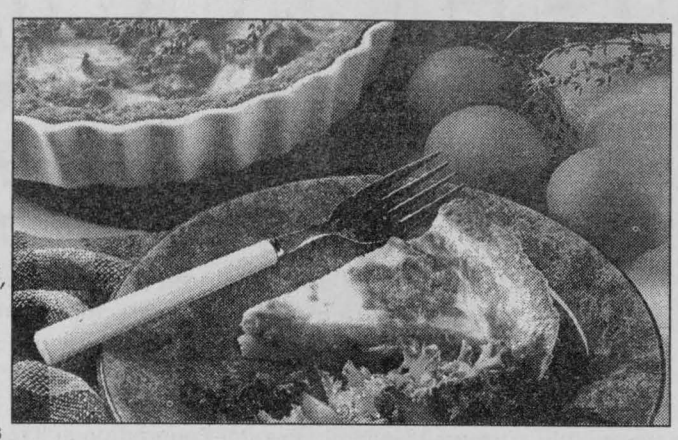
Bacon and Double Cheese Quiche



Paired with a tossed green salad, this full-flavored quiche makes an excellent lunch.

30 minutes preparation, 30 minutes chilling, 45 minutes baking
Makes 8 servings

Crust:
1-1/3 cups all-purpose flour
1/8 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup (1 stick) chilled butter, cut into small pieces
2-3 tablespoons cold water

Filling:
10 strips lean bacon
4 large eggs
1 1/2 cups light cream
1/4 teaspoon dried thyme
1/8 teaspoon white pepper
1/2 cup shredded Gruyère cheese (about 2 ounces)
1/2 cup shredded white Cheddar cheese (about 2 ounces)

1. To prepare the crust, in a large bowl, mix together the flour and salt. Using a pastry blender of 2 knives, cut in the butter until coarse crumbs form.

2. Add water, 1 tablespoon at a time, tossing with a fork, until a dough forms. Shape into a disk, wrap in plastic wrap, and chill in refrigerator for 30 minutes.

3. Preheat oven to 375°F. On a lightly floured surface, using a lightly floured rolling pin, roll the dough into 11-inch circle. Fit into 9-inch pie pan. Trim edge, leaving 1/4 inch overhang. Fold under to form standup edge. Prick dough with a fork. Line with foil and fill with pie weights or dried beans.

4. Bake for 10 minutes. Remove the foil and weights. Bake until lightly golden, about 5 minutes. Transfer to a wire rack to cool.

5. Meanwhile, prepare filling. In a medium skillet, cook the bacon over medium heat until crisp, 8 to 10 minutes. Transfer to a paper towel to drain.

6. In a small bowl, whisk together the eggs, cream, thyme, and pepper. Pour into crust. Crumble bacon. Sprinkle the egg mixture with the bacon, Gruyère cheese, and Cheddar cheese. Bake until golden and custard is set, about 30 minutes. Serve warm.

Baking tips

To freeze: Cool baked quiche completely, wrap airtight, and freeze for up to 1 month.

Home Buying Tips

(NC) - Here are a few helpful tips you can follow on your next search for a new home. They're brought to you by The Canadian Real Estate Association.

• WRITE DOWN WHAT YOU WANT

• Begin your search by listing your needs. Here are a few suggestions to get you started:

• living requirements (i.e. how many bedrooms and bathrooms) size and type of house, (two story, bungalow, split level) what you're bringing with you from your old home proximity to schools, shopping and other services the size of down payment you can afford; and price range

• It's important to be realistic when you're thinking about a down payment and setting a price range. You don't want to be saddled with something you can't afford. Once you've have an understanding of what you want, it's a good time to talk things over with a REALTOR.

• Only a REALTOR has access to the Multiple Listing Service (MLS)®. A REALTOR can search the MLS® for a home based on your needs: choice of neighbourhood, price range, proximity to schools, and other services. He or she will come up with a list of suitable properties. Each property listing includes a description as well as a photo. After viewing these property feature sheets, arrange with your REALTOR to visit those properties that interest you most.

• You can also view MLS® property advertisements on the Internet. The address is http://www.mls.ca. It features area maps, color photographs of available properties and has e-mail links to the listing REALTORS. After viewing the properties you have selected from the MLS® Internet site, ask your REALTOR to arrange to visit.

What the College of Nurses Does for You

(NC)—You expect safe, effective, and ethical nursing care. So does the College of Nurses of Ontario (CNO).

The College sets the framework for the practice and professional behaviour of the nurses in Ontario. Its mission is to "regulate nursing to protect the public interest."

The College is the governing body for Ontario's 140,000 registered nurses (RNs) and registered practical nurses (RPNs). All nurses practising in Ontario must hold a current College Certificate of Registration. CNO protects your interests through three key activities. First, it makes sure all nurses meet the requirements to enter the profession.

Second, CNO sets standards for practice and professional behaviour. "Standards" describe the expectations for providing quality care. RNs and RPNs are accountable to the College. They are responsible for meeting standards and required to engage in quality assurance to continually improve their skills and competence to keep up with changes in the profession, health care system, society, and technology.

And third, the College enforces standards of conduct and practice by investigating complaints when standards are not being met. If necessary, action is taken, ranging from a reprimand to removing the nurse's right to practise.

The College's authority to govern nursing is granted under the Regulated Health Professions Act and the Nursing Act. The profession has been self-regulating since 1963.

The College of Nurses of Ontario regulates Ontario's 140,000 registered nurses and registered practical nurses to protect the public interest. For more information, please call toll-free 1 (800) 387-5526, Extension 327.

Why Extract Wisdom Teeth?

An impacted wisdom tooth is one which is for various reasons, prevented from its normal eruption. Over thousands of years of evolution, humans are developing smaller jaws and the space for these third molars (wisdom teeth) is not always available. Most people will develop four wisdom teeth, however it is common to see individuals congenitally missing one or more wisdom teeth.

These teeth usually erupt in the late teens and early twenties, however if space is lacking the widsom teeth may not erupt at all or may partly cut through the gum and remain in this position. Food and bacteria are able to enter under the gum flap and create an infection called periocoronitis, which is probably the most common problem seen with wisdom teeth. Your dentist will often recommend extractions because pericoronitis commonly re-occurs and has the potential to cause serious complications. The advantages of early removals is that over time your teeth become more firmly anchored in your jaw bone as their roots lengthen and the bone becomes more dense. An extremely easy removal in a young person can become a complicated surgical procedure later on in life, often requiring the expertise of an oral surgeon. Furthermore, a young person heals better and recuperates faster. In fact, early removal of upper wisdom teeth can be one of the simplest surgical procedures a dentist performs.

Whether wisdom teeth cause your mouth harm depends on several factors, including the size of your jaw as well as the direction your wisdom teeth choose to grow. If left to grow horizontally instead of vertically, it may push against adjacent teeth possibly causing crowding or/and it may damage the adjacent tooth, which sometimes results in the loss of two teeth instead of one. A fully impacted tooth can sometimes cause a cyst to form, which can grow to destroy large areas of bone. Lastly, remember that even fully grown and properly erupted wisdom teeth are often removed because they are difficult to clean resulting in extensive decay.

Finally, remember that your dentist will often recommend early removals of your wisdom teeth before you develop any of the above mentioned symptoms and complications. Please feel free to discuss the status of your wisdom teeth with your dentist.

Is it time to clean up for spring???

Medication Angina Treatment

(NC)—Angina is a warning to see your doctor, who can conduct risk tests. In low risk patients, the treatment usually involves close monitoring, use of anti-anginal agents and risk modification (i.e. eating properly, being physically active, not smoking and controlling blood pressure and cholesterol levels).

If your doctor prescribes medication to control angina, it will probably be one of the following:

NITROGLYCERIN, which can quickly relieve the discomfort of anginal attacks.

BETA BLOCKING DRUGS, which prevent the heart from beating too fast and reduce its demand for blood.

CALCIUM CHANNEL BLOCKERS, which work two ways: They improve the flow of blood by decreasing resistance in blood vessels and they reduce the heart's demand for fuel (oxygen).

Interac Direct Payment–It's Cheaper Than You Think

(NC)—These days you can use your bank card to pay for everything from your pet iguana's annual checkup to a canoe ride in a provincial park. Interac Direct Payment (IDP) is a safe, quick and easy way to make virtually any purchase.

MONEY TALK

There are more than 250,000 Interac Direct Payment terminals in over 180,000 merchant locations across the country. Although millions of Canadians now use IDP, some may not be taking full advantage of its benefits because of misconceptions about the cost. They may be confusing the charges for using IDP with those for withdrawing cash from bank machines of financial institutions other than their own.

Suppose you hold an account in Bank A and withdraw money at Bank B's bank machine (usually for sake of convenience). There is a charge for this service, usually $1 or more. On the other hand, when you use your bank card to pay directly for a purchase or service, you pay the bank's regular electronic transaction fee—it can range from 25 to 45 cents. At CIBC for instance, this fee is waived for customers who maintain a minimum amount in their accounts each month or have a flat fee account.

The IDP transaction fee is actually less expensive than most cheques—and a lot more convenient. Imagine:

- no more last-minute dashes to the branch or bank machine;
- no need to carry large amounts of cash;
- no need to produce ID and go through a lengthy, involved approval process to write a cheque.

SEAWAY NEWS ADVERTORIAL

THIS MONTH

B&D Small Engines

Meet Bob & Colette Beaudry - owners of B&D Small Engines. Their business is located on Tenth Street East (east of McConnell Ave.)

B&D sells fishing boats, pleasure boats and speed boats by Larrivée and Mirrocraft as well as Sportspal canoes and Contour paddleboats. Outboard motors by Mariner and inboard/outboard by Mercruiser complete your pleasure on a sunny afternoon.

Lawn and garden products - lawnmowers, and lawn tractors (Toro, Ariens, Poulan Pro) trimmers (Homelite, Maruyama, McCullough) and chainsaws (Jonsered, Homelite, McCullough) round out their full line of products.

Bob started his career in 1958 working in a local business fixing small engines - lawnmowers, outboards, snowmobiles, etc.

On Jan 9, 1980 he & Colette in partnership with Duke and Claudette Decoste proudly opened their own business – B&D Small Engines Ltd. located on Carleton Street.

After 10 years, Duke & Claudette decided to retire and Bob & Colette assumed full ownership. By this time, business had progressed to the point where they required more space and thus a move was on the way - to their present location at 1440 Tenth Street East. A bigger showroom, better service space and a huge fenced in yard made for a much more efficient workplace.

Bob sells and services his equipment. Colette handles the books, paperwork, etc. Their son, Dan joined the business when he was 16 - working part time as he finished school and now full time following in Dad's footsteps. Bob & Colette employ 3 full time service technicians. Bob believes that servicing his customers is the most important part of his business. A happy customer keeps on coming back. To keep the level of service at its best, Bob and his staff attend seminars yearly to stay current with the changes in products and are re-certified every 2 years. They have the proud accomplishment of receiving the "Service Excellence Award" every year since 1983.

Regular maintenance will in the long run save the customer hundreds of dollars. "You can extend the life of your lawnmower by years if you change the oil and air filter every year". A tune-up every second year will catch a lot of minor problems before they turn into major ones.

Boat motors should be tuned up every year. Water pump, spark plugs, fuel filter and gear oil are some of the parts that require a regular check. Bob offers free winter storage of your outboard with your tune-up every fall and will keep a full maintenance service record for you.

Bob has seen some great changes in products through the last 39 years with better motors, pollution controls and first and foremost many safety features to protect the customer.

Easy financing makes major purchases more affordable

If you are looking for friendly, honest and knowledgeable people to do business with, drop in and meet Bob and Colette.

Health à la Carte

(Cornwall) Restaurant patrons may be in for a tax-free, calorie-free treat on May 31: a healthy helping of fresh air.

Throughout the five counties, restaurant owners are being invited to join in a unique challenge: to be smoke-free on May 31, World No Tobacco Day.

The Eastern Ontario Health Unit (EOHU) which is spearheading the campaign, is hoping a good cross-section of restaurants per county will participate in the effort. "The aim is to raise awareness of the serious effects of Environmental Tobacco Smoke on children, not only in the home but in public places too, such as in restaurants," said Roch Denis of EOHU.

"Everyone could and should benefit from this idea. The patrons get to enjoy a meal in a healthy, smoke-free environment, and restaurant owners get the opportunity to satisfy a growing segment of the market," says Denis.

Public demand for smoke-free environments is backed up by 1996 survey of the five counties.

In Alexandria, 65 per cent of respondents to a 1996 EOHU Survey on Public Attitudes Towards Smoking said they strongly or somewhat supported full service restaurants becoming smoke free.

In Vankleek Hill 63 per cent of respondents to a 1996 EOHU Survey on Public Attitudes Towards Smoking said they strongly or somewhat supported full service restaurants becoming smoke free.

In Winchester, 64 per cent of respondents to a 1996 EOHU Survey on Public Attitudes Towards Smoking said they strongly or somewhat supported full service restaurants becoming smoke free.

"As far as we know, this is the first campaign of its kind in this area. We're hoping to show others that while this area has one of highest rate of smokers in the province, we're not about to simply throw in the towel and give up. This is a chance for the entire community to help turn the stats around," said Denis.

Participating restaurants will also be featured in local advertising and promotions, at no cost to the owners. Blue ribbons, symbolizing clear, healthy lungs will be available (at participating restaurants and pharmacies) throughout the campaign.

To participate in the Smoke Free day, or for more information about tobacco issues call the Health Line at 1-800-267-0852 or your local EOHU office.

"Distinct Society:" Here We Go Again

PERSPECTIVE

By Bob Roth
SEAWAY NEWS

It never fails. The public wants to talk about jobs and the economy. The politicians want to talk about the constitution.

Once again the issue of "national unity" has become a hot button item in the federal election campaign. It didn't start out that way. With Canada's unemployment rate running at close to 10 per cent, all of the political parties left the starting gate talking about jobs and/or deficit fighting.

Over the past week, thanks largely to Quebec-based Jean Charest, "national unit" has become a focal point of debate. Among other things, Charest wants to re-introduce the "distinct society" notion back into our constitutional contortions. Of course, he is doing this purely in the interests of "national unity." It has nothing to do with the fact that the Conservatives are trying to pick up votes in Quebec by gnawing away at the fast decaying carcass of the failing Bloc Quebecois campaign.

Unfortunately, Charest's notion of "national unity" focuses almost entirely on Quebec. "Distinct society" is not a phrase, for example that unites Westerners; it infuriates them.

In the true spirit of political arrogance that typifies so many of our federal leaders, Mr. Charest feels he knows better than the people. Didn't we just have a national referendum a few years ago - at a cost of millions of dollars - over something called the Meech Lake Accord? And wasn't that accord rejected overwhelmingly by Canadians? And wasn't one reason for that rejection that many Canadians outside of Quebec rejected the notion that some Canadians should be declared more "distinct" than others? If Quebec is a "distinct society," what are the rest of us? Indistinct?

This fast-unfolding debate once again underscores the failure of Canadian politics. We have an economy in need of retuning to meet the needs of the next century and we are talking about breaking up or holding the nation together over a turn of phrase. At least that's what Mr. Charest contends. After all, he and his supporters argue that recognizing Quebec as a "distinct society" is merely recognizing reality. Quebec has a different language, culture and legal system. It is, therefore, "distinct."

And indeed it is.

Just as British Columbia now has the distinction of being the first province in Canada where the second most-spoken language is Mandarin. And what about the distinctive nature of Alberta, where the collective farming activities - and impressive economic strides - of the Hutterites is unique to our nation? And what of the distinctiveness of Newfoundland, where the bulk of the populace are linked inextricably to a marine way of life?

And what about our Native communities? Surely they are "distinct" in every way that Quebec claims to be.

Either we are all equal as Canadians or we are not. Each of us is "distinct" in our own way and the attempt to elevate some Canadians to a higher level of distinctiveness is a grotesque venture into the realm of ethnic superiority.

There is, of course, an insidious contradiction in what the distinct society proponents are saying. On the one hand, they say such a declaration would really have no meaning, that we would just be recognizing reality. On the other hand, they are implying that the issue is so important that the country will break up over it. Think about it. Does this make an ounce of sense?

Little wonder that some people see a hidden agenda with "distinct society." Aside from the moral issue, there is a genuine fear of how the course would interpret "distinct society" if imbedded in the constitution. Would Quebec be considered to have extra "distinct" powers - powers to obliterate the English language, for example?

Preston Manning put the other party chiefs on the spot during the leader's debate when he said he would support the declaration of "distinct society" providing that the constitutional clause also specifically stipulated that the phrase was in no way to be interpreted as granting extra legal or constitutional powers to Quebec.

Interestingly, he could not get the agreement.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

An Open Letter to Jean Chretien

Dear Mr. Chretien:

You and your Liberal Party are in collusion with the drug companies at the expense of the Canadian people. You are repaying the drug companies' financial support to the Liberal Party of Canada by ordering the Health Ministry to classify herbs and vitamins as drugs. Small businesses that depend on the sale of these products will not be able to afford the exorbitant classification fee for each product and will go bankrupt. The products will then be unavailable to the ever increasing number of Canadians that rely on them. Of course, this is exactly what your drug company friends want - force the competition out of business.

Vitamin prices will skyrocket - $60 for a bottle of Vitamin C will be the norm. The money will be coming out of the already strapped, hard working peoples' pockets to accommodate your drug company backers.

This act by you and your party represents the ugly side of democracy - rule by special interest groups. In the language of the 90's, this activity is definitely not in the public interest.

As an acupuncture practitioner for 22 years, my patients and I rely on these products to complement the treatments. Since 1973, I have consulted with an M.D. only twice - both times for injury related problems. I've cost the Medical Plan about $50 in 24 years - an average of two bucks a year. Considering that we pay a premium for medical coverage in B.C., I have actually cost the plan nothing.

You will not pull your scam on us! We will fight you vigorously until we win.

Yours sincerely,
Grant Smith,
Acupuncturist,
Vancouver, British Columbia.

Is Roth Having an Identity Crisis?

Dear Editor:

Reading Bob Roth's dissertation re: dropping family incomes (Seaway News, May 18th edition) while the rich get richer, leaves one wondering whether the poor fellow is having an identity crisis. Given the possibility of Quebec separation and a subsequent devaluation of the Canadian dollar, a topic Bob Roth has at length expounded on, can he really blame those who have money for investing a portion of it off shore. Given that the biggest investors on the Toronto Stock Exchange are labour union pension funds, followed by the mutual funds which comprise the savings and investments of ordinary working folk, guess who Canada's biggest foreign investors are? One union pension fund had several million dollars in the recent BRE-X fiasco, but that only totalled one-fifth of one percent of their total portfolio!

The biggest culprit for moving Canadian wealth offshore, however, are the Federal and Provincial governments, making interest payments on their accumulated debts. I'm sure Mr. Roth is aware that there was much squandering and waste of financial resources by various levels of governments, often on endeavours that were frivolous to begin with. We may recall the early 1980's when the government commandeered such proportions of capital that the interest rates and inflation rates went through the ceiling, yet it was the baby-boomers who were blamed for setting off this crisis by their excess borrowing from the banks. But the Federal and Provincial governments didn't only borrow excessively at home, the bulk of the borrowing was done offshore, so we are now indebted to central banks in Germany, Japan, Korea, Taiwan and the U.S.A.

While it was interesting for Mr. Roth to decry the massive corporate layoffs of the 1990's, when the national unemployment rate hovered at 10 per cent, the unemployment rate hovered at over 12 per cent during the early 1980's prior to corporate downsizing and these massive layoffs. While Mr. Roth may find corporate and bank profits contentious, it is through hidden and indirect taxation that 55 per cent of bank profits and between 35 and 55 per cent of corporate profits ends up in the hands of the state. Where would revenue come from if no bank and no corporation operated at a profit and where would Canada's social programs be then?

Perhaps after taking a break and savouring the full bodied taste and delightful aroma of the product of a Columbian plantation, Mr. Roth will be back to his old self and over his relapse back into an ideology he has claimed to have abandoned. Or doesn't Mr. Roth like Columbian coffee!

Harry Valentine,
Cornwall.

Give Reform a Chance!

Dear Editor:

It's quite interesting watching the debates on TV and the leader's trying to gain points. The Liberals will do almost anything to hang onto power - Mr. Chretien inferring the Bloc cannot speak for the english majority of Quebec.

This brings to mind the fact that it was the Liberals who made it law to teach French in the rest of Canada at a cost of billions, now they are saying the French in Quebec is a minority.

The voters have the chance on June 2nd to start to get this country in order by dumping the Liberals.

It should be quite clear to the people that the present system is not going to work any longer. And the two old parties can take the blame for the situation. Canada is in today. The Liberals being the worst.

Remember when the oil wells all shut down in the west a number of years ago? This was rotten politics being played by the Liberals. The west was to the greater part Conservative country. Under Trudeau, that was not satisfactory, so the Feds shut down the Federally controlled oil wells and brought in oil at a greater cost from the Arabs.

The economy went down.

The people turned against them and voted liberal.

Every effort is being made now to defeat the Bloc and the Reform. The two old parties would like to do away with all the other parties. The two party system gives them control, but really, they are one and the same.

The central government needs to be cut way down in size. They cannot be all things to all the people.

They have a roll to play and it should be confined to a federal roll only. The provinces have to have more control over their affairs. The same goes for local municipal politics.

There is regional differences in Canada and these differences can be better addressed at the Provincial levels, had this been done years ago we would not be in the trouble we are in today.

The central government is trying to be Robin Hood, taking the money from the people dishing it out and giving it away to make it count the most for votes so they can stay in power. It's actually in reverse from Robin Hood, they take from the poor and give to the rich.

Canada has to be restructured, the big grabs by the Feds has to come to an end. More money has to be left in the people's pockets. Is it any wonder unions are always after more money when the Feds keep taking it. People have to have more control over what they work for. Reform is the only party trying to take the country in this direction ... give them a chance.

Adrian Gadbois,
Cornwall.

Election Thoughts

Dear Editor:

Claude McIntosh, assistant editor of the Standard Freeholder says the local liberals are on a roll. The liberal party is heavily subsidized by big banks and wealthy corporate sponsors from Bay Street. The local NDP and Reform don't stand a chance. As always, the Progressive Conservative camp is flush in money also... even though with 2 members only they have not been officially a party since the last election.

Those impressive signs you see locally are subsidized with YOUR tax dollars. A donation of $100 to any registered political party or candidate only costs one $25. He gets back a $75 deduction on the next tax return.

Although one hears a lot of grumbling about the Liberal intent to register firearms, the very lenient treatment of the criminal element by our courts and broken promises on taxes and health care cuts, unless we actively participate & financially support an opponent to this party, the local incumbent will go back into rubber-stamp the liberal agenda. The banks and major corporations on Bay Street will see that this transpires.

P.S. Our incumbent M.P. gets paid with our tax dollars throughout this campaign.

10 Good Reasons Why Not To Vote for the Liberals on June 2

1. The GST Lie -- In the last federal election campaign, the Liberals vowed to "abolish" the much-disliked GST. They swore up and down that they would get rid of the national sales tax and, despite the vague wording of the Red Book, they actually used words like "get rid of" and "abolish" the tax.

Result? They kept the GST and some of them now admit they're "sorry" for their mistake. Some mistake. More like a direct out-and-out lie.

2. The NAFTA Lie -- During that same campaign, the Liberals also agreed to either "abolish" the North American Free Trade Agreement or, after they were finally cornered about it, make substantial changes to it.

Result? NAFTA is still in place with virtually no changes to it at all. Not only that, but the Liberals are now keen to extend the treaty to much of Latin America, including Chile. This was nothing but a simple ploy designed to win an election.

3. Deficit Reduction -- Although the Conservatives failed miserably in reducing the deficit and the Liberals actually did something about it to point where the deficit is substantially reduced, they did it on the backs of the nation, using increased taxation, coupled with cuts in transfer payments to the provinces in areas such as health care.

Result? The deficit is substantially reduced but your taxes are also substantially higher. Talk about paying Peter to pay Paul.

4. The Unemployment Lie -- While taunting former PM Kim Campbell about the state of unemployment during the last federal election and while running on a platform of "jobs, jobs, jobs" the Liberals have done hardly anything to reduce the overall state of unemployment: it still hovers just below the 10 per cent mark.

Result? Unemployment hasn't gone down much in the last three and one-half years. It is still unacceptably high, almost twice as high as the rate in the United States, with the result that people are fearing for their jobs and aren't spending what they make, causing the overall state of the economy, especially in the retail sector, to be weak. We now have the worst record of unemployment numbers since the Depression.

5. Fat Pension Plans -- While the Liberals are squeezing our RRSPs and forcing seniors to cash out at age 69 instead of 71, they have done little about their own fat pension plan. While the government made some reforms in 1995, the pension plans for MPs are still twice as rich as those in the private sector.

Every Reform MP with the exception of one opted out of the plan but only three Liberals out of 177 did. While Jean Chretien promised pension reform, we're left with a plan to give the average retiring MP about $41,000 a year in pension benefits.

6. The Pearson Airport scam -- The Liberals made a silly promise to review the Conservatives' plan to privatize Pearson airport. After a hasty and ill-advised "review" by one of their own henchmen, they cancelled the contract, only to be met by a major lawsuit by the developers. They tried to pass a bill to disallow any such suit, but the Senate balked at the plan.

Result? The move, made purely on the basis of an election promise, will cost taxpayers about $1 billion within the next few years. For what reason? Nothing but pure politics. Talk about a waste of money.

MEANWHILE...

Fred Sagel

7. The Airbus fiasco -- After getting into office, the Liberals tried to blame former Prime Minister Brian Mulroney for taking kickbacks on the purchase of new Air Canada planes, a move that cost them dearly. Without as much as a scintilla of evidence, they refused to even apologize to the former PM for their government's actions.

Result? An out-of-court settlement that made the Liberals hang their head in shame after millions were spent on defending the case and paying Mr. Mulroney's legal fees. Another waste of money.

8. Increased Taxes -- Instead of promising a tax cut like the Reform or the Conservatives have done, the Liberals keep increasing the amount Canadians have to pay to the federal treasury. They've done it through "bracket creep" in income taxes and through small increases here and there.

Result? According the C.D. Howe Institute, we are paying more in taxes in 1997 that we did in 1993. Even if you adjust for inflation and population growth, the Institute says that the absolute level of taxation is one of the highest in Canada's history. The average Canadian family has to work until June 29 of each year just to pay their taxes before they start earning for themselves.

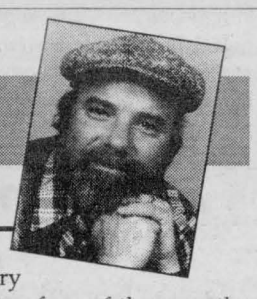
9. A Pre-Mature Election Call -- With one and one-half years to go in their mandate, the Liberals are abusing the electoral process by calling an early election. This is nothing but a political ploy. It is an expensive waste of taxpayer's money designed for selfish purposes. David Peterson learned his lesson early on this one: he suffered defeat for pulling such a stunt. And so should this crew in Ottawa.

10. The Referendum Botch-Up -- The Liberals almost lost the country in the Quebec Referendum because they barely lifted a finger to do anything about it. First, they denied any legitimacy to the whole process; next, they tried to pretend it was nothing at all and, when they were in the last week or so of the campaign, they panicked and tried to salvage what was left of the "No" vote. They lack vision and commitment to a national unity plan. If they're in power when the next referendum rolls along, how could they possibly be trusted to handle the whole thing?

Overall Result? The Liberals don't deserve re-election. Their record is abominable. They have played with taxpayers' money to ensure their own survival. The have a leader without a vision or a plan. They are like a ship without a compass. And the worst government in the last 60 years.

But, if not the Liberals, who is worth voting for? The answer comes next week.

BASIC BLACK



By Arthur Black
SEAWAY NEWS

Golf: a sport for liars, drinkers and cursers who like to walk two or three miles belabouring an object 1/45th their size with a loaded cane.

Anon

When it comes to the 'sport' of golf, I want to play in Anon's foursome. Golf's a game that can't make up its mind. As someone else once said, if you want to go for a long walk, go for a long walk. If you want to beat small objects with a stick, then beat small objects with a stick, but in the name of common decency, don't combine them. Especially not on television. Particularly when most of the principals wear plaid slacks.

Golf is perversity personified. A game where the object is to get the lowest score possible. A game in which the only trophy you get to take home is a wrinkled score card. A game in which flags are called 'pins', duckponds are called 'water hazards' and people yell "Fore!" when they mean "Look out!"

Why, golf is so twisted you can't even cheat properly! Golf involves caddies -- sullen kids you have to actually pay to follow you around all day. You come across your ball lying in the rough, say, eight or ten feet from the green. Naturally, you're inclined to maybe nudge it a little with the toe of your golf shoe -- but noooooooooo! Your rotten caddy's right there, watching every move you make.

Well, I'm happy to report that the folks in charge of the River Valley Golf and Country Club in St. Mary's, Ontario have at least taken care of that particular annoyance. Sign up to play a round at River Valley and they'll give you a caddy alright -- but it won't be some wise-cracking kid toting your bag.

It'll be a llama.

Yep, llama -- you know those South American critters about the size of a small horse? They kinda look like a sports model of a camel? The River Valley Golf and Country Club has four of them on the caddy payroll this year.

What's good about llama caddies? Well, they're strong as all getout. "A llama can easily carry two golf bags" says a club spokesman, "and they love to walk." What's more llamas are naturally toilet trained -- they don't 'go' until they find their own self-designated 'litter box.' Which means no unexpected llama-doo hazards on the fairways.

There are other advantages to llama caddies. They don't know from beans about golf, so they can't criticize your swing or tell you which iron to use. Tipping llamas is a breeze -- just give 'em a handful of grass and they'll be happier than pigs in, um, a poke.

And when it comes to discretion, llamas are better than English butlers. These guys are the ultimate in the strong and silent department. So if you do have to 'correct' the lie of your ball or knock a couple of strokes off your round, well...

Who's your llama gonna tell?

Besides, llamas can't even count.

Llamas as caddies -- a great idea! Golfers need never again face the most dreaded terror in the entire world of golf.

Caddy Humiliation.

Happened to my pal Wally just last year. Wally is an avid golfer, but not a good one. It's his temper. He loses it almost as often as he loses golf balls. And when Wally loses his temper he likes to take it out on other things. Like trees. Golf tees. And caddies.

He was having a terrible round -- and what made it worse was his caddy. He wasn't saying a word, but Wally was convinced the caddy was chuckling up his sleeve every time Wally bent over the ball. Finally he couldn't take it any more. Wally missed a putt, threw his putter in the trees turned on his caddy and screamed "And YOU! You've gotta be the worst caddy in the history of golf!"

And the caddy looked at Wally, scratched his nose and said "Nnnnaw. That would be too much of a coincidence."

Check the "Donut" to Know Your Motor Oil

(NC)—Whether you're a seasoned do-it-yourselfer or simply picking up a litre to keep in the trunk, there's a lot you can learn from the label information on every oil bottle. While it may seem to be a secret code, the information is easy to understand once you know how to read it.

The "donut" is the name for the circular marking that every bottle has on its label. Right in the centre of the circle is a marking such as SAE 10W-30. These letters and numbers tell what the thickness of the oil is at its operating temperatures. Engineers call this "viscosity". SAE stands for the Society of Automotive Engineers, who set the standards that all reputable oil manufacturers adhere to.

The numbers refer to the viscosity of the oil - the lower the number, the thinner the oil and the more easily it flows. If there is more than one number, the oil is designed to have a range of viscosity at various operating temperatures, a quality that is important in most vehicles in Canadian conditions. The first number, 10, is an index of how the oil flows at low temperatures. The second number, 30, refers to how it flows at high temperature. The W designation means the oil is suitable for winter use. Most oil sold in Canada carries this sort of multigrade rating such as Castrol GTX 10W-30.

The words API Service SH mean that the oil has passed extensive tests set by the American Petroleum Institute and several automobile manufacturers associations. It meets or exceeds the SH standard, the most recent level of protection for cars and light trucks in terms of control, oil oxidation, wear, rust protection and other qualities. The SH standard was established in 1992 and replaced the earlier SG standard. The words Energy Conserving in the lower part of the outside ring mean the oil meets the friction reducing standards of the Energy Conserving II standard of the International Lubrication Standardization Committee (ILSAC) - a joint North American-Japanese group.

The other marking you may find on an oil bottle is the Starburst symbol on the front label of good oils. It reflects that the oil in the bottle has met the API standards and also meets additional fuel economy tests. This designation is usually found on oil of lighter viscosity, such as 5W - 30 or 10W - 30.

The simple rule is to be sure your oil carries the donut symbol. It's your assurance that the oil has been registered with the American Petroleum Institute and meets its standards.

AUTO TALK

Noisy Olds

(NC) Q:—My 1982 Oldsmobile Delta 88 occasionally rides roughly and makes a rambling noise. Sometimes the noise is metallic sounding, like a wire being stretched. I've had a technician test drive it, and he did feel and hear the problem, but after looking at the components he suspected might be causing the problem, he couldn't see anything wrong. The car has 102,000 kilometres on it. Though the problem doesn't happen all the time, it is very annoying when it does happen. What do you think might be the cause?

A:—Considering the mileage and age of your car, the problem almost certainly lies in the drivetrain. The transmission, transmission mounts, the rear axle and mounts and the engine mounts should all be considered suspect components. You might even suggest to a technician to check the torque converter mounts. The mounting plate could have flexed over time, allowing the converter to rub against the inside of the transmission. This would create a metallic sound as you described.

Hot Ciera

(NC) Q:—Whenever the engine of my 1985 2.8 litre Oldsmobile Ciera warms up, it stalls at stop signs or stop lights. It also happens when the engine is turned on for a while, turned off and then restarted 10 or 15 minutes later. I've had the car in for a tune up and a new carburetor has been installed. I thought it might be the fuel pump. Any ideas?

A:—It could be the fuel pump that is causing the stalling problem with your Olds Ciera, but it's more likely that it is the carburetor. Even though you've had the carburetor replaced, you might want to take it back and make certain that it is set up to the latest GM specifications. Stalling in warm weather is a common problem and has generated a number of service bulletins for technicians. A well-equipped service centre should have information regarding the latest carburetor settings.

Those Spots on Your Driveway

(NC)—If fluids are leaking from your car, two things are certain: you need repairs and you're harming the environment. Here's a road-map to those bothersome stains which sometimes appear on the driveway:

Black or dark brown drippings = motor oil or grease
Yellow or green drippings = coolant or anti-freeze.
Pink or red drippings = transmission fluid.
Clear drippings = brake fluid, power-steering fluid or gasoline.

Avoiding the Money Drain

Cars can be a real drain on the pocket book. Here are some Auto Smart pointers on how to stem the flow:

• Don't top your tank up to the brim when buying gasoline. The excess fuel will likely spill out due to natural expansion.

• Change your oil and oil filter as scheduled. Oil breaks down under use and loses its capacity to lubricate, cool and protect your engine. Check your car owners manual for the recommended maintenance schedule, follow it, and your car will perform better.

• Don't rev the engine after starting up, or before shutting off, your car. It causes excessive wear, consumes fuel and increases the degradation of your engine oil.

• Keep your tires properly inflated for maximum fuel efficiency. Check them at home with a pressure gauge while the tires are still cold. Warm tires give an inaccurate reading because inflation pressure increases during use.

• Look for oil products marked "Energy Conserving II". They contain additives that increase fuel economy by as much as 3 percent.

The cost of cars

Owning a car is expensive. Fuel can easily cost $1,000 a year. Older cars usually need at least that for repairs. Then there's depreciation, insurance and licensing costs to worry about.

Cars also cost the environment. A growing number of Canadian cities have unhealthy air mainly because of vehicle exhaust. Smog, or "ground-level ozone" is a big problem. It forms when nitrogen oxides and other vehicle emissions combine in hot sunlight with fumes from unburned gasoline, paints and solvents. Long term exposure to ground-level ozone (or smog) can irritate the eyes and harm the lungs. Smog also damages trees and crops. Car exhaust also contributes to acid rain which kills plants and eats away buildings. Carbon dioxide (CO_2) from vehicles is a major contributor to global warming.

Yes, cars are costly. They can harm our physical and financial well-being, and the health of our environment. The best way to reduce expenditures and the massive amounts of CO_2 that go into the atmosphere every year, is for Canadians to get smart about how they drive, "Auto $mart". Consider the benefits: if 10 million drivers reduced their fuel consumption by just one tenth, the atmosphere would be spared over 5 million tonnes of carbon dioxide every year.

"Winds" The Gesture and the Grid

Extremes of powerful colour and transmission of motion in line.

May 25 to June 21st, 1997.

The public is invited to meet the artist at the: Opening Reception Sunday, May 25 from 2 - 4 p.m.

High energy and organic movement are evoked with explosive colour, contrasts and scale in Lazdins' rendering of natural forces and the individual engaged in self-perception. Darlene Lazdins graduated an Ontario Scholar from Eastdale C.V.I. then in 1974 received her bachelor of science in organic chemistry and philosophy from the University of Toronto and continued her studies in fine arts at the Banff School of Fine Arts, Sir Sandford Fleming College, and Sheridan College. After working in industry as a designer/illustrator in fashion, costume and textiles, Lazdins now devotes her time to her studio work in watermedia painting, printmaking, and sculptures as well as studies in movement and creativity. She has been involved in the development of multi-discipline art forms in performance.

Her current body of work includes the use of acrylic on transparent plastic surfaces, in two and three dimensional sculptural modes, drawings & acrylic canvas. This show, entitled "Winds", embodies the energy and efforts of various gestures in communication.

The Exhibition takes place at the Cornwall Regional Art Gallery, 164 Pitt Street Promenade. Gallery hours are Tuesday to Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

For further information please call the Gallery at 938-7387.

For The Environment

Canadians See Public Transit as Good Move

(NC)-OTTAWA—Recycling and composting spring to mind for many Canadians when asked how they could most improve their environmental performance but the number are looking at public transit as part of the answer is edging upward, judging from a 1995 Environics survey.

Fifteen percent of respondents thought increased transit use would be an option to driving their own car to reduce the negative environmental impact, up one percent from a 1993 survey. The most support for public transit as an option came from Toronto and Vancouver residents, 27 and 26 percent of the respondents respectively. Vancouver residents, along with people in Saskatchewan, also mentioned walking, biking and keeping their cars properly tuned as other actions they were likely to take to reduce pollution coming from car use.

Twenty percent said they would consider reduced driving to lessen the impact on the environment with younger respondents most likely to say they would consider other means of transportation.

Reducing reliance on personal automobiles is a key target for Environment Week. Since car emissions into the atmosphere outweigh the combined total for marine, rail and air transportation, the automobile is considered a major contributor to climate change.

In other areas of environmental protection, 35 percent of respondents across Canada said they could improve their efforts on recycling and composting. In Atlantic Canada, the percentage rose to 46 percent, followed by Quebec at 45 percent.

ENVIROfact

(NC)—About 11 percent of all carbon dioxide emissions—a major cause of climate change—in Canada are from cars and light trucks. You can help reduce those harmful emissions by walking for short trips and shutting off the engine when waiting. Cheaper, too.

(NC)—Smog can jeopardize human health. Breathing the dirty and polluted air can contribute to respiratory problems and can be worst on hot, sunny days .

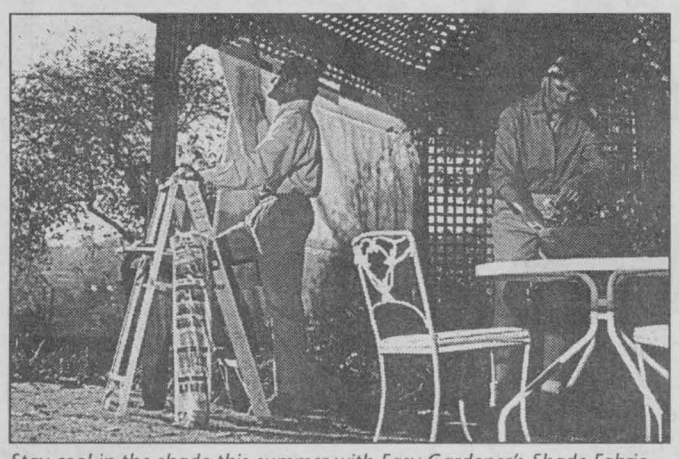
SPRING HOME IMPROVEMENT



Stay cool in the shade this summer with Easy Gardener's Shade Fabric.

Enjoy the Outdoors Longer

(MS) — Most lawn and garden enthusiasts love to be outdoors. Unfortunately, too much exposure to the elements, especially the sun, can be dangerous. However, there are new products available that allow people to spend a lot more time outside. These products are usually fabrics that can be used to create shade just about anywhere, from patios and porches to children's play areas and pet shelters.

One of the most common uses for the innovative shade cloth is to create a shaded, private area around decks, balcony patios or pools. Instead of building screened-in porches, many homeowners are starting to choose a shade cloth to close in areas. This multipurpose fabric can cool the areas it closes in by as much as 15 degrees, and it's easy to use even for those who aren't do-it-yourself types.

Some fabrics, like Easy Gardener's Shade Fabric, not only provide ample shade, but also block harmful UV rays. Shade Fabric allows consumers to enjoy the outdoors without suffering from overexposure to the sun or heat exhaustion. Those who use the product rave not only about the sun protection, but the privacy it provides and the protection from other elements, like wind.

This fabric is made with lock-stitch construction, a method of knitting that creates a finished look and provides greater resistance to tearing or fraying. The attractive fabric comes in a variety of colors and is extremely easy to maintain. To clean it, all people need to do is hose it down. Even in extremely wet conditions, the cloth deters mildew, because it is made with breathable material.

People love the versatility of Shade Fabric and have come up with endless ways to use it around the house. They use it as window awnings, over air-conditioning units, over pet houses, over swing sets and more. Several homeowners even have replaced their window screens with it and have found by doing so that they've been able to decrease their utility bills.

The product is already popular in those climates that experience extreme heat. However, people in the North and Midwest have found their own way to get the most out of shade cloth. They've started using it to place over plants, instead of burlap.

Found at most local garden centers, Shade Fabric is easy to use and comes with step-by-step instructions. The fabric can be applied to any type of frame and cut and shaped to any size.

Green and Growing

It IS Easy Being Green

By Dr. Ellen Henke
John Deere Lawn & Garden Expert

Most people work hard to keep their homes, cars and bodies in tip-top shape. Unfortunately, some people think that taking care of the lawn is just too difficult. It's not as difficult as you might think... in fact, it's easy being green. By following a few simple rules, you can take pride in your beautifully manicured lawn and be the envy of the neighborhood.

• Follow the John Deere One-Third Rule or use a mulching mower - this is also referred to as Grasscycling. By cutting only one-third of the grass blade at each mowing, you return short clippings to the lawn that contain important nutrients. Some folks scalp their lawns, letting their grass grow too high and then cutting it too low. This spells trouble for the root zone. Think of your lawn as a mirror of sorts. The higher the grass grows above ground, the deeper the roots spread below. So it's important not to cut your grass too short.

• Mow in a different direction each time to prevent a lean, and overlap your mowing paths two to four inches. Also turn the mower on the driveway, walkway or any other hard surface to prevent "scuffing" your grass.

• Keep the cutting blade sharp to avoid shredding grass tips. A dull blade can shred your grass, providing entryways for disease organisms that turn your grass brown.

• Learn the recommended cutting height for your variety of grass and try to mow on the high side of that level. For cool-season grasses, mow at 3 1/2 inches; 2 inches for warm-season grasses; and 3 inches for St. Augustine grass.

• Never mow when the lawn is wet. This can cause soil compaction, spread disease, and pull out grass plants.

You don't have to be an expert gardener or landscaper to create a beautiful, healthy lawn. With just a few simple techniques, you'll find it really is easy being green.

It's Backyard Improvement Time!

With the onset of spring and the promise of a good summer ahead, more and more homeowners are now planning their outdoor renovation projects.

Many reports have been published recently on the home renovation market. These studies show that people are and will continue to spend more of their disposable income on dressing up their yards for relaxing and for entertaining.

Few outdoor home improvements can match wood decks and backyard accessories for comfort, usefulness, beauty and enhanced value to a home. Whether you seek the added living space provided by decks, enhanced landscaping, playground structures, gardening areas or simply the functional benefits that fences, storage bins and other backyard projects can offer, long lasting pressure-treated lumber is an excellent choice as an outdoor building material. "Pressure-treated lumber has typically been purchased for backyard projects because it lasts outdoors and it's economical", says Roy Perkins, manager of Menard's Rona Home Centre.

Treated lumber comes from our only major renewable building material - wood. The trees used are plentiful and fast growing. Treated wood requires less energy to produce than alternative building products currently in the marketplace. "You can feel good about using pressure-treated lumber, an environmentally responsible choice", Perkins adds. "What's more, it has a proven performance record of safe use for over 60 years."

Wood has natural enemies and if left untreated is susceptible to rot and decay. The treatment process injects a waterborne preservative called CCA (Chromium Copper Arsenate) deep into the wood. This preservative reacts with natural constituents of wood in an automatic chemical reaction called fixation. Fixed preservative is bonded to the wood and is very leach-resistant. It renders the wood unsuitable as a food source for termites and fungi, thereby ensuring wood's structural soundness and extending its useful service life.

Your local lumber dealer probably carries building plans and books on building backyard projects and may well sponsor "How To Clinics" on building decks and fences. With your plans and material in hand, all you have to do is start building ...

Canada's Oceans Act Needs Your Support

Nature's Miracles by:
Monte Hummel
President of World Wildlife Fund Canada

Two giants peer at each other with eyes as big as soccer balls, positioning themselves in the darkness for the titanic struggle to come. The larger begins the contest by charging forward, its huge bulk accelerating surprisingly quickly. The second creature, though equipped with jet-propulsion, is not quite fast enough to evade the huge jaws. The battle continues for hours and eventually the larger of the two behemoths devours the smaller.

Such combats take place in the depths of the Atlantic Ocean, not far off the coast of Newfoundland. The victor is a 50-tonne Sperm Whale. His opponent, a one-tonne Giant Squid, is one of the least-understood animals in the sea.

Most of what is known about Giant Squids comes from dead specimens that occasionally wash ashore. The largest of these measured 17 metres from the end of its body to the tip of its tentacles - about the length of a tractor-trailer truck! They probably spend most of their time below 150 metres, and are only rarely spotted on the surface.

There is not doubt that the world's oceans hold many exotic forms of life in regions and at depths little explored by humans. How will we ever know what changes are occurring among forms of life we haven't yet observed?

Humans have long viewed the seas both as a limitless resource and as a limitlessly vast dumping ground. Before large-scale modern industry and explosive human population growth, about 150 years ago, nature could usually cope with the consequences of such an attitude. Now, however, nature can no longer endure our ignorance. Scientific research and recent fisheries experience show that the health of our oceans is deteriorating. Concerted efforts by all nations are urgently required to protect the large portion of our planet's surface that belongs to no one, but is the responsibility of us all.

Canada has the longest coastline in the world, with borders on three oceans - the Atlantic, Pacific and Arctic. The Canada Oceans Act, recently tabled in Parliament, provides for the establishment of a national system of Marine Protected Areas (MPA's). MPA's are essential for restoring and maintaining the health of our oceans.

However, it is crucial that these protected areas be established as soon as possible to avoid further serious problems. The disappearance of Atlantic Cod and Pacific Salmon is an early warning that we must heed.

Windows

How can consumers determine the energy efficiency of particular windows?

To evaluate the energy efficiency of various brands of a particular type of window, consider their ratings according to the Canadian Energy Rating (ER) System. The ER system has been adopted by the Canadian Standards Association. It is also used by the Canadian Window and Door Manufacturers Association (CWDMA).

The ER system rates windows based on three factors: solar gain (ability to capture the sun's heat), transmission loss (insulation capability) and infiltration loss (ability to resist air leakage). The rating ranges from -50 to +15, with 0 being a 'neutral' window - a window that captures as much heat as it releases to the outside over the course of the heating season. A plus (+) rating indicates that the window actually admits more heat than it releases. Look for a CWDMA certification label which gives the ER rating.

Specific ratings (ERS) have been established in order to make it easier to select the optimum window type for the climate, house type, window size and orientation for a specific house. These ratings are useful for special applications such as ultra low energy or passive solar homes.

There is also an R-value system which is familiar to most homeowners concerned with home insulation. The R-value system rates windows on a scale of R-1 to R-5, based on insulating properties. This system is not as useful as the ER system, however, since it evaluates only the glass, not the frame, spacers or the amount of air infiltration.

If You Have a Pool, You Have A Party!!

BioGuard

If you have a pool, you have a party!

(NC)—What's summer without a pool party? Hot summer nights, good friends and good food are a natural combination. But what does it take to make an excellent party? Follow these tips, add friends, food and a pool, and you have the recipe for a good time.

First, make a list and check it twice. Start with the day of the party and work backwards. Include all of the jobs that need to be done no matter how small. For example, clean the house, buy groceries, make a guest list, etc. Check each item off as you complete it, and don't forget to revise your list if your remember something you missed the first time your wrote it.

Make sure you plan your party two to three weeks in advance. It isn't necessarily what you do at the party, but what you plan for before the party that says "success". The easiest way to get started is create a theme. Still have those tacky trinkets your great aunt sent you from her last vacation to the South Seas? Put them to good use and have a luau. Build your atmosphere around what you have and what you can make. Get creative and have fun, after all this is a party. Don't forget the lighting. Lighting is important to create an atmosphere, but remember to be sure and have enough light for midnight dips, especially if your guests are unfamiliar with your backyard and pool area.

Plan activities around your theme. Get your guests involved by starting a conga line, or have a costume contest, and prizes for just about everything. The prizes don't have to cost a lot. Use your imagination and visit the local craft, party depot or hobby store. Just keep your theme in mind when picking your party favors and invitations, and make sure your send the invitations to guests one week to 10 days in advance.

Don't forget to have enough chairs, cutlery, etc. Phone around; some rent-all centres will rent you just about everything you will need. Budget not only your expenses, but your time as well. Arrange pickup well in advance of the guests arrival, and give yourself and hour to relax before the party.

The menu is almost as important as the guests. Buffets are the easiest and allow you to mingle rather than be chained in the kitchen. Try to develop a menu that includes dishes you fix ahead of time. Do as much preparing as possible before the guests arrive, such as chopping vegetables, and mixing the punch. If you plan to serve a new recipe, give it a try before you use your guests as guinea pigs. You'll be glad you did.

Last but not least, clean the pool. Nothing will spoil your party faster than a dirty pool. Set-up a regular maintenance plan that will save you time and money. Contact your professional pool care centre for products and tips to keep your pool the life of the party. BioGuard Authorized Dealers offer a pool maintenance package that makes cleaning the pool as easy as 1-2-3. The Smart Sticks®. sanitizer will kill bacteria continuously for a week. For most pools it's a once-a-week application into your pool's skimmer basket where it can last twice as long as other compressed chlorine products.

Now that the hard part is done, party on! That's what your pool was made for.

Landscape Secrets of the Pros Help Do-It-Yourselfers Fight Weeds

(MS) — You pride yourself on being a do-it-yourselfer, but you just can't seem to figure out how professional landscapers keep the weeds out of landscape beds and individual trees and shrubs. You've tried laying down black plastic, but all you manage to come up with is torn plastic, soured soil and mildew, not to mention the weeds.

For many gardeners, however, those days are over, because they've discovered what the pros have known for years. Instead of laying black plastic in beds, they now are using landscape fabric.

One of the most widely used fabrics is WeedBlock from Easy Gardener Inc. Those who use it say that the product has enjoyed such popularity because of its results. The fabric can last for several years in direct exposure to the sun. Because of its durability, it not only keeps out weeds, but allows consumers more free time to simply enjoy their landscapes.

Unlike the old black plastic, landscape fabric permits the flow of water and air through the material, while at the same time blocking out the light that weeds need to grow.

The maker of WeedBlock says that the product is made of UV-treated polyethylene with microfunnels that allow a free flow of air, water and nutrients to the soil while blocking out sunlight and weeds. Because of its construction, the fabric also encourages root growth by keeping the soil moist and cool.

Another benefit that has made landscape fabrics so popular is that they actually help homeowners to conserve water. By covering and cooling the soil, fabrics minimize evaporation and block weed growth. As a result, outdoor watering can be reduced by as much as 50 percent.

Keep your landscape beds weed-free with Easy Gardener's WeedBlock landscape fabric.

With all of the benefits of landscape fabric, it's no wonder the pros have such wonderful results. One of the very best things about the fabric, though, is that you don't have to be a pro to use it, because it's so simple to install. All you do is spread the fabric over the plants, cut an "X" to the size of the plants and pull the fabric down around the plants. Then, you spread mulch, bark or stone over the fabric.

Luckily for home gardeners, landscape fabrics can be found at most local garden centers, hardware stores and chain retailers.

Home Renovating Tip

Choosing the right type of stain for your wood deck will add years to the results.

(NC)—On horizontal surfaces such as decks, do not use latex stains. They do not penetrate and will wear through quickly under foot traffic. Use a semi-transparent alkyd stain to penetrate the wood and let the beauty of the grain show through.

CCA pressure treated lumber can be painted or stained when dry. Allow two months before coating with alkyd or latex products.

Wood uses little energy to manufacture, and it is the only building material that is renewable. Can we afford to make any other choice?

Around the Counties

Johnson Road to be Re-Paved

Council recently voted to spend $768,000 on work to pulverize, stabilize, pave, and improve sight lines on some of the hills on County Road 19 (Johnson Road) in Charlottenburgh Township. Counties Engineer, D.J. McDonald, told council that the road was one of several which has been identified as needy during the annual spring roads tour for the past three years.

Vandals Damage Rink

South Mountain - The local community parks have seen a serious problem of vandalism over the past few months. Youths have vandalized the rink buildings in South Mountain, Inkerman and Hallville.

Windows and doors have been smashed in an attempt to enter the rink facilities and do further damage.

$500. to $600. in damages happened when vandals used a hammer to smash the lock on the inside door of the rink building in South Mountain, they then lit part of a table on fire, wrote obscenities on the wall and used a hockey stick to break through the canteen into the storage room.

Vandals in Hallville smashed a hole in one of the outside windows of the rink building and cracked another.

In Inkerman, vandals broke holes through the walls of the new rink building.

Is Group Insurance Enough?

MONEY TALK

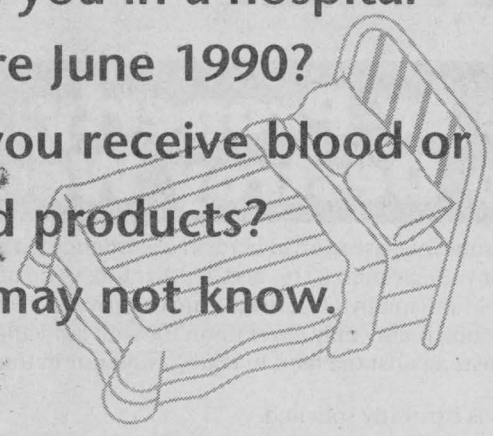
(NC)—Generally, an employer's group life insurance policy is an "off the rack" purchase providing basic coverage. But, it may not necessarily meet all your individual needs. That's why it's important to have individual life insurance that is separate from your work policy.

Explains Tanis Dal Zotto, marketing manager with CIBC Insurance®: "A group policy is owned and controlled by a sponsor—usually an employer or an association—so you have little control over it."

Many situations could arise—the group policy could be cancelled by the sponsor or insurance company; it could be suspended during a strike; or if your employer is going through difficult times, it could even be cut.

You could also lose your group policy if you leave or lose your job. You are able to convert all or part of your group coverage to an individual policy under the same insurer, but cost and coverage are dictated by the group plan rather than by your needs. Keep in mind that if your health has deteriorated since your group coverage began, conversion may be your best option in this situation.

Were you in a hospital before June 1990? Did you receive blood or blood products? You may not know.



In the past, HIV and Hepatitis C infections could be acquired through exposure to blood or certain blood products.

If you, or any member of your family were in hospital before June 1990, and if your are concerned that you may have received blood or blood products, please contact your family doctor for more information.

If you do not have a family doctor, please contact the hospital in which you, or your family member, were a patient.

What Policy is Best for You?

There are many types of policies, and each has a role.

Life insurance of one type or another is a key element in your financial security. It's also a major factor to those who survive you, whether you have a family, or are single, or older and living alone. What life insurance you have, or should have, all depends on your situation and on your plans for the future.

There are two basic types of life insurance: permanent insurance that provides protection for life; and term insurance that provides insurance coverage for a specific number of years. Both types pay a death benefit if you should die with the policy still in force.

Whole life is a common permanent policy that provides a guaranteed death benefit, expressed as face amount, for premiums that are usually guaranteed to remain level regardless of age or health changes throughout your life. Whole life policies often pay dividends. These also accumulate a cash value that may be borrowed against, used to continue coverage if premiums are missed, or withdraws if you cancel the policy.

Universal life is a permanent interest-sensitive policy that is more flexible and is divided into basic insurance and an investment account. You can decide how much goes into each and increase or decrease your premiums and the death benefits within some limitations. Premiums and benefits can be readjusted at specified periods, depending on your insurance needs and on what choices you make in the investment side of the policy.

Variable life is another permanent life insurance. Premiums are usually guaranteed in these policies; however, the cash values vary based on the performance of an investment fund or other index. The death benefits may either be guaranteed or vary, depending on the fund's performance, subject to a guaranteed minimum.

Term-to-100 policies are often seen as permanent insurance but their main characteristics are similar to other term insurance policies. Most term-to-100 plans don't build cash values or pay dividends. These provide a death benefit to age 100, if the policy is kept in force, and have level premiums, regardless of changes in age or health.

Basic term insurance policies are generally for a specified period, such as one, five, ten or more years, or to a specified age. These contracts tend to have lower premiums while the policy owner is young, but when renewed for an additional term period, the premiums can rise significantly. Term policies are ideal to cover large obligations over a short period when funds available for insurance are small. Most term policies can be converted to a permanent policy under certain conditions.

Because of the many options available in life insurance policies, a knowledgeable, trained life insurance agent or broker is invaluable in finding the right policy plan to meet your present and future needs most effectively.

CUBA Midget Girls Travelling Team

Cornwall Lion's Midget Girls Travelling basketball team finished their year with a strong showing in the provincial championships in Richmond Hill. The Lions finished their regular season by beating Smiths Falls 43-36. This win moved the Lions from twelfth to ninth place in Eastern Ontario.

The Lions then won a consolation Bronze medal in the Eastern Ontario Championships. In the first game, Kemptville out-scored the Lions by 59-47. Kanata then won the second game by 42-33. The Lions then beat Ottawa Shootting Stars 44-35 and won the medal by beating Gananoque in a text book finish. The Lions used time outs and fouls to gain position of the ball and outscored Gananoque 7 to 1 in the last 40 seconds of the game to win by a final score of 38-37.

In the Provincial Championships, the Lions again lost the first game to Gloucester by a score of 45-37. They then beat Guelph in a close game and defeated Thunder Bay by a score of 51-26 in their third game. This put the Lions in second place in their pool and forced them to play a first place team in the quarter final game. The Lions lost this hard fought game to Niagara Falls Rangers by two points.

After getting off to a slow start and only winning 5 of their first 22 games, the improved Lions won 12 of their last 21 games. Most of the Midget Lions will move on to compete for positions on the Juvenile team next year. The four returning players will have to lead the way on a rookie laden team.

Celebrate Water Safety Week June 1-7, 1997

(NC)—Summer is a time for swimming, boating or exploring shorelines for many Canadians. Thankfully, most of these people will give some thought to water safety. Unfortunately some will not.

Drowning is one of the leading causes of unintentional injury death for Canadians aged 1 to 44 years old. More drownings occur during the summer months than at any other time of year. Almost all of these deaths could be prevented.

This is why the Canadian Red Cross has declared June 1 to 7, 1997 National Water Safety Week.

With support from the Canadian Tire Child Protection Foundation, participating Canadian Tire Associate Stores across the country will host Red Cross PFD clinics June 7 and 8. At the clinics, Red Cross staff and volunteers will provide information and assistance to select the best PFD for you and your family.

The Red Cross encourages parents to make sure their children wear PFDs at all times when in on or around the water.

"While a PFD can never take the place of adult supervision, it can help protect a child from unexpected slips and falls," explains Beth Clark, Red Cross National Coordinator Water Safety Services. And it is important that adults set an example by wearing their own PFD's.

Wise treatment of PFDs

Your PFD will be a friend for life if you treat it well

DO:

- Let it dry before stowing.
- Store in a cool, well ventilated area.
- Always make sure it is easily accessible.
- Wear it

CHECK FOR:

- Rips, tears and holes.
- Damage to seams, buckles and straps.
- Any Signs of water logging, mildew, shrinkage or hardening of buoyant materials. Fit and floatation performance.

DON'T:

- Use harsh cleaners.
- Use direct heat to dry your PFD.
- Use it for cushion, kneeling pad or boat fender.
- Leave shore without it.

Make your choice, then wear it!

So you have decided to wear a PFD this summer—a wise choice! But how do you choose the right one for you and your family?

A PFD is designed to keep a conscious person's head out to the water in calm conditions. PFDs are more comfortable to wear for active water sports because they allow for greater movement.

A Lifejacket is designed to turn most unconscious persons into a face-up, head-out-of-the-water position. Lifejackets have more buoyancy than PFD's, but they are bulky and less comfortable to wear.

Friskies ask the VET

Q I just moved to a new community. How do I choose a veterinarian?

A Choosing a healthcare professional of any sort takes some careful research. The ideal vet is a caring, intelligent, up-to-date person whose clinic meets your needs for the healthy upkeep of your pets. The clinic should be people friendly as well as pet-friendly.

Ask for recommendations from friends, neighbours, co-workers or your previous vet. Once you have a few names, call to ask for a tour and to meet the professional staff, avoiding peak office hours. Once there, examine the cleanliness and smell of the clinic, size of the cages and overall attitude of the staff towards the animals in their care. Ask about availability, appointments and what is done in case of emergencies when the clinic is closed.

Talk to the vet about health care issues that are important to you to see if your approaches match. Make sure the veterinarian meets your needs as well as those of your pets.

Tips } Cats require diets that are significantly higher in fat than dog foods since a lot of their energy is derived from fat.

CAS Bike-A-Thon

The 13th Annual CAS Bike-A-Thon will be held on Saturday, May 31st, 1997 said Mr. Frank Holiday, Chair of the Bike-A-Thon committee. As in the past, anyone who wishes to take part in the Bike-A-Thon can do so as a cyclist, walker, runner or jogger. The Bike-A-Thon will officially start from Blessed Sacrament Church at 9:00 a.m. for cyclists and 9:15 for walkers, joggers and runners.

Getting ready for the test run for the upcoming Bike-A-Thon are some of the members of the committee, Patricia Garrahan, Angie Baker, "Cookie" Kalsi, Peggy Carvell, Frank Holiday and Stewart MacDonald.

Ms. Patricia Garrahan, a Social Worker at the CAS and member of the Bike-A-Thon Committee stated that the success of the Bike-A-Thon for the past twelve years was the result of the collaborative effort of many individuals and groups in Cornwall and in the Counties of S.D. & G. She further stated that as in the past nine years, part of the proceeds from this event will be used to provide therapeutic counselling to abused children and their families. The remainder of the proceeds, she said, will be used by the Society for programs and activities which directly benefit children and their families.

The Bike-A-Thon, Mr. Holiday stated, is organized as a fun event in which the whole family, friends and colleagues are invited to participate. "Anyone who wishes to participate," he added "can do so as an individual cyclist, walker, runner or jogger, or can form a team of 4 or 5 members and participate in this friendly Challenge Cup competition as well as compete for a trophy in the divisional championship. The winner in each division will be selected based on the number of total points. Each team will receive one point for every $10.00 of pledges deposited and one point for each check point crossed.

Mr. Holiday said, "This year again we will be continuing the tradition we established in 1996 of presenting the Spirit Award in memory of the late Michelle Rochett-Dupuis, a regular participant in the CAS Bike-A-Thon and a former volunteer for the Society". The Spirit Award, he stated, is presented to the school that displays the most spirit by its participation in this fundraising project for the CAS. The winner of the Spirit Award last year was St. Joseph's Secondary School.

The participants in the Bike-A-Thon have the chance of winning a number of valuable prizes. These prizes include "a cash prize of $500.00 donated by Bell; $250.00 worth of groceries donated by Loeb Seaway and one ten-speed bicycle donated by Wal-Mart. There is also an Early Bird Draw, a cash prize of $300.00 donated by Craig, Gareau, Keen Despatie and Markell, Chartered Accountants. For every $10.00 donation, the participant deposits, he or she gets a chance to win one of the above prizes. "For example, a participant who deposits $100.00 in donations will have 10 chances or 10 tickets for the draws", said Mr. Holiday.

VON Makes Donation to Cornwall Public Library

In your May 18th edition, you had an item about what someone heard on a Peterborough radio station. You dated the comment as between 7:15 and 7:30 a.m. on Monday, May 12th (presumably this year).

On Thursday evening, at the Green Room after that evening's performance of the Theatre Ontario Festival, a few of us met Jack Roe, the News Director for the Peterborough stations. He said, with some vehemence, that he was on the station during the period mentioned and that there was no comment putting down Cornwall. He was pretty distressed that what he had said about HIS upper respiratory tract illness had been misquoted.

I'm writing this on behalf of those of us who met Jack and promised that we would call this unfortunate incident to your attention.

The Standard Freeholder's assertion in a recent editorial saying "that Ontario now has the distinction of being the only jurisdiction in North America which allows women to go topless in public ... WRONG!! Just Look Across The Border.

In People v. Santorelli (July 7, 1992), the New York Court of Appeals ruled that penal law section 245.01 does not prohibit a female from exposing her breasts in a public place provided the exposure is not lewd and not commercial. In Santorelli, several female defendants were arrested after removing their tops in a public park and exposing their breasts. The court held that penal law section 245.01 is not applicable to that conduct.

Accordingly, while penal law section 245.01 remains valid, it does not prohibit women from exposing their breasts in a public place if the exposure is not done for financial benefit and not done in a lewd manner. Penal law section 245.01 still prohibits exposure of private or intimate body parts in a public place by either males or females regardless of whether the exposure is lewd of commercial.

A woman found a bedraggled bird on her porch after a storm. She called information and asked for the number of the Audubon Society. She dialed and heard a man say, "Audubon."

"I've got this sick bird," she said, "and I don't know what to do with it."

"How old is it," the man asked.

"I don't know."

"What seems to be the problem?"

"It's listless - doesn't fly."

"Sounds like it could be losing compression. You'd better bring it in."

"What's your address?"

"Auto Barn, madam. Car repairs."

Caller wishes to express concern about the plastic coverings on baby carriages. Why is the consumer not informed of any dangers (if any)???

Annette, Emilie, Yvonne, Cecile and Marie Dionne, the first surviving quintuplets in history, were born on May 28th, 1934, in Corbeil, Ontario. The girls were moved at the age of four months to a specially built home, where they were placed under the government-appointed guardianship of Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe.

Topless swimmers!

First it was breastfeeding in public, then waitresses showing nipples at local bars and topless hairdressers. Now topless swimmers in public pools, out in the open for everyone to gawk at, even our children.

What next ... maybe bare bottoms for everyone to see. At least the string bikini left a bit to the imagination. Now, men won't have to imagine at all! They won't need strip bars. Soon they'll be able to view the sights right from their front verandahs. Can't blame them!!

Another thought for the week ... In one way, death is not an enemy of life but a friend because it limits our years and therefore, makes them more precious.

Joshua Liebman.

How come the Freeholder's "Last Word" took two pages?

My sympathy goes out to the unfortunate lady (no acquaintance) that has been assessed one hundred dollars recently for purchasing cigarettes for her almost 19-year old son. I dare say the courageous enforcement officers will be commended for stopping such a heinous crime ... sick - sick - society.

Did you know ... in 1986, Sharon Wood of Halifax, Nova Scotia, became the first North American woman to climb Mount Everest. She was part of a twelve-person team to reach the peak on May 20th, after a grueling two-month climb.

In your May 18th edition, your "hats off" to George Runions for his yearly clean up of his road should have read ... "hats off" to GLEN RUNIONS ...

We live on the same road and we appreciate all Glen does as do the rest of the neighbours.

The Ontario Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, Cornwall Chapter, is $700. richer thanks to all involved with their trunk sale, held recently at the Cornwall Civic Complex. They will be continuing their fundraising efforts this weekend at Wal-Mart. "All for the Animals"

A U.S. tidbit of news for our readers ... Give your insurance a vacation. While on vacation this year, our insurance company let us suspend the collision and liability portions of our coverage for the week the cars were not in use. Just ask your insurance company if you can do the same. It saved us more than $60.

HOROSCOPES

May 25-31

Aries – March 21/April 20

Now is the time to make your move at work. Telling the right people about your ideas puts you in the spotlight — and in line for a promotion. Don't be nervous. Your family is behind you for support. A close friend is there for you when you have a romantic problem.

Taurus – April 21/May 21

Be bullish when it comes to meeting new people on Tuesday. Someone who has a lot of influence in the business world will enter your life and present you with a golden opportunity. Don't let it slip away. Loved ones will need your support later in the week. Be there for them.

Gemini – May 22/June 21

It's your turn to shine this week. Your personality wins you favor at work, and you make a lasting impression on a superior. As for romance, your personal life sparkles too. An old friend comes back into your life and introduces you to someone special.

Cancer – June 22/July 22

Work gets hectic this week, but don't worry. While you may be overwhelmed at times, you can handle the pressure. Just try to remain calm — even if everything seems to be going crazy. A loved one turns to you in a time of need. Be yourself, and he or she will get all of the support that he or she needs.

Leo – July 23/August 23

You feel more like a lamb than a lion this week, but don't get discouraged. This feeling of insecurity will pass by Friday, and you'll be back to your old self again. Look to a close friend for an encouraging word; he or she will help you keep your chin up. Don't be too shy to strike up a conversation with a co-worker; it could lead to an interesting date.

Virgo – Aug 24/Sept 22

The pressure is off of you this week at work. All of your hard work pays off, and the higher-ups finally notice you. Enjoy it, but don't become overconfident. You'll still have to work hard to stand out among your co-workers in the future. That special someone finally makes a move.

Libra – Sept 23/Oct 23

You're in the money this week. You finally finish a project at work, which wins you compliments from co-workers. Your love life blossoms as a friend of a friend asks you out. This is the perfect opportunity to let your personality shine.

Scorpio – Oct 24/Nov 22

Things start to get to you at work this week. It seems as if everyone is against you and everything you do is wrong. Don't get too disheartened. Take some time off to collect your thoughts. A little relaxation is just what you need to rejuvenate yourself.

Sagittarius – Nov 23/Dec 21

Be careful when making important decisions late in the week. Think things through thoroughly, and don't make any hasty decisions. Ask for advice from loved ones if it makes you feel better. A stranger introduces himself or herself to you when you're out with friends. Take it slowly.

Capricorn – Dec 22/Jan 20

You get the green light to move ahead on an important project at work this week. If you act like a professional — and don't become a control freak — you can have a lasting impact on the company. A loved one takes up most of your free time taking care of a personal problem. Don't get upset; just be supportive.

Aquarius – Jan 21/Feb 18

Life is on the upswing this week. Everything goes well at work, and your manager even comments on your progress. Superiors have their eye on you. As for romance, your new attitude pays off when it comes to the opposite sex. Your phone will be ringing off the hook.

Pisces – Feb 19/March 20

You feel like a fish out of water early in the week. While you go through the same daily routine as always, things will seem different, and you'll feel out of place. Don't get worried. The feeling will pass by the end of the week. Just try to stay focused and relaxed.

Extremes and contrasts - life is full of them. Two of mankinds most pressing problems seem to be how to keep half the population from starting and the other half from being over weight.

A big bouquet of flowers to Laura, the waitress at Miss Cornwall Restaurant, who served us breakfast on Thursday, May 15th, at 10:30 a.m. She is always so pleasant and because it was our Wedding Anniversary, she even sang us "Happy Anniversary". Thank you, you made our day!!

Caller upset with all the publicity and contests held during Secretaries' Week. It was Florence Nightingale's birthday on May 12th, which is why they dedicate that week to nurses and there was not mention anywhere of "Nurses' Week". They should receive the same recognition as secretaries.

To all the Cornwall residents who still have Christmas decorations in the windows ... I know the weather has not been very warm lately, but really, Christmas is over. It's time for them to come down. Get with it!!

Here are some translations that describe our job performance review to help us understand better what they mean:

- Gets along extremely well with superiors and subordinates alike: "A coward"
- Slightly below average: "Stupid"
- A great value to the organization: "Turns in work on time"
- Is unusually loyal: "Wanted by no one else"

Congratulations goes out to a 13-year old Akwesasne resident, Amber General, for earning a Silver Medal at the Canada-Wide Science Fair held in Regina, Saskatchewan recently, for her study of air pollutants. She is hoping to turn her love for the environment and astronomy into a successful career. Good luck Amber!!

WE WERE HONOURED LAST WEEK AS BEING CHOSEN ONE OF "THE BEST FREE THINGS ON THE WEB" BY GOLD LEAF WEB MEDIA BASED IN CALIFORNIA. MANY THANKS!

The following memorandum was sent to Hospital staff at a Cleveland Ohio Hospital... It's been a hit everywhere.

To: All Hospital Staff
From Administration / Grounds keeping
Date: May 16, 1997
Re: New Cost Cutting Measures

Effective January 1 this hospital will no longer provide security. Each charge nurse will be issued a .38 caliber revolver and 12 rounds of ammunition. An additional 12 rounds will be stored in the pharmacy. In addition to routine nursing duties, Charge Nurses will rotate the patrolling of the hospital grounds. A bicycle and helmet will be provided for patrolling the park areas. In light of the similarity of monitoring equipment, ICU will now take over the security surveillance duties. The unit secretary will be responsible for watching cardiac and security monitors as well as continuing previous secretarial duties.

Food service will be discontinued. Patients wishing to be fed will need to let their families know to bring something, or may make arrangements with Subway, Domino's, etc., before meal time. Coin-operated phones will be available in the patient rooms for this purpose as well as for other calls the patient may wish to make.

Housekeeping and physical therapy are being combined. Mops will be issued to those patients who are ambulatory, thus providing range-of-motion exercise as well as a clean environment. Families of ambulatory patients may also sign up to clean the rooms of non-ambulatory patients for special discounts for their final bill. Time cards will be provided.

As you can see in the "FROM" line above, administration is assuming grounds keeping duties. If an administrator cannot be reached by calling his/her office it is suggested that you walk outside and listen for the sound of a lawn mower, weed whacker, etc.

Engineering is being eliminated. The hospital has subscribed to the TIME LIFE "How to..." series of maintenance books. These books can be checked out from administration, and a toolbox will be standard equipment on all nursing units. We will be receiving the series at the rate of one volume every other month. We already have the volume on Basic Wiring, but if a non-electrical problem occurs, please try to handle it as best you can until the appropriate volume arrives.

Cutbacks in the phlebotomy staff will be accommodated by only performing blood-related lab tests on patients who are already bleeding. Physicians will be informed that they may order no more than two x-rays per patient stay. This is due to the turnaround time required by Wal-Mart's photolab. Two prints will be provided for the price of one, and physicians are being advised to clip coupons from the Sunday paper if they want extra sets. Wal-Mart will honor competitor's coupons for one-hour processing in emergency situations, so if you come across any coupons, please clip them and send them to the ER.

In light of the extremely hot summer temperature the electric company has been asked to install individual meters in each patient room, office, etc., so that the electrical consumption can be monitored and appropriately billed. Fans will be available for sale or lease in the hospital gift shop.

In addition to the current recycling program, a bin for the collection of unused fruit and bread will soon be provided on each floor. Families, patients and the few remaining employees are encouraged to contribute discarded produce. The resulting moldy compost will be utilized by the pharmacy for noncosomial production of antibiotics. The antibiotics will also be available for purchase through the hospital pharmacy and will, coincidentally, soon be the only antibiotics listed in the HMO's formulary.

ENERGY FACTS

(NC) - Nuclear technology could soon help make airline travel a little safer by the use of devices that search for explosive materials in baggage. A number of radiation-based techniques have been developed, or are being considered, to detect small amounts of explosives in bags that are checked at the airline gate or are carried on board. Researchers are exploring ways to use nuclear technology to produce a device that does the job quickly, with a high success rate and a low rate of false alarms.

(NC) - Great architectural treasures are being eaten away by acid rain, produced by the burning of fossil fuels. St. Paul's Cathedral in London, the Taj Mahal in India and Notre Dame in Paris are among the world-famous monuments under attack. Ancient statues in Rome have experienced more damage since 1950 than they did during the previous 2000 years.

SEAWAY NEWS ENTERTAINMENT

Between the fishing, watching the Stanley Cup-TV action, and all that election rating, debating, and prognosticating, I still managed to squeeze in a few home chores. Mebbe now we will start getting some appropriate spring weather. At least we are not shovelling that white stufff like Calgarians were forced to do again this week. Stop and think about it for a moment folks, we are just about through the first five months of 1997. Is it my imagination or is it sneaking past us all too quickly?

He's back!

Yes Jamie Wood returns to his native Cornwall with his bag of songs and will be appearing at the GLENGARRIAN PUB & RESTAURANT until this Saturday. Meanwhile, waiting in the wings and warming up for the coming weekend, is HADRIAN'S WALL on Friday, May 30, and MIKE McANANY on Saturday.

Well it's now official that Branch 297, Cornwall Legion, in conjunction with the Cornwall & District Multi-Cultural Council, will be staging a an "ETHNIC DAY" to usher in Legion Week '97. It is hoped that representatives from all ethnic groups in Cornwall will be participating with their songs, dances and foods. Particularly during the opening of the event at 3:00pm on Sunday, September 14. The march to the Legion will be followed by a buffet supper at approximately 5:30pm. Then a dance with some terrific dance music, including some selections with an international flavor, will start at 7:00pm until 11pm. Any interested group planning on taking part are asked to contact either Legion Branch 297.

This is the long holiday weekend in the United States as they celebrate their MEMORIAL DAY. Happy Day to all our American friends and please drive carefully and watch for the folks on the crowded highways.

Still time to take advantage of those taste tempting specials offered until the end of May at EAST END RESTAURANT at Eastcourt Mall on Second Street East. Count them...there are 12 Specials, like pork chops, rainbow trout, chicken brochette, green pepper steak, filet of sole, rib steak, baked ravioli and other great items. The meal includes soup, dessert, coffee or tea. East End Restaurant also reminds everyone about their all-you-can-eat buffet every Saturday between 5pm-8pm and their Sunday Brunch between 10am-2pm.

One event that I look forward too, and participate in every year, is the annual LANCASTER PIKE TOURNAMENT. Due to some other commitments this year I was only able to fish on Sunday of the two-day derby. I didn't finish in the top ten prize grouping but enjoyed my day on the St.Lawrence River. I do have a bone to pick with the organizers of this event and also the Long Sault Walleye Derby scheduled sometime this month, and it's not a fishbone. Readers here will attest to the regular coverage I give to each of these events, and all I ask in return is that someone keep in touch, especially with the results, including possibly a photo, of the tourney. To be sure this year I asked several members of the Lancaster event to call-in the names in time for publication this week. NO PHOTO...NO NAMES. Sorry folks but mebbe you can take it up with the Lancaster Fish & Game Club. All I can report is that ,despite some rough weather on opening day on Saturday, the event drew another large contingent of hardy anglers. Congrats to the "winners".....whoever you are! Same thing goes for the Long Sault Walleye event. Too late for this year again, at least to plug the derby here, so please think about us, and your event, for next time.

The 1997 version of the 9th annual variety show staged by the Seaway Seniors Club, "THERE'S NO BUSINESS LIKE SHOW BUSINESS", takes to the stage at Aultsville Theatre at St.Lawrence College this Saturday, May 24th for two shows at 1:30 and 7:30pm. They tell me this year's production is a real "topper". Good Luck folks and "break a leg".

Just before the NHL Stanley Cup playoffs started, some prominent sports reporter touted in a circulated press story, perhaps you read it, that he predicted a final best-of-seven series between Colorado Avalanche and New York Rangers. When I read that I immediately thought the reverse would be true. That is that their opponents in the semi-final round, Detroit Red Wings and Philly Flyers would emerge to play for the coveted cup. How about you? Are you rootin' for the so-called underdogs too. The semi's are far from over but I too will go out on that proverbial limb and call the Flyers to meet, and beat, the Wings in Six! I know you could care less about my prediction, but the thoughts of Big Eric Lindros, Hextall and all, bumping it out with Scotty Bowman's Can-Am-Ruskie Wings could be an exciting finale. Couple weeks will tell the story.

Congratulations and Good Luck to all the good folks at the MOOSE CREEK MALL as they continue to celebrate their 18th Anniversary with specials throughout the Mall. While we are out in the area we should also say "Welcome Back" to the folks at THE HUB OF GLENGARRY on Main Street in Alexandria. They recently re-opened their Restaurant & Pub with a whole new menu and some great specials offered. I dropped by couple days ago and tried their Burger Platter. Good food, good service and at a good price too. They also invite you to try their all-you-can-eat family buffet served every Friday & Saturday night in the Pub between 5pm-10pm. Welcome back "Hubbers"!!

Big movie fare at the theatre's this week with THE LOST WORLD JURASSIC PARK, AUSTIN POWERS, and THE FIFTH ELEMENT showing at Brookdale Cinemas at the Brookdale Mall. VOLCANO and ANACONDA are featured at the Colonial Drive-in and ROMY AND MICHELE'S HIGH SCHOOL REUNION is playing at the Port Theatre.

Topless wimmin' swimmin' in Ottawa? Didja read about that decision by the Ottawa City Council? Could be debated here too. I'm told the local press will keep us abreast of the situation.

Gotta go, G'Day and G'Night.

Worldfest Update

Host Families & Volunteers

We will be having a meeting for all host families and volunteers on Thursday, May 29th. It will take place at Chateau Cornwall at 7:30 p.m. We are expecting approximately 200 performers for this summer's Worldfest and we will be requiring upwards of 100 host families. All host families - past, present and possible interested - are encouraged to attend. We have definites on the countries which will be attending the festival - Bulgaria, Cyprus, Norway, France and Spain - and anyone who is interested in hosting a specific country is encouraged to attend the meeting so that their special request can be noted. Worldfest will be held between July 9th - 13th and performers will begin arriving on the 7th and 8th of July. Host families are required to provide nightly accommodation plus breakfast for their billets. For further information, hosts may attend the meeting on May 29th, or call the Worldfest office at 936-2222. The office is open Monday - Friday, between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Adopt-A-Dancer
Adopt-A-Group

Also, this year are two brand-new programs: Adopt-A-Dancer and Adopt-A-Group. The first program, Adopt-A-Dancer, gives those individuals who might like to host, but can't for various reasons, an incredible evening. For just a $25.00 donation, they'll receive two passes to the Kinsmen Rendezvous Tent the night their dancers perform, an opportunity to meet them at a special gathering afterwards in the tent, plus a tax receipt for the donation.

Adopt-A-Group is a wonderful idea for businesses that are looking to contribute to the community and do something special for their employees at the same time. It's an expensive endeavor to feed all of our performers during the week-long festival. With this idea in mind, for only a $200.00 donation, their sponsorship will feed an entire group for one day. In return, they will receive a tax receipt, 10 tent passes the evening the group performs, and invitations for everyone to attend a special gathering with the group afterwards. For more information on both of these programs, please contact the Worldfest office or attend the meeting on May 29th.
